Ask Us

Q. — What five American oil companies are still operating in Libya?

A. — We checked with staffers with U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm. They noted there are actually 12 American oil companies still in Libya, but only five have any "significant" operations. These include Marathon, Occidental, Grace, Conoco and Amerada-Hess. The total assets of these five are now estimated at one-half a billion dollars.

In Brief

21 expelled

LONDON (AP) — Police arrested 21 Libyans in a series of raids early today, including a pilot who threatened to form an anti-American suicide squad. The Home Office said they would be expelled from the country as a matter of national security.

The Home Office said the Libyans were suspected of involvement in "student revolutionary activities," but did not elaborate.

Prices down

WASHINGTON (AP) — A record plunge in gasoline costs last month pushed consumer prices down 0.4 percent, matching the February fall and the steepest back-to-back declines in more than 36 years.

Local

Stage band

The Snyder High School stage band was named the Outstanding Band in Class AAAA at the annual Texas Tech Stage Band Festival Saturday.

Local performers named to the festival All-Star Band were Jayna Gilbert on piano, Robert Caldwell on trumpet and Anne Deavers on alto saxophone.

Voting 'slow'

A relatively slow voter turnout was reported here Tuesday one week after the absentee ballot began for the upcoming May primary elections.

Officials with the county clerk's office — where absentee voting is being conducted for both parties — report 85 votes cast in the Democratic primary and 18 votes in the Republican.

They noted another 20 ballots were requested but not returned in the mail as yet.

The absentee ballot will end April 29 — a Tuesday. The primaries will be held the following Saturday, May 3.

Ira to meet

Ira School trustees will meet at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday. Items on the agenda include student transfer applications, uncollectable delinquent taxes, and perfect attendance and meal ticket policies.

Interviews next...

WTC search is narrowed

Interviews for the position of Western Texas College president are now expected within the next seven to 10 days, college board members say.

WTC trustees met in a two-hour closed session Monday to discuss some 24 candidates for the post and their resumes.

Only board members attended the session and no action was taken when the board came back into open session around 7:45 p.m., according to WTC Board President R.C. Patton.

"We went over the bunch last night and now I think we're ready to talk to some of them," Patton said.

He said he expects interviews to be scheduled within the next "week to 10 days." Patton noted as of Monday night, none of the applicants had been contacted regarding interview dates.

As to how many interviews the board might eventually conduct, Patton estimated "probably not more than four or five." He added some of these might come as quickly as this weekend.

He said the board was still moving toward its goal of having a college president chosen by the end of the current semester.

"We're going to select the man that we think will do the best job. Now we'll be checking references and meeting some of these fellows eyeball to eyeball."

The only board member unable to attend Monday's meeting was Bill Jones. Attending were Patton, Howard Sterling, Edwin Parks, Bill Wilson, Roy Baze and Bob Hargrove.

The search was prompted by the resignation in December of former WTC President Dr. Don Newbury.

Shortly after this, trustees named Dr. Harry Krenek as the acting interim head of college operations.

Ways now opened for tornado relief

Ways to aid the Sweetwater tornado victims are now being established here.

Donations of household items may now be turned in at the Merchant Fast Motor Lines office, 2101 Ave. T.

Simultaneously, a spokesman for the collection center based in Sweetwater said the most critical need now is for money donations — funds to help many rebuild damaged homes.

The Ministerial Alliance of Sweetwater will disperse these funds and is now soliciting donations, according to Max Smiley, pastor of the Broadway Baptist Church there.

His church now serves as the distribution point for the items donated to tornado victims.

Other than funds, he said items now needed include non-perishable food, household goods and furniture items. No clothing is needed, he said.

Later this week, the distribution point will be moved to the Minter Building (formerly the Ledy Building) located at Broadway and Oak Sts. in Sweetwater.

The Merchants freight line of Snyder has agreed to haul all locally donated items to Sweetwater, taking their first load Monday afternoon.

Snyder firemen initially began the effort and were collecting items at the fire station. All contributions from this point should be taken to the Merchant's office.

Any donations to the Sweetwater Disaster Relief Fund should be sent in care of the ministerial alliance there. Checks should be made out to the alliance, Smiley said. The zip code is 79556.

The current damage estimate in Sweetwater is 180 homes destroyed, almost 200 heavily damaged and hundreds more damaged to lesser degrees.

All contributions will go toward helping rebuild the homes of individuals who were not otherwise covered through insurance, Smiley said.

He noted volunteers will be doing much of the work and the funds will be used to purchase material.

Job Corp program attracts two locals

Two young Snyder men left for McKinney early Tuesday to begin a year of training and practical experience in the Job Corp program.

Boarding the bus at 3 a.m., Anthony Brooks and his cousin Donald Brooks plan to study construction, plumbing and carpentry. They hope to learn marketable skills which will eventually lead to full-time jobs once their training is completed.

Begun in the early 1960's by the U.S. Department of Labor, Job Corp offers disadvantaged youth aged 16 through 21 the opportunity to learn a variety of vocational skills.

In order to qualify, interested individuals must fall under income guidelines and be in need of vocational training.

"Those without a high school diploma can kill two birds with one stone," noted Cecilia Rivera of the Texas Employment Commission's Sweetwater office. "They can complete their GED (high school equivalent) while they are taking classes."

Once the basic criteria are met, the individual must simply file forms with the TEC. Locally, applications are taken through the TEC office and processed through the regional Sweetwater office. "The process usually takes about six weeks," Rae Adams of the local office noted, "but because the program is so full, the boys had to wait three or four months."

Once the young person arrives at the assigned training area, they are given an aptitude test. The test score determines the number of days each week the individual will take classes, Anthony explained. "A person who scores high might have to go to school two or three days and work the rest of the week. Someone with a lower score might have to study four days and work only one," he said.

The men learned about the program through another cousin, Pauline Taylor.

Insurance request ok'd

Tuesday morning, commissioners granted a request by a local insurance representative to contact county employees regarding supplemental life insurance.

After granting the request, commissioners asked that the agent wait until representatives from another firm can present a similar proposal.

Gilbert Merritt, local representative for American General Insurance Corporation, initially requested permission to include his card with county payroll checks.

After learning that some checks are deposited directly into area banks, Merritt then requested a list of county employees and permission to meet individuals in their respective departments.

The SDN Column

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "There's debate about the age of the human race, but most agree it's old enough to know better."

The thunderstorm that moved through Scurry County about 4 a.m. Saturday was the same storm system that played havoc with a large area of Sweetwater just after 7 a.m.

Just like the thunderstorm caught Snyder by surprise, the twin twisters also caught our neighbors to the southeast off guard.

Three SDN staffers were in Sweetwater Saturday morning and were able to get pictures and information in time for our weekend edition to come out at the regular time.

Another Snyder couple hurried over to Sweetwater Saturday morning when it was reported that the Shady Acres Mobile Home Park had been hit.

Greg and Bonnie Hodge were concerned about Bonnie's brother and family--the Ted Kimbrells. Ted, wife Jackie, and 13-year-old daughter Tracy were inside their home and were trying to get out when the tornado hit.

Tracy, a seventh grader, was trying to get out the door when when the strong winds struck and carried her on the door more than half a block.

Fortunatly, she landed on a pile of insulation which apparently braced her landing. Tracy, obviously shaken, escaped with minor cuts and bruises.

The parents were still inside the home and were found under a pile of debris. Ted had only minor injuries, and Jackie was hospitalized for treatment and observation.

Many Scurry County emergency personnel responded to the needs of those Nolan County neighbors. It's time like these when the true character of West Texans shines brightly.

Court to get AIDS question

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid growing fears over the spread of AIDS, the Supreme Court is planning to decide whether public schools and other federal aid recipients may discriminate against those with contagious diseases.

The justices on Monday set the stage for a ruling next year to determine whether a carrier of a contagious disease — including the AIDS virus — may be considered a "handicapped" person protected by federal law against discrimination.

