Begin releases 16 Arab prisoners to keep pledge

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin, making good a pledge he made to President Anwar Sadat, today released 16 Arab prisoners held on security charges, Israel Radio reported.

The radio said 10 of them had been detained on various charges for offenses against Israeli security and six had been convicted by military courts of "minor security offenses."

The names of those released were not given and the radio said seven of them were on their way to El Arish. The remainder were expected to return to their homes in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan or the Gaza Strip.

When they met in El Arish Sunday, Begin told Sadat that he would "take steps to free a number of prisoners whose release would not impair Israel's security." It was seen as an Israeli gesture toward Sadat.

Sadat and Begin also declared the Egyptian-Israeli border open and announced they would meet again in Egypt in July.

Moderates and hardliners of the Arab world, meanwhile, repudiated the three-way talks between Israel, Egypt and The United States on self-rule for the Palestinians.

In another development, a young woman was slightly injured today when a bomb exploded on a public beach in the Israeli port city of Haifa, Israel Radio reported.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance joined the Egyptian and Israeli leaders for a day of ceremonies and talks Sunday in El Arish, the Sinai capital returned to Egypt on Friday, in Beersheba, the capital of Israel's Negev, and on a flight over parts of Israel and Sinai to symbolize the opening of air traffic between the two countries.

"The president and I proclaim here from El Arish that the borders of Egypt and Israel are open," Begin announced after an initial 15-minute talk with Sadat. "Citizens of Egypt will be able to visit Israel, and citizens of Israel will be able to visit Egypt."

Despite the declaration, procedures for travel across the border were still to be worked out. Such travel was expected to be limited for some time to exchanges sponsored by the two governments.

It was the second major step in the implementation of the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty signed March 26. The first was the return of El Arish and 425 square miles of the Sinai to Egypt Friday, the start of Israel's final withdrawal over a three-year period from the desert peninsula it captured in the 1967 Arab-Israeli War, and the simultaneous start of Egyptian-Israeli negotiations for Palestinian autonomy in the Gaza Strip and the West Bank of the Jordan River, two other territories captured by Israel in 1967.

Begin also said he would "set free a number of prisoners whose release will not impair Israel's security."

Begin said Sadat invited him to Alexandria in July "to discuss problems of common concern." Sadat, quarantined by most of the Arab world because of his peace treaty with Israel, said he and Begin agreed to give "every possible momentum to the peace process."

Sadat injected a grimmer note when Israeli President Yitzhak Navon, in welcoming him to Beersheba, remarked that Israel was taking a military risk in giving up the Sinai. Sadat departed from his prepared text to reply with a warning that appeared to refer to the Palestinians of the West Bank and Gaza as well as to the Egyptians.

"As your land is sacred to you, the land of others is sacred to them," he told his hosts. "We are genuinely for peace, but we are also genuinely for our land. The land of others will not provide security. Only friendship, brotherhood, friendly relations will provide peace."

Plane manufacturer orders inspection of all DC-10s

CHICAGO (AP) — The discovery that a broken bolt caused an engine to fall from the American Airlines jetliner involved in the nation's worst air disaster has prompted the plane's manufacturer and U.S. safety investigators to call for inspection of other DC-10s for similar defects.

Federal Aviation Administration head Langhorne Bond reportedly was considering grounding all DC-10s now in service following Friday's accident at O'Hare International Airport.

All 271 persons aboard American Flight 191 and two persons on the ground were killed when the wide-body aircraft lost an engine, flipped, crashed and burned shortly after takeoff.

An order grounding the planes likely would create problems for air travelers completing their Memorial Day weekends.

Requests for reservations for air travel were reported normal in Chicago on Sunday, although a TWA spokesman said some persons were asking what type of aircraft would be used. TWA does not use DC-10s.

There are currently about 275 DC-10s in use by 41 airlines, said a spokesman for McDonnell Douglas, manufacturer of the aircraft.

The FAA was expected to issue a directive today calling for special inspections of many, and possibly all, DC-10s, according to FAA spokesman Jerome Doolittle.

Bond was quoted in today's Washington Post as saying he planned to order an immediate inspection of engine-mounting points on the jetliners, and was considering an order to ground them.

Gas prospects 'very bleak'

By The Associated Press

Motorists who ventured beyond a half-tank distance from home for the Memorial Day weekend today had to worry about finding enough gasoline to get back. In some parts of the nation, authorities described their prospects as "very bleak."

Rainy weather and the gasoline shortage led to unusually low traffic counts in many states, officials said, but when drivers took off, they were ready for whatever the fuel market had to offer.

"I had one guy who had seven gas cans in his trunk and wanted them all filled," said Frank Liska, who operates two stations in Akron, Ohio. "He said it was for his tractor, but a guy driving a beat-up car like he had doesn't own a tractor."

In Santa Ana, Calif., three men drove a truck driver around for several hours while a fourth man made off with the contents of his tank truck — 8,750 gallons of gas, police said.

The National Safety Council predicted — before the gas crunch became a serious problem — that as many as 600 people would die in traffic accidents during the long weekend. By early today, just over 300 people had been killed.

Across the country, the amount of gasoline available and its price varied widely.

A survey of 36 Oregon stations by the state Automobile Club showed 30 would be closed today. But thousands of residents still headed for beaches, campgrounds and parks for a weekend dampened only by the threat of rain.

Ocean City, Md., Mayor Harry Kelly promised to arrange gasoline for anyone who couldn't get home. He had had no takers by Sunday night.

Traffic was lighter than usual in Las Vegas and in Reno, where some stations already were out of gas.

In New York, gas lines at one Manhattan station extended across a bridge into the Bronx Sunday as area fuel pumps began to run dry.

A Gulf service station in Boston was charging $1.16 for regular gas — 14 cents less than a station in New York was charging for premium gasoline.

"I can't afford it, but what can I do?" asked a woman at the service station after she paid $4 for a just over three gallons Saturday.

The Georgia Motor Club said about 66 percent of the state's stations were expected to be open today. In Wisconsin, 80 percent of the stations in some heavily traveled counties closed Sunday, and officials expected some problems with supplies today. Gene Stein of the Central Ohio Gasoline Dealers Association estimated 10 percent to 20 percent of the area's filling stations would be open.

Business was down at several Missouri tourist attractions. Silver Dollar City, a hillbilly town near Branson, Mo., — about 40 miles south of Springfield — said business was down about 20 percent from the Memorial Day weekend last year.

However, in neighboring Indiana, more than 300,000 race fans ignored the gas crunch and made the annual trek to the Indianapolis 500 auto race — won by 27-year-old Rick Mears in his second try.

In states that reported no serious shortages of gasoline, travel was down anyway.

City job offered to East Texan

Mayor Wade Choate and the rest of the Big Spring City Council decided unanimously Saturday to offer the job of City Manager to a 35-year-old East Texas man.

Officials now await only the applicant's reply. He and his wife spent much of the weekend in Big Spring, touring the city and meeting a variety of citizens.

Choate expects an answer on the offer either today or early this week.

Varied program promised on 'Starlight Special'

The 49th Armored Division of the National Guard will open the Starlight Special Memorial Day Program at 7:30 o'clock tonight with the presentation of the colors.

direction of Steve Waggoner, will perform a number of selections throughout the evening, including the "Star Spangled Banner," "Fairest of the Fair," "The Thundered," "In the Mood" and "The Klaxon."

Following the Pledge of Allegiance, led by the Disabled American Legion and DAV Auxiliary, Bill Birrell will give a "Memorial Day Tribute," citing the history of the holiday.

Dr. Weldon Butler, First United Methodist Church, will give the invocation, and there will be two tributes, one to the Gold Star Mothers, given by Mrs. Clara Lewis, of Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary Post 2013, and one to Howard County Veterans who lost their lives in all wars, given by Jim Baum.

Acknowledgment and recognition will be given to the commanders and presidents of all Veterans and Veterans Auxiliaries for the time and effort they place into community service and service to the veterans.

Action/reaction: Out on a limb

Q. People have been dumping tree limbs on a vacant lot next to us instead of taking the limbs to the city dump. Isn't there a city ordinance against that? What is the penalty for those caught at it?

A. Disposing of tree limbs and other litter in the manner that you describe is a misdemeanor, according to Acting City Manager Paul Feazelle, and is punishable with a fine of up to $200. If you know who the culprits are, have their license numbers or can otherwise aid in identifying them, you should contact the police and report the violations.

On the light side

Anybody lose an antler

JACKSON, Wyo. (AP) — Take a handful of Boy Scouts, 9,100 pounds of elk antlers and seven exporters. Put them together and you have an antler auction.

The elk antlers were stacked in Jackson town square. They have been shed this spring by the bulls among the 8,000 elk that winter on the federal elk refuge near town.

Three weeks before last week's auction, 200 local Boy Scouts had collected the whitened antlers on the refuge's 24,000 acres.

The exporters, all Koreans with offices on the East or West coasts, wore suits and carried notebooks. Later they donned sun visors and cowboy hats.

Buyer Jung Wang of San Francisco said antlers of various types have been sold in herb shops in Asia for thousands of years.

"It is like you people drinking Geritol," he said, destroying an old myth in the process. "It is not, definitely not, considered an aphrodisiac."

Wanted: Dirty water

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — The City of Concord is looking for a big polluter — namely somebody to dump a million gallons of polluted water into its sewer system.

The problem began last January when the Allied Leather Co. shut down its tanning operation. But the treatment plant in that section of the city was built to operate most efficiently at 4.2 million gallons of effluent daily.

With the flow from the tanning company gone, it's now costing the city more to treat less.

"Basically," said City Manager James Smith, "we're looking for some nice dirty water."

Although the shortage has been a boon to motorized bikes and motorcycles, it has meant trouble for makers of motor homes, trailers, campers, vans and other recreational vehicles.

Sales plunged by 13.9 percent in the first quarter of 1979, says Gary LaBella of the Recreation Vehicle Industry Association. Some firms have been forced to lay off employees and close plants.

On the plus side, long waits in gasoline lines may have caused some Americans to buy thrifter motorized bikes and motorcycles.

"We've had a great spring," said John Davidson of Harley-Davidson, the nation's only motorcycle maker. "We have had some reports of people buying motorcycles because of the gasoline crunch, but it's really hard to get a handle on how many people are doing that."

"But we do have some people coming in we don't ordinarily see ... not the

THOMAS NEILL

Neill finishes school

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — SMSgt. Thomas H. Neill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Neill of Big Spring, has graduated from the U.S. Air Force Senior Non-commissioned Officer Academy at Gunter Air Force Station, Ala.

