Budget plan puts pinch on oilmen

Staff and bureau reports

Among the measures Gov. Mark White outlined Tuesday to make up a projected $800 million shortfall in the state's budget is an $800 increase in oil and gas drilling fee permits.

White, in his "state of the state" speech delivered in a joint address to both houses of the Legislature, said he wants to raise the cost of drilling fee permits from $100, the current charge, to $900.

In the speech, White asked for an eight-month freeze on state hiring and most capital expenditures, and lobbied Texas lawmakers for belt-tightening measures to avoid new or increased taxes.

"The bureaucracy has gotten a little fat," White said in the 30-minute speech. "The time has come for diet and self-discipline."

Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, praised White's speech, especially his stands on water and crime, but said his district can't survive the increase in drilling permit fees.

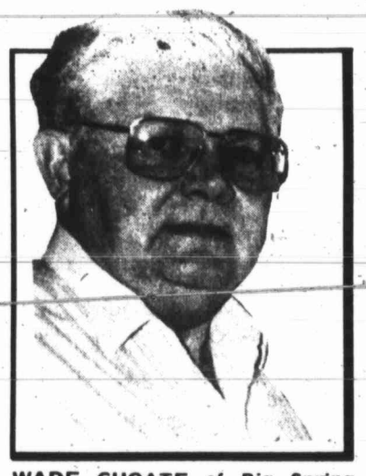

"I'm certainly going to fight it. There's no use in stepping on the oil and gas industry and kicking it. If anything, we need to encourage drilling," said Montford, who also represents the Big Spring area.

There's no question that everyone "is going to have to grin and bear" a tight state budget, Montford said, but one area shouldn't be singled out unfairly for fee increases.

"It won't hurt the majors. They won't be happy about it, but I'm worried about the small independents," Montford said.

Local oil and landman Wade Choate, of Choate Co. of Big Spring, agreed. "Small independents, who do most of the drilling, would really feel the pinch," Choate said.

The permit fee was increased to $100 in the last session of the Legislature, Choate said. "This (White's proposal) is a pretty good-sized increase. Along with it and the drop in the price of oil, it will make the economies of drilling oil difficult, especially for drilling 'strippers,' which only produce a few barrels of oil."

WADE CHOATE of Big Spring says small independent oilmen "would really feel the pinch" from an increase in fees for drilling permits.

Permian Basin Petroleum Association Executive Director Ed Thompson called the increase "unnecessary," and said the Railroad Commission has said it is "not needed."

"The Railroad Commission said they were already making fees for the state," Thompson said. "White's talking about a $1 billion shortfall, and this will bring in only $20 million. Except that with the taxes proposed by the federal goverment, there won't be any wildcat industry."

"With the combination of everything, it makes you sick to the stomach. Some people are going to take a closer look at what they're trying to do. One thousand dollars on a half-million dollar hole isn't going to make that much difference," Thompson said. "But $1,000 on a $4,000 hole is."

His association will probably oppose the increase, Thompson said. He has been getting calls on the proposal since Monday afternoon, when a press release detailing White's suggestion was released.

Supreme Court OKs student searches

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Teachers and administrators now have more legal power to attack what the Supreme Court calls the "major social problems" of drug use and violent crime in public schools.

The nation's highest court, in a 6-3 decision Tuesday, made it easier for public school officials generally to search students suspected of violating the law or some school rule.

To conduct such searches, the court said in a case from Piscataway, N.J., teachers and other school officials do not need a court warrant or the same justifications required of police officers.

At the same time, however, the justices made clear that public school officials, like police officers, must adhere to the Constitution's ban on unreasonable searches and seizures by governmental officials.

In other words, students do not surrender all their privacy rights when they walk into the schoolhouse.

The case involved the search of a 14-year-old freshman's purse after she was caught smoking. The search turned up rolling papers, and the girl later was found delinquent after admitting to police she had sold marijuana cigarettes to classmates.

The New Jersey Supreme Court overturned the delinquency finding, ruling that the search had violated the student's rights.

But the high court now has reinstated the delinquency verdict.

Led by Justice Byron R. White, the court said school officials do not have to meet the "probable cause" standard applied when judging whether a police search was reasonable.

The new standard for school officials: whether the search was reasonable under the circumstances.

White noted that "maintaining order in the classroom has never been easy," and that in recent years "school disorder has often taken particularly ugly forms: drug use and violent crimes in the schools have become major social problems."

Tom Shannon, executive director of the National School Board Association, praised the decision.

"We think the court perceived the role of school people properly," Shannon said. "It'll shore up the confidence of school people that they're not looked upon in the same way as law enforcement officers."

Burt Neuborne, legal director of the American Civil Liberties Union, said he was "quite relieved" that the ruling preserved the idea that "the Fourth Amendment (outlawing unreasonable searches) does apply to schools."

"The point is that the special circumstances of the school setting requires some tailoring of the Fourth Amendment to students," he said.

The decision was praised a Reagan administration official who helped draft a White House report urging a stronger defense of the rights of educators.

The new ruling should thaw the "chilling effect" some of the past cases have had on teachers and administrators, said Gary Bauer, a deputy under secretary of education.

"There have been some well publicized cases in which teachers

Skillern calm before execution

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Doyle Skillern asked his family to "rejoice and forgive," then was executed by injection early today for a killing in which the confessed triggerman may soon go free.

Warden Jack Pursley ordered that the execution begin at 12:16 a.m. Skillern coughed and retched seconds later, then lay still. Dr. Luther Masters, a prison physician, pronounced him dead at 12:23 a.m.

Skillern, 48, was "very much" resigned to his fate and was "cheerful all the time" he was with the Rev. Cornelius Ryan Tuesday, the Roman Catholic priest said immediately after the execution.

Phil Guthrie, chief spokesman for the Texas prison system, said that after prison officials informed Skillern that Gov. Mark White had declined to grant him a reprieve, Skillern responded "A lot of people will still have their troubles tomorrow, and mine will be over."

White's action followed a 6-2 vote of the Supreme Court not to block the execution.

Skillern had been on Texas' Death Row longer than all but two other inmates.

He was executed for the Oct. 24, 1974, shooting death of Patrick Randel, an undercover narcotics agent for the Texas Department of Public Safety. The two were trying to sell about $1,000 worth of Quaaludes to Randel the night of the killing.

Skillern was convicted of capital murder although a co-defendant, Charles Victor Sanne, 51, testified he fired the six shots that killed Randel. Skillern was in a car nearby, Sanne said.

But a jury decided Sanne was not a continuing threat to society, and gave him a life sentence, while Skillern, who had killed his brother earlier, was determined to be a threat and was sentenced to death.

Sanne is being considered for parole soon.

Skillern was convicted under Texas' "law of parties," which allows juries to convict accomplices of the most severe crime involved.

Sixteen official witnesses, including five reporters and Skillern's brother-in-law, prison employee William Sparks III, watched the execution.

They were led into the death chamber at 12:16 a.m. Skillern lay strapped to a hospital gurney, the lines which were to carry a lethal dose of poison into his system already pumping a saline solution.

Pursley asked Skillern if he cared to make a last request or statement.

"I just pray that my family will rejoice and forgive. Thank you," Skillern said quickly. He did not appear to address any of the witnesses.

Pursley gave the order for the execution to begin at 12:19 a.m.

Perhaps 10 seconds later, Skillern coughed violently and sat up as far as the straps across his torso would allow.

He then fell back. His mouth opened and he and lay motionless.

Prison physician Masters entered the chamber. The doctor used a flashlight to check each of Skillern's eyes for dilation and listened to several areas of his chest for a heartbeat.

He placed his hand on Skillern's chest, then examined the inmate's eyes with the light again.

Asked by Pursley what he had found, Masters answered, "The pupils are both dilated and fixed. There is an absence of respiration, an absence of heartbeat and an absence of carotid pulse."

Pursley pronounced Skillern dead at 12:23 a.m.

Sparks, a corrections officer who works in the prison system's construction division at the same unit where Skillern was held, looked at his watch, but had no other visible reaction. He left the prison without speaking to reporters.

Skillern became the fifth Texas inmate to be executed and the 36th nationwide since 1976.

Skillern "seemed a little shaken" earlier in the evening after a five-minute phone conversation with his daughter, Janet Hatch of Hemet, Calif., Guthrie said.

Mrs. Hatch told The Associated Press Tuesday that she found her father on Texas' Death Row in 1981, ending a search that began 10 years earlier.

A man who answered the phone at her house after the execution said she was not feeling well and had gone to bed.

