

Panhandle Area Alerted For Heavy Snow Tonight

Forecasters Say Storm Also May Trigger Belt Of Rain In Some Places

By United Press International

Light snow, buffeted by gusty winds up to 50 miles per hour, peppered the Texas Panhandle early today as the weather continued the warm again-cold again pattern that has plagued the state throughout February.

The U. S. Weather Bureau said the new winter storm, spawned in New Mexico and West Texas, would bring snow with considerable blowing and drifting to a wide area of the country.

The new storm, it said, was "just now in its formative stage and all interests should be on the alert for later revised forecasts on its progress."

Up to four inches of snow was expected to accumulate on the ground in the southern Panhandle and upper South Plains by nightfall.

A belt of heavy rainfall was expected to be triggered by the storm, spreading northward and eastward across the already-sodden Gulf Coast states and as far north as the Ohio Valley area, adding further to the flood conditions in those sections of the United States.

The immediate forecast for Pampa and vicinity makes no mention of snow. It calls for cloudiness and colder tonight, fair and not so cold tomorrow. Yesterday's high was in the upper 40s. Low tonight expected to be around 30 and high tomorrow near 50.

Small craft warnings were ordered hoisted from Morgan City, La., to Brownsville for southerly winds 20-30 knots shifting to northerly and northwesterly with scattered showers and thundershowers this afternoon and tonight. The winds were expected to diminish by late Tuesday.

At daybreak, the cold front extended across North Texas from the vicinity of Texarkana to just north of Fort Worth and Dallas and on westward into a low pressure area lying over the South Plains.

Early morning temperatures varied between 25 degrees at Dalfhart, where it was snowing, to 63 degrees at Corpus Christi.

The cold front moved in on the heels of a spring-like week end (See SNOW, Page 8)

Federal Aid Sought For Flood Disaster

By United Press International
Governors of Alabama and Mississippi pressed appeals for disaster relief from the federal government today in the wake of floods that inundated sections of four southern states.

Most streams and rivers in the flood-stricken areas of Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia and Louisiana were receding. Rain which had fallen for seven days in some places was diminishing.

The Red Cross estimated that 15,000 persons in Alabama, Mississippi and Phenix City areas, were being evacuated in Mississippi, mostly from the Hattiesburg area.

Georgia, with serious flooding in the Columbus and West Point regions, reported five deaths.

In Tennessee, it was freezing weather rather than floods that brought misery, and three weather deaths were reported.

Flood waters roared toward the Mississippi Gulf Coast and officials warned that some rivers in that state still have not reached their crest. The Leaf at Merrill

Arab Republic To Oust All Belgians

CAIRO, U.A.R. (UPI) — The United Arab Republic moved today to oust all Belgians from the country and seize their assets here as a result of ruptured diplomatic relations.

Belgium broke relations last week after its embassy in Cairo was wrecked by demonstrators protesting the slaying of former Congo Premier Patrice Lumumba.

Official sources said there are about 350 Belgians living in the Syrian and Egyptian sections of the U.A.R. and the government has ordered them out. The sources said banks had been ordered to freeze Belgian funds until the government is able to appoint officials to take over Belgian properties estimated at more than $15 million dollars.

Armed Congolese Troops Attack White Secretary

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI)—Armed Congolese soldiers raped a white United Nations secretary Sunday night and beat four Canadian U.N. soldiers today in a wave of angry violence against the international police force. The United Nations threatened to use force to stop it.

The girl, whose identity and nationality were not disclosed, was held up by two Congolese soldiers carrying machine guns as she drove outside the city under escort of an unarmed Ethiopian officer.

The Congolese pressed the muzzles against the necks of their captives and forced the girl into the bushes by the roadside. First one, then the other raped the girl. She was hospitalized in shock today.

From all over the city came reports of attacks by Congolese troops.

Rajeshwar Dayal, head of the U.N. operation in the Congo, fired off a harsh note to the Congolese army protesting cases of "brutal assault, arbitrary arrest and bestial behavior."

"The United Nations strongly warn the Congolese army that it will not tolerate such disgraceful behavior toward U.N. personnel, civil or military," Dayal said.

"The U.N. command has to will resist such attempts with full force and the consequences will be squarely on the Congolese army and the responsible authorities."

The Canadian soldiers, also unarmed, were stopped by 15 Congolese at a roadblock as they were going to get rations. The Congolese ran them at gunpoint to Camp Reidsdorf outside Leopoldville.

Other Congolese ran out of the huts and began beating the Canadians with rifle butts. The Canadians escaped but needed medical treatment for severe bruises.

The trouble began Sunday when a group of 60 U.N. civilians went on a picnic to a lake called Ma Valle, about 20 miles from Leopoldville.

Dayal's contract with the United Nations expires March 1 when he is due to return to the Indian diplomatic service.

Hammaraskjold apparently is making no effort to persuade Dayal to stay on, although informed sources both here and in Washington said the secretary general is having a tough job finding a suitable replacement.

U.N. headquarters Sunday released a new note sent by Kasavubu to Dayal Saturday accusing the Indian of being partial to the leftwing Lumumbist forces in the Congo.

It was considered likely that Hammaraskjold might pick an African to head up the U.N. operation in order to head off as much criticism as possible, either from East or West.

Ike Says He Didn't Criticize

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower Sunday night categorically denied criticism of the Kennedy administration attributed to him by Sen. Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D.

In one of the few prepared statements he has issued since arriving on vacation at this desert resort Feb. 8, Eisenhower described Mundt's report as inaccurate, saying he has so far made no judgment of the new administration.

Eisenhower said he "very much regretted" Mundt's issuance of the report. He also denied that it accurately reported his views on public affairs or on his personal plans.

Mundt made the comments about the former chief executive in his weekly newsletter to his South Dakota constituents, reporting Eisenhower felt the Kennedy administration policies were "too much left of center, too partisan, too slanted toward programs supported by union bossism."

Mundt, told today in Washington of Eisenhower's statement, said, "I have no comment at this time."

Mundt issued the report Sunday on the basis of a one-hour visit last week with Eisenhower in Palm Springs. He told his constituents Eisenhower believed the Republican party failed to work hard enough on the local level between elections and that the former president would make public his views in detail in a July magazine article.

Police scoured the run-down Manhattan neighborhood with sketches of Thompson in a hunt for acquaintances. One report said persons in two bars identified him and described him as a troublemaker. Police has good fingerprints from more than 40 beer cans that littered his room.

The pretty blonde girl was found by detectives who broke down the door of the rooming house flat after another tenant in the building complained of an odor coming from the room in which Thompson rented. Feb. 17 paying in advance.

Googie had been sexually molested and was killed the day she disappeared, the medical examiner said. Her beaten, twisted body was lying on an iron post bed, partly covered with a sheet and a dark red quilt. Her underwear and purple snowsuit had been ripped off and tossed on the floor, but she still was wearing a green dress.

Nation On Alert For Slayer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Police today sought a toothless, drunken degenerate believed to be the slayer of 4-year-old Edith (Googie) Kiecorius whose disrobed and battered body was found Sunday in a slum room.

Some 20,000 face sketches and a nationwide alarm were issued for the man who rented the $8-a-week trash-littered room under the name of Fred Thompson. He was described as 5-3 tall, sandy-haired and in his early fifties. He was last seen Wednesday one hour before Googie disappeared while playing in front of her uncle's apartment house two blocks from Thompson's room, touching off one of the most intensive searches in the city's history.

Acting Chief of Detectives Robert Gallati said, "We feel very encouraged."

Moroccan King Dies; Son Ascends Throne

RABAT, Morocco (UPI) The princes and priests of Morocco today swore allegiance to a new king, 33-year-old Moulay Hassan, catapulted to the throne by the sudden death of his popular father King Mohammed V.

The young crown prince became King Hassan II Sunday a few hours after his 51-year-old father died of heart failure following what had been expected to be a minor nasal operation.

