Campaign ad wars take personal turn

■ Both sides launch ad attacks portraying Dole as quitter, Clinton as hypocrite.

Associated Press

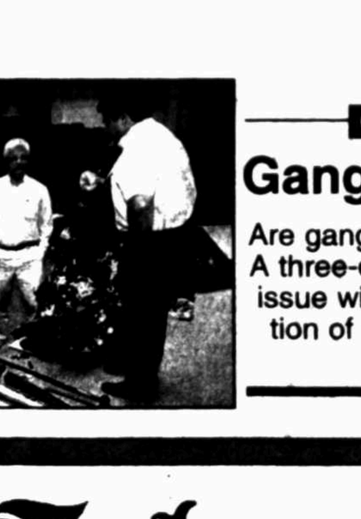

WASHINGTON — A new Clinton campaign ad portrays Bob Dole as a quitter, and a GOP spot snickers at Clinton's claims that a sexual harassment case could be delayed because he's commander in chief. With Election Day still nearly six months away, the presidential ad war is getting intensely personal.

The Clinton campaign spot, released Friday, portrays Dole as "quitting, giving up, leaving behind the gridlock he helped create" by deciding to resign from the Senate. The RNC ad, timed to coincide with Memorial Day weekend, helps resurrect questions about Clinton's avoidance of the Vietnam draft.

Both sides sought to portray themselves as taking the high ground against unfair attacks.

"We relish any debate comparing Bob Dole answering his country's call to duty and Bill Clinton's response when called to duty by his country," said Republican National Committee Chairman Haley Barbour. "Bob Dole doesn't know what it means to dodge his responsibili-

Bond foes call for legal action against district

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

A group opposed to the proposed $110 million bond to repair and upgrade Midland schools is calling for legal action to be taken against the local school district.

According to Richard Bowdon, Citizens For Fiscal Responsibility spokesman, the Midland Independent School District has "crossed the line into illegal partisan advocacy" in disseminating educational materials within the community.

The group met Friday with County Attorney Mark Dettman and asked that he "take immediate action against the use of taxpayer's money to lobby for the bond," Bowdon said.

CFR members maintain that the district has violated the law by submitting informational materials that support the passing of the bond.

MISD Superintendent Joseph Baressi, however, discounted claims made by the group.

"We have passed every piece of material, every activity ... every flier ... through our attorney," Baressi said. Principals were asked to send copies of everything they passed out so that the Houston-based bond attorney could clear them, he said.

"All of the informational pieces have been reviewed by our financial adviser and our bond counsel,"

Gramm touts tax cut, pumps gas

By Joe Gaines
Staff Writer

U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm was in Midland Friday pumping gas, which he hopes will be 4.3 cents a gallon cheaper after a tax repeal.

The 4.3 cent gasoline tax is unfair to West Texas drivers because they have to travel longer distances, Gramm said.

"Texas drivers spend twice as much on gasoline as those in New York," Gramm said.

The tax has cost Texans $852 million and $11.3 billion nationally since 1993, when the additional 4.3 cents was added, Gramm said.

"One third of the price of gasoline goes to the government in taxes," Gramm said.

The tax also has been detrimental to the oil industry because it has made it harder for domestic companies to compete with OPEC, and as a result has cost jobs for Americans, Gramm said.

A repeal — until the end of the year — of the 4.3-cent-per-gallon tax was approved by the House Tuesday. The bill, approved by a Senate committee on Thursday, will be voted on by the whole Congress sometime after the Memorial Day recess.

Gramm said the bill has bipartisan support and he expects President Clinton to sign it. Clinton said May 8 that he would support the Republican repeal if they sent him a separate bill on raising the minimum wage.

The gas tax was directed toward the general fund of the U.S. Treasury for the purpose of deficit reduction and was part of a Democrat provision in the 1993 Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act.

Radio pitchman

WASHINGTON — President Clinton has taken the sleepy Saturday presidential radio address, a latter-day offspring of FDR's fireside chats, and refined it into a pointed, and sometimes mischievous, political weapon. Republicans are crying foul, even though they get time for a radio response. Last Saturday, Clinton used the address to praise Wisconsin's new welfare-to-work experiment — upstaging Bob Dole's trip to the state three days later by seizing Sunday headlines and national television exposure. "If you've ever seen a spin machine, they've got a great one in the White House," the presumptive Republican presidential nominee complained. "They spin all week and all weekends. ... It's been in overtime this weekend." Today's address? White House spokesman Mike McCurry says it will deal with the Memorial Day Weekend and sacrifices by Americans in the military.

Oilman talks about future of industry, role of independents in Permian Basin

By Ellen Hopkins

Jim Henry, who founded Henry Petroleum in 1969, said he would like to see Midland/Odessa become the headquarters for overseas operations in the way that the area has become renown for some industry-related service and supply companies.

"The Permian Basin is the applied-technology leader of the world because we have more CO2 floods and waterfloods," he said.

These floods, he explained, and other advances in technology are key to extending the estimated life expectancy of producing fields.

Henry spoke to the Executive Oil and Gas Conference Friday about the future of the industry in the Permian Basin and the role independents should play.

"There are two types of independents," Henry said. "The exploitationists and the depletionists. Every independent today must make a conscious decision to be one or the other, because I don't think you can be both."

Henry defined exploitationist as an independent with a large staff of tech-

Burma regime finds new ways to silence pro-democracy leader

By Robert Horn
Associated Press

RANGOON, Burma — When the military council that rules Burma freed pro-democracy leader Aung San Suu Kyi last July from six years of house arrest, they told her no restrictions would be placed on her activities.

That's not what happened.

Instead, the generals and colonels have adopted new methods, boxing in the charismatic woman known simply as "The Lady" by erecting roadblocks, canceling trains and jailing more than 200 of her followers this week to prevent a major pro-democracy meeting.

Suu Kyi remains free — for now — but largely powerless.

She seldom goes far from the ramshackle lakeside compound where she spent six years in confinement. Anytime a trip even hints of politics — like visiting Rangoon's most sacred pagoda on a national holiday — she finds soldiers blocking the road or the train she is supposed to take canceled.

The military regime opens a small window of opportunity each week, when up to 2,000 supporters gather at her house to hear her speak. Suu Kyi avoids confrontation on these occasions, but the poise and courage she showed in staring down armed soldiers eight years ago still come through.

So does her charm. Petite and attractive, Suu Kyi is just beginning to show her 50 years. Even hard-bitten journalists report being smitten during interviews as she articulates her views with understated humor.

Unfortunately for Suu Kyi, her charm doesn't seem to affect the military council, known by its acronym SLORC.

The military has ruled Burma since 1962, and few people remember life under civilian rule.

Critics call the recent crackdown evidence of paranoia. Yet it also seems to demonstrate that the regime can attract foreign investment even as it crushes the democratic opposition.

Suu Kyi, who won the 1991 Nobel Peace Prize for her non-violent promotion of democracy, likened the arrest of her followers to the regime lopping off branches of a tree to leave the trunk to die.

"Anything can happen in a country ruled by an authoritarian regime," Suu Kyi said. "I expect there will probably be more arrests. This shows the SLORC's true colors."

Those colors are more subtle than they once were. In 1988, the military regime gunned down hundreds of pro-democracy supporters in Rangoon. In 1989, the SLORC placed Suu Kyi under house arrest. In 1990, the regime allowed democratic elections, but ignored the results when Suu Kyi's National League for Democracy captured 392 of 485 contested seats.

The new SLORC is more skilled at repression and smarter at gauging how far it can go. So it permits Suu Kyi her freedom — at least in name — to appease governments and businesses eager to do business with Burma but concerned about their reputations.

Under Gen. Than Shwe, who became SLORC chairman in 1992, the generals have shown a new pragmatism — arresting party members and supporters in an effort to destroy Suu Kyi's support. With Burmese afraid to associate openly with her, the generals can declare she has no support, eventually eroding her stature abroad.

Meanwhile, the regime finds new business partners.

While the U.S. State Department was deploring the recent arrests, Roger Truitt, president of Atlantic Richfield Co., was pictured Friday in state-run newspapers negotiating deals with Gen. Khin Nyunt, head of the secret police.

Shown with them was SLORC member Gen. Maung Aye — who threatened last week to "annihilate" Suu Kyi.

Such threats force Burmese into silence.

Shortly after Suu Kyi's release, hotel clerks crowded around visiting journalists to hear tapes of interviews with her. But by last November, a clerk asked to translate a Suu Kyi speech refused, saying she feared jail.

"They work by paranoia. No one is sure who is informing for the government and who is not," said an entrepreneur who marched for democracy in 1988. Fearing arrest, he spoke only on condition of anonymity.

Suu Kyi believes Burma's economy — once the richest in Southeast Asia — will falter under the generals' management. Inflation runs at 35 percent, and a steady worsening, she believes, will eventually spark new resistance to the regime.

What form would it take? On Thursday, a land mine derailed a train heading from Rangoon to Mandalay, killing nine people. State-run media blamed ethnic Karen rebels — but they don't hold the area.

"We may never get democracy," said Khin Thein, an accountant. "But the people will always love Aung San Suu Kyi. She has already sacrificed so much for us."

Yeltsin's coalition talks fail; Kremlin warns of risks

MOSCOW (AP) — Boris Yeltsin's last-ditch efforts to unite democrats against his Communist rival broke down Friday when a top reformer said talks with the president were off.

In the final weeks before the June 16 presidential election, Yeltsin has been trying to push other democrats out of the race so they won't siphon off votes he needs to defeat Communist Party leader Gennady Zyuganov.

Yeltsin political aide Georgy Satarov told The Associated Press on Friday that the apparent demise of a coalition including Yeltsin, Grigory Yavlinsky and other reformers "means a loss of the chance to win in the first round and an increase in the risk of losing the election."

Just as in December's parliamentary elections, when Communists received the most votes, Russia's leading democrats remain fractured and unwilling to compromise their own ambitions.

Yavlinsky told reporters Friday on a campaign trip in Novgorod, northwest of Moscow, that he would not withdraw from the race or hold any more talks with Yeltsin until after the election's first round on June 16.

Virtually all polls in the 11-candidate race show the economist will fail to qualify for the likely July 7 second round, which is expected to pit Yeltsin against Zyuganov.

"We're still set on winning," Yavlinsky, the leader of the reformist Yabloko group, was quoted by the ITAR-Tass news agency as saying.

In the past, Yavlinsky has said he could back Yeltsin if the president were to fire the defense minister and other top officials whom Yavlinsky blames for the war in Chechnya — leaving the door open to compromise.

But Yeltsin, whose aggressive campaigning has pulled him even with Zyuganov or slightly ahead in the polls, has signaled unwillingness to make wholesale changes.

"I won't allow anyone to trade in portfolios. The executive is not a card shuffler," he told the Izvestia newspaper in an interview published Friday.

"The presidential team is changing, and will continue to change, but not because of momentary political reasons and even less under pressure from opponents," he was quoted as saying.

A miffed Yavlinsky pooh-poohed the notion of endorsing Yeltsin.

"I couldn't even manage to talk my own wife into voting for him," he said during a meeting with university students and professors in Novgorod, according to the Interfax news agency.

Yeltsin once was the darling of reformers, but millions of Russians have soured on him after years of hardship since the Soviet breakup. They accuse him of erratic behavior, faltering reforms and a corrupt government.

He is trying to capitalize on strong anti-Communist sentiment to overcome his sagging popularity — but so are many other candidates. Analysts say only Yeltsin is capable of beating Zyuganov, who boasts a loyal backing that is strongest in the provinces and among older voters.

Much-publicized efforts to create a so-called Third Force consisting of Yavlinsky, retired Lt. Gen. Alexander Lebed and eye surgeon Svyatoslav Fyodorov foundered when they all insisted on staying in the race.

France mourns 7 monks beheaded by Armed Islamic Group in Algeria

PARIS (AP) — Seven candles burned for weeks in Notre Dame Cathedral in silent vigil for seven French monks kidnapped in Algeria. Then their captors beheaded them — and the candles were snuffed out.

Stung by the brutality of the slayings of missionaries, some of them elderly, the French government denounced on Friday the Muslim militants who have been bloodying its former colony for the past four years.

The militants who said they severed the monks' heads earlier this week belong to the Armed Islamic Group — the same group that claimed responsibility for some of the terror bombings that killed eight people and wounded 160 others in France last year.

"These crimes will never be erased from our memories. And France's memory is long," Foreign Minister Herve de Charette said.

The slayings, which dominated French newspapers and TV on Friday, could damage the credibility of Algerian President Liamine Zeroual, who has sought to show he was controlling the militants.

It was not immediately clear how the slayings would affect French-Algerian relations, ties the militants have sought to damage. Foreign Ministry spokesman Yves Doutriaux said relations with Algeria remain "close and constant."

Algeria's insurgency began in January 1992, when the government canceled legislative elections that Islamic candidates were poised to win. More than 40,000 people have been killed.

France has urged French citizens to leave Algeria. About 2,000, mostly businessmen and diplomats, remain despite the slayings of at least 33 of their countrymen over the past four years.

The Foreign Ministry said it was still working to confirm the beheadings. De Charette, however, said the seven had "without doubt been assassinated."

"These are programmed, premeditated murders of men who lived their faith in poverty and a spirit of solidarity and sacrifice," Prime Minister Alain Juppe said Friday.

At the Vatican, Pope John Paul II condemned the killings and called religious violence "a grave offense to God and man." In Washington, State Department spokesman Nicholas Burns said that if confirmed, "those murders would be an especially heinous act of political violence."

The Armed Islamic Group, the most violent of the factions trying to topple the Algerian government and install strict Islamic rule, claimed the killings in a communique delivered Thursday to a Moroccan radio station.

The extremist group said the seven Trappist clerics, kidnapped March 27 from their monastery in mountains about 40 miles south of Algiers, were beheaded Tuesday.

