LEGAL ACTION AGAINST PIPE LINES PROMISED

'Fighting Parson's' Liquor Conspiracy Trial Becomes Dramatic Sanity Case

Ruth And 'J. Ham' All But Hit In Clinches In Verbal Battle For Illinois Votes

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN

CHICAGO, Oct. 23. (UP)—Ruth Hanna McCormick and J. Hamilton Lewis did verbal battle tonight for election to the United States senate, much to the delight of the natives in the ringside seats.

The energetic Mrs. McCormick and the debonair Lewis reached the final rounds of their joust in as fair and square a political fight as the fans ever have seen. There wasn't any hitting in the clinches simply because there weren't any clinches. In five vigorous speeches before as many Republican organizations tonight, for instance, Mrs. McCormick flatly accused the colorful "J. Ham" of making a "political football" out of prohibition.

J. Ham Lewis Ruth McCormick

Lewis Just as Blunt

Lewis carried on the battle just as bluntly. He spoke before only one Democratic meeting, but he called Mrs. McCormick "the lady who is getting poor advice from a high pressure staff of advisors and publicity agents."

The third candidate for the senate, Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, running on a independent dry ticket, nipped at their heels so repeatedly down-state that she kept a corps of pretty young women messengers busy hurrying with transcripts of her speeches to the newspaper offices.

The three-cornered race, with Lewis battling the combined attack of two women for votes has developed into one of the nation's most exciting political campaigns, perhaps because of its novel feminine feature, but more probably because of the vital personal character of the contestants themselves.

Ruth Talks Volubly

Mrs. McCormick won the regular Republican nomination with as thorough going campaign as a politician ever engaged in. She spoke not once but many times in every town in Illinois. Then when the voters placed her on the Republican ticket, she continued her stumping tour as religiously as ever.

The daughter of Mark Hanna, the widow of Senator Medill McCormick, congresswoman at large, newspaper publisher and raiser of registered stock, Mrs. McCormick perhaps works harder than either

Home Town Talk

By B. D. D.

The old First Methodist church property at the southwest corner of Lamar and Tenth streets is the first choice of government agents for the site for the new federal building. While a second choice is mentioned, it is assumed that it will be considered only if the tenders of the first choice should fail to meet the government's requirements. Doubtless they can and will do this.

After the site is purchased there ought not to be much delay in advertising for bids for it is understood that the treasury department is well prepared with plans which will need few changes to meet local conditions.

It now looks like we might expect the contract to be awarded and work started on the new building early in 1931.

That would provide employment for more than a hundred persons over a long period, and if we vote bonds for a new junior college building that will provide employment for an additional hundred or two. There is hardly anything that will put people to work faster than new construction. It not only employs many at the building site but it furnishes employment to others in saw mills, brick plants, stone quarries, cement plants, glass factories, tin shops, railroads and where not.

President Hoover is getting down to business with the appointment of Col. Arthur Woods, former New York police commissioner, to head a national organization to deal with unemployment. Col. Woods headed a similar organization appointed by President Harding in 1921. We may expect this to be followed by the organization of state and local committees.

This odd jobs movement that has been mentioned in the papers will help in preventing a lot of distress if everybody who has money will only look around and see where they might give somebody employment, if only for a day.

Now is the time for all good citizens to do something to aid the common welfare and it is certainly no time to be letting money lie idle, or to be niggardly.

Ralph W. Sockman, writing in November Harper's on "The Vanishing Sinner," says that the old-fashioned doctrine of moral depravity is not as much preached as formerly and that if one were to listen at the door of the modern meeting-house he would not hear the old-fashioned agonizing of conscience that in former days was an expression of religious emotion.

"Camp-meeting revivals are not the success they once were," writes Mr. Sockman. "In short it is about as hard to get a conviction of sin these days in the courts of God as it is to get a conviction of Volstead violation in the courts of New York."

Mr. Sockman writes with considerable levity about the transition he sees and Talker doesn't intend to take side, but he cannot help but ponder over these two paragraphs:

"Much of the moral confusion of the day apparent even in the writings of distinguished diagnosticians, is that their emotions are not fully emancipated from the legalistic psychology. Emotionally they still feel themselves culprits mindful of the law, but seeing no policeman. Intelligence bids us alter this attitude rather than try to restore the policeman.

"Moral discrimination must be made on the basis of something more magnetic than external codes. Instead of starting with the object of holding men to our traditional standards, we should begin by looking for the objects which hold men. It was said of the Nazarene that 'He knew what was in man;' and the first insistence of his ethical approach was always upon human responsiveness."

All this may seen obscure and it is without the context and even with the full text before him Talker only glimpses the meaning. He quotes it here that others better qualified to understand might be attracted. Maybe some of our local preachers will discuss the article.

Those who heard Torreblanca's Tipica orchestra here five or six years ago are among the first to buy tickets for the engagement of this orchestra here Saturday at the Municipal auditorium. This orchestra puts on the kind of a program that makes those who hear it want to hear another. It's not only worth much more than the price of admission to hear Jose de Arrattia, tenor of the Mexican grand opera company, sing on this program, but merely to see him as he sings would be worth whatever admission price might be charged. Talker is certain than any woman under 95 years of age would concur in that statement.

JURY PONDERS RATIONALISM OF DEFENDANT

Ex-Congressman Serving as Counsel Moves Court To Tears

EVEN ORATOR SOBS

Thoroughman's Adventures In Yukon and Since Related to Jury

Special to The Record News

LAWTON, Okla., Oct. 23.—A jury in the United States district court here Thursday night attempted to decide whether C. L. Thoroughman, Lawton's famous "fighting parson" and former militant prohibition enforcement officer, is mentally competent to stand trial on a whisky conspiracy charge.

The liquor trial was turned into a sanity hearing Thursday morning when L. M. Gensman, Oklahoma ex-congressman who is defending Thoroughman, told the court that his client was "out of his mind."

Array of Witnesses

The defense at once produced an array of witnesses including several policemen, who told of seeing Thoroughman crawling over the roofs of houses and of business buildings, of hearing him threaten suicide and violence to others, and of observing him "acting like a maniac." United States attorneys contented themselves with a rigorous cross-examination of witnesses.

The hearing reached a dramatic climax when Mr. Gensman, a widely known orator, moved the court, the jury, the spectators, and himself to tears with a colorful account of the active career of Thoroughman, now a man of 43 years of age. He drew gripping pictures of the crusading parson in the frozen Yukon and of the belligerent enforcement officer fighting for prohibition in the early days of Oklahoma.

Conspiracy Charge

Thoroughman, who left the United States service about a year ago, is charged with J. L. Fain, well known cattleman, Frank Avery and Tom Lipton with a liquor conspiracy involving the operations of a still seized near Lawton six months ago. He was recently re-arrested on a charge of driving while drunk.

The trial of the conspiracy charge will depend upon the outcome of the sanity hearing Thursday.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23. (UP)—Joe Aiello, notorious north side gangster and rival of "Scarface" Al Capone, was ambushed tonight as he entered an apartment on the west side, and killed by a volley of more than 50 machine gun bullets.

Aiello was a leader of the "north side" bom, along with George (Bugs) Moran and the late Jack Zuta. Zuta was killed shortly after the murder of Jake Lingle, which he and his friends were said to have planned.

Moran was arrested earlier this week on a vagrancy warrant when he returned from a four months' absence.

Aiello also was president of the Unione Sicilione, notorious Italian fraternal body, all of whose heads in the last 10 years have been assassinated. Ambulances Bring Wife And Parents Of Guy McCully To Haskell For Assault Trial

Special to The Record News

HASKELL, Texas, Oct. 23.—Brought from Rule in ambulances when physicians pronounced them too ill to travel otherwise, the parents and the wife of Guy McCully Thursday afternoon took the stand in district court here to defend him against a charge of criminal assault. The charge was brought by an 18-year-old girl after an automobile ride on Oct. 12.

The infirm witnesses were brought into court after a defense motion for continuance because of their illness was overruled. They were under the care of a physician during the ride.

Mrs. McCully, an expectant mother faltered out a story of her husband's return on the night of the alleged assault. He was very drunk and went to sleep at once, the wife testified. She said she had seen the prosecuting witness embrace her husband 18 months ago.

Another defense witness, Miss Pauline Kelly of Rochester, told of an exchange of kisses between the girl and McCully, and a third witness described taking McCully home "crazy drunk" on the occasion of the alleged attack. McCully said he had gotten himself into a "hell of a lot of trouble," his friend reported.

In testimony given Wednesday, the young prosecuting witness told of being dragged from the car away from her girl companions and of being mistreated in a cotton field near Judd. She declared that McCully had threatened to "kill her inch by inch," and that she had been bitten, struck, and kicked. Physicians testified that she had been criminally assaulted.

The defense rested its case at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon and the case will reach the jury after the charge and arguments Friday morning.

Supreme Court Asked To Define 'Petty' Offense

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23. (AP)—The supreme court was asked today to decide what constitutes petty offenses triable without a jury. Should it give a broad decision on that question it would go far, lawyers believe, toward solving some of the troublesome questions arising out of prohibition enforcement.

In bringing up the question, Robert E. Lynch, as counsel for the District of Columbia, suggested it would be particularly helpful in relieving court congestion to have the highest court hold that petty offenses, such as reckless driving, which was involved in the case the city brought against William H. Colts, could be disposed of without jury trial.

STATE TO TAKE STEPS TO END DISCRIMINATION

Extension of Oil Proration Assured by Action of Commission

TEST OF LAW ASKED

Special Consideration for Wichita Producers Urged by Penn

AUSTIN, Oct. 23. (AP)—Legal steps to stop discrimination by pipe line companies in the purchase of oil in North Texas, West Central Texas and Panhandle areas was promised today by Pat M. Neff, chairman of the state railroad commission, at the conclusion of a hearing on complaints of operators.

The operators complained their districts were the only ones in Texas where pipe line companies were taking less oil than the allowable production of the fields under the state-wide proration order.

Extend Proration

Plans for extending the proration period 60 days from Nov. 27, the date the present proration period expires, also were made. The commission had under advisement testimony relative to placing the deep wells of the Reagan county field in West Texas under proration, having concluded the Reagan county hearing shortly after the noon recess.

Planning for the next proration period, the commission asked that every purchaser of crude in Texas make its nominations to the central proration committee by Nov. 3. R. R. Penn, chairman of that committee, declared it was unquestionable that another cut would have to be made in Texas production, which was, during the week ending Oct. 11, 771,000 barrels daily.

Penn said that in drawing up the new proration order the commission should take into consideration the total Texas nominations; and that some relief for the oil fields now under producing would be afforded "when the Big Lake and Darst creek fields" are placed under proration.

Purchasers "Czars"

"We must recognize the economic law of supply and demand," he said. "This makes the purchasers of oil virtually czars of the Texas oil industry, but it is a condition which exists and must be faced."

He asked, however, that the purchasing companies take special consideration for the North Texas fields, especially the Wichita Falls district, declaring that district was "on the verge of disaster." Wells in the district are exceedingly small, and the margin of allowable has been cut so sharply that many operators have been forced to sell at distressed prices in order to operate on a profitable basis.

Legal Action Considered

Chairman Neff said the facts regarding the Wichita Falls district would be taken to the attorney general, and if, in his opinion, legal steps were advisable, they would be taken.

Any such action probably would be taken under the common purchaser act, passed by the last legislature, giving the railroad commission authority over pipe line companies as common purchasers. At today's meeting several companies namely, Continental, Gulf and Phillers, disclaimed any belief in the validity of the law. It never has been tested in the courts.

Under this law the commission may designate the amount of oil to be taken daily from a pool, and require that the pipe line companies take ratably from all pools, providing the quality of the oil does not differ. It was shown by testimony today that the northern districts were the only ones in Texas in which the common purchasers were not taking the full amount of their allowable production.

Test of Law Asked

Test of the common purchaser act was asked by Claude C. Wild, representing the Independent Petroleum association of Texas which was instrumental in obtaining passage of the act. Wild said the attitude of common purchasers had been disappointing, and that if there was to be a test made of the act, it was his association's desire that the test be started soon, in order that any defects in the law might be corrected by the next legislature.

Prior to the pipe line hearing, the commission heard rebuttal testi-

Reed replied that all he wanted her to do was tell the truth.

Mrs. O'Loughlin insisted she would not tell the details and the chief suddenly turned the questioning to the ground glass that was found in the stomach of Leona.

The same substance, Reed pointed out to her, was found in the stomach of Leona's father, Leo

Chamber Endorses Present Exchange Methods

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23. (UP)—Methods of trading in commodities now maintained on commodity exchanges were endorsed today in resolutions adopted by the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Member chambers of commerce in every state adopted the resolutions through a referendum. Four resolutions in all were adopted and were declared to be the policy of the chamber.

The resolutions said trading in futures on commodity exchanges should be supported; that wisely regulated speculative buying and selling on commodity exchanges was a necessary factor in distribution of farm products.

They further held commodity exchanges should adopt rules to promote not only the interests of the producer, the purchaser and the manufacturer of farm products, but also the public welfare.

This action placed the chamber in opposition to Secretary of Agriculture Hyde who criticized present trading methods on the grain market, following extensive short selling by the Soviet in the Chicago wheat pit.

The recommendations followed an investigation by a special chamber committee formed more than a year ago.

Youth Shot to Death in Speak-Easy Was Given 'Chance' by U. S. Judge

DALLAS, Oct. 23. (AP)—A "decent looking fellow" who was to make the best of "another chance," afforded him by Judge William H. Atwell, of the United States district court, less than one month ago when he was sentenced to 10 days in jail on a plea of guilty of violating the prohibition law, was buried in Fort Worth today.

Cary A. Tiller made a good impression on the stern judge when he stood up to "take his medicine" for his part in making a liquor sale. Answering questions, he told the jurist he was a shirt salesman.

Evidently he had some talent as a salesman, because the judge told him.

"You look like a decent sort of fellow. I am going to give you a light sentence and another chance. If you go straight come back here and I will buy some shirts from you."

Saturday night Tiller fell mortally wounded in a "speak-easy". He died a few hours later refusing to tell officers who shot him. Later a woman admitted she fired the fatal bullet.

Back to his day in court: Tiller told the judge he was merely "keeping shop" for a friend while the friend absented himself for a hair cut, when federal officers raided the place.

"I'll sure do that, your honor," Tiller replied, when Judge Atwell told him to go straight and then make a shirt sale.

PARIS FLIGHT BACKER TALKS

Easterwood's Offer Drew Many 'Takers'

DALLAS, Oct. 23. (AP)—There were five pilots who wanted to attempt the Paris-New York-Dallas one-stop transatlantic flight and participate in Col. William E. Easterwood's $25,000 reward, offered for the feat, but Dieudonne Coste and his Question Mark plane looked better than any to the Dallas aviation patron when he surveyed the situation on the ground in Paris.

Colonel Easterwood revealed today at a luncheon in his honor, as a tribute to his enterprise in sponsoring the Dallas end of the perilous ocean flight, that he found several would-be "takers" when he mentioned his prize while abroad. Coste had planned a flight to Russia and not across the Atlantic at this time, but changed his mind, Easterwood said.

"I had corresponded with five pilots who wanted to make the attempt," he said. "In Paris, I talked to all of them and inspected their ships. I talked to the American ambassador, the French air minister and the Aero club of Paris. All of them endorsed the flight. Of the whole lot who wanted to cross the Atlantic, Coste, with his fine plane and skilled co-pilot, seemed to be the best bet. Coste did not want to fly the Atlantic this year. In fact, he had planned a flight to Russia. But the Dallas prize attracted him and he finally agreed to the dangerous jump from Paris to New York."

Hardeman Farmers Line Up for 'Seed Wheat Under Drouth Plan

Special to The Record News

QUANAH, Texas, Oct. 23.—Applications for more than five carloads of seed wheat have been received at the chamber of commerce office from Hardeman county farmers under the distribution plan of the Quanah business men in cooperation with the Oklahoma Wheat Growers association and the federal farm board, and it is predicted at least 10 cars will be distributed, according to A. B. Wey, president of the local organization formed last week.

Two cars arrived Monday morning and scores of wagons have been standing in line at the Moseley elevator to secure their requirements.

The ground is in excellent condition following the rains, and it is predicted twenty or twenty-five thousand acres will be planted in wheat to provide winter pasture and for crop next year.

The plan worked out to enable the farmer without cash to purchase his seed wheat needs will permit the farmer to give his note at six per cent interest for the seed required, due Aug. 1, 1931. Quanah business men have provided a fund equal to 20 per cent of the total amount required. More than $3,000 has already been subscribed to this fund. This plan was submitted by the Oklahoma Wheat Growers association, and the requirement is made that all farmers taking advantage of it shall join the Texas Wheat Growers association, all dues being waived.