The prince's assumption of supreme power came at a critical time in Morocco's position between East and West. Stepping into the shoes of his powerful father, Moulay Hassan faced difficult tasks in rallying feuding political parties and handling Morocco's increasingly delicate relations with the West and Russia.

Morocco, which occupies a strategic position on the Mediterranean, recently has begun a drift away from strong ties with the West into closer relations with the Soviet Union. A treaty covering U.S. military bases in Morocco is due to expire in 1963.

Prince Moulay Abdullah, the younger brother of Moulay Hassan, was the first to pledge his allegiance to the new monarch today. He was followed by other members of the royal family and the Moroccan oulemas, or Moslem religious leaders and advisers.

The nation today began seven days of mourning for King Mohammed, whose body lay in a mausoleum inside the royal palace. The funeral was set for Tuesday.

The king's heart failed 10 minutes after completion of an operation for "dissection of the nasal membrane" in the palace clinic. Doctors tried vainly to revive him by massaging his heart.

Mohammed had been Morocco's ruler since became sultan at the age of 18 when his country was a French protectorate. He was a popular, hard-working leader who earned the name of "father of Morocco's independence."

Because he refused to compromise on the issue of independence, the French shipped him to exile in 1953. But political pressure forced the French to reinstate him in November, 1955, and four months later he had jockeyed them into granting his people independence.

MOSCOW (UPI) — U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson returns to Moscow from Washington today with broad new negotiating powers and a personal message from President Kennedy to Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev.

The contents of the message were not disclosed in advance but it was known that Thompson would convey Kennedy's desire for improvement in relations between the United States and Russia.

Thompson is expected to explain to the Soviet leader Kennedy's overall position on such hot East-West issues as the United Nations, the Congo, disarmament, nuclear weapons testing and other problems which divide the two nations.

To reports that Kennedy feels these areas offer a valuable testing ground for Soviet intentions, Russian officials are quick to answer "and vice-versa."

Diplomatic sources doubt there will be any dramatic breakthrough. Rather, they foresee a long period of difficult, quiet diplomacy, if Thompson can get his way.

It is known that both Kennedy and his secretary of state, Dean Rusk, favor behind the scenes negotiations and Thompson is an expert at this type of work.

'Flying Grandpa' Off On Round-World Hop

MIAMI (UPI)—"Flying Grandpa" Max Conrad took off in a small, twin-engine plane at 8:07 a.m. today on a 25,000 mile around-the-world flight that he hopes will break existing records.

Conrad, who already holds several world flying records, will try to make the flight in nine days.

The 58-year-old Winona, Minn., pilot will carry a passenger with him for the first time on one of his globe-circling hops.

Designated as an official observer to see that Conrad adheres to all regulations during the flight was Richard Jennings, NBC radio newsmen.

Conrad said he plans to follow a westerly route, stopping first at Long Beach, Calif. Other stops will be made at Honolulu, Wake Island, Manila, Singapore, Bombay, Nairobi, the Nigerian city of Lagos, Dakar and Trinidad before the return to Miami.

He will eat very little while on the ground, he said, and plans to take only such liquids as tea, bouillon and dietary preparations during the journey.

The longest non-stop distance to be flown is the 3,028 miles over the Pacific between Wake Island and Manila. The shortest is between Manila and Singapore, 1,480 miles.

Today's Lenten Message

By THE MOST REV. JOHN WRIGHT
Roman Catholic Bishop of Pittsburgh
(Written for UPI)

Most people would accept everything about Christ and His teachings — except the cross. The cross remains precisely what St. Paul proclaimed it to be, a stumbling block over which they fall who would find Christ appealing, consoling, inspiring, anything else one wishes — except for the cross.

Indeed, most would probably find even the cross magnificent if Christ had limited its necessity to Himself. But he did not. He made it the condition of the sincere following of His teaching that each would take up his own cross in imitation of the crucified Son of Man.

St. Paul gloried that he might share any part of the redemptive sufferings of Christ. He understood that only they can share the glory of God who have shared the cross of His Son.

This is unintelligible to the undisciplined and the selfish, even those who call themselves Christians and who profess to seek the truth that religion offers. However in Christ is comfort and consistent with their lives is gladly accepted; out they cheerfully fashion a life by which to live. But the hard sayings of the Gospel; the stern requirements of the Commandments; for contradiction and renunciation which come with the cross — there are reluctant to mere nature and are easily rejected.

MARINA DI CARRARA, Italy (UPI) — A ship capsized during launching today before a horrified crowd of several thousands. At least three persons were injured.

The ship rested on the shallow bottom. About six feet of superstructure poked out of the water. Workers opened a wide hole in its side with blowtorches.

Authorities said after a hasty check that no one appeared to be missing, but the search inside the ship continued.

New Custom-Built Storm Window Sells For $17.95

This is the time of year when thousands of Panhandle homeowners are wishing they had storm windows and doors to keep out winter's icy blasts.

Undoubtedly many of them would go ahead and have these fuel-savers installed, too, if they felt they could afford the expense. It's too bad, because if they only knew it, most of them CAN afford it easily.

Plains Aluminum Industries of Panhandle, maker of the famous Plains Dust Stopper window, now is manufacturing a new line of all-aluminum storm windows and doors, called The Highlander, which are custom-built for this area and cost far less than most comparable products.

The Highlander storm window, for instance, is priced at $17.95, yet competes with others selling as high as $29.95. That's because you buy direct from the factory and don't have to pay the middleman. Price of the Highlander storm door is comparably low.

Moreover, you may have 36 months to pay, with nothing down, if you wish.

Harold Smith of Plains Aluminum Industries, who pioneered custom-built storm windows in this area in 1946, says this is the first such fine window to be offered in this price range.

It's sold only by Plains Aluminum Industries. For a demonstration and estimates, all you have to do is write the company at Box 38, Panhandle, Texas, or to place a collect call to 2621 or 3781, Panhandle.

If you live in Amarillo, you can call the company's resident representative, Ben Hill, at EV3-1821 and he'll call on you promptly.

The Highlander has a lifetime aluminum frame and aluminum screen wire. It's weatherstripped fully and can be changed from winter to summer use and back again simply by opening or closing.

Of course Plains Aluminum Industries continues to manufacture and install the famed Plains Dust Stopper, which Harold Smith calls "The storm window that does what others attempt to do."

This window, in a higher price bracket, is said to keep out dirt and winter cold, to give 100 per cent protection against hail and to stop fading of drapes and furnishings. Like the Highlander, it is sold direct from factory to homeowner.

Storm windows and storm doors cut the heat bills and make the home more comfortable through the winter. And there's more winter weather ahead. Better get this low-priced protection right now.

Texas Building Permits Show 10 Pct. Decline

AUSTIN (UPI)—Duplexes and apartment houses increased in popularity with Texas building contractors last month, but January building permits still declined 10 per cent from December.

The University of Texas Bureau of Business Research said the decline was the result of an overall drop in non-residential permits for the commercial buildings that have kept state construction at a high level despite lagging home building.

The bureau reported total urban building permits issued during January at 222 per cent of the 1947-49 average and 7 per cent above the same month a year ago.

From December to January, residential permits rose 8 per cent, offset by a 24 per cent non-residential decline.

Compared with January a year ago, the situation was reversed. Residential permits were 12 per cent lower and non-residential permits were 46 per cent higher.

"Among the residential categories," the bureau said, "permits for multiple-family dwellings showed strong month-to-month and year-to-year increases."

Single-family dwellings comprise about 88.7 per cent of the homebuilding market. The bureau said the demand in that area was down from last year because of higher building costs and fewer newly-formed families in the age brackets at which the first home is usually purchased.

Dallas led state cities in construction costs, at $20 million. Total construction permits in Houston came to $15 million, El Paso $6.6 million, Austin $4.5 million, San Antonio $3.8 million and Fort Worth $2.1 million.

The bureau also reported new dwelling units in Houston at 676, Dallas 604, Austin 242, El Paso 223, San Antonio 182 and Fort Worth 131.