They said they killed the monks — aged 59 to 80 — because French officials refused to negotiate their release. Juppe responded angrily Friday, saying: "You know that we never negotiate with terrorists."

WEATHER WATCH

Today near 90, chance of storms

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with isolated late afternoon thunderstorms, but less than a 20 percent chance of rain. The high will be near 90 and winds will be from the south at 15-25 mph and gusty, according to the National Weather Service.

Tonight's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with a 20 percent chance of evening thunderstorms and a low in the mid- to upper 60s.

Sunday is expected to be partly cloudy with 20 percent chance of thunderstorms and a high in the upper 80s.

The high for Friday was 94, compared to the record high for that date of 108, set in 1989.

Friday's low was 73, compared to the record low of 48 set in 1940.

STATE

Hot winds continued to bake and buffet most of the state under sunny skies Friday.

A low pressure area over the Texas and Oklahoma panhandles brought gusty southerly winds of 15 to 30 mph to much of North Texas. A few thunderstorms developed in the north part of the Texas Panhandle. At 3 p.m. temperatures ranged from 87 degrees in Abilene to 95 degrees in Waco, Dallas, Denton and Mineral Wells.

Morning clouds were forecast for today of Memorial Day weekend, followed by partly cloudy skies. There was a slight chance of thunderstorms northwest, with the high expected from 89 to 93.

South Texas saw partly to mostly cloudy skies, with a large area of high clouds over the middle Rio Grande Valley and the Hill Country helping to hold temperatures down Friday afternoon. Temperatures were generally in the 80s and 90s with near-record temperatures expected across the area again this afternoon. As of 3 p.m. no record high temperatures had been reached.

The forecast for the West Texas/Oklahoma panhandle area calls for partly cloudy skies through Sunday. There was a chance for mainly afternoon and evening showers and thunderstorms today and Sunday for all but the far west. Some storms were expected to be severe, especially over northern portions of the region.

NATION

Severe thunderstorms rumbled through the Midwest and Ohio on Friday, and it rained in the desert Southwest. It was clear to partly cloudy in New England and hot and dry in the Southeast.

Strong thunderstorms extended from eastern Iowa into northern Illinois, Indiana, and into central Ohio. A few isolated severe storms erupted in the morning at the West Virginia-Virginia line, dropping half-inch hail near the town of Hurricane, W.Va., in the southwestern part of the state.

A strong low pressure system across the desert Southwest brought unseasonable rain showers from Las Vegas into Southern California. The rain was accompanied by wind gusting to 30 mph.

Scattered showers also fell across the Great Basin of Nevada and western Utah, and snow was possible in higher elevations. Scattered thunderstorms also were expected in northeastern Colorado.

Temperatures in the Lower 48 states Friday ranged from a morning low of 24 at Yellowstone, Wyo., to a midafternoon high of 95 at Maxwell Air Force Base in Montgomery, Ala.

ATTACK: Clinton, Dole forces launch ad war

(From 1A)

ty."

White House spokesman Mike McCurry complained that the presidential campaign had "turned very nasty and very ugly very quickly once the Republicans became desperate about their situation."

He called the newest GOP ad "a cheap shot" and accused the Republicans of engaging in "spitball politics" and putting "smudge" on the air.

But even as he spoke, the Clinton campaign was distributing its ad faulting Dole for deciding to leave the Senate.

"He told us he would not leave. He told us he could do his job and run for president; that he was a doer and not a talker," the ad says. "Then he told us he was quitting, giving up, leaving behind the gridlock he helped create."

Dole campaign manager Scott Reed pointed out that on May 15, Clinton had "warmly praised Bob Dole as he resigned from the Senate. Today, Bill Clinton viciously attacks him for the same decision. That is the kind of hypocrisy that frustrates so many voters and is so common from this president."

Clinton and the Democratic National Committee have been hitting the airwaves in key electoral states all spring to promote the Clinton record. The newest Clinton ad was airing in markets nationwide at a cost of about $1.2 million.

Hampered by dwindling resources, Dole's camp has been slow to respond. GOP sources said the party's new ad would run only on CNN and in Washington, at a cost of about $125,000, part of the $12 million the party is allowed to give directly to its candidate. GOP officials clearly hoped the ad would get wider exposure through free media attention.

Given Clinton's big lead in the polls, Republicans sought to portray the president's negative ad as a sign of insecurity.

"It's only a smart thing to do if this is a close race," said Alex Castellanos, a Republican media adviser. "Why is a guy with a 20-point lead acting like a desperate man?"

Veterans groups were angered this week when Clinton's lawyers told the Supreme Court his role as commander in chief of the armed forces could entitle him to a postponement of a civil lawsuit filed by a former Arkansas state employee who says Clinton propositioned her in 1991.

"Active duty???" the ad asks, while displaying footage of Clinton golfing, jogging and biking. "Bill Clinton ... He's really something."

"For the president to claim he is entitled to the defense given to our active duty military personnel is the most classic example of what people don't like about Bill Clinton," Barbour said. "It is the height of hypocrisy."

Joe Lockhart, spokesman for the Clinton campaign, stressed that Clinton's attorneys mentioned that option in conjunction with a handful of other alternatives for the justices to consider.

"The Republicans ... have little to say on the issues important to Americans, so they resort to mischaracterizing the record and lowering themselves to negative personal attacks," Lockhart said.

Trying to keep an earlier GOP ad off the air, the Democratic National Committee on Friday sent letters urging broadcasters to reject an RNC ad that it said misrepresents Clinton's position on welfare reform.

The DNC called the Republican claim that Clinton supports welfare for illegal immigrants "entirely a fabrication." The RNC charge, in ads unveiled Thursday, apparently was based on a newspaper report that said Clinton wouldn't reject "social services" for illegal aliens.

DNC communications director David Eichenbaum said "social services" meant such programs as Head Start, not welfare cash assistance.

FUTURE: Oilman talks about independents' role

(From 1A)

nical people — geologists, engineers, accountants and landmen — capable of instituting floods and conducting field studies. On the other hand, depletionists have virtually no technical staff, yet have an advantage in that they can operate fields less expensively.

In his review of independents' role in the future of the basin, he based his outlook on megatrends, i.e. long-term, 100-year trends that depict history and averages, rather than short-term, 15- to 20-year trends. He showed curves depicting crude oil price fluctuations over the last 100 years.

"The medium price, expressed in terms of 1993 dollars, is $15 per barrel," Henry said. "Expressed in terms of 1996 dollars the medium would be about $16 per barrel. I look for prices to stay up for the next three years, but eventually come back to the average of $16 per barrel."

Henry warned the independents that they should not take a "watch and see what happens" position or they might be steam-rolled in the process.

"The sands of time are strewn with companies that didn't change," said Henry, quoting some advice given to him years ago.

Much of his analysis of megatrends was centered around King Hubbert's Curve predictions. In 1956 Hubbert projected the peak and decline of the lower 48 states' production from 1918 to 1995, resulting in a bell-shaped, symmetrical curve. The projection applies to a closed basin, which Henry said accurately depicts the lower 48 states.

"It takes several million years to make oil, so U.S. supplies are basically a closed container," he said.

Henry said history has matched Hubbert's projection for 75 years. The Hubbert Curve, which begins in 1918 with a plotted production of 1 million barrels of oil a day, depicts increasing production to a peak in 1970. Projections of this curve carry production until the year 2023 when the rate again falls to 1 million barrels a day. However, Henry said this projection can be changed if technology assists it.

He took Hubbert's curve a step further and split it into three ages, each of which he named a separate stage. From 1918 to 1953, a period in which the curve inclines sharply, was referred to as the "Young Life" of producing basins. From 1953 to 1988 he designated "Middle Age" and the years from 1988 to 2023 as "Mature Age."

"Young Life is also the stage of exploration when fields were being discovered," Henry said. "It was a time that favored major oil companies over independents due to the risks involved and the majors having the financial and human resources to capitalize on exploration."

He said Middle Age was synonymous with the stage of exploitation that also favored the major oil companies.

"The majors owned most of the large fields and had the money to begin flood projects," he said. "It was a time when engineers dominated and majors continued to take risks on enhanced recovery projects."

He said in 1996 the industry is eight years into the "Mature Age" and have 27 years left until 2023. Henry described this time period as the stage of depletion. However, he said it is a favorable time for independents that have lower overhead and can operate producing properties economically.

"It could be called the age of innovation," Henry said. "It's a time of 3-D seismic, horizontal drilling, coiled tubing and everything else required to produce economically."

The average size of oil and natural gas fields found in the United States during the Middle Age (1953 to 1988) was approximately 3 million barrels of oil equivalent. But that has changed dramatically.

"The average size of a field found is now less than 0.5 million barrels of oil equivalent," Henry said. "The adjustment we have to make as independents is to cut costs."

He illustrated his point by showing a graph of the net income and operating expenses of a typical oil field. By cutting operating expenses in half, the life expectancy of a field can be increased 50 percent, from 15 years to 23 years.

"If costs can't be cut, the property should become an opportunity for someone else who can operate at lower costs," Henry said.

He said that the typical major has reduced its number of properties by 80 percent, and in doing so reduced reserves by only 20 percent.

"This spells a great opportunity for independents, because their garbage can be our gold," Henry said. "Their uneconomical field can be our bonanza."

Henry also discussed foreign oil production and said while the majors have been doing well in the United States it's only natural for them to go overseas where large fields are being discovered and where their financial and human resources can be used to the best advantage.

While 4 million barrels of oil a day have been lost in the lower 48 since production peaked in 1970, the Western Europe (North Sea) region has increased by that much and the Asia Pacific area has increased production by 5 million barrels of oil a day.

Henry said that these two areas, when compared to the lower 48, have also seen a steeper incline since production began, and he attributes that to the onset of new technology that assisted in the search for new reserves.

Henry compared the decline of fields in the Permian Basin with an average of those across the lower 48 states and he said although the decline is slightly higher, the peak was reached later.

"The production peak was reached in the Permian Basin in 1973, vs. the domestic high in 1970," he said. "The decline in the basin, however, has been at a rate of 50 percent vs. the national average of 47 percent."

Along with the trend in fields getting smaller is the fracturization of working and royalty interests that becomes a direct impediment to unitization. Henry said unitization is essential to the success of most floods. State-assisted unitization is being sought through efforts with the Texas Railroad Commission.

He said fields can't be operated efficiently if 100 percent of the operators don't agree on unitization because sometimes the correct flow pattern needed for an effective flood can't be achieved without full participation, especially in small fields.

Henry said that unitization is becoming an independent's domain. According to the TRC, the number of unitization applications by independents has been steadily increasing. Conversely, the number of applications by majors fell to zero last year.

CUT: Gramm visits Midland, talks about gas tax

(From 1A)

To pay for the $2.9 billion tax cut through December, Gramm said the Federal Communications Commission would be authorized to auction parts of the electromagnetic spectrum used to transmit wireless communications and the Department of Transportation's administrative and travel budget would be reduced.

A five-year cut would be made after the November presidential election. "It's unfortunate we can't repeal the tax altogether now," Gramm said.

The five-year cost of repealing the gas tax would be $22.4 billion and would be paid for by $14 billion in savings from cutting welfare benefits to illegal aliens and $8.4 billion in selling FCC parts, Gramm said.

The Congress' joint committee on taxation said the cost of the cut would be $33.9 billion through 2002. Democrats said that to permanently cut the gas tax, they would need to scale back cuts in the capital gains tax and a $500 per-child credit.

In January, oil refiners cut back their stocks of oil when Iraq began negotiating on an oil-for-food deal with the United Nations. They feared a flood of Iraqi oil would make their inventories less valuable. But negotiations broke down, leaving stores low and a cold winter further depleted the already low-oil supply, causing oil prices to jump.

When gasoline prices rose in April and early May, the debate over the gas tax began.

BOND: Opponents call for legal action against MISD

(From 1A)

added MISD communications specialist Susan Webb.

Members of CFR, however, maintain that violations occurred in informational mailers and in allowing a pro-bond independent political action committee to construct signs on MISD property.

"We call on Mr. Dettman to meet his responsibilities and investigate this matter without delay," he said.

Dettman said he had no opinion as to whether or not MISD had broken any regulations with their materials.

"I know what the law says — the law says you can't use public funds for political advertisements," Dettman said.

As have district and county attorneys in past disputes, Dettman said he will present the case to an impartial attorney from another city, probably Odessa.

"The first part of next week, I'll get a judge to appoint a special prosecutor to look at and make a decision (on the case)," Dettman said.

"That's what we traditionally do" to prove to the public that there is no political coercion involved with the final outcome of the investigation, he said.

Ms. Webb maintains that the facts are on the side of the school district in this matter.

"These inaccurate allegations are another attempt to take the focus off the main issues in this election," Ms. Webb said.

Top anthropologist from Peru calls Clinton's remarks on mummy tacky

Peruvian anthropologist said Friday that President Clinton's joke about the sex appeal of an Inca mummy was "tacky," and criticized its display in Washington.

Other Peruvian scientists complained that the 500-year-old frozen mummy, known as the Ice Princess, was being used by Peru's president to bolster his image.

Clinton joked during a political fund-raiser Wednesday that the mummy was "good-looking" and if he were single he might ask her out. "That mummy looks better than I do on my worst days," he said.

Anthropologist Sonia Guillen said "obviously there's a lack of respect" in Clinton's remarks.

The shipment of the mummy to the United States and its display by the National Geographic Society has caused controversy in Peru, where a group of archeologists and others tried to stop its departure.

"Maybe it would have been better if a man as public as Clinton had not handled the thing is such a tacky manner, so crudely," Guillen said.

Guillen, who has studied the mummy, opposed shipping it to the United States for fear it could be damaged.