In a case involving a Florida school teacher, the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled in 1985 that the federal law banning discrimination against the handicapped applies to contagious diseases.

In appealing to the Supreme Court, Nassau County, Fla., school officials said the appeals court decision could have "disastrous consequences."

AIDS — or aquired immune deficiency syndrome — is a viral disease that can kill its victims by destroying their immune system and leaving them vulnerable to other diseases.

The Center for Disease Control in Atlanta said this month that 18,070 cases of AIDS have been reported nationwide and that 9,591 of those people had died. No one has recovered from the disease.

The Florida case involves a woman, Gene H. Arline, who was diagnosed as having tuberculosis, an infectious respiratory disease.

She was fired as a third grade teacher by the Nassau County school board and she sued in federal court.

In 1983, a federal judge threw out the suit. But the 11th Circuit court reinstated it last Sept. 30.

In other actions Monday, the court:

—Ruled that the news media, in order to win libel lawsuits, do not have to prove the truth of defamatory statements that prompt the suits. By a 5-4 vote in a case involving The Philadelphia Inquirer, the justices said the Constitution requires people who sue the news media to prove that the defamatory statement about them is false.

—Let stand a federal law exposing buyers of child pornography to stiff criminal penalties. The justices rejected the appeal of an Alabama man sentenced to 10 years in a federal penitentiary for receiving in the mail a booklet depicting children engaged in sexually explicit conduct.

Nixon says...

'Mexico ripe for revolution'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon says the shock waves of a victory by the leftist regime in Nicaragua against Contra rebels could topple Mexico, a country he described as "waiting for a revolution."

In a broad foreign policy speech Monday at The Associated Press annual luncheon, Nixon backed President Reagan's call for U.S. aid to the Contras and also supported last week's U.S. air attack on Libya.

However, he said, the "bombing option" against Libya can't be used again and that the United States should seek joint allied economic action to block the sale of Libyan oil or impose a military blockade in the Gulf of Sidra to punish any future Libyan-sponsored terrorism.

The bombing tactic can't be used repeatedly, he said, because gradual escalation "doesn't work with fanatics" like Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy, and massive air raids would be unacceptable.

Nixon said the U.S. attack on Libya and terrorism in Europe will have less impact on the United States in the long run than the fighting in Nicaragua.

"Nicaragua is far more important strategically to the United States than even the Philippines," Nixon told 1,500 newspaper executives and their spouses at the luncheon for the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

Nixon also spoke of U.S. politics and, briefly, of his experience in the Watergate scandal that brought an end to his presidency. Nixon, 73, resigned the presidency on Aug. 9, 1974.

He noted that the so-called "domino theory," which holds that one government's communist revolution can lead to one in another country, is no longer fashionable.

But, he warned, "Make no mistake about it, if the communist government of Nicaragua, free from the threat of the Contras, threatens its neighbors, the shock waves are going to go all over Central America and eventually could affect Mexico."

Citing Mexico's "autocratic one-party government," severe unemployment and "massive corruption," Nixon said "Mexico is a country that is waiting for a revolution."

Dear Abby

Deceitful Husbands Accuse Wives of Stooping to Snoop

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My girlfriend and I became suspicious of our husbands' nights out. We thought they got too fancied up to go bowling and have a few beers with the guys, so we played "private eye" and followed them for three nights.

On Night No. 1, they took two young ladies to a movie. On Night No. 2, the same happy foursome went to a restaurant in Manhattan. On Night No. 3, they went to a St. Patrick's Day dinner dance in the Bronx. They always came home and said they had a lot of laughs with "the guys."

Finally, we presented them with our findings of where they had been each night.

They not only denied it, they got mad at us and called us liars and sneaks! Can you believe it? These two cheaters who had been sneaking around called us liars and sneaks!

They now say they will never be able to trust us again. We were made to feel like the guilty parties.

What is your answer to this? We read you daily in the New York Post, and so do they. Sign us, "Two Ex-Private Eyes," or

FRAN AND PATTY

DEAR FRAN AND PATTY: Your husbands apparently used the axiom that the best defense is a strong offense, and it worked. Too bad you "ex-private eyes" didn't realize that "one picture is worth 10,000 words." Next time, take a camera along.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old boy who reads your column every day and I really enjoy it. But I have spotted something in your solutions that bothers me. Ninety percent of the time you tell your readers to get some kind of counseling.

In one letter a couple was having trouble with their sex life. Of course you told them to see a marriage counselor. Come on, Abby, they wrote to you for advice. I'm sure anyone could have told them to go find a counselor.

Don't get me wrong, some of your answers are great, but when you say, "See a counselor," you are passing the buck.

J.A.S.,
BATAVIA, N.Y.

DEAR J.A.S.: I realize that, I often recommend counseling, but believe me, I'm not passing the buck. I wouldn't presume to offer an instant solution to a problem that requires many sessions with a counselor or psychotherapist. Some readers tell me only one side of it; a trained counselor is able to probe the situation in depth.

Please read on:

DEAR ABBY: Please don't apologize for recommending counseling so often. You may sound like a "broken record" and some people accuse you of using it as a cop-out, but believe me, I am on your side. I am a 20-year-old university student who wrote to you because I was having some heavy problems I couldn't handle. You told me that counseling was my only hope and suggested I go to the counseling center at the university. (I knew it was there, but never got up the nerve to go.) After I got your letter, I walked into the counseling center and was given an appointment with a very compassionate man who has helped me enormously. After only two visits I feel so much better about myself. All I needed was someone I could be totally honest with.

I'm sure other universities offer the same service—and it's free for students. So keep telling people to get counseling, Abby. It's not a cop-out. I used to think so, but not anymore.

I'm signing my name, but if you print this, sign me ...

HOORAY FOR THE U. OF MARYLAND

DEAR HOORAY: And hooray for you for wanting other college students to know that counseling worked for you.

Libyan air raid proved benefits of high tech

WASHINGTON (AP) — When U.S. Air Force and Navy bombers raided Libyan targets last week, they were flying a mission that probably wouldn't have been attempted five years ago.

And by pulling it off with the loss of just one aircraft, Pentagon officials believe they struck a different kind of blow at home — demonstrating to congressional critics the United States' military punch is more potent because of the embrace of high technology.

They believe this because for all the complaints about skyrocketing arms costs, last week's bombing raids depended upon sophisticated, expensive weaponry. And there is evidence to suggest that weaponry helped limit U.S. casualties.

"Operation El Dorado Canyon" was not without its problems. Five of the 18 F-111 bombers and two of the 14 A-6 attack jets sent on the mission never dropped a bomb because of mechanical or other unexplained problems.

The strike also was clearly less than "surgical," given some extensive damage that occurred in civilian areas. Pentagon spokesman Robert Sims has acknowledged that damage to at least one of the five targets was not what had been hoped. And Defense Department sources said the one F-111 that failed to return may well have been struck by Libyan anti-aircraft fire.

Nonetheless, five different targets were struck by surprise, simultaneously, at 2 a.m. (Libya time), and damage was inflicted at all five sites, Sims noted last week.

Five years ago, Air Force officials said Monday, the F-111s could not have mounted the same type of attack. Known by the rather inglorious nickname of Aardvark, the F-111 was last built in 1976.

Sorority sees Washington on video

Beta Sigma Phi met Tuesday evening with 19 members attending. Dena Ellis reported on the Founder's Day Banquet to be held May 2 at Snyder Country Club. President Sue Sewell has planned installation of new officers and secret sister revealing in the home of Jackie Buckland on May 6. The report was given on the camping social planned for Colorado City Lake for the weekend of May 31.

Members selected Mrs. Congeniality, Program of the Year and Girl of the Year, by secret ballot. The awards will be presented at the Founder's Day Banquet.