U.S. Spends $9-Million On Texas Hospitals

AUSTIN (UPI)—The Federal Government pumped $9.3 million into Texas hospital construction in 1960, the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research said today.

The federal funds are allocated under the Hill-Burton Act and represent 35 per cent of the cost of hospital construction in Texas during 1960, the bureau said.

Leading the Hill-Burton projects in 1960 were the Scott and White Memorial Hospital in Temple, with a cost of $7.7 million, and the Galveston County Memorial Hospital with a value of $4 million.

Eight counties have received over $10 million since the program was started in 1948.

Houston and Harris county lead in dollar value with over $37 million. The other counties with over $10 million are Dallas, Tarrant, El Paso, Galveston, Nueces, Travis and Bexar.

The bureau said the Hill-Burton Act was passed to provide additional medical facilities for those areas where construction did not keep pace with post-World War II population growth.

Costs of hospital construction have risen in Texas until it now costs from $17,000 to $19,000 per bed, the Bureau said. This figure represents the cost of all equipment, designing and other costs of the project. By comparison, the bureau said the cost per bed in California is as high as $35,000.

January, 1961 permits for construction exceeded $13 million—more than one-third of all authorizations to build during 1960, the bureau said.

Funds Available To Help Farmers In Need Of Cash

CLARENDON (SpI)—A fund has been made available to help meet the needs of eligible farmers who need money to carry out their operations, James County supervisor for the Farmers Home Administration yesterday.

Gouldy said that a $150,000 contingency fund provided by the 1961 Agricultural Appropriation Act has just been released to meet the growing demand.

This move was taken by the Department of Agriculture, said, in an effort to make available, that no qualified type farmer will be required to give up farming because of inability to finance his 1961 operations.

Because of high operating and unfavorable margins of many farmers have exhausted their regular sources of farm operating credit. The amount of operating loans made so far this year, by the Farmers Home Administration totals 20 per cent higher than last year. The credit agency's biggest lending season lies just ahead as farmers prepare to start their spring work.

The credit agency's biggest lending season lies just ahead as farmers prepare to start their spring work.

The Farmers Home Administration makes operating loans primarily to help eligible farm families make improved use of their land and labor resources on family-type farms and make needed changes in their farming systems. Most of the changes call for adopting better farming practices and improving the efficiency of their farming operations. Loans may also be made to qualified farmers who carry on smaller than family-type operations.

Operating loans help farmers pay for equipment, livestock, feed, seed, fertilizer, tractor fuel and other farm and home operating needs including the refinancing of chattel debts. Loans are scheduled for repayment in accordance with the borrower's ability to repay, over periods up to 7 years. The interest rate is 5 per cent.

Further information on these loans may be obtained from the county office of the Farmers Home Administration in Clarendon, serving Armstrong, Donley and Gray counties.

Texas Had Major Crime Every 3 Minutes In '60

AUSTIN (UPI)—One major crime was committed in Texas on an average of every three minutes during 1960, the State Department of Public Safety said today.

The DPS reported an overall increase of 13.3 per cent in major crimes over 1959 and a 57 per cent increase over the 1955 total.

Robbery and burglary rates showed the greatest increase last year, both about 25 per cent more offenses than 1959. Of seven major types of crime, decreases were reported only in the rate of murders and stolen automobiles.

Total estimated offenses involving those crimes in 1960 was 198,956—a rate of 2,157 per 100,000 population.

Col. Homer P. Garrison, director of the DPS, said on an average day last year there were three murders, three rapes, 10 robberies, 156 burglaries, 298 thefts and 41 auto thefts.

The DPS estimated total offenses in each category based on reports from sheriffs and chiefs of police:

Murder and homicide — 1,060, or 11.7 per 100,000 population, down 1.3 per cent from 1959.
Rape — 1,196, rate 13, up 2.7 per cent.
Robbery — 3,560, rate 38.6, up 25.7 per cent.
Burglary — 56,976, rate 617.7, up 24.3 per cent.

Senator Says He Had Good Reason For Smackin' Him

FORT WORTH (UPI)—State Sen. Doyle Willis said Saturday he hit Fort Worth brick company executive J. Ernest Fender Jr. Friday night "because he called me a ——— and no one calls me that."

Willis nursed a cut over his left eye, suffered when Fender hit back when the two men exchanged punches following a brief argument at the plush Ridgley Country Club.

"I was talking to some people when this fellow walked up and said 'I just want you to know I think you are a ——— for the way you voted on the Carling brewery issue,'" Willis said.

Willis has opposed legislation which would allow the Carling Brewing Co. to establish a brewery in the Fort Worth area.

Fender denied using profanity, and said he told Willis "I just want you to know I don't appreciate your position on the Carling brewery issue."

Britain Rumored To Favor UN Seat For Red China

LONDON (UPI)—Britain, after a review of policy toward Red China, now can be expected to favor openly a seat for Peiping in the United Nations despite American opposition, diplomatic sources said Saturday.

There was speculation Prime Minister Harold Macmillan might visit Red China next fall during a scheduled Far East tour.

Threat Of Force Eases Danger Of Congo Civil War

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UPI)—The U.N. Command's threat to use force has eased the danger of civil war in the Congo, a message from the strife-ridden country said Saturday.

Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold's personal representative there, Rajeshwar Dayal of India, said in a report dated Friday.

"Although the civil war situation continues to be one of gravity, some improvement appears to be in sight as a result of the persistent efforts by the United Nations to prevent armed conflict and bloodshed."

Dayal said that Congolese leaders had been warned that unless they halt military maneuvers, U. N. troops will be ordered into action.

Japanese Sake Sipping Slips In Liquor Race

TOKYO (UPI)—Pity the poor sake-sipper of Japan.

Indignity upon indignity has been heaped on his head.

The rice wine, for centuries the most popular drink in Japan, not only fell behind beer in public favor last year, but now some dastardly manufacturer wants to put it in square bottles just like whisky.

And one even is thinking of making bottles in the shape of hip flasks, for the benefit of mountaineers.

Popularity of sake, whose origin is buried in antiquity, began dropping in 1956, although it held the No. 1 spot in the heart of triplers the following three years.

But in 1960, it gave way to beer, and there were inroads by whisky and vodka.

The reason given was that a new generation of Japanese was supporting the liquor stores, a generation which disdained the elders' love of the delicate sake in favor of more potent and modern drinks like whisky.

Sake manufacturers began a campaign to recoup.

There was condensed sake in a tube, sake-flavored tooth paste and even sake concentrated in tablet form — again for the benefit of mountain climbers who may need a lift.

But these innovations were not enough to halt the advance of beer and liquor.

The latest attempt is to change the shape of the bottle, a move which is not likely to increase sales to any great extent.

Actually, Japan's 4,000 sake manufacturers are in trouble on more than one front.

A white paper issued by one of the nation's top producers of vintage sake sounded the alarm. Alcohol in this modern age, it said, is affecting water, the fundamental ingredient in good sake.

There also were unscrupulous manufacturers who added alcohol to the product in an attempt to speed the brewing and give the sake, which normally has a 17 per cent alcoholic content, a boost.

But horror of horrors in the minds of the traditionalists, artificial sake was being made by mixing some of the genuine product with sweet potatoes or molasses.

Sake has been a part of Japanese life for centuries. It is drunk at the birth of a child, at weddings and at wakes.

Now sake is forced with a growing loss of popularity.

Said Meiji Suzuki, director of the Sake Brewery Research Institute: "For prosperity and survival, Japanese sake must charm the people with new magic. Old wine kept in old skins no longer attracts the new generation."

Communities Looking For Some People

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Torino, Ill., Peacock, Texas, Eureka and Ophir, Colo., all have one unique distinction in common—no people.

The Commerce Department reported Saturday a 1960 census survey found all four incorporated communities abandoned and bereft of residents.

The Census Bureau explained that it lists every incorporated village — deserted or not — either of the two previous census counts showed at least one resident.