Jaime Castillo Butters, an archeologist and professor at Peru's prestigious Catholic University in Lima, said the mummy had not even been displayed in Peru yet.

"It isn't very appropriate to be exhibiting bodies of dead and extinct people from Peru in foreign countries," Castillo said.

He said at the very least the mummy should have been exhibited in Peru first, as were the treasures of the Lord of Sipan before those gold and silver artifacts were displayed in the United States two years ago.

The mummy is thought to be the best preserved body from the pre-Columbian era. Also called Juanita by Peruvian scientists, the 12- to 14-year-old girl apparently was killed by a powerful blow to the head 500 years ago and sacrificed to the gods atop 20,000-foot-high Mount Ampato.

The Incans believed the practice would ward off catastrophes such as volcanic eruptions.

The mummy went on display Tuesday after first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton received the remains, which were accompanied by Peruvian President Alberto Fujimori. A photo of them appeared on the front page of a Lima daily newspaper.

Medical examiner identifies 8 ValueJet victims

MIAMI (AP) — Only about one-fifth of the human remains from ValuJet Flight 592 have been recovered, the county medical examiner said Friday as he formally identified eight victims.

"In these cases, tattoos were used, fingerprints were extensively used and dental evidence was used," Dade County Chief Medical Examiner Roger Mittleman said. "The force from the impact here was quite severe, and tissue has been very dramatically fragmented."

The remains recovered so far represent about 18 to 20 percent of the estimated weight of body parts that should be recovered from 110 dead people, he said.

At the crash site in the Florida Everglades, salvage equipment continued to arrive Friday in preparation for dredging the crater where the jet nosedived on May 11, killing all 110 people aboard.

Some precautionary hand searching will be done this weekend in areas where heavy equipment will go, police Detective Mike McDonald said. The fear is that the equipment could disturb remains or evidence needed by air safety investigators.

About 25 percent of the aircraft has been recovered and the cockpit voice recorder is still missing.

Few remains were recovered Friday, and Mittleman said the recovery of body parts from the crash site had slowed considerably. He added that as time passes decomposition will make it even more difficult to identify the dead.

Red Cross mental health professionals, accompanied by law enforcement officials, notified relatives of the identification of their loved ones.

With still no verdict, Whitewater jury gets holiday weekend off

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Whitewater jurors were sent home for the Memorial Day weekend Friday after more than six days of deliberations without reaching a verdict.

The panel began weighing evidence May 16 after nine weeks of testimony in the fraud trial of Gov. Jim Guy Tucker and President Clinton's former business partners, James McDougal and McDougal's ex-wife, Susan.

Tucker and the McDougals are accused of fraudulently obtaining $3 million in federally backed loans in the mid-1980s.

Jurors returned for a seventh day Friday but U.S. District Judge George Howard Jr. sent them home at midday. Deliberations are set to resume on Tuesday.

Also Friday, Justice Department attorneys acting on President Clinton's behalf filed court papers asking Howard not to release copies of Clinton's videotaped testimony.

The attorneys argued that transcripts of the tape released after it was played in court earlier this month are sufficient to inform the public.

The complex, politically charged case appeared to have put a strain on jurors, some of whom frowned. A tear rolled down a female juror's cheek as the panel filed out of the courtroom.

Howard commended the jurors for praying each day before and after deliberations.

"I'm highly proud of your performance. You're an excellent jury; keep up the good work," he said.

Lawyers said they didn't begrudge the jury for getting the long weekend off, but Susan McDougal's lawyer, Bobby McDaniel, was not happy that the panel was sent home early Friday.

"I think they ought to deliberate all day. That's what they're here for," he said.

POW could return to Vietnam as U.S. ambassador

■ President Clinton nominates Florida congressman Pete Peterson in process to establish full relations between one-time enemies

By Donna Abu-Nasr
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Pete Peterson remembers his first trip to Vietnam.

The Air Force pilot was flying his jet fighter over that country 30 years ago when the North Vietnamese shot him down.

He parachuted into a tree in the dark, breaking his arm, leg and shoulder. During the next 6 1/2 years, as a prisoner of war, he was tortured, imprisoned in solitary confinement and interrogated.

Peterson will get quite a different reception next fall if the Senate confirms his nomination as the first U.S. ambassador to Vietnam in 21 years.

There will be an official greeting at the airport and a ceremonial presentation of credentials to the Vietnamese government.

"It will be quite different," Peterson, a Florida congressman, told The Associated Press. "I have no problem shaking hands. I essentially left my hate at the door back in 1973."

President Clinton's nomination of Peterson on Friday capped the politically tricky process of establishing full relations between the one-time enemies.

It follows the lifting of a long-standing U.S. trade embargo against Vietnam and the opening of an embassy in Hanoi last summer.

Vietnam does not yet have an ambassador to the United States. That country's top diplomat in Washington is the charge d'affaires, Le Van Bang, 47, who was a member of the a youth brigade fixing bombed roads during the war.

Peterson's appointment must be confirmed by the Senate, which has voiced some reservations about establishing full relations with Vietnam.

Some senators are worried that Vietnam has not given full information on more than 2,000 servicemen from the war still listed as missing.

Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., anticipated difficulties with the confirmation process.

"I do think it will be difficult to pass the nomination, given the circumstances," Daschle told a news conference Friday.

But Peterson was optimistic that problems will be ironed out. He expects to take his post in September or October, if all goes well.

Relaxing in his Capitol Hill office, Peterson, 60, explained why it was important to put the hurt and anguish aside and begin a healing process.

"I know it's hard. ... I still have some residual pains, but we have to start using the term Vietnam without adding the suffix war. We need to start making Vietnam with the suffix country," said Peterson.

"If we can do that then we will allow Vietnam to enter into the community of nations in a peaceful process as opposed to a potential adversarial one that might erupt if we were still disengaged," said Peterson.

Peterson stressed he would continue working to determine the fate of the missing servicemen — among them some 20 friends.

He said two trips he took to Vietnam in 1991 and 1993 as a member of the House National Security Committee made it easier for U.S. teams to roam throughout southeast Asia without a great deal of red tape.

But he added that it will be almost impossible to determine the fate of about 445 of the servicemen because they were lost over water or under difficult circumstances.

Looking back on his years as a prisoner, Peterson said that one of the things that kept him going was his sense of humor.

He recalled one afternoon when he and a friend were shackled to a board, their hands tied, their legs in iron chains.

"For whatever reason ... our eyes caught and we just started to laugh. I guess we were near hysteria. But we laughed and laughed to a point where the Vietnamese came in and ... released us from our bonds," he said. He speculated that the guards were furious the two men appeared to be having fun.

Peterson said being a prisoner has turned him into a better person.

"When I was shot down I was a cocky kind of pilot ... But that experience taught me there was much more out there than just being good as a pilot. My compassion and understanding of people's circumstances has soared."

Peterson, who was born in Omaha, Nebraska, retired from the Air Force in 1981 after 26 years in service. He was awarded several medals, including the Purple Heart, the Silver Star and the Legion of Merit.

He was elected to Congress in 1991.

Peterson has two children. His wife, Carlotta, died last year.

Churches represented

United Methodist churches including Asbury and St. Luke's in Midland will be represented in Lubbock for the 87th session of the Northwest Texas Annual conference Thursday through June 1.

Bishop Alfred L. Norris will preside at the sessions at First United Methodist Church and Texas Tech University Student Center. The theme of the event is "Lift High the Cross."

Representing Asbury UMC will be the Rev. Jerry Don Cheshire and Orin Wade, a lay member of the conference. Representing St. Luke's UMC will be the Rev. Jarrell H. Sharp, senior minister of the church, and lay members Steve Hankinson, Karen Jeffcoat, Mary Jane Young, Linda Sacra and Bertha Sharp.

The Rev. John Harnish, associate general secretary of the division of Ordained Ministry, Board of Higher education and Ministry of the UMC, will be the conference preacher.

The conference will begin with a worship service which will be the annual Memorial Service and Service of Holy Communion at 10 a.m. Thursday.

Missionary returns

Wendy Lewis, daughter of Paul and Noemi Lewis of Midland, recently returned home from an 18-month mission for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints at Temple Square in Salt Lake City, Utah.

The mission also included four months of proselytizing in a Spanish-speaking mission in Riverside, Calif.

Miss Lewis will report on her mission at a special service at 9 a.m. Sunday in the chapel at 2101 Tarleton. The public is invited.

Temple Square is a 10-acre section in downtown Salt Lake City where famous historical buildings built in the 1800s are preserved and open to the public. Miss Lewis served as a missionary hostess for events by the Tabernacle Choir and also as a missionary tour guide at the visitor's center and the family History Center where visitors are able to do genealogical work on computers.

According to Miss Lewis, she "met people from many different countries and was very interested in learning about their culture, their religion and their background."

She plans to return to Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah, to further her education in the fall.

Recognition held

Graduating high school seniors from around the Permian Basin gathered in Odessa this month for seminary commencement exercises that recognized those who had completed all or part of the four-year scripture study program of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

The program featured area church president, Lloyd A. Hales, as guest speaker. Lee High School senior and seminary president, Lisa Blake, spoke on a graduate's perspective of the theme "Love the Lord thy God."

Midland graduates presented with four-year diplomas were Quentin Adams, Robert Bauer, Lisa Blake, Elizabeth Cooper, Blake Dyer, Vivian Elliott, Afton Hales, Jolea Hassman, Cory Johnson, Kristin Keller, Dani Linde, Adam Lord, Andrew Potter, Rhett Snow, Valerie Thomas, Sandy Wilson, Melanie White and Robert Weidmann. Seniors Brian Page and Patrick Durham were presented with certificates of achievement for one to three years completion.

To complete the course of study provided by the LDS Church Education System, students must attend 80 percent of the classes that meet weekdays before school at 6:15 a.m. in various locations throughout the area, and complete scripture reading requirements.

Also recognized at that program was Midlander Maxine Bunch, a graduate of the college-level Institute of Religion course of study. College students David Faught and Lila Harrison received certificates of achievement.

Celebration set

Hollowell United Methodist Church, 400 S. Marshall St., will be the site of Pentecost Celebration 1996 at 3 p.m. Sunday.

The celebration is being hosted by Hollowell UNC, Mackey Chapel UMC, Greater St. Luke AME Church and St. Paul CME Church. Pentecost is celebrated 50 days after Easter and the Book of Acts describes the celebration in colorful, artistic language.

Keeping with a traditional celebration, and expanding upon that tradition, the afternoon will be filled with music and dance including a medley of songs by the Pentecost Mass Choir, comprised of the host churches, and a performance by the Noni Dance Ensemble.

The Rev. Ora Roberts, pastor of St. Paul CME Church, will deliver the sermon.

The worship celebration will culminate with a balloon launch. Close to 300 red balloons will be released on the south lawn of the church. the balloons will be filled with notes of encouragement and invitations to one and all to visit any one of the host churches.

In a reception following the balloon launch, fresh fruits and nuts will be served, which is a tradition in the African American Church.

All are asked to wear or accent their attire with red. The color red commemorates the "tongues of fire" or the presence of the Holy Spirit.

All are invited to attend. For more information call 682-3240.

Bible school set

The Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity is holding its Vacation Bible School 9 a.m. to noon June 3-7.

Lunch will be served from noon to 1 p.m. for ages kindergarten through sixth grade.

"The Wind of the Spirit Brings Victory in Jesus" is the theme of this year's VBS, based on John 3:8.

For more information call Mary Collier, 683-4207.

Confirmands set

Our Savior's Lutheran Church, 3309 Neely, will celebrate the Festival of Pentecost and the Rite of Confirmation with six confirmands at the 10:45 a.m. service Sunday.

The six young people who will publicly confirm their faith are Andrew Dammann, Katie Edwards, Ashley Kerby, Kristen Mather, Mark McClurg and Eliz-

Bible school set

Bellview Baptist Church, 1710 N. Big Spring St., is hosting Vacation Bible School from 6:30 to 9 p.m. June 3-7.

This year's theme is "Go For the Goal," Phil. 3:14. All children from 4 years old as of Sept. 1, 1995, through sixth grade are invited. the school will include Bible stories, crafts, games and refreshments.

Parents are invited to join their children for refreshments at 8:45 a.m. daily in the church's Christian Life Center.

For more information call 682-9474.

Midlanders to serve

Two Midland residents will serve as summer missionaries for 10 weeks beginning around June 1.

Wendy Hobbs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hobbs of Midland, a student of the University of North Texas will serve in Manitoba, Canada, at the Keystone Baptist Association.

Mindi McComb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnie McComb of Midland, a student of Angelo State University, will serve in Jefferson City, Tenn., for the Appalachian Outreach.

These students are two of 110 Baptist Student Missionaries serving this summer under the Division of Student Ministry, Baptist General Convention of Texas, in 14 states and eight foreign countries, said Tom Ruane, director of the division.

Each student missionary must raise $600 of his or her support. The remainder is provided by fellow students who are challenged to raise $160,000 for this effort to share Christ around the world in 1996.

Bible event planned

Cotton Flat Baptist Church, 6409 S. Highway 349, is holding its "Vacation Bible Ship" for grades kindergarten through five 6:30 p.m. June 3-7.

In addition, all preschoolers, ages 3-5, are invited for a special adventure of their own. This year there will be classes for all adults to run concurrently with the children's activities. Children will be provided snacks and adults will have a light meal and refreshments. For more information call 684-8467.

Meeting planned

FORT DAVIS — Boys Camp Meeting Association will meet 11 a.m. June 9 at Skillman Grove.

This year's preacher will be the Rev. Michael Duncan Parish, pastor of the First Christian Church, Ontario, Oregon. He will speak on "Living Belief," based on John 14:1-14.

Bible school set

First Baptist Church, 2104 W. Louisiana Ave., is holding its Vacation Bible School June 10-14 from 9 a.m. to noon.

