OFFICIAL OF CLOSED FORT WORTH BANK KILLED

Texas Legislature To Hear Gov. Holloway And Carl Williams Of Oklahoma

Home Town Talk

By B. D. D.

The other day Talker contrasted the docility of Republicans with the perversity of Democrats. He said while a Republican executive committee might be expected to accept the ruling of the attorney general that the law was that a "bolter" could not be disciplined by leaving his name off the ticket as a candidate, there was no telling what a Democratic executive committee would do.

Well, just like Talker couldn't tell anything about it, the Democratic state executive committee adopted a resolution barring "bolters" as candidates from the Democratic primary, apparently ignoring the attorney general's ruling.

And now again we are likely to have another example of Democratic perversity. A Republican barred from his primary by an executive committee would more than likely stay outside the bars. But do you think these "bolters" who still claim to be Democrats are going to do anything like that? Just the claim of being Democrats is enough to prompt them to appeal to the courts and we can expect such an appeal to be made.

And if the courts decide against them Talker wouldn't be surprised to see some of them running on some kind of an independent, coalition or even a Republican ticket still claiming to be Democrats. No telling what they will do.

The situation illustrates a fundamental difference between Democrats and Republicans. Democrats are undisciplined; Republicans are disciplined—except a few and in congress they have been called "sons of wild jack-asses." The "wet" Republican votes his ticket straight. The "dry" Democrat scratches like it had eczema.

The approaching campaign might have been a comparatively peaceful one had the Democratic state committee decided to open the doors wide to voters and candidates alike. Now we are likely to see merry war.

As Talker understands it, the state executive committee has no authority to tell county committees about what it shall do about barring "bolters" from the ticket in local races. That's a question that is left up to the county committee, but the state committee has furnished an example that some county committees will doubtless attempt to follow. More merry war.

Exciting political days are ahead in Texas and some 15,000 voters in Wichita county who have paid their poll tax will be besought from every angle.

While the Texas Democratic state committee was taking action to bar "bolter" candidates, the Oklahoma committee was smoking the peace pipe and electing a harmony chairman.

One thing is certain the Democratic old guard will either march to victory or die facing an enemy that calls itself Democratic.

It once was that the votin' of the ticket was what made a Democrat. In those good old days a Democrat took his ticket just like he had his "likker." But there are a lot of new fangled notions these days, and we don't know who to blame it on unless it is the Republicans.

An international musical magazine for the blind published by the American Braille Press, the first of its kind in the world, was mailed last week to schools for the blind, public libraries and to sightless throughout the country interested in music, without cost to them.

The American Braille Press is accomplishing a wonderful work for the blind in opening up to them the world of books, the printing being done by raised characters by which the blind can read from touch. Now it is undertaking to bring the scale and notes of music and the words too by the same method.

COMPACT FAVORED

Federal Farm Board Man To Address Solons On Cooperatives

AUSTIN, Feb. 2. (AP)—The legislature will digress tomorrow to hear an address by Carl Williams, cotton member of the federal farm board, and Governor Holloway of Oklahoma also will likely appear before a joint session.

Governor Holloway will hold a conference with Governor Moody and legislators with reference to the mattter of fixing the boundary line between the two states, Texas having acquired an area of about 28,000 acres from Oklahoma under a decree of the supreme court adopting the report of a commissioner who located the 100th meridian as the dividing line. The latest survey moved the Panhandle line a considerable distance East, embracing the territory heretofore considered a part of Oklahoma.

Compact Desired

Oklahoma is anxious to retain the property and committees representing the legislatures of the two states attempted to arrive at some basis of settlement. The committees finally agreed that a proposed compact be submitted to the Texas legislature when the terms of which Oklahoma would retain the property. Sentiment in the Texas legislature indicated it would be acted on unfavorably.

Interest was manifest in the appearance of Williams since Texas cotton farmers are clamoring for relief from a depressed cotton mar-

Hundreds Forced To Wed Again

Couples Learn Licenses Issued by Judge Are 'Faked'

MARION, Ark., Feb. 2. (AP)—Hundreds of couples in Arkansas and Tennessee originally "married" under alleged fake licenses have County Clerk A. B. Carter to thank that they are not still illegally wedded.

A report of State Comptroller Howard Reed filed here yesterday alleged that Justice A. L. Newman had issued hundreds of marriage licenses under authority of a former county clerk. Thousands of couples have come to Marion, which is six miles from Memphis, to escape the five-days' notice of intention to marry as required by Tennessee law.

"Realizing a mistake had been made," Carter told the Associated Press today, "I quietly notified couples who sent me their licenses for recording that it would be necessary for them to obtain new licenses and remarry. This has been done in every case of which I know.

"There was not a rush, particularly, but you can be sure there was no great delay. We notified a few couples at a time and they came at once."

Carter said he would not attempt to estimate the number of couples who thus were remarried.

The report of the Crittenden county audit however, mentioned "hundreds of licenses having been issued by Squire Newman." Justice Newman also performed the ceremonies, in most cases, the report said.

During last December alone 1,834 marriage licenses were issued in Crittenden, most of them to Tennessee couples.

TRIAL BODES NEW SENSATION

Prosecutor Predicts Sudden Resignation

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 2. (AP)—Roy St. Lewis, United States district attorney, predicted today that "a certain state official" would resign following testimony of a government witness in the trial in federal court here of 32 defendants charged in connection with the alleged operation of a liquor ring in Pottawatomie county.

Lewis did not name the official. The witness, whose name he also withheld, will be called tomorrow, Lewis said.

"Among the next few witnesses," the district attorney said, will be a protomartyr whose testimony undoubtedly will bring about the resignation of this official. The evidence is such that if it had been available at the time the grand jurors returned the conspiracy indictment this official would have been on trial at this time."

The next witnesses for the government, it was announced in court yesterday, will be Homer Knappenberger, former mayor of Earlsboro, mushroom oil town; Clarence Burdette, former chief of police of Earlsboro, and Mrs. Burdette, all of whom have pleaded guilty.

MONOXIDE GAS KILLS TWO IN SERVANT HOUSE

Woman's Forum Cook And Negro Man Are Found Dead Sunday

GWINN GIVES VERDICT

Bodies Continue to Sit Erect On Bed After Death Strikes

Lizzie Reese, negro cook at the Woman's Forum, and Hollie Bates, 28-year-old negro man, were found dead from inhaling monoxide gas fumes in the servant house at the back of the forum building about noon Sunday.

The two were found sitting upright on the foot of the bed when Ernest Kirksey and J. Fred Nunn fitted keys into the door after the absence of the woman from her duties had caused alarm. Mrs. Kirksey is hostess at the forum and in direct charge of the cook's work. Mr. Nunn was called in to assist in opening the door.

The gas heater within the servant room was found lighted but the room was stifling with fumes. Both negroes were fully clothed. Mrs. Kirksey had been informed that they went to a moving picture show Saturday night, and physicians believe they were asphyxiated soon after their return.

R. V. Gwinn, justice of the peace, conducted an inquest immediately after the bodies were found and pronounced a verdict of death by monoxide gas. Physicians testified that the pair had probably been dead more than 12 hours.

Lizzie Reese has been the chief cook at the forum since last October, coming to that position from work in C. I. A. at Denton where she had been trained. Her body is being held here until the arrival of brothers from Denton.

Arthur Price was walking toward his home when a sedan occupied by two men and a woman swerved toward him and halted. One of the men leveled a pistol at him while the woman took a small amount of money and a diamond ring valued at $75 from him.

Hidalgo Citizens File Suit Against Officials

(AP)—Suit has been filed in the 93rd district court here by five Hidalgo county citizens asking that the Hidalgo county commissioners court and certain county officials be restrained from paying off certain warrants, and asking that the warrants be canceled, regardless of their holders.

The suit claims that the installation of the Cott index system, now in use of the courthouse, was made with warrants issued on the county for more than $250,000, allegedly fraudulently issued and far in excess of the system. The suit also alleged that the remainder of the money, after paying for the system, was placed with other individuals for private benefit.

Br'er Groundhog Sees Shadow in East But Not in Texas

CANOE RIDGE WEATHER Works, Punxsutawney, Pa., Feb. 2. (AP)—Br'er Groundhog, ancient prognosticator of the weather, issued from his den this morning a little after 7 o'clock, took a hasty glance around and stated there would be six more weeks of winter conditions.

Further, the seer of seers gave out a more important announcement as he glimpsed his shadow on a snow bank.

MUDDLE HERE

Local students of weather and ground-hoggery are non-plussed. Although the Pennsylvania prophet saw his shadow, the Wichita Falls prognostigator found a dense fog hovering over the earth when he emerged Sunday morning. Hence winter hereabouts is at an end—maybe. Nothing definite could be learned Sunday night because the sun had shone later in the day.

The announcement was given to the world by the renowned prophet that henceforth he would not get up in the middle of his winter sleep to give out the same old line of dope about six more weeks of winter. He said that in the future the first of April would be the day

Small-Time Racketeer Slain in Automobile

CHICAGO, Feb. 2. (UP)—Hardly started on an investigation into the slaying of a prosecutor's investigator, police here tonight confronted with still another baffling gangster murder.

Joseph Cada, prize fight hangeron and small-time racketeer, was shot to death today while riding in an automobile along Broadway, main traffic artery to the north side gold coast. He apparently was accompanied by two men in a sedan who brought the car to a halt, killed him and ran away. No witnesses would admit seeing the slaying.

Cada's murder brought the number of such killings here to four in as many days.

BRADY CASE TO CLOSE MONDAY

Judge's Charge and Arguments Slated Today

AUSTIN, Feb. 2. (UP)—From a tangled skein of testimony, woven during a week's hearing in district court here, a jury of 12 farmers and tradesmen will be asked tomorrow to judge the guilt of John W. Brady, charged with fatally stabbing Lehlia Highsmith, a court stenographer.

Judge J. D. Moore was tonight preparing his charge to the jury which will be delivered before attorneys begin final arguments. Both defense and prosecution rested late yesterday.

Social and professional prominence attained by John Brady through a former judgeship on the court of appeals threw a glamour around the trail which has consistently brought large crowds. Tomorrow's attendance was expected to be even larger than any before.

Fiery arguments were expected from Henry Brooks, 24-year-old district attorney, who persistently has demanded Brady be sentenced to death in the electric chair.

Dayton Moses and Judge A. E. Berry, heading the defense staff, were prepared to picture their client as one in whom a brilliant mind had gradually broken to the point of "insane lapses" because of habitual insobriety.

Seven farmers, two clerks, a teamster and a millworker will hear the final pleas of counsel and retire to weigh evidence submitted by nearly five score witnesses.