During the nine-week course, the sergeant studied advanced management techniques, communicative skills and behavioral science. The academy is the Air Force's highest professional military school for non-commissioned officers.

Sergeant Neill has returned to the Boeing Company, Seattle, Wash., where he is an electronic computer systems maintenance superintendent with a unit of the Tactical Air Command.

The sergeant, a 1961 graduate of Maran (Ariz.) High School, received an A.A. degree in business from Columbia College, Seattle, Wash. His wife, Sharon, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Carter of Star Route 2, Camp Verde, Ariz.

typical enthusiasts, just people who want more gas to the mileage."

This spring, sales of the heavyweight Harley-Davidson increased a little over 12 percent. Last year at this time, the increase was under 3 percent, he said.

During the first quarter of 1979, there has been a 34 percent increase in sales of motorized bikes, mopeds, according to the Washington, D.C.-based Motorized Bicycle Association.

"In four previous years, recreation was the number one motivation for buying mopeds," said the association's Joe Wolfe.

"Now utility is the reason consumers give. We've estimated that if a moped is used instead of a car for 12 miles a day average, then a family can annually save 260 gallons of gasoline."

Mopeds, which resemble fat bicycles or skinny motorcycles, can average about 135 miles per gallon.

The gasoline panic has not adversely affected small aircraft sales, says Robert Dalin, vice president for marketing at Teterboro Aircraft in New Jersey.

"Sales are even better since airlines are booked solid. In fact, corporate aircraft is going crazy," he said.

As of April, 6,892 Cessna, Piper and Beech aircraft were sold for a total of $770.2 million — a 7 percent increase over last year. The turbo prop, a more fuel-efficient craft, showed the biggest leap, 30 percent, Dalin said.

He added that customers did not seem too worried about the price of jet fuel. "The biggest thing that concerns customers is that they'll be able to buy it if they need 900 gallons," he said.

Boat owners also are concerned that there will be sufficient gasoline and diesel fuel. Says Pete Newins of Bayshore Marine in Bayshore, N.Y.: "The big boats aren't asking how much it is, but have you got it. The little boats are asking price."

Boat sales are "way off," he said. "A 24-footer is the largest boat we've sold this year," he added. "Usually, we sell way over 30 feet. Everyone's looking for a 16-foot outboard or a sailboat."

In Marina Del Rey, Calif., touted as the country's largest man-made marina, powerboat customers have dropped by half, according to a spokeswoman. But more sailboat customers are turning out.

"I don't think we're going to suffer as much as the recreational vehicles," said Dennis Greising of the National Association of Engine and Boat Manufacturers. "The average boater uses only about 60 gallons of gasoline in an entire season."

Recreational vehicles use much more gasoline and have been the hardest hit by the fuel crisis.

Heiress Christner denies claim

$1.4 million robbery faked?

DALLAS (AP) — At the time, it was reported as the biggest residential robbery in the history of Dallas County.

Janice Christner — owner of the famed "Christner Collection" of silver and porcelain — told police a man and a woman forced their way into her palatial residence in the exclusive Highland Park section of Dallas and stole $1.4 million in art works, jewelry, antiques and cash.

That was Sept. 24. Today, eight months later, Mrs. Christner has been accused by an insurance company of faking the robbery.

In a copyright story Sunday, the Dallas Morning News reported Lloyd's of London has filed documents in District Court in Dallas which it says backs up its argument the robbery was a concoction of a woman who built a charade of wealth and high society on borrowed money.

Mrs. Christner, in a sworn affidavit, has specifically denied the allegations.

The matter came to civil court after the 61-year-old widow filed a claim for $87,875 with Lloyd's of London, the company with which she had insured most of the jewelry. Lloyd's refused to pay, and Mrs. Christner filed suit against the prestigious firm.

In answer to that suit, Lloyd's has argued through affidavits and documents that the robbery never took place, that Mrs. Christner's claims to being an heiress are unsubstantiated and that she used falsified appraisal reports to borrow money, the Morning News reported.

The newspaper report comes two weeks before a celebrated auction of Mrs. Christner's multimillion-dollar art collection scheduled in New York for June 7-9.

Mrs. Christner's attorney, Carl Skibell, said in an affidavit in a separate civil case that one reason for the auction was "for the purpose of paying off an existing debt in favor of First Texas Savings and Loan Association in the amount of $5.8 million," the newspaper reported.

Skibell told the Morning News there were "many reasons" for the auction,

"including the robbery of her home...the death of her husband...her declining health and advancing age."

The News also reported First Texas has a lien against the entire Christner Collection up for auction.

There have been no criminal charges filed in the case, and Highland Park Police Chief Henry Gardner has declined to discuss the matter with The Associated Press.

But according to the Morning News, Lloyd's uses a sworn affidavit from Gardner in its case against Mrs. Christner in which the police chief says Mrs. Christner first said $40,000 in $10 and $20 bills were stolen from a desk drawer during the robbery. When police told her that many bills wouldn't fit in the drawer, she changed her claim to $9,000, Gardner said in the statement.

The chief's statement also said when officers returned to Mrs. Christner's home to question her about her background and that of her friends and family, "she became most uncooperative and hostile and indicated that she was not going to give them any information concerning her friends, and it was none of their business."

The newspaper said Mrs. Christner told antique dealer Carl Wright she was an heiress of the founder of Coca-Cola. The News also said, according to court records, Mrs. Christner told others she was also an heiress of the founders of Burlington Mills and American Airlines.

She and her husband, retired American Airlines pilot John W. Christner, moved into the Highland Park mansion about 1972. Christner died in October 1975.

The News said after that, Mrs. Christner began collecting and dealing in antiques and art works on a grand scale, making several acquisition trips to Europe.

But Lloyd's claims through documents filed in the civil case that Mrs. Christner had no source of income other than bank loans from First Texas Savings and Loan, and further that she used falsified appraisals of art treasures as collateral to borrow money.

Mrs. Christner declined to comment on the matter, referring all questions to her lawyer.

In a separate civil action, the parent company of Neiman-Marcus filed suit against Mrs. Christner for nonpayment of a $175,000 diamond-studded necklace she bought on credit at the department store a year ago, the newspaper said.

The article said a writ of attachment was ordered in that suit April 3, and a sheriff's deputy went to seize $100,000 worth of Mrs. Christner's property pending settlement of the suit. But the paper said the deputy returned and said he was unable to find anything of value that did not have a substantial lien against it.

The necklace was among items reported stolen in the Sept. 24 robbery.

Gas available in Big Bend

"No station in Big Bend National Park has ever been out of gasoline due to a gasoline shortage," said W.J. Newell of Newell Oil Company, Inc., gasoline distributor to the park for the last 25 years.

"Since this is a remote area, gasoline availability is of extreme importance and we have made special arrangements to insure that it will continue to be available," Newell said.

Gasoline may be purchased at three locations in the park: Panther Junction, Rio Grande Village, and Castolon. Only unleaded gas is available at Castolon.

"We want potential park visitors to know they won't be stranded in the park without gasoline," said Park Superintendent Robert C. Haraden. "The stations here will be open seven days a week unless there should be a national emergency or some other situation beyond our control."

Violence mars celebration

DECATUR, Ala. (AP) — Federal agents have been dispatched to Decatur after a Memorial Day weekend marred by violence between blacks and Ku Klux Klansmen, officials say.

Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., said Sunday that Attorney General Griffin Bell had sent FBI agents from Washington to "assess the situation."

Meanwhile, blacks were expected to gather today to plan further protests, according to the Rev. R. B. Cottonreader, a project director for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

The violence occurred Saturday when shots were exchanged between the SCLC and the Klan, leaving four people wounded. Police said shooting erupted as Klansmen tried to stop a march in support of Tommy Lee Hines Jr., a 27-year-old black man convicted of rape.

SCLC National President Joseph Lowery led the noon march. He said his wife, Evelyn, narrowly missed being hit by a bullet that shattered the window of her car.

Two stores were firebombed Saturday night. One was heavily damaged. Sunday, riot-equipped police looked on as some 50 robed Klansmen and women, many armed with clubs, staged a peaceful rally on the steps of City Hall.

Imperial Wizard Bill Wilkinson led the march that culminated with a cross-burning at the scene of the shootings the day before.

Wilkinson, who was in Georgia when the shootings occurred, told reporters Sunday that the Klansmen did not attempt to block the black marchers, but to "oversee" the march.

"We were offered the opportunity to march in front of or behind the SCLC by the authorities," he said. "Our men were intending to march in front of the SCLC. Apparently they took more time than the Negroes liked and they started moving in. Our only intent was to ensure that we were in front."

Police reports indicated the Klansmen attempted to stop the march. The reports also indicated that when the confrontation began, the first shots were fired from the SCLC side. Cottonreader said no one in the march was armed.

Bullets struck Klansman David Kelo, 30, in the chest. He remained in intensive care today.

Also injured were Klansman Berdice Kilgo; Larry Lee Smith, 30, a black man; and Bernice Brown, 27, a black woman. All were in satisfactory condition.

Conyers told several Alabama legislators that Bell telephoned him and asked about the situation after Conyers asked for Justice Department assistance. State Rep. Alvin Holmes quoted Conyers as saying that Bell "knew nothing about the people who had been shot."

A spokesman for the Justice Department refused to comment on the report Sunday.

(AP LASERPHOTO) MISSING AND PRESUMED DEAD — Mauritania radio announced Sunday that a light plane carrying Lt. Col. Ahmed Ould Bouceif, premier of Mauritania, crashed in the Atlantic off Senegal and the premier is missing and presumed dead. Wreckage of the plane has been found in the Atlantic off Dakar, Senegal.

Uvalde man Tommy Tune is director

Jim Harvey, regional administrator for the Texas Department of Human Resources in West Texas, has been elected as a board director of the 30,000-member Texas Public Employees Association.

TPEA is a voluntary association of state employees representing their interests in legislative matters.

Harvey joins the 24-member board of directors as representative for the newly created TPEA Region 10, which includes the area of Texas west of the Pecos River.

He has been active in TPEA since joining state government in 1959. Four times, he served as chairman of the association's important Legislative Committee.

In that position, he provided leadership for the development of several TPEA legislative packages, containing the membership's requests to the state legislature.

Once the legislative requests were approved by the TPEA membership, Harvey worked closely with the association's executive director and state board to seek support and passage of the legislation.