The school is for 4 years old through those in the sixth grade. Community registration will be from 2:30 to 4 p.m. June 9.

Also, Family Night Olympics is set for 6 to 8 p.m. June 12.

Group meets

A Vineyard Care Group meets weekly in Midland, co-sponsored by Vineyard Christian Fellowship.

The group meets at 6:30 p.m. Sundays at 3331 Camarie.

For more information call 550-4505, 694-6775 or 694-0970.

Vineyard Christian Fellowship of Odessa meets at 10:30 a.m. Sundays in the AIM High School cafeteria, 4803 Plaza Boulevard, behind Permian Mall.

Annual Synod set

Communicants of St. Paul's Anglican Church will host the 1996 Annual Synod, Diocese of the Southwest, Anglican Church in America on June 19.

The jurisdiction of this diocese includes the states of Arkansas, Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Colorado. The bishop ordinary of the Diocese of the Southwest is the Rt. Rev. Thomas Beckwith of Baytown.

Clergy and lay delegates will meet to conduct the routine business matters of the diocese as well as doctrinal and policy concerns that may need to be acted upon in the interests of the national body of the ACA.

Prayer session set

A 24-hour prayer session will be held at the North A & Tennessee Church of Christ beginning at 6 p.m. May 31.

The focus is on evangelism and unity. For more information call the church, 682-8653.

Ministry starts

St. Luke's United Methodist Church has entered into a new outreach ministry.

During the summer months, St. Luke's will be offering a place for neighborhood children to gather and share in activities and fun. Children in grades one through six will have structured activities, arts and crafts, field trips and other opportunities offered to them Tuesday and Wednesday of each week.

Study scheduled

ODESSA — Unity Church of West Texas, 210 E. 12th St., is presenting a study of "The Great Dramas of the Bible," written by Unity minister William Earle Cameron.

The 9:30 a.m. study is an in-depth study guide of the Bible with metaphysical interpretations. It will be taught by J.C. Caston.

Clinton refines weekly presidential radio address, often uses it as political weapon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton has taken the sleepy Saturday presidential radio address, a latter-day offspring of FDR's fireside chats, and refined it into a pointed, and sometimes mischievous, political weapon.

Republicans are crying foul, even though they get time for a radio response.

Last Saturday, Clinton used the address to praise Wisconsin's new welfare-to-work experiment — upstaging Bob Dole's trip to the state three days later by seizing Sunday headlines and national television exposure.

"If you've ever seen a spin machine, they've got a great one in the White House," the presumptive Republican presidential nominee complained. "They spin all week and all weekends. ... It's been in overtime this weekend."

On other recent Saturdays, Clinton has used the seven-minute radio talk to:

— Direct states (May 4) to require teen-age mothers to stay in school as a condition for receiving welfare.

— Warn congressional Republicans (April 27) not to torpedo a balanced budget — or face the wrath of voters who would "see through that with their eyes closed."

— Observe the first anniversary of the Oklahoma City bombing by announcing from Moscow (April 20) he would sign a long-delayed anti-terrorism bill.

— Press the GOP Senate (March 30) to stop blocking a vote on raising the minimum wage.

— Summon top business leaders (March 23) to address the impact of corporate downsizing and worker anxiety.

— Call on television executives (March 2) to rate shows for violence.

— Propose requiring youngsters to wear school uniforms (Feb. 24) as a means of instilling discipline and order.

Today's address? White House spokesman Mike McCurry says it will deal with the Memorial Day Weekend and sacrifices by Americans in the military.

Although President Franklin D. Roosevelt used the radio extensively for his wartime "fireside chats," it was Richard Nixon who established it as a regular Saturday morning fixture.

Nixon used it in his 1968 campaign, then carried it to the White House. "It was a realization that it was a very easy way to make Sunday news," said Stephen Hess, a former Nixon adviser who has written books on the presidency and the media.

Presidents Ford and Carter neglected the format. Ronald Reagan — who got his start in radio — restored it and did the broadcasts happily through his full eight years.

While Reagan's radio addresses usually dealt with humdrum material, he sometimes made real news — as when he announced in a radio address a second term for Paul Volcker as Federal Reserve chairman.

President Bush, uncomfortable with the broadcast media in general, delivered Saturday addresses sporadically, seldom making news with them.

Clinton elevated the radio address to a full-scale production.

Where other presidents have taped most radio messages, Clinton usually does his live — before an audience of friends, staff and their families. On several occasions, such as on the Saturday after the Oklahoma City bombing, Hillary Rodham Clinton has joined him on the air.

His first radio addresses were primarily used for weighty economic and legislative issues like health care reform. But recently, they've been getting livelier — and more political.

"He's been very effective," said former Reagan aide Lyn Nofziger, now a Dole supporter.

As was Reagan, Clinton is highly skilled in using the Saturday address to grab Sunday headlines, Nofziger said. "Clinton has probably taken it a step further. He's using it as a way of spreading a political message instead of a governmental message."

Republicans do get a chance to strike back, putting out a "Republican response" an hour later carried by most stations that also broadcast the president's 10:06 a.m. address.

But, Nofziger said, this is not effective in the heat of a presidential campaign. "You've got one congressman doing it one week, one senator doing it the next. Maybe Dole should ask for equal time."

"That's something we may consider if he continues to abuse the White House time," said Dole campaign press secretary Nelson Warfield.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Self-improvement activities are the key to greater independence. Think bold! Creative projects flourish. A friendship that blossoms in September will motivate you to try something new. A commonsense approach is vital in business. Financial progress is slow but sure. Launch a research project early in 1997. A love relationship will thrive if you are considerate. Do those little things that mean so much to romantic partner. Love deepens.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DAY: actress Connie Sellecca, opera singer Beverly Sills, jazz great Miles Davis, actor Claude Akins.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A restless mood gets the upper hand, leading to an adventuresome weekend. A unusual arrangement may suit you to a tee. Loved ones keep their promises.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A friend needs your wholehearted support. Do anything you can to help. Romance is in the air. Go all-out to make a good impression on a new acquaintance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Right is right. Stick to your principles no matter how it affects your popularity. A creative project may have commercial potential. Keep your plans to yourself until you have talked with a marketing expert.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Intellectual pursuits enjoy favorable influences. Visit the library or a museum. Find out the romantic status of a newcomer. Falling in love with someone who is attached could break your heart.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Think about going into business for yourself. Friends who pour cold water on your hopes could be envious. Share your good news only with people who will be happy for you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Forgive and forget an unintended slight. The "guilty" party is under a lot of pressure. Make wise use of your talents. Solidify family ties by spending more time with loved ones.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A good day to travel. Working for yourself is both satisfying and lucrative. Security issues will need sensitive handling. Lost objects surface under mysterious circumstances.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Take steps to preserve your freedom of action. Let thoughtless remarks roll off your back. A chronic health condition will improve with a sensible approach to diet and exercise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Devote more time and effort to domestic affairs. You need to base your decisions on the best interests of everyone concerned. Trying to force issues will only arouse additional resistance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Look for the best in others. They will live up to your expectations. A longtime relationship spells security to you. Your timing could be off in romance. Let the other person make the first move.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Take a friend's story with a large grain of salt. Lunchtime zaniness will put everyone in a good mood. Plan on attending a family celebration with someone you love. Your presence means a lot.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Take a closer look at a recurring problem. You could be making a mountain out of a molehill. If you run into obstacles, look for another avenue to explore.

Unidentified sources claim Madonna is expecting girl who she'll name Lola

NEW YORK — Is Madonna expecting another Material Girl?

Madonna is five months pregnant and her spokeswoman says she doesn't know the sex of the baby yet.

The Daily News reported Friday that the singer learned via a sonogram that she is having a girl, and she has already picked out a name — Lola. And, the newspaper said, Madonna plans to deliver by Caesarean section.

"It's completely untrue. Madonna does not know the sex of the baby; therefore, how could she name it?" Madonna spokeswoman Liz Rosenberg said. "She does not know how she will give birth; that will be up to the doctor."

The newspaper report quoted unidentified sources.

Madonna, 37, is five months pregnant. The father-to-be is her boyfriend and trainer, Carlos Leon, 29.

LOS ANGELES — Muhammad Ali is suing a film production company for putting his picture on a telephone credit card.

Muhammad sues company for using his picture on telephone credit card.

The $500,000 lawsuit filed Thursday says Ali granted Los Angeles-based Forever Films the rights to use his name and likeness in promoting the 1989 movie "Champions Forever." In 1994, however, Forever Films allegedly allowed Nevada-based phone company Amerivox to use the boxer's photograph.

"Those rights were limited to the movie," said Kevin Gaut, Ali's attorney. "We didn't say they could do whatever they wanted."

Forever Films spokesman Ron Hamady had no comment on the dispute.

MINNEAPOLIS — Playwright-actor Sam Shepard won't say what he thinks a man is. But he knows what a man isn't.

"'A man goes to the Super Bowl, a man drinks beer.' I can't believe men are so duped by this, that you have to have a six-pack of beer everywhere you go. I just don't get it," Shepard told drama students Thursday at the University of Minnesota.

Shepard, whose Pulitzer Prize-winning play "Buried Child" is on Broadway, said writing kept him off the street when he was younger.

"I was desperately looking for something when I was a kid," he said. "I suddenly discovered this thing about dialogue. ... It moves, and it starts to have a world. I got so turned on."

Shepard, 52, moved to Minnesota nearly a year ago with his companion, actress Jessica Lange.

NEW YORK — The velvet ropes were back at Studio 54 as a radio station staged the last dance at the 1970s pleasure palace.

Barmaids served test tubes of Southern Comfort, Gloria Gaynor sang "I Will Survive" and Cher dedicated the night to former co-owner Steve Rubell, who died in 1989 after doing time for tax evasion.

The building will be reborn as a virtual-reality entertainment center.

Performers Thursday night ranged from disco-era divas like Gaynor to 1990s acts like Crystal Waters and RuPaul.

"I wasn't born when this place was at its height," claimed RuPaul, who changed from one Bob Mackie ensemble to another after performing his hit "Supermodel." Perhaps remembering that Studio 54 opened in 1977, he added, "I was just a little baby drag queen."

WILMINGTON, N.C. — Honor students at Laney High are wearing a gift from the school's most famous alum — Michael Jordan.

The Chicago Bulls star and 1981 graduate donated $3,000 to buy 400 T-shirts for students who made the honor roll for three quarters.

"It shows his faithfulness to the school, that he still remembers where he came from," junior Chris Stanmire said. "It makes me feel honored."

DEATHS

James Keith

ODESSA — Services for former Midlander James Keith, 44, are to be at 4 p.m. today, May 25, at Frank W. Wilson Funeral Chapel in Odessa. Burial will follow at Sunset Memorial Gardens under the direction of Frank W. Wilson Funeral Directors.

Keith died Thursday, May 23, at a Galveston hospital.

He was born Oct. 25, 1951, in El Paso.

He married Linda Derrick in April 1971 in Lubbock.

He was a mudlogger with Discovery Logging.

He moved to Odessa from Midland in 1995.

Survivors include his wife of Odessa; two sons, Jamie Keith and John Keith, both of Odessa; a daughter, Nicole Keith of Odessa; his parents, Horace and Pearlie Keith of Clyde; two brothers, Charles Keith of Clyde and Mark Keith of Lubbock; two sisters, Martha Weaver of Lubbock and Susan Simpson of Floydada; and one grandson.

Daryl Selby

Services for Daryl Selby, 69, are to be at 4 p.m. today, May 25, at Ellis Funeral Home Chapel with the Midland Police Department chaplain officiating. Burial will follow at Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Selby died Thursday, May 23, at a local hospital.

He was born Nov. 18, 1926, in Drumwright, Okla.

He moved to Midland in 1943 and attended Midland High School.

He joined the U.S. Navy in 1945 and served until August 1946.

He married Mary Whitmire on June 4, 1949, in Midland.

He worked at Whitmire Plumbing and retired from Scooters Plumbing.

He was a member of the Citizens Police Academy Alumni and was the 1994 Midland Police Department volunteer of the year. He also received the Outstanding Volunteer Service Award in 1995.

He was preceded in death by sister, Earlene Johnson in 1983.

Survivors include his wife of Midland; three sons, Gary Selby and Scott Selby, both of Lubbock and David Selby of Midland; eight grandchildren; one niece and three nephews.

Pallbearers are to be Gene Washam, Ken Weaver, Farrarr Hedges, Tony Yorkman, Jerry Doyle and Sam McClung.

Honorary pallbearers are to be Scooter Rotan, Charles Wolcott, Thomas Wright and members of the Citizen Police Academy Alumni.

Memorials can be made to a favorite charity.

Howard Quinn

ODESSA — Services for Howard Edward "Pappy" Quinn, 68, of Odessa, are to be at 3:30 p.m. Sunday, May 26, at Stevens Funeral Home Chapel in Coleman with the Rev. Rodney Mulvan officiating. Burial will follow at Coleman Cemetery under the direction of Stevens Funeral Home. Visitation is set for 5 p.m. today, May 25, at the funeral home.

Quinn died Wednesday, May 22, at a Houston hospital.

He was born Oct. 1, 1927, in Fryfield.

He married Dorothea Kelly on Nov. 15, 1944, in Coleman.

He was a ranch foreman, Coleman police officer, oil-field worker, fishing tool supervisor, oil company consultant and manager.

He was a member of the American Junior Rodeo Circuit, Odessa Rodeo Club and North Side Baptist Church in Odessa.

He was preceded in death by two brothers, Shorty Harmes and Robert Quinn, and two sisters, Dora Harmes and Billie Reed.

Survivors include his wife of Odessa; two daughters, Deedra Poldrack of Midland and Candy Billingsley of Andrews; his stepmother, Bonnie Quinn of Coleman; two brothers, J.T. Harmes and Jimmy Quinn, both of Coleman; two sisters, Emily Fulcher of Austin and Florence Ray of Coleman; four grandsons and three great-grandchildren.