Ohio Man Hangs Himself In Grain Elevator, Leaving Note

FORT WORTH, Feb. 2. (AP)—L. B. Ward, assistant cashier of the Texas National bank of Fort Worth which closed its doors Friday night upon recommendation of the Fort Worth Clearing House association, shot and killed himself at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Ward, who was walking, stepped inside the open doors of the police department garage, immediately across from the central police station in the city hall, and placing a pistol to his temple, fired one shot. The bullet went through his head, coming out on the left side. He died about 20 minutes later in a hospital.

Attracted by the sound of the shot, police officers saw Ward as he fell. They had not seen him enter the garage. He left a note in which he ascribed loss of health and loss of his position as reasons for the act.

REVIVING OF BANK FOUND IMPOSSBLIE

FORT WORTH, Feb. 2. (AP)—Representatives of the clearing house banks of Fort Worth reported late Sunday afternoon that it would be impracticable for the Clearing House association to take over the Texas National bank, which closed Saturday, and pay the depositors.

An examination of the bank's affairs, made by a committee comprising the head of all other banks, reported that the losses of the bank were found to be such that no feasible plan for taking it over and paying the depositors could be worked out.

OHIOAN HANGED AT GRANDFIELD

Special to The Record News.

GRANDFIELD, Okla., Feb. 2—The body of D. E. Douglas, 50, was found hanging from a rafter in a coal shed behind the Wichita Elevator here at 11 o'clock Sunday morning. His toes barely touched the ground and the arrangement of planks beside the wall in the shed indicated that he had stood upon them to attach the rope to the rafters. A verdict of suicide was returned by M. A. Taylor, justice of the peace, after an inquest Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Douglas, who came here from Ohio to visit his family three weeks ago, left the house at 8 o'clock Sunday morning after breakfasting with relatives. Members of the family found a note telling them he could be found at the M.-K.-T. station. Alarmed, they looked for him there, and later spread the alarm. The body was found by his son, Henry, and a friends.

Letters found on his person and addressed to members of the family showed that he had been brooding over ill-health, the inquest revealed. He is survived by his wife, a daughter, Catherine, his son, Henry, and a brother, Avery Douglas at Roosevelt, Okla. Funeral arrangements had not been completed late Sunday.

Naval Delegates Spend Day Away From Work

LONDON, Feb. 2. (US)—The lobbies of London's big hotels housing the naval conference delegates, which for the last few days have been the scenes of tremendous activity, today drowsed sabbatically.

That Premier Tardieu of France and Foreign Minister Briand are in Paris, Prime Minister MacDonald is spending Sunday quietly with his family at Chequers, and Secretary Stimson is entertaining Senators Robinson and Reed at his country home, Stanmore, accounted for the apparent inactivity at the headquarters of the various delegations.

Formation of Open Forum Voted By 16 Organizations Here Sunday

Approximately 50 representatives of 16 local civic organizations gathered at the chamber of commerce rooms Sunday afternoon unanimously endorsed the proposal to establish an open forum in this city for at least one year, beginning next fall, and commissioned the Junior chamber of commerce to solicit the citizenship immediately for definite assurance of financial support sufficient to carry the project through the one-year trial period.

Outlines of working plans and the nature of the usual programs provided by similar organizations in other places were outlined before Sunday's meetings by Sam Kruger, active during the past several months in the effort to establish a forum here, and W. B. Hamilton, who assisted in the formation of the Dallas Open Forum several years ago.

Jerry Vinson, president of the Junior chamber of commerce, opened the meeting Sunday afternoon, and presided while Walter D. Cline was elected as temporary chairman. More than 20 speakers responded with brief expressions of opinion in a round-table discussion of the proposed organization. Decision of the Rotary club, which has had the open forum question under advisement for several months, to invite the Junior chamber of

Tom Love Says Demo Committee 'Elected' Him by Barring Name

AUSTIN, Feb. 2. (UP)—With prison legislation at a stalemate in both houses of the special session of the legislature and the rural school aid problem alleviated temporarily, a political war was brewing here tonight over the right of "Hoovercrats" to run for office on the Democratic ticket in the July primaries.

Meeting Saturday, the state Democratic executive committee voted 21 to 10 to bar all persons who bolted the ticket in 1928 to vote for Herbert Hoover from being candidates in 1930. They were invited to vote the Democratic ticket, however.

Specifically, State Senator Tom Love, who supported Mr. Hoover and who subsequently announced his candidacy for the gubernatorial nomination, was denied a place on the Democratic ballot. Tonight he declared war on the committee.

"What did that committee do? They elected me governor," Love told the United Press tonight.

"They aren't the real Democrats—they're Al Smith Democrats. Without 300,000 regular Democrats who voted for President Hoover, they won't elect a single United States senator next fall."

Love said he still intended to carry his fight for a place on the Democratic ticket to the courts. He declined to say, however, when he will start proceedings.

many of them prominent civic leaders and state officials.

The jury will be asked, it was indicated, to determine primarily the mental condition of the 58-year-old defendant on the night of Nov. 9, when he allegedly stabbed the pretty supreme court employe at the door of her rooming house in jealous anger.

The defense never has denied that Brady committed the murder.

Through many witnesses, the defense pictured Brady's life—his rise to the pinnacle in Texas legal circles and then his downfall, caused, they said, by drinking until he had undermined his virility and become unsound of mind.

In rebuttal, Brooks relentlessly attacked the insanity plea. A long parade of witnesses, associates of the defendant, policemen who arrested him after the stabbing and fellow club members, all were placed on the stand to testify that Brady always had appeared rational to them, seemed to know the difference between right and wrong and apparently was not dazed by liquor on the night of Nov. 9 the night Miss Highsmith was stabbed to death in front of her rooming house.

Brady's rise in legal circles occurred right here in Austin where he is being tried. As a young man, he was Travis county attorney, later becoming assistant attorney general, counsel for the state banking department and appellate court judge.

The climax of the trial came when the defendant's wife, a church worker and prominent club member who has stood by her husband throughout his trouble, testified in his defense. Sobbing, she said her husband had admitted his relations with Miss Highsmith and had promised to quit seeing her. She said she thought him insane.

The trial started two weeks ago Monday.

HOME-TOWN TALK

By B. D. D.

or any of its publications, the address of the American Braille Press is 730 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

It seems as if the new magazine ought to offer a splendid opportunity to organizing music classes among the blind whenever there is a sufficient number of them to be brought together.

Started without financial support, Bill Ward's boys' club is making real progress and ought to do a lot of good. It all goes to show what vision and energy and a spirit of service can do. Such a club has been talked about many times but the estimates of the thousands of dollars it would take to support it have always deterred action. Now Mr. Ward and with some boys who needed such a club has got it going and Talker predicts that the club will grow and enlist whatever support is necessary to keep it going.

Tax Collector Guy Raley offers an apology for any delay tax payers experienced on the final day for tax payments. Well, it's like Mr. Raley to want prompt, efficient and courteous service to everybody but when so many thousands crowd into the tax collector's office on the final day it is manifestly impossible to give each one immediate service. Talker but voices a general sentiment when he says the tax collector's office handled a tremendous lot of work Friday as expeditiously as it was possible to do so.

Open Forum Wins Approval

commerce to undertake its formation was described by Dr. O. T. Kimbrough, Rotary president. Approval of that procedure, and the assurance of cooperation, were voiced by J. S. Bridwell, president of the chamber of commerce, and John Boswell, general manager. It was pointed out that the Junior chamber of commerce, with its organization and committees already set up and functioning, could accomplish the preliminary work of getting the forum under way more easily and effectively than a separate, temporary organization.

Work of procuring definite pledges of financial support from local citizens will begin at once, it was indicated Sunday. Definite decision to launch the trial-year of open forum activities next fall will depend upon local interest in the movement being expressed in guarantees of material support, it was said, and another meeting of the leaders present Sunday afternoon will be called by the Junior chamber of commerce as soon as a comprehensive survey has been completed.

A. E. Holland, principal of the Booker T. Washington school, headed a delegation from the colored communities of the city, and expressed the desire of that portion of the city's population to see the open forum established. Belief that provisions for the accommodation of negores at lectures provided by the organization would be made was expressed by those present.

Commendation of the advantages offered the community by the open forum plan featured practically every talk given Sunday afternoon. Tentative plans for its operation call for its meetings to be held on Sunday afternoons in the Memorial auditorium without charge of any kind to those choosing to attend. Voluntary offerings of the financing of the movement would be accepted at such gatherings, which, together with personal subscriptions for the year. It was pointed out that cultural and educational lectures not otherwise available will be provided for persons of all classes in the community at the minimum cost to all participating.

Approval of the Wichita Falls Ministerial Alliance of such a program was voiced unofficially by Dr. S. S. McKenney, pastor of the First Methodist church.

Besides Mr. Vinson, L. V. Abernathy and Paul Hines, directors, represented the Junior chamber of commerce at the meetings.

Leading Man in Stage Production

Just a reminder that all the stars of "A Connecticut Yankee," musical comedy extravaganza, are not alluring maidens of ancient Camelot. Richard Lane, leading man, accepts a sharp blip on the head, awakes in King Arthur's land and day, and proceeds to make merry in a modern way among the knights and ladies. The production will be given at the Memorial auditorium on Tuesday, Feb. 11.

Original Cast Retained in Road Tour of "Conecticut Yankee"

Insofar as use of the same cast that has accomplished highly successful productions in much larger cities carries assurance of an equally high-class performance here, Wichita Falls is in line for a brilliant presentation of "Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court" on Tuesday night, Feb. 11.

Instances in which road shows have reached the Southwest with a players' personnel vastly different from that with which metropolitan triumphs had been registered have been sufficiently frequent to be remembered. Perusal of the newspaper reviews of preformances now being given throughout the Middle West by the "Connecticut Yankee" company gives daily evidence of the authenticity of its personnel. The same players which are to appear in the Memorial auditorium here next week are drawing capacity houses in Kansas City, Minneapolis, Louisville, and other large cities. The reception which they are receiving, both from the public and the press, support the commendation given the company through its long engagement in New York.

Reviews of "The Yankee," written recently, credit the performance with the retention of the best of Mark Twain's robust satire even though it is given a thoroughly modern and warmed-up version. The "book" for the musical comedy extravaganza builds around Mark's Camelot a season of vitality, youth, love and laughter, sophistry and pure "horseplay" which is frankly satirical, but apparently so lightsome and delicate as to shock no one any more than did the original novel.

"The Yankee" was the feature play offered for the Christmas season at the Shubert theater in Kansas City and proved the outstanding attraction of the season during a run of several nights.

