Charges Are Filed For Cattle Theft On Guymon Man

Charges of cattle theft have been filed against Cecil Ausburn of Guymon. Ausburn is charged with stealing three white face calves and selling them to the Perryton Cattle Commission Company last Friday. He is in the Guymon jail awaiting trial.

Ashburn brought the calves to the Perryton Cattle Commission last Thursday night and left them in a pen. Friday morning, Doc Reynolds, manager of the firm, received a call from Ausburn. Ausburn said that he had left the calves in the pen to be sold, but that he could not come back to Perryton. He wanted Reynolds to sell the calves and mail him the check.

Reynolds called Sheriff Ray Phagan to check on any reports of stolen calves. Phagan called the Guymon sheriff and found that three calves had been stolen from Joe M. Dean, Wilbur Hurlburt, and Dewey Coldiron of Guymon.

Local Delegates to State Demo Convention Have Lively Time With Loyalist Faction

By HAROLD HUDSON

What do you do at a state political convention?

Four Ochiltree county delegates to the state Democratic convention in San Antonio Tuesday—three of us rank amateurs—found that a political convention is both entertaining and instructive. At least this one was.

The Ochiltree county delegation got in on most of the fireworks Tuesday morning and even had to defend the Ochiltree county banner against the onslaught of the disgruntled "Loyal Democrats" who took a walk-out after the convention opened.

Max Boyer, W. H. Lance, Jack M. Allen and Harold Hudson represented Ochiltree county and cast the county's three votes right down the Shivers line calling for an unopposed state delegation to the national convention and an overhauling of the national Democratic party, with reference both to foreign and domestic policies.

Whether or not the Texas delegation headed by Governor Allan Shivers will be seated at Chicago is a question that will be answered only at the National convention. Texas has two sets of delegates, of course.

We arrived in San Antonio Sunday night and spent Monday circulating around the Gunter Hotel, convention headquarters. There we found our convention badges were waiting and all our credentials were in order.

The lobby of the Gunter was crowded all day Monday with delegates. Lawyers headed the list of delegates, with men in public office quite prominent. There was a liberal sprinkling of newspaper men and a number of merchants, farmers and ranchers.

The pre-convention activity consisted mainly of conversation, especially within congressional districts, of people supporting one man or another as a candidate for delegate to the national convention. The 18th Congressional District caucus was held Monday night at the hotel, and we were supposed to submit two delegates and two alternates to the national convention, plus a list of persons to be put on various convention committees the next day.

Lawrence Hagy of Amarillo, leader of the district delegates, had prepared for 50 persons at the caucus, but the Panhandle turned out en masse, with all but a handful of the 159 delegates attending.

When it came time to select national convention delegates, a Pampa attorney made a motion calling for the appointment of a nominating committee—and he even suggested the members of the committee. Everyone from the outlying Panhandle counties bristled at this, feeling that some kind of deal was being made, and W. H. Lance of Perryton offered a motion to table the nominating committee motion, which carried amid whoops and cheers.

It turned out that our fears were unfounded. Amarillo and Potter county, the largest delegation, surprised us all by backing off and not even submitting a candidate for a national convention delegate. This spiked

Stores to Close On Memorial Day

Friday, May 30, has been set aside as a day of general closing for Perryton business firms. Play Equipment Being Installed In Local Parks

The city park and the county park are receiving new playground equipment this week. The city has started installing both large and small swings, see-saws, and gymnastic bars. In the city park, Courts for croquet, horseshoes, volleyball, and softball are being built in the county park.

Various service organizations have donated money or equipment for some of the recreational services. The Xi Lambda chapter of Beta Sigma Phi is donating a slide for the city park, and the Jennie June Club has bought a merry-go-round and three tables for the park.

The Lions Club, Rotary Club, Junior Chamber of Commerce, and the Chamber of Commerce are sponsoring the game equipment in the county park. The county is making plans to build cement tables and fireplaces for the park. Del Tallafiero will be in charge of the county grounds and equipment.

The county hopes to have the lights for the ball park in the county park by June 2. They are putting up six towers and two poles, which together will hold 120 flood lights.

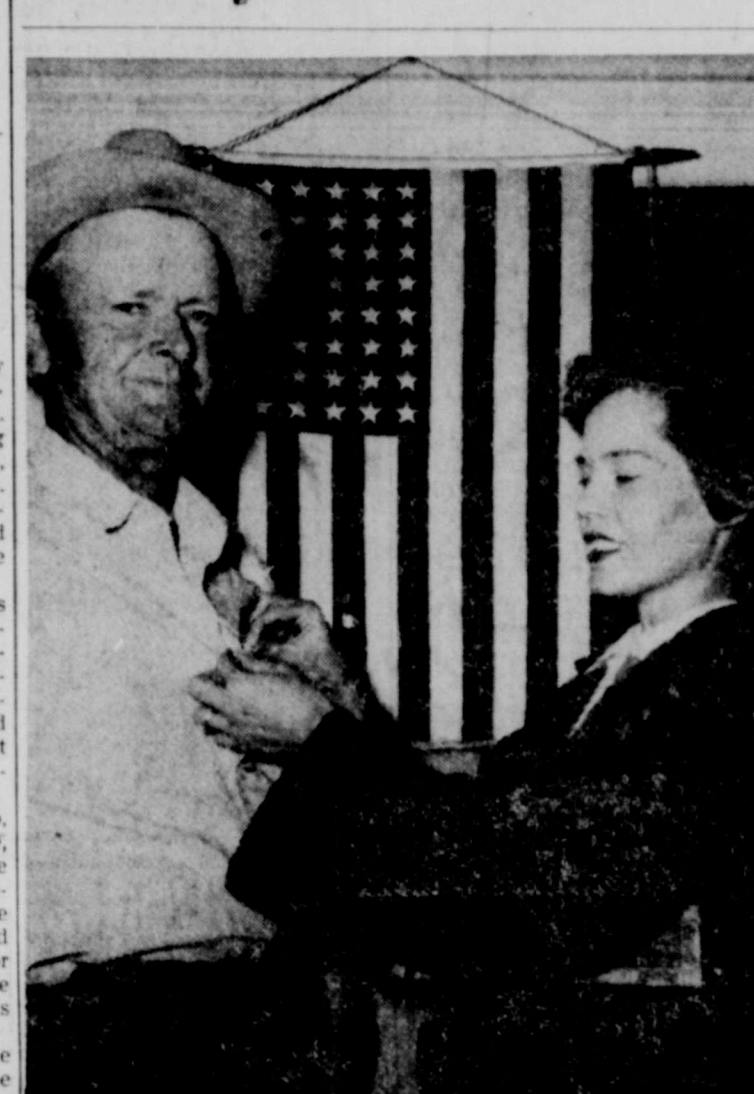

If any other organizations are interested in donating equipment for the parks they can inquire at the city hall or the Chamber of Commerce office, stated J. B. Whigham, city manager.

