Riot death toll rises

DURBAN, South Africa (AP) — Police Saturday said the death toll from rioting between blacks and Indians in Durban had risen to 53. The foreign minister told reporters that some Cabinet members want to free imprisoned black leader Nelson Mandela, "but the question is how."

A hand grenade was thrown Saturday at a funeral for a black riot victim in Cape Town's black Guguletu township, injuring two police officers

Pickup linked to wildfire

CAMINO, Calif. (AP) — Fire investigators believe a charred pickup may be linked to a Sierra Nevada wildfire that forced about 200 people from their homes and closed a portion of a main highway between Sacramento and Lake Tahoe.

Three blazes swept through more than 5,000 acres of timberland Friday, burning seven houses, said firefighters, who were expected to beat the largest of the blazes Saturday

A fire on the western slope about 110 miles east of San Francisco forced the closure of U.S. 50, a major highway serving Lake Tahoe, for hours Friday as fire engines rushed by the dozens from the Central Valley and five aerial tankers bombarded it.

The highway was reopened for the late afternoon weekend traffic from the Sacramento area.

In addition to the homes, a mobile home and several outbuildings were destroyed. Officials estimated the damage to structures, timber and watershed at $1.7 million.

The blaze started shortly after 3 a.m. along a dirt road in rugged terrain about a mile east of Camino, said Elaine Heal, a spokeswoman for the state Department of Forestry. That is about 35 air miles west of Lake Tahoe.

Investigators said they did not know whether the fire was accidental or arson, but believed it was tied to a charred pickup truck that was found where the fire first flared.

The Red Cross said about 50 families went to shelters set up in two schools. By nightfall, they were returning.

The other two fires broke out Thursday on the eastern slope.

and a CBS-TV sound technician, CBS reported in Johannesburg.

There were no immediate word on the condition of the injured or official comment on the report.

Earlier, police said they arrested a top anti-apartheid leader, the Rev. Allan Boesak, as he tried to lead a procession to the funeral for a 17-year-old black shot dead by police in rioting two weeks ago.

Boesak, a leader of the country's main anti-apartheid organization, the United Democratic Front, and 18 other marchers were charged under legislation that allows police to ban non-blacks from entering black townships.

Boesak, who also is president of the World Alliance of Reformed Churches, is of mixed race, known in South Africa as "colored."

Nine of those arrested with him also were also of mixed race, and nine were white. Most, like Boesak, were clergymen who planned to officiate at the funeral.

The group was taken to a police station, where they sang, "We Shall Overcome." They later were taken to an emergency court session in Cape Town for arraignment.

Police sealed off Guguletu township, preventing whites and people of mixed race from entering, as thousands of mourners gathered and helicopters clattered overhead.

A magistrate's order Friday had banned processions, banners, posters and long marches at the funeral, although Guguletu is not among 36 towns and cities under a state of emergency declared July 21 to end rioting that has taken the lives of some 500 blacks.

Foreign Minister R.F. Botha returned home Saturday after two days of meetings with U.S. and Western officials in Vienna, Austria.

Spy to testify against brother

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Convicted spy Arthur J. Walker will try to avoid the possibility of spending the rest of his life in prison by testifying against his brother and other alleged spy ring members, his lawyer said.

Walker, 50, a retired Navy lieutenant commander, was convicted Friday of seven counts of espionage for selling Navy secrets to the Soviet Union through his brother, John A. Walker Jr., the alleged mastermind of a spy ring.

Officials have called the ring one of the most damaging in U.S. history.

Arthur Walker faces up to three life terms plus 40 years and $40,000 in fines. Sentencing was set for Oct. 15 after defense attorney J. Brian Donnelly said he wanted to try to cut the sentence by cooperating with prosecutors.

"I think Arthur will be willing to cooperate," Donnelly said. "He has nothing to hide at this point."

John Walker is scheduled for trial Oct. 28 in Baltimore. Also charged with espionage are John Walker's son, Navy seaman Michael L. Walker, and associate, Jerry A. Whitworth of Davis, Calif.

Arthur Walker, of Virginia Beach, confessed to FBI agents that he passed documents on Navy ship repair to his brother in 1981 and 1982 for $12,000. The documents were from VSE Corp., where Arthur Walker was an engineer.

He was found guilty by U.S. District Court Judge J. Calvitt Clarke Jr. after 10 minutes of consideration following a weeklong non-

Country drug store is step back in time

By DAVID TAYLOR

Longview Morning Journal

ARP, Texas (AP) — Walking into Mitchell's Drug Store in Arp is like stepping backward in time.

Two small boys sit at the soda fountain drinking a soft drink, while the ceiling fans buzz overhead. Polished wood display cases line the walls, where browning boxes of patent medicines sit side-by-side with new boxes of headache reliever.

Customers come in and out at a leisurely pace, and the boys are quick to open the door for the ladies.

Outside, a fading sign, which has been there since 1933, hangs above the aging brick building.

H.D. Mitchell, who owns the store with R.C. Forbes, is the epitome of the small-town shop owner. He is eager to show visitors around the store, which is a virtual treasure trove of history. Newspapers on the shelves date back to the 1940s, and he has taken great pains to keep everything as it was during the 1930s.

In one display case, an ancient-looking check protector sits next to an old typewriter.

Eventually, he hopes to make a museum of the store.

Putting together a museum is a weighty undertaking, but then, lofty aspirations are nothing new to Mitchell. He drew national attention to Arp when he sent a telegram to the New York Stock Exchange trying to sell it the idea of moving to Arp.

Mitchell, who served 14 terms as president of the Arp Chamber of Commerce, tried to encourage growth in the town during the 1950s by selling plots of land for a dollar apiece.

"At one time there were between 3,500 and 4,000 people here. There were 50 or 60 frame buildings — cafes and everything," said Mitchell. "When we first got here, the oil boom was just starting. This was on the main line of the Missouri-Pacific Railroad from St. Louis," Mitchell said.

Old Highway 64 was the only paved road in the area. "On most of the other roads, you needed a team of mules to pull people through the street in rainy weather," said Mitchell. "The drug store's business flourished during the oil boom. "We used to sell about 500 malts a day at a nickel apiece around 1930 or so," he said.

When the oil boom was over, however, most of the people left. "After the oil boom, everybody left. At one time the town got down to 350

12-year-old may lose mayor job

CRABB, Texas (AP) — Voters in this tiny rural Southeast Texas community were to vote Saturday in an election that could leave their 12-year-old mayor without a job.

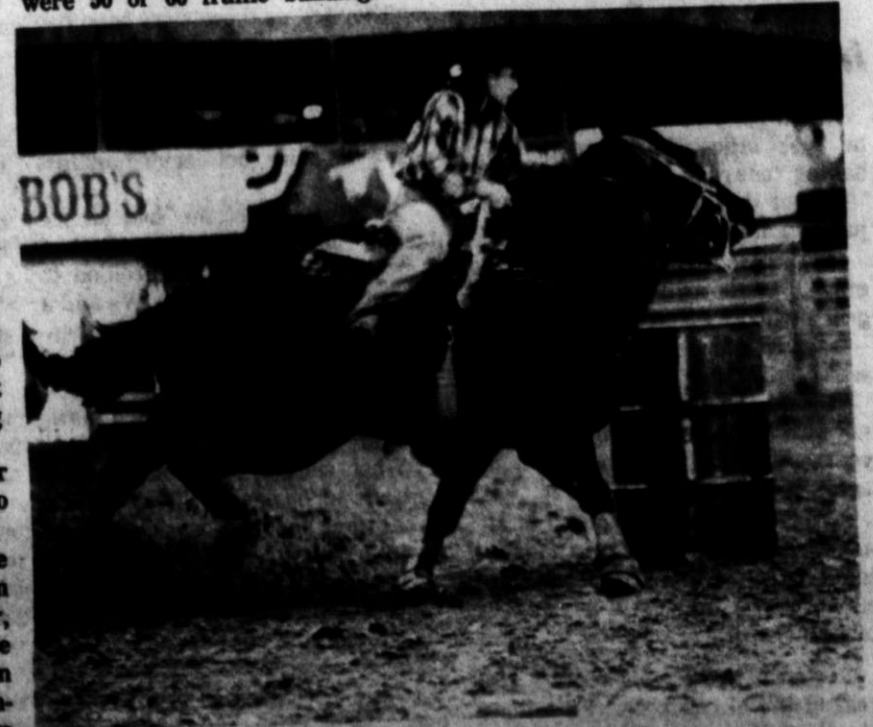

The vote is a chance for Mayor Brian Zimmerman to make good on one of his campaign promises — to incorporate Crabb and protect it from being annexed by neighboring cities.

But if Crabb voters decide in favor of incorporation, Zimmerman can no longer serve as mayor.

Zimmerman signed an ordinance saying Crabb's 200 residents can elect whomever they want as mayor, regardless of age. But the ordinance is superseded by the Texas election code, which requires mayors of incorporated towns to be at least age 18.

Zimmerman was elected mayor in an unofficial election at his aunt's grocery store in September 1983. Twenty-three of 30 voters chose the boy over two other candidates, ages 69 and 71.

Social Security marks 50th anniversary

BY CINDY SMITH
Staff Writer

It helped Shirley Merlene Streun, a widow, age 40, raise her four kids. Two of those children are presently in college.

Several senior citizens base their livelihood on it and say it's a good thing.

Others that needed help due to unforeseen circumstances have collected benefits from it, yet others say it's not nearly enough.

The big and controversial it in this instance is Social Security.

The first Social Security Act was signed August 14, 1935. The three major programs comprising the act were: old-age insurance, (which is what we now think of as 'social security'), unemployment insurance, and public assistance.

From that day in 1935, exactly 50 years ago, the social security act has changed. Major changes in the act, to date (1985), include extending coverage to new Federal employees and those working for non-profit organizations; delaying cost-of-living increase for six months; adjusting tax rate; and taxing part of the benefits of certain high-income beneficiaries.

Along with these changes, the amended act increases the age for unreduced retiring benefits from 65 to 67 gradually between the year 2000 and 2022, while also changing the way cost-of-living increases are figured when trust funds drop below certain levels, and added were 'several other provisions that strengthen program financing.'

Some say although the program has changed and grown considerably, the promise of Social Security and assurance of continued benefits is as firm today as it was when before, there were only family members and friends' help to turn to.

President Reagan states in a press release, "Almost every American benefits from Social Security program in some way. More than 120 million people are building their future financial security through work in jobs covered by the system and, approximately 37 million are receiving monthly cash benefits."

"Nearly all Americans reaching age 65 today are eligible for Social Security benefits."

"Ninety-five percent of young children and their surviving parents are eligible for benefits should their family bread-winner die and four out of five workers are protected in the event they should become disabled."

Reagan went on to say, "Throughout the years, Social Security has proven to be one of the most successful and popular programs ever established by the Federal Government."

Mentioning the new generation, Reagan says, "our young people can feel secure in the knowledge that Social Security will be there to assist them in providing for their families just as it was done since the first benefits were paid in 1940."

"I urge all Americans to reflect on the significance of the Social Security Act signed fifty years ago," stresses Reagan, "and to celebrate its accomplishments."

As Reagan said, "to celebrate its accomplishments," one can look at the people living in our own community.

In Hereford, Streun raised four kids on Social Security benefits and her own salary as a teacher, alone.

"My children were very young when their father died," said Mrs. Streun. Her youngest was 13 months and Cynthia, her oldest, had just finished the first grade. "When I first started receiving Social Security it helped out quite a bit," Streun said, "and it has grown as the children have grown."

After receiving a few checks,

MAYOR

Asked his accomplishments since he took office, Zimmerman cited having "one road paved."

"Other than that," he said, "I've just fought the incorporation battle."

If he's ousted from office, the mayor — who will enter the eighth grade when school resumes this fall — says he is uncertain whether he'll seek public office again.

"I'll be 13 years old Aug. 20," he says. "So I'll have to wait five more years before I can be anything again."

Some residents are opposed to annexation because it will establish a taxing district. But Zimmerman insists Crabb citizens will pay higher taxes if the town is annexed.

The county is paying for the $200 cost of the election. But Fort Bend County Judge Jodie Stavinoha, who set the election date, ordered Zimmerman to pick up the tab for the ballots and election posting.

Zimmerman declined to say how much he is spending on the incorporation battle.

Streun went back to teaching. Over the years social security has provided for her children. "It helped with school and their needs during the growing-up years," Streun explained.

In the spring, Social Security asked the individual receiving benefits to account for money spent.

Social Security has its own bank account in the Streun household. "All of the money is used for the kids," said Streun. She explained that two-fifths of the total groceries, utilities, etc. will be covered by the Social Security account. This is because Streun still has two children, Kyle a junior, and John Mark, a sophomore, at home and both the boys are still under 18 years of age.

Over the years, Social Security has helped the Streuns to live a little better, "especially the kids," said Streun. "Recently, contacts for my youngest were bought," said Streun, "along with school clothes that will need to be purchased before long." When observing, one could tell Streun is grateful and appreciative for the help Social Security brings, but her job as a teacher has something to do with that, too.

Other local people reflecting on the significance of the Social Security Act were very opinionated and knew what they were talking about from experience.

In a different situation, very common among the old, are Mr. and Mrs. J.M. (Jim) Carthel. Today is Mr. Carthel's birthday as he is 80 years old. Carthel walks across the street every Saturday to pick up the Brand.

"During World War II I was working at Fort Sill, Ok. as a carpenter and I remember Social Security being signed," said Carthel stepping back in time.

Before Carthel turned 65, he was working in the laundry department at Missouri Beef and he had serious medical problems then. "On August the 11th when I turned 65, I told the boss I was going to quit and draw Social Security," said Carthel. The company had wanted him to stay, and he would have stayed, but because of medical reasons it was best he quit. "And I've been drawing Social Security ever since," said Carthel, "and it is a wonderful thing."

Social Security is the Carthel's only income. "And if it will just stay that way, (if the government will leave it alone)," stressed Carthel, "we'll all get along just fine."

"I'm praying that these young people who pay into Social Security will draw it," added Erlene, Carthel's wife, "especially since they their paying in so much."

"I know I hated to see the money taken out of my checks every two weeks, but they explained to me that the money would be saved up for when I was old and couldn't work," recalled Carthel.

Other personal encounters of Social Security led to Edith Shepherd, 87, of 402 North Roosevelt.

"It certainly has helped me, it has been a lifesaver for me," she said. "I don't get very much...but a very small amount," said Shepherd. "It's all I have to live on, (and I sure do have to stretch it too!)," she said half-smilingly.

Shepherd continued, sharing the Carthels' views on Social Security by saying it was a wonderful thing for old people. "I know a lot of old people just like myself; they couldn't get by without it!"

"Before my husband passed away, it took every penny we had to try and get him well," began Shepherd, (her husband had cancer). "Social Security came along and I drew what he had in it. And this put food on the table...I had this home paid for, he didn't have insurance or anything," explained Shepherd.

In the last few years Shepherd has lost most of her eyesight. When outside, she has to have someone lead her around, "but I know my way around the house," she said assuringly.

"I've learned to save more and be more economical in daily living,"

Shepherd said. "When you just have so much to spend, you have to sit down and work it out," she said, (she had been working on bills at the time of the interview. "By the time you get old enough, honey," warned Shepherd, "they may not have any Social Security," and then, "that's what I tell my grandchildren, too!")

On the other hand, Buddy Curtsinger gave a different but similar point of view as he had to still make ends meet.

Curtsinger worked for Hereford Feedyard cowboying for about 10 years. Curtsinger was forced to retire when his horse fell on him and broke his backbone in '73. Curtsinger was 63 then. "The thing is, I have to work part-time just to keep up," commented Curtsinger. He works part-time checking weight on the loaded cars for the railroad.

In reference to Social Security, "It's a living to us and I'm sure to lots of other people as well," said Curtsinger. "I really don't think they'll do away it - too many folks dependent on it," he said, "may not get a raise tax - but you're awful lucky to get what you got."

"What we get does cover what we need," said Susie Curtsinger. "It doesn't allow for luxuries." "Paying on Social Security is kind of hard on young people," she continued. "I have a soft-spot in my heart for you young people..." "Just starting out... they expect so much to start out need it the most, it is there."

And with this one remembers what the Carthels' were saying, "Social Security is definitely a good program, kind of an insurance for people; it cost's something but when you need it the most, it is there."

Lorene Cathel added one last thought as she said, "I remember a lady coming on T.V. saying 'what if social security stopped—what would all these people do but die?'"

need it the most, it is there."

Jim and Erlene Carthel people," he said. Now the population stands at just over 900.

However, Mitchell and Forbes stayed together.

"They tell us there's not been two pharmacists working in the same store for going on 50 years," Mitchell said.

He said they had thought of modernizing the store, but decided against it.

"People just got me sold on the idea of finally making a museum of it," Mitchell said. "We decided to keep it exactly like it was. We had a lot of encouragement from the people who come in here."

The store doesn't get much prescription-filling business now, though.

"When we had a doctor here, we had lots of business. Now we don't have any doctors or dentists in town," Mitchell said.

They don't mind if people come and browse through the store, looking through the old newspapers and taking in a bit of history.

"Older people may stay here for hours at a time. If we don't sell anything, it's all right with us," said Mitchell.

Members of the younger generation visit the store regularly, too, Mitchell said.

"We have people come in here and buy gum from the machine, especially after school. Younger kids just gang around the machine. You can get 4 or 5 pieces for a penny," he said.

Mitchell is proud of his collection of antiques and memorabilia, and on the wall, he keeps articles about the store next to his plaques for community service.

"They tell us there's nothing like this in Texas and never will be because it's irreplaceable," he said.

jury trial that defense attorneys contended might not have been necessary.

Donnelly said Justice Department officials in Washington overruled local prosecutors and spurned a plea bargain because they wanted a "public display" in the first trial involving any of the four.

"I wouldn't be surprised also to see this used as fodder for the death penalty provision of the peacetime espionage act," said defense lawyer Samuel W. Meekins.

The case has sparked calls on Capitol Hill and elsewhere for a renewal of the death penalty for espionage during peacetime.

Merciless madam convicted

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston area woman whom prosecutors portrayed as a merciless madam was convicted of violating federal "white slavery" laws by transporting prostitutes across state lines.

Defense attorneys argued during a four-week trial that Penelope Hatteras, 32, of Sugar Land, was merely a successful businesswoman who ran a legitimate modeling agency in three states.

But jurors in U.S. District Judge John V. Singleton's court on Friday convicted Ms. Hatteras on 21 counts of conspiracy, using interstate facilities to promote prostitution and violating federal "white slavery" laws barring the interstate transportation of prostitutes.

Her former business assistant, Ed Wallach, 31, of Houston was also convicted on 21 similar counts and her former accountant, Charles Holcomb, 42, of Houston, was convicted on 15 counts.

Singleton set a Sept. 19 sentencing date for the three defendants, all of whom were indicted on 21 counts.

Defense attorney Jan Fox said she believed jurors did not reach their verdict based on pertinent issues in the case.