Betsy Griffin presented the program on Washington, D.C. Each year Griffin is a chaperon of junior high students for a short summer trip to that city. She believes it is one of the most interesting cities you could visit. The Act of 1790 created the 10-mile square area which became the District of Columbia. The designer of the town was paid $3,800, to lay out the plan. She stated that our country is the only country which built a special city for their capital. A video of Washington concluded her program.

Club learns macrame

Honey Do Extension Homemaker Club met at its regular meeting on April 17 in the home of Debbie Graves.

The program was presented by Graves with members learning of macrame.

Graves has made many macrame projects including hanging pot holders, tables, purses and many more items. She gave instructions on making one of the macrame knots with members making a towel holder.

Attending the meeting were Earline Gray, Irene Orosco, Ethel Head, Virginia Fogle, Debbie Graves, Shirley Bullard and Laticia Couch, new member.

President Shirley Bullard presided over the business meeting. Earline Gray reported on the district meeting she attended at Floydada on April 10. October 28 was decided as the Christmas Craft Day. The members will be participating in the Health Fair which will be given by Cogdell Memorial Hospital on May 10 at the Scurry County Coliseum.

A poem was read entitled, "Don't Mess With Texas" written by Dorothy Bolding Cox, a local poet. The club discussed Texas Bluebonnets in observance of the Sesquicentennial.

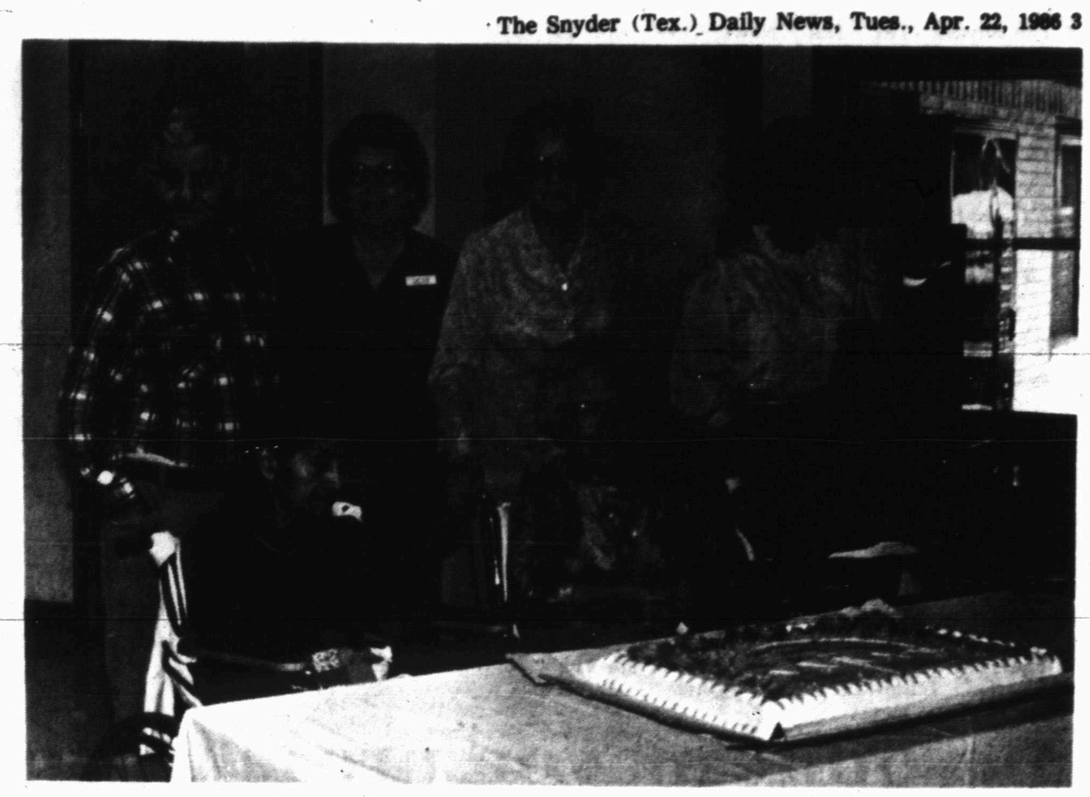

The pot luck luncheon was hosted by Debbie Graves.

LATER MARRIAGES

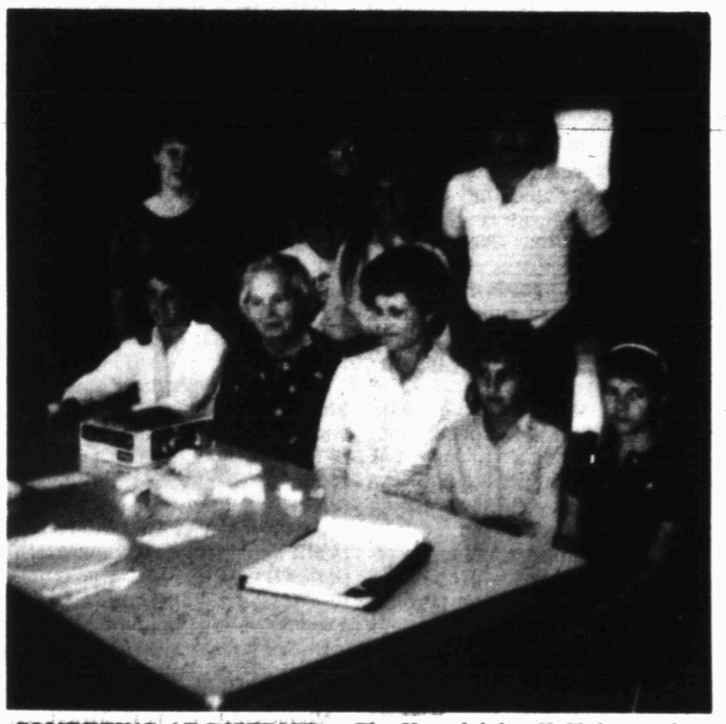

WASHINGTON (AP) — More people are marrying later in life, according to the U.S. Census Bureau.

It says the median age of first marriages for women rose to 23 during 1985, the highest ever recorded, and 25.5 for men, the highest since 1900. Nearly 2 million couples live together but are not married, almost four times the number in 1970.

Graded water

A survey by the American Water Works Association found that 87 percent rated their tap water average to excellent.

What about concern about cancer-causing substances found in water? The association says that most other common beverages contain higher amounts of known carcinogens than does tap water. It says that with few exceptions, municipal water supplies meet or exceed safety standards set by the federal government.

The Israeli cabinet formally approved diplomatic relations with West Germany in 1965.

According to Vice President Bush, war on drugs still on

HOUSTON (AP) — The United States' war on drugs and drug smugglers nabbed 1.7 million pounds of marijuana, about 11 tons of cocaine and over 1,300 arrests during a 15-month effort, Vice President George Bush said.

The vice president, in a visit to Ellington Field on Monday, said the government has joined with Latin American countries to destroy drug-producing crops in the fields, drug processing laboratories and to seize illegal drugs.

"The war on drugs is precisely that — a war," Bush said. "And it will be waged on every front, with every tool the federal government can bring to bear and in full cooperation with the state and local agencies."

Bush toured five drug enforcement surveillance planes, including an Air Force AWAC, Navy E-2B and a P-3 Orion belonging to the U.S. Customs, which are are equipped with radar dectectors and other sophisticated devices used to detect drug smugglers.

"We have just completed the largest operation against drug smuggling this country has ever conducted — 'Hat Trick II,'" Bush said. "It was designed not so much to seize drugs as to deny and disrupt traditional routes for smuggling drugs into the United States."

The "Hat Trick II" plan involved all branches of the military, the Drug Enforcement Administration, Customs Service and the Border Patrol.

Bush also noted that Attorney General Edwin Meese has recently conducted further talks with Mexico about ways both countries can tackle the narcotics problems affecting Mexico and the United States.

"The U.S. government is itself examining ways to improve our southwest border interdiction capability including greater use of the United States military and the intelligence gathering organizations," Bush said. "We're hoping Mexico will double its efforts just like we're doubling ours."

