Conscription Demanded By Roosevelt

British Told How To Nab Nazi Fliers

MAKING fun of Britain's home defense measures, for women, the German propaganda bureau recently put out these cartoons, illustrating "how to capture Nazi airmen, in four easy lessons.

"If there are more than six, she lures them with her feminine charm (and a string of sausages) to the police station."

If the first does not work, she should sneak up on each one of them under cover and tie a long threat on his leg."

"Or she places cooking utensils around him and tells him they are mines. He will not dare to move any further.

"If nothing else works, she sprinkles a little salt on his tail, and he can then easily be captured.

DOCTOR SHOT

MUNCIE, Ind., Aug. 23. (AP) — Coroner Earl Parson reported Mrs. Alice Jo Clark, 27, shot and wounded Dr. Forst E. Kirshman, 40, dangerously and then killed herself in her apartment here today. She was dissatisfied over treatment the physician gave her for a chest ailment, the coroner said.

KFYO
ELECTION RETURNS

For first returns from the second Democratic primary election being held today, dial your radio to station KFYO at 8 o'clock tonight. The Avalanche-Journal will not announce the returns from its offices and no returns will be posted there. However, all returns will be sent to the station and broadcast as soon as they are received. There will be no election party staged by the Avalanche-Journal as there was the night of the first Democratic primary.

British Bombers Strike At Nazis' "Big Berthas"

Many Civilians Evacuate Dover, 'Hell's Corner'

German Stations Quiet, Indicating Raids Underway

(By The Associated Press)

BRITISH bombers pounded heavily last night and early today at German long-range guns which stud the French Coast from Calais to Boulogne and which are causing civilians to flee from Dover—already dubbed "Hell's Corner" because of the frequency of its air battles.

Along with the flashing sight and booming sound of air war on the French coast, all German radio stations ceased operation last night, usually an indication that British raiders are penetrating Germany.

Bombs On Britain

At the same time, low-diving German planes dropped bombs on many points in Britain, particularly in the southeast and southwest areas.

British attacks on the German vantage points apparently were a continuation of earlier blows which the air ministry announced were begun last night when the Nazis loosed their big guns against Dover.

In London, the air ministry announced RAF planes braved fierce anti-aircraft fire for several hours to blast the newly-disclosed German blockade weapon.

The air force also stormed 22 airdromes in German-occupied territory the air ministry reported.

In Australian Water

Word that a German raider was operating far from home shores came when the 8,706-ton British steamer Turakina sent a radio report from the Tasman sea, off Australia, that she was being fired on. Prime Minister Peter Fraser said the attack occurred Tuesday night.

No later word has been received from the vessel, due at a New Zealand port Thursday night.

Except for a bombing assault on three London suburbs, inflicting considerable property damage but few casualties, German air raids over England were limited to small-scale, scattered attacks for the fifth straight day. Two empty movie theaters, a bank, stores, apartment houses and other buildings were smashed by bomb-hits.

British military experts scoffed at

Degrees Presented To Tech Students

A FERVID plea for universal service to protect by force, if necessary, liberty and concepts of Americans was made Friday night at Texas Technological college by Charles C. Thompson, treasurer of the college board of directors, at summer graduation exercises.

"Christianity and democracy survive or fall together," the principal speaker said. Urging that Americans "act not individually, but as a vast sweeping unit," Thompson cited necessity that a land dedicated to peace "act now to display to ruthless apostles of force what force really is—in order to discourage the heel of totalitarians in further threatened assaults."

Revival Called For

"Let's have a revival of all that Old Glory stands for—a flag that never was aggressor anywhere—a flag that never has dipped in defeat," he said.

The speaker grimly began his address by pointing to danger of the times, as reflected by warring nations and threats flying constantly in the teeth of neutral nations. He called forth the sacrificial tendency of Americans, "a quality that made this nation," as the hope of the present. And he asked that this country be made the most unhealthful of all for traitors and seditionists.

"Treat our problems like our forefathers did," he advocated. "Do so by self-examination and close determination whether all are making the contributions necessary to true Americanism.

Wilson Is Praised

"Do not be misled. Do not abate the gravity with untenable fiction. Take off your rose colored glasses."

He praised Woodrow Wilson as a man who "thought in terms of peace 100 years beyond his time" and cited Biblical scripture, "We cannot live unto ourselves," to prove that alliance with others who strive for the common good of nations is another form of salvation for the nation.

Thompson suggested that the United States is strong and rich enough to continue free. He even advocated brief departure from strict democratic principles to insure democracy, if need be.

Danger apparent in possibility of British defeat presents a problem for every young man—and every other person in this country—the speaker pointed out. He rapped isolationists as lacking vision.

At the same time, whatever means

QUIZZED — Sylvia Ageloff, above, Brooklyn, N. Y., friend of Frank Jackson who confessed the fatal attack upon Leon Trotsky, was held by Mexican police who permitted Arthur P. Trotsky Lawyer Asks Funeral At New York

(By The Associated Press)

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 23.—Leon Trotsky's attorney asked tonight for United States permission to take the old Bolshevist's body to New York for memorial services.

The attorney, Albert Goldman, filed his request with the United States consulate, which said it would be given "due consideration." There were indications that American authorities had expressed no enthusiasm over the plan. Goldman, however, said Mrs. Trotsky had "relinquished all rights to the body to me."

Police said that Frank Jackson, Trotsky's confessed assassin, had told them he had bought a pistol last Tuesday, the day he attacked Trotsky with a pickax, in order to kill himself after the assault. The arrival of guards, he said, prevented this.

The police continued to hold Jackson's friend, Sylvia Ageloff. She was hysterical, screaming:

FDR Expected To Call Guard For Duty Soon

Measure Is Sent To White House For Signature

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.— President Roosevelt received congressional authority today to mobilize the national guard, and in military circles it was anticipated that he would soon order active duty for about 60,000 officers and men.

Senate approval of a compromise bill, already passed by the House, sent the guard legislation to the White House. No dissent was heard in the voice vote.

The measure permits Mr. Roosevelt to order 12 months active service for approximately 396,000 guardsmen, reserve officers and enlisted reserves.

Would Get Training

However, at the time the measure was before congressional committees, army officials testified that immediate plans called for induction into active service of only 55,426 enlisted men, 53 warrant officers and 3,830 officers of the national guard.

These men would receive intensive training and be available to replace on continental duty any regular army troops dispatched to Latin-America, or elsewhere, because of an emergency.

While an early call to this group was expected, it was believed that the date for them to report would not be earlier than the middle of September.

In Field Training

The national guard is now undergoing field training, to be completed August 31. Army officials indicated that at least two weeks would be allowed between the end of these maneuvers and the start of active duty so that the men could attend to personal affairs.

Most, if not all, of the remaining national guardsmen are expected to be called to active duty if Congress enacts selective service legislation.

The war department announced today that it was initiating a program to provide housing and recruiting shelters for 317,309 men at 34 army posts scattered throughout

Big Vote Expected In Election Today

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Aug. 23.—Texas Democrats write another chapter of 1940's political yearbook in tomorrow's run-off primary election.

Filling gaps in the party ticket, they select a nominee for the state railroad commission, one for chief justice of the supreme court, two for Congress, nine for state senator and 69 for state representatives.

Runoff contests were required for these, and scores of local offices, because no one candidate for any of the positions received a majority vote in the record smashing July 27 primary.

Smaller Than First

The first primary vote of 1,193,026 was not endangered but observers anticipated a healthy turnout at the polls with a possible 800,000 total vote.

Most candidates had their final say today but some planned sunrise radio broadcasts before the polls open at 7 a. m.

Much interest centered in the railroad commission race in which candidates Pierce Brooks of Dallas and Olin Culberson of Edna and Hillsboro criss-crossed the state in a hot campaign for the seat of Chairman Lon A. Smith who retires in January.

Judges Run Hard

H. S. Lattimore of Fort Worth and James P. Alexander of Waco, candidates for the chief justiceship of the state's top tribunal, battled on to the eleventh hour to win nomination to the chair which Chief Justice W. F. Moore will vacate.

The congressional races involved Eugene Worley of Shamrock and H. Deskins Wells of Wellington, seeking nomination from the 18th district, and Incumbent Clyde L. Garrett of Eastland and Sam Russell of Stephenville in the 17th. Garrett is the only member of the Texas congressional delegation fighting for his seat. Worley and Wells seek to succeed Representative Marvin Jones of Amarillo who was appointed to the U. S. claims court by President Roosevelt.

Races For County Judge, Treasurer To Highlight Lubbock's Second Primary

RUNOFF candidates blitzkrieged radio listeners Friday with 11th hour broadcasts meant to further their chances of election in today's second primary.

The stage was set for a record vote and for quick return of results for tonight.

L. C. Ellis, county Democratic executive committee chairman, said he expected results to be canvassed by 9 o'clock, two hours after the polls close.

Six Races At Most

Ellis, as usual, will have his office on the ground floor of the Avalanche-Journal publications building and election judges may find ready access to him there.

Lubbock voters will have, at most, six races in which to cast ballots.

Grabbing the spotlight in the county were two races involving a county-wide vote. That of county judge, with Robert J. Allen, county attorney, and G. V. Pardue, Lubbock attorney, and that of treasurer, with Winnie Roberts Coleman and Clara L. Castle, are of county-wide interest.

Three Precinct Races

Only one of four commissioners was chosen in the first primary. Barrett Penney, incumbent in precinct 1, has opposition in G. K. Horton, and Newton Stokes faces V. J. Farris, incumbent in precinct 4. W. J. Grimes and Edgar E. Gray are seeking the post vacated by T. L. Holt.

T. E. May and J. W. Robinson will toe the mark in the Lubbock constable's race. A. A. Gartman and Ottis Browning are in the runoff for public weigher at Slaton.

The state race probably will draw only a percentage of the fire coming from the July primary when W. Lee

Quick Passage Is Sought By Nation's Chief

Appeal Has Little Effect On Senate; Delay Is Feared

By RICHARD L. TURNER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—President Roosevelt demanded quick passage of conscription legislation today—lest, he said, the national defense program be seriously delayed—but his appeal had no discernible effect upon the Senate's ardent band of anti-draft members.

To the latter, in fact, Mr. Roosevelt's statement constituted a challenge, promptly accepted. They rushed to defend their tactic of exhaustive debate. They asserted that no filibuster was in progress but that such a "revolutionary" proposal demanded thorough examination. One of them, Senator Wiley (R-Wis), said that three more weeks' discussion would hardly be too much.

Would Mean Delay

But, as the president saw the problem and outlined it to a press conference, postponement of conscription would mean nearly a year of delay in building up an adequate army. Volunteering has been at a high rate, he added, but is still insufficient. Conscription had been under discussion in Congress since June 20, he said, and the legislators were still talking about it with no action in either house.

Before resuming discussion of the measure, today, the Senate took final congressional action on companion legislation authorizing the president to call out the national guard and army reserves for compulsory service anywhere in the western hemisphere, American possession elsewhere or the Philippine islands. The measure was sent to the White House for the president's signature.

Speech Raps It

Then Senator Wiley (R-Wis) delivered a speech highly critical of the civilian draft bill, and Senator Nye (R-ND) denounced the measure as an "insult to our American boys," a "serious departure from the American way," and a proposal that might "help crack our democracy." The bill was proposed, he said, in "response to a hysteria that can definitely lead to dictatorship."

Mr. Roosevelt delivered his appeal

Four Injured In Auto Collision

A two-car accident on the south outskirts of Lubbock about 7:45 o'clock Friday night left three persons in St. Mary's hospital with injuries.

A fourth was treated in Lubbock sanitarium and sent home.

W. L. Marshall, about 70, suffered a fractured vertabra and his condition at midnight was considered serious but not critical. He also had lacerations and bruises.

Miss Patsy Levy, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Levy of Lubbock route 5, also was in serious condition from a concussion and numerous cuts and bruises.

Deep Laceration

H. G. Burchett, jr., 19 who resides with his parents at 1216 Avenue A suffered a deep laceration on the jaw and other minor lacerations and bruises. The three were admitted to the hospital.

Minor lacerations were treated for the wife of the aged man at Lubbock sanitarium.

The accident happened at Thirty-fourth street and Avenue S, only a stone's throw from the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall. The aged couple had started toward Lubbock north on Avenue S.

The Burchett youth was driving his light sedan east on Thirty-fourth when it was in collision with the Marshall machine almost at the point where the husband was sitting at the wheel, an investigating of-

J. R. Kennedy, in charge in Dallas, said the offices included: Central and North Texas cotton, Dallas; extreme North East Texas, Texarkana and Shreveport; Southeast Texas, Houston; South Central Texas, Austin; West Central Texas, Abilene; High Plains, Lubbock; Northwest Texas and Southwestern Oklahoma, Altus, Okla.

Bandits Hold Up New York Train

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Aug. 23. — A half dozen bandits, performing in the best Wild West tradition, held up a New York central mail car in uptown Manhattan early today and made a clean get-away.

Executing the robbery at the 225th street Marble Hill station with clock-like precision, the gun-flourishing bad men made only one error—they robbed the right train, but on the wrong day, and got nothing but a sack of "valueless" letters, police authorities said.

Agents Working

Tonight FBI agents, postal inspectors and city police were working on the case. They had one of the bandit's pistols, general descriptions of the men, and a report that they fled in a sedan with New Jersey license plates.

At irregular intervals, shipments of $100,000 are moved by New York Central trains from Grand Central terminal to Banks in Yonkers for factory payrolls in that suburban

Injunction Dissolved In Election Case

CORPUS CHRISTI, Aug. 23. (AP)—An injunction obtained Thursday by W. E. Pope, state representative from Corpus Christi, restraining George Parr and others in Duval county from alleged illegal acts in the conduct of elections, was dissolved this afternoon by Judge R. D. Wright, presiding judge of the 110th district court of Webb county, sitting in San Diego.

Citing an "unreasonable delay" in filing the case in Duval county, as required by the injunction order issued by Judge Yarbrough in Austin Thursday, Judge Wright ordered the injunction dissolved and vacated.

Pope, opposed by John E. Lyle in the run-off election for representative of the 71st district, Saturday, was granted an injunction against Parr, Dan Garcia, sheriff, and J. O. Trevino, county clerk, and "all election officials" of Duval county. The injunction restrained the officers named from committing various alleged illegal acts in election procedure.

Production Figure For Louisiana Set

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 23. (AP)—A daily oil production of 274,854 barrels for Louisiana during September was set today by the monthly allowable order issued by B. A. Hardey, state conservation commissioner. The daily production was raised 234 barrels daily over the August proration.

South Louisiana fields were allowed 215,433 barrels daily compared with 214,763 barrels in August, or an increase of 670 barrels.

North Louisiana was apportioned 59,421 barrels daily against 59,857 in August, a decrease of 536 barrels.

Former Resident Of Lubbock Dies Friday

Mrs. H. E. Gray, 28, formerly the Miss T. O. Collins of Lubbock, died Friday morning at her home in Magdalena, N. M., after a brief illness.

The body will be brought here today or Sunday for funeral services and burial, but arrangements had not been completed late Friday night, according to Sanders Funeral home.

