Troops Start To Pull Out In Mid East

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Israeli agreement to pull its troops out of Egypt and Britain's announcement that it is withdrawing some military units from the east Mediterranean spurred efforts today to rush a U.N. police to the Middle East.

Prime Minister Eden told the House of Commons in London that many Royal Air Force squadrons would be pulled out of Cyprus at once.

Eden also said British assault troops—paratroop and commando groups—will be moved out of Egypt's Port Said. He said they will be replaced by infantry units until the U.N. police force moves into Egypt.

A dispatch from Famagusta, Cyprus, said a contingent of British paratroops already had returned there after spending three days on the Port Said beachhead.

Eden said RAF ground units would remain on Cyprus, but it "will now be possible for many squadrons to fly home."

"In an emergency," he added, "with the ground organization in existence, they can be redeployed in Cyprus and Malta within a matter of hours."

He also said additional infantry reserves would remain on Cyprus.

Quiet was reported on the Suez Canal battlefront as U. N. officials worked at top speed to mobilize the international police force.

Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold hinted that the first units of the U. N. force would reach Egypt "very shortly."

Informed sources said plans call for getting two teams of about 40 men each on the scene as soon as possible, and to follow up with a final force expected to number from 2,500 to 5,000 men or more. Seventeen U. N. members have volunteered to contribute to the police organization. The big powers are excluded from service with the force.

Israel's agreement to withdraw its troops represented an overnight change of policy after a strong appeal from President Eisenhower. Israeli Premier David Ben-Gurion told his Parliament Wednesday Israel would not yield any Israeli or Israeli-occupied territory to any foreign force, whatever it was called.

Last night Israel's foreign minister, Mrs. Golda Meir, messaged Hammarskjold that "the government of Israel will willingly withdraw its forces from Egypt immediately upon the conclusion of satisfactory arrangements with the United Nations in connection with the emergency international force."

Britain and France agreed earlier to turn their military positions in the canal zone over to the U.N. forces.

Egypt had agreed to accept the General Assembly resolution setting up a U. N. command for the Suez area. So far as could be learned, however, no additional word had been received from Cairo on acceptance of the police force itself.

Hammarskjold said he regarded Egyptian agreement to the establishment of the U. N. command as acceptance of the force. But as nations volunteered contributions, he asked Egypt if each nationality was acceptable.

Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, chief U. N. truce observer in Palestine who now heads the projected police force, arrived in Cairo and said Egypt had agreed to accept 10 U. N. observers to watch over the cease-fire.

SUDDEN DEATH FOR HUNGARIAN SECRET POLICEMAN — The body of a Hungarian secret policeman appears to be caught in slow motion as it crumbles face down toward debris in front of his Budapest headquarters. A moment earlier he had marched out to surrender to Hungarian rebels. No quarter was given. His body was filled with lead from rifles of vengeful rebels who stormed the building. The dramatic picture was made by Czech photographer John Sadovy, 31, for Life Magazine. Sadovy has lived all over Europe since he left home at 13 when Hitler moved into Czechoslovakia.

Strong U. N. Protest Made Against Russia

Lodge Asks For Action

UNITED NATIONS N.Y. (AP) — Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. declared today the Soviet Union not only had ignored the U.N. order for noninterference in Hungary but had actually "stepped up its attacks."

The U.S. delegate, addressing an emergency session of the 7-nation General Assembly, called the actions of the Russians "utterly revolting." The attacks, he said showed a "horrifying callousness" to human suffering.

Lodge warned that refusal of the Soviet government to end the fighting and withdraw its forces from Hungary would make it necessary for the assembly to consider what further action can be taken.

"If the desired results are not obtained," he said, "we must reappraise the situation."

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vassily V. Kuznetsov said he would study Lodge's remarks and reply later if he thought it necessary.

Lodge said he hoped U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold would press forward with his efforts to send observers to Hungary and to investigate the situation there.

"We want to know at the earliest possible moment the replies of the Soviet Union and the Hungarian government," Lodge said.

He told the Assembly that heavy fighting still is going on in Hungary, with the Russians firing on hospitals and Red Cross missions of mercy.

Pending the outcome of the U.N. efforts to get the Russians out of Hungary, Lodge said, the Assembly should act quickly to aid the thousands of refugees who have fled from Hungary.

He pressed for approval of a U.S. resolution calling on the Russians to stop interfering with the distribution of food and medical supplies in Hungary. The U.S. plan also urged all U.N. members to give emergency help to the refugees.

Lodge declared the Russians already had paid a heavy price for their actions in Hungary. He cited the wave of anti-Communist demonstrations and added "in Western Europe people are leaving the Communist party in droves."

"Let us see what world opinion can do," he said.

Contract On Hobbs School Is Awarded

HOBBS — Construction will begin within a few days on the new school building here.

Contracts were awarded Tuesday night by the Hobbs school board. General contractor is Alston Lumber Co. of Sweetwater, which will perform its work for $141,400. Other contracts awarded were electrical to Howell Electric Co. of Snyder, $8,922, and plumbing and heating to Webb Plumbing & Heating Co. of Abilene, $20,500.

The contract specifies 250 days completion time, beginning Monday.

The new building will be located just east of the present school building and north of the gymnasium and cafeteria. After completion of the new building, the old building, built in 1925, will be torn down. To remain in use are the several other buildings on the campus, including the gymnasium, cafeteria, homemaking building, and vocational agriculture building.

The new building will have 12 classrooms, a science laboratory, 480-seat auditorium, library, business education room, teacher lousge, superintendent's office, reception room, restrooms, and store rooms.

A special feature in the new building will be radiant heat in the concrete floors, which is hoped to effect a savings in heating costs as well as better heat the buildings. This will be installed by the laying of hot water pipes and pouring the concrete floors on top of the pipes. This system will be used in most of the building except the auditorium, superintendent's office, lounge, and reception room.

SNYDER AREA HIT BY KILLING FROST

The first killing frost for this immediate area this fall came last night when temperatures dipped to a low of 28.

It was not known this morning just how much of a kill was made on vegetation last night, but the temperature was believed lower than freezing long enough to bite. At 7:30 o'clock this morning, the temperature still stood at freezing, 32, according to David Strayhorn, weather observer.

Average first killing frost date here for the past 20 years is Nov. 3.

West Texas State Bank Head Resigns

It was announced today that Nolan Watson, president of the West Texas State Bank since its organization in 1949, has resigned his position with the bank, the resignation to be effective Dec. 31.

Watson stated that he planned to enter private business but that as yet the plans were indefinite.

Watson came to Snyder from Kermit, where he operated the Kermit State Bank.

Under his leadership the West Texas State Bank has grown from a new bank with an overall capital account of $200,000 to a bank with resources of more than $8,000,000 and a total capital structure of more than $850,000.

Watson, during his seven years in Snyder, has served in many civic capacities, including being for a time head of the board of Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Wayne Boren, chairman of the bank's board of directors, said at the time Watson publicly announced his resignation that the board does not yet have definite plan for choosing Watson's successor.

Sweet Daddy Is Pleased With Church

DETROIT (AP) — Sweet Daddy Grace looked over the former church of Prophet Jones and said that he was well pleased.

Admiring the white enameled organ yesterday, the Negro religious cultist commented: "I'd ripple off a tune for you but I've had to give up such things because of my fingernails."

Sweet Daddy's fingernails are over an inch long. They are painted with red, white and blue nail polish.

Sweet Daddy had just closed a deal with Prophet Jones to buy the church where Jones once officated in vestments of white mink. The building originally was a movie theater.

Jones' throne, supposed to be a replica of Solomon's, has been taken away by his creditors. Sweet Daddy said he would replace it with "something nice."

Daddy Grace also has plans for Jones' spacious mansion which he acquired a few months ago. He's having it painted red, white and blue.

Sweet Daddy Grace, who calls himself Bishop Charles Grace, is head of the United House of Prayer. His organization has churches in Washington, D.C., Ohio, California and Florida.

Jones, also a Negro who once claimed to be spiritual leader of six million people, has given up his relegious activities in Detroit following his recent trial and acquittal on a morals charge.

He sold his 54-room "French castle" in a once-fashionable Detroit district to Sweet Daddy Grace to satisfy creditors.

IN EGYPT ATTACK

Gunners Miss U. S. Consul

By WILLIAM MAHONEY
Representing The American Press

PORT SAID, Egypt (AP)—Egyptian tommygunners climbed to a second floor balcony and sprayed the living room of U.S. Consul Anthony Cuomo Tuesday night, narrowly missing him and wounding a vice-consul, Cuomo revealed yesterday.

The consul, from Detroit, Mich. and Modesto, Calif., said he, Vice Consul Thomas Dickson of Kilgore Tex., and two others were sitting in the second floor living room in the consulate when it happened.

He said he saw youthful Egyptian tommygunners leave the street and climb to an adjacent balcony. Then, he said they turned and opened up.

"The guns were pointed directly at me," Cuomo said. "I dodged and fell to the floor. I heard them chatter."

Others in the room took cover but Dickson was hit by flying glass and suffered a cut head. The gunmen disappeared after their quick bursts.

"There was no doubt who they were shooting at," Cuomo said.

The consul, who played a key role in bringing about a cease-fire in this shell and bomb battered area, said he has asked the United States to rush food and medical supplies to the area, where 250,000 persons are threatened by famine.

He said he is also in contact with Egyptian and French-British authorities in an attempt to coordinate security and order. He presently is trying to get the Egyptian police force back on the streets. Looting is rampant in the shattered sections of the city.

Tuesday morning, shortly after the British began shelling the Port Said shoreline, the Egyptian military commander for the area telephoned Cuomo and asked him to intercede and to arrange negotiations, the consul said.

Cuomo, after lengthy telephoning, finally got in touch with French officers in Port Fouad. But by the time they called back, the Egyptian general had been captured by advancing British troops. Later through the intercession of the Italian Consulate here, Cuomo met with French and British leaders to attempt to arrange a cease-fire.

