. . . Son of a gun . . .

The recently stepped-up activity of the fogging machine operated by the city is part of an all-out campaign to rid the community of flies and thereby lower chance of a typhoid outbreak here, according to R. M. McCarver, superintendent of utilities. McCarver received word this week that typhoid has been reported in the Del Rio area. The city is also putting "Larvaside" a chemical, on all stagnant ponds. Larvaside has been put out twice before.

Typhoid fever, as nearly all oldtimers know, is carried in only three ways- in water, milk, and by flies. We don't have to worry about the first two, except possibly ranchmen whose water supply is unchlorinated and made available to Braceros walking up from Mexico, but we do have to worry about flies. Typhoid has been stamped out in this country for decades and our people have a great deal less natural immunity, than those who lived around 1880, when the bacillus was first identified.

The main danger here is that flies might carry the disease from some Bracero camp into town.

Intesive fogging will continue, but meanwhile citizens should at least sprinkle garbage cans with powdered DDT, and do everything else they can to eliminate the fly hazard.

Modern drugs can do a lot to whip typhoid and, of course, there are always immunization shots. But mass inoculation should not be necessary if we control flies and are careful with food, especially fresh vegatables.

Note from Mrs. W. H. Ross, social worker for the Salvation Army, in Del Dio- "From Sonora came a truck load of food and clothing for the needy and distressed people of Acuna, Mexico. More than a hundred were helped by Sonorans. Our thanks to our neighbors for their most liberal help."

Homer Melton, city lineman, is something of an amateur tomato grower. We shouldn't mention it because he didn't give us the tomato, but he raised a giant-rosy red and weighed well over a pound.

Flood Damage In West Of County About $60,000

By Andre Truden

Ranchers in the western portion of the Edwards Plateau Soil Conservation District suffered extensive flood damage from last week's 15-inch rain. The damage estimated to be $60,000 was confined to the Granger Draw and its tributaries.

A survey of the ranches on Granger Draw by the Soil Conservation Service revealed an estimated loss of $40,000 in livestock and improvements. At least 50 miles of fence will require complete rebuilding. Livestock losses cannot be determined at this time, but a preliminary survey indicated the loss of 300 ewes and lambs and 6 cows with calves.

The Hill road was badly washed and will require extensive work and rebuilding. Damage to county roads was estimated by E. L. Harrel, county road superintendent to be close to $20,000.

The 14 to 15 inches of rain falling during the night of June 29 came on top of 4 inches that had already fallen the past week.

Dee Word stated that the water was higher than he had ever seen it in his 65 years of ranching on Granger Draw.

Receeding water left dead ewes and lambs in the top of liveoak trees. Numbers of deer and fawns and numerous jackrabbits were also victims of the flood.

Soil loss was confined to stream channels and areas where water concentrated. Vegetative cover conditions in the western portion of the district have been greatly improved from earlier spring rains. The Soil Conservation Service credits this vegetative cover for greatly reducing the flood damage. Had such rains fallen early in the spring or last fall the damage in loss of top soil would have been greatly magnified.

Experience of the Soil Conservation Service in flood prevention work indicates that rains of such magnitude cannot be wholly controlled by the application of conservation measures, but that they can be tempered.

Conservation measures such deferred grazing to increase the amount of vegetative cover on the soil, range pitting, where practicable, and contour farming and terracing with diversions to protect fields are all flood control measures that start where the rain drop falls. Dams are necessary to take care of flood water that cannot be held on the upper watershed.

Soil Conservation District News

Prepared by Local SCS Personnel
News of Edwards Plateau Soil Conservation District

Ranchers are cautioned to be on the lookout for new plants in the Edwards Plateau Soil Conservation District.

Several plants not native to this area have already made their appearance in various quantities throughout the district. It is supposed that seed came into the district in hay shipped here during the drought. Many of these plants are harmless, but one already identified is known to be poisonous.