G. M. Cassity is in charge of the local office and several clerks are kept busy, besides the aid rendered by the local chamber of commerce secretary, George Sager, and assistant, Mrs. Alexander, and local business men.

VICE INQUIRY QUIZZES 'DOVE'

Crippled 'Stool Pigeon' in Two-Hour Grilling

NEW YORK, Oct. 23. (AP)—A weakened fellow who limps heavily on a stout cane was taken out the back way today from the quarters where the appellate court is investigating the existence of a "vice ring" whose members are charged with having collected a million a year from women arrested on vice charges.

He is called "The Dove," a translation of his German name, and for 15 years he has been a "stool pigeon" for the police vice squad. Among other things, Isidore Kresel, special counsel to the investigator, is investigating a charge that "The Dove" built up a fortune of half a million dollars during his career as an "undercover" vice agent.

These charges are by far the most sensational which have developed since the appellate court ordered a general investigation into magistrates courts of Manhattan and the Bronx, but Kresel has declined to comment on this phase of his work beyond the assertion that no magistrates appear to have been involved in the alleged ring's operations.

Specifically, Kresel's associates said, it is charged that the ring, through police, "fixers" and bondsmen trumped up charges against women and collected "at least several millions a year" in bonds and "fixing" fees.

"The Dove" was questioned for two hours today and Mr. Kresel's staff said several other witnesses had been supoenaed.

Statesman's Widow To Defend His Name

BERLIN, Oct. 23 (AP)—Frau Kaethe Stresemann, widow of the late German foreign minister, it became known today, has resorted to legal methods to clear her husband's memory of graft accusations heaped upon him by Fascist election campaigners.

Frau Stresemann invoked the law for the protection of the republic on Tuesday, petitioning the ministry of justice to prosecute Dr. Diehl, Fascist leader at Krefeld, alleging he stated during the campaign that her husband had drawn 1,000,000 marks from the Bergen bank, at Venlo, Holland, as a reward for putting the Young plan across, while the French foreign minister, Briand was declared to have received 3,000,000 marks for the same service.

Alabaman Convicted of Robbing Jap Colonel

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Oct. 23. (AP)—Edward L. Thompson, 35, was under sentence of ten years' imprisonment today following his conviction of robbing Lieutenant Colonel T. Oyama, of the Japanese army, on a train near Opelika, Ala., several weeks ago.

Colonel Oyama said he was induced into a smoking compartment of the train and robbed of $800 while en route to New Orleans.

Servants' Deaths Leave Fortune to Kansas Women

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Oct. 23. (INS)—A Swedish fortune of approximately $1,000,000 will be shared in by Mrs. Gerda Ariund Faust, coffee shop operator here, and her mother, Mrs. Magdalene Ariund, according to the provision of the will of an uncle of the two women, who died in Stockholm recently.

The women were informed of the inheritance today by Sheriff Harry Powers who received a copy of the will from the Swedish consul at Chicago.

The uncle, Karl Erich Karlson, died several years ago and left his fortune to two servants with the provision that on their deaths his wealth should revert to Mrs. Faust and her mother. The servants died recently.

A sister of Mrs. Faust, Mrs. Earl Williams, and two brothers, Arthur and Harold Ariund, also are to share in the fortune.

GRAND SALINE, Texas, Oct. 23. (AP)—Harry Malone, 28, of Mineola, died here today after he had been picked up unconscious and badly bruised on the Big Sandy highway. TWO KILLED IN TUNNEL CAVEIN

Rescue Crews Take Victims From Debris

STEUBENVILLE, Ohio, Oct. 23. (AP)—Two men were crushed to death and a third was injured seriously in the collapse of 300 feet of a railroad tunnel on a Wheeling & Lake Erie freight train caboose at Adena, 25 miles southwest of here. The victims were removed by rescue crews after six hours of digging in debris.

The last body, that of E. E. Duga, 55, Dillonvale, was removed from the demolished caboose late this afternoon. The crews first found the body of Jerry L. Sells, 40, a conductor, and then released Al Romando, 35, a trainman, who had been wedged between boulders. Romando suffered a broken arm and leg and a crushed hip.

Both Duga and Sells were caught under the heaviest part of the cavein and were crushed. Romando was saved by supporting timbers that stopped the fall of dirt from the tunnel roof.

Illinois Voters Gleefully Watch Battle

of her rivals. For all that, she always manages to dress smartly, to smile continually and to make speech after speech detailing her qualifications for the senate.

Lewis, ex-senator, famous lawyer and one of the most generally beloved public figures in the Midwest, is an entirely different sort of campaigner. He won the Democratic nomination without a contest on a dripping wet ticket.

He speaks hardly half as often as Mrs. McCormick, but when he talks, even his enemies listen carefully, just for the sheer pleasure of it. He is a pastmaster of the golden voice, the silvered phrase, and the biting irony that so many politicians fail so utterly in achieving.

His personal appearance is striking, his clothes are meticulous and his hair is tousled. His beard perhaps has received more newspaper attention than any similar hirsute adornment in American history. Years ago his whiskers were a flaming and weird pink; now they are almost white. But they still are whiskers to be conjured with, to be photographed, written about and admired.

Mrs. O'Neill is one of the mysterious "dark horses" the political prognosticators like to talk about. After achieving something of a reputation in state polictics, she suddenly decided both Mrs. McCormick and Lewis were "entirely too wet." She had her name placed on the ticket, with endorsement of the dry forces in the state.

She is a soft-spoken, pretty blonde woman, who looks like the housewife that she is in a modest home near Chicago, where she does the dusting herself, prepares the meals for her family and personally sends the children off to school when she is not campaigning.

PIPE LINE LAW MAY BE TESTED

State to Act on Complaints By Producers

mony from the central advisory committee, seeking to force Big Lake pool operators to prorate their wells, deepest in the world.

Their last witness, Ralph Ogden, who told of negotiations with the Continental Oil company or their predecessors, Marland Oil company, for construction of a carbon black plant at Big Lake to purchase the gas in that field, which the advisory committee alleged was wasted.

Ogden said proceedings had progressed to the point where the operators had agreed to sell their gas to Texas carbon black interests for 2 cents per 20,000,000 cubic feet of gas, or a revenue of approximately $144,000 a year, but negotiations fell through at the last moment due to a difficulty over a $5,000 commission for one of the negotiators.

Gas Unmarketable

Previous testimony had been that the companies were unable to dispose of their gas, prior to construction of a gasoline plant completed this week. No attempt was made to refute Ogden's testimony, except that it was brought out that the railroad commission had not issued a permit for construction of the carbon black plant at Big Lake.

M. Albertson, petroleum engineer with Shell, also testified in contradiction to the Continental experts, that tubing the deep wells would be the logical and business like method. Continental testimony had been that tubing the wells, particularly the first one completed known as 1-B, would be a dangerous process of doubtful success.

Albertson declared that 1-B already was hazardous and that while it might prove hazardous to tube it, the hazard would be equally great to leave it in its present condition.

Gigantic Waste

Attorneys for the advisory committee declared that gas wasted in production from the deep wells would supply "all the families in Texas for a year."

Both the commission and the attorney general's department expressed interest in the alleged waste. Pat M. Neff, chairman of the commission asked whether it would be possible to shut the wells in while the conditions leading to the waste were remedied. He declared this gas allegedly wasted should be saved for posterity, in order that the maximum amount of oil might be recovered.

Rice Tilley, assistant attorney general, representing the commission and the University of Texas asked several questions regarding the value of this gas.

Engineers for the Big Lake Oil company and the Group No. 1 Oil company, both of which are largely owned by Continental, testified that they were gradually lowering the amount of gas used and approaching the most efficient oil-gas ratio. They declared the waste was necessary.

Thomas P. Gore Flays Hoover Administration in Altus Address

Special to The Record News

ALTUS, Okla., Oct. 23.—Dividing an hour of scathing criticism between the Hoover administration and platform of his Republican opponent in the senate race, former Senator Thomas P. Gore, Democratic nominee addressed the Southwestern Teachers' association and an audience of Jackson county voters here Thursday night.

Earlier in the day the association heard Dr. Burris Jenkins of Kansas City, pastor, author, and editor of "The Christian" a religious weekly.

The former senator speaker opened with the declaration that he could detect no difference between Hoover prosperity and what the Republicans have styled Democratic depression, blaming the administration for robbing the farmer of purchasing and paying power.

In his attack upon Pine, the blind orator began by denying a charge that he had voted against a raise in pay for the soldiers of the A. E. F. and repeated that he had opposed both draft laws. On the other hand he charged Pine with voting for the cancellation of war debts, asserting that such a program aided the rich man and robbed the farmer.

Gore charged that in five years out of 10 the multi millionaire Pine had failed to pay a state income tax, marveling at "a millionaire without an income."

"If you want more taxes, less trade, and more trusts, "elect a Republican," he shouted. "Put in a Democrat if it's less taxes, more trade, and no trusts you want."

Dr. Burris, who has just returned from a trip around the world and including nine weeks spent in Russia says that superficially Russia is in a worse condition than last year but essentially she is in better circumstances.

Dr. Burris was a war correspondent for the Kansas City Star from the American battlefront and from the English, French and Italian fronts for six months during the world war. He is the author of several books including, "Behind the Hindenberg Line," and "It Happened Over There." He has just recently released "The World Steps to Protestantism" and "American Religion as I See It Lived." These books were published in August and September.

Dr. Burris is pastor of the Primrose Boulevard Christian church in Kansas City.

Talbot Would Change To 'Pocketbook' Government

AUSTIN, Oct. 23. (UP)—"Austin people, when they are sick, send for a lawyer," Col. W. E. Talbot, Republican candidate for governor, said here tonight. "They do everything through lawyers. All the government for many years has been a government by lawyers.

"It is time we changed to a commercial administration. I should like to have a pocketbook government for a while, one that is adjusted to my pocketbook, yours, everybody's."

Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

How to get rid of it

Listerine, noted antiseptic, found highly successful

If your scalp itches or burns, if your hair is thinning or you are troubled with loose dandruff, begin using full strength Listerine, systematically, as an antiseptic shampoo. Simply douse it on and massage the scalp as vigorously as you can.

Literally tens of thousands have rid themselves of a dandruff condition with Listerine. They are simply amazed by the speed with which it gets results—often in cases where other, more complicated, treatments had failed. One or two applications are frequently found sufficient.

What loose dandruff is

Loose dandruff is the visual evidence of a diseased or infectious condition of the scalp. It is most likely to manifest itself when the seasons change.

Evidence seems to point that the condition is of germ origin. At any rate, the fat glands about the hair become over-active, throwing off a disgusting, greasy, whitish substance known as sebum. This forms in crusts and scales that betray you as a careless and unhealthy person.

Neglect is dangerous

The hair, meanwhile, seems literally to be stifled. It grows lustreless, lifeless, falls out. The scalp feels hot and itchy. If the condition is not treated promptly, eczema and baldness may follow, and usually do.

At the first symptom of trouble, the fight against loose dandruff should begin. Consider Listerine's effectiveness against this condition.

Why Listerine succeeds

If infection is present on the surface of the skin, Listerine attacks it. A powerful germicide, it kills bacteria in 15 seconds.

Listerine helps to dissolve oily crusts and quickly removes them, as well as horny scales. And Listerine quickly relieves that burning, itching sensation. It soothes inflamed or irritated areas of the scalp.

If scalp is dry

If scalp is excessively dry, a little olive oil may be used in connection with the Listerine shampoo, or independent of it. The oil aids in dissolving crusts and scales and keeps hair from drying out.

Get a bottle of Listerine tonight and try it if your scalp is troubling you. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Missouri, U. S. A.

STOMACH IN FINE SHAPE SINCE 1924

Tanlac Made Him Well Then and Has Kept Him Well Ever Since

What he said in 1924

John E. Jones, 520 Fredonia Street, Muskogee, Okla., wrote us on February 16, 1924:

While principal of the Lincoln High School of Arkansas I became so badly rundown that the end of the day found me completely fagged out. I had heard of Tanlac as a fine meditine and so I tried it. Tanlac certainly did wonders in relieving that tired feeling, gave me a fine appetite and toned up my whole system so work as hard as I will, I feel strong and vigorous.

What he said in 1930

On August 22, 1930, this same man said:

Ever since Tanlac fixed me up in 1924, I have been in first class health. Tanlac is a real medicine for rundown, nervous stomach sufferers and let me tell you what one's stomach is by good order he is pretty sure of good health. I have nothing but words of praise for Tanlac.

If you are nervous, rundown and can't sleep, if gas and pains in stomach and bowels cause misery, you need Tanlac. Just try a bottle. It must help you or your druggist will refund your money.

DRINK 6 GLASSES WATER DAILY TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Add a spoonful Jad Salts to first glass before breakfast to clear intestines of poisons that may pass from intestinal tract to kidneys and invite trouble.

If you have miserable pains in your back, or strained feeling, don't jump to the conclusion you have a bad kidney ailment and start dosing yourself with a lot of medicine. Plain water is the best diuretic—the best flusher of the kidneys you can find.

Drink a full glass one-half hour before breakfast to which you've added a spoonful of ordinary Jad Salts. The water will flush the kidneys. The Jad Salts will cleanse the intestines of the dangerous toxins of Systemic Poisoning which are probably the real cause of those back pains.

According to recent discoveries of able men of science, these toxins frequently pass from the lower intestines to the kidneys, causing pus formations and pain—and inviting trouble. Get them out of your system and chances are, those pains you've diagnosed as "kidney pains" will go like magic. You'll feel a general easing up, less of that horribly tired and strained feeling at your back. You'll feel more snappy and alert than perhaps for years.

You can get the Jad Salts at any corner drug store. Just ask for ordinary Jad Salts. Take as suggested above. Also drink two glasses of plain water between every two meals and at bedtime. Then if your "kidney pains" aren't completely gone in six days or less, see a good doctor. Try this simple way today. You'll be glad that you did. —Adv.

Donations amounting to $9,436.94 were received through the superintendent's solicitation. Interest on bonded indebtedness amounting to $24,000 was reported paid, including $8,000 more than received from the conference assessment. The board of trustees requested continuation of the $25,000 assessment for the ensuing year.

A plan for retiring $400,000 in bonded indebtedness by insuring the lives of 400 persons was proposed. Each would pay the hospital $1,000, which would be returned to his beneficiaries at the time of his death. The plan would retire $25,000 in interest charges, it was pointed out, substituting approximately $16,000 in premium charges to be borne by conference collections.

The Rev. Henry Grady May, secretary of the Christian literature committee, told the conference that conference claimants had been paid $100,000, of this sum $3,258 going to claimants in the North Texas conference. The Texas Christian Advocate was said to have made a net gain over the past year of $1,796.24 for the first time in history despite a decrease in number of subscriptions.

Dr. T. D. Ellis, Louisville, Ky., secretary of the board of church extension, in an address said 100 churches were about to be sold due to inability to meet obligations. He urged the building of churches to fit the pocketbook rather than ambition and deplored building without money.

CHINESE 'REDS' FLOG PRIESTS

Clergymen Tortured in Public Street

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23. (INS)—Four Catholic priests recently seized by Chinese Communists were tied together, paraded before their captors and then beaten, according to an account cabled the state department today by Consul General Lockhart at Hankow.

Later the priests were released by their captors at Kian and sent to Kiungchau in quest of ransom money.

Nelson P. Johnson, American minister at Peiping, told the department that all Americans in the vicinity of Kian have been advised to withdraw. He reported that government troops are en route to Kian to discipline the Communist-bandit hordes that infest the district.

The Chinese government is continuing its effort to effect the release of Rev. B. N. Nelson, of Minneapolis, who was captured some days ago by Communist bands, Consul Walter A. Adams, at Nanking, informed the department.

AMERICANS URGED TO SEEK SAFETY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23. (AP)—Word that the Chinese ministry of foreign affairs had urged Americans in Kian, Kiangsi province, to withdraw at once to places of safety was communicated to the state department today by American Minister Johnson at Peiping.

Kiangsi troops were reported en route to attack bandits holding Kian.

Walter A. Adams, American consul at Nanking, another message to the department said, has urged the ministry of foreign affairs to take steps to effect the release of the Filipino sister captured by the bandits at Kian. Adams also reported in detail the steps taken to effect the release of Rev. Bert N. Nelson of Minneapolis, Minn., captured early this month by another group of bandits.

Pistol Shot Kills Investment Broker

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 23. (UP)—George K. Reilly, 54, senior member of the investment brokerage firm of Reilly, Brock and company, was found shot to death near his home at Consohoc-Ken here today. There was a bullet wound through his head. Beside him lay a .32 caliber revolver and a shotgun.

