Government Report Sends Cotton Down $3 Per Bale

Estimate Is $373,000 Bales; Market Has Break

Announcement Ushers In Risk Trading In Market; Total Is 300,000 Bales Above Expectations

Ginnings Are Slow

December Closes At 19.85 While January and May Stand At 19.75; More Than 12,000,000 Ginned

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Cotton prices broke nearly $3 per bale and recovered only slightly on the New York Cotton Exchange today when the government's final crop estimate placed the yield at 14,373,000 bales, or about 300,000 bales more than the trade had expected.

Prices had advanced in early trading on short covering and commission house buying, but when trading was resumed after the 15-minute suspension to receive the report, a rush to unload sent them down precipitately.

Prices Have Changed
January which had advanced to 19.39 cents a pound, fell to 19.75, December had sold at 20.47 but was washed down to 19.85, while May jumped from the morning's high price of 20.35 to 19.74.

Closing prices were around the low levels of the day and about a cent a pound under the prices reached during last month's advance, January at 19.75, December at 19.85 and May at 19.75.

Average of trade estimates had placed the yield at 14,100,000 bales, while in some quarters a report of 14,200,000 was expected, with indications of heavy liquidation if the actual figures approximated that total.

Wall Street Influences
The decline apparently was precipitated by selling orders from the south and unloading by houses with Wall Street connections. The break on the New York stock market also had an influence noticeable especially in liquidation of the more distant contracts. Buying by commission houses resulted in a slight but brief rally.

The government report, last to be

Brownville Man Gives Appendix As Bet Payment

BROWNVILLE, Dec. 8. (P)—A wager over the location of a squeak in an automobile was paid in full today when Charles Celaya, Rio Grande City banker received the appendix of Al Gutierrez, garage mechanic in a bottle of alcohol.

Gutierrez thought the squeak was in a spring. Celaya insisted it was in the stabilizer. An impartial mechanic decided the banker was right. Gutierrez was recovering today from the operation.

When the dispute first arose, Celaya offered a $10 bet, but when this proved too steep for Gutierrez he changed it to a pound of flesh. The mechanic thought a pound of flesh might incapacitate him permanently, but compromised by offering to wager his appendix against Celaya's.

The bet was made and the papers drawn before a notary public and witnesses, after which the car was taken to a mechanic whom both agreed was an impartial judge. He ruled in favor of Celaya.

"I will send you my appendix by 8 o'clock in the morning," said Gutierrez, and immediately made arrangements with two physicians to perform the operation.

Promptly at 8 o'clock the appendix was delivered to Celaya.

Moody's Highway Group Meets To Hear Discussion

Question of State's Future Highway Program To Come Up Before Thirty-One Members Monday

To Hear Reports

Finance Committee To Give Report of Highway Construction Financing; Is Important Meeting

(By Associated Press)
AUSTIN, Dec. 8.—Governor Moody's committee of highway legislation advisers selected from the 31 senatorial districts in the state, will meet Monday to hear the report and recommendations of the finance sub-committee.

After the initial gathering of the whole committee two weeks ago, the finance committee stayed on to consider proposed legislation which would afford a program of financing highway construction and maintenance several years in the future.

After listening to a number of proposals and conferring with Governor Moody, the sub-committee finally agreed, with one member dissenting, on a state-wide bond issue plan with not more than $225,000,000 outstanding at any one time the principal and interest to be retired by proceeds from a three cent gasoline tax and revenue from license and weight fees.

John L. Darrouzet of Galveston, member of the committee, objected to the proposal of authorizing amendment to the constitution, which would "write into the organic law" a specific tax levy on the product of any business or industry.

Now it seems Darrouzet's objection is likely to be shared by other members of the committee, which would "write into the organic law" a specific tax levy on the product of any business or industry.

Mysterious Man Sought In Trial

"Clyde R. Vest," of Waco, Is Without Identification In Adams Trial; Recess Taken Over Week-End

(By Associated Press)
DALLAS, Dec. 8.—A mysterious "Clyde R. Vest" of Waco, to whom $2,000 in election bet stakes figuring in the killing of Orville L. Mathews, Dallas bank employee, was paid, had not been identified when the trial of V. Ray Adams, Bartlett farmer, for the slaying of Mathews, was recessed here today over the week-end.

Adams, after facing eight hours of continued questioning, calmly left the witness stand today, his description of the manner in which Mathews was shot to death on a crowded downtown street on Sept. 1 in the court record. Only one additional witness was presented before the defense rested.

Coolidge Has Led People Nowhere, White Declares

Lorenzo Man Is First To Give to Local Cheer Fund

Santa Claus way up in the frigid regions of the North, has wiped the frost from off his pencil and drawn a big circle around the town of Lubbock. Because, from all indications Lubbock's kiddies—the poor as well as the rich—are in for the best Christmas of their history.

A movement to "play Santa" to the scores of Lubbock children who otherwise might be overlooked this Yule-tide was inaugurated last week by Kiwanis club directors at their regular weekly meeting.

The club set the ball a-rolling by donating $50 to a "Christmas Cheer" fund. The directors decided this idea of playing Santa Claus was too good to be kept selfishly and they have invited everyone else in Lubbock to share with them in a "Christmas Cheer" fund, to furnish a happy holiday for Lubbock's poor children.

The first contribution—a check for one dollar—came yesterday from W. D. Pennington of Lorenzo.

Avalanche-Journal, "Christmas Cheer Fund" will be glad to accept donations of any size so will L. F. Holland, Kiwanis secretary and also county tax collector. Mail or bring them to either place.

William Allen White Is "Regular Guy," Predicts Future for Texas Tech

Noted "Sage of Emporia" Impressed With First Visit To South Plains Territory; Appears Jovial And Care-free; Says "Nothing's Wrong With Texas"

By VESTAL LOTT
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Jovial and plump, yet active for all of his sixty years, William Allen White, dean of American small town editors, proved a "regular guy" with his arrival in Lubbock yesterday afternoon without an apparent worry in the world except that he wanted to get back to his family in Emporia by Sunday.

Dressing for dinner in his room at Dr. Paul W. Horn's residence, the famous Kansas editor was bothered only by the fact that his blue striped shirt, purchased in France last summer, which he decided to wear last night in preference to a white one after much deliberation, had an extra button on the collar and not enough down the front. In fact, he hasn't quite forgiven the French people yet for the way they make their shirts.

His natural brilliance and wit sparkles throughout his conversation which hurriedly breaks the ice of formality into intimate friendship.

This was Mr. White's first visit to Lubbock and the South Plains and he expressed favorable surprise at the development of the section. First gaining the interest of the nation by his poignant editorial treatment "What's The Matter With Kansas?" Lubbock's distinguished visitor declared that "nothing's wrong with Texas." Three Men Die In Explosion Aboard Port Arthur Ship

Four Others Are Injured In Of Closing Fuel Lines Saves Entire Crew

Ship Catches Fire

Other Accidents Over U. S. Claim 11 Additional Lives; Dallas Youth And Abilene Man Die

(By Associated Press)
PORT ARTHUR, Dec. 8.—Gasoline fumes escaping through an open hatch into the boiler room of the tanker Gulfland while it was loading fuel at the Gulf Refining company docks here early today caused an explosion which took three lives and injured four men, none seriously.

The dead are: A. H. Wukach, Port Arthur.

R. Flander, Beverly, Mass. Friedrich Eichler, Hamburg, Germany.

The bodies of the three were burned by gasoline which caught fire aboard the ship and identification was possible only by checking the crew list. Those injured: Ernest Degman, T. W. Wood, Thomas Milton and Ben Rodrick. All suffered from burns and shock but none is in a serious condition.

Quick Action Saved

Quick action in closing the fuel lines loading the vessel probably saved the lives of all of the crew as the men were asleep in their quarters, directly above the boiler room where the explosion occurred. The three dead men were on duty when the blast occurred. Flander, first mate, having charge of the early morning watch. Wukach was a dock man, assisting in loading the vessel and Eichler, the ship's steward had started for the galley to prepare breakfast.

Fire which followed the explosion was extinguished by Foamite with-

Cotton Yield Is Short of '27 Crop

Ginnings In County Only Total 23,204 Bales To Date; Insects Said To Have Decreased Yield

Inroads of cotton insects during the growing months became apparent yesterday when a check-up of the county showed that a yield of 23,204 bales had been ginned this season, as compared to ginnings of 35,761 bales on December 9th last year.

Of course, there are several factors which have delayed picking and ginning and optimistic observers here are still maintaining that a yield approximating that of 1927 will be made. The more conservative—and the bulk of observers—say however that the yield is destined to be from 35,000 to 40,000 bales.

There was an increase of 3,100 bales this week, as compared to last week. Weather during the week was fair for harvesting and ginning, cold mornings and rain during the middle of the week curtailing picking operations to a slight extent.

The crop is now estimated at more than one-half gathered. There is still an abundant demand here for pickers although there is no acute shortage of cotton labor at this time.

In Lubbock the week's increase

Senator Couzens Is Paid $989,833 As Refund for Tax

Michigan Republican Wins In Contest Over Income; Resolution Asks For Resignation of Mellon

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—The treasury's attempt to obtain an additional $10,000,000 income tax payment from Senator Couzens, republican, Michigan, ended today with the receipt by the Senator of a check for $989,833 from the government as a refund on his income tax for the year in question.

The refund payment ended a contest between the government and the original holders of Ford Motor company stock including Senator Couzens, which started almost four years ago, simultaneously with the public dispute waged by Secretary Mellon and the Senator over administration of tax matters.

Asks Mellon Resignation

Senator Couzens still has before the senate a resolution asking for the resignation of Mr. Mellon for maladministration. Senator LeFol has a resolution asking an inquiry of the government tax suit against Senator Couzens.

Treasury officials were silent today on the entire case, word of the refund coming from outside sources. It was confirmed by Senator Couzens whose son collected the government's check today in Detroit.

Blaze of Glory Ends History's Best Stock Show

CHICAGO, Dec. 8. (P)—Under the lofty, flag bedecked ceiling of the International Amphitheater, blue blooded horses brought the greatest livestock exposition in history to a brilliant close tonight. Spectators jostled for places while society gave the event an added touch of elegance from their boxes.

Even in the excitement of the closing hour, the visitors still discussed the drama which has been packed into the seven days just ended.

Never has an exposition offered anything to equal the romance of the achievements of that youthful pair, Clarence Goeckle and Keith Collins of Iowa.

Clarence appealed to the crowd from the first when his slight little frame made a striking contrast to his big Hereford which won various class championships and finally the grand championship. His prize winnings amounted to near $10,000.

They will talk about young Collins who showed the exposition something it had never seen before; a champion dressed carcass which also was offered as the champion steer carcass on hoof. Another record price, $4,873.50, was the reward he received.

Couple And Three Children Die In Gas Asphyxiation

Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Boutwell and 3 Kiddies, Of Troy, Alabama, Die In Edinburg Tourist Camp

Stove Leaks Fumes

Neighbors Find Bodies Saturday After Fumes Had Filled House; Pipes Fail To Show Leaks

(By Associated Press)

EDINBURG, Dec. 8.—Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Boutwell, formerly of Troy, Ala., and their three children were found dead in a tourist camp on the edge of town here today, apparently suffocated by a gas oven which was burning in the kitchen next to their bedroom.

The bodies were found by C. Montgomery, part owner of the tourist camp after neighbors had become worried at the failure of the family to appear this morning. Montgomery entered the Boutwells' camp house and found Mr. Boutwell, about 35, his wife, 29, Helen, 7, Gerald 7, and Doris 5, on the beds in one room. All of the windows were tightly closed and a gas fire in the kitchen adjoining was burning.

Neighbors said that they had heard one of the family go to the kitchen and light the stove. All of the bodies were partly clothed, as if the windows might have been shut down and the stove lighted because of the chilly atmosphere last night. An examination of the gas pipes in the house failed to show any leaks.

The family came here Nov. 27 to cultivate a 40-acre fruit farm which was left them by a relative. Lumber for their new home had been purchased and was to have been delivered soon. The farm had already been set out with 2,500 citrus trees. A Ford roadster bearing a 1928 Alabama license plate was in the garage. The car had been bought in Elba, Alabama.

City Is Seventh In Texas Building

Residence Permits Feature Activities During Past Week; New High Record Is Established

Eleven building permits issued during the week closing Saturday showed a preponderance of residence construction going on at this time, all but three of them being for homes and the entire number aggregating a total of $43,500. Other than residence this figure represents all but $4,500.

With a total of 665 permits issued during the current year, Lubbock's record stands to date at $3,141,689.

During the week, as compared to all other cities in the state of Texas, Lubbock ranks in Seventh place, an extraordinary good showing for a city of approximately 20,000, when its record is compared with the state's largest cities. Public Lands Committee Plans Probe Relative to Renewal of Salt Creek Royalty Contract Held By Sinclair

A Cabinet Officer, a Former Cabinet Officer and Two Assistants Are Summoned For Questioning

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—A cabinet officer, a former cabinet officer and assistants to two cabinet officers were summoned today by the senate public lands committee to appear before it beginning next Wednesday for questioning relative to the renewal of the Salt Creek royalty oil contract held by Harry E. Sinclair until it recently was nullified.

The committee decided to go into the oil contract renewal in connection with its consideration of the nomination of Roy O. West, of Chicago, as secretary of the interior. Mr. West, who received a recess appointment last summer was asked to testify at the Wednesday meeting. Hubert Work, who resigned as interior secretary to become chairman of the Republican national committee in the Hoover campaign, William J. Donovan, assistant to the Attorney General, and E. C. Finney, assistant secretary of the interior were summoned for Thursday. The sessions will be public.

Reviews Sinclair Contract
Mr. Work renewed the Sinclair contract early this year after consultation with the solicitor of the interior department, Ernest O. Patterson, who also has been called by the committee. Later, protests against the contract were entered and finally last October the department of Justice declared the contract void after President Coolidge had forwarded to it complaints received from Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana.

Walsh, a member of the public lands committee, asked the summoning of the witnesses called today by the committee, the nomination of Mr. West bringing the case to a head. He said he wanted to ask Mr. West if he took any steps to determine the legality of the renewal allowed by his predecessor when protests were lodged with the department.

Chairman Nye, of the committee, said no suggestion was made at today's meeting to question Mr. West along other lines but he believed there were some senators who wanted to ask about his purported connections with the Samuel Insull public utility interests.

Arkansas Assured Continued Membership In S. W. Loop

Golden Sandies Fall Before Running Attack Of Powerful Abilene Eagle

No Additions Are Favored By Board In Group Meeting

Tech Representatives Are Granted Interviews But No Action Is Taken; Cen- enary Also Is Bidder

(By Associated Press)
DALLAS, Dec. 8.—Arkansas University was assured continued membership in the Southwest conference, at least for one more year, when coaches, business managers and faculty advisers of the conference voted, in session here today, to retain the conference roster under the present status. Belief had been current that Arkansas would be asked to resign from the conference.

The faculty board, which held final judgment on all problems which arose during the session, went on record as favoring no additions. Seven schools compose the conference at present. Representatives from Centenary college of Shreveport and Texas Technological college of Lubbock were granted interviews at the meeting but did not present applications for admittance. Dr. D. A. Penick, Austin, president of the faculty board, said:

"The policy of the conference is to consider membership as permanent for all institutions that observe its regulations and desire to retain connection with the organization," a motion adopted by the faculty body stated. "In the future any movement for the detection or elimination of a member," the group voted, "must originate within the faculty board."

Dr. Penick said the faculty division had voted unanimously on the question. In connection with Arkansas conference representatives voted that the Porters move to Texas to play Louisiana State in order to be eligible for championship awards in football, and that Louisiana State University would not count as a member school. During the past gridiron season the Arkansas football team was granted permission to play Louisiana State with the understanding that the result would figure in Arkansas' final standing. The Louisiana institution does not belong to the southwest group.

Head Coach Francis A. Schmidt of Arkansas announced that games had been arranged for the 1929 football season with Texas University Baylor University, and Texas A. and M. college, and that a tentative date had been arranged with Rice Institute.

Having kept the ranks intact, the conference moved today that other football squads must appear on the Arkansas campus each four years unless gridiron events met on neutral ground by arrangement. This regulation, Dr. Penick announced, would be enforced religiously.

Appointment of a commissioner of athletics for the conference, suggested at the recent meeting in Fort Worth of the association of Texas colleges, was disapproved at the session. Instead, a special commission of presidents of the Southwest, Texas T. A. A. and the president and secretary of the association of Texas colleges. The group, which will begin to function immediately, will serve as a fact-finding and publicity organization.

Basketball Ruling
The rule which previously banned conference members from engaging in more than six basketball games prior to January 5 was amended and a clause was adopted preventing each team from participating in more than 20 games during the season. Each squad, the faculty committee ruled, must engage in 12 conference games.

A scouting rule was clarified and each man checking an opposing team must be certified to the institution's team which he is watching. The person must be a member of the coaching staff and will not be allowed to scout more than three football games each season.

The annual track meet at Fayetteville was transferred to Owyb Stadium at Southern Methodist University. Tennis championship matches will be played a week later at Austin.

Titles Awarded
Rice was awarded the track championship won last spring and Arkansas was declared the basketball title. Texas was named conference football champion and was voted the same distinction in golf, tennis and baseball.

Election of officers, faculty members announced, would be held at the spring meeting. Coaches and managers at a separate meeting moved to retain Arkansas as a member of the organization, with the stipulation adopted by faculty advisers with regard to four games.

GAME IS ASSURED
DALLAS, Dec. 8. (AP)—A football game next season between Southern Methodist University of Dallas and the Nebraska Cornhuskers, champions of the Big Six Conference, was definitely agreed upon by officials of the two schools here today.

League To Decide Port Arthur-Main Battle In Austin

Game Between Champions Of Districts 7 and 8 Ends In Tie; League Officials To Decide Who "Won"

(By Associated Press)
PORT ARTHUR, Dec. 8.—(AP)—The state interscholastic league in an executive committee meeting in Austin Monday will decide who "won" the football game here today between Port Arthur High school and Main Avenue of San Antonio. The score was 6 to 6, and according to agreement, the team that penetrated the opponent's 20-yard line the most was the winner.

Barry Holton, coach of Trinity University, who refereed today's game ruled that Port Arthur penetrated Main's 20-yard line three times and that Main penetrated Port Arthur's twice. There was some discussion to this ruling, however, as Holton did not count San Antonio's touchdown made from the 22-yard line as a penetration and it was agreed that the decision would be left up to the interscholastic league.

The winners will be declared champion of district 7 and 8 and meet Marshall in the semi-finals.

High School Cage Candidates Start Training Monday

Coach Del Morgan To Depend Upon Recruits To Build Basketball Team This Season

Basketball training at Lubbock High school will swing into the serious stages Monday afternoon when Coach Del Morgan calls his cage candidates together to begin intensive work for the coming season. With but three letter men returned from last year's team, the high school cage mentor will depend upon the recruits who have joined the squad this year for the 1928-29 team.

Ernest Dowell, H. A. Castleberry, and Hayden Moody are the letter men returned, while Joe Bailey Powers, Robert Rich and George Pierce are back from last year's squad. More than sixty candidates have reported for basketball duty in the early practice sessions.

Starting Tuesday afternoon, the squad will be divided into eight teams, each with eight men, which will engage in a lengthy tournament lasting until the Christmas holidays. Castleberry, Dowell, Rich, Moody and Powers will be in charge of the various quintets. Pioneers and Army meet Tuesday afternoon. Among the newcomers on the squad who are showing considerable promise are: Shaw, Kelsey, and Thornton. Several others whose names were not given are also looking good.

The tournament which is planned will give Coach Morgan a chance to weed out his squad down to a desirable working unit. After January 1, the number will be limited to twenty players.