Mesquite mayor, preacher square off

MESQUITE, Texas (AP) — The calm that normally resides in this Dallas suburb has been ruffled as a Methodist mayor and a conservative Baptist pastor skirmish over legalizing liquor clubs, bringing fervor to the usually routine April elections.

Mayor Brunhilde Nystrom contends that two write-in candidates supported by the Rev. Ronnie Yarber were able to force a runoff Saturday mainly because voters practiced what Yarber preached in a televised sermon attacking "liberal, loose-living leaders."

The sermon ran several times during election week earlier this month on the city's religious-access cable channel.

Although Yarber did not mention names, Mrs. Nystrom says his sermon amounted to political trespassing on publicly funded airwaves.

The heart of the dispute is a tussle that began about six years ago between council members and religious leaders over whether alcohol-serving private clubs should be allowed into the city.

Mrs. Nystrom is not up for election this year, but in her 1985 bid for re-election she said she faced "insidious" opposition from Yarber and a group of other ministers she termed the "righteous right."

"I am no longer going to allow my character to be abused from the pulpit," Mrs. Nystrom said. "They do not have the right to judge me and my actions."

She has demanded equal time for a rebuttal to Yarber's sermon and a revision of cable policies to ban politics.

Yarber maintains he was merely exercising his citizen's right to speak and that the proposed cable access review is an infringement on freedom of speech.

"What the mayor is attempting to do is initiate a subtle form of censorship and I would fight that with every fiber of my being," Yarber said.

"I don't have any problem with their freedom of speech but they're not going to use our public access channel to indirectly call me a godless mayor," Mrs. Nystrom countered.

Council members and cable officials will tackle the problem of defining suitable content at an April 30 meeting. Under present guidelines, people using the public access channels are forbidden from making political endorsements, but not from talking about politics.

"He's saying it was a sermon. They're saying it's a political statement. I don't really want to touch that," said Joe King, vice president and general manager of Heritage Cablevision.

The runoff election is between incumbent Terry Brimer and write-in candidate Mary Lassiter.

Brimer, a member of the Mesquite Cable Advisory Board, said Yarber's sermon did not follow the concept of public access and should not be allowed on the free channel.

Yarber says he is crusading against uncontrolled growth, not Mrs. Nystrom. But the mayor, the first woman on the council, elected in 1972, says she has been targeted.

And as a longtime Republican and a churchgoer, she said she is surprised to be labeled a liberal. "I don't think she's a typical Methodist," Yarber said.

Mrs. Nystrom said the private club controversy was stirred up about six years ago when a section of the I-635 freeway poked into Mesquite, opening up new avenues of development.

But developers were reluctant to venture into the bone-dry city, which led to the council's creation of a special zone along the I-635 corridor in which private clubs would be permitted.

However, over objections from ministers, the council has granted two variances, one allowing a dance floor in a restaurant, the other permitting a bowling alley outside the zone to operate as a private club.

Yarber claims it is Mrs. Nystrom who has turned the election dispute into a personal matter and said his political tactics are "as American as baseball, hot dogs and apple pie."

"This nation was founded upon Judeo-Christian religious principles. I am not content to see these taken away from us."

DEAR DR. GOTT — Will fibromyositis cause constant gasping and yawning? My girlfriend also has mitral valve prolapse, bronchitis and very bad nerves.

DEAR READER — Fibromyositis — stiffness and pain in muscles — does not, to my knowledge, cause gasping and yawning. Your girlfriend's bronchitis and excessive nervousness are more likely causes.

DEAR DR. GOTT — For the past 10 years my blood pressure has been 168-200/92-100. I am 68 and weigh 298. The medicine I'm taking for it makes me feel bad (Apresoline, Capoten, Lasix and Catapres). I also take Colebenimid for gout and Micronase for borderline diabetes. Should I quit the blood pressure medicine or change doctors?

DEAR READER — In my opinion, your blood pressure is too high and you are overweight. You will lower your blood pressure and help your diabetes by shedding excess pounds. Do not stop the blood pressure medicine without the full approval of your doctor; such a decision could result in a dangerous high-blood-pressure rebound.

Nonetheless, I believe you are overmedicated. This may explain why you feel bad. Give your doctor another chance to bring your hypertension under control; if he or she is unable to do so, ask for a referral to an internist, a physician who specializes in diabetes and high blood pressure.

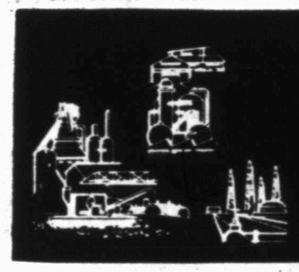

DEAR DR. GOTT — I had extreme pain for two nights about 10 weeks ago. Although I no longer have pain, my right leg doesn't seem to function correctly. It is weak and clumsy, and feels like it might give away. A medical doctor gave me antibiotics. A rheumatism specialist said I needed more exercise. A chiropractor hasn't helped much. I think I have a pinched nerve. What should I do now?

DEAR READER — A pinched nerve, causing leg pain and weakness, is certainly a possibility that should be investigated. See a neurologist. If, after a neurological evaluation, you still have symptoms, ask for a referral to an internist or to the diagnostic clinic in a teaching hospital.

DEAR DR. GOTT — The whites of my eyes are turning medium to dark yellow. I eat a good diet, but I also feel run down. Could these two symptoms be related? I am 16.

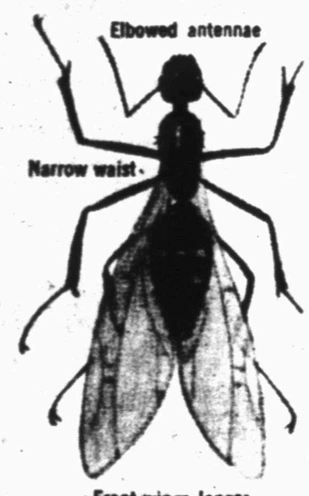

DEAR READER — Yellowing of the eyes often means jaundice, a condition caused by liver malfunction. In otherwise healthy adolescents, the most common reasons for jaundice are hepatitis and mononucleosis. Because you may be contagious and the condition may worsen, I suggest you seek immediate medical attention. Jaundice — a backing-up of bile in the body — is not an ailment that should be ignored.

Alexander's can get rid of termites

As a homeowner, you can't ignore the threat of termite damage. The cost of the termite problem in the United States is approaching one billion dollars a year with about one in every 50 homes being damaged.

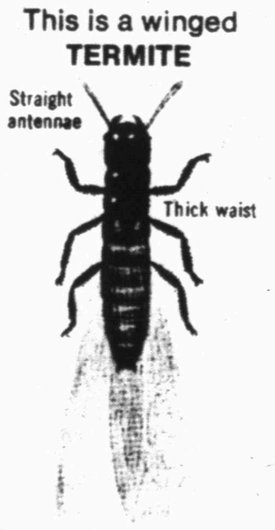

Craig Alexander, owner of Alexander's Pest Control, tells us that this time of the year is the most active for termites and that termites will do more damage to homes this year than all fires, hurricanes and tornadoes combined.

When termites swarm in the spring, they are often mistaken for flying ants, because both have wings. Swarming termites quickly shed their wings, though and burrow into the ground to start new colonies.

Chemical treatment is the only method of termite prevention and control ever proven to be totally effective. Alexander's Pest Control surrounds your house with a chemical barrier, so termites can't get in. This also kills any termites which may already be inside.

Instead of hoping termites don't attack, make sure they can't. Instead of being worried, be protected. All it takes is a call to Alexander's Pest Control at 573-7133.

Your home is the largest investment you have, so you don't want to take any chances with it. Call the professional-Craig Alexander.

Lyng: 'Ag trade war not imminent'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Richard Lyng says there is no agricultural trade war with the European Economic Community but concedes that the two sides might hurl a few marshmallows at each other.