Reilly was found by a member of his family who heard a shot a few minutes after the broker left home carrying the shotgun. Police expressed the belief it was a case of suicide. Members of the family said he was in the best of health and spirits and that they knew no motive for such an act.

Feminine Paul Reveres Fight For Equal Jury Rights in Illinois

CHICAGO, Oct. 23. (AP)—The feminine Paul Reveres of 1930 are riding through every Illinois village and farm to spread the gospel of another "woman's right."

On election day the voters, men and women alike, will scratch hundreds of thousands of little "X" marks that will grant or withhold from Illinois women equal rights with men in the jury box.

Twenty-one other states already sanction jury service for women. And even if Illinois votes in the affirmative the home state of Lincoln, The Emancipator, will be just 4,130 years late in putting the first woman on a jury. For history recites that feminine jurors date back to the Babylonia of 2200 B. C.

Sliding over the dark ages intervening, the current historian finds Illinois and Missouri alone in the middle West, still turning a negative thumb upon woman jurors. Abroad, Germany, Norway, Sweden and England have approved their service.

At present, by virtue of a supreme court decision, women are classed in Illinois with aliens, convicts and the mentally and morally unfit as ineligible for juries. The women's Bas association of Illinois and the league of women voters, disliking the company, started the propaganda for an amendment of the statutes in 1923 and after four rebuffs in the state general assembly a referendum was adopted and the question of rewriting the jury act was submitted to the electorate for vote Nov. 4.

Federal Board Petitioned for Grain

Special to The Record News

BRECKENRIDGE, Texas, Oct. 23.—Chamber of commerce officials were authorized by the members at Wednesday's weekly luncheon to proceed with a plan under consideration which promises to solve the problem of furnishing grain for Stephens county farmers for planting.

The federal farm board, through its channels of the Texas and Oklahoma Grain Cooperative association recently shipped a carload of wheat to the Childress county chamber of commerce for distribution to the drouth stricken farmers of that county for the low price of 87 cents a bushel. John Z. Martin, secretary of the local chamber of commerce, communicated with N. E. Hackney, representative of the grain association Wednesday in regard to doing the same thing for this county. Martin was told that this arrangement could probably be made.

At the chamber of commerce luncheon Wednesday, Mr. Martin and the agricultural committee was given authority to carry out the plan if the federal farm board wheat could be secured.

'ALFALFA BILL' PROMISES CUT

Candidate Continues War On Utilities

CHANDLER, Okla., Oct. 23. (UP)—A pledge to force additional reductions in utility rates was made to Chandler voters today by William H. Murray, Democratic gubernatorial candidate, in an address today.

About 1,500 voters heard Murray at Shawnee last night despite a drizzling rain.

"After the first primary, in which the utilities fought me, a man came to me at Altus and introduced himself as a utility manager. He said 'I want to know whether we can talk to you.'

"I told him that a negro could talk to me and that if he had anything to ask that he deserved, that he would get it. I also told him that I apprehended he was ready to offer to make me governor.

"I told him how he could support me for governor. I told him to get out of the retail merchandising trade, reduce his rates and pay his just proportion of the taxes.

"He said that was all he wanted to know and left. When the utilities heard the dull thud of a 100,000 majority in the second primary, they reduced rates—reduced them from 12 to 18 per cent all over the state. Give me a 100,000 majority again in the general election and they will again reduce rates when they hear that dull thud, or I will make them."

Louisiana Adopts Cotton Cut Plan

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas, Oct. 23. (AP)—The Louisiana State Bankers' association has endorsed the plan of J. E. Garrett of Corpus Christi to bring about a 25 per cent reduction in cotton acreage, Garrett was advised today.

He said it was the third organization of bankers to endorse the idea, others being the Gulf Coast Bankers' association and the Rio Grande Valley association.

Garrett was advised that D. P. Richardson, and R. R. Golden, member of the Louisiana association, would attend a state-wide barbecue here Oct. 29 for the purpose of discussing the plan.

Garrett would have bankers withhold loans from farmers who refuse to cooperate in the acreage reduction movement.

Sponsors' Party Thursday Proves Glowing Success

A membership drive put on by the sponsors of the High School and Junior College P.-T. A. had its culmination Thursday in a sponsor's party given at the home of Mrs. Ed Peterson in Indian Heights, where the chairmen, sponsors and guests participated in one of the most enthusiastic P.-T. A. affairs ever known in Wichita Falls.

The Peterson home, with Mrs. Ed Peterson and Mesdames Woodward Bass and O. W. Mann acting as assistant hostesses, was open house to the party. The perfectly modern background with all the beauties accumulated in each room, made an unusually lovely setting.

Mrs. Harry ten Brink, who is chairman of sponsors in the High school and Junior College P.-T. A., proved herself a genius as a leader in taking the chair. She appointed five sub-chairmen, Mesdames H. O. Newton, S. A. Covington,. E. W Napier, A. A. Brackett, and W. M. Elliot, each of whom named her own sponsors. Mrs. ten Bink has imbued her officers and sponsors with her eagerness for success with the result that the P.-T. A. membership Thursday was reported at 380, larger than it has ever been. Prizes were offered the sponsor and chairman with the largest number of paid up members and Mrs. A. A. Brackett won the chairman's prize, and Mrs. H. E. Man the sponsor's.

Cafeteria Luncheon

The cafeteria luncheon which opened the meeting was unusually delightful. Delicious salads, pickles, olives, beets and more fried chicken than could possibly be consumed waited the lined-up guests on the dining room table covered with a handsome imported cloth. Coffee and tea were served at the small tables where the Halloween colors were noted in the orange covers with fantastic black figures. The party guest list was also in the orange and black.

Following the luncheon, and the announcement of winners in the membership contest, Mrs. Frank C. Creighton conducted two amusing contests for the guests in which Mrs. S. A. Covington and Mrs. J. C. Dixon were winners. Mrs. Creighton also led in a singsong in which Mrs. Paul Barnett, president of the P.-T. A., was at the piano.

The High school and Junior College P.-T. A. has this year for the first time an attractive yearbook, and with their distribution, the excellent programs planned by the program chairman, Mrs. W. D. Cline and her committee, were noted. Parents, pupils and teachers will take part on the programs which include music, devotionals and special selected numbers.

Members and guests present were S. H. Rider, dean at the Junior college, and Mesdames I. R. Sheldon, Max Shain, C. P. Warman, A. A. Brackett, Harry ten Brink, R. M. Tittle, Lester Jones, A. B. Maples, H. E. Man, S. A. Covington, C. D. Cromer, Carlisle Norwood, Charles Basham, W. D. Cline, W. F. Sims, Roy L Carter, Frank Creighton, J. G. Dixon, J. L. Pope, N. B. Cenault, Joe Witherspoon, L. PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

Oh, yes, we forgot to tell the world about it. In a beauty parlor last week we overheard an operator telling another young lady of a young man from an adjacent town whom she'd just given a permanent wave. He's married now, so perhaps can find some other way to spend his money.

And only yesterday as a group talked of addresses that had been made on vocation training, one of them laughed about the little girl who wrote to lecturer, asking advice about the best things for a girl to study to become a fine "lady detective."

No wonder the world seems rather upside down. Here in October a man brings a branch of peach blossoms to exhibit and we are told of morning glories that begin blooming at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and with our own eyes and nose see and smell clusters of blossoms on lilac bushes in a pretty yard on McGregor street.

If nature holds anything we love tenderly, next to trees, it is flowers. Henry Van Dyke gives the palm to "little rivers," and we suppose any man who had been brought from childhood to manhood fishing little rivers, would feel so. But trees are our first love,—then flowers. There is a spiritual uplift to us even in the picture of a beautiful tree, when we see it in a picture show; we would like to have the film run again, just for the tree.

But we find ourselves far in the minority; the majority of women love flowers better.

The thought however, that brought this to our mind was hearing discussions of flowers and directly after, while driving to another meeting, running up on two hungry looking youngsters.

There's not even a small percentage of the city's women who do not love children even more than trees or flowers. But it does look as if some childless women give more care to flowers than some mothers to their children.

It may be those mothers have not the time; which brings us back to the question of birth control on which we hold our breath. Some Wichitan walked all over us when we wrote of beggars with children—not knowing of our own children and of how hard we try to work for them.

Flowers do not take the long, long time that children take—though different plants take so much time each year. But with all their breath taking beauty—which often the child lacks—a child that is trained into good mental and spiritual life, blooms longer for the pains than the flowers. Homes should have both children and flowers.

Flowers add to homes; when a package of seed from one of the variety stores is planted in March and blooms all the summer to come to perfect fruition in October with blossoms full four inches across, what's the use of being extravagant and spending the income for bulbs?

Mrs. C. L. Burns, 1018 Terrell, has had the happy experience spoken of. She bought a 10-cent package of seed in March and planted them in the 15th of that month. On Oct. 21, she brought to The Record News office three perfect specimens of the blossoms in a deep rose pink, each measuring at least four inches across.

Indoor Putting Ball Won by Mrs. Davis

Members of the Woman's Golf association of the Wichita Golf and Country club had a hilarious game of indoor put-put at the clubhouse Thursday, with Mrs. C. O. Davis winning the ball.

Luncheon was served later to members and guests in the main dining room where golden cosmos brightened the table. Those present were Mesdames W. S. Abbott, Fred Couper, Arthur Clark, C. O. Davis, Luke McCrory, H. L. Ruehl, John L. Waggoner, W. P. Bolding, L. O. Landon, Earl Stilley, Tom Medders, W. H. Baker, R. L. Hargraves, and Helen Kendall.

Crockett Carnival To Be Held Friday

The annual Crockett school carnival will be held on the school grounds Friday evening beginning at 5:30 o'clock, it was announced by Mrs. Horrace Robbins, publicity director for the P.-T. A.

Among other attractions which will interest those who attend will be a fortune telling booth, a gypsy dance, a boxing ring, baby show and animal show. The feature attraction will be a rodeo. Real horses have been secured for this attraction which promises to create a great deal of excitement.

Supper will be sold on the grounds as will Halloween favors and other trinkets. The public is cordially invited to attend and help make the carnival a success.

New Century Juniors Hear Psychology Talks

Members of the New Century Junior club met at the home of Mrs. Ray C. Arnhold Wednesday afternoon for a lesson on "Child Psychology," when Mrs. Ray Puckett discussed "The Age of Adventure, from 6 to 10 Years" and Mrs. Eugene Clark talked on "The Age of Stress, from 10 to 14 Years."

Following a delightful social half hour refreshments were served to Mesdames Overton Abernathy, Dillard Anderson, Ray C. Arnhold, Joe B. Carrigan, Eugene Clark, S. M. Gose, John Hampton, Ted R. Krohn, Paul Oles, Ray Puckett, Dwight Ross, Gordon West, Chester Wynne and Misses Marguerite Fisher, Ethel Moran, Elva Killingsworth and Crystelle Waggoner.

Wise Spending As Vital as Wise Saving, Says Dix

A poor boy and girl got married on the proverbial shoestring. They were intelligent, energetic and ambitious and determined to rise in the world. So they worked hard and pinched pennies and eventually they achieved success, as the thrifty always do. During the lean years the wife toiled shoulder to shoulder with her husband. She uncomplainingly cooked and scrubbed and washed and ironed. She cheerfully sacrificed her natural feminine desire for pretty clothes and luxuries. She did without amusements and diversions, looking forward to the time when they would be sitting pretty on easy street and she would have plenty of money with which to buy dainty frocks and cars and travel and indulge herself in the amusements she craved.

Now that time has come. They have accumulated a large fortune, but in doing it the love of money has become an obsession with the husband and he cannot bear to part with a cent more than is absolutely necessary to live on. They might have a beautiful home in a desirable neighborhood, but he will not leave the dilapidated old house in a bad neighborhood because it would cost more.

They still walk and ride in the street cars because that is cheaper than keeping an automobile and when she asks for a cent more than the meager allowance her husband gives her to keep house upon he shrieks with horror over her extravagance and the high cost of living.

This couple is childess. They are growing old and the wife, deprived of the comforts and luxuries she has helped earn, is becoming bitter as she reflects upon the irony of their denying themselves everything they want in order to leave the money that would have made them comfortable and would have added joy and brightness to their lives to some charity for which they care nothing or to greedy relatives for whom they care less. For, as the old phrase puts it, shrouds have no pockets and even the tightest fist relaxes in death and loses its treasures.

This case is not an uncommon one. Every one of us could match it up among our acquaintances. We all know rich men and women who are in reality paupers because they cannot bring themselves to spend the money they love better than they do their ease or pleasure or even life itself. For often they will literally starve themselves to death for lack of proper food or deny themselves the trip, the vacation, the change of climate that would have prolonged their days.

These people turn an admirable virtue into the worst of vices. Compelled to be thrifty in their youth, they have let the saving mania fasten itself upon them until they have become misers and to their love of money they ruthlessly sacrifice themselves and their families.

And to what end? A few more scraps of paper in their bank boxes that will be as worthless to them when they lie in their coffins as the paper money they scatter at Chinese funerals. A few more figures in a bank book that their dead eyes will not be able to gloat over. And then greedy heirs fighting over the estate. Children rejoicing that they are getting their hands on the money out of which a stingy father and mother kept them so long and that they can have at least the things they have craved so long.

Certainly thrift is very much to be commended in the young. As Mr. Hill said a long time ago, the ability to save is a test of character and you can judge wether a youth will be a success of a failure by whether he spends more than his income or less. Also, a man is lacking in even ordinary prudence and intelligence who does not lay up something for the rainy day and old age that are bound to come to us all.

But it is just as important to know how to spend wisely as it is to know how to save wisely, and between the spendthrift and the tightwad choose the better part. For the waster, at least, has some fun as he goes along, while the miser has none, nor does throwing money away harden the heart and deaden the sympathies as does clutching it too tightly.

It is every man's bounden duty to save a reasonable proportion of his earnings, enough, if possible, to guarantee his independence and keep him from being a burden on others, but beyond that it is equally his duty to indulge himself in every luxury that he can afford.

For we cannot save up our enjoyment to some future day and say that after a while I will feast or I will indulge myself in fine clothes or I will travel and see the far places that I so long to see. We can atrophy our desires and if we defer gratifying them year after year we cease to want anything and lose our power of enjoyment.

By the time we get ready to order our feast we have dyspepsia and can only eat stale crackers and milk. By the time we get ready to order Paris frocks our youth and beauty are gone and sackcloth and ashes look just as well on us as chiffon. And when we are ready to start on our great adventure our rheumatism ties us to a steam radiator at home.

The moral of all of which is both to save and to spend with moderation, for that is the only way in which we can get the pleasure out of today and still keep an umbrella in the closet in case tomorrow should be rainy.

Georgia Lady Says That After She Took Cardui Her Health Got Better

How a Brownsville cake "struck oil" in the big city

BLACK DEVIL'S-FOOD CAKE

½ cup Crisco	½ cup hot water	2 cups flour
1½ cups sugar	1 cup thick sour milk	1 teaspoon salt
3 eggs	½ teaspoon soda	2 teaspoons baking powder
½ cup cocoa	1 teaspoon vanilla

Blend Crisco, sugar and eggs thoroughly in one operation. (Note how easily and satisfactorily three separate, difficult operations are now combined in one with the help of Crisco, which comes to you already creamed.) Beat cocoa into hot water until smooth and add to first mixture. Then add milk beaten with soda and flavoring and lastly stir in flour, salt and baking powder which have been sifted together. Bake in Crisco-ed 8-inch layer cake pans in moderate oven (375° F.) for about 25 minutes. This makes three large layers which may be iced with the following icing: Cook 1½ cups granulated sugar and ⅓ teaspoon salt with ½ cup water to a temperature of 238° F., or until syrup forms a soft ball in cold water. Pour slowly over 3 egg whites beaten stiff, beating mixture as you do so. While icing is still hot, fold in 12 marshmallows which have been cut in pieces. Beat until of a consistency to spread.

You'll probably find a delicious devil's-food cake like the one in the picture made by a nearby baker. The majority of good bakers use fine ingredients—so naturally they use Crisco.

ALL MEASUREMENTS LEVEL.—Recipes tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute. Crisco is the registered trade-mark of a shortening manufactured by the Procter & Gamble Co.

Last summer I was at a bridge party in Brownsville. I'm not going to tell you my score. I'll skip to the moment when my hostess served velvety home-made devil's-food cake covered with heavenly marshmallow icing. And when I praised it she proudly told me it was made with sweet-tasting Crisco.

I meet it again in New York!