Surviving are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Collins, 1719 Thirty-fourth street, four sisters, Miss Lucille Collins and Geneva Dean and Faye Dean of the home, and Mrs. Faye Blair of Plainview; and a brother, Quinton, of the home.

Mrs. Ida McDaniel Dies After Illness

Mrs. Ida McDaniel, 52, died at 3:15 o'clock Friday afternoon at her 1718 Avenue D residence after a year's illness.

She had been a resident of Lubbock 13 years.

Last rites will be read at 3 o'clock this afternoon at Sanders chapel. Burial will be in Lubbock cemetery.

A son, Buford McDaniel, a stepson, William McDaniel, and a niece, Mrs. Douglas McCrummen, all of Lubbock, survive.

Harry Hopkins Will Resign As Secretary Of Commerce

By BRIAN BELL
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—It was learned tonight that Harry L. Hopkins will tender his resignation soon as secretary of commerce. President Roosevelt is expected to accept it reluctantly.

The president and Hopkins, friends for some 16 years, have been co-workers in New York and Washington for the last decade. The widower secretary of commerce makes his home at the White House, and Mrs. Roosevelt has been a second mother to his eight-year-old daughter, Diane.

It has been known that Hopkins has felt for some time that his health prevented the application to his position that it deserved. He was sick for many months last year and although

Japan's Ambassador Advises Of Recall

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 —Kensuke Horinouchi, Japanese ambassador, advised the state department today of his recall to Tokyo in a sweeping diplomatic shakeup which projected new uncertainties into Japanese-American relations.

Officials said the recall of Horinouchi, along with many other Japanese diplomats in this and other countries, did not necessarily foreshadow a turn for the worse in relations between the United States and Japan but they saw little prospect of an early improvement as a result of the new policy of Tokyo.

Horinouchi visited Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state, today. Afterward, he told reporters he had no information yet as to his successor. Yoshisuke Aikawa, industrialist frequently called the "Henry Ford of Japan," was mentioned in Tokyo dispatches as a possible appointee to the post.

Bomber Crash Is Investigated

(By The Associated Press)

DENVER, Aug. 23—United States army officers picked through scattered bits of a wrecked bombing plane late today in an attempt to learn why it crashed during a thunderstorm, killing two officers and seven enlisted men.

Second Lieut. Wilbur A. Champagne, 24, drove the B-18A Douglas midum bomber straight into a cloud bank last night rather than chance running into another plane accompanying him on a routine bombing mission from Lowry field, the air corps' technical school here.

Tank Explodes

The twin-motored bomber's gasoline tank, containing about 300 gallons, exploded as the plane struck the ground near the bombing range 23 miles southeast of Denver. Bits of the plane and bodies were blown more than 300 yards.

While other planes continued with regular bombing practice on the nearby range, members of the investigating board — Major Leo H. Dawson, Major Arnold Rich and

Two Children Drown In "Mysterious" Way

DAYTON, O., Aug. 23 (AP) — A two-week-old baby and her 7-year-old brother drowned in the bathtub of their home here tonight under circumstances described by Detective E. B. McFadden as "mysterious" and giving "some indication of murder."

The victims were Lela Mae and Walter Weyrauch, jr.

Mrs. Lucille Weyrauch, 30, mother of the children, was found wandering in a park "in a dazed condition" a short time after the bodies were found, McFadden said. She was taken to a hospital under guard.

The children were discovered in the bathtub by their father when he returned home from work in a Dayton drug store.

Detective Capt. O. L. Kincaid said a note found in the house indicated that Mrs. Weyrauch intended to drown herself in the park. He asserted she would be given a mental examination.

A LOVELY GIFT

THROUGHOUT Friday the several dozen persons who work at the office have been admiring and smelling the large bouquet of multi-colored roses sent by Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Simon of 1701 Thirty-second street. Their fragrance blots out the smell of paste and ink and newspapers that floats over our desk and their beauty is indescribable.

Many Lubbockites, especially like the Simons who are living in a new part of the city, have had exceptional luck with their flowers this year. And the nicest part about being a successful gardener is to have generosity as one of your traits, sharing your flowers with someone who is without green fingers.

IN THE MAIL

FROM Anonymous Reader we are sent this poem, "Summer Marches On!" with the note, "this poem has been classified by critics as an 'etching' and just about sums up the picture for this time of year. If you can use it I shall be very happy."

All right "Anonymous," it gives us pleasure to make you "very happy" in publishing this ode to fading summer.

There's something different in the air,
I feel it here, and sense it there,
Summer is dying—there's not a doubt,
The crickets chirping round about.
As twilight gathers down the lane,
I hear the locust call again,
He's in the trees—now, on the plain,
Across the meadow in the rain.

Summer's last song upon the lyre.
Then intriguing autumn—sometimes drear.
A touch of sadness now we feel,
Then anticipation takes the real.
And grinds out pictures so divine,
Fall gardens, the green turnip patch,
Orchards of apples red, vineyards of purple grapes,
That have no match for ruby red wine,
And tarty sweet cider.
While over our humble cellar door hangings
Of tapestry and laces rare, toils the artistic spider.

After late summer's drouth and heat,
The rose in the garden tries to compete,
With her hot house sister, waxen and rare.
In fact all the flowers—There's not one to spare,
For the flower show and the county fair.
The wind is changing! Its gone to the north.
There's a sense of well being around the hearth,
And the cricket s—ings of joy and mirth,
All through the lonely night.
The leaves and tumble weeds hear the call,
A flock of wild geese, drifting by,
In perfect formation, how fast they fly.

Summer is dying, but that's not all,
Beautiful Indian summer has come to call.
Earth's spacious ceiling is still, blue, hazey,
The smoke mounts upward, straight to the sky,
A whippoor-will glides smoothly by.
Our thoughts are dreamy, we are lazy,
The smell of burning twigs and leaves,
The gardener is busy pruning, cutting,
We are off on a hike—it's a Gypsy life.
A day in the woods and nutting!

A baying dog—a moonlit night,
A killing frost—the roof all white.
The forest changed to russet and gold,
The dirge of death for the summer old.
Chestnut burrs of golden brown,
Acorns for all the pigs around.
Shocks of orderly maize and corn in field,
Turkeys feasting on the yield.
Yellow pumpkins still on the vine,
Persimmons, purple, soft and fine.

The lawns and benches look cold and biting,
And even porches aren't inviting.
So we turn to the fireside, warm and bright,
To books and folks and friendly light.
The friendly faces all aglow,
All are happy, not forlorn,
As we eat red apples and pop the corn,
And watch the snow drift softly down,
On tree and bench and sleepy town.

Begin This Career In New York City

By AMY PORTER
Associated Press Fashion Writer

If you are a girl in search of a career, very likely you're considering fashion designing.

You've read a lot about the bright future opening up for American designers, now that Paris is in eclipse. The names of successful designers are in the news. They're the current glamour girls of the business world. You hear that stores and manufacturers intend to encourage young talent. (They must mean you.)

The fashion stage is all set for your entrance.

But what is your cue? Where do you begin? Shall you go to a training school, or get an apprentice job? Shall you stay at home or go to New York?

Top designers disagree on the answer to the first question, but to the second they all reply: "Go to New York."

Of course it won't hurt if you know a thing or two before you tackle New York. Anything you can learn about sewing, or art, or bookkeeping—yes, bookkeeping—will be all to the good. And somewhere along the line you need store experience, most designers say.

In New York you can attend any one of several design schools or one of the free garment trades training schools, or you can get a job in a factory.

Favor Factory Experience

Out of 12 top-ranking designers interviewed, nine voted for factory apprenticeship. Their own success is based on the knowledge of fabrics, of cutting and fitting, that they gained in factory workrooms.

The other three, very successful, too, can't sew, nor cut, nor fit. One said, "An architect doesn't have to know how to lay bricks, so why should a designer have to know how to sew?"

Jane Derby is a believer in workroom experience. She advises, "Get a factory job. Clip threads or run a fagoting machine. Never mind if you earn only $10 or $15 a week at first. You're learning the very fundamentals of the clothes industry."

Phillip Mangone, coat and suit designer, agrees. He was an apprentice in his father's New York tailor shop when he was 11 years old. His father tied a too-big thimble on his finger, and said, "Now, sew."

Clothed His Family

At 13, Phillip was making coats and suits for his mother, six brothers, and two sisters. Then he worked as a fitter in a store, until he decided to be a designer.

"I just wrote a letter and said, 'I have never done designing, please let me try.'" he said.

That was in 1905, when there was no such thing as a full-length coat for a woman. Suits, yes, and capes, shawls and jackets, but no coats. Mangone designed coats and they sold.

His experience points another moral for young designers. He thought of something new—full-length coats—and the success of this idea started him on his way.

The Idea's The Thing

Nearly every designer gains first recognition by sponsoring a new idea.

Dorothy Cox had her first success with tailored dinner suits. Helen Cookman was first to take tweed from the country into town. She launched Lady Chesterfield town coats in tweeds and with huge success.

After you've been through the mill, studying and working, you'll be ready for your first designing job—at from $25 to $50 a week. If your product is good, the sky's the limit.

BEGINNER'S DRESS—Designer Germaine Monteil, who created this dress, considers a knowledge of sewing indispensable to a designer. Here she interprets fall's "trumpet silhouette" in gray wool.

Miss Harrell Honored At Party And Shower

Mrs. J. B. Mallett and daughters, Mrs. Jack Grimes and Miss Mildred Mallett, entertained Wednesday afternoon at the Mallett home in Monroe to honor Miss Fleda Harrell, bride-elect of John E. Blackwell.

Garden flowers decked the rooms. A miscellaneous gift shower was presented to the honoree.

Punch, cakes and wafers were served by Mrs. J. O. Jones, jr., and Miss Elsie Jones, assisted by Miss Cleva Covey, Miss Mallett and Mrs. Grimes.

Guests were Mesdames D. D. Webster, Z. B. Lee, T. J. Wages, L. E. Settle, George Hunter, Frank, Cobb, Abbott, H. Pate, Lemon, Clements, M. Haddock, Guy Young, Frank Baker, J. B. Johnston, John Harrell, Misses Bob Lemon and Janet Jones. Several guests sent gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. E. I. Hill of Tahoka were here Friday on business. They also visited relatives.

Bride-Elect Given Courtesy Friday

SLATON, Aug. 23. (Special) — Miss Betty Pack who is to be married Sunday morning to Neal Hallmark of Oklahoma City, was honored this afternoon with a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. L. C. Odom at 420 West Lubbock street in this city from 4:30 to 6 o'clock. A color scheme of lavender and green was used.

Punch and cake were served in the dining room from a table covered with a cutwork cloth and centered with lavender flowers in a crystal bowl. The centerpiece was surrounded by a miniature bridal party and was on a reflector.

Mrs. Odom greeted guests and presented them to a receiving line of the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. C. L. Pack, Mrs. N. C. Snyder, the honoree's grandmother, Miss Maxine Odom, Miss Virginia Sanders of Wichita Falls and Mrs. L. J. Solis of Lubbock.

During the afternoon Mrs. Raymond Johnson played several piano selections. Miss Joan Drewry presided at the bride's book.

Others serving in the house party were Mesdames A. L. Brannon, J. K. Rogers, Edwin Haddock, E. M. Lott, H. G. Sanders, J. H. Teague, jr., Ben Mansker and Ray Darwin of Lubbock.

Local Women Return From State Meeting

Mrs. George Berry, Mrs. Roy Watson and Mrs. W. L. Daniel have returned from Laredo where they attended a state convention of the American Legion auxiliary. Mrs. Berry as president presided at the sessions. Mrs. Watson is retiring membership chairman and Mrs. Daniel is incoming president of the Lubbock auxiliary.

Former Resident Of Lubbock Visits Here

Jim Robinson, who is serving his fourth term as Wichita county tax assessor-collector, visited Lubbock, his former home, briefly this morning. He was accompanied by Mrs. Robinson.

Robinson came here in 1900. His father, James R. Robinson, was an attorney and Jim and two brothers, John F. and Louis A. Robinson, had a real estate office where Stephens Dry Goods store now is.

Jim Robinson, who because of the similarity of his name and that of "Big Jim" Robinson, was known hereabouts as "Igo," the better to distinguish between the men. The name came from his having lived out a claim to Igo camp, which had 1,120 acres spread near Buffalo Springs.

Mrs. L. S. Mast and Mrs. Hattie O'Hair are Robinson's sisters. Former Judge Clark M. Mullican is a brother-in-law.

The Wichitan obtained a majority over three opponents in his recent race, carrying all but one of the 40 Wichita county boxes, losing the single box by 12 votes.

Coffees And Coffeys Will Hold Reunion

The fourth annual reunion of Coffee and Coffey families of West Texas will be conducted Sunday in Ellwood park in Amarillo.

Planning to attend from Lubbock are Mrs. R. T. Coffee of 1220 Avenue O, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Peterman of the Brownfield highway, and Roy Coffee and Miss Eileen Coble, both of 1902-A Fifteenth street. Visitors are expected to attend from California, Arizona, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas.

The reunion was started in August, 1937, by W. Coffee, sr., of Amarillo and the first meeting held that month in Lefors. Original attendance was 75.

Drive Opens Against Smuggling Of Aliens

TAMPA, Fla., Aug. 23. (AP)—Uncle Sam moved today to combat alien-smuggling by throwing a stronger defense line around the Florida coastline and along the Gulf coast to the Mississippi river.

Frank Hornyak, chief of the Southeastern Immigration patrol, disclosed that key points would be strengthened by an enlarged force.

A 500-watt short wave radio station will be built here to maintain two-way contact with patrols in the southeastern district.

"We have every reason to believe alien smugglers will make a drive against us," Hornyak said, "but we're putting them on notice now that we're ready for them."

BIG BERTHAS SLING SHELL 20 MILES AT BRITISH CONVOY—Shells, from long-range German artillery emplaced along French coast, are shown hitting the water missing one ship of an 18-vessel British convoy in the English channel off Dover, according to the British censor.

FDR Signs New SEC Measure

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23. (AP) — President Roosevelt signed into law today legislation giving the securities commission authority to regulate investment trust companies and termed it "another milestone" in the administration's "vigorous program" to protect investors.

In a formal statement, Mr. Roosevelt used a good example of "the true meaning of this program" the 1935 utility holding company act which he said was designed to curb "these corporate monstrosities."

No Need For Review

"During the 1920's," he said, these holding companies "had been permitted to pyramid stock holdings on top of stock holdings until a few men at the top, with only a microscopic investment of their own, could control the smallest action of those who ran the far flung operating companies at the base of the pyramid."

"Those at the top juggled corporations for selfish purposes," he said. "This situation was contrary to the American way of life and, had the holding companies not been checked, they would have threatened the very existence of our democratic processes."

As for the investment trust law, Mr. Roosevelt said it was not necessary to review "the many unhealthy practices" it was designed to eliminate, but it was sufficient to note the investment trusts themselves urged federal supervision.

Date For Wage-Hour Hearing Announced

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23. (AP)—Col. Philip B. Fleming, wage-hour administrator, announced today a hearing Sept. 23 on the railroad carrier industry committee recommendations for minimum wages which would increase the pay of more than 60,000 workers by about $7,180,000 a year.