Nothing More On New Phone Rates

No further action has been taken on the proposed telephone rates. City officials and representatives of the Southwestern Associated Telephone Co. came to a stalemate last week over the proposed rate increases sought by the company. The telephone company is seeking a rate schedule about double the present rates while the city is holding firm for a more moderate rate increase.

The company is asking a rate of $11 per month for a single party business telephone and $5 per month for a single party residence telephone. Present rates are $5.50 for the business phone and $3 for a residence telephone. See No. 9, Page 8

Christian: The Christian church is having a two week Bible school under the direction of Mrs. J. W. McKinney. Over 95 children have been enrolled this week. The kindergarten is studying "God out of Doors," the primaries, "Our Church," and the Juniors, "God and Nature." Twenty-seven women are working in the school. The school will close June 6 with a picnic for the children and their mothers. A special service will be held on June 8 to present a program by the children.

News From ANTHONY

By Mrs. Carl Carter

The Anthony Sunday School Daily Vacation Bible School got a good start on Wednesday, May 21, with Mrs. Glen Myers acting as superintendent. We have classes of Pre-Beginners, Beginners, Primary girls, Junior Boys and Intermediate girls, with two or more teachers for each class.

Some 30 children are attending. Mr. and Mrs. Leon Morris and family were guests of the Bill Wells for a steak fry and hot biscuit supper in their back yard in Beaver last Wednesday evening. All decided to let Mr. Wells make biscuits from now on.

The Beaver Junior American Legion played Clear Lake team at Beaver Wednesday afternoon and won with a score of 12 to 6. Howard Carter plays with the Beaver team.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Myers hope to boast a new water well at their place soon. They say that will be better than having to haul drinking water.

Callers in the Carl Carter home Friday were Mrs. Elza Kutch, and sons, and Mrs. Lorena Kutch of Perryton, and Mrs. Bill Bridges of Amarillo. Guests besides these for the noon meal were Rev. and Mrs. Ralph Renfrow of Mt. View. Brother Ralph and wife are helping with the Bible school now in progress at Anthony. The Carl Carters and Renfrows were guests at the Randall McLain home during the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Jim Wallace went with the Joel Foglemans to see the county and the wheat in western and northern Kansas Sunday. They report crops looking wonderful there.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gordon and Mrs. O. D. Pugh and children of Texhoma arrived at the Leon Morris home Saturday evening for a visit. Mr. and Mrs. Sam Lassley and children of near Texhoma, flew in on Sunday to join the group for Sunday dinner. Mr. and Mrs. John Morris and Derrill also joined them on Sunday. The Beaver Seniors returned from a 10 day trip of touring Oklahoma on Sunday, with some tall tales and some tired kids. Carolyn Hyatt, our only Beaver Seniors, was glad to go to bed early Sunday night. The Turpin Seniors had a trip to Galveston and also expressed a wonderful time. I'll bet Barr Brown went to bed early too.

Mr. and Mrs. Lem VanDeburgh attended the auto races in Beaver Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bobbitt took their son Lynn to Turpin

Strikes Increase Sale of Licenses

BEAUMONT, May—Recent industrial disruption, primarily in the oil industry, stimulated fishing activities mainly in the marine areas, according to Warden Lewis Morris.

He said the sale of commercial fishing licenses boomed just as soon as the big refineries and other plants closed temporarily.

Morris explained that the workers by buying a $3 commercial fishing license and $1 tags for each stretch of netting could wade out into the shallow bays and make pretty good catches of fish, such as speckled trout, shrimp and crabs.

The fish were also biting well for hook and line operators, he added.

to play ball with the Turpin and Beaver youngsters.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Carter and Cleta went with Howard and his house guest Jim Calhoun of Beaver, to Perryton where the Junior Beaver VFW team played the Perryton Junior VFW team. We can boast a win again.

Miss Virginia Janzen visited at home this week end.

Ten of our Anthony youngsters are attending the Daily Vacation Bible School at the Christian Church at Beaver on Monday of this week. The ladies are taking turns taking them in.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Rector had supper with Mr. and Mrs. Leon Morris Monday evening.

Mrs. Glen Myers, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Brown, Mrs. Leon Morris, and Mrs. Ralph Rector attended the "Friendship Night" with the Beaver O. E. S. Monday night.

Well, Anthony has decided it can rain after Monday evening. Last Friday the rainfall measured from $\frac{1}{8}$ inch to $\frac{1}{4}$ inch and then Monday evening there was from $\frac{1}{8}$ inch to 2 inches in places. Some hail fell both times. Some wheat is badly damaged, but we still have hopes.

Anthony Bible School will close with their achievement program this Tuesday evening. There has been an average attendance of 49 this year. With some moving out of the community we think this a good average. We have all enjoyed Rev. Ralph Renfrow's work with us too.

Vacation Bible School Opens

at the
CHURCH of CHRIST
Fifth and Colgate Streets

The Church of Christ meeting at Fifth and Colgate Perryton opens its annual Vacation Bible School, June 2 at 9:00 o'clock a. m., to continue through June 13.

The purpose of this ten days of teaching is to instill in the minds of every pupil the pure Word of God, undiluted with human opinion. Purely undenominational in nature, the courses are true to the Bible, and adapted to the age level of the pupil. This series of courses is designed to instruct young people in how to know Jehovah as the true God—to know His love, His Mercy, Grace—and to know the Son of God, the Lord Jesus Christ, as Revealer, Friend and Redeemer. He made His advent into the world that all men might know His Father (Jo. 1:18, 14:9, 17:3), through teaching as a means of revelation (Jo. 6:44-45), carried on by His people (Mat. 16:15-16; Matthew 28:18-20; Acts 8:15; Ephesians 3:10).

Mr. J. Edgar Hoover, head of the F. B. I. in America, has said that young people who attend Bible school do not make criminals. This statement coming from the pen of a man of world-wide recognition as criminologist, and leader in the field of juvenile delinquency, should cause every parent to think seriously of their child's future. Why deprive your child of the only moral and spiritual preserver and character builder in all the world?

Classes for all ages are provided with competent teachers and transportation to and from the meeting house for those who need it. This makes it convenient for mothers to bring their children to spend the morning, 9:00 to 11:00, in spiritual fasting. We give you this cordial invitation to be with us daily. You can enroll by mail. Fill out the convenient Enrollment Card below, and mail it today to: The Church of Christ, 718, Perryton, Texas. Space is provided for parents and children.

up to Washington on business. They're allowed to deduct their living costs here as legitimate business expenses."