This plant is Armel peganum, first reported by Joe Brown Ross last spring, 12 miles from Sonora on the Junction Highway. A recent check shows the plant to be spreading along the highway right-of-way.

Harmel peganum, a native of Asia and Africa, was first reported in this country in Deming, New Mexico. Within the last 10 years this plant has been spreading rapidly in the Balmorhea-Pecos area. The plant, a perennial, has a deep top root and produces an exceptionally large quantity of seed.

Harmel peganum is poisonous. The Texas Experiment Station at Sonora found that if 3.6 per cent of body weight taken by a sheep, death would result within two hours. The symptoms are nervousness, pitching like a horse, and exaggerated motions of the feet and limbs when walking.

A ewe fed 1 per cent of body weight developed symptoms within two hours but recovered. Feeding of 0.5 per cent of body weight for 38 consecutive days produced no symptoms.

This plant is probably not dangerous in small quantities; however, its ability to surfice drought and spread in an area where rainfall seldom exceeds 8 inches makes it a dangerous invader. Plants with these characteristics can make rapid gains in areas where competing native vegetation is retarded by drought and grazing.

Ranchmen in the district are already familiar with bitterweed and realize any effort to control poisonous invading plants has a greater chance of succeeding when the plants cover a small area.

The Soil Conservation Service advises ranchmen to look over their feed grounds and find out what plants are coming after the rains. If the plant is not recognized get it identified. Quick identification and effective control may save a lot of headaches later on. Soil Conservation Service technicians will be happy to assist in identifying any plant.

Specimens of Harmel peganum and Halogeton are on display at the First National Bank in Sonora. Another plant not yet found in the district, but causing considerable concern to sheep men throughout Utah, Nevada, and Idaho is Halegeton. Halegeton is spreading rapidly throughout the Rocky Mountains and could easily become a serious problem throughout the Edwards Plateau.

Camera Topics

No Beauty In Blurs— and No Need for Them

BLURRED pictures account for about one-quarter of the shots which disappoint the average amateur. Assuming you have a good sharp lens and a reasonably fast shutter, there's just no need to put up with blurred photos.

When parts of a picture are fuzzy while other areas are sharp, chances are you forgot to focus carefully or to stop down for necessary depth of field. Just remember never to snap the shutter until you've checked these points.

General overall blur is a good sign the camera moved during exposure. Don't try to make a hand-held shot at shutter speeds slower than 1/25. Use a tripod or brace your camera against some solid object. Even at fast shutter speeds you should make it a point to hold your camera as steady as possible with your weight on both feet and your elbows braced against your sides. Then squeeze the shutter release as gently as possible. A quick job is sure to make the camera.

When only a moving object is blurred in your picture, the answer is a faster shutter speed. You can obtain information at any camera store on the shutter speeds required to stop different types of action coming from various directions at various distances from the camera. As a general rule of thumb, it is always safest to shoot children, pets and even grown-ups at 1/100 sec. or even 1/200 if your shutter is that fast. Then an unexpected movement is less likely to spoil the picture, and any slight unsteadiness of the camera will be less apparent.

If your camera doesn't have a fast shutter, you can still shoot many action pictures by watching for the slight pauses that usually occur in even the fastest action. The pitcher at the top of his wind-up, the golfer at the end of his swing—most athletes pause imperceptibly but long enough for you to shoot if you are ready for it. —T. T. Holden, Graflex Photo Director.

Simple Short Cuts to Proper Exposure

SHORT EXPOSURES are the rule for bright summer water scenes. This prize-winner from the Graflex Photo Contest was made by Jack Frank in 1/400 sec. at f8 with a K 2 filter.

THERE are few mysteries to good photographic exposure. A photo-electric meter can simplify the job—if you know how to use it properly—but it isn't a must. You really don't need anything more than the simple free exposure table that is packed with every film and a little good judgment.

Black-and-white film has tremendous exposure latitude. That means you can make some terrible mistakes in judging light and still come up with a respectable negative. Color film is a little less accommodating, but it is amazing how wrong you can be with it and still get a nice picture.

