COLONEL GIVEN CHANCE AT ONE OF 3 VERDICTS

Marine Court Martial Has Privilege of Choosing Result

DECISION WITHHELD

Findings of Court Must Go To Navy Secretary Before Public

SAN DIEGO, Calif., April 18.—(AP)—One of several decisions may be reached by the general court martial board trying Colonel Alexander S. Williams on a charge of intoxication, it was explained today by officers familiar with military court procedure.

If Colonel Williams is "most honorably acquitted," the words "most honorably," will signify that in the opinion of the court he never should have been brought to trial.

If honorably acquitted," it will mean that the court has been led to believe that the evidence was of such a nature as to clear the defendant entirely of the charges preferred. If just the word "acquitted," is spoken, it will signify that the court believes that the defendant was not entirely innocent, but that the evidence adduced was not of sufficient merit to convict. In other words the defendant is given the benefit of the doubt.

Should Colonel Williams be found guilty, no decision will be announced by the court until the findings and recommendations for clemency, if any, have been forwarded to Rear Admiral Edward H. Campbell, judge advocate general of the navy who in turn will render his decision direct to the secretary of the navy.

All that is left of historic Cape Helosen lighthouse, on Delaware Bay, near Lewes, Del., which was toppled into the sea by the force of a storm. Strangely, the house beside it survived. The lighthouse, second oldest on the Atlantic coast, was constructed by the British in 1765.

DIVE IS FATAL TO STUNT FLIER

Fifty Foot Plunge Into The Water Costs Life Of Volunteer

VERO BEACH, Fla., April 18.—(AP)—A leap from an airplane into the ocean as a stunt in an air circus this afternoon killed Jewell W. Bell, 24, of Louisville, a volunteer performer.

Several thousand persons on shore witnessed the accident.

Bell dropped from the lower wing of the plane which was driven by Roy A. Hearn, stunt pilot, and fell 50 feet into the water.

He struck the surface on his back and ricochetted about 20 feet. The body did not appear on the surface again. Efforts to locate it were unsuccessful.

He fell in about 25 feet of water, about 200 feet from shore. His leap was not a scheduled part of the program and he is said to have had no experience as an aviator.

When he learned that a friend was to make a parachute drop, Bell was said to have asked to be allowed to do a trick, saying he once dived into the Ohio river from a fast train.

The plane was traveling 50 miles an hour. Bell was an employe of a local engineering company.

Reed had served two years of a 15-year sentence on a charge of robbery. He was convicted in Tarrant county. Callineaux was under a 50-year sentence on a charge of robbery by firearms. He had served three and a half years of his time when he escaped, prison officials say.

WILD HIGH FLIER

AUSTIN, April 18.—(AP)—An airplane running wild without a pilot on the Cameron road flying field here this afternoon, crashed into a touring car at the edge of the field, partially wrecking the automobile and breaking a wing of the plane.

Occupants of the car jumped when they saw the plane coming and narrowly escaped injury.

Other bystanders on the field ran into a nearby house when the plane started on its undirected cruise.

Discouragement, Success Come To Houston's Army

American Troops Not To Aid; Santa Ana's Plans Revealed

HARRISBURG, April 18, 1836.—The Texans met with both reverses and good fortune today: with the discouragement of finding their belief of yesterday unfounded that American troops have crossed to their assistance; with encouragement that they have definite knowledge of the plans of Santa Anna, dictator-warrior of Mexico. On the success of Deaf Smith, picturesque scout whose bravery some day will be the theme of books, in capturing a Mexican courier today, will turn the course of the entire Texas army campaign for the next few days.

Secretary of State Carson's reports from Nacogdoches, which reached Houston yesterday that General Gaines was sending well-armed and equiped troops across into Texas from the Sabine to the Neches, and perhaps on here to the temporary headquarters of the 800 Texas soldiers, were followed today by later reports that Gaines had stopped the U. S. soldiers at Natchitoches, and is holding them there, while the intervention negotiations go back to Washington where they have been entangled with annexation and political issues. Houston, in his vehement, outspoken fashion, tonight said all hope of help from the States is gone—gone for many weeks at least.

A Battle Certain.