A native of Sabinal in Uvalde County, Harvey began his state government career as a child welfare caseworker in Wharton. He held numerous positions in the then State Department of Public Welfare with progressively increasing responsibilities, including administrator of the Austin-Waco area and chief of social services in state headquarters.

Prior to his current assignment in El Paso, he was special assistant to the director of the State Program on Drug Abuse, administered by the Texas Department of Community Affairs.

Harvey holds a Master of Social Work degree from the University of Texas at Austin.

SWTS graduate

SAN MARCOS — Tommy Wayne Tune of Big Spring was among the 1,239 Southwest Texas State University students who were candidates for degrees awarded in spring commencement ceremonies recently at Evans Field.

Keynote speaker was Dr. Betty Kissler, professor of history and chairman of the faculty senate.

The May graduates were the second of three classes whose diplomas carried a special designation recognizing their graduation during SWTS' 75th anniversary year. The anniversary observance will run through August 31.

Degrees were conferred by SWT President Lee H. Smith. Texas State University System regent Hollis Smith of San Marcos assisted with the presentation of diplomas to master's degree recipients.

Tune, received a bachelor of arts in political science degree. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Tune of Big Spring.

'No hard feelings'

Standing up to Hobby

AUSTIN — With the Killer Bees returned to the Senate fold, it was business as usual as they and their opponents claim "no hard feelings."

"The same people are always going to be at each other's throat," said returned bee Sen. Bill Patman of Ganado.

Patman also said his relationship with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, presiding officer of the Senate, would not be changed.

"I'm one who had a mind to stand up to him and I'll continue to do so," he said.

Hobby told reporters the bees' five-day absence to protest a separate presidential preference primary only accomplished "a waste of four days."

But, when asked if any rancor remained between him and the 12 senators, Hobby said, "I think surprisingly little."

Sen. Carlos Truan of Corpus Christi, also a bee, said he had "no problem with the other senators" on the bees' first full day back since last Thursday.

But he cited statements by opposing senators during the bees' absence "that we were fugitives from the law—fugitives from justice—and that the governor and lieutenant governor ought to unseat us."

He scoffed at suggestions the incident would hurt the working relationships of the 12 bees, 19 stay-behinds, and Hobby.

In the Senate, Moore said, disputes "are forgotten in 24 hours."

Still, more said that in his 31-year Senate career, he had never seen anything to rival the bees' successful, nationally publicized boycott of the Senate.

Moore faulted Hobby both for not pushing the separate presidential primary bill last March, and for not giving

Department of Public Safety troopers adequate authority to find the bees as Hobby had ordered.

DPS troopers were not issued search warrants to enter the missing senators' homes or other likely hide-outs.

Truan said Hobby was "hurt politically" by his handling of the bees' protest. Sen. Raul Longoria of Edinburg said he told Hobby Wednesday that he was "darn mad" about the directive to arrest the fugitive senators.

Since the bees' return, however, Longoria said, "I have the highest compliments for the lieutenant governor and the way he has behaved—the graceful way he has accepted the results."

"I have noticed no animosity toward my legislation," Longoria said of Hobby. The lieutenant governor must recognize any senator before that person can introduce a bill.

Federal charge hits schools

ODESSA — Federal investigators have charged that Ector County public schools offer "unequal" and "inferior" education to minority students.

Supt. of Schools Bill Holm termed the investigators' findings "invalid" and said that U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare who wrote the report with having pre-conceived notions about the situation.

Holm said he had no idea what effect HEW's report will have on the school district.

The school district currently is operating under a 1971 federal district order mandating racial desegregation.

Young usually adjust to challenge

The younger generation has always been accused of turning its collective back on problems living only for the present. Its members are supposed to spurn the values of their parents and reject institutions that are recognized as the pillars of society. They know little about the philosophic basis of that society and the principles that make it work. And, their critics point out, what is worse is that they don't want to know.

They're perfectly happy if the living is easy. Their elders are prone to despair of their future.

CHINA USED TO be the exception to the rule. The views of the elderly were respected there. It was an honor to grow old and be approached for advice by the young. Now all that is changing.

The Chinese elders are commencing to express concern publicly as to what they may have wrought in seeking to accelerate China's modernization. In so doing, they may have opened their doors too wide to the capitalist West.

In a recent testing of secondary schools in Peking, for one serious example, many were unable to explain satisfactorily the differences between capitalism and Marxism, and the numerous advantages of the latter.

The test result, as reported in the New York Times, is not a unique development but symptomatic of a widespread loss of enthusiasm for the class struggle and growing interest in a higher-class standard of living.

The Chinese leadership's highly publicized recent contacts with the West apparently have made the folks back home vividly aware that there can be more to the good life than dialectic.

To get them back in acceptable socialist line, the Chinese news media has launched a propaganda campaign stressing the great improvements in the People's Republic over the social inequities that existed in pre-communist China.

THE PROBLEM IS that the segment of the population at which the campaign is directed, those born after the Communist takeover, who happen to be the majority, haven't any recollection of the old days.

Instead, they have rising expectations, thanks to Peking's sudden recognition of the rest of the world and only the pervasive grayness of today's proletarian China to compare with the newly perceived delights of Western life.

It poses a serious problem for the Chinese establishment. First, wall posters and foreign tourists. The next thing you know, blue jeans, hula hoops and skateboards will be taking over.

Red China could profit from America's example. Every generation in America has worried about the ability of the succeeding generation to take charge. Invariably, the younger generation adjusts to the challenge.

The fact that China is now stewing about the problem, and so shortly after opening its doors, could indicate just how rapidly it is succeeding in its goal to catch up with the West.

Kudos for Nkomo
William F. Buckley Jr.

From the citation as read by President Hugh Gloster of Morehouse College, Atlanta, on May 20, 1979 accompanying an honorary doctor of laws degree for Joshua Nkomo:

"Joshua Nkomo, determined defender of the rights of man and leader of black Rhodesians from racial subservience to majority rule. In 1975 you demanded black majority rule 'now and not tomorrow' and warned that 'armed struggle will be inevitable' if that goal is not attained. Since the Ian Smith regime proved intractable, you and Robert Mugabe organized the Patriotic Front to conduct guerrilla warfare against the government."

COMMENT: THE IAN Smith regime did not prove intractable. It wrote a new constitution, held general elections at which 64 percent of the Rhodesians voted for a government headed by a black Rhodesian with a parliament dominated by black Rhodesians with however special protections extended to the white minority. Notwithstanding Smith's capitulation, Nkomo continues his guerrilla war, hand in hand with an avowed Marxist, both of whom command terrorist groups who torture and kill civilians.

"In the Rhodesian election last month Bishop Abel Muzorewa was chosen as the nation's first black prime minister; but you have rejected this government because whites who constitute only three percent of the voters will own 28 of the 100 seats in the House of Assembly for ten years and will control the police, the judiciary, the civil service and the armed forces for five years. You are resolved to free the seven million blacks of your country from the domination of 240,000 whites."

Comment: 28 out of 100 seats does not constitute control.

"Although you have been jailed and exiled for 12 years of your life because of your tireless quest for freedom, you have refused to hate your oppressors; and you have described Ian Smith your arch-enemy through the years as a 'misguided human being, a flawed specimen,' rather than as a hated enemy."

Comment: August, 1977, Time magazine interview with Nkomo: "Smith is a rebel, and they should do what they did in America: line the rebels up against the wall and shoot them."

"Because of your consistent championship of civil rights throughout Africa..."

Comment: Here are some African countries whose civil and political liberties earned them the rating "Not Free" by Freedom House as of 1978, i.e., with a rating identical to that of the Soviet Union: Benin, Burundi, Cameroon, Central African Empire, Chad, Congo Republic, Gabon, Guinea, Ivory Coast, Libya, Malawi, Mali, Mauritania, Mozambique, Niger, Rwanda, Somalia, Sudan, Tanzania, Togo, Tunisia, Uganda, Zaire. Dr. Nkomo has never criticized the governments of any of these countries for denying freedom to their people.

"...and your determined campaign for majority rule in your native land..."

Comment: Majority rule in Rhodesia has been accomplished. Nkomo is engaged in civil war against the majority's constitution.

"I hereby confer upon you the honorable degree of doctor of laws..."

Nkomo, June 1977: "What we want is not resolutions, but bundles of guns." Nkomo, July 1977: "We are fighting for power in Rhodesia, and we are not going to hand that power over to anybody else."

How to reverse poor sleep 'circle'

Paul E. Ruble, M.D.

Dear Dr. Ruble: My elderly mother is in good health, but she has a sleep problem. She's in a vicious circle — can't sleep at night, naps too much during the day, and so on. Sleeping pills don't help anymore than over-the-counter medicines. If we could break the circle we could help her, but how? Any suggestions for this problem which, I guess, many older people have? — F.C.

There are more than 20 million Americans with sleep problems. Most are in the older age group. Sleeping pills don't help, and can defeat their purpose by leaving the user drowsy during the day. Older people react more to such medicines and if they have little else to do during the day they nap. Over-the-counter products may contain antihistamines and can produce the same daytime drowsiness.

Two suggestions might help break the circle. Select a pleasant day for a fairly long drive, a picnic lunch or a similar activity. Plan to arrive home at a reasonable bedtime when your mother should be pleasantly primed for an evening of sleep. Don't stop there, but plan to keep her busy the next day — out of her bedroom.

That brings me to the second suggestion. Many elderly people become, for want of a better phrase, "bedroom zombies," spending entirely too many daytime hours there. The bedroom becomes only a place for uneasy inactivity. See if you can't persuade your mother to spend more time in other parts of the house. This can provide a good psychological edge.

Since sleep problems can be related to specific ailments (kidneys, heart) have her examined thoroughly before you try your new psychology.

One way or another you should be able to get this lady off of her insomnia merry-go-round.

Dear Dr. Ruble: A year ago I noticed a lump on top of my arm near the wrist. My family doctor said it was a fatty tumor and to leave it alone. It's the size of a small egg. Another doctor said I should have it removed. Both took X-rays that showed it wasn't attached to bone. I saw a third doctor. He said it might be malignant and wanted to remove it. I didn't like him, so I don't know what to do. I'm worried because my husband died of cancer two years ago. — Mrs. H.H.

You must feel confused at this point. Two doctors suggest the growth is malignant. Your own doctor says it isn't. Fatty tumors are fairly easily recognized. They are not attached to nearby bone or tissue and can be rather freely moved about under the skin. They grow slowly, then stop. The malignant type might appear suddenly and continue to grow. The forearm is a common place for fatty tumors, but the location wouldn't rule out malignancy.