He remarked that years ago congressmen were permitted to make such deductions, "but one of the bureaucrats here drew up some regulations" that barred further itemizing of such expenses on income tax returns.

Mentioning his own expenses, Lucas pointed out that he not only has to provide housing here for his family but also must maintain a home in Texas.

When Congress adjourns he takes his brood and moves to their farm near Grapevine. He drives daily from there to his office in the federal building in Fort Worth.

Entertaining visiting constituents, a limited amount of which can not be avoided, costs several hundred dollars a year, he says. Then, there are contributions to many causes—and congressmen are called on to contribute to everything under the sun.

Another major expense is for essential travel. They're allowed fare for only one round trip per session.

"We'd certainly lose contact with our people if we didn't get back home more often than that," he added. "Those extra trips come out of our pocket, and it's a long ways from Washington to Texas and back."

At present congressmen get $2,500 per year annual tax-free expense account. The expense account system ends as of Dec. 31 this year, after which their salaries will be a straight $15,000 a year. (The same pay and allowances prevail in the Senate.)

Lucas considers himself an average member, neither extravagant nor "skimp." He lives in a modest residential suburb in adjacent Arlington, Virginia. Some congressional colleagues are independently wealthy, so his association with these individuals is restricted largely to business on Capitol Hill.

"That saying about keeping up with the Jones applies here just as it does in Texas," he concluded with a smile. "We don't try to. Nor do we envy them. I'm well satisfied if I can break even on my salary, because the job is one I like."

CENTRALIA, Ill. (AP)—To get the drop on coon, fox and squirrel, some southern Illinois hunters are reported using hearing aids. An Eldorado, Ill. dealer, C. B. Brazos Land Featured In Late Book

By BRUCE HENDERSON

DALLAS (AP)—"Six-shooter junction," the brakeman would yell as the train chugged into Waco. "Thirty minutes for lunch and see a killin'."

This was the fierce Brazosland of Texas in the early days, a Dallas civil district attorney says in a new book, published May 19. Author Julien Hyer's "The Land of Beginning Again" is the stirring history of this country which sweeps majestically from the Brazos River banks.

From dusty West Texas to the forks that converge at Possum Kingdom Lake in the Palo Pinto country to the Gulf of Mexico, towns dotting this river's path are quietly industrious now. But they weren't always so.

For this land once underwent the growing pains of civilizing. It had a tough time establishing law and order.

Waco was rowdy. There were so many shootin' scrapes and gun-totin' bad men strutting about the square in early Waco the town won the title of "six-shooter junction."

There was old Will Lambdin who got into a running gunfight with two assailants and, before he killed them, cheerfully picked off two innocent bystanders for good measure.

The Brazos—more than any other—is Texas' river, the author believes. The Red River Texans must share with Oklahoma, the Sabine with Louisiana, the Rio Grande with Mexico.

But the 900 miles of the Brazos from the Staked Plains near Muleshoe to Freeport and Velasco on the Gulf, begins and ends in Texas.

The author first relates the very early history of the Brazosland, when more than 400 years ago the Spanish claimed it. He tells how its people struggled to cultural maturity under the flags of six rival nations—Spain, France, Mexico, Texas, the Confederacy and the United States.

"Brazos means 'arms' in Spanish. The Spaniards first called it 'The River of the Arms of God' because of the verdant haven it offered.

But the most exciting tales come later.

The Brazosland . . . Where a man once said: "I'm glad I gut-shot (cq) him so he might have as painful a death as possible."—and never came to trial.

Where they buried men erect, if they wanted it that way, in full dress with rifle on shoulder and facing west.

Where opportunists flocked. (A physician arrived in Richmond on the Houston stage and forthwith announced in the local newspaper: "To all whom it may concern: I want money, must have it and will get it. Dr. George A. Feris, Dec. 21, 1839.")

The book is attractively bound with abundant illustrations by Texas-born artist Merritt Mauley, whose rustic scenes of Brazosland lend force to Hyer's passages.

It is a saga of how men of widely varying creeds and ideals conquered a strange new land. The title resulted from Hyer's belief, after touring the Brazos

Winning Coach Found

Barnhill was glad he signed Glen Rose, who has a fine record both as player and coach. Rose starred as a player at Arkansas and coached that college to three titles and two title ties in nine years.

from end to end, that the Brazosland shone as a prosperous new haven and new life to early settlers.

The indomitable spirit of these folks can be seen in a jury's sage verdict down on the lower Brazos in an assault-and-battery case:

"Not guilty, and we recommend that he thrash hell out of him again."

FINDERS NOT ALWAYS KEEPERS

The old rhyme, "Finders keepers—losers weepers," is not always strictly accurate under the law. It is sometimes difficult to define the rights of a finder in court, and much confusion on the subject exists in the mind of public generally. Confidence men have many times taken advantage of such confusion to "fast talk" unwary individuals out of large sums of money.

There are some rather fine distinctions and exceptions to the "finders keepers" maxim that have plagued the courts—and finders—for generations. In the first place, the finder is not entitled to keep the property unless the original owner is not known and cannot be located. Neither may he keep it unless the object is truly "lost," and not merely "misplaced." In general, property is legally "lost" when parted with involuntarily—through accident, neglect, forgetfulness or any other unintentional circumstances. Property is lost in the legal sense when voluntarily left by the owner, intended to pick up later—even though he fails to do so. Such property is "misplaced."

Thus, if one loses a watch on the street by having the clasp break, not knowing where or when it was dropped, it is legally "lost." The same is true of a fountain pen falling thru a hole in one's pocket unobserved. In such cases, the finder owns what he has found against all but the true owner.

But when articles are left on a train or bus, in a public hotel room, or even when dropped on a shop floor, under circumstances that the true owner will later return to claim them, such items are not considered lost. The proper custodian to hold them for the owners return would be the proprietor or other person in charge. Remaining unclaimed, the property sometimes goes to this custodian, sometimes to the finder. The distinction here appears to be whether the place it is found is private or semi-private, or a place used by the general public.

Every month or so we see a newspaper item telling how some gullible person has learned the intricacies of the shady game known to police as "pigeon drop," at a cost of several hundred dollars. This confidence racket has many variations, but generally runs something like this.

A pair of smooth operators sidle up to their intended victim on a down town street. Strangers to each other, they have just found a billfold containing a large denomination bill or a large check, say $1000. They want to split the find, but neither has the money to buy out the other's interest. Now, if the victim can get hold of some cash, they are willing to split three ways, or even to give him more than one-third.