But Santa Anna is somewhere in front of the army. Perhaps a day, perhaps three days' march. A definite engagement is sure. The troops are joyous. They have been in high excitement ever since Houston turned in pursuit of the Mexicans several days ago; their enthusiasm at the prospect of American help was but little dimmed today when Houston made a speech, telling the new developments. He told of the new dispatches from Carson after he had

Police, checking the telephone call and finding that it was made by a woman, were convinced that she timed the call as a lure to draw Goldberg from his restaurant so he would be a fair target for the gunmen.

Two bullets pierced Goldberg's brain. The gunmen escaped.

ENDS HIS LIFE WITH PISTOL

L. W. Aldridge Shoots Self In Tenth Street Home Sunday Night

L. N. Aldridge, a local automobile salesman whose home was said to be in Cooper, Texas, was found dead shortly after midnight Sunday in his room at 1300 Tenth street where he was living. A bullet wound was in the chest and an automatic pistol was found on the floor at his side.

Justice of the Peace R. V. Gwinn, called to hold an inquest, returned a verdict of death caused by a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

Other roomers at the house were aroused by the man's groans, although no one heard a shot. The noise of the body falling to the floor was also noticed, several roomers stated. None of the numerous roomers in the building, however, noticed a pistol report. Three groans were heard by sleepers in the building and when an investigation was made Aldridge was found dead on the floor.

Little could be learned of the man last night. He had been a roomer at the Tenth street residence about two weeks but had given no indication of moroseness, it was said.

He made several attempts Sunday night, all apparently futile, to reach someone by phone, it was thought, and shortly after the last attempt the shooting took place.

The Light Will Shine

An Editorial

The Record News has no personal quarrel with any man or any faction. It is in business to print legitimate news and not to malign or spray invective against anyone who may, with or without reason, come under its displeasure. It believes it has a definite service to perform in the life of the community, just as any other reputable newspaper has a service to give in any other community. It has in the past attempted to prosecute its journalistic course on an ethical and serviceable plane in which the best interests of Wichita Falls and its citizenship have been made paramount to every other consideration. Such will be its course in the future.

There are times, though, when it is difficult to act with judicious restraint. Sometimes the Record News sees things that arouse its righteous indignation; and, human falability being as it is, the men who make the Record News have been hard pressed to curb their longing to spread vitrolic gospel abroad in the land.

On occasions, however, opportunity has come to point out some conditions that are patently inimical to public welfare. The paper, in the course of its work, has come across instances of flagrant breaches of conduct—sometimes on the part of individuals, sometimes on the part of organizations, sometimes on the part of other entities. And when ever it has found such a condition existing, it has protested vehemently without regard for whose toes were trampled. Again, such will be its course in the future.

Within the last three days Wichita Falls has been treated to the spectacle of its county officers, wearing the badges and guns of authority, using the corridors of the court house for a fistic arena in which to inflict bodily punishment on a newspaper representative who dared to tell the public some plain facts about the officers the public expected to enforce its laws. And, after one such burst of effrontery, a second, more aggravated than the first was launched while other law enforcement officers stood by and watched.

All this, it is to be understood, within the portals of the county court house.

The ire of these officers was aroused because the Record News made public the fact they were openly befriending a convicted murderer who had been placed in their care for safe keeping. When the time came for him to begin serving a 25-year prison sentence, these officers busied themselves locally and in Austin to intercede with the governor, and the result was that he was given a 60-day furlough in which he went scot free with a 25-year murder conviction hanging over his head.

The public knows the rest of the story. In less than two weeks this man, freed through the efforts of the county's law enforcement officers themselves, roamed the highways in the dead of night, armed to the hilt, "with a mind and conscience regardless of social duty and fatally bent on mischief," as the lawyers express it.

WITH HIM WENT ANOTHER MAN, WEARING THE BADGE OF A COUNTY OFFICER AND CARRYING AN OFFICIAL COMMISSION FROM THE CHIEF OF THESE SAME OFFICERS.

They were arrested, and are now formally charged with hi-jacking two men in Holliday. Both went to jail and their official friends at the court house busied themselves again—this time with well directed energy. The erring officer was straightway deprived of his cloak of officialdom and the governor was asked to revoke the furlough of the convicted murderer.