Lack of promising material for this year's team was expressed by Coach Morgan.

"The moral backing and support of the fans will be needed this year as never before if we go as far in the state race as we did last year. At first glance our material looks rather dim. The progress of the team will depend almost entirely upon the recruits."

After taking the district championship last season and winning the district title from Canyon, the Western basketball team went to the state meet in Austin but lost to Cisco in the first game.

Poor training facilities furnishes a handicap for the high school eagles will undoubtedly be hard to overcome. An undersized court with a low ceiling and little seating capacity for the spectators is a condition that can hardly be advantageous to the progress of the sport

Application For Reinstatement Of Tilden Postponed

Rules Committee Will Decide On Standing Of Net Star In Meeting Set For February 8

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Action on the application for reinstatement of Big Bill Tilden was postponed until February by the executive committee of the United States Lawn Tennis association at its December meeting today.

Tilden's application for reinstatement was considered briefly today, but the committee voted to refer it to the amateur rule committee with instructions that it investigate it further, correspond and confer with Tilden and report at the next meeting of the executive committee, set for Feb. 8 in Boston, the day before the annual meeting of the Lawn Tennis association.

In connection with the Tilden case, the Davis Cup committee announced that it would recommend adoption of this rule at the association's annual meeting, February 9.

It was his newspaper articles on the Wimbledon tournament while he was a member of the American Davis Cup team that led to Tilden's disbarment from amateur competition last summer. He was barred from the Davis Cup interspersed finals against Italy, but was restored to the American squad in time to appear against the French in the challenge round when the United States failed in its attempt to lift the cup.

Tilden's application for reinstatement was tabled at the executive committee's September meeting and brought up for brief discussion today.

On the recommendation of the Davis Cup committee, it was decided that the United States would challenge in 1929 for the Davis Cup in the American zone as heretofore.

Sandstorm Eleven Stages Comeback But Loses, 26-2

Fighting Amarillo Crew Throws Scare Into Cam Of Dewey Mahew With Daring Aerial Display

(By Associated Press)
ABILENE, Dec. 8.—Amarillo Golden Sandstorm blew with tempestuous fury through four quarters here this afternoon, but when twilight fell it had been felled by the Abilene Eagles' powerful running attack.

The score was 26 to 21, representing one of the greatest thrillers in the history of West Texas high school football. Outscored and outplayed for the first three quarters, and part of the fourth the Sandstorm came back in the closing minutes of play to rush over touchdowns with a bewildering aerial attack and throw a scare in Coach Mayhew's stalwarts.

By outscoring the Amarillo game machine, the Eagles moved into the semi-finals of the state championship chase. They will meet the Chubburne Yellowjackets, titlists of districts 3 and 4, here either Friday or Saturday of next week. Should the Eagles down Chubburne would mark the fourth time Abilene had sent a team into the state finals.

Smith and Phelps Star
With Smith and Phelps taking turn swatting the Amarillo line skirting its ends, the Eagles had up a commanding lead of 19 to 7 at the halfway point of today's tussle. They increased their lead to 26 to 7 soon after the fourth period opened.

Then Amarillo unleashed its aerial attack directed by Travis and Wadley to score twice in five minutes. They supplied the thrill the pack stands had waited for.

In the last two minutes, however, Abilene was touchdown bound against the gun ending the game with a 35-yard run by Smith.

Walker and Travis, stars of a deceptive attack by the Sandstorm, tossed 20 complete passes during the game. Amarillo completed 34 runs down to 17 for the Eagles.

Twice when within striking distance of the goal Abilene had passed intercepted on first down. Eagles overhauled offense was what all afternoon.

Abilene scored first. Smith drove over guard after an 80-yard drive. Amarillo missed a field goal, but Amarillo went into the lead, 7 to 0, before the quarter was up when Travis sifted 13 yards through the line for touchdown.

Golden Tornado Decisively Defeats University of Georgia to Claim The Undisputed Championship of South

Lumpkin, Former Oak Cliff Star Is Star In Battle For Dixie Title; 35,000 See Contest

By HORACE C. RENEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer.

ATLANTA, Dec. 8. (AP)—Georgia Tech's Golden Tornado swept to undisputed championship of the Southern Conference today by crushing its ancient rival, the University of Georgia, 20 to 6.

The Georgia Bulldogs, however, provided sufficient thrills. Thirty-five thousand saw Lafayette, Georgia, end, take a pass over the Gold and White goal line in the first period to give his team a 6 to 0 lead. The first time this season any team has held a margin over Tech.

Stumpy Thomason, halfback, and Father Lumpkin, sophomore fullback, however, could not be denied. It was the ramming, battering Lumpkin who made a three-yard plunge for a touchdown in the second quarter and in the next period he rammed over left guard for another six-point.

Thomason, after giving the crowd a wonderful exhibition of broken field running and pace changing, added the third touchdown in the same quarter and in the next period he ripped center for four yards and a touchdown. This march started on Tech's own 42-yard line when Thomason took Harvey Hill's punt and ran it back to midfield. From there, he led a drive, aided by Mizzell and Lumpkin, straight across.

Tech was on the offensive most of the way. From the outset Lumpkin, Thomason, Mizzell, Dunlap and other backs dashed frequently for telling gains while Frank Waddley, end, snagged several passes.

Georgia's only touchdown came in the first period, when Peter Pund, Tech center, made a poor pass to Mizzell, who failed to pick up the ball. Palmer, Bulldogs end, recovered on Tech's 17-yard stripe and ran five yards. Then after three line plays failed, Hooks passed to Maffett over the goal for a touchdown.

Score by periods: Georgia Tech 0 7 13 0-20. Scoring — Georgia, touchdown, Maffett. Scoring — Tech: Touchdowns, Lumpkin, (2); Thomason. Points after touchdown, Thomason, (2).

DALLAS, Dec. 8. (AP)—Members of the Texas Athletic Conference meeting in semi-annual session here today postponed a contemplated ruling on participation of freshmen in athletics until May, when the discussion probably will be settled.

Among the rulings adopted at the session were that non-conference schools engaging in events with Texas Conference athletics teams must abide by conference regulations, and that prospective post season games must be sanctioned by T. B. Simms of Trinity University, re-elected president of the organization.

Member schools represented at the meeting enacted a ruling calling for a round robin basketball schedule in which each hoop squad must play ten games, the championship to be awarded on a percentage basis.

Howard Payne College of Brownwood was declared football champion.

Other officers, all of whom were re-elected, were: Vice president, J. H. Shelton, Howard Payne College, and secretary-treasurer, J. C. Godby, Southwestern University, Georgetown.

Sull Ross Gains Admission to The T. I. A. A. Family

Application of John Tarleton Rejected On The Grounds That School Is Not Senior Institution

(By Associated Press) DALLAS, Dec. 8.—Rejection of an application for membership by John Tarleton college of Stephenville and the admittance to its ranks of Sul Ross State Teachers college of Alpine were outstanding developments today at the winter meeting of the Texas Intercollegiate Athletic association.

John Tarleton was refused admittance because the West Texas institution did not rank as a senior college. D. A. Shirley, president of the organization, said. Admission of Sul Ross, which had been on probation for a year, raised the T. I. A. A. membership to ten.

The Freshmen ruling which some members have been following was changed in order to include the entire membership. Daniel Baker of Brownwood and McMurry college of Abilene, institutions which have been using first-year athletes, will not be required to ban freshmen players until next year's football season.

Award Titles

Members of the association gave the conference track meet to Southwest Texas Teachers college, San Marcos, and the cross country race to Daniel Baker, Shirley announced. Championship awards were made as follows, football, Daniel Baker; basketball, West Texas State Teachers college, Canyon; baseball, East Texas State Teachers college, Commerce; track, Abilene Christian college, Abilene; tennis, North Texas Teachers college, Denton; cross country, Sam Houston State Normal school, Huntsville.

McMurry college and North Texas Teachers college were named members of the appeals committee to pass on disputes. Shirley was re-elected president, T. H. Hart, Daniel Baker, was again named vice-president, and Dean J. F. Cox, Abilene Christian college, will serve another year as secretary-treasurer.

Lubbock Must Get New Material If City Enters Loop

Question of Hubbers Entering West Texas League Depends On Attitude Of Fans, Says President

The acquisition of two infielders and two outfielders is the problem facing the officials of three Lubbock Baseball Club of the West Texas League. Having recently sold infielders May and Sealing, to Tampa of the Florida State League, the local club will be on the market for good class D ivory during the winter trading season.

The question as to whether or not Lubbock is to be represented in the West Texas League next season is altogether up to the fans, according to H. H. Shell, president of the local organization.

At a recent meeting of West Texas League officials, Shell was present to represent Lubbock and paid the necessary fees to guarantee the entrance of the local club in the league next season. Sweetwater and Eastland are the new members of the League which were admitted at the meeting in San Angelo. The admission of these two completed an eight club circuit with the following cities represented: Lubbock, San Angelo, Coleman, Midland, Big Spring, Eastland and Sweetwater.

Following is the list of players on the reserve squad for Lubbock: Danny Lynch and Ben Brownlow, infielders; Jake Wilburn and Herman Kyle, outfielders; Homer Birch and Dick Ratliff, catchers; Red Hill, Jack Wood, Gene Bunt and Vincent Goddard, pitchers.

President Shell will attend a meeting of the league officials in Sweetwater on January 6, at which time the officers for the coming season will be elected.

Fourteen Men Answer Call Of Coach Matty Bell For Cage Season; Heavy Work To Begin Soon

FORT WORTH, Dec. 8.—Fourteen men answered the call of Coach Matty Bell at Texas Christian University this week for the first basketball practice. Despite the loss of almost all of last year's regulars, prospects for a good team are good and the Frogs will soon begin heavy work in preparation for their struggle for the title.

The men to answer the call were: Captain Horace Wallin, Clyde McDowell, Ralph Walker, Roy Eury, Cecil Province, Duane Smith, Noble Atkins, Austin Griffith, Clyde Robertson, Aaron Hays, Albert Flynn, Howard Baxter, Russell Chappell, and Othol Martin.

The squad is in pretty good condition already as most of the men were on the football squad. Drills to get the men familiar with handling the ball and getting their eyes on the loop are being engaged in. Several practice games will be played before the Frogs open their season here Jan. 7, and 8 with the Arkansas Razorbacks.

The Frogs are again favored to cop the bunting, with most of their turning. The Frogs will get a crucial test in the opening games of the year.

Cowan has been a star on the Sul Ross teams for three years, and made a touchdown in every game this year except one when he was suffering from an injured leg.

Hopes of Florida Of Championship Are Ruined, 13-12

Failure To Annex Extra Point Is Cause for Downfall of Alligators; The Favorites Lose

By ALAN J. GOULD.
Associated Press Sports Editor
KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 8.—The Volunteers of Tennessee, playing with all the dash and daring of youth, scuttled the Southern Conference championship hopes of Florida today in a thrilling climax to one of the greatest Dixie gridiron seasons.

These sturdy sons of Tennessee, with a scrappy fast charging line and three sensational sophomores in the backfield, ripped into the defense of the country's highest powered scoring machine, tore it apart in the first half with a bewildering attack and had the score to turn back Florida's desperate counter thrust that fell only a single point shy of securing the count. Tennessee's final margin was 13 to 12.

Only a Thanksgiving Day scoreless tie with Kentucky keeps the Vols from claiming an equal share of southern title glory with Georgia Tech, which closed its campaign at Atlanta today by beating Georgia before moving on to represent Dixie in the Rose Bowl game at Pasadena New Year's Day.

Impressive Record
As it stands, Tennessee, under the coaching of the old West Point star, Major Bob Neyland, has played twenty consecutive games over a three-year period without defeat, winning eighteen and tying two. Neyland rose from a sick bed, where he has been confined by "flu" for several days, to see his young charges outdo themselves today as they got the jump on the brilliant Florida army, took the lead in the second period and kept it to the finish in spite of the most determined counter charges of "Cannonball Clyde" Crabtree and his crew of fighting Gators.

Florida, unbeaten previously this year and with a speedy, well drilled outfit, entered the game top heavy as a favorite.

Each touchdown tallied by Florida put the Gators within a point of Tennessee but each time the failure of the try for extra point kept the visitors from catching their rivals.

Vols Start Strong
Tennessee's running attack with Hackman and McEver—ripping through Florida's line—got the home team off to a flying start.

Each of these stars scored a touchdown but it was the brilliant defensive all around defensive work of Dodd, aided by Hackman, that kept the Gators from flying through the air to victory. Playing at quarterback in place of the injured Captain Roy Witt, Dodd displayed superb generalship in his selection of plays and twice put Florida on the defensive with quick kicks that forced the Gator backs completely and cost them many valuable yards.

With the cleated shoes hung up to dry, the football rules committee now will begin its heavy work. Some day it may be suggested to them to put the rules into plain English. Some radical with an idea like that is just bound to bob up.

Or, each football team might carry two extras. These men would be habeas corpus sharks. A judge could be appointed by agreement of both schools and every time a play came to be questioned, the barristers could hold formal debate while the Gladiators rested.

Arnold Horween, Harvard coach, is married. His line must have held up pretty well. Now he can busy himself making ends meet.

Speaking of Chicago, we were wondering what the football prospects were at Wyoming next year.

Henry Cotton, British golfer, says he hopes to learn something about golf in America. Doubtless he will—undreamed of things.

The fight game isn't dead yet. The Garden was nicely filled the other night to watch a card on which there were no champions. It seems that the lads who have no titles are willing to hit one another.

One Smacking Isn't Bad

New York university, which has one of the very finest football teams in the country, will have to suffer in its national rating for the defeat that was administered by Georgetown. That is unless Georgia Tech should happen to be flattened by Georgia on Dec. 8.

The injustice of being penalized for the loss of one game is manifest particularly in the case of New York university. Here is a truly great team that was beaten on a field of mud by a touchdown resulting from a recovered fumble.

New York clearly outplayed Georgetown in every department of the game, and the team proved its class by beating Carnegie Tech after Tech had given a fine plastering to Georgetown.

We are not defending New York U. particularly or offering an alibi for one team in a favored section.

We are speaking for a lot of good teams that lost one game and were defeated for it.

It is becoming more and more apparent that it is humanly impossible for a team to go through a season undefeated. Schedule makers are looking to the big gates and imposing a burden upon a coach that cannot be assumed without two complete first class varsity teams.

Knute Rockne, Tad Jones, Pop Warner, Judge Steffen, Ruff Jones and all the ranking coaches of the country insist that it is impossible to keep a team at its peak for three successive weeks. And it is becoming the duty of a coach to keep his men pointed for five or six straight games during the season if they are to avoid a defeat. It is impossible to do it.

Carnegie Lost Edge
Take the case of Carnegie Tech against New York university. Carnegie the week before had looked like the greatest team in the country in beating Notre Dame. Carnegie was pointed for that game and won it handily. The team was not used up physically in the game. No substitutions had to be made until the final period and they were made then to relieve men who were tired. It looked during the entire game as if the team was winning under wraps.

Yet, Carnegie went into the New York game sluggish and stale. The players were not mentally alert. They were obviously from a mental let down. Their power on the line was there but they didn't jump into it as the New York forwards did and the line was always stepping back.

New York had no mental burden. They were prepared to shoot the works with abandon and they did. They had lost a game and while they might have cried about the bad break, they didn't. They went into the Carnegie team with the very apparent decision to beat a great team and they did.

Georgia Tech has yet to face the real hard test. There is no reason to figure that Georgia will put them in distress, but Tech has the mental hazard to face. It will go into the game standing as the favored team for the national championship and that will be a load to carry.

Georgia will make more than an underdog effort to win. Last year Georgia was standing as one of the ranking teams of the season and Tech wasn't so much but Tech went into the game and knock off Georgia.

And those college boys do remember.

Lubbock telephone girls got the "right" number in a big way Saturday, when they called up workers in the annual Red Cross roll call and told them to come and get the several dollars they had made up among them for this work.
Teams who had been canvassing the city for donations to the Lubbock chapter's annual fund had not called upon the telephone girls but the girls remembered the work, raised their own funds and let the workers know where to come and get it.

Occasional exports of these delicacies have left Texas ports during the previous Christmas seasons but never before have they been shipped in such volume.

Mr. Henry sold insurance amounting to $236,000, leading the entire state in volume of sales.
Mr. Henry has been in the insurance for seventeen years and has qualified for the annual trip each year. He started the Lubbock office about four years ago.

STREETS IMPROVED Slaton Thoroughfares Being Worked Over

SLATON, Dec. 8.—Following the recent purchase of new machinery for street maintenance work here, city officials announce that a program of street improvement will soon be completed throughout the city, wherever pavement has not been laid. Slaton's streets are in the best condition they have been in for several years, in the opinion of E. Barton, maintenance superintendent.
There are thirty-five blocks, nearly three miles, of streets that have been paved in Slaton. All paving is of brick on a concrete base, with a sand cushion between.

Gets Thrill Out of Air At 105

The thrill of a stormy night at sea in a sailboat cannot compare with the exhilaration of one's first airplane ride, in the estimation of Mrs. Georgiana Collett, 105-year-old Oakland, Cal. woman. Mrs. Collett, widow of a sea captain, went up on her birthday with Chet Dowling, Oakland pilot.

ENDORSED BY "ARTS AND DECORATION" MAGAZINE

THIS CHRISTMAS LIVING ROOM GROUP

What a cozy wing chair for Dad to have all his own! It's upholstered in a lovely green figured damask.

A fashionable occasional table in all mahogany with a quarter-matched croch mahogany top.

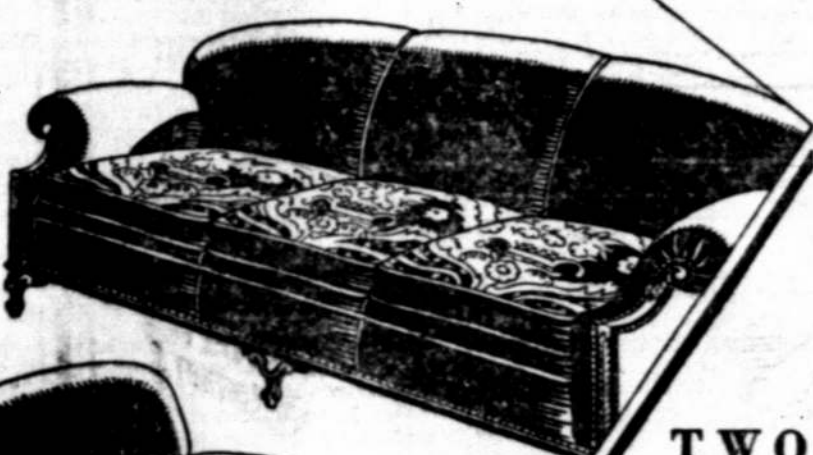

Here is a charming magazine-book stand of all walnut—with croch mahogany, hand-matched on the top.

This all-mahogany ladder-back chair makes an attractive piece anywhere in a room. A quiet tapestry covers the seat.

It looks like a high-back, but it's a secret. All mahogany with hand-matched swirl mahogany fronts. Three large drawers and roomy desk interior.

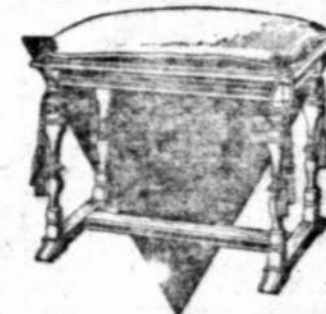

TWO PIECE SUITE

This comfortable down-filled davenport and chair are upholstered in green mohair with figured cushions of linen fringe. Legs and carvings are of solid mahogany.

A comfortable occasional chair upholstered in a new Ca-Vel rayon of Wedgewood pattern. The outer frame is solid walnut.