A majority of the committee recommended that the hourly pay minima be 36 cents for truck line railroads (those with operating income of $1,000,000 or more a year) and 33 cents for short lines.

The truck lines estimated that the proposal would cost an additional $6,903,609 annually, the short lines, $280,000.

Attack On British Ship Is Reported

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Aug. 23 (AP) The 8,706-ton British steamer Turakina sent a radio from the Tasman sea Tuesday night saying she was being fired on by a raider, Prime Minister Peter Fraser of New Zealand announced today.

This was the first report of an attack on a British ship in Australian waters.

The message gave the ship's position but no later advice has been received from the vessel.

Brief Bits Of Local News

An all-day reunion of former residents of Mangum, Okla., will be conducted Sunday at Mackenzie state park, said Mrs. J. A. Peel of 2203 Twenty-second street.

Denzil V. Probasco has resigned as instructor in textile engineering at Texas Technological college and has accepted a position with Burnham and Brenham Cotton mills at Bonham, effective Sept. 1. Appointment of a successor is pending.

Kirby L. Scudder, Slaton postmaster, was in Lubbock Friday afternoon to contact postal inspectors on registration of aliens. He was unable to be here in the morning, he said, on account of a shortage of help in the office. Scudder said he did not believe there would be many Slaton residents to register.

Ralph Trolinger, traveling passenger agent of the Santa Fe, is due to return early this morning with a train of Colorado national guardsmen from Cravens, La., where they were in army maneuvers. He went to Cravens to escort the troops here and will turn them over to D. F. Hyde of Denver, another passenger agent. The train is scheduled to arrive at 4 o'clock.

Littlefield expects to occupy its new postoffice building about the first of Janaury next, W. D. T. Storey, postmaster, said while here Friday. There have been a few delays due to non-arrival of material on time. Storey added that general conditions in Littlefield were good. He was accompanied here by William Street and Arbie Joplin, postal workers.

Lyn county has had good rains this month but still needs more to put the county's crops into first class condition, Tom Garrard, attorney and rancher of Tahoka, said Friday. Ranges have also improved.

Special music is planned for the regular fourth Sunday singing convention Sunday at the Foursquare church, Eighth street and Avenue Q, those in charge announced Friday. Faculty of the Vaughn normal in progress at the Asbury Methodist church will lead singing. The convention will be conducted from 2 to 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

The Yoakum county singing convention will open at 10 o'clock Sunday morning at the Plains High school in Plains, E. R. Smith has announced. Dinner will be served at noon.

Dick Owens, 26, had not provided $2,500 bond Friday night on a robbery by assault charge, filed in justice court of J. T. Inmon. J. L. Wilson, electrical shop worker, charged Owen hijacked him of $12.

Recovering satisfactorily an appendectomy performed Tuesday in Lubbock sanitarium is W. E. Kenney, Fort Stockton oil operator. He is a grandson of the late W. L. Ellwood.

Firemen answered two alarms Friday night about the same time and those answering the calls converged on the same fire—at 1305 Avenue D. Different addresses had been given at Central fire station by two callers. The roof of the residence was destroyed but firemen extinguished the blaze before it did further damage. All the furniture had been moved out of the house.

Miss Virginia Adair of 2407 Twenty-second street is expected to be dismissed today from Lubbock sanitarium where she underwent a tonsillectomy Friday. She is a teacher in Seminole public schools.

Boy Scout Plans For Four Are Discussed

Twelve Lubbock men attended a Boy Scout roundtable Friday night in Hilton hotel to discuss plans for the fall program.

The scout exhibit at the Panhandle-South Plains fair and a councilwide camporal Sept. 4-5 were principal topics.

Attending were Gray Lancaster, R. C. Douglas, Leonard, Earnest, W. B. Kelly, F. P. Smith, Ernest Robertson, Bill White, Dr. C. C. Schmidt, Royal Furgeson, H. F. Gilley, George Langford and Jack O. Stone.

Unionization For Workers Asked

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23. (AP) — David Fowler, regional director of CIO in Oklahoma, asked the state's congressmen in letters to contact "proper authorities" and see that workers on the Denison Dam project be given "an equal opportunity to select a union of their own choosing."

Fowler said he had been told that only Texans are being employed on the project on Red River between Oklahoma and Texas.

Contract Signed

He added it "appears to me a contract had been signed by contractors with various branches of the A. F. of L. before an employe was even employed, thereby closing the doors against any employe having his choice of organization at the project."

Several Oklahomans, he said, told him union representatives "are permitted by the contractor to charge an initiation fee before giving employment, and this fee is collected and held in escrow until such time as the employes may be called upon to go to work."

"As regional director of the CIO in Oklahoma," he said in his letter, "I feel that this matter should be taken up by the proper authorities in Washington, and the workers be given an equal opportunity to select a union of their own choosing.

Number Lacking

"The A. F. of L. may be able to point out that there is not sufficient number of skilled workers, but this argument does not stand against the employment of unskilled workers."

He said he understood there were other contracts to be let by the government on the project and he asked the delegation's support in "doing what you can in seeing the Oklahomans have a fair chance of employment."

Representative Johnson (D-Okla) said he or Representative Cartwright (D-Okla) would ask the war department for information.

Underground Construction Of Oil Storage Tanks As Defense Move Advocated

Petroleum Is "Weak Spot"

By SCHUYLER ALLMAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 23. — Underground construction of oil storage tanks was urged as a defense measure today at a meeting of the Interstate Compact commission called to study the petroleum industry's part in re-arming America.

In a message read to the compact, Robert E. Wilson, petroleum technologist of the National Defense Advisory committee, also suggested "better fire protection for tank farms and various protective measures for important pipelines and refineries."

"The building by the industry of crude and gasoline pipe lines where they will decrease shipping requirements especially along the Atlantic coast would seem to be desirable from a defense viewpoint," he continued.

No "Bottleneck"

"Serious consideration should also be given to burying any new construction of storage tanks at important ocean terminals."

Wilson said there appeared to be no "serious "bottleneck" provided the industry continued to expand.

"The program of building up substantial government owned stocks of 100 octane aviation gasoline has been recommended and will probably be undertaken very shortly," he wrote.

"As a matter of fact not only will the industry be able to take care of all probable demands for its own products but it will be called upon to help eliminate bottlenecks in other industries—in particular the production from petroleum by recently developed synthetic processes of synthetic rubber toluene for tnt."

Demands Greater

Wilson pointed out the petroleum demands of modern mechanized war are far greater than during the last war. But, because of conservation methods "our defense planning should not have to face the prospect of high crude prices in order to stimulate production or the likelihood of gasolineless Sundays due to any shortage of gasoline.

This situation, Wilson said, was "in striking contrast to all the warring nations."

A weak spot in the armor of a warring world—petroleum—is a defense bulwark of America, W. R. Boyd, jr., executive vice-president of the American petroleum institute, told the interstate oil compact commission.

Three Times As Much

"The American people may have the satisfaction of knowing that they would enter a conflict with the largest and most capable petroleum industry, the greatest reserves, and the most extensive productive facilities of any nation in the world," he declared.

In a speech prepared for delivery before the compact's regular fall meeting, he said the United States had three times more crude oil reserves now than in 1917, when America entered the World war.

"American petroleum refiners have led the world in developing new processes for manufacturing and in the normal production of high test aviation fuel," Boyd continued.

No Worrying Suggested

"Productive capacity for some of these fuels already is ten times the consuming capacity of this country's entire present air fleet military and commercial."

"It is my considered judgment," Boyd continued, "that the government . . . and the American public need not do any worrying over the possibility of a failure of having adequate natural crude oil production to meet all the national, industrial and civilian requirements in time of peace or war for many years to come."

Something Must Be Wrong With Germans, Writer Says

By J. W. T. MASON
United Press War Expert

In warfare when a long proclaimed major offensive suddenly halts with no objective reached, but with claims of great gains and few casualties, something fundamental must be wrong. A week ago today Hitler's air attack to annihilate Britain reached its climax with the emotionally heralded bombardment of London suburbs. The climax, however, has since become an anti-climax because the Germans have not followed through.

The newness of aerial warfare and the necessity for studying temporary results and unexpected obstacles do not explain adequately the present lull. Interruption of a week in following up an alleged defeat of the enemy comes near to confession that no defeat has been inflicted. If enemy casualties and damage have been three to four times those of the offensive, why the necessity for studying results before going ahead?

Considered Defeat

The fact that Germany has been compelled to postpone further air blitzkrieg offensive if not actually abondoning them for the season must be regarded as a defeat for Hitler, not only in the air but also at home. An aggressive war machine which has proclaimed conquest as its motive must continue its offensives or risk disillusioning its own civilian support.

This fact does not hold in the same way for a nation defensively fighting to preserve itself. Here is Hitler's present dilemma. The necessity for a conqueror to continue conquering or risk downfall is axiomatic throughout all military history.

A conqueror always is on the defensive along the home front. Having promised his people domination over the enemy, he must make his gains to justify the sacrifices he exacts at home. If he fails, in any sense, to do so, that becomes a defeat as influential on future events as a retreat in the field.

Conqueror Must Push

To sit tight and hold the enemy from advancing is possible for a defending nation without loss of morale; but a conqueror must push ahead. To check the enemy is not sufficient. He must overwhelm them or he cannot explain his losses.

That is Hitler's present position. It is an old one in the careers of world conquerors, and is the risk they all have had to take. Hitler must now be beginning to understand this axiom of conquest. He cannot await events. He must try to make them obedient to his will.

He has brought his war machine face to face with the final enemy.

But, his air force has not found the secret of success; his "total blockade" cannot even close the channel at its narrow 20-mile width to British shipping! his long range bombardments are answered in turn. He has a fully equipped army of perhaps 3,000,000 men but they are idle.

Hitler's Last Hope

This great mechanized force is locked within the European continent, but it seems to be Hitler's last hope. To risk his army by trying to invade Britain would seem to approach too near to outright disaster. Yet, it is hard to believe the army itself will be content to remain impassive awaiting the full revival of British power.

It is probable that Hitler now is concerned with this ultimate problem of his career. He is examining the direction a new military stroke might take against the British empire with least chance of a setback. The way through the Balkans into Asia Minor seems less dangerous than any other, if Russia can be quieted.

Should there be no new offensive against Britain, German morale at home may well show a serious decline before next winter ends. If that happens, the war will then enter its concluding phrase.

New Method Of Loans Proposed

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP)—The defense commission announced today a plan whereby the government would offer manufacturers contracts good for underwriting bank loans to finance factory construction in defense enterprises.

The commission urged Congress to enact quickly legislation it said was needed to make the plan effective.

John D. Biggers, deputy production commissioner, said the plan would "enable the use of the vast idle capital resources of the nation and at the same time conserve the credit and resources of the government."

Approval Needed

Biggers added that the plan could not work without congressional approval of the $5,000,000,000 defense appropriation bill, and a measure which would suspend the Vinson-Trammel profit limitation law and also permit more rapid amortization of new factory costs for tax purposes.

The plan provides for the government buying airplanes and other defense materials at their intrinsic value and paying the manufacturers separately for the cost of building new factories necessary for producing the items.

Then the government would promise to pay the cost of erecting the factory in five annual installments and the manufacturer could use this written promise of the government as security for a bank loan.

Tidewater Denies Mexican Negotiations

NEW YORK, Aug. 23. (U.P.)—Tidewater Associated Oil company denied today that it has been carrying on negotiations with the Mexican government for the sale or purchase of petroleum or petroleum products.

Commenting on recent press reports of a pending deal between Tidewater and the Mexican authorities, a company spokesman said that "this company has not even been approached by the Mexican government or anyone else concerning any such proposals."

Selznick Votes To Liquidate

NEW YORK, Aug. 23. (U.P.) — Stockholders of Selznick International Pictures, Inc., voted today to liquidate at once.

Dissolution was voted unanimously because of "present economic conditions brought about by the European war," an announcement said. The corporation's financial condition was said to be excellent.

Its producing and distribution contracts have been assumed by David O. Selznick Productions, Inc., a new corporation formed in California last week. Its physical assets will be offered for sale immediately, it was announced.

Others To Join

Selznick International produced "Gone With the Wind", one of the biggest money makers in film history, "Rebecca", "A Star Is Born", "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer", etc. The new corporation will function with its contracts, stars, technicians, and many of its employes. The dissolution was seen as a liquidation primarily of its international business, which, in common with that of other film companies, has been hit hard by the war.

The entire investment of the stockholders, who include John Hay Whitney, C. V. Whitney, Myron Selznick, Mrs. Charles S. Payson, Norma Shearer, Robert Lehman, and David O. Selznick, was represented in $2,900,000 in debentures which have been retired in full, plus annual interest of 6 per cent, and all bank loans have been repaid in full, it was announced.

The new corporation takes over the contracts of Vivian Leigh, star of "Gone With the Wind", Ingrid Bergman and Joan Fontaine, other stars developed by Selznick International, Alfred Hitchcock, the famous English director, and the other players and directors.

Daniel T. O'Shea, vice-president of Selznick International, becomes general manager of the new corporation, and other international executives were expected to join the new company.

Influence Of Voters In Different States Varies

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

PRINCETON, N. J., Aug. 23.—In presidential elections the individual voter in a closely contested state may exert hundreds of times more influence on the makeup of the electoral college than a voter in a state where one candidate predominates strongly.

This is according to the arithmetic of Dr. John Q. Stewart, member of the faculty of Princeton university.

For example, he says, in 1936 New Hampshire's electoral vote of 4 would have been swung from Roosevelt if only 1910 voters had been persuaded to change to Landon. Accordingly 4 electoral votes were effectively controlled at the rate of 478 votes per electoral vote.

Different Influence

But in Misssisippi it would have required a shift to Landon of 76,438 Roosevelt votes to swing 9 electoral votes. This is at the rate of 8,493 votes per electoral vote.

Therefore, it is fair to assert, Dr. Stewart says, that a Roosevelt voter in New Hampshire exerted about 18 times greater influence on the composition of the electoral college than a Roosevelt voter in Mississippi.

From results of a recent sample nationwide poll Dr. Stewart estimates that this fall in Wyomning a Willkie voter stands to exert 38 times more electoral influence than the individual Roosevelt voter in Texas. In Wyoming, under this estimate, about 330 votes will control the electrola vote; in Texas, 12,500.

To put the matter in another way, Dr. Stewart says of the two extremes, an individual voter in Wyoming may be expected to control three thousandths of an electoral vote while an individual in Texas may control an eight-hundred-thousandth.

Nightwatchman Given Big Wage Settlement

HOUSTON, Aug. 23. (U.P.) — The largest payment of back wages in the Southwest under the wages and hour law has been awarded a Houston nightwatchman, G. C. Street, regional director at Dallas announced today.

Street said the watchman, an employe of Ed Sacks and company and Houston, is receiving $1,423.24 from the company, difference between pay received and the amount due under the act since October 24, 1938.

In all, 16 present and former employes of the company are being paid $2,964.46, Street said.

The wage and hour director pointed out that the Houston company was making restitution without the necessity of court action, which is allowed when violations have not been willful or aggravated.