If conditions such as these are not intolerable the Record News cannot conceive of conditions that are. It protested at the time, it has protested since, notwithstanding the abuses and indignities these officers have heaped upon its representatives—and what is more, it will continue its protests until those responsible for allowing such conditions to exist are brought to an accounting. With everyone who represents law and reveres justice, the Record News is convinced that this court house despotism will reap its just deserts. The time has passed in Texas when the rule of the fist, like the rule of the six shooter, can be substituted in any instance for the rule of established law and order. If these officers cannot understand this fact, the law provides a way in which substitutions can be made of officers who do understand it.

The Record News proposes to see that through one of these two alternatives, the light of understanding is made to shine at the court house.

Spanish Aviators Land In Calcutta

CALCUTTA, India, April 18.—(AP)—Captains Loriga and Gonzalez- Gallarza, Spanish aviators, flying from Madrid to Manila, have covered another lap of their journey—from Agra, united provinces, India, to Calcutta about 700 miles.

Captain Gonzalez-Gallarza arrived here first, two hours ahead of Loriga, who was detained at Agra because of a bursted plane tire. The actual flying time was seven hours.

Gonzalez-Gallarza said today's flight was uneventful. He flew at a height of 6,500 feet, finding the air "bumpy" because of the excessive heat.

Workmen in Feather Creek Tunnel Killed in Cave-In

QUINCY, Calif., April 18.—(AP) Six men, entombed behind a 35-foot cave-in in the grizzly creek tunnel of the Feather Mountain Power company, on the western side of Bucks mountain, 30 miles from here were believed to be dead tonight. Fellow employes are seeking to rescue them.

The cave-in occurred between 9 p. m. and midnight last night, but was not discovered until this morning when the early shift reported for work. At 5 o'clock tonight the rescuers had 20 feet of debris yet to excavate and expected to reach the buried men by tomorrow morning.

LAVA STREAMS POURING FROM OLD MAUNA LOA

Houses Engulfed Under 50 Feet of Molten Rock Near Crater

HOT 3,000 FEET UP

Aviators Feel Heat Of The Liquid Fire at Great Height

KONA, Hawaii, April 18.—(AP)—The village of Hoopulon on the southwest shore of the island of Hawaii was completely wiped out today by an avalanche of lava that burst forth from the volcano Mauna Loa. Ten to fifteen homes were engulfed but there is no report of what became of the inhabitants.

A flood of molten rock pouring out from the crater struck the sea at 6:21 a. m., starting the ocean boiling several hundred feet out at sea.

Plunging into the water just south of Hoopulon, the lava turned in the direction of Kona filling the bay and completely burying the landing and from ten to fifteen homes located in the vicinity. All houses and the wharf at Hoopulon were engulfed under fifty foot of lava, the postoffice being the last building to go. It burst into flames at 8:30 a. m.

As the streams of lava which flowed from an 8,000-foot level in approximately four days approached the ocean Saturday afternoon it split into two branches. Eight hundred feet from the water one stream turned toward Hoopulon and the other started in the direction of Milolii.

Appeal Vainless

Old Hawaiian kahunas started incantations of appeal to Pele (a Hiwaiian goddess associated with the volcano Kilauea) not to destroy their homes any more.

Their appeal failed to stop the flow as a steady onrush of lava continued its course of destruction.

Army airplanes arrived a few hours after the village was wiped out, but were unable to locate the flow definitely because of the dense steam and smoke. The aviators reported the heat was intense at an elevation of 3,000 feet but succeeded in getting some pictures. Huge clouds of steam hung over the ocean, rising to a height of several hundred feet. As the lava struck the water tremendous rockets of steam shot into the air showering the entire region about the bay.

So far as can be learned there were no casualties.

The heat of the super-heated flow had been hovering above the village for more than 36 hours. Last night a heavy flow from the mountain stirred the great pile of cooling slag into action, and the giant moved forward over the village and into the ocean.

National Park

Mauna Loa is one of the three celebrated Hawaiian volcanoes set aside as national parks by congress. The others are Kilauea and Haleakala.

Mauna Loa has poured forth more lava during the last century than any other volcano.

Around its base is a gorgeous tropical forest, including mahogany groves, dense growth of tree ferns rising to a height of forty feet, and green meadows. Sandal wood now rare, grows here luxuriantly.