Pallbearers are to be Don Harmes, Glen Harmes, Trampas Poldrack, Eddie Poldrack, Michael Billingsley and Codey Billingsley.

Honorary pallbearers are to be Danny Ray, Bob Ray, Jerry Smith, Tommy Quinn and Eddie Quinn.

Memorials can be made to the American Lung Association.

MISD vote supported

With 56 percent of the vote, BasinLink voters who responded "for" or "against" to the question concerning the June 1 MISD bond election voiced support for the issue.

Of the 170 who voted, 76 said they would vote for the MISD bond election and 59 said they would vote against. The remaining 35 had no response.

The question, as it will appear on the ballot next Saturday, reads, "The issuance of $110,000,000 in schoolhouse bonds for construction and equipment of school buildings in the district (including the rehabilitation, renovation, improvement and repair thereof) and the purchase of the necessary sites therefor."

New allegiance

CompuServe has become the latest on-line computer network to pledge allegiance to the Internet. The Columbus, Ohio-based firm says all-new features added to its services will be compatible with standard Internet software. This means that CompuServe customers will be able to use popular Internet software like Netscape Navigator and Microsoft Internet Explorer, instead of CompuServe's custom software package.

"We are going to use the tools, technology and standards that have become pervasive in the industry," said Denny Matteucci, president of CompuServe's on-line services division.

The oldest of the major on-line services, CompuServe Information Service (CIS) has been in operation since 1979, at a time when few people used the Internet. So CIS built its own software system to manage its forums — areas on the network that are leased to companies and organizations, where people can obtain information or purchase products.

Under the new plan, called Red Dog, forums will now be built using standard Internet software, including HTML, the coding system used to create pages on the World Wide Web.

This means that a company could use the HTML format to publish data on its CIS forum and put the same information directly on to the Internet without major changes.

Existing CIS forums will keep using the old system. In addition, customers will be able to obtain a new version of CompuServe software this summer. The new software will come with a built-in Microsoft browser, so that customers will have access to the new Red Dog material as well as the old CompuServe forums.

Acer's new product

Acer Inc. will introduce next month an Internet-ready personal computer with a disk drive for less than $500, the first computer at that price with storage capacity, a company spokeswoman said.

The inclusion of a storage drive is a major difference from so-called network computers planned by International Business Machines Corp., Apple Computer Inc. and others, which plan to market their computers as inexpensive hook-ups to larger networks such as the Internet's World Wide Web.

The Acer Basic will include Intel Corp.'s Pentium processor, four megabytes of random access memory and Iomega Corp.'s 100 megabyte zip drive, said Jane Chen, an Acer spokeswoman. The computer will be usable with a television or a computer monitor.

It will work on the DOS operating system and will come with Microsoft Corp.'s Windows 3.1, the penultimate generation of Windows software.

"Unlike a pure network computer, the Acer Basic is a fully functional PC," Acer said in a statement. "When not connected to larger computer servers, these pure network computers are essentially useless."

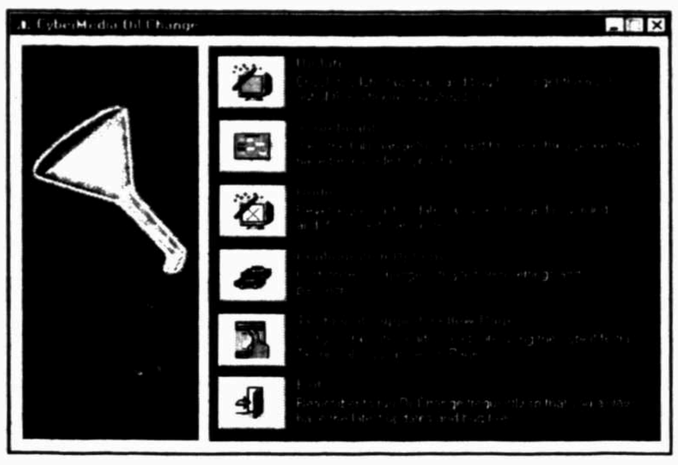

Acer plans to launch the computer, advertised as a fully functional personal computer, in June.

The inclusion of the disk drive is a boon to Roy, Utah-based Iomega, already one of the fastest-growing makers of computer peripherals.

"This is monstrous news," for Iomega, said Joe Beseckler, an analyst at Emerald Research in Lancaster, Pennsylvania. "They're positioning themselves to be the catcher's mitt of the Internet."

Privacy advocates again protest idea of 'key escrow'

N.Y. Times News Service

The White House is clinging to the idea of a back door into your computer, according to staff-level drafts of an administration position paper.

The administration's latest position, which critics are calling "Clipper III," clings to the concept of "key escrow," which means you, your company or software maker would turn over a key — a password-like series of symbols — to a repository. The new wrinkle is that the repository would not have to be a government agency and that the administration is calling its plan voluntary.

"The administration continues to believe that key escrow is a sound approach," said Sally Katzen, a policy official at the Office of Management and Budget.

But privacy advocates are still upset that the key would be turned over if law enforcement or national security agencies convince a court of the need to decode your computer-borne communications.

"The administration is clinging to an old world. This is the third time they've blown it on this issue," said Shabbir J. Safdar, co-founder of Voter Telecommunications Watch, an electronic freedom group.

This is the weakest key escrow proposal yet, after the administration's first two proposals — Clipper I in April 1993 and Clipper II in October 1995 — provoked widespread objections from electronic privacy advocates.

But the prevailing sentiment in Congress appears to be moving toward an even less restrictive law. The leading Senate advocate of online privacy protection, Sen. Patrick Leahy (D- Vt.), has de-emphasized his own proposed legislation, which included a mild version of key escrow, to

Looking for a new home on the 'Net

■ Big-city access providers start to get picky less than two years after they begged for customers.

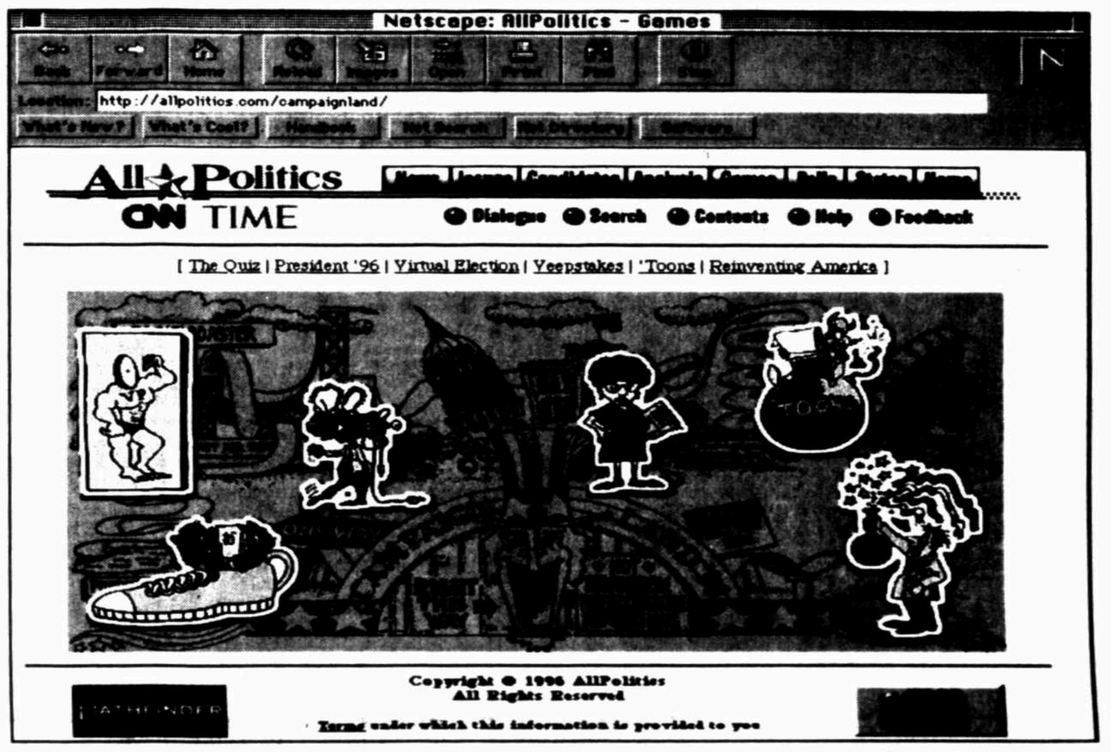

By Peter H. Lewis
N.Y. Times News Service

In Moscow, desperate people must sometimes wait years, or pay exorbitant bribes, to get telephone service that is expensive and unreliable. By those standards, Internet access in the United States is pretty good. But recent events and trends in the on-line access business have led some Internet customers to reassess their service providers and begin shopping around for new homes in cyberspace.

Many people, perhaps most, are happy with their Internet service. Many others are not. The complaints often arise from general overcrowding on the Internet and the World Wide Web, but they also come from what seems to be a new arrogance on the part of Internet access providers who only a year or two ago were begging for customers.

For example, the Internet service Pipeline in New York City recently announced that it was no longer interested in serving Internet beginners. Internet newcomers require too much hand-holding and technical assistance, it seems, making them more trouble than they are worth.

The hot movie of the summer (so far at least) has numerous links available. "Mission:Impossible" has the standard movie home page, as well as http://www.mission. apple.com. This one is pretty cool, but requires a lot of plug-ins to play the interactive game. Worth it, though.

The home page for Pepsi's new "Cool Stuff" ad campaign is at http://www.pepsi.com. Register to get free access to the Cool Stuff, such as VRML games and other interactive greatness. Stay too long and you may get thirsty.

At http://www.audionet.com, you'll need the Real Audio plugin to make use of this site. After you install the plugin, you can listen to many CD's or radio stations from across the country.

For newcomers to the Internet, try http://www.learnthenet.com. Answers many questions about how to get around.

http://www.shareware.com: One of my all-time favorites. Large database helps you find just the program you are looking for.

GNN has come up with a sort of Ralph Nader on the High Seas. At http://www.tripdoc.com/ index.html, the advocate, code-named "The Trip Doctor," will "provide consumer advice and mediation -- free -- against travel service providers and, when appropriate, seek just compensation for journey's gone awry."

Goatsucker meets the Internet and other alt.folk tales

By Charles Stough
N.Y. Times News Service

Tall tales run amuck on usenet news groups, especially where man-eating dragons, monsters and other creatures are concerned.

Say it isn't so. Say there's no vampirish monster winging around Mexico, draining the blood of goats, disemboweling sheep and terrorizing farmers. Say there's no flying saucer involved in it, either.

All right. It isn't so.

Troubled by the goatsucker flap, one can consult the best examples of the collective mind — a Usenet group called alt.folklore.urban.

And in the field of urban legends, the goatsucker is one of a familiar category — the Loch Ness monster, the dragon in Lake Champlain, the sea serpent of Chesapeake Bay, even a dandy black panther roaming Muncie, Ind., where an innocent stroller is much more likely to be downed by an out-of-bounds basketball than a jungle cat.

"Seems like more then a few people are making a couple bucks off of the creature in the form of T-shirts, songs etc.," observed one computer-equipped skeptic.

There have been attacks of animals in Dade County, Fla., where Miamians are at least as adept at selling T-shirts as the other attack victims in Tijuana, Mexico or Puerto Rico. "Local zoologists have noted that the bite marks from recent attacks are consistent with bite marks of dogs," posted another urban folklorist, "Still, people won't let the truth get in the way of a good story."

Even Texans report "chupacabra" attacks, but discreetly blame vampire bats, of which there are some in Mexico and Texas. "At least they're blaming it on vampires rather that aliens," notes another computerist. "Maybe that's because they (ital) are (unital) the aliens."

The goatsucker is an old story. Brazilian author Marcio Souza's 1983 novel "The Order of the Day: An IBM this week introduced a thin, lightweight notebook computer with a large screen typically seen on heavier models. The Thinkpad 560 is just 1.2 inches thick, weighs 4.1 pounds and has a 12.1 inch diagonal color screen. Base price is $2,700.

New web searcher 'HotBot' reports some engine problems

By Jeff Pelline
San Francisco Chronicle

All systems are not go for the high-flying Internet search engine HotBot, billed as a "bigger, better and smarter way to search the Web."

Despite a ballyhooed rollout on Monday, the search engine run by San Francisco-based HotWired and Berkeley-based Inktomi has experienced technical difficulties.

Instead of putting a full-fledged commercial service out on the Web as promised, the company offered a test version (dubbed a "public beta program") on Monday night.

"Although our testers and engineers have worked day in and day out to find and fix every bug in the system, some rough edges do remain," customers are told when they log onto the service.

Some bugs listed: the Microsoft Internet Explorer, one common product used for searching the Web, does not display graphics properly. There also is a bug when searching by date that can cause delays in query time. Using common words, such as "the," "in" and "and" also can result in long query times.

As reported, the search engine was supposed to be the first one to search every word on the World Wide Web using "parallel processing" technology. In fact, it currently searches only about 70 percent of the Web.

"We're disappointed," conceded Kevin Brown, vice president of marketing for Inktomi. He said engineers are working overtime to fix the problems.

Brown said the service could not handle the initial demand, so it was adding hardware and software to fix the problems. HotBot hopes to get its database to search all of the Web within the next two weeks.

HotBot still contends that its database is larger than any other search index, and Brown said it has received positive comments from those that could get the service to work.

AWARE: Officials tout success program

(From 1B)

Unidentified Flying Opus," published in English in 1986 by Avon Books, blames predatory space creatures. It's set in the Amazon jungles, where every good parent will certainly terrorize children with such stories to make them stay close to home.