Postmasters Attend School

Postmasters of this area went to school Friday in the federal building here to learn more about registration of aliens, which is to start Tuesday all over the nation. A session which lasted into the afternoon was conducted by Mark Williams of Dallas and W. E. Hovet of Lubbock, postal inspectors.

A 12-page book of instructions was gone over, article by article, by Williams, who explained the methods of operation, government procedure for charging the costs, filling out of blanks and other items. Numerous questions were asked during the sessions.

Howard Is Host

Postmaster Amos Howard was host. He had four of his employes present, including Charles Waller and Lonnie Montgomery, who will be in direct charge of the work. John R. Green, superintendent of mails, and Walter Clark, foreman, were attending also.

W. E. Smith, postmaster at Tahoka; Harry H. Mann, postmaster at Levelland; Phil Bouchier, postmaster at Post; W. D. T. Storey, postmaster at Littlefield and two clerks and W. D. DeGrassi, Amarillo postmaster, were present.

Chief of Police Don Reeder was invited to give instructions in taking of fingerprints. Each alien must have his fingerprints taken for the record, except those under 14 years of age.

FISH TOWS CRUISER

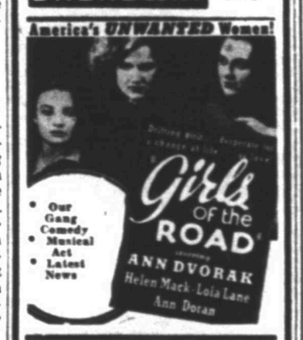

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (U.P.)—Sherman L. Whipple tells how he and two companions were towed for nearly 3½ hours by a huge black fish they harpooned off Provincetown—and he has the fish to prove the story. He says the fish weighing 1,200 pounds, pulled his 24-foot cabin cruiser nearly 20 miles before it could be killed.

Watkins Bats, Gorski Pitches Hubbers To 6-3 Victory Over Amarillo's Sox

Teams Conclude Series Tonight At Local Park

By COLLIER PARRIS
Avalanche Sports Editor

The Watkins boy had some good support by Pitcher Walter Gorski, but the score of last night's game should read: Amarillo 3, Boyd Watkins 5, the Hubbers 1.

Score was 6 to 3, as the Hubbers annexed their ninth straight victory

IT'S ENGLE NIGHT WILLIAMS VS. PARRISH

The Lubbocks and the Amarillows wind up their hectic baseball rivalry on the Hubber diamond tonight, and it's to be a special night. Charlie Engle, manager of the pennant-hungry Hubbers, will be honored in a special "Engle night," with fans privileged to bring contributions. It will be ladies night, with all women fans admitted free. Engle has named Gib Williams to pitch for the Hubs tonight, while Manager Jonnard has nominated Ben Parrish to hurl for the Gold Sox. The game begins at 9 o'clock.

And don't forget Shrine Night Monday night, final game of the home schedule. Shriners are in charge of ticket sales, and proceeds go to charity.

and remained on top of the West Texas-New Mexico league pennant scrap. It was the second win in a row over Bubber Jonnard's Gold Sox.

All that Watkins did was blast two home runs and a single for a perfect night at bat to account for five of Lubbock's six runs, and they are throwing a "Boyd Watkins Day" Sunday for the boy. He's the only three-year man on the squad, having helped win two previous pennants here, and just about the keenest ball-hawk in Class D baseball, along with being the best "clutch hitter" ever seen hereabouts.

Two swift double plays had halted as many Amarillo threats in the first two innings, while Bus Dorman, returning to the mound after a one-day rest following his 11-inning stint at Lamesa Wednesday night, hadn't given the Hubbers a look-see in the first inning. The tie was broken in the second when, after one out, Watkins slithered a home run over the right center field fence.

He drew a walk in the fourth, and came up again in the sixth with Lubbock trailing 1 to 2. Steve Niedziela had led off with a single. Ben Drake had advanced Steve with a perfect sacrifice. Ed Schweda, the league's leading hitter now in the worst slump of the season, fanned for the second time in a row, and Chester Hajduk drew a walk. Watkins teed off and the ball sailed over the left field fence for three runs and a clean victory.

Watkins came up in the eighth with Drake on base, by virtue of a pass, and Hajduk advanced him with a single. Watkins singled hard, scoring Drake, sending Hajduk to third. Watkins then stole second, but was caught off third base after Schiereth's grounder had scored Hajduk with the sixth run.

One Earned Run

The Hubs committed several errors, two of them accounting for Amarillo runs. The Gold Sox earned only one off Walter Gorski, who gave up eight hits but kept them fairly well separated. The Sox scored twice in the third. Dick Ratliff singled, after one out. Dorman flied to center, and Tenorio doubled to left, scoring Ratliff. D'Antonio singled to left, and Schweda let the ball get away for a two-base error as Tenorio scored standing up.

In the ninth, Duarte got a single down third base way, advanced on Niedziela's error, moved to third on an infield play, and scored on Ratliff's grounder to second.

Lew Is Ready To Fight To Halt 'Talk'

(By The Associated Press)

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 23 Bob Montgomery "would seem like a pushover after being hit by that tree," Lightweight Boxing Champion Lew Jenkins said today, telling of the automobile accident near Sparta, Tenn., yesterday in which his car was wrecked and he and Danny Doran, Canadian fighter, were injured.

Nursing body bruises and a cut which required three stitches in the back of his head, Jenkins said that if the Pennsylvania boxing commission insists he will go into training for the fight scheduled with Montgomery in Philadelphia Sept. 9.

"I don't want anyone to say that I didn't want to fight Montgomery," he added.

After having their injuries checked here the two fighters planned to continue to Philadelphia by train today.

McNeill Primes For Grand Slam

By BILL KING
Associated Press Sports Writer

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 23.—A heavy shower washed out another National doubles tennis tournament at Longwood today and gave the rainbound writers an opportunity to study the amazing record made by Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City, on all sorts of courts this season.

McNeill, who ranks third nationally, is only two titles away from a "grand slam." The young Oklahoman refuses to admit that he has assigned himself such a superhuman task, but his record speaks for him.

Back in February, he took a two weeks vacation from Kenyon college in Ohio and went to New York, where he won the National indoor title by beating Bobby Riggs, the Nation's No. 1 player. Four months later he defeated Riggs again and gained the National clay courts title and then moved along to snatch the National Intercollegiate crown that Rice University's Frank Guernsey had been wearing for two seasons.

Now all he needs to complete his "grand slam" is one of the National doubles titles and the National singles championship, but that is the herculean part of the task.

Favored Anyway

It is likely that McNeill will have a fourth National championship Sunday night, for he and Frank Parker, his doubles partner, have upheld their top seeding here by gaining the semi-final in such decisive fashion that they are regarded as odds-on favorites. Then McNeill will aim his mighty tennis guns at Riggs in the National singles championship at Forest Hills.

McNeill and Parker will go after the doubles final tomorrow against the 19-year-old Californians, Jack Kramer and Ted Schroeder. In the other men's semi-final, Guernsey and Russell Bobbitt, of Atlanta, engage Gardnar Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla., and Henry Prusoff, of Seattle.

In the women's division, which is expected to wind up with Alice Marble and Sarah Palfrey gaining their fourth straight triumph in this tourney, the defending titlists will meet Patricia Canning and Virginia Wolfenden, two capable Californians, in the second-last round. In another semi-final, Mary Hardwick and Valerie Scott, the British Wightman Cup stars, will be paired against Mrs. John Van Ryn, of Austin, and Dorothy Bundy, of Santa Monica, Calif., an unseeded team.

Moore Hurls Gassers To Win Over Odessa

ODESSA, Aug. 23 (Special)—The veteran Wilcy Moore baffled Odessa for eight scoreless innings here tonight as his Borger mates took a 4 to 1 decision from the Oilers in the second game of the current three-night stand.

The game was a pitchers' duel all the way, each hurler allowing only five hits.

Midland Takes Double Victory Over Oilers

MIDLAND, Aug. 23 (Special) — Pampa slipped two full games behind the league leading Lubbock Hubbers here tonight when the Midland Cowboys made it three in a row over the Oilers with a twin victory.

Johnson twirled himself a five-hitter in the seven inning opener for a 5 to 3 decision, and the veteran Lefty Lucas duplicated the feat in the nine inning nightcap for a 16 to 2 victory. Jordan hit a homer in the opener with none aboard, Naranjo blasting one over the palings in the nightcap.

THE MAN OF THE HOUR — Victory grin and all, here's Charlie Engle, who'll be honored by his players and fans tonight at the Hubber ball park. It'll be "Charlie Engle Night," also ladies' night, and all fans are invited to contribute something in the way of gifts, cash or otherwise, in token of appreciation for the manner in which Manager Engle has brought a struggling bunch of raw, rookie ball players from the bottom of the league to the top. With the material at hand, Engle has turned in a fine job of skippering the Hubbers this season. From the worst looking outfit in the league—they stayed on the bottom the first five weeks—to the best looking, most formidable club in the circuit. That's the Engle story. Fans have booed him, raked him over the verbal coals, wondered why he and his club did not do one thing or another, or why they did certain things. But Engle went along, finally teaching his players how to take the signals he had been giving all along but which hadn't been accepted by the players, and came up with a winner. The Hubbers are a cinch for the Shaughnessy play-off, and close observers think they'll sail through for Lubbock's third pennant in a row. It's Engle Night at the ball park, the final night of the Lubbock-Amarillo series, and all the "wolves," as well as all the more friendly fans are urged to take notice.

Champions, Finalists Named In Net Tourney; Team Will Invade Clovis

With champions named in two divisions and finalists known in another, the Lubbock City Open tennis tournament today bows out of the picture momentarily while four of the section's top netters journey to Clovis to compete this week-end in the New Mexico-West Texas Invitational.

Those making the trip will be Dub Rushing, seeded No. 1 in the local melee, Sidney Moore, seeded No. 2, both of whom forged to the senior singles finals in Friday's play over the Texas Tech courts, David Storey, 17-year-old sensation and prospect for the Red Raider varsity squad this year, and Ed Moore, following in his brother's footsteps.

Will Play Monday

Rushing and Moore were the favorites to march right on through the more or less impressive singles field with the beginning of play last Monday. Monday afternoon they will square off against each other in a "natural" to settle the title which Rushing is defending.

Friday, Moore took care of Harold Beckmeyer, a fellow collegian, in the semi-finals, 6-0, 6-1. Beckmeyer previously had triumphed over Newt Walton in a quarter-finals test, 7-5, 6-0.

De Garmo Triumphs

The brother combination of Sidney and Ed Moore came through the men's doubles play with very little trouble. The final test found the Moore duo edging out Walton and Hubert Burgess, 12-10 and 6-4. Walton and Burgess had eliminated Beckmeyer and Jack Lovelace in the doubles semi-finals, 6-3, 6-2.

John DeGarmo, the Lubbock High sensation who stacks up as one of the brightest Westerner prospects in several seasons, carried off novice honors, eliminaitng another Lubbock High ace in the championship clash. Donald Cook was the victim, 1-6, 6-4, 6-3. DeGarmo had advanced to the final match with a default victory over E. Rawlings, Cook measuring LaVerne Curlee, 7-5, 6-4, to advance.

KERR IS INJURED

Yanks Marching On! Drop Tribe For 5th In Row

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Aug. 23. — Steve Sundra gave the New York Yankees a 5-3 victory over the league-leading Cleveland Indians today, the Yankees' fifth straight triumph over the American league's top two teams.

That left the World Champions just three games out of second place and only seven astern of the Indians, whose lead over second-place Detroit was cut to four games.

Sundra, in chalking up his third victory of the campaign, allowed Cleveland six hits, and delivered the pay-off punch in the seventh inning when he singled to score Babe Dahlgren and Frankie Crosetti and break up a 2-2 tie.

'Control' Of Umps Blasted By Landis

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Kenesaw M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, cracked down hard today on club owner control or intimidation of umpires as a situation he termed "saturated with evil and peril to baseball's welfare."

Bluntly warning that "such misconduct hereafter will result in ineligibility of every club or league official participating therein," Landis fined the Michigan State league $500 for dismissing Umpire Bob Williams after a July 7th controversy between Williams and Burleigh Grimes, manager of the Grand Rapids club.

Spits On Umpire

The altercation, in which Grimes was accused of spitting tobacco juice in the arbiter's face, was followed by Grimes being fined $50 and suspended five days by T. J. Halligan, league president. Judge William Bramham, president of the National association of minor leagues, ruled punishment inadequate and Grimes, subsequently, was suspended for a year.

Landis said the Grand Rapids club, at a league meeting July 29, moved that Williams be discharged for "inefficiency," even though no complaint of inefficiency or for any other nature had been made against the umpire. The commissioner said the real reason for William's discharge was the fact he had reported the Grimes incident to Judge Bramham, an action generally resented by the club owners as "bad publicity" for the league.

Must Be Free

Ordering the league to pay Williams to the end of the season and also pay him through any league playoff which may develop, the commissioner said:

"Baseball requires absolutely honest umpiring. Most emphatically, that demands that umpires be entirely free of any sort of intimidation, control, domination or influence by officials of clubs affected by their decisions."

Golf Pros To 'Swing' In Clover—

Picard Among Top Favorites For National PGA Tourney

By WHITNEY MARTIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The golf pros are going to be in clover next week, so look for some one-sided scores in the National PGA tournament.

Clover doesn't mean the 15,000 smackers they will split up at Hersey, Pa. . . . It means what it's supposed to mean. Our secret operative

WATCH SHUTE!

HERSHEY, Penn., Aug. 23 (AP) — Around the locker rooms, the professionals here to battle for the 1940 P. G. A. crown are passing the ominous word along:

"Shute's on his game again."

The dignified Denny, champion of the professional golfers in 1936 and 1937, has been nursing a wrist operation for some time. Just to prove the nursing stage is past, he fired eight birdies in an 18-hole practice round on the Hershey Country club course today. Shute along with most of the 130 entries for the P. G. A. match play scrap which starts Monday arrived early for tuneup sessions.

Playing with Ky Laffoon and Jimmy Demaret, Shute mastered the long Hershey layout in a friendly match which left Demaret, no slouch himself, observing:

"Man, he's certainly hitting that ball."

No. X9 reports the course is pretty well blanketed by this greenkeeper's nemesis, and the players who don't know how to hit a ball out of this heavy, slick vegetation will get nowhere with great celerity.

No Control

The clover, coming between the ball and the club face, tends to make the shot out of control. The ball skids, loses its stuff, is liable to zoom away at right angles or pop forward and perform strange dipsy-doodles like a baseball spitter. The victimized player loses confidence, is liable to find himself smothered by his opponent, if the opponent has the knack of digging the ball out.

The playing surface, combined with the long, par 73 layout, promises to make the tournament, ordinarily just about the toughest grind in sports, a man-killer this year.

Four-Day Tourney

After two days of 18-hole qualifying rounds, the 64 survivors sail into a day of 18-hole match play, with two matches. That's when the hackers, the morning glories, have their picnic, with many a highly-regarded player knocked off by some fellow who all but needed a ticket to get in, but who has a hot streak such as everyone enjoys now and then.