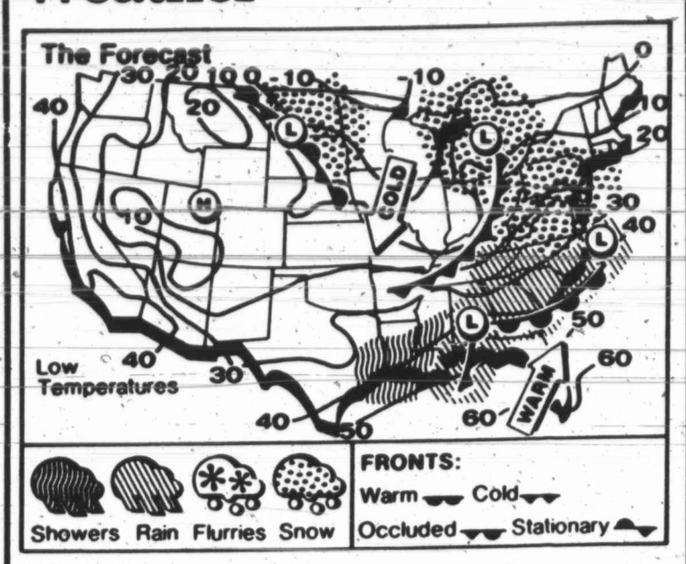

Randel's widow, Wanda Randel Hogg of Odessa, said the execution "really does" ease the pain she has felt.

State

By The Associated Press

Rain fell across much of Texas early today as a high-pressure system pumped Gulf moisture into most areas of Central and East Texas while a cold front in the southern Texas Panhandle pushed deeper into the state.

Widespread rain, numerous showers and a few thundershowers covered a major portion of Texas ahead of the front from the South Plains east through North Central Texas and on into East Texas.

Angry patient kicks out door

A glass door at Hall-Bennett Hospital was broken at 3 p.m. Tuesday when a patient, angry because he was refused further credit, kicked the door out, according to police reports.

Hospital administrator C.A. Weeg estimated the damage at $350.

• Two car windows were reported broken Tuesday, according to police reports.

Debbie Rutherford of 3010 Rutgers told police the passenger side window of her 1973 Ford truck was broken between 5:30 p.m. Jan. 7 and 10 a.m. Monday.

Ron Martinez of 704 W. 15th told police the front windshield of his company car was broken between 7 p.m. Sunday and 9:15 a.m. Monday in the College Park parking lot.

Damage to the vehicles is unknown.

• A blue Davis Parke 25-caliber derringer with pearl handles was stolen from the Shamrock station on S. 87, Dennis Cantrell of 2401 Marcy told police.

The theft occurred between 1 p.m. Jan. 9 and 9:30 a.m. Thursday. The gun was valued at $65.

• Police arrested Candee Sue Williams, 17, of 1809 Morrison on suspicion of driving while intoxicated.

• About $30 of assorted household and personal goods were taken from K mart at 1701 E. FM 700 at 4 p.m. Tuesday, employee Ken Schaedel told police.

For the record

If Howard County commissioners agree to lease a building at the Big Spring Airpark as state agency offices have requested, office equipment costing $1,500 would be needed. A Monday story incorrectly listed the equipment estimate as $15,000.

The story also said the Big Spring Industrial Foundation is involved in the lease plans. The story should have said the Big Spring Industrial Park.

Reaction

Hise defended the searches by saying he believes school officials "have always been reasonable. They use reasonable judgement. Nothing is done forcibly."

He added, "We are talking about a very small percentage of students. As educators, we are concerned with the well-being of 99.5 percent of those students who are not involved in this kind of thing."

Court

and principals have gotten into a great deal of trouble over good faith efforts to maintain school regulations," he said,

White was joined by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Lewis F. Powell, William H. Rehnquist, Sandra Day O'Connor and Harry A. Blackmun.

Justices John Paul Stevens, William J. Brennan and Thurgood Marshall dissented.

The court did not answer whether materials seized from students in unlawful searches by public school officials may be used as evidence when the students stand trial.

The decision also left unanswered whether students' right of privacy extends to the contents of their desks and lockers, although under Tuesday's decision searches of desks and lockers at least would be lawful if "reasonable."

Oil fees

Thompson said callers in the industry and investors were upset. "They say White promised no new taxes on the industry. He's playing word games with us. This is not a tax, it's a fee."

Rep. Larry Don Shaw, D-Big Spring said he generally liked White's speech.

"I liked what I heard, but it worried me that the (governor's) budget was based on current revenue estimates," he said.

Shaw said he's worried that falling oil prices will cause another $500 million cut in the comptroller's estimate of revenues available for the next biennium. That would make White's budget proposal a lot less realistic.

"No one down here wants to vote on new taxes," Shaw said, adding that one alternative may be to pass only a one-year budget and come back next summer when the economic outlook might be improved.

Shaw said White's talk of making government more efficient intrigued him and it adds to arguments for annual legislative sessions. A switch to annual sessions "has nothing to do with more government but just managing the resources you have better," he said."

White outlined a fiscal recipe he said could limit the state's budgetary supplements to increasing fees imposed for selected state services. Also tossed in, he said, should be some slashes in selected state agency budgets and increased higher education tuition fees for out-of-state residents,

Crimestoppers elects officers

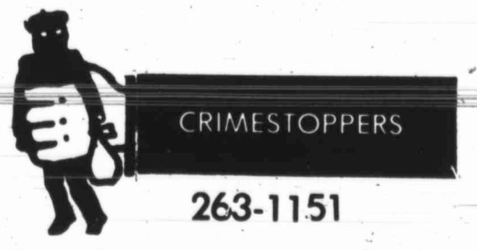

The Crimestoppers Board of Directors, during a Tuesday meeting, elected bail bondsman Bob Smith as their new president for 1985.

Other new officers are: Jerry Mancill of Mancill Insurance Co., vice president; LeRoy Tillery, secretary; and Curt Mullins of the First National Bank, treasurer.

The board also took action today to authorize a $1,000 reward to be paid to a confidential informant who provided information that led to the arrest of James L. Treece, 18, of Watseka, Ill. Treece was indicted on five counts of felony homicide and other charges in Illinois, according to Tillery.

"It's a very beneficial program. The sheriff's Department representatives from Illinois said if he'd (Treece) been here long enough, he could have done the same thing here," Tillery said.

Crimestoppers will pay up to a $1,000 reward for information on any felony crime if the information provided leads to the arrest and indictment of a suspect. Callers will remain anonymous.

Vandalism tops crime list

Crimestoppers is offering a reward for information that will lead to arrests and indictments in the following crimes.

• During the nights between Jan. 9 and Jan. 12, someone did more than $5,000 of damage by shooting windows of more than 24 vehicles, houses and buildings with a BB-type air rifle or a pellet gun.

• Between Dec. 3 and Dec. 4, money was taken from the Crossroads Restaurant on Gregg Street. The money was in two bank bags: a blue plastic First National Bank bag and a small gold State National Bank bag.

Humane society seeks blankets

The Big Spring Humane Society is seeking old blankets and quilts from residents to use as bedding for animals temporarily boarded by society members.

Blanket solicitation will be one of the topics discussed when the society meets at 7 p.m. Thursday at the Westside Center.

Dioxin testing complete

BOWLING GREEN, Va. — A decision is expected in about 10 days on whether to hold the 1985 Boy Scout National Jamboree at the Army post where dioxin contamination was found after the 1981 outing, a Scout spokesman said.

Raul Chavez said soil tests from Fort A.P. Hill were consistent with Army findings that contamination was confined to a fenced area around a shed where leaky barrels of the herbicide Silvex were stored.

The Army has promised to remove the soil and shed.

The national Centers for Disease Control said it is unlikely any of about 30,000 Scouts at the 1981 jamboree were harmed.

Woman gets prison term

SAN JOSE, Calif. — A woman who fatally shot her husband, then hacked, burned and bit his body decided to kill him because he had multiple sclerosis and she didn't want to care for him, prosecutors said.

Dianne Fellman, 36, was sentenced to 27 years to life in prison Tuesday for first-degree murder in the August 1983 fatal shooting of her 39-year-old husband, Elroy Fellman.

Prosecutor Richard Gardner said she told people she would never push a wheelchair and later confessed to sawing his body into pieces, burning them in the family barbecue, and biting into his charred arm.

Cops involved in caper

CHICAGO — Eight veteran city policeman face up to 20 years in prison and fines of $25,000 if convicted of racketeering in an alleged scheme to shake down payoffs from hit-and-run drivers.