U.S. 'WITH US'

Nasser Denies British Claim

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)— President Nasser declared today the United States and Soviet Russia "were with us" when Egypt defended herself against British, French and Israeli attacks. He denied his Arab allies had failed him and that his air force had been destroyed.

The Egyptian president declared the Arab allies were "ready to fight" but he rejected their aid because he did not want to spread the war.

"King Saud contacted me by telephone and said the Saudi Arabian army and money were at Egypt's service," Nasser said in a talk at El Azhar Mosque.

"My answer was that we were worried about Jordan, and that the Egyptian army was able to repulse Israeli aggression."

"I told Saud to contact Jordan and cooperate with her. The same day King Hussein (of Jordan) contacted me by telephone and said according to our military agreement he was ready to do whatever the joint command said. Hussein meant every word. My answer was that no new front should be opened against Jordan and that we want to concentrate the fight between Israel and Egypt."

Nasser said President Shukri Kuwatly of Syria also offered to intervene in the fight but he rejected the offer because he did not want to involve Syria.

Nasser said he was explaining the position of Egypt's allies in answer to enemy demands: "Where is Arab nationalism?"

Nasser said Prime Minister Eden of Britain was not able to fulfill his aim: "Egypt's air force still exists and is awaiting her turn in the fight." The British and French claimed they had knocked out Egypt's air force in week long bombings.

Nasser said he had contact with President Eisenhower the day after Russia warned Britain and France of possible Soviet intervention.

"I informed the American President about Egypt's stand and I asked him to explain A. S.'s position," Nasser continued. "I understood the American President was opposed to aggression and that America was working to nullify aggression and stop barbaric acts.

"When the Anglo-French Air Force started air raids with a big number of planes we faced two possibilities: Should our air force go up and fight or yield airspace to the enemy?

"We felt it necessary to frustrate their aim. Our pilots were ordered to stay grounded despite their protests. If we had encountered the British and French we would have lost our pilots. We put dummy planes on the air fields and in this way were able to save our air force."

He conceded that military materiel had been lost but said the enemy claim that they "destroyed our air force is nonsense."

It's A Case Of Just Too Many Wives

MEMPHIS (AP)—Handsome Patrick Cain, 45, was involved in both types of heat trouble today—medical and romantic.

Wife 2, shocked when Cain was arrested during their honeymoon on a charge of passing worthless checks, was shocked anew when she learned he had a wife in Kansas City.

Cain was admitted to City Hospital last night after he was stricken in his cell with what appeared to be a heart attack.

That came after wife 1 in Kansas City, Mrs. Caroline Van Horn Cain, 21, described herself as "the world's prize sucker" when it came to picking a husband.

Caroline Cain said her husband, arrested in Memphis Wednesday, deserted her last month in New Orleans after he has "lived up" her $8,000 inheritance during six months of marriage.

Miss Ruby Larkin of Memphis, who said she married Cain Saturday, briefly pondered Mrs. Caroline Cain's experience.

"Well," she sighed, "I didn't have anything to run through. He told me he didn't have too many years to live and he didn't care anymore. He figured he was going to have all he could while he was alive."

Detective M. A. Hinds said Cain passed bad paper in New Orleans, Kansas City, Memphis, and Fort Smith, Ark.

Fighting Breaks Out In Hungary

VIENNA (AP)—Bitter new street fighting broke out in Budapest today and the Russian-supported Hungarian government ordered new measures to combat the doggedly resisting rebels.

Russia served notice she would brook no interference from the outside world in her fight to crush Hungary's bid for freedom. Premier Bulganin told President Eisenhower in a note that the question of Soviet troop withdrawals from Hungary was "completely and entirely" between the Russian and Hungarian governments.

The Red Hungarian regime's Budapest radio said Soviet troops and police forces were unable to quell shooting in Akacia Street, in Budapest's 7th district.

The broadcast said "armed gangs" were breaking into factories and others were attacking good trains en route to Budapest and carrying off the food in trucks.

Budapest radio sent out urgent appeals for food transport workers to go back on the job as the country verged on starvation.

Reports from refugees crossing the Austrian frontier said a general strike still is in force and the nation's railway system is paralyzed. Lack of coal, shortage of electric power, lack of clothing and a severe food shortage are heading the country toward more chaos.

Neither Soviet troops nor the government they installed seemed able to keep the situation from worsening.

Reports reaching Vienna said freedom fighters appeared to be maintaining a firm position in the ruined old castle at Buda, overlooking the capital, and several other strong points throughout the city.

Two more of the city's best hotels—the Royal and the Continental—went up in flames. Heavy rebel fire prevented fire brigades from getting near the blazing buildings, Budapest radio said.

The pro-Red government broadcast warnings that new battle groups—labeled R-groups—are being formed to combat "brigands and plunderers" in the old Danube capital.

The rebels raided a state-owned store and carried off 5,000 radio sets, apparently to supply the capital with means to get news from the outside.

A Hungarian student arriving from Budapest said the people of all villages and towns he passed on his way were with the rebels. He said he saw several truckloads of Hungarian soldiers carrying the red, white and green "free" Hungarian flag and speeding toward Budapest.

Individual Soviet tanks were being attacked by civilians even in small villages, the student said. He added that he saw several abandoned armored cars.

Other reports reaching Vienna from Budapest said that all rebels who surrendered arms were executed instantly by the Russians in the city Rakosi Square.

A decree ordered officers and soldiers of the regular Hungarian army to remain inside their barracks.

Contract Awarded On Local Library

The county commissioners court yesterday afternoon voted to award the contract for the building of the new county library to T. E. Shelburne & Son of Snyder.

The Shelburne firm was low bidder after the two firms which had turned in the original low bids a week ago submitted alternate bids yesterday.

Shelburne's total bid after alternates were taken was $81,953, while that of A. J. Allen of Levelland was $83,821. When original bids were submitted, Allen was low with $89,458, while Shelburne had $90,200.

The alternates included lowering the ceiling in the main reading room from 14 feet to 12 feet, omitting a staff room, omitting a powder room, changing the wall surface in the mobile room, which is actually a garage for the bookmobile to be used.

After giving the contract to Shelburne, the commissioners court selected brick to be used in the building. They will be regular brick of pink color. They were ordered locally from Southwestern Brick & Tile Co.

D. D. Shelburne, who represented the contractor, said work will be started on the library in the near future. He had already started contacting sub-contractors yesterday, the first of which was Howell Electric Co. of Snyder.

The library, which will be located on Twenty-third Street between Avenues S and T, will have a large main reading room, a children's reading room, offices, work rooms, store rooms, and a lobby-checking area.

The library was one of the three main projects authorized by voters in a bond election here last spring. The other projects were an east-west runway at the county airport and a park expansion project, including a small park at the south end of Snyder and picnic areas in several rural communities.

Ike Meets With Leaders Of Congress On Mid East Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower talked over the grim international picture—marked by mounting tensions with Russia and the threat of war in the Middle East—with 23 congressional leaders today at the White House.

The session was aimed both to bring the legislators up to date on developments and to weld bipartisan backing for administration moves in the situation.

Eisenhower called in a group of top administration officials to join in the discussions. Among them were Vice President Nixon, acting Secretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr. and Secretary of Defense Wilson.

Others included Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; Allen Dulles, chief of the Central Intelligence Agency; Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey, and Arthur S. Flemming, director of the Office of Defense Mobilization.

Israeli Prime Minister Ben-Gurion's agreement to pull out of Egypt once "satisfactory arrangements" are made for a United Nations force to patrol the Suez Canal area noticeably brightens prospects for winding up the Egyptian fighting before Soviet "volunteers" can get into it.

There is some encouragement here too at the way in which U.S.-British-French cooperation is being restored in the face of a Russian threat marked, as it has been, by open reference to the possibility of a third world war.

Ben-Gurion's switch, disclosed in a letter to Eisenhower which the White House made public last night, followed a personal plea Eisenhower had made a day earlier.

Ben-Gurion had announced then that Israel would defy a U.N. resolution calling on that country to gt its troops out of Egypt's Sinai Peninsula and cooperate with a U.N. police force being organized.

In his about-face, he wrote Eisenhower:

"We will, upon conclusion of satisfactory arrangements with the United Nations in connection with this international force entering the Suez Canal area, willingly withdraw our forces."

Ben-Gurion said Israel was renewing a plea to the U.N. to call upon Egypt to stop border raids and to enter into direct peace negotiations. He sent a similar message to U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold.

Plane Crash Probe Urged

DALLAS (AP)—The Aircraft Owners and Pilots Assn. said today it has asked the Air Force to "pursue with vigor" an investigation of a two-plane collision over Midland last month that killed seven persons.

Max Karant, vice-president, wrote Air Force Sec. Quarles his group was not prejudging the accident despite what he called a "most disturbing" record of military jet planes being involved in collisions and near-collisions with civil aircraft.

Five civilians and two Air Force pilots were killed Oct. 24 when a jet trainer and a light plane collided over a Midland residential area.

Karant said he has received letters of protest from several civilian pilots after the crash. He said they asked him to complain to the Air Force about what they called "hod-rod" jet pilots who buz civilian aircraft.

Head Of Two Top Agencies To Quit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The lure of private employment is taking from the Eisenhower administration the heads of two government agencies.

President Eisenhower announced yesterday his acceptance of the resignations of Theodore C. Streibert as director of the U. S. Information Agency, effective Nov. 15, and of Dr. Martha M. Eliot as chief of the Children's Bureau in the Welfare Department, effective Jan. 1.

Balloonists Make Ascension Record

RAPID CITY, S. D. (AP) — With a record ascension of more than 14 miles to their credit, two Navy balloonists rested here today after a descent to earth a lot faster than they had anticipated.

Commanders Malcolm D. Ross, 37, and Morton L. Lewis, 43, both of Washington, D. C., riding a gondola attached to a 128-foot helium balloon, reached 76,000 feet yesterday over the broken land of South Dakota and Nebraska.