Usually, it is wise to err on the side of over-exposure when using black-and-white film. Too dense a negative can always be doctored up in various ways. But under-exposure is dangerous because what didn't have a chance to register on the film will just never appear in your picture. That is one reason why professionals have a rule "always expose for the shadows and the highlights will take care of themselves."

When you are computing exposure, there are two things to consider: the quality of the light and how much of it is on your subject. A sunny day in winter is seldom as bright as a fine summer day unless there is a lot of glare from snow. At the seashore any subject will appear brighter than in the woods or sitting on a shady porch. These are your two basic variables. From that point it is just a question of interpreting the headings on the exposure chart correctly and reading off the proper shutter speed and "f" stop.

After you have made a few dozen pictures it is not hard to estimate that a certain scene is about twice as bright as one you shot yesterday at a certain exposure. So you just compensate accordingly and shoot.

Indoors exposure is even simpler since you usually know the exact power of the flash or flood lights being used. The manufacturers have worked out simple subject-to-light formulas for their lamps so all you need is a little simple arithmetic to hit the exposure right on the nose. You'll usually find the necessary data printed right on the lamp carton. Or your camera dealer will have it in a simple folder—T. T. Holden, Graflex Photo Director.

IT'S THE LAW in Texas

A public service feature of the State Bar of Texas

CONSTITUTION PROTECTS AGAINST TRIAL BY ORDEAL

One of the most important basic rights of the individual in this country is the privilege against self-incrimination. The Fifth Amendment of our Federal Constitution provides that "no person shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself." The early American statesmen insisted that this guarantee become a part of our law for excellent reasons.

The doctrine against self-incrination is most probably an outgrowth of "trial by ordeal" practiced in the ancient days of England. A person accused of a criminal offense rad to plead either 'guilty' or 'not guilty' at the time he was arraigned for trial. and still does today. However, in those days the accused had neither the benefit of counsel nor the right to testify in his own defense, and either plea ultimately amounted to just about the same thing.

If the accused pleaded 'guilty' he was hung a little sooner than was the case if he pleaded 'not guilty'. This situation, understandably enough, caused many persns charged with crime to stand silent on arraignment and not plead either way. When that happened, the accused was subject to torture to induce him to plead one way or the other.

Incredible methods of making a person talk were used with almost total success. In some cases the accused was placed in close confinement with a bit of bread to eat one day, a sip of water the next, and so on from day to day until he consented to plead or died of starvation.

On other occasions heavy weights were placed on his chest above the heart and attendants stood on the weights, or he might have been forced to recline on a bed of sharpened stakes. Investigations in those days arose primarily because of alleged dereliction from rules of the Church.

With memories of such atrocities, it is plain to see why the colonists from England made sure that such practices would be prohibited by their fundamental laws.

The privilege against self- incrination is not only incorporated in the Federal Bill of Rights, but is also guaranteed under the constitution of all but two of the 48 states. Our Texas Constitution provides that an accused "shall not be compelled to give evidence against himself."

(This column, based on Federal and Texas law, is written to inform-not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who knows the facts, because the facts may change the application of the law.)

Fellow Citizens

July 24th is not too far off—but you still have time to get in a few good licks for our friend, ALLAN SHIVERS.

He has not only meant a lot to our industry, but the entire Texas population as well. As he promised: Texas has retained title to her tidelands- (this brought a bonus of $32.000,000 for our school on the first lease sale). Our teachers are better paid; our State Hospitals are being improved; our Prison System definitely improved and practically self sufficient; our State Highway System one of the best, if not the best in the nation, and we are just now really getting started on a Super Highway System. Our farmers and ranchers have been taken out of the mud—our Farm to Market Road System is comparable to other State Highway Systems.