The bureau noted that some communities disappear between censuses because of the temporary nature of industry there. Sawmill and mining operations were cited as that type. Some state legislatures neglect to "disincorporate" the zero people communities.

Last year's census turned up two one-person towns: Palm Beach Gardens, Fla., and Ironton, Colo. Atlantis, Fla., boasted a population of two.

Three people were counted in Mortimer, N. C., and Granite, Ore., while five residents were listed for Marble, Colo., Santa Claus, Ga., Highland Beach, Md., Ocean Isle Beach, N. C., Eckman, N. D., and Lost Springs, Wyo.

Family-Centered Life Stops Youth Delinquency

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—What's the secret of a country that has practically no juvenile delinquency? Such a nation is Thailand—12,000 miles away, no bigger than Texas and peopled by 25 million. Sriwan Kamoltham, a coed at New York University and executive trainee for the Bank of America, answered the question. The pretty student, a native of Thailand, said the younger generation is well-behaved because life is family-centered—even where courtship is concerned.

Another reason for the strong family life, as Miss Kamoltham figures, is the general philosophy of her countrymen. "Our philosophy," she said, "is to take it easy, care not too much about the material and stress the spiritual."

"Our religion—Buddhism—teaches the people to lead a good life and believe in reincarnation. The idea is that you are born and reborn until purified for eternity. If one does not do good deeds, one might be born the next time into an animal form or into a sick human form."

Miss Kamoltham said young children in Thai are kept close to home and that even when the teen-agers want to roam, the entire family goes along. "In Thai," she said, "courtship is quite different from the form it takes in America. There's no petting or necking among engaged couples. In theory, that's reserved for the married. If it goes on, you don't see it—and it's hard for it to occur."

"When a boy calls on a girl, he spends the time in her home with her family. If he wants to take the girl out for a night on the town, mother, father, and brothers and sisters go, too."

Miss Kamoltham also said that there are no neglected children, as such, in Thai. "A man," she said, "is allowed one wife and as many mistresses as he can afford to house separately. But a child born of a mistress has the same legal rights as a child born of wedlock. This protects the children."

Miss Kamoltham said the girl has little to say about the young man who will call at her home because he has marriage on the brain. "The young people may see one another at a religious festivity," she said. "And the parents look over the boys and girls. It is up to the parents of the boy to notify the girl's family that the boy will be calling."

"But the boy doesn't call until he has permission of his parents—and her parents. The girl's just a third party in the transaction."

Sub Deb Club Plans Annual Shipwreck Dance

Newly-elected officers of Sigma Delta Sub Deb Club officiated in their duties at the recent meeting of the club held in the home of Miss Cecilia McDonald, 2134 N. Nelson.

Presiding officers are Meses Linda Warren, president; Nancy Williams, secretary; Sandra Wheelchel, vice president; Gwen Carver, historian; Linda Kay Andis, reporter; Diane Fenton, and Elaine Tinsley parliamentary; Joyce Doge, treasurer; and Candy Noblitt, telephone chairman.

During the business meeting, plans were discussed for the club's annual Ship Wreck Dance, which is being planned for Mar. 10 at 7:30 p.m. with the Esquires Club as co-hosts.

Ray Orbinson's Orchestra will play for dancing. Each Sub Deb member will be selling tickets for $1.25 each.

Miss Kamoltham said the girl has little to say about the young man who will call at her home because he has marriage on the brain. "The young people may see one another at a religious festivity," she said. "And the parents look over the boys and girls. It is up to the parents of the boy to notify the girl's family that the boy will be calling."

"But the boy doesn't call until he has permission of his parents—and her parents. The girl's just a third party in the transaction."

Russian Leaps 7-2

Brumel Tops Thomas, Awaits Next Meeting

NEW YORK (UPI) — Valery Brumel, Russia's human sputnik, today promised he'll rocket to a new high jump record in the Knights of Columbus track meet at Madison Square Garden Friday night.

John Thomas, his sad-faced, vanquished foe, isn't promising anything — except that he'll show up, too, for the next Garden show.

Brumel outclassed Thomas for the third time in the National AAU indoor track and field championships at the Garden last Saturday night, equalling Thomas' meet record with a leap of seven feet, two inches.

A record crowd of 16,243 moaned loudly when Thomas failed to clear 7-1 three times after passing the seven-foot mark on his first try.

Brumel revealed after the meet that he had been unable to practice for four days last week because of a sore throat. But even though he still was a little weak from the ailment, the 18-year-old Russian had little difficulty clearing 7-2.

The Brumel-Thomas duel was billed as the feature attraction of the Nationals but the broad jump — another U.S.-Russian battle — produced the most drama and a world record leap by Olympic champion Ralph Boston of Tennessee State.

State Cage Pack Slims For Austin

By United Press International — Two dozen survivors of the Texas schoolboy basketball wars are due to get word today as to their fates in this weekend's forthcoming state cage tourney at Austin.

Regional warfare claimed the last 1960 champions and play will start Thursday in Gregory Gym without a single titlist and only three teams which even made it to the three-day state tourney a year ago.

The three returnees were Austin S. F. Austin, a perennial contender, and a 1960 finalist, in AAAA; South San Antonio, another frequent visitor and also a finalist last season, from AAA; and Dimmitt, a finals loser a year ago.

Class AA for the second straight year boasts the only undefeated team in the tournament in Buna, a former champion with a 42-0 record. Last year, Linden-Kildare carried the only perfect record to Austin and won the AA crown.

BULLETIN
Austin—(SPL) — White Deer will play James Bowie of Sims in the first round of the Class A state tournament here on Thursday. A victory will send the Bucks into the championship game at 2:25 p. m. Saturday against the winner of the Brownsboro-Louise game.

Top marks in the other divisions are owned by Denton (29-3) in AAAA, White Deer (31-2) in A and Frankston (36-3) in B.
The complete tournament field:
AAAA — Amarillo Palo Duro, Denton, Austin High and Houston S. F. Austin.
AAA — Dumas, Nacogdoches, South San Antonio and Clear Creek.
AA — Dimmitt, New Boston, Buna and Needville.
A — White Deer, James Bowie, Brownsboro and Louise.
B — Aspermont, Blanket, Fortsburg, Frankston, Mauriceville, Hutto, Santa Rosa and Mertzon.

Does Vie Here In Fem Playoff

White Deer's Does, after surviving a 94-93 overtime scare by Stratford last week, meet Clarendon at 7:30 p. m. today in Harvester Fieldhouse for the Class A bi-district girls basketball championship.

The Does (26-5) were the regular season District-1-A champs but lost to Stratford in the district tournament before beating Stratford last Thursday for the full season title.

Tickets will go on sale at the door at 6:30 p. m. Only general admission seats will be sold.

other advantage. Plate Umpire Jim Duncan is slated to do his umpiring in the Class D Midwest League this year but the fellows who'll be playing in it might just as well understand here and now that they're not going to get away with anything. The rules state that the coach must remain within the limits of his prescribed area and the umpire is supposed to enforce the rules.

Duncan warned Durocher. No dice. He warned him again. Still no dice. And so, with further ado the Class D umpire swept up his right arm with thumb skyward and bounced a guy who's defied umpires, commissioners and players for 30 years out of the game! Action began to step up in other camps along the citrus and cactus routes as the time drew near for the full squads to go into action. At St. Petersburg, Fla., Manager Ralph Houk outlined a new role for slugger Mickey Mantle — that of leader of the Yankees — and said he believed Mantle could develop into a "quiet leader" on the style of Joe DiMaggio.

Dale Long, counted on by the new Washington Senators to supply much-needed power, checked in at Pompano Beach, Fla., three days ahead of schedule.
Steve Bilko, "down to" a mere 240 pounds, starred in the Los Angeles Angels' workout at Palm Springs, Calif., by hitting five dryives out of the park during a lengthy batting drill.