They reached that height 2 hours and 50 minutes after they started upward from a natural bowl in the Black Hills near Rapid City. From that same natural bowl another balloon had soared 72,395 feet in 1935 to set the previous record.

Up at 76,000 feet, the two men later said, "it was dark as night." They sipped some coffee and radioed their height back to earth. Then they started down.

The first 20,000 feet found things going as scheduled at 1,000 feet a minute drop.

But then something happened—Ross and Lewis said they didn't know what — and their fall rate shot up.

"We are calm, cool, collected. We think we will stay with the balloon as long as we can," they radioed.

Out went oxygen and radio gear to lighten the gondola. Still the balloon went down fast.

They were drifting southeast over Nebraska's northwest cattle range country. That is an area of sandhills, soft pasture land and what range people call natural blowouts.

It was into one of these natural blowouts — a sort of bowl with soft bottom and rough hill edges — that the gondola settled and Ross and Lewis, hardly shaken, stepped out.

They were near Brownlee, Neb., about 140 miles from their take-off point and had been in the air a little over four hours.

Shortly after Ross and Lewis landed, range pilot Don Higgins, operator of a flying service at Ainsworth, Neb., set his light plane down along-side the gondola and hopped out.

"Hi, did you bring some coffee?" Ross and Lewis cried out.

"They were cheerful but serious and a little chilly before rancher Loren Boyer's wife rushed over some coffee from her house about two miles away," Higgins related.

A Navy plane came in for a landing and Ross and Lewis were flown to Ainsworth, Neb., for a brief stop, then on to Ellsworth air base here for an extensive checkup.

While Ross and Lewis reached a record height a record wasn't the primary aim of the ascent. What they were primarily after was data to improve high-altitude flying safety and to learn more about how pilots perform at the higher altitude.

Pennsylvanian Is Glad To See Texan

PORT SAID (AP)—A Pennsylvanian on tour was mighty glad to see a Texan here.

Robert Lewis of Cresson, Pa. drove into Port Said just in time for the fighting as the British and French forces landed.

Thomas Dixon of Kilgore, Tex., vice consul here, gave Lewis shelter in the consulate basement during the fighting.

Dixon later advised Lewis to find a new vacation spot.

Hammarskjold, meanwhile, telegraphed Burns to confirm his appointment as chief of staff of the U. N. Command for the emergency international fore due in Egypt.

It Might Have Been Cheaper To Keep Bull

BURLINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Stanley Clifford, dairy farm operator, thinks it would have been cheaper if he just hadn't sold that Jersey bull calf.

Clifford sent the calf to a nearby sales barn to be auctioned off and the calf was sold.

However, Clifford got a bill for hauling the calf to the barn and for the sales barn's commission. He wound up owing 50 cent.

FIRST POPPY SOLD—Five-year-old Cynthia Ann Tucker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude N. Tucker, Jr., 313 Thirty-sixth Place, pins the first poppy sold here on the tie of Mayor Harold Bennett. The annual American Legion Auxiliary poppy sale will be held here tomorrow. (Lee Watson photograph)

Buddy Poppy Day Sale To Be Held Here

The American Legion Ladies Auxiliary will have their Buddy Poppy Day sale Saturday in Snyder. The idea of the poppy as a memorial flower for the World War dead sprang up as naturally as the little wild flower itself grows in the fields of France and Flanders. Memories of the war dead always bring thoughts of those who did not die but came back doomed to years of hardship and suffering, sometimes worse than death.

The Auxiliary's poppy program begins in the summer or fall when the manufacture of the poppies is started by disabled veterans in government hospitals and in special convalescent workshops maintained by the Auxiliary Throughout the winter and spring months the disabled men are given profitable employment shaping the little red flowers.

The poppy-making has a beneficial effect in addition to the money it enables the veterans to earn. The hours for sick men in the hospital are long and monotonous. In idleness their minds are prone to dwell on the hardships of their families or on their own disabilities. Mental depression inimical to recovery results. But men whose fingers are busy with bright red poppy petals do not give themselves up to depressing worry. The hours are made shorter for them and they are given a new interest in life.

The success of the poppy program each year is dependent on the activities of the local Auxiliary Units. They order the poppies and sell them or the disabled veterans cannot be given proper employment and medical attention they need.

No price is fixed for the poppy. The newsboy's pennies and the business man's dollar are equally acceptable. The amount dropped in to the box of the poppy seller is a donation to relieve the suffering caused by war. The purpose of the program is to place the symbol of heroic sacrifice above the heart of every true American, giving at the same time an opportunity to serve wars' living victims.

YOU AND YOUR TEEN-AGER

By BEVERLY BRANDOW

Self-conscious that's the one adjective that describes the whole of teen-ager-dom.

The parent who wants to be popular with the high school set will go around Robinhood's barn to avoid causing a teenager embarrassment

What causes an adolescent red face? The simplest of incidents can do it. Every date night parents from coast to coast "goof" as they innocently put their foots in it.

Briefly, here are a few don'ts. Don't inquire "How are you getting along at school?" Unless the teen is an honor student he may color up at the prospect of having to reveal the awkward facts about his scholastic rating.

Don't discuss other people they have dated. Don't display old photographs, particularly of your teen-ager's childhood, to pass the time. You'll never be forgiven.

Don't tease, even in fun! High schoolers oftimes prove to be sensitive about matters you would least suppose.

Don't remind them in public of rules you have already discussed with them in private. Teens find it embarrassing to be "told what to do" in front of a date whom they are trying to impress as being grown-up and sophisticated.

Last of all, don't brag on your teen-ager in front of his friends. You may be proud, but your son or daughter would prefer you tell him he's wonderful with a proud smile or when you're alone together.

Your love is most welcome, but your open declaration of your bursting pride in your child's achievement sometimes causes him to suffer jealousy from his friends and at best is embarrassing.

No space is large enough to cover all of the things you may inadvertently do to embarrass teen-agers. However, if you'll remember the motivating force of the adolescent personality is to seem older and impress others with a new found maturity, you'll learn automatically to avoid in any way detracting from your child's sense of personal freedom of decision, capability, or individuality.

You may levy your rules and offer your guidance, but when your teen-ager's friends are around, let him seem to be the "master of his fate and captain of his soul."

Do this and ever after you'll rate ace high.

No Great Surprise

Well, as it turned out the opinion polls in general were a pretty accurate indication of what the American people were thinking and intended to do, so the outcome of the national election, was no great surprise to anyone.

Undoubtedly President Eisenhower's campaigning activity had a great deal to do with his overwhelming victory — a personal triumph almost without parallel in American history. It is possible the suddenly worsening situation in the Middle East and Russia's action in Hungary, plus the threats emanating from the Kremlin in the last few days before the election, contributed to Ike's tremendous sweep. It is an axiom in American politics that in time of trouble horses shouldn't be changed in the middle of the stream. In times such as these the inclination of the American people is to form in line behind their President, and Ike's extraordinary personal popularity with all classes of our people made this more than normally operative this week.

There were some surprises. It was not so much surprising that Ike should carry his native State of Texas, but that he should carry it by a margin even wider than before. In 1952 the very ballot was rigged in his favor, thanks to cross filing, and hardly any state Democratic leaders were active in support of their national ticket.

There was no cross-filing this time, and practically every member of Congress, in addition to many other Democratic office holders and politicians, were rallied behind the Stevenson-Kefauver ticket. In addition, a dozen or more senators and representatives from other states were brought in to back them up, which was probably a major mistake. Texans, in common with the people of other states, don't particularly relish what they regard as "outside interference."

In Texas and throughout the country it was a personal Eisenhower triumph, not a Republican victory — as the congressional results indicate.

Our country faces critical times in relation to the world in general, and it may be just as well that the world, friend and foe alike, have this fresh evidence of the inherent strength of this great democracy.

For Americans as a whole accept the verdict at the polls without recrimination or repining, and the country stands as one — united and unafraid.

If Messrs. Stevenson and Kefauver feel the need of consolation they can reflect that any other team the Democrats put together probably would not have fared any better. There was just simply too much Ike.

A Dire Threat

While the American public was bemused with the 1956 version of the 1938 "peace in our time" theme song, events in the Middle East reached the showdown stage.

For a time last week hope soared high in the free world that at last the victims of Russian oppression in Hungary had broken their chains and achieved a measure of national identity and self-rule.

It was short-lived. The power of the Soviet Union crushed the hopes of the Hungarian people and of the free world by one brutal blow. The thousands of Hungarian patriots who gave their lives, or risked them, in a supreme effort to break their bonds, gave and risked in vain. Additional thousands died under the guns of Russian tanks, and multiplied thousands more will be liquidated for having dared question the Soviet supremacy over her satellites in all matters of government, ideology and doctrine.

But that is only part of the story. The awful carnage visited upon the Hungarians will dampen if not destroy the spirit of liberty which has recently flamed in East German and Polish and Czech hearts. The cause of freedom from Russian tyranny might have been set back for additional years.

Once more the Bear That Walks Like a Man has reminded the free world that brutality and perfidy and an insensate ferocity that stops at nothing is loose in the world, seeking whom it may devour.

The situation in the Middle East is bad and worsening; but if out of the present struggle there the Communist masters of the Kremlin, who have shown their mastery over Eastern Europe anew, should spread their influence and power over that oil-rich area the free world will be confronted with a threat as dire as it is immediate.