What an interesting piece! A radio bench in walnut with an upholstered pad in green rayon tied with cords and tassels.

Three dainty little nesting tables of all mahogany with tops of quarter-matched croch mahogany.

All mahogany frame surrounds the 14 x 28 glass, with croch mahogany and burl maple decorating its Colonial top.

Open the top, and the console table becomes a 36-inch card table. All mahogany with large surfaces of croch mahogany. Carved satinwood overlays and burl maple inlay.

How pleasingly the pieces in this "Arts and Decoration" Group combine into "homey" groups in a room. Don't they suggest delightful "group-gifts" for the children to give the home? Or for parents to give married children for their homes?

Here is a way to select a gift that will make this Christmas long and pleasantly remembered. Choose furniture endorsed by "Arts & Decoration."

This leading authority on interior decoration chose this group as one which will add the utmost charm and up-to-the-minute style to the modern living room.

Select the whole group or any of the twelve pieces from it. Each one created by Berkey & Gay designers and made by the Grand Rapids Upholstering Company. Several are upholstered in genuine Ca-Vel, the nationally advertised "Velvets of Enduring Beauty."

With this endorsement you can be sure they will please—that they will fit into almost every living room arrangement, and give a lifetime of satisfaction. Yet the prices are lower, as you will see, than you would pay for just ordinary gifts.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7. (P)—The roar of the crowd at historic old Madison Square Garden's site is being succeeded by the hum and bustle of business.

The huge task of moving millions of documents, some dating back to 1845, and millions of dollars worth of assets will keep the employees and a fleet of trucks busy day and night for a week and will cost more than $100,000, officials of the company say.

The new building has an assessed valuation of $16,000,000.

Oil Contract Holds Spotlight In Session Saturday; Senate Hears Debate of Boulder Dam

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—Congress wound up the first week of its session today by bringing the oil question once more to the forefront of the issue facing the three months session.

With the house in recess and its committee only moderately active the senate public lands committee decided to go into the contract Harry F. Sinclair had for oil from the Salt Creek field, which has been held invalid by the department of Justice.

Along with consideration of the nomination of Roy C. West as secretary of the interior next week a number of witnesses, including former Secretary Work of the interior department, will be called for questioning in connection with the contract which Mr. Work renewed before leaving office.

Senate Hears Debate
The senate, as on days past, listened to a continuation of the debate on Boulder dam. Starting out with a prediction from Senator Odie, of Nevada, that a settlement of the dispute over water between California and Arizona might be near, it ended the day without material progress except that it recorded the views of many on the subject.

The principal achievement among house committees was a decision by the rules committee to give preferred status to two foreign debt settlement plans.

Estimated Abandonment Of 3.4 Per Cent Is Given

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(AP)—The department of agriculture today forecast the 1928 cotton crop at 14,133,000 equivalent 500 pound bales in its final estimates of the season.

The census bureau at the same time reported total ginnings of the 1928 crop prior to December 1 at 12,861,618.

Weather Has Influence

The department, in announcing the estimate, said "The final total ginnings for the season will depend on whether the various influences affecting the harvesting of the portion of the crop still in the field will be more or less favorable than usual."

The acreage for harvest was reported as 45,826,000 acres and the percent of abandonment since July 1 was given as 3.4 percent and the indicated yield per acre of lint cotton was placed at 151.8 pounds. The department said that on July 1 the acreage in cultivation was 46,943,000 acres.

An estimated abandonment of 3.4 percent of the estimated acreage in cultivation on July 1 compared with 4.2 percent for 1927 and with 3.6 percent for the ten-year average abandonment after June 25 or July 1 for the years 1918-1927.

The revised estimate of 45,826,000 acres for harvest compared with 40,138,000 acres in 1927 and 40,832,000 for the five-year average for 1923-1928.

The total yield of lint cotton per acre on the area for harvest of 151.8 pounds compared with 154.5 pounds in 1927 and 153.8 for the five average 1922-1926, and with 156.3 pounds for the ten-year average.

The estimated world's production of commercial cotton exclusive of linters, grown in 1927, as compiled by the department from various sources was 23,370,000 bales, counting American in running bales and foreign bales of 478 pounds lint, while the consumption of cotton for the year ending July 31, 1928, was approximately 25,285,000 bales.

The total number of spinning cotton spindles, both active and idle, was reported as about 165,000,000.

No Peace Without Justice

"Although the war was not in keeping with this policy since war is an appeal to force and liberalism an appeal to reason, out of this great struggle a greater vision of no peace without justice, and Wilson's idea of world peace approached justice more than any other thing in history. This contribution of a genius—a contribution which will bring renown to his name after the apparently outshining figures during the past decade have been lost in the dust of oblivion."

"The election of Harding," the suit of a wave of animosity throughout the nation; a time of dissatisfaction and disillusionment of everything which caused the people to turn away from all liberalism. When Coolidge became president, with his cool, hard boiled economy, the people were led nowhere, but that is what they wanted—to mark time for awhile. The nation turned to business as a savior, a guide, and a philosopher. An unparalleled era of prosperity, a sharp rise of wages, and a tremendous economic surplus, built on an approximate economic justice resulted.

"But this is not the end. Man changes as his environment changes, and prosperity, in itself, is not an end; it must create something greater."

Predicts Tech Future

Mr. White predicted that Texas Tech would become one of the greatest institutions in the Southwest as the nation tended toward industrialism. Following the address, Mr. White answered a number of questions answered by members of the audience. He predicted that a new development of liberalism, in the form of a different alliance, would form soon in either democratic or republican party. "It is possible," he stated, "that the Hoover administration will develop liberalism. The unity of the liberals of both parties when questions arise between the liberals and the conservatives will be the best solution for the advancement of the cause of liberalism."

Mr. White concluded by stating that in his opinion Hoover would make an honest effort for farm relief. He admitted that the farmers, the only unorganized class in America, were in a bad condition under the present conditions.

ment at Texas Tech of 10,000 students within the next ten years. He based the future success of technological colleges on the theory that this nation is entering an unparalleled era of industrialism.

Man Must Know Trade

"This trend is inevitable," he said, "no matter how much stress we may wish to place on agriculture: it is the man who knows a trade that will be on top in the near future."

Mr. White arrived here on the 4:40 o'clock afternoon train and departed for Amarillo following his address last night on the Amarillo football special which was returning from Abilene. His lecture here was in connection with a series of lectures throughout Texas, including such places as Dallas, San Antonio, A. and M. College, Huntsville, and Abilene. From Amarillo he will go home and he hopes never to leave again. "If the eyes of Texas have been upon me on this tour they have become cross-eyed by this time trying to keep up with me," he said.

"Politics play very small part in my young life," said the editor. "The result of the recent election was alright, but I would have been contented running my newspaper no matter how it turned out." He based his opposition to Gov. Alfred Smith, with whom he figured in a recent controversy, on the grounds of the governor's prohibition stand.

"But that is all history now," he said.

When asked which he considered the greatest of the many books he had written, the author replied, "I am about my books as mothers are about their children: I always think the last one is the best." His last work is "Masks in the Pageant," which is a series of personal political sketches dealing with leading political figures during the last four decades. He is writing on his next book at the present time. It is to be a biography of Teddy Roosevelt under the title "A Friend's Chronicle."

County Ginnings

was something like 500 bales, the figure this week being 5,018 bales as compared to 4,521 for the past Saturday.

At Idalou four gins reported about 300 bales, an increase of approximately 300 bales since last Saturday. Station's six gins and the three in the nearby communities reported about 4,600 bales—the estimate being made necessary due to the fact that figures from some of the rural gins were unavailable. This compared to 4,200 for the past week.

At Abilene, Lubbock county was figured in for 600 bales of the ginnings there. Most of Abilene lies in Hale county.

Shallowater

Shallowater's ginnings look a spurt, soaring to 1,125 bales for the two gins there. At Hurwood about 500 bales had been ginned. The Canyon gin reported 689 bales for the season to date. Ginnings at Monroe were standing at the 1,200 mark.

At Wolffarth, ginnings were 820 bales.

Estacado and Beeton reported 650 bales and 260 bales respectively. Acuff reported 1,466, showing the greatest gain of any of the key points questioned in the Avalanche-Journal survey. Woodrow reported more than one thousand bales County Line and New Hope, unable to be reached over telephone, are estimated at 700 bales each.

In the afternoon the regular annual business session will be held at the courthouse.

Reports To Be Given.

Reports from members of the clubs will be given and awards of certificates and prizes during the day. There are to be about $200 in prizes awarded, the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce and the Lubbock County Farm Bureau sponsoring the prizes and luncheon. Each member will be the recipient of a special prize, which is being kept a secret from them.

This is the fourth annual "Achievement Day" meeting of the two organizations, which now have a membership of approximately 500. D. F. Eaton, county agent, states the 4-H club boys now number about 300 and Miss Louise Baird, county home demonstration agent, announces there are around 200 4-H club girls in the county at this time. Eighteen organized clubs of 4-H boys are in the county.

with some other part of the constitution.

It is indicated that one of the first acts of the committee will be to invite an opinion from Pollard on the legal phases of the proposed constitutional amendment.

Salons Are Disappointed

Members of the 41st legislature which meets here in January, and on whose action any proposed plan must wait, who have been drifting into the capitol since the committee's meeting, in most instances have expressed dissatisfaction with the "relief" plan as tentatively drafted.

Members of the state highway commission will be in Austin Monday and available to the committee.

Chairman R. S. Sterling has presented his proposal of a $350,000 bond issue, providing refunds to counties of moneys spent on construction upon designated state highways, to the committee, and it is a modified form of his plan that was tentatively adopted by the finance sub-committee.

said that at times he had been subject to "spells."

"You have never had any mental lapses, any mental aberrations during your lifetime, have you?" he was asked.

"Yes, I have had some spells of that kind. I fell out of the courthouse at Belton once and it got on my head. Since that time I get spells when I don't remember," he answered.

"Vest," testimony "howed, appeared before Mathews, with a notary public letter and a telegram authorizing him to collect the $2,000 that had been wagered by Adams in the name of W. Tom Ramsey and Ben C. Richards, Dallas Ku Klux Klan leader. The telegram was from a "W. Tom Ramsey" of Waco, and the letter was signed by a notary public whose name later was found to be fictitious.

City's Dream Realized As Federal Court Is Opened

First Term Starting Tomorrow Will Bring Successful Climax To Effort Extending Through Fourteen Years

Banquet Will Honor Visiting Officials Monday Evening; Sizeable Docket Is Facing Opening Term

With the opening tomorrow of the initial session of the Lubbock Division of the Federal Court of the Northern District of Texas, the fond pipe dream of a number of public-spirited Lubbock citizens will at last be realized.

Growing out of a determined movement which was extended over 14 years, Lubbock's Federal Court at last has become a reality, assuming definite and visible proportions for the first time in the lengthy fight for the seat of the district court.

Building Is Next Step

The next step in the city's forward march for the court will be the erection of the Federal building, for which the site, the southeast corner of the courthouse square, has already been selected. As now proposed, this building will include not only the courtroom, federal offices, but the local postoffice as well. The house committee in congress last week recommended that appropriations of $220,000 be set aside for the postoffice part of the building and that it be so constructed that the addition for the federal court could be made at a later date when the business of the court justified separate quarters.

Federal District Judge James C. Wilson and George W. Parker, federal district clerk, are expected to arrive in the city sometime today in preparation for the court opening. Rooms for the visiting court attaches have already been reserved at a local hotel.

No Grand Jury This Term

A sizeable docket, including petitions for review in bankruptcy cases, law suits, injunctions, and criminal cases, are scheduled for disposal before Judge Wilson. The petit jury to be used during this season of court has been summoned by Mrs. Olive Fluke, deputy district clerk of Lubbock. No grand jury will convene during the court session here, the last jury at the Amarillo division of the court handling the indictments to be considered here.

Some representative of the federal district attorney's office at Fort Worth will arrive in the city about the middle of the week to represent the government in its cases.

Banquet Program Set

The Lubbock County Bar association will welcome Judge Wilson and other court officials at a banquet at the Hotel Lubbock tomorrow night. Visitors will be honor guests. Roscoe Wilson, president of the county association, will act as toastmaster at Dorrance D. Roderick will give a vocal solo and J. E. Vickers will talk on the relation of the local bar to the Federal court. "The Lubbock Bar, Yesterday and Today" will be the subject of an address by George R. Bean. Mrs. Richard Douglas will sing a solo.

The principal address of the evening will be delivered by Judge Wilson on "The National Conformity Act." Arrangements and the program of the banquet were made by a committee of the bar association, composed of C. C. Crenshaw, chairman; J. E. Vickers, E. L. Klett and George Dupree.

Paducah Hunter Kills Big Bend Bear Lubbock Thrilled By Sight Of Bruin

"We killed a bear." The "we," in this instance, being a faithful 30-30 rifle and the trigger finger of L. B. Neeley, of Paducah, who shot the bear while riding horseback at full speed. Picking up the trail of Mr. Bruin, the hunter carefully and tediously for five days followed the trail of his game, but he kept it up and finally, as a reward to all of his trailing, he saw the huge black bear in the distance. Scouting danger, the bear began to run and the hunter made chase on horseback. It was a long exciting race with the bear finally losing his margin of distance.

Last Bullet Gets Bear
A mile after mile they raced with Neeley firing at every chance, as his mount raced ahead at full speed. Finally a bullet hit its mark and the bear, realizing that he was caught, turned to give battle, charging the rapidly approaching rider. With only one bullet left in his rifle, Neeley lowered his gun at the ferocious bruin, made a hasty aim, and fired. The bear reared up, then fell dead.

This hunt took place in the "Big Bend" country along the Rio Grande, about 350 miles south of here. In the vast rough, mountainous, unpopulated area, Neeley began his trip with only a guide as a companion. He was alone, however, when he bagged his bear.

One of Largest Ever Shot

The bear, a huge, shaggy, black animal, weighed 350 pounds, and was said to have been the biggest one ever found in that section. A large deer completed the game bagged by Neeley on his hunting trip. Mr. Neeley was in Lubbock Friday afternoon enroute home with the evidence of his marksmanship. A short pause in the streets of the city, with the bear and deer on the rear of his car, was sufficient to draw an inquisitive, interested crowd. Mr. Neeley was forced to answer scores of questions during his short stay here. He plans to have the bear mounted.

It was his first bear-kill, he said, and he was plenty proud of it.

Meeting of Home Economics Group Closes Saturday

Helpful Discussions Are Led By Tech Teachers And Miss Lillian Peek; Luncheon Served

Talks on standards for clothing construction, points in the use of color and a demonstration in home economics closed the district home economics conference yesterday noon at the Technological college. The conference was in session for two days with teachers from points in West Texas and New Mexico in attendance.

Miss Margaret Weeks is conference leader and conducted the meeting with the assistance of Miss Lillian Peek of Austin who is state supervisor of home economics.

Have Display
Projects in home economics were on display in laboratories at the high school and Tech. Friday's meeting was at the high school and yesterday's meeting was at the Technological college home economics building. Visiting teachers inspected the home economics practice at the Technological college.

The Mary Emma club of high school students and the Tech catering class which is taught by Miss Dorothy McFarland served a luncheon yesterday at the Tech. In addition to the out-of-town teachers, high school home economics teachers and a few other visitors attended the luncheon.

Helpful suggestions were given in all the talks during the conference which was devoted to a large extent to discussions led by Miss Peek, Miss Weeks or others.

Aids Are Suggested
Aids in teaching, such as illustrative material, bulletin boards, field trips, scores cards and note books, were discussed early yesterday morning after which Miss Mabel Erwin, head of the clothing department at Tech, talked on standards for clothing construction. Miss Mabel Delaney, also of the Tech, gave a helpful talk on color and Miss Collins, Belle Collins, senior student at the college, gave an illustrated talk on home furnishings.

Miss Peek gave suggestions for the use of cotton and other problems were discussed. Some time was spent in visiting the various laboratories at the college.

How to Achieve Beauty

It sounds quite elaborate—"beauty tools," but under that classification come such simple, everyday, useful commodities as brushes and mirrors and manicure sets and so on. Among your intimates, these tools are quite perfect. When it comes to the outer circle of acquaintances, however, I should be somewhat circumspect about his type of present.

There are certain variations which are suitable for anyone. Mirrors for instance; another very giveable thing is a charming homemade powder puff. An ordinary round puff is purchased at the five and ten cent store and fastened to a long stick wound around with narrow ribbon. The back of the puff is stiffened by a satin covered circle of cardboard which is glued on to the puff itself. The end of the stick running between. A few stitches through the center of the hold the stick in place. Satin rosebuds or silver binding makes a pretty finishing touch to this dainty boudoir accessory.

Brushes and combs and manicure articles should be selected, if possible, to match boudoir color schemes. This little thoughtfulness makes a world of difference in the success of your gift.

One shop in Paris was showing a little covered basket threaded with pink and rose ribbon and filled with tiny balls of cotton to be used as guest hoom powder puffs. I thought they were lovely and sensible and suitable. And for the skillful woman, they should be easy and inexpensive to make.

Reducing rollers and patters are sensible gifts, but don't please, give them to Aunt Adelaide if she refuses to admit even to herself that she's just a wee mite plump! She'll cut you out of her will!

Christmas Books Added to Stacks Of Library Here

Recitations for Christmas Typed for Teachers; Non-Fiction Received Here by Library

Copies of Christmas recitations, which will be loaned to public and Sunday school teachers, have been added to the stacks of the County Library, according to an announcement made by Miss Frances Hoyt Ford, librarian. So many calls are being made for these recitations that copies of the poems were typed to meet the demand, she said.

Books about Christmas have been added to the library stacks recently. Among these copies are "But Once a Year," by Abbott; "Feast of Noel," by Crowfield; "Christmas Book," by Lewis; "Plays for American Holidays," by Schaeffer; "Once at Christmas," by Speakman and Van Dyke; "Even Unto Bethlehem."

Also Other Books
Fiction and non-fiction volumes are other additions to the library. The librarian has reported, giving short reviews of the non-fiction.

The list of fiction includes "Lambert in Her Hand" by Aldrich; "Taken Child," Chamberlain; "Deeping's Old Pybus," by Fraser; "Swinging Shutters" by Fraser; "Harvest," Gibbs; "Wild Horse Mesa," Grey; "Joshua's Vision," Locke; "Gay Courage," Loring; "Diana Drew" Rose; "Four Ducks in a Pond," Sawyer; "Hand some Man," Turnbull; "Respectable Lady," Tynan.

Reviews Given
Other new books include the following: William Beebe, "Beneath Tropic Seas." In this book we have the land of Jules Verne. Here we find corals and other submarine growth of extravagant colors and all the beautiful adventures that would happen "behind the looking glass." Samuel Hoffenstein, "Poems in Praise of Practically Nothing." Humor is truth, or deliberate distortion of truth. Both varieties of humor are in this book, and there is much real poetry in it too.

Edward Hope, "Alice in the De-lighted States." A book of glorious fun that is absolutely unique. Mr. Hope has not parodied Lewis Carroll but has caught the spirit and has turned it full upon our times and customs. A search for a dull line is like a wild goose chase.

Donald Keyhoe, "Flying With Lindbergh." Lindbergh as hero, as adventurer and as the symbol of the American spirit are becoming familiar representations to use. In this book we have the real Lindbergh as a human being.

Dorothy Parker, "Tough Rope." With a most every day vocabulary Miss Parker creates verses which are sometimes exquisite, sometimes comical, sometimes whimsical; but verses which are pointed, swift and vivid. She has in short done a new thing.

School Children Aid In Work of Salvation Army

Lubbock public school pupils will assist the Salvation Army this year in fixing up Christmas food baskets for the poor and needy of the city, according to officers of the Army yesterday.