Other camp notes: The Boston Red Sox still have "scouts out" for pitcher Mike Fornieles, missing between Miami, Fla., and their Scottsdale, Ariz., camp. Vice President John Holland expressed satisfaction with the Chicago Cubs after two weeks of preliminary training.

Second baseman Billy Gardner, unsigned but close to agreement, was given permission to workout with the Minnesota Twins. Mel Roach, 28, was tossed into the battle for the Milwaukee Braves' wide-open left field job. The World Champion Pittsburgh Pirates reported "all signing" when first-baseman Dick Stuart agreed by terms.

New Mexico St. Hunts BC Share

By United Press International — New Mexico State's defending Border Conference basketball champs have lost their hopes of another undisputed title, but they still have a fighting chance to claim a share of the crown.

They make two big moves toward that goal this week when they put their 6-1 league mark on the line at home tonight against Hardin - Simmons and travel to Canyon Saturday night against Texas Western.

The Aggies need those two victories, plus another one a week from tonight at Abilene against Hardin - Simmons, to match the 9-1 league record Arizona State already has posted for a sure title share. If the two teams finish deadlocked, they'll meet in a play-off game to determine which enters the NCAA regionals.

Arizona State, seeded up its share last week with 89-86 and 94-75 victories in its windup games against Texas Western and Arizona, while the Aggies kept pace with 73-68 and 88-63 triumphs over Arizona and West Texas. Texas Western whipped Hardin - Simmons 77-57 in the only other game played.

Texas Western ends its slate tonight at home against West Texas.
Although Arizona State has completed its league slate, the Sun Devils will keep in trim with three non-league games this week, meeting Flagstaff State tonight at Tempe, Regis at Denver Friday and Air Force at Colorado Springs Saturday. They own a 17-5 season record.

Mississippi State is way in front for the Southeastern Conference championship, but the Maroons will spurn the NCAA for segregation reasons. That leaves it up to Vanderbilt, Kentucky and Florida, all tied for second place in the SEC race.

Princeton tries for its tourney entry with games against Dartmouth and Harvard this week. The Tigers need two of three remaining contests to grab the Ivy League victory branch.

Kansas State broke a first place tie with Kansas by stopping Missouri, 91-71, and now needs a win over Nebraska to assure itself of a piece of the Big Eight crown. Kansas was upended by Nebraska, 69-68.

'Lip' Receives Early Thumb

By FRED DOWN — United Press International — Baseball's spring training season is official — Leo Durocher lost his first argument with an umpire.

It was only the Los Angeles Dodgers' first intra-squad game Sunday but there was Leo, back in harness after five years, managing one of the squads from the third base coaching box — and up to an old trick.

In familiar fashion Leo began to dub out the white lines marking the coaching box and then wander along the third base line at will. Over the years the ex-Brooklyn and New York Giant pilot has pulled the same trick, defying countless umpires in an effort to steal a sign or gain some other advantage. Plate Umpire Jim Duncan is slated to do his umpiring in the Class D Midwest League this year but the fellows who'll be playing in it might just as well understand here and now that they're not going to get away with anything. The rules state that the coach must remain within the limits of his prescribed area and the umpire is supposed to enforce the rules.

Duncan warned Durocher. No dice. He warned him again. Still no dice. And so, with further ado the Class D umpire swept up his right arm with thumb skyward and bounced a guy who's defied umpires, commissioners and players for 30 years out of the game! Action began to step up in other camps along the citrus and cactus routes as the time drew near for the full squads to go into action. At St. Petersburg, Fla., Manager Ralph Houk outlined a new role for slugger Mickey Mantle — that of leader of the Yankees — and said he believed Mantle could develop into a "quiet leader" on the style of Joe DiMaggio.

Dale Long, counted on by the new Washington Senators to supply much-needed power, checked in at Pompano Beach, Fla., three days ahead of schedule.
Steve Bilko, "down to" a mere 240 pounds, starred in the Los Angeles Angels' workout at Palm Springs, Calif., by hitting five dryives out of the park during a lengthy batting drill.

Other camp notes: The Boston Red Sox still have "scouts out" for pitcher Mike Fornieles, missing between Miami, Fla., and their Scottsdale, Ariz., camp. Vice President John Holland expressed satisfaction with the Chicago Cubs after two weeks of preliminary training.

Second baseman Billy Gardner, unsigned but close to agreement, was given permission to workout with the Minnesota Twins. Mel Roach, 28, was tossed into the battle for the Milwaukee Braves' wide-open left field job. The World Champion Pittsburgh Pirates reported "all signing" when first-baseman Dick Stuart agreed by terms.

Tech Shoots For SWC Clincher Against Owls

Ags, Hogs See Hopes Grow Slim

By ED FITTE — United Press International

Texas Tech's Red Raiders can sew up the school's first major Southwest Conference sport crown this week as the loop basketball race hits the finish line with the odds heavily in favor of the Red Raiders.

The odds appear stacked against Texas A & M and Arkansas, the only two teams with a chance to earn even a share of the title Tech clinched last week even if Tech should suddenly stumble and lose its last two starts.

In the first place, Tech doesn't figure to lose. The Raiders play Rice at Houston tonight, then return home to tackle dethroned champion Texas in the season finale Thursday night at Lubbock.

In the second place, Arkansas faces the formidable task of trying to corral the Southern Methodist Mustangs on their own floor tonight—a feat no other team but Tech has accomplished this season.

Then, come Thursday night, Texas A&M must play Arkansas at Fayetteville where again the only road team to conquer the Razorbacks was Texas Tech.

There are four other games on the final week's card, but aside from A&M's home windup tonight against Baylor they can have no bearing on the title. Texas and Texas Christian get together at Austin tonight, then on Thursday, SMU travels to Baylor and Rice to TCU.

If the games follow the form chart, the final standings are apt to find Texas Tech with a 12-2 record, A&M and Arkansas tied for second at 9-5, SMU and Rice tied for fourth with 8-6, Texas sixth with 6-8, TCU seventh with 3-11 and Baylor on the bottom with 1-13.

There doesn't seem to be much chance there'll be any material change in the individual scoring race, either. A&M's Carroll Broussard seems to have both the season and league honors in his pocket.

The agile Aggie has a 19-point lead, 492 to 473, over Tech's Del Ray Mounts over the full season, and a fat 45-point spread in loop games, 293 to 248 for Tech's Harold Hudgens and 246 for Mounts.

On a per game basis Broussard has averaged 22.7 for the season to 21.5 for Mounts, 21.3 for Hudgens, 18.3 for SMU's Steve Strange and 15.7 for SMU's Jan Loudermilk. In league games, he has averaged 24.4 to 20.7 for Hudgens, 15.5 for Mounts, 17.8 for Pat Foster of Arkansas and 16.8 for Loudermilk.

Panch Roars To New Daytona Race Mark

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Marvin Panch, a 35-year-old ex-pug with a lust for speed, had $20,000 today to prove he drove faster for 500 miles than any other race driver in American racing history.

Panch won the Daytona International stock car race and top prize money Sunday by driving his 1960 Pontiac the 500-mile distance in three hours, 20 minutes, 32 seconds for an average speed of 149.801 m.p.h.

The time over the 3 1/2-mile Daytona International Speedway was nearly 10 m.p.h. faster than the Indianapolis record set by Jim Rathman last year and topped Lee Petty's 1960 record for this race by nearly 15 m.p.h.

Smart driving and Lady Luck brought Panch the triumph.

Texas Western ends its slate tonight at home against West Texas.
Although Arizona State has completed its league slate, the Sun Devils will keep in trim with three non-league games this week, meeting Flagstaff State tonight at Tempe, Regis at Denver Friday and Air Force at Colorado Springs Saturday. They own a 17-5 season record.

Bucks (22-0) Appear Shoo-In

White Deer's Does, after surviving a 94-93 overtime scare by Stratford last week, meet Clarendon at 7:30 p. m. today in Harvester Fieldhouse for the Class A bi-district girls basketball championship.