"Oh, no, they're moving north! Just like them killer bees, something new to terrorize the media!" cheered another man.

Alt.folklore.urban is a dandy Usenet group for finding and debunking barstool mythology. It's one of the more active groups, with hundreds of postings a week. And they do admit that some urban legends are based on fact. For example:

■ Have scientists proven that bumblebees can't fly? No. But entomologists studying other flying insects came up with answers along that line — and on rechecking, discovered that their math was wrong because they forgot a factor for wing flexibility.

■ Did crews fighting forest fires in California (or France) find a corpse wearing scuba gear in a burned-out section of woods, a hapless swimmer snagged up in a water-dumping plane as it refilled its tanks on a nearby lake or bay? No.

"I wonder if it's always the same poor scuba diver who keeps getting scooped up again and again?" reads a posting, joined by a professional pilot who promises swimmers everywhere that it doesn't happen that way. The scoops on a Martin Mars, the most commonly used plane for this purpose, are about three inches by five. And they're gridded, so the openings are about one inch square.

"The dynamic forces that an aircraft would incur by scooping up a huge bucket of water large enough to trap a human would rip an aircraft apart," he said.

■ How about tossing birdseed instead of rice at weddings? Should we do this because little birdies in fact gorge on rice, inflate, and explode little feathers and beaks all over the sky?

No.

Deacons may encourage the legend by going along with it. (Would deacons lie? They wouldn't, would they? What if the pastor found out?). But in fact birds merely prefer birdseed to rice. That means there's less for deacons to sweep up.

They haven't thought of it yet, of course, but the deacons might consider what happens to the birdseed that the birds miss. Here's a new urban legend for you: You can tell a house of worship that gets a lot of wedding business by the huge number of ugly thistles growing in the lawn and hedges.

"I used to feed uncooked rice to pigeons when I was young," reports a contributor. "They seemed perfectly happy with it, and none of them exploded while I was watching."

Ipso, as they say, facto.

PICK: Pipeline lets others do the work

(From 1B)

According to William L. Schrader, chief executive of Psinet Inc., the national Internet service company that bought Pipeline more than a year ago, the company's new strategy is to let AT&T, America Online Inc. and other larger companies recruit and train the beginners.

Then, once these on-line ragamuffins are properly schooled and polished, Pipeline will be happy to have them back, at higher fees. "We will build a billion-dollar business from on AT&T's crumbs," Schrader said, borrowing an image from the novel "Bonfire of the Vanities."

Meanwhile, at the other end of the country and of the Internet service spectrum, Netcom On-Line Communications Inc. of California, one of Psinet's largest rivals, has also informed some of its customers that they are no longer wanted. This time, it is the sophisticated users who are being shown the door.

"Frankly, it's not profitable to service your account any more," a technical support representative explained.

It seems the company regrets that it offered me a so-called Unix shell account several years ago and now wishes me to cancel it and sign up for the more profitable (to them) Netcruiser service.

To drive the point home, the Netcom technician informed me that the company no longer accepts telephone calls from shell account customers who need technical support. Rather, all questions have to be submitted by electronic mail.

When I explained that my problem involved Netcom's locking my electronic mail account, the technician was unmoved. "You'll have to send us E-mail," he said. So I did as I was told. A month later, I got a response that had nothing to do with my shell account. The average response time for this electronic support is measured in weeks, which makes the 20-minute hold times for telephone support seem like a fond memory.

And then there is the IDT Corp. of Hackensack, N.J., which is one of the nation's fastest-growing Internet service companies. IDT, whose advertisements are inescapable in some parts of the country, used to offer "unlimited and "uncensored" Internet and World Wide Web access for $15 a month.

That would be quite a bargain, many former customers say, except that it was often impossible to get connected to the Internet through IDT because of incessant busy signals, and that the software provided by IDT did not allow Web access and that the expected $15 bill often mysteriously swelled.

IDT officials say the critics are being unfair, and that any misunderstandings about service and billing have been rectified.

Internet customers, whether novices or sophisticates, ought to keep these unsettling situations in mind when shopping for a service provider. It pays to do a lot of homework before choosing a provider, because changing services, which means changing E-mail addresses, business cards and the like, is far more annoying and expensive than signing up in the first place.

As always, the best resource for anyone looking for a reliable Internet connection is a friend who already has service. Beyond the obvious questions about price, ask the friend: Are busy signals ever a problem? Is telephone support readily available at convenient times? Is the help desk helpful when there are problems?

PRIVACY: Key escrow could become issue for campaign

(From 1B)

co-sponsor a bill by Sen. Conrad Burns (R-Mont.) that would eliminate key escrow altogether.

The endorsement last week of the Burns bill by Sen. Bob Dole (R-Kan.) raises the specter of key escrow becoming an issue in the presidential campaign.

Safdar said the administration refuses to recognize that a key escrow law will encourage users to use unregulated encryption systems from overseas.

But former National Security Agency general counsel Stewart Baker disagreed.

"It's a little more complicated than that," said Baker, who pointed to key escrow efforts under way in France, Russia, Israel and other countries.

Stay tuned for Clipper IV.

Estes ABL coach

DENVER — Wayland Baptist University coach Sheryl Estes has been named coach of the Denver franchise of the American Basketball League, the new women's professional league that begins play this fall.

Estes took her WBU team to the NAIA National Championship Tournament six of the last seven years and was runner-up in 1992.

ABL co-founder Steve Hams said Friday that Estes is recognized throughout the country as an outstanding coach.

Estes, a member of the Player Selection Committee for the 1996 U.S. Olympic Team, had a record of 183-62 in seven years at Wayland Baptist. She was named NAIA District Coach of the year four times. Six of her teams were in the top 10.

Wayland Baptist's record this season was 25-9.

Indy rookie? No problem

By Mike Harris
Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Talk about a formula for disaster.

The Indianapolis 500 lineup has more rookies than veterans, a total of 75 previous Indy starts and three drivers who have never even raced an Indy-car before.

With rain washing out so much practice time at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway this month, nobody's gotten many laps on the 2 1/2-mile oval.

Worse, when the track has been open, the cars have not been out in swarms as in past years. Drivers who need it most have had almost no experience in traffic, battling

Heat a concern for Red Dog 200

By Joe Macenka

CONCORD, N.C. — Busch Grand National points leader David Green has a big concern heading into the Red Dog 300, and it has nothing to do with his competition.

Green was among eight drivers to be treated for heat-related problems after last week's Meridian Advantage 200 at Nazareth, Pa., where temperatures reached into the low 90s. Similar weather is forecast for Saturday's Red Dog race at Charlotte Motor Speedway.

That could prove especially troublesome for Green, who had second-degree burns on both heels.

Utah avoids West sweep with victory

By Chris Sheridan
Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — There will be no sweep in the Western Conference finals because Karl Malone and Jeff Hornacek wouldn't let it happen.

Malone and Hornacek each had their best game of the series and the Utah Jazz remained undefeated at home in the playoffs, beating the Seattle SuperSonics 96-76 Friday night.

Game 4 is Sunday, and Utah will have a chance to send the best-of-7 series back to Seattle tied 2-2.

If they get repeats of the performances by Malone, Hornacek — and even Bryon Russell — such a scenario isn't out of the question. Utah is 7-0 at home during the playoffs with only one of the games decided by 10 points or less.

Malone had 28 points and 18 rebounds, Hornacek had a breakout game as well with 28 points and Russell, the last man off the bench at the end of the regular season, broke out of his two-game slump with a career-high 24 points.

"In the first quarter everyone was uptight," Malone said. "I tried to get something going and let everyone feed off me. Then we settled down and let the game come to us."

The Sonics were undone by 27 turnovers, 28 fouls and a failure to hit clutch 3-pointers after they cut their deficit to six midway through the fourth quarter.

"They didn't trap us they way they did in Seattle and Bryon Russell really stepped up for us," Hornacek said. "I think a lot of people thought the series was over when we lost two down there. We still have some work to do Sunday, but we feel pretty good. When you're down 2-0 you have to pull everything out."

U.S. OLYMPIC SOFTBALL TEAM

Team USA passes test

■ U.S. Olympic softball team successful in its Midland debut, sweeping the Phoenix Sunbirds.

By Stewart Doreen
Sports Writer

The Phoenix Sunbirds gave the USA Olympic Softball team a scare in the first game and then Olympic pitcher Michele Granger returned the favor with a one-hit shutout in the second.

Anyway you say it, the USA team won both games with a 1-0 ten-inning win and 3-0 victory to sweep the Sunbirds Friday night before a crowd of over 3,000 at the Bill Williams Softball Complex.

The USA team, 24-1 for the tour, got its fifth win of the tour over Phoenix, but not without a fight in the epic battle. The national team got an RBI single by Shelly Stokes to rightfield that drove in courtesy runner Jennifer McFalls, one of two Texas players on the team.

It was good to get the win in what was the longest game of tour for the USA team.

"I didn't want it that close," said Stokes, a catcher for the team. "We didn't make the adjustments we needed to. We made some mistakes, some mental, some physical."

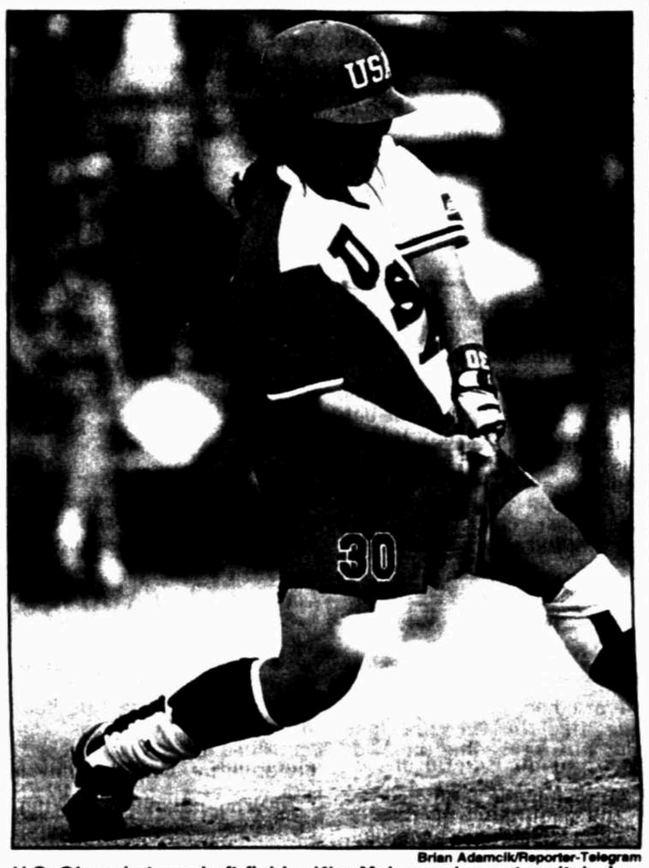

The win was the first non-run rule game for the USA team since the second half of the doubleheader last Friday in Tulsa. That meant 10 straight games that ended after five innings and with the team up by at least 10. It did get somewhat monotonous.

This nailbitter was a change and prepared it for situations like it would face in Columbus, Ga. (where softball will be held during the Olympic games).

"We were in situations that we have not been in before," USA veteran shortstop Dot Richardson said. "Their pitcher (Amy Day) was throwing well. Her drop was working and the strike zone was larger. That works in her advantage."

Day held the team scoreless despite allowing 11 hits over the 10 innings. The

Tech stays alive with 7-2 win over Akron

By Johnny Paul
Fort Worth Star-Telegram

LUBBOCK — Yesterday's $195,000 question from this NCAA Central II Regional concerned whether the host's 14th-ranked baseball program would be playing this weekend or produce a financial disaster.

Texas Tech's lofty bid to the NCAA guaranteed Dan Law Field as the site for this six-team, double-elimination tournament, but the beat-up Red Raiders faced early expulsion with a pitcher who admitted that he took the mound yesterday with a dead arm.

The pitcher, senior right-hander Ryan Brewer, "refused to lose" and strong-armed the Red Raiders past Akron, 7-2, in an elimination contest before 2,116.

Brewer (10-3) surrendered two unearned runs on seven hits, two of which never left the infield, and one walk in a gutsy performance aided by a seventh-inning defensive gem from left fielder Matt Kastelic.

STEWART DOREEN

Smith pulls off greatest comeback to pitch for U.S. team

When you have a career earned run average of 0.00 for the USA national team, coming back from deficits isn't exactly a common occurrence.

But there are not too many athletes like Michele Smith.

Doreen

The first game of the Olympics will mark the 10th anniversary of a car wreck that nearly ended her softball career.

On July 21, 1986, Smith was thrown from the automobile severing the muscle and nerve endings in and around her elbow in her left arm, her throwing arm.

She could have easily listened to those that said it would mark end of her pitching career.

She didn't.

Smith, the oldest of Team USA's five pitchers, went through nine months of rehabilitation in the attempt to regain what one split-moment had taken away from her...the ability to throw the ball as well as any pitcher in the country.

That hard work proved to be successful as she came back and pitched two seasons at Oklahoma State University, where she was a teammate of former Midland High softball coach Sherri Culwell. The southpaw recorded a two-year mark of 82-20 with 46 shutouts. She even topped it off with a .393 and .379 batting marks.

The rest is softball history and left for only the record books to tell. Smith is a six-time USA Softball gold medalist and member of one world championship and gold medal Pan American team. Smith, who is fluent in Japanese from her days pitching in Japan, has also been named USOC Sportswoman of the year three times (1990, 1993 and 1994).

The story and the lesson learned from it is not the on-the-field comeback, as impressive as it was, but what the off-the-field lesson she took away from the wreck.

Smith says the ultra-climatic turn of events gave her a new lease on life and respect for the importance of just being instead of being a pitcher. It made her look at the whole picture instead of being narrowly focused.