Since it bothers you and since it is "egg-sized," the sensible way out of your dilemma is to have it removed, if only because of the nuisance factor. That would also settle the troubling question of just what it is. The surgery is quite safe. Have it done by the doctor you like best.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Recently I read an article in your column about acid build-up in the joints being a contributing factor in gout. At that time I felt that coffee acid might be involved so I stopped drinking it. I had been drinking six to ten cups a day and every day. I immediately felt better. Could my giving up coffee be responsible for this? — E.P.

You did the right thing but for the wrong reason. Uric acid deposits are responsible for gout problems, but coffee is not involved. Caffeine in coffee, tea, and cola drinks is metabolized in the body (changed chemically) into a methyluric acid. That may be where your confusion arose. Methyluric acid is not the same as the uric acid of gout, which results from how the body utilizes purines — a substance in certain foods (i.e., organ meats). Nor does caffeine raise the existing level of uric acid in the blood or urine. It is not harmful for patients with gout.

That you feel better after giving up coffee is however, not surprising. Your six to ten cups a day is too much for most anyone. I suspect you feel better because of the absence of other effects of the caffeine — overstimulation, irritability and stomach irritation — not to any "acid" effect.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Should a person drink more or less water while taking antibiotics? — H.C.

More is recommended when treating a urinary tract infection. Otherwise just satisfy normal thirst.

Your thyroid plans a critical health role — in everything from eyesight to fertility. The booklet "Your Thyroid: How It Works for You" explains this important, and misunderstood, gland. To get a copy, enclose 50 cents and a long, stamped and self-addressed envelope to Dr. Ruble in care of the Herald.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am a teenager and have gotten in with the wrong crowd. I want to break out, but I don't know where to begin. — S.R.A.

DEAR S.R.A.: You are sensing what the Bible said many centuries ago about companionship. Wrong companions can shape you and turn you in the wrong direction. It is important for you to see the dangers before you become permanently bent in the wrong way. The Bible says, "A violent man enticeth his neighbor, and leadeth him into the way that is not good" (Proverbs 16:29). It also says, "My son, if sinners entice thee, consent thou not... My son, walk not thou in the way with them, refrain thy foot from their path" (Proverbs 1:10, 15).

The first step is to turn your life over to Jesus Christ and let Him become the center of your life. God loves you and wants you to follow Him and be His child. He has a perfect plan for your life which is far greater than anything you will ever be able to discover apart from Him. You may have felt at first that there would be adventure of all — the adventure of being His disciple and following Him all your life. So turn to Him. God sent His Son to die for your sins, so you can be forgiven and come into a personal relationship with Him.

Then you will need to take practical steps to deal with the temptations you now face. You may well need to separate yourself from your companions. That is not easy, but trust God to give you new companions who will not only be good influences on you, but will also help you grow spiritually. Ask God to lead you to Christians who can help you.

Looking back

Around the rim

Carla Walker

This will be my final Rim column. With it, I will be saying goodbye to a lot of people who have meant a great deal to me, not because I am leaving the paper, but because I will soon be leaving Big Spring.

For me it is easier, and the words seem to come out better, if I place them on paper. I will be getting married, as most of my acquaintances know, on July 13 at Salem Baptist Church, and then moving to Odessa. It is to the people at that church that I dedicate this final Rim.

OVER THE LAST 22 years, some of the best times I recall were within the walls of that small, but spiritually large church located north of Coahoma.

I remember the nursery — kept by Mrs. Ruth Reeves, who also taught me through many years of Sunday School. I also recall learning about David and Goliath and many Biblical characters from my other Sunday School and Vacation Bible School teachers, Geneva Hunnicutt, Faye Walker, Mary Sue Walker, Carolyn Brooks and others.

I recall not being able to get away with anything in Bible School because, not only was my mother a teacher, but most of the teachers were either older cousins or my aunts.

Leona Baugh also taught me, but my most vivid memories of her are from "GAS," or Girls Auxiliary, and organization where we learned scripture in an environment of fun.

One incident I remember occurred at a party for the GAS which was women of the church, then organized as the "Womens Missionary Union" or WMU. Leona, helping to maneuver the Pinata that was part of the festivities, got conked on the head by a blindfolded guest swinging at the candy-stuffed donkey. Leona with a knot on her head, and a reminder that working with a bunch of teenage girls can be hazardous to the health.

Another GAS party I remember was the "progressive supper," where we gorged ourselves on single-course meal installments at the homes of the WMU members. First there was a salad at Myrtle Walker's, then chicken at Faye Walker's; Birdie Mae Musgrove had baked potatoes waiting for us, and we had to jog around her house several times to pack down the massive amounts of food we'd already consumed. From there, we had delicious homemade rolls at Gertrude Lowe's home, tea and snacks at Mrs. Reeves's, cake at Flora Lee Hull's home and ice cream at Leona Baugh's. All-in-all, it was a "filling" experience.

I remember Rufus Wilson, the pastor who baptized me back in 1956, and I also remember all the slumber parties for the GAS that Rufus and his wife, Lou, sponsored. The memories still bring a smile when I think of how Rufus would sneak through the house like an overgrown kid and try to scare us.

Bill Golightly, the next pastor we had, was a personal friend in addition to helping me grow spiritually. His questions and his methods of teaching and preaching made me think out issues for myself rather than depend on the opinions of others for my religious convictions.

I REMEMBER BEGGING my uncle, Johnnie Walker, and the other members of the "Old Quartet" to sing the old-time hymns. Uncle Johnnie's bass voice on "Rock of Ages Hide Thou Me," still rings in my memory, as Earl Hull on tenor, Veda McKee (Johnnie's sister) singing soprano harmonized. On soprano, the role was sometimes filled by Stella Brooks or Lillie Robinson, also sisters of Veda and Johnnie; but, the stable factor was the love and kinship that was a constant undertone accompanying the music.

Another group I remember that performed quite a few specials were the sisters, Veda, Stella and Lillie. Although all protested that their voices were not "smooth," the church enjoyed the music and the sisters always seemed to enjoy singing.

I remember the youth choir I sang in, though heaven and all the church knows I still can't sing. Yet, I never felt extremely self-conscious when I was asked to sing, substituting for one of the members of the "Old Quartet," as they named themselves, or with the youth. The theory was always that singing was enjoyable, and, regardless of how good or bad the voice, "Making a joyful noise to the Lord" as the Bible advises in Psalms was more important than talent.

I remember youth leaders over the years who spent hours of effort working with a small group of kids, yet put in as many hours as if there were many more of us.

I remember Earl Hull's teasing and his ever-ready smile as he led singing.

I remember returning from two years at college, and finding that Salem, small though it is, was still "home" to me.

The honesty, the closeness and the love that I feel surrounded by at Salem has meant more to me than words can express. And, the Christian examples I have seen there each Sunday have given me goals to work toward. Their forgiveness when I failed at a task has provided lessons in patience for me.

Someone asked me a few weeks ago, why I insisted on having my wedding ceremony at Salem, when it was such a "simple and small" church.

The simplicity is one thing that I count as an asset, because the people, like the decorum of the church, are simple and honest. They are only "what they are" and don't pretend otherwise.

As for the size, if we have to move chairs in to seat everyone, that will make me very happy.

Seeing that church, the setting for so many wonderful events in my memory packed to overflowing with the people who I have grown to love over the past 22 years, is something I wouldn't trade for being married in St. Peter's in Rome or any of the other fancy churches in the world.

In years to come, the wedding will become one more beautiful memory that happened at Salem Baptist Church.

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — As millions of American motorists sit in line waiting for their turn at the gasoline pump this Memorial Day, the nagging question inevitably arises: "Are the oil companies behind it all?" By the time motorists pay their 80 cents, 90 cents or $1 a gallon, many are understandably convinced that Big Oil is ripping them off.

President Carter and his energy czar, James Schlesinger, are stalwart in their defense of the oil industry against allegations that it's deliberately holding back on supplies to create a shortage that will drive prices up. Carter has dismissed those who see such a plot as "looking for scapegoats."

WHILE THE Department of Energy has demonstrated a remarkable lassitude in controlling Big Oil, other government agencies have collected evidence that leaves them highly suspicious that the oil companies have made a killing from the current shortage.

Inquiries by the Federal Trade Commission and several congressional committees have focused on a curious drop in refinery utilization since last December. The oil companies have blamed this on the loss of Iranian imports following the ouster of the shah. But our sources tell us the FTC has evidence that much of the available crude oil has been lying stagnant in the refineries' tanks, waiting for prices to go higher.

Unfortunately, the FTC has run into a mysterious "oil curtain" in its attempt to find out what's going on in the industry. The DOE refuses to turn over information it has; the Justice Department won't cooperate either. "We asked for clearance in April and haven't received it yet," an FTC official told our associate Peter Grant. "I can't figure out what's hold it up."

investigate the oil industry in any meaningful way was severely shaken recently by official confirmation of our June 16, 1978, revelation that agency officials had leaked confidential information to the American Petroleum Institute, the oil industry's major trade association.

Further suspicions about the department's crackdown capacity were generated by DOE's budget request for next year, which would cut its enforcement staff from 680 to 260. "DOE has already decided for itself that oil will be decontrolled," a congressional energy expert told us. "So they're giving up their enforcement efforts."

The most flaming example of DOE's sweetheart relationship with the oil industry, though, is documented in two unreleased reports by the General Accounting Office and the House Energy and Power subcommittee. The reports detail DOE's total failure to keep oil-resale firms from squeezing billions of dollars from the American public.

AS EARLY AS 1975, DOE learned of possible criminal violations by the hundreds of resale firms that sprang up after the 1973 pricing regulations went into effect. These operators set up dummy corporations whose sole purpose was to resell oil again and again on paper to boost prices. They were able to manipulate the DOE regulations to get as much as $8 a barrel more than they should have.

But the GAO and House investigators found that DOE officials sat on the criminal cases for four years before turning any of them over to the Justice Department for prosecution. The investigations have been shunted back and forth between DOE regional offices and Washington headquarters year after year while the statute of limitations slowly ticked away.

Son Smirches Mother's Day

DEAR ABBY: How does a mother thank her 23-year-old son for a most inappropriate Mother's Day gift? He sent me a T-shirt with a very vulgar message printed across the front. (It did have the word "Mother" in it, but it's so obscene I can't write it and, if I could, you couldn't print it.) I can't understand a gift like this. I've never worn a T-shirt in my life.