Tuesday's federal indictments accuse the officers — all veterans of 12 or more years on the force — of taking 71 payoffs, ranging from $20 to $300 from the owners of motor vehicles which allegedly left the scene of minor property damage accidents.

All eight were charged with mail fraud and racketeering, and two with extortion.

Fireworks blaze

One killed, three injured in factory explosion

OLD WASHINGTON, Ohio (AP) — An explosion ripped through a fireworks factory on a farm near here Tuesday, killing one employee and seriously burning three others, officials said.

The blast occurred shortly after 3 p.m. at the Union Imports Manufacturing fireworks factory, destroying a building made of wood and corrugated metal about the size of a four-car garage.

"It blew the building apart, totally destroyed," said State Fire Marshal Harry McLaughlin.

Tim Adams of the Adams Starfire gas station three miles away said the blast shook his building.

The dead woman was identified as Carolyn Wells, 37, of Quaker City, said a spokesman for Campbell-Plumly Funeral Home in Barnesville.

Injured were Polly Nicholes, 19, and her sister, Peggy Nicholes, 20, of nearby Quaker City, and Lillian Baker, 21, of Freeport, said C. Lekorenos, vice president of patient care at Guernsey Memorial Hospital in Cambridge.

All suffered burns over 30 percent to 40 percent of their bodies and were taken to Children's Hospital-Medical Center in Akron, which specializes in treating burn victims. They were listed in serious condition in the burn unit, and one underwent surgery, said a nursing supervisor who would not give her name.

The fireworks factory has been operating for years, said Lt. Arnold Van Horn of the Guernsey County sheriff's department.

"It is a legal operation," he said. "I've been on the force for 10 years and it's been in operation most of the time I've been here."

Kim Smith, a secretary who answered the telephone at Union Imports, said an explosion occurred but would not comment on any injuries.

"It was just in pieces," said Tom Fullen, a reporter for Cambridge radio station WILE. "The metal was just lying in a pile. You couldn't tell it was a building at one time."

Debris was hurled 40 to 50 yards away by the explosion, said Tom Fullen, a reporter for Cambridge radio station WILE, but an adjacent structure was not damaged.

The fireworks factory, owned by Fred Wells, is on the farm of his brother, Henry, about 10 miles east of Cambridge. Henry Wells said he is no relation to the woman who was killed.

29 bodies found in grave

AYACUCHO, Peru — A grave containing 25 bodies has been found in Ayacucho provine, the stronghold of the Shining Path guerrilla movement, an official of the attorney general's office reports.

Dr. Jose de la Rosa Bracovich, who led an investigating team to the grave Tuesday, said some of the bodies had their hands tied behind their backs and showed signs of torture.

De la Rosa said the grave was found after an anonymous telephone caller gave the location to the attorney general's office.

The grave was in the same area of south-central Peru where 50 bodies were found in shallow graves last August. Relatives later identified two of those bodies as peasants who had been arrested by security forces hunting for the Maoist guerrillas.

Judge expels defendant

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — The presiding judge at a trial of dissidents expelled a defendant who criticized him and described the proceedings as "a masked police ball."

Judge Zoran Stojkovic ordered guards to remove Miodrag Milic on Tuesday after the defendant defied repeated warnings to be quiet.

Milic and five others are being tried on charges that they conspired against the Communist government. The defendants were members of an informal discussion group which met over the past seven years.

India considers proposals

NEW DELHI, India, — A top state official says his government is willing to consider proposals from the Union Carbide Corp. for a new factory at Bhopal, where a leak from its pesticide plant killed at least 2,000 people last month.

But Arjun Singh, chief minister of Madhya Pradesh state, of which Bhopal is the capital, said Tuesday no proposals have been received from the American multinational company.

Official calls for attacks on Israeli troops

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Prime Minister Rashid Karami summoned his Cabinet today to discuss Israel's plan to pull back its troops in south Lebanon, and one minister urged continued guerrilla attacks on Israeli troops until they withdraw.

Israel announced Monday that within five weeks it will begin a three-stage withdrawal of its forces from southern Lebanon. It hopes U.N. peacekeeping forces and an Israeli-backed militia — the South Lebanon Army — will protect the northern Israeli border from Palestinian attacks.

Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres says he hopes his nation's troops will be out of Lebanon by the end of summer.The first stage of the withdrawal would move troops back 17 miles, the second would be a pullback from eastern Lebanon and the third move would remove all remaining forces from Lebanon.

Nabih Berri, leader of the Shiite Moslem militia Amal and a Cabinet minister, said in a statement carried Tuesday by Lebanon's state radio: "What concerns us, is the complete and unconditional withdrawal and ... supporting the Lebanese national resistance because it is still the only card in the land of the Lebanese until the departure of Israel."

National resistance is a phrase used in Lebanon and Syria to refer to guerrilla attacks on Israelis in southern Lebanon.

Israel invaded Lebanon in 1982 to drive out Palestinians launching attacks across the border. But the invasion has cost more than 600 Israeli lives, and the toll has mounted with almost daily attacks by Lebanon's Shiite Moslems in the south.

Uri Lubrani, the Israeli government's coordinator in Lebanon, said on Israel radio that Israel believed guerrilla attacks will increase. But, he said, the new deployment would make it easier to deal with them.

"Instead of the Israeli Defense Forces using most of its efforts to defend itself it will be able to use most of it efforts to hit terrorists," he said.

Peres said Tuesday the withdrawal could provoke a wave of violence and appealed to the United Nations and the Beirut government to move into vacated areas before fighting starts.

"There is indeed a danger of massacres in Lebanon," said Peres to high school students in the northern town of Yoqnam. He said Israel wanted to avoid bloodshed, but "I don't know if we will succeed."

At its meeting today, the Lebanese Cabinet today was expected to consider ways of preventing a bloodbath among rival Moslem, Christian and Palestinian factions in southern Lebanon when the Israelis start leaving.

Also on the Cabinet agenda was the rash of bombings that hit banks, restaurants, bars and apartment buildings in the Moslem sector of the Lebanese capital in the last 10 days, Beirut radio said.

Police said the final casualty toll of the twin-bombing at Snoubra stood at four dead and more 30 injured, most of them tenants and neighbors who rushed to help.

Opinion

Crime fighting pays off for city

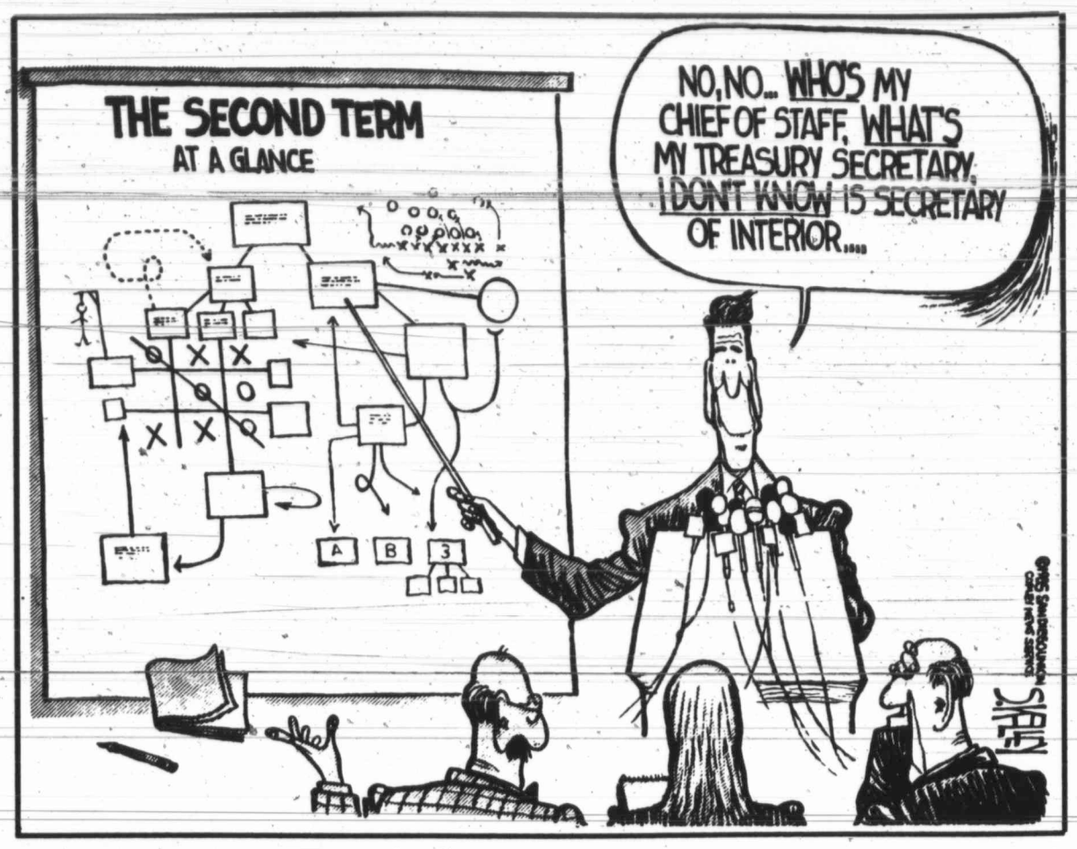

Police are proving that the price of peace is indeed eternal vigilance.