"It made me see my worth as a human more than as an athlete," Smith said. "A lot of time people get caught up in ability than in volume as a person."

That is a lesson that many of the superstar Prima Donnas in today's sportsworld could take a lesson from. Today's headlines are filled with players after players expecting beneficial treatment for their athletic abilities and not being responsible for their off-the-field actions.

Another effect of the accident came in the relationship between Smith and her father. The accident and ensuing conversation between the awoke her father to the fact the Michele was more than a woman with a talent to hurl a softball...but that she was also a person. That was something that had bothered her and she let him know that.

Parental influence is another aspect of life that comes with blinders for some. You don't have to look long in hard from stars like tennis player Mary Pierce to former football phenom Todd Marinovich to where it has gone wrong. You can probably go out to some area sporting events of all ages to see it more. Those cases, however, are few and far between but just seem to stick out more.

"In 1986, I was once faced with the reality that might not pitch again," Smith said. "Sometimes it is hard for me to believe that after all that has happened, my Olympic dream has come true."

Smith says going through that experience has made her a better pitcher and person. She didn't know if her chance to pitch in the Olympics would come. She was ready to put her softball aside to go after a career in medicine, but like even like any of the other players that make up the roster, 28-year old put things on the back burner for a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

Arlington Heights beats Big Spring

By Mark Bogomol
MRT Correspondent

ABILENE — The Arlington Heights Yellowjackets and the Big Spring Steers are meeting in the Class 4A regional baseball semifinals for the third straight year and Arlington Heights took the first step once again, routing Big Spring 13-3, outhitting them 13-4 and the Steers also committed seven costly errors.

Mike McCoy (11-2) allowed just four hits, striking out nine, and picking up his third straight win of the playoffs. Darren Wood supplied the power at the plate, going 2-for-4 with 4 RBIs, including a bases clearing triple in the fifth.

The Yellowjackets jumped on the board first in the bottom of the first after Derek Gerold singled. Mason Carter and Mark Austry got back-to-back singles, scoring Gerold and Carter went to third on an error.

Wood's sacrifice fly to center then made it 2-0.

Big Spring would answer back in the top of the second to tie the score at 2-2 as T.J. Rios was hit by a pitch with one out. Wes Mouton then doubled, putting runners at second and third, and with two outs, Marc Baker walked to load the bases and pinch hitter Danny Hall singled to drive in two.

Arlington Heights would storm back to take the lead in the bottom of the second as Brandon Thompson walked and McCoy sacrificed Thompson to second Brandon Fulgham singled to put the runners at the corners with one out. Gerold then singled, scoring Thompson and Fulgham came around on Clint Caudill's error to make it 4-2.

The Yellowjackets would add to the lead in the bottom of the third as Aaron Sisk would reach on an error and score on a Thompson double, giving Heights a 5-2 lead through three innings.

Both teams would chalk up runs in the fourth as Rios hit his third home run of the year to cut the margin to 5-3. Heights, however, went up 7-3 in the bottom of the third. Mason Carter was hit by a pitch and Austry singled him to third. Carter then scored on a ground out and Austry would score on a Thompson single.

Heights would seal the win in the fifth on with four runs on two hits. Wood tripled to center to clear the bases. In the bottom of the sixth, after a walk and single, Bobby Hall got back-to-back strikeouts before Wood reached on an error to allow two runs to score to end the game.

The two teams continue the best-of-three series today at 11 a.m., again here in Abilene. Big Spring will have to win both games to continue in the playoffs.

Pitino considering jump to NBA

By Mike Embry
AP Sports Writer

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Just a month after saying he wasn't about to leave Kentucky, Rick Pitino is thinking about leaving the national champions — to be coach, general manager and part-owner of the New Jersey Nets.

Pitino said at a news conference Friday that he is considering an offer from the Nets following conversations the last few days between his agent, Rick Avare, and the NBA team.

Jim Lampariello, executive vice president of operations for the Nets, said team president Michael Rowe "has been brought into the negotiations and discussions are going on."

Pitino, who last month turned down a five-year, $20 million offer to coach the Nets, said he was addressing the subject because of a report in New York Daily News on Friday.

"This is not a coaching change," the 43-year-old said. "This is a career move. I've been here seven years, six years longer than many of you thought."

Pitino said he will discuss the offer with Nets' officials before leaving on a week-long trip to Ireland that begins Sunday. He said he would not announce his decision until after he returns.

concerned about me getting them infected," said Green, who has been walking around this week with the heels cut out of his shoes.

"We all knew it was going to get hot one day. But Nazareth kind of snuck up on all of us. It was 70 degrees one day and then 90 on race day."

Green wasn't the only driver in the lineup for Charlotte's 300-mile event with burned heels. Kevin Lepage and Glenn Allen also had burns, but not as severe as Green's.

The problems at Nazareth prompted many of the teams at Charlotte to put extra insulation in the floorboards of their cars. Some even installed extra air ducts and directed the outlets at the pedals.

Unfortunately for Allen, Green and Lepage, the damage has been done. Lepage had to drive in a 40-lap qualifying race Friday, when the track was closed to Winston Cup competitors so the Grand National drivers could finish preparations for the Red Dog 300. The Winston Cup drivers will compete in the Coca-Cola 600.

INDY: Experience no problem this year the dirty-air turbulence that can wrench a car out of control and into the wall in milliseconds.

(From 1C)

The dearth of experience in the lineup stems mostly from the battle between the new Indy Racing League, brain child of speedway president Tony George, and Championship Auto Racing Teams, whose veteran drivers are boycotting Indy to race the same day in the renegade U.S. 500.

There was a reminder last week for rookies and veterans alike of just how unforgiving Indy can be. Scott Brayton, who had won the pole for the second straight year and was the most experienced driver in the field, was killed in a crash during practice.

But race drivers are basically optimists, and the general buzz this week is that the 80th running of the Indy classic will be competitive and, above all, safe.

Arie Luyendyk, the only former Indy winner and one of the most experienced drivers in the field with 11 previous starts, is one of those optimists.

"There's going to be a lot of competition," the 1990 winner said. "There is a lot of quality in this field. I think this race is going to surprise a lot of people as far as how competitive and interesting it is going to be."

USA: Granger throws a one-hitter

(From 1C)

USA team had its chances but nothing like in the previous blowout wins preceding the Midland twin bill.

"When we started (the tour), we were getting three/four runs a game," Stokes said. "So it was nice to get the bats coming around. It does make the game shorter."

The first game, a pitcher's duel if there ever was one, lasted almost three hours. The national team during that time got top performances from Lori Harrigan, who went nine innings allowing seven hits while striking out 18 Sunbird batters. Lisa Fernandez came into work the tenth, allowing one hit and striking out the side.

"Our strength is the depth in our pitching," Richardson said. We have the five who can go out there. We have the depth."

That depth showed its head in the second game when Granger controlled the Sunbird lineup. The lefthander, who recorded the only USA loss of the tour on her first game back from an injury, struck out 11 batters and didn't allow a hit until the top of the seventh when Jackie Amara gave Phoenix only its second base runner of the game.

The USA team scored its runs in the bottom of the first with three runs on no hits. Phoenix shot themselves in the foot with three errors, two walks and a hits batsmen that keyed the scoring. Losing pitcher, Debby Day, allowed only one hit herself. That came in off the bat of Fernandez in the fifth.

The Olympic team will travel to Fort Worth today for four games in two days. That will end the four-city stretch of Texas. Midland was the only city in the Texas that didn't see a run ruled game. The USA Olympic team will tour 21 cities.

USA NOTES: High school phenom Christa Williams was not present in the Tall City. The senior pitcher at Pasadena Dobie High School graduated Friday night and will rejoin the tour in Fort Worth...The USA team's only loss came in Long Beach (2-1) to the Southern California All-Star team...The game was the longest of the tour. The Olympic team had gone nine innings before, but never reached double digits...

JAZZ: Malone, Hornacek come alive

(From 1C)

and Detlef Schrempf had 17. Shawn Kemp, however, was saddled with foul trouble once again and barely had more points (10) than turnovers (eight).

The Sonics shot just 40 percent from the field — the first time in the series they missed more shots than they made — and were outrebounded 45-37.

Still, Seattle was right in the game after a 9-2 run over the first six minutes of the fourth quarter made it 80-74. But Malone dunked on a picturesque give-and-go with John Stockton, Schrempf missed consecutive 3-pointers, Russell buried a 3-pointer and Malone hit a jumper from the side to make it 87-74 with 3:40 left.

The game turned Utah's way in the third quarter as Seattle went more than seven minutes without a field goal. Ervin Johnson scored on a fast break with 9:17 left to put the Sonics ahead 58-56, but Malone scored on a layup, Russell had a layup, steal and dunk in a space of 43 seconds and Utah went on a 16-5 run to open a 72-63 lead.

Malone had a jumper and two foul shots in a 6-0 run to open the fourth quarter that gave Utah a 13-point lead.

Pair rip through PGA's Kemper Open

Associated Press

POTOMAC, Md. — Jay Williamson tore through the front nine for the second day in a row and Scott McCarron dominated the back nine as the two upstarts remained atop the leaderboard Friday at the midway point of the Kemper Open.

Gil Morgan, Larry Mize, John Daly and Mark O'Meara gave chase, but no one could catch the two leaders, who became good friends as rookies on the PGA Tour last year and will play together in the last group Saturday.

McCarron eagled the par-5 6th and birdied five of his last 10 holes for a 5-under-par 66 and a 132 total at the TPC at Avenel course. Williamson shot a 31 on the front nine for the second straight day, but lost a stroke on the back nine to finish with a 67, one shot off the lead.

LPGA Corning Classic

CORNING, N.Y. — Rosie Jones shot a 3-under-par 69 Friday and moved into a three-stroke lead over of a group of four that included Patty Sheehan in the $600,000 Corning Classic.

Jones, who started the day one shot behind leader Amy Benz, made three birdies and dropped a 25-foot chip for eagle on the par-5 5th and was at 8-under 136 for 36 holes. Going off the 10th tee, Jones moved to seven under with birdies on 16 and 17 but made a bogey on No. 1. She remained there until nailing the eagle.

Astros rally in ninth, win over Cubs in 10

Associated Press

NL Roundup

HOUSTON — The Houston Astros overcame Ryne Sandberg's first grand slam in four seasons, beating the Chicago Cubs 8-7 Friday night on John Cangelosi's run-scoring single with two outs in the 10th inning.

Chicago trailed 4-0 before Sammy Sosa's three-run homer in the sixth off Donne Wall — Sosa's 16th homer — and Sandberg's seventh-inning grand slam off Greg Swindell.

Sandberg's fourth career grand slam, his first since Sept. 9, 1992, off Danny Cox at Pittsburgh, put Chicago ahead 7-4. It was Sandberg's 10th homer of the season.

Houston, which stopped a three-game losing streak, tied the score in the ninth.

Craig Biggio hit a two-run homer off Turk Wendell with two outs and Sean Berry hit an RBI single off Doug Jones (5-1), who blew save for the fifth time in seven chances this season.

Ricky Gutierrez singled with one out in the 10th off Bob Patterson (1-2). Orlando Miller popped out, Gutierrez stole second and Cangelosi singled down the left-field line.

Cardinals 4, Marlins 2

MIAMI — Tom Pagnozzi singled in the sixth inning for St. Louis' first hit, sparking a comeback Friday night as they beat Florida for their fourth straight victory.

Mike Morgan (1-0), making his second start this year, allowed three hits and two runs in 6 2-3 innings before leaving the game after being struck on the right calf by Terry Pendleton's one-hopper.

Braves 5, Pirates 3

PITTSBURGH — John Smoltz won his 10th consecutive start and became the first 10-game winner in the majors as the Atlanta Braves rallied to beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-3 Friday night.

Smoltz (10-1) left for a pinch hitter in the seventh trailing 2-0. But Atlanta rallied for three runs in the inning and won for the eighth time in 10 games.

Phillies 5, Giants 1

SAN FRANCISCO — Curt Schilling allowed three hits in seven innings in his third start since shoulder surgery, leading Philadelphia over San Francisco.

Schilling (2-0) has beaten the Giants twice in three starts this season. He had arthroscopic surgery on his right shoulder last August. He allowed one run, struck out nine and walked one. Schilling, who had two of the Phillies' 10 hits, retired 14 consecutive batters before Glenallen Hill singled with two outs in the fifth.

Dodgers 5, Expos 4, 11 Innings

MONTREAL — Raul Mondesi drove in three runs, including the game-winner in the 11th inning as Los Angeles rallied for a to beat Montreal.

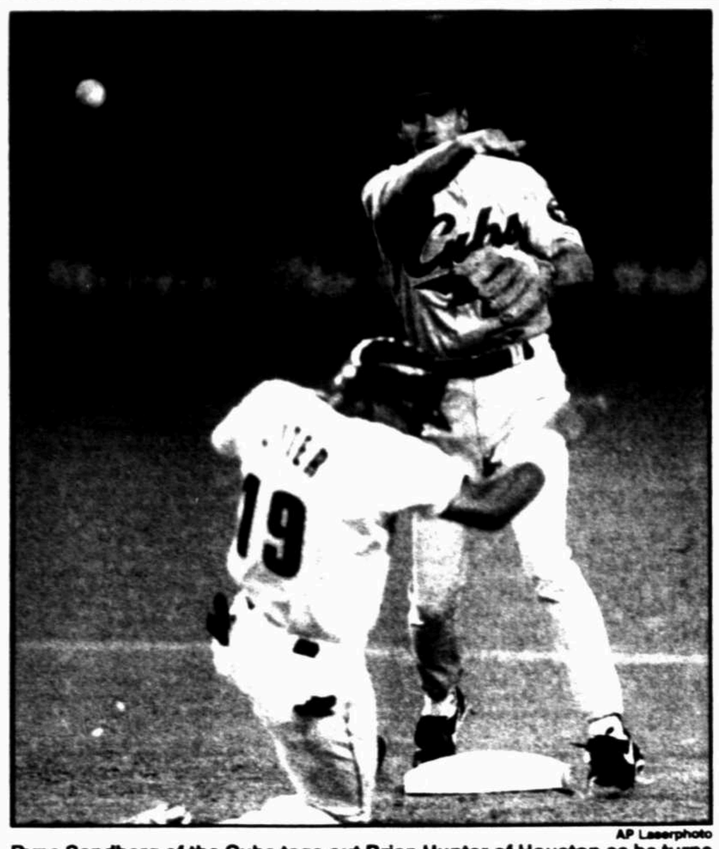

Antonio Osuna (3-3) pitched three innings, allowing one hit and striking out three for the win. Todd Worrell pitched a perfect 11th for his 12th save.