My son is married and lives in another state. At first I thought maybe his wife picked it out because she has a coarse and somewhat twisted sense of humor. However, my son's signature was on the card that came with it, so apparently he knew what was being sent.

What should I do?

WONDERING IN N.J.

DEAR WONDERING: Thank your son for remembering you on Mother's Day. And the next time you see him, ask him who selected that gift.

DEAR ABBY: During our company's recent sales conference, a number of wives sat in on some of the workshops. While the speakers were delivering their talks I noticed several women doing needlepoint as though they were comfortably sitting in their own sewing rooms.

This certainly must be a distraction (if not an insult) to the speaker.

I commend those wives for showing an interest in their husbands' work by attending the sessions, but shouldn't they have shown more respect for the speakers by leaving their needlework at home?

ANNOYED IN VA.

DEAR ANNOYED: For many, needlework is therapy. It calms the nerves and provides an occupation for restless fingers that otherwise might be holding a cigarette, for example.

Of course, most speakers prefer the undivided attention of everyone in the audience but, given a choice, I'd rather be settled by needles than smokers.

(P.S. People who bring needlework to lectures must need to be for some reason. So try a little tenderness.)

DIES FIGHTING — A tombstone in a Nashville cemetery marks the final resting place of Mary Northern, 72, a recluse who died May 1, 1978, after refusing to let doctors amputate her frostbitten, burned and gangrenous feet. The spinster's 101-day battle against the state-ordered amputation ended with her death, shortly before the U.S. Supreme Court was to rule in her case. But the issue raised by the stubborn Miss Northern refuses to die: Just how great is the government's power over a person's life?

How great is governments power over a person's life?

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) —

Mary Northern died before the U.S. Supreme Court could rule on the state-ordered amputation of her frozen, burned feet. But researchers studying the year-old case hope it will help them learn more about government's role in the lives and deaths of others.

The 72-year-old woman was taken from her littered, condemned childhood home in January 1978 and hospitalized in the custody of the Tennessee Department of Human Services. Doctors said she was in imminent danger of death unless her feet, seared when she tried to thaw them over fireplace coals, were removed.

Miss Northern said she would rather die. Judges said the department could permit doctors to proceed.

Miss Northern's lawyers had begun to fight the order in an appeal to the nation's highest court when a blood clot killed the former debutante more than three months later.

"It struck me that it was an excellent case study of people who may or may not be competent and what we do with them," said Keith Lundin, a Nashville lawyer commissioned by the Rand Graduate Institute to study her case.

"The interesting thing in the Miss Northern case was that despite this woman's constant statements to the contrary, we ordered her to have her feet cut off if the commissioner of human services felt she should have her feet cut off. It's sort of bizarre if you think about it."

"We are dealing with something that we are doing more and more and that's government intervention in people's lives," he said.

Lundin and anthropologist Virginia Abernathy are interviewing judges, lawyers and doctors who were involved in the case for a book intended for use in public policy schools, law schools and professional schools.

"Right now, we have not very well established guidelines for competency and evaluating competency," said the anthropologist. "So it is not clear whether they are eccentric or not, whether they have mental illness or not, whether they disagree with the medical recommendations — are the criteria."

"We hope to try to develop some guidelines, or make some suggestions for guidelines, that will have some applicability across a number of cases," she said.

Smiling gives you a lift

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Teens: You may not always feel like it, but try wearing a smile more often! If you do, there's a good chance you'll see a lift in your spirits.

"You smile, in part, because of the way you feel, and you feel a certain way, in part, because of the way you behave," says Gary Schwartz, professor of psychology at Yale University.

"While laughing on the outside won't eliminate crying on the inside, it helps you create a 'happiness pattern,'" Schwartz continues. The more you smile, the more likely you are to experience happiness.

Smiling not only makes you feel better, but can produce tangible benefits as well. Statistics point out that company sales, productivity and morale go up when executives are trained to smile more. And it's even been shown that doctors who smile frequently face fewer malpractice suits.

Dr. James McConnell, a psychology professor at the University of Michigan, notes that when you smile, the whole world does seem to smile with you. "An insecure individual may think others just don't like her, when they're actually responding to the infrequency of her smiles."

So, if you want a better feeling, take time to put on a happy face!

Dr. Wallace: My good friend lives across the street from me and we walk to school every morning together. She is a good person, but is terribly disorganized and usually wind up helping her get ready. We have been late to school several times, but talking to her does no good. I enjoy walking to school with her very much. Do you have any suggestions? — Sally Sally: Your friend probably depends on you too much in the mornings. Tell her if she is not ready when you pick her up you will leave without her and mean it. How about calling her in the evening to remind her to get it together?

STAY WITHDRAWN — Lois Spenkelink holds a picture of her son John close to her after learning that his stay of execution had been withdrawn by an appellate court early Friday morning. John Spenkelink was electrocuted in Florida's electric chair at 10:12 a.m. Friday, ending the life of the 30-year-old convicted murderer. Since the execution, Spenkelink's mother has received hate mail with one letter saying that "John needs to have the electric chair."

Six tourists rescued

KEYSTONE, S.D. (AP) — Six tourists who were stranded on a tramway to Mt. Rushmore were rescued unharmed, according to the Pennington County Sheriff's office.

Rescue teams from nearby Rapid City and Keystone used ropes and ladders Sunday to bring the riders to the ground. They were trapped when a broken drive shaft on the tramway stopped the ride for three hours. The passengers were seated in three tramway cars, hanging 20, 40, and 60 feet above the ground. The three couples were on a sight-seeing ride to the Mount Rushmore National Monument. The owner of the tramway gave a refund to each of the riders.

Friendly a speed trap

FRIENDLY, W.Va. (AP) — This Ohio River town is not near as friendly as the name might imply — especially if you're just passing through and don't notice that the speed limit signs suddenly drop from 55 mph to 35 mph at the town line.

Friendly is a speed trap that nets the town of 190 residents about $800 a month — enough to run the place without raising taxes. The trap also pays Friendly's two police officers. Mayor Geneva Cumbridge concedes a lot of people don't care for the town's chief business, but she says "they don't realize we're just trying to exist." She said on a really "good day," police will ticket five speeders.

Syphilis cases rise

ATLANTA (AP) — The number of reported cases of syphilis rose 19.2 percent in the first quarter of 1979, and officials of the national Center for Disease Control say the increase may reflect emphasis on the prevention of gonorrhea at the expense of efforts to stop syphilis.

Dr. Peter Perine of the CDC said Saturday that there has been a realization "that the consequences of gonorrhea, particularly in women, are more serious than the consequences of infectious syphilis for the vast majority of people." In its Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report, the CDC said there were 5,952 reported cases of syphilis from January to March in 1979, compared with 4,995 in the same period last year.

Livestock sales down

AUSTIN — The auctioneer's chant was heard a little less frequently last month in Texas, as auction sales of all types of livestock declined from a year ago, reports the Texas Department of Agriculture.

"There were 468,000 head of cattle and calves marketed through Texas auctions during April, a 25-percent decrease from a year ago," noted Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown. "Hog sales, at 47,000 head, showed an eight-percent drop, while 13 percent fewer sheep and lambs moved through Texas" auction rings last month."

These figures are compiled by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, a cooperative project of the Texas and U.S. Departments of Agriculture.

The cumulative total of livestock marketed so far this year in Texas is also down for all species, Brown reported.

"Cattle and calf sales from January through April ran 90 percent of last year's level," he said, "and totaled 2,035,000 head. The number of hogs marketed, at 188,000, is two percent lower than 1978."

Brown pointed out that sales of sheep and lambs have declined more than the other groups, and are currently 38 percent lower than last year. Sales of Texas goats have dropped from 96,000 for the January-April period in 1978 to 87,000 head so far this year.

Auction sale levels often are influenced by a wide range of factors, including number of head available, prices, weather and pasture conditions.

Rod Lee Puga, 911 W. 5th, and Robert L. Lara, 914 E. 6th, were arrested at 11:54 p.m. Saturday at the 7-A Tennis Center on suspicion of resisting arrest. They were released on $3,500 bond each Sunday morning. Bond was set by Justice of the Peace Bob West.

President Carter gives teacher some homework

PORTSMOUTH, N.H. (AP) — "Excuse me if I'm nervous," Joe Arnstein told President Carter as he stepped up to the microphone, "but the last time I won anything in a government raffle, I was drafted."

Arnstein's quip about being one of the persons selected to question Carter at the April 25 town meeting drew laughter from the audience of 1,000 at Portsmouth High School and from the president.

Then the 35-year-old Portsmouth High Latin teacher asked: Why can't the government reduce the paperwork it demands of educators? School districts dealing with the federal bureaucracy are bogged down because they must fill out form after form, he said.

Carter listened, then asked Arnstein to send him a letter including examples of unnecessary forms. He promised to look into the matter himself if Arnstein followed up.

Arnstein, who says his students were delighted that Carter gave him a "homework assignment," took the president at his word. Last week, after six drafts of the letter, he mailed the final version to the White House.

Arnstein said the main thrust of his letter was a push for "no-strings-attached money" for school districts.

"The waste comes from the fact that we send taxes to Washington with no strings attached, but what comes back is nothing but strings," he said in a telephone interview.

Arnstein explained the Department of Health, Education and Welfare lists 96 types of educational assistance that Portsmouth High can obtain — but each program calls for proof of need, use and compliance.

In fact, he decided not to include any government forms with his letter, because the problem is "not the forms but the system. It's the system that requires all these forms."

Judy Lynn is rodeo headliner

County western superstar Judy Lynn will highlight the excitement of the 46th annual Big Spring Reunion and Rodeo when it opens in the Rodeo Bowl, Wednesday, June 20, at 8:00 p.m.

One area has inch of rain

About an inch of rain fell 15 miles northeast of Big Spring Sunday around 8:30 p.m. between Big Spring and Vincent. A threatening cloud mass near Ackerly at 6:30 p.m. produced lighting and some thunder but very little rain. The Ackerly Gin reported .1 of an inch. Rainfall measuring .2 of an inch fell 10 miles north of Big Spring at 7 p.m.

Inspection team on scene today

A number of local industrial team members will court officials of a major aircraft industry today.

An inspection team from the industry will tour the facilities at the Big Spring Industrial Park with the possible result of a contract with the city for rental of the new hangar there.

"There will be three men with the company making the tour. From what we know, the company has narrowed its choice of sites to three cities, and Big Spring is one of them," said Paul Feazelle, acting city manager.

If the company chooses Big Spring, the hangar and several other buildings at the park will be rented, added Feazelle.