Envy

Drought Stresses Reason For Industry To Shift Into Arid Regions Of Nation

By HOLMES ALEXANDER

WASHINGTON, D. C. — One-third of the nation — practically everthing West of the 100th Meridian — is in serious trouble with drought. There is an Advisory Committee on Weather Control, assigned by law (P. L. 256, 83rd Congress) to report to Congress and the President by June 30, 1958, on this rising crisis. But meanwhile disaster marches on. The same tale of trouble is told in dozens of documents and pounds of material that are turned out by Federal agencies, State agencies, university study groups and private industry sources. The 100th Meridian runs southward through North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

I have heard from editors that people who live East of that line don't care what happens to the West. "The two-thirds won't read what you write about the one-third," I was told when I discussed the mass of material I've been collecting on this creeping catastrophe. But I question such an estimate of the American people's sympathy and vision. It goes without saying that whatever happens to part of the United States, happens to us all. A spokesman at the Weather Bureau, Department of Commerce, tells me that in terms of human life and property, the present drought eventually could be the most disastrous in recorded history. There are 25 million Americans living in the affected area, according to my helpful advisers at the Population Reference Bureau. And as State Senator George Parkhouse, chairman of the Texas Committee on Water Resources puts it: "Maybe we should-not be here, but here we are."

Something must — and can — be done. The remedy would be much further along toward completion if we had turned to it sooner. Instead, we have been lavishing our attentions on the Hottentots while Americans in West Texas and Southern California, in New Mexico and Arizona and the rest of the southwest are allowed to pulverize. If the 85th Congress has sums to spend, this section of the country can soak up billions that will be repaid many fold to our own posterity, the taxpayers of the future. But first there are some unfamiliar and maybe unwelcome facts to face, such as:

Contrary to much misinformation, the best investment of water is not in agriculture but in industry. Irrigation is obsolete. With the modern seeds and fertilizers, we can raise all the food we need in the rainfall States. The salvation for the arid States is for them to become gradually industrialized.

Farmland is the wrong place for water unless it's rain water, which is free. A unit of water that supports one farmer on arid soil will support 60 industrial workers, according to Louis Koenig, associate director, Southwest Research Institute.

Industry not only makes better use of water, but it uses the same water over and over again. One plant in the Southwest once consumed 224 acre-feet of water per year. Now, by re-use, the same plant consumes only 4 acre-feet per year. Human beings, although they rarely know it, use the same water time after time. Nearly half the national population, about 70 million persons, drink from the same natural reservoirs where the sewage goes. Purifying plants are the answer for both human and industrial uses.

Seashore and mountain areas suffer from lack of rainfall, but they can lick the drought. Sea water can be desalted at $100 per acre-foot and up. Usually only a profits-making industry can afford to make fresh water from the sea. It's done on a large scale by oil refineries in the Dutch West Indies. Wherever there are mountains, there is water that runs downhill to the irrigation ditches.

But it's the inland flat lands, mostly in the Southwest, that demand the greatest amount of attention and expense. Here there are two methods of getting new water. One is to drill for it, like oil, and with similar odds of hit or miss. Two is to seed the clouds by airplane with silver iodide. Cloud-seeding does not create moisture, but it precipitates rainfall by tapping the great rivers of ice and snow which flow irregularly a few miles overhead.

This water must be brought to earth whenever the celestial rivers happen to flow — in winter, autumn, summer, spring. It must be stored for economical use in farming or manufacturing. Cloud seeding, while growing fast, is still an infant industry. But while it gets its growth, we must start building lake-basins in what are now the dustlands of the West.

RADIO-TV REPORT

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—National television network coverage of the election returns was in general a triumph of man over the machine.

Each of the major networks came up to the big night armed with a big machine. ABC-TV had the Elecom 125, developed by the Underwood Corp. CBS-TV had the Univac, developed by Remington Rand. And NBC-TV had a huge battery of International Business Machine computing devices.

CBS and ABC used its machines to forecast results far in advance. As examples of how clever they were, Univac forecast at 9:10 p.m. (Eastern Standard Time) that President Eisenhower would receive 395 electoral votes to Adlai Stevenson's 68. At 9:45 p.m. Elecom 125 prophesied that Eisenhower would receive the approximate popular vote of President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1932. Both were very close to the eventual results, although Univac stumbled at the height of the evening by predicting a GOP 8-1 majority in the Senate.

So the work of the machines is not to be underestimated. They are, as highly touted by the respective networks, geniuses.

Yet the network commentators, while less exact than the machines were forecasting a sweeping Eisenhower victory early in the evening on the basis of their own reasoning rather than that of the machines'. To one viewer it was more interesting to watch and hear the men than the machines.

One who kept his eye on coverage of all networks found it impossible to say that one was vastly superior to the others. Each had its moments. All performed excellently on the basis of the information supplied by newspapers and press associations.

To this viewer Elecom 125 cannot create as much human interest as John Daly and his crew on ABC' or Univac as much as Walter Cronkite and his crew on CBS, or the complicated NBC devices as much as Chet Huntley and David Brinkley and their men.

Perhaps the machines employed by the networks would have generated greater viewer interest if the race had been closer. But once it became apparent to everyone that Prsident Eisenhower was sweeping in, the machines lost their appeal. There was, at best, only a vague academic interest left in how accurate they would be. But in the general confusion it was difficult for any viewer to remember what machine had forecast what at what time.

The machines are interesting gadgets. They might become fascinating gadgets when the big race gets close.

There Was No Cool Deliberation In Capital When Mid-East Crisis Came

By WALTER LIPPMANN

Although this government was not consulted, it knew that Israel was mobilizing, it believed that this meant a serious military action, and it had at least an informed guess that this would not be happening without Paris and London knowing about it. When the Israeli Army struck, the President and his advisors decided, quite rightly, to take the affair to the U.N. But there were two ways of taking it to the U.N. and they chose the wrong one.

One was to seize the whole border problem, to recognize that it is a two-sided problem, and to call Egyptian raids as well as the Israeli reprisals. The other way was the one which the President and Secretary Dulles took. This was to ignore the Egyptian raids, to travel Israel as the aggressor and Egypt as the innocent victim.

This was a grave mistake of policy, indefensible in principle and in fact entirely unrealistic and impracticable.

• • •

It was indefensible to ignore, and thus to condone, the extreme provocation of the Egyptian raids. The resolution which Mr. Lodge submitted to the U.N. would, had it been adopted, have guaranteed the Egyptians behind their frontier but not the Israelis behind theirs. It would have made Egyptian territory a United Nations sanctuary from which the fedayeen raiders could operate without fear of reprisal.

Almost certainly the explanation of this policy decision is that those in authority did not realize what it meant, that there was a little panic in Washington and that there was no cool deliberation.

Had there been, how could the makers of this policy have failed to see that Britain and France, which are in a bitter cold war with Nasser, could never conceivably support a policy so one-sidedly favorable to Nasser? I would have supposed that anyone could have foreseen what happened — that we forced the issue we would get a veto by our allies and support from the Soviet Union.

• • •

What caused the explosion? The sequence of events shows, I think, that Col. Nasser, convinced that he had won his fight over Suez, moved on promptly to work out another step in his grandiose plans to become the master of the Arab world. While the Suez crisis was hot, Nasser suspended his war aginst Israel and there were no raids. When the Suez crisis had passed, the raids began again, accompanied by military measurers to bring Jordan, Syria, and Lebanon within Nasser's orbit.

His behavior convinced the Israelis that they could not live with him. It convinced the British and the French that not only would they get nowhere with him in a Suez negotiation but that he was their implacable enemy throughout North Africa and the Middle East. Had Nasser been reasonable, moderate, and statesmanlike after his victory in the Suez affair, this explosion would probably not have occurred. But he is the trypical aggressor-dictator who will not stop until he is stopped. That is why once again a policy of appeasement has failed to preserve the peace.

• • •

For the time being this country has no policy in the Middle East. The policy on which we operated is in ruins. It was to restrain Britain, France, and Israel from using force — which was a most desirable objective. But what this policy has lacked was any constructive plan — such as might have been developed out of the Indian proposals — which looked towards a settlement in the Middle East. The result was that we restrained the British, the French and the Israelis, but not Nasser. This led to the explosion which has blown our Middle Eastern policy to bits.

• • •

President Eisenhower's formula as a peace-maker has been to stop the shooting and, without working out a settlement, to have both sides accepth the status quo. Why has the formula not worked this time? Because this time there was Nasser who does not and will not accept the status quo, who is so great a disturber of the peace that those who are hurt by him cannot take it forever.

Brooklyn Bridge Finally Debt Free After 73 Years

By INEZ ROBB

Wall Street may be having its up and downs at the moment, but there is splendid news in another popular investment field. Any visiting fireman in New York with a yen to buy Brooklyn Bridge can now snap it up free and clear of any mortgage, for the first time in its history.

The city has at last finished paying for the great span made famous by Steve Brodie and his death - defying plunge from its heights into the East River in 1886.

of New York City made the final payment for debt service on the bonds issued long ago to finance the construction of the city's first great bridge and still its most famous one.

And if anyone in the audience wonders what becomes of his tax money, there is one easy lesson in Brooklyn Bridge. The original cost, when it was completed in 1883, was $25,000,000. In the intervening years — 73 of them — interest on the bonds has consumed $50,000,000, or exactly twice the price of the bridge! Sic semper taxes.

Oddly enought, the day before the city finally paid in full for the bridge, I had read in that fascinating magazine of United States history, "American Heritage," a sparkling article, "When They Built the Big Bridge" by Francis Williams Brown, about its construction.

Until then, I had never realized that the suspension bridge, with a span of 1,595 feet, had taken 16 years in the building, from its conception in 1867 to its completion in 1883.

By contrast, the George Washington Bridge, which spans the Hudson like a dream in silver filigree, was built in four years. Its river span is 3,500 feet. From anchorage to anchorage, it measures 4,700 feet.

But the Brooklyn Bridge, the marvel of its day, was built with none of the equipment that makes modern bridge-building a quicker and less spectacular achievement. The bridge killed its great architect and engineer, John Roebling, and destroyed the health of his son and successor, Col. Washington Roebling.

The colonel, an expert in the new technique of building underwater foundations with pneumatic caissons, stayed in the caissons with his sand hogs so long that he became a housebound invalid. For a decade, he sat in his home on Columbia Heights, Brooklyn, and, with the aid of field glasses, superintended the completion of the bridge.

On that great day, May 24, 1883, when the bridge was finally opened, President Chester A. Arthur, Governor Grover Cleveland and innumerable other dignitaries came to his house to congratulate the famous invalid for his truly historic accomplishment.