DEATHS

T. C. HOLBROOK

Funeral services for T. C. Holbrook of Holliday, the second victim of the K. M. A. oil field fire Thursday, were held from the First Baptist church in Electra Sunday afternoon. Rev. J. L. Walters, pastor of the Lory Memorial Baptist church of Wichita Falls, officiated. Interment was in the Electra cemetery.

Chicago Sees Rift in Cloud

Citizens' Committe Offer Holds Out Hope

CHICAGO, Feb. 2. (AP)—With the city's financial condition growing worse daily and with other relief plans crumbling one by one, the city council today began to look more favorably on the citizens' committee offer to tide the local governments over until taxes start coming in.

Alderman John S. Clark, chairman of the city council finance committee, announced his intention of asking that body to name a committee Tuesday to meet with Silas Strawn, head of the relief organization.

Agreement Predicted

Alderman Lark, who has become leader of the working majority in the council's wrangles over financial matters, predicted the committee he proposed would make every effort to effect an agreement.

It was the point of supervision of expenditure that caused the city council, as well as the board of education to shy at the proposal when it was first made more than a week ago. Many public officials expressed the fear that acceptance of the plan would bring about a dictatorship.

Since then, however, many disappointing factors have entered the tangle. A conference of taxing officials called by Gov. Louis Emmerson found that tax bills could not be mailed before June 1 and it has since developed that even this prediction may have been too optimistic. Delay of nearly two years in the collection of taxes, due to complete revaluation of property, is blamed for the plight of the city and county.

Warrents Legal

Hopes that the 40,000 city and county employes, most of them unpaid since Jan. 1 and some even longer, could receive their salaries in tax anticipation warrants were buoyed up yesterday with the ruling by the city's corporation counsel that such a procedure would be legal.

This bubble was immediately punctured by the Chicago and Cook County Banker's association's notice to its 180 member banks advising against cashing such warrants or accepting them as collateral. Directors of the bankers' association said paying county and city employes in fait money would only make local conditions more complex.

Third Week

The legislature will enter its third week and resume consideration of legislation proposed to reorganize and relocate the penitentiary system. Governor Moody Sunday addressed an appeal to "the people" over radio for passage by the legislature of the measure which would place a modern, industrialized central plant within 20 miles of Austin.

Both houses have been considering the nine bills, embracing seven separate plans of reforming the system, in committees of the whole. The senate may start actual work of amending or accepting without change one of the three bills before it. The house has to hear explanations from the respective authors of five of the six measures before it.

Bills proposing changes in the fee system as applied to office holders are before committees and action may be taken this week on these.

The governor is expected to submit several new subjects, including appropriations for summer schools of state colleges. Senator Tom Pollard of Tyler announced that the senate finance committee of which he is chairman would probably start hearings on the appropriations tomorrow.

Reports on Eielson Cannot Be Confirmed

NEW YORK, Feb. 2. (AP)—Reports originating at Devil's Lake, N. D., and purporting to convey information that the Arctic fliers, Eielson and Borland had been found were without substantiation late tonight.

One report hinted that the bodies of the fliers were found. Another, also emanating from Devil's Lake and purporting to be a Canadian press report to the effect that the fliers themselves had been located at a reindeer herder's camp 35 miles from where the wreckage of the Eielson-Borland plane was found, likewise lacked confirmation.

He's Surly

Br'er Groundhog, foremost weather prognosticator, delivered unto the world some of his pet grouches when he emerged in the presence of a small gathering in Pennsylvania.

he would emerge from winter quarters and make a forecast.

"For more than a million years," the seer said disgustedly as he rubbed his eyes and gazed at the faithful gathered about his burrow to get the ultimate word, "I have been getting up in the middle of the winter to satisfy the curiosity of a passel of human pests wanting to know whether or not they could lay aside their heavies. I'm getting old. I'm sick of it. This is the last time. Come around April 1 after this."

"But what about the pretender from Quarryville?" anxiously inquired Frank Boney who had plodded up the ridge to greet the old chuck at his mid-winter awakening.

"Just a cheap fakir," replied the groundhog, who appeared bored and somewhat offended that anyone should bring up the Quarryville fellow who has been trying to steal his stuff for several seasons past.

"He's an upstart in the same class with the goose bone, squirrel fur and the other prognosticators of that ilk. Forget him. I give out the weather."

As he waddled back into his cave to finish his winter nap, he said "Good-bye boys, until April 1, 1931." Frank Boney opined, however, that next year's forecast would be given Feb. 2, regardless of the old chuck's ultimatum.

OIL MEN BOARD 'TARIFF TRAIN'

Delegation to Washington Leaves St. Louis

The situation which has given rise to this belief is caused by outsiders, importing oil from Mexico and South America.

"Oil from foreign ports is dumped on our shores at ruinous prices to the independent producer, but the consumer does not benefit from it."

Franklin said he feared there would be a monopoly of oil reserves in the United States as well as South America, if the four or five major oil companies now engaged in importing oil were allowed to gain control of the marketing the product.

He said the conservation program which has been urged constantly for the past four years is based upon "the false proposition that the petroleum reserves in the United States are in danger of exhaustion."

"Predictions of this kind have been made for more than 20 years by technical experts and petroleum geologists," he said, "but the fact is that every such estimate made in the past has been disproved because we already have recovered more oil than was predicted to exist 10 or 15 years ago and we have more shale oil reserves in sight now than ever before in history.

"In Colorado there is a field of oil shale with 80,000,000,000 barrels of recoverable oil in sight. A process for extracting it has been perfected but it would not pay to compete with the South American fields, which produce oil at a cost of 18 cents a barrel.

"These oil reserves are being held back from development while a few American companies and one English-Dutch owned company, seeking to take American markets for petroleum for imported oil to the exclusion of oil produced and refined in the United States.

"We advocate development of these reserves by our own labor where profits from every branch of the industry will remain here among our own citizens."

Old Jail Made Into Modern Hostelry

KNUTSFORD, Eng., Feb. 2. (AP)—It is said here that in soft-hearted America the jails are as comfortable as hotels. In England it is the other way around, but Thomas Oakley, having bought Knutsford gaol from the government, is turning it into a hotel accommodating 300 guests. He expects to charge them three shillings (75 cents) each for bed and breakfast. The old prison gallows will be removed to make room for a gasoline pump.

Oakley has a predilection for prisons, and Knutsford is the fourth he has bought so far. The others, Gosport, Derby and Worcester, he is pulling down for brick and stone. Knutsford is in such good condition he believes people will be willing to pay for a cell there, especially motorists and truck drivers. He is paving three acres of the prison ground as a parking space.

New Vatican State Holds First Criminal Trial

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 2. (US)—Three months' imprisonment in Vatican City jail was the sentence meted out to a thief in the first trial in the newly created church state. The Italian penal code served in the absence of a code in the vatican state.

ON WITH THE DANCE

A True Story of the Younger Set

THE Friday evening dancing party was the week's high spot for the young folks of a certain small country club. A four-piece orchestra always supplied the rhythm until older members conceived the idea that mechanical music would serve the youngsters just as well—and cost less.

Accordingly, a music machine was installed. The plan worked once, but the next Friday the little band triumphantly returned to the job.

"What's wrong with your new music box?" a father asked. "Wouldn't you rather dance to Whiteman and Vallee records than to a tin-pan band?"

Junior shook his head:

"Mechanical music is fine at home but it hasn't the right kick for a dance."

What is true of dancing must be equally true of the theatre. Are YOU getting YOUR money's worth in the theatre?

Mrs. deMontel Is Named New Regent Of D. A. R.

At the annual luncheon of the Major Francis Grice chapter D. A. R. at the Country club Saturday, George Washington's birth month was emphasized in the colorful red, white and blue decorations. Miniature cherry trees in gay red pots were placed at stated intervals between lighted red candles in crystal holders. Place cards were red, white and blue hatchets and on a small table inside a hollow square luncheon tables, was a large white cake on which many little red candles burned in blue holders.

Mrs. Fred T. Couper, regent, presided graciously while routine business was taken up during the luncheon. Mrs. J. E. H. Railey read for Mrs. S. Y. Ferguson, chairman for the nominating committee, the names of the slate submitted for the next year's office and they were elected by acclamation. Mrs. E. C. deMontel will be the new regent; Mrs. Ben M. Bell, first vice regent; Mrs. C. W. Beavers, second vice regent; Mrs. James P. Waggoner, recording secretary; Mrs. John T. Waggoner, treasurer; Mrs. John Buchanan, registrar; Mrs. J. L. Jackson, chaplain. Other officers are appointive and will be named before the new officers are installed in May.

Delegates Named

Nominations were in order for delegates to the 39th continental congress which meets in Washington in the regular 1930 session. The chapter is allowed three representatives, regent, vice regent and one delegate, with 10 alternates. Mrs. Luke McCrory was elected delegate; Mrs. E. T. Duff was named regent alternate and the other delegates are Mesdames Carey Hunter, Carrie Joline, A. H. Carrigan, J. E. Hall, Wayland Sanford, Guy Rogers and John Hampton.

In a vote asked by state officers, in which each chapter will name five outstanding landmarks in Texas history, Major Francis Grice chapter named The Alamo, San Jacinto, San Felipe, the Charter Oak in Austin and old Gonzales.

The corresponding secretary was instructed, after a motion by Mrs. E. T. Duff, to send a note of thanks to Mrs. Louis Gould, whose resignation as treasurer was accepted, thanking her for the excellent work she had done and regretting the necessity for resignation. The new treasurer was asked to fill the unexpired term.

An invitation sent to all chapters to attend the unveiling of the Lasalle monument at Navasota on March 6, was read to the assembly. The annual open meeting of the chapter is announced to take place as a Colonial tea on Washington's birthday. Members will be in costume.

Hostesses for the day were Mesdames J. E. Hall, J. T. Harrell, W. L. Herblin, J. Y. Holbrook, Carey J. Hunter, J. R. Hyatt, Carrie Joline, Roy King, Sidney Gaines, Ed Gardner, M. M. Garrett, and Miss Katherine Hall, Mrs. Roy King was thanked for her work on decorations.

Mrs. Cain in Charge

The program was in charge of Mrs. Ruth S. Cain, substituting for Mrs. J. B. Lovejoy. Mrs. Cain read an inspiring paper on revolutionary monumants, naming the most prominent and giving sketches of them and telling of the bust of Washington ordered by the Assembly of Virginia which was done from life by a famous French sculptor. Mrs. Cain closed her paper with a tribute to Mrs. Mary Jane Skidmore, the real daughter of the American revolution whom the Major Francis Grice chapter cared for until her death in Wichita Falls and for whom they erected a monument. Mrs. Skidmore's father was a drummer boy in the revolutionary war.