HILO, T. H., April 18.—(AP)—The flow of lava moving in the direction of Kaluku, was within three miles of the government road today crackling and sizzling on an 1,800-foot front. As the molten stream rolls on, it gathers momentum and is expected to reach the road by Monday.

The volcano Mauna Loa, ablaze with fire, presents the most spectacular show it has offered in the memory of man. Fountains estimated to be four hundred feet high leaped from three different craters last night while three rivers of lava, zigzagging dragon shape down the mountain cast a red glow on the clouds and filled the air with maroon colored smoke.

PASSENGERS ON STEAMER WATCH FIERY BLASTS

ABOARD STEAMER HALEAKALA, April 18.—(AP)—Several hundred passengers gazed awe stricken today while the great volcano, Mauna Loa, rising into the clouds from the island of Hawaii, belched forth a fiery river of lava. As the vessel cruised along the south coast the flowing down the slopes of the mountain presented a gorgeous picture.

Viewed from the ocean, the upper half of the flow appeared as a molten river, which, breaking at various points into lakes of fire, sent up an incandescent flow of tremendous beauty. At 3 o'clock this morning a new outbreak appeared on the Kau side of the mountain, two distinct actions being visible.

"HER MAN"

--By Beatrice Burton--

READ THIS FIRST:

SYLVIA STARR has been engaged to RANDALL PHELPS for a year when he asks her to free him, because he's fallen in love with her chum, FAY SHIRLEY.

Heartbroken, Sylvia gives him up, to the great satisfaction of her AUNT AGONY, the shrewd old maid who brought her up. Aunt Agony calls Randy a good-for-nothing and says he'll never be faithful to any woman. Her opinion of him seems to be right, too, for presently he drops Fay and marries Sylvia after all.

After they're married he and Fay have a second love affair. And he gambles and drinks, and Sylvia has to give piano lessons to help keep a roof over their heads.

But when she breaks the news that she's going to have a baby, Randy turns over a new leaf and behaves himself for a while. And Fay quickly announces her engagement to an old beau of hers, EDDIE CARTER.

Soon after the birth of JUNIOR, the baby, Randy goes back to his old habits, however. He gives Sylvia almost no money, and buys himself an expensive new car to take his latest "crush," MRS. JANE BRACKETT, a grass widow, out riding. Sylvia goes on with her singing lessons from her former teacher.

One afternoon she sings at a tea given by MOTHER PHELPS, but Randy forbids her ever to do it again. He says he's not going to be known as the husband of "Sylvia Phelps, the Singer." But Sylvia writes a song, "When Everything's Said," that becomes popular, and she wonders what Randy will say when he comes back from a vacation in the North Woods and finds that his wife has become celebrated almost over night. He is jealous of Sylvia and hates anyone to pay attention to her, especially PETER WILK, the bachelor brother of Aunt Agony's good friend, MISS SARAH WILK.

With the first money from her song Sylvia takes Aunt Agony and the baby up to a country inn to rest. There Fay comes to lunch with her one day, brings with her two strange men, "Jim" and "Bill." Sylvia has a hard time getting rid of them, but finally does. Later that day, Peter Wilk drives up to take her back to The Nest. Randy has come home sick with the measles. While he is recovering, Mrs. Brackett announces her sudden marriage to a rich old widower, and Randy tells Sylvia he never cared for her anyway! And he seems to be in love with Sylvia once more.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER XXXVIII

"You're too darned good to me, Sylvy," Randy said, screwing out his cigarette against the ash tray. "Sometimes I think we'd get along a lot better if you weren't so good. The reason a lot of husbands cut up is because they know that no matter what they're up to, wife's at home behaving herself. Now if I had to worry about you a little it might be a good thing for me."

He was like a little boy explaining awa yhis naughtiness and asking to be forgiven. He came around the table to her, dropped down beside her and buried his face in the soft folds of her dress.

Sylvia stroked his head with her hands, not saying a word. She felt that this was one of the perfect moments in their life, together. They seemed so close, somehow.

And even if I flirt around with other women, it's you I love, underneath all the foolishness." His voice came to her muffled. "No matter who's in my arms, Sylvy, you're always in my heart."

Then he laughed and got up in a shamed sort of way. "I sound like a spring poet, don't I?" he asked and lounged into the living room to start the phonograph.