With the entry of Spain and Portugal into the ECC this year, the 12-nation European trading bloc decided to impose quotas and tariffs on U.S. shipments of grain and soybeans to the two new member countries.

That rankled U.S. officials, and on March 31 President Reagan announced the United States would use import restrictions to offset the EEC's action against American farm products.

Lyng and Clayton Yeutter, the U.S. trade representative, met with EEC officials over the weekend in Paris. Lyng said nothing was settled but that both sides informally agreed that any actions would be broad enough to not restrict the flow of goods this year.

Asked by reporters Monday if a trade war was imminent, Lyng said he thought that would be an overstatement.

"I think our taking action may or may not trigger them taking some further retaliatory action," he said. But if the EEC's actions are carried out in a non-restrictive way, "we'll be getting ourselves into some sort of a marshmallow war. We'll be throwing marshmallows back and forth across the Atlantic."

Lyng said he thought the trade relationship between the United States and the EEC would continue to deteriorate over the next several years, partly because the United States will become more competitive in agricultural sales.

"If our export sales affect the European Community as much as I think they will — and I hope they do — there will be considerable difficulty in our trade relationship," he said.

The United States contends that the recent EEC quota and import levies imposed as a result of Spain and Portugal's admission to the bloc are in violation of the General Agreement on Tarrifs and Trade, the pact that is supposed to govern most of the world's trade.

Even the broad quotas that might be worked out for the remainder of 1986 by setting them higher than actual shipments are in violation of GATT, Lyng said. Another formal round of GATT talks is scheduled to begin this fall.

One of Lyng's senior aides, Undersecretary Daniel G. Amstutz, told a meeting of the Newspaper Farm Editors of America earlier on Monday that the United States will slap restrictions on white wine imported from Europe that could cost producing nations up to $400 million, in retaliation for new restrictions on U.S. grain exports to Portugal.

White wine was targeted because the dollar impact of import restrictions to the United States will closely approximate the value of lost U.S. grain sales to Portugal, and because the quotas will hit a broad cross-section of EEC member nations, Amstutz said.

Imports of cheese, ham, ale and beer also have been mentioned on the U.S. hit list of European products.

"It's tit for tat," he told the farm editors. "We're saying that with the quota, you've got a $400 million kicker."

The United States plans to go ahead with its retaliatory sanctions early in May, Amstutz said, adding that the idea of a quota which does not restrict trade is "a basic contradiction."

Amstutz said U.S. trade has suffered because of a severely restricted world market that has become much more competitive than in the late 1970s, when trade was expanding.

"We won't see much (improvement) until buying power increases in the Third World, where 80 percent of the world's population lives," he said.

Amstutz said while the weaker dollar relative to other major currencies has helped trade in value-added productions such as flour and poultry, the dollar has actually strengthened compared to currencies of nations like Brazil, Canada and China.

"It's sort of a mixed bag. There's still a problem in the bulk commodity areas," he said.

Randy Russell, a former USDA official now a private consultant, said it will take drops in the dollar at least a year, and perhaps 18 months, to be translated into increases in U.S. exports. Loan rates for commodities, while reduced under the 1985 farm law, remain slightly higher than competitors' prices, he said.

"When you look at the reality of what's going on in the market, we still are not going to be competitive," he said.

Border officials using profile to spot incoming terrorists

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Federal agencies along the border have been issued a profile to help them detect possible terrorists attempting to enter the United States, authorities say.

"We know there's been an increase of trafficking in the Middle East of false and stolen passports," said Duke Austin, an Immigration and Naturalization Service spokesman in Washington. "It's easy, for example, for a Libyan to get a Moroccan passport."

The profile includes a list of Middle Eastern countries that have "historically fostered terrorism against the United States and the world," said Austin.

The INS, U.S. Border Patrol and U.S. Customs officials have been told to look more closely at people bearing passports from those countries, which Austin declined to name.

Officials were reluctant to disclose precise information contained in the profiles. However, Austin said the profiles do not contain physical descriptions of likely terrorists.

"All terrorists don't look alike," said Austin. "I wish it were that easy."

Terrorists trying to enter the country would probably have a physical appearance that would let them blend in with the rest of the population, said Larry Richardson, chief Border Patrol agent for the El Paso district.

The agencies have taken no particular measures and agents at the border do not have special training for dealing with suspected terrorists. Customs inspectors use the same techniques employed in spotting drug smugglers, said Ruben Saenz, chief Customs inspector for the El Paso district.

"We look at their luggage. Is it expensive? Where was it made? Does it go with the type of person, the amount of clothes? Does it go with the length of stay?" Saenz said. "It's a matter of asking questions until they (inspectors) are satisfied."

At the same time, local heads of federal agencies acknowlege it is difficult to deter terrorists from crossing the border, either through Mexico of Canada.

"If you're talking about terrorist-proof as in waterproof — to make an impregnable barrier — I think that's unrealistic," said John J. Ingham, INS deputy district director in Buffalo, N.Y., which monitors the 4,139-mile U.S.-Canada border.

Chili Davis hot; Dodgers dumped

by The Associated Press

Good chili is supposed to be hot ... like Chili Davis.

After batting just .151 with nary an extra-base hit through San Francisco's first 11 games, Davis has hit three home runs in the last two contests, including a pair in Monday night's 5-1 triumph over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The surprising Giants, 9-4, thus moved into first place in the National League West, one-half game ahead of Houston, and the team that won only seven games last April and finished last with a 62-100 record is five games over .500 for the first time since June 4, 1983.

"I'm hitting the ball hard again and it feels good," Davis said. "We're starting to believe we can win and that we're supposed to win."

In the only other NL games, New York came from behind three times to nip Pittsburgh 6-5 and Atlanta bombed Houston 8-2. The St. Louis-Chicago game was postponed because of a forecast of snow.

Davis homered to lead off the Giants' second against Rick Honeycutt. In the fourth, Jeffrey Leonard got a leadoff single and Davis hit his second home run. The Giants added a run in the fourth on Rob Thompson's single and Jose Uribe's double and Thompson had an RBI single in the sixth.

That was more than enough support for Roger Mason, who pitched a three-hitter as the Dodgers suffered their 10th defeat in 14 games. Ken Landreaux's fourth-inning homer produced their only run.

Braves 8, Astros 2

Glenn Hubbard hit a three-run homer in the second inning and Bob Horner added a two-run blast in the third as Joe Johnson scattered eight hits in outpitching strikeout king Nolan Ryan. Six of the nine hits Ryan yielded before leaving in the fourth inning went for extra bases. Rafael Ramirez drove in Atlanta's final three runs with a pair of doubles.

"I've seen him (Ryan) have better nights," said Horner. "He's a great pitcher with a great career. That wasn't typical Nolan Ryan out there."

Golf event scheduled to aid CF Foundation

The Snyder chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation is sponsoring a three-person scramble Saturday, April 26, at Western Texas College Golf Course.

Entry fee for the 18-hole tournament is $25 per player. Teams and individuals may sign up at the WTC Pro Shop or call (915) 573-9291. Tee time will be 8:30 a.m.

The tournament will coincide with the showing of "Alex-The Life OF A Child", Wednesday at 8 p.m.on ABC. The movie is based on the daughter of Frank Deford, senior writer for Sports Illustrated, who had cystic fibrosis.

Prizes for the tournament will be awarded for first, second and third place.

Proceeds will help support research, provide medical treatment, professional training and public education programs of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

Tigers battle Tors tonight; Osborn to start on mound

LAMESA -- Snyder's Tigers, unbeaten in seven straight outings, go for number eight here tonight at the Golden Tor Field.

Snyder squares off against Lamesa High School at 7 p.m.

The Tigers, 7-7 earlier in the season, have improved to 14-7 with seven straight victories, including a sweep of their first five District 2-4A games. That success has left them in first place in the district standings, a game ahead of Pecos, which is 4-1.

Lamesa comes into tonight's contest with a 2-3 district record. The Tors are 6-10-1 overall.