"The jury has reacted to the issue of sex rather than reacting to the specific charges against Miss Hatteras," Ms. Fox said.

Ms. Hatteras declined to comment on the verdict.

Prosecutors contended Ms. Hatteras' business was a poorly disguised front for prostitution. Several witnesses testified they worked as prostitutes for Ms. Hatteras and described her as a cruel and merciless boss who forced some of her employees to service clients for 24-hour stretches.

Ms. Fox said during the trial her client's agency offered nude modeling and massage services in Houston, Dallas, Atlanta and Denver. However, defense attorneys argued Ms. Hatteras tried to prohibit models from selling sex, but she could not be held responsible for their unauthorized actions.

Atheist center releases X-rated bible

AUSTIN (AP) — "The X-Rated Bible" is a newly-released book showing that even the Bible talks of incest, rape and abortion, officials of the American Atheist Center said.

The book, released last week, is a compilation of the Bible's steamier sections which contain the same type of material condemned by some who support banning sexually explicit books and magazines, center officials said.

Jon Garth Murray, director of the Austin-based center, said the 428-page book should be studied by pornography foes and Bible supporters who condemn sex-oriented publications.

"There are examples of the same kinds of things in the Bible that the people who claim to be representatives of the Bible are trying to get out of our society," said Jon Garth Murray, director of the Austin-based center.

Murray said if pornography opponents are "going to condemn human sexuality, they're going to have to condemn it on some other basis than the Bible."

According to the atheist center, the Bible includes "incest, rape, fornication, homosexuality, mass-inflicted abortions, lasciviousness and adultery." It also contains "sado-masochism, pedophilia, lust, bestiality, masturbation, lewdness, copulation and sodomy," the center said in a news release.

But pornography foes disagree with Murray's explanation.

Evenly Dee, executive director of Morality in Media, said if such actions are mentioned in the Bible, they "are mentioned as evil and usually punished as evil," whereas "in pornography they're represented as good, pleasurable and desirable."

Morality in Media is an anti-pornography organization based in New York.

Asked to name a specific sex activity condoned by the Bible but condemned by anti-pornography activists, Murray said, "I really don't know."

Despite its provocative contents, the book, compiled by Edward Ackerley, a California educator, might have a difficult time making it to the best-seller lists, said Murray, son of the center's founder, Madalyn Murray O'Hair.

No major book distributor or store chain has agreed to carry it, so "The X-Rated Bible" is available only by mail from the atheist center.

One story included in the book is about David, later king of Israel, and his friendship with Jonathan, son of King Saul. Quoting David's description of Jonathan's love for him as "passing the love of women," Ackerley contends they had a homosexual relationship.

Scholars, however, are divided over such an interpretation.

Guide arrested for antler theft

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A Canadian hunting guide charged in a case involving the alleged theft of a massive set of white-tailed deer antlers will have to spend the weekend in jail, a federal magistrate said.

U.S. Magistrate Jamie Boyd on Thursday denied bond for hunting guide Lloyd McMahon. But Boyd also agreed to hold another bond hearing Monday at the request of Assistant U.S. Attorney Ray Jahn.

Jahn told the court McMahon came to the United States from Canada through Alaska and that he needs time to allow immigration officials to determine if McMahon is in this country legally.

McMahon was named in a federal criminal complaint charging him with transporting stolen merchandise in interstate commerce. The complaint stemmed from a continuing investigation by U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service agents.

The criminal complaint alleges a set of antlers was stolen from Canada Wide Taxidermy in Edmonton, Alberta, and taken to the Rio Grande Ranch located just across the Mexican border from Eagle Pass, Texas.

Musser, Minchew vows spoken during candlelight ceremony

Dana Elaine Musser and David Kyle Minchew exchanged nuptials Saturday afternoon in Central Church of Christ with Bob Wear, associate minister of the church, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Kathryn Musser of 300 Western and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Minchew of 137 Ironwood.

The main church altar was centered by an arch candelabrum which was flanked by spiral candelabra entwined with greenery and bouquets of burgandy gladioli and pink carnations arranged in urns.

Donann Cummings served as maid of honor and best man was Kenneth Paetzold.

Bridesmaids included Kellie Harts of Amarillo, Jaime Dirks of Canyon and the bride's sister, Tonya Musser.

Serving as groomsmen were the groom's brother, Kirk Minchew, Robert Murray Jr. and Kyle Schuder. Guests were escorted by the bride's cousins, Don and Nathan Flood.

Flower girl was the bride's cousin, Taren Jones, daughter of Randy and Grace Jones, and ring bearer, also a cousin of the bride, was Kyle Flood, son of Joe and Karen Flood.

Lighting candles were Tracey Flood, the bride's cousin, and Wisty Mars.

Central Church of Christ Wedding Chorus and Heaven's Heirs Quartet vocalized "The Wedding March", "O God of Infinite Mercy" and "The Lord Bless You." Suzan Scribner sang "The Wedding Song" and the Heaven's Heirs sang "You and Me."

Given in marriage by her uncle, Ernest Flood, Jr., the bride wore a formal wedding gown featuring a fitted satin bodice which formed a cameo neckline marked by a large satin bow at the neck. The full skirt, which formed a semi-cathedral-length train, gathered at a natural waistline which was decorated by a satin bow. Delicate scalloped lace ruffles adorned the skirt and the gown's hemline.

The chiffon and lace leg-of-mutton sleeves were trimmed by satin bows and gathered at the wrists forming deep scalloped lace ruffles.

Her fingertip veil of bridal illusion was edged in satin and fell from a crown of lace, pearls and sequins.

She carried a cascade of mini-white carnations centered with two white orchids, stephanotis, white sweetheart roses, baby's breath and greenery.

As something borrowed, the bride wore diamond earrings belonging to her aunt; something blue, the traditional blue garter; something new, her wedding gown; and as something old, she carried a lace handkerchief belonging to her great-grandmother.

Bridal attendants were attired in daphne rose colored taffeta gowns fashioned with sweetheart necklines, puffed sleeves, floor-length full skirts and basque waistlines. Each carried votive candles placed in a holder encircled by pink and gray silk roses.

Katrina Waller of Dimmitt, the groom's cousin, invited guests to register at the reception held in the church fellowship room.

Debbie Frye presided at the bride's table and Stacey Bird of Amarillo, the groom's cousin, was at the groom's table.

Punch was laded by Carla Frye and coffee was poured by Mrs. Terry Parker of Amarillo, the groom's cousin.

Other members of the houseparty included Sandi Blevins, April Aleman, Cecelia Fuller, Nicky Walser, Joyce Ward and Linda Hicks.

The bride's table was decorated by a three-tiered wedding cake trimmed with pink and gray roses and topped by the traditional bride and bridegroom figurines. Also, arranged on the table were the bride's bouquet and bridesmaid's candles as well as a silver punch bowl borrowed from the groom's grandmother.

The German chocolate groom's cake was served from a table decorated by a wooden accent candelabrum.

Leaving for a brief wedding trip, the bride wore a belted red and white one piece cotton dress with white accessories.

The couple will make their home after Tuesday at 427 Paloma Lane.

The bride is a 1986 spring candidate for graduation from Hereford High School where she is active in choir.

While attending HHS, the bridegroom was active in the ICT program. He graduated in 1983. He is currently attending TSTI in Amarillo and plans to graduate in February of 1986 with an associate degree in diesel mechanics. He is presently employed at Moore's Jack and Jill.

The Fire Unleashed

The ABC special three hour show titled "The Fire Unleashed" did present a lot of food for thought but in the final analysis it was another anti-nuclear piece that was prejudiced against all forms of nuclear energy, either for weapons or for domestic energy.

The malfunction of the nuclear reactor plant at Three Mile Island spawned a wave of horror stories about what might have been. It was speculated that a nuclear chain reaction could have been set off which would have destroyed the entire world.

It is natural to fear nuclear destruction and the horror of the atom bomb exploding over Japan is kept fresh in our memory by countless reminders of it.

But nuclear energy has never received much of a chance in this country. There are nuclear plants built and operating, and they produce electricity with less cost than other forms of energy. But the very idea of nuclear power seems to scare a great many people.

The ABC show advocated getting rid of everything nuclear because nobody could be sure that it would not destroy the earth. Yet how can this nation do away with all forms of nuclear weapons as long as our chief adversary, Russia, keeps on building theirs?

We have people in this country who deplore the use of coal because it pollutes the air. They deplore the use of petroleum products for the same reason. They don't want nuclear power to be developed because they are afraid of it. Our lawmakers have succeeded in laying so many restrictions and safety precautions upon builders of nuclear plants that every one of them in recent years has just about stalled out or has been abandoned because of cost overruns.

Americans need to know that nuclear power is not all that bad. France has generated all of its electricity for more than a decade with nuclear energy.

South Africa now supplies 90 percent of its electricity with nuclear plants and is working toward the day when they will be totally independent of the OPEC nations and their oil.

The problem of disposing of nuclear waste is a tough one, of course and nobody wants this kind of waste dumped on them. But disposal of nuclear waste is not quite the problem it has been made to be and there are ways to achieve safe disposal and storage of nuclear waste without the hysteria that seems to surround the problem.

Nuclear power for peaceful purposes should be pursued for this country without the hysteria that associates it with the atom bomb.

The failure is he who, after finding the key to success and unlocking the door of opportunity, reverses his steps and locks the key inside.

Failure is not one, but a series, of procrastinations. Despair is the yeast in the bread of idleness.

Desire does not concentrate on limitations, but exercises initiative to overcome the limitations.

He who doesn't set short-range goals in conjunction with long-range goals spends the whole game of life trying to kick a 109-yard field goal.

Egotism is the noise of mediocrity.

Discouragement is the cancer of self-depreciation.

The man who invents excuses is almost always guilty of infringement on someone else's copyright. Procrastination is the pirate of other people's excuses, whereas initiative is the inventor of ideas that turn into plans of action.

Self-pity is the Dead Sea of selfishness.

Perserverance is a matter of regenerating one's enthusiasm to achieve short-range goals, rather than the endurance of extended discouragements.

The Penultimate Word

WEDDINGS

Murphy's Law says "Whatever can go wrong, will." Murphy's Law works best when it will do the most harm. It seems to work especially well at weddings. Someone asked me about the most unusual wedding I ever officiated. That proved to be a rather tough question. There were several to choose from.

There was the one totally mixed up by the organist and the florist. This couple wanted "The Lord's Prayer" sung early in the proceedings. The organist forgot and she started "The Bridal March". I slipped around and got word to the organist. She made a fairly good transition to "The Lord's Prayer". The florist had already started the attendants down the aisle. One can only imagine how the folks felt when the attendants were halfway down the aisle and the musician stood up and sang "The Lord's Prayer".

There was another one where the flowers caught on fire. The candles were under an air conditioning vent and burned too fast. The hot wax dripped on the Styrofoam. I heard crackling and smelled smoke. Murphy must have enjoyed the scene.

Or, the one where one of the groomsmen threw up. Bachelor parties have a way of leaving some rather large hangovers. Sometimes hangovers overflow at rather awkward times.

I had one wedding that featured a ruptured punch bowl. Just as the people arrived at the reception the punch bowl split in half. The punch featured juices, Seven-Up, and half melted sherbert. These ingredients look great spilled all over the table, the cake, the floor, and the dresses of the servers.

And then there was one beautiful wedding marred by the bride fainting. Three times this lovely lady keeled over. We finished the ceremony with her sitting in a chair.

The question was which was the most unusual. I performed a beautiful wedding in a park. It was a lovely day. The crowd gathered, the music went great, but just as I began the ritual there was a crash off to my left. I glanced out to see the cause of the crash. Someone had run into a car—my car.

Bootleg Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Johnsongrass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek discusses the Federal budget this week, half-heartedly.

Dear editor:

One of the worst things a politician can do is to become boring. Congress, wrangling over a budget for the past several weeks, has just about reached that point.

It's sort of like a bunch of weather forecasters arguing over what tomorrow's forecast will be. Whatever they agree on has little bearing on what the weather will do, just as whatever budget Congress agrees on has very little to do with what the government will spend.

A Federal budget is like our foreign policy. It sounds good on paper but the rest of the world doesn't pay any attention to it. Washington has a debt ceiling the Treasury absolutely can not borrow beyond, so when it needs more money Congress raises that ceiling. It's like a parent forbidding his child to have more than one piece of candy after supper. When the kid sets up a howl for more, the parent outsmarts him by letting him have two. By the end of the week he's eating all he wants and, like the Federal government, headed for a stomach ache.

The trouble with voting for a budget that really controls spending is that too many Congressmen have the ability to look beyond the needs of the country to their own re-election. As a famous Speaker of the House once said, getting re-elected is a Congressman's first duty. With that accomplished, he is free to vote his conscience occasionally just to see how it feels.

You know, Washington is now borrowing money to pay the interest on money it's already borrowed. If you know of any bank that operates on that system, I wish you'd let me know. I'd like to take my place in line before it reaches through the lobby, down the street, around the block and clear across town.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

U.S. Chamber Voice of Business

WHAT'S THAT JOB "WORTH"—AND SEZ WHO?

By Richard L. Lesher,
President

WASHINGTON — The immortal Babe Ruth was once challenged about his $80,000 salary — enormous for that day and age—when it was pointed out that he took in more for hitting home runs than Herbert Hoover earned as President of the United States. The "Bambino's" retort: "Yeah, but I had a better year than Hoover did."

Society struggled with the seeming disparity between the difficulty or utility of various professions, and the compensation received for those jobs, long before the question was presented to the Sultan of Swat. And the debate continues today.

Is Michael Jackson's music "worth" his reported earnings of $50 million a year? Are Doug Flutie's contributions to society greater than those of a teacher educating 25 exuberant youngsters? Is Lee Iacocca's job tougher than that of a sole proprietor who devotes 80 hours a week to keeping her struggling business afloat? Are Johnny Carson's working conditions worse than those of the minimum wage key puncher, cross-eyed from sitting in front of a computer terminal all day?

In recent years, the National Organization for Women (NOW) and other feminist groups have cast a new light on this age-old dispute. NOW insists that certain categories of jobs are underpaid, not on the basis of education or skill requirements—but because they have traditionally been filled by women.

The law today, under the Equal Pay Act of 1963, requires "equal pay for equal work"—that is, men or women, blacks or whites working the same jobs must receive the same pay. The women's groups, however, demand the application of a new principle, "comparable worth": equal pay for jobs with a comparable degree of difficulty, required skills and working conditions. If a librarian, for example, needs more education and faces more mental demands than a janitor, then she should earn more than the janitor—not always the state of affairs currently.

Now Congress, ever eager to correct perceived violations of individual "rights", is getting into the act. It stands ready to approve legislation calling for the classification of federal jobs applying the kind of criteria in our librarian-janitor example.

The bill's proponents argue that it is only a "study." But once those job classifications are completed, at the cost of vast amounts of time and resources, do you think Congress, lawyers, the courts, and the women's groups will let them gather dust on the shelf? Pardon me for suppressing a laugh.

Before long, Congress will apply those classifications to the federal government. Courts will read them as Congressional intent to reinterpret the Equal Pay Act as requiring "comparable worth" in the private sector—if Congress itself doesn't so extend the Act. Federal courts and the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission will be converted to centralized wage-and-price authorities—not just controlling wages as in past experiments, but actively participating in setting them. In short, the absolute antithesis of a free market.

Beyond this unprecedented intrusion into the affairs of business, and the inherent difficulty of making the kind of subjective judgment called for, one additional fact undercuts the premise of comparable worth: the market is already solving the problem.

Women are rushing into jobs where they once feared to tread. Female enrollment in law schools, for example, increased from 9.1 percent in 1971 to 35.3 percent in 1981. New York City has actually set up physical training programs to help women meet the vigorous demands of hoisting garbage cans.

Finally, corporations are moving on their own to ensure that employee compensation is free of past stereotyping. They are already solving the problem the same way society has always solved the problem of compensating the likes of Ruth, Jackson, Flutie, Iacocca and Carson: on the basis of their market value, not a government decree.

In addition to being a noted philosopher, statesman and inventor, Benjamin Franklin is responsible for a couple of noted investments. According to "The Almanac of Investments," Franklin organized the first colonial insurance company in 1752. It was called the "Philadelphia Contributorship." Earlier, in 1726, Franklin wrote a paper questioning the practice of issuing paper currency. It so impressed Pennsylvania's colonial legislators that they gave him the contract for printing the money.

Defending champion runner to enter 10-kilometer race

The winner of the 10-kilometer run the last two years during the Town and Country Jubilee will return to Hereford this year to defend his title. Jesse Sturgeon of San Antonio, the son of Sam and Celia Sturgeon of Hereford, won the 1984 race with a record time of 33:02.

This year's race, along with a two-mile run, are scheduled for 8 a.m. on Saturday, Aug. 17. The runs were renamed this year and are known as the Greg Black Memorial 10-K and Two-Mile Fun Run.

Sturgeon won the 1983 race with a time of 33:16, setting a record for the men's age 20 to 29 division. His time of 33:02 last year was accomplished when running in the men's age 30 to 39 division.

A running enthusiast, Sturgeon has placed first in nine contests this year, including the High Tyler 10-K Run at UTSA, and the Zoo Run in Brackenridge Park.

The former Hereford resident is a college student in San Antonio.

Sturgeon led the San Antonio Pontiac Fieros six-man team to a first place finish in the annual Armed Forces Day Beach-to-Bay relay marathon, a 26.2 mile race, in Corpus Christi in May. He has been a member of the winning team in that race for four straight years.

Also, Sturgeon was the captain of the corporate division team winner in the 10-K Optimist Run held earlier this year in San Antonio.

Interested runners may enter the 10-kilometer run or the two-mile run by registering at the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA office at 500 East Fifteenth Street. Registration forms are available upon request from the YMCA.

Registration fees are $8 in advance, and $10 on the day of the races. Late registration will be held from 7 a.m. to 7:45 a.m. the day of the races.

For more information on the Greg Black Memorial 10-K and Two-Mile Fun Run, call the YMCA at 364-6990.

On no-pass, no-play rule advice

White gets lukewarm response

AUSTIN (AP) — The advice Gov. Mark White is giving to help students cope with the no-pass, no-play rule is getting a lukewarm response from coaches and teachers.

"I don't think it addresses the main problem. But anything that may help is welcome," said Eddie Joseph, assistant executive vice president of the Texas High School Coaches Association.

White's advice, modeled on one used by Houston's Madison High School to keep basketball players eligible, suggests advisory sessions, tutorial programs, a buddy system pairing successful and struggling students, adult "mentors" and study seminars.

The no-pass, no-play rule — which White has taken to calling the pass-play rule — prohibits students from participating for six weeks in sports or other extracurricular activities if failing any course. This will be the first football season under the rule, which was a key element of school reforms approved by the Legislature last year.

Coaches have urged White to consider a suspension period shorter than six weeks, but the governor Thursday said he wouldn't back down from the rule.