Ohio State Nears Title

By GARY KALE — United Press International — Poor Ohio State has to wait until Saturday to clinch a Big Ten title and an accompanying NCAA basketball tournament berth.

Poor, poor North Carolina already has won a regular season conference championship, but has no place to display its talents.

Top-ranked Ohio State, defending NCAA champ, was assured of at least a tie for the Big Ten crown by scoring a 97-74 victory over Wisconsin during the weekend. The undefeated Bucks, 22-0 for the season, are odds-on choices to win their second straight conference flag against Michigan State on March 4.

North Carolina gained the Atlantic Coast conference's pre-playoff title with a 69-66 win against eighth-ranked Duke. The Tarheels, however, are banned from NCAA post-season play and

Attention U.N. Lovers

We have been observing the effect of late accumulated propaganda on the minds of a number of truly brilliant men. At least a dozen books to appear recently in fields of anthropology, archeology and Egyptology, as well as a history or two, have all come forward parroting the conclusions of the United Nations cultural research teams.

It is quite probable that these fine men, who have simply repeated a fallacy, are not consciously aware either of the repetition or the fallacy.

Such is the nature of the human mind that impressions which are repeatedly made, come in time to be accepted as self-induced conclusions.

They may not be. But unless we are experts in exploring the libido and the sub-liminal recesses of our own consciousness we are apt to trot out opinions as though they are facts and to state things as true when, in fact, they are only surmises, and on the surface at that.

The particular point which has captured our attention relates to the sweeping PREDICTIONS made by these savants and scientists.

Now, to predict anything is a pretty tricky business. To predict the future is perilous. To predict the future of the human race requires a prescience considerably larger than superhuman.

An individual may wish to predict within the confines of his own discipline. The chances are rather good, however, that the more he knows and understands within these boundaries, the less likely he will be to predict there.

It is the unknown that fascinates. And, alas, it is the unknown that causes us to wish to predict.

Now to the prediction itself. It appears to be the independent judgment of the men to whom reference is made that the United Nations effort to organize the world is not only the ONLY way for the human race properly to proceed, but that unless such organization occurs swiftly we are doomed.

This assumption rests upon observations and interpretations of facts which facts, in themselves, are not in question.

For example: the passage of mankind through three broad periods of culture and the present groping for a doorway into a new period are unquestioned. Whether we refer to these general institutions with one set of words or another set isn't important. What is important is our ability to understand correctly the nature of man, the nature of the world in which man has his being, and thus, molding together the fundamental ingredients of existence on this planet, reach a valid conclusion.

The trouble with every single one of the savants for whom, in other areas, we have the highest regard, is that each of them evaluates mass-man and fails to come to grips with the fact that man is an individual, not a phenomenon, of the species.

Should Exhibit Freedom

Nobody likes to be insulted, either as an individual or as a citizen of a nation. Nobody likes to hear his country attacked or glibly disparaged by another nation. The instinctive reaction is to reach for a club, and dispassionate reasoning becomes an unpopular attitude.

That is what is happening today. In recent years, months and days, Americans have been amazed again and again to expressions of dislike and distrust for the United States and its allies — in South America, in Cuba, in the Congo, in the United Nations.

It seems most unfair, for if American history is not sham, this country has always stood for freedom and the right of men of all nations to pursue their individual happiness. This country has fought for those ideals, many Americans have died for them.

All this seems to count for nothing today, as the United States is held up by some as the chief enemy of world peace, the source and symbol of imperialism.

Too often, anti-American or anti-

In short, the attempt is made to predict the future by lumping humanity together, trying to determine an intellectual mean and then suggesting that since the evidence shows that man's ability to organize — socially, politically, economically — improves with man's advancing status, it follows that the end is total organization and that obviously the United Nations is the forerunner of such a total organization.

This is a simplification of the problem and an oversimplification of the possible result.

We would have to argue that whereas it is true that man has learned to improve his organizational techniques and thereby improve his lot generally, the improvement of his organizational ability relates to his willingness to abandon totality in the organizational structure, not the reverse.

From the standpoint of total organization, there has probably never been anything even remotely as arbitrary and total as the mechanism of tribal pagan superstitions and taboos. Even modern communism can't organize with the effectiveness of the fear and the voodoo mumbo-jumbo of savage witchdoctors.

Man has improved his effective techniques in the organizational structures as he has de-centralized and individualized.

Man cooperates best within an organization when he is free, not when he is regimented.

We would submit that the United Nations is a reaction against progress and represents not a doorway into a new culture, but an hereditary throw back to the jungle. If the United Nations can be wrecked by the machinations of a handful of ill-natured power seekers, the fact of its possible wreckage emerges from its basic ineptness and its reliance upon force, not from its effective uses of modern science respecting the true nature of man.

Perhaps the novelist Ayn Rand was more scientific than the scientists when she suggested that civilization is the movement toward privacy.

Parkinson's first law and Whyte's "The Organization Man" make significant observations which should be considered in this regard.

We suspect we will be judged impertinent, but we must suggest to the brilliant men whose factual data is magnificent, that their collation of their own material leaves something to be desired.

However man organizes, he is never more nor less than an individual. This is the unique character of man. It does not take a centralized agency such as the United Nations to usher us into the new culture.

It takes a decentralized agency such as the market place to show us how to serve one another, blending our variables, by emphasizing our own unique characters as individual persons. The difference between a centralized individuality is the difference between coercion and freedom.

Western riots and revolutions are written off as "Communist inspired," implying that Communists possess some kind of magic, hypnotic charm that can transform quiet, reasonable folk into fanatic anarchists.

Undoubtedly these phenomena of our time are Communist inspired in many, or even most, instances on the surface. But this easy verdict ignores the fact that there are great undercurrents of unrest in many nations of the world. Even professional Communist agitators must first have the powder of human frustrations to work with before they can set off an explosion.

Americans must realize that Castro is not Cuba, just as Robespierre was not France at the time of that great revolution. Neither can the turmoil in the Congo be simply explained as caused by a man named Lumumba.

Robespierre was eventually guillotined, but that did not end the French Revolution. Neither will the death of Lumumba nor the wished-for downfall of Castro solve the

Looking Sideways

By WHITNEY BOLTON

NEW YORK — I was sitting on a curbstone in Hollywood one night with a fellow who owns an acid attitude toward the world and after we both had thrown some lurid comment about the annual Santa Claus parade on Hollywood Blvd., which was then passing us, we lapsed into a kind of disillusioned silence until the Meglin Kiddies erupted some improper commentary from us and we were once again in a kind of frozen silence when my friend said, "Perfume."

What he meant was that his juices were being curdled by the time, not the least among which was an ad lived up by a drawing of a suddenly impassioned violinist violently clamping a lady pianist to his starched bosom. It is still being used — and it can deduce from the years of wear it has had is that the woods are full of love-lorn ladies hanging to be seized by a fiddler.

My friend, who earned $3,000 a week at that time writing for motion pictures, said he would pledge ten weeks of his salary, tax paid, to the first perfume firm that simply sold its product by resorting to suggestive drawings and sexually incandescent phrases. We never did locate any such ad and since this boy has since gone to his reward in Heaven or wherever, and his widow is not likely to part with $3,000 tax-paid dollars which she inherited from him, I doubt if such lush offer will come along again.

Very few men with $3,000 have such lacerated feelings on the subject. Unwilling, the other night, to go out into the cold during a theater intermission, I remained in my chair and read the ads in that we once more have a crying need for this kind of reward to virtuous perfume manufacturers. There was one darling little ad for a perfume with the slogan: "From Spain, where they know all about these tender mysteries." What tender mysteries? Perfume is made from scent, certain chemicals and a good grade of alcohol. Some have a fixative, which makes the scent last longer and some don't. Nothing tender or mysterious about that.

Then there was a catch phrase: "FOR THE WOMAN IN WOMEN." I haven't yet figured that out and probably never will, since my enthusiasm for the whole theme is evaporating faster than do most perfumes.