Now, 73 years later, the bridge is finally paid for and the next lucky purchaser can get clear title to it. Now, I wonder how long it will take to pay for the George Washington span, whose construction and improvement costs to date tally $76,500,000. Any visiting fireman looking to invest in it ought to ask a few sharp questions before making any down payment.

Analysis Of The Election Should Be Simple Enough

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — What the elections proved seems simple enough, although men who make a living analyzing voting habits will come up with plenty of psychological jargon and seeming profundities.

The voters liked President Eisenhower far more than they did Adlai Stevenson, and more than they liked the Republican party. Otherwise they couldn't see much difference between Democrats and Republicans.

The evidence is plain enough: Eisenhower won overwhelmingly but his Republicans were beaten by the Democrats for control of Congress. The Democrats won by only the triniest margin, capturing just enough of the 531 seats to take charge.

Nevertheless, the voters have been showing a preference for the Democrats as a party. They elected a Republican Congress with Eisenhower in 1952 but in 1954 and again this year gave the Democrats control.

The Democrats and Republicans — as parties — are almost identical. Both stand for moderate extensions of the New Deal and Fair Deal. Beyond that they don't go.

The Republicans, after years of criticizing many of the social measures of Presidents Roosevelt and Truman, took them over lock, stock and barrel although they don't like to acknowledge it.

Republican adoption of the Roosevelt-Truman programs means they have caught up with the clock. The New and Fair Deal reforms have become part of the basic fabric of American life.

For their part, the Democrats have moved neither left nor right, as a party. They're right in the middle. The Republicans used to scream the Democrats were socializing the country, but the New and Fair Deal reforms were not radical. The proof is their acceptance by such middle-of-the-road Republicans as Eisenhower.

Neither Democrats nor Republicans now are calling for wide reforms, as the Democrats did in depression days. The reason for that is simple enough too: the country is prosperous and is not expecting or demanding startling changes.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Wives Of Washington Officials Kept Busy

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — Politics, parties and philanthropies leave Washington's official wives little time to call their own these days.

Graciously willing to do all that is expected of women in their position, they're good-humoredly giving their all to hand-shaking, speech-making, tea-pouring and hosting rallies in their own homes.

"I just can't wait till the day when I can kick off my shoes and relax," one cabinet wife told me. "It would be better still if I could lie abed until noon, or once get to bed before midnight. I'm just plain fagged out."

Despite all the campaign stumping for their favorite candidates and the social shindigs where their appearance is a must, the prominent lime-lighters are lending their active support to the capital's first United Givers Fund drive, the National Symphony Orchestra, the Goodwill Industries, and numerous other civic and charitable functions.

With strictly bi-partisan unity, top women of both Republican and Democratic affiliations broke bread together at a huge luncheon to whip up enthusiasm for the UGF drive to raise money for some 132 agencies, including the Red Cross.

Among those present were the District's "Mrs. Democrat," Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, and its "Mrs. Republican," hostess Mrs. Robert Low Bacon.

Announcement that the cabinet wives were to be on hand to "pour" at an open-house tea at Washington's pilot Goodwill Rehabilitation Center, which offers extension of job and training services for the handicapped, brought out large numbers.

This was one of the few occasions when party-goers, hoping to meet the top ladies in government circles, were disappointed. Some explained that it was just a "physical impossibility" for them to get to the tea.

Care Of Nylon Sheets

Nylon sheets can be washed safely by hand or by machine, using a short washing cycle. Rely on warm water and soap or detergent suds — and wash whites only with other white clothes. Nylon sheets can be tumble dried in just a few minutes at low-temperature setting in your gas dryer. If pressing is desired, use a steam iron, or dry iron at rayon or nylon setting.

LITERARY GUIDEPOST

AUTUMN ACROSS AMERICA, By Edwin Way Teale. Dodd, Mead. Once upon a time Edwin Way Teale held a large magnifying glass to his own 10-acre "insect farm" on Long Island and wrote a nature classic called "Grassroot Jungles."

Now in "Autumn Across America," for the second time in a few years, he has used a wide angle lens to encompass the sweep of a continent. It is No. 2 in a series he plans on the four seasons.

Following a 20,000-mile autumn trail from Cape Cod right across the country to Monterey, Teale and his helpmeet wife visited many of the people worth knowing, the places worth seeing and the creatures worth studying in the world of nature.

With the effortless prose and the all-embracing scholorship for which he is noted, he makes the advent of a dying year seem the many sided miracle that of course it really is.

Just one chapter is worth the price of the book. In it Teale tells of riding a light plane for miles along the Blue Mountain ridge of Pennsylvania, learning for himself what hawks must see and feel on this famous migration route to the south. Like the hawks, his pilot had to reckon with and take advantage of the upsweep of the winds. Although Hawk Mountain, the most famous observation spot of all along this route, is now a bird preserve, hunters still blast senselessly at the migrating raptores from other vantage points.

Teale writes not only of birds and insects but of the stars, animals, trees, plants deserts and sea bottoms. It is a rich volume.

Tigers After 8th Straight Win

BUCKIN' THE LINE

By BUCK FRANCIS
News Sports Editor

OUR CRYSTAL BALL wasn't as far off the past week as it was the previous week but there is still a lot of room for improvement.

We had our best week of the season in the outhwest Conference, hitting 4 out of 4. For once the SWC teams played according to Hoyle.

But this doesn't happen but about once pre season. Realizing that it won't happen twice in as many weeks, we're going to take the underdog in three of the four SWC games this week.

If they again go according to "Snuff" this week, we'll be sunk.

Didn't hit any scores on the head last week. We did come close on a coupla games of which we missed calling 'em by a single point. Our prediction on the Lamesa-Lake View game was 14-6 Lamesa and the final score was 13-6. In the Rice-Utah game we said it would be 28-0 Rice and it was 27-0.

Jack Craft shamed us on one of our picks last week — Midland over San Angelo.

"If you had of asked me I could have told you San Angelo was going to wni," Craft said this week. Ioan, still has a little "Bobcat Jack, though, a former San Angelo blood" in him and I probably would have taken it that he was only being loyal had I asked him about the game before hand.

A Vote For Tigers

Oh well, it's all in a day's work. Now we'll try to improve on that 17-8 mark we posted last week.

Taking first things first, it looks like the Tigers will have a tougher scrap on their hands tonight than most fans think when they meet the Lake View Chiefs.

Lake View has a good starting eleven and if these boys hold out all the way then look for a fine contest tonight.

You may think you're seeing last year's Tiger backfield when the Chiefs take the field tonight. Lake View averages 177 pounds per man, about the same size of the '55 Tiger ball-toting department.

The Tigers will spot the Chiefs 26 pounds per man in the backfield so you can see what could happen tonight.

After all is said and done, we look for the Tigers to make it 8 straight tonight but only after a hard struggle by 21-0.

Two high school games of utmost interest to District 3-AAA fans are on top tonight—Phillips at Levelland and Breckenridge at Graham.

Despite the fact that the Levelland mayor has proclaimed this week as "Beat Phillips Week" we don't believe the Lobos will be able to handle the Blackhawks of Coach Chesty Walker tonight.

The proclamation reveals that everyone in Levelland this week should greet each other with "Beat Phillips" rather than "good morning" or "hello."

But Levelland's starting quarterback, Jimmy Johnson, who missed the Tiger game with an injury but returned later, is out again wih a broken hand so it looks like curtains for the Lobos.

Phillips 7, Levelland 0.

Buckies On Prowl Again

Breckenridge is on the prowl again after a dismal start. But the Buckies apparently will be meeting a very fine outfit in the Graham Steers tonight who last week overwhelmed a supposedly good Vernon team, 33-14.

Unless the green uniforms frighton the Steers as they have done a coupla other teams we know of this season, Graham should take the Buckies into camp tonight.

Graham 14, Breckenridge 13.

As we said before, we're going along with the underdogs in the Southwest Conference this weekend. We may regret it but we haven't been getting any place going along with the favorites up to now so we're changing our tactics. The SWC picks are:

SMU 19, Texas A&M 14.
Texas 27, Baylor 20.
Arkansas 14, Rice 7.
TCU 34, Texas Tech 7.

Quickly here are the other predicted scores:

Sweetwater 20, Colorado City 6.
Kermit 27, Pecos 14.
Abilene 41, Odessa 6.
Midland 20, Big Spring 7.
Amarillo 34, Lubbock 20.
Palo Duro 14, Borger 0.
Hermleigh 27, Trent 14.
Hobbs 58, Blackwell 14.
Ira 27, Divide 20.
Gail 24, Klondike 20.
Oklahoma 60, Iowa State 0.
ACC 20, Midwestern 14.
North Texas 34, Hardin-Simmons 20.
Tennessee 14, Georgia Tech 7.
Notre Dame 14, Pitt 13.
Arizona State 26, TCU 21.
LSU 14, Oklahoma A&M 7.

Upset Minded Chiefs Invade Tiger Stadium

By BUCK FRANCIS
News Sports Editor

A crowd of about 4,000 is expected to file into Tiger Stadium tonight to watch the Tigers battle the Lake View Chiefs in a District 3-AAA football contest.

The Tigers will be seeking their eighth straight win this season against no defeats and their second in 3-AAA activity.

Kickoff time for the game will be 7:30.

The Black and Golders are distinct favorites but the Chiefs are in a good spot to pull up an upset. Lake View has been far more impressive than its 1-5-1 record shows.

Lack View held a highly regarded Lamesa team to a one-touchdown victory last week. Lamesa broke a 6-6 tie with 37 seconds remaining in the first half and held on the final two quarters for a 13-6 victory.

The Tigers and Chiefs have met only one common foe — Sweetwater. Lake View, after making it a good game for three quarters, wilted in the final period to allow Sweetwater make it a stampede, 44-6. Twenty-five of Sweetwater's points came in the fourth quarter. The Tigers last week edged Sweetwater, 3-0.