"To us, this (six-week suspension) is strictly punitive. If the purpose is to motivate children, it's hard to see why they shouldn't be eligible again as soon as they pass," Joseph said.

That aspect of the rule, he said, "hurts no one by the youngsters.

Sometimes, adults just don't want to say they made the wrong decision."

Frank Bevers, who recently resigned as head football coach at Highland Park High School, said he saw little new in White's plan.

"We've been doing that for 20 years," he said. "Every morning from 8:20 until 9:00, our teachers tutor the kids. If a kid wants help, all he has to do is walk in and say, 'Help me.'"

Annette Cootes of the Texas State Teachers Association said White's suggested program could mean more paperwork for teachers if tutorial sessions have to be documented.

Hereford Junior Riders Rodeo scheduled for August 16-17

Fourteen events and two special contests will fill the agenda for the Hereford Junior Riders Rodeo, Aug. 16-17, in the Riders Club Arena.

The rodeo begins at 7:30 each evening with admission $3 for adults and $1 for senior citizens and for children under 11.

Roping events for the contestants, ranging from seven to 18-years-old, include breakaway roping, ribbon roping, calf roping, and team roping.

Riders will be competing in barrel racing, pole bending, flag racing, calf riding, steer riding, steer daubing, bull riding, goat tying and goat undecorating.

There will be a special barrel race for children under eight-years-old. Children under 12 years old will have a calf chase to retrieve a ribbon from the tail.

Oilers' Smith feels no threat from faster pass receivers

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ AP Sports Writer

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Tim Smith, the Houston Oilers' slow but dependable leading receiver the past two seasons, doesn't feel threatened by all the cheetah-fast small receivers flooding the Oiler preseason camp.

He hopes they draw some attention.

"If a speed receiver can clear everything out, you might be able to break underneath all that coverage so maybe that would really help my game plan," Smith said.

At one point in the Oiler training camp, six of the 10 receivers there were fast-lane models, built for speed and the deep threat.

They might be amazed to note that Smith, despite a more deliberate pace, snagged 83 passes in 1983 and had another 69 receptions last season. His two-season total represents more catches over that period than any other National Football League wide receiver.

"I'm slow maybe in a straight line," Smith said. "But I think I can read defenses quickly, and get into the pattern quickly and make my breaks to get open."

Smith has been befuddling NFL

defenses since getting his chance two seasons ago, and new offensive coordinator Joe Faragalli isn't about to trade him for a faster model.

"You have to have the possession receivers like Tim and Mike Holston," Faragalli said. "It's important to have that speed for the deep threat, but it's also nice to have those dependable guys catching the ball."

Faragalli also is trying to add a passing threat to the Oiler backfield, and Smith thinks that also will benefit for the entire offense.

"I love to have guys like Butch Woolfolk that can come out of the backfield and catch the ball," Smith said. "They're not going to know if it's a running back or tight end coming out and if you can match those guys up with a linebacker, they are going to have a good time."

Smith is hoping the Oilers have a better time than last season, when they finished 3-13 and the offense ranked only 23rd among the 28 NFL teams in total offense.

"We're going to be able to spread them out so they can't double any one good running back or receiver," Smith said. "We've got to be able to come to both sides of the field and keep single coverage on our people."

Smith's emergence as an Oiler receiver was sudden. He was a special teams player in 1982 and didn't catch a single pass. In fact, he had only four career receptions going into the 1983 season.

His 83 catches that season was the second highest single-season total in Oiler history, surpassed only by Charlie Hennigan's 101 catches in 1964.

New agreement allows NL to add two teams

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball's new basic agreement permits the National League to expand by two teams to match the American League's 14 clubs, management and union officials said.

However, the expansion clause does not mandate adding any teams nor does it limit the expansion to just two teams during the life of the five-year agreement, said Lee MacPhail, president of the owners' Player Relations Committee. He explained that should the league want to add two clubs, no further management-union negotiations will be required.

"Basically, what it says is that the clubs have the right to expand and set their own ground rules, providing they followed the pattern used in the past," MacPhail said. "There's no limit on it, it's just that we have a green light for two."

"Anything beyond two, we have to talk to them about terms and conditions."

"It's quite similar to a provision in the last basic agreement," said Lauren Rich, assistant general counsel to the players union, of the provision in the contract agreed to Wednesday ending the players' strike.

At least a dozen cities are competing for major league expansion teams, including Washington, Miami, New Orleans, Indianapolis, Denver, Phoenix, Tampa and St. Petersburg in Florida, East Rutherford, N.J., and Vancouver, B.C.

A year ago, the owners' long range planning committee said it might expand by six teams by 1990.

The Major League Players Association asked management to commit to expansion during the life agreement, but MacPhail said the clubs could not do that.

"Our answer to that was ... that we have to consider our economic problems and get them straightened out before we expand," he said. "We asked that we have the right to expand without having to come back and negotiate a lot of financial conditions with them."

Since 1962, the year they were founded, the New York Mets have had 16 different players who wore uniform No. 17.

The most one-sided shutout in the history of the National League was a 22-0 victory for the Pirates over the Cubs in 1975.

Winningest Texas amateur golfer is not Scott Verplank

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — After last week's Western Open, some people called sensational Scott Verplank the best amateur golfer since Jack Nicklaus.

Certainly, the 21-year-old Dallasite has established himself as the best amateur to come out of Texas since Ben Crenshaw and Tom Kite.

Not since 1956, when Doug Sanders won the Canadian Open, has an amateur bested the professionals. Verplank's poise and shotmaking skill carried him to an impressive playoff victory over Jim Thorpe at the rugged Butler National Golf Course.

Verplank turned down the $90,000 first prize to continue his education at Oklahoma State, where he is a senior, and retained his amateur status. He was off and putting again at the LaJet amateur tournament in Abilene this week.

Verplank has won the U.S. Amateur once and the Texas Amateur three times, plus dozens of other championships.

But he isn't the winningest Texas amateur golfer.

There's a man in the Texas Sports Hall of Fame who could spot Verplank 65 trophies and show him 100 more.

He is David "Spec" Goldman, who had won 165 amateur golf tournaments when he was inducted into the Texas Sports Hall of Fame in 1978 and has won a dozen more since.

Goldman, now in his late 50s, won such titles as the Texas Amateur, the Mexican Amateur and the Colonial Invitation in Memphis. He reached the finals of the French Amateur and the Western Amateur and twice was a finalist in the U.S. Seniors championship.

Goldman attended high school in North Dallas in the 1920s and collided with such great players as Ralph Guddahl — who was to become a two-time winner of the U.S. Open — Lafayette Franks, Jimmy McGonagill and Gus Moreland, one of the best amateurs in the state's history and a candidate this year for the Texas Sports Hall of Fame.

Goldman and Moreland tangled in the finals of the Trans-Mississippi in 1932 at Oklahoma City. The tournament still is one of the biggest in amateur golf.

When Moreland edged Goldman, the sponsors of the tournament gave him a Cadillac. He drove it home before he realized he would lose his amateur status, and then returned the automobile.

Goldman, meanwhile, accepted a punch bowl.

"It nearly killed me when it hit me on the head in a car wreck en route home," said Goldman.

Although Verplank will turn professional after he graduates and undoubtedly be a big financial success, Goldman had no choice but to go into some sort of a family business.

"Pro golf offered zilch," said Goldman. "Lucrative tournament purses were few and far between. It wasn't like it is now."

Indeed, Thorpe earned $90,000 for being the top professional in the tournament, even though he "lost" to Verplank.

Goldman won his first Texas Amateur in 1929. To show his staying power, he won again in 1955.

"It felt good because I beat a bunch of flat-bellies, youngsters who were half my age," said Goldman.

It would be unfair to try to compare Goldman with Verplank, since they are different players playing on different golf courses with different equipment.

It would be fun, though, to put Spec Goldman in a time capsule, make him a 21-year-old again and see what happened.

Cowboys principal owner has no sympathy for Dorsett

DALLAS (AP) — Bum Bright, principal owner of the Dallas Cowboys, says he has no sympathy for running back Tony Dorsett in his refusal to report to training camp until the National Football League team renegotiates a contract that has three years remaining.

"I don't understand it," Bright told The Dallas Morning News on Friday.

"He said he has a problem with his contract and needs to get it straightened out. I thought he had a contract. That, to me, is very clear. He can read, I presume. I don't understand a guy wailing on it."

Dorsett, who has financial problems including a $400,000 Internal Revenue Service tax lien against two houses, has been holding out since July 21. His contract calls for salaries of $450,000, $500,000 and $550,000 over the next three years, and a clause specifies that the contract cannot be renegotiated.

Bright has remained in the background since he became the Cowboys general partner in March of last year. He has let Cowboys president Tex Schramm run the team and has not been involved in the football operation.

"It's not my function to handle it, but I think if I had agreed to do something with Tony and put it in a contract, I would do it," Bright said.

"He signed a contract, and to me, it's that simple. We expect him to live up to his end of it. That's the way I've been doing business since 1947. My only advice to Tony is to act like he has a contract and do what he is supposed to do."

The News quoted "sources close to the situation" as saying Howard Slusher, who has been hired to negotiate with the Cowboys, is asking for a 50 percent increase in base salaries, averaging an additional $250,000 a year; deferred payments of $6.4 million over 20 years; and a $1.5 million real estate deal.

Witt Stewart, an agent and adviser to Dorsett, maintains that Gil Brandt, a Cowboys vice president and the director of player personnel, promised him last year that Dorsett's contract would be renegotiated so he would get as much as defensive tackle Randy White.

"I think that's all poppycock," Bright told the newspaper. "Take that into any courthouse, and no court in the land would let conversation override a written contract. They (Brandt and Schramm) have been doing this for 25 years. They know what they are doing."

Informed by The News of Bright's remarks, Dorsett said, "I can't dispute that I have a contract ... but it's not unusual when a contract is restructured or redone. For some reason, that's the nature of sports, whether they like it or not. It's not uncommon. We know that."

Against football program

Alleged SMU sanctions listed

DALLAS (AP) — A 26-month NCAA investigation into the Southern Methodist University football program focused on the role of school boosters, alleged cash and cars provided recruits, and employment of relatives of recruits, according to a published report.

The Dallas Times Herald, in a story Friday that quoted sources close to the investigation, said the NCAA Committee on Infractions put SMU on probation for three years — including two years of sanctions that ban scholarships in 1986 and limit to 15 the scholarships that could be offered in 1987.

A school normally is allowed to offer 30 scholarships a year and a maximum of 95 players on scholarship at one time.

The sanctions also reportedly include a ban on television appearances in 1986 and 1987 and on post-season bowl participations after the 1985 and 1986 football seasons, the newspaper said.

SMU is ranked in the top five in most preseason polls, but a ban on bowl appearances probably would kill any hopes for a national title.

SMU has appealed the committee's findings to the NCAA Council, and Mustang Coach Bobby Collins said he would have no comment on the substance of the investigation until after the appeal is heard next Wednesday in Boston.

A significant part of the findings against SMU and its appeal of those findings, the sources told the Times Herald, is the Mustangs' 1984 recruitment and signing of an offensive lineman from Pennsylvania.

Sean Stopperich, who is from the Pittsburgh area, signed with SMU after making a verbal commitment to attend the University of Pittsburgh.

The son of an unemployed steelworker, Stopperich moved to Dallas with his family in summer 1984, but withdrew from SMU last September and returned to Pittsburgh, the newspaper said. His parents, who had been living in a suburban Dallas apartment, also returned to Pittsburgh, the newspaper said.

Interviews with Stopperich after the family returned to Pennsylvania provided the NCAA with critical information, the sources said.

Stopperich, now enrolled at Pitt, has refused comment on his dealings with SMU, the Times Herald said.

If the NCAA does prevent SMU from offering any football scholarships next year, it would be the first time it has imposed so severe a penalty.

Any ban on TV appearances would not apply this season, since SMU has signed a contract to appear on network TV in 1985 before it was notified of the sanctions, the sources said.

ABC will televise SMU's game with Oklahoma on Dec. 7. The NCAA has been forced to honor contracts between networks and schools facing probation.

SMU has been placed on probation five times since 1958, and the severity of the penalty imposed through the recent investigation is due in part to SMU's status as a repeat offender, the source said.

In 1969, Steve Blass of the Philadelphia Phillies pitched a four-hitter against the Chicago Cubs, and Billy Williams made all four hits, two home runs and a pair of doubles.

When New Orleans hosts the 1986 Super Bowl it will be the sixth time for that city. New Orleans will make it seven with the 1990 Super Bowl.

Panel named to recommend changes

By DON KENDALL AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary John R. Block has named a blue-ribbon panel to recommend changes in the Graduate School, which investigators say helped other federal agencies sidestep federal manpower ceilings and procurement curbs.

The report from the Agriculture Department, which oversees the school, detailed a nearly two-year probe by the department's Office of Inspector General following a whistleblower complaint. No criminal charges were leveled, but officials who spoke only on condition of anonymity said a grand jury was looking into that possibility.

A further report, involving an audit of the school, is still in the works. The portions released were made public after a Freedom of Information request by The Associated Press and others.

Block named Kenneth H. Gilles, administrator of the department's Federal Grain Inspection Service, to head the special panel to make recommendations "regarding the structure, mission and future" of the school. Those will due by Oct. 31.

Among the options listed in Block's letter to Gilles, was the possibility that the school be abolished. It was started in 1921 to help USDA employees continue their education.

No college degrees are conferred, but credits can be earned to help federal workers in their job careers.

Generally, the report alleged the school used "interagency training agreements" with other agencies — including the Pentagon, the Agency for International Development and the Office of the U.S. Trade Representative — to circumvent federal laws dealing with procurement and employment.

Typically, the report said, the school would "serve as a pass-through contractor" by hiring people wanted by a client agency, and pay their salaries. For this service, the school collected up to a 30 percent "overhead fee" or commission from the client agency.

The report cited a number of the school's senior officials for alleged "misuse of federal funds and mismanagement" of the institution's programs. Those included Edmund D. Fulker, director, a 26-year employee who resigned under pressure on July 31.

Several others also were investigated, including Scott L. Varner, former director of the school's special programs, and Anne C. Shea, associate director.

The report Shea and Varner "violated regulations" by allowing the special programs division to provide non-training related services to federal agencies. Those actions "circumvented and assisted federal agency personnel to circumvent" federal regulations regarding federal procurement, the U.S. Economy Act, Graduate School general administrative board directives and others, the report said.

School spokesman Brian Gray said Thursday that Varner quit last year and "left no forwarding address." Shea has moved into Varner's job as acting director of special programs, Gray said.

In a statement to investigators, Fulker denied any wrongdoing and said many practices cited in the report had been standard procedure for years.

"There are so many government rules ... regulations, it is impossible for any one individual to know all of them," Fulker said. "My point, I try conscientiously to manage the school in as honest and conscientious a way as possible."

Varner, a 15-year veteran of the school before he resigned in April 1984, "would not meet (with investigators) to further explain his involvement in these matters," the report said.

Shea told investigators she had been advised by Varner to purchase supplies for federal agencies through Graduate School agreements, the report said.

The school is a $20 million annual operation that does not use any appropriated tax funds, depending entirely on revenues from its educational services, which include night classes and other educational opportunities for government workers and the general public.

It is housed in the Agriculture Department and is overseen by a board appointed by the secretary of agriculture.

The chairman of the board, Ray Lett, a senior aide to Block, said the 15-member board "functions as a policy-making body" and "does not get involved in management and operation" of the school.

According to investigators, arrangements made with other federal agencies for fees added up to $16.3 million during the three-year period of 1981-84, including more than $1 million for the Office of the U.S. Trade Representative for services and supplies, including expertise on computer systems and programming.

The Army contracted for several million dollars for services and supplies at a number of its education centers.

In her statement, for example, Shea said that 13 Graduate School employees worked at Fort Devens, Maine, and that under one agreement the school provided "self-learning equipment including related software."

Also, she said, supplies included 10 typewriters, floor jacks, tools and plumbing supplies, four stainless steel sinks, four laundry tubs, lumber and building supplies, comfort sensor heaters, baseboard heaters, a bar stool, coffeemaker and a microwave oven.

The school's international programs division, headed by Arthur F. Byrnes, contracted to provide more than $14.1 million worth of services and supplies over three years to various federal agencies, including $3.6 million for the Agency for International Development.

Byrnes, a 26-year veteran State Department foreign service officer before he joined the school in the mid-1970s, said his group has various agreements with AID. Byrnes also noted that the school "has a relatively new unwritten policy generally against paying dining expenses" for U.S. government officials.

However, Byrnes said, "Entertainment expenses have unofficially been built into the scope of training activities" provided by the school for the client agency. As an example, he said, food and drink were provided for a group of Egyptian officials at a reception welcoming them to Washington. The cost was $939 and the school billed AID.

Holly Sugar announces first quarter net loss

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — Holly Sugar Corporation has announced a net loss for the first quarter ended June 30, 1985, of $67,000 or 6 cents per common share on revenues of $75,727,000, compared with earnings of $2,166,000 or $1.70 per common share on revenues of $72,520,000 for the comparable period last year.

Despite lower unit manufacturing costs and higher sugar sales volume, the loss occurred principally because of significantly lower net prices for sugar and by-products (pulp and molasses) and somewhat lower by-product sales volume during the quarter.

However, financial results for the quarter ended June 30, 1985 are based on an estimated annual cost of sales which also was forecast in April. Further, Holly uses the LIFO (last-in, first-out) method of sugar inventory valuation. Thus, the cost of sugarbeets and related processing costs have been estimated for the purpose of this report, which is consistent with prior accounting procedures. If the actual corporate cost of sales continues at its present level through the conclusion of the fall campaigns, positive adjustments would become necessary in future reporting periods. Hence, first quarter results may not be indicative of future periods.

The first quarter's net loss generated a net income tax credit of $58,000 compared with a provision for Federal and state income taxes of $1,634,000 for the same quarter in fiscal 1985.

Optimum acreage has been contracted for the 1985 crop in the Rocky Mountain, Hereford and Northern California districts. Favorable weather conditions thus far have stimulated excellent growth patterns, and expected yields should be about 10 percent above average in these areas.

Western cotton production conference is August 20-22

COLLEGE STATION — All that's important to the cotton industry in the western states will be discussed at the 1985 Western Cotton Production Conference Aug. 20-22 in Fresno, Calif.

Texans on the program include Dr. Walter Walla and Dr. Bob Metzger, both of College Station and agricultural program leader and cotton specialist, respectively, with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service; Dr. James Leser of Lubbock, Extension entomologist; Dr. Jaroy Moore with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Pecos; Dr. Dan Krieg with Texas Tech University at Lubbock; and Harvin Smith with the Textile Research Center at Lubbock. Key discussions the first day will deal with the world cotton supply and outlook, status of the 1985 farm bill, and research and promotion work by the Cotton Board.

The annual conference is a joint effort of the Southwest Five-State Cotton Growers Association and the Cooperative Extension Services of Arizona, California, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas.