Ironically, despite losing records in both district and season play, Lamesa gave Snyder its toughest test of the first half of the loop season. Snyder narrowly defeated the Tors, 2-1 in Snyder.

In other games this evening, Pecos will entertain 1-4 Monahans while Fort Stockton takes an 0-5 record to meet 3-2 Andrews.

Coach Albert Lewis said Don Osborn would get the start against the Tors - a move which would save the Tigers' top pitcher, Jimmy Velasquez, for Friday's game with Pecos.

Osborn, winner of last Friday's 15-4 victory over Fort Stockton, is 3-0 for the season with a 1.75 ERA.

Catcher Ricky Hunter will lead off the Tigers' batting order. He'll be followed by Steve Parker, who will bat for Osborn. Hitting third will be third baseman Justin Webb. Velasquez will bat cleanup and play left field. Short stop Brad Holcomb has been moved up to the fifth position as coaches hope to take advantage of his .571 district hitting average. The rest of the lineup, in order, includes Mike McWilliams at centerfield, Chris Fryar at second base, Michael Long at right field and Kenneth Pickering at first base.

2-4A standings

Team	District W	L	T	Season W	L	T
Snyder	5	0	0	14	7	0

Yankees' Whitson earns win away from New York crowd

by The Associated Press

Given the safe haven of a pitching mound on the road, Ed Whitson found what he was looking for.

Whitson, 1-1, scattered five hits over 6 2-3 innings for his first victory of the season, and Don Mattingly hit three doubles and drove in five runs as the New York Yankees defeated the Kansas City Royals 8-4 Monday night.

"Hopefully, I've showed them something, that I can still pitch," Whitson said. "For myself, it was a big plus. I wanted to prove I could still win."

It was Whitson's first start since Yankee Manager Lou Piniella announced the 30-year-old right-hander would only start road games because of the hostile reaction of fans at Yankee Stadium.

Elsewhere in the American League, it was Detroit 5, Boston 4; Cleveland 7, Baltimore 0; Toronto 7, Texas 6; Minnesota 5, Seattle 2; and Oakland 6, California 2.

After a 1-6 start in 1985, Whitson received letters threatening his life and those of his wife Kathleen Ann, and four-year-old daughter Jennifer. People waited for him outside Yankee Stadium after games — not necessarily games that he had pitched — to scream obscenities at him.

After a bad outing in his first start this season, Whitson asked to be traded. In an effort to insulate Whitson, Piniella decided to put him in the bullpen at home and in the starting rotation on the road.

Royals starter Bret Saberhagen now is 1-1.

Indians 7, Orioles 0

At Clevelend, Tom Candiotti pitched a three-hitter, striking out a career-high 10 batters, and Andy Allanson went 4-for-4 and knocked in three runs as the Indians defeated Baltimore.

Candiotti, 1-1, a 28-year-old who developed a knuckleball in the minor leagues last season, walked four. "I didn't take it seriously until last year, and it's turned me around," Candiotti said of the fluttering pitch.

Baltimore's Floyd Rayford, who was playing in his first game of the season after being sidelined by a bone chip in his left thumb, committed four errors to tie an AL record for third basemen shared by 19 others and last done by Detroit's Tom Brookens in 1980.

Blue Jays 7, Rangers 6

At Toronto, Cliff Johnson hit an opposite field three-run double to right in the eighth inning to give the Blue Jays a come-from-behind victory over Texas.

Lloyd Moseby started the winning rally with a single and, one out later, Rance Mulliniks singled to center, moving Moseby to third. With two outs, George Bell delivered a run-scoring single that chased rookie starter Ed Correa and brought on reliever Greg Harris. Harris got Jessie Barfield to hit a routine grounder to shortstop, but Curtis Wilkerson bobbled the ball for an error, loading the bases. Johnson then scored Mulliniks, pinch-runner Kelly Gruber and Barfield.

Tigers 5, Red Sox 4

At Boston, Darnell Coles hit his first homer of the season for the decisive run and set up two other scores with a single and a sacrifice as Detroit snapped the Red Sox' four-game winning streak.

Coles, who had one homer in a brief stint with the Tigers last season, homered with two out in the seventh off starter Al Nipper.

A's 6, Angels 2

At Anaheim, rookie Jose Canseco hit two homers and drove in four runs, and Joaquin Andujar pitched three-hit ball over six innings for his first AL victory as Oakland defeated California.

Andujar, 1-1, departed with a stiff shoulder after the sixth. He walked three and struck out two in his third start this season. Steve Ontiveros pitched the final three innings for Oakland to get his first save.

Twins 5, Mariners 2

At Seattle, Frank Viola pitched a four-hitter for his 50th career victory, and Tom Brunansky had a pair of run-scoring singles to lead Minnesota over the Mariners, snapping a three-game losing streak.

Viola, 3-1, walked five and struck out nine as he pitched his second complete game of the year. He was helped by four Minnesota double plays.

Bucks could wind up series with win over Nets tonight

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) - The New Jersey Nets, faced with NBA playoff elimination, need to find a solution to the Milwakee Bucks' tenacious defense to stay alive against the Central Division champions.

"We have to win or that's it," New Jersey's Albert King said. "If we lose we're going to have a long vacation and I don't think anyone wants a long vacation."

The Nets trail 2-0 in the best-of-5 series, with games at home tonight and, if necessary, on Friday.

Three other series could be closed out tonight. Atlanta, which outscored Detroit 137-125 on Saturday, visits the Piston lair tonight. The Boston Celtics, 135-131 overtime winners over Chicago on Sunday, can close out the Bulls tonight at Chicago. And Sacramento returns home facing a 2-0 deficit after dropping a 111-103 decision at Houston on Saturday.

In other playoff games tonight, the Philadelphia 76ers and Washington Bullets, tied 1-1, meet at Washington, and Portland, a 108-106 winner at Denver on Saturday, hosts the Nuggets.

"We have to play more aggressive," Nets forward Buck Williams said in looking ahead to Game 3 against Milwaukee. "We have to put body on body and force them out of the things they want."

Williams was 12 of 17 from the field and scored 27 points in Milwaukee's 119-107 victory over the Nets in Game 1 of the series on Friday.

So the Bucks concentrated on stopping Williams in Game 2 Sunday, holding him to four shots from the field and 10 points. Milwaukee's 111-97 triumph gave the Bucks a 27-1 record in games in which the opposition was held below 100 points. The Nets are 0-14 in such games.

The Nets pulled a surprise when Darryl Dawkins, who had played only five minutes since Feb. 4 because of a back injury, saw 17 minutes of action Sunday.

"I didn't play as badly as I could have," said Dawkins, who had 10 points, three rebounds and two blocked shots. "I felt I could play and nobody forced me to play. I felt I could give the team a lift."

Wins Boston easily...

Castella sets marathon record

BOSTON (AP) - It wasn't much of a race, but what a race it was.

Rob de Castella had to fight off little more than a heavy-set young spectator who got in his way. Ingrid Kristiansen's biggest challenge came from a queasy stomach.

If competition was absent from Monday's Boston Marathon, big names and big money made up for it.

"The tradition of Boston is still there," said four-time winner Bill Rodgers, who, at age 38, finished a stunning fourth in his 14th Boston Marathon. "It's good to see it come back. The race has been raised to a new level. It's a spectacular event."

And de Castella and Kristiansen, the favorites and two of the greatest marathoners of the decade, ran spectacular races.

De Castella, an Australian with a drooping mustache, conquered the hills and valleys along the testing 26-mile, 385-yard route in a course record of 2 hours, 7 minutes and 51 seconds, the third-fastest marathon of all time.

Kristiansen, a Norwegian, perservered despite a painful abdomen to post a time of 2:24:55, second-fastest Boston Marathon by a woman and the ninth-best ever by a woman.

They were rewarded handsomely for their Boston debuts. Attracted by the prize money awarded here for the first time since the initial Boston Marathon in 1897, de Castella hit a $60,000 jackpot and Kristiansen had a $35,000 payday.