When the sucker produces the money in anticipation of a quick return on his investment, complications develop. One of the confidence workers may have consulted a fictitious employer in the absence of the victim. Now the billfold, its contents and the victim's money must be left in the employer's custody a few days in case the owner appears. Then the division is to be made. He takes the money to turn it in to the employer—just up the street a few doors—and disappears. His co-worker also judiciously takes his or her leave.

Numerous twists, not too credible in print, but all sounding very plausible when suggested by fast talking confidence men, invariably have but one result—the loss of your money.

Avoid being victimized by keeping these ideas in mind. If it is a bona fide "find," your rights are inferior to those of the true owner, who can probably be located. If there is a check involved, the signer will certainly have stopped payment. A large denomination bill can be cashed without assistance from you or any passerby.

Gaunders Is Taken To Huntsville Prison

Paul Gaunder, 50, was taken to the Texas State Penitentiary at Huntsville last Thursday by Sheriff Ray Phagan. Gaunder had been sentenced to the penitentiary for two years on May 12. He had pled guilty to the charge of swindling by worthless checks.

Gaunder had worked as a roofer in Perryton for several years. He was born in Ohio.

North Plains Fair Incorporates On a Non-Profit Basis

The North Plains Fair Association voted to incorporate as a non-profit organization. The board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce and the executive board of the fair association met May 20 to make the final arrangements. A general meeting was called on May 22 where the charter and by-laws were adopted.

A membership drive has been started. Anyone can buy a membership in the association by paying $1.00. Percy Powers is the chairman of the membership campaign.

The first annual North Plains Fair will be August 26, 27, and 28. A full three-day program is planned for the event. Several features of the annual Perryton Celebration, including the Wheatheart of the Nation contest, and the Old Timers Reunion, will be used.

Complete plans for the fair and a fair catalogue are being made by officers of the Association. The officers are Hood Willis, president; G. W. Acker, vice-president; Charley Pyle, vice-president; Percy Powers, vice-president; and John Mayfield, secretary-treasurer.

Battery Company Still Undecided Over Location

The Chamber of Commerce office received a letter from the Robinson Co., of Blair, Neb., saying that the location of the battery reconditioning company seemed to be between Childress and Perryton. The Chamber of Commerce manager, John Mayfield, stated that they should receive definite word on the location of the company by the first of next week.

If the company locates in Perryton, they plan to employ 35 persons with an approximate payroll of $3,500 per week. The Robinson Company is the maker of the Cyclonite battery. It has amazing regenerating qualities and specifications, the company maintains.

It seems the paper called the association a nasty name and the latter demanded an apology on bended knee. The offending editor was standing up. 2-door, 6-passenger Super Riviera.

YOU may have to look twice to see it—but a lot of the new Buicks have a soft blue-green tone in all glass areas—plus a slightly darker band which shades down from the top of the windshield.

And you have no idea what comfort all this adds to hot-weather driving.

Its name is "Easy-Eye Glass"—which tells only half the story. While it filters out 18% of the glare (and tones down the dazzle of oncoming headlights at night)—it also cuts down sun-heat as much as 50%.

So it's the best cure we know for hot laps in summer driving, when the sun beats down on the windshield.

Maybe you'd like to try this out before you buy your next car.

And while you're trying it out—you can also discover how it feels to boss around a Fireball 8 Engine, that puts its own exclusive added wallop into a high-compression valve-in-head power plant.

You can sample the sure-footed way a Buick settles into a curve—the way the front wheels seem to seek their course automatically—the smooth surge and falterless ease with which Dynaflo Drive* feeds the power—the level confidence of Buick's million dollar ride.

You can get an idea also of the room, the comfort, the smartness, the thrill

Ray F. Red, general commercial superintendent of the company, told the council that he couldn't accept their offer and intimated that the company may go to court to get the rate increase they seek. The council has not heard any more from the company since last week.

The city offered an increase to $7 for a business phone and $4 for a residence phone, but the company wouldn't consider this. Red told the council that in order to get a "workable raise", the company would consider $10 per month for a business phone but the city and the company could never get any closer together.

City manager J. B. Whigham said that after making an intensive study of telephone rates in other cities, that he found that only seven cities in Texas had a business phone rate of $11 per month. All these cities have a population of 100,000. The average rate for towns the size of Perryton is $6.75 for busi-

Officers will be elected, and an auxiliary organized after the chapter receives the national charter, stated Davis. All disabled veterans of the area and of any American war are eligible for membership.

Davis especially urges all returning Korean veterans to drop by his office to check on insurance and disability payments, as soon as possible. In this way, it is easier to get service records straight so as to be of value to the veteran.

fears by some that Potter county would dominate this 18th district caucus.

Curtis Douglas of Pampa and Jim Witherspoon of Hereford were selected as delegates and J. Claude Wells of Memphis and Frank Storm of Amarillo were named as alternates.

Other men nominated for convention delegates were W. R. Rutherford of Dumas, Jack Alexander of Borger, and Jack M. Allen of Perryton.

Later, the 18th district did get another delegate and alternate, but Rutherford and Alexander were named, since Allen was number three on the list. If the district had secured one more, as was thought possible, Allen would have been a delegate to the national convention.

Early Tuesday morning, we went to the huge municipal auditorium where a crowd was jammed around the front doors. We thought they hadn't opened the doors yet and hung around the fringe of the crowd for a while before we discovered that this bunch were Loyal Democrats who couldn't get in because they didn't have a convention badge.

These rump Democrats all had a badge of some sort—either a large cardboard donkey or a long pink ribbon which proclaimed them as delegates, but the official delegates had a small cardboard and acetate badge which labeled them as official.

After discovering that we could get in, we did so, and had no trouble finding our seat. They had marked off the auditorium in blocks of seats by congressional districts, and of course all the Panhandle was together. Ochiltree and Hansford county delegates shared a row of seven seats marked at both ends of the row with cardboard placards designating the county.

After finding our seats, we wandered back out to the lobby to see the fireworks when the Loyal Democrat group crashed the door, which they finally did. We got caught in a rush of them bursting through the door and when we went back to our Ochiltree county seats, found two seats occupied by two Negro women, both of the Loyalist faction. They were persuaded to move on.

About 15 per cent of the Loyalists seemed to be Negroes, both men and women. There were many of the Loyalists inside the hall when the convention opened, although only 40 official delegates bolted when the signal was given.

Of course, everybody knew the Loyalists would walk out of the convention. The only suspense was waiting to see when they would do it.

The bolt was signaled by Maury Maverick, former Texas Congressman and one of the Loyalist leaders. He made a speech in which he attacked the state executive committee report which omitted the party loyalty pledge as a condition of conducting the convention. He put considerable emphasis on remarks toward Governor Shivers, accusing him of having personal political ambitions.