It must be pointed out in the Sweetwater game that three of the Lake View starting backs saw little or no action. Regular fullback Rex Wilson, a 190-pounder, didn't suit up for the Sweetwater game.

Don Butts, 180-pound halfback, who is the Chiefs' leading ground gainer for the season, saw action in only a few plays against the Mustangs due to a leg injury. And regular quarterback Clifford Bly injured his ankle early in the Mustang game and limped it out the remaining distance.

Reports from the Lake View camp, today, though have the Chiefs in near tip-top physical condition.

The Tigers will probably have all hands suited up tonight but four of the mainstays, quarterback Powell Berry, tackle Wiley Denson, end Robert Dabbs and guard Gene Williamson, have been suffering from colds.

Berry missed Tuesday's workout with a cold but returned Wednesday.

The Tigers and Chiefs will stack up just about even in the "scale" department. The Bengals hold a distinct weight advantage in the line but the Black and Golders will spot the Chiefs several pounds in the backfield.

The Tiger forward wall (offensive) averages 183 pounds-per-man to 167 for the Chiefs. It's just the opposite in the backfield with the Chief secondary outweighing the Bengals by 26 pounds per man. Lake View's backfield averages 177 pounds per man to 151 for the Tigers.

Overall team weight give the Chiefs a slight edge, 170 average per man to 169 for the Tigers.

In Don Butts, Lake View will have the top ground gainer of the season among the Tiger and Chief backs. Butts has gained 422 yards this season while Berry leads the Tigers with 376 yards.

The No. 2 Chief ground gainer, Rex Wilson, has gained 286 yards while the Tiger second leading ground gainer, Tommy Prichard, has gained 277 yards. The third leading carriers of the two teams are virtually even, too.

Jerry Lay is the third top Chief rusher with 222 yards to the Tigers' third best, Bill Fowler, with 220.

In passing, Bly has connected for gains of 378 yards for the Chiefs while Berry of the Tigers has thrown for a 331 yard gain. Bly has completed 23 of 57 for .403 percentage to 16 of 44 and .363 for Berry.

In another 3-AAA game, Sweetwater journeys to Colorado City.

Tiger Frosh In 20-6 Loss To Stamford

STAMFORD, Nov. 9—Stamford's Freshman football team handed the Snyder Freshmen a 20-6 defeat here Thursday night.

Stamford scored in the final two minutes of the first half to take a 7-0 lead and then added touchdowns in the third and fourth periods.

The lone Snyder score came in the fourth quarter on a reverse play that saw Jimmy Maroney and Alex Cross collaborate for a 65-yards play.

Maroney started off with the ball and after reversing the field a couple of times, he lateralled off to Cross who carried it over for the touchdown. It was estimated that Maroney advanced the ball 15 yards to the mid-field stripe before he lateralled off to Cross.

Snyder Jr. Hi Sweeps A Pair

Snyder Junior High swept both ends of a doubleheader from Lamesa last night before a shivering crowd of about 400 at Tiger Stadium.

Snyder 7th won its 9th straight game without a loss by trimming Lamesa 7th, 20-0, with the Snyder 8th graders coming back in the nightcap to trip Lamesa 8th by 14-0.

It was the sixth win against one loss and one tie for Snyder 8th.

Snyder 7th jumped into a 14-0 halftime lead and then added a fourth quarter touchdown to win by 20-0.

The victory came a little bit harder for Snyder 8th. Coach Ace Amos' crew was held to a 0-0 stalemate in the first half but the Blue Devils came back in the final two quarters to push over a touchdown in each period.

Little Steve Free sparked the Snyder 7th graders to victory. Free scored one Blue Devil touchdown and passed for another.

Free's tally came on a one-yard quarterback sneak in the first quarter.

Free then passed to end Freddie Miller for another touchdown in the fourth quarter. The pass play, which covered only three yards, came on fourth down and caught the Lamesa defense off balance.

Snyder 7th's other score came in the second quarter on a 20-yard run by Mike McCright.

After a scoreless first half, Snyder 8th broke into the scoring column in the third quarter when John Weaver, slowed by a sprained ankle, galloped 60 yards for a touchdown. Weaver shook off a couple of tacklers at the line of scrimmage and then picked up several downfield blockers and raced across standing up.

Jesse Crawford scooted nine yards around end in the fourth period for Snyder 8th's other touchdown.

Fullback John Billy Koonsman ran over both Snyder 8th's conversion points.

TIGER MASCOT—"Sam" Dillaha, center, has been officially acclaimed as the Snyder High School mascot. Sam has been a friend of the Tiger footballers for three years now since coming to Snyder and the high school student body, headed by Ronnie Smith, right, student body president, and Freida Melton, vice-president, named Sam as the official Tiger mascot. Sam will wear the cape he is wearing above at all Tiger home games. The cape was made by Mrs Theo Lamb and Mrs. Bill Atwood. (Photo by Bill Abercrombie).

'Sam' Named As Tiger Mascot

The most devoted and popular Tiger football fan has been named the official mascot of the Tiger football team.

His name is "Sam."

Sam has been around for several years and there probably isn't a Tiger fan in existence who doesn't know him.

Sam, so far as anyone knows, hasn't missed a Tiger workout since he came to Snyder four years ago.

Sam, too, has a fine attendance record at Snyder High School, too. As long as there is activity at Snyder High School, you can expect Sam to be around.

If you haven't met him, Sam is a flop-eared cocker-spaniel.

His masters are Dr. Carl A. Dillaha and family. Dr. Dillaha is one of the Tiger team physicians.

Dr. Dillaha says they picked Sam up as a puppy while he was stationed at Oakland, Calif., in the Navy, in 1952.

The Dillaha's then brought Sam with them to Snyder after Dr. Dillaha got his discharge in 1953.

The Dillaha's live about a block from Tiger Stadium and Snyder High School and Sam took up with the Tiger footballers and students right away.

And it works the other way too, the footballers and students took up with Sam.

Sam never misses a home game and he even made the bi-district game at Garland last December.

Sam is perhaps the friendliest canine around. His favorite game (one which he can take part in) is to chase various objects. High school students get a big bang of throwing objects and watch Sam retreive it. As long as anyone wants to throw anything and watch Sam go get them and bring them back, Sam will stay right with you. He never seems to tire.

LOST

SHIELD CONTAINING RADIOACTIVE MATERIALS!

A shield containing RADIOACTIVE material has been lost somewhere in the Monahans-Odessa area. This shield is made of steel and lead with the outside covering made of steel. It is a piece of all steel equipment 3⅝" in diameter and 27¼" long. One end is pointed, similar to a bullet, while the other end is threaded with a rather course thread.

Although this RADIOACTIVE material is in the shield, care should be taken to avoid prolonged exposure in the immediate vicinity of the shield. Do not attempt to dismantle or open the shield as the RADIOACTIVE material becomes very dangerous when removed from the shield.

Notify the Ector County Sheriff's Department immediately if you have any information regarding this shield which contains the RADIOACTIVE material. A $25 reward is offered for information leading to the recovery of the shield.

WE REPEAT—Notify the Ector County Sheriff's Department immediately if you have any information regarding this shield. DO NOT ATTEMPT TO OPEN THE SHIELD AND AVOID PROLONGED EXPOSURE IN ITS VICINITY.

Bums Nip Japanese In 11th Frame, 5-4

TOKYO (AP)—A Japanese pitcher refused to obey an order and opened the way for an 11th inning outbrust that pushed across a run and gave the Brooklyn Dodgers a 5-4 victory over the Yomiuri Giants today.

The Giants' manager ordered pitcher Takehiko Bessho to walk Jackie Robinson, Dodger third baseman, in the top of the 11th.

The pitcher refused and Robinson smashed a double that drove in Junior Gilliam from second with the winning run.

A basketballer who scored 72 points in a single game — Bill Pfluger of Eden, Tex.—is among Texas Tech'a incoming freshman basketballers.

Bowl Bids At Stake In Tomorrow's College Games

Vol-Wreck Tilt Nation's Feature

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

The Rose, Orange, Cotton and Sugar bowls stage their semifinals tomorrow as college football enters the stretch run for postseason bids, conference titles and All America recognition.

Virtually every section has a game which could be ranked the day's No. 1. But the choicest, perhaps, will be at Atlanta, Ga., where Georgia Tech, ranked second in this week's Associated Press poll, meets Tennessee, rated No. 3. It's a battle of unbeatens and the Southeastern Conference crown rides on this one — with both winner and loser likely to wind up in a New Year's Day bowl game (Sugar and Cotton), however.

That's no taffy pull sixth-ranked Minnesota and Iowa have in Minneapolis either. This one's for the Big Ten's berth in the Rose Bowl. It will be the national TV game of the day.

At Palo Alto, Calif., Stanford and Oregon State meet in a game that could decide the other Rose Bowl entry as the Pacific Coast Conference host.

The Orange Bowl tickets probably can be printed tomorrow night. Colorado plays Missouri at Columbia, Mo., to name the Big Seven's representative to the Miami classic, while Clemson can pad its already fat bid as the Atlantic Coast Conference entry by beating Maryland.

And at Dallas, fifth-ranked Texas A&M and Southern Methodist play for what could be a giant step toward the Southwest Conference title and the league's host entry to the Cotton Bowl. The Aggies, however, have to shake NCAA probationary action to make it should they take the crown.

All of which pushes most members of the top 10 into unaccustomed roles as lesser lights. Oklahoma, No. 1, casts the shadow of a 36-game winning streak over inept Iowa State. Michigan State, No 5, plays Purdue; Ohio State, No. 7, meets Indiana; Syracuse, No. 9, tries Holy Cross; and Michigan, No. 10 plays Illinois. Miami (Fla), No. 8, is idle.

In games tonight, it's Richmond at George Washington in a Southern Conference scrap; and South Oregon at Hawaii.