KEEPING SOYBEANS UP IN THE AIR...may greatly increase profits by saving soybeans. Rotary disk mowers cut and airlift soybeans into the harvesting machine so fewer beans end up on the ground. Traditional harvesting methods involve sickle bars moving rapidly back and forth, cutting the soybean stalks. The problem is that many beans are jarred loose, falling on the ground. Four percent of 1984's crop ended up in the dirt. In the new cutting technique, whirling disks and knives, blinged to the edges, cut off the stalks. The curved disks help the beans, that break off, float upward. Illinois USDA agricultural engineer, John Hummel, says this new harvesting technique may save an estimated $160 million in soybeans. When the new equipment and techniques are further refined, flying soybeans may greatly increase the producer's profit.

Block says program is 'Mickey mouse plan'

Ag secretary blasts milk diversion proposal

By DON KENDALL AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary John R. Block says a milk diversion program approved by the House Agriculture Committee is a "Mickey mouse plan" that is not acceptable to the Reagan administration.

"It's a wrong program, it's going in the wrong direction," Block said last week. "And I repeat, a dairy diversion program is not acceptable to this administration."

Block made his comments in one of several telephone-hookup interviews with broadcasters and others. He said something must give on Capitol Hill so that a workable dairy program can be designed.

"We cannot prolong this agony," he said. "The last five years taxpayers have put up more than $9 billion (for the dairy program), which is more than we spent in the 30 previous years. It all adds up to federal budget deficits."

The dairy program is one of the stickiest points in a new farm bill that Congress, now on a month-long vacation, will tackle again after Labor Day.

Under House law, all farmers would be assessed fees on milk marketed. Those who sign up to reduce production would get cash payments for cutting back. It would be similar to a 15-month diversion program that was in operation until April 1 this year.

"This dairy diversion program is nothing more than a tax, a tax on all dairymen, where only a few — maybe 20 percent at the most — are going to benefit," Block said. Block favors the Senate version, which calls for a freeze in current milk supports in 1986 and then a gradual reduction in the support level if needed to head off further increases in U.S. dairy production.

But Block said even the Senate plan falls short by calling for a freeze instead of immediate cuts in the milk support for the 1986 fiscal year, which will begin on Oct. 1.

The diversion plan is part of a House package supported by the National Milk Producers Federation, which has been at odds with Block on new dairy legislation.

In a newsletter sent to members this week, the federation says opponents have decided to try a divide-and-conquer tactic in the legislative war being fought on the dairy portion of the farm bill.

"What these opponents are counting on is that dairy farmers and the Congress will get such confusing and conflicting messages that the only choice will be a straight price cut and ultimately an end to the dairy support program," said the federation's Jim Barr.

The federation says letters are being sent to many dairy farmers by a new group, Dairy Farmers for Responsible Dairy Policy, which has hired two former USDA officials — Richard E. Lyng and William Leshner — as consultants.

According to the federation, the letter says dairy farmers will again be subject to assessments of more than $1 per 100 pounds of milk marketed if the committee plan is accepted. Barr said congressional figures put the assessment at much less — 56 cents per hundredweight at the most.

Block used higher figures in his telephone interviews on Tuesday, telling questioners that producers would be assessed 75 cents to $1.35 per 100 pounds of milk sold. For a commercial dairy farmer with average production of more than 12,000 pounds per year, that would be $95 to $170 per cow annually, he said.

SPS plans FFA water conservation workshop

Southwestern Public Service Company (SPS) will sponsor a water conservation workshop for vocational agriculture instructors of Area I of the Future Farmers of America (FFA) Aug. 13, at 9 a.m., at Wayland Baptist University in Plainview.

The workshop will include a fieldtrip to observe water conservation techniques implemented at the High Plains Research Foundation facility west of Plainview.

The tour of the research station will feature demonstrations of soil moisture measuring, pump testing, surge irrigation, low pressure sprinkler irrigation, and furrow diking.

Discussion of water resources, crop and soil management, water management, other irrigation systems, irrigation efficiency and methods of lawn watering also are included in the workshop agenda.

The event originally was scheduled to be presented at a Plainview motel conference room. The workshop was relocated to the Nunn Business Building near the southern parking area on the Wayland campus.

Area I of FFA encompasses counties in the Lubbock area and all Texas Panhandle counties north of Lubbock.

Superior grain yields with a good grazing bonus. Excellent straw strength, too!

Our researchers were impressed by the tremendous pasture production and grain yields from these new varieties during testing. And now that the varieties have stood the test of actual production on many farms under many conditions, the proof is in!

They grow off well and show strong resistance to SBMV, leaf rusts, fungal leaf blights, and the Hessian fly.

• New 2157 gives you good, early grazing, then stays with you through the winter. And the grain yields are right up there with anything you care to compare it against. Choose 2157 for dryland or limited water production.

• New 2165 works with your irrigation program to make the most of all you put into the crop. Pasture comes on strong in the fall and grain yields are among the best you'll find, bar none.

All kinds of food from sour to sweet.

Local Bears On Display

The Cowgirl Hall of Fame will be displaying some beary funny animals this month as bears portray some of Hereford's local people: Dr. Bearry Payne, Duffy McBear, Judge Gulley Bear, Bearry Thomas, and Sheriff Joe Brown Bear. Above, mayor of Bearford, Texas, Randy Griffin shows the bears she was in charge of costuming. The bears are part of a summer project of the Cowgirl Hall of Fame. The bears are up for auction, complete with bid sheets. They also will be displayed at the upcoming Town 'N' Country Jubilee at the community center.

Former residents wed here

Wedding vows were exchanged by former Hereford residents Michelle Ann Osborn of Temple, Tx. and Aubrey Wayne Richburg of Lubbock Wednesday afternoon in First Christian Church. The Rev. Mack McCarter, pastor, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Osborn of Temple and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Richburg of Hereford.

Decorating the church altar were candelabra holding seven tapers on either side and two candelabra with votive candles. Also, adorning the altar were large floral arrangements of rubrum lillies, roses, gladioli and carnations in contrasting shades of mauve and dusty blue.

Marilyn Armstrong served her twin sister as matron of honor and Alan Wartes was best man.

Guests were escorted by Don DeLozier of Arlington and Jeff Coupe of Lubbock. The bride's brother, Brandon Osborn, lit candles.

The bride's aunt, Cynthia Barrett, vocalized "The Lord's Prayer" and was accompanied by Evelyn Hacker.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a candlelight silk dress with lace forming the collar and dropped waist. She carried a bouquet of rubrum lillies with touches of mauve, baby's breath and gladioli.

She wore her great-grandmother's lavalier.

Her sister wore a dusty pink chiffon dress.

Kari Walterscheid invited guests to sign the registry book at the reception held in the church parlor.

Carolyn DeLozier served the bride's cake and the groom's sister, Angela Richburg, served the groom's cake.

Punch and coffee were poured by Mrs. Richard Barrett, the bride's aunt.

The bride's table was decorated with her bridal bouquet.

The couple left for a wedding trip to South Padre Island and will make their home after Aug. 17 in Lubbock.

The bride, a 1983 graduate of Hereford High School, is attending Texas Tech University in Lubbock where she is a junior majoring in elementary education.

The bridegroom, a 1982 HHS graduate, is a senior at Tech majoring in business marketing. He also plays football.

Special out-of-town guests included the bride's grandmother, Sammie Osborn of Throckmorton, and the groom's grandmother, Selbia Foreman of Spur. Other towns represented included Post, Tx. and El Paso.

State Library to present exhibits

In celebration of Texas' 150th birthday, the Texas State Library will present seven special Sesquicentennial exhibits beginning November 1985.

Visitors to the Lorenzo de Zavala State Archives and Library Building in Austin will be able to view priceless manuscripts, original documents, books, photographs, and other historical treasures throughout the celebration. Showcased will be a draft of the 1836 Constitution, diaries and journals of early settlers, plus documents relating to Revolutionary War heroes such as Sam Houston, Ben Milam, and J.W. Fannin.

The exhibits will cover the spectrum of Texas' development since early Spanish exploration and will focus on the laws, people, cities, and events creating today's modern state.

The first display features "Texas Books and Writers: 150 Years" and will spotlight the variety and depth of literature including biographies, fiction, folklore, and history. In conjunction, a statewide campaign will be launched urging each citizen to conduct a personal observance by reading one Texas book per month during 1986. Contributions to local libraries will also be encouraged to augment and expand Texana collections and research materials.

The exhibit schedule for January-February 1986 includes "Legislative Landmarks of Texas," a survey of significant laws which continue to affect daily life. On display will be official copies of legislation, landmark laws, and governors' messages to the House of Representatives and Senate. Both the process and influence of legislation will be highlighted.

Open March-April will be "The Texas Revolution," depicting political and military events of the period through private papers, government records, and printed works.

"The Republic of Texas" during May-June will survey the stormy ten-year period of independence and the achievements during this unique era of American history.

During July-August, "The Governors of Texas" will spotlight the chief executives of Texas, the accomplishments of their administrations, and the role of the executive branch in state government.

Photographs, documents, and publications on view in September-October will trace the development of Texas cities, businesses, and family life in "150 Years of Texas' Growth."

Culminating the Sesquicentennial exhibits will be "Texans in the Wars" during November-December. Maps, dairies, correspondence, and military records will honor the valor of Texas fighting men from the Revolution to the present.

An exhibit summary brochure will accompany each display and list significant dates and a bibliography. In addition, special Sesquicentennial souvenir certificates will be available to document visits to the archives during 1986.

Visitors will also be able to view items on permanent display, such as copies of the Texas Declaration of Independence, the Travis letter from the Alamo, and various treaties between Texas and other countries. Group tours of the lobby can be arranged by calling (512)475-2445.

For more information about the Texas State Library's Sesquicentennial activities, contact Melissa Roberts, P.O. Box 12927, Austin, Tx. 78711 (512)475-1523.

Garage sale scheduled Saturday

Members of Boy Scout Troop No. 50 will have a garage sale beginning at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 17 in the parking lot of the former Thriftway building.

All proceeds from the fund-raiser will go toward purchasing tents and other camping gear for the troop.

If anyone would like to donate items, including clothing and furniture, call Robert Ray at 364-0614 or 364-3106. Items will be picked up. Scoutmaster is Gary Billingsley.

Whale brains

Killer whales and dolphins are mammals that have unusually large brains for their bodies. A 7-ton elephant has a brain of only about 12 pounds, but Moby Doll, a young killer whale, tipped the scales at the Vancouver aquarium at slightly more than 1 ton — while his brain weighed 14 pounds.

Area man appointed to task force

Texas will face major medical and financial burdens by the turn of the century unless action is taken to marshall the state's cancer problem in the near future, according to Phillip Periman, M.D., medical director for the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center.

In 15 years, the number of new cancer cases in Texas will double to approximately 84,000. Multiply that by today's cancer care costs for Texans, which tops $400 million annually, and the economic impact becomes approximately $1.25 billion by the year 2000, he said.

Periman, one of several Amarillo area leaders and medical professionals appointed to the Governor's Task Force on Cancer in Texas, is helping devise a statewide cancer plan. As chairman of the Clinical Investigation Workgroup, Periman will report his workgroup's findings before the West Texas regional subcommittee on Monday, Aug. 12.

Periman's report will propose state funding for 1) development of curative cancer therapies, 2) adequate access to curative cancer treatment, and 3) concentrated efforts to stop people from smoking.

His report is based, in part, on three factors attributed with the rise in cancer in Texas. According to state health officials, the expanding population, the rising age of the population and cigarette smoking are the major forces in play.

Texas population is projected to increase 55 percent in the period 1980 to 2000 to total 22.1 million. In addition, major growth centers in Texas are experiencing an increase in the median age of the population.

At the present, however, cigarette smoking is the single major cause of cancer in our culture, he said.

"Cigarette smoking causes 15 to 20 percent, and some experts say up to 50 percent, of all cancer cases."

Lung cancer remains the number one cause of death due to cancer. In Texas, lung cancer accounts for 27 percent of the cancer deaths, a slight increase above the national average.

Periman supports the idea of using a portion of the tax monies collected on the sale of cigarettes to help generate future funding. "If only 1 cent of the tax is allocated, approximately $17 million could be generated and put back into proposed cancer programs," he said.

Periman also proposes that the state match private funds, up to a certain amount, donated by individuals and corporations.

Warns AHA

Don't succumb to fad diets

Millions of people across the country are looking for a fast and easy way to lose excess weight. And many will turn to the latest fad diet for help.

The American Heart Association urges dieters to adopt healthful eating habits on a permanent basis, instead of impatiently pursuing crash diets in hopes of shedding unwanted pounds in a few days.

Fad diets usually overemphasize one particular food or type of food, according to Williams L. Winters, Jr., M.D., president of the Texas Affiliate of the American Heart Association.

"Fad diets violate the first principle of good nutrition, which is to eat a balanced diet that includes a variety of foods," Winters said. "Those who are able to stick with a fad diet for more than a few weeks may develop nutritional deficiencies, because no one type of food contains all the nutrients needed for good health."

After a day or two of eating only grapefruit or rice and water, or whatever the particular fad diet prescribes, most dieters feel sorry for themselves and begin to cheat, returning to their old eating pattern, said Winters.

Because no "superfoods" exist, the emphasis should be on eating moderate amounts from all five food groups, not on consuming large amounts of a few special foods, he said.

The food groups that should be included daily are: 1) vegetables and fruits; 2) bread and cereals; 3) skimmed milk dairy products; 4) lean meat, poultry, fish, dried beans and peas, nuts and eggs (no more than two egg yolks per week) and 5) minimal amounts of fats and oils.

Fad diets also violate a second important principle of good nutrition—eating should be enjoyable.

"Fad diets are so monotonous and boring that it's almost impossible to stay on them for long periods," Winters said. "That's why they are fads. But as soon as an old fad diet becomes unpopular, a new one takes its place."

Unlike a fad diet, a good diet can be eaten for years and helps to maintain desirable body weight as well as good health. Fad diets fail to provide ways to keep excess weight off, said Winters.

"Because fad diets require drastic changes in eating patterns, dieters cannot stay on them for long," he said. "Fad dieters are not learning anything about permanently changing their eating patterns. Of course, many dieters do not really want to make long-term changes, so it's not always the diet that fails—often it is the dieters."

Despite what the fad diet books may say, the sensible way to lose weight permanently is to cut down on the quantity of foods—especially the high-calorie extras like desserts, fried foods, sweets and alcoholic beverages— and maintain or increase physical activity. But eating patterns don't change overnight. Winters suggest tackling just one habit at a time and getting used to that change before moving on to the next.

A beginning dieter should start with the easiest changes. For example, he or she can begin to use low-fat milk in place of whole milk, and after adjusting to that change, switch to skim milk.

"Dieters should view their new eating plan as a new way of life, not as a diet to be discarded after a short period of time," Winters said. "A dieter's goal should be a permanent, beneficial, nutritious way of eating."

MRS. MITCHEAL DEAN MATHIS
...nee Deborah Sue Byers

Byers, Mathis vows exchanged Saturday

Wedding vows were spoken by Deborah Sue Byers and Mitchael Dean Mathis Saturday evening in Paramount Terrace Christian Church in Amarillo. Performing the ceremony was Roy Wheeler of the church.

The bride is the daughter of Bobby Byers of Dimmitt and Carole Byers of Hereford and the bridegroom is the son of Sam Mathis and Jeannie Jewell, both of Amarillo.

The church was decorated by lavender bride and groom candles which flanked a unity candle made up of swirls of pastel colors.

The groom's sister-in-law, Melissa Stumbo, served as matron of honor and Layne Van Winkle was best man.

Bridesmaids included the groom's sister, Michelle Mathis; his sister-in-law, Brenda Stumbo; and Kim Lovett, Tonia Smith and Becky Waldrip.

Serving as groomsmen were the groom's father; his brothers, Mike and Monte Stumbo and Danny mathis; and his cousin, Kenneth Dennis.

Escorting guests and lighting candles were Frank Gibbs and Jessie Martinez.

Gary Baker, who sang and played the organ, presented musical selections including "Twelfth of Never". As the unity candle was lit, he played "The Wedding Song."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a formal romantic styled wedding gown of flocked net over bridal satin. The full skirt, which was gathered at a natural waistline, was adorned by tiers of delicate lace. The hemline of the skirt, which was trimmed by satin ribbon, swept into a chapel-length train.

The fitted bodice of satin and flocked net came to V-shape at the front and back of the gown and was enhanced by a deep lace ruffle edged by satin ribbon. Flocked net covered the bodice and formed a wedding ring collar of matching lace.

The leg-of-mutton sleeves of flocked net gathered at the elbows forming ruffles, accented with lace, and then extended to the bride's wrists.

Her fingertip silk illusion bridal veil was edged in white satin ribbon and cascaded from a portrait hat decorated with flocked net and lace.

She carried a tear drop bouquet of 25 white silk roses, baby's breath and greenery embellished by iridescent streamers.

The bride also wore pearl earrings given to her by her mother and carried in her shoe an 1892 minted Indianhead penny which belonged to her maternal grandfather.

Bridal attendants wore tea-length taffeta gowns in pastel colors of yellow, green, pink, blue, peach and lavender. They also wore matching wide-brimmed hats.

Each carried brandy sniffers containing lighted pastel candles to match individual dresses. The sniffers were decorated with matching ribbons.

The bride's sister-in-law, Stephanie Byers, invited guests to register at the reception held at the church.

Sue Martin served the bride's cake and Sheri Martinez served the groom's cake. Punch and coffee were poured by Beverly Carter.

Sara Ramsey coordinated the reception and all corsages, bouquets and floral arrangements were made by Brenda Stumbo, sister-in-law of the groom.

The four-tiered bride's cake was designed with a three-tiered fountain and was decorated by pastel colored bells. The refreshment table was adorned by the bride's bouquet which was flanked by attendants' brandy glasses. Leaving for a wedding trip to Dallas, the bride wore a turquoise sweater dress with black accessories.

The couple will make their home after Aug. 15 in Amarillo.

The bride is a 1980 graduate of Hereford High School and attended Amarillo College. She is currently employed by Dr. Thomas Kerr, D.D.S. as his dental assistant.

The bridegroom graduated from Palo Duro High School at Amarillo in 1980 and is presently employed by Meade containers of Amarillo.

Out-of-town guests represented DeKalb, Tx., Saginaw, Irving and Ruidoso, N.M.

The first bus was introduced in Paris in January, 1662 by a company formed by the French philosopher Blaise Pascal.

Fresh fish

DEAR POLLY — How long can fresh fish be stored in the refrigerator before cooking and eating it? — MRS. H.B.

DEAR MRS. H.B. — Buy fresh fish the day you plan to eat it. Fish is extremely perishable. Even if the fish you purchase is very fresh, it is at least a day or two old by the time it reaches the market. If you keep it for a day or two longer at home, the quality will continue to deteriorate. Even if the fish does not actually spoil, it will develop a strong fishy flavor and aroma, the flesh will become soft, and the fish will not be very good to eat.