Rebuttal to Maverick came from Tom Seeley of Midland, who said this was his first time to attend a state convention. Standing only a few feet away from Maverick on the convention stage, Seeley took the hide off the Loyalist leader. "Maury Maverick doesn't belong down here!" Seeley cried. "He belongs up north with the milk coats, the Lamar Caudles, the deep freezes, the income tax scandals, the graft and corruption which he now defends."

Maverick came back and called for the bolt and the Loyalists poured into the aisles. They thronged down from the balcony and mixed with the milling, whooping crowd on the floor. Several fist fights broke out down in front of the Panhandle group.

TOM DUDLEY, 715 S. Amherst, raised a South Texas garden for himself this year. Linda Moon, daughter of Mrs. Tom Dudley, shows the giant size of some of his radishes. Dudley says that he has a harder time giving the vegetables away than he had in growing them. He planted beans, corn, tomatoes, mustard greens, okra, radishes, carrots, cantaloupe, squash, cucumbers, and potatoes.

Farmers Should Have
Adjustor Study Wheat

Farmers of this county were warned by Elliott Lee, FMA head to make certain that they have an inspector or adjustor to inspect their wheat before they abandon it.

More wheat abandonment insurance claims have been coming into his office, Lee announced. Over 60% of the claims have been approved, but Lee stressed the importance of having an adjustor look at the wheat before it is plowed.

Mrs. Edwin Pletcher and son Tony of Houston are visiting in the George Pletcher and Claude Carmichael homes.

As the Loyalists swarmed down the aisle toward the rear of the auditorium, one woman grabbed the Ochiltree county sign but Max Boyer, sitting on the outside seat, leaped after her and retrieved the sign. Several other Loyalist men attempted to get in on the act but were restrained by the Ochiltree county men and the San Antonio police.

Once the Loyalists had walked out and the convention settled down to business, it was harmonious and often dull. A roll call of delegates, by counties, lasted until 2 p. m. then the committee reports were heard.

As expected, the resolutions called for an uninstructed Texas delegation, a denunciation of the present national Democratic party leadership, denunciation of the tidelanders grab, praise of the Shivers administration and a call for return to Jeffersonian principles of the Democratic party.

This was the largest state Democratic convention ever held. There were 96.6 of the delegates who stayed in the hall when the Loyalists bolted. The majority of the delegates were there for the first time making the trip and taking part in the activities as a sign of the political awakening that has taken the state by storm this year.

BETTER FOR SAFETY
On slippery roads you get "stop-quick" traction from Goodyear's extra tread "grip" and better tread design. On all roads you get more tire safety from Goodyear's stronger, tougher bodies.

BETTER FOR COMFORT
On rough roads you get a smoother ride because Goodyear's stronger cards give to cushion car-jolting bumps and road shocks.

BETTER FOR MILEAGE
Long after less popular tires are discarded, Goodyears are still rolling safely. Their stronger bodies and tougher treads stand up longer to give many extra miles of safe motoring.

TOWNSEND GROCERY

Exclusive!

There's no greater social prestige for a Pork Chop or a Steak than to be seen in the meat case at Townsend's Grocery.

That's because Art Townsend is as careful about the meat he puts in his case as the President is about appointing a new ambassador to Russia.

Maybe Art was behind the door when good looks were being passed out, but he has an eagle-eye "second to none" when it comes to selecting meat that comes into his store.

Every piece must be juicy and tender—the quality "A-1" or it's no deal! No wonder everything is always so good at Townsend's.

The Latest Additions to Memorial Day Roll

Each year on Memorial Day it is the custom to call the roll of those who have given their service to their country during time of war, and the graves of these veteran dead are marked with American flags to designate their service.

The roll call for the Ochiltree cemetery contains names of those who died in the Civil war, Spanish-American War, World War I and World War II.

Veterans of the Korean war will be next on the list of veterans on the Memorial Day roll call. This will make a span of at least three generations represented on the veterans roll.

While the administration persists in calling the Korean conflict a "police action" it is evident from the records that it is not. It certainly ranks with the Spanish-American war as a conflict which has drained off a substantial portion of America's youth and should be recognized for what it is—war.

The records show that to date more than 103 thousand Americans have been killed or wounded in Korea. Many are coming back home—but not as they left.

Some are blind. Others have an arm or leg gone. Others have injuries less serious but of a permanent nature. Others won't come back at all.

The cost of war is staggering. The current U. S. budget, which is the matter of much concern to all Americans, is devoted 70 per cent to paying for past, present and future wars. The cost of the dead and wounded cream of American youth cannot be estimated in dollars.

The problem of preventing wars or winning them once they are inevitable is the prime problem in America today. Once that is solved, the problems of domestic economy will be greatly lessened. Other problems which loom large on the home front actually dwindle to an unimportant status considered in the light of the principal problem and threat—war.

Each of the men listed on the Memorial Day roll call has been a tax payer. They have done all that any civilian can do to make America strong and a haven of freedom. In addition, they have given of their time, their blood and in many cases, their lives in the cause of freedom.

How many more generations of war casualties will we have before the threat of war is lifted from us?

Who Is the Robber?

President Harry Truman, in a typical burst of anger recently told a private organization that the passage by Congress of the bill to restore the Tidelands to the states was "robbery in broad daylight—and on a colossal scale."

There is robbery involved in the Tidelands issue—but who is robbing whom?

As Sen. Landon Johnson of Texas points out, for more than 100 years these submerged lands have been considered part of the public domain of Texas and the Tidelands were retained by Texas under the treaty by which she joined the United States. This viewpoint has been upheld by international treaty, former Supreme Court justices, the National Association of Attorneys General, the Governors' Conference, an overwhelming majority of the members of the House of Representatives, and a substantial majority of the members of the U. S. Senate.

President Truman says he can't understand the non-coastal states voting to give something away like the Tidelands. That's not the question—it's a question of honesty, and giving back the states lands which was taken from them because of federal greed, pure and simple.

with HAROLD HUDSON

Being around Cal Farley for a while, even briefly, is as spiritually refreshing as a session in church. For this founder of Boys' Ranch is no doubt one of the most Christian men we have ever encountered, even though he makes no pretense at having any connection with the ministry.

His mission is saving boys—saving their lives, putting them on the right track toward becoming useful citizens. A higher calling would be hard to find. You have only to talk to the man but a few minutes to discover that this business of taking wayward boys and making citizens out of them lends direction to Cal Farley's whole life. He spends all his time working toward that end, talking about boys and with boys, getting other people interested, and reaping the satisfaction that comes with knowing that he has had a part in diverting 712 men from the reform schools and penitentiaries into channels of useful citizenship through Boys' Ranch.