Superintendent M. H. Duncan, of the city schools, has pledged the support of the local pupils. On December 21 the students will bring food of all kinds to school. It will be arranged into baskets and distributed by the Salvation Army.

These donations will not affect the usual Salvation Army Christmas kettles, officials of the organization explain, as it will be necessary to purchase a number of things not donated by the youths of the city. The kettles will be placed on the streets, starting December 10.

First Play for Season To Be Directed by Miss Ruth Pirtle Will Be Given In January

Try-outs for the Little Theatre play, "Sun-Up" which is to be given during January, are to be conducted at 7:30 o'clock Monday evening at the Chamber of Commerce, according to an announcement made last evening.

The Widow Cagle, who is described as a frail, but wiry, type of woman, is a leading character in this three-act play which has nine players. This play was written by Lulu Vollmar who has an intimate knowledge of the mountaineers of North Carolina and Kentucky, who are seen in this production.

This is to be the first play of this season directed by Miss Ruth Pirtle who was recently chosen director of Little Theatre plays here.

Barn Beats Hotel Says Youth Whose Stock Won Prizes

Iowa Boy Receives $5000 In Sale of Grand Champion at International Livestock Exposition

(By Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—A boy who would rather sleep in a barn with his prize cattle than stay in a stuffy city hotel, combed the straw out of his hair today and walked out in the auction ring of the International Livestock exposition to collect about $5,000 for his grand champion steer, Carcase, at $6.75 per pound.

He is Keith Collins, Marshall county, Iowa, farm lad, who sold his prize steer, Benny, for $4,973.50 to a New York market. The steer was one of two which made livestock history at the 1928 exposition, Benny winning not only the grand championship for the best carcass dressed.

Keith has been staying in the cat-barn with his stock. He said he would a hotel the first night he was here, but couldn't sleep. Later in the day he sold two champion steers to the champion he had had raised, one of them netting $30 per hundred and the other $18. He raised the animals in the junior feeding contest of the four-H club.

Clarence Goecke, 12 year old Marshall county, Iowa, livestock king, whose yearling steer, Dick, won the grand championship of the show, sold its two champion steers, one netting $19.50 and the other $18.25. They were half brothers of the champion, which he sold for $7.00 per hundred.

The sales were the last important events of the stock show program, excepting nightly horse shows and a few judging classes.

DAYS ARE NUMBERED

Radio Commission To Die Next March 26

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8 (AP).—The approaching death of the radio commission, which goes out of office next March 16, under the present law, was the subject of conferences today at the capitol and at the commission.

Introduction of legislation to prolong the body was considered at a meeting of senate and house members called by Chairman Watson of the senate interstate commerce committee. It was decided to determine the sentiment of congress on the subject before attempting a move in this direction.

THE TINYMITES

BY HAL COCHRAN

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The sled dogs all began to bark, and Clowdy stood and whispered, "Hark! I think I hear some jingle bells. Perhaps it's Santa's sleigh!" Then Scouty said, "You're wrong once more. Those bells are hanging on the door of Toyland. It's the wind that makes them tinkle loud that way."

"And, as to dear old Santa Claus, he's likely far inside because no doubt he's very busy making toys for girls and boys. As soon as we are right up near, we'll leave our dogs and sled out here. I fear, if they are taken in, they'll make far too much noise."

At last the little dogs stopped still. The Tinymites almost took a spill, but hung on to each other till they scrambled to their feet. They rushed up to the Toyland gate, and Copy said, "Now shall we wait, or shall we shout so we will bring somebody we can meet?"

"Let's walk right in," another said. And Clowdy answered, "Go ahead! But I will wait right here till I'm invited. I'm polite." Just then they heard some footsteps soft. And right near by somebody coughed. The Tinymites looked up and

Northcott Denies Slaying To Mother Of Alleged Victim

Accused Owner Of 'Murder Farm' Denies Murdering Any Boys Whose Deaths Are Laid To Him

(By Associated Press)
LOS ANGELES, Dec. 8.—Brought face to face with the mother of one of his alleged victims, Walter Collins, Gordon Stewart Northcott in a police hospital late today told Mrs. Christine Collins: "I kill your boy, Walter."

"I never saw him," Northcott declared. "I didn't kill any of the boys they said I did." Mrs. Collins appeared before Northcott as the accused slayer lay ill from a severe cold. As she walked toward his cot, Northcott turned and a smile showed on his face. "This is Mrs. Collins," a jail attendant said.

"Oh, I'm so glad to see you," Northcott replied. "Believe me, Mrs. Collins, I never knew, never saw, nor did I kill your boy." It was the first time Northcott had seen Mrs. Collins, and the meeting was arranged at the request of Mrs. Collins' attorney in the hope that some information leading to the disappearance of her son last March, might be disclosed.

As she left the hospital, she said: "I believe he told me the truth." And added that she still was confident that her son is alive somewhere.

PRAISES AMERICA

Efforts To Link Air Routes Commended

CHICAGO, Dec. 8 (AP).—America's strides to link her air and rail facilities into one vast transportation network is viewed by Brig. Gen. Lord Thompson, former British minister of air, as one of the greatest stimulants to aviation ever devised by a nation.

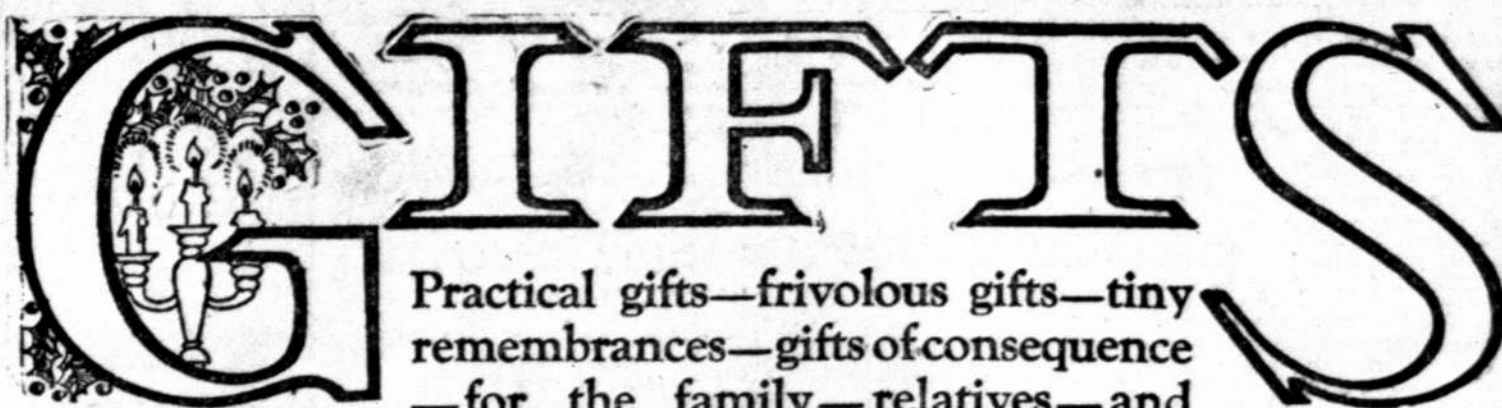

As head of the British delegation to the International Civil Aeronautics conference, which opens at Washington Dec. 12, Lord Thompson addressed a large gathering of American and foreign notables in aeronautics today. The banquet was given as Chicago's tribute to the visiting delegates, who stopped here for the international aeronautics exposition enroute to Washington.

VISIONS

"It was not disobedient unto the Heavenly vision."
—Acts 26:19. Every thoughtful or thinking person has a vision; not the vision of wealth and its splendor, but the vision of universal unity, happiness and peace. As the world was closed with victory of a new freedom for all, multitudes had a vision of nations established in justice, good will and accord.
Let us hope that such a vision will not be allowed to vanish as a forgotten dream. Work with the faith and spirit that some day this will be realized. There is the vision of the reign of Christian principles of life. As we look back to the time of the Lord's advent, or a hundred years or even a decade, the increase of His kingdom is unmistakable. Men and women strong in faith, courage and principle are helping on in its fulfillment. Paul in the presence of those that sought to kill him, stood bold and strong, and without restraint or modification declared Christ's doctrine. The doctrine prevailed, and without such staunch stalwart men as Paul, Christianity would not have taken root. The world today is suffering for more men and women of courage to stem the discouragement arising from the obvious plunge into pleasure-seeking, sensationalism, indulgence and the many other evils that spring from seeking the satisfaction of self-love. Deficient never be thought of, but the kingdom of heaven stand out in defense of the Christ, and the Christian religion, and if this is done the vision of Christian faith, life and happiness will progress to victory.
Faith gives unfailing energy. As surely as creation progressed from the nebulae to man, man will continue on in the spiritual ascent unto the attainment of God in the here and now. The kingdom of heaven upon the earth. This is God's plan. The omnipotent will of God can do all.

Progress commences in the individual. We best bring the kingdom upon the earth by establishing it in ourselves. Truth and righteousness can be as strong upon earth as they are in us. Evil has no more power in an individual than he thinks. Believe that evil has no power in you, and it will have none. Temptations enter through the gates of doubt and fear. Fear not. In the presence of the feelings that disturb our peace and threaten spiritual death, proclaim the saving power of the Lord.
Then, through steadfast faith and truth willed and done, God will make real the vision of right and duty.

SAY IT WITH GIFTS.

Though many things seem to point to the increasing indifference and selfishness of mankind, numerous gift days appearing on the calendar, and almost universally observed by the masses, would lead one to believe that liberality is becoming more pronounced. Or is it extravagance or the craving for luxury? There are several ways of looking at the matter, of course. But, anyway, men, women and children are always giving and deriving a great deal of interest and pleasure from the practice. It seems Christmas used to be the only holiday that was, in a general sense a gift day. Young and old were tendered presents on that occasion, just as they are today and there was much rejoicing. But the public seems not to have been satisfied with that annual exhibition of liberality, hence took it upon itself to create a number of other days to be marked by the tendering of tokens, emblematic of love and friendship.

For instance, there is Mother's Day. Postoffice employees advise us the gift package rush on this momentous occasion is growing greater every spring.
Yet at its origin Mother's Day was not a gift day but rather a day of tribute to this parent when a card with pensive or grateful words of love and greeting would be sent and crimson and white symbolical flowers worn.

But let's start at the beginning—there are many other gift days. It isn't at all uncommon to bestow or receive presents on New Year's Day, because the idea persists that we start the new era out right by putting thought and love into the background. After New Year's comes Valentine Day, an occasion that formerly was devoted to the sending of love missives. In this progressive and liberal age, however, a carton of candy, a box of flowers, a bit of jewelry or some such article must accompany the sentimental message, else the note will lose force.

By and by Easter arrives to glorify the calendar and children and adults alike again come in for their share of gifts. Flowers feature at that time but other remembrances have a good average. Easter is followed by Mother's Day, and Mother's Day gives place to Decoration Day when wreaths or floral emblems are placed on the graves of the dear departed.
Graduation time, wedding and Father's Day ensue and presents are frequent.

Following the summer respite from giving, Halloween appears with its gay carnival spirit and shop windows filled with alluring Halloween boxes of candies for mother, sweetheart, daughter, wife, sister and even for the man with a sweet tooth. Thanksgiving, originally the day of roast turkey and gratitude follows, but it also must have its gift shower as thankfulness is well expressed by giving. Then Christmas makes its advent and everybody, even long-suffering dad and hubby who pays the bills, and the most obscure little tatterdemalion gets a present. And all through the year there is his royal highness, the new baby, who expects and gets a deluge of gifts at his entrance to this mortal coil.

Truly life is one great succession of gift-tendering. Anniversaries, holidays, festivals and auspicious events there are galore and all of them have as their slogan, "Say it with gifts."

The Sacrifice.

"It was a great sacrifice on the part of the cook to make you that meat pie. I'm sorry it is scorched."
"Yes, I was just going to say that it was a burnt offering," was hubby's reply.

On the Firing Line at the Nation's Capital

SENATORS WINDING-UP TERM A SORRY SIGHT
By CHARLES P. STEWART
Washington Correspondent

ASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—A senator, back in Washington for his last three months, after being beaten for re-election, is a sad sight.

So is a beaten representative, but he is lost in a bigger crowd.

A senator is much more conspicuous, in proportion to his greater size.

Eight senators, no less, are scheduled this time to warble their swan melodies between now and inauguration day, next March.

They were not all beaten for re-election, but all were beaten in one way or another, just as badly, or worse—with a single exception, Senator George P.
McLean of Connecticut, who, at more than 70, is tired of politics and retires voluntarily.

Perhaps Senator Jim Reed of Missouri took the most magnificent whaling. He was a candidate for a bigger thing than a senatorship—for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Missing it, he also loses his senate seat. He lost his state for his party. He lost the whole shooting match.

Jim Reed looks like a total loss politically.

Senator Peter G. Gerry of Rhode Island was pretty noticeably licked.

Out of Al Smith's little handful of states, wee Rhody was one—and yet Peter, on the same ticket with Al, went into the discard. The conclusion is hard to escape that the Rhode Island voters went some considerable distance out of their way to hand a lemon to Pete.

Senator M. M. Neely of West Virginia took a plain beating, with no particular trimmings.

M. M. is fairly entitled to say that he was the victim of an "off year" for his brand of politics—that, though beaten, he was not smashed flat.

That, in 1930, when it will be Senator Guy D. Goff's turn to defend his toga, maybe it will be worth his while to try again.

Senator Earle B. Mayfield of Texas had no chance to be beaten for re-election.

Tom Connally beat him out of a renomination a good many weeks before election day rolled around, relieving Earle of all worry concerning the outcome after that.

Earle has had hard luck ever since he came to Washington. His original election was contested. His state refused even to let him run a second time. He can hardly be said to have been a senatorial success.

A whole dynasty of statesmen may be considered as having been bowed over when Senator Thomas P. Bayard went down to defeat in Delaware.

His father, his grandfather, his great-grandfather and his great-great-grandfather were senators before him. So was one of his great uncles. His son, Thomas P. Jr., was said to be looking forward to a senate seat in due course.

Senator William Cabell Bruce of Maryland and Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey simply did not get enough votes—either because they both were wets, or because of the G. O. P. landslide offer whatever reason you please. Interpret it to suit yourself.

There is little balm in Gilead for the Jeffersons in this showing.

Senator McLean is a Republican and a Republican succeeds him. Senators Reed, Gerry, Neely, Bayard, Bruce and Edwards are Democrats whom Republicans succeed.

Tom Connally is a Democrat, but Senator Mayfield, whom he succeeds, is a Democrat, too.

TISSUES

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

TWO human beings seldom resemble each other exactly. Some of us are tall, other short; some others are broad, others narrow; some have powerful muscles, others less, thin muscles.

It is possible by training and care to develop tissues which would otherwise tend to weakness.

In a consideration of the changes in posture during childhood, Drs. Sweet, Watson and Stafford emphasize the fact that the tall, slender, long-muscled, loose-jointed person is more likely to slump into bad posture than the shorter, better muscled person. Men in these modern times who are of medium build get along better than those who are hampered by too powerful muscles or too short tendons.

Contributing Factors
The development of good posture is influenced by many factors, including habits of standing, walking and sitting, the wearing of bad shoes or short socks, sleeping in beds that sag, sitting in badly built chairs.

The California investigators have pointed out that every normal infant is bow-legged, and that its legs straighten when it begins to walk, providing it has had proper diet and sunlight.

Few mothers realize this and begin to worry at once following the birth of the child as to whether or not it is going to be bowlegged.

When the child begins to stand, it is likely to stand with the feet well separated and with the knees locked, so as to maintain its balance.

When it begins to walk, it attempts to maintain this posture of stability. For the first three years of its life, therefore, the infant tends to be knock-kneed.

After three years of age the knock-knees disappear, provided that they are not a permanent inherited family characteristic, that the shoes that it wears do not tend to prolong the condition, and that it diet contain sufficient bone and muscle building material so that bone and muscle weakness will not prevent normal growth.

Rest and Change
It has been emphasized also that fatigue and faulty rest conditions tend to maintain bad posture.
An infant spends most of his time lying in bed.

Often succeeding children use the same cradle that were used by older members of the family and little attention is paid to the necessity for modifying and renovating the crib for the newcomer. A sagging, soft mattress or spring serves to distort the body and prevent the development of good posture.

The Early Stages
Bridgroom—Would you mind if I went into a

The New Christmas Tree

SO THINK WE

We think Mexico might be counted in the abnormal class, as it has been some time since a revolution has been reported down there.

We think it is very kind of France to be taking so much interest in the United States since the election, but most of the people of this country would rather those frogs would pay more interest.

We think that possibly the trouble with Mexico is that too many of the citizens of that country aim at the presidency too often.

We think that one or two years sentence in the penitentiary for the killing of a human being is the reason there are so many killed. A couple of shocks in an electric chair will stop murder faster than most anything else.

We think when a busy man like Charles M. Schwab recommends that one should never be too busy to smile, and he practices it, there must be something to it.

We think there is one advantage of being exceedingly hard of hearing.
You can go to the picture show and not be bothered by the lady on the seat behind you keeping you posted on what is going to happen in the next slide.

We think that Lubbock people are not falling in line with the total amount of the Red Cross funds they should. Business men should consider that one of the real investments of the year. It saves them many dollars during the year, when they can refer cases of charity to this organization to be handled by experienced people, who have time to investigate them.

We think there seems to be a general idea over the country that the same folks who stuffed the ballot boxes in the straw vote coun-test, must have also stuffed the ballot boxes in the general election.

We think Charles M. Schwab is right when he says that "No one can help being optimistic in this world of change," provided however that there is plenty change.

We think if the "law abiding" citizens of Lubbock will quit violating the laws of the city, county and state, there will not be so many fines reported in the daily newspapers.

We think about the most appropriate gift that one can give a bride and groom these days is a can opener. However, we would also suggest that one is about all that is needed, and everyone should not select the same thing.

We think possibly the methods used by school heads these days might not be criticized so much if the patrons of the schools would take the time to visit the schools more, and become better acquainted with the system, and not trust so much to what "they" say.

We think some people are so lazy that they would wait for an earth quake to shake their potatoes out of the ground if they had any idea that such a thing would happen within the bounds of a reasonable time.

We think the group of men who undertook to put the first bond issue over, were sincere in their belief that it was the proper plan. The voters seem to disagree, and claim it was too large a program. We just hope now since the two groups have gotten together on another plan

LOVERS AND OTHERS

Newspapers conduct columns of letters and questions and answers for lovers and others—young and old. Mostly the readers and writers here they are young. The other day are young people or those who believe a young man wrote that he was much in love with a girl and that she liked him, but she would not marry him. And the wise woman who conducts the column and answers the letters wrote: "Well, Roy, if I were you and that much in love with a girl I would hustle out and try to make myself the sort of man a nice girl would want to marry."

Probably this young man had never thought of it just that way.
Most young men want what they want—very much—but they are not willing to go out and become the kind of young men that deserve the things they are after. Very many young people are exceedingly selfish. They want everything their way and are not willing to sacrifice.

There is no give and take in their make-up. And, of course, they are much handicapped and the whole business of living is made complicated by the fact that it never occurs to them that they are probably wrong. The average young man or young woman says: "There are only two ways; my way and the wrong way."

PUBLIC OPINION

THE WICKED TRUTH

'Twas the day before election, goodbyes had been said,
To everything living, prosperous or dead.

As regards the voting of bonds to be carried,
All over the county some fearless some worried.

I am predicting right now, the bonds will be defeated.
Within thirty days another election
"I'll be repeated."

The last one will carry with glory to all.
For with Federal and State aid we shall not fail.

There is an old saying that certainly is grand,
Divided we fall, united we stand.
Can we ever succeed, friend, stop and think.