Mrs. W. M. Priddy, accompanied by Mrs. Luke McCrory, sang a cowboy spiritual by a Texas composer, Oscar Fox. This song, "Rounded Up in Glory," closed a most interesting meeting of the chapter.

Guests at luncheon were Mesdames W. H. Sanford, E. B. Bailey, C. E. Beavers, F. T. Couper, C. H. Borland, J. E. Hall, J. M. Bonner, Luke McCrory, Frances Smith, J. P. Waggoner, Carrie E. Wilcox, Miss Nell Gibbs, Mesdames Walter Bachman, G. K. Wilson, J. L. Waggoner, Dan Rubsam, W. J. Burt, Sterling Crumpler, E. C. deMontel, Syd. Gaines, G. Taylor Buchanan, Clark A. Wilcox, Ruth S. Cain, Guy Rogers, M. M. Garrett, Roy H. King, D. C. Copelin, Geo. W. Truitt, John Prewett, Paul Pond, Eleanor Pace, Bill Ward, Clarence Apple, John W. Hampton, L. O. Landon, W. M. PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

We have issued a declaration of independence. A member of our family announced that majority ruled in all things; that a majority set the status for propriety and others must follow.

We believe that in one's home and in one's mind, every person has the right to follow her own taste. We refuse to be painted just the same color everyone else is painted.

If anyone loves beauty, we do. And we contend that the best way for you to have a picture framed is the way which makes it thrill you to the soul; that the best books for you to read are those that wake your mind and heart and start it questing; the best music for you to hear is that which stirs you to the heart and makes that heart kinder.

There's the thought of expressing one's self in one's home. If you haven't the money to buy what you want, of course you can't entirely express yourself. But a bit of color—a number of books—a lack of certain obnoxious fads, will at least, show the color of a woman's soul.

A connoisseur in house furnishing would probably rage at the way our furniture is arranged. But it is always arranged to the limit of our pocketbook's artistic ability.

We have never craved having some fad of the hour just because other women had it. Our heart, with our mind, does hunger for certain things that make a room look "home" which we may have some day.

But in Wichita Falls, we remember one old-fashioned room with worn chairs—a boockase and desk, a work basket and bright rugs, that had more the air of home than many another exquisite to the eye, but in which one could not picture a family gathering in harmony.

We have a print, an exquisite little thing, that was brought us from Vienna years ago. It is the German artist Lenbach, painted by himself with his little granddaughter in his arms.

We framed it in a deep frame— just as we thought it was prettiest —and the decorator who framed it commended the style. We have no doubt a connoisseur would think we knew nothing of the "proper thing" now. But everyone who sees the picture (some people never see ANY pictures), says "Where did you get that picture?"

What is the proper thing? It all depends on whom you live for. So long as we do not hurt a sensitiveness in our own family, we live for the things that make home to us. The dog's-eared books, soft lights, an open fire; we do hunger for music and, having known what perfect service is, we would desire a maid who knew her business —but live in hope!

Mother of Today More Scientific Conducting Home

If There Is Any Difference Between the Modern and the Old-Fashioned Mother, It Is That the Mother of Today Is Able to Give Her Children Scientific Care and Knows How to Fit Them for the World

A correspondent asks: "Which is the better mother, the old-fashioned mother or the modern mother?"

In all time and in all ages the great majority of mothers have been good mothers. From the cave-woman who took the skin from about her own cold shoulders to wrap her baby more snugly to the woman of today who goes shabby so that her children may be decked out in real lace and hand embroidery, mothers have always put their children before themselves and loved them better than they did themselves. Always mothers have sacrificed themselves to their children.

Always and everywhere mothers' arms have formed themselves into cradles into which to rock babies to sleep. Always mothers' breast has been a temple of refuge to which troubled little souls could flee and weep out their childish griefs. Always mothers have watched by sickbeds and guided tottering little feet. Always mothers shoulders have been the ladder on which boys and girls climbed to success. Whatever else failed mother's love and patience and understanding and forgiveness has never failed.

So to contrast the mother of the past with the mother of today is as profitless as contrasting fine gold with fine gold, but if we must compare them I think that the modern mother is a better mother than the old-fashioned mother. This is not because she excels the old-fashioned mother in devotion or self-abnegation, but simply because she is more intelligent, more scientific, more efficient and with a better knowledge of how to fit her children for the world than her mother had.

This is, of course, the result of the age we live in which has produced an improved brand of motherhood, just as it has an improved automobile and an improved way of lighting and heating our houses. Look, as an illustration, at what the modern mother does to give her children sound and healthy bodies and to secure them vigorous health.

The old-fashioned mother adored her children and it broke her heart when she lost them, and she was torn with anxiety when they grew up weak and sickly or deformed, but she never felt that she had any responsibility in the matter. She simply passed the buck up to Providence and wept because the Lord laid upon her the heavy hand of affliction.

But the modern mother knows that her children's health and lives are in her keeping, and that if her babies die, oftener than not it is because she didn't keep their milk bottles clean and sterilized, and that if little Johnny is weedy and puny and May is always sniffling with a cold, it is because she is not giving them the right sort of food.

The old-fashioned mother never thought of doing anything for a child who had any sort of physical blemish. If little Johnny was knock-kneed or bowlegged or cross eyed or had protuberant teeth or went about with his mouth open and his jaw hanging down, he was simply doomed to go through life a figure of fun, a target for the jeers of the cruel and unthinking.

But the modern mother realizes what an important part looks cut in the making or the marring of the success of a man or woman, and so she calls in the assistance of the surgeon and the dentist and the occulist and has the operations performed that remove the handicaps that nature has placed on her children.

Of course, grandmother was not to blame for letting her children grow up as ugly as God made them for surgery was not then the miracle-working thing it is now, but all the same it is the modern mother who sees to it that her children's legs and teeth are straightened and their adenoids removed. It is the modern mother who is turning out the healthiest, handsomest race the world has ever seen.

The old-fashioned mother did little about fitting he children for life because she was ignorant of life herself. She taught them to say their prayers and made them go to church and taught them as best she could the moralities and then trusted to luck as to how they would turn out. She never thought of a child as a problem or tried to understand its indivisual psychology or attempted to find out what particular talents and aptitudes it had.

But it is a very stupid modern mother who doesn't try with all the intelligence which she possesses to solve the little enigma she has brought into the world and to find out how to control and stimulate it, how to develop the right habits in it, how to educate it and help it find the work in the world that God intended it to do.

Finally the modern mother is a better mother than the old-fashioned mother because she is less a mother, if you get what I mean. She smothered them with her affections. Her one idea was to keep them tied to her apron string and deprive them of all liberty and take away from them all initiative. Her proudest boast was that she had never left her children for a single day since they were born and that they couldn't do a thing without mother, and that she had no interest outside of her family.

The modern mother knows that she cannot always hold her children by the hand and guide their feet, so she teaches them to stand alone and watch their step. She does not demand slavish obedience of them. She knows that ignorance is not innocence and she makes them wise to the temptations they must meet. And she fills her own life with interests outside of her children so that she will not be a parasite upon them, who has to suck her every joy and interest out of them.

The old-fashioned mother's children loved and honored her. The modern woman's children love and honor her and are friends with her. They pal with her and discuss with her things that the old-fashioned mother's children never dreamed of mentioning to her, and that gives the modern mother the chance to guide and help her children that no other mother has ever had.

So judged by every standard, the modern woman is a success as a mother. Even the flappers are, who are bringing up their babies by the baby book.

ALADDIN'S LATEST LAMP

Daily Editorial

INVESTIGATION tends to justify the Mazdanian theory that all great blessings stream from the sun.

There are no records to signify that the Persian Magi were aware of the energetic or fructifying content in ray matter, but the conclusions of science and the many beliefs of the Zoroastan cults strangely concur.

For millions of years, the sun has daily thrown off an incredible tonnage of gases, to be digested by the forests and vegetation of the earth.

In other words, sunlight is tangible and indestructible substance.

Coal is solidified sunlight captured from piths, foliage, saps and gases, then carbonized and stored away to furnish the future with fuels, chemicals and aniline concentrates.

Sunlight is a demonstrable constituent of milk, which absorbs the bone-building vitamins, after they have been processed in nature's various and amazing laboratories, prominent among which are garden greens dairy pastures, and the secreting organs of fish and mammals.

Men cannot generate resistance against the diseases that peculiarly prey upon enervated tissue, except through a diet persistently balanced with vitamin-bearing foodz.

Up to the present, humans have largely obtained these vitamins at second hand—from fruits and vegetables and offal.

Now research assures us that we may shortly expect to derive some of them through contact methods. The General Electric company, working toward that end, claims to possess a lamp that mechanically duplicates the benevolent functions of Old Sol himself.

If Schenectady isn't counting unhatched chickens, the Wizards of the Hudson have executed a raid on high heaven comparable only to the Promethean theft of fire.

SPEAKING before the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, Dr. Luckeish, the corporation's spokesman, prophesies that the most favorable open air conditions may be reproduced anywhere by means of a little six-inch mercury and tungsten bulb capable of transforming the dimmest basement corner into an equivalent Arizona hilltop.

Through its use, we may establish favorable health environment, wherever there's an outlet plug, and transfer Miami and San Diego climates to Manhattan apartments and Detroit factories at will.

Granting that the doctor knows his beans, the invention will instantly turn hospital wards to tropic beaches, and permit consumptives to remain at home, and secure from a push-button, the invigorating atmosphere of Colorado Springs.

Not only is this super-sunlight immeasurably more intense than the real article, but since it is continuously available, periods of convalescence will be proportionately shortened; Q. E. D.

Above all, the new lamp promises the immediate wiping out of rickets, which invariably derive from lack of the very vitamin that sunlight so lavishly contains.

Meanwhile, as we impatiently experiment to develop into manufacture and distribution, advanced pharmaceutical practice is advertising the isolation of the entire vitamin group, and offering the five fundamentals of longevity and robustness over the nearest drug-store counter.

Our complex civilization must depend upon synthetics for the necessities of which abnormal habits increasingly deprive us.

The Rumanian peasant who just died at the age of 150, if truth were known, merely obeyed primitive instincts, worked in the open, ate plenty of salad greens and roughage, drank milk at every meal and consistently restored fatigue losses in sleep's repair shop.

The closer the rest of us follow in his footsteps the likelier we are to meet our grandchildren.

Mr. Coolidge may be able to write a history of the United States in 500 words, but Al Smith could say that much about the last couple of Republican administrations without taking a breath.