Well, about a month later I was having tea in a swanky restaurant just off Fifth Avenue. And there on the tea cart stood the very same kind of cake. It soon vanished! Smart New York matrons were eager to pay 50¢ for a piece of cake that tasted like home!

Here's my Brownsville friend's recipe just as she gave it to me! If you use Crisco you'll be certain of a rich, moist cake. But I can't guarantee delicate-tasting feathery results if you use a "compound" or a cheap pail-fat!

Why I'm finicky about my shortening

I found out long ago that it doesn't pay to cook with a shortening that's the least bit "off." It stands to reason that a fat that tastes tallowy or smells strong will put its taste and smell into cakes and pies—in fact, any food in which it is used.

When you open Crisco's air-tight can, you'll find sweetness and purity. White and fluffy as whipped cream—no streaks or layers! No rancid or tallowy smells! Just taste Crisco to convince yourself how good it is, when you're stirring up a cake in the quick Crisco way.

You know, of course, what I mean by the quick Crisco way.

Crisco comes to you in the can so soft and fluffy that you can put your Crisco, sugar and eggs in the mixing bowl and blend them in one stirring. You actually save ⅓ to ½ of the mixing time required by other less-creamy fats!

MOODY SAVES NEGRO'S LIFE

Governor Reprieves Death Sentence

HUNTSVILLE, Texas, Oct. 23. (UP)—A last minute reprieve from Gov. Dan Moody dispelled the gloom of execution night from the walls of the state prison here tonight.

The governor commuted to life imprisonment the death sentence imposed on Monty Jackson, negro, sentenced to die after midnight as the convicted slayer of E. C. Cornelius, night watchman, at Simonton, in June, 1929.

The governor said he was convinced that Jackson fired no shot when Cornelius was killed, and that he was induced through fear to plead self-defense instead of recite the actual facts. Moody also said he was induced by a statement of one of the jurors that he was influenced to vote a death penalty by reason of the high feeling in the community.

The governor's action followed the recommendation of the state pardon board.

When Your Cough Hangs On, Mix This at Home

The best cough remedy that money could buy, can easily be mixed at home. It saves money and gives you the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs and chest colds, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and fill up with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. It's no trouble at all to mix, and when you once use it, you will never be without it. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children really like it.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. At the same time, part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes, and helps the system throw off the whole trouble. Even those severe coughs which follow cold epidemics, are promptly ended.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Lawyer Leaves 'Monument of Hate' Against Womankind

T. M. Zink, Iowa lawyer, left his fortune to found a "womanless library," but despite the fact that he gave vent to his hate of the other sex during his life his widow declares their life was happy.

Attorney's Bitterness Lives Beyond The Grave in 'Womanless' Library

Widow Says She Was "Ideally Happy" With Husband Who Spent His Life Finding Reasons to Hate Her Sex

LE MARS, Iowa, Oct. 23. (AP)—T. M. Zink's last thrust at women in general—the provision in his will for a "womanless" library—was not born of momentary whim or personal grievance.

It was the fruit of mature deliberation, a life-time of study.

In the document which seeks to set up a monument of hatred, the Le Mars lawyer attributed "my intense hatred of women" to his "experience with women, observation of them and study of all literature and philosophical works."

His will provides that the estate, valued from $35,000 to $50,000, is to be held in trust for 75 years before the "men only" library can be built.

The municipality which accepts the bequest—the will provides alternatives—may not impose taxes upon it during the trust period.

Zink's widow, whom his will permitted to live in their home provided she paid a $40 monthly rental, said "we were ideally happy" and she intends not to contest the will.

She knew her husband disliked women in business but said he always was "most gracious to them socially."

Zink's private and professional life was stormy.

An Iowa judge once threatened him with a jail sentence for contempt of court but the matter was dropped after Zink promised to spend his time behind the bars in writing a digest of the cases in which the jurist had been overruled by the supreme court.

After the death of his first wife and before his second marriage, the lawyer was threatened with a breach of promise suit. Hearing of this in his office, he became enraged, lashed a blacksnake whip on a blanketed couch, shouting:

"That's what I'll do to that woman."

Charges were filed but settled privately.

In a column which he wrote for a local newspaper, Zink frequently gave expression to his hatred philosophy in comments such as these:

"Nature created a woman to nag man so he cannot forget her.

"Love a woman and she instantly becomes your tyrant."

Zink had never embraced a religion but five ministers were pallbearers at his funeral.

MRS. O'LOUGHLIN IN CONFESSION

Stepmother Names Others In Girl's Murder

O'Loughlin, a city detective, after he was taken desperately ill the same night the child vanished from her home here.

"I did all the cooking at our house," Reed said the woman told him. "I cooked rice and glass and—"

It was just at this moment that Clark, captain of detectives, interrupted the interview, bearing with him the court order for Mrs. O'Loughlin's attorney, John M. Keating, to see her.

The woman's sentence was not finished. The chief received the order and continued his questioning as he prepared to comply with it.

"You are attempting to shield someone," Reed told her. "Who is it?"

"Why should I drag others into this?" Reed said the woman replied.

"There are three others who might suffer besides me."

Then, he declared, she told him "there is no use to bring suffering to others and I'll take the full blame."

There followed the interview between Mrs. O'Loughlin and her attorney. Mrs. O'Loughlin then told the chief of police to "accept all the circumstantial evidence and let it stand on that."

The only time Mrs. O'Loughlin mentioned the name of her brother-in-law, Frank O'Loughlin, was during questioning early today by Captain Clark, Reed said tonight.

She told Clark to "get Frank and give us a sanity test."

He described her statement as absurd, engendered entirely by hate for him.

According to statements previously made by Frank O'Loughlin to police, he quarreled violently with his sister-in-law about two weeks before Leona's death and was not taking his meals at the house at the time Leona ate the fatal meal.

Good health engenders confidence

today business demands healthy men and women—and more than ever it is the survival of the fittest . . .

POOR health is a distinct drawback to progress in business or social life. Underweight, lack of appetite, sluggishness, a dull mentality, nervousness and even skin disorders—boils and pimples—show their mark on the body, face and mind when the red-cells are deficient in number. (See enlarged blood picture above.) Moreover a low red-blood-cell condition makes the system an easy prey to disease. When your red-blood-cells are only 80% you are NOT yourself—60% is dangerous.

The way to correct this condition is to take S.S.S.—the tonic that will help Nature build up and enrich your blood. Millions of people have found it the easiest and surest way to keep themselves "fit." If your vitality is slipping away from you, do try S.S.S.. Take it before each meal. Get the large size. "Mary Roberts Rinehart what would you require in a soap for fine things?"

*We asked Mary Roberts Rinehart her opinion as a member of the Committee of 17

—here is her answer:

SHE is America's favorite author . . . this brilliant novelist. A full and glamourous career hers, that any woman might envy. Wife—mother—then, in the midst of homemaking . . . the first successful novel Followed by 36 others that swept her to the pinnacle of fame. Through it all, Mrs. Rinehart has retained that quick sympathy . . . that understanding of home problems . . . which enables her to touch the hearts of millions of readers.

"Tell us," we asked her, "what would you require in a soap for fine things?"

"Why Mrs. Rinehart prefers Palmolive Beads

"Traveling in remote places in America, or summering in my little log house on a Wyoming ranch," said Mrs. Rinehart, "I often find it necessary to look after my own delicate articles of wearing apparel. At those times I require something absolutely reliable, which does the work swiftly and well. I am now using and intend to use for this purpose in the future, Palmolive Beads. They dissolve quickly, make an excellent suds in the hardest water and rinse completely without any soap residue."

An utterly new type soap

Mrs. Rinehart is a member of the distinguished Committee of 17 who met recently at the Ritz Hotel to watch Palmolive Beads tested in comparison with flakes and granules. They found that this revolutionary new soap (1) Dissolves instantly, completely. (2) Cleanses in water 20 degrees cooler than flakes require. (3) Rinses away 100% to protect against soap damage. (4) Resupplies the natural oils and so makes silk threads wear-resisting.

So superior did the tests prove Palmolive Beads to be . . . so perfectly does it fulfill every requirement, that the Committee of 17 enthusiastically acclaimed it "the ideal soap for silks."

Order Palmolive Beads from your dealer today. They cost but 10 cents the box.

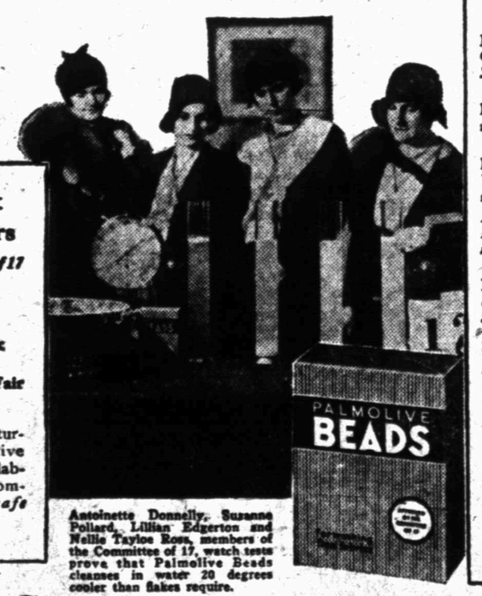

". . . a soap that dissolves quickly—makes excellent suds in the hardest water—rinses away complete without any soapy residue—in short, Palmolive Beads."

Diamond's Bad Break
He Was a "Big Shot"
Many Judges Will Agree
They Always Freed Him

By EMILE GAUVREAU

New York, which includes among its citizens some of the ablest financiers, bankers, merchants, lawyers, educators, clergymen and social workers in the world, reads with indifference of the shooting down of "Legs" Diamond, gang leader who defied the laws which are supposed to protect all good citizens and send criminals to prison. The police will say, "One less gangster," but unfortunately it does not end there.

There will be more shooting and the enthroning of another "big shot" who will endeavor to assume Mr. Diamond's powers. Indicted on a charge of violating the narcotic act, the gangster had enough influence while out on bail to secure permission to go to Europe where, presumably, he made arrangements to import more drugs. Now he is riddled with bullets and in a few days the police will tell you that "the case is closed."

You will find it interesting to read the list of judges who discharged this gentleman with the regularity of clockwork when he appeared before them on every charge ranging from vagrancy to murder. Some of them are coming in now for publicity of their own. But the important part of it to Mr. Diamond was that he was always discharged—22 times in all.

The last time he was released—it was on a charge of murder—a dinner was held in his honor to celebrate his good fortune. Mr. Diamond, unfortunately described by the police commissioner as a "yellow rat," was the subject of laudatory addresses by two jurists, one a magistrate, the other a judge of the court of general sessions, who evidently had a higher opinion of the gangster.

Some day, perhaps when it is too late, we will begin to understand why organized murderers think it is a great joke to go to court and wing at their racketeering and beribed brothers sitting on the bench.

Dr. Glenn L. Jepsen, a Princeton geologist, digs up in southern Montana dinosaur eggs millions of years old. They are the first to be found on the American continent. The fossil of a new type of primitive animal is also discovered close to the eggs of the giant reptile.

Through a study of the radioactivity of the minerals which turned the eggs into stone, it is estimated that the dinosaur which laid them roamed the earth 75,000,000 years ago!

Recorded civilization dates back only 9,000 years. In that "moment of time" man has achieved all the miracles of science.

Tests made by Dr. R. S. Woodworth, psychologist at Columbia university, reveal that fast reading depends on the alacrity of the brain, rather than the eye. An exciting detective story can be read through in one-quarter of the time it takes to finish a book of serious import of the same length.

The reason for this is that, the excitation being keen, and the digestible matter simple, the brain works faster.

The eye acts as the servant of the mind, as do all the other senses. When the brain is sluggish and loosens its grip we neither hear, see, touch nor smell accurately. The "servants," finding their "master" asleep, take it easy. But a mind that is alert and authoritative makes the senses do double duty. That is why mind has been able to conquer matter, whereas matter, unaided by mind, would still be in the dinosaur age, where a million years counted as one.

"You must be mistaken about Lemmie Peters. He don't drink. He don't even get drunk at dances," I heard a girl remark today. What this country needs even more'n a revival o' business is more confessions an' less legal proceedings.

Football players at a western college, we read, drink black coffee at the end of the first half. In order, perhaps, to run wild over their grounds in the second.

New York bootleggers who ran beer pipe lines under the streets were forced, of course, to depend upon their underworld connections.

The Lure of Fighting

BRAZIL is a long way from the United States, and the civil war there is neither very interesting nor understandable to the average American; but it is interesting to note that hundreds of young men are striving earnestly to get down there and take a hand in the fighting, even though they have not the remotest notion of what it is all about.

Representatives of the Brazilian rebels, who office in New York, are besieged daily by many of these ardent Americans, hot for war; so are the official representatives in this country of the Brazilian government. There may not be a hundred people in this country who know just what is going on down there, but there are a great many who would like to be in on whatever it is.

All of this, coming little more than a decade after a war that was supposed to have disillusioned the world forever about fighting, is somewhat jarring. It emphasizes two facts that will rise to plague pacifists for years to come—the fact that there is an ineradicable yearning for high adventure planted in the breast of mankind, and the fact that mankind persists in believing that high adventure is best gained by getting into a fight.

That, of course, is only another way of saying that men are by nature restless. Safety and security do not begin to look attractive until after one has left youth far behind. And it is unfortunate, in a way, that the modern world does not provide very many outlets for restlessness. Most of us, from the cradle onward, are safe and secure whether we like it or not. So, when someone touches off a war in Brazil, there is a grand rush to get in on the ground floor; and a little later, very likely, sundry youthful Americans will fill unmarked graves far down in the southern hemisphere.

To be sure, it is youth's privilege to fling its life away recklessly, for small gain or for no gain at all. Indeed, many a sedate, middle-aged householder would probably change places with these youngsters who are off for death below the equator. To live intensely for a few months is sometimes worth a premature and unpleasant death.

However, recognizing the existence of this spirit is not at all the same thing as admitting that there is nothing that we can do to hold it in check. A revolution in Brazil is something the world can take in its stride, but another world war, on the scale of the last one, is not; and the spirit that is taking Americans to Brazil is the same spirit that would take all nations into another great war, if the circumstances were propitious.

This means that the statesmen of Europe and America must take care to keep even the danger of war below the horizon. Emotionally, we have learned nothing whatever by the world war. We shall enter a new one as eagerly as we entered the last one. International crisis hereafter must be met and solved before they come to a head.

A Problem in Division

DISPATCHES now issuing from Washington relative to the government's new plans for relieving unemployment contain at least one note which will be found prominent in any scheme which may ultimately bring measurable success.

In connection with the appointment of Col. Arthur Woods, former New York police commissioner, to head a national organization to deal with unemployment, discussion of the present situation has been extensive among cabinet officers. Among the proposed plans which Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley states are under consideration is one which would increase the number of men employed by industries in the United States, and decrease the number of hours each would work daily.

It is obvious without any pretense to research that the increase in population throughout the world has been aided materially in producing an unemployment problem by the fact that human intelligence has produced more and more mechanical replacements of human labor. The advance of industrial civilization and science has actually, positively, reduced the need for labor, both skilled and unskilled. The amount of work to be done by individuals has decreased; the number of such persons has increased; 24 hours still make a day, and seven days a week. If the supply of work is to be made to go around—and if each individual is to be expected in the future to work, as in the past—then a reduction of working time by division is a logical step.

Regardless of whatever other ramifications the procedure toward relieving unemployment may have, this will be one of its major factors.

Building Up to the Treaty

PRESIDENT HOOVER has removed the order which temporarily held up construction of the navy's new 10,000-ton cruiser, No. 38, and the work will begin at once so that the ship can be finished in the spring of 1934; and it is reported in Washington that the president feels that the nation might just as well begin building up toward the limits imposed by the London treaty.

It is hard to see how there can be any quarrel with this viewpoint. Few naval experts would agree that the nation's needs could be met by any strength much below that fixed by the treaty; and the treaty itself removes from the process of building new ships any fear that foreign nations might entertain of America's intentions. There may be valid grounds for criticism of the treaty itself, but now that it has been ratified the nation might as well build the ships that the treaty permits.

Mental Tests—For Whom?

A CANDIDATE for congress in Brooklyn suggests that all candidates for congress be compelled by law to take intelligence tests, and pass them, before they can submit their names to the electorate.

Admittedly we have had, in the past, some surpassingly dumb congressmen; and very likely we shall have many more of them in the future; yet this mental test for candidates hardly seems the proper solution for the matter.

Rather, one would say, the proper persons to take the mental test are the voters themselves. That some congressmen can be re-elected year after year is a reflection, not on their own brains but on the brains of the people who voted for them.