Each earned $30,000 and a new luxury car for finishing first, de Castella picked up another $25,000 for breaking the course record of 2:08:52 set by Alberto Salazar in 1982, and each winner pocketed $5,000 for beating certain times.

De Castella said this year's addition of John Hancock Financial Services as the major corporate sponsor of the race organized by the Boston Athletic Association influenced him to compete.

"The prize money and John Hancock's supporting the BAA are the main reasons I decided to run here in Boston in preference to somewhere else," he said.

That attracted others to the 4,903-runner field, which had declined in quality in recent years as marathoners sought more lucrative prospects in other races. But this spring, Boston came back.

It had Orlando Pizzolato, two-time winner of the New York City Marathon; Pete Pfitzinger, winner of the 1984 U.S. Olympic Trials; 1983 Boston champion Greg Meyer, Japanese star Kunimitsu Ito and highly regarded newcomer Arturo Barrios. The women's field featured Kristiansen, Lisa Martin of Australia, Carla Beurskens of The Netherlands and 1984 Boston winner Lorraine Moller.

On a good day for runners, with a temperature of 61 degrees shortly before the noon start and slightly overcast skies, the race had all the makings of a highly competitive event.

Then the starter fired his gun.

"With all the big names, I thought more of them would be up there," said little-known Art Boileau of Canada, whose second-place time of 2:11:15 was 3:24 behind de Castella.

Pizzolato, who made his name on the flatter New York course, was third in 2:11:43. Rodgers' fourth-place time of 2:13:36 was the fastest by an American.

Beurskens was runnerup to Kristiansen in 2:27:35, 2:40 slower than the winning time. Lizanne Bussieres of Canada was a distant third among the women in 2:32:16.

Near the 20-mile mark, an unidentified man wasn't fast enough for de Castella. The overzealous intruder ran onto the course and was shoved aside by the male champion.

UT ponders limiting access to all athletic locker rooms

AUSTIN (AP) - The time seems ripe to consider putting Longhorn athletic locker rooms off-limits to outsiders, says Tom Morgan, chairman of the University of Texas men's athletics council.

Athletic Director DeLoss Dodds told the council Monday he was working with Longhorn coaches on a proposal to limit access to locker rooms "at all times" after games and during workouts.

"Generally, I think the climate is favorable for this kind of proposal," Morgan said.

Dodds said earlier - after reports that Longhorn football players had received cash, meals and preferential treatment from school boosters and sports agents - that he was considering a proposal to ban alumni from locker rooms.

"When we provide a positive emotional setting that might be conducive to the kind of things that we're going through right now, we've got to look at that and decide," Dodds said last month.

Dodds said Monday he would present a proposal at the council meeting in May.

The council also learned Monday that although the Texas football team received $500,000 for playing in the Bluebonnet Bowl, the athletics department will show a profit of less than $5,000.

Texas' budget for the Bluebonnet Bowl showed a loss of $13,556 after $165,240 was sent to the Southwest Conference to be divided among all nine SWC schools. Texas will receive one-ninth of that sum, or $18,360, for a net of $4,814 from the bowl game.

The major items over budget were meal and transportation costs when Texas paid for its players to go home for Christmas before the Dec. 31 Houston bowl game. Air Force won the game 24-16.

Texas, as well as other conference schools, will share in bowl game receipts of other SWC teams, including Texas A&M's appearance in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas.

In other action Monday, the athletics council voted:

- To submit a bid to the NCAA to host a regional baseball tournament. Money from ticket sales goes to the NCAA, but UT would retain profits from concessions. A&M on May 15-17 is the host for the SWC baseball tournament.

- To approve a proposal to send the Longhorn tennis team to England, June 10-28, to play matches against teams from Oxford and Cambridge universities. The item was listed on the agenda was "Tennis team to England," and chairman Morgan said, "That has a nice ring to it."

Dodds said $25,000 in airline tickets would be made available through an SWC television contract that offers British Caledonian Airways tickets as a "tradeout."

Dodds was asked about possible "security concerns," and he said, "When we wrote this (proposal) there were no security concerns."

Dodds said the NCAA must OK the England trip. Texas currently ranks No. 2 behind Southern Methodist in the SWC standings. Last year the UT golf team went to Scotland.

Two submarines targeted for scuttling, due to treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, in a complex decision, will order the destruction of two U.S. nuclear submarines to keep the United States within the limits of the controversial 1979 SALT II treaty with the Soviet Union, two U.S. officials said.

This will clear the way for a new Trident submarine with 24 missiles to begin sea trials next month without undercutting the unratified accord. "He's going that extra mile," an official, who demanded anonymity, said Monday.

He said the two Poseidon submarines, with 16 multiple-warhead missiles each, would be taken out of the U.S. nuclear fleet promptly and then destroyed over the next six months.

However, Reagan also has concluded it would be "militarily beneficial" to allow the treaty limits to be exceeded as new nuclear weapons become available toward the end of the year, another official said. But, the official said, if the Soviets comply with the treaty, the limits will be maintained.

In two reports to Congress, the president has accused the Soviets of violating the agreement and other arms control accords. The accusations have been denied repeatedly by Moscow, which suggests changes in Soviet practices or in Reagan's interpretation of them are unlikely.

Also, the official said, the president intends to accelerate weapons programs not covered by the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty.

The decision, contained in a National Security Council memorandum, was described as "tentative" in the sense that Reagan was sending two envoys to consult with allies in Asia and Western Europe, and will also solicit the views of Congress before making a formal announcement.

The U.S. total of multiple-warhead missiles now stands at 1,198, just two below the limit set in the treaty signed by then-President Carter and the late Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev in Vienna.

It was the last major arms control agreement by the two superpowers, setting limits on various categories of long-range nuclear weapons. Reagan denounced the pact in his campaign for the presidency in 1980 as "fatally flawed." In office, however, he promised the United States would not "undercut" its provisions provided the Soviets also observed the treaty.

The Trident is due to begin sea trials May 20. Its 24 missiles would put the United States above the ceiling of 1,200 missiles with multiple warheads set by the 1979 treaty unless older missiles were destroyed.

Most of the president's advisers, including Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, urged him to permit the U.S. total to surpass the ceiling as a response to alleged Soviet violations.

Only two senior advisers, Secretary of State George Shultz and Paul H. Nitze, recommended the United States maintain its policy of not undercutting the treaty. Reagan came down on their side, taking the same position he did last year when he ordered a Poseidon dismantled before another Trident went to sea. But this time he also set in motion changes in the U.S. stance pending what the Soviets do.

Officials: suspect kin of arrested man

BERLIN (AP) — A Palestinian arrested in connection with the nightclub bombing that killed an American soldier has been identified as the brother of a man accused in Britain of trying to bomb an Israeli airliner, West Berlin officials said today.

The suspect in the April 5 bombing of a discotheque in West Berlin, who was arrested Friday, was identified by Justice Ministry spokesman Walter Neuhaus as Ahmed Nawaf Mansur Hasi.

The nighclub bombing in West Berlin killed a 21-year-old U.S. Army sergeant and a 28-year-old Turkish woman, and injured 230 others, 63 of them Americans. U.S. officials have said they had proof that Libya was responsible for the attack, and in retaliation U.S. warplanes attacked Libya last Tuesday.

Neuhaus said the suspect in the Berlin bombing is the 36-year-old brother of a man identified by Scotland Yard as Nezar Hindawi, who was to appear in a London court today in connection with last week's attempted bombing of an El Al airliner.

A West German security source told The Associated Press on Monday that the arrest of the disco bombing suspect "came through the London case."

"It seems to be a hot tip that the two cases are connected, but we are still investigating this," said the source, who spoke Monday on condition of anonymity.

Neuhaus said Hasi was born in Jordan and has been living in the Tempelhof area of West Berlin, where police arrested him.

Hasi can be held indefinitely until police decide whether to press charges.