Then there was another ad that said: "Wear it, and be it say... OH-LALA." The alleged exclamation, which is a phonetic, (I never have heard any Frenchman or American, either, say it), is by tradition OH-LALA, not OH-LALA. But that is beside the point. The point is that any woman I know, which compasses a fair cross-section of all known social gradations, would either run from or swat any guy who took a little snuff and said either oh-la-la or oh-lala. They'd put him down for a goon-head immediately. If it is of usefulness in social surveys, most guys from the Blue Book either say no attention at all or say, "What's that stuff you've got on?"

The one about the violinist and the lady piano player makes much of the fact that it is a "forbidden fragrance." Forbidden by whom? The implication is that a woman is in such deadly peril of attack by helplessly inflamed men when wearing this scent that the authorities have thought it best to pass a law forbidding it, but a strict combing of municipal, state and Federal laws at hand fails to show any such statute.

The least provocative of the ads said simply, "elegance loveliness — persuasion," and I own that I like that last word. I have no quarrel with it. This implies that a gentleman can control himself, he may even be indifferent in the presence of this scent, but not for long. It will gently persuade him to an amorous suggestion instead of kindling the lewd brute in him. And it also implies that the elegant and lovely lady has a perfect right to decline the suggestion without risking being torn to bits.

One out of Italy says it is "For the eternal woman," and that's not bad, either. I don't know any eternal women, but they may exist. Getting a little long in the tooth as the centuries pass, to be sure, but eternal.

Another claimed it "turns my lamb into a wolf," and this is a distinctly ungentle implication that ladies wear their men demonstrative and demanding. Maybe they do, at that. Maybe this perfume maker knows more about women than I do, a perfectly reasonable supposition.

problems of those countries.

There is only one revolution going on in the world today, though it takes different forms in different countries. The question is freedom or slavery.

In their distaste for pretty despots, Americans should not lose sight of the underlying causes which have allowed tyrants to come forward. We had our own revolution, and its magnificent results can still hold out hope for nations striving for national expression.

But we have to prove it to them.

Which Shall It Be?

Diefenbaker Promises Kennedy 'Full Cooperation' in Closing Canadian Loopholes in U.S. Cuban Sugar Embargo

WASHINGTON — That three-hour conference between President Kennedy and Prime Minister Diefenbaker spells bad news for Fidel Castro.

In response to an urgent request from the President, Diefenbaker promised the "full cooperation" of his government to shut off the shipment of Cuban sugar into the U.S. through Canadian dealers.

It has been definitely established that in recent weeks at least 30 carloads (around 600 tons) of Cuban sugar have reached the Boston area from Canada.

The President explained to the Canadian Prime Minister that his assistance was being sought to plug up this loophole preparatory to imposing embargoes on all Cuban imports into the U.S.

The first of these crackdowns will be aimed at fruits, vegetables and tobacco.

The necessary executive orders are being drafted by the State and Justice Departments. At the President's direction they are also preparing orders barring other Cuban imports, particularly molasses.

One East Coast distiller is known to have bought $12 million of this molasses.

Last July, with congressional approval, President Eisenhower revoked Cuba's long standing sugar quota totaling more than 850,000 tons. In December, he banned all exports to Cuba. But nothing was done to bar Cuban imports other than sugar.

President Kennedy proposes to do that after legal problems, involving treaties with other Latin-American countries are worked out.

This is one reason there was no mention of the understanding that the Canadian government will take measures against the trans-shipment of Cuban sugar into the U.S. In the joint statement by Kennedy and Diefenbaker following their "highly successful" meeting.

Also the Prime Minister stated his government's policy is to "carry on normal trade with Cuba." At the same time, he expressed willingness to give the U.S. "full cooperation" in enforcing its policies.

The two officials also agreed this matter should be further discussed at the conference of the U.S.-Canada Committee on Trade and Economic Affairs in Washington next month. Commerce Secretary Hodges and other high administration authorities will participate in this parity.

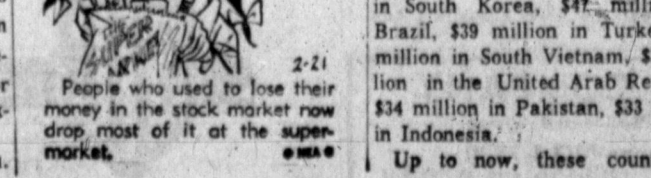

The President was apprised of the influx of Cuban sugar by House Democratic Leader John McCormack, Mass.

The veteran lawmaker informed the President that Boston refiners were warning that, if Cuban sugar shipments continued, more than 600 employees would have to be laid off. The President immediately ordered the Commerce Department to investigate, and it reported this

DAVE BECK

Dave Beck Reveals Financial History

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

SEATTLE — When Dave Beck left me after a visit of two hours in the Olympic Hotel, I had strewn on the bed and on top of the Teevee, the gist of a Great American success story. There were reproductions of orders on his brokers to sell securities for a total of $308,409. There was a list of amounts he said he had paid in Federal Income Taxes for the years from 1947 through 1956. This total was $322,587. As we chatted, the man who had been Emperor of the Northwest and California rattled off his amazing current income. Not boastfully but with obvious satisfaction.

He is now receiving $1,900 a month rent from one business building in Seattle and from K and L Distributors, a beverage company. Like most Seattle firms, K and L is at the mercy of the Teamsters Union. His son, Dave, Jr., also under conviction and sentence for following in his old man's footsteps, was one of the owners of K and L. By Big Dave's influence, K and L became Regional Distributor of a famous brand of beer.

Big Dave has four downtown Seattle parking lots grinding for him. They pay him $3,000 a month. Another patch occupied by Travel Lodge, a motel, brings him $1,250 a month. About 46 years hence, the land will revert to his estate.

He owns a quarter of the land under the Tropics Motel.

He gets $50,000 a year as President Emeritus of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

He trilled off in his piping voice four other real estate rentals at $1,000; $610; $460 and $150 a month. Although he is deposed and Jimmy Hoffa was the upstart who bumped him, Beck revealed no malice toward anyone. He expressed contempt for the Kennedy Brothers, Jack, now President of the U.S.A., and his brother, Bobby, the Attorney General, and for Dave Dubinsky, the perpetual Roosevelt in politics both at home and overseas. Socialists make Dave's flesh crawl. He is a personal capitalist. Actually, the Kennedys turned up practically nothing on him. The Internal Revenue — yes. And the Kennedys took the glory.

His story was notorious before the Kennedys ever crashed into the scene which made Jack Presidents and Bobby — Attorney General by Jack's appointment.

Old Clare Hoffman, a republican Michigan congressman, exposed both Beck and Hoffa long before the Kennedys were publicly known. And Beck laughed, mocking me, at disclosures that I wrote long ago.

He was a Regent of the State University, a member of the Seattle Civil Service Commission and, for two and a half years, a member of the State Board of Parole. He made governors and senators, Chief Justice Earl Warren, a political switch-hitter in California politics, owed his terms as governor to Beck as much as to any other individual. Warren was a sort of republican. Beck was the same sort.

Senator and Governor Mon Wallgren, of Washington, a great "liberal," was one of Beck's men. I asked Beck: "Was Mon ever a bootlegger?"

"No," Dave said. "Never a bootlegger. But a pool shark. He was a hell of a man with a pool cue, in his early days. A hell of a craps shooter, too. He is down in Palm Springs. Now, he can take it easy from here in."

Sam Angloff, of the Post-Intelligencer, the regional political compendium, said that when Mon was governor he had a fine pool table installed in the Executive Mansion in Olympia. It was a fine craps table, too.

Angloff (Cq) had told me that for months he had parked his car on a convenient unoccupied lot near the P-I Plant. By chance, being an expert in tracing real estate titles, he learned that this patch was Beck's, and he taunted Dave one day with thanks for the free parking space. Beck, in that boson's whistle pipe of his, cried out: "It's account of guys like you a guy like me can't make a living these days. Lookit all the quarters you have been cheating me out of."