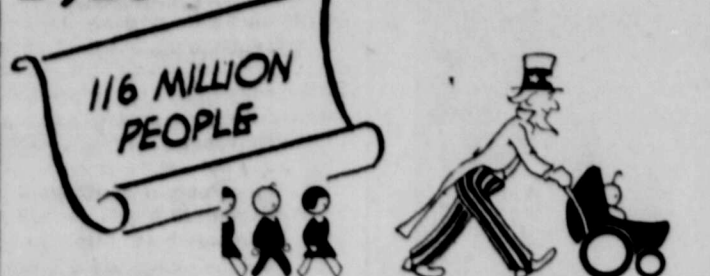

Last week he spent some time in Perryton and when he left he took with him a 12-year-old boy who seemed headed for the reform school, which Farley declares is merely a post-graduate course in crime and a training school for the penitentiary. Some 83 per cent of the inmates of Texas prisons have spent time in the reform school, Cal learned, and if a boy can be straightened out before he gets to the first stop, the reform school, he will never go to the pen.

The local youngster whom Cal took to the Ranch followed the usual pattern, too, in that he comes from a home where his parents are divorced. His father, who got custody of the boy when the divorce became effective, has remarried. The boy's father and stepmother both work and consequently don't have much time to spend during the day in supervising the youngster. Neither do they have the money to hire someone else to do it, both being occupied with making a living for the necessities of life.

Consequently, this boy was left on his own, more or less, and in due course of time found other boys who were in the same state of circumstances. With time hanging heavy on their hands, and with no way to get spending money for movies, candy, and the other little luxuries so important to a growing boy, they drifted into different channels. They explored quite a bit at night and decided to enter some business houses—and did so. The accumulated a little money from their activities and it was found that their expenditures went for things which most kids take for granted—ice cream, picture shows, candy and even a few articles of clothes.

This, Cal calls "slipping the halter." A boy starts out "slipping the halter" when he misses school. These absences begin to last longer and longer and finally he is out of school altogether. Soon the boy, hanging around town, falls in with some other boys, at least one or two of whom can give him some training in crime. One thing leads to another, and the first thing he knows, he is in the toils of the law.

Boys' Ranch has the job of putting the halter back on. Cal tells all the boys that come there that this isn't a dude ranch. They are to learn discipline, good manners, how to work and how to get along with other people. The boys that go to Boys Ranch are those who are running around "trying to find a shirt tail to hang on to until they are old enough to go on their own." Boys Ranch provides the shirt tail.

Cal declares that it takes $4,000 a year to keep up a prisoner in one of our state institutions. It takes thousands of additional dollars to furnish the law enforcement necessary to catch a criminal, and more thousands to take him through court into the institution. For a fraction of this expenditure, a boy can be put on the right track. If he can be reached early enough, and once on the right track he becomes a good, productive citizen instead of a state expenditure.

Boys' Ranch, of course, is not run on the taxpayers money. It is supported by voluntary contributions, and while none of the money is wasted, it

Texas Quail Need More Vitamin A

AUSTIN, May—How the King Ranch determined that a Vitamin A deficiency was responsible for wholesale losses of bobwhite quail is described in the May issue of Texas Game & Fish magazine.

An article by V. W. Lehmann, wildlife manager for the big South Texas ranch, states that tests leading up to the disclosure were made after quail died off mysteriously in the late winter of 1950-51 with the heaviest mortality from mid-February through early March.

He writes that it was determined that lack of native food containing the indispensable vitamin plus severe cold weather which restricted the bird's feeding routine caused the heavy toll in adult birds.

mounts up rapidly when there are clothes, food, livestock, tools to buy, plus the cost of operating the school, the buses, the kitchen, the supervisors, etc. In our visits to the Ranch, it has never ceased to amaze us that they get so much value out of every dollar that comes in.

Right now, plans are being made to take in 24 more boys to Boys' Ranch from all over the nation. Twenty-four of the older boys will move into a new dormitory unit this month to make room for the 24 new boys coming in. This means more expense and more overhead, but there is no way to calculate the returns reaped from saving a boy.

Quite a few persons from Perryton are regular contributors to the Ranch and others make sporadic contributions. It is the Panhandle's own outfit, and personally, we can't think of a better place to put an extra buck. Can you?

Wolf Creek Philosopher Is Vice President Very Important?

Dear editor:

I have been following the Presidential nomination business pretty close all this year, especially after President Truman took out, and while we seem to have plenty of men who are willing to run for the main job and are convinced they could shoulder the responsibilities and head off anything we're headed for, I've noticed an alarm lack of interest in the Number 2 place.

For months the reporters kept in after Truman asking him if he was gonna run for re-election, but have you ever heard of any reporter anywhere asking the Vice President if he was gonna run for re-election?

It must be pretty lonesome, sitting around Washington and watching reporters rush past you to get at the President, without ever stopping and asking what your plans are. Don't nobody want to know whether Vice President Barkley is gonna run or not?

And I've been thinkin'. History teaches us, if you ain't too close up to the most recent lesson to recognize it, that the vice presidential candidate is some times pretty important, some times he is likely to have a bearin on the future of the country, and I would like to see more of a scramble for that office.

Why, apparently nobody even thought of holdin a single preferential primary that went to the trouble of askin who you're for for Vice President. The people talk of wantin more voice in namin the Vice President, everybody seems willin to leave that up to the hotel politicians.

Ain't there nobody in this country who is an open, avowed, hat-in-the-ring, fight-to-the-finish candidate for Vice President? If nobody else wants it, you reckon . . . no, I wouldn't have time to go to Washington myself.

But it looks to me like, just for courtesy's sake if nothing else, somebody ought to go up to Vice President Barkley and ask him if he is willin to run for re-election. It ain't human to leave him alone and un-asked.

In case the Federal government has taken over the farmin

Control of Killing Mesquite Trees $5,000 for Texas Scientist

After 14 years of research in the control of the hardy mesquite, E. Fisher, 41, superintendent of Texas Agricultural Experiment Station No. 7 at Del Rio, has been named winner of the "Texas agricultural award" recognizing the man who in the past three years has made the greatest contribution to agriculture in Texas.

Fisher's research resulted last year in the control of mesquite on more than 400 thousand acres of Texas pastures. The Fisher control method is simple: A low flying airplane "bombs" the mesquite trees with coarse droplets of an oil-water emulsion loaded with a new chemical herbicide. Flying just above the tree tops, the pilot sprays a wide swath of mesquite as he goes. One pound of the herbicide netype chemical is recommended per acre. The cost of treating is about $3.00 per acre.

Fisher's control method not only kills about 98% of the mesquite to ground level, but invades its bud zone area below ground and prevents a high percentage of the plants from sprouting again.