For the first time in more than two decades, Big Spring went a year without a murder in its city limits. Coupled with this upbeat statistic is another: major crime in general dropped by nearly 9 percent last year.

It is impossible to know for sure the reason for the slowdown in major crime. But because a year without a murder is so statistically improbable, it seems likely that the credit for the upbeat crime report goes to law enforcement efforts.

A higher profile, preventive intervention and modern crime-fighting tools all add up to a more aggressive posture against crime. The higher profile is attained by allowing officers to drive their marked vehicles home. And increased presence in potential trouble spots has allowed police to cool aggression before it flares to violence. Computers and more sophisticated crime investigation techniques add up to modern police work.

Crime prevention is a laudable objective. Within the limits of good judgment, it means criminal intent can be thwarted before it is crime. The statistics show efforts toward this end have been successful.

U.S. passage to India

WASHINGTON — Maybe it's the impact of "The Raj Quartet" on television. Or the movie version of Forster's "Passage To India." Or the afterglow of Ben Kingsley's performance in the film "Gandhi." But, whatever the reason, arbiters of fashion have declared that India is "in" for 1985.

A good thing, too. For real-life events have smashed many of the resentments that for years kept India near the top of America's most-disliked-country list. Now, with the emergence of Rajiv Gandhi as a new leader with a huge majority, Washington may even find that it wants to work with Delhi.

Peculiar historic conditions forced the two great democracies apart in the postwar period. The U.S. took upon itself the task of leading resistance to communist expansion. That meant troops in Europe and the Atlantic Alliance; backing to newly independent countries that were militantly anti-communist; participation in wars in Korea and Vietnam; and even cooperation with distinctly undemocratic countries when they turned anti-Soviet — notably Pakistan and China, two nations not exactly friendly to India.

The Indians took upon themselves leadership of a middle group of countries known as the Third World or the non-aligned bloc. They played off the U.S. against Russia in bidding for economic and military aid. They turned a blind eye to the horrors of communist rule in Russia and Eastern Europe. They put a plague on both houses in Vietnam and Korea. They found the U.S. as much, if not more, to blame for the arms race. Worse still, successive Indian leaders, beginning with Pandit Nehru and continuing through his daughter Indira Gandhi, talked down to the U.S. in tones of sanctimonious moral superiority.

Beneath the stereotypes, realities were changing. The great drought of 1966-67 forced India to turn to this country for food. The aid was forthcoming in what, apart from the Normandy landings, was probably the greatest armada ever organized. As condition for the help, Lyndon Johnson obliged India to raise farm prices, distribute seed, fertilizer and pump wells, and begin a birth-control campaign. By the middle of the next decade Indian agriculture was thriving — particularly among Sikh farmers in the Punjab.

At the same time, the Soviet partnership yielded bitter fruit. Huge steel and irrigation projects failed to pay off. Centralized planning lost its cachet. Though Russia remained a vital ally for dealing with China and Pakistan, the socialist model was rejected. In 1977, a loose band of conservative parties took the majority in the Indian parliament, or Lok Sabha, away from Mrs. Gandhi.

In opposition she learned some of the lessons of defeat. When swept back to office again in 1980, she was a chastened leader. She continued to look to Moscow for security, and did not seriously condemn Russia's invasion of Afghanistan. She stamped down hard on dissident movements in the provincial states. The Sikh bodyguards who murdered her on Oct. 31 shot for a community outraged by her attempt to restore order through occupation of the Golden Temple of Amritsar.

But she explored avenues of conciliation with Pakistan and China. She turned toward the U.S. that curious half-smile that was her trademark. Her meetings with President Reagan, at Cancun, Mexico, in October 1982, and in Washington the following year, were friendly. By some strange alchemy, the movie actor and the Brahmin's daughter were prompted to heal past wounds by a Festival of Indian Culture scheduled for June, 1985.

Rejiv, the 40-year-old son who was made head of the Congress party on her murder, offers to his own country — and the U.S. — elements of a fresh start. Unlike his illustrious grandfather and mother, he is a real, honest-to-God technician — an airline pilot by training and inclination. He restored order with dispatch, first after his mother's murder; and then after the terrible chemical leak at Bhopal. In his campaign he traveled all over India by helicopter. He sincerely admires what Americans do well. It is significant that he has brought, among many new faces in the cabinet, a minister of planning who used to be ambassador in Washington.

More impressive still, his victory was by a well nigh universal landslide. He brought in 400 members of the Lok Sabha, an 80 percent majority, far larger than Mr. Nehru or Mrs. Gandhi ever garnered. Except for three states where Mrs. Gandhi had meddled outrageously — Assam and Punjab, where voting was postponed; and Andhra Pradesh, where an effort to oust a popular chief minister had backired — he ran well all over India.

The size of that victory proves that Rajiv Gandhi is his own man — not just the relative of his relatives. The extent answers a basic question posed by a population of 700 million spread out over a vast area divided into 22 states with a bewildering variety of religions, castes and tribal affiliations. The Rajiv landslide shows that India is a nation.

Trying for a smoother relation thus makes sense for the U.S.

Jack Anderson

An official's own little war

WASHINGTON — The Federal Emergency Management Agency has commissioned a $100,000 study on how to wage economic warfare.

The private contractor, who conducted the study with substantial input from agency officials, proposes a series of new federal task forces and committees. Their purpose would be to implement a "coherent, organized and effective" federal program should the United States go to war with economic weapons. Naturally, FEMA will be in charge.

FEMA, an obscure federal agency that is supposed to prepare for natural and man-made disasters, has been criticized for attempting to grab more power than it is due. Director Louis Giuffrida has been assailed by none other than Attorney General William French Smith for trying to create an "emergency czar" role for his agency.

Washington officials question FEMA's authority to direct economic warfare. But a FEMA spokesman cited a 1962 executive order, which apparently gives the agency the claimed jurisdiction.

The spokesman insisted that "economic warfare" wasn't the agency's name for the phenomenon described in the study. FEMA prefers the term "economic defense" to define the methods of "denying adversaries U.S. resources."

But my associate Donald Goldberg has obtained a draft report of the study, and it clearly states that FEMA has "activated a pilot program to identify the ... elements of a federal offensive and defensive economic-warfare program."

The inch-thick report does not advocate any particular method of waging economic warfare; rather it recommends implementing measures on a case-by-case basis. For instance, the section titled "Offensive Economic Warfare Actions" reads as if it were written by a CIA bureau chief in Latin America. It includes these possibilities:

(1) "Currency and exchange-rate restrictions and-or manipulation"; (2) "Manipulation of gold, silver and other precious metals sales or stockpiles"; (3) "Economic espionage"; and (4) "Misinformation on products, statistics, patents and so forth."

The uninitiated might think some of those would constitute "dirty tricks" unworthy of the U.S. government. But the FEMA study is not so squeamish. It identifies (without advocating) a number of other techniques under the heading "Dirty Tricks," including:

- "The use of propaganda and false information includes measures such as publishing false information of economic failures and-or successes (i.e., disinformation)."
- "Economic disturbance and aggravation includes counterfeiting currency, fomenting labor strikes and dissent."
- "Covert, illicit and illegal actions include bribes, the stealing of technical secrets and providing a safe haven for terrorists who are hostile to the enemy."
- "Infrastructure sabotage and destruction includes measures such as industrial sabotage."

The authors of the FEMA study evidently knew what the customer wanted for his $100,000. One of the recommended systems for waging the economic-warfare program is an inter-agency committee supervised by an inter-agency policy board. The members of both panels would be chosen by — who else? — the director of FEMA.

Footnote: Agency sources say the draft study is still being evaluated, and there's no evidence that FEMA plans to pursue the subject. This would make it just another $100,000 boondoggle. Officials of the firm that did the study declined comment.