After that come four days of 36-hole matches, and the last one stand-

Clovis Defeats Lamesa, 8 To 4

(Special To The Avalanche)

LAMESA, Aug. 23. — The Clovis Pioneers assaulted Pitcher Loyd Patterson in three innings here tonight to take the second game of the series from Lamesa's Loboes, 8 to 4.

Manager Howard Taylor took the mound for Clovis and went the distance, giving up 11 hits but keeping them well scattered. The Loboes took a lead in the first two innings, were overtaken in the fourth, but went ahead again with two runs in the fifth.

Clovis put over four runs in the seventh, added a pair of extras in the ninth, while Taylor held the Loboes scoreless.

Congress Of Argentina Decides To Reject Resignation Of President Ortiz

Accused Deputy Kills Himself

(By The Associated Press)

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 23 — All factions in Congress today decided to reject the resignation of ailing President Roberto M. Ortiz, easing a crisis over an army land purchase which threatened to split the country.

Rejection of the resignation and a vote of confidence for the president by 186 of the possible 190 votes in tomorrow's joint meeting of the Chamber and Senate were forecast tonight.

Liberals and Conservatives, who have been bickering more than ten years, were in agreement on a major issue the first time in a decade.

Purpose Is Served

Victor Guillot, Radical (Liberal) party deputy accused of profiting in the land purchase, committed suicide today before what amounted to a united front to reject the president's resignation was shaped. Guillot, whose expulsion from the Chamber had been asked by a congressional committee investigating the land deal, was found in his study with a bullet wound in his head. On his desk calendar, he had scribbled a note: "May God forgive me."

Political observers believed the Ortiz offer to resign, submitted last night, had served its purpose in rebuking officials who were implicated in the land transaction, and had won additional support for his attempt to pacify factions that have been at loggerheads for years.

Serious Proportions

The accusation of graft that arose from the land scandal had assumed serious proportions because of similar charges that preceded overthrow of a liberal government by a revolution in 1930, the last one Argentina had. It was the first revolution in this rich cattle and grain growing country since the turn of the century, and resulted in bitterness that has not entirely disappeared.

Conservatives ruled the country after the revolution until 1938 when Ortiz, first businessman president in Argentina's history, who was on good terms with important factions in both the Conservative and Liberal camps, was inaugurated on a conservative coalition ticket.

Picard Favored

ing after this free-for-all, if he's still able to stand, takes home the biggest pot of gold.

Guldahl Among Favorites

Picking a winner of such an affair is tougher than picking the winner of the open. There are so many more pitfalls along the way.

Henry Picard, the defending champion, probably should rate more than an average chance. He'll be playing his own course, knowing every blade of grass or cluster of clover, and every whim of the wind.

Others who rate as real contenders include:

Byron Nelson, who could win anything in one of his hot spells.

Ralph Guldahl, who has the stamina and shots.

Gene Sarazen, who has everything except the legs for the grind.

Damaret, Hogan Up Too

Sam Snead, whose brilliant play seems to lack the necessary consistency over a long stretch.

Jimmy Demaret, who, like Nelson, is liable to be very, very good or very, very bad.

Ben Hogan, whose record for the year gives him a grand chance.

Horton Smith, whose great putting and ability to detour to Panama and still get his pars and birdies make him dangerous.

Paul Runyan, a swinger whose lack of power may prove a big handicap in the clover.

Dick Metz, who has had a good year.

Craig Wood, a threat in any man's competition.

Jug McSpaden, who has the power in wrists and hands to slash through an oak tree.

Lubbock Bowling Club Open For Fall Season

Lubbock Bowling Club, 1113 Main street, which has been closed for the past month for resurfacing of the alleys and redecorations is now the scene of additional sports activity for the city.

Erwin Childers, assistant manager, said last night that the club, one of the finest in West Texas, was in perfect shape and that the city's keglers were looking forward to the fall season and the revival of league competition.

League play will get under way about September 1, he said.

Jack Hancock is manager of the club.

American products received into China in the first half of this year were valued at more than $39,000,000.

Nazis, Soviets Enjoy Profits

BERLIN, Aug. 23. (U.P.) — The first anniversary of the German-Russian non-aggression agreement, which untied Adolf Hitler's hands for his war in Poland and the west, found both countries enjoying their profits today with no outward signs of friction.

For Germany, the advantages of the treaty have been: (1) security against attack from the rear while staking everything on a war in western Europe; (2) a flow of vital raw materials from Russia which broke a gap in the British blockade.

Russia has gained a vast new "sphere of interest" in Europe—a strip of Finland, the Baltic states, the eastern half of Poland and Bessarabia and Bukovina from Rumania.

World Was Startled

Problems have arisen over minorities, border delineations and transporation, and some remain to be settled, but all observers now agree that the two nations, the bitterest ideological enemies for six years, have demonstrated effectively that they can get along peaceably as long as political expediency dictates.

The pact that startled the world and gave both Adolf Hitler and Joseph Stalin great political triumphs, was drawn up a year ago today at Moscow by German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop and Soviet Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov. The two countries pledged to "refrain from every act of force . . . and every attack against one another," and that "in case one of the parties of this treaty should become the object of warlike acts by a third party, the other will in no way support this third power."

National Guard Bill

the country.

Needed For Army

Additional shelter, the department said, is needed for the regular army and the national guard under the present expansion program. If tied the construction program with the conscription proposal, however, by adding that appropriations to complete it "cannot be requested until full authority for calling the national guard and legislation for selective service has been enacted."

Under the program, utilities and hospital facilities would be constructed at southern army posts to be used by men housed in tents. Cantonments—frame buildings such as those used at World war emergency camps—would be constructed at posts where the winter climate it too severe to permit use of tents.

Must Be Rehired

Before enacting the guard bill, Congress inserted provisions designed to ease the hardships on individuals. It directed that men below the rank of captain, if they have dependents without other means of support, be permitted to resign, and that men under 18 be honorably discharged. It directed, too, that an employer must rehire an employe-guardsman when his period of active duty was ended.

War department officials declined to say which guard units would receive the first call to active service. When the question of mobilizing the guard was first raised last month, it was said that the 44th, 30th, 45th and 41st divisions had been tentatively selected, together with some coast guard units. Those divisions are made up of men from New York and New Jersey, Tennessee and the Carolinas, New Mexico, Arizona, Oklahoma, and Colorado, and Oregon, Washington, Montana and Idaho.

Hopkins To Resign

there has been a steady improvement in his health recently, he remains far from rugged. Close friends have said that while he can work six hours a day he has felt that six hours is not a day's work and that in these days a cabinet officer should be prepared to go ahead at full speed for 12 hours, or more.

As relief administrator, Hopkins was the target of sometimes severe criticism, and a Senate fight was made on his confirmation as secretary of commerce. However, he was confirmed by a vote of more than two to one.

The retiring secretary found government "exciting" and his own part in it a bit unbelievable. "I have to pinch myself," he once told a friend, "to be sure I am not dreaming. Think of it, a son of an Iowa harness maker in the cabinet." He said, too, that he entered the cabinet "on a shoe string" and would go out the same way.

The resignation of Hopkins will leave the two top places in the department of commerce vacant. Edward J. Noble, undersecretary, resigned recently.

Persons close to Hopkins say he will not enter business.

are necessary to continued existence as a democracy, the speaker said the American people would not be led beyond the bounds of constitutional provision. "Under latitude of the constitution we may change in many ways, but never in the right to govern ourselves," he said.

"The only liberty freemen have is freedom. That shall be preserved —by concerted strength of a powerful nation. 'Ism-controled countries are wolves in sheep's clothing.

Program Outlined

"I call on the youth of this country to clutch the problems of the moment to their consciousness."

The crowd was large and there were insufficient seats, placed on the lawn south of the administration building. Dr. L. N. Lipscomb, pastor of the First Methodist church, offered an invocation. Dr. Clifford B. Jones, Tech president, introduced Thompson. Bruce Beard presented the class gift, a portion of the sidewalk around the circular drive at the institution, and Spencer A. Wells, vice chairman of the board of directors, made acceptance remarks. Rev. John A. Winslow, pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal church, offered the benediction.

Deans of the various divisions, O. V. Adams of engineering, Miss Margaret Weeks of home economics, J. M. Gordon of arts and sciences, and Dr. R. C. Goodwin of the graduate school, recommended to the president that requisite work had been completed; whereupon the president presented degrees as the 208 graduates passed before him on the speaker's dais.

British Raiders Strike Back

Nazi assertions that the powerful "Big Berthas," apparently firing from camouflaged nests with a range of more than 20 miles, provide "a weapon to control the English channel."

While British long-range cannon hurled shells across the channel into the vicinity of German-occupied Calais, by way of retort, Britons pointed out that a mile-long convoy of merchant ships—the slow target that drew the German shore batteries' fire—escape without casualty.

The convoy's safe passage not only proved the ineffectiveness of Germany's big guns, a London spokesman said, but also exploded the Nazi claim of having established an air-tight blockade of the island kingdom.

Dover Moves Out

Nevertheless, many of Dover's 41,000 civilian population decided the famous Kent shore resort was unsafe—"the German gunnery is too poor to be healthy," one resident said. "The big shells may land anywhere"—and moving vans began trucking household possessions to havens farther inland.

Lone German raiders roved over England, Scotland and Wales, killing at least six civilians with bomb salvos, and the British government formally charged some of the Nazi planes made "indiscriminate machine-gun attacks" on several areas.

Ominous signs that another little nation may soon be swept into war developed as Italy threatened to invade Greece immediately if Britain starts to establish bases on Greek islands.

More Men Called

In this crisis, with Britain reaffirming her pledge to give Greece full military aid in the event of an Italian invasion, the Greek government called up four more classes of army "specialists."

Balkan troubles appeared in another quarter as observers predicted probably collapse of the Rumanian-Hungarian negotiations on Hungary's claim of the territory of Transylvania, and Rumania called her reserve officers to duty.

Germany has instructed Rumania to settle the territorial claims of both Hungary and Bulgaria, but some Hungarians expressed belief that the situation was too explosive for the German-Italian Axis to want to take a hand in it right away.

Conscription Bill

slowly and earnestly. Defense preparations had concentrated this summer, he said, on orders for new equipment, much of which would be delivered this fall and early next spring. It had been said many times, he observed, that manpower without equipment would serve no good purpose, and now it was equally true that equipment without manpower would be of no use.

Enlistments Needed

A total of 400,000 enlistments were needed, he continued, to fill the army and national guard to its present authorized strength, and although enlistments had been numerous, it would still take a year to get the 400,000 at the present rate. In addition, he said, another 400,000 were needed to fill in supporting units, and that would take another year.

Recent regular army and reserve force maneuvers had shown conclusively that regardless of their willingness, the troops were soft, he said, adding that a 15-mile march was a terrible strain, while across the ocean armies were capable of marching 30 miles a day. His point was that prospective soldiers would need conditioning and hardening.

Training Essential

If conscription were postponed until next spring, the defense program would be delayed a year, he said, because equipment was at hand now. He referred specifically to shoes and underwear, as illustrative, saying that while it was desirable that uniform equipment be used, it was not necessary where these items were concerned. There was an abundance of rifles also, he added.

Then, too, men would have to be trained in the technical trades of the army, such as operating portable radio transmitters and aircraft detectors, he said, and that would take time. Problems of cooperation between air and ground forces had still to be worked out, and in fact American progress in this direction had been rudimentary up until now.

One immediate effect of his statement, in the opinion of numerous senators, was that the Maloney amendment, postponing conscription until Jan. 1, 1941, and then applying it only if volunteers fail to come forward in sufficient numbers, would be defeated.

city. The bandits, apparently, wrongly selected today as payroll day.

Ten years ago a $104,000 payroll of Alexander Smith and Sons Carpet Mills was stolen in a holdup of an armored truck in Yonkers. Before this robbery, railroad men had been tipped that the Central's Albany local would be held up between Marble Hill and Riverdale stations. Instead, the bandits bided their time and staged the robbery in the Yonkers street.

Conveyed Now

Since then, each shipment of money has been convoyed from the station to the bank by a police machine gun squad.

In today's holdup, the bandits boarded the train when it halted at 1 a. m. (CST) at the near-deserted station. Three men ran from the shadows to the edge of a stone embankment alongside the mail car, pushed a cleated gangplank into the open door of the car and entered with drawn guns.

Head Clerk Louis Weiller and his assistant, Brooks Hall, said "they were on us before we could get our guns out."

At the rear of the train, three other bandits kept the conductor, trainman, and a passenger covered.

"Where is my father? I'm an American. I want out of here."

(Her father, Samuel Ageloff, was reported still in Brooklyn, N. Y., today.)

Police asked the couple if they wanted to see each other. They declined.

Goldman said that if his request to take the body to the United States were granted it would be cremated there and the ashes returned to Mexico. Otherwise, it will be buried here "in a week or so," he added.

Nazi Claims Germany Is Paying For War

BERLIN, Aug. 23. (AP)—Fritz Reinhardt, state secretary of the finance ministry, reported today Germany is paying for the war as she goes, without any extraordinary increase in taxes or great public loans.

Reinhardt, in predicting income taxes in 1940 would bring the government 25,000,000,000 marks (nominally $10,000,000,000), observed the tax income when Adolf Hitler assumed power in 1933 was 6,800,000,000 marks and increased to 23,600,000,000 marks in 1939.

This increase, he said, was made possible by a tremendous enlargement of the German people's productive capacities under Hitler and a corresponding increase in incomes and elevation of living standards.

"It reflects a fundamental change in the way of life," said Reinhardt.

Woman Refuses To Remove Her Clothes

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 23 (AP)—Mrs. Ruth Norsikian, 28, wouldn't take her clothes off for a medical examination and that caused a legal tangle here today.

Judge Lawrence Welch of the Nebraska compensation court asked opposing attorneys for "more law" on her right to stay dressed.

The Council Bluffs, Ia., woman testified she declined to let a doctor examine her because "I have my own ideas as to how far a doctor should go and shouldn't go. A woman has some rights to privacy."

She is seeking compensation from a tea company employing her when she was involved in an automobile accident.

Oldsters, 80 Or Over, Attend Birthday Party

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Aug. 23 (AP) Six brothers and sisters—the youngest of them 80 — joined today in celebrating the 96th birthday of David Parsons of Springfield, oldest of the clan.

The reunion party included Mrs. Celia M. Sears, 94, and Mrs. Catherine Pillsbury, 82, both of Pittsfield; Mrs. Emma Hutchinson, 90, and Frank Parsons, 80, both of Lenox, and Walter Parsons, 84, of Thornwood, N. Y.

Drug Store Owner Surprises Burglars

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 23. (AP)—Drugstore owner C. W. Reaves surprised two men attempting to break his safe.

One fled up a ladder through a skylight.

The second, too hasty in following, slipped, bumped himself unconscious on the floor.

Reaves called police, waited — watchfully.

GRETEL MAD

LONDON, Aug. 23. (AP)—A dachshund named Gretel was blown through the backdoor of her master's home tonight by the blast of a German bomb. No Nazi, Gretel chased off across the village green, barking indignantly at the raiding plane.