Three Wartime Leaders Serve Together In Top Posts of United Defense Fund

President Dwight D. Eisenhower, honorary chairman of United Defense Fund, presents citation to Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle, leader of World War II air raid on Tokyo, for his leadership as last year's national campaign chairman of UDF. General of the Army Omar N. Bradley, at right, is present campaign chairman of the Fund.

NEW YORK — Three famous comrades-in-arms of World War II, one of whom is now President of the United States, are serving together in peace time as leaders of the United Defense Fund—an organization financing the activities of USO and four other defense-related agencies.

The three generals, Dwight Eisenhower, Omar Bradley and "Jimmy" Doolittle, were among the principal speakers at UDF's recent leadership mobilization meeting in Washington, D.C., attended by more than 500 volunteer leaders of UDF, Community Chests and United Funds throughout the country.

At the opening session, held in the Rose Garden at the White House, President Eisenhower, UDF's honorary chairman, declared that "the big thing that the United Defense Fund does is to keep the soldier abroad understanding that he is part of America, no matter where he comes from, what may be his city, what may be his race, or his religion—he still thinks, through this kind of effort, primarily of America, and of himself as an American."

Commenting on the services of UDF agencies, General of the Army Omar N. Bradley, UDF national campaign chairman, said that through these services "we, here at home, keep in touch with our young people in uniform, we make them aware that we appreciate and have respect for the job they're doing, and we let them know that, meanwhile, we are doing everything we can to strengthen democracy here."

Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle, chairman of the board of UDF, asserted that "every American serviceman in addition to being fed and clothed and equipped, needs a spiritual and emotional gyroscope, a stabilizer to help him keep his balance in a world of confusion. The United Defense Fund program is designed to meet that basic need."

At the meeting, governmental, industrial, business, labor and religious leaders reported the need for UDF services and urged support of the Fund.

The United Defense Fund is supported chiefly through Community Chest and United Fund campaigns held throughout the country. Last year, UDF received approximately $11 million through these drives. Because of unmet needs, however, UDF this year must raise an additional $4½ million.

Agencies included in UDF are USO, United Community Defense Services, American Social Hygiene Association, United Seamen's Service, and National Recreation Association.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS FROM VETERANS ADMINISTRATION

Q - - I'm planning to take farm training under the Korean GI Bill, but I found out I'll have to pay $30 a month tuition. My cousin, a World War II veteran, trained, and the Government paid his tuition. Why the difference?

A - - Your cousin trained under the World War II GI Bill; you will be training under the Korean GI Bill. They are separate laws, and each operates differently. Under the Korean GI Bill, you pay all training expenses yourself. But you get a single monthly allowance to help do this. Under the World War II GI Bill, the VA paid a veteran's training costs.

Q - - My husband was killed in Korea, and I've been receiving monthly indemnity payments of $92.90. Will those payments stop if I remarry?

A - - No. Remarriage will not bar your continued entitlement to the indemnity payments.

Q - - I am a Korean veteran and I'm thinking of opening a business. I will have to wait for several years in order to accumulate enough cash. When I'm ready, will I be able to get a GI business loan, or is the program due to expire soon?

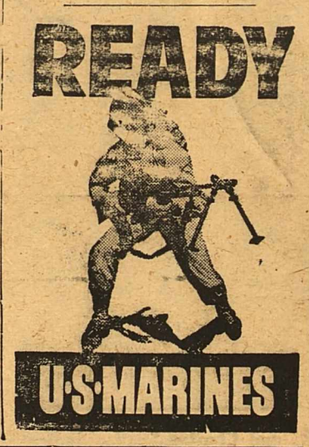

A - - You will have plenty of time to get your GI loan. The Korean GI Bill loan program will not expire until ten years after the end of the present emergency.

Q - - I'm planning to take flight training under the Korean GI Bill. Will I be allowed 30 days absences a year, the same as veterans taking trade and vocational courses?

A - - No. Under the Korean GI Bill, your will be paid on the basis of flight instruction actually received-and nothing more. You will not be paid for absences.