NICARAGUA UPDATE: I'd like to think it had something to do with a column I wrote several months ago reporting that Nicaraguan Indian rebels led by Steadman Fagoth had tortured and executed Sandinista government prisoners. Maybe not, but Fagoth sought out my reporter Jon Lee Anderson a few days ago to announce with great excitment that he was about to exchange 23 Sandinista captives for five Indian prisoners.

Jesse Helms, the CBS eye

By KEELY COGHLAN

Whenever I need comic relief, I turn to the antics of North Carolina Republican Sen. Jesse Helms.

Now that James Watt has departed the limelight at the Department of Interior, taking with him his messianic views of his role in Armageddon, Helms has assumed his role as the ultra-ultra-conservative of our time.

This is the man who believes religious schools should have tax-exempt status, but that children in public schools supported by the state should be required to pray.

This is the man who even the dean of archconservatives, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R.-Ariz., finds too narrow-minded and ultra-conservative.

This is the man who wants to buy CBS because it has a "left-wing" bias. For Helms, the words "centrist," "critical," "skeptical," "watchdog" don't exist.

Sen. Helms last weekend wrote letters to his conservative friends, asking them to each buy a share of CBS stock, currently selling for more than $72 a share, so they could correct its "liberal" bias.

The National Conservative Political Action Committee honored Helms' request by putting up $100,000. NCPAC is the same group that said Sen. Lloyd Bentsen was "too liberal for Texas," the group whose "negative" advertising on his behalf Sen. Phil Gramm, R.-Texas, disavowed.

The mere thought of seeing Jesse at the helm of CBS sends shivers down my spine.

And of course Helms has no self-interest involved. If he were successful at taking over CBS, he would have no stake in trying to get across his own senatorial policies or gain favorable news coverage from an "unbiased" source.

Let's be honest. CBS's news department has been recognized as one of the best since its beginning; it was the training ground for broadcast journalists.

The network gained its high reputation by practicing independent journalism. Former CBS reporter Edward R. Murrow was one of the few to take on Sen. Joseph McCarthy in the "witch-hunt" atmosphere of the 1950s and to successfully expose him.

Opinions expressed in this column are those of the staff writer and do not necessarily reflect the views of the newspaper's management.

Insight

Analyst: It's all in one's handwriting

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — You are what you write, believes David Liebman, who analyzes handwriting to find out if employees are honest, lovers are faithful or even if certain people are likely to develop cancer.

"It's another form of body language," Liebman says of graphology, the science of handwriting analysis.

For the past five years, he has been a consultant to businesses and city governments that want to know more about their employees.

Bank and restaurants have used handwriting analysis to find out if employees who handle money can be trusted not to pocket it and lawyers have used it to learn whether their secretaries will be discreet.

Some daycare centers have begun using handwriting analysis to find out if prospective employees are child molesters, he said.

Liebman has helped businesses find out who was writing anonymous letters and who was scrawling grafitti on a bathroom wall.

Individuals who come to Liebman and his partner, Robert R. Richards, often are "people who've been married once and they're a little bit gunshy," Liebman said. "They want to be sure that their boyfriend is loyal, trustworthy and compatible."

Parents can learn through handwriting analysis whether their child has a problem with shyness or if their teen-ager is depressed.

"Nothing is 100 percent accurate," said Liebman, but more than 2,000 studies have shown a high degree of accuracy in handwriting analysis, he said.

And it's hard to distort your handwriting, he added.

"Many traits that we pull out of a handwriting come from combination of strokes in a script. So there's no one thing that necessarily means that a person is a particular way," he said.

One handwriting characteristic that shows personality is the slant of the writing.

'People who've been married once and they're a little bit gunshy. They want to be sure that their boyfriend is loyal, trustworthy and compatible.'
David Liebman, analyst

If your letters are straight up and down, you're objective, reserved and keep your head in a crisis, Liebman said.

Letters that slant to the right mean the writer is emotional, dependent on others and falls in love easily. If the letters slant extremely to the right, the writer may be unstable.

A right-handed writer who slants letters to the left is withdrawn and shows inappropriate emotions. Teen-agers often write this way and change their handwriting as they mature, Liebman said.

While handwriting analysis has been used since the days of Socrates to read personality, only recently has it been considered as a diagnostic tool in medicine.

Psychiatrists as far back as Sigmund Freud have noted how emotional disorders show up in handwriting, but now scientists believe physical disorders can show up as well.

For example, after several drinks, handwriting shows the effects of alcohol by slanting downward and becoming illegible.

Other research has shown that early symptoms of multiple sclerosis can appear in handwriting.

Liebman, who is working with several area doctors, believes deficiences in the immune system that lead to cancer may show up in handwriting before other physical symptoms occur.

He has studied the handwriting of "several hundred" cancer patients and control subjects, but won't say anything beyond "results are encouraging" because the doctors are trying to avoid publicity.

The handwriting characteristics of cancer include a lack of motor control shown through skidding between letters, stretching and skipping of ink, he said.

Researching the link between handwriting and cancer is not the first unusual endeavor for Liebman, a slight, soft-spoken 40-year-old who also teaches graphology at Old Dominion University.

In the late 1960s, Liebman toured with a local band called the Pop Tops and co-wrote "I Want to Make It With You," which later became a hit for the group Bread.

Switching to other interests, he unearthed the first mastodon fossil in the area while working on a master's degree in biology. He also found a 14-legged frog that wound up in the "Ripley's Believe It Or Not" column.

He spent 10 years cross-breeding more than 62,000 combinations of guppies until he came up with a unique shocking pink guppy, called the Pingu. That discovery earned him nationwide publicity.

Graphology first attracted his attention when he read a book on the subject as a teenager.

"It looked like it was pretty accurate in evaulating me, so then I applied it to other people and since then I've read just about every book that's been printed on the topic," he said. He's also been certified by two national graphology organizations.

Besides telling people more about themselves, Liebman believes handwriting can help people change their personalities. For example, by watching their "t's."

"People who feel that they have weak self-esteem or lack of will power — generally the "t" crosses are weak and small. So if they make a conscious effort to write with heavier "t" crosses and they think about it while they're doing it, will power tends to increase," he said.

Savory snacks just the ticket for Superbowl Sunday

By TINA STEFFEN
Lifestyle Editor

The riveting culmination of the National Football League season spawns more casual at-home parties around the television than almost any other annual event. Big game anticipation, good friends and good food naturally seem to go together.

Even the most rabid football fans need to nibble as the excitement and appetites mount, so as game time approaches, set out the crackers, chips and veggies and bring on the dips, party mix, nachos and cocoa. These always-welcome, no-fuss snacks are just the ticket for kicking off an afternoon of indoor football watching. Hot or chilled, made in advance or briskly whisked together at the last minute, they are ideally easy to serve and to eat.

For this year's Superbowl party, try the spectacular dips featured in today's Herald Recipe Exchange. Also featured are a nacho platter, Cocoa Blitz, party mix and Cheddar spread.

FOOTBALL FAN'S FRIJOLE DIP
(Spicy Bean Dip)

1 16-oz. can refried beans
2 cups (8 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese
½ cup picante sauce
2 green onions with tops, thinly sliced
¾ tsp. ground cumin
¼ to ½ tsp. salt, as desired

Combine beans, 1¾ cups of the cheese, picante sauce, onion and seasonings in saucepan; cook over low heat, stirring frequently, until cheese is melted and mixture is hot. Transfer to heated serving dish, chafing dish or fondue pot. Sprinkle with remaining ¼ cup cheese. Serve with tortilla chips, corn chips or vegetable dippers. Makes about 2½ cups dip.

TOUCHDOWN TUNA DIP

1 7-oz. can water-packed tuna, drained
1½ cups (12 oz.) sour cream
⅓ cup picante sauce
1 (.7 oz.) envelope Italian salad dressing mix
2 tsps. lemon juice
1 hard-cooked egg, finely chopped
¼ cup ripe olive slices

Place tuna in mixing bowl; break up finely with fork. Add remaining ingredients except olives; mix well. Chill. Garnish with olives and additional picante sauce, if desired. Serve with crackers, chips or vegetable dippers. Makes about 2½ cups dip.

Here is a different recipe with the same name, Touchdown Tuna Dip. Take your pick on which you think your football fans will enjoy.

TOUCHDOWN TUNA DIP

½ cup salad dressing
1 8-oz. pkg. cream cheese, softened
1 6½-oz. can tuna, drained and flaked
2 Tbsps. sweet pickle relish

Gradually add salad dressing to cream cheese, mixing until well blended. Add remaining ingredients; mix well. Chill. Serve with crackers, bread rounds or vegetable dippers. Makes 2 cups.