Quotations Worth Noting

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

Funny I never thought of it till now . . . I mean the reason why E. Barrymore considers ours the "lowest" of the professions . . . Several years ago an intoxicated printer, a bit of a critic himself, sneaked a line of agate about her into the amusement columns . . . The "bluest" line ever in print . . . It cost him his job, of course, and his rag a shuddering sum recalling the edition . . . Which, however, bootleggers had already peddled for as high as a V spot the copy . . . So little wonder she spits flame . . . But this day started so merrily . . . By a Cleveland clown who forwards a crisp crack about her new show . . . "After seeing her in it," he writes me, "she appears to be going from the sublime—to the ridiculous!" Heheheh . . . A more terrible form of criticism, however, is that from Julia Peterkin, who wrote "Scarlet Sister Mary" . . . Miss Peterkin, after witnessing the show, telegraphed Lawrence Chambers, the head of Bobbs-Merrill, the book publishers: "Is there any legal way of stopping this?"

Can't quit thinking of Yolanda Lossee, the Club Calais kid, who got herself in that jam by marrying a stranger the same day she encountered him, and then left him . . . Plenty young, easy on the orbs, and so Venusy . . . "Why do it got to have to happen to me of all peeopeople?" she moaned with her slight dialect. "Never in my life am I drunk. Never in my whole life I go out on wild parties, and now look!" . . . Did you live with him at all?" I asked her . . . "What?" she blasted. "Do you think I'm a fool?" . . . Merry Magdalens—hoping for some recognition, and when they get it on Broadway the tariff is terrific . . . Usually their reputaions . . . Too bad about Marion Roberts . . . So long as she lives the "clipa" of the story in the newspaper "morgues" will remind reports for decades to come that she knew Jack Diamond . . . Women get the worst breaks, at that . . . A feller can always put on a clean collar, as the saying goes.

Well, I'm glad I found that out . . . I mean about Backgammon, the new society fad . . . It is ritz for Parcheesi . . . And that it is pronounced Bahgammon—the "ck" being as silent as the middle "f" in phffft! . . . You live and learn . . . And that there are two Statues of Liberty in Manhattan . . . One in the bay, and the other, a replica, 15 feet high, its atop a storage warehouse on the Canyon near Fifty-fourth . . . There are three of them in Paris, too . . . The difference is that over there they mean something . . . Wonder why Drake's make their waitresses wear cotton hosiery? . . . Very interesting, that fact about the favored petting place for neckers in New York . . . It is in the Metropolitan museum of art in the Tomb of Penrab in the Egyptian hall . . . Before that, though, you could find the lovers behind a big statue entitled "The Two Natures of Man," by George Grey Bernard . . . The museum authorities, the old fauns, substituted this statue for one so thin you couldn't hide a safety razor blade behind it . . . Trying to stop people who go for each other isn't as easy as stopping a show at the Palace.

What price humor? . . . Even those "minds" up at the radio station will sacrifice a chuckle for an advertising fee . . . Mebbe they're right, at that, considering the report that the miniature motor car group has trimmed its appropriations $200,000 "because the columnists and others have been so liberal" . . . It's a funny gag, anyhow. . . . I mean the one about the husband who came home and discovered his wife sewing a dainty little garment . . . "Darling!" he exclaimed. "Why didn't you tell me? I'm the happiest man in the world!" . . . "Aw, don't be silly," she squelched, "it is merely a new winter cover for our Austin!" . . . It seems I didn't make myself clear when I beefed about the ticket specs worming in on our show for Heywood Broun and five theatrical charities . . . The lice! . . . Broun scales the house at a $2 top and $1 for balcony pews, and those thieves make a terrific "buy" and peddle them for as high as $50 a pair . . . It'll be fun, evening matters . . . Particularly with the theater attaches who cashed in on the graft . . . Hope they all made enough coin to buy themselves the best medicines and crutches.

The more I think of it the more it makes me guffaw . . . The Billy the Kid and other "Wild West" themes furnished by newspapers every time an underworlder is clipped . . . "His lips were sealed, he wouldn't squeal!" the rags always have you believe . . . They never squeal because they rarely know! . . . What a sucker a "master mind" would be to "do the job" himself, when he can instruct or hire a hoodlum for $25 to do it and whose aim invariably is better . . . Generals never face the foe . . . Neither do the brains of the banditti . . . What! And be recognized? . . . So the victim can "put the finger" on him? . . . And even things? . . . I get it . . . It makes good copy, perhaps, but it gives those "in on the know" the bellyache from laffing . . . Well, it's about time that Ethel's coachers have "sent out a statement" . . . The rags carry her "denial" about her remarks concerning newspapers and newspaper men . . . It takes a big man to make an apology, and a bigger fool to accept one.

It probably isn't true, but it amused me . . . The report that most of the anonymous letters sent to writers who "abuse" Ruby Vallee are from his kin . . . When Broun gets to congress I'll ask him to pass a bill killing all libel statutes . . . Then we could print tags with such lines as: "What famous cinema star just settled a terrific sum of coin on her 'heart' to hold him?" . . . It must be grand to be a newcomer to the Canyon and knock 'em dead and read that fact in the rags . . . Jean Aubert, frixample, in "Princess Charming" and Ethel Merman of "Girl Crazy" . . . "Crashing the Broadway Heavens!" So that those relatives and others who wonder how you contrive to keep on fooling the world will become ill with envy . . . There will be that army of "friends" who will now say to Aubert and Merman: "What's the idea high-hatting me?" every time the gels happen to be in haste and haven't time to pause to reminisce. And I'll wager that the gels could tell me that those "friends" who so charge them with being snooty were the sort who were too busy to talk to them before they "arrived" . . . So many of us are kicked up stairs.

HEARTBREAK GIRL

By ROB EDEN

Gail Stuart, picked up by Nick Walther, wealthy real estate man, while she is hiking to Hollywood, fails in a screen test he gets for her, but secures a job as secretary to Carla Cross, the star. She is engaged to Ross Hardy, an extra she has met. They pledge themselves to help each other. She pretends to Max Brackett, Carla's director, that Miss Cross wants him to see Hardy. Ross makes good and becomes Carla's leading man. At a dinner party, Ross thanks Gail and swears his undying love. She keeps him from announcing their engagement, however. He gives her a diamond ring, and, suddenly prosperous, buys a car and rents a fashionable apartment.

CHAPTER XV

Gail was busier than ever when the picture started. Carla demanded so much. The girl had to be at her side constantly on the set, running after this, renewing already perfect make-up, dashing to the dressing room for some impossible article, comforting the actress when she was fatigued, or when she thought Max Brackett had been unfair. At least twice a day, something happened between Carla and Max. Gail was getting used to patching up their quarrels.

Ross she saw every day on the set, but they seldom talked, for Brackett had taken a liking to the boy, and when he wasn't busy, talked to him. At night, when Carla did not need her, Gail slipped off for a ride in the long yellow roadster that Ross was so proud of. It was like a toy to him. A scratch on a fender made him miserable, a knock in the motor heartsick.

It was the second car he had owned. The first had been a ramshackle Ford back in Duluth, a car he had bought when he had been at school.

Without a hat, clad in light trousers and a pale yellow sweater he spun down Hollywood boulevard in the Sun. Sometimes it bothered Gail that people should look at them so. At him. Girls especially. She was still rather jealous, she decided.

Effect of Sudden Wealth

He had had some stories in the papers, and had brought them proudly to Gail. Tod's work. Tod was a wonderful press agent. There would be more, and more stories.

She had seen the apartment, too. It seemed a little garish to her but she didn't say so. Overstuffed plush furniture, the same heavy too soft rugs she saw every place, and the same velvet drapes at the windows. On the desk was a picture of Carla. "To Ross from Carla." Carla in an evening gown, her shoulders bare, a bunch of orchids at her breast. Beside it was one of Gail, taken while she was in Fairview. The photographer had not made the most of his subject.

Max Brackett took plenty of time with Ross. He worked his scenes over and over again, if by any chance he was dissatisfied with the boy's work.

Again and again Gail had heard him praise Ross' work.

"The boy will go far," she heard him say once to the supervisor. Sarah Morton had said the same thing that night at Carla's party.

After Max had been shooting a week, he decided to work in another small part—for a girl. Gail happened to overhear his plans, and asked him if he thought she could do it.

He looked at her a long time before he answered. "Yes, I could use you, but I asked Carla about you the first day you were on the set, and she said she couldn't spare you. So there's no use."

"I'll have time for her work—"

"No, Gail," he was calling her Gail by this time, "maybe some other time. Some time later. Not this picture. Carla's too touchy to handle now, and she'd have fits if I stole her secretary."

The girl stifled her disappointment and turned away.

Max called her back. "Listen to good advice, Gail. While you're working for Carla, suppose you forget the movies! Understand? She doesn't like to have her secretaries

"I won't have it, Gail! Do you hear?"

dabble around for parts. I know her."

Nick visited the set that afternoon. He sat down beside Gail in one of the camp chairs. Carla and Ross were doing a love scene. Gail's eyes were on Ross. She understood Mr. Brackett's enthusiasm. Ross was developing into a fine actor.

Pangs of Jealousy

Carla's arms were around the boy's neck, her head nestled on his shoulder. Ross was looking down lovingly. It was all so natural—as if they really loved each other, she thought. She mustn't worry about a simple love scene. She ought to be used to them by now. Besides hadn't Ross taken her in his arms last night and kissed her? Told her he loved her, and always would? He didn't think anything of Carla. Nothing. He was just her leading man. He had to make love to her in pictures.

She forced her eyes away from the scene, however, and turned to Nick.

"I've some of the money I owe you—" Inadvertently she looked again at Carla and Ross. He was kissing her now. Their lips were together. Carla seemed to be putting her whole soul into the scene.

"Good! That's enough," Max Brackett called, and the two fell apart and waited for stills.

"What money?" Nick was asking.

"I saved twenty-five dollars. Here it is." Gail reached in her purse, but Nick caught her hand as she was about to draw out the bills.

"I won't have it, Gail! Do you hear?"

"But I intend to return it—"

"Some time—not now."

"I saved it." Gail hadn't spent any of her first week's salary. She had planned to return it to Nick. After all she didnt need much for herself. She seldom got out at Carla's to spend any.

"We'll talk about that later—when you yet on your feet a little. By the way, how about diner tonight?"

"What do you mean?"

"Would you go out to diner with me this evening?"

"Oh, I couldn't—"

"Why?"

"Carla will need me." Besides, Gail intended going out with Ross if she managed to get out for a few minutes. She didn't tell Nick Walther that, however.

"Does Clara always need you?"

"Most always."

"You should have your evenings off, Gail. Another night then?"

"I—don't know." Why should Nick Walther be asking her out, when he could go with Carla? When he was supposed to be engaged to Carla? She didn't understand.

Carla and Ross.

Carla came up then and monopolized Nick. He left shortly after and another sequence was begun.

It was after six before this was finished and Carla was ready to go home, a big white polo coat slung over her shoulders, and a red beret on her blond hair.

"You take the car back, Gail. Ross is taking me home."

"Ross?" Gail was dumfounded.

"Yes."

"You'll be home for dinner?" The girl asked the question automatically.

"Yes." Carelessly Clara hailed Ross who drove up, and jumped out to open the door of the yellow Sun for her. There was a flutter of her hand, and the yellow car sailed away.

Without a word Gail stepped into the cream limousine. Why should Carla choose to go home with Ross, when her own car was waiting? And when had Ross asked her? She had asked Ross, that was it . . .

All the way home, Gail sat, her face white and strained against the cream cushions of the big Isotta. Ross taking Carla home. They would be home before she was. Mills, Carla's chauffeur, was very slow with the car. Yes, the yellow car would be standing out in front of the driveway when she got home. Perhaps Ross would stay for dinner. She hoped so, for afterwards they might get a few words together in the garden.

She looked at the ring on her finger, shining so brightly. Kissed it lightly, and then again, not so lightly. Ross' ring. It would never come off—her ring . . .

Carla hadn't noticed it yet, but

LEGS DIAMOND CHIDES QUIZZER

Gangster 'Telling Truth' Investigator Says

NEW YORK, Oct. 23. (AP)—Jack (Legs) Diamond was right friendly today when the district attorney paid his routine visit to the hospital on Welfare island where the gangster is nursing four bullet wounds.

"Who shot you, Diamond?" the district attorney asked for the tenth time.

"I don't know any more about it than you do, judge," the racketeer replied. "If I can help out, though, let me know."

The district attorney and his detectives said they'd call again tomorrow. Diamond, his doctor said, is improving rapidly and soon the bullets in his body will be removed.

After the interview the district attorney said he had learned a lot from the gangster about the men who shot him in the Monticello hotel 11 days ago, and about the circumstances of the attack.

Four men whom Diamond didn't know were the assailants, the gangster said, and he defended himself with a pillow snatched from his bed as the intruders' guns began to bark.

The district attorney said he had subpoenaed the gangster to appear before a grand jury on Nov. 17. He thinks the man is telling the truth, he said, but he hopes to identify Diamond's assailants by means of rogues' galary photographs.

HEARTBREAK GIRL

By ROB EDEN

then Carla seldom noticed anything about her secretary. If she had had a ring on the third finger of her left hand, she would expect it to be noticed at once, Gail thought . . .

The Isotta pulled up the circular drive and stopped under the porte cochiere.

Gail leaned out. No sign of the yellow car. Ross must have driven slowly, more slowly than was his habit. Sometimes he frightened her for he went so fast.

Slowly she gathered together Carla's things, the light blue leather make-up case, the vanity case, a few magazines, and carried them into the house. Mrs. Cross met her at the door.

"Carla coming home?"

An Accident?

"Oh, yes. She'll be right along. She—Ross took her home."

The dinner gong rang softly at seven, just a few minutes after Gail got upstairs. Then again fifteen minutes later. Still no Carla. Mrs. Cross thought they ought to eat; she said she was hungry. So the two of them sat down together in the big dining room. Because she was alone with Gail, Mrs. Cross chattered on. Gail barely heard her. She was busy with her own thoughts. Suppose Carla and Ross had had a accident? Suppose Ross' new car had broken down?

Mrs. Cross finally discovered she was eating nothing, and urged her to try something, but Gail refused. She sudednly discovered she wasn't hungry.

At eight dinner was over. And Carla had not come in yet. Mrs. Cross trotted after Gail like a lost soul, eagerly seeking conversation, company. At nine, Carla had not come in. Now and then the girl ran down stairs to see if she could see the yellow car in the darkness. There was no sign of it.

She was sure there had been an accident. Perhaps Ross had been hurt. Carla, too. Terrible.

Could they have taken dinner together? But Ross was coming tonight to see her—at eleven for a few minutes. They had settled that last night. Meeting in the garden as usual.

She was in their favorite place at eleven. Indeed, she waited there until past midnight, but Ross did not come.

At one o'clock the yellow car steamed up. Gail, her face framed in the living room window, saw it turn the bend. Saw Carla jump out and run up the walk. Saw Ross join her in a mad dash to the door.

"Gail! Gail! Where are you!" Carla crying through the house. Fright in her voice.

"Here I am—" Something had happened!

Tomorrow—Carla has an accident.

Katy and Frisco to Consolidate Trains

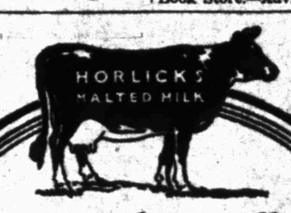

AUSTIN, Oct. 23 (AP)—Consolidation of the M.-K.-T. and Frisco night service out of Fort Worth and Dallas northbound was authorized today by the state railroad commission after a conference with attorneys for the lines. Only one train, the Katy, will operate north to Tulsa, the Frisco discontinuing its night trains out of those cities.

Because no formal application was filed by the attorneys seeking the commission's approval before filing their applications, the numbers of the trains were not known.

The Katy sleeping cars will be turned over to the Frisco out of Denison.

The Frisco was authorized to place a day motor train between Sherman and Fort Worth and Dallas, to replace the night trains.

One Fare for Food

How distribution costs have been cut

A&P brings food to your table on a straight line from the sources. That is why A&P food costs so little. Its price is not taxed by the expense of roundabout journeys. There are no road-side bills to pay.

The shortest road, unobstructed by half-way houses, is the A&P route to its stores. That is why A&P can pay growers and other producers well, yet charge its customers very low prices.

American statesmen say our big country's hardest problem is how to cut "the high cost of distribution." What they mean is that too much money is spent on the usually long road between the field and the consumer.

A&P has solved this problem for people who buy in its stores by providing direct rapid transit for food at one small fare.