Q - - A veteran friend of mine forgot to pay his GI term insurance premium when it was due. He died during his 31-day grace period. Will his beneficiaries receive his insurance proceeds, or are they out of luck?

A - - His beneficiaries will receive the insurance proceeds, minus the unpaid premium.

A LOOK AT THE BOOK

By DR. BOB JONES, JR.

PRESIDENT OF BOB JONES UNIVERSITY — GREENVILLE, SOUTH CAROLINA

Jesus Christ, so kind to sinners and so tender in dealing with human weakness, lashed out in vigorous language of stern reproach against the Pharisees, "Ye are like unto whited sepulchers. . . full of dead men's bones (Matthew 23:27).

Judged by one standard they were very righteous, but their standard was their own standard and their righteousness was self-righteousness. They were careful about their outward observance of all the laws and ceremonies. They were careful to observe facts and often prayed-in public-but all their righteousness was outward. Their religion was a religion of "don't" and "do". It was all on the surface. They vigorously contended for the faith and took pride in its championship, but in their own hearts was no spiritual life. Their souls were corrupt and full of rotteness; their religion was a shell. Without spirtuality their religion was not inward life but a garment of practice, clothing the outward man.

The Pharisees are still with us. They were not peculiar to Israel. Christianity today, even the most conservanity today, even the most tianity, is blighted by some who have inherited the worst traits of Israel's self-righteous sect. They are proud of their peculiarities and thankful that they are not like other men. They have a head knowledge of the Gospel and an outward practice of its righteousness in which they take great pride. Inwardly there is none of the abundant life of Christ, none of His passion for lost men, none of His love for sinners. They judge other men and women on the basis of the standards which they themselves have set up and their judgments are harsh and cruel and unchristlike.

The man who is born of God will manifest in his outward actions, in his daily life, the indwelling life which he possesses and his whole life will be warm and sweet. The outward practice will be right because the inward man is right, and through every relationship of his life will shine the light and warmth of God's Spirit which dwells within his heart. There will be none of the coldness and hardness and self-righteousness of the Pharisee. There will be in his life none of the coldness of marble monuments covering the cruption and death in the Pharisee's heart.

Fort Worth—Increasingly dry conditions over a wide section of Central and East Central Texas are causing some alarm and is prompting some inquiry as to whether the need for drouth feed and other steps to help farmers and ranchers in the area may not be needed.

It is understood the funds and the necessary organization are at hand to step up purchases of beef and beef products for use in school lunch program and in the Foreign Operations Administration.

Some government purchases at this time could prevent serious losses of farmers and stockmen as they harvest their cattle crop in the next 90 days.

Slaughter lambs topped at $19 at Fort Worth Monday, and virtually all sheep and lambs drew steady to strong prices in the trade. Ewes were unevenly lower, with sales around $4 to $5 reprseting steady to 50 cents lower prices for the calves.

Good and choice fat Spring lambs drew $17 to $19, and common to medium slaughter lambs sold from $10 to $14, and culls again sold from $8 to $10.

Fat yearlings sold from $10 to $12, and cull yearlings drew $8 to $9. Aged wethers cashed at $7 to $9. Slaughter ewes sold from $4 to $5.

Be SAFE This Summer—ASWIM and AFLOAT

Don't stand in your boat when starting the motor. Look out ahead when you start—another boat may be passing or landing nearby.

Gasoline fumes are exceedingly flammable. It's not smart to smoke near an old-style open can of fuel. Only a modern safety-can is recommended for carrying gas.