HALF-TIME CHEDDAR SPREAD

2 cups (8 oz.) shredded sharp natural cheddar cheese
¼ cup margarine
1 Tbsp. milk
4 crisply cooked bacon slices, crumbled

Combine cheese, margarine and milk, mixing at medium speed on electric mixer until well blended. Stir in bacon. Makes 1¼ cups.

QUICK PASS PARTY MIX

½ cup margarine, melted
1 tsp. soy sauce
½ tsp. ground ginger
½ tsp. garlic salt
2 cups bite-size crispy rice squares
2 cups bite-size crispy wheat squares
2 cups chow mein noodles
1 cup peanuts
1 3½-oz. jar macadamia nuts
½ cup raisins

Combine margarine, soy sauce and seasonings. Pour over combined remaining ingredients; toss lightly. Spread on 15 x 10 x 1-inch jelly roll pan. Bake at 250 degrees, 1 hour, stirring occasionally. Makes 2 quarts.

Variation: Substitute 1 cup almonds for macadamia nuts.

COCOA BLITZ

¼ cup cocoa
¼ cup sugar
Dash of salt
½ cup coffee
1 8-oz. container (3 cups) whipped topping with real cream, thawed
3 cups milk
Ground cinnamon

Combine cocoa, sugar and salt in saucepan; stir in coffee. Cook over medium heat until mixture boils; continue cooking two minutes. Add 2 cups whipped topping; stir until melted. Gradually stir in milk; continue cooking until thoroughly heated. Top with remaining whipped topping; sprinkle with cinnamon. Serve with cinnamon stick, if desired. Makes four 1-cup servings.

SNEAK PLAY NACHO PLATTER

1 lb. pasteurized process cheese spread, cubed
¼ cup picante sauce
1 Tbsp. margarine
Tortilla chips
1 cup chopped tomatoes
¼ cup pitted ripe olive slices

Combine process cheese spread, sauce and margarine; stir over low heat until process cheese spread is melted. Arrange chips on serving platter; top with sauce, tomatoes and olives. Serves 6 to 8.

PEANUT BARS

3 cups flour
1½ cup packed brown sugar
1 tsp. salt
1 cup softened butter
2 cups roasted, salted peanuts
½ cup corn syrup
2 Tbsps. butter
1 Tbsp. water
1 (6 oz.) pkg. butterscotch chips

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In medium bowl, combine flour, sugar, salt and butter; blend well. Press into ungreased 15 x 10-inch jelly roll pan. Bake 10 to 12 minutes. Sprinkle peanuts over partially baked crust. In small saucepan, combine corn syrup, butter, water and butterscotch chips; boil two minutes, stirring constantly. Pour mixture over nuts. Bake 10 to 12 minutes more or until golden brown. Cool and cut into bars. Makes 3 to 4 dozen bars.

NEVER FAIL PEANUT BRITTLE

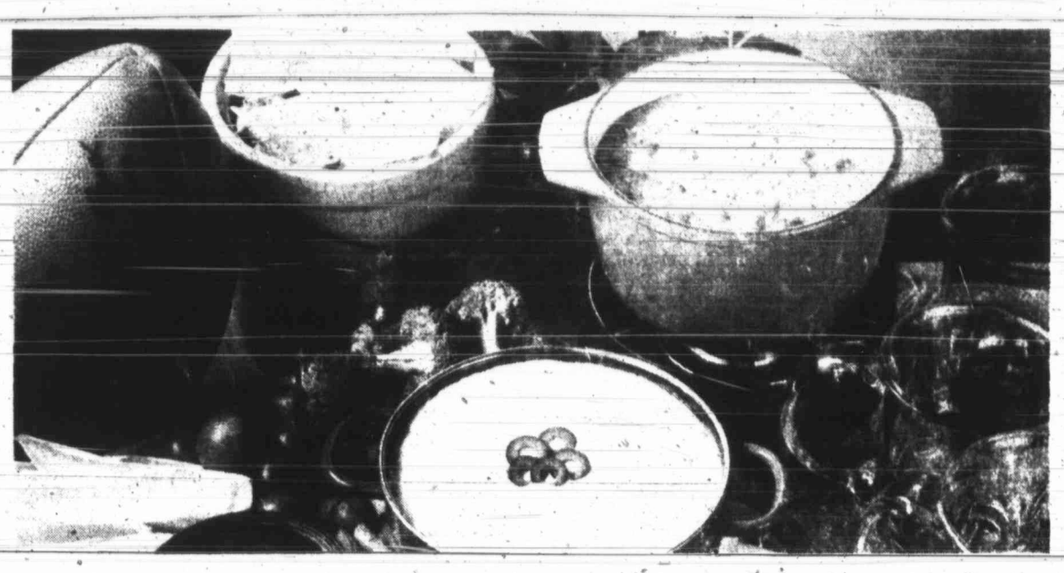

3 cups sugar
1⅓ cup white corn syrup
½ cup water
4 cups raw peanuts
1 Tbsp. butter
1 tsp. vanilla
2½ tsps. soda

In a 3-quart saucepan mix sugar, corn syrup and water. Boil until thread spins or until temperature has reached 300 degrees. Add raw peanuts. Stir constantly until temperature returns to 300 degrees. Remove from heat and quickly stir in butter, vanilla and soda. Mix well and pour mixture onto two buttered cookie sheets. Spread as thin as possible with spoon. Let cool. Turn brittle over and break into bite-size pieces. Store peanut brittle in air-tight container in cool, dry place until ready to serve. Makes about three pounds.

FIRST DOWN DIP

1 8-oz. jar pasteurized process cheese spread
½ cup sour cream
2 Tbsps. finely chopped green pepper
2 Tbsps. chopped pimiento

Combine process cheese spread and sour cream in saucepan; stir over low heat until smooth. Stir in remaining ingredients. Serve warm with vegetable dippers, chips or breadsticks. Makes 1½ cups.

DELICIOUS DIPS — With warm and hearty Football Fan's Frijole Dip and chilled Touchdown Tuna Dip at hand, armchair quarterbacks can munch away as the Superbowl excitement mounts.

Dear Abby

New romance cools when mom sets rules

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of a very pretty, popular, 15-year-old girl I'll call Lucy. She's an honor student and has never been in any kind of trouble. Her father and I had a rule that she couldn't go steady until she reached 16.

Well, Lucy met a boy, 16, from another high school, and they really fell for each other. He asked her to go steady and she said yes. Two days later he came to meet us, and I decided to set the "ground rules." I thought if he knew the rules in advance he might not put any pressure on Lucy.

I told him they must be off the phone by 9 p.m. on school nights as she had to be up at 6, at school at 7, and she needs her rest. I told him she didn't drink, that I didn't care if he drank, but he was not to drink when he was with her. I told him that he should go out with his boyfriends and Lucy would go with her girlfriends — that they shouldn't be constant companions. End of conversation. Well, he immediately got up and left — mad.

The next night they had plans to see a movie. He called Lucy to say he would pick her up, but he wouldn't come inside the house. She felt bad. I told her to explain that we love her and are interested in her well-being. Well, he thinks I don't like him and that's not true.

He didn't call Lucy all week and she was heartbroken. She finally called him and asked what was wrong. He said he wanted to break up because he hadn't felt comfortable since meeting her mom. She hung up the phone in tears and went to bed.

Abby, I feel so guilty. Was I wrong to set the ground rules on our first meeting? Or did I just handle it wrong? How should I handle situations like this in the future? Lucy has been very cool to me, and I haven't slept in a week.

WELL-MEANING MOM

DEAR MOM: Setting the ground rules is an excellent idea, but you should have discussed them with your daughter privately, and asked her to convey them to the boy.

From your description of the ground-rules briefing, you must have come off like a drill sergeant barking orders. The boy can't be blamed for wanting to break up with your daughter.

Well-meaning or not, you blew it, Mom. Apologize to Lucy and promise you will never repeat that performance again.

Dr. Donohue

Fibrositis: a rosy outlook

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have severe back and leg pains and have been diagnosed as having fibrositis. I have had CAT scans and X-rays and am taking 8-10 aspirins a day. What can you tell me as to the future? I am only 53 years old. — Mrs. R.C.Y.

Fibrositis is not like rheumatoid arthritis. It's not the joints that are involved, but the muscles and their coverings.

Now, to answer Mrs. Y: I can tell you that your future is rosy, even though that term has to be accepted in all its relative colorings. Just what exactly is amiss in fibrositis is still being debated. If you took a piece of the muscle and examined it under a microscope you would find that it looked perfectly normal, just like other muscle tissue.