WINTER WALKS

Now that the bad weather is approaching, the tendency will be for people to remain indoors, causing them to miss the benefits of outdoor walking and fresh air. No one should allow himself to fall into this slothful habit, for it is just as important to take exercise in the fresh air during cold or rainy weather as it is during the sunny days. It is, in fact, more important for exercise is needed to keep up a good circulation to overcome the effects of cold, and the fresh, outdoor air is essential in counteracting the effect of lung congestion which usually results from hot, stuffy, closed rooms.

Everyone should try to go outdoors for a walk each day regardless of the weather. It is usually possible to wear a light raincoat and rubbers for protection when it is raining, and if one walks briskly, it is not necessary to wear heavy garments, even though it is quite cold out of doors. No matter what you are doing or accomplishing in life, you can make a better success if you will keep yourself in good training. Everyone should be in topnotch condition all of the time and I do not know of any better form of exercise for accomplishing this than plain old-fashioned outdoor walking. Even athletes, regardless of their specialty, always include a great deal of walking in their training exercise because they realize how important walking is for building up their endurance and improving their lung capacity.

When one walks, stands or sits in improper position, some of the vertebrae grow into poor positions, making a gradual impingement upon the spinal nerves. This gives plenty of work for the osteopath and chiropractor to do, and these sciences have succeeded to a remarkable degree because of the good that they do with the treatments of the spine for correcting the faulty position of the vertbrae. If one learns to walk correctly, however, these misplacements can largely be prevented.

One of the most common mistakes made in walking is to walk with the toes pointed outward. It is a well known architectural fact that a structure is as weak as its foundation. Now, the habit of walking with your toes pointed out produces fallen arches. This, in turn, tilts the pelvis to such an extent that it is necessary for the spine to form an unnatural curve to preserve the body balance. If you wish to gain the greatest efficiency, try to walk with your toes pointed straight ahead. When walking, be sure that your shoes are built for comfort rather than for appearance.

At the start, one should begin walking a quarter of a mile a day, gradually increasing the distance by a quarter mile each succeeding day. It is much better to begin gradually and increase the distance than to try to walk different distances every day. During your walk remember that the fresh air is one of the most important reasons for your taking the walk. Practice breathing in during five steps, holding your breath two steps, then breathe out during five steps and hold the breath out during two steps. If you will do this, taking a little gulp of air each time with each step and breathing out the same way, you will find that it is not long before you are able to accommodate twice as much air in your lungs with comfort as you are doing now.

Do not give up your walking during unpleasant weather simply because it requires a little more effort to exert yourself to go out of doors. Resolve to keep yourself in good condition the whole year round. Before you know it, you will find that you are enjoying what you now consider unpleasant weather and you will find that walking in the rain or walking in the cold is an exhilarating experience.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Ranula

Question—C. T. asks: "What would cause a ranulo, and is it something permanent, or will it go away eventually? Is an operation ever advisable, or would it be dangerous?"

Infantile Paralysis

Question—Mrs. W. R. writes: "Three years ago my little girl had infantile paralysis which left her right arm quite useless. She can, with a struggle, move some of the fingers. A specialist wants to operate and graft muscle into the arm. I would like your advice about this."

Answer—Your child's arm can be developed through proper treatments with electro-therapy. Certain currents can be applied to the arm muscles which will bring about a normal development. She has all of the muscle cells which are necessary to move the arm if they are only developed. This treatment is far superior to any surgical attempt to graft on another muscle.

14 CONVICTED IN TRIALS HERE

Three New Sentences Added By Juries Thursday

Three convictions obtained following pleas of guilty before Judge Allan D. Montgomery in the 30th district court here Thursday brought the total number obtained by the state during the first four days of the week to 14 out of 15 felony cases tried.

The remaining trial resulted in an acquittal on an instructed verdict, the defendant a few hours later being adjudged insane by a jury before County Judge John P. Marrs.

Prison terms assessed during the four days total 54 years in the penitentiary, and all defendants were men.

Trials completed Thursday were those of C. E. (Ezra) Williams, charged with possession of whisky for purpose of sale, H. H. Ward, who was charged with forgery by check for more than $50, and Graham Fears on a charge of burglary. Williams was given a one-year prison term, Ward a term of two years, and Fears, an 18-year-old youth, a suspended sentence of three years.

No other cases were ready for trial Thursday, it was stated.

RAIL HEARING NEARS CLOSE

Short Lines Ask Inclusion in Proposed Purchase

DALLAS, Oct. 23. (AP)—The Interstate Commerce commission hearing on the application of the Southern Pacific to buy control of the St. Louis Southwestern (Cotton Belt) neared a temporary cessation today. The applicant concluded its direct testimony and most of the short lines had presented their views.

The Groveton, Lufkin and Northern, extending from Groveton to Lufkin, Texas, the Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas, from Shreveport to McKinney, Texas, the Waco, Beaumont, Trinity and Sabine, a Texas road, and the Paris and Mount Pleasant, another Texas road between those towns, asked to be included by purchase in the proposed new system. Another Texas short line, the Burlington-Rock Island, formerly the Trinity and Brazos Valley, was anxious for a continuation of the present interchange of traffic with the Cotton Belt and the Southern Pacific.

With the Interstate Commerce commision favoring the consolidation of railroads into a limited number of groups, the short lines took the position they were doomed unless they were embraced in one of the groupings. Each tried to show that it was to the benefit of the public for the road to continue to operate.

TODAY'S CLASS B GAMES DUE TO REDUCE FIELD OF LEADERS

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED D. THOMPSON

Well, friends, after much meditation and prayer, it has been revealed to us that the Coyotes are going to whip Vernon to the tune of about 13 to 6.

The vision was remarkable. Bennett Withrow received the kickoff and hurdled two brutal and ferocious Lions for a gain of about 30 yards, being downed on the Lions' 40-yard line. Danny Cox called for a pass, Cox to Holton, and Holton caught it for a gain of 10 yards. Danny tried to go through the line and four attempts failed, Vernon getting the ball. Lawrence took the ball around right end and the Coyotes failed to pick their men, Lawrence getting away for a 70—or was it 60?—yard run for the first touchdown. Some Lion failed to kick, and the quarter ended, Vernon 6, Wichita Falls 0.

The second quarter was scoreless.

In the third quarter, Danny decided that if his pass had worked so well in the first quarter, it ought to do so again, and so he called it, allowing White to hurl to Holton. It was completed and Holton gained no less than 40 yards. Imagine! Then Cox passed to Withrow, who scampered across the goal line behind a regiment of interference. Withrow made the extra point as the quarter ended. Score: Vernon 6, Wichita Falls 7.

To open the final frame, Harlan Ray caught the kickoff, and behind a formidable wall of interference ran 80 yards for a touchdown. Withrow failed to kick goal. The rest of the game Vernon was in Coyote territory throughout, but could not score. The final gun boomed. Score: Wichita Falls 13, Vernon 6.

As soon as some guy bawled out the score, I woke up. Alas, but what a pleasant and deceiving thing a dream is! I pictured myself at my desk writing the story of the great victory, and awoke only to become conscious of a deep pain, undoubtedly caused from overindulgence of chili before retiring the night before.

But if a lowly dish of two-bit chili can inspire such glowing dreams, bring on the chili!

Holton at Notre Dame

Whenever you sit down to talk with Barry Holton about his days on the Notre Dame team, the conversation invariably gets around to the great "four horsemen," the quartet of several years ago who made backfield history for Knute Rockne's eleven. It so happens that Rockne, in a magazine, is writing his life story, and the current issue tells of those great figures who went by the name of "the four horsemen."

Coach Barry Holton, of the Wichita Falls High school, once coached those great men. They weren't great then, of course. They were in the making. They were on the Notre Dame freshman team of 1921, of which Holton was head coach. He has many pleasant memories of the four youthful artists of the gridiron—Harry Stuhldrehr, the quarterback; Elmer Layden, the fullback; Don Miller, the right half; and Jim Crowley, the left half. Three years after Holton drilled them on the freshman team they spread out in all their grandeur as members of Rockne's first string—and you know their history while they were on that team.

Now, like Holton, every one of them is coaching. Stuhldrehr is head coach at Villanova, Pa. Layden is coach at Duquesne university at Pittsburgh; Miller is backfield coach at Ohio State; and Crowley is coach at Michigan State.

Among the interesting momentos which Holton has in a large box in his room, is a letter from the late Walter Eckersall, said to be the greatest quarterback of all time. When Holton was coach at Trinity university a problem came up on the gridiron, and Holton wrote Eckersall about it. The letter is direct and straight to the point. It clears up the situation in every detail in a scant letter of about four paragraphs. The problem which engaged him was about—well, no matter what it was about. It would take either Holton or another Eckersall to tell you about it.

EAGLES, CUBS ARE FAVORITES

Coyote-Lion Tilt Heads District 1 Battles

By FRED THOMPSON

Now if you bear down and demand an answer from me, I'll just come out with the truth and admit that these great little scrappers in class B, district No. 3 are the ones who are providing the thrills in football for this section of Stephen F. Austin's colony, and not the race of their big brothers in district No. 1.

There have been more thrilling battles among the younger lads than the district 1 clashes have provided thus far, and these spills have prevented the race from looking like a run-away for the bigger teams, and a run-away is just what is going on in district No. 1, with the Amarillo Sandies being the runners-away. District 1 has provided one great spill, Pampa's upset of Lubbock; and another upset of not so great importance, Quanah's drubbing of the Coyotes. Meanwhile, there have been thrills aplenty in the class B race, with Megargel's great garrison finish against Seymour last week providing the fans with many Ohs and Ahs.

Race Narrows

The race is narrowing, it is true. There are three undefeated teams in the loop this morning. By tonight there will be only two, or this guesser is all wrong. Chillicothe, with four conference victories to its credit, heads the loop, and today will be host to Seymour's team, still staggered by what Megargel did to it last Friday. Olney will journey to Archer City for the only other league game of the day.

Now Chillicothe will enter the Seymour game heavy favorites to win, and it will do so, in the opinion of this writer. And Olney will whip Archer City, according to our mathematical calculations on a piece of cardboard. That will eliminate Archer City from the first place tie, and leave the scrap to be settled between Olney and Chillicothe. In case, of course, our cardboard predictions are correct. Seymour, smarting from its undignified showing of last Friday, may utter a warwhoop and lick the Chillicothe Eagles no end, in which case we will maintain that we were right in our original statement, that this class B outfit is, indeed, giving us the best entertainment in the district. Archer City might overpower the over-confident Olney Cubs, if they are over-confident—and that would be a fit item for Ripley's Shut Up, You're Wrong!

Megargel also may have a surprise for us today. They booked the Quanah Indians, conquerors of the Coyotes for a practice game at Quanah today. Their class A foes will undoubtedly win, but the Bluebirds are expected to make a good showing. The Burkburnett Bulldogs will also lay out of conference warfare and tackle the Iowa Park Hawks at Iowa Park. Fairview's scheduled game with Henrietta was postponed owing to injuries in the Henrietta camp.

District 1 Games

So much for the class B race this week. Now for the district 1 schedule. There are three conference games scheduled, Wichita Falls at Vernon, Plainview at Pampa and Electra at Childress. Needless to say, the Coyote-Vernon game and the Electra-Childress game will be the only ones of great interest, with the Coyote contest awaking the greatest interest hereabouts. Pampa should have a soft time of it conquering the Plainview bunch.

The Wichita Falls-Vernon game is of no less traditional importance than the annual Wichita Falls-Electra game, and the Pack will enter the battle with a three-fold or maybe a four-fold purpose. First it will have the problem ahead of repeating their victory of last year over Vernon. Last year the Pack won, 14 to 0. Second, it will have to battle the determination of the Vernon lads, who are scarcely willing to let the Pack repeat. Third, the Pack will have the burden on their shoulders of proving to the home folks that they can win from just anybody—for they haven't done it this year in a conference battle. And lastly, it will have before it the prospect of remaining for one more week in the cellar or at least one step out of it.

The Electra-Childress game will be a contest of no little interest. The two teams, judging from their standings in the district, are about evenly matched, both being listed in fourth place. Childress boasts victories over Quanah and Vernon, while Electra is still proud of its victory over Coach Barry Holton's Coyotes.

Leaders Practice

The leaders of the district, Amarillo and Lubbock, will not play conference games this week, the Sandies being scheduled for a practice game with Central High of Fort Worth, and the Westerners being lined up against a Brownfield team.

Games in other district surrounding this territory will attract their share of interest also. Among the other games scheduled for Friday are the following:

Munday at Rule.
Dickens at Matador.
Shamrock at Wellington.
Knox City at Crowell.
Erick, Okla. at Altus, Okla.
Waurika, Okla. at Grandfield, Okla.
Throckmorton at Rochester.
Caddo at Newcastle.
Tipton, Okla. at Gould, Okla.
Jacksboro at Graham.
Nocona at Bowie.
Slaton at Spur.
Anadarko, Okla. at Lawton, Okla.
Mangum, Okla. at Granite, Okla.
Alvord at Justin.
Turkey at Estelline.
Liberal, Kan. at Dalhart.
Carnegie, Okla. at Frederick, Okla.
Walters, Okla. at Duncan, Okla.
Floydada at Paducah.
Memphis at Clarendon.
Anson at Haskell.

"If they show that kind of spirit Saturday, Vernon won't make a single first down," quoth at the same time Coaches Barry Holton and Bill Morris after they had described how the Coyotes went through a bitter scrimmage Thursday emitting yells and warwhoops and prodding each other on to better work.

The workout was the final conditioner for the game. Today, said the coach, a warm-up will be held along with a light signal drill.

Three Vernon Regulars May Be Out Of Game; Lions Overhaul Offense

Special to The Record News

VERNON, Texas, Oct. 23.—With offensive work again heading the program Thursday afternoon in the Vernon football team's practice session preparatory to meeting the Wichita Falls Coyotes here Saturday, it appears that Coaches Weir and Binnion are satisfied with the Vernon defense and will concentrate on developing an offensive attack that will click. Offensive play has been the feature of the Lion sessions for three days running.

Three Regulars Out

Indications are that three regulars will be out of the line-up Saturday. They are Weir and Judd, ends, and Parker, guard. Lawrence, whose illness early in the week created considerable apprehension among Lion fans, has returned to the den and apparently will be in good shape Saturday.

There is little hope that Judd, a first string wingman, will get into the fray. An injured leg has practically disabled him, and Weir, the other first string end, is definitely on the sideline with a leg injury for several more days. Anderson and Coleman, other cripples, are improving, but Parker is recovering rather slowly and probably will not play. Vernon has plenty of reserve guards, but if Weir and Judd are confined to the sideline Emmerick and Love will be assigned to the wing posts without any reserve strength.

Coyotes Heavier

With continued inclement weather offering the threat of a wet gridiron Saturday, fans here are turning speculation to the comparative weights of the teams, particularly the lines. Comparison offers little encouragement to the Vernon fan, for the 13 Coyote forwards most likely to see service during Saturday's tilt outweigh the 13 Lions most likely to play by a good margin. The average of the 13 Coyote line prospects is 169 pounds per man, while Vernon can boast of only 157 pounds per man.

Any three of the Coyote ends, Parrish, Greenwood and Holton, outweigh three Lion ends. The three Vernon ends are Love, Judd and Emmerick, but the prospects are that Judd, who is suffering from a charley horse, will not see service Saturday. If not Vernon's two best wingmen, Weir and Judd, will be out, as Weir is definitely out because of an injury received in the Plainview game.

Tackle Posts Even

The outlook is more even for the tackle posts. It is believed here that Vernon can match Daniel, Coyote star lineman, with Dolan, and that Colwell may be acceptable against either Kelly or Gough. The two Vernon tackles likely to start the contest outweigh any pair the Coyotes can place on the field, excepting, perhaps, Hudgins and Harbes.

The Coyotes have a good weight advantage at guard. Any two of five candidates for the position may get the call to start here.

Should Jones start at center for the Lions, Vernon will have a weight advantage over any one of the three Coyote centers, but Coleman will be unable to match the weight of either King, Wilkins or Gentry. It is not known which of the Vernon players will start, as the two have been alternating at the pivot position lately.

Including six reserves most likely to enter Saturday's fray for each team, the Coyotes have a weight advantage throughout the line, but taking probably starting lineups, Wichita Falls will have the edge at ends and guards, while Vernon will have the advantage at center and tackles.

Confidence in Line

Vernon fans are inclined toward confidence in the ability of the Lion forward wall to hold its own, despite the weight advantage. They point out that only three touchdowns have been made this season over the Vernon line, and that the forwards have held the opposition within the five-yard line for downs quite a number of times.