Georgia Tech, with a 12-game unbeaten streak that includes last year's 7-7 tie by Tennessee, definitely will have george Volkert running at right half against the Vols. After missing last week's 7-0 chiller against Duke because of a leg injury, Volkert impressed Coach Bobby Dodd so much in yesterday's drill he "may even start."

Tailback Johnny Majors is Tennessee's big man, a 5-10 ball of fire who plays as though he invented the pass-run option.

With Ohio State and Michigan State ineligible for the Rose Bowl, Minnesota could virtually nail its first trip to the Pasadena classic by defeating Iowa. The Gophers are unbeaten but once-tied (0-0 by Northwestern), while Iowa, still in on the bowl battle, has lost only to Michigan. It's Minnesota's Bobby Cox against Hawkeye Kenny Ploen, a pair of quarterbacks.

Oregon State got its foot in the door when UCLA upset Stanford last week, but the Beavers will have to dam up passer John Brodie to make it pay off.

TYLER (AP)—Bobby Manziel, 49, prominent Tyler oil man and nationally known as a boxing promoter, died today.

Manziel, who had lived here since the oil boom days of the 30s, was a partner with former heavyweight boxing champion Jack Dempsey in building a huge sportatorium in this East Texas city, the Oil Palace.

Manziel was taken to the Mother Frances Hospital yesterday with a hemorrhage.

Olympics Frown Over Withdrawals

By WILL GRIMSLEY

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Officials of the Olympic Games said today they are "stunned" and "bitterly disappointed" that politics are creeping in to spoil the great sports spectacle.

Commenting on recurring withdrawals from the games, the latest being Switzerland, W. S. Kent-Hughes, chairman of the organizing committee, said:

"Politics are a matter for the government. Sports should be something apart and should set an example for friendliness among nations.

"These Olympics should set a shining light for warring nations and show that men can compete on the fields in friendly rivalry. You cannot get over an idea by punching a man in the jaw."

The executive officer of the games, Lt. Gen. Sir William Bridgeford, said he is sorry to see countries, especially small countries, "swayed from the great olympic ideal by politics."

"This is a bitter disappointment to us naturally, since we have made such exhaustive preparations and sought to hold the games in the true Olympic spirit," he added.

The president of the U.S. Olympic committee, Kenneth Wilson, said:

"I would like to see all nations reconsider their action and come back into the games as an example to the rest of the world that men can live and play beside each other in peace," he declared.

In addition to Switzerland, other countries to withdraw are Spain, the Netherlands, Iraq, Red China and Egypt.

Baylor-Texas Tilt To Pit Great Backs

WACO (AP) — Whatever happens in Baylor Stadium tomorrow, chances are either Walt Fondren of Texas or Del Shofner of Baylor, or both, will have their hands or feet in it.

This game brings together the two most versatile backs in the Southwest Conference. Fondren heads six of the eight individual statistical categories for Texas, while Shofner leads in six departments and figures in the other two.

Fondren holds an edge over his rival in five of the eight statistical sections and has a wide margin in two of them—ball carrying and pass receiving. The Texas junior has carried 84 times for a net of 348 yards, while Shofner, used less frequently, has a net of 98 for 31 trips.

Each leads his team in receiving, and Fondren is tops in the conference with 18 receptions for 260 yards and two touchdowns. Shofner matches the Longhorns' jack-of-all-trades in touchdown passes but his total catches are only 9 for 155 yards.

Five touchdowns have been scored by each, but Fondren has added seven of his ten extra-point attempts for a total of 37 points, compared to Shofner's 30.

Fondren likely will be busier than usual on Saturday, for he probably will be called on to relieve some at quarterback, with Vince Matthews sidelined by injury.

DeWitt Weaver, himself a former University of Tennessee player, has two former Tennessee All-Americans on his Texas Tech coaching staff—Beattie Feathers, '33 tailback, and Bud Sherrod, '50 end.

IN SCHOOLBOY RANKS

Thirty District Titles On Line

By The Associated Press

More than 30 district championships go on the line in Texas schoolboy football Friday. When the firing ceases at least a third of the 93 districts of the four-division state race will be ready for the playoffs.

The campaign is in its final two weeks in district play for Classes AA and A. It has three weeks to run in AAAA and AAA.

Four district champions already have been determined with Ysleta taking the Dist. 1 title in AAA, Perryton winning Dist. 3 in AA and Henrietta winning Dist. 12 and Groveton Dist. 21 in A.

Twenty of the 24 undefeated, untied teams left in the state will be in action with several likely to fall.

Abilene isn't due to be a casualty, however, as the mighty Eagles go after their 31st straight. Abilene plays Odessa in a conference test.

Nederland of AAA runs a risk in meeting defending champion Port Neches in the payoff game of the district. Port Neches isn't undefeated but it still looks very tough.

Stamford, defending AA state champion, seeks its 27th straight and its district title in a game with Seymour.

Undefeated, untied teams meet in Class A when Hondo hosts Pearsall in Dist. 28.

Only a half-dozen games were played in all classes Thursday night, none of them important in district races.

SMU To Make Title Bid Against Ags

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Editor

SMU, a team that wasn't supposed to get anywhere this season, will make its bid for the Southwest Conference football championship Saturday, flinging its gambling offense against Texas A&M.

This is the big game in a schedule that may see the field of championship contenders cut to three.

A&M, unbeaten and riding high with three straight conference triumphs over the teams that were supposed to be the toughest, will be heavily favored to blast SMU hopes. To do it, however, the Aggie pass defense, considered iron-bound thus far, will have to work overtime.

Before the season started, SMU, with its leanest veteran material in years, was relegated to the cellar. Coach Woody Woodard said it would do better than that. And SMU has. For the first time since 1948 the Mustangs go into November without a conference defeat.

The Aggie-SMU game in the Cotton Bowl is due to draw 65,000, lured by the promise of aerial fireworks as Charlie Arnold tries to bomb the Aggies.

While A&M and SMU are deciding first place in the league, Rice will be fighting to stay in the race. The Owls go to Ozark hills to battle Arkansas at homecoming. Rice has lost one and won one.

Baylor and Texas get together in a meeting of the eliminated at Waco. Both teams are out of contention and Texas hasn't won a game since late September.

TCU, still barely in the race, goes to Lubbock to meet downtrodden Texas Tech.

Last week was the first time to predict all games correctly this season. Ought to quit while ahead but:

A&M-SMU: The only people who think SMU might win are the SMU players; we always were good at going along with the majority. So it's A&M by a couple of touchdowns.

Rice-Arkansas: It'll be a tough afternoon for the young Owls but here's predicting they'll come through.

Texas-Baylor: It doesn't matter much but the forecast is for Texas' seventh defeat.

TCU-Texas Tech: Tech has shown great improvement the past two weeks but not enough to warrant a close game.

Rice Frosh Edges Ags

COLLEGE STATION (AP)—Larry Dueitt's toe was the difference last night as the Rice freshmen beat the Texas A&M freshmen 21-19.

Dueitt kicked three points after touchdown to furnish the margin of triumph.

Dueitt made the first Rice touchdown as the climax of a 64-yard drive. Rice scored again when Charlie Baldwin recovered a fumble on the Aggie 34.

Gordon LeBoeuf led the Aggies in getting two touchdowns but Rice came back for another, with Billy Simmons running 19 yards. As the last gun fired, A&M scored again with LeBoeuf going across.

Girls Storm Grid Players

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Freshman girls, angry at the Athletic Lettermen's Club, stormed into the University of Oregon Student Union Building last night and smeared members of the football squad with lipstick.

The 250 screaming girls were no match for the 40 gridders, whose dinner they interrupted. The players grabbed the lipsticks and smeared the girls.

Sally Shea of Garden Home, Ore., was knocked unconscious when she slipped and fell on the floor. She was hospitalized but her condition was not serious.

The girls later raided the Phi Delta Theta and Sigma Chi fraternity houses. They were driven off with hoses, paddles and cans of paint.

Ringleaders of the raid said it was retaliatory. The lettermen have been smearing lipstick on the faces of freshmen girls who fail to wear the traditional green ribbon in their hair for homecoming week.

Downfall Boosts Chandler Hopes

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Gov. A. B. (Happy) Chandler's aspirations for the presidency apparently have increased with the passing of the onetime Clements-Wetherby political powerhouse into Republican hands.

The combine's collapse was completed late yesterday when the GOP's Thurston B. Morton went ahead to stay in his neck-and-neck Senate race with Sen. Earle C. Clements.

Former Gov. Lawrence Wetherby had been handed a resounding defeat earlier by John Sherman Cooper for the four years remaining in the Senate term of the late Alben W. Barkley.

Commenting on the election results at a press conference, Chandler said he will seek the Democratic presidential nomination in 1960 if he can get party support.

He said he thought he deserved consideration because he assumed the Democrats will be looking for a presidential candidate who "can run and win. I'm a fair runner—maybe as good as some they have supported."

Asked to comment on Adlai Stevenson's decisive defeat and the Republican senatorial victory in Kentucky, Chandler said it was his pratice to go by the "scoreboard," indiating the results speak for themselves.

Chandler, who bid unsuccessfully for the Democratic presidential nomination in August, never actively supported Stevenson, and his differences with Clements and Wetherby were considered a factor in their defeat.

The election of Morton and Cooper means Kentucky will have two Republican senators serving simultaneously for only the second time in history. And with Clements and Wetherby out of power, it gives Chandler more say-so in state party organization.

With only 62 of 4,057 precincts missing, Morton's lead stood today at 497,089 to 492,494 for Clements.

In Kentucky's congressional race, the Democrats apparently salvaged their six seats, with five candidates elected and the other leading. The Republicans re-elected their incumbents in the state's other two districts.

WHY BE A MEMBER OF THE CHURCH OF CHRIST? (NO. 12)

BECAUSE SHE TEACHES, "TAKE HEED LEST YE FALL!" (1COR.10:12). If a child of God could not "fall from grace" why is there so much warning in the New Testament about it? Christians are urged to "give diligence to make your calling and election sure." (2Pet.1:5-11). The apostle Paul knew it was possible for him to "be a castaway" (1Cor.9:27). A Christian can quit believing, and depart from God (Heb.3:12). The child of God who leaves Christ to seek justification under the law of Moses is "fallen from grace." (Gal.5:4). A saved person can so sin as to make his condition worse than before he was saved (2Pet.2:20-22).