If you buy frozen fish, keep it solidly frozen until you're ready to prepare it. Cook it frozen or thaw it partially in the refrigerator, then cook it before it is thawed completely. Fish that is thawed completely before cooking will be soft and will tend to dry out quickly. However, even when properly prepared, the flavor and texture of frozen fish are definitely inferior to that of fresh.

Fresh fish is a delicious, nutritious food. Handle it gently, eat it when it's as fresh as possible and cook it quickly just until done. When properly handled and prepared, truly fresh fish will please even your most avowed fish-haters. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Here's my recipe for homemade maple syrup. It never crystallizes, even though I keep it in a bottle in the refrigerator for months at a time.

Mix together 1 cup water, 1 cup white sugar, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 cup light corn syrup and 1/4 teaspoon maple flavoring. Bring to a boil and boil five minutes. Cool, pour into a bottle, cover tightly and refrigerate. — MRS. M.R.

Heart Association elects new officers

Delegates to the 50th annual meeting of the American Heart Association, Texas affiliate, elected their 1985-86 state officers on July 13, in San Antonio.

Julian Stewart of San Antonio, was elected as chairman of the board of the Texas affiliate. Stewart is a native of Fayetteville, Ark. and graduated from the University of Arkansas with a degree in civil engineering.

He is employed by the IBM Corporation where he has held various marketing and staff positions in several states over the past twenty years. Since moving to San Antonio in 1975, Julian Stewart has been actively involved in the community. He is a board member of Junior Achievement of South Texas, a member of Oak Hills Country Club, and serves as a deacon at Trinity Baptist Church.

William L. Winters, Jr., M.D. of Houston, was elected president of the Texas affiliate. A native of Chicago, Dr. Winters' professional experience spans over two decades. He has held several professional appointments, including current positions at St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital and the Hermann Hospital. In addition, Winters has been affiliated with many professional societies and associations during his professional career.

Lyda Hill of Dallas was elected vice-chairman of the board, and Addison A. Taylor, M.D. of Houston was elected president-elect.

Some 300 heart association volunteers gathered for the two-day meeting to elect officers, review the activities of the association, and learn how to conduct successful fund raising and community service programs for the association.

San Antonio Mayor Henry G. Cisneros welcomed the delegates at the opening session of the meeting. Keynote speaker was T. Boone Pickens, Jr., founder and president of Mesa Petroleum Co., and long-time AHA volunteer active at the local, state and national level.

At the delegate research luncheon, Drew Gaffney, M.D., astronaut and former AHA researcher, gave the keynote address. The Lynton Baines Johnson Award was presented to Michael J. Davis, Ph.D. for obtaining the highest meritorical ranking for his research project.

The highlight of the annual meeting was the awards dinner on July 13. Awards were presented to the top medical professional, nurse and lay volunteers in the state. Recipient of the Paul V. Ledbetter, M.D. Medical Professional Volunteer of the Year Award was Robert O'Rourke, M.D. of San Antonio. J. Bryan Austin of Amaillo received the Dwight D. Eisenhower Lay Volunteer of the Year Award. The Mildred C. McIntyre, R.N. Nurse Volunteer of the Year Award went to Gemma Kennedy, R.N., M.S.N. of San Antonio.

The newly-elected board of directors conducted their first board meeting of the 1985-86 fiscal year on July 14.

MRS. JAMES MADISON EAGLE
...nee Judy Leigh Detwiler

Detwiler, Eagle vows spoken in Fort Worth

Former Hereford resident, Judy Leigh Detwiler, and James Madison Eagle were united in marriage Saturday evening in First Presbyterian Church of Fort Worth. Officiating was Dr. Robert Bohl.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry G. Detwiler of Fort Worth, former Hereford residents, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Mel Hawkins of Lancaster, Tx. and James G. Eagle of Fort Worth.

Vickie Detwiler of Fort Worth served her sister as maid of honor and Michael D. Ball was best man.

Bridal attendants included Libby Gann, Pam Ball, Jennifer Turney, Ruth Anne Horn and Julie Slaughter, all of Fort Worth; Tracy McKenzie of Bedford, Julie Butler of Dallas and Alexa Thoreson of Gruver.

Serving as groomsmen were Lee Tension and Robert Broyles, both of Fort Worth; George Brueggeman of Houston; Jay McCormach and Phil Puckett, both of Dallas; and Frank Haughton, Robert Canon and Chad Stephens, all of Midland.

Wedding vows repeated by former Hereford resident

During a candlelight wedding ceremony, Staci Rachele Payne of Euless became the bride of Ullman Mark Smith of Hurst Saturday afternoon in First Baptist Church of Hurst. Officiating was the Rev. Jeff Archer of Irving.

The bride is the daughter of former Hereford residents, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald W. Payne of Euless, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hulin H. Smith of Hurst.

The church altar was banked with spiral and fan-shaped brass candelabra entwined with running grapevine. Flanked on either side of the candelabra were large white wicker baskets of silk Texas bluebonnets, wild orchid verbenas, white wild orchids entwined with maiden fern, running grapevine, baby's breath and wild grass foliage.

The pews were decorated with large lavender bows centered with miniature white lace nosegays filled with potpourri that gave a fresh fragrance of bluebonnets during the ceremony.

Centerpieces for each registry table were bouquets of silk bluebonnets, verbenas, white wild evening primroses with maiden fern and wild grass foliage. June Stewart of San Antonio, the bride's aunt, designer and creator of the original silk Texas bluebonnet, designed all flowers, bouquets and arrangements for the wedding and reception.

Bluebonnet seeds were thrown at the bride and groom in hopes in the spring of the Texas sesquicentennial year the bluebonnets will reappear and the memories of this occasion will endure forever.

Vicki Wine of Bedford, Tx. served her sister as matron of honor and the bridegroom's father served his son as best man.

Bridesmaids included the groom's sister, Marci Smith of Hurst, and Jana Green of Wichita, Ks.

Kent Sharp of Arlington and Brad Mengwasser of Bedford were groomsmen.

Guests were escorted by Tom Wine of Bedford, the bride's brother-in-law; Charles Stewart of San Antonio, the bride's cousin; Mike Jones of Wills Point, the groom's cousin; Tim McMakin of Grand Saline, the groom's cousin; and Doug Ackerman of Arlington.

Candles were lit by Ronda Clark of Bryan and the bride's cousin, Clay Stewart of San Antonio.

Traditional music selections included "I've Waited a Lifetime" vocalized by Tom Kelly of Arlington. He was accompanied by Jay Adkins and Debbie Kelly of Arlington.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional gown of white silk organza fashioned with a Victorian neckline edged in imported chantilly lace, long fitted pencil sleeves of silk organza and chantilly lace appliques encrusted with pearls that were enhanced by a full silk organza ruffle at the shoulder.

The fitted bodice was overlays of imported chantilly lace seeded with pearls and extending to a basque waistline. Her flowing skirt with chantilly lace appliques encrusted with pearls was adorned by a hemline of matching chantilly lace that swept to a deep ruffled silk organza flounce forming a cathedral-length train.

The bride wore a fingertip veil with blusher of imported bridal illusion sprinkled heavily with pearls attached to a halo of white wild orchids, white orange blossoms, entwined with clusters of old fashion pearls.

She carried a bouquet of silk Texas bluebonnets and small white wild Texas orchids accented with Queen Ann's lace entwined with old fashion pearls, baby's breath, and white satin picot ribbons.

The bride also wore the traditional blue garter that her maternal grandmother wore when she married and she had a penny in her shoe imprinted with her birth year date.

The matron of honor and bridesmaids were attired in identical tea-length dresses of lavender cluney lace over satin with scalloped sabrina necklines short scalloped sleeves, scalloped hemlines, a lavender satin cummerbunds with soft satin bows to accent the back of the dresses.

Each wore matching identical lavender shoes and carried a nosegay of wild orchid verbenas, wild Texas orchids and baby's breath with lavender lace and satin ribbons tied in love knots.

They also wore halos of wild orchid verbenas, wild Texas orchids and baby's breath with lavender satin bows.

The bride's mother chose an ivory silk chemise styled tea-length dress. She wore a wrist corsage of silk bluebonnets, orchid verbenas, white orchids and orchid flowerettes.

The bridegroom's mother was attired in a beige silk tea-length dress. Her corsage was of silk bluebonnets, orchid verbenas, white orchids and maiden fern.

Kim Spence of Lubbock and Kim Williams of Levelland invited guests to register.

The fellowship hall of the church set the scene for the reception with a white lattice background entwined with wild green foliage and white wicker baskets of silk Texas bluebonnets, wild orchid verbenas, white wild orchids, entwined with maiden fern, running grapevine, baby's breath and wild grass foliage.

The bride's table was draped with an heirloom white lace cloth with the wedding cake as the focal point.

Unusual design and lavish wild flower trim with delicate lattice work embellished the ornately trimmed all white three-tiered Victorian wedding cake served by Kristi Hollingsworth and Jennifer Smith of Bryan, the bride's cousin.

Corinthian pillars with small hearts attached and a cluster of silk Texas bluebonnets and tiny white wild roses separated the cake. It was topped with a kissing miniature bride and groom in a gazebo of hand-blown glass, silk Texas bluebonnets, tiny white wild roses and lace.

The groom's table, covered in white satin, held the traditional chocolate cake with the names of the bridal couple inscribed on it. It was served by Stephanie Gregston of Duncan, Ok., Kelly Cooper of Austin.

The centerpiece for the groom's table was a hand-carved white candle with Texas bluebonnets engraved in the wax centered in a candle ring consisting of silk Texas bluebonnets, wild orchid verbenas, wild blackberries entwined with wild vines and tiny white blackberry blossoms.

On either side of the centerpiece were two mallard collectable ducks floating in small mirrored ponds encircled with wild blackberries entwined with wild vines and tiny white blackberry blossoms.

Silver appointments were used in serving punch, coffee, cakes, nuts and mints. Coffee and punch were poured by the bride's cousin, Jackie Fangman of Hereford and Cheryl Cooper of San Antonio.

Leaving for a wedding trip to the Hawaiian Islands, the bride wore her wedding dress. The couple will make their home after Aug. 20 in Euless.

The bride, a 1979 graduate of Hereford High School, received her degree in education in 1982 from Texas Tech University in Lubbock. She is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority and is currently working on a masters degree from North Texas State University. She is employed as an eighth grade math and algebra teacher by Hurst-Euless-Bedford School District.

The bridegroom, a 1982 graduate of L.D. Bell High School in Hurst, received his bachelor and masters degree in business administration from the University of Texas in Arlington. He is employed as an accountant for the Southland Corporation in Dallas.

Wedding guests from Hereford included Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fangman, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Crabtree, Ryan Lawson, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Coulter, Mrs. Mike Elliot and Mrs. Earl Raye Green.

Between the Covers

By DIANNE PIERSON
Library Director

Two bestselling novels are featured this week at the Deaf Smith County Library. The novels are "Too Much Too Soon" by Jacqueline Briskin and "Lucky" by Jackie Collins.

Jacqueline Briskin follows her runaway national bestseller "Everything And More" with an even more spellbinding and compelling story of three women, the Sylvander sisters. Their destinies are bound by a single romantic obsession—one man whose presence shaped their lives.

The sisters, each with her own talents, each fiercely competing for the same prize, are: Honora, the eldest and the gentlest, who falls madly in love with Curt Ivory from the moment she meets him; Crystal, the sexy, ruthless sister, who will stop at nothing in her quest for wealth and position; and Jocelyn, the youngest, the ugly duckling with the business brain.

Spanning the years from 1949 to 1985, this is a story of passion and vengeance that sweeps the reader from the stately mansions of San Francisco to dusty, primitive Arabian village, from London to the exotic bazaars of Marrakesh, and comes to a stunning and shattering climax in the halls of the Senate Office Building in Washington. Briskin is also the author of "The Onyx" and "Paloverde."

In "Lucky" by Jackie Collins, the sizzling Santangelo story continues. "Chances" spanned the years 1913-1977 and now, Lucky, Gino Santangelo's daughter, wants it all. Lucky requires and needs just as much power as her father. Power, for Lucky, means the ability to rule an empire, or the heart of a man, on her terms.

Olympia Stanisloupolos is one of the worlds richest heiresses. Lucky and Olympia, best friends in boarding school, are now unacknowledged rivals. Their rivalry deepens as Lucky turns to Olympia's father, Dimitri, for the love and support Gino, her father, denies her. "Lucky" shows Jackie Collins at the very top of inimitable form that made bestsellers of "Chances" and "Hollywood Wives."

Also available this week are "Fourth Deadly Sin" by Lawrence Sanders, "Murder at the FBI" by Margaret Truman and "Martina" by Martina Navratilova.

LAGINA SMITH, ROBIN THANE WRIGHT

Engagement announced

Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Smith of Beaver, Ok. announce the engagement of their daughter, LaGina, to Robin Thane Wright, son of Mrs. Conny Whitehorn of Hereford and Newton Wright of Amarillo.

The couple plan to marry Aug. 24 in Beaver. The bride-elect recently graduated from Beaver High School and is presently employed with Northern Natural Gas Co. in Beaver.

The prospective bridegroom is a 1980 graduate of Hereford High School. He also graduated from South Plains College in Levelland. He is currently employed with Colorado Interstate Gas Co. in Beaver.

Yogurt not necessarily low calorie says nutritionist

Yogurt can be a dieter's delight—or downfall.

According to a Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist, it all depends on the type of yogurt you eat.

"Yogurt's calorie count depends on the butterfat content of the milk from which it is made," says Dr. Alice Hunt. "The more butterfat, the higher the calories."

One cup of nonfat plain yogurt contains about 90 calories, while the low-fat type has about 150 calories and the whole milk product can have 180 to 210 calories.

Many of the new custard-style or creamy style yogurts use whole milk, Hunt observes. The fat from the whole milk adds flavor and creaminess, but also makes some of these products almost equal to ice cream in calories.

"Dieters should also consider the serving size on yogurt products," says the nutritionist. "since more manufacturers are using six-ounce containers instead of eight-ounce containers for the higher calorie yogurt."

She cautions consumers to note the serving size when comparing calories among yogurt products. "A six ounce container of a higher-fat yogurt may have the same number of calories as an eight-ounce cup of low-fat yogurt because the serving size is reduced."

Flavoring in yogurts is another source of calories a dieter may want to avoid, says the nutritionist.

Flavored yogurts contain two to three times more calories than plain yogurt, with the extra calories coming from fruit and sugars such as sucrose, fructose, corn sweetener or honey.

Whether you eat high-calorie or low-calorie yogurt, both have one big plus, says Hunt. Most yogurts contain about 350 milligrams of calcium per serving which is about 35 percent of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance.

the bride's maternal grandmother, Mrs. M.D. Kennard, and her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Troy Payne, both of Lakeview.

Other towns represented included San Antonio, Amarillo, Houston, New York, N.Y., Lubbock, Norman, Ok., Marina Del Ray, Calif., Flower Mound, and Brownwood.

PRENUPTIAL PARTIES

The bride was honored at numerous pre-nuptial parties during recent weeks which included miscellaneous showers in Hereford, Dallas, Carrollton, Arlington, Euless and Irving and a lingerie shower in Bedford.

A bridesmaid brunch was given

Saturday morning at the Amfac Hotel West Tower by June Stewart of San Antonio, Frances Kennard of Amarillo, aunts of the bride, and Jackie Fangman.

The centerpiece used during the brunch was a large white wicker fireside basket with an arrangement of silk bluebonnets, orchid verbenas, white wild evening primroses entwined with maiden fern, small wild blackberries and wild grass foliage.

Favors for each guest were tiny lavender baskets filled with lace bags of bluebonnet potpourri.

The rehearsal dinner was held at the Stonegate Restaurant in Bedford and was hosted by the bridegroom.

Red Cross Update

The uniformed volunteers met for their regular luncheon Thursday at the Red Cross office.

Hope Torres, chairman, presided over the business meeting. Plans for the Jubilee activities were discussed.

The next meeting will be a special luncheon Sept. 20 at the Community Center. Key Ruland will give a program on breast cancer. The luncheon and program are open to all women in the community. Those wishing to attend are asked to bring a covered dish. The uniformed volunteers will host the meeting.

Parker awarded Eagle Scout rank recently

James Robert Parker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Parker of Dawn, was awarded the rank of Eagle Scout in a Court of Honor at the Heritage Room of Deaf Smith County Library. The Eagle Scout Award is Scouting's highest rank.

Parker is a member of local Boy Scout Troop 50, which is sponsored by Hereford Lion's Club. He joined the troop in 1982.

To attain the Eagle rank, Parker earned 27 merit badges, planned and supervised an Eagle service project which involved repairing and painting the playground equipment at the Dawn Community Center.

Obtaining the Eagle Award also involves holding positions of leadership in the local troop. Parker has served as assistant patrol leader, patrol leader, and leadership corps.

Parker was awarded membership in Order of the Arrow at Camp Don Harrington in August of 1984. He has served as chapter chief of the Hereford/Friona Chapter of Order of the Arrow for the 1984-85 year. He attended the annual meeting of Order of the Arrow Conclave in Odessa in May, 1985. Recently, Parker earned the rank of Brotherhood in that organization.

Master of Ceremonies for the event was Dan McGlasson, Scoutmaster from Canyon, and who works with the Hereford Chapter of Order of the Arrow. Serving as members of the color guard were members of Troop 50 and Matthew Parker, brother of the Eagle Scout and member of Troop 50, led the Pledge of Allegiance. Honor Guard members were Eagle Scouts Brian Thomas and Shaun Moore.

Dr. James Hickman, pastor of Dawn Baptist Church delivered a welcome and invocation and benediction for the ceremony. Presenting the Eagle candidate's history in Scouting was Gary Billingsley, Scoutmaster, Troop 50.

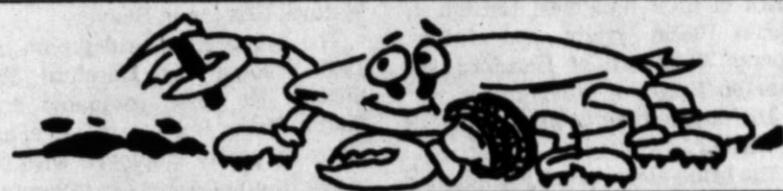

The Eagle Medal lighting was given by Judge Wesley Gulley, Scott Ward, Robert Ray, Bill Bankston and Dan McGlasson. The Eagle Charge was delivered by Johnny Brownlow.

A reception followed the ceremony with Leslie Billingsley and Cynamin Brownlow, and Jeri Ann Parker serving punch and cake featuring the Eagle as decoration. Other decorations included a red and white centerpiece with red crystal appointments.

Parker is a sophomore at Hereford High School. He is active in athletics, orchestra and is involved in the honors academic program.

Fish can be fat or lean

We tend to think of meat as fat or lean and fish as just plain fish. Yet fish do vary in fat content, and the degree of fat can be important, especially when it comes to freezing them.

"Fatty fish are more susceptible to rancidity due to exposure to oxygen," says Annette R. Hegen, seafood consumer specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service.