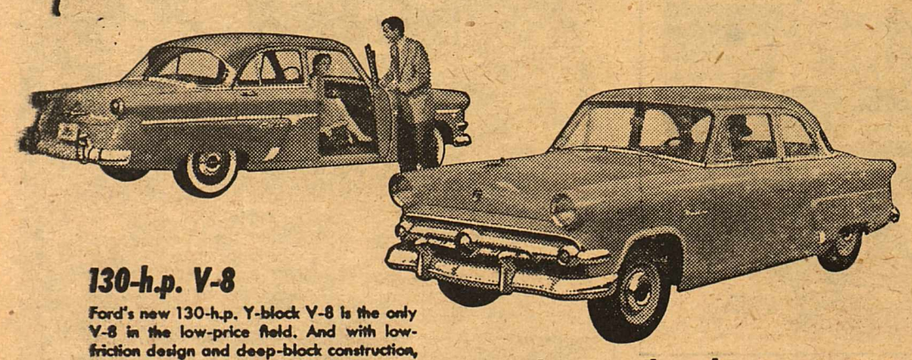

Give swimmers a wide berth. Horseplay on your part may prove tragic and you can be held liable for such accidents.

YOUR outboarding should be fun, not fatal. The American Red Cross offers suggestions, given above, how you can stay out of trouble.

"If any modern hitter can hit .400 , it'll be Bobby Avila,"

This surprising observation was made during the first month of the season by an '(expert" who has seen plenty of hitters in his time-Dizzy Dean, the Hall of Fame pitcher now a broadcaster.

The statement was amazing because Avila, in his four previous years as the Indians' regular second baseman, gave little indication that he was more than a .300 rapper. In fact, his averages in those four years were .290, .305, .300 and .286 respectively.

But Dean said he wasn't talking idly. "The kid is a smart hitter," explained the Great Man. "He can do everything, hit to all fields, bunt, hit-and-run, and for a little guy he's even got enough power to worry the pitcher."

Avila, when given Dean's quote, grinned and replied, "If I ever hit .400 they make me president of Mexico."

As it now stands, Avila is close to becoming elected. His average in the past weeks has remained consistently between .380 and .390 and he has given no indications of a let-up, even though recently hampered by a jammed thumb.

Hits Short One, Long One

When a successful bunt is needed, he bunts successfully. And in a recent game against the Yanks, when a homer was necessary to tie the score in the ninth, he homered.

Not even Bobby's most ardent rooters in Cleveland or Mexico expect him to finish so close to .400, but if he can keep up his high sticking for another month he'll become an excellent bet to win the American League batting crown.

Avila, of course, would like to capture that title, even if it means taking it away from his teammate, Al Rosen.

"Rosie will be glad to be one-two with me. I be glad to be two-one, with Rosie on top. If we both are high, I think maybe it mean the pennant," says Bobby.

"I just keep swinging," h.e adds.

"Can you keep this up?" he was asked.

"It's had to say how much I hit," he offered. "It's so early. I'll hit as high as I can you know."

But Avila is optimistic and he has a valid reason.

"Before," he suggests, "I never hit good early in season, you know. I always start hitting good in June, most of the time. I always have good finish."

"Play Hard Allatime

He is certain he knows why he is off to such a hot start.

"In Mexico these winter I try hard. Other years I take it easy. I play so I don't get hurt. It's like a vacation. I play 20 games, hit about .350. When I come to spring training I still have take-it-easy habit. It's hard to break. So I don't get going up here till late.

"This winter I play 45 games, play hard allatime. Hit .408. I come to spring training ready to play and I feel ready to play."

However, Avila is unable to discern any technical change in his swing or his style.

"I can't see myself, you know," he mentions. "I don't know if I hit different. I don't think I do anything different. Last year I hit ball pretty hard, you know. I don't have much luck. Ball don't find the holes."

It seems that when Jimmie Dykes was with the Athletics, a rookie southpaw struck him out on three pitches, with Jimmie looking as the third strike breezed by, says The Sporting News. He squawked to Umpire Bill McGowan on the final call. "You missed that one, Bill," he said acidly, to which McGowan replied, "Maybe I did, but I wouldn't if I had a bat."

MORE MONEY for ROADS

During Allan Shivers' Administration more money has been spent for roads than in any other comparable period in Texas history.