THE PARABLES WARN AGAINST FALLING. Look at the parable of the sower (Lk.8:4-15). The seed is the word of God (v.11); the sower is the teacher (1Cor.3:6); the soil is the heart of man (Lk.8:15). Both the stony-ground and the thorny-ground hearers did not produce fruit; their appointed lot is described in Matt.7:19. The parable of the vine and the branches emphasize faithfulness (John 15:2-6). Note: "If a man abide not in me, he is cast forth . . . and burned." The parable of the talents shows that a servant of God—a Christian, can be lost (Matt.25:14-30).

AT THE JUDGEMENT the Lord will "gather out of his kingdom all things that offend, and them which do iniquity; . . ." (Matt. 13:24-30, 36-43). Christ said He would spew out of His mouth the lukewarm folk (Rev.3:14-22). The Galatian Christians were admonished that their harvest depends upon their sowing—sow to the flesh reap corruption; sow to the Spirit and reap everlasting life (Gal.6:7-9).

THE DEVIL IS A FOOL if a saved person cannot be lost. He has been striving since the creation to get children of God to quit serving Him. The Holy Spirit said some would "depart from the faith" (1Tim.4:1-3). Believers can be in danger of death and may be converted from the error of their ways (Jas.5:19,20). A Christian may so sin against his brother as to cause him to perish (1Cor. 8:9-13). A Christian who tells lies and dies in that state is lost (Rev.21:18). Ananias and Sapphira did that very thing! (Acts 5:1-11). This is another reason why one should be a member of the church revealed in the New Testament. She teaches what the New Testament says about being faithful to Christ and to "take heed lest ye fall."

Plans Made On Reservoir At Hearing

By FRANK N. MANITZAS

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—Water Board Chairman R. M. Dixon said today boundaries of the Balcones Fault Edwards Limestone Reservoir will be determined next week.

A hearing yesterday determined 7 of 15 counties originally to be included in the reservoir were not part of it.

A U.S. Geological Survey expert, Ben Petitt, said two reservoirs are in the 15-county area but they are not connected by underground streams.

Making up the northern portion were parts of Real, Edwards, Bandera, Kerr, Kendall, Blanco and Gillespie counties.

Petitt said they contributed surface water runoff to the other eight counties in the southern, or Balcones Fault section. They are Kinney, Uvalde, Medina, Comal, Bexar, Hays, Guadalupe and Atascosa.

The hearing to determine the reservoir's boundaries was a step toward forming an underground water district. The South Texas Chamber of Commerce is a main supporter for the plan, which would have created the largest underground district in Texas.

The district, when organized, plans dams to provide recharge water for the Edwards Reservoir, depleted by drought.

The seven counties not included in the Balcones Reservoir cannot be included in the district if they desire to stay out. Under law, areas which are not geologically (by underground seepage) connected with others may ask and must be excluded from any such district.

To reecharge the reservoir, the district will have to ask for new laws. Present water laws will not allow the Water Board of issue permits for such purposes.

Although the hearing had been requested by all 15 counties, commissioners courts from Kerr, Bandera, Kendall and Gillespie requested their counties not be included within the reservoir's boundaries.

The Edwards Limestone Sands supply water for San Antonio, San Marcos, New Braunfels and other cities.

Error Costs Six Million

DETROIT (AP) — An architect's error has added more than six million dollars to the cost of Detroit's new convention hall-exhibits building, Mayor Albert Cobo said.

He said an estimate by an architectural firm last April put the cost at $42,548,000. But a recent estimate hiked the figure to $49,441,000.

Cobo said a $2,245,000 blunder resulted from underestimating the amount of steel needed by at least 2,000 tons. A reevaluation of labor costs added another $3,775,000. A rise in steel prices due to the steel strike sent the cost still higher.

Construction is already under way on the mammoth building. It is to be part of the ambitious civic center development on the Detroit river front.

Five Youths Die In Fire

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Five youngsters died in their blazing home last night after the flames drove their mother screaming into the yard.

The bodies of Timmy, 2, Jack, 4, Laura, 6, Merle, 7, and Steven Lair, 9, were found in the ruins.

All the children were asleep, the boys upstairs and Laura downstairs in a back bedroom.

Mrs. Jackie Lair, 26, apparently was dozing on a couch in the front of the house when the fire broke out. She told hysterically of trying to reach the back bedroom and the stairs to the second floor. Flames drove her back. She was not injured but was in shock and could not be questioned.

Police said the father, Ronald Lair, 27, was in Spokane city jail on a nonsupport charge.

Firemen were unable to determine the cause of the fire immediately but they said it broke out on the second floor, where a new heating stove had just been installed.

Arab Bands Strike In Israel Again

TEL AVIV (AP) — Arab commando bands from Jordan and Syria staged hit-and-run raids on Israel for the second successive night, Israeli army headquarters said today.

Military headquarters said six Israelis were wounded in as many attacks by commandos last night and early today.

The night before, Israel charged, bands from Jordan staged six raids at scattered places along a 30-mile stretch.

The increased fedayeen activity came after two weeks of comparative quiet on the Jordan and the Syrian borders. The fedayeen are Egyptian-trained commandos who stage sabotage and terror raids, usually in bands of three to eight men.

Winners Of Medal Of Honor Meeting

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP)—The cool-headed corporal pulled safety pins from mortar shells and used them for hand grenades. He also used a lot of other ammo in killing 40 Germans while protecting his comrades.

That chap, who then was 23, was Charles E. (Commando) Kelly. His bravery in covering his unit's withdrawal near Altavilla, Italy, in World War II won him the medal of honor. It was the highest award his nation could give him.

Kelly today joins scores of other holders of this coveted award at the first meeting of the Medal of Honor Society. The society meets here for five days.

Testimony Started In Parr Trial

HOUSTON (AP)—The government called two witnesses yesterday in its attempt to prove that Benavides School District tax funds, collected by use of the U.S. mails, were fraudulently paid out to George Parr and eight of his associates, their friends, relatives and supporters.

Testimony in the trial started yesterday following completion of a jury.

The indictment charges misuse of the tax funds from September, 1949, to February, 1954.

T. J. O'Connor, business manager of the Texas Education Agency in Austin, was the first witness called by U.S. Atty. Malcolm Wilkey.

O'Connor identified annual reports of payments of school funds. The reports were made by the Benavides School District to the TEA.

Defense Atty. Percy Foreman objected on the basis that no official authority requiring the filing of such reports each year had been shown by the government. O'Connor said that he knew of no specific authority, but said he could obtain the proper evidence. U.S. Dist. Judge Allen Hannay allowed the reports as evidence.

Ranger Joe Bridge of Falfurrias was the second and final witness of the day.

Bridge said that from Oct. 5 to Oct. 16 this year he searched Duval County for 268 persons named in a list given him by Dist. Atty. Sam Burris of Alice.

The list, which covered 16 pages, was identified as part of one of the annual School District reports of payments of building funds.

Bridge said, "No one on the list did I find living in Duval County."

Parr, Duval County political leader and sheriff-elect, was indicted along with eight others. The 20-count indictment alleges defendants used the mails in conspiracy to divert school funds to their own use.

Defendants include J. G. Garza, D. C. Chapa, O. P. Carrillo, Oscar Carrillo, O. Saenz, Santiago Garcia, Jesus Oliveira, B. F. Donald, the Texas State Bank of Alice and the San Diego State Bank.

Land Grant Suit Filed In Beaumont

PHILADELPHIA, Miss. (AP)—A 500 million dollar "old land grant" law suit was filed yesterday in Beaumont against several Texas oil companies.

Oil Stocks Watched In West Europe

LONDON (AP) — Western Europe kept a wary watch on its oil stocks today in preparation for possible sharp cuts in Middle East supplies if the Suez Canal stays blocked to world shipping.

Britain, France and Denmark announced measures to curtail private motoring and told industry to reduce consumption of diesel and fuel oil.

But other European nations said they had enough oil in store to get by for the next month or two without economy drives.

Some oil experts predicted Europe will have to start leaving heavily on reserves next week while awaiting the reopening of the canal and the arrival of tankers making the long and more costly voyage round the Cape of Good Hope from the Middle East fields.

In governmental actions, British motorists were urged to cut gasoline consumption by 2 gallons in 10. Prime Minister Eden's government told garages they would get 10 per cent less fuel from today. Industry also was told fuel oil supplies would be reduced by 10 per cent.

In France, motorists were told that beginning Saturday midnight all private cars will be restricted to the counties in which they are registered. Fuel oil will be allocated to major users on the basis of 70 to 80 per cent of last year's consumption.

Denmark took the strongest action. Its government ordered oil companies to reduce deliveries to consumers by 25 per cent. Fuel oil cuts also were ordered.

Actress Back After Visiting Presley

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Natalie Wood is back in town after a week's visit with Elvis Presley at the home of the singer's parents in Memphis, Tenn.

"Elvis is a very dear friend," said Miss Wood, who arrived by air. But the romance isn't serious, she added — not yet, anyway.

"I've known him for only a short time," she said, "two months, you know."

No More Stretchers?

... Oh, that this could be true! It could be if we feared God more and had greater love for mankind. Surely, this is the day when our swords must give way to ploughshares, and our spears must be refashioned into pruning-hooks. The terrible times at Lexington, Gettysburg, Normandy, Santiago Bay, Chateau Thierry, Okinawa and Korea should fortify our efforts for Peace. The spilled blood of American manhood must not go for naught ... we must let battles of the past be the last. A way to eliminate 'war-need for stretchers' must be found ... we must save our men and through honorable means abolish war. This is in Memorium of all our soldiers who paid the last full measure in our terrible wars. A-men.