Hindawi, 35, also was arrested on Friday, a day after his Irish girlfriend was stopped by El Al security guards at Heathrow Airport as she tried to board a Tel Aviv-bound jumbo jet with a bomb hidden in her bag. Scotland Yard said the woman did not know she was carrying a bomb, and she was released after police questioned her.

West Berlin sources who declined to be identified said Monday they suspect the surnames of the two men differed on their identity documents because the papers carried by the man in London may be false.

Manfred Ganschow, the West Berlin police official heading the investigation into the bombing, said the man arrested in Berlin had an identification card saying he was a "stateless Palestinian refugee."

Ganschow said the man was formally booked Sunday after about 100 witnesses to the bombing saw him in police lineups.

It was the first arrest reported in the investigation by a special 100-member commission of West Berlin and U.S. military police.

The Hamburg-based Bild newspaper said the Palestinian was carrying sketches of nightclubs, restaurants and other West Berlin spots popular with Americans when he was arrested.

U.S. officials said intercepted messages to and from the Libyan embassy in East Berlin proved Libyan involvement in the bombing. Chancellor Helmut Kohl also said later that West Germany had hard evidence the Libyan embassy in East Berlin, the capital of Communist East Germany, directed the blast.

A week after the West Berlin blast, West German television quoted Western intelligence sources as saying Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy used a Palestinian extremist group for the attack so he would not be blamed.

Deputy is charged

TEXARKANA, Texas (AP) — A Bowie County Sheriff's deputy was suspended from his job and charged with aggravated kidnapping after his ex-wife was abducted and left bound and gagged in a wooded area, police say.

David Caudle, 35, was released Monday on $30,000 bond, Bowie County Sheriff Thomas Hodge said.

Caudle is accused of stopping the car of his ex-wife, Linda Caudle, 31, just after midnight Sunday, forcing her into his patrol car and driving her to a wooded area where he left her bound and gagged, Wake Village Police Chief Daryl Clifton said.

After working her legs free, Ms. Caudle told officers, she walked to a road, where a motorist picked her up and gave her a ride to the Oak Manor Nursing Home where she works as a licensed vocational nurse.

She was treated for minor injuries to her shoulder and released from a Texarkana hospital, Hodge said.

After Ms. Caudle signed complaints against her former husband, warrants were issued for his arrest. Caudle turned himself in, and records show he was arrested at the Bi-State Justice Building later Monday morning.

"After charges were filed and bond was set, Mr. Caudle was suspended without pay," Hodge told the Texarkana Gazette.

The case was turned over to Wake Village police because that's where the Ms. Caudle says she was left.

Caudle has worked at the sheriff's office since April 15, 1985. He had been a patrolman with the Texarkana, Texas, police from April 1978 through January 1985, Hodge said.

Missing motorcycle, cut tires investigated

Police are investigating a criminal mischief incident and a motorcycle theft reported Monday.

Nita Chaney of 3502 44th St. filed the motorcycle theft report at 12:48 p.m.

She told police her son's Yamaha YZ 125 off-road motorcycle had been taken from the residence sometime between 7 p.m. Sunday and 12:30 p.m. Monday.

The criminal mischief incident — the cutting of two tires on a late model Pontiac — is thought to have occurred sometime between 1:10 and 3:40 a.m. Tuesday morning.

A resident of the 300 Block of 29th St. initially called police at 1:10 a.m. and reported seeing a prowler in the area.

At 3:40 a.m., Isaias DePaz of 322 29th St. called police and reported that two tires on his late model Firebird had apparently been cut.

No value was estimated for damage to the tires.

In other action Monday evening, city officers jailed three suspects for driving while intoxicated.

10 Americans flee Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Ten Americans who stayed in west Beirut despite the threat of kidnapping by Islamic extremists fled the city's Moslem sector today under heavy guard. But many other Americans chose not to leave.

The Americans who were evacuated today joined dozens of Britons and other Westerners who left west Beirut during the weekend for fear of being abducted by terrorists seeking to avenge the U.S. air strike on Libya a week ago.

Police said Christian and Moslem militia snipers held their fire as two buses carrying the Americans and six jeeploads of police rolled past the dividing Green Line and into Christian east Beirut.

The policemen escorted the Americans through east Beirut to the U.S. Embassy in the Christian suburb of Aukar, 12 miles north.

Druse militiamen escorted the convoy on the 15-minute drive through west Beirut. They kept the doors of their cars open during the trip, and kept their fingers ready on the triggers of the Kalashnikov rifles they thrust through the door opening. Drivers blared their horns.

A U.S. Embassy official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the evacuees would stay with friends in east Beirut and there were no plans to fly them out of the country.

But shortly after he spoke, a U.S. Navy helicopter was seen landing at the embassy courtyard and taking off 10 minutes later. It could not be determined whether any evacuees were aboard.

The embassy official said many Americans remained in west Beirut, "a lot of those who were born in Lebanon and with dual nationalities."

The evacuation began at first light today when the Americans, some of them in tears, began assembling at the former U.S. consulate in west Beirut's Ein Mreisseh seaside boulevard.

Sharpshooters from Walid Jumblatt's Druse militia manned rooftops overlooking approaches to the area, and Druse militia checkpoints were set up all around the former consulate and the American University of Beirut campus.

Reporters saw six men and four women arrive separately at the assembly spot, each carrying a medium-size suitcase.

At least three evacuees were professors at the American University. Others worked at the College Protestant Francais, the American International College, and the Rashideen International Language Center, a privately owned institute. The rest refused to talk to reporters.

"Terrible," said American University of Beirut politicial science professor Philip Grant, 45, of Santa Barbara, Calif., when asked how he felt about leaving west Beirut. The grim-faced Grant said he did not think he would return to the Moslem sector of the Lebanese capital.

Asked whether he hated west Beirut because of the killings of three kidnapped Westerners — an American and two Britons — whose bodies were found Thursday, he said, "Yes, I do."

Thomas Weaver, 75, of Cincinnati, Ohio, an English language professor at American International College for 23 years, wept when reporters asked him about his feelings. "I am very sad to leave," he said.

The exodus of Westerners was touched off by the slayings of kidnapped American librarian Peter Kilburn and two British teachers, and the abduction of British television cameraman John McCarthy.

Kilburn, 62, of San Francisco, and 34-year-old Leigh Douglas and 40-year-old Peter Padfield were found shot to death off a tree-lined mountain highway east of Beirut.

Next to their bodies was a note saying they had been killed in retaliation for the raid on Libya a week ago. The note said the Arab Revolutionary Cells, a group believed linked to Palestinian terrorist Abu Nidal, had killed them.

SCAT truck in collision

A SCAT-owned utility truck was involved in a minor two-vehicle collision reported in Snyder Monday.

The 2:35 p.m. mishap occurred at the intersection of 24th St. and Ave. Q. Involved vehicles were the SCAT-owned 1982 Chevrolet utility truck driven by William Perry Westmoreland of 3106 37th Pl., and a 1978 Buick driven by Floyd James Jennings of 2808 ½ Ave. F.

Fire damages to warehouse

A small warehouse at 1500 24th St. — owned by I.A. Joyce of Snyder — sustained extensive fire damage early Sunday morning.

Units of the Snyder fire department were dispatched to extinguish the blaze at 2:40 a.m. Sunday and remained on the scene until 5 a.m.

Cause of the fire remains under fire department investigation.

Monday, units of the department were dispatched to two calls.

At 2:35 p.m., fire fighters extinguished a grass fire south of the Union community.

In addition, firemen responded to a possible house fire in the 2900 Block of Ave. N at 10:09 p.m.

Only smoke from a heating unit was noted, however, fire officials say.

A group of raiders under Pancho Villa attacked Columbus, N.M., in 1916 and killed 15 people.

The Daily Courant, London's first daily newspaper, first appeared March 11, 1702.

The U.S. Navy was founded by a 1794 act of Congress which authorized the construction of six warships.