"The God-intoxicated Spinoza" was born in 1632 in Amsterdam, to Jewish refugees from Portugal. He became a pioneer advocate of man's right to freedom of thought and freedom of speech. His study and writing of philosophical writings exercised deep and wide influence.

At the age of twenty-four, Baruch Spinoza was excommunicated by the local congregation, and disowned by his family. For the remaining twenty-four years of his life, he engaged in the pursuit of truth with a fidelity and single-mindedness rarely encountered. One biographer has written: "Among all men, Spinoza is the supreme example of complete dedication to the life of thought. Perception of pure truth with the reason was to him union with God and the highest blessedness."

He was a lens-grinder by trade. His days were spent in polishing glass and his evenings in arduous study and writing. His book "The Theological Political Tract, in which he urged complete freedom of thought and speech, was banned by States-General. His great work, "The Ethics" has been pronounced "one of the most extraordinary documents ever created by man." Twelve years of his life had been poured into it, "and now the whole thing stood there like a beautiful Greek temple." It was not published until after his death, so hostile were the authorities to his ideas.

He had long been afflicted with tuberculosis, and his malady was aggravated by constant exposure to finely powdered glass as he polished lenses. At the early age of forty-five this good and wise man died. He was almost unsurpassed in his zeal for the contemplative life, his utter unconcern about fame and fortune, his kindly attitude towards his opponents, his gentleness and humility, his fortitude as he saw death approaching.

Mankind gains complete freedom from disease and unhappiness through the realization that God is everpresent. This is brought out in the Lesson-Sermon titled "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced" to be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, June 1. The Golden Text promises: "When the enemy shall come in like a flood, the Spirit of the Lord shall lift up a standard against him" (Isaiah 59:19).

The constant availability of healing truth is further explained in this verse from the Bible: "Behold, I stand at the door and knock; if any man hear my voice and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him and he with me" (Rev. 3:20).

The following correlative citation will be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "As God Himself is good and is Spirit, goodness and spirituality must be immortal. Their opposites, evil and matter, are mortal error, and error has no creator. If goodness and spirituality are real, evil and materiality are unreal and cannot be the outcome of an infinite God, good" (p. 277).

The book includes an account of the 1839 epidemic by Dr. Ashbel Smith, former surgeon-general of the Texian army who was appointed in 1881 by Gov. O. M. death in 1888.

The library's millionth volume will be placed in the Texas History Center rare books section. The University's Texas Collection is by far the most complete in existence, containing extensive records of Texas and Texan. University Librarian Alexander Haffa said much of its growth is due to gifts from citizens of the State.

Only a Rose, and how we love it! Yet it is the commonest of flowers. It grows in every country, along every roadway under the sun. Every nation appreciates it. Perhaps it is like the sunshine...the spring showers or the pearly dewdrops on its petals; all the more meaningful because so universal. God made the Rose.

Children carry them for their favorite teacher. Lovers weight them down with deep and intense affection for their beloved. Mature home lovers are brightened by their fragrance and loveliness. The hours of sorrow are lightened and sanctified by the silent ministry of friends who find no other expression of sympathy quite so satisfactory. Thank God for the simple wayside wild rose. Thank Him for all the patented varieties so much sought after throughout the land. His rose by any other name would smell just as sweet. It is God's Rose.

Can we not make the humble rose even more symbolic and glorious? Let the crystal purity of her white petals symbolize life everlasting. May she speak in reverent words of devotion, and love and God as she illumines His sacred pulpits all over the world. May she not testify to the omnipotence of God and may her sacred and significant voice be that of Him calling His children to worship. God made the Rose!

When one thinks of automatic heat, natural gas is the fuel, because...

MEET YOUR FIREMAN—17—George Clennan of the Public Service Corp. has been on the Perryton Fire Department since 1944. His primary duty at a fire is to see that the gas lines are disconnected and make sure there is no danger of fire or explosion from gas. He was asked to join the fire department because someone was needed from the gas company, he says. The worst fires he's fought are the Perryton Hotel fire and the Nail Oil Co. fire. He has lived in Perryton since 1930 and spent two years in the Navy during World War II.

Wartime 'Red Ball Express' Movie Theme

"Red Ball Express," which comes Friday and Saturday to the Ellis Theatre, is a gripping saga of a hastily organized World War II unit of the Army Transportation Corps which rushed supplies and badly needed ammunition to General Patton's army during a front line breakthrough.

Jeff Chandler, Alex Nicol, Judith Braun and Charles Drake handle the starring roles in "Red Ball Express" and the supporting cast includes Jacqueline Duval, Sidney Polter, Cindy Garner, Hugh O'Brien and John Hudson. "Red Ball," in railroad jargon, means top priority freight. As an action-packed picture of the semi-documentary class, "Red Ball Express" is definitely top priority for breathtaking entertainment.

The story opens when a young first lieutenant is assigned to organize a group of former truck drivers and "red ball" a fleet of trucks through the front lines into German occupied territory where General Patton's tanks are bogged down because of a lack of fuel.

As his sergeant, the lieutenant is assigned a bitter young man who has fought with the lieutenant all through their previous lives as stateside truck jockeys. The feud continues in the service, and ends only when the officer saves the life of the sergeant as they break their way through

However, the Congress and these committees have pressed relentlessly forward on these investigations, and the skeptics are now convinced that there will be no let-up until every festering infection of corruption in government has been opened, aired and treated. There will no doubt be many more obstacles placed in the path of this Congress and these committees, but these will be overcome as they have in the past. Many indictments that are resulting from the findings of the Teague Committee for violations of the Veterans' programs is a good indication of what is going to be expected in the other investigations. If Congress does not get some effective prosecutions, you can look for some heads to roll. This Congress intends to see that this mess is cleaned up and kept clean. Those who have been parties to these sinister and insidious transactions, both government employees and those outside of government, now sincerely wish that they had followed the maxim, "Honesty is the best policy," because no one is more keenly aware than they that "Truth crushed to earth will rise again." The cleansing job has just started but the American people are wide awake, and all public officials at all levels of government had better get their houses in order and keep them that way, because the day of reckoning is here.