"With fish such as tuna, the high fat content of the raw fish will oxidize when exposed to even a small amount of air and gradually cause the frozen fish flesh to become strong, taste "fishy" or even taste rancid," she adds.

According to Hegen, analysis of fish fat content is also complicated because the quantity of fat varies from fish to fish, even in the same species, and may differ with the seasons of the year or temperatures of the waters where the fish is found.

As a result, most statistics now available are based on relatively small samples of fish.

However, Texas A&M University Sea Grant researchers have assigned some categories that can be used to classify fish as fat or lean, until more information is available.

A fish is categorized as lean when the fat content is less than 2.5 percent. It's classified as moderate if the fat content falls between 2.5 and 6.5 percent, and fat is the fat content is over 6.5 percent.

Using these guidelines, Hegen says tuna, mackerel and salmon herring are classified as fat fish, while cod, flounder, croaker drum and trout are lean.

Some fish, like halibut or mullet, which seem to be oily and might be thought of as high in fat content, are actually classified as lean. But Hegen says that larger samples of these fish will need to be tested to more accurately establish their level of fat content.

Ann Landers

Turn down voltage

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A recent letter in your column signed "My Name Is Woman" will undoubtedly bring forth several thousand replies from "My Name Is Man." There is a very thin line between heavy petting and attempted date rape, and I'm willing to bet that a great many male readers will spell out the difference.

Women should be made aware of the ways they invite trouble. Here are just a few:

Telling raw jokes and using street language.

Bouncing around (no bra) in low-cut sweaters and see-through blouses.

Wearing skirts slit to the city limits up the sides, back or front.

Indulging in soul-kissing, passionate petting and lots of steamy preliminaries which give a man reason to believe she is not only willing but eager to go the limit.

Most males will be as sexually aggressive as their partners allow them to be. More often than not, it's the female who calls the signals and decides whether she wants to hold that line.

So, dear Ann, please be fair. The rapist who is lurking in the alley to grab any woman who happens to walk by is a far cry from the man who makes it with the dame after she goes to his place for dinner, has three vodka martinis, takes off most of her clothes, indulges in red-hot necking and decides when it's over that she was raped. I'll sign this—A VICTIM IN PITTSBURGH

DEAR PITTS: At the risk of being branded a traitor to my sex, I agree you have logic on your side. I hope the women who see themselves in your letter will turn down the voltage or not be surprised if they find themselves victims of their own making.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Will you please run a letter to my husband? He reads you in the Miami Herald every day without fail. Maybe if he sees it in the paper it will make an impression.

Dear Joe: Bed is not the place to talk for an hour straight about how stupid your supervisor is, how the big companies are ripping off our Defense Department, the unfair tax structure, miserable neighbors who encourage their dogs to mess on our lawn, my brother who has owed him $2,000 for a year and a half and how tough it will be on the elderly if Social Security is cut.

Why don't you talk to me at the dinner table, Joe, instead of turning on the TV and keeping it on for three hours?

Every night it's the same old story. You get mad because I fall asleep during your monologue and I get mad when you wake me up to make love.

Nobody can solve this problem but you, Joe. I've told you how I feel but it goes in one ear and out the other. Now that you are seeing it in print I hope it will make an impression.—YOUR LONG-SUFFERING WIFE

DEAR LONG-SUFFERING: A lot of wives complain because their husbands don't talk to them at all. Apparently Joe talks too much and at the wrong time. I hope this letter will help him shape up.

Senior Center to sponsor 'Fun in Sun' Tour

The Hockley County Senior Citizens Assoc., Inc. Senior Center will sponsor a "Fun in the Sun" tour to Florida beginning Sept. 23 through Oct. 8.

The return trip will be through the old south. The cost is $895 based on double occupancy. The charter bus is restroom equipped, air conditioned and seats are adjustable. The tour will leave Levelland Senior Center at 7 a.m. Sept. 23.

Included on the tour will be many interesting places, including three nights in Orlando, Fla. at Western World Motel, five minutes from Disney World, Wild Kingdom, Epcot Center, Sea World and Cypress Gardens to name a few.

Overnights are at good motels, chosen for a scenic trip and interesting areas. At Ft. Lauderdale, the Twonights and a day will leave time for a ride on the Jungle Queen ship and touring the vicinity, staying at the Best Western Marina and Yacht Harbor Motel.

Deadline for reservations is Aug. 20. For more information please call 806-894-2228 and ask for Ruth Warren Tour Coordinator, or write Hockley County Senior Citizens Assoc., Inc. 1202 Houston Street Levelland, Tx. 79336.

Included on the return trip through the south are the states of Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and the best of Texas.

Hard Work

Our early settlers knew that, if they were going to survive in their new surroundings, they would have to work hard. Everyday there were many chores to be accomplished around the home. They could rely only on themselves to get the job done.

In 1900, the First National Bank of Hereford was founded. The folks who started our bank knew it would take a lot of hard work to make it successful.

As we look back over 85 years, we're glad we could lend a helping hand to a lot of people.

We're proud to be a part of Hereford and the Texas Panhandle.

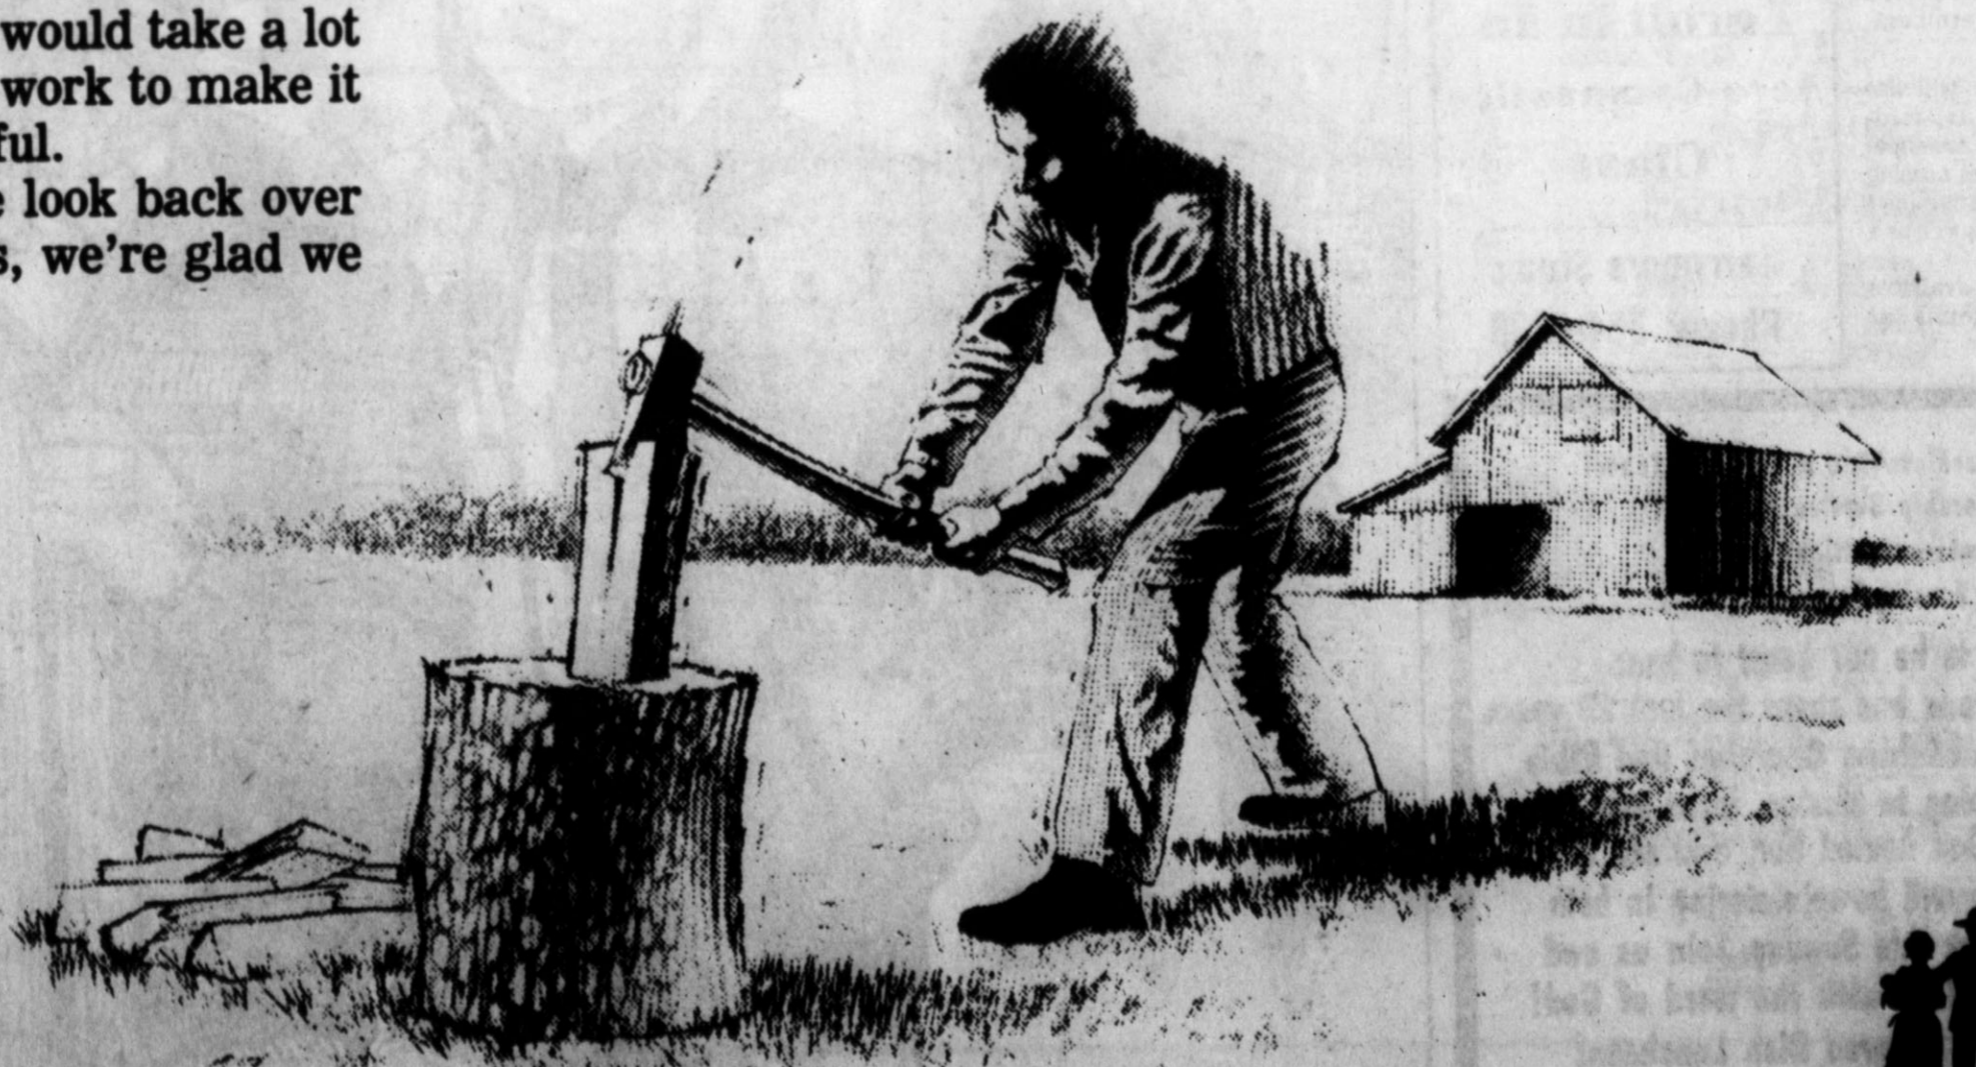

But our hard work isn't finished yet. At First National Bank of Hereford, we're still pioneering new ways of service and security for you and your family.

Corpus Christi sculptor turns trash into art

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Early each morning Danny O'Dowdy unlocks his studio and the feeling of loneliness descends on him. He drinks a cup of coffee. Sometimes he stretches it to two. Then he starts to work "and suddenly, once I get my hands on the wood," he said, "everything is all right."

Last year O'Dowdy was a tenured professor of art at Corpus Christi State University. But he resigned his post and has since been among the small number of local artists who make their living entirely from their art.

O'Dowdy summed up the period since he left CCSU as, despite hard moments like those in the mornings, "good."

Earlier this year he was among the 125 Texas sculptors selected to exhibit in the fifth annual Texas Sculpture Symposium in Dallas.

O'Dowdy, 46, has turned away from teaching several other times in his career but said, "When I quit this time, I felt it was real. So I geared myself. I said I'm not even going back out to the university, and I'm not even going to think about it. And I haven't."

By available accounts O'Dowdy was well-liked by CCSU art students, in large part because he is said to have respected their varied points of view.

"For years while I was at CCSU I was able to keep my own art and my teaching separate," O'Dowdy said. "I didn't talk about my art to the students, and I didn't try to influence their images."

"But after a while it got to the point where I couldn't take my mind off the studio," he said. "It just reached a point where I had to decide one way or the other.... Anyone can become dead weight if you don't have your heart in what you're doing."

After getting his B.F.A. from Sul Ross University in Alpine, he taught at several West Texas high schools, then acquired a master's in lithography at Texas Tech, and later taught high school again.

Sprinkled about here and there during that time were several periods when he left teaching: Once, to work in an advertising agency, another, to operate his own art studio.

In 1976 he was a visiting professor of art at Texas A&I in Kingsville, then joined CCSU the following year.

O'Dowdy got a late start in art. The son of West Texas wrestler Paddy O'Dowdy, he played football through high school "and you just didn't take art and play football in West Texas in those days."

He took a turn in the Navy after high school, briefly went to college on a boxing scholarship, then dropped out.

O'Dowdy was 22 years old and working as a draftsman in California the day he idly picked up some colored pens and began drawing a bowl of fruit. His drawing led him to Sul Ross. But it wasn't until he was long out of graduate school that he "knew" he was an artist.

"I can remember almost to the day when I realized it," he said. "being an artist doesn't mean being equated with some school of thought or team, but being able to find where you fit, how you relate to everything else. (That day) I felt what I saw in front of me was about me and it was honest...."

Somewhere along about the same time, he made another discovery: trash.

The piece O'Dowdy exhibited at the Texas Sculpture Symposium is called "Divan" and is an old couch he altered by fitting it out with a lamp, mirrors and other items. Scattered around his downtown studio at 309 Kinney near the U&I Restaurant are various battered furnishings and other assorted junk, all waiting their turn for the artist's attention.

The O'Dowdy fondness for other people's castoffs was born while he was teaching in one of those little West Texas towns located near the site of old Indian encampments. O'Dowdy began to walk the grounds looking for artifacts, but soon began coming home with bits of glass and other oddments.

O'Dowdy's memories of those forays and of workdays staring at rows of brace-equipped student teeth found a home recently in one of the pieces in his studio. It includes an old vinyl pillow, a battered househoe and the grinning skull of a dog — fitted out with braces on its teeth.

A bit of the former professor shows up in O'Dowdy when he starts trying to explain his affinity for junk. He says things like, "There are four types of creativity, you know, and one of those is 'boundary-pushing.' That's like when you use something for a different purpose than the one it was designed for, like using a coat hanger to tie up a muffler."

O'Dowdy's ideas come from many sources and often unexpectedly. He enters his studio about 7:30 a.m. each day and one morning while switching on a series of lights he noticed how each light affected a drawing in progress. He plans a series of drawing of a subject in different lights.

These events also are finding their way into his work: Driving across the Nueces Bay Causeway "in a hurry to get somewhere and smashing into about a hundred yellow butterflies and wondering about some of the things we-do"; picking up his son's severed finger after an accident in the studio and rushing it and the boy to the hospital; learning that the cardboard box atop the steeple of a Mexican church contained a statue of a "shamed" saint — who would remain shamed until the flock donated enough money to paint the flaking church.

Income comes from sales and commissions. A work in progress is a piece commissioned to fit in the corner of a local home. The "corner piece" features two corner-windowlike perspective drawings. It grew out of theories of Frank Lloyd Wright having to do with corner windows being "anti-Fascist" in that they break up the rigid tyranny of the rectangle, O'Dowdy said.

And of course there is O'Dowdy's famous '61 Cadillac, which sits in a corner of the studio. The Caddy may be pulled out now and again for exhibit, but it never seems to be finished. O'Dowdy began working on it in 1976, and it now bears a wondrous array of ornaments including such features as jagged fragments of glass after the fashion of Mexican rooftops and courtyard walls. Planned: A combination fishbowl and bird-bath for the interior.

May people come through the studio, and he's glad to see them, he said. Often, O'Dowdy's son Trubel, 18, a Del Mar art student, works in the studio with him.

It's not quite as homey as when the O'Dowdy clan lived in the studio, which was the case at another downtown location until the roof caved in. But O'Dowdy's companion, Becky Moore, whom he calls "Ruby," often drops by in the afternoons. Also frequently about are O'Dowdy's daughter Laramie, 13, who lives with her mother, and Ms. Moore's daughter Sunny, who lives with her father.

"If I've failed with my kids I feel like I've failed," he said.

O'Dowdy describes himself as "a competitor" and believes competitive qualities are necessary in artists who hope to make a go on their own without outside sources of income.

"I think (sculptor) Jesse Morales (of Rockport is a competitor, and I think (sculptor) Toy Fridge (of Port Aransas) is," he said. "And (potter) Bill Wilhelmi (of Corpus Christi), I'd say he is a competitor."

Oklahoma cowboy humorist died 50 years ago

CLAREMORE, Okla. (AP) — It is as though Will Rogers still saunters down Claremore sidewalks, adding to the ranks of the millions he befriended in a life ended in an Alaska plane crash 50 years ago this week.

"He was a great hand to visit up and down the streets of Claremore," remembers John F. McClellan, 71. "I didn't know he was famous. I like to never get that through my head." McClellan is a volunteer host three days a week at the Will Rogers Memorial, a sprawling ranch-style building packed with memorabilia from the cowboy humorist's several careers.

From his start as a skilled roper on the family ranch near Oologah, Indian Territory, Rogers evolved into a philosopher whose homespun views of politics and the popular culture helped see America through the hard times of the Great Depression.

Rogers is buried here in a tomb overlooking eastern Oklahoma hill country. Inside the memorial, the base of a bronze statue of Rogers bears one of his best-known sayings: "I never met a man I didn't like."

It is Rogers' universal appeal as a vaudevillian, a motion picture actor who made 71 films, a newspaper columnist and a satirist that made his death at age 55 a national tragedy.

Rogers and fellow Oklahoman Wiley Post died Aug. 15, 1935, when their nose-heavy seaplane crashed in shallow water off Point Barrow, Alaska. It was an ironic end for two men whose fervor for aviation helped make commercial air travel routine.

Post, a barnstorming pilot from Maysville, Okla., twice made around-the-world flights and set new altitude records while wearing the pressurized suit he invented. The suit and his airplane, the Winnie Mae, are at the Smithsonian Institution. He was 37.