When you eat the whole hog, you certainly do stink.

You hypocrites that send up praises to God, Fighting your brother while he's turning the sod.

We had the highways, why not let it rest.
But no you poked around and stirred a hornet's nest.

Now don't get aghast if you're first to be stung.
In my opinion, you ought to be hung.

Not by the neck as some will think.
But so you won't eat the whole hog and actually stink.

What profit have you, to gain the whole world,
And the more tailored and torn each clothing may be, so much the better for the purposes of the small boys and girls.

On Thanksgiving Day occurs the official "Ragamuffin" parade, a pageant quite unlike any other to be found in America. For it is a transplantation from the "old world," which was introduced by the gamins of the ghetto. Within the past year or two, it has penetrated to every district of the city.

It is a custom, native to certain sections of Italy, where the bite of hunger is felt by the poor. About this season of the year, with winter upon their heels, the boys and girls fare forth, garbed in rags and tatters; they daub their faces with dirt or rouge or coal dust;
they affect the garb of clowns;
they prank and they caper—but,
most of all, they beg.

In New York, the eccentricities of dress are exaggerated to carnivalesque proportions. Every conceivable sort of costume and disguise is attempted by tens of thousands of children, who go through their neighborhoods in mobs, begging, for pennies and dimes and "hand-outs."

A number of efforts have been made to eliminate the begging from the day's program. Civic organizations have tried to get the American boys and girls to set an example for their foreign brothers and sisters—but to no avail.

The number of participants has increased yearly and, even in the exclusive residence sections, it is possible to see the gamins parading in action.

The bright and particular visiting "lion" of the present New York season is Ottorino Respighi, the eminent Italian composer who operates "The Sunken Bell," is being given at the Metropolitan for the first time in America.

He has been feted and greeted and entertained. He has been a favorite for years with symphony goes and his "Pines of Rome" is a tone poem repeated many times during a Manhattan music season.

I met the composer for the first time at a dress rehearsal of his opera, which offers Mme. Elizabeth Reinberg her moment of triumph following the early season argument with Jeritta over the leading role in "The Egyptian Helen" which, by the way, has received a very cool reception from the American critics.

Mme. Reinberg introduced Res-pighi to New York the other day at a tea at the Ambassador.

A dress rehearsal at the Met, by the way, is like nothing else in the theater. Specially invited audiences, including scores of music world celebrities, often fill the orchestra seats. There is hubbub and commotion back stage, as the scene shifters work with new scenery. An air of nervous tension prevails and even the oldest veteran performers admit considerable nervousness, particularly when new opera is to be given. Fatigue often brings about cut bickering though every effort is made to preduce the opera with the precision that marks an actual performance.

Costume changes up at the last moment with tenor's tights and gaudy garments and fiddlers tune up in the orchestra pit. Directors rush about, rounding up the chorus members and from a dozen places come sounds of voices, male and female, running lightly through the scales.

New Wavelengths Draw Approval And Criticism

Part Of Trouble Believed Due To Improper Tuning

New Arrangement Improves Reception From Great Distances. Most Fans Declare, In Survey

(By Associated Press)

A house divided aptly sums up the reaction of Uncle Sam's broadcast listeners to the wavelength re-allocation after nearly a month's try at the dial.

Some declare it is great. Others have an opinion just the opposite. Some sections of the country think that distance reception has been improved. As many say that it has not. Local conditions are better or worse, depending upon the positions the favorite stations now occupy.

There are the gleanings of a survey conducted in some of the country's most congested reception areas. Engineers say that part of the difficulty listeners have experienced has been due to the inability of some stations to get their transmitters properly tuned to the new wavelengths.

Rearranging of assignments may be necessary in some cases, but the general opinion of engineers and others who have studied the real location in action seems to be that the new plan, considered from a national basis, is an advancement.

What some localities believe has been the effect of the moving of dial locations is expressed in the paragraphs below, gathered by and from the average listener.

New York Gets Better Distance

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 (AP)—Viewed from all sections of the dial, the broadcast situation in the New York area seems to have been bettered.

Logging of distance, particularly on the clear channels is easier. Several places on the regional bands also have been productive of far-away signals.

Most listeners say that on the whole local conditions have been improved, although some express dissatisfaction over regional or local assignments given favorite stations.

Tuning into the regional channels always is productive of heterodynes or squeals, and these are noticeable even in the background of local stations on these bands.

New England Says Faraway Radio Better

BOSTON, Mass., Dec. 8 (AP)—New England listeners seem generally to approve the new broadcast channel arrangement, but some sore spots are recorded. Distance reception on cleared channels is improved.

Marshalling of local stations on low wavelengths has caused complaint in various localities and the loss of programs either through interference or inability of sets to tune them in. Thousands of fans in metropolitan Boston and northern New England report the loss of WNAC, or poor reception from this station. The congestion at the lower end of the dial is lacking at the upper end, but some set owners are unable to bring in WTAG, Worcester, and WEAN, Providence, on 580 and 590 kilocycles, respectively.

Varied Views Echo Change In Capital

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8 (AP)—Testimony of listeners here regarding reception under the reallocation of stations in conflicting. That there is dissatisfaction is attested to by the letters of complaint from hundreds of fans.

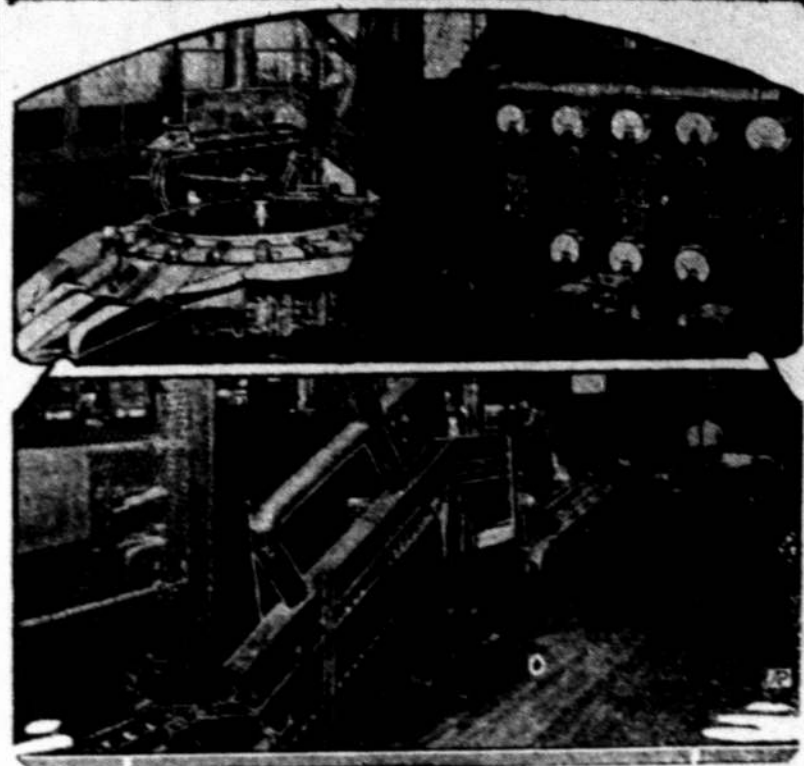

SNYDER, Tex., Dec. 8—One and one-half inches of rain, falling Thursday and Friday, was recorded throughout Scurry county.

It Requires Tact

Back of the interesting interviews with prominent stage celebrities we get when we listen to WOBS, New York, at 7:30 every Monday evening, is the tact and diplomacy of Sylvia Golden. Miss Golden has the delicate job of calling a star to the mike each week. And that's not as easy as getting them in front of the footlights by any means. But she's done it, and to her goes credit for the success of the weekly Theater Magazine Hour at WOBS.

Machine Tests Radio Tubes

Need for speed in the manufacture of radio tubes has seen the development of a machine that tests 6,000 tubes an hour. At the left of the photograph above is the machine which automatically checks or rejects tubes according to their characteristics, with the meter or control board at the right. Below is a rear view of the machine, showing the feeding apparatus.

Engineers Strive To Remedy Spots In Radio Set-Up

Steady Improvement In The Reception Throughout All The Country Seen; Stations Stay On Waves

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8 (AP)—With broadcasting stations operating more accurately on their assigned wavelengths there has been a steady improvement in reception in most parts of the country, engineers of the federal radio commission declare. They admit, however, that there are still several bad spots.

Blanketing caused by broad tuning of transmitters and heterodyne interference caused by stations failing to keep on their frequencies have been largely responsible for poor reception. Several stations which have been particularly flagrant offenders have been warned by the commission to adjust their apparatus properly under penalty of losing their licenses.

Meanwhile the commission has been patching up some of the weak spots by allowing stations experimental use of a different frequency in an effort to eliminate interference.

A large percentage of the protests received from listeners are complaints that they do not hear the programs of favorite stations as well as they did under the old setup or regarding reduction in the hours of operation of the stations. Much of the dissatisfaction is centered, the commission says, in the rivalry between competitive stations in various communities which are contending for a preferred channel or time allotment.

Members of the commission say that stations will be shifted from time to time in the interest of better reception and where broadcasters have demonstrated the validity of their claims to better channels, but that the general setup will be maintained.

Some broadcasters who protested their assignments when they first went on the new frequencies have since notified the commission that they like the new wavelengths. The owner of a station in central California wired Commissioner H. A. LaFontaine the day after the new setup went into effect that his assignment was "impossible" and requested another wave. A few days later he sent another wire saying he was "getting along fine" and asking that his request be cancelled.

New Station Goes On Air In Alabama

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 8 (AP)—Radio's Christmas gift to Alabama is a new major broadcasting station under an old name. WAPI, costing approximately $50,000. This assignment is divided between the city of Birmingham and Alabama polytechnic institute, at Auburn, Ala.

The first program is scheduled for Christmas Day from three studios—at Birmingham, Montgomery and Auburn—and includes a varied assortment of entertainment and educational features.

The new station divides time on a clear channel under the reallocation and will have 5,000 watts power.

Birmingham's allotment in the construction of the station includes an elaborately equipped studio in a downtown office building. The transmitter is located on Red Mountain, a few miles from the city. The capital building commission at Montgomery has granted authority for the expenditure of $5,500 to $2,000 for outfitting a studio in that city, while Auburn plans to improve its old studio, which was the former home of WAPI.

Sensing the need of a stronger station, citizens of Alabama began a movement to replace the old station at Auburn, a gift of Victor H. Hanson, publisher of the Birmingham News, with one more modern. WAPI formerly had been used by the Alabama Polytechnic Institute and the State Department of Agriculture largely for distribution of information to Alabama farmers.

New Radio Movie Device Abolishes Limit On Images

Luxemburg Scientist, Living Near Paris, Gives Rise To New Conception For Such Transmission

PARIS, Dec. 8 (AP)—A device for the transmission of moving pictures by radio, in which the size of the image transmitted is not limited, has been developed by a Luxemburg scientist living near Paris.

While the transmission and reproduction of films by wireless has been accomplished by various methods, the inherent limitations of previous experiments have prevented them from attaining commercial importance. With the device of the Luxemburg man the perfection of the image reproduced increases with the size of the screen, it is said. The inventor says that reverse has been true in former experiments, the size of the image being limited to dimensions of a few inches and incapable of enlargement without loss of clearness.

Another advantage is that the use of a positive film is eliminated, the transmission being accomplished by using the negative film developed.

The transmission and reproduction of the film does not necessarily take place at the time the negative is projected into the apparatus. The impression of the film is magnetically conserved on a series of fine metallic ribbons to permit its subsequent wireless transmission for exposure on the screen either immediately or at a late time.

Maryland's Radio Budget Is Large

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—Sixteen thousand words daily constitutes the average number of words transmitted to and from the U. S. S. Maryland, conveying President-elect Hoover on a good-will trip to Latin America, according to an announcement issued by the Navy Department last week. The bulk of the traffic transmitted from the battleship is mainly news addressed to news gathering associations and newspapers throughout the country from correspondents aboard the ship.

The majority of the messages have been handled through the naval radio station at San Diego, Calif., and are relayed over telegraph and radio circuits throughout the nation.

At night, according to the statement issued by the Navy Department, direct communication has been established with the Maryland from Washington, on short wave lengths.

Operators aboard the Maryland are reported to be extremely busy, due to the increased volume of traffic in the form of press messages. In addition to the stories handled by naval stations, regular naval messages and private radiograms constitute a large part of the traffic.

True Tales of the Texas Rangers

Raw, Primitive Crime Kept the Rangers Busy
"Shootin' It Out" in the Late 90's and Early 1900's . . . And Cap'n Bill McDonald Made History by Cowing Two Bloody Gangs

The iron nerve and ready rifles of these Rangers of the turbulent 90's . . . kept a mob of strikers under control at Temple.

By ERIC G. SCHROEDER

It was strange indeed that William Jesse McDonald, better known as "Cap'n Bill" and one of the most reckless and colorful figures in the annals of the Texas Rangers, was not killed during the turbulent days of the 90's.

Known as the best all-around, rapid-fire marksman in the state, his motto, "keep on a-comin'," was the nemesis of the cattle thief, the train robber, the professional bad man. It was McDonald who shot it out with Renegade Matthews and all but died from the bullet wounds he received in putting that hard-bitten outlaw under the Texas sod.

A favorite vow on the part of the tough element all over Texas was to shoot Bill McDonald on sight. But when it is remembered that the Ranger captain had a suddenness and vigor about his manner that discouraged any untoward moves on the part of his enemies, there is nothing so strange after all in the fact that the vow was never put into execution.

There was drama, big chunks of it, in nearly every day of this intrepid officer's years of service.

There is the story of the lynching of Lewis and Crawford at Wichita Falls when McDonald, white with rage, rode single-handed into the mob with leveled Winchester. There is the story of the Murder Society at San Saba, where Cap'n Bill all but completely revised the personnel of an entire town.

There is the unforgettable tale of the Fitzsimmons-Maher fight that "didn't come off" in El Paso because the doughty Ranger captain had orders from the governor to prevent it.

There was the encounter with Bat Masterson, later a famous peace officer but then unformed, who undertook to correct the tardiness of a Chinese waiter with a table leg until restrained by the quiet little man sitting next to him. Their conversation has become classic.

"Don't you hit that man!" Captain Bill admonished calmly. Masterson wheeled, furious. "Maybe you'd like to take it up!"

"I done took it up," was the quiet answer.

As the old century drew to a close a wave of crime and disorder, leaving ruin and panic in its wake, swept over the older settled communities of Texas, particularly in the east and southeast. Crime on the frontier was primitive, crude, but here it had ripened and manifested itself in factions of feudists, lynchings and dastardly murders.

The Reece-Townsend gang, down in Columbus, Colorado county, were having a private war of their own. Periodically they met on the town square, fought pitched battles, buried their dead and recuperated for the next onslaught.

On one of these field days a boy, belonging to neither faction, was shot and killed. The Rangers were ordered to Columbus to put down what appeared to be a general conflict.

Captain McDonald, wiring two of his men to follow on the next train, set out alone for the scene. Arriving on the streets of the town he found the warring factions drawn up at two corners of the square, organizing, inspecting their weapons and biding their time.

There were no minutes to lose. McDonald sought out District Judge Kennon at the courthouse.

"Who's your sheriff?" he demanded.

The judge pointed across the street, to the Townsend faction. "Burford, J. C. Burford," he replied. "He belongs to that gang."

Captain Bill stepped to the window and called out three times, in strong official summons, "J. C. Burford."

There was a movement in the Townsend crowd and a man crossed over and ascended the courthouse steps. McDonald introduced himself. Then, "Burford, why don't you stop this thing?"

"I can't, captain. I'm powerless to do anything."

"All right. Do as I say and I'll have this settled in 30 minutes or resign from the service. Call your gang over here!" Burford made a sign at the window and the crowd on the corner trooped over, carrying their guns.

"Which are your deputies?" demanded McDonald, eyeing the assemblage.

The sheriff indicated three men.

"Have them step aside!" the Ranger ordered. They did so.

"Now disarm the rest!"

But the sheriff protested. "I don't know about that," he began.

Captain Bill eyed him coldly. "Didn't you promise to do what I said?" he demanded. "Never mind. I'll do it myself."

"Here, boys," he went on in his mild, friendly drawl, "put your guns in this wardrobe. They won't go off there and hurt somebody."

There was something of St. Paul in this man, whose pleasant voice carried so much balm and yet steel. Those bulking feudists, thirty but a moment before for the blood of their adversaries, marched to a man to the wardrobe and stacked their weapons in orderly row. McDonald locked the door and put the key in his pocket.

"Now," he announced, "I'll go over and have a look at the other crowd."

He walked out of the courthouse into the summer sunshine, a Winchester crooked in his arm, a quaint, sinewy figure as he padded across the hot street to the opposite corner.

The waiting crowd watched him curiously.

"Looks like you-all are going to war," remarked McDonald pleasantly as he came abreast the leader. No one answered.

"Boys," he went on, "your guns are all right up till now, but the governor has sent me down to step this trouble and I want you to help me."

"How can we help?" inquired one of the Reece faction, sulkily.

"Like those boys over yonder," came the answer. "Put up your guns and then go quietly home."

There was a murmur of dissent. One husky broke out with, "Well, you'll play hell getting my gun!"

Scarcely anyone saw the motion. But a Winchester was suddenly under the nose of the belligerent speaker and Captain Bill was crisply saying, "I will, hey. Well, I'll just put you in jail to show you how easy it is to do that!"

The big fellow jumped and suddenly dropped his gun. The leader of the crowd spoke quickly: "Boys, he's right. The governor sent him down and he has no interest in one side or the other."

McDonald marched the Reeces to a nearby store and turned over the guns to a clerk. The big fellow, of the bellicose vein, promised all sorts of things if he didn't have to go to jail. He was released.

There was a celebration that night over the armistice. Refreshments and invitations were tendered Captain Bill, and the town settled down to a long-sought quietude. In the morning the other two Rangers arrived but peace, at least for a time, had come to Columbus.

IN April, 1905, Tom Waggoner and Burk Burnett, ranchmen whose names have become a legend in Texas, arranged a wolf hunt for President Roosevelt somewhere in their pastures up in Comanche county, Oklahoma. Governor Latham summoned Captain McDonald and informed him of his selection as a bodyguard for the president of the United States. Captain Bill looked unhappy.

"Governor," he said, "you know I'm a hell-roarin' Democrat and don't care much for Republican presidents in general and this one in particular. I'd rather you picked another man for the job."

"All the same, you're picked," returned the governor. "You'll have to serve!" Captain Bill served.

The trip from Fort Worth through northern Texas and from thence into the timber country of Oklahoma, the wild careening over ditches and washouts in full pursuit of wolves, the enchanting bivouacs out in the lush grass of the prairie, all these resulted in a close attachment between the dauntless nation's chief executive and doughty Ranger captain that endured through the remainder of their lifetimes.

Events in the life of Captain Bill McDonald crowd closely upon each other, fairly clamoring to be told. There was the "battle on the Rio Grande," unsurpassed for pure drama and courage, that can be mentioned only in passing.

It was after the murder of District Judge Stanley Welch at Rio Grande City that the Rangers were ordered to that far-flung hamlet to quell the first manifestations of a serious political disturbance. It was a big country, full of cactus, hard, spiny grass, Mexicans and hot, burning sand.

The country was, in fact, rather more Mexican than American, and it was this circumstance that led to trouble on election day and the subsequent murder of Judge Welch in his bed. The undesirable element resented the coming of the state police.

It was night, clear and starlit, when the Rangers set out in a buckboard along the lonely road which follows the Rio Grande and winds between the rank, thorny vegetation of that semi-tropical land. They drove quietly, speaking in low voices, peering into the darkness ahead.