"Come here and I'll show you a new dance step," he called, and she ran in to him, her eyes shining with happiness. He caught her in his arms and she followed him, for she danced as naturally as she breathed.

But she couldn't have told you a thing about the new dance step, afterward, for her mind wasn't on it.

She was thinking over and over, "He loves me again—he's forgotten everybody but me—everybody but me."

Ah, hadn't she known he would?

CUT LINES . . . . . .

"LET'S NOT STOP AT THE HOUSE," PETER SAID SUDDENLY.

Hadn't she known all along that he would settle down pretty soon and become a dry-as-dust husband?

"You darling," she whispered to him, and kissed the front of his shirt as they danced. The plain taupe carpet was a cloud to her feet, and the stuffy little flat was Paradise to her once more.

* * *

Just then the door bell rang.

Afterward Sylvia wished from the bottom of her soul that she hadn't answered it.

But she did, and opened the door of the Nest to Fay and Eddie Carter.

"Came to see the invalid," panted Eddie, who looked exactly like a baby elephant in a baggy suit of grey flannel. "Glad you're better, Ranny."

He mopped his brow with a brilliant silk handkerchief. "My Gory, but it's a scorcher outdoors today!" he puffed, seating himself on the davenport. "Got anything to eat?"

"Make you a sandwich," Sylvia offered brightly, and she and Fay went out in to the kitchen.

Fay looked as cool as a cucumber in a green dress that was just the shade of one. Her hat was green, too, and she had square green earrings fastened in the roughed lobes of her ears. Her eyes were like green jewels, too, cold and glittering with anger.

"Did you ever see anything like Eddie in your life?" she asked Sylvia sharply as the door closed behind them. "All he wants to do is eat and drink—the pig."

Sylvia, bread knife and loaf in hand, turned to look at her in surprise. Was she really talking about her own husband this way?

"I don't know whether I can keep on living with him or not!" Fay groaned, sinking into a chair beside the kitchen table and dropping her head down on her arms. "I just hate the very sight of him! Will you please tell me why I ever married him?"

Sylvia knew perfectly why Fay had married Eddie Carter—for his money!

She knew, too, what was wrong with Fay this afternoon. She was in the throes of one of the love affairs she had been having since the time she was sixteen. She was in love with the riding master named Jim.

"She'll soon be over it," she thought, comfortably, as she cut boiled ham for Eddie's sandwich. "Her love affairs are like Ranny's—short and sweet!"

"You don't know how lucky you are," Fay told her, raising her unhappy eyes. "I know that Ranny treats you rough and never gives you a red cent, but you should worry! You're crazy about him, and that's all that matters, really, to a woman, just to have someone around that she's crazy about."

Her eyes narrowed suddenly and she dropped her voice almost to a whisper. "By the way, I want you to do me a favor, I want you to tell a lie for me," she said softly. "The other night when I got home from that spree with Bill and Jim, Eddie was there waiting for me. He'd come back to town because of Ranny's being sick, you know."

"Well, Eddie looked out and saw Bill's car, and—I told him you were along on the party. He thinks you're an angel, you know, and I knew if I told him you were with me he'd think everything was all right. So if he says anything to you about it, just pretend that you were with us, will you?" She laid her jeweled hand on Sylvia's arm, pleadingly.

"It isn't what he says to me that matters," Sylvia answered, frowning, "but what if he should say anything to Ranny about it? Ranny'd kill me!"

The minute she went into the living room with Eddie's sandwich she knew that he had said something about the trip to Ranny already, for she never had seen anything so black as the angry look that he shot at her as she passed him.

The door had scarcely closed upon Fay and Eddie an hour later before he turned to her, fairly bristling with anger.

"I hear that you and Fay had a nice party last week," he said to her in a voice that shook with fury. "Who were the two men you were with?"

"I wasn't with them on any party," Sylvia began and then she told him the whole story of the affair at the inn. He listened to it with an unbelieving smile.

"Now tell me another bedtime story!" he said scornfully, when she had finished. "You could sell me oil stock, I'm that stupid, but don't ask me to believe a story like that!" His tone was insulting.

Sylvia blushed bright scarlet. No one had ever called her a liar before, and she didn't quite know how to take it.