DUKE DOWNS OLUSTEE, 13-7

Clinton Triumphs Over Hollis Eleven

Special to The Record News

OLUSTEE, Okla., Oct. 23.—Staging a brilliant aerial attack, Duke defeated Olustee, 13 to 7 here today. The game was to have been played Friday but was moved up a day in order that teachers might attend the teachers' meeting at Altus tomorrow.

Cecil Holley was Duke's star. He snagged a 50-yard pass to score the first touchdown, and another heave by Perry for 40 yards was likewise drawn down from the air by Holley, who scored again. Miles of Olustee caught a Duke punt and raced 30 yards for a touchdown to give the losers their points.

CLINTON DEFEATS HOLLIS, 20 TO 7

Special to The Record News

HOLLIS, Okla., Oct. 23.—The Clinton eleven strode to a 20 to 7 victory over Hollis in a conference game played here today. Like the Olustee-Duke game, it was moved up a day in order that it might not conflict with the Altus teachers' meeting Friday. The visitors rode on the crest of brilliant play by Gore, McCoy and Crowder, backfield men, to accomplish their victory. These three scored all the Clinton points, Gore snagging a pass for a touchdown and the other two plunging across through the line. Burkett and Chapman starred for Hollis.

Rain Puts Crimp In Workout of Longhorns

AUSTIN, Oct. 23. (AP)—Indulging in a light signal drill and skull practice, the University of Texas Longhorns tonight tapered off preparattions for their game at Houston, Saturday, with Rice Institute. Rain prevented the Steers from taking the field for any extensive workouts, the session being restricted mostly to polishing off plays.

Steer coaches tonight did not express the optimism that characterized their attitude toward the game last Saturday with the University of Oklahoma.

FIGHT CALLED OFF

NEWARK, Oct. 23, (US)—The scheduled 10-round bout tonight between Young Stribling and K. O. Christner was called off this afternoon because of an injury to Christner's right knee.

Big Six Players Charged With Professionalism

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 23. (AP)—Charges and counter-charges of subsidization and proselying of athletes tonight involved half the members of the Big Six conference. Solution of the problems rests with conference faculty representatives at a regular meeting here tomorrow and Saturday.

First centering on James A. (Jarring Jim) Bausch, Kansas halfback who has been a perennial subject of investigation since he forsook the University of Wichita for the University of Kansas, the charges tonight involved not only Bausch but his football coach, H. W. (Bill) Hargiss; William H. (Bill) Meissinger, Kansas Aggie halfback; and Chester L. Brewer, athletic director, and Dr. H. A. Huff, track coach, both of the University of Missouri.

George C. Shaad, Kansas faculty representative on athletics and president of the conference faculty group, admitted today he had received formal charges against Bausch and Hargiss but declined to reveal their nature. It was understood, however, Bausch is charged with professionalism and Hargiss with recruiting an athlete in violation of conference rules.

Thirteen of the 22 conference games in the Southern California college circuit are nocturnal affairs.

LOCAL BOWLER EQUALS RECORD

Glenn Berry Registers Strike-Split Game

Glenn Berry, captain of the Wages Clothing company bowling team of the City league, started his pre-season training right Thursday when he equalled the Spudder Bowling record by playing a strike-split game for a total average of 200 pins. According to Jim Galloway, manager of the alleys, such a game had been turned in only once before since the alleys opened more than a year ago.

The strike-split game was explained as one in which the bowler, on his first bowl, knocks down all 10 pins, and on his second try requires two heaves to get all 10 down, and so on with regularity until the game is finished. The strike is the bowl which knocks every pin down, the split is where two shots are required.

A practice game was held at the alleys in preparation for the opening of the City league season next Wednesday night. The Hub Clothiers won the game from Wages, 2,584 pins to 2,446. The score:

SEVEN TEAMS ENLIST IN NEW CHURCH BASKET BALL LEAGUE

CITY PLAY-OFF IS PLANNED

Fans Respond to Plan of First Methodists

Organization of seven basket ball teams among the churches of the city has been perfected as the initial step towards formation of the City Church league being sponsored by the First Methodist church, Ross Edgemon, church athletic director, announced Thursday.

The teams are the following: First Methodist, First Southern Presbyterian, First Presbyterian, Floral Heights Presbyteran, Jewish Temple, Floral Heights Christian and East Side Prebyterian.

Fans Enthusiastic

The teams were organized at the first meeting of fans at the church Wednesday evening. The response to the plan to organize the league was whole-hearted, and stiff rivalry between the youngsters is already promised. There is room for only one more team in the league, and church officials already have numerous applications for the berth. These will be withheld for further consideration, it was said, as the teams desiring entrance are not church teams.

The fans present at the meeting decided to hold another meeting next Tuesday evening for the purpose of electing officers of the league, adopting by-laws, and for a discussion of the problem of obtaining a place in which to play and practice.

City Playoff Planned

Church officials said that should a city basket ball league be formed here this year they would try to arrange a playoff at the end of the season between the church and city leagues for the city championship.

Arkansas Team Leaves For Aggie Battle

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Oct. 23. (AP)—Twenty-three members of the Arkansas football squad, with Coaches Fred Thomsen and Charles Bassett and B. N. Wilson, business manager, entrained tonight for Little Rock, Ark., where the Porkers will meet the Texas Aggies Saturday.

Several additional members will join the squad from the Arkansas special train that will go down to the state capital tomorrow night.

Stressing an overhead game, Thomsen drilled his charges in a final practice on the home sod for two hours with "chicken" Holmes on the firing end of passes that zipped to all corners of the field. The Razorbacks also were groomed on aerial defense.

"We expect a great battle and are ready for it," Thomsen said.

Aggies Rained Out Of Final Practice

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Oct. 23. (AP)—Rained out of final practice, Coach Madison Bell's Texas Aggie gridsters, 28 strong, left by bus tonight for Hearne, where they will entrain for Little Rock, Ark., to meet the Arkansas Razorbacks Saturday. Skull practice and blackboard drill concluded the week's work. A final workout in Little Rock will be held tomorrow.

Coaches' Tales of Woe Not Likely To Disturb Grid Fans Any More

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—There's nothing like a good, old tale of woe to prepare a college football team for a big game.

Two notable victories in the Middle West last week are new examples of an ancient bit of gridiron psychology that can only be described as old as the hills.

Before meeting Carnegie Tech's veteran eleven at South Bend, Knute Rockne bemoaned the fact that his young, inexperienced line couldn't cope with the Terrible Tartans.

"Oh, we'll surely lose," sobbed Rockne, "they have too much class and experience for us. I wouldn't be surprised if we lost by three touchdowns."

Notre Dame went out and smashed Carnegie, 21-6, and it took a 70-yard run for Tech to get the ball past midfield.

Doleful stories poured out of Northwestern's football camp all week about the loss of Fullback Hank Bruder, down with smallpox. Ineligibilities of Red Russell, another fullback, and Harry Kent, two year letter men, and varsity guard, and the plight of the entire team after being vaccinated for smallpox.

The poor Northwestern team was so weak from its inoculation that scrimmage was abandoned, but the Wildcats staggered into Champaign and plastered the worst licking an Illinois eleven under Bob Zuppke has ever received, 32-0.

The sum and substance of the whole matter is that Notre Dame and Northwestern have two of the best football teams this sector has produced in some years and the most dangerous foe Dick Hanley, Northwestern mentor, and Knute Rockne, Notre Dame wizard, have to battle is over-confidence among their players.

If either of this pair of stellar teams is beaten before they meet at Soldier's field Nov. 22, it will be because their hatbands get too small and a hated underdog catches them walking on thin air.

When Rockne and Hanley start crying "wolf" again, the football fans are likely to turn a deaf ear. But that doesn't matter—the important thing is that the players hear and believe.

35,000 Expected At Pony Game

DALLAS, Oct. 23. (AP)—Preparations to accommodate 35,000 persons at the football game here Saturday between Indiana university and Southern Methodist university moved forward today as the advance sale of tickets boomed. Officials announced arrangements for one of the greatest pre-game demonstrations in Dallas' history had been completed and called for a parade to be led by Gov. Dan Moody. Ross Sterling, Democratic nominee for governor, Mayor J. Waddy Tate, United States Senator Thomas of Oklahoma, Congressman Hatton W. Sumners and others. Ceremonies dedicating the new Fair Park stadium were set to take place shortly before the game.

BUCKS RATED AS UNDERDOGS

Cisco Doped to Defeat Co-Champs

Special to The Record News

BRECKENRIDGE, Texas, Oct. 23.—Coach F. E. Shotwell's Buckaroos will be the underdogs in a grid game Friday for the first time since the latter part of the 1928 season.

Coach Weldon Chapman's mighty Loboes are being picked on every side to give the Buckaroos, 1929 co-champions, their first licking since Abilene defeated the Shotwell charges on the Eagle's home ground in 1928. Last year, the Cisco Loboes were rated as the underdogs in the Breck-Cisco game for the first time during the many seasons these two teams had been meeting. The Bucks defeated the Loboes, 21 to 0, in 1929, later winning from their two big rivals, Abilene and Ranger by one-sided scores.

Cisco Men Powerful

The powerful Cisco team rules as the favorites because of their bigness, experience and because of the new style of play Coach Chapman has developed this year. A checkup of the starting lineups reveals that the Loboes will outweigh the Shotwell charges about 15 pounds to the man. The Lobo team averages 172 pounds. Coach Chapman has a rift of veterans and gobs of reserve strength. The Loboes have been running wild over all opponents this season with a nest of trick plays moulded after the fashion of the famous Pop Warner reverses, double reverses and spin plays.

Coach Shotwell, on the other hand, will start a green team and one that is not too heavy, as far as Oil Belt teams usually go. Boyce Magness, sparkling quarter and Capt. Harold Griffin, center, are the only two Buckaroos scheduled to start the Friday game who played as regulars with Shotwell's 1929 champions. There are four or five 1929 lettermen but only the two mentioned above held down regular berths last season.

Straight Football

Coach Shotwell will put a team against the Loboes drilled to execute its plays behind timely interference, good blocking and team work rather than by trick formations.

Barring bad weather, approximately 3,500 or 4,000 fans are expected to see the grid clash. Cisco fans alone have ordered more than 1,000 seats. Practically all of the seats on the Breckenridge side have already been reserved.

GRIFFITH WANTS MacFAYDEN

NEW YORK. (AP)—Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Senators, is angling for a right-handed pitcher, an outfielder and a utility infielder—the ingredients he thinks will make an American league pennant winner out of his club. The pitcher he most wants is Danny MacFayden of the Boston Red Sox.

HAWKS TAKE ON BURK BULLDOGS

Game Promises to Be Close Scrap

Special to The Record News

IOWA PARK, Texas, Oct. 23.—The local gridmen are rounding into shape for their fray with the Burkburnett Bulldogs here Friday afternoon. The boys are in fine shape and promise to put forth much effort to avenge the defeat suffered at the hands of their opponents on the Burk field last year. Both of the squads are in fine condition and promise to play one of the best contests that these two teams have put forth in many years.

The locals are fixed better this week with the addition of a new man, Andrew Reid, who has returned to the school and promise to make one of the best players on the team.

Close Score Expected

In past contests of these squads the scores have been very close, and this year promises to be no exception as both teams are keyed to the highest pitch and the suspense of waiting for the opening whistle. The loser of this contest will have a chance to avenge itself later on this season when the two will meet again on the Burkburnett gridiron.

Captain Cobb, quarterback for the locals, predicts that the Hawks will emerge victorious from the combat but not without a hard battle to the finish.

Red Smith and Mule Harbour are in fine shape to hold down their end positions, while Guy Cowart and Kork Davis are in the prime of condition to send the tackles to unknown heights in helping to bring the victory closer to the home team. Dick Burney will be back at his old position of center and promises to be another big factor in the downfall of the Bulldogs. The backfield is still in fine shape for the scrap. Garland Cathey and Francis Walker will fill the capacity of halfbacks, while Ferren Killdow will be in the line as fullback.

Neal Optimistic

Coach A. D. Neal is very optimistic about the coming encounter and states that the boys are in better condition this week than at any other time of the season and following the defeat handed the boys last week by Fairview they are more in the frame of mind to enter the scrap with the intention of winning.

'Trounce Texas' Adopted As Rice Owls' Motto

HOUSTON, Oct. 23. (AP)—"Trounce Texas" is the ambitious slogan adopted by the Rice institute body for Saturday's football classic here against Coach Littlefield's powerful Longhorns.

Pep rallies this week will be climaxed tomorrow night with a mammoth bonfire celebration in the triangle in front of West hall.

While their fellow students were making fight talks, the Rice grid squad, working in a drizzling rain, went through one of the best workouts of the season.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 23. (INS)—Clemson college defeated the University of South Carolina Gamecocks here this afternoon 20 to 7 in a bitterly-fought game which has been an annual event here for a quarter of a century.

ALTUS PLAYS ERICK TODAY

Teams Battled to Tie Last Year

Special to The Record News

ALTUS, Okla., Oct. 23.—The Bulldogs will meet the Erick gridsters at 3:30 p. m. Friday on the local field. Spectators from all over southwestern Oklahoma who will be in Altus attending the district teachers meeting, will see this game.

Both teams are determined to break the 13 to 13 tie of last year in their favor. Erick has about the same weight team as Altus and is said to play a fast game. They have won almost the same per cent of games as the Bulldogs this season.

"The boys have been working hard the past week and have corrected a number of defects of last week. They are determined to beat Erick," Coach Frank Crider said when commenting on the game. He added that the team is in excellent condition for the combat.

Probably Altus lineup will be Nelson Chism and Nase Hall, guards; Kelly Chism, center; Kenneth Little, quarterback; Harry Ellis, fullback; and Tailor Fall and Red Posey, halfbacks. Other boys who will probably see service are James Troy Moore and Leon Smith, halfbacks; Edward Shelton and Owen Bryce, guards; Jack Buchaum, center; and Foy Stroud.

FREDERICK AND CARNEGIE MEET

Bearcats Due to Clash With Stern Foe Today

Special to The Record News

FREDERICK, Okla., Oct. 23.—Frederick fans Friday will have the first opportunity for the past three weeks in seeing Coach Allen's Bearcat football team on the local gridiron, when these young athletes meet the strong Carnegie eleven and try to avenge the stinging 32 to 0 defeat suffered last season. The "dope" favors the locals as they beat the stiff Hobart aggregation last Friday on the latter's turf, 20 to 7, while Hobart a short time before beat Carnegie, 18 to 6. However, Carnegie has always proven one of Frederick's most difficult hurdles and the coming contest will probably be no exception.

Hobart was probably the hardest proposition Coach Allen's men have gone up against this season and had it not been that the Bearcats can play a successful aerial game when necessary the score might have been much closer.

Allen will probably start the game as follows:

R. Pope, left end; Akins, left tackle; Pritchard, left guard; C. Billingles, center; R. Miller, right guard; Raley, right tackle; E. O. Billingsles, right end; Byrns, quarterback; Caldwell, halfback; Steinbock, halfback; Clarke, fullback; Fondren, Simpson, Burt, Bill Clarke, Earp, D. Holloman, Peacock, Banker, Addison, Schrimscher and Hoyle, utility men.

Five Frosh on George Washington Team Suspended for Taking Pay

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23. (AP)—The suspension of five freshmen players on the George Washington university football squad for demanding pay for their services was announced today by James W. Pixlee, director of athletics.

Pixlee said seven other players were being investigated, but he did not name them.

Those declared ineligible were Vance Jovick, lineman; George Generose, tackle; and Frank Walsh, Charles Robinson, and John Hofsess, halfbacks.

Pixlee said the five players refused to play in any more games unless they were paid. The players were barred from all athletic activities, he said, and may be suspended from the university.

Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin, president of George Washington, was firm in supporting Pixlee's action.

"Director Pixlee is right in his decision," he said. "George Washington would rather have no football team than one where the players receive money to represent the institution."

JACKRABBITS TO TAKE REST

Wayland Eleven Await New Mexico Cadets

Special to The Record News

PLAINVIEW, Texas, Oct. 23.—The Wayland Jackrabbits will take a rest this week-end in preparation for their next game with the Cadets of the New Mexico Military Institute of Roswell, N. M., on Friday, Oct. 31, at Plainview.

Oct. 31 has been designated as home-coming day at Wayland for ex-students, and the game will be one of the feature events. According to an announcement made by R. Q. Silverthorne, president of the Plainview Chamber of Commerce, Plainview business houses will be asked to close between the hours of 2:30 to 5 p. m., on Friday so that business people can attend the game. It will be the first afternoon game the Jackrabbits have played this season, but the Cadets seem to prefer the broad open daylight to the new lighted field for their game.