Vietnam vets are honored

In recognition of Vietnam Veterans Week, special mention was made of veterans of the Southeast Asian war during Memorial Day services on the county courthouse lawn this morning.

M.H. Spivey, chairman of the Veterans Council, conducted the ceremony during which a wreath was placed at the foot of the veterans memorial by Gold Star Mothers, Daughters of the American Revolution and the Veterans Council.

J.G. Morrow delivered the invocation.

2 lakes below record levels

Lake Spence, from which Big Spring gets its water, is 14 feet below its highest level ever recorded.

The big reservoir has benefitted little from the spring rains. Downpours in the area have been heavy on occasions but invariably have missed the Spence watershed.

Lake Thomas remains critically low, despite a heavy rain in the area last week. It needs to rise 45 feet to its highest level ever, according to Owen Ivie, general manager of the Colorado City Municipal Water District.

The water which Thomas caught last week will enable a member city, Snyder, to use Thomas water the remainder of the summer. Six other cities which are supplied with water by the CRMWD will continue to get water from Lake Spence and other sources.

Odessa, a member city of CRMWD, received 60 percent of its water from Ward County wells and the remainder from Lake Spence.

GPM: More in long run for less in beginning

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Thousands of Americans are making their dreams of home ownership come true with the help of unconventional mortgage plans.

The most widespread alternative to the traditional system is the graduated payment mortgage — sometimes known as the GPM. It's designed to help young families whose income can be expected to rise with time.

The program works like this:

Monthly payments during the early years are lower than they would be with a regular mortgage. They rise gradually, increasing by a fixed amount each year for a period of five to 10 years. Then they level off. You pay more in the long run in exchange for paying less in the beginning.

Suppose, for example, you take out a $50,000, 30-year mortgage at 9 percent. The monthly payment with a conventional mortgage would be $402.50. Assume, however, you choose a graduated plan where monthly payments increase by 7 1/2 percent a year for five years. Here is what you would pay each month, according to the Department of Housing and Urban Development:

- First year $303.94
- Second year $326.74
- Third year $351.24
- Fourth year $377.59
- Fifth year $405.96
- Sixth year $436.35

The payments would remain at $436.35 for the rest of the mortgage period. Over 30 years, you would pay just over $152,000.

With a conventional mortgage, you would pay only $145,000, or $7,000 less. During the first five years, however, you will pay about $3,000 less with a GPM; your monthly payments during the first year would be almost $100 less than they would be with a traditional mortgage.

A government brochure, "Move in with a Graduated Payment Mortgage," offers more information on the subject. It is available, at no charge, from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 656G, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

Until this year, graduated payment plans were available only on mortgages insured by the Federal Housing Administration. Late in 1978, however, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board authorized similar loans by federally chartered savings and loan institutions.

There are no figures available on how many graduated payment mortgages have been issued across the country so far. Chet Foster of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, said, however, that the FHA alone had insured $1,000 graduated payment mortgages as of the end of March — up from only 9,000 less than a year ago.

In an effort to encourage the use of graduated payment mortgages, HUD recently announced a program under which lenders will be able to use the mortgages as collateral on securities they sell to investors. The money raised by the sale of securities — which will be guaranteed by HUD's Government National Mortgage Association — will then be available for more mortgage loans.

Graduated payment mortgages are not the only alternatives to the traditional system.

Older Americans who have paid off their mortgages and want to raise money without selling their homes outright can take advantage of the Reverse Annuity Mortgage or RAM. The homeowner who takes out a reverse mortgage against the equity in his or her house is paid a fixed sum at regular intervals for a given period of time. At the end of that period, the reverse mortgage can be refinanced or the house can be sold and the loan paid off. The bank board authorized federally chartered savings and loans to offer RAMs at the same time it okayed the graduated payment plans.

Variable Rate Mortgages offer a third alternative. They generally are available only from state chartered savings and loan institutions and thus far have aroused the greatest interest in California. Variable rate plans have a floating rate of interest — which can go up or down, depending on market conditions.

Gold rises to record

LONDON (AP) — Gold rose $1.50 an ounce and hit a record $272.125 at the opening in Zurich today. The dollar also strengthened.

The London market was closed for the Spring Bank Holiday.

Gold has risen more than $50 an ounce in the past month and dealers attribute it to the oil shortage, inflation, currency uncertainties and a shortage of gold on the market because of cutbacks in sales by the International Monetary Fund and U.S. Federal Reserve.

Unlike past bullion buying sprees, the dollar has remained unshaken this time. Dealers say this reflects the view by traders that the oil shortage and fears of inflation are hitting countries like West Germany and Switzerland, previously considered the world's strongest economies, just as much as the United States.

Japan's dependence on oil imports is cited as the main reason for the yen having lost 10 percent against the dollar since Feb. 15.

In Tokyo, where the business day ends before Europe's begins, the dollar closed today more than a full yen higher. The American currency finished the day at 220.30 yen, climbing back through the 220-yen line for the first time in nearly four weeks.

Two other mishaps were reported Sunday.

Vehicles driven by Roberto Vargas, Eubanks Road, and Martin Silguero, 105 W. 24th, collided at 1004 N. Runnels, 9:48 a.m.

A parked vehicle belonging to Joe Doporto, 708 N.W. 7th, was struck by a vehicle driven by Josephine O. Chavarria, Midland, at 700 N.W. 7th, 1:06 a.m.

Police beat Violence flares in city

Violence flared in several spots in the city over the weekend.

Lupe Vantera, 807 Anna, is in stable condition in the intensive care unit of Malone-Hogan Hospital after being shot six times, 4:35 a.m. Sunday.

According to reports, the shooting occurred as a result of a domestic quarrel at Vantera's residence. Two witnesses of the shooting told police that a woman fired six shots at Vantera from a .22 caliber pistol, reloading, and fired two more shots.

Six of the eight bullets hit Vantera, who was rushed to Malone-Hogan. The pistol-wielding woman may face charges of aggravated assault or attempted murder, depending on what the victim chooses to file.

Esperanza Porras, 23, 1316 Utah, was stabbed in the face outside of Fina's Cafe, 11:30 p.m. Sunday. According to police, Ms. Porras was walking to her car parked outside the cafe when she was attacked by a group of women.

Ms. Porras fended them off with a mace canister she was carrying, but was stabbed in the lower cheek by one of them. She was treated and released from Cowper's Hospital late Sunday.

Roberts moved after charge

Randall R. Roberts, 2513 Fisher, was transferred to county jail Saturday night by Big Spring police. He was arrested Saturday night on suspicion of theft by exercising control of items owned by the Southwest Tool Company on E. 2nd.

Roberts was released Sunday morning on $10,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace Lewis Hefflin.

Don R. Cheatham, San Angelo, was attacked by a gang of teenagers as he sat talking with a group of friends in a field on the 1400 block of Gregg. The teenagers were armed with knives, chains and tire irons.

During the melee, Cheatham was stabbed in the lower abdomen. He was taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital where he was treated and released, 11:30 p.m. Sunday.

A potential riot was quelled by local police at a March of Dimes benefit dance at the Dora Roberts Recreation Center, midnight Saturday. According to police, a young man was removed from the dance by officers after causing a disturbance inside.

Once he and the officers were outside, however, the youth resisted arrest, and a crowd began to gather. The two arresting officers called for reinforcements as the crowd swelled to approximately 150.

A total of 12 police responded, holding back the crowd as the youth was escorted to a patrol car. One other youth was arrested when he tried to break through the police cordon, but in the end, the situation was brought under control.

Randall R. Roberts, 2513 Fisher, was stopped for a driving violation on the 900 block of Lancaster, 11:55 p.m. Saturday. On a routine search of his car, police found micrometers, calipers and a welding torch thought to have been stolen in a burglary of the Southwest Tool Company last week.

Roberts, 18, will face charges of theft by exercising control.

Including damage to the refrigerator, loss was estimated at $156.

Four tires on a car belonging to William Taylor, 1212 Lindburgh, were slashed while the car was parked in the lot of the Big Spring High School, Saturday night. Damage was estimated at $75.

Two radial tires on a pickup belonging to Ted Phillips, 1308 Runnels, were punctured sometime Saturday night. Damage was estimated at $110.

Burglars broke into the Dreyer Music Company, 1609 E. 3rd, sometime Sunday. After entering through the back door, the intruders stole cash and several types of checks from the register. Loss has not been estimated.

Two men carried off $40 worth of groceries from the Safeway Store, 1300 Gregg, 4 p.m. Sunday. Police arrived too late to make an arrest.

A wooden door and six windows were destroyed on a home at 2010 W. 2nd belonging to Freddie Puga, 501 E. 18th. Damage was estimated at $60.

Shelba F. Marvin, 200 Carey, is in satisfactory condition at Cowper Hospital with "undermining" back injuries, following a one-car accident at FM 700 and Wasson. The accident occurred at 1:49 a.m. today when a tire on her car blew out while eastbound on FM 700. The car crossed into the oncoming lane, and came to rest against a curb there.

Two other mishaps were reported Sunday.

Vehicles driven by Roberto Vargas, Eubanks Road, and Martin Silguero, 105 W. 24th, collided at 1004 N. Runnels, 9:48 a.m.

A parked vehicle belonging to Joe Doporto, 708 N.W. 7th, was struck by a vehicle driven by Josephine O. Chavarria, Midland, at 700 N.W. 7th, 1:06 a.m.

Baseball Roundup

Astros 4, Padres 2

James Rodney Richard isn't old yet, even by baseball standards, but he feels he is getting ripe. Last season, the hard-throwing Houston Astros pitcher led the National League in strikeouts with 303 — a record for NL right-handers — but he also led the league in walks allowed with 141.

At age 29, he seems to have solved some of his control problems. In 79 innings this season, he has walked 28 — just one in his last 16 innings.

On Sunday, Richard tossed his third complete game of the season, scattering 10 hits, striking out six and walking none in Houston's 4-2 victory over the San Diego Padres.

"This isn't the first game in which I haven't walked anyone," said Richard, now 5-4. "I'm maturing, my control is getting better. That's an important part of pitching. Walks are just like hits."

J.R. shut out the Padres for seven innings. They finally scored both their runs in the eighth on consecutive singles by Jerry Turner, Gene Richards and Broderick Perkins and a ground ball.

Dodgers 8, Reds 7

Dusty Baker's two-run homer capped a three-run Los Angeles rally in the seventh inning. Gary Thomasson also homered for Los Angeles, and Ken Griffey homered for the third straight game for Cincinnati.