A writer on musical subjects says the jazz music heard in the night clubs takes the edge off the diners' appetite. The prices help a trifle, too.

The Voice of a King

THE NAVAL CONFERENCE at London may end this way and it may end that; but, whatever happens, it has done for us one thing, at least of some consequence.

It has enabled us to hear the voice of a king sent around the world; and there was a good deal more to that event than we realized at the time.

George the fifth of England opened the naval conference with a very brief speech, which was in no way out of the ordinary. He said what was expected of him and said it in the expected way. He had no words to set fire to the imagination of his world-wide audience.

Yet this speech of his carried farther than any speech any king in all history ever made. The radio picked it up and put all of mankind that cared to listen into the king's audience chamber. In America, in Europe and in Australia, British subjects and foreigners were able to hear the authentic voice of a king.

This was rather notable; exciting, even, when you stop to think about it. The mere fact that the king's speech was not especially thrilling does not detract from this.

For the whole business emphasized this one great fact: That we have at last made it possible for a man who has something to say to say it directly, to people of all countries and circumstances.

Imagine what a great king with a great message might not do with this fact!

We never rise very high by our own unaided efforts. It is so much easier to muddle along in the old, familiar ways. Only when some insistent prodder keeps at us do we bestir ourselves enough to get up and make an advance.

But the prodder generally has a hard time getting a hearing. The world is a big one, and diverse people have many diverse interests. Only very rarely—once, perhaps, in half a dozen centuries—is anyone able to focus the attention and desire of the bulk of mankind on any one object.

Yet now—what is not possible? A king speaks in Westminster and he is heard, at the same moment, by Canadians and Australians, by Germans and Italians, by Russians and Americans. Put that opportunity in front of a great man with a great message and you have the materials for a stupendous event. Peter the Hermit trumped the highways barefooted and took all of Europe to the Holy Land; what could not be accomplished by a man possessed of equal fervor, speaking through a microphone to all mankind?

We have devised for ourselves, with this radio business, a tool of incalculable power. The king's speech at London was only a bare hint of what may some day be done with it.

Senseless Brutality

A NEW YORK striker was killed in a clash with the police a short ago. Following his death, New York's Communists put on a demonstration in front of the city hall. Some 200 Communists, armed with banners and flags, were present. One of their number ran up on the city hall steps to make a speech.

But the police had heard about it and were ready; 100 patrolmen, 25 mounted officers, 25 detectives and a dozen sergeants and lieutenants. They promptly charged into the group, clubs swinging.

When the smoke cleared away 10 people were in need of hospital attention—including a well-to-do business man who happened to be passing, and a newspaper reporter, both of whom had been indiscriminately clubbed by the over-enthusiastic police.

The whole business, perhaps, isn't very important, at this distance; yet New York has furnished us with an excellent example of the wrong way to deal with an affair of this kind. Dumb brutality is the worst of weapons with which to fight Communism. The utter senselessness of the activity of the police in this instance needs little comment.

The Greatest Engineer

WHO WAS the greatest engineer of all time? Dean Carl T. Humphrey of the School of Technology at Villanova college got curious about it the other day, when his engineering department was preparing to celebrate its 25th anniversary, and he queried all the other deans of engineering schools in America to find out. And when he tabulated their answers he found that first place went to James Watt, the man who turned the steam engine from a toy into a useful machine.

Without being at all qualified to speak on this matter, we're inclined to agree. There may have been other engineers who solved harder technical problems, but there has been none whose work had a greater effect on mankind as a whole. Watt revolutionized life for all the world. If you don't believe it, contrast conditions today with the conditions of 1776. The change is due more to Watt than to any other man.

He Made Life a Bit Easier

THERE isn't any too much laughter in this world, at any time. It is always hard to see a funster go. We have too few of them to spare any.

Irving Knickerbocker, the gifted young artist whose sketches, "Tinymites," "Dizzy Dugan" and "Little Joe," brought smiles into the hearts of many thousands of newspaper readers all over the United States, is gone; killed in an automobile accident just as he was reaching the height of his powers.

It is hard to see him go. He was only 32. Yet "Knick," as he signed himself, did a good deal in his short life. He brought laughter to a great many people who had never seen him; slipped smiles into a great many days that were otherwise rather gloomy. During this, he made life a bit easier for lots of us. We shan't forget him.

"LOVEJOY" : By : Beatrice Burton

CHAPTER XXVI

Lovejoy stood with her back to the kitchen door, facing her.

If she goes out of this house like this, she thought in agony, all my peace and happiness go out with her!

She braced herself.

"Hilda," she said, struggling to be calm and cool-headed, "you want a hundred more dollars from me, don't you?—And that's all you want, isn't it?—You don't really want to go down to Mr. Nicholson's office and tell him things about me, do you? I've never hurt you, Hilda—"

"You open that door!" Hilda interrupted, her light blue eyes fixed on the back door key in Lovejoy's shaking hands. "Open it!"

What might have happened, Lovejoy never knew, if Aline had not come up the back steps at that moment and knocked on the kitchen door.

"Hello, hello!" her gay pretty voice called. "Open the door!"

With a great gasp of relief, Lovejoy turned and unlocked the door for her.

"What's all the fuss about?" she asked, coming into the kitchen.

She stared at Hilda in mock amazement.

"Hilda's not leaving, is she?" she asked. "You're not letting a wonderful girl like Hilda go, are you? —Why, Hilda, if I didn't have such a good maid I'd give you a place in my house this minute! What's wrong, anyway?"

It was Hilda who answered.

"She threw me out!" she said violently. "She's scairt of me because I know things about her. She's afraid I'm going to tell Mister about her and what she do. So she throw me out!"

Aline nodded sympathetically. Then she turned to Lovejoy.

"I hear the baby crying," she said to her. "Suppose you run and take care of him. I'll settle all this with Hilda. Hilda and I have always been great friends."

Lovejoy was glad to get out of the kitchen. . . . After all, this was Aline's affair and it was distinctly up to her to settle it. If anyone was going to buy those letters from Hilda, it was certainly Aline who ought to dig down into her pocket for the money. . . .

They aren't my letters! Lovejoy told herself as she lifted the baby out of his crib and carried him over to the open window to see a bird's nest just outside in the lilac bushes.

They weren't her letters. And yet she was filled with a sense of guilt and terror. She knew why she was, too—because Hilda knew about her and Steve Oglebay!

She stood there, with Tom's baby in her arms, and remembered how she had left Steve think that she didn't love Tom any more. . . . She remembered how she had gone out into the night twice to meet him just for the excitement of the thing. And she remembered how she had let him hold her close to him and kiss her and tell her that he loved her.

How does a woman do things like that? she asked herself. How did I happen to do things like that?

It semed to her in that moment of fear and repentance that she would give half of her life to have them undone.

Aline came walking into the room with her finger on her rouged lips. Behind that warning finger she was smiling.

"Ssh! I've got it all fixed!" she whispered. "She's promised to turn over the letters and the wire, and I'm going to write her a check for $100. Where do you keep your ink and pen?"

Five minutes later Hilda was out of the house, taking her two great bulging suitcases with her.

"She'll never bother us again," Aline remarked, watching her go down the sunny little street. "After she cashes that check we'll have it for proof that she blackmailed us—and she won't ever dare to open her mouth to us again."

She held up the two letters and the telegram in her hands a second. Then she began to tear them up.

"It was funny that she had those letters here," Lovejoy mused. "Just before you came in she told me that she had them in her trunk at her girl friend's house. Do you suppose she has two more by any chance?"

Aline shook her lovely blond head.

"No," she replied. "She's just told you they weren't here so you wouldn't try to take them from her by force. I'm sure these are all she has."

But she was wrong.

Early that afternoon Hilda called up the house.

"I want to tell you I got two more of those letters, Missis," her thick slow voice came over the wire. "I going to get a new job and if you ever tell anybody anything bad about me I going to show Mister those letters sure."

Without another word she hung up at her end of the line, leaving Lovejoy shaken and frightened and half-sick once more.

At half past three Aunt Em arrived to help Lovejoy with the baby and the dinner.

"I'm glad you did get rid of that girl!" she declared in her quick energetic way when she came in. "I happened to come in here one day when you were out chasing around with that Alderson woman, and she was lying on the bed in her room letting the baby yell himself black in the face and never going near him!—I never said anything about it because I thought it was your own business if you wanted to have a sloppy good-for-nothing like that in your house!"

Aunt Em was fond of saying that she never poked her nose into other people's business.

The truth was that she was always poking her nose into everybody's business. Finding out about things that did not concern her was the very breath of life to Aunt Em.

"Why did you let her go?" she asked now, taking off the black hat that Lovejoy had picked out for her the first day she had gone shopping with Aline. It had been plain and smart when Lovejoy had bought it. But now there was a paste buckle and a small bunch of white violets on it. Aunt Em had her own ideas about style, and they were the ideas of 1890.

"Well, I thought I ought to have someone who knew more about babies," fibbed Lovejoy.

Aunt Em nodded vigorously.

"You need a woman like Norrie Shane—that's what you need!" she said, snapping off her words. "If you're going to run out for three or four hours every day, playing cards and going shopping with that painted-up Alderson woman, you ought to have some responsible person with that precious baby. . . . It would be better for you to do the housework yourself and have someone like Norrie for him!"

She's right, Lovejoy said to herself.

She knew that she could do all of the housework in three or four hours every morning. Then she would be free until it was time to get dinner.

And if I peel all the vegetables and make the salad for dinner in the morning, she went on thinking, I'd be free as air every afternoon until half past five. And if I had a woman like Norrie in the house I'd never have to worry about the baby.

"How much does Norrie get in the way of salary?" she asked slowly.

"You'd better talk to her about salary," Aunt Em answered. "She's out of a job right now—and she's coming here at half past five to see you. I told her as soon as you telephoned me that you'd let that Hilda go."

On the second of June Tom and Lovejoy moved into the new house at the corner of the lane and Tudor road.

They didn't have much to move from the old house. Just their trunks—three of them—and the few little odds-and-ends that they had brought since their marriage.

They took them all up to the new house in the automobile, and Norrie Shane brought the baby in his buggy—Norrie all in the spotless white of her uniform, with her plain good face glowing with happiness.

"It's so nice to be here with my own friends," she said on that first night when the three of them sat down to their first meal in the new house. "If I were working in some big house, among strangers, I'd be having my dinner on a tray up in the baby's room."

She had come to work for the Nicholsons for less money that she was used to getting. But if she regretted it she gave no sign of it. She seemed to be as happy as a lark as she flew around the new bright rooms, helping Lovejoy, that night.

"She's crazy about you. That's why she took this place, and that's why she likes it here," Lovejoy told Tom bluntly when they were in their own room, getting ready for bed.