Half the distance had been covered when they heard approaching wheels. The Rangers' buckboard was pulled to one side of the road, to allow the coming vehicle to pass. Suddenly, at a distance of about 30 paces, there was a flash in the dark and a bullet whined over the heads of the state police.

Suddenly there was a flash in the dark and a bullet whined over the heads of the Rangers. They sprang to the ground, their guns alert.

Only on isolated border patrols does the modern Ranger travel on horse-back. . . . The automobile, train, telephone and telegraph are his aids today.

Fort Brown. . . . It was here, when soldiers went on a wild rampage, that Ranger McDonald walked into the muzzles of 20 glowering rifles.

Like automatons the Rangers sprang to the ground, their guns at the alert.

"HOLD ON!" shouted McDonald. "We are Texas Rangers! Stop that shooting!"

There was no mistake after that. The approaching wagon stopped and three figures with guns leaped out. Two remained in their places.

There was a shout, and the opposing force fired point blank, with two guns from the underbrush pouring in an enfilading fire.

It lasted only 30 seconds. For that space of time there was a continuous roar of musketry, a series of flashes that blended into an unceasing glare. The Ranger fire was rapid but accurate. The seven Mexican guns could not find their respective marks.

Suddenly it was quiet. One man lay dead in the road; two, in the wagon, had fought their last fight. Two staggered away, one with a broken leg and the other to die. Two in the bush were captured. Not a Ranger had been touched.

One more adventure and Captain Bill McDonald passes from the picture. The year 1906, the last and most important which he spent in the Ranger service, links him with an episode destined to grow to national importance.

Late in the summer of that year three negro companies—B, C and D of the Twenty-fifth Infantry, Major C. W. Penrose commanding—were ordered to Fort Brown, situated on the edge of the little town of Brownville, the southernmost point of Texas. There was bad humor in the outfit.

State troopers were holding an annual encampment at Austin and the negro regulars had not been permitted to participate in the maneuvers.

There were boasts to the conductor, on the way to Brownville, that all women there would look alike—white, black or Mexican. There was added fuel to the flames when it was found that separate bars had been set up for the negro soldiers. They became loud and insolent, crowded white men and women from the walks and made themselves generally offensive.

There were a few isolated instances of resistance on the part of the citizenship. They were individual, not concerted. Public feeling reached the boiling point when a lady of refinement was dragged from her horse by a negro private.

MONDAY, August 13, had been rather quiet. There were muttered threats through the day, however, and as evening drew on there was anxious watching in the direction of the fort.

About midnight a bar-keeper named Natus served a final round of drinks and prepared to close the place. Suddenly there was a succession of shots and loud commotion at the fort. Then a fusillade, nearer. The bar-keeper flung shut the front doors, barred them and raced for the rear. As he emerged into the yard there was a volley, and he fell, riddled.

The mob passed on into the night, pouring its fire into houses, hotels, everywhere there was a light or moving object. Bullets tore through rooms in which little children were sleeping. The police chief, seeking to stem the rioters, sank beneath a burst of rifles, his arm shattered, his horse shot from under him. For two and a half blocks the assault on the defenseless town continued, then suddenly these raiders of the night disappeared in the direction of the fort.

The citizenship, panicky, laid its hands upon all arms available and waited, fearful, for a general massacre. A citizens committee was hastily formed. Telegrams were dispatched to the governor, to the president, to senators and representatives.

Five days passed in which the governor waited for Wash- ington, and Washington waited for an investigation. Officers conducting an investigation finally reported that the raid had probably come from a gang of Mexicans from the town of Matamoros, across the river. Such rumors meant one of two things—the officers were going to protect their troops or had been intimidated by them.

Families began to move. Two Rangers drifted in and helped in patrolling the town. The days dragged on, without relief. Then Captain Bill McDonald, with two other members of his force, arrived one evening late in August and poor, despairing, distraught Brownville welcomed him with open arms.

BY six in the evening the captain had gone into consultation with the citizens committee. He learned that a Major Blocksom had arrived at the fort under orders to assist Major Penrose with the investigation. There had been no progress.

The Rangers, like hounds on the scent, commenced the search for clues. They found Mexican witnesses who had seen shots fired from the fort and followed the raiders by the flashes of their guns. There were two ex-soldiers, both negroes, who offered evidence that threw light on the incident.

By morning Captain Bill had learned enough to warrant bringing the matter before the officers at the fort. He selected his sergeant, W. J. McCauley, "one of the finest," as his companion for the hazardous trip into the very stronghold of the conspirators. They started down the street, only to be halted by members of the citizens committee.

"You can never go into that fort and come out alive," came the fervent warning. "Those men are under arms and excited. If you haven't a pass they'll shoot you down sure!"

Texas today glories in the grizzled Ranger's reply. "I never yet had to have an order to go any place my duty called me," said Captain Bill. "I'm going into that fort, and the only pass I want I've got right here." He tapped an automatic shotgun as he spoke.

McDonald and McCauley proceeded to the garrison. There was a stir as they approached the gates of the reservation. At the entrance they were suddenly confronted by a file of 24 soldiers, with rifles leveled.

"Halt!" Captain Bill and his sergeant never even hesitated. Their own guns were leveled for instant action. They marched steadily into the muzzles of the glowering Springfield. The Ranger chief was talking swiftly, coolly, cunningly.

"You men, hold up there! You've done enough mischief. We're Rangers here to investigate the murder you scoundrels committed. I'll show you something you've never been used to. PUT UP THEM GUNS!"

The army Springfielders wavered, then went up with the quick, concerted action of a drill.

MAJOR BLOCKSOM and Major Penrose had witnessed the incident at the gate from a window of headquarters. It led the former, in his official report to Washington, to include a few descriptive words apropos of Captain Bill, that had become classic.

Within two days McDonald and his men had established clearly the guilt of 12 privates and one ex-soldier.

For two days, until the ground was cut from under his feet by a message from the governor, McDonald and five men held three companies of soldiers in Brownville while a train, steam up, waited for them at the station.

Finally they left. The culprits were never convicted. But Captain Bill made a report of the matter direct to Washington. President Roosevelt, when the verdict of "Not guilty" was rendered by the court-martial, dismissed, without honor, the entire command of the Twenty-fifth Infantry.

(This is one of a series of articles on the Texas Rangers. . . . The concluding article will appear in an early issue of this newspaper.)

Cap'n Bill McDonald. . . . His quickness on the trigger, his "keep a-comin'" motto, made him the nemesis of cattle rustler, bank bandit, train robber.

50 Advance Shows Of New Chevrolet Six Will Be Held

Tremendous Interest Shown In Premier Showings Has Necessitated Change In Original Plans

Although Chevrolet originally planned only for eleven major advance showings of its new 6-cylinder car, the tremendous interest which has been excited throughout the country to see the new car has made it necessary for the company to plan 50 additional advance showings in other important centers, company officials announced yesterday.

Already additional showings have been held at Philadelphia, Indianapolis, Kansas City, Flint, Columbus and Cleveland. The first four of these observed openings last Saturday. The Cleveland opening was held Monday. Columbus had its opening Tuesday.

Crowds Throng Showings. Everywhere the new Chevrolet line has been displayed thus far the crowds have been tremendous. New York, Detroit, Chicago, Los Angeles and Washington, cities of the original list of eleven where showings have already been completed, close to a million persons flocked to inspect the new cars.

At Detroit the opening day crowd, November 24, was 28,000, a figure which bettered by 3,000 the best opening day crowd in the history of the famous Detroit Automobile Show. Approximately a quarter million people visited the showing during its six day New York run. Proportionate crowd interest was demonstrated at Washington, Chicago and Los Angeles.

The revised plans for a more widespread showing of the sensational new Chevrolet will in no way affect the presentations originally scheduled and still unfilled. Three of these cities, St. Louis, San Francisco and Cincinnati, are now holding showings and Portland, Dallas and Atlanta will have openings December 18.

Date Set December 25. When it was decided that the advance showings should take in more territory so that the large center would be overlooked prior to the nation-wide exhibit December 29, Chevrolet's vast and efficient sales force went into immediate action. Marshallled by H. J. Klinger, general sales manager of the company, and captained by the regional sales managers, arrangements were culminated almost overnight to bring about the showings in Philadelphia, Cleveland, Columbus, Indianapolis, Kansas City and Flint.

Cars from the Flint factory had to be loaded and rushed by express. Dealer organizations in each of these places, working smoothly in every instance, selected centrally located and popular exhibit places. Newspaper advertising was relied upon to welcome the public. And the success of the suddenly planned venture was attested to by the mammoth crowds which poured forth at all these points to view the handsome new Chevrolet.

Hupmobile Will Explore Africa

British Army Officer With Family Interior Of Area Where No White Men Have Ever Visited

Daily newspapers now reaching the Hupp Motor Car Corporation from South Africa are bringing detailed accounts of the start of an adventurous exploration trip which Major P. J. Pretorius of the British army and a party including his wife and three children are now making with a Hupmobile and trailer through the wildest part of Dark Continent.

The journey is to occupy six months to a year and will take the explorers through the Belgian Congo, Liberia, Senegal and Abyssinia to Egypt, whence they will cross the Suez Canal to Palestine and proceed to Europe, returning home in their Hupmobile by a different route.

Time Least Important. Discussing his plans before departing, Major Pretorius told a reporter that time was the least important factor in their arrangements.

"It does not matter to us whether we take a month or a year on the trip," he remarked. "I have made a map of the route, comfortable and dependable rather than speedy traveling means, because the absence of roads in most of the country we will traverse is going to make speed impossible."

One objective of the trip is to visit a native "god" which Major Pretorius met in 1900 when he went through Central Africa before. He was the only white man ever seen there at the time, and a native tribe refused him permission to enter their country until they had consulted their god, which turned out to be a pair of huge elephant tusks of mysterious origin in a region where elephants are unknown. The god gave permission to the stranger to enter his territory and to shoot hippopotamuses, but promised that none would be killed the first day of the hunting. The prediction proved to be true, although the major fired many shots that day and subsequently had no trouble in bagging many specimens.

Search For Livingstone's Mark. The Hupmobile will carry the party also to Lake Nyasa, where a search will be made for a rock on the banks of the lake on which David Livingstone made a mark to show the height of the water at the time he passed it.

The exploring party will be in the open throughout much of the trip, the trailer have been made rainproof and mosquito proof to provide quarters in inclement weather. Heavy rifles will be carried, but only for protection, as the journey is to be solely one of exploration, depending on the Hupmobile to carry the party through many unexplored regions of the African interior.

New Whippet Six And Four Models Announced Today

Larger And Roomier Cars With New Standard Of Beauty In Low Priced
Field Promised

Development of body lines that strike a note of beauty and quality, heretofore found only in cars that sell in the higher price ranges, is seen in Willys-Overland's announcement of its completely redesigned lines of Whippet four and six cylinder cars.

The lowness of the prices on both lines completes the marvel of the achievement. President John N. Willys, one of the largest automobile manufacturers now brings high priced car beauty and greater value to the low priced field in addition to presenting a car of proved mechanical excellence. This development follows just two and one-half years after his successful introduction of the original Whippet.

In presenting the new Whippet four and six, Mr. Willys says: "When the original Whippet was introduced, designed along lines that entirely revolutionized the light car field, it was predicted that within two years every car manufacturer in the Whippet classification would be forced to adopt the mechanical features first set by the Whippet. This prediction would be forced to adopt the mechanical features first set by the Whippet or be relegated to the obsolete group. This particularly applied to four wheel brakes.

"That these predictions came to pass in less than two years is history with other car manufacturers both in the low and higher price fields following the trend set by the Whippet.

"And now we present the completely redesigned Whippet four and six, bringing to the low price class for the first time in automotive history high priced car value, beauty and advanced features, in addition to proved mechanical superiority.

"There is no place in the low priced field for the manufacturer who fails to incorporate in his product the distinct new type of beauty and mechanical features introduced in the Whippet. To the manufacturer who fails to meet this trend we repeat the prediction of two and a half years ago, that he will find his cars stamped by the buying public as obsolete."

The advance report that the new models, which are designated as the Superior Whippet, would establish a precedent by bringing beauty and outstanding mechanical features into the low priced field is readily

Progress Shown By Automobiles Fashions, Women

Edna Wallace Hopper, Aged Actress, Tells Of Changes
During Past 20 Years; Chooses Oldsmobile

Automobiles, women and fashions have shown remarkable progress in the past twenty years or so and no sane person would desire to return to the early years of this century. That statement was made by an authority who, with 63 years personal experience apparently has attained perpetual youth—Edna Wallace Hopper, the Eternal Flapper.

Miss Hopper made the comparison when shown a photograph of herself taken in 1908 in an Oldsmobile of that year's vintage. "Just look at that car—and that hat," she exclaimed, "weren't we terrible frumps then?"

And to set the record straight, Miss Hopper immediately posed for a photograph with a new Oldsmobile, thus proving her contention that automobiles, women and styles certainly have improved in 22 years.

Compares Self to Auto. Miss Hopper likened her personal experience to an automobile. She said she discovered that, in appearance, she was growing old but still retained all the youth of body, mind and heart. "My 'chassis and engine' were as young and sprightly as ever," she explained, "but Father Time had placed his mark on my face. I years upon years of service but was like a good automobile with threatened with the scrap heap because its exterior fit no longer was sparkling, fresh and modish."

"There was nothing to do but have the specialists bring out a new model of Edna Wallace Hopper, and here she is."

The rejuvenation was as remarkable as the progress made by automobile engineers and designers during the past two decades. Miss Hopper today is as modish as the new Oldsmobile she posed with.

Effort Will Be Made In February To Regain Worlds Speed Title For Great Britain With Return Of Major Segrave

Former Title Holder Will Try To Set New Record On U. S. Straightway, A. A. Board Reports

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—Major H. O. D. Segrave, who tempted death in March, 1927, when he set a new world's straightway record, only to see it shattered by a fellow countryman a year later, who in turn lost it to an American, will arrive in the United States in the middle of February in an attempt to regain the record for himself and Great Britain.

This announcement, the first official intimation that Major Segrave will again seek the record, was made today by Val Haresnape, secretary of the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association, under whose auspices the attempt will be made.

Manager Makes Arrangements. William F. Strum, Segrave's American manager for the new attempt to establish a speed record, called at the offices of the A. A. A. Contest Board today regarding sanction requirements, and the announcement followed his visit.

Major Segrave will bring to the United States a new racing sensation—his Golden Arrow—and will try for the record some time in March, either on one of the Florida beaches or on the dry lakes of California, if one of suitable length for a run can be found.

All contests of this nature are supervised by the A. A. A. and in order for Segrave to claim an official world's record, he must have the certification of the A. A. A. Contest Board. An international organization, the Association Internationale of Recognized Automobile Clubs, alone is empowered with granting world or international records. The American membership in this body is held by the A. A. A. Under the regularities of this affiliation, records are interchangeable and become world or international records by virtue of such interchange.

Former Record Broken. In April of 1920 Tommy Milton made an official record of 156.04 miles an hour in a sixteen cylinder Duesenberg. The record displaced one of 149.875 made by Ralph De Palma in a special Packard a year earlier. After Milton's attempt, record making lay quiescent for years. Then Segrave startled the world in 1927 by calmly announcing that he would come to America with a car that would exceed 200 miles an hour. He came and when he went back to Great Britain he took with him the astounding record of 203.79 miles an hour. A year later on February 19, 1928, Capt. Malcolm Campbell raised the record to 206.95 miles an hour. Two months later Ray Keech in the American-built Triplex Special pushed the mark to 207.532 miles an hour, where it now stands. That is why Segrave will come to attempt to regain the laurels for England.

Dodges Used By Motor Coach Co.

The de luxe motor coach has definitely established a place for itself in the transportation requirements of large urban centers with the successful inauguration of this class of service in Detroit by the department of street railways.

First deliveries have been made of the fleet of 120 Graham Brothers parlor coaches, purchased from Dodge Brothers and added to the equipment of the street railways, supplementing bus and street car lines already in operation. The new lines are for the main streets of the city and run parallel to the car lines.

Inauguration of the service met with an immediate response from the bus-riding public. Added refinements in comfort and transportation combined with speedy operation, have had a wide and popular appeal. A six-minute schedule is maintained and the coaches are liberally patronized, meeting all demands of heavy rush-hour traffic, according to officials of the railway department, who announced the entire quota of coaches will be in operation on the streets by December 15.

MacFulton, Inc., Studebaker-Erskine dealer in Camden, N. J., recently had an experience like that of the bridge player who picks up a hand with 13 trumps. In his mail was a letter from Edward J. Borden which said: "Enclosed find my order with deposit for one new Studebaker Commander sedan, to be delivered on or about ten days from date. It may interest you to know that this will be my tenth Studebaker, and that I have never been delayed by mechanical trouble of any sort while driving Studebakers."

ONE-ARMED HUSKER

HASTINGS, Neb., (AP)—"As busy as a one-armed cornhusker" is no idle figure of speech, Nebraska has one, Peter Faber, who can husk 60 bushels a day. The husking peg is strapped to his leg at the knee.

Stock Increase Of Goodrich Is Told

AKRON, O., Dec. 8.—James D. Tew, president of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber company and son of one of the founders, said at a Chamber of Commerce banquet here recently that, in 1874, his father sold a quarter interest in the Goodrich Company for $7,500. Goodrich is now a $150,000,000 corporation. Mr. Tew gave some facts of the early history of Goodrich during a short address which was one of a number given by nationally known men of Akron, who are leaders in the rubber industry.

Start Production Of 1929 Pontiacs

Employment Figures Soar As Oakland Company Is Preparing For A Record Production Speed

PONTIAC, Mich., Dec. 8.—Preparations for the building of the first Pontiac Sixes for 1929 were under way here this week at the plant of the Oakland Motor Car company, with the completion of inventory-taking and the scoring of employment figures to the highest December level in history, according to W. R. Tracy, vice-president in charge of sales.

By the middle of the month, it is expected that cars will be on their way to distant points so that dealers may have on hand display models when details of the line are made public around the first of the year, Mr. Tracy stated.

Bigger Car Promised. Promised as a "bigger, smarter, more powerful and more luxurious Pontiac, bringing big car features within the price range of the small six" this newest creation of the fast growing Oakland division of General Motors has given rise to many rumors and much speculation here because of the phenomenal volume growth of the Pontiac Six.

Introduced on the market for the first time at the New York Automobile Show in 1926, the car in less than three years has topped all former sales records for a new make of car, and during the height of the past selling season out-sold every other make of six cylinder car in the domestic market for several months.

Chrysler Company Announces Finest Model In Imperial

Brilliant Engineering And Craftsmanship Embodied In Exclusive Design Of This Latest Creation

Walter P. Chrysler and his engineers present today, as the supreme attainment of Chrysler engineering and craftsmanship, the new Imperial, the largest and finest car Chrysler builds.

The new Imperial comes in nine custom body styles of exclusive Chrysler design. An entire plant, acquired by Chrysler some time ago, is devoted to the one task of building custom Imperial bodies. In this plant the sedan limousine, town sedan, five and seven passenger sedans are built. The five other custom body styles—the roadster, convertible coupe and two-passenger coupe, all of which have rumble seats, the sport phaeton and seven-passenger touring—are modern Oakland-Pontiac plant, which in 1929 will have a capacity of 350,000 cars. Production of several parts for the new car already is under way, while other parts are being put into production as fast as equipment is made ready. The three Pontiac assembly lines, each a quarter of a mile long, are being rearranged to build the car in the greatest volume in the history of the company for this season of the year.

Tentative plans call for a substantial production of new Pontiacs in December to be followed by greatly increased output in January. The plant capacity of Pontiac Sixes every working day is expected to be taxed to capacity well into 1929 to meet the anticipated demand, Mr. Tracy stated.

built to Chrysler design by one of the leading custom body carrosters, Manager Frazer Car.