Bill Russell and Reggie Smith started the Dodgers seventh with singles. Steve Garvey sacrificed Russell home, and Baker followed with his fifth homer of the season.

Braves 10, Giants 8

Pinch hitter Darrel Chaney smacked a two-run single in the seventh inning to power Atlanta over the Giants. Charlie Spikes hit a three-run pinch homer for an 8-6 Braves lead in the sixth, but the Giants evened the score in their half of the inning on a sacrifice fly by John Tamargo and Bill North's RBI grounder.

Phillies 6, Cubs 4

Pete Rose tripled in a run and scored once in his ninth three-hit game of the season as the Phils snapped a three-game losing streak.

Left-hander Steve Carlton tossed a four-hitter, struck out five and walked two in his third straight complete-game victory.

Pirates 2, Mets 1

Pirates lefty Grant Jackson pitched out of a bases-loaded jam in the eighth by striking out two Mets, and Bill Robinson led off the ninth with a home run that snapped a 1-1 tie.

Dave Parker's run-scoring single gave the Pirates a 1-0 lead in the first inning, and Lee Mazzilli tied the game with a seventh-inning home run.

Cardinals, Expos split

Ellis Valentine drove in six runs with a three-run homer and a bases-loaded double as Montreal won the opener. The homer was Valentine's fourth of the season. Ted Simmons drove in two of St. Louis' runs with a homer.

In the nightcap, right-hander Bob Forsch scattered eight hits and Tony Scott lashed a two-run triple in St. Louis' five-run, ninth-inning outburst. Keith Hernandez and Simmons each had two RBI for the Cards.

Red Sox 1, Blue Jays 0

Stan Papi delivered the winning hit in his first 1979 appearance and rookie Chuck Rainey hurled his first shutout as the Boston Red Sox nipped the Toronto Blue Jays 1-0.

Rainey, making his sixth start, scattered six hits as the Red Sox edged Toronto and pulled within two games of first-place Baltimore in the AL East. Papi, who suffered a knee injury playing winter ball, was playing in place of shortstop Rick Burleson, who began a three-game suspension. He cracked a run-scoring double off Jesse Jefferson in the third inning following Jerry Remy's two-out single.

Royals 2, Twins 1

Cruz homered off Jerry Koonsman with a man aboard in the eighth inning to break a scoreless duel and Steve Busby allowed six hits and came within one out of his first shutout since Aug. 1, 1975. Cruz, obtained from Philadelphia just before the season and called up from the minors earlier this month, connected after Joe Zdeb opened the inning with a double but was thrown out at third on U.L. Washington's bunt.

Indians, Yankees split

Pinch hitter Lou Piniella cracked a tie-breaking home run in the eighth inning and Burris provided some much-needed relief as the Yankees ended a three-game losing streak in the nightcap. The Indians won the opener 5-0 for their fourth victory in a row as Rick Wise spaced five hits and Paul Dade drove in three runs with a homer, single and sacrifice fly. Loser Ron Guidry, 25-3 a year ago, dropped to 4-4 and suffered a hamstring pull when he slipped on the mound just before yielding two runs in the third inning.

Angels sweep White Sox

Don Baylor smashed a pair of homers and a triple and drove in four runs to back Don Aase's four-hit pitching in the nightcap. Brian Downing's two-run triple capped a three-run sixth inning rally in the opener and Dave Frost scattered six hits. The Angels moved into first place in the AL West, one game ahead of the Twins, who dropped their fifth game in a row.

Tigers sweep Orioles

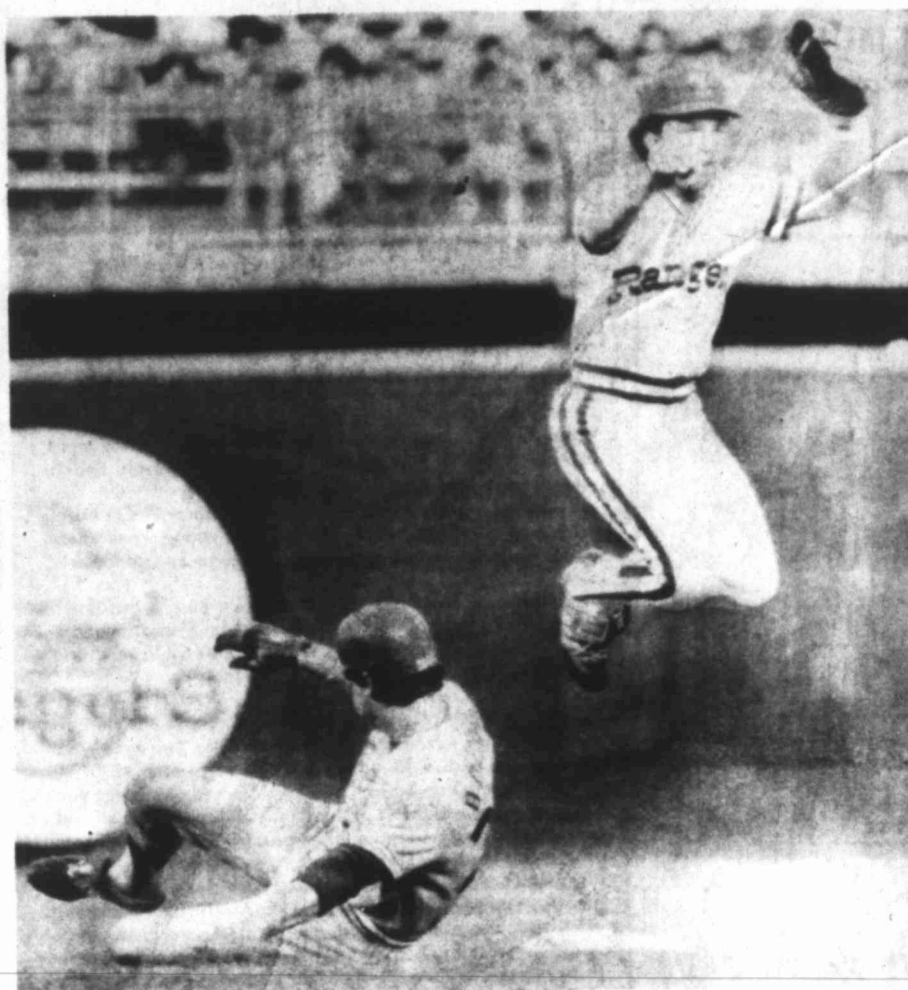

Steve Kemp slammed a home run in each game and Alan Trammell drove in five runs in the nightcap as Detroit cooled off the Orioles behind the pitching of Jack Billingham and Dave Rozema, who scattered three and eight hits, respectively. The Orioles had won 26 of their previous 32 games. Kemp and John Wockenuss each had a homer, double and two RBI in the opener.

A's 2, Brewers 1

Jeff Newman slammed a game-tying homer and Milt Ramirez, playing in his first big league game since 1971, singled home the go-ahead run in a two-run seventh inning as the A's ended a five-game skid and Milwaukee's five-game winning streak behind the sixth-inning pitching of Steve McCatty and Dave Heaverly, who got the last out. The winning run was unearned and set up by loser Larry Sorensen's wild pitch off throw.

Rangers 7, Mariners 3

Buddy Bell drilled three singles and knocked in what proved to be the winning run and reliever Jim Kern earned his seventh save. Jim Sundberg lashed a two-run double in the first inning, while Bell singled a run home in the fourth and added a sacrifice fly in the eighth.

SEE BUMP JUMP — Texas Rangers' second baseman Bump Wills leaps over Seattle Mariners' Bruce Bochte after throwing to first base for the second out of a first-inning double play at Arlington Stadium Sunday night. Rangers short stop Nelson Norman fielded the Willie Horton hit and pitched the ball to Wills who forced Bochte out at second and threw Horton out at first.

Wins Muirfield Memorial Tourney

Watson continues sizzling pace

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Tom Watson, Jack Nicklaus concedes, is the man to beat on the current national men's golf tour.

"Tom is playing so much better now than anyone in the game. He's going to have to play poorly for somebody to beat him," Nicklaus, the badly beaten Muirfield Village host, said Sunday after Watson's Memorial Tournament victory.

The numbers support Nicklaus' contention. Consider these mind-boggling 1979 accomplishments:

—Winning of more than $353,000, less than $8,000 away from the all-time single-season record he established a year ago.

—Four victories, twice as many as any of his rivals, and four second-place finishes in 14 starts. He's been sixth or better in 10 of the tournaments.

—A strong bid to sweep the PGA Player of the Year, Vardon Trophy and No. 1 money title for a record third successive year. Watson already is the only man to win the three honors in two consecutive seasons.

—Average winnings of $25,000 per tournament.

Watson has averaged $16,835 per start since the beginning of 1977. In that span, he has picked up $1,026,956.

Watson was the sole player to handle Muirfield Village's difficult par in deplorable weather. Some called his 69 in Friday's windy, rainy, mid-40-degree conditions a miracle.

The 29-year-old Watson climaxed his performance with a cautious 1-under-par 71 Sunday for 285, 3 shots lower than runnerup Miller Barber's 70-288.

"I can't emphasize how well I putted this week. My touch was very, very good, but my driving was tentative," said Watson, who won $54,000. Barber earned $32,400.

Watson had just listened as Nicklaus explained why the No. 1 money winner's total is almost double that of runner-up Lanny Wadkins' $177,000.

Was it a special personal delight that he had won on Jack's own course? "I don't put a lot of weight on being compared to Nicklaus," he answered. "His era is not over. I'm sure he's disappointed. His putting is giving him trouble."

Putting Penny Pulz wins Corning LPGA

CORNING, N.Y. (AP) — Australian Penny Pulz was the "mudder" in the $100,000 LPGA Corning Classic, emerging from four days of rain-drenched golf with her first triumph on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour.

Pulz needed only 21 putts over the 6,203-yard Corning Golf Club course Sunday to put together a 68, the best round of the four-day, 72-hole tournament, and take home the $15,000 first prize.

"I didn't think I could do it. I was so nervous I was shaking coming up the 18th hole," said Pulz, 26, who calls Palm Springs, Calif.,

her home while she's on the American tour.

It rained throughout the tournament, resulting in high scores. Pulz total was 284, four strokes over par. "I'm a good mudder. I play very well in the mud," she said.

Pulz began the tournament with a 5-over-par 75, and followed with rounds of 71 and 70 before Sunday's 68. She entered the final round one stroke behind rookie Lynn Adams. She took the lead for good when Adams bogeyed the 12th hole.