"Aunt Agony knows that what I say is the truth, Ranny," she answered him at last, with quiet dignity. "She saw Fay drive up with those two men that day. She heard herself invite herself to lunch. You know I haven't the slightest bit of interest in any man but you—don't you?" She came to him and put her arms around him.

But he shoved her aside. "Throw on your brakes!" he said roughly and refused to talk about the affair any more or to listen to her. He didn't so much as say goodnight when he stalked off to bed.

The next day he and Eddie Carter drove up to Lake Muskogee to join their fishing party, and Sylvia returned to Aunt Agony and the baby.

"Well," Aunt Agony snapped, when Sylvia told her how Ranny had refused to believe her. "Why should he think that you didn't want to run around with Fay and those two wild looking men? You asked them to lunch here, didn't you? And you're so thick with Fay, besides! 'Birds of a feather flock together,' you know!"

* * *

The first week in October Sarah Wilk gave a party for the women's sewing guild of her church.

She asked Sylvia to sing.

"I don't know how I can refuse her," Sylvia said anxiously to Ranny. "She's done so many lovely things for me—"

"Oh, go ahead and sing!" Ranny growled. "I've told you that it's humiliating to me to have my wife go around singing in public—but don't mind anything I say! Do as you please—you will, anyway."

Sylvia couldn't see why it should humiliate Ranny to have her sing for their friends. Perhaps Lolly was right, and Ranny was jealous of her voice!

She loved to sing.

It was pure joy to her to open her lips and hear the round golden tones pour out like moonlit water from them. She loved to give pleasure to people with her voice.

But if it made Ranny angry to have her do it, perhaps she had better give it up. It broke her heart to have him angry with her.

"I'll sing this once for Sarah, and then never again!" she made up her mind after a week of deep thought.

Three days before Sarah's party a check came from Leon Vincente's publishing house—a check for three thousand dollars!

Sylvia gasped when she opened the envelope and looked at it. Three thousand dollars for a song! Of course, "When Everything's Said," was a big success. Everywhere people were whistling it, playing it on their pianos, or listening to it on their radios. But three thousand dollars! It was beyond belief.

There were a hundred things she wanted to do with it—to buy Ranny a thin gold watch, to buy Aunt Agony a set of really nice furs, to take Junior downtown and get him all the clothes he needed for once in his short life. She could even have a new dress now for Sarah's party.

But in the end she did none of those things. She took the check down to the bank on Taft street and opened a savings account without saying a word to anyone about it.

"A penny saved is a penny earned," as Aunt Agony often said, and Sylvia's chief desire in life was to save enough pennies to buy Junior a home where he could make all the noise he wanted to—and a back yard where he could run around on his none too sturdy little legs.

So she put the money in the bank and went to Sarah's party in the old white dress which, after all, was wonderfull becoming.

"You're so pretty, my dear, that I don't know whether it's safe to let Peter drive you home or not!" Sarah said innocently when Sylvia put on her things to go home, at half past nine.

She laughed in her wholesome way as she said it, but Sylvia flushed and Peter looked away embarrassedly.

Both of them knew what Sarah, in her old maid innocence, never even suspicioned—that Peter was in love with Sylvia Phelps as he never had been in love with Sylvia Starr! The girl, Sylvia, had been beautiful with budding promise. But the woman, Sylvia, was like a full-blown rose, sensuous and alluring in her magnificent fulfillment. And beside her, all other women looked pale and anaemic and cold to Peter Wilk!

Sylvia felt his hand tremble, as he took her arm. Without a word they went down the steps into the brown darkness of the October night. Without a word they started the drive home under the stars that were like silver powder dusted across the sky. The world seemed white with moonlight and starshine.

They had reached the corner of Wing stret before Peter fipally found his voice. And it was strained and tense when he did find it.

"You sang like a bird tonight," he said.

"Oh, no, I didn't," Sylvia answered absently.

Her eyes were on the lighted windows of the nest. She had left the janitress in charge of the baby. And like all mothers, she expected the place to burn down, or the baby to fall out of the window, or some other dreadful thing to happen when she was away from home.

Peter slowed down his car, and then suddenly stepped on the gas, and sped past the apartment.

"Let's not stop at the house!" he said quickly, "it's early. Let's take a turn in Buchanan park. What do you say?"