In announcing the car, J. W. Frazer, Chrysler sales manager, remarks: "The new Imperial is the fullest development of the many features that have contributed so materially to Chrysler's outstanding success of the last five years, and which are now added many entirely new developments and refinements. These new features contribute not only to the car's fine appearance but also to its performance. We feel that the new Imperial is the finest car we have ever built, and that those who appreciate truly excellent motor cars will share in our enthusiasm when they have had opportunity to examine and to prove it."

Shows Influence of Research. "The new Imperial illustrates the considerable extent to which the research laboratory has contributed in marked betterment in performance."

"No small part of the finer engineering, design and comfort that have gone into it is the result of experiment and research made possible by the completely new engineering laboratories which Mr. Chrysler recently opened and dedicated to Chrysler engineers, and which are generally regarded as the finest and most completely equipped of their kind in the automobile industry."

New Improvements Used. "Chrysler engineers have designed and built many fine cars in the last five years. Today's newest Chrysler creation is the outcome of the knowledge gained from those cars, combined with innovations and improvements new even to the field of finest automobiles. It is built for those who seek the superlative in power and performance, in size and richness of investment. "Were it not for the economies made possible by Chrysler manufacturing methods operating under the policy of Standardized Quality, the price of this car would be prohibitively high when judged by the standards to which it is built. We feel, however, that its price is no less than any other of its features in view of its fineness and luxury throughout."

CLEAN FUR

If the collar of your fur coat soils your neck, try the following cleaning process. Heat bran in a saucepan, stirring it well so it will not burn. Rub white warm into the fur collar. Shake well and rub more until the last bran comes out clean. Shake and air the coat.

QUALITY AT LOW COST

PLYMOUTH... Still the biggest dollar value in the lowest-priced field

Full-Size and Comfort—Plymouth is actually the only full-size car in its price field, offering generous head room, leg room and elbow room for five adult passengers.

Marked Economy—Modern, high-compression, 4-cylinder, L-head engine gives marked economy of operation and upkeep. Longer engine life assured by exclusive torque reaction neutralizer, rubber engine mountings. Modern positive pressure feed oiling system.

Hydraulic Brakes—Chrysler light-action internal-expanding hydraulic weather-proof four-wheel brakes are used by Plymouth—a feature possessed by no other car near its price.

Impressive Power—45 h. p. engine gives characteristic Chrysler power, speed and acceleration coupled with unbelievable smoothness of operation. Speed with greater safety due to larger crankshaft bearings, inherent balance and general ruggedness of construction.

WHEN all is said and done the greatest value a motor car can hand back to the buyer for his dollars is the comfort he gets out of every minute and every mile of driving and riding.

This greater degree of hour-by-hour, day-by-day and month-by-month comfort depends first upon that certainty of performance which Chrysler engineering has always given—and gives in superlative measure in the Plymouth.

But it also depends upon the riding and driving proportions of the car—the ease and restfulness of the seats and springs, but above all the size, which in Plymouth enables everyone of the five passengers to relax and stretch without being cramped.

Plymouth owners appreciate further the safety of hydraulic internal-expanding weather-proof 4-wheel brakes which give instant and always positive stopping in any weather.

In action, the Chrysler-built Plymouth is a gem of soft, velvety roadability with a modern, scientific power plant such as you can always count upon from Chrysler engineers.

And a model of economy—not merely in gas and oil mileage of its simple, sturdy, 4-cylinder, L-head engine, but in freedom from complications and a strong simplicity of parts which holds the upkeep costs down to a minimum throughout the year.

Give yourself the enjoyment of half an hour behind the Plymouth wheel today.

DeSoto Business Coupe Ideal Car

Salesman And Business Men Find New Chrysler-Built Six One Of Most Popular Models On Market

Among salesmen and other business men who combine pleasure and profit in the use of their automobiles, the Chrysler-built DeSoto Six Coupe Business is one of the most popular cars on the market to the local DeSoto Six dealer.

One reason for this popularity, he says, is on account of the spacious rear compartment with which the Coupe Business is provided. The rear deck is high, giving extra room and the hinged door raises to a maximum height making it easy to handle suit-cases, packages and sample cases.

Rear Compartment Has Room.—There is almost as much room in this rear compartment as in many pick-up trucks. Even the most heavily burdened salesman can find room for his sample cases and his personal effects in the rear of the DeSoto Six Coupe Business. Since a large majority of salesmen today use automobiles almost exclusively in covering their territory you can see that this feature of spaciousness is a highly important one.

The Coupe Business is finished in blue with black beading and fenders. The upholstery is of machine buffed pig-skin grain leather, another practical feature which appeals to the business man. The leather upholstery is long lived and stands up well under hard usage.

The DeSoto Six, owing to the design of its steering gear, can be driven with a minimum of effort. The positive action internal expanding hydraulic four-wheel brakes add to the driving ease and the salesman can travel long distances daily calling upon the trade without becoming fatigued.

New Air Cleaner Also Ends Backfire Hazard

By NEA Service

FLINT, Mich., Dec. 8.—A dual air cleaner-flame arrestor has been developed that removes all hazards due to carburetor backfires from automobile, motorboat and airplane engines. Engineers say the device should ultimately result in reduction of fire insurance rates on automobiles, motorboats and airplanes.

The device is the result of long research work by engineers of the AC Spark Plug company here and has been tested and approved by the National Board of Underwriters. According to the underwriters, no flame can be made to pass through the air cleaner-flame arrestor even under the most severe conditions.

The device, attached to the intake of the carburetor, prevents dust particles from reaching the engine. The dust as it comes in contact with copper ribbons in the apparatus adheres to the oil surfaces and is retained there.

The principle of the flame arresting feature is the quenching of the flame by a material which will absorb it at such a rate that the gas is cooled below the point of ignition. This combustion material

4 Of 5 Families Own Automobiles

AKRON, O., Dec. 8.—According to statistics compiled by a well-known tire manufacturer, four out of five families in the United States own automobiles. Of this number, it is estimated that nearly 15 per cent possess two cars each, while in eight percent of the cases there are approximately three automobiles to the family.

Taking into account the fact that the annual average running and maintenance cost of a car is placed at about $225, and that about one-fifth of this amount is absorbed by tire expense, the importance of judicious tire buying is easily understood.

While the difference in the outer consists of flat copper ribbon knitted and arranged in a container so that any flame emerging from the carburetor inlet must pass through it.

Copper is used because of its superiority over steel or other material. It has a heat conductivity nearly nine times that of steel. The flat knitted wires which are arranged at all angles and inclinations serve to diffuse the flame uniformly throughout the mass of material.

Engineers say the device also acts as an efficient muffler for carburetor noises.

appearance of a tire is chiefly a matter of variance in tread design, the distinction does not rest there by any means. Actually, the backbone of a casing is its carcass and for quality in that respect the buyer must depend upon the integrity of the tire dealer and tire manufacturer. If the tire does not live up to the claims of the seller, the car owner has made a costly experiment.

Peerless To Show New Models Soon

With its inventory out of the way and its assembly lines rearranged, The Peerless Motor Car Corporation is putting the finishing touches on the new models that will be announced to the public at the New York Show.

Chief among these new Peerless cars is said to be a six cylinder model that will sell at a price under $1300.00.

The price is made possible through the efforts of the new Peerless management, who have succeeded in increasing the efficiency of the great plant in Cleveland to a point never before reached by Peerless in the 28 years this company has devoted to the manufacture of high grade automobiles.

Use Studebakers For Bus Travel

An unusual transportation service which illustrates the rapid motorization taking place in remote sections of the world is maintained in Sumatra, Dutch East Indies, by the Deli Railway company.

The company operates three Studebaker buses in daily service between two cities in the mountainous part of the island. From sea level the route climbs to an elevation of 5,000 feet in the comparatively short distance of 45 miles. In spite of the fact that the Medan-Brastagi road covered by the three Studebakers is one of the steepest and most dangerous in the world, the buses cover the distance in less than two hours.

The satisfactory service rendered by Studebaker equipment recently led to the purchase of a President eight by the director of the railway company for his own use.

ANNOUNCING NEW SUPERIOR Whippet

Greater Beauty, Larger Bodies!

with "FINGER-TIP CONTROL"

-the most notable advance in driving convenience since the self-starter

What "Finger-Tip Control" means to you

Greater Convenience: A single button, conveniently located in the center of the steering wheel, controls all functions of starting the motor, operating the lights and sounding the horn.

This fundamental improvement does away with all troublesome foot fumbling for the starting button, a frequent source of annoyance particularly to women drivers. It also avoids changing from the comfortable driving position to reach a light switch on the dash.

Greater Safety: With the new "Finger-Tip Control," you can at all times keep your hands on the wheel and your eyes on the road. An important safety factor, especially when driving at night.

TODAY Willys-Overland presents for public judgment the new superior line of Whippet Fours and Sixes, setting new standards of beauty and comfort for low-priced cars.

Longer bodies, higher radiator and hood, richer colors, heavier one-piece full-crown fenders—all these contribute to the trim, smart appearance that denotes creative genius and superlative mastery of modern design.

Roomier bodies, greater comfort

More spacious interiors in the new Superior Whippet afford added leg room and elbow room. The wider, form-fitting seats are deeply upholstered . . . all passengers enjoy restful positions.

The longer wheelbase, plus the lengthened springs both front and rear, plus oversize balloon tires, and snubbers—all combine to the perfection of far easier riding under all driving conditions.

Greater power, greater speed

In mechanical improvements the new Superior Whippet advances even over its famous predecessor. The new higher compression engine gives more than 20% added horsepower, resulting in increased speed, faster pick-up and greater hill-climbing ability. A completely redesigned steering gear makes the new Superior Whippet instantly responsive to the lightest touch.

Through these further advances in scientific engineering, dependable performance and minimum operating costs are assured.

Order now for early delivery

See the new Superior Whippet today. An inspection and a demonstration will reveal to you an entirely new standard of dollar-for-dollar value in low-priced automobiles.

SLATON, Dec. 8.—A banquet for exhibitors at Slaton's third annual poultry show, held here Dec. 6, 7 and 8, was given Friday night at a local hotel by the Slaton Chamber of Commerce, about fifty people attending. J. W. Hood, president of the Slaton Chamber, gave the address of welcome.

Ray Mowery, head of the poultry division of the animal husbandry department of Tech College, Lubbock, spoke on "Mating and Record-Keeping." He advocated obtaining at least one fine sire mating him with a flock of choice hens, then gradually developing the desired high standards in the flock by carefully selecting breeding stock from offspring. Mr. Mowery declared, too, that it is highly important to keep accurate records of production of eggs.

Eaton Praised Slaton
D. F. Eaton, Lubbock county agricultural agent, said Slaton and surrounding territory has demonstrated in the past five years a greater interest in poultry development than any other section in this state. He also praised the Slaton show this year, having spent nearly a day looking over the exhibits. Mr. Eaton recommended fine foundation stock as a means of increasing profits from poultry.

Other speakers at the meeting included: E. L. Hicks, president of the Slaton Poultry association; A. A. Moore, show superintendent; Mrs. J. H. White, turkey breeder of Lubbock; G. C. Peiley, of Kirkland; C. Dickson, A. J. Payne, H. H. Johnson, and J. W. Buchanan of Slaton. Ralph Dickson, son of N. C. Dickson, living in the McClung community, seven miles north of Slaton, was introduced as a 4-H boy of Lubbock county who has won several fine premiums in the past year at the Slaton poultry show besides taking high honors at similar events elsewhere.

Bank Clearings In City Near Million

A big indication of strong financial conditions obtaining at this time in the South Plains country is that told Saturday by C. L. Slaton, president of the First National bank of Lubbock.

Mr. Slaton remarked that on last Saturday there was almost $1,000,000 in bank clearings handled on that day by the First National bank, which he believed was the largest single day's transaction experienced by the bank in the history of Lubbock.

The unit is manufactured by the Ellison Bedding Manufacturing company, of Fort Worth, and included a box spring, mattress and a pair of high grade pillows, upholstered in the same color of ticking.

A large crowd was present at the store for the demonstration, W. C. Rylander making a short address to them prior to awarding of the prize, at which event Mrs. Roger S. Pierce, Mrs. Hattie O'Hair and Tra Wilson acted as judges, assisted by Ruth Genele Spikes.

Teacher Marries
Winner of Essay

NEW YORK, Dec. 8. (AP)—Herbert J. Leigh-Manuell, Long Island music teacher who contracted a bigamous marriage with a 19-year-old pupil with the knowledge and aid of his legal wife, believes the experience has "cleared the atmosphere" and that now he can be happy with his first spouse.

After the legal difficulties which his bigamous marriage brought down on his head and that of 19-year-old Martha Van Wye, are cleared away he and Mrs. Leigh-Manuell No. 1 hope they can "go somewhere else and start life anew."

He talked as he lay on a couch in his Sayville, home and the legal Mrs. Leigh-Manuell stroked his head and expressed the hope that the authorities wouldn't be too hard on him.

A few of his neighbors and the pastor of St. Ann's Episcopal church, the Rev. Joseph Bond, where he played the organ, hope the same thing, believing the organist is "just a little queer." Most of the small community, however, are in sympathy with Cornelius Van Wye, Martha's first father, who hopes Leigh-Manuell gets "all the law will allow."

Martha, locked in her room by her father, has gone on a hunger strike.

LAMESA, Dec. 8.—Twenty-thousand bales of cotton have been ginned in Dawson County to this date. It is estimated that the county will gin 10,000 more counting bolls and all. The Dawson county crop has been cut short on account of damage done by insects and early freezes.

The Dawson County feed crop is above normal for harvesting is almost through with this crop. It is estimated that the county will produce 75,000 tons of grain sorghums this year. Much-male and other headed stuffs is being shipped into counties of West Texas where feed was short this fall. Much feed and bundle stuff is being manufactured into feed rations by the two feed mills located there. This feed is being used by local farmers and some is shipped to outside markets.

Locations Made

SNYDER, Dec. 8.—Activity in Scurry county oil leases seems to be increasing constantly with the published report from Duluth, Minn., that the holders there of oil leases in sections 65, 66 and 88 and a part of 67 in Fisher county comprising a little more than 2000 acres have organized and adopted the name of "The 2000 Acre Trust." The land is well located and the pipe line of the Dutch Shell company runs across the acreage.

Recent new locations made in Fisher and Borden counties include the Frank Green No. 1 Slaughter, in the T. & P. survey, Borden county; and the Dunigan No. 1 Henry R. H. Hibbett No. 331 survey, Fisher county.

Old Landmark Bows To Progress
Former "Opory House" To Be Razed

Trampled beneath the mercenary heel of uncompromising progress, another old landmark of Lubbock falls before the ever-increasing growth of the city.

Sleeping in the lore of yesteryear and reeking with tales of early pioneer days of Lubbock, the old, former "opera house," now located at the northeast corner of the intersection of Texas Avenue and 14th Street, is to be torn down to make room for a new, brick, modern edifice. The second two-story building to be constructed and at that time the most magnificent in the city, this old tin and galvanized iron structure has for several years been one of the eye-sore spots of the business district.

Was Once Meeting Place
Originally the building was located at the northeast corner of Broadway and Avenue J—a building which is closely aligned to the early days of the South Plains; one

1929 BY JERRY GROVES
INFA Service Inc. WITH NEWLY GROVES
AUTHOR OF "WHEN A GIRL LOVES"
"LOVE FOR TWO"

"THIS HAS HAPPENED"
Fate introduced JERRY RAY, a ship girl, to ALESTER CARSTENS, when he crashed his airplane into the camp she is sharing with her roommate MYRTLE. She likes his pilot, DAN HARVEY, but Alester admires her beauty and shows her attention. Unable to buy a gown for a party he has invited her to, Jerry slips one from the store where she works but it is ruined and she is discharged when she confesses. Dan tries to win her, but when he proposes he tells her she does not believe in love but hopes to marry for money.

Alester makes advances which Jerry repulses. But when he learns that she has lost her job on his account, he becomes contrite and uses his influence to get her a place in the store. Rehearsals are hard, but she is befriended by EVELYN STARR, who is in love with JAIL THANE. Evelyn gives a party at which Jail takes exception to Jerry's presence. A scene ensues and Dan forces an apology from Jail.

Alester shows his jealousy, and Dan tells Jerry she is bringing him to her feet but to guard her reputation on account of his family. Alester drives her to Atlantic City for the opening, but Jerry refuses to attend a midnight party. He wants to give the show.

Angered, he gives the party anyway and invites LEONINE LEBAUDY to take Jerry's place. A very short mention of her in the show review makes Jerry feel as though she has made good in the new position.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXXVIII
When Jerry emerged from Mr. Weinert's office she was all aglow with happy excitement. There had been a moment when she felt the nausea of failure rise within her, but Weinert's next words had dispelled that sensation.

"We have decided to put Jane Ormay back in her place," he had said in the beginning of the interview. Jerry stared at him, wondering. "To give you a chance to go on with Jack Beals," he added with a beaming smile.

Jack Beals! The best hooper in the show.

"You mean . . . just Mr. Beals and . . . me?" Jerry stammered, unable to believe that it could be so.

"That's right, Miss Ray. You and the boy. We've got to pep up that second act before we take the show back to New York. It can't hold 'em for the big idea in the third. Clever man, Harrell, very clever."

Jerry knew of course, that he referred to what the entire company was still talking about. The way Harrell had led the audience to believe they were in for an evening of disappointment before springing that garden pool scene on them.

"But I am . . . Jerry paused. She was about to say "inexpensive," when she thought of Evelyn and what her friend would say if she talked herself out of a chance like this.

Mr. Weinert, however, seemed to read her mind. "Sure, you'd flop alone," he said frankly, "but Jack can see you through—if you work hard enough. We'll start rehearsing you together in Boston tomorrow afternoon. By the way," he added as Jerry started to speak, "you're driving up to New York with Al aren't you?"

Jerry nodded, knowing he meant Alester.

"Well, see that you get to Boston in time for rehearsal," the producer went on soberly. "There will be some complaints about our putting you in ahead of girls who dance better than you do. If you start being temperamental we'll take you out."

Jerry flushed. She knew what the other girls would say. Up went her chin. "I'll make good," she declared warmly, "but I don't want to get by on anything except my ability."

Mr. Weinert smiled. "Don't get excited," he purred. "Don't I know? When Hule gets through with you coven Laurel herself won't have much on your stuff. Maybe I'd better tell you that Al hasn't had anything to do with your promotion," he continued more seriously. "We believe we can depend upon you, Miss Ray, and all that anybody says to the contrary, clean living counts for as much on the stage as anywhere else."

Jerry's fierceness disappeared. "I won't be late tomorrow," she said earnestly.

"Then tuck yourself in early to-night like a good little girl so you won't oversleep," Mr. Weinert warned her and got up to walk to the door with her. Jerry was too excited to appreciate the attention.

She rushed back to her hotel to tell Evelyn the news and to hurry with her unfinished packing.

Evelyn was just as enthusiastic as Jerry. They had to talk it over for 10 minutes before they could think of anything else. Suddenly Evelyn looked at her watch.

"I've just time to make the train," she exclaimed, jumping off the bed to grab her hat.

"It can't be so late," Jerry said. "Alester hasn't come yet and he promised to drive you to the station."

"I'll take a cab," Evelyn returned, rushing to gather up her umbrella and handbag.

She was halfway out of the door when the telephone rang and Alester sent up word that he was waiting.

"I'd go with you," Jerry said, "but I've got to get packed in a hurry. We're leaving as soon as Alester comes back."

Evelyn stopped and looked at her with a sudden grave expression. "I wish you were coming with me," she said. Then, suddenly, "Jerry, you won't miss the train in the morning?"

"If I do I'll get there even if I have to sprout wings and fly," Jerry laughed.