NATIVE DAUGHTER, 93

CHICO, Calif. (U.P.)—Mrs. Catherine Fallon Murray, who claims to be California's oldest "native daughter," has celebrated her 93rd birthday. She was born in the San Jose mission, May 17, 1847. At that time the influence of the Franciscan fathers was so predominating in California that she spoke both English and Spanish from babyhood.

Rites Read For Motley Pioneer

MATADOR, Aug. 23 (Special)—I. F. Fish, 77, cattleman of Matador 43 years, was buried in East Mound cemetery this afternoon after funeral services were conducted in the family residence here.

Mr. Fish died Thursday afternoon.

Rev. R. L. Jameson, superannuated Methodist minister of Whiteflat, officiated in rites. He was assisted by Rev. W. M. Joslin, Matador Baptist pastor, and Rev. W. B. Vaughn, Matador Methodist pastor. A mixed choir of 20 voices sang.

Four surviving sons and two daughters attended services. Friends and relatives were here from Electra, Lubbock and many nearby points.

Pall bearers were Leonard Crowell, M. S. Patton, Scott Bolton, W. N. Pipkin, Fred Bourland and John Bourland.

Bomber Crashes

Major Howard Engler—scrutinized the wreckage.

"We haven't determined what caused the wreck," Major Dawson said. "One thing appears certain—it was not lightning. Wires would be fused together in the wreckage if it was lightning and we have found nothing like that."

Two From Texas

The plane belonged to the 37th bombardment squadron which has been based at Lowry field since early July. It came from Barksdale field, near Shreveport, La.

The dead:

Lieutenant Champagne, of Centreville, La.

Second Lieutenant Robert P. Schmidtchen, 26, of Long Island, N. Y.

Staff Sergeant Clarence L. Hobbs, 35, of Irving, Texas.

Staff Sergeant William McDearmon, 42, of Lebanon, Tenn.

Sergeant Truman Fraser, 26, of McCrory, Ark.

Sergeant Roy C. Adkins, 25, of Switz City, Ind.

Private Charles E. Kelly, 23, of Texarkana, Ark.

Private Claude E. Hutchinson, 23, of Denver.

Private Weldon Bryson, 22, of Deport, Texas.

Allowable Slashes In Oil Are Advocated

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 23. (AP)—The Interstate Oil Compact commission adopted a resolution tonight urging all co-operating states to slash crude production 5 per cent below market demand estimates to prevent waste in a time of national emergency.

After a day-long session at which it heard statistical experts argue for curtailed production to reduce top-heavy stocks, the commission went into closed session to discuss the resolution.

The conservation divisions of the seven compacting states — Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, New Mexico, Illinois, Colorado and Michigan—were urged to hold production 5 per cent below the Federal Bureau of Mines estimates of consumptive demand for the next four months.

This would approximate the 2,030,000 barrels daily for all areas east of California that H. B. Fell, executive vice-president of the Independent Petroleum association of America, had urged earlier in the day, or about 100,000 barrels a day under the Bureau of Mines figure for September.

County Election

O'Daniel scrampered into the governorship his second time without a runoff.

No Election Party

Olin Culberson of Jackson county and Pierce Brooks of Dallas county remain of 19 candidates who faced the wire in the first primary for the railroad commission. Both have done extensive campaigning, including visits to the South Plains.

For chief justice of the supreme court voters will choose between James P. Alexander of McLennan county and H. S. Lattimore of Tarrant county.

The Avalanche-Journal publications will not sponsor a regular election party tonight as for the first primary. Results, however, will be flashed regularly from KFYO.

MEADE RECEIVES HONOR

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 23. (U.P.)—Jockey Don Meade, last night was awarded the plaque of the New York turf writers' association as "America's jockey of the year."

The award was made before a large crowd of turf dignitaries who had gathered for the biggest social event of the racing year.

There are about 70 small islands along the coast of Italy.

WE pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States, and to the Republic for which it stands; One Nation, indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all.

Go To The Polls And Vote!

MOST of those who vote in the Democratic runoff primary today will be giving a more convincing demonstration of their realization of the duties and obligations of citizenship than was the case when they participated in the first primary.

The runoff campaign has been almost wholly without fanfare or spectacular features in state or county races. In none of the contests is there likely to be any considerably outpouring of voters anxious to vote against someone. Most of the widespread popular interest in this election has been removed because "there ain't gonna be no runoff."

Yet the contests to be decided are of such importance that Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen owe it to the state and to themselves to go to the polls. For example, a chief justice of the Supreme court is to be nominated. When one considers that the Supreme court has the final word as to the validity of all laws, he realizes the importance of that office.

Also to be selected is a member of the Texas Railroad commission. That position is important to the state as a whole and particularly to the South Plains with its developing oil industry—doubtless it is even more important than who is elected governor.

Perhaps of highest importance among the county contests will be those deciding a majority of the membership of the county commissioners court. That court has more to do with the protection of the health, the provision of roads and other improvements, and the determination of whether there is to be efficiency and economy in county government than does any other agency.

Furthermore, it must be borne in mind that those who have selfish interest in outcomes of various contests—those who hope for jobs, as an example—certainly are going to the polls. They quite naturally and quite understandably will put self ahead of public interest when they mark their ballot. The only way to make certain that those elected actually are the choice of the people is a large outpouring of the men and women whose only interests are honesty and efficiency in government.

So a trip to the polls will not be time wasted. It deserves the time of every citizen. It will be at least a gesture in the direction of better government for us all.

A Lesson From Trotsky

THE FACT that Leon Trotsky, the exiled Russian revolutionary, happened to be the victim of a deadly assault in Mexico is not, of itself, of any worthwhile importance to people of the Western Hemisphere.

His personal fate is no great concern of ours. Even though he was the declared enemy of those in power in Communistic Russia, the causes he has espoused are foreign and inimical to our own. The best that can be said of any Communist, Trotsky included, is that some are worse than others, but that all smell pretty bad.

But it is a cause for concern when people of the Western Hemisphere consider that the long arm of Communism can reach from Moscow into our part of the world to strike down its enemies. If Communism can do that to Trosky about whom the most elaborate safeguards were thrown, then it can do the same thing to anyone it chooses as victim.

Furthermore, these experiences with Trotsky should be ample proof that a serious mistake is made when haven is provided in our hemisphere for those of his kind. His violations of the hospitalities extended to him by Mexico were continuous and aggravated. His efforts to arouse Russia to revolution so that he might ascend to power never ceased. Mexico was his headquarters for his attempts to start a civil was in a distant part of the world. That kind of conduct can be expected of any Communist. It simply isn't the nature of them to cease their activities, regardless where they may be.

The best solution to the problem they present is to keep them out. Then there can be no regrets.

The One-Minute Sermon

Better is the end of a thing than the beginning thereof; and the patient in spirit is better than the proud in spirit.

Be not hasty in thy spirit to the angry; for anger resteth in the bosom of fools.

Say not thou, What is the cause that the former days were better than these? for thou dost not enquire wisely concerning this.—Ecclesiastes 7; 8 through 11.

Casual Slaughters

By VIRGINIA HANSON

YESTERDAY: To spare heartbroken Julia her family's curiosity, Kay takes her to Fieldstone Inn for lunch. On the way, Julia says that she knows Sandra will make Jeff unhappy.

Chapter 21

Room For The Night

"Tell me about it," I said. "About Sandra's visit during first-class summer, and about how Jeff acted when she first came, and how long it was before you noticed anything."

"It was a long time." She pushed her untouched dessert away and lit a cigarette. "At first he seemed to regard her as a duty, and not a very pleasant one. He brought men around to drag her, of course, until she got acquainted, which was pretty soon. She was smooth—she could have had several men. But she kept changing, and sticking to Jeff and me, making it a foursome. I didn't mind—Jeff and I weren't hunting any corners. I thought it would be dumb to start that when we had another year to wait, and I thought he felt the same way about it, though we hadn't discussed it. And it never entered my mind to be jealous when she'd go up to him and kiss him good night—after all, they were raised together like brother and sister. I guess I'm the world's prize fool."

"Then what happened?"

"Sandra went to New York and got a one-room apartment and started studying dramatic art. I went back to boarding school—my last year, and I had to work pretty hard—I'm not very bright, as you may have noticed."

I grinned, but she went on without pause.

"I didn't get home as often, and when I did I hardly saw Jeff. First classmen have week end privileges, and his always seemed to coincide with my week ends at home. He was always going to New York. To see a show, or the sights. He said he needed a change of scene. And he hardly ever came to see the family while I was away—Dad commented on it, and wondered if Jeff was sowing a few oats.

"Sandra asked me to stay with her the week end of the Notre Dame game, and I did. I don't really know whether Jeff took her or me to the game. It was all very mixed up and Jeff wasn't like himself at all. Christmas week he went to New York and stayed with a classmate. He sent me a gold cigarette case with his class crest on it. I had just begun to smoke. He sent Mimi one just like it. They were expensive and lovely, but I cried. I had thought it might be a miniature."

She snubbed out her cigarette, looked again at her ringless hands and put them out of sight in her lap.

"Sandra wrote to me in April that they were engaged. And that was that."

"How did your family take it?"

"How would I know? I pretended to be very busy and stayed at school as much as I dared. Mimi's letters sounded delighted—Dad never writes anything but 'Dear Julia: Enclosed find check.' They'd asked her up for an occasional week end during the winter; and from then on through the most ghastly June Week I ever spent, she practically lived at West Point."

"Why weren't they married in the chapel?"

"I never quite knew, but I think it was Jeff. He can't be rushed. Though it may be that Sandra wanted another year in New York. She wouldn't need to be afraid of losing him—when Jeff once gives his word he doesn't break it. As he hasn't . . . . And then Dad had to move heaven and earth to get Jeff in his regiment, which has made it jolly all around."

She pushed back her chair and rose. I followed her out to the little entrance hall where a pretty, buxom woman had greeted us when we came in. She was still there, but how she was talking to a tall man and a girl who had just arrived.

"I'd like to talk to the proprietor," the man was saying.

"My husband is away for a few days," said the buxom woman. "Is there anything I can do?"

The hall was dimly lighted. I might not have recognized them if Julia had not stopped and stiffened. Jeff and Sandra. Their backs were toward us.

"Yes," said Jeff. "My wife and I would like a room for the night."

"Let Me Be The First'

The proprietor's wife said, "Just step into the parlor," and as they turned they saw us.

Sandra was composed; but Jeff's color faded as if the light in the room had turned green. He took a step toward Julia.

She was not looking at him. "Let me be the first to congratulate you, Sandra," she said in a brittle voice. I suppose it was as near to an insult as she could manage on short notice.

"Thank you," said Sandra, her eyes suddenly hard. "I knew you'd be glad to have the ordeal over with."

"Is that why you played such a dirty trick on Jeff?"

Sandra laughed. "I think I'd let Jeff be the judge of that if I were you." She put a confident hand on his arm. "Was marrying you a dirty trick, Jeff?"

He did not seem to see the hand, nor hear the bantering question.

"What do you mean, Julia?" he asked, his eyes on her, intent and watchful.

No one but me seemed aware of the bright inquiring eyes of the landlady.

"Isn't there somewhere we can talk that isn't so public?" I put in hurriedly, and she led us to the parlor. Then a car drove up and she excused herself, reluctantly, I thought.

Perhaps I should have gone too, but it didn't occur to me at the time. I closed the door and stood against it watching and listening, remembering all that Julia had just told me, and trying to make up my mind about Jeff.

He turned to face Julia, standing closer to her now and looking at her as if there were only the two of them in the room.

"What do you mean, Julia?" he repeated gravely.

"I mean that Ivan was murdered last night," she said fiercely. If it was news to them they did not betray the fact. "And they're already saying there must be some reason for your rushing off and getting married in such a hurry. That—that maybe Sandra did it to protect you!"

Jeff looked as if he still did not understand until Sandra broke into cool, deliberate speech

"And what if I did? Wasn't that better than being forced to tell about the time you knocked Ivan down in my apartment? And about your seeing us together on the barge last night? Oh, it was very noble of Julia to protend she had caught us in a compromising position and was covering it up—especially when she knew you'd already seen what there was to see."

"And what was that?" asked Jeff tonelessly.

"Just Ivan trying to persuade me to run away with him, and taking it rather badly when I refused. But you would believe the worst—just as you did the time you knocked him down."

'Never Mind'

"You may recall that I thought he was annoying you. And it may interest you to know that I did not see you last night on the barge.

"Oh, what's the use of talking about it? I did what I thought was best. And I don't really see what business it is of Julia's when we choose to get married."

He continued to look at her for a minute, with no expression whatever in his eyes, while Julia turned and walked proudly toward the door. But before she had quite reached it he spoke her name, and she stopped and waited. He came over to her then and, putting a hand on each shoulder, turned her around until she looked up and met his eyes.

"Do you think I killed Ivan?" he demanded.

"I know you didn't," she answered quietly.

"Thanks."

In the instant's pause before he dropped his hands from her shoulders something very much like grief showed in his eyes.

The landlady met us at the door.

"Now about the room——" she began brightly. But Sandra's voice behind us cut her short.

"Never mind about the room. I've changed my mind. We won't be needing it after all."

Julia was quiet on the drive back to the post, but not with the heavy quiet of despair. For almost the first time since I had known her there was a light in her eyes.

I asked to be dropped at the club. She must have sensed my unspoken question about what she planned to do, for she said, "It's all right now. I can go home. There are announcements to send out and letter to write—Mimi and I will put a good face on this if it can be put. Kay, what is she trying to do to him? But it's all right. You saw him look at me. She can't hurt him. It's all right."

I wasn't sure what she meant, but I was glad something had comforted her. I watched her drive away. Then I went to my rooms and slept.

A light, almost timid rapping at my door woke me. I had been dreaming that I was trapped in a burning car. The fire was all outside, kept away from me by the glass windows which I dared not open, and I was getting hotter and hotter. Suddenly Gerald was beating at a window, trying to break it in, and I was crying to him to stop, that he would only make things worse.

I woke trembling, to find that the sun had dipped to the level of the western window and was doing its best to make hay of me. The rapping continued. I swung my feet to the floor and called, "Come in."

Adam entered, looking none too sure of his welcome.

"I'm sorry I woke you up," he said. "I came to apologize for my behavior last night."

He was carrying a manila folder, manuscript size. He laid it on my table but he did not take his eyes from my face.

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Fulton Lewis, Jr.

BEHIND the precarious tin-shortage, worrying furrows into Defense commission brows, is a suppressed story of a lobby deal between high New Deal insiders and domestic manganese producers. The connection may seem obscure, but actually it's very direct.

Early in 1939, European reports made Army and Navy heads uneasy about continuing supplies of "strategic materials" for which U. S. industry is entirely dependent on outside raw sources, notably tin, rubber and manganese. Army heads warned that severance of outside supplies on any of those items would be paralyzing in time of war.

The interdepartmental committee, which makes policy on such matters, recommended an immediate program to build up stock piles of each. They proposed a $100,000,000 program over four years, and the proposal was taken up by the House Military Affairs committee.

Domestic manganese lobbyists objected, however; to the size of the program, because they said it would mean heavy imports of manganese, and building up large imported stock-piles that might hurt them. They worked for days until White House orders finally went to the capitol that the program was to be pruned to $10,000,000 a year. Now the Defense heads are trying to buy 200,000 tons of tin at 50 cents a pound—$200,000,000—and are not sure they can get it at any price.