But quick as he had been, he hadn't been quick enough for Sylvia. As they passed the apartment house, she had caught a glimpse of Ranny's roadster parked beneath the windows. He was in it with a girl—a girl in a red hat that was like a murky flame in the moonlight.

Ranny asks Sylvia to explain to his mother what she was doing in Peter Wilk's house alone with him one night last summer. Lolly and Sally King decide to give a joint party.

Oklahomans Sue On Purchase of Autos

WAURIKA, April 18.—A petition was filed this week asking for the payment of double the cost of the three coupes purchased by the county commissioners of Jefferson county, to be followed by a suit in district court as stated by Hice and Sullivan, attorneys for the tax payers who signed the petition. The county commissioners state that they bought the cars under the advice of the attorney general's office, and if it is proved, illegal they will reimburse the county. Attention was called to the purchase of the cars by the recent grand jury but the county attorney advised a wait until a case identical with this one had been settled in the supreme court having been brought by another county.

DOCTORS WILL DIAGNOSE OWN ILLS AT MEET

Noted Physicians Gather In Dallas For Convention

DALLAS, April 18.—(AP)—Organized medicine here prepared to diagnose some of its own ills and to apply the remedies in the 77th annual convention of the American Medical Association opening tomorrow for a session of five days.

The more than 90,000 American physicians who express their attitude on public questions through ther representatives in the house of delegates of the association, will determine through these delegates, their stand on certain problems within and without the organization.

Six outstanding issues confront the legislative body of the association. They are:

Reform of rules governing expert opinion evidence in court trials.
Contract practice.
State medicine.
Group practice.
Pseudo-cultists.
Changes in dispensing liquor.

Would Change Evidence.

Dr. G. E. Follansbee of Ohio said he would introduce resolution asking for legislation to correct "the abuse of the use of expert opinion evidence." The proposed resolution declares that "expert opinion evidence in both civil and criminal cases had in many instances brought public criticism and disgrace on both the legal and medical professions," and "the present procedure, in many cases, is believed to defeat the administration of even handed justice, and to operate notoriously in favor or the rich as compared with the poor before a court on similar charges." The document pledges the association's support and cooperation for legislative reform in this matter.

The term "contract practice" means the recently developed system whereby a doctor contracts to treat a large number of patients for a stipulated yearly sum each. The association already has taken a stand against this practice, but it is said this official stand is not being followed by a number of individual members, and the effort of the delegates will be directed toward effecting a means of bringing these recalcitrant members into line.

Against State Aid.

The attitude of the organization has been defined also against state medicine and group practice. The organized doctors believe the state should confine its medical activities to public health and care of the indigent and should not enter the general practice of medicine. By "group practice" is meant the system whereby a number of doctors combine in an institute or clinic and then advertise their business through the name of their organization. This suggests a frequently voiced complaint among the doctors that the insidious influence of commercialism is gaining too strong a power over the healing art.

An open hunting season will be declared against pseudo-cultists, which is the term used by physicians for a great variety of persons holding themselves out as healers through numerous arts, devices and systems. The house of delegates will discuss various means for disposing of those whom they call "the false prophets of hope."

Dr. Fred C. Warnshuis of Grand Rapids, Mich., speak of the house of delegates, expects to discuss these subjects in his opening speech to the body, which convenes at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

Discouragement, Success Come To Houston's Army

American Troops Not To Aid; Santa Ana's Plans Revealed

caused the Mexican message runner captured by Scout Smith to be brought to him and exhibited before the soldiers, and then read part of the messages from Santa Anna found on the courier.

Moses Austin Bryan, Houston's interpreter, was called, and read these dispatches to Houston, who caused the important parts of them to be read to all the men.

Santa Anna was at New Washington last night when this courier was sent out to go first to Cos, and then to General Filisola. The usurper had turned back from the unsuccessful pursuit of President Burnet, and had stopped for the night in the settlement of New Washington. His dispatches ordered General Filisola to catch up with General Cos, who has 500 men, and accompany Cos back toward this point immediately. Santa Anna is to meet his two chief lieutenants near here. He did not know that Houston had left the Brazos.

Houston will remain in this vicinity waiting for the Mexicans. He told his men he plans to catch the separate units before they unite, and undertake to defeat and turn back the smaller units before they have joined with Santa Anna.