What it is that causes the pain and stiffness is unknown. As you are aware, the key trigger points seem to be in the neck and hip areas. Even pressing lightly on these areas can elicit a wince. In addition to the local pain there may be a tingling sensation.

Of concern to the doctor treating the fibrositis patient is its interference with normal sleep. That often can lead to more disturbing problems, so efforts to try to control the illness are important. For some, aspirin is the only drug ever required, and I presume yours is doing the job for you. Sometimes, there may be need to inject the trigger points with a numbing agent.

There are other, non-medical treatments, too. Physical therapy and exercise within tolerance can help — walking and swimming, for examples. Hot baths have helped many patients. And if there is a sleep problem associated with it, overcoming that greatly reduces the achiness.

Your illness is neither progressive in course nor crippling in outcome. That's why I say your future is relatively rosy.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Trees are environmentally important

Doris Guy presented a program, "Trees for Texas Landscapes", at the Planters Garden Club meeting Wednesday in the home of Nadine Hodnett.

She spoke of the importance of trees for environmental purposes. Besides adding to the attractiveness of a community, trees also moderate the climate by protecting from extremes of wind, heat, cold and drought, said Mrs. Guy. They also help to purify the air. Many birds and animals depend on trees for food and shelter.

Espaliers are trees trained in different shapes to fit certain spaces and are most frequently used as trellises. The development of espaliers began when crusaders brought back with them the superior varieties of fruit which they found in the gardens of Damascus and Asia Minor. They planted them in solar gardens, usually against castle walls, where the trees found protection from strong winds. These narrow, confined spaces enforced restriction of growth which could only be obtained by systemic pruning.

Espaliers can be grown successfully almost anywhere in America. Because of their beauty and form, they help meet many garden problems. Varieties of fruit trees are chosen for their quality and suitability to espalier training. The gardener who does not wish to train the trees can obtain them full grown and fruit bearing. However, amateurs can take care of espalier trees and do the necessary pruning with a small amount of study and time. Summer pruning is important during the period of vegetative growth. Espaliers require the same sprays and dusts as other fruit trees, as they are subject to the same diseases and insect pests.

Ordinary garden soil is sufficient for good growth of espalier trees. An espalier tree has these advantages: it takes little room, the fruit grows within arm's reach, and the fruit is larger and better flavored than ordinary fruit.

Girl Scouts begin annual cookie sale

The West Texas Girl Scout Council will have its annual cookie sale March 1-16.

The cookies, supplied by Famous Foods of Virginia, are $2 a box. Proceeds go to the maintenance of Council properties, camperships, and Summer Wider Opportunities for older girls.

A new cookie was added this year, Lemon Pastry Cremes.

Student nurses to be honored at capping ceremony

Twenty-six student nurses in the Vocational Nursing Class of 1984-1985 will be honored during Howard College's Capping Ceremony Thursday at 1 p.m. at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The ceremony is a milestone signifying that the students have finished the first part of their nursing education and are expected to complete the full training.

During the ceremony, nurses' caps and Bibles will be presented to student nurses by: Mrs. Robert Penner of Gideon's Auxiliary; Ramona Harris, R.N., director of Licensed Vocational Nursing Program; June Stone, R.N., and Jean Morris, R.N., instructors in LVN Program.

Student nurses to be capped are: Leanne Allred, Kimberly Bairrington, Kristy Brooks, Rose Carrillo, Ginger Cline, Fran Cullins, Diandra Domino, Melinda Fraley, Ann Gaffney, Susan Garcia, Dolores Gutierrez, Elida Hernandez, Gwen Jewett, Mary McPherson, Sheri Nichols, Carol Pate, Lottie Powers, Brenda Powers, Lynn Robertson, Susan Smith, Debra Stevenson, Edna Stowe, Carol Swafford, Debra Watkins, Jo Williams and Terri Wyatt.

Seminole swim teams splash past Big Spring

By STEVE BELVIN
Staff Writer

The Seminole Indians swim teams came away with wins over Big Spring High teams in a dual meet here last night at the YMCA pool.

The Indians girls team outscored the Lady Steers swim team by a 42-27 margin. The Seminole boys had a tougher time but managed to outpoint the Steers by a slim 38-32 margin.

The boys team race was a dandy, one that went down to the final two events of the night. The 100 yard breaststroke and the 400 freestyle relay decided the winner.

Going into the 100 yard breaststroke the Steers trailed Seminole by a 28-27 margin. Seminole made up some points when Matt Clark outswam Big Spring's Shamir Caplan in the race, giving Seminole a 32-29 lead and assuring the Indians at least a tie even if Big Spring won the final event.

Seminole made sure it would win hands down as they outdistanced Big Spring by almost a minute-and-a-half in the relay.

The Steers made a a run at the Indians going into the 500 yard freestyle race. They trailed 24-17 at the time but Scott Ferguson's first place finish and Don Deflitch's third place pulled Big Spring to within 26-22.

Ferguson won the race in a slow 6:08.19, well of his season best of 5:53. After the 11th lap he simpled pulled away from the rest of the field winning in easy fashion. After the win he admitted that he had forgotten there was a meet untill a couple of hours before meet time.

"That's wasn't a good time," said Ferguson. "I had just eaten after coming back from a ski trip. Then I realized that we had a meet today. I didn't try to push too hard because I knew my opponents were well behind me."

The Steers got their second consecutive first place when Cade Loftin and Dean Payne finished 1-3 in the 100 yard backstroke, narrowing the margin to 28-27. Loftin, who was suffering from a bruised toe, pulled out to an early lead and never trailed.

"I kicked my toe on the bed," explained Loftin when enquired about his noticeable limp. "I didn't try to push it much tonight. Going into the second length I felt comfortable, like I was going to win."

Ferguson and Loftin were the lone first place boys finishers in the individual events. The 160 yard medley relay team of Loftin, Caplin, Deflitch and Ferguson won the event in a clocking of 1:39.28.

other top Steers finishers were second places by Deflitch in the 200 yard freestyle, Ferguson, 160 yard intermediate and Loftin in the 100 yard butterfly.

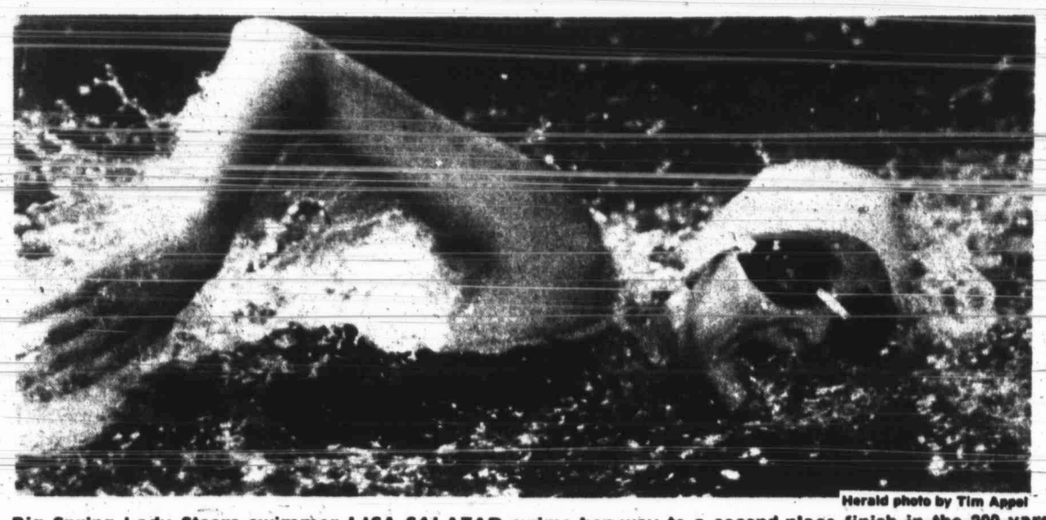

In the girls division Seminole led led from start to finish behind duble wins from Jennifer Jones in the 200 yard freestyle and 500 yard freestyle. Cindy Wengar won the 160 yard intermediate and finished second in the 100 yard breaststroke.

Big Spring's only individual first place came from Lisa Salazar in the 100 yard breaststroke in a time of 1:23:34.

Second place finishers were Salazar in the 200 freestyle and Rose Meir in the 60 yard freestyle. Other second place finishers were Hartley Newell in the 100 yard freestyle, Denise Guiterrez in the 500 yard freestyle and Victoria Logan in the 100 yard backstroke.

The Lady Steers closed out the meet on a winning note by taking a victory in the 400 yard freestyle relay. The team of Newell, Meir, Tiffany Milch and Guiterrez clocked a season-best 4:40.63.