"If I were in her shoes I'd want to stay away from you as much as possible," she went on, slipping into her blue silk nightgown. "But I don't believe she realizes, herself, that she's gone hay-wire about you, Tom. Norrie wouldn't . . . She's the kind of woman who thinks it would be a deadly sin to fall in love with her best friend's husband. But she's done it all the samey—Every time she meets your eyes she looks like a dying duck in a thunderstorm! Noticed it?"

The Once Over
By H. I. PHILLIPS

Naval Parley Casablanca

The gob stood on the burning deck,
He was the gunner's mate;
He couldn't fight the foe because
His ship was overweight.

The fleets had met at sunrise but
The thing that made him hot
Was that he sailed a warship which
The rules said he should not.

The enemy with tact and skill
Had crabbed the gunner's act
By claiming violation of
The London naval pact.

The foe pulled out the articles,
And this one he did stress:
"All warships shall weight 20 tons
And not a half-pound less."

"I know I have a smaller ship,"
The gob in tears replied,
"But let us fight, I beg of you,
For she's the navy's pride."

"Don't be absurd," the foe came back,
"We're not a pack of fools.
And fighting any smaller ship
Is quite against the rules."

"But war is war," the gunner said,
"And we're out here to fight;
To argue over size and weight
I think is silly, quite."

"Another reason," said the foe,
"Why we this fight must shelve
Is that you've only eight-inch guns
While I am using twelve."

"Oh, come," the gunner's mate replied,
"And end this vain debate:
I'll let you use your twelve-inch guns
And I'll just use my eight."

"Don't argue, sir; the fight is off,"
The enemy replied,
"For since your ship is underweight
She is disqualified!"

Then came a burst of thunder sound;
The gob, oh! where was he?
Ask of the winds that far around
With fragments strewed the sea.

Into a gun the boy had crawled
And died in manner grand
Because there are some naval rules
No gob could understand.

Don't Accept Snap Diagnoses

An elderly nurse came to me complaining of rheumatism. She had spent thousands of dollars in trying to obtain relief from the pains in her right leg and hip. Many doctors had examined her, some of them pronouncing it rheumatism, and some sciatica. She told me that she did not wish to take an examination, as she wished to save money, and that since she had been examined by so many other doctors, she did not see the necessity for this. I explained to her that I would refuse to prescribe for any case without being sure of the diagnosis, which she finally consented to have.

After examining her carefully and going into her case history, I finally made some X-ray pictures of the spine, leg and hip. Much to her surprise, one of the X-ray pictures disclosed the presence of a needle imbedded deep in the muscular tissue. After some injury, she remembered having received an injection at the hospital in that hip, and apparently the needle had broken off, although she had not known of it at the time. The leg was opened and the needle removed. It proved to be the point of a hypodermic needle. As soon as the wound healed, her rheumatism disappeared as if by magic. This shows the importance of a careful diagnosis which should include every diagnostic instrument.

I have, time and again, talked to patients who had received a snap diagnosis of their trouble, and found it to be entirely wrong. To correctly diagnose is not easy. There are many quite different diseases which resemble each other closely in symptoms, and if the disease is rare, the doctor may give it the name of some one with which he is familiar.

It takes a great deal of experience and the handling of many patients to make a competent diagnostician, and the doctor should be thoroughly familiar with the X-ray, the microscope, the sphygmomonometer, and many similar diagnostic instruments. He should also be familiar with the examinations of the blood, urine, sputum, etc., and should only make his diagnosis after he had carefully considered the patient's physical condition, family history, previous treatment, and compared these with his different laboratory findings. In obscure cases it is often advisable that more than one doctor be consulted before the final diagnosis is made.

The next time that you have a diagnosis, be sure that you have a thorough examination and do not rely upon the mere guesswork of a doctor who looks at your tongue and takes your pulse.

My readers know that I am always willing and glad to give my advice as to the method of treatment which I think best, but I must ask them again not to expect me to diagnose their diseases by mail. This is, of course, impossible to do merely from a set of symptoms. If you will send me your doctor's report of your case I will have something to work on, and can advise you accordingly, but without this my advice can only be of the most general nature.

Do not be afraid to go to a doctor for a diagnosis. He will naturally advise you to use his method of treatment, but this does not mean that you need to do so unless it appears reasonable to you. Doctors are not all united as to the right method of treating disease, but although there are many different schools of healing, every reliable doctor believes in the importance of a careful diagnosis, and every competent doctor, regardless of his school, uses much the same methods in discovering the patient's condition.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Fattening Diet

Question—M. D. W. writes: "I am on a diet and would like to know whether it is fattening or not. Here is an example of my meals: Breakfast: Bran muffin, orange, cocoa. Dinner: Two bran muffins, one tablespoonful of potatoes, five tablespoonfuls of another vegetable, very little meat, and stewed fruit for dessert. Supper: Bran muffin, salad of raw vegetables, cocoa or milk."

Answer—The diet you have described is certainly a very poor one, containing as you say, very little meat and no other protein food. If you are very much overweight you would no doubt reduce somewhat on this diet but it is best not to try to reduce on any diet where the proteins are excluded as the protein element in proper amounts is indispensable to the proper growth of the body and for use in repairing broken down cell structure.

Washing Faces

Question—Mrs. J. T. writes: "Please tell me through the columns what you think of a father that does not think it necessary for me to wash the children's faces in the morning, when they are washed before going to bed. He is not particular about his own face being washed unles he is going out. I say he is not sanitary."

Answer—I know of a man who never washed his face in the morning because he said that it "didn't make him dirty to sleep." However, I am sure that your children will look better and feel better if you have their faces washed each morning. A shower or sponge bath of the whole body is even better.

DENNY SHUTE WINS $1,500 PRIZE IN TEXAS GOLF TOURNEY

SLIM OHIO PRO LEADS FIELD

8,000 Crowd Green as Annual Match Closes

By GAYLE TALBOT JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

BRACKENRIDGE PARK, SAN Antonio, Texas, Feb. 2.—While a wild-eyed gallery of 8,000 stampeded in his course, Denshore Shute, slim young Columbus, Ohio, professional, continued his calm, unruffled golf to come through with a par 71 in his final round today to win the ninth annual Texas open tournament with a total of 277 strokes.

There was a period, late in the day when it looked like Shute might have the $1,500 first prize taken from his grasp after he had led the field through three gruelling rounds, but he tightened up and came through with a safe margin. His total for the 72 holes was seven strokes under perfect golf for this heavily wooded and trapped course.

Threatened by Trio

Three stars who threatened to pass Shute throughout today's 36 holes finished in a tie for second place each with 280 strokes. They were Al Espinosa, Chicago; Neal McIntyre, Indianapolis, and Ed Dudley, Wilmington, Del. They divided $1,7000 in prize money between them.

Shute's victory here was his second important one of the winter tour. He picked up $3,500 in the Los Angeles open, which, with $1,500 here placed him well up in the list of money winners for the year.

It took four remarkable rounds, 68, 69, 69, 71 to put him ahead of the crack field here. For the first 54 holes he went over par on only three holes. His drives invariably were long and straight, his pitching dead to the pin and his putting accurate. One of his 69's was scored over a soggy course yesterday, with a drizzling rain in his face.

Other Winners

Tony Manero, Elmsford, N. Y., came in for a $300 out of the prize list, with 284 strokes. Jack Forrester, Hackensack, N. J., and Mike Turnesa, Elmsford, N. Y., divided $350. Each had 287 strokes. Frank Walsh, Chicago, Al Watrous, Detroit, and Harry Cooper, unattached, split $325 for their 288's. There were a raft of lesser prizes, including 15 of $50 each.

Ed Dudley put the pressure on Shute in the final round. Playing in the same threesome with the Columbus youngster, he was only a stroke behind when they started the final go-round. Shute faltered on the first nine, going one over par, the first time he had turned a nine over perfect figures since the tournament started, and Dudley squared it with a 36.

Regains Lead

Shute got the stroke back on No. 10, but took a disastrous six on the 13th and Dudley went into the lead with five holes to go. The only effect it had upon Shute was to make him buckle down to business. He clipped off those last five 3-4-3-4-3, two under par, while Dudley went two over. That was sufficient.

Although Dudley faltered at the last, he made a heroic spurt in the morning round to climb into second place at the three-quarter pole. He had a 66, tying the course record, and his 31 on the par 36 front nine was said to have established a record.

Espinosa and McIntyre fought it out with each other to finish in a tie with Dudley for second place. Each had a 210 total when they started the last round and each turned in a 70, one under par.

Rims the Cup

McIntyre just missed exclusive claim on second money when his putt on the last green rimmed the cup.

Bill Mehlhorn, winner of the event for two straight years could do no better than a four-way tie with Bobby Cruickshank, Purchase, N. Y., Ralph Guldahl, Dallas, and Jack Burke, Houston, each with 289 strokes. They divided $325. Guidahl, who graduated from high school only last month, was playing as a professional for the first time. But for a 76 on his last round he might have finished in the big money.

Lewis Levinson, San Antonio southpaw, won the amateur medal with a total of 295. Johnny Dawson, Chicago, finished with 298. Each had a 69 on his final round.

From here the touring professionals will go to Houston for a 72-hole meet starting Wednesday. Prizes total $2,500.

Getting Kayoed Didn't Stop These Boys

All of these fistic experts know what it is to get knocked out. Both Sharkey and Walker collided with haymakers twice.

By JAY VESSELS
Sports Editor
Associated Press Feature Service

NEW YORK, Feb. 2. (AP)—Knockouts aren't necessarily a requisite to fistic success but the boys who get tumbled over for the count need not quit trying.

Looking over the big shots of fistiana you find that all except a mighty few have been stopped some time or another in their career.

Three of the present crop of champions suffered knockouts and six others of the leading chin clubbers know what it is to be slapped into slumberland.

Sammy Mandell, lightweight; Mickey Walker, middleweight, and Jackie Fields, welterweight, are the titleholders who have been stopped.

Mandell was put away by Joey Sangor, Mickey Walker by Phil Delmont and Joe Dundee, and Fields by Jimmy McLarnin.

Al Singer, a leading lightweight contender, was stopped by Ignacio Fernandez; Jimmy McLarnin, welterweight challenger, was technically knocked out by Ray Miller, and Jack Kid Berg, lightweight flash, was put away for the count by Billy Petrolle.

Getting into the heavyweight ranks you find that Jack Sharkey was knocked out by both Jack Dempsey and Romero Rojas; that Max Schmeling was beaten down by Gypsy Daniels, and that Tuffy Griffiths was stopped by Jimmy Braddock.