JUSTICE: Senatorial free masonry rarely, if ever, permits sitting Senators to enter a primary fight in another state, to help a congressman unseat one of their own senatorial colleagues, but capitol cloakroom talk suggests it may happen in the increasingly sensational New Mexico battle, between Rep. John Dempsey and Senator Dennis Chavez.

Chavez' forces have scattered the state with circulars charging that the widely esteemed Dempsey was once tried for murder in New York, and is violently anti-labor.

As for this story, Dempsey was president of a transit company, and as representative of the company was tried for deaths in an "L" accident on one of the company's lines.

As for the second, he is so anti-labor that he voted consistently for every New Deal labor law; championed Labor Committee Chairman Mary Norton's battle against Wage-Hour changes, when half of the louder New Dealers had walked out on her; and consistently, for years, has fought to have WPA converted to PWA, at increased appropriations, to insure union wages on all government projects.

A dozen odd Senate liberals say that if the stories are not corrected, they will go into New Mexico in Dempsey's behalf and tell the facts.

ESTIMATE: Popular acceptance of the idea that the so-called "Jewish vote" is solidly pro-Roosevelt for November, may turn out to be a disappointing will-o'-the-wisp, according to Leo Sack, erstwhile star Washington correspondent and later U. S. minister to Costa Rica under FDR.

Sack, after a trip to the Pacific coast, states he found fellow-Jewish leaders widely divided. At two B'nai B'rith conventions, one in California and the other in the midwest, private polls showed Willkie with an overwhelming lead, in one case 8 to 1.

As for the "Jewish vote" as a bloc, he says, it is a myth. According to Sack, Jews do not vote as a race, or in a group, but rather as individuals on the basis of personal interests, preferences, and convictions. Willkie's successful business background, he says, carries strong appeal for them.

Sack says New York Jewish leaders are generally pro-Willkie which may carry some influence with the rank and file there, though the extent is wholly unpredictable.

NEW YORK
By Richard Waldo

THE STORY of the Stukas and Blenheims seems to have no relation to the amazing behavior of the belligerents' stock exchanges. Wall Street's foreign scouts can't dope out why the markets of London, Berlin and Rome are invariably bullish while the slightest hint of bad news in this country sends traders howling to the storm cellars.

New York bankers know there's an angle to Europe's heavy and unperturbed trading. London reacts to German raids, tax levies and industrial rationing with the even answer-inspired trading and solid support of every line of industrials. In Berlin and Rome the ups and downs of war news have little effect on the investor, who seems to disregard the war as a factor in revenues. The dictatorial regimes in every European country, and the resulting government grip on the respective state banks, could explain firmness in securities as artificial and officially manipulated except for the fact that each nation's paper is given full faith and credit in the esteem of the enemy country.

The story is best revealed in Amsterdam, whose exchange is still Europe's first international clearing house despite occupation by Germany. Here come orders from all Europe and all the world, for that matter, to buy British, German, Dutch or Italian in accordance with fluctuations in each nation. Amsterdam bankers are under no compulsion of the Reichsbank to honor a German chemical issue, or the orders of the Bank of England to bolster a British security series. It's a free-market, with enough buyers participating in sufficient volume, and at such prices, as to support the internal quotations of each belligerent camp.

TRUST: The answer is that big—and anonymous—capital is being invested indiscriminately in the industrial future of England and of Germany. Discounting the domestic, and possibly compulsory, support that each country's investors give to home securities, there is an outside demand that makes the valuations genuine.

It is taken for granted that a German win would deplete the assets of Royal Dutch Shell by half. Yet Englishmen who are alive to the possibility are plowing earnings back into Royal Dutch. In the event of a German economic collapse, and not necessarily the extreme chance of military defeat, German bonds would not bring the price of white paper. Yet German bonds are getting support in Amsterdam from the outside, and from non-Nazi sources.

U. S. analysts think they detect the answer. Whoever wins, the value of money in Europe will be less because of goldless inflation. Values will be judged by earning power of realty of industrial holdings. The trend is to property and symbols thereof, namely securities. Money as such will undergo a shrinkage in value. Moreover, the fact that investors are going for property on both sides of the channel represents a large body of opinion that this war will not be fought to complete victory or defeat, but will be compromised somewhere along the way.

TOUCHY: The hair trigger job of approaching the country's foreign born vote in behalf of Willkie has been handed to the late Dewey backer and international lawyer, Foster Dulles. The agenda lists several million fascist, quasi-fascist and anti- fascist Italians, most of whom are sore at Mr. Roosevelt for the "stab in the back" business. Dulles figures the lot should be given a few rip snorting harangues on American ways and then have the subject closed. At the slightest hint that the boys of mixed sympathies have any better champion in Willkie than they have in the President, the GOP goose is cooked.

There is not a political precedent for the racial complications that have come into the campaign of 1940. Neither group of managers questions that every vote counts, bundist or Communist, oratorical disclaimers notwithstanding. The blunt fact is that hundreds of thousands of U.S. Italians, who are not Fascists, are riled with Mr. Roosevelt for his sock at Italians. And competent students of German communities know that the German majority is not Nazi—and yet will vote against the man who has been blasting at Germany. This vote tallies into millions. On the other side of the books are the groups of Czechs, Poles French, Dutch and Belgians. One glance at their newspapers printed in the U.S. in there home languages dispels the illusion that any of them has a purley American slant on the two parties, their candidates and foreign policies.

Here And There In Texas

By GORDON SHEARER
United Press Correspondent

AUSTIN, Aug. 23. — One of the best equipped stopping places for automobile travelers on a principal Texas highway has an entrance that most motorists pass before noticing it in time to drive in.

The plant is one in which expense was not spared. If the builder had consulted the state highway department, a district engineer of the highway department or a county highway foreman he would have been furnished a booklet showing him how to avoid this mistake and at the same time promote safety. Instead of dashing by, the motorists would have found an easy entrance. Business would have been better.

Study Given Problem

State Highway Engineer DeWitt Greer and Jac L. Gubbels, head of the roadside development for the Texas Highway department have issued the booklet. It offers suggestions for roadside development and improvement of properties along highways together with pictures of desirable approaches to various types of business, residence, farm and ranch properties.

There are 11 drawings for types of roadside businesses ranging from filling stations, to refreshment stands, tourist camps and a community center. Designs can be found for such establishments in rural areas and in city areas, at road intersections, at "Y" intersections, and at sites on divided lane highways.

Each has been planned to provide good visibility for the establishment and an easy traffic flow both in and out.

The suggestions are not theoretical. They have been worked out by a trial and error method from observance of actual business establishments along highways.

Gubbels says it has been found that the successful establishments are ones that have incorporated some or all of a group of principles.

SPACIOUSNESS is an important feature. Other important factors are uninterrupted circulation for automobiles; accessibility to the highway with least obstruction to the flow of traffic; broad driveways and sufficient parking area. A 50-foot set back for permanent buildings is recommended or a 30-foot set back for buildings that have their service areas in the rear.

The various designs compiled in the booklet control the traffic flow by "islands." These are grass plots or plots with low shrubbery that do not obstruct vision.

Other Recommendations Made

The same department publication presents seven designs for entrances to residences, farms and ranches on highways. These are drawn to be suitable to the property. Gubbels warns that a massive entrance should lead to a pretentious dwelling and not to a small cottage. Stone posts and low stone walls are recommended for entrances to stone houses while in wooded areas timber entrances and post-and-rail fences are recommended.

Shrubs and hedges are used in the illustrated entrances to relieve the stiffness and bareness of all types of entrances but shrubs higher than four feet and trees with branches lower than eight feet from the ground are excluded as too likely to hinder clear vision. Local structural materials and indigenous plants are recommended.

ONE of the designs is for an entrance with cattle guards for a ranch. Cacti are used for decorative effect. A rustic entrance is submitted for use in wooded hilly country and Kentucky-type fences and entrances for stock farms in wooded areas. Ten types of fences are shown and a group of suitable entrance signs for farms, dairies and ranches.

RADIO PROGRAMS PLANNED

A printed manual that will assist state public school teachers to study in advance the programs that are to be broadcast by Texas School of the Air over Texas Quality network beginning Sept. 29, is being prepared by the department of education.

The department of education in conjunction with the state safety commission also is working up a manual on safety for use in schools. Text books on safety already are used but the text being prepared now deals particularly with hazards likely to be encountered in Texas.

Another state publication is a revised hand book on fire prevention. It will be ready for distribution in the public schools about the first week in September.

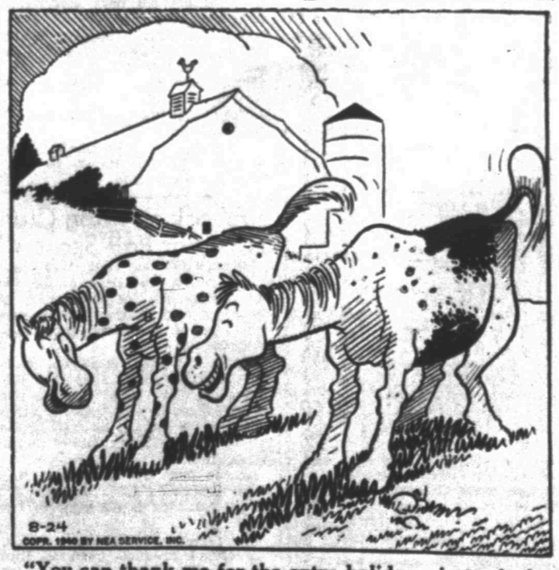

Arrangements have been made by which cities will receive a reduction in fire insurance rates where fire prevention is taught in the schools in courses that meet specified requirements.

In all except senior high schools two fire drills are required monthly. One is required in senior high schools.

Most Papers Favor Willkie

NEW YORK, Aug. 23 (U.P.)—Editor and Publisher, newspaper trade magazine, reported today that a survey showed 66.3 per cent of the nation's daily newspapers have given their editorial support to the Republican presidential candidacy of Wendell L. Willkie, and that 20.1 per cent support the third term candidacy of President Roosevelt.

The magazine said its poll covered 54.5 per cent of the entire daily press. The proportion of returns is best from the states in which the "newspaper preference for Mr. Willkie is marked and from those where newspaper opinion divides fairly evenly," the magazine reported. Response was weakest from states which traditionally favor the Democratic candidate, the magazine said, adding that "these latter states also contribute the major part of the papers which state that they have not yet announced their selection, or that they intend to remain non-partisan."

Advantage Greater

The magazine said that Willkie's present advantage "is considerably greater than that held by Alfred M. Landon over Mr. Roosevelt in newspaper preference four years ago."

The editors were asked whether they had supported Mr. Roosevelt in 1932 and 1936. The results in the number of newspapers for the three years showed that Mr. Roosevelt had the support of 399 newspapers in 1932 and 356 in 1936, as compared with 208 so far this year. The Republican candidates in 1932 and 1936 had the support of 573 and 623 newspapers, respectively, and to date Willkie is supported by 683 papers. Neutral or uncommitted newspapers in the present campaign totaled 139, to date, as compared with 89 in 1932 and 52 in 1936.

Jewish Persecution Starts In France; Windows Broken

By GLEN STADLER
United Press Staff Correspondent

PARIS, Aug. 20 (Via Air Courier to Berlin—Delayed) — A group of youths today marched along the Champs Elysee and smashed the windows of seven shops said to have been owned by Jews.

German soldiers photographed the scene as four of the youths were arrested by French police.

"Down with the Jews," the youths shouted as they fought with shop attendants, several of whom were injured.

A Mere Sample

Robert Hersant, leader of the newly organized Youth Front, said that the demonstrations merely were a sample and beginning throughout occupied France of manifestations against Jews, Masons and capitalists "who are responsible for the disorganization of the French social and economic order."

All of the attacked shops, such as Maggy Rouf, Tout Main, Anabel and Marie Louise, dressmakers, Levitan, interior decorator, Cecil, shoeshop and Leroy, optician, were near the headquarters of the Youth Front.

No Jews Allowed

"France will be what we make it," is the motto of the Young Front. It is one of several youth movements started since Germany's occupation of France.

Tuesday's demonstrations marked the first in which there was violence. Newspapers, however, had been persistent in attacks on Jews and Masons.

The Publication France au Travail in its first issue on July 1 advocated the isolation of all Jews on an island such as Australia, Madagascar or England. Several shops and cafes in Paris display signs saying "no Jews allowed."

Body Of Infant Found Floating In Bathtub

HOUSTON, Aug. 23. (U.P.) — An 11-months-old baby, Lawrence L. Staudt, drowned in the bathtub of his parents home today, the victim of an innocent prank by a two-year-old baby brother.

The baby had been left in the bathtub, according to neighbors, when the tragedy occurred.

"Mrs. Staudt told me that she had stepped out of the house for a moment," Mrs. J. E. Kervin said.

"When she returned she found that her other baby son, Rudolph, who is only two years old, had entered the bathroom and innocently turned the faucet in the tub.

"Mrs. Staudt said the bathtub had filled with water, and the boby's body was floating in the tub.

"She pulled the child from the tub and rushed to the home of Mrs. L. W. Robertson, next door," Mrs. Kervin conitnued, 'but it was too late."

FIRST STUMBLE IN WEEK

NEW YORK, Aug. 23 —Leading stocks stumble in today's market for the first time this week.

The trend was lower from the start but volume dwindled after the first hour. Occasional recovery shifts met with faint response and prices generally closed around the lows of the day at declines of 1 to 3 points.

Steels, motors, aircrafts and specialties were principal sufferers. At that, there was a smattering of plus signs at the finish.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues was off .5 of a point at 42.2 after five successive advances. Transfers amounted to 294,460 shares compared with 442,180 the day before.

The cashing in of profits by speculative forces, brokers said, was natural in view of the lengthy upturn. The fact activity lessened on the setback was interpreted as constructive.

Renewal of Nazi air raids over England served to revive some nervousness in boardrooms. Hopes for British successes were still high, but Wall street wanted more assurances that the Germans could be repelled.

Aside from pessimism over congressional delays in mapping a national tax program and settling disputed excess profits proposals, business items remained fairly comforting to financial quarters.

Prominent share losers included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Glenn Martin, Lockheed, Dow Chemical, Westinghouse, du Pont, Anaconda, Phelps Dodge, Great Northern, International Paper preferred, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward and North American.

CITATION BY PUBLICATION
THE STATE OF TEXAS
To the Sheriff or Any Constable of Lubbock County, Greeting:

You are hereby commanded to summon Jessie Lee Robison by making publication of this Citation once in each week for four consecutive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your County, if there be a newspaper published therein, but if not, then in the nearest County where a newspaper is published, to appear at the next regular term of the 99th District Court of Lubbock county, to be holden at the Court House thereof, in Lubbock, on the 1st Monday in September A. D. 1940, the same being the 2nd day of September, A. D. 1940, then and there to answer a petition filed in said Court on the 2nd day of August, A. D. 1940, in a suit numbered on the docket of said Court No. 8944, wherein Lee Neta Robison is Plaintiff, and Jessie Lee Robison is Defendant, and a brief statement of plaintiff's cause of action, being as follows:

That this is a suit for divorce; that plaintiff and defendant were lawfully married on or about the 30th day of July, 1936, and continued to live together as husband and wife until on or about the 15th day of September, 1939, that during the time they lived together as aforesaid she obeyed her marital obligations but that the defendant was guilty of cruelty towards plaintiff, which made their further living together insupportable. That plaintiff and defendant have no children nor no community property. That plaintiff's maiden name was Lee Neta McComb.