Big Spring coach Harlan Smith was proud of his team's performance. "We are improving our times," said Smith. Our girls are learning how to swim and getting better. They will suprise some people at the district meet in the individual events."

Sands sweeps Forsan in 16-A basketball

By CHARLIE ALCORN
Sports Writer

ACKERLY — Utilizing a hot shooting touch and stingy full court defense in both games, the Sands Mustangs and Lady Mustangs swept a District 16—A doubleheader from Forsan Tuesday night.

In the boys game, Sands ran off 18 unanswered points late in the third and beginning of the fourth period to bust open an otherwise tight game and pull away for a 65-41 victory. The Mustangs scoring was keyed by the long range bombing of junior swingman Leland Bearden who had 21 points on the night.

Coach Randy Spain had praise for his entire squad, citing point guard John Willis and his bench for their fine play. "Our second five came in and never let up on Forsan, they played as good as the starters which made all the difference tonight. Also, our point guard Johnny Willis had one of his best games all year running the offense."

In the first half Forsan kept things close behind the red hot shooting of senior forward Mitch Hayes, who had twelve points in the first quarter. The Buffaloes remained within striking distance at the half with Sands up 30—26.

After trading baskets for the most of the third period, Sands came out with an aggresive press, forcing six Forsan turnovers which Sands was able to convert into a 43-36 lead at the end of the quarter. The Mustangs continued their unanswered scoring streak at the start of the fourth as the Forsan shooters continued to be cold from the floor. The Buffaloes could only muster five points in the final quarter allowing Sands to cruise to the 24 point victory.

Hayes finished with 14. for the Buffaloes and post man Lee Morris added nine. Forsan fell to 0-9 on the year with the loss.

Mark McMullen added 15 for the Mustangs and post Brent Staggs had 12 to round out the scoring. Sands record went to 10-9 for the season and 2-0 in district.

In the girls game, Sands' Lisa Iden was hitting on all cylinders as her 27 points powered the Lady Mustangs to a 49-35 victory over the Buffalo Queens. Iden, who had 10 points in a critical third quarter scoring spree , was unstoppable as she and a hawking Sands defense put the Queens away.

At the end of the first quarter Sands had a two point, 10-8 lead, but as the half neared, the Lady Mustangs hit several unanswered buckets to build a comfortable 23-14 lead by halftime. All five Mustang starters hit baskets in the second quarter rally.

Lady Mustang coach Joe Blake said that this was a must win for his girls, "We had a couple of meetings this week and I told the girls they had to be dedicated and play total team ball if we were going to get back in the district race. We played a good mental ballgame and am delighted with our prospects if we continue to play this way."

Junior Kristi Evans led the Queens with 12 points and Debra Smith chipped in eight.

The Lady Mustang defense was led by senior post Michelle Bayes, who continued her season long board domination, and guards Pandy Grigg and Stephani Shortes. Sands is now 1-1 in 16—A action and faces Grady this Thursday in another district doubleheader.

Odessa stops Steers

ODESSA — The Big Spring Steers lost a tight game to the Odessa High Bronchos, 67-58, in District 4-5A action Tuesday night. The Steers were poised to break away for their first district win but could not shake the fiesty Bronchos.

Big Spring got out to an early 14-11 first quarter lead and still remained close at the half with Odessa leading 27-24. A rash of turnovers in the third quarter plus an unfortunate Steer cold streak from both field and line, enabled the Bronchos to pull away for the nine point win.

The Steers were unable to sustain a consistent attack as the Broncho press and some poor ball handling kept the Big Spring offense from gaining momentum. Coach Mike Randle's squad showed signs of a comeback in the four quarter but were turned back by a number of fouls which Odessa as able to capitalize on from the line.

Mike Lueschner led the Steers with 21 points and Benard Williams had 15. Senior Tim Hastings, who started his first game of the year, had a fine game including nine points.

Odessa featured a balanced scoring attack. Gary Bunker led all scorers with 23 points, Gary Bunker gunned in 21 and Paul Chevez tallied 16.

Big Spring remained winless in district competition, falling to 0-5 and 6-17 on the year. The Steers will be at home Friday night against Abilene High.

Pokes show no interest in Flutie

DALLAS (AP) — Head coach Tom Landry of the Dallas Cowboys says it is unlikely the team will try to trade up in the National Football League draft in an effort to get Boston College quarterback Doug Flutie.

"We don't feel we have a need for a quarterback for the price (draft picks) we would have to pay to get him," Landry said Tuesday. "We are satisfied with our quarterbacks."

Flutie is expected to be gone by the time the Cowboys' 17th pick in the draft comes around.

Landry's comments came from Oakland, where he will be an analyst for the ABC telecase Sunday of the Super Bowl game between the San Francisco 49ers and the Miami Dolphins.

Gil Brandt, the Cowboys' director of player personnel, had said during Cotton Bowl week, when Boston College was playing Houston, that the Cowboys might consider some type of trade of draft picks to have a shot at picking Flutie.

Danny White and Gary Hogeboom shared the starting quarterback duties last season for the Cowboys. At times, both have indicated they would rather be traded than go through another season of not knowing whether the starting job was theirs.

Landry said recently he is leaning toward keeping both White and Hogeboom.

Garden City sweeps Grady

GARDEN CITY — The Garden City Bearkats and Lady Kats swept a district 16—A doubleheader from Grady in a critical league contest Tuesday night.

In the boys game, the Bearkats pulled out the win in a tight contest, 54-47. Garden City's Brian Dalton led all scorers with 24 points and Bryan Thompson chipped in 12 in the winning cause.

Dennis Sawyer was the leading scorer for Grady with 13 and Fred Garza canned 12 for the Wildcats. Grady's record fell to 0-2 in district play.

Garden City is now 3-0, and in first place in 16—A with a 3-0 loop record.

In the girls game, the Lady kats cruised to a 47-35 victory behind leading scorers Jana Hunter and Dannette Holdampf with 14 apiece. Garden City raised its district leading 3-0 with the win.

Sophomore Shelly Tunnell led Grady with 13 points for the night.

Stanton girls down McCamey

STANTON — Stanton split District 8-2A win with the McCamey Badgers here last night.

The Stanton girls held off the Lady Badgers by a 30-22 score. Sebrena Finch led the Stanton scoring with 12 points as its district record goes to 1-2.

The Stanton boys lost their second consecutive close game as they fell to the Badgers by a score of 65-62.

Wayne Gonzales led Stanton with a game-high 27 points. Kevin Glaspie added 15 and Derrick Sorley 12. Stanton has now lost their last two games by a total of four points. Stanton is 0-3 in district play.

DENNIS THE MENACE

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

"Boy! You can really clap loud with those things!"

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JAN. 17, 1985

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A startling event can make you want to act quickly so you can get out from under some untenable position, but you would merely get into some other confrontational crises.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You desire to get off to new interests but don't be forceful otherwise you spoil your chances with one who can assist you.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You had better face up to some obligation instead of trying to worm yourself out of it. Be more harmonious with your mate.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You may want to change partners or add another hastily, but it would be better to sleep on on it first and be sure of what is best.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Don't get frustrated with your job but find better ways of handling if efficiently. Hit on a more logical perspective.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Some extravagance you may indulge in today could bring remorse soon or you get severely criticized, so be more economical instead.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't make those changes at home until you get the OK from all who dwell there.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You may get a letter that can help you to advance very quickly to your career. Get rid of that flaw in the path of your progress.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Some financial investment you may make could work to your detriment, so study it well. Don't lose your temper.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you try to get out of some unpleasant matter, be careful not to act hastily. Enjoy yourself socially in the evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You think you can quickly rid yourself of some constant worry, but give it more thought and then handle it wisely.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't follow the advice of a person whose ideas are different from your own. Be more willing to accept help, though.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Take it slow and easy at your regular work and do it accurately, without trying to make revisions.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will have many talents but will have to gradually come out with them since they are advanced and the public would not accept them readily, and therefore have to be proven with the assistance of other pioneers. Teach to be patient and later a big name can be made.

Resolve to be a homeowner in the New Year!
5 Excellent reasons that you may never find a better time to purchase a home:
1. SELECTION — Over 400 properties now on the market offer a wide range of prices and amenities.
2. PRICE — During the last year, housing values have come down appreciably.
3. INTEREST RATE — Lower rates provide the best payment range since June, 1983.
4. AVAILABLE MONEY — Funds are readily available, and there are numerous loan packages tailored to fit your needs.
5. TAX BENEFITS — Home ownership provides deductions while enjoying the amenities of private property ownership.