"It was unbelievable. I've been putting so bad the last month. But I just got better each day," said Pulz, a six-year pro from Melbourne.

Veteran Judy Rankin finished second, two strokes back. Rankin had made a mistake signing an erroneous score card showing she had bogeyed a hole that she had actually parred on Saturday, depriving herself of a share of the lead going into Sunday's final round.

Rankin double-bogeyed her first hole Sunday and did not challenge until birdies on the 15th and 16th holes enabled her to overtake the faltering Adams, who wound up third at 287.

UT one win away from nationals

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Jerry Don Gleanon and Keith Walker, the primary moveable parts in the University of Texas' finely-tuned baseball machine, are awaiting tonight's opponent in the finals of the NCAA Central Region Baseball Tournament.

They are all revved up to contribute as soon as UT Coach Cliff Gustafson tells them where to lineup.

Both Gleanon and Walker have been key factors in Texas' two victories to gain the finals against either Lamar University or Brigham Young in the double elimination tournament.

The tournament winner advances to the College World Series at Omaha, Neb. this weekend.

Gleanon pitched a five-hitter Friday night in the Longhorns' 4-2 victory over Pan American University and came back Saturday to play rightfield and hit a game-winning, two-run homer to rally UT into the finals with a 6-4 victory over Lamar.

When Lamar decked UT starter Keith Creel in the third inning Saturday, Gustafson called Walker, already in the lineup with a .342 average as the designated hitter, to the mound.

Walker, who had pitched only seven innings all season, not only shut out the Cardinals for six innings, he didn't allow a hit before yielding to Jim Acker in the ninth to put down a Lamar threat. "I thought he'd pitch well," Gustafson said. "But he did better than I could have ever dreamed he'd do."

Gustafson's dream was almost became a nightmare when Lamar roared to a 4-1 lead in the third inning, pelting Creel with four runs off two triples, two singles and a double.

But the Longhorns finally cracked Lamar starter David W. Smith, who had yielded only three hits until he tired and was lifted to start the eighth. Texas jumped on reliever Carl Pankratz for four runs, highlighted by Gleanon's two-run homer to clinch the victory.

Young Rick Mears races to Indianapolis victory

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The youngster they call "Rick the Racer" ushered in a new era with a victory over the old guard in the 63rd running of the Indianapolis 500.

"It's almost unbelievable," said 27-year-old Rick Mears after overcoming the throttlejamming efforts Sunday of A.J. Foyt and Al Unser, who among them have won nine Indy races.

"I had my hands full a few times out there," Mears said. "We had a little trouble with the tires midway through the race. We had a slow leak in one of them. But the crew did a heck of a job."

Mears, who never ran farther behind than sixth in the competitive and nearly unmarred race, watched from the cockpit of his eight-cylinder Penske-Cosworth race car as the Unser brothers and Foyt in quick succession succumbed to mechanical problems.

First it was Al Unser, defending champion and a three-time winner at Indianapolis. The younger Unser led on 85 laps before a cracked transmission seal ended his race and his bid to join Foyt as the only four-time victor.

Then Bobby Unser moved on top and appeared unbeatable until 18 laps from the end of the 200-lap spectacular when his dreams of a third Indy triumph ended with a sudden loss of power as his car's fourth gear broke.

As Bobby Mears' teammate, suddenly dropped back in the pack, there was Foyt, the wily veteran who has called Mears "the next A.J. Foyt." The hard-charging Texan moved past Unser into second place.

He was a full lap behind the leader, but Mears said, "I knew Foyt was back there somewhere and I wasn't going to forget about him."

On the 190th lap, the day's sixth yellow caution light brought out the pace car after last year's runnerup Tom Sneva smacked the third-turn wall. Under the bunch-up rule adopted this year, that meant Foyt was within reach of Mears as the green flag was dropped for an all-out sprint with four laps to go.

But it didn't happen. Not only did Foyt slow down in the last two laps, but he wound up coasting across the finish line.

"There was no way I could get him," Foyt said with a shrug. "I was just glad to finish second after I dropped a cylinder in the last few laps. Then, on the last lap, my motor quit."

Cooke sells sports empire

NEW YORK (AP) — Sports mogul Jack Kent Cooke has sold basketball's Los Angeles Lakers, hockey's Los Angeles Kings, and their Forum arena home for $68 million to California realtor, the New York Times reported.

The paper said Cooke's health, his costly divorce settlement and pressure from National Football League President Pete Rozelle were among the reasons for the transaction. Cooke also is a majority owner of the NFL Washington Redskins, and an NFL rule prohibits ownership in more than one sports franchise.

Bullets shoot only 35 percent from the field

Sonics take 2-1 lead in NBA finals

SEATTLE (AP) — Gus Williams says the Seattle Super-Sonics can't start celebrating ... yet.

He knows the NBA defending champion Washington Bullets play best when their backs are against the wall. "We can't relax. We have to keep the pressure on," said Williams after the Sonics defeated the Bullets 105-95 Sunday to take a 2-1 lead in the National Basketball Association's best-of-seven championship series.

The fourth game of the series will be played Tuesday night in Seattle's Coliseum because the Kingdome, site of Sunday's game that drew a crowd of 35,928, is being used for baseball.

Williams, who had 53 points in the first two playoff games, had 31 Sunday to pace all scorers. Although he finished shooting 11 for 23, he was only 5-for-15 at one stage.

"Lenny (Coach Lenny Wilkens) would take me out if he thinks something is wrong," said Williams. "I just keep shooting when I get the shot. I expect them to go in."

The Sonics were aided by the Bullets' inability to hit field goals. Washington made only 35 of 106 shots for a 33.9 percentage, its lowest of the year.

"We just missed some open shots," said Washington's Bobby Dandridge, the team's high scorer with 28.

Gerulaitis wins Italian Open

ROME (AP) — Vitas Gerulaitis is seeded fourth in the French Open but he may be in the best shape of anyone in the event.

The blond American delighted a noisy crowd at the center court of the Foro Italico by winning a nearly five-hour endurance test against topseeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina to capture the Italian Open for the second time in his career.

"It should get me in shape for Paris and Wimbledon," he said after outlasting Vilas 6-7, 7-6, 6-7, 6-4, 6-2.

Gerulaitis picked up $28,000 dollars for the win. He and Vilas now head for Paris. Vilas is seeded third, behind Jimmy Connors and topseeded Bjorn Borg.

DENNIS THE MENACE

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, MAY 29, 1979

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Many delays can be in fact now in putting across your views. You need to spend more time and thought on important matters before they can be finished. Good for working out family problems.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have to give your home more time and attention if you want it to operate more ideally now. Show that you are a patient person. Entertain friends at home.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get your books in order and don't mail out any letters unless you go over them carefully for possible errors. You have to be particularly careful in travel.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study how to cut down on expenses and build a reserve quickly. Forget that adviser who is not up to par and could give you the wrong advice. Get needed information on your own.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You are unable to make progress as you wish, so use the time to clear up work left standing for some time. Improve your appearance and make a nice impression on others.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You feel limited now but if you keep at the work ahead of you you still accomplish a good deal. Don't rely on a trusted adviser who is too busy now and could steer you wrong.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Friends could be disappointing now so avoid them for the time being. A delayed wish becomes more enjoyable when finally reached.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't take any risks where your reputation is concerned. Be patient if you meet with delays where personal wishes and desires are your aims. They may not be good for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You are too busy to get out to new outlets, so be content to study into them more. You may argue with a new contact early in the day, but can reconcile in the evening. Make no mistake in money matters.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Try to cut down on expenses and interests so that you need not drive yourself so much. Wait until late in the day to have a talk with a co-worker and get good results.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Relegate talks with associates to the latter part of the day for best results. You have made plans that need revision now. Take no risks while out driving or walking.

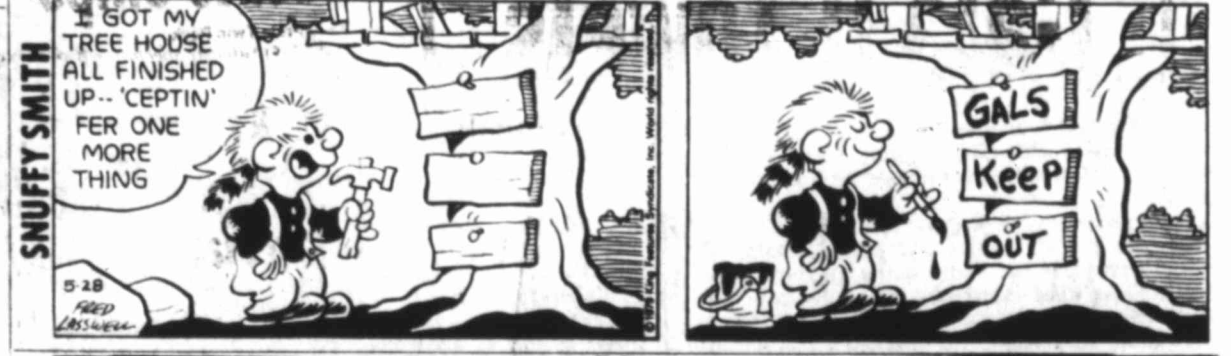

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take it easy with co-workers since they are apt to be in a rebellious mood today. Take good care of your health and improve it via right treatments. Poise is the keynote now.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make sure you maintain control whether in business or home matters. Don't plan recreations as yet, since there are bound to be delays.

Congress considering new subsidies for Postal Service

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, which created the Postal Service nearly a decade ago in hopes of eventually making mail delivery pay for itself, is considering abandoning that goal and underwriting the service with new subsidies.

A bill awaiting a House vote would change the 1970

Postal Reorganization Act's mandate to start reducing the subsidies this year. The legislation would, instead, inject new revenue into the mail agency in an effort to hold down future postal rate increases and prevent cuts in service.

"In the euphoria surrounding the development of the new 'business-like' Postal Service in 1970,

Congress accepted some of the predictions of postal reorganization and set 1984

as the year when the Postal Service would be able to

'break-even' — pay its expenses solely out of revenues," a report to House members says.

Under the reorganization

law, the politics-laden Post Office Department was replaced by the Postal Service, a new agency made largely independent of Congress and the White House.

"Unfortunately, the Postal Service has not made sufficient progress toward self-sufficiency," says the report

by the House Post Office

Committee, which approved the legislation. It noted that the agency has lost money

every year since it was created.

The Postal Service is facing a major restructuring of its operations and is expected to be a major factor in the future of the mail agency.