Leading scrappers who have avoided knockouts include Kid Chocolate, featherweight challenger; Bat Battalino, featherweight champion; Larry Johnson, light-heavyweight challenger and Primo Carnera, the newest heavyweight threat.

Jimmy Slattery, rated in the running for the light-heavyweight crown, was stopped by Jimmy Braddock. Dave Shade and Paul Berlenbach and has yet to meet Larry Johnson who has knocked out the last 15 men to face him.

Q. Was Phil Scott ever knocked out?

A. Yes, only four times.

Q. By whom?

A. Harry Drake, Paulino Uzcudun, Harry Persson and Knute Hansen.

ARKANSAS FIVE REGAINS LEAD

Longhorns Idle as Porkers Defeat Bears

DALLAS, Feb. 2. (UP)—Following two decisive victories over the Baylor Bears this week-end while the Texas Longhorns were cramming knowledge into their heads for the mid-semester examinations, the Arkansas university Razorbacks today had regained first place in the Southwest conference basket ball race.

Texas, however, will have ample opportunity to overtake the Razorbacks this week when they meet Southern Methodist here Friday night and Texas Christian at Fort Worth Saturday night. The Longhorns will resume intensive practice tomorrow.

Texas already has won four games and lost one for a percentage of .800. Arkansas has won five games and lost one for a standing of .833. The games in the lost columns of both schools represent the result of a two-game series they played at Fayetteville recently. Both teams won one game.

Leading at the half by a single point, the Arkansas five forged steadily ahead during the second period in their game with Baylor Saturday night and won, 27 to 21.

In the only other conference game played Saturday night, Coach Francis Schmidt's Texas Christian Frogs fell victims to the impregnable defense and accurate shooting of the Texas Aggies, 23 to 17.

Champions On Card This Week

NEW YORK, Feb. 2. (AP)—Champions come to the rescue of the boxing fans this week to give a little bit of flavor to an otherwise lusterless boxing schedule.

Benny Bass, who holds the junior lightweight championship so far as most states are concerned, takes on two opponents. After battling Davey Abad of Panama at St. Louis tomorrow night, the Philadelphian will entrain for Boston to take on Sammy Fuller of Boston there Friday night. The fight at St. Louis is at the title weight, 130 pounds, but the title can change hands only on a knockout since the bout is a no-decision affair.

Al Brown, Panama negro, generally recognized as the bantamweight champion of the world, defends his title against Johnny Erickson of New York at the Olympia A. C. here on Saturday night. The bout is for 15 rounds. At Cleveland tomorrow night Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion, meets Joey Goodman of Cleveland in a 12-round non-titular bout.

A middleweight tangle between Clyde Chastian of Dallas and Harry Ebbets of New York heads Jack Dempsey's Friday night card at the Chicago coliseum.

Its Johnny Risko-Victorio Campolo bout barred by the New York athletic commission, Madison Square garden will be closed to boxing this week.

TURKEY WINS QUITAQUE BOUT

Three-Day Tournament Chooses Leaders

Special to The Record News

QUITAQUE, Texas, Feb. 2.—The Turkey high school basket ball team today was resting on its laurels after having won the Quitaque high school invitation tournament here Saturday night after three days of stiff eliminations between a number of teams of this district.

Reagan Basketeers Journey To Vernon for Game Tuesday Night

By JACK ALLEN
The Record News Staff

Coach Jesse T. Ryle's Reagan Junior high school basketeers will meeet the Vernon Junior high school team on the latter's court Tuesday night. It is the first game for the local cagers on a foreign court. Coach Johns of the Vernon Junior high has built up a formidable five and should give the local cagers more than they bargain for. The Reagan hoopers went down by a 26 to 12 score in their previous meeting last Tuesday on the Zundelowitz court.

Still Developing

The red and white squad is still in the lower stages of development and is by no means perfect. Daily work on the Zundy floor on fundamentals and the perfection of a few plays comprise the daily workouts. Few scrimmages with outside teams have been on the schedule as most of the mock games are held between the first and second teams. The squad gives exceptionally bright prospects of becoming a winning team with a few more weeks of practice under their belt.

A formidable offense has been built up by the new Reagan mentor after considerable stress on this phase of the game. Roy Ballard, the only experienced lad on the team, hails from Electra and is fast taking over the responsibilities of chief scorer. He has an eye on the basket and is fast and elusive. He plays center and the Zundy cagers will have their hands full when they try to cover him in the inter-city Junior high championship series which will be held sometime in March. Roy is not depended on to make all the points for the red and white. G. A. Stevens and Wilson Phillips bid fair to become real forwards after a few more sessions on the court. L. A. Dickerson and Francis Onstott occupy the guard holes and although inexperienced they are developing fast and will be hard to get around in two or three weeks. Their conscientious work will no doubt bear fruit in the future. All of the reserve material is promising to develop into basketball players if their showing in daily practice may be taken as a criterion. A. G. Fletcher, Billy Godfrey, Howell Roberts, Ike Roberts, John Elliott, Jack Baxter, F. L. Bailey, and Cleo Creecy are working hard to displace the first stringers and the favored ones will have to put on all steam to retain their coveted first string positions.

Outcome Doubtful

Last year the Zundelowitz Junior high quintet larruped the Reagan aggregation in the championship series. This season the red and white cagers are out for scalps to revenge the defeat. At the present the wearers of the red and white are decidedly inferior to the proteges of Roy Golden, but at the rate the Reagan warriors are improving the outcome of the series is doubtful. The crucial series does not occur until the latter part of March and the Reaganites have several more weeks of practice yet.

Coach Ryle took over the coaching reins of Reagan when Coach A. D. Beck announced his resignation this year after football season. He is setting a slow pace for his charges but the time will quicken in a few days. His team is expected to develop considerably when the pace quickens and their motto will be "Look to our guns, Zundy."

Hollis Football Stars Are Presented Sweaters

Special to The Record News.

HOLLIS, Okla., Feb. 2.—The football lettermen of the Hollis "Tigers" were presented with their sweaters by Joe Bailey Metcalf, coach, at assembly Friday morning. After the presentation of the sweaters Mr. Metcalf made a short talk to the boys expressing his appreciation for the fine sportsmanship they showed in the games.

Seventeen sweaters were given including the one given to Mr. Metcalf. Men to receive the sweaters were:

Marshall Vanderford, Pete Locke, Gerald Goodwin, Jimmie Sims, J. C. Coppage, Woodrow Burgett, Ralph Teague, A. K. Whiteside, Cecil Patrick, William Sheid, Lester Chapman, Oswald Adams, Jasper McCullough, Frank Rhodes, Jack Williams and Dick Abernathy.

The sweaters were of the slip-on style with the letter "H" in red and white. In the center of the bar on the "H" is a small football with '29 in the center.

The junior high school football team received their sweaters last Friday week. These sweaters are the same as the senior sweaters with the exception of the letters J. H. in the place of the football being placed in the bar of the H.

Bowlers Meet Tonight To Plan for Tulsa Tourney

A special meeting of all Major league bowlers will be held at the Spudder alley at 7:30 Monday evening to complete arrangements for sending representatives to the A. B. C. tournament at Tulsa, Feb. 15-22, officials of the league announced Sunday. It is planned to send two Wichita Falls teams to participate in the tournament, it was said. All interested in making the trip are urged to be present.

Committees appointed recently to work out details for the tournament will meet Monday morning at 10 o'clock at the alley, it was announced. Final details are expected to be worked out at this meeting.

Vernon Teams Defeat Opponents in Games

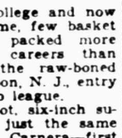

VERNON, Texas, Feb. 2.—The Vernon Lions and the Vernon Junior High school basket ball teams were victors over Electra and Wichita Falls opponents Friday night by decisive scores in games played at the high school gymnasium here. The Lions defeated the Electra Tigers, 34 to 12, and the Vernon Juniors defeated the Zundelowitz cagers, 32 to 12. The Lions were victors over the Tigers last week, 25 to 13, and last Tuesday night the Zundy quintet defeated the Vernon Juniors, 20 to 19.

"Pongo Joe" To Be Buried In Wisconsin Today

HICKMAN, Ky., Feb. 2. (AP)—The body of Pongo Joe Cantillon left the home here he had loved and was started for Janesville, Wis., tonight where final services and burial will take place Monday.

After a short prayer service at his home, the body of the beloved baseball veteran was taken to Fulton, Ky., and placed on the Illinois Central crack train for Chicago. His wife started north on the same train.

Basketball Shots

by TED VOSBURGH

In high school, college and now the professional game, few basket ball players have packed more drama into their careers than Howie Bollerman, the raw-boned center of the Paterson, N. J., entry in the American pro league.

Bollerman's six-foot, six-inch superstructure—he is just the same height as Primo Carnera—first came into public prominence on Feb. 6, 1925, when he and four other skyscrapers from Mackensack, N. J., High school brought to an end the Passaic, N. J., High school winning streak which stands as the greatest in basket ball.

Passaic's wonder teams, tutored in the short pass game by that master mentor, Ernest A. Blood, had woven a string of 159 victories stretching back over a period of six seasons when Bollerman & Co. finally turned the scale.

"The Passaic players' speed availed them nothing," said a story of the game. "Bollerman, Hackensack's six-foot, six-inch center, spoiled their teamwork by tipping the ball either in front or behind him to one of his men at almost every jump, easily outplaying the Passaic center."

It was one of the most dramatic games in history. One of Bollerman's teammates collapsed and the losers left the court in tears.

From high school Bollerman went to Colgate, where last year he captained a team that was rated as among the half-dozen best in the East.

Feeling his loss, the present Colgate team has dropped about as many games as the Bollerman-led quintet did in an entire campaign.

Unlike many of the college stars Bollerman fitted into professional basket ball as though made to order.

Unfortunately for Paterson he is able to play in only the eastern games, as a banking job prevents him from making the western swing with his team.

Joe Brennan of Brooklyn's Visitations is another star which shines only in the East because of the demands of business and as a result these two teams are noticeably weaker when playing in the western cities.

Bob Thompson, the outstanding indlvidual in Passaic's brilliant history, is now a busy and efficient insurance man covering an eastern territory.

As long as basket ball is played "Thousand Point Bobby" will be remembered for his great season of 1921-22 when he tallied 1,000 points, getting 69 in a single game. Eight times in that memorable season Passaic scored more than 100 points in a game with the lanky, clean-cut Thompson showing the way.

The good word seems to be to watch Wisconsin, next year as well as this.

Coach Walter Meanwell of the Badgers says he has the five best sophomores he ever coached as understudies for the five-star regulars.