A few days later the lot was in business with the usual white stripes on a blacktop pavement and bevelled curbs and a little booth for a collector. Angloff said that thereafter he had often seen Beck sitting on a wooden crate pensively counting quarters, dimes and nickels into a cloth sack. James D. Burns, the Assistant Prosecuting Attorney, recalled that someone then had caused conventional police department signs on funds have been used chiefly to build new embassies, finance congressional and other junkets, and to pay the cost of military advisory (MAGS) forces.

ON HIS HOME GROUNDS — President Kennedy is making his first Jefferson — Jackson Day dinner speech in Boston on May 29.

It will be one of three such addresses he plans in the spring. The other two will be in California and the Middle West, with the places and dates still to be determined.

Arrangements for the Boston talk were worked out by the President and Massachusetts leaders at an unannounced White House meeting. House Democratic Leader John McCormack, Mass., was consulted by the President on the matter. McCormack suggested the May 29 date.

SAVING MORE GOLD — Those huge U.S. holdings of foreign currencies, known as counterpart funds, are going to be helped shut off the disquieting outflow of gold.

President Kennedy has ordered the Defense Department to "buy" the foreign currency holdings of other government agencies for use in military purchases and other expenses abroad.

A State Department report estimated the U.S. has more than $1.3 billion in foreign currency holdings throughout the world — as the result of the various aid programs in recent years.

The Administration now proposes to utilize these counterpart funds to offset the loss of U.S. gold.

According to the State Department's study, these foreign currency holdings will soar to more than $2 billion by 1962. Greatest amount is more than $700 million in Southeast Asia and the Near East, with $428 million in Indian and $139 million in Greek currencies topping this list.

Upward of $325 million of these funds is in European currencies, with the largest of these U.S. holdings being $104 million in Yugoslavia, $91 million in Spain, $52 million in Austria, $32 million in Italy, and $23 million in West Germany.

Other major U.S. holdings of foreign currencies are — $51 million in South Korea, $47 million in Brazil, $39 million in Turkey, $39 million in South Vietnam, $35 million in the United Arab Republic, $34 million in Pakistan, $33 million in Indonesia.

posts-to-be spotted at Dave's lot, reading: "at any time."

Angloff mentioned the lice headquarters and it disappeared. They were signs. Nobody I met who put them up near Dave's lot. Dave denies all.

When Dave ascended Tobin's throne on Dan's 1952, Dave moved $8,000, Washington to Seattle, the Seattle First National and gave it a big piece of play. He also sold the lot of land for future expansion.

There was one paper he left with me which seemed important of all to him. It was a photostat of the Treasurer of States, dated Aug. 21, $34,652.52 to the order Beck, 16749 Shore Drive Wash., with the words "fund" in little letters a below.

The figures compared with 173 fatal accidents killing 202 for the same period last year.

The increase was 8 per cent in fatal accidents, and 11 per cent in fatalities.

The department said it is still early in the year to indicate whether the first nearly two months of the year show any increase trend over 1960 fatal accidents.

Lawmaker Wants Tax Placed On Billboards

By PAT CONWAY

AUSTIN (UPI) — Rep. Charles Wilson of Trinity, an Annapolis man turned lawmaker, said today he will fight to place a tax on billboards.

Meanwhile, the House Revenue and Taxation committee was expected to clear at least part of Gov. Price Daniel's program to retire the $63 million deficit for floor action. They will hold a late afternoon session.

The committee has under consideration four measures Daniel has submitted for emergency action. The committee was expected to send the measure to the floor on a gradual basis, depending upon the undertone in the House. Daniel's proposals call for a revised corporation franchise tax formula, a 3 per cent temporary boost in gas production taxes, an act to permit the state to claim abandoned property, and a book-keeping transfer between the general revenue fund and the highway fund.

Other legislative action today: TAXATION — House committee hearings on a bill by Rep. Franklin Spears to levy a 2.23 per cent tax on gross premiums of fire insurance companies to help support a firemen's pension fund, and on a measure by Rep. Max Carriker of Roby to set uniform tax rate of 1.99 per cent on private utilities.

EDUCATION — Hearing on a bill by Rep. Leon Thurman of Anson to prohibit public school teachers from wearing religious garb in class. The measure stems from

Gray And Donley Counties Get New Roads

The Texas Highway Commission has designated a Ranch to Market Road in Gray and Donley Counties. It will extend from a point at or near the intersection of State Highway 273 and U.S. Highway 68 at McLean, south to a lateral county road in Donley County approximately five miles south of the Gray - Donley County Line. Total distance of the road will be 8.5 miles.

The designation of the road will enable preliminary work to proceed on the location and procuring of right of way by the counties involved. The commission expressed the intention to build the road by increments, financing it in a future program of work.

The State Highway Engineer was directed to coordinate the project with the possible future construction of a lake on the Salt Fork of the Red River, reporting to the Highway Commission at such time as definite information may be available to permit the commission to consider the further extension of this designation to properly serve the Hedley area in Donley County.

Bill Proposed To Boost Business Tax Credits

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The administration is putting together a tax package which—if enacted—would give business more than $1 billion in tax credits, to encourage investment in new production facilities.

To recover revenues that would be lost under the proposal, the Treasury is giving strong consideration to asking that Congress knock out the present special allowances for income from stock dividends.

No general program of tax reform or relief is scheduled for this year by President Kennedy. Officials feel the legislative calendar is too crowded.

Accordingly, the White House plans to ask only for what it considers "must" tax legislation. Kennedy already has put stimulation of investment in this category.

Administration tax experts lean toward giving business credits for investment rather than allowing more generous tax deductions for depreciation. They said the credit method was more likely to generate extra investment.

The amount of tax savings would depend on how much businessmen take advantage of the plan and what limit, if any, the government puts on it. Treasury tax experts think chances are good it would be worth more than $1 billion a year to industry.

Labor Secretary Wins Plaudits From Union Head

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg and the AFL-CIO Executive Council exchanged views today on the nation's unemployment problem.

Goldberg, a former special counsel for the 13-million member labor federation, was honored by his former colleagues Sunday night at a testimonial dinner.

AFL-CIO President George Meany introduced Goldberg as one of the "best qualified" men ever to hold the top labor post, but reminded him of the serious job shortages facing America.

The labor secretary noted he was to appear before the 'council today and said he did not consider the dinner a fitting place to go into a long report on the employment outlook. But he gave the labor leaders a capsule version of his views.

the capital, and were arrested by Congolese soldiers training in the area.

A Tunisian patrol was sent to get the captives free but had to surrender their arms when the Congolese threatened to shoot the civilians.

Complicating the situation were reports that a column of 500 Lumumbist troops was marching toward Leopoldville, quashed with bloodless victories in neighboring Kasai Province.

Cost Of Missile Sites Raised By Subcommittee

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A House subcommittee has reported that construction of missile launchers is going to cost nearly $100 million more than originally planned and "things are in a mess."

The new cost estimates were brought out by a military construction subcommittee in a report Sunday on its inquiry into elaborate missile sites being built at some 20 Air Force bases in this country.

Chairman Harry R. Sheppard, D-Calif., said that "anyway you look at this program things are in a mess." He said there had been some improvement in the past few months, but "all too long this program has been characterized by a failure of top-level management to exercise proper control."

In a chart prepared for the investigators, the Defense Department said final construction costs were estimated at $992 million, as against costs of $899 million in the original contracts.

Sources close to the subcommittee told United Press International that actual work was six to nine months behind original schedules.

Testimony taken behind closed doors from 29 witnesses dealt with the problems encountered by the Air Force, Army Engineers and contractors in building the multi-million dollar missile system.

The contractor building a missile site near Ellsworth Air Force Base, S. D., told the subcommittee there had been 119 required changes in the launchers between December 1959 and February 1961. He estimated these changes would add more than $16 million to the original $28 million contract.

The contractor working on an Atlas base at Lincoln Air Force Base, Neb., said, modifications has added 1,214 technical drawings to the 355 included in the original contract.