Oklahoma's loss was shared by the nation. Thousands paid tribute to Rogers from Washington, D.C., where a statue was erected after his death to "keep watch on Congress," to California, where Rogers' Pacific Palisades ranch has become a state park.

Dr. Reba Collins, director of the Will Rogers Memorial, said the interest in Rogers has continued unabated. About 500,000 people a year visit the memorial — an estimated 20 million since it opened in 1938.

"It's pretty amazing after this many years," she said. "They come from everywhere."

Rogers dined with presidents and common folk, and poked fun at both with an Oklahoma drawl and a crinkle-faced style that made him one of the top personalities of his time.

"He was somebody that the world needed," said veteran actor Joel McCrea. "He was a great man, a great American. You keep looking for somebody like him, but they don't come around."

McCrea, retired at his ranch near Camarillo, Calif., made his first films with Rogers. He compares the oft-quoted Rogers to author Mark Twain.

"Will had a wider appeal," McCrea said. "With the common man,

Rogers was unbeatable.

"First of all, he was aware of everything. He was always interested in everything and he had a brilliant mind," McCrea said. "Seventy-five percent of the things he said will fit very well today. He had an advance intuition."

Mrs. Collins says Rogers was a tremendous communicator who played a major role in the political history of the country in the 1920s and 1930s.

"He was tremendously influential in the world of that time, yet he's not even mentioned in the political science history of the time," she said.

His words have been compiled from the storehouse of material at the memorial into 22 volumes by Oklahoma State University. Copies of his movies, 21 of them "talkies," are still being collected.

"I'm an educator first of all," Mrs. Collins said. "My goal is to get him into the stream of education."

"I'm sure people think I'm almost deifying him, but I'm not," she said. "He was taking a very complex situation and simplifying it so the man in the street could understand it."

Will Rogers Jr., the eldest of three surviving Rogers children, said his father's humor was quite unique.

"He was much slower than other comedians," said Rogers, who lives on an Arizona ranch. "There was no malice. There was no hate to his humor. Satirists normally hate rather deeply. Today, so much of our humor is left wing or right wing. He was unique in that he balanced it very easily."

"No one took offense," McCrea said. "He never wore thin." "He was one in a million."

Tests don't mean everything

DEAR DR. GOTT — My cholesterol level is 225.9. I'm a 37-year-old female. Is that too high? I eat very little meat, and I hate to give up butter. What can I do to lower this, or am I needlessly concerned? My serum triglycerides are 62.0 and something called SGOT is 12.2.

DEAR READER — Carrying out your cholesterol level to tenths of a decimal point is giving the test more accuracy than it deserves. At 225, your cholesterol is probably normal. I would like to see it below 200, but 225 is OK for you if you are active and otherwise in good health. Your triglycerides are low at 62; that's fine. The SGOT is a test of liver function; yours is normal.

Now that we have finished the business part of your question, let me add that lab values are not magic. They give the doctors certain useful information, but they are subject to error, need not always be taken at face value and are most appropriately interpreted in relation to you as a whole person. I know perfectly healthy people who worry unnecessarily about an occasional abnormal lab value that was obtained as part of a routine screening procedure. Machines make mistakes, science is not error-free and lab tests are simply one of many methods to judge your state of health.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My resting heart rate is about 114 per minute. Some people have told me that it's unhealthy to have such a fast rate. I'm skinny, so what does it matter?

DEAR READER — A consistent resting heart rate of 114 is abnormal and can reflect an underlying problem like anemia or thyroid disease, which needs attention. Being skinny is not necessarily normal, especially if your appetite is good and you eat regularly. Please go to a doctor. You need an examination and blood tests to evaluate your metabolic workings.

Birds have no sweat glands. They cool their bodies by means of air sacs, or by opening their beaks and vibrating the walls of their throats.

A killer whale is similar to man in that it is one of the few animals that seemingly kills for sport.

BEVERLEY REDFEARN

Given by well-known speaker

Financial seminar to be held

Beverley Redfearn is a national columnist, author, radio and television personality, and popular speaker. Hereford State Bank will be sponsoring Redfearn in a financial seminar to be held Monday and Tuesday.

Her seminars on financial planning present concrete, down-to-earth financial information in a manner that is simple, interesting and entertaining.

Redfearn has done frequent radio segments in the Dallas/Fort Worth area for WFAA-AM and KCBI-FM and for over four years has been regularly seen on (NBC) KXAS-TV Channel 5 as their financial advisor.

The Monday financial planning seminar Redfearn will be presenting, will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Friendship Room of Hereford State Bank.

She is president of B. Redfearn &

Associates, Inc., a financial and management consulting firm which includes an investment real estate division specializing in commercial and investment properties throughout the United States. She is also president and chief executive officer of Special Organizational Services, Inc., a national advisory program serving banks and savings & loan associations in thirty five states.

After her education at Southern Methodist University, she served as an accountant for the Annuity Board of the Southern Baptist Convention before entering the field of legal management. She is perhaps best known for her accomplishments in the development of the professional Legal Administrator and in identifying the role of the administrator in the management of the law firm. She served as Legal Administrator/Business Manager of two major Dallas firms and holds the distinction of being the first woman administrator of a major law firm in the Metroplex area, as well as being the first woman to be elected president of the Dallas Chapter, Association of Legal Administrators.

She is an adult Bible teacher at the First Baptist Church, Dallas, has been a part-time instructor for the Dallas County Community College District Paralegal Program and a guest lecturer for the Southern Methodist University School of Law seminar on Law Office Management.

She is included in over a dozen national and international biographical directories, including "Who's Who in the South & Southwest," "The World Who's Who of 'The International Who's Who of Women,'" "The Directory of Distinguished Americans," "Personalities of the South," "The International Who's Who of Intellectuals," and "The International Register of Profiles."

Tuesday, the financial presentation will be given at the Hereford Country Club at 10:30 a.m. Anyone interested in better financial planning is welcome to attend, however, reservations will need to be made for the seminar presented at the Country Club.

For more information on the seminar, contact Irene McKinster at Hereford State Bank at 364-3456.

At dinner theatre

"Annie" being performed

The Country Squire Dinner Theatre, upon relocating at Sunset Market Town, have re-opened with a new play entitled "Annie".

The musical is an excellent play for the entire family to enjoy, "and it's a lot better than the movie!" says star actor 'Annie', Laura Higgenbottom.

In an interview held at the Brand on Thursday, Higgenbottom, age 10½, described what is like to be the star performer in the musical "Annie".

Her daily schedule begins at 11 a.m. when Higgenbottom wakes up. She keeps late hours for a 10 year old since she performs at the theatre at night. "After I wake up, I usually watch my 'soaps'", said Higgenbottom. Her favorites include "One Life to Live" and "All My Children."

"I usually go shopping after that or I have plans for the afternoon," said the bright red-head. She puts a rinse on her hair once a week as she is a blond and the show requires a red-headed "Annie", she explains.

It takes Higgenbottom an hour and a half to get ready for each show as she explained she is at theatre at 6:30 to rehearse her lines and get her costume on.

"I warm up my voice while rolling my hair," said the ten year old actress.

Higgenbottom began singing and dancing at the age of two. She appeared last August at Disneyland with the Tammy Benavides Dance Company of Dallas and appeared as Baby June in "Gypsy" at the Performing Arts Center in Garland, where Higgenbottom is from. Upon the drive to Amarillo Higgenbottom commented "that it's flat out here, (compared to Garland) there's not much to look at," she said of the countryside.

According to the the ten year old star, she has had eight years of dance and tapping and feels she is well prepared for the performance given in "Annie."

"The most emotional part of the show, is when 'Annie' sings 'Maybe'," commented Bryan Lake, assistant manager of Country Squire Dinner Theatre. "The way she sings the song really brings out the tears," he said of Higgenbottom.

And when asked about the shows performed at the dinner theatre, Lake replied, "There are two acts to the dinner theatre," he smiled, "the first act is the food and the second act is the show!"

The musical "Annie" will be playing at the Country Squire Dinner Theatre on Tuesday through Saturday with the dinner at 6:15 p.m. and the performance beginning at 8 p.m. through the month of August. On Sundays, the matinee (show only) can be seen at 2 p.m. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Free trees given by national foundation

The National Arbor Day Foundation is giving 10 free trees to people who become Foundation members during August, 1985.

The free trees are part of the Foundation's effort to promote tree planting throughout America.

A Colorado blue spruce, red maple, white flowering dogwood, red oak, european mountainash, black walnut, silver maple, norway spruce, green ash, and sugar maple tree will be given to members joining during August.

The six to 12 inch trees will be shipped this fall at the right time for planting between Oct. 15 and Dec. 10. They will be sent postage paid with enclosed planting instructions.

These trees were selected because they provide a wide range of benefits: flowers, berries and nuts, as well as shade and beautiful foliage, according to the foundation.

The National Arbor Day Foundation, a nonprofit organization, is working to improve the quality of life throughout the country by encouraging tree planting. The Foundation will give the ten free trees to members contributing $10 during August.

To become a member of the Foundation and to receive the free trees, a $10 membership contribution should be sent to Ten Trees, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, NE, 68410, by August 31, 1985.

75-year-old woman just begun to fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — At 75, after four decades of badgering presidents and bureaucrats, congressmen and Cabinet secretaries, Sarah McClendon still operates with the raw zeal of a cub reporter.

She is up at dawn and often on the phone past midnight, scribbling tips from whistle-blowers or outraged citizens. Then there's her active social life, which she says includes seven boyfriends.

Perhaps to the dismay of those stung by Ms. McClendon's biting questions and commentary, the feisty newswoman shows no signs of slowing down.

"I think there's a great deal of work to be done yet," she said at her Washington home, which doubles as the one-woman headquarters of McClendon News Service. "I'm going to write as long as I can," she told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram in a recent interview.

Ms. McClendon, who turned 75 on July 8, was honored by the Texas Breakfast Club with a birthday celebration, where many of the colorful anecdotes that have made her both revered and reviled in the nation's capital were resurrected. Ms. McClendon has firm roots in the Lone Star State, from her East Texas heritage to her professional ties as a correspondent for Texas newspapers.

More than any other Washington reporter, Ms. McClendon has carved her reputation primarily by the hardball questions she has thrown at every president since Harry Truman. Her admirers consider her a credit to the profession; detractors call her an eccentric troublemaker.

Ms. McClendon has fielded insults from the highest levels. Nixon aide John Ehrlichman brushed aside a Ms. McClendon question to retort, "Now, if you've asked me whether you'd been to the beauty parlor, I'd say no." She was once "disinvited" from a party by former Sen. John Tower at the insistence of his wife, Lilla, who was furious about a McClendon story.

Those episodes hurt, she says. But she finds solace in the accolades, mementos and awards that line the walls of a room she laughingly calls the "Chamber of Horrors." Her proudest honor is an "excellence in journalism" award from the University of Missouri, her alma mater.

No one questions her commitment to the job. She is out of bed at 6 sharp, then devours four newspapers and starts working the phones before speeding across town to the 9:15 a.m. White House briefing. She also will hit Capitol Hill. Then she returns home to write.

This has been a characteristic pace for years, though the scope of her journalistic endeavors has been cut back.

Ms. McClendon devotes her attention these days to her national newsletter and radio and television appearances.

She also has assumed a growing role as personal advocate for the downtrodden. She recently befriended a beggar outside the White House who, it turned out, was a Vietnam veteran who Ms. McClendon says was shunted aside by the Veterans Administration.

Her constantly ringing phone is like a nationwide hotline, with story after story from someone who claims to be abused by big government. "It just breaks your heart sometimes," she says.

Ms. McClendon traces her populist instincts to her upbringing as the daughter of an East Texas Democratic leader. After graduating from the University of Missouri in 1931, she returned to East Texas and a job at the Tyler Courier-Times.

She spent nearly 10 years working for Texas newspapers before World War II brought her to Washington as a WAC, a period she remembers as "extremely lonely." She married a man "on the rebound," who left her alone and pregnant seven months later.

After her discharge from the Army, Ms. McClendon battled to raise her daughter alone and hold down a reporter's job in a male-dominated profession. She lost her job in a regional newspaper bureau after male GIs returned to reclaim their jobs. With the help of her former employer, Bascom Timmons, she opened her bureau in 1946.

Ms. McClendon's life now evolves around her two loves — her daughter in Canada and her profession. She passed up chances to marry because her daughter didn't like the suitors. Count on her to spend the rest of life doing what she does best, says Ms. McClendon — asking the tough questions.

Church leaders stymied at handling grievance

DENVER (AP) — Regional leaders of the United Methodist Church say they've been stymied at handling a grievance against an avowed homosexual minister because the rules about it weren't adequately defined.

Consequently, a committee has been assigned to determine just what is meant by a "self-avowed, practicing homosexual," which church rules bar from the ministry.

"The public may feel a definition is easy," says the Rev. Keith Watson, chairman of the regional board of ordained ministry, but he said definitions contained in the complaints "were not ones we could accept."

"We had no other definitions to go on," he added, so the committee was

Possible tampering reported at nuclear power plant

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Palo Verde Nuclear Generating Station officials say someone apparently has tampered with switches in the control room of Unit 2 at the three-reactor complex.

Plant spokesman Dan Canady said Friday that a start-up engineer discovered Thursday afternoon that 21 of the 89 "control element drive mechanism" were in the "on" position.

"The switches act like electrical circuit breakers. When they're on, they allow power to flow to motors that adjust the (nuclear fuel) control rods. But there's no fuel and no rods there yet," Canady said.

The unit is scheduled to be loaded with nuclear fuel in the last quarter of this year.

Canady added that in a possibly related incident Monday, an engineer noticed five of the switches were on.

"At this point, we don't know what to think," Canady said. "That's a high-traffic area. No damage was done."

He said the Maricopa County Sheriff's Office has not been notified, however.

Construction on Unit 2 is more than 99.7 percent complete at the plant, located 50 miles west of downtown Phoenix.

Unit 1, which began producing power June 10, has been out of service since July 24 after a water leak was detected in the nuclear portion of the plant. It since has been repaired and officials expected to restart power production this weekend.

Today in History

Today is Sunday, Aug. 11, the 223rd day of 1985. There are 142 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: Twenty years ago, rioting and looting broke out in the predominantly black Watts section of Los Angeles after white police officers arrested a black man suspected of drunken driving. In the week that followed, 34 people were killed and more than 1,000 injured as mobs set fire to buildings and battled police and National Guardsmen.

On this date: In 1860, the nation's first successful silver mill began operation near Virginia City, Nev.

In 1909, the SOS distress signal was first used by an American ship.

In 1934, the first federal prisoners arrived at the island prison Alcatraz in San Francisco Bay.

In 1945, the Allies responded to Japan's offer to surrender provided that Emperor Hirohito retain his sovereignty. The Allies said they would determine the Emperor's future status.

In 1954, a formal peace took hold, ending more than seven years of fighting in Indochina between the French and Communist Vietnam.

In 1956, abstract artist Jackson

Pollock died in an automobile accident in East Hampton, N.Y.

In 1977, New York City postal employee David Berkowitz was arrested in connection with the 44-caliber killings committed by Son of Sam.

Ten years ago: The United States vetoed the proposed admission of North and South Vietnam to the United Nations after the Security Council's refusal to consider South Korea's application for membership.

Five years ago: Just hours before the Democratic National Convention opened in New York City, Massachusetts Sen. Edward M. Kennedy withdrew from the race, having lost in his bid for a rules change.

One year ago: During a voice test for a paid political radio address from his California ranch, President Reagan joked that he had "signed legislation that would outlaw Russia forever. We begin bombing in five minutes." Word of the joke spread within the next few days, creating a furor at home and abroad.

Today's birthdays: Actor Lloyd Nolan is 83. Author Alex Haley is 64. TV talk show host Mike Douglas is 60. Newspaper columnist Carl Rowan is 60. The Rev. Jerry Falwell is 52. Actress Anna Massey is 48.

STATE CAPITAL

HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—Texas and Mexico signed an historic trade agreement last week, one engineered by Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower to sell Texas products.

The signed treaty makes Texas the first and only state to have a separate bilateral trade agreement with Mexico. Mexico will buy Texas corn, sorghum, livestock and other products if commerce proceeds as planned.

For years, especially election years, farmers and ranchers have urged the feds to shore up farm prices by adding foreign markets. As often as not, the feisty Hightower has been at the lead of such urgings.

With the treaty, our state government is not waiting on the feds anymore, but is going directly to the Mexican government. After all, it's the Texas border which is affected by peso devaluations, and which shares financial hardships with a slumping Mexican economy.

Treaty Benefits

Under terms of the treaty signed in Mexico City, a joint trade committee of 19 Texans and 19 Mexicans will be appointed to find ways to increase trade.

The trick, of course, is to keep incoming products from subverting our domestic market, but generally there has been little difference in the retail prices of Texas-grown and Mexican-grown produce. The Mexican growing season is earlier than in Texas, allowing a few weeks of decreased competition.

Hightower said that Texas livestock shipments to Mexico this year have already doubled the 1981 amounts.

"We see Mexico as being an economic solution to Texas. This will also help the Mexican economy develop, and for the people of Texas, a healthy Mexican economy is the best thing that could happen," Hightower said.

Other Industries

Others report that the Texas-Mexico economic connection is beginning to rebuild slowly from a Mexican slump that jarred petroleum, banking and other industries here.

With the peso devaluation, loans from Texas banks to Mexican corporations are increasing on a short-term credit basis. On the border, deposits in American banks from Mexican citizens are building.

Mexico still buys oil equipment from Texas, but gets most of its daily needs from Mexico City companies. All told, the buys from the U.S. are down some 25 to 30 percent.

The overall Texas/Mexico trade balance is still about two-to-one in our favor, but the dollar amounts are less than half, so far, of the '84 totals, hurt by the decreased buying power of the peso.

$8 Million For Port

The state will help Galveston raise $8 million needed to bring five Navy ships to the area, and will ask the Navy to lower the state's share for a new home port in Corpus Christi.

The Legislature committed $25 million last session to the Corpus Christi project, but in an unexpected move, the Navy also added five ships for Galveston, if the $8 million was available.

Last week, when Galveston failed to raise the money privately, the Navy extended the deadline.

Now state officials are exploring whether part of the original $25 million can be directed to the Galveston project, if the Navy lowers the Corpus estimate.

White Rips Feds

Governor Mark White told a Congressional hearing last week the Interior Department shortchanged Texas by some $800 million in a seven-year dispute with coastal states over offshore oil and gas revenues.

The federal agency wants Congress to give the states a 27 percent share, but Texas, Alaska and the other states are pushing for 37.5 percent, a difference of $1.9 billion.

The Reagan Administration opposes any increase, and this issue could surface in the '86 political campaigns.

Candidacy Announced

The Republican chairman of the Texas House Energy Committee said last week he will run for the Railroad Commission seat expected to be vacated by Buddy Temple.

In his announcement, Ed Emmett said the state's trucking industry is archaic and costly, and he promised to get unsafe truck drivers off Texas highways.