The Waylandites were injured last Friday in the game with the New Mexico State Teachers' college and, it is hoped that they will be in condition for the coming game. Ralph Parker, guard, suffered from a broken hand, and Bodie Close, halfback, received a wrenched knee which may keep him out for the rest of the season.

While ferns grew high as trees in PENNSYLVANIA

GLANCE into any petroleum trade journal and you will see that Bradford-Allegany crude oil commands the highest price of all Pennsylvania grade crudes. For Bradford-Allegany crude was formed a hundred million years ago during the Devonian Age—that wonderful age which produced so little of the world's oil compared to other geological ages—yet produced it of such superior quality!

The Sinclair Refining Company uses nothing but Bradford-Allegany crude in the manufacture of Sinclair Mobiline Motor Oil. In the big, new Sinclair refinery at Wellsville, N. Y., expert refining skill does what Nature left undone. Here Mobiline is triple-filtered, de-waxed at as low as 60° F. below zero and its carbon-forming content reduced to the minimum.

Have the nearest Sinclair dealer change your oil to Sinclair Mobiline according to the Sinclair Law of Lubrication. After long, hard driving note how this Mobiline stands up—how it comes out of the crankcase almost as good as it went in. Note, especially, how very little Mobiline has been used up—positive, visible proof that this rich, Devonian oil protects the last mile as well as the first!

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Oct. 23. (AP)—Some opening irregularity was followed by increasing activity and strength in cotton here today with new December contracts selling up to 10.92 or 37 points net higher on covering combined with trade and commission house buying. This advance met some Southern selling and realizations which caused moderate reactions later with December closing at 10.84 or about 8 points off from the best. The final tone of the market, however, was steady with last prices showing net gains of 24 to 30 points for the day.

The opening was steady at a decline of 2 points to an advance of 7 points with near months relatively easy owing to liquidation of new October contracts.

Liverpool made a relatively steady showing which cable advices attributed to trade calling and continental buying with an improved cloth inquiry from China. The rains reported in western belt sections and forecast for eastern and central belt sections were regarded as likely to delay the movement and there was some favorable comment on the U. S. chamber of commerce endorsement of commodity exchanges, although this was not generally mentioned as an immediate market factor.

Exports today were 14,167, making 1,-962,157 so far this season. Port receipts 60,528. U. S. port stocks 3,365,851.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 23.—(AP)—The cotton market was very active today and higher. After opening 4 to 6 points up on good cables and reacting a point or two on some realizing, prices soon started upward sharply, influenced at first by bullish private estimates of ginnings and later by good trade buying, price fixing by mills and short covering. A decidedly steadier stock market contributed to the advance which by noon had carried prices up 25 to 27 points above yesterday's close. The market advanced again in the early afternoon on heavy covering by large shorts prices making new highs 33 to 36 points above the previous close. There was a reaction of 10 points in the late trading on profit taking and hedge selling but some of this was recovered and the close was steady and 25 to 28 points net higher for the day.

Liverpool came in as due to 3 points better than due and private cables reported that the continent bought and the trade called. First trades here showed gains of 4 to 6 points. After a slight reaction of 1 to 2 points prices started upward until near noon December traded up to 10.83, January to 10.96 and March to 11.18, up 25 to 27 points over yesterday's close.

Prices again advanced in early afternoon on urgent covering of shorts by big operators. December reached 10.92, January 11.03 and March 11.26 or 33 to 36 points above the previous close.

Although the market continued active to the end, prices reacted about 10 points in the late trading on profit taking but recovered a portion of this loss before the final gong sounded. December closed at 10.84, January at 10.96 and March at 11.19, or 26 to 28 points net higher for the day on those active months.

Port receipts 60,528, for week 350,933, for season 3,923,176, last season 3,620,068. Exports 9,485, for week 162,555, for season 1,921,585, last season 1,715,694. Port stocks 3,377,692, last year 2,124,503. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 98,295, last year 155,728. Spot sales at Southern markets 50,026, last year 49,802.

Stock Market Holds Up Well Despite New Weakness in Railroad Shares

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Oct. 23. (US)—The stock market, from an unbiased viewpoint, performed remarkably well today considering the handicap imposed by further severe weakness in a group of allied railroad stocks. Notwithstanding rather drastic declines in these Rails, including Pere Marquette, Alleghany corporation, Erie, Nickel Plate, and Chesapeake & Ohio, the remainder of the market actually made modest net progress on the upside.

The industrials in particular were inclined to ignore the selling of the railroad shares, while the utilities about held previous levels, being under some pressure induced by unfavorable developments with respect to rate reductions and prospects. The ability of the industrial section of the market virtually to maintain an upward pace despite acute weakness in another portion of the list was a decidedly different experience from recent sessions, when weakness in one group almost invariably spread throughout the market. Again, the commodities furnished cheer, with wheat gaining two cents in a bulge to new high ground on the recovery, while cotton likewise attained a further advance and sugar continued in the uptrend recently inaugurated.

New lows reached by the Van Sweringen group of Railroad issues, led by Alleghany corporation, led to the usual alarming rumors, but these were denied in banking quarters associated with the brothers who rose from realty promoters to the highest ranks of railroad executives.

The continued decline in Alleghany, which is one of the holding companies for their railroad interests, was readily explained in the fact its break-up value was materially below the stock's market quotation. Selling of Erie, Nickel Plate, and Pere Marquette was attributed to their poor earnings this year.

The 20-point break in Pere Marquette on light offerings was an example of the lack of active support, despite widespread acclaim of their "powerful banking sponsorship." This road probably is one of the best in the group, with earnings over the last eight years actually averaging over $11 a share, even including the estimated $4 per share net for 1930. From 1923 to 1929, both inclusive, this road earned a total of $86.81 a share on its common stock. Chesapeake & Ohio's weakness undoubtedly represented "sympathetic" decline rather than direct reflection of earnings, since the C. & O., has been one of the few roads maintaining earnings this year close to the 1929 levels.

The market was made decidedly nervous by the acute weakness in this group of Rails, yet the failure of industrials to follow the decline left the street in a most unsettled frame of mind, although hopeful that the general situation had cleared and strengthened sufficiently to be able to overcome the outbreak of such individual "situations." However, there was a disposition to observe most carefully further developments, particularly with respect to the severe break in the bonds affected, which declined 10 points in some instances.

Fare reduction by the Public Service of New Jersey proved somewhat of a dampening influence on the utility shares, although Consolidated Gas, American Foreign Power, National Power & Light and a few others joined the industrials in the improvement. As a matter of fact, the general rail list was only fractionally affected by the weakness in the Van Sweringen group, although some of the leaders, such as New York Central, reached new lows.

Skeptics advanced the explanation that strength in the general industrial list might have reflected heavy short covering under cover of the acute weakness in the railroad section. Nevertheless, there were additional signs of really important buying on large scale, a development which had been one of the most disappointing features of recent markets. It was reported that a huge order, said to aggregate over 200,000 shares, had been placed for various stocks by a tremendously wealthy interest. This individual had not been attracted by prices until this week. Would-be constructive interests place importance in the continued firmness of the commodities, in the belief that commodities will furnish needed leadership for gradual restoration of stabilization throughout the business world.

The relative strength also reflected renewal of constructive activities in the market by speculative interests who had been virtually absent from the market for many weeks. It is their belief that current prices are discounting the worst stage of the industrial depression.

It was noticeable that leadership again was centered in the highest grade stocks, issues which have been most persistently under pressure of late. The strength of certain of these issues, notably Westinghouse Electric, undoubtedly reflected short covering, but there was a disposition to regard the market's own demonstrated ability to maintain its price level as significant.

Grain

TEXAS CASH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, Oct. 23. (AP)—Demand was fair for most grains on the cash grain market today. There was nothing doing in the export market.

Estimated receipts—Wheat, 4 cars; corn, 8; oats, 1; barley, 3; sorghums 2, and hay 2.

Prices bid and asked, basis delivered Texas common points, freight paid follow:

Wheat—No. 1 hard Miller, any protein, 88½@89c.

Corn—No. 2 mixed 90@91c; No. 2 white 93@94c; No. 3 yellow 93½@94½c.

Oats—No. 3 white 46½@47c; No. 2 red 49½@51½c.

Barley—No. 2 yellow milo, $1.68@1.70; No. 2 white kaffir $1.39@1.41.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 23. (AP)—Sudden upturns in all grain prices late today, reaching a maximum of 2¼c a bushel from the day's bottom level, aroused much interest among traders. The advance was largely ascribed to reports current that changes in prospect would permit manufacture of 4½ per cents beer, and would afford an additional outlet for millions of bushels of grain. No satisfactory confirmation of the reports was obtainable, however, and the upturns in grain quotations mostly failed to hold.

Wheat closed irregular, at ⅛c net decline to ⅛c advance, corn closed ⅜@1⅛c down, oats ⅜@⅝c off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 15c.

A lively transient increase of buying on the part of houses with eastern connections preceded the late advance of wheat. This buying revealed that for at least the time being the wheat market had been oversold, and the stimulating effect was the greater as a result of nearly simultaneous news that Chairman Legge of the federal farm board said the price of Russian wheat in Europe had been raised 4c to 6c a bushel during the last few days.

Corn and oats fluctuated chiefly in line with the action of wheat. Favorable weather for corn husking prevailed over a wide area.

Provisions averaged higher, responsive largely to a rise in the value of hogs.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—December 79¼c, 81⅜@81⅝c; March (bids) 83c; May 84½c, 86⅜@86⅝c; July 84⅝c, 87⅜c. Corn—December 77⅛@77⅜c, 79⅜@79⅝c; March 79⅜c, 81⅜c; May 82½@82⅝c, 84⅛@84⅜c.

PIT NOTES

CHICAGO, Oct. 23. (US)—For two days the action of the stock market has had but little influence on the wheat market. Further evidence that the market will act independently would go a long way toward increasing speculative confidence in the purchase of grains, many traders believe.

Export business in North American wheat continued rather inactive today. Sales were estimated at only 250,000 bushels, mainly Manitobas.

Indications that the seeding of wheat is completed in Nebraska and Kansas and that these states will show a reduction of around 10 per cent in acreage received considerable attention.

Traders are more and more turning their attention to the fact that in the wheat situation, which is supposed, theoretically, to derive its greatest bearishness from the enormous stocks on hand, it is to be noted that nearby deliveries show the greatest strength. With a difference of only 5c between December and May, compared with an actual carrying charge of around 10 cents, the situation is somewhat disconcerting to bears.

DRY GOODS MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 23. (AP)—Cotton goods were firm today, but rather quieter in the gray goods division. More activity was reported in Canton silk. Rayon is being bought by wool lace manufacturers for brightening the product. Rayon manufacturers are making rapid progress in the plan of identifying standard rayon in merchandise offered in consuming channels. Wool goods were in moderate demand. Burlaps were quiet for the day.

MIDWESTERN LIVESTOCK REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 23. (AP) (U.S.D.A.)—Cattle trade around the 11-market circuit was featured by a fairly active market on beef steers and yearlings at firm to 25c higher prices. Other killing classes of cattle were on a fully steady basis while country demand for replacement stock was ample to maintain steady prices. Chicago scored $13.50, a new top for the season, for choice 1005-pound long yearling steers. Heavy steers in Chicago reached $12.50. In Kansas City an eight-car string of 1034-1161-pound Colorado grass steers cleared on packer account at $7.75 and $8.25. Receipts were estimated at 25,500.

Opening hog trade around the loop was fairly active at 10@25c higher, but the close at a few markets was slow to packers with the early advance lost. The day's extreme top of $10.00 was paid early at Chicago. Offerings were around 55,500.

The supply of sheep numbered around 94,000. Comparatively large receipts prompted another break of 25@50c in fat lamb prices. Choice natives in Chicago topped at $8.75 and best Westerns sold at $8.40. Matured classes of sheep were generally steady.

Boswell Tells of Talks at Convention

"Racketeering" was the subject receiving the greatest interest at the annual convention of the National Association of Commercial organization secretaries held in Tulsa Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, according to John Boswell, secretary-manager of the chamber of commerce here, who returned Thursday afternoon from the convention.

The discussion followed the reading of a paper on the subject by Lee Bierce of Grand Rapids, Mr. Boswell said. The public loses millions of dollars yearly, it was learned, by subscription to legal although unscrupulous schemes of "racketeers" who take advantage of the fact that American business has built up public confidence all over the nation to a very high degree. Advertising and "charity" schemes were named as being the favorite avenues of operation used by the racketeers.

Drastic steps will be taken by the chambers of commerce of the United States to combat these schemes, Mr. Boswell said, and at the convention it was pointed out that possibly the most effective method of doing so would be an extensive educational campaign to inform the public on the nature and designs of dishonest business men.

Mr. Boswell also attended the fall meeting of the Texas Commercial Executives association Saturday and Sunday in Dallas, from where he went directly to the Tulsa meet.

STRAND: "Check and Double Check" with Amos 'n' Andy and Sue Carol. Comedy and sound news.

STATE: Richard E. Byrd in "With Byrd at the South Pole." Short subjects and sound news.

MAJESTIC: "Good News" with Bessie Love. Short subjects and news.

GEM: Buffalo Bill Jr. in "Trails of Danger." Comedy.

The inevitable sugary story woven in "for love interest" is thoughtfully kept in the background most of the time and only used to give Amos 'n' Andy a rest now and then; there is no theme song; the words "incorpulated" and "reportant" are only used about a dozen times, "propolition" twice, "Sho! Sho!" about four or five times, and "I'se regusted" once. In view of those facts concerning "Check and Double Check" it might be asked, "Ain't dat supmin'?"

A special preview screening of "Check and Double Check" just as Thursday came over the horizon revealed a number of interesting facts about this movie which has never been shown elsewhere in Texas. It demonstrated, for instance, that Amos 'n' Andy are as good as their voices, that they know their negroes and that they know their American public.

There are some moments—for example, when the Fresh Air taxicab is re-tired without benefit of a jack, when Amos is talking to Ruby Taylor, and when the Kingfish is presiding over the meeting of the Knights of the Mystic Sea—when "Check and Double Check" is about as funny as a movie can be. There are other moments, of course, when one could catch a cat nap without missing much, but they are few and far between.

The story is fantastic, but it has the merit of landing Amos 'n' Andy in a haunted house and giving them a rather stiff ordeal there. So far as that is concerned, an Amos 'n' Andy story should be fantastic, for their chief appeal is in the fantasy of the negro mind which they so ably present to both ear and eye in "Check and Double Check."

"Check and Double Check" opens at the Strand for a regular showing Friday, to stay one week. The release date on the picture is Saturday, according to Manager F. J. Patterson.

Apropos of nothing in the theater world, but too good to leave out on that account, comes this story, a true one, which happened at a club luncheon this week:

Seated around the table were a number of business and professional men. The topic of conversation was the weather.

"'Sfunny," commented one. "This has not only been the wettest year, but it's also the dryest."

"That's right," chimed in another. "And the records show it to be the coldest year and the hottest year as well."

A third made his comment. "Also, brother," he said, "you'll have to admit that it's been the d——dest year!"

ROTARY HEARS TALK BY BIGGS

Mill Supply Business Explained to Club

Current conditions and past development within the mill supply and machinery business were discussed before members of the Rotary club Thursday noon by James Biggs in a classification talk.

Growth of the mill supply industry has grown during the past 30 years, Mr. Biggs said, from about 30 houses in the South to a total of about 150 such houses today. Electrically-driven machinery has brought about kalledoscopic changes, he continued, causing entire departments to vanish and creating others, with the result that houses which have not kept up with such revolutionary changes have passed out of existence.

"The office of a mill supply house is a center of technical and accurate information," the speaker said. "Unlike doctors and lawyers, we must pay for our mistakes. Consequently, we make as few thereof as possible.

"We must assemble the products of 1,000 different manufacturers from every part of this nation. We must keep available information on thousands of other prdouets which are not kept in stock. We must keep in touch with the markets—oil, cotton, steel, zinc, copper, tin, lead, hides, leather and all.

"In that position, we may see the trend of business, and speaking of the 'devil and the deep blue sea,' we aren't even between them any more. Old Horny has us in his grasp, and we're drowning at the same time."

Three silver dollars are required now to buy enough silver to make one silver dollar, the speaker said. Rubber is lower than ever before, and copper, tin, zinc lower than formerly in the past 30 years, according to Mr. Biggs. Referring to credit conditions, the speaker observed that the mill supply business, like others, is finding that "it takes a great capacity for holding one's breath."

Burton Coffman, tenor, sang Schumann's "Two Grenadiers" and "Little Man," by Ernest Ball, accompanied by Miss Lorene Tucker.