"HONESTY IS THE BEST POLICY": This age-old maxim has been brought to the attention of many people in government and out of government with a striking force that will be long remembered. In fact, the investigations that have been started and prosecuted by this Congress will mark the beginning of honesty in government that has been needed for a long, long time. There have been attempts to soft pedal information uncovered by these committees; many witnesses have availed themselves of their constitutional rights not to testify against themselves, hoping that the pressure would be lessened by the passage of time, and other dilatory tactics have been employed. However, the Congress and these committees have pressed relentlessly forward on these investigations, and the skeptics are now convinced that there will be no let-up until every festering infection of corruption in government has been opened, aired and treated. There will no doubt be many more obstacles placed in the path of this Congress and these committees, but these will be overcome as they have in the past. THE KOREAN VETERANS

O. C. Watson's face shows the general feeling of fun that the public had at the Jaycee's Spring Carnival Friday and Saturday nights. Watson is pictured at the Jaycee booth trying to toss a ring over a duck's head. Other booths featured turtle racing, bingo, side shows, baseball throwing, putting contests, and other games of skill. John Englert of Perryton won the cedar chest filled with linens that was given away by the Catholic Social Club.

BILL: I have just returned from a long and tedious session of the Committee on Veterans' Affairs, in which we completed hearings on the extension of GI benefits to Korean veterans, and ordered a bill reported to the Congress. This bill provides for the benefits to be paid directly to the veterans, rather than to the various schools that they attend. This will enable the veteran to choose his own school, buy his own text books, and conduct his own business of getting an education. The bill contains many provisions plugging loopholes through which questionable organizations milked the public treasury under the World War II GI Bill. Some of the tricks resorted to by supposedly reputable institutions under the old GI bill, in order to get public money, were nothing less than astounding. The committee worked long and hard in full cooperation with the Select Committee appointed to investigate these wrongdoings, and we feel that the bill that has been sent to the Congress will not only plug the loopholes, but will give the benefits to the veterans who are entitled to them and at the same time prevent the public treasury from being robbed by various tricky devices. The new Korean bill provides for veterans to obtain loans to build houses, and the committee tried to write into the bill sufficient safeguards to protect the veterans from some of the practices to which they have been subjected in various locations all over the country. This provision of course provides for the guaranty by the government of loans to veterans so that they may be able to build homes. Many of them have experienced difficulties in obtaining loans from private institutions; the reason being that the interest rate provided in the GI loans is low. This program under the old GI bill reflects that almost 100 percent of the veterans are excellent credit risks and the losses under that program were almost non-existent. This credit record established by these veterans is actually so good that it is almost unbelievable. We have also included a provision to protect a veteran of World War II who is called back into the Korean war and has to sell his home. We hope to get this bill through at the earliest possible moment so that the long delay suffered by these Korean veterans will not be prolonged.

ADJOURNMENT: The House had hoped to adjourn during the early part of June. However, this appears to be impossible. Many of the appropriations bills that have gone to the Senate are still in the Senate committees, and it is doubtful whether or not the house will get them back in time to adjourn by the first of July. The general talk here is that the House will recess around July 1st and reconvene around the 15th of August or the first of September. There is still much important legislation to be disposed of and many of these bills will be controversial in the House after Senate amendments are attached. This means long conference sessions, which may result in no adjournment and only a short recess. I hope to be back in the District sometime during the latter part of June or the first of July.

New Regulations Make Storage Of Wheat Quite Important

COLLEGE STATION — Recent regulations announced by the Food and Drug Administration regarding the grading of wheat which has been in storage and damaged by insects is of great economic importance to wheat producers in Texas. Losses, says Fred Dines, wheat marketing specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, can be held to a minimum if producers will take the necessary precautions in storing their wheat especially that stored on the farm.

The first job, and it should be done now, is to thoroughly clean and then treat the storage bin for insects. Dines emphasizes that all accumulations of residue grain—whole, cracked, ground or grain dust—must be removed from the interior or exterior of the bin. Check the cross braces, rafters, cracks in the floor and walls and if available, the specialist recommends using an air blasting machine to get the accumulations cleaned up.

If the storage bin is inside or attached to other farm buildings, Dines says special care must be taken to see that all materials such as mixed feed, other grain, hay and straw in which insects may breed are removed from the storage area.

After the clean up job is completed a residual spray should be applied to the surfaces of the bin at least two weeks before grain is placed in storage. Dines and Extension Entomologist A. C. Gunter recommend the use of lindane, pyrethrin base, methoxychlor or DDT residual sprays. A pyrethrin-piperonyl butoxide spray may also be used. They point out that directions for the use of each of these materials is carried on the label of the container and urge that these instructions be followed to the letter. Methoxychlor and DDT sprays, they warn, should not be used in concentrations of more than two and one-half per cent. Every crack, crevice, corner, ledge, beam and cross brace that could harbor insects should be thoroughly covered with the spray. Do a complete job, say the specialists, inside and out.

Regardless of how well the clean up and spraying jobs are done, Dines adds, the key to a good insect control program is putting into storage only dry grain. Stored grain insects require water for life and grain containing less than 12 per cent moisture does not provide a favorable habitat. On the other hand grain containing more than 13 per cent moisture does provide the needed moisture for insect development and heating. Heat due to weevil activity and or wheat respiration may become concentrated and sufficiently high to cause damage to the grain and a loss in grade when the grain is marketed. Finally, Dines says, don't fill the bins completely because the effectiveness of fumigating which will be done later will be reduced. Then too, bins that are completely filled cannot be checked as easily for weevils and damage.

Right now is the time to do the cleaning and spraying jobs, says Dines because there'll be little time for doing them if producers wait until the actual harvest has started.

Culling Hens Pay For Poultryman's Time and Trouble

COLLEGE STATION — The ratio between the price of eggs and the cost of feed for the past several weeks has been rough on all poultrymen but especially on the less efficient producers. One sure way to cut feed costs, says W. J. Moore, poultry husbandman for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, is to remove from the laying flock the non-producers.

Warmer weather usually ushers in the beginning of a slump in egg production and with it a rising market. Low production per hen during the summer season may mean the difference between a profitable year or a loss on the business. Take the non-producers to market, says Moore, just as soon as they are noticed in the flock. Chances are these hens will not come back into production for many months and feeding them is a dead expense.

Hens that show a shrunken, dried-up comb, yellow beak, new feathers, yellow shanks and yellow vents should be culled and sold. Hens that lack vigor and spend their time loafing should also be removed from the flock. A good producer must eat good feed and drink lots of clean, cool water and they can't do this unless they rustle. Of course, adds Moore, the poultryman must do his part by supplying the feed and water.

The poultryman who does a good job of culling continuously will be well paid for his trouble. Poultry farm management can not be most efficient unless the non-producers are sent to market and this means continuous culling, says Moore.

Water pressure increases at the rate of 15 pounds per square inch for every 33½ feet of depth.

Still Confiscated

PASADENA, Calif. — A swap-shop owner recently played an interesting game which had hard use during California's gold rush days.

The antique was a still and it was the center of interest at the shop—for a while. Then it was confiscated by Clair E. Kirk of the Bureau of Equalization liquor commission, who remarked: A still is still.