He also promised to be an advocate for the oil and gas industry which he said is not overregulated.

Short Takes

Former governor Bill Clements says he is "95 percent certain" he will run again.

David Young, of Austin, who has previously run for governor and U.S. Senate, announced against Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, complaining there's been too much government "of the lobbies, by the lobbies, and for the snobbies."

Former Pittsburg Steeler, "Menn Joe" Green, will do radio and TV spots with Gov. Mark White, promoting academics and the no-pass, no-play rule. Green is a North Texas State University re-ent.

The State Board of Insurance has approved increasing homeowners rates an average of 6.7 percent statewide. The new rates will become effective Nov. 15.

we don't coddle criminals. I haven't ever seen a state that works harder or more cooperatively to make certain that we do provide protection for the lives of our people and their property," White said.

The governor also noted that the 1985 Legislature passed new laws extending the death penalty to mass murderers and serial killers. That legislation, he said, will "further improve our stance toward the most hardened criminals."

White said the state's booming population growth likely will bring with it challenges for law enforcement officials.

Gov. White 'pleased' executions proceeding

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White, who never has stayed the execution of a condemned man during his term, says he is pleased with the way Texas is carrying out the death penalty because it deters crime.

"We have the death penalty in Texas. I'm pleased to see that it's being carried out today, because I believe it can be an effective deterrent against those people in our society who would take life," White said Friday.

The governor also said he approved of Attorney General Jim Mattox's quick handling of death penalty appeals for the state, which has executed nine men by lethal injection since 1982 and currently has more than 200 prisoners waiting on Death Row.

"I am pleased that our attorney general is moving to expedite those cases so they won't be tied up in court on an interminable basis," White said.

His comments came in a speech marking the 50th anniversary of the Texas Department of Public Safety.

White said Texas has a solid crime-fighting reputation.

"We're taking a tough stance and

CLASSIFIED ADS
 Classified advertising rates are based on a minimum of 20 words. One day is 15 cents per word or $2.00 minimum. Rates below are for consecutive issues, no copy change, and apply to solid ad lines only.

WORDS	RATES	MIN.
1 day per word	.15	2.00
1 day per word	.25	4.00
1 day per word	.35	6.00
1 day per word	.45	8.00
1 day per word	.55	10.00

Add 3 cents per word for additional days: 10 days (2 free) is 15.20; 15 days (3 free) is 22.50; 20 days (4 free) is 29.80.

Classified display rates apply for special captions, paragraphing, bold type or larger type, and ads not set with full lines. $2.00 per column inch, $1 a column inch for additional insertions, or $1.75 a column inch per month.

LEGALS
 Advertising rates for legal notices are $3.00 per column inch for the first insertion and $2 per column inch for consecutive insertions.

Deadlines for classified ads are 3 p.m. daily for the next day's edition; 3 p.m. Friday for Sunday's edition.

Cash is required on advertisements under $10.

ERRORS
 Every effort is made to avoid errors in Classified Ads and legal notices. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. In case of errors not the fault of the advertiser, an additional insertion will be given.

Texas air sweetens bid for TWA to $26 a share

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Air Corp. has sweetened its bid to acquire Trans World Airlines Inc. by $3 a share, to $26, in an escalating takeover battle for the New York-based carrier.
But New York financier Carl C. Icahn's investor group already is on the verge of taking outright control of TWA. The group has disclosed it owned 45.5 percent of TWA's total stock outstanding.
The latest offer made Friday by Texas Air, the parent of Continental Airlines and New York Air, tops a $24-a-share bid for TWA made earlier this week by Icahn.
Icahn refused to comment on Texas Air's revised offer but notified TWA that he may increase his ownership of its stock, according to a statement issued by Howard Rubenstein Associates, a New York public relations firm representing the investor.

Icahn offered to buy the TWA stock his group does not already own for $24 a share in cash and securities after Texas Air reached a tentative agreement on June 13 to pay $23, also in cash and securities, for each of TWA's approximately 34.5 million total common shares outstanding, or $793.5 million.
Icahn made his offer after he reached an agreement with two of TWA's three major unions, under which the unions would exchange sizable wage concessions for TWA stock and profit sharing.
Texas Air's new bid, which has a total value of about $897 million, calls for Texas Air to pay $20.50 in cash and $5.50 of a new issue of preferred stock for each TWA share.

On consolidated New York Stock Exchange trading, TWA closed up 50 cents a share Friday to $22.50.
At its New York headquarters, TWA said it was reviewing both offers and would discuss them at a board of directors meeting next week.
Texas Air has $600 million in financing arranged through the New York investment house Drexel Burnham Lambert. The additional amount required for Friday's increase would come from "internal resources, cash and lines of credit," spokesman Bruce Hicks said.
Further complicating the TWA battle was the announcement Thursday that a group of TWA employees, aided by former Missouri Gov. Christopher Bond, is also considering making an offer to acquire TWA.
The group is poised to make the offer because it received commitments for financing "in the range of $1 billion" from U.S. and foreign lenders, said John Kreamer, a senior partner with the Kansas City law firm of Gage & Tucker, where Bond also is a partner. Kreamer declined to identify the lenders.
Bond said he was leading the employees' effort because they fear TWA would be dismantled if acquired by either Icahn or Texas Air, thereby jeopardizing TWA employment in Missouri.
TWA's primary domestic hub, or connecting center, is in St. Louis and it has a maintenance facility in Kansas City. Together the installations employ about 11,000 people.
Bond said 7,300 TWA employees, or about 25 percent of its total workforce, have already indicated they would support an employee buyout of TWA.
Meanwhile, in Washington, the Transportation Department denied an application for an expedited hearing on the proposed Texas Air-TWA merger. Instead, the department issued a schedule of hearings before an administrative law judge, beginning Oct. 1. The department will decide whether to approve the merger by Dec. 31.
The department set a Wednesday deadline for other parties that may want to intervene in the merger case.

RRC asks for federal rehearing

AUSTIN (AP) — The Railroad Commission says a federal agency ruling in a Panhandle case would "have the practical effect" of regulating gas production in Texas, which Congress has expressly reserved for the state.
The commission commented Friday in asking the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission to reconsider its order that 37 independent Panhandle oil operators illegally sold natural gas from what the commission had classified as oil wells.
First, it's apparent the state board thinks vocational agriculture supports a dying lifestyle — the rural lifestyle. Granted, there isn't much wheat pasture around Loop 610 in Houston, but there aren't many interstate freeways in Spearman, either. Though the board may not like it, agriculture remains the backbone of rural Texas and the state's second-biggest resource. Our leaders shouldn't turn their backs on it.
Second, the board seems to believe that any distractions from the so-called basics make for a poorer student. It's time the board woke up and rejoined the real world. We're not all going to be nuclear physicists; some of us are just going to be plain ole farmers. And, if schools aren't helping these people prepare for farming with a strong vo ag program, then our schools are failing to educate our youth in a most fundamental way.
Somehow, some misguided bureaucrats have taken a good education bill and used it to despoil vocational agriculture. Along the way, they've probably also hurt some good students.
If you have any questions about vocational agriculture, or any other issue, please write to P.O. Box 12068, Austin, TX, 78711.

of production to the states," the commission said.
"It is clearly the intent of Congress that the individual states regulate natural gas production. While the order in this docket purports to apply Texas law and Railroad Commission rules, it actually preempts state examination and resolution of various state regulatory issues 'applying Texas law' to them before the various state regulatory issues, which have only recently been raised, have been resolved by the state."
The commission said it had embarked "on what promises to be a lengthy and detailed review of present law, rules and practices," and it asked for a rehearing to give the commission time to "resolve those issues concerning production practices properly reserved to the state."
It said it would forward the results of its study to the FERC.
The commission also submitted a motion to intervene in the proceedings involving independent operators and Dorchester Gas Producing Co., saying it would be in the public interest. The July FERC opinion came in the Dorchester case.

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

AUSTIN — Seems like it wasn't too long ago that vocational agriculture was accepted almost universally as an integral part of school curriculum. Oh, maybe there were a few big city high schools that had no use for vo ag, but the program undeniably was the lifeblood of rural school districts.

Then, along came the Select Committee on Public Education (SCOPE), and a once-strong vocational agriculture program in Texas found itself on the run.
SCOPE's chairman, Fort Worth businessman H. Ross Perot, didn't particularly care for vocational education in general, much less vocational agriculture. Perot was convinced vocational schooling got in the way of basic courses, the stuff of which nuclear physicists are made.
Some otherwise intelligent state leaders got caught up in Mr. Perot's attack on vocational education and dealt the program a severe blow in House Bill 72, the now-infamous education reform package of 1984. H.B. 72, which for the most part is a good bill, tells local school districts they're going to foot most of the cost of vocational education. The state is withdrawing from that business.
Well, no one with any appreciation of rural Texas liked that part of H.B. 72 much, but we set to work searching for alternative funding for vocational agriculture programs and their companion Future Farmers of America chapters.
At least, we thought, we still had the resources of 10 Texas Education Agency field staffers assigned to vocational agriculture, as well as an excellent five-man TEA vo ag central staff in Austin. The State Board of Education, it turned out, had something entirely different in mind.
In January, we learned the board planned to eliminate all 10 field staff positions. Appeals to Education Commissioner W.N. Kirby to retain the positions failed. An attempt through Gov. Mark White to at least move some of the field staffers to Austin also failed.
The time clearly had come to circle the wagons. If vocational agriculture was to maintain any viability in Texas at all, the strong central staff had to be kept in tact.
State board members, though, had gotten a taste of vo ag blood and were ready to go back for more. Late last week, Commissioner Kirby announced plans to reduce the central staff to three persons. Only after much lobbying from friends of agriculture did Kirby wisely agree to allow for a four-person staff.
There's no question the battle for vo ag's life is far from over. The strange thing about the fight is the intelligence of vo ag's opponents. Their seeming

For many months NTSB findings not due

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — It will be sometime next year, at the earliest, before a final report on the Aug. 2 crash of Delta Air Lines' Flight 191 is issued, a National Transportation Safety Board investigator says.
The wide-bodied L-1011 jumbo jet crashed during its final approach to Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport during a severe thunderstorm.
"We had at one time a target date of about six months on a major case like this,"

NTSB staff investigator Rudolf Kapustin said at a news conference Friday.
But he added, "It's never happened. It's considerably longer."
However, advisories will be issued or other action taken immediately should safety problems at the airport be discovered, Kapustin said.
"They've been made the day after an accident, two days, a week or a month... depending on what type of information is developed," he said.

Investigators previously reported that wreckage of the Delta jumbo jet showed no evidence of failures in the aircraft's structure or systems.
The examination of various parts and equipment is continuing in Atlanta, where Delta has its headquarters, Kapustin said.
The investigation, which at one time involved more than 100 experts, has centered on violent downbursts of air, known as wind shears, as the cause of the L-1011 crash, which claimed 133 lives.
It was revealed Thursday that the Delta pilots were using information from an outdated weather forecast as the jet made its final approach toward Runway 17L.
Kapustin said the crew was unaware that a weather observer had reported seeing cumulonimbus clouds, which are associated with the formation of thunderstorms, and possibly, the wind shears being investigated as a possible cause of the crash.
It was disclosed Friday that Delta has changed the number of the ill-fated flight, effective Sept. 1.
Delta officials had insisted in recent days that there were no plans to change the flight number. But a marketing employee in Delta's headquarters in Atlanta "just decided" to change the number, airline spokesman Jim Ewing said in Atlanta.
"It wasn't supposed to be done," Ewing said. "Somebody has taken it upon himself to do it."
Whit Hawkins, Delta's senior vice president for marketing, had decided against changing the number, Ewing said, after learning that the crash was an accident caused by number. Hawkins learned of the change late Friday after a reporter informed the company that its reservationists were using flight No. 139, Ewing said, but ruled out changing the number back to 191.
Reverting to 191 would confuse travel agents and passengers who have already booked flights on the new number, Ewing said.
"It's too much to take back," he said.

stoner Kirby is a bright man. Why, then, are smart people trying to kill vocational agriculture? We think these people are making rash decisions based on false premises.
First, it's apparent the state board thinks vocational agriculture supports a dying lifestyle — the rural lifestyle. Granted, there isn't much wheat pasture around Loop 610 in Houston, but there aren't many interstate freeways in Spearman, either. The Newspaper BIBLE

IT'S THAT SIMPLE, FRIEND!
The apostles and elders and the whole congregation voted to send delegates to Antioch with Paul and Barnabas, to report on this decision. The men chosen were two of the church leaders - Judas (also called Barsabbas) and Silas.

This is the letter they took along with them: "From: The apostles, elders and brothers at Jerusalem. To: The Gentile brothers in Antioch, Syria and Cilicia. Greetings!"

"We understand that some believers from here have upset you and questioned your salvation, but they had no such instructions from us. So it seemed wise to us, having unanimously agreed on our decision, to send to you these two official representatives, along with our beloved Barnabas and Paul.

"These men — Judas and Silas, who have risked their lives for the sake of our Lord Jesus Christ — will confirm orally what we have decided concerning your question. For it seemed good to the Holy Spirit and to us to lay no greater burden of Jewish laws on you than to abstain from eating food offered to idols and from unbled meat of strangled animals, and, of course, from fornication. If you do this, it is enough. Farewell!"

The four messengers went at once to Antioch, where they called a general meeting of the Christians and gave them the letter. And there was great joy throughout the church that day as they read it. Then Judas and Silas, both being gifted speakers, preached long sermons to the believers, strengthening their faith. They stayed several days, and then Judas and Silas returned to Jerusalem taking greetings and appreciation to those who had sent them. Acts 15:22-34

Inmate stabbed by prisoners

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A Texas Death Row inmate was recovering from minor wounds after he was attacked by two fellow prisoners armed with a 9 1/2-inch piece of flattened metal, a prison spokesman said.
Mikel Derrick, 28, was stabbed about 9:30 p.m. Thursday in a recreation room near the Ellis I Unit's so-called "animal wing," where the state's most dangerous Death Row inmates are housed, authorities said.
Derrick faces execution for the October 1980 shooting death of Edward Fonnier, 32, during an attempted robbery in Houston, Texas Department of Corrections spokesman Phil Guthrie said Friday.

Freezing Fruits and Vegetables At Home

Frozen fruits and vegetables spice year-round menus with garden-fresh flavor. But the nutritive value and quality of these fruits and vegetables depend largely on the treatment before freezing, storage temperature and method of cooking and serving. Most fruit can be frozen satisfactorily.

Select sound, ripe fruit which is slightly riper than for canning but not soft or mushy. Tree or vine ripened fruits contain more vitamins and a richer flavor than fruits picked green and allowed to ripen before freezing.

In general fruit is prepared for freezing as for eating.

Keep fruit cool until it is frozen. Wash it in cold water but do not allow it to stand in the water. Some fruit loses food value and flavor and some gets water soaked.

Some fruits, such as peaches, apricots, apples and pears, discolor easily. Following are ways to prevent this.

Ascorbin acid (vitamin C) is available in tablet, crystalline or powdered form. Use 1/4 teaspoon of this per quart of syrup to prevent this discoloration.

If you don't want to pack the fruit in syrup, sprinkle dissolved ascorbic acid over fruit just before adding sugar. Use 1/4 teaspoon in 1/2 cup cold water to each quart or fruit.

Some special commercial anti-darkening preparation of ascorbic acid are now on the market.

Most fruits have better texture and flavor is packed in sugar or syrup. Some may be packed without sweetening for use in special diets.

The way you plan to use the fruit determines the method of packing it. Fruit packed in a syrup generally is better for dessert use: fruit packed in dry sugar or unsweetened is better for most cooking because there is less liquid in the products.

Quickly getting vegetables from the garden to the freezer is a must for top-quality frozen vegetables. During hot weather, harvest vegetables in the early morning before they absorb much heat.

Vegetables at optimum maturity will have best flavor and texture.

If you must store vegetables before freezing, spread them out loosely in a cool, well-ventilated place or pack loosely in the refrigerator.

Prepare vegetables for freezing similar to cooking them. Wash thoroughly in cold water, drain and sort, peel, trim and cut.

Heat vegetables in boiling water before freezing. Use one gallon of boiling water to each pound of vegetable. The length of heating time varies with the vegetable.

This kills enzyme action in the product. The enzymes help the plants grow and mature but if not deactivated the vegetables will develop off flavors and often discolor or toughen during freezing.

Place the scalded vegetables immediately into running cold or ice water. When the product is cool to the tongue when tested, it is cool enough to pack.

After the vegetables have been heated, cooled and drained, pack in airtight moisture-vapor-proof containers, leaving 1/2 inch headspace. Seal according to type of container you use.

Cook all vegetables in the frozen state, except corn-on-the-cob which should be partially defrosted. Cook them only until tender in a small amount of water.

Bishops use diplomacy to meet complaints

A curious case involving a major book, "Catholicism," by the Rev. Richard P. McBrien, indicates both the clout of conservative letter-writers to the Vatican and the increased finesse of U.S. bishops.

Also, the handling of the matter offered an unusual example of cooperation between the bishops and theological scholarship.

These are among factors seen by noted Catholic psychologist Eugene Kennedy as surrounding a recent report of a bishops' doctrinal committee voicing some limited reservations about the book.

The bishops also said it had "many positive features." Even the criticisms often were qualified, such as saying some aspect "seems unacceptable or is 'potentially confusing'" or is expressed in an uncommon way.

McBrien, a broadly respected theologian, former president of the Catholic Theological Society of America and now head of the theology department at the University of Notre Dame, avoided any public argument about the case.

"There had been some misunderstandings about the book but they have been clarified," he said. "I have nothing more to say about it."

His big, two-volume, 1,184-page book, aimed at providing a clear summation both of Catholic teachings and current theological thought, first came out in 1980, and has been lavishly praised by other scholars.

It won three different book awards, two in the academic field, one for spiritual values. Its publisher, Winston Press of Minneapolis, reports more than 100,000 copies sold, with added editions now out in French, Spanish and a paperback, one-volume English "study" edition.

In consultation with the Vatican congregation, the bishops committee duly made its examination, saying it was in "constructive and fruitful dialogue" with McBrien, beginning in 1981, culminating with its report in July.

The head of the committee, Archbishop John R. Quinn, of San Francisco, said nothing in the report should be used to question McBrien's authentic orthodoxy.

The bishops' committee says McBrien already has made some clarifications in the second "study" edition, and it expressed hopes for further clarifications in subsequent editions "to remove any remaining ambiguities in the expression of Catholic teachings."

The report cites some specific concerns, saying some terminology about "grace" remains "potentially confusing," as do "ambiguous" ways of expressing some teachings about the Virgin Mary.

The most explicit, unqualified objection says sections dealing with contraception and ordination of women are "not supportive of the church's authoritative teaching (prohibiting both) as would be expected in a text entitled Catholicism."

Emphasizing the distinction between official church teachings and theological speculation about them, the committee says it "appreciates the effort and motivation of theologians" such as McBrien in that regard.