The University of California team at Los Angeles, cellar occupant in the southern section of the Pacific Coast conference last year, has come to the fore with a rush this season, trimming California and U. S. C. in brilliant style.

Babe's Birthday, Primo's Bout to Mark Week

NEW YORK, Feb. 2. (UP)—Babe Ruth's 35th birthday, Primo Carnera's third ring appearance in this country and a series of races between Jack Elder and Cy Leland, the sprinting halfbacks, are among the outstanding sports events on this week's program.

Somewhere down in Florida Babe Ruth will celebrate his 35th birthday on Friday. He was born at Baltimore on Feb. 7, 1894.

For Primo Carnera's third American fight, Cowboy Billy Owens, an opponent even less known than Big Boy Peterson and Elzear Rioux the giant Venetian's first two victims, has been selected. The bout, scheduled for 10 rounds, but likely to end in the first session as have the other two, will be held at Newark, N. Y., Thursday night.

Tilden Defeats Briton In Cannes Tournament

CANNES, France, Feb. 2. (AP)—Big Bill Tilden displayed his best form of the season in eliminating Charles Kingsley of Great Britain 6-0, 6-1, 6-1, in the semi-finals of the Cannes tennis tournament today.

Henri Cochet, famous French star who watched the match from the sidelines, commented that "Tilden is not so old and decrepit as he is pictured."

"It may be a good thing for France that he is out of Davis cup tennis," Cochet added.

Los Angeles Catcher May Die of Burns

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 2. (AP)—Gus Sandberg, 34, catcher for the Los Angeles baseball club, received burns today which may cause his death, when the gas tank of his automobile exploded.

Police said Sandberg had drained the gasoline from the tank and then struck a match to see if it was empty. Fumes in the tank caused the explosion. Sandberg was leaning over the tank and caught the full force of the blast.

VERNON HELPS MANY NEEDY

Welfare Workers Kept Busy During Month

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, Feb 2.—Starvation and cold taxed the capacities of the Wilbarger Welfare association and relief workers of Vernon heavily during the January cold wave which threw hundreds of day laborers out of work here. Aid was provided for more than 352 families, including 1,517 persons, with no check made on the number of persons in at least 60 of the families, officials of the association and others interested in relief work said.

The greatest number of appeals received by the association has been for food. A conservative estimate of the number of people in Vernon who have gone without food for as many as two days would place the number at 20, Mayor H. D. Hockersmith said. One family brought to the attention of the county commissioners consisted of 11 persons, all of whom were confined in bed with typhoid fever. Medical attention and nurses were supplied in this case as well as food and fuel. Several members of the family have recovered.

One family called to the attention of Chief of Police J. D. Key was found to be totally without fuel, huddled in a small box house lacking sufficient clothes and bedding to keep them warm. No food had been in the house for two days. The mother was in ill health and her husband had been tramping through the snow all day looking for work, which could not be found. There were five children in the family.

Forty-nine persons slept in the city jail during January in order to have a place to keep warm, Mr. Key said. County Judge J. V. Townsend related a case of one man who begged to be confined in the county jail in order to secure food and a warm place to sleep.

Hale Farmers To Attend Tech Course

R. M. Milhollin, county agent, and Mrs. Julia Kelley, demonstration agent, plan to spend all three days of the short course. Mrs. M. S. Hudson, a director of the Texas Farm Bureau federation, will appear on the program three different times during the short course. On Monday she will respond to a welcome address by Dr. Paul W. Horn, president of Texas Tech. On Tuesday she will make an address on "Progress of Rural Organization in the Plains Panhandle," and on Wednesday she will address the women attending on "Our Opportunity."

Hungry Thieves Fill 'Tummies' During Raid

Thieves with good appetites and steady nerves broke into the Cameron grocery, confectionary and lunch stand at 1007 Ninth street Saturday night and helped themselves to milk, candy and apples before escaping with $100 worth of cigarets and tobacco and $1.50 in pennies. The loot also included bacon and canned goods.

Entrance to the shop was obtained through a rear window, which was smashed. The intruders drank several bottles of milk and nibbled at other edibles, leaving confusion behind them. The store is owned by A. D. Cameron who discovered his losses Sunday morning and reported them to the police department. One suspect was being held for investigation at police headquarters late Sunday.

Kingdom of God Only Security For Miserable World, Says Bible Teacher

Modern People Living In "An Age of Abject Fear About Future," Says Martin in Address

Declaring that "we are living in an age of abject fear about the future" and that "we are a tired and restless world of miserable dissatisfied people," Judge P. A. Martin Sunday morning pointed to the kingdom of God as the only security in his address before the Men's Bible class of the Floral Heights Methodist church.

"The firm establishment of the Kingdom in the hearts of our children is the best legacy we can leave them," the speaker declared. His address is quoted below:

"The title of today's lesson is putting God's kingdom first. I am calling it 'putting first things first' with fond memories of my old friend, Dr. J. W. Hill, this being one of his favorite expressions. I am making no special comment upon the first part of the lesson, the Lord's prayer, for the reason that I took occasion about a year ago to lecture the class upon this model prayer given us by the Christ himself in this sermon on the mount. I shall confine my remarks today to the words of the golden text: 'Seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you.'

Strange Doctrine

"A strange teacher was teaching a strange doctrine to a hungry people here. They were the poorest of the poor, the teacher and His disciples were so hungry that they violated the law of Moses by going into the corn fields and plucking the ears, ate them raw, the multitude became so hungry that a miracle had to be performed to feed them, shortly after this time. And yet this teacher said: 'Take no thought, saying what shall we eat? or what shall we drink? or wherewithal shall we be clothed?' A strange thing to say to a conquered people, impoverished to the last degree by the Roman conqueror, thousands of them not knowing where the next meal was to come from.

"Did He mean that they should sit down in idleness and depend upon the bounty of Providence to furnish them food and raiment. No, certainly not. But what He did mean was that the kingdom of God was of more vital present importance to every one of them than food and raiment and that until it was attained, their every effort should be given to seeking it, to seek it first of all and then depend upon a heavenly father to see that their honest efforts were rewarded and that 'all these things would be added' to them. His whole teaching was to the effect that this 'kingdom' was such a precious and such a necessary thing in the human life that we can afford to surrender all else for it and put all other subjects in abeyance until this has been accomplished. You remember He likened it to the pearl of great price that a man sold all he had and bought and to the coin the woman lost and abandoned other work until she found it, and then called in her friends to rejoice with her. In fact it is the most precious and most necessary possession of mankind, this indwelling of the kingdom.

"Riches have wings, they fly away. Earthly honors and fame, touched by the breath of scandal or suspicion, become tarnished and fade. There is nothing substantial, nothing eternal in the things of this world. Nations rise and fall, civilizations crumble into dust and the whole world is but a vast cemetery of buried hopes and aspirations of men.

Tired and Restless World

"And we are living in an age of abject fear, not to say terror, when we contemplate what the future may have in store for us and our loved ones. No man can imagine just how the next generation will get by in the world; we are investing our savings in life insurance, in stocks and bonds for the benefit of our loved ones when we depart, but we still lay awake at night wondering what will become of them. A tired and restless world of miserably dissatisfied people we are indeed.

"The great teacher of Galilee has offered in this sermon the only remedy for this kind of sorrow, the only prescription for happiness here and hereafter. It is simple yet complete. Let the dead past bury its dead and trust God for the future. 'Seek first the kingdom and all these things shall be added,' said he. And let us recognize the good common sense in the teaching. How do you know that the wealth you are accumulating will not be a curse instead of a blessing to your children? Have we not seen it proven to be a curse? And how do we know that all we have may be swept away before we ever get to enjoy it ourselves? We all admire the man who by honest toil and thrift accumulate much of this world's goods; but how much more do we admire him if he puts first things first in his calculations, seeks first the kingdom and the righteousness of God and then adds the material successes of this world.

"The first establishment of the kingdom in the hearts of our children is the best legacy we can leave them, all others fade into insignificance beside that one 'pearl of great price.' Without it they will be the net result of their environment; with it they will have an 'anchor within the veil' and a definite promise, yes, a host of promises from the sacred book such as, 'once I was young, now I am old, yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread.'"

WAR PLAY TO OPEN TONIGHT

Little Theater to Present "The Enemy"

February's season of performances by the Wichita Falls Little Theater will be ushered in Monday night in the workshop at Polk street and Avenue H when the first of four showings of Channing Pollock's "The Enemy" will be presented.

The play selected for February represents one of the largest undertakings thus far assumed by the Little Theater, and rehearsals have been under way for almost a month. Dealing with the theme of war's abolition, "The Enemy" combines thought of a very serious vein with subtle humor introduced through the inconsistencies of a typical "Junker."

That cast of "The Enemy" contains a number of Little Theater members not yet seen in productions by that organization, including Miss Marguerite Fisher, Miss Marjorie Woolsey and J. W. Thorne.

Performances will be given on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights of this week.

CLUB AGENT OUTLINES WORK

Armstrong County Groups Plan Busy Year

Special to The Record News.

CLAUDE, Texas, Feb. 2.—Under the supervision of Miss Elsie L. Phillips, home demonstration agent for Armstrong county, plans are being made for an unusual amount of work for the year 1930.

There are seven demonstration clubs for women, and five for girls of this county. These clubs are located in the following communities: Claude, Malden, Lakeview, Armstrong, Washburn, Fairview, Wayside. The agent meets with the ladies' club at these places once a month, and with the girls' club twice a month.

These clubs have two contests under way at present. They are "living room" and "yard" contests. The living room contest will close in April and the yard contest will close in October. The aim for the living room contest is "every woman do one major or two major things to improve her living room," and the aim for the yard contest is "every woman plant four trees or shrubs."

There will be one 4-H pantry demonstration in each club. The pantry demonstrators are to plan and fill a canning budget which will enable their families to have balanced meals through the entire year. This budget takes in the three productive phases: poultry, gardening and dairying.

There will be prizes given the winners in the contests mentioned above. The first prize in the living room contest is $5; second $2.50. The first two prizes for the yard contest is $10 and $5.

Every woman in the clubs is to arrange for adequate storage space for canned goods. The clubs are to have at least two social meetings a year; send one representative from each community, to the A. & M. short course next summer, and for each community to have an exhibit for the county, tri-state and Dallas fairs next fall.

The girls' clubs are making preparations for poultry raising. The agent meets with them on Saturday for the purpose of teaching, helping and showing them how to fix their chicken coops, brooders, etc.

They are also finishing up different designs in linen dresser scarfs. Bermuda fagoting and plans for making use of as many plants and shrubs as possible, and the study of the Yucca plant is also being carried on in the girls' clubs of this county.