Padres 13, Mets 1

NEW YORK — Fernando Valenzuela took a shutout into the eighth inning and Brian Johnson hit his third career grand slam, leading San Diego past New York.

Valenzuela (3-2) gave up six hits, walked none and struck out four in eight innings. The 35-year-old pitcher also contributed an RBI grounder.

Valenzuela did not permit a runner past second base until Butch Huskey homered in the eighth.

Travelers end Angels' three-game win streak

Staff Report

MIDLAND ANGELS

Angels	2
Travelers	8

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — The Arkansas Travelers ended the Midland Angels' three-game winning streak here Friday night with two big four-run innings, winning 8-0.

Arkansas, which had only seven hits on the night, make good use of them to score four in the sixth and four in the bottom of the eighth to break open a tight 4-2 game.

Willard Brown (0-4) was again a hard luck loser, pitching five full shutout innings before having to leave after three batters in the sixth without getting an out as the Travs scored four runs to take a 4-2 lead.

Brown held a 2-0 lead heading into the fatal sixth. Ty Boykin had a two-run double in the first inning to give the Angels a quick start. After that, Midland left 11 runners stranded on the base paths, despite outhitting the Travs by a 9-7 margin.

Midland ends its road trip today with a 6:30 p.m. doubleheader against Arkansas.

The Angels are 5-3 on the road trip.

Belle blasts two HRs as Indians tame Tigers

Associated Press

AL Roundup

DETROIT — Albert Belle hit two home runs Friday night and the Cleveland Indians sent the Detroit Tigers to their ninth straight loss, 6-3.

Belle hit a solo home run in the fourth inning, then led off the eighth with another homer for a 4-3 lead. He leads the majors with 19 home runs.

Manny Ramirez and Kenny Lofton also homered as Cleveland won for the 10th time in 12 games before a crowd of 26,967, second-largest of the season at Tiger Stadium.

Eric Plunk (1-0) worked out of a jam in the seventh, and Jose Mesa got his 18th save in 18 chances.

Twins 4, Blue Jays 0

TORONTO — Rich Robertson pitched his first career shutout and won for the first time in eight decisions as Minnesota beat Toronto.

Robertson (1-7) allowed four hits — leadoff singles in the first and third innings, a two-out triple in the sixth and a one-out double in the seventh. He struck out eight and walked three.

Chuck Knoblauch went 3-for-4, scored Minnesota's first run and made it 4-0 with an RBI single in the fifth.

Erik Hanson (5-4) gave up four runs and nine hits in five innings, striking out seven and walking five.

Royals 8, Rangers 0

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Mark Gubicza pitched a four-hitter in his second straight strong start, and Kansas City stretched its winning streak to five with a shutout of Texas.

In his previous start against Texas, Gubicza gave up a career-high nine runs and 12 hits in four innings on May 14. After losing 3-2 to Toronto last Sunday on Ed Sprague's two-run homer, the usually calm Gubicza paced the Royals clubhouse muttering profanities.

Bobby Witt (4-4) was knocked out with two outs in the fourth. Witt gave up five runs and six hits. He has given up 18 runs and 22 hits in his last two starts, with his ERA rising to 6.65.

White Sox 4, Brewers 3

CHICAGO — Ron Karkovice hit a solo home run with two outs in the eighth inning and Chicago beat Milwaukee for their sixth straight.

Larry Thomas (2-3) got the win, and Roberto Hernandez pitched a the ninth for his 13th save.

Orioles 5, Athletics 4
10 Innings

BALTIMORE — Gregg Zaun singled home the winning run with two outs in the 10th inning, giving Baltimore Orioles a comeback victory over Oakland.

It was the 10th win in 13 games for the Orioles. Jeffrey Hammonds' three-run homer in the Baltimore eighth tied it at 4.

Baltimore's Roberto Alomar stretched his hitting streak to 10 games and kept his major league leading batting average at .400 by going 2-for-5.

Rafael Palmeiro opened the Orioles 10th with a double off Carlos Reyes (3-8), making his first relief appearance of the season.

Bobby Bonilla was given an intentional walk, Cal Ripken struck out and Hammonds forced out Palmeiro at third. Zaun then hit a line drive in the gap in left-center.

Roger McDowell (1-1) pitched two innings for his first victory with Baltimore.

Phils' Fernandez out for two weeks

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Philadelphia Phillies left-hander Sid Fernandez, plagued by injuries throughout his career, will miss at least two weeks with a sprained pitching elbow, the team announced Friday.

Fernandez, 33, missed his scheduled start Thursday against San Diego after complaining of elbow pain. General manager Lee Thomas said he was examined in Philadelphia on Friday by team physician Dr. Phillip Marone.

"Dr. Marone called and said the tests showed this ligament sprain," Thomas said. "He estimates Sid will be sidelined for a couple of weeks, taking treatment from (trainer) Jeff Cooper."

Fernandez is 2-4 this season in eight starts. He has a 3.26 ERA in 49 2-3 innings and has struck out 57 while walking 18. He has a 112-94 lifetime record.

Firmani resigns as New York-New Jersey coach

Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Eddie Firmani resigned as the coach of the New York-New Jersey MetroStars on Friday just eight games into the team's first Major League Soccer season.

Firmani apparently stepped down under pressure after the team collected a league-low five points based on one win in regulation, two in shootouts and five losses. The team has scored just nine goals, eight by Giovanni Savarese and one own goal.

Assistant coach Ralph Perez will replace Firmani on an interim basis and he will coach the team Friday night in an exhibition game against Fiorentina of the Italian League. A new coach is expected to be named next week, the team said.

"I felt it is in the best interests of the club and team that I step down," Firmani said in a statement released by the team. "Things are not going well right now and the team probably needs a change. I hope this will get the team going in the right direction."

Firmani, hired by the MetroStars in January, was the only coach to win three titles in the now defunct North American Soccer League, the final two with the Cosmos in 1977 and 1978.

"Eddie Firmani represents nothing but class," said Charlie Stillitano, the team's vice president and general manager. "He came into a difficult situation."

RAIDERS: Brewer throws 129 pitches

(From 1C)

"I guess the best way to put it is we patched together a win," said coach Larry Hays, whose Red Raiders (48-14) continue to be plagued defensively by the absence of injured shortstop Dion Ruecker. "The key for us was Brewer, who refused to lose. If we had any mental weakness, we were in trouble. Brewer went out with the attitude he was going to win anyway."

Brewer lacked the usual movement and zip on his fastball, so he relied on a changeup that served him well during his 129-pitch effort.

"I came in with the attitude that this could be my last career start in college or maybe overall," Brewer said. "You never know what's going to happen, so I really went out there with that in mind. Plus, I knew I needed to eat up some innings if we're going to win this thing."

Catcher David Lindstrom gave Texas Tech a 2-0, first-inning lead with his 16th home run. The Red Raiders extended their advantage to 3-0 when Brad Davis scored after a leadoff triple in third.

Southern Cal 15, Arkansas 5

Greg Walbridge went 5-for-6 with three RBIs and Mark Mirizzi drove in four runs Friday as Southern California beat Arkansas, eliminating the Razorbacks from the regional.

Walbridge led the Trojans' 21-hit outburst by extending his streak of reaching base to 12 consecutive at-bats. Jacque Jones hit a two-run homer, and Mirizzi went 4-for-5 for Southern California (43-14-1).

Left-hander Randy Flores (9-1) went the distance for the Trojans, allowing 10 hits, striking out three and walking one.

The Razorbacks (39-20) took a 3-0 lead in the bottom of the first inning, but USC went ahead 8-3 by scoring one in the second, two in the fourth and five in the fifth.

Arkansas right fielder Kit Pellow had a three-run homer and all five of the Razorbacks' RBIs. Arkansas starter Matt Carnes dropped to 10-5.

Oklahoma St. 12, Fresno St. 5

Oklahoma State's Jamey Wood hit a two-run homer in the fifth inning to break a 3-3 tie as the Cowboys defeated Fresno State.

Wood's blast scored Jeff Guiel, who had reached on a walk.

The Cowboys (43-19) went on to break open the game, scoring nine runs in the final five innings.

A two-run triple by Rusty McNamara in the seventh and a two-run homer by Ted Salhani in the eighth provided the other offensive highlights.

Heath Askew (7-3) relieved Oklahoma State starter Jay McCullough in the fifth and went on to record the win.

Panthers take series lead over Penguins

By John Pacenti
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — Stu Barnes scored twice in a three-goal Florida third period as the Panthers continued their surprise playoff run with a 5-2 victory over Pittsburgh on Friday night in the Eastern Conference championship series.

Gord Murphy and Dave Lowry added two assists to help the Panthers to a 2-1 lead in the best-of-7 series with the next game in Miami on Sunday.

Florida had a club-record 61 shots against the Penguins, beating the old record of 52 with 12 minutes left in the game. The Panthers took the first 20 shots of the third period and outshot Pittsburgh 61-28 overall.

For the Panthers, Ray Sheppard scored his seventh playoff goal, while rookie Radek Dvorak and Martin Straka got their first.

Bryan Smolinski and Petr Nedved scored for Pittsburgh. Florida goaltender John Vanbiesbrouck, however, shut down Pittsburgh's big guns of Mario Lemieux and Jaromir Jagr. The closest either got to scoring was when Jagr hit the post in the second period as Vanbiesbrouck ended up with 26 saves.

With the score 2-2, Barnes scored the game-winner on the power play 55 seconds into the third when he picked up a loose puck off Lowry's stick and beat Penguins goaltender Tom Barrasso stickside for a 3-2 lead.

The Panthers' power play was set up by a hooking call at the end of the second period against Pittsburgh's Glenn Murray on Lowry — who ended up cutting the wing with his skate.

Barnes scored exactly four minutes later when Lowry dug the puck out from behind the net and fed it to the center in front of Barrasso. Barnes scored on his first rebound to make it 4-2.

Straka deflected Murphy's shot for the final margin at 7:37 of the third.

Florida fans, per usual, threw plastic rats on the ice. There were so many that Barrasso took cover inside the net.

The runaway Panthers lived in Pittsburgh's zone in the third period. The Penguins did not get a shot in the final period until the 16:50 mark. The shots-on-goal broke the old mark of 52 set against Los Angeles on Oct. 19, 1993.

Midland Reporter-Telegram CashBack Game Rules

No purchase is required to play or win a prize in the Midland Reporter-Telegram CashBack Game. There are 456 winners, $5,550 in prizes including a $1,000 grand prize. Any U.S. resident, 18 years of age or older can enter except employees of The Hearst Newspapers and CashBack Card Inc., their promotion agencies and members of employees' immediate families.

How to play. If your CashBack Card number matches the number in the Midland Reporter-Telegram Classified pages, you win a $10 CashBack Card rebate check. Use it to buy anything you wish at any participating CashBack Card merchant. If you don't have a CashBack Card, you can get one by subscribing for 13 weeks or more to the Midland Reporter-Telegram. Call 688-2700 to subscribe.

If you have misplaced your CashBack Card, call 688-2700. We will send a replacement card without cost.

But you don't need a CashBack Card to enter the CashBack Card Second Chance Sweepstakes and by entering you could win one of the unclaimed daily prizes for the CashBack Card Game grand prize, a $1,000 CashBack Card rebate check. Use them to buy anything you wish at any participating CashBack Card merchant.

Here is how to enter the CashBack Card Game Second Chance Sweepstakes: Hand print your complete name and address and a daytime phone number on the CashBack Card Game Second Chance Sweepstakes entry form or on a 3" x 5" plain piece of paper and mail to: CashBack Card, Second Chance Sweepstakes, P.O. Box 1650, Midland, TX 79702-1650, so that the entry arrives before the deadline, June 16, 1996. Enter as often as you wish but mail only one entry per envelope.

How to claim a prize: Each day, March 18-June 16, 1996, five different randomly-selected CashBack Card numbers will appear in Midland Reporter-Telegram Classified Ads. If the number on your CashBack Card matches the one in the newspaper, you win that prize provided you claim the prize within one week of publication. Claim your prize Monday-Friday, 9 a.m.- 4 p.m. at the Midland Reporter-Telegram office, 201 East Illinois, Midland, or call 688-2700.

Winners may be required to sign and return an affidavit of Eligibility/ Release of Liability/ Prize Acceptance. The acceptance of a prize constitutes permission to use the winner's name or likeness or both for the purpose of advertising, promotion and trade without further compensation to the winner.

All prizes will be awarded. Except for the grand prize, winners can collect only one prize. No responsibility is accepted for any lost, delayed, illegible, incomplete, mutilated, postage due or misdirected entries. Entries become the property of the Midland Reporter-Telegram. None will be returned. Federal, state, and local taxes, if any, are the responsibility of prize winners. Decisions of the judges in all matters pertaining to the CashBack Game are final and binding on all participants and the sponsors reserve the right to modify the rules at any time. Odds of winning depend on the number of entries received. Void where prohibited. ©1996 Midland Reporter-Telegram. All rights reserved.