"You'd better depend upon the train," Evelyn called back as she hastened on to the elevator.

A bell boy got off it and Jerry showed him Evelyn's traveling bags. When the door closed behind him she busied herself in packing her own belongings.

Alester was back in a short while. Jerry was ready, looking very lovely in the new coat. Her spirits soared as she went down to the lobby.

"My things are upstairs," she said to Alester.

"We will get them after lunch," he told her.

Jerry regarded him in surprise.

"After lunch?" she echoed. "Why, it's only 10:30 now. I don't think we ought to wait for lunch."

"But we must," Alester replied. "I took Miss Starr to the station in a taxi. My car's in the garage for repairs. It won't be ready before three o'clock."

"Oh, Alester," Jerry wailed. "We won't get to New York before night."

"What of that?" he asked her.

Jerry told him about the show.

He congratulated her and seemed genuinely pleased, but he saw no reason for any anxiety about getting to Boston on time.

"I'll see that you get there," he promised. "But I think we ought to do something to celebrate the occasion."

The suggestion made Jerry uneasy. "Oh please let's start as soon as we can," she said hastily. "I ought to be near the show."

"Now, see here," Alester replied with a touch of asperity. "I always have to argue with you, Jerry. Aren't you ever going to do as I like without making a fuss about it?"

"But Alester, you know . . ."

"I know that you aren't treating me fairly," he interrupted hotly. "What harm can it do you to make our last evening together a pleasant one? You know I'm not going to see you again until your show comes back to New York. I've promised mother to go on her cruise to Nova Scotia."

"We could celebrate when you come back," Jerry began hopefully.

"Jerry," Alester broke in, "just this once let me have my way. I've planned a little dinner party in Philadelphia, wired a few friends yesterday. They're people I want you to meet—one of the girls is going on the cruise. This isn't a theatrical party or an affair like that one at Leontine's. Please don't disappoint me this time."

Jerry wished very much that she had taken the train with Evelyn for she knew before Alester had ceased his pleading, that she was not going to hold out against him. After all, it did seem a bit silly to insist upon getting home by 10 o'clock. And they would have to get dinner somewhere.

She asked how much longer it would take them to go by way of Philadelphia.

Alester said about two hours. "I can make wonderful time to Philadelphia," he said, and the roads to New York will be clearer at night. You will be home around one."

"All right," Jerry said, thinking that one o'clock was about her usual bedtime anyway. And she was so accustomed to her late hours. Besides, there had been morning rehearsals to get her out of bed on most days.

They walked to the Boardwalk and took a chair car. After a half-hour of this form of promenade Alester suggested a ride in a speedboat.

Jerry had seen these boats, with seats like those in automobiles and the same kind of steering wheel. She thought it would be fascinating to go out in one.

Motion was always exhilarating to her, she said to Alester, and he promised to take her up in his plane when he got back from the cruise. His promise brought Dan Harvey to Jerry's mind.

"Teach me to steer," she begged suddenly. She did not want to think of Dan.

When they returned to shore, somewhat salt-sprayed and wind-blown, she had succeeded in crowding the unwelcome memory out of her mind.

She had been doing that all week, telling herself that what she felt for Dan was a transitory infatuation—something she mustn't encourage if she wanted to go on growing fonder of Alester, as she seemed to be doing.

They lunched heartily at their leisure and at three they were off for Philadelphia.

Jerry could not down a feeling of guilt. When she promised Mr. Weinert to make good there had been no thought in her mind of doing the least thing to jeopardize her future.

But Alester was in a very good mood. He was pleased with Jerry, pleased that she was to have a real chance with Mr. Weinert, and elated that she had consented to go to Philadelphia with him.

Almost without being willing to admit it, he was building up something that might help him in case he ever seriously considered marrying her. She would make a good impression upon the people she was to meet tonight, he felt, and he wanted an ally at court where his mother reigned.

There had been a change in Jerry. Little crudities that would have made him unwilling to introduce her to certain of his friends had disappeared through association with Evelyn Starr. Jerry was acquiring a manner as well as manners.

"I hope you will like Miss Mortimer," he said as they neared the Quaker City. "She's one of the few girls mother doesn't consider among the lost."

Jerry wondered why he told her this. She could not help feeling that the remark was significant.

But she had something else more important to think about. What would she wear at dinner and where would she change?

Finally Alester himself settled the matter for her.

"We're going to have the Magnolia Rooms at The Kraal," he said and waited for the answering remark he was sure Jerry would make.

1928 Poll Tax Receipts Are Good

... Road Bond Election Is Held Prior to January This Year's Taxes Will Assure a Man His Vote

At last—a newspaper err which reacts to a good cause.

In an editorial appearing in the Saturday Morning Avalanche it was pointed out that those who would vote in the approaching road bond election, tentatively set for January 12, must have a 1928 poll tax receipt.

The statement, according to R. A. Sowder, local attorney, is in error and anyone who holds a 1928 poll tax receipt may cast his ballot on this important question if the vote is called before February 1st.

Mr. Sowder expresses his views in the following communication, addressed to the Sunday Avalanche-Journal:

"Editor, Morning Avalanche, Lubbock, Texas.

"Dear Sir:—

"In your editorial this morning about pulling Lubbock out of the mud, I wish to call attention to an error in the same affecting qualifications of those to vote at the election.

"You state that new poll taxes, that is meaning for 1928, must be had by all offering to vote on January 12; Article 2953 governing the qualifications of voters states:

"Other things 'provided that a voter who is subject to pay a poll tax under the laws of this state or ordinance of any city or town in this state shall have paid said tax before offering to vote at any election in this state, and holds a receipt showing that said poll tax was paid before the first day of February next preceding such election."

Since any election in January, 1929, will be following the first day of February, 1928, and no first day of February intervening between such time, and all persons owing poll taxes for the year 1927 have until the beginning of the first day of February, 1928, to pay such 1927 poll tax.

In contemplation of law there is no intervening first day of February and one who paid for 1927 poll tax within the time to qualify him to vote at any election in 1927 succeeding the last day of January, 1927, and if such right to vote until the expiration of the time limit to pay his 1928 poll tax, which is until the first day of February, 1928, so any person who is a qualified elector in this county, having paid his 1927 poll tax in the season, will be entitled to vote at any election held within Lubbock county (being otherwise qualified) until the end of January, 1928.

"There is much misapprehension, and we want to get the matter straight that all the Federal Highways in Lubbock county may be paved, and in the matter of fairness should those opposed to them want to cast their vote against it, they may do so, this being a free country.

"Yours very truly,

ROBT. A. SOWDER.

nesday night may be obtained at the meeting of the organization tomorrow evening. At this meeting the new pledges will be initiated. All out-of-town De Molays are invited to attend the dance.

CLUB TO BE ORGANIZED

SENIOR BANQUET MONDAY

The Seniors will have their first social get-together of the fall when they gather at the college cafeteria at 8 o'clock to have a banquet. This will be a social hour and a program

TERRELL HOME SCENE OF BANQUET

Medames Roy Terrell and R. O. O'Rear were hostess last Friday evening at the former's beautiful home in northwest Lorenzo, when they gave a Thanksgiving banquet to their many friends.

House decorations typified the Thanksgiving spirit and this same motif was carried out in the place-cards and score cards.

CAFE FIRE TUESDAY MORNING
The small cafe on the east side of Main Street operated by Mr. and Mrs. Jordan was damaged considerably by a fire early Tuesday morning. The building was saved but was damaged to a considerable extent. It is owned by Mr. Lonnie Bigham of Lubbock. No insurance was carried on the fixtures by Mr. Jordan.

Just how the fire started is not known, as Mr. Jordan built a fire in the cook stove and was sweeping out and the first thing he knew the kitchen was a mass of flames.

REX
Sunday: "Vanishing Hoofs" with Wally Wales.

Variety and plenty of it is scheduled in the motion picture offerings of the Lubbock theaters this week. With no single outstanding film slated on the week's menu, the menu, the greatest array of different types of pictures probably ever shown here in a similar length of time will be offered to the theater goers of the city. Everyone should be able to find the picture of his choice.

"Lovers" Will Star

For those who like passionate love pictures there will be the famous screen duo, Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky, in "Two Lovers" at the Palace. For a flippant, gay, hilarious farce there will be Colleen Moore in "Oh Kay" at the Palace. Lovers of poignant sea drama, of raw, real life in the slums of the Orient will find a criterion in "Across to Singapore" at the Lyric. Then there will be a light society drama in "Gold Widows" at the Lindsey; a thrilling, pagan, tropical driving drama of the South Seas and a money-hungry band of white men in the picture "White Shadows in the South Seas" at the Palace; a dramatic naval academy film woven into a colorful romance in "Annapolis" at the Lindsey; and a tense, small-town story in "Ned McCobb's Daughter" at the Lindsey.

Two one-time famous actors of the screen return to the public in the production of "Ned McCobb's Daughter" which begins a two-day showing at the Lindsey, Thursday. Theodore Roberts, grand old man of the screen and Irene Rich, at one time one of the most popular idols of the screen, are the actors. This picture is woven around a theme of rum-running and is based on the Theater Guild success of Sidney Howard. It is a swift-moving powerful drama, set in a small New England seaport.

Monte Blue Coming
Starting Thursday at the Palace will begin "White Shadows in the South Seas," a story east in the South Seas. Monte Blue and Raquel Torres carry the leads in the picture, which deals with the exploration of the South Seas on a scale that never before was attempted by white men.

"Annapolis," which shows tomorrow at the Lindsey is the story of two classmates in the U. S. Naval Academy, the testing of friendship, with a clever theme of romance running through the picture. John Mack Brown, Hugh Allan, Jeanette Loff, and William Bakewell are cast in the principal roles.

The great American story of the intervention of golf between husbands and wives is the basis for the picture "Gold Widows" which shows Wednesday and Thursday at the

Lila Lee Tries Comeback After Absence From Films

By DAN THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Dec. 8.—A few years ago she was one of the shining stars of the movies.

Then Cupid intervened. Wedding bells rang out and Lila Lee turned to the role of wife and mother. Now she has set out to regain her position in the films.

Four Year Old Son
Despite the fact she is the mother of a four-year-old boy, the actress resembles a girl just breaking into pictures. She retains all of the qualities which aided her on her first ascent to fame—plus experience.

"I never did want to leave the screen and never got entirely away from it," she says. "I worked in two films last year and two in 1926 just to keep in touch with the industry. Of course, my friends have been picture people right along but there is a difference between friendly contacts and business relations."

"For while I had to stay home constantly because of my baby, Jimmy. He is old enough now so that I can leave him home with his nurse while I work. I am going to work hard. I want to enjoy the happiness that can come only with success."

With Texas Galvan

The actress recently had one of the leading roles, that of a cabaret dancer in Texas Galvan's first Vitaphone production, "Queen of the Night Clubs." In that film she had a chance to both talk and sing. And she is adept at both, although we will admit that she enjoyed the talking most.

And the husband? Oh, yes—James Kirkwood.

GIVES LIFE FOR CHILD

Mother Braves Flames In Futile Attempt

SANTA ANA, Calif., Dec. 8 (AP)—A Japanese mother who braved flames in her home a second time after rescuing two of her babies, perished here yesterday when she dashed into the house attempting to save a seven-year-old son who lay ill with influenza.

The mother, Mrs. Frank Ymata, was found burned to death near the bed of her son, Bennie, who also died in the blazing house.

An eye is valued at $5,477 in North Carolina, if the amount awarded a steel worker for the loss of one is any indication.

Lindsey Star of "Wedding Bells" and "Smiling Through," Harrison Ford, carries the male lead. He plays opposite Vera Reynolds, peppy screen flapper of "Almost Human" and many other amusing productions.

Stars At Lyric

"Across to Singapore" at the Lyric today will be welcomed by many theater goers who failed to see it before. It is a vivid sea drama, mixed in with the conflict of two brothers over the love of the same girl. Raymon Novarro and Joan Crawford are the leading stars, with Ernest Torrence as the other brother. Vilma Banky and Ronald Colman, famous lovers of the screen, appear for the last time together in "Two Lovers," which shows today at the Palace. Following this production, these two stars began their individual careers. The picture was directed by Fred Niblo, and is laid against the ever-stirring background of war.

Vivacious, petite Colleen Moore heads a cast of leading serious comedians in "Oh Kay" which is to show this week at the Palace. The picture is heralded as the most laughable and hilarious in which Colleen has ever appeared.

LYRIC

Farms Improved Through Hockley

Predict Big Increase In All Of Cultivated Acreage In Territory Around Leveland, County Seat

LEVELAND, Dec. 8.—From present prospects quite a number of new farms will be improved in Hockley county this winter in time for the coming crop year. For a while it was predicted that the insect depredations on the cotton crop during the present year would discourage immigration into this section; but the newcomers take the view that the boll worm is likely to infest any part of the cotton growing sections of the south, and that next year this section has an even break with any other part for a good crop.

The excellent feed crops have made conditions better here than farther east where little cotton and no feed were raised. It now looks as though there will be as many new farmers come into the county this winter as last, when at least 300 new farms were improved.

SUMMARY

Market down around $2.00 a bale from Friday's close after a bearish bureau report. Liverpool was much better than due and the American markets opened higher and steady. After fluctuating within a range of ten points, the close before the government report was at the high. The estimate of 14,373,000 bales for the total production for 1934 was construed as temporary bearish and when the markets reopened at ten-fifteen prices were around $3.00 a bale lower. This drop was immediately followed by a wave of profit taking buying that ran the market up somewhat.

Although the crop estimate was above the average of the private estimates, it was generally in line with the majority of them. It shows an increase of 240,000 bales over the government's report of November 8. A crop of 14,400,000 bales will not be burdensome, nor will it create a famine and the market from now on should be an orderly affair, going higher when the demand warrants it and reacting when the demand for the actual slackens.

In addition to an estimate of the crop the census bureau issued a report of the amount of cotton ginned to Dec. 1, which was 12,561,619 bales, comparing with 11,738,338 bales, comparing with 11,738,338 bales to the same date last year and 14,644,070 bales to the same date two years ago. Ginning for the period, which was 1,241,317 bales compared with 1,159,305 the preceding period this year, 843,426 bales this period last year and 1,687,626 bales this period two years ago.

WEATHER

The weather map early was generally dry and cold over the cotton belt. The barometer was high over the cotton region, one area central in middle part of the United States extending from the Great Lakes to the Gulf 30.5 and another area central over Wyoming 30.5. Forecast, Eastern belt; colder with freezing temperatures in S. C. and Ga. Western belt; colder with frost predicted in East Texas and West Texas.

Daily Markets

KANSAS CITY LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 8. (P)—(U. S. D. A.)—The week's cattle trade around the 11 market circuit was marked by considerable unevenness. Fed steers closed the week steady to 25c lower with the better grades of matured steers 25c to 50c lower with the better grades of matured steers 25c to 50c off and yearling weights little changed. Other killing classes were strong to unevenly higher, several markets showing a 25c to 50c upturn on the better grades of the stock. Stocker and feeder classes were steady to 25c higher. The supply was seasonally light at most centers. The week's extreme top of $17.50 on strictly choice fed steers was paid at Chicago. Aggregate receipts were estimated at 223,350 as compared with 166,299 last week and 263,722 the corresponding period a year ago.

Total offerings of hogs were around 708,000 an increase of 278,000 over last week and 131,800 heavier than a year ago. Current prices are steady to 15c lower than last week's close and materially higher than the week's low time. The slight decline this week was gratifying in view of the fact that receipts were liberal and shipping demand moderate. Chicago had a late top of $8.90.

FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK

FORT WORTH, Dec. 8. (P)—(U. S. D. A.)—Cattle receipts at Fort Worth during the past week have shown a material increase in volume, but have included relatively few slaughter steers. Supplies on most days have been running largely to butcher cows, low-cutters and mixed butcher classes. Little change has occurred in the market for slaughter steers and fat grassers are still selling up to 10.50, with occasional sales of short feds reported in the 11.00 range. One load of 871-pound fat yearlings, grading good, brought 13.00 Friday and Thursday's sales included a small lot of choice fat yearlings at 15.00. Not much business in fat cows has been transacted above the 8.00 level. Although a few small lots of good grades have been reported up to 9.00 and above. Strong weight to cutters in carlots have been selling readily on most days. Friday's sales including several loads of strong weights with a cutters end at 5.50. The market for desirable heavy slaughter calves has shown quite a little advance and packers are paying up to 11.25 for good to choice heavies. Best white-face stock steer calves made a top of 12.00, a seven car string of white face two year old stock steers brought 11.00 early in the week and a 14 car string of good young stock cows sold at 7.50.

Prices paid for hogs today appeared steady to five cents lower. The day's top 8.75, purchased one load of good to choice 225-pound butchers. Best truck hogs reported at 8.50 and packing sows sold at 7.50 to 8.00.

Not enough sheep or lambs on hand today to test values. No sales of consequence reported. The week is closing with fat weathers listed at advances of about a quarter, while fat lambs had small gains or around ten to fifteen cents. Other classes have remained about steady throughout. Good woolled fat lambs have ranged up to 13.00 during the week and most of the good to choice short fat weathers 8.00.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, Dec. 8. (P)—Stock prices were sent tobogganing more distantly than ever today, as many margin accounts which had weathered the storm of the past two days were wiped out. Solid stocks were from 20 points to a loss of 72 points in radio.

The rush to unload piled up total sales of 3,744,900 shares, the largest Saturday total in history, and again threw the trading machinery into turmoil, the ticker running for 74 minutes after the close. The previous high record for Saturday was made in election week, when 3,207,000 shares changed hands.

The Associated Press average price of 20 industrials was depressed nearly 10 points, the most acute drop since the record of averages has been kept and completely wiping out the advance that was made in the "Hoover market" which began with the session following election. The average has fallen more than 26 points in the past three days and is nearly 30 points under the peak of November 20. The rails, however, have fared better than the industrials. The average of 20 fell back only about 1 1/2 points today, and still retains about 2 points of its advance points today.

There was no call money market today, and the selling was ascribed in a large part to a weakening of margin accounts, although commission houses have successively increased their marginal requirements recently, many requiring from 33 to 50 percent. Brokers believe that these heavy requirements have saved the market from what might have been the most disastrous selling panic the exchange has ever seen. Wall Street is not surprised that the most violent bull market ever known should react with unprecedented violence. As measured by the Associated Press average of 20 industrials, about two-thirds of the years advances are still retained.

Among other volatile issues, International Harvester lost 61 points, National Tea 54, Federal Mining 50, and Case Threshing 32. Wright Aero sold down 33 points, and closed 26 lower, while Russia Insurance lost about 20 points. American Express, Chrysler, Sears-Roebuck, Texas and Pacific, Midland Steel Preferred, and Warner Brothers lost about 8 to 10 points. Byers shot up 6 points to the opening, fell 36 points, and closed down 13 1/2. Kolster Radio dropped 19 points in response to its collapse on the San Francisco exchange yesterday, but regain 4.

Heaviness of the old line favorites was again marked. General Motors lost 5 points, while such issues as American Can, American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Union Pacific and U. S. Steel lost 1 to 2 points. The decline in General Electric was checked, however, and it made a small gain.

Chicago Pneumatic Tool was one of the few strong points, gaining 6 points on announcement of a refinancing plan. With the marked exception of Mexican Seaboard, which lost 12 points, oil withstood the selling better than most groups. Standard of New Jersey and Texas Corp. made fractional gains. Bethlehem Steel advanced more than a point, and Burroughs Adding Machine and Baldwin Locomotive went up 2 and 3 points.

In the commodity markets, cotton tumbled about $3 a bale on the final government crop estimate, which was larger than expected. Foreign exchanges were slightly easier, in response to slight sag in Sterling.