For that money Texas added 14,926.10 miles of smooth roads to the state highway system and maintained all roads to keep them safe and sound for you.

Allan Shivers knows the importance of good roads to you. Whether trade-routes that speed goods to market or modern super-highways that make your driving a pleasure, good roads save you time and money.

In Sutton County $1,420,800.00 has been spent on roads for you during Allan Shivers' Administration.

You have 24.23 more miles of roads today than when he became your governor.

This means better Farm-to-Market roads, so important to farmers and citizens of small towns.

It means modern, safe highways that make your trips enjoyable and inexpensive.

Texas come first with Allan Shivers.

Your Health

Austin, Texas, July 1 — Dr. Henry A. Holle, State Health Officer, warns that now hot weather is here, everyone should be careful in handling and storing food to prevent food poisoning. The organism grows best in foods that are quite fatty, such as ham, pork, salads or sandwiches with rich dressings, cream pies, cream puffs, or any food with custard filling. Keep this in mind when you prepare a picnic lunch or when anyone in the family takes a lunch to work during the hot months.

Symptoms of food poisoning usually strike quickly and explosively, and those who do not eat the contaminated food do not become ill. Usually from one to four hours after eating contaminated food, victims feel ill. If it is a mild case of food poisoning, recovery usually begins in eight to 12 hours, but victims may feel the ill effects for several days.

Usual symptoms of food poisoning are diarrhea, nausea, vomiting, abdominal cramps, and weakness. Whenever you feel these symptoms, be sure to call your physician. Do not wait, hoping it will wear off. Sometimes food poisoning causes death.

Careless handling of food before cooking or serving, improper home canning, storing food too long at room temperature, and improper heating of leftover foods are the main cause of food contamination. So, in order not to endanger your family's health, be especially careful in preparing and storing food. Never let a cut or sore place on your hand come into contact with food. Remember, don't take on a picnic or pack in a lunch, fat meats, salads with egg dressings, cream pies, cream puffs, or any food with a custard filling, unless you can keep them properly chilled until serving.

Camera Care Pays Off in Better Pictures for You

HAPPY SUMMER MEMORIES will last a lifetime if they are captured on film. Robert Miller of Cedarsburg, Wisc., made this pleasant study in complete relaxation with his Speed Graphic, 1/250 sec. at f11.

WITH long sunny summer days, vacations and long holiday weekends just around the corner, many cameras will be coming out of hibernation on the closet shelf. You'll be missing lots of fun if you don't make it a point to shoot more photos this summer to record permanently all those happy memories.

If you want to get the best out of your photo equipment, a little bit of care will pay big dividends. Start out by giving your camera a thorough dusting. Clean the lens carefully — and frequently while the camera is in use—with the special scratchless tissue made for that purpose. Touch up worn paint spots and glue down any leather that is coming loose. If it has been some time since your camera has had professional attention, better have the shutter checked and cleaned, if necessary, by your photo dealer. Don't go taking things apart yourself. Like any precise mechanism a camera should not be tinkered with by inexperienced hands.

Then get out your instruction manual and refresh your memory on the operation of your equipment. Don't hesistate to ask your photo dealer for some pointers if you feel the need for more expert instruction. Refamiliarize yourself with all the knobs and buttons so that you can keep to a minimum all those pictures you missed last year because you forgot to wind something or set the focus. By making the actual shooting almost second nature you can concentrate your attention on composing and creating the best picture from the material at hand.

Making a resolution too to give your equipment the care it deserves while you are using it. Since heat is a deadly enemy for lens cement, bellows and film, don't leave your camera lying in the sun or in the hot glove compartment of a car. Where sand, dust or moisture are present, protect it against them—a plastic bag or tight ever-ready case will do the trick. Use your lens tissue regularly for clear, sharp pictures.

By familiarizing yourself thoroughly with your camera's operation and making good housekeeping a constant practice your good shots will be better and you'll have fewer misses.—T. T. Holden, Graflex Photo Director.