Wherefore, plaintiff prays that the defendant be cited to appear and answer herein and on final hearing she have judgment dissolving said marriage, restoration of her maiden name, and for costs of suit, and such other and further relief, special, general, in law and equity, to which she may be entitled.

Herein fail not but have before said Court, at its next regular term, this writ with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and seal of said Court, at office in Lubbock, Texas, on this 2nd day of August, A. D. 1940.

ROYAL FERGUSON, Clerk,
99th District Court, Lubbock County, Texas.
(Seal) ELMO PAYNE, Deputy.

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Aug. 23 (AP)—Cotton futures took a bearish view of the government ginning report today and prices dropped 7 to 8 points.

Selling pressure outweighed good demand from trade and spot interests which followed the sudden expansion in textile sales Thursday.

Bombay was active on the downside, putting from 10,000 to 15,000 bales on the market. This pressure followed a decline in the East Indian market and consequent widening of New York-Bombay differences.

Lateness of the current crop was emphasized by the ginnings report to Aug. 16 which placed the total at less than 50 per cent of cotton ginned to the same time last year.

Worth street reported little disposition to follow through yesterday big turnover.

Exports Thursday 3,041 bales; season so far 41,054. Port receipts 21,600. Port stocks 3,518,428.

AVERAGE PRICE

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 23 (AP)—The average price of middling 15-16ths-inch cotton today at ten designated southern spot markets was 10 points lower at 9.70 cents a pound.

Mystery Killing Is Solved By Officers

HOPE, Ark., Aug. 23. (AP)—A small detachment of state police and county officers, working at high speed during the night, today apparently solved a mystery killing, captured a negro they said confessed the crime and then outwitted a pursuing mob of white men who sought to take the prisoner in their own hands.

Sergt. F. V. Haynie of the state police notified Hope authorities at noon today the negro was safe in an unannounced jail. Haynie said the prisoner confessed robbing and fatally beating Orville Cox, 22, white farmer, here last night.

No formal charge had been filed against the negro shortly after noon.

Officers captured the negro this morning.

En route back to Hope with their prisoner, the officers were sighted by a group of independent searchers. A highway chase resulted in which the officers finally succeeded in outdistancing their pursuers.

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, Aug. 23 (AP)—Grain traders who had modest profits as a result of a 4-cent wheat price advance since the 1940 lows were established a week ago took advantage of the opportunity today and their selling, plus some liquidation of September contracts caused prices to fall more than a cent.

Weakness of securities and an upward revision of a private Canadian wheat crop estimate encouraged profit takers. Some hedging also was in evidence but this was on a small scale inasmuch as trade reports indicated large quantities of the new crop are being held off the market temporarily due in part to the government loan program. Minneapolis reports were that out of 692 cars received there 85 to 90 per cent went into storage.

September contracts, which become deliverable in about a week, led the decline, showing a loss of as much as 1¼ cent at one time. Closing prices were ¾ to 1⅛ lower than yesterday, Sept. 69¼@69⅜, Dec. 71⅜@71¼. Corn closed ⅛ to ½ lower, Sept. 60⅜, Dec. 55¼; oats ¼ to ⅜ down; rye ⅜ off and lard 10 to 13 lower.

Negotiations Are In Final Stage

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23. (UP) — War department officials today described as in the final stage of completion negotiations with North American Aviation corporation for operating the army's first aircraft factory to be erected at Dallas, Texas.

The deal is expected to involve between $7,000,000 and $8,000,000.

Under the plan the government would build the plant, which would be leased and operated on a fixed fee basis by the west coast aviation firm. This is in line with previous policies of the administraton to set up the nation's first large munitions industry. That program involves about 60 plants costing $700,000,000.

Similar Deal

The North American negotiations are similar to a deal made recently by the war department with E. I. du Pont de Nemours and company, Inc., involving constructoin by the army of a $25,000,000 smokeless powder plant at Charlestown, Ind., but which will be operated by du Pont.

Under this plan, the government retains title to the property and can maintain it as a "shadow" or reserve plant if not needed for actual production.

Army officials did not disclose the number of aircraft plants that might be erected in the program. The number, it was understood, depends on the ability of private industry to absorb the production load envisaged in building 35,000 planes for the army and navy by 1942.

Fungi in its various forms, is responsible for many of the diseases and decay of animals and plants.

Mann Speaks To Lubbock Group

One hundred and twenty-five lawyers, American Business club members and civic leaders, heard Gerald C. Mann, attorney general of Texas, give a brief summary of his 18 months as chief legal official of the state in an address Friday noon in Hilton hotel before a joint meeting of the club and the local bar.

Address of the attorney general was broadcast over KFYO with Bruce Collier, station employe and member of the A.B.C. presiding. Following the talk, attorneys and others met Mann, including several with whom he was personally acquainted.

Vaughn E. Wilson, president of the bar, to whom President Bob Gee of the A. B. C. turned the program, introduced the attorney general. Seated at the head table with the guest were Judge Daniel A. Blair of the 72nd district court; Judge E. L. Pitts of the 99th district court, Judge Alton B. Chapman of Floydada of the 110th district court; Hop Halsey, state representative elect; Dewitt Landis of KFYO and George Berry, former assistant to the attorney general and chairman of the bar association's arrangement committee.

Visitors Are Introduced

Berry introduced the visitors and members of the bar association stood. President Clifford B. Jones of Texas Technological college and Mayor Carl Slaton also were guests.

Mann explained he was not making a political speech. He said he had made over 120 speeches since the first of August and that he would finish his trips over the state next week. He cited numerous cases which his department had handled for the state of Texas.

Before leaving for Lamesa, where he was scheduled to speak earlier than he had at first planned, Mann arranged with Tom Garrard of Tahoka for a brief stop there. He was to go on to San Angelo for a night address.

Mann told his audience "I have resolved to stay in Austin and attend to the job you elected me to," adding that during August he was visiting every section of the state to make a report of what he had accomplished.

Largest Law Office

"The attorney general's office of Texas is the largest law office in the state," he pointed out. "It handles more law cases than any other office in the state. I have endeavored to conduct a law office and not a political office."

He told of having offered positions to some of the prominent attorneys of the state and of their working with him. Included were W. F. Moore of Paris, now chief justice; Ocie Speer, George Barcus, Grover Sellers, Bryce Bryant and Albert Rollins. He mentioned a Lubbock attorney who had served in his office for eight or nine months, Berry.

Record Is Cited

The office serves all of the state departments and offices, all state schools and colleges and eleemosynary institutions, as well as county attorneys, and other county officers, including commissioner courts. In 18 months his office has written 2,500 opinions.

Mann mentioned his court record, taking five cases before the U. S. supreme court and winning four; winning 60 out of 78 cases before the civil appeals courts and 17 out of the 19 cases before the state supreme court. His efforts to enforce laws were briefly outlined, including cases against "racketeering insurance companies," oil companies, accused of dumping salt water in streams, the famous "Padre Island" case and other well known legal cases.

French Children To Be In Desperate Need By Jan. 1

VICHY, France, Aug. 23. (U.P.) — American Quaker relief authorities said today that on the basis of a survey of the occupied and unoccupied regions of France, 3,000,000 French children will be desperately in need of milk this winter.

Dr. Joseph Stokes of Philadelphia, a professor at the University of Pennsylvania, said that "if France doesn't get vitamins by Christmas, more children will die this winter than France had men killed in the war."

Dr. Stokes left for Lisbon today, carrying a copy of the survey which will become the basis of the Quakers' relief work in France this winter. The survey covered German army prison camps and French refugee concentrations, as well as the food prospects of the unoccupied provinces of France resulting from the British blockade.

The conclusion was drawn that France urgently needs medical supplies, milk, oils, fats and meats.

Rites For J. N. Farr Will Be Read Today

Funeral services for J. N. Farr, 68, who died at his home northwest of Texas Technological college about midnight Thursday, will be conducted at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at Rix chapel.

Rev. Jeff D. Welch pastor of Central Baptist church, will officiate, assisted by Rev. T. H. McLain. Burial will be in Memorial Park cemetery.

Survivors include the wife; three sons, M. S. Farr of Levelland, Tom Farr of Anton and J. B. Farr of Lubbock; four daughters, Mrs. Clara Ross of Temple, Mrs. Lula Ashby and Mrs. Paul Mims of Lubbock and Mrs. J. W. Read of Olton, and 26 grandchildren.

The family lived at Levelland 13 years before moving to Lubbock county eight years ago.

Italian Tanker Is Beached In Flight

BOSTON, Aug. 23. (U.P.) — When the Honduran freighter Oradell arrived here today, crew members reported that a heavily laden, 10,000-ton Italian tanker was beached on sandbars at the entrance to the harbor of Maracaibo, Venezuala, to escape a pursuing British cruiser.

The tanker's officers, they said, were unable to halt and pick up a pilot and in attempting to navigate the Bay ran ashore.

The men also said that heavy British patrols aided by planes were active in West Indian waters. They said they sighted two large British convoys off the Bahamas and that more than 50 British tankers were anchored at Maracaibo waiting for convoy.

Illinois Proves Vital In Oil

By JAMES J. DOWNING
United Press Staff Correspondent

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 23.—Indication of the extent of the midwestern oil industry's dependence upon Illinois crude production was given this week when major buyers began bidding for the ever-slackening output of the state.

First concrete result of the brisk competition for oil was an increase of 10 cents a barrel in Illinois crude prices. Other developments were yet to be evaluated.

Observers expected, however, that premium prices and the apparent ready market for Illinois oil would boom wildcatting either in untested areas or would result in seeking for oil in formations not yet tapped.

Much of Illinois' record production of the last year came from a formation not previously thought prolific—the devonian limestone strata. Major companies are expected to deepen some test wells to see if production can be obtained at lower levels.

Illinois has fallen off nearly 200,000 barrels daily in the last three months. Poor production methods are generally held responsible for the decline, according to geologists.

Illinois production methods contrast sharply with those employed in older, more settled oil states. In Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas, for example, flush (gusher type) wells are not allowed to flow at their full rate. They are allowed only a certain measured rate of production daily.

Pressure Conserved

The slowed production method allows all the oil possible to be recovered to be brought to the surface. Gas pressure which drives the oil out of the ground is carefully conserved. Oil that must be pumped from the ground is expensive oil. Experience has shown that wells from which production is controlled will continue to produce in marketable quantities for years.

Illinois operators, confronted with rich, flush production and a ready market, have abandoned orderly production methods for a quick return on their investments. Not only have wells been allowed to flow unrestrainedly, but some operators have sucked the oil from the ground with vacuum pumps.

The result has been a quick peak and a rapid decline in production from the once rich devonian fields around Centralia.

The more than 400,000-barrel increase in Illinois production over a period of two years, near the big central markets, took a commensurate part of the markets once served by the Midcontinent states. Those states have gradually reduced production allowables to prevent flooding the available market with unneeded oil.

Producers forecast a steady rise in Midcontinent output now to take up any slack by dwindling production in Illinois.

BEER HELPS AUSTRALIA

CANBERRA, Australia. (U.P.)—Beer will pay a part of the cost of Australia's participation in the present war. The excise duty on it has been raised 13 per cent, consumption has increased and the income on it is pouring in at the rate of $40,000,000 annually, or one-tenth of the entire war budget for the first year.

Deckboy Credits His Life To Heroic Crew

HOUSTON, Aug. 23 (AP) — Eric Pearson, young Galveston deckboy aboard the tanker Seakay, today gave full credit for his life to a heroic crew.

Pearson, son of Capt. E. R. Pearson of Galveston, was swept from the tanker Aug. 10 while the ship battled a tropical disturbance off the Florida coast.

After being in the water nearly an hour, he was rescued by crew members who fought heavy seas in a lifeboat to reach him.

Details of the rescue were unfolded by Capt. E. H. Englebrecht, master of the Seakay, which was loading oil here.

The case was investigated by the United States Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation, he said, which commended the lifeboat crew "for their skill and courage in effecting the rescue. Bravery like this adds another glorious chapter to the history of the American merchant marine."

Torkild Rieber Quits Posts

NEW YORK, Aug. 23. (U.P.)—Torkild Rieber, who resigned as chairman of the Texas corporation recently when his name was linked with the activities of a German emissary to American businessmen, today severed all connection with the corporation and its subsidiaries.

Following up his resignation Aug. 12 as chief executive officer of the Huge Petroleum company, Rieber today resigned as a director of the Texas corporation and the Texas company.

In resigning as chairman of the board Rieber issued a statement asserting that he had taken that action "because of certain publicity detrimental to the Texas corporation" arising from his association with the commercial counselor of the German embassy, Dr. Gerhard Alois Westrick.

Changes Made

Rieber, a Norwegian by birth, who rose from the command of an oil tanker to the chief executive post of one of America's biggest oil companies, first became connected with the Texas corporation 36 years ago.

The Texas corporation announced today that the post of chairman of the board had been abolished and the duties of that office have been assumed by W. S. S. Rodgers, in addition to his duties as president.

Charles A. McCulloch, a director of the Texas corporation and the Texas company was elected a member of the executive committee to fill the vacancy created by Rieber's retirement.

C. E. Olmstead, vice president, was elected a director to replace Rieber.

WPA Officials Open Meet Here

Roundtable discussion of plans for operation of Works Progress administration projects in Lubbock and four other South Plains towns through the fall, winter and spring will continue today at a meeting in Hilton hotel.

A two-day conference opened Friday. Project superintendents in Lubbock district present included Ed Strout, Snyder; Miss Imogene Douglas, Plainview; Miss Dona Huff, Littlefield; W. L. Hargrave, Lamesa, and Mrs. John W. Wilson, Lubbock.

Others Are Present

Also present were L. H. Brotherton, district supervisor of recreation projects in Amarillo district; Alvin R. Eggeling, district supervisor in Lubbock district; and Miss Evelyn Richter, Lubbock district director of professional and service projects.

Speakers at the opening session were J. O. Jones, Lubbock district manager of the WPA, and Earl E. Kerr, district supervisor of employment. Roundtable discussions occupy practically all the remainder of the conference.

Present at a luncheon in the Hilton were those attending the conference and members of the city recreation board, composed of W. H. Evans, Marion Sanford, Mrs. S. E. Cone, H. C. Pender and W. O. Daniels. K. N. Clapp, chairman of the city parks board, also was a guest.

Barrage Balloon In London On Rampage

LONDON, Aug. 23. (AP)—A barrage broke loose and went on a rampage over London today, knocking over chimney pots and setting off showers of sparks by trailing its cable over trolley wires.

Finally it tangled on St. Mark's church tower. While firemen, police and a balloon crew were trying to free it, it suddenly gave a yank that pulled the church spire loose, snapped its cable and sailed away.