Houston and his army reached the capitol of the republic shortly before noon today, after an arduous two-days' march from the Brazos. The entire village was found in ashes, burned by Santa Anna several days ago. President Burnet is supposed to be on Galveston Island now.

A Dramatic Capture.

Deaf Smith's capture of the Mexican courier was dramatic in the extreme, and Houston complimented him upon the bravery with which he turned accidental good fortune into an achievement of the highest importance to the army. "Deaf" told Houston he saw a riderless horse in the tall grass, and in attempting to catch it, found its owner crouched under a scrub oak. Without dismounting, he took the man's musket and pistols, and marched his prisoner to camp. On the way, the Mexican attempted to put the tiny sheaf of orders from Santa Anna in his mouth, when Deaf Smith struck him across the arm. The Mexican then handed him the roll of papers.

These dispatches, Houston said, disclosed that Santa Anna has but one piece of artillery, a brass nine-pounder, with him.

The general's address to his men was impressive. Just as the moon came up tonight, the men were called around the tent of the "silent" man who has led them. First Wharton, the adjutant general of the little force made an impressive talk to the men, in which he told them that they are probably to have the opportunity of staking their lives in a contest no less heroic than the Alamo, soon, in defense of the republic; that upon their victory or defeat must rest largely the hope of al lthose who come to Texas; the hope that the republic is to be saved, that the families and fortunes and hopes of all those who followed Austin to Texas, and all those who have come since, are dependent on the outcome of the decisive contest of arms he believes is nar.

Soon The Enemy.

Then Houston arose. Dressed as simply as any of his men, impressive in the rugged strength and the sad, exalted calm which possessed him, he spoke slowly to the men.

"You will soon meet the enemy," he said. "You will soon have a chance to avenge the Alamo and the martyrs of Goliad."

Then he had the Mexican runner brought to his side. The men cheered the account of how Smith had captured him; and when the secret information of the Mexican commander, intended for his generals alone, and giving away the Mexicans' entire campaign plans were read aloud by young Bryan, the men roared out a throat cheer. The enthusiasm of the convention, March 2, was echoed here tonight.

THE STRONG-WILLED MAN

HENRY JAMES says that effort of attention is the essential phenomenon of will.

Every reader knows by his own experience that this is so, for every reader has felt some fiery passion's grasp. What constitutes the difficulty for a man laboring under an unwise passion of action as if the passion were unwise? Certainly there is no physical difficulty. It is as easy physically to avoid a fight as to begin one, to pocket one's money or squander it on one's cupidities. The difficulty is mental; it is that of getting the idea of the wise action to stay before our mind at all.

This is what James means when he says that effort of attention is the essential phenomenon of will.

"When any strong emotional state whatever is upon us, the tendency is for no imagies but such as are congruous with it to come up. If others by chance offer themselves, they are instantly smothered and crowded out."

* * * *

If we be joyous, we cannot think of those uncertainties and risks of failures which abound upon our path; if lugubrious, we cannot think of new triumphs, travels, joys and loves; or if vengeful of our oppressors, community of nature with ourselves, James opines.

The cooling advice we get from others when the fever-fit is upon us is the most jarring and exasperating thing in life.

* * * *

"Don't let me think of that! Don't speak of it to me!" This is the sudden cry of all those who in a passion perceive sobering considerations about to check them in mid-career.

The strong-willed man, however, is the man who hears the small, still voice unflinchingly, consents to its presence, clings to it, affirms it, and holds it fast, in spite of the host of mental images which rise in revolt against it and would expel it from his mind.

"Sustained in this way," James observes, "by a resolute effort of attention, the difficult object ere long begins to call up its own congeners and associates and ends by changing the man's consciousness altogether. And with his consciousness, his action changes, for the new object, once stably in possession of the field of his thoughts, infallibly produces its own motor effects."

* * * *

In all this one sees how the immediate point of application of the volitional effort lies exclusively in the mental difficulty, a difficulty with an object of our thought.

MANGUS STILL LIVES

THE name Mangus Johnson may be more or less familiar. Mangus came from Minnesota. He had a strong voice and was fond of exercising it in public places. In a time of economic fever and political fret Minnesota sent him to the senate, where he did not linger long. Another Minnesotan, in a manner of speaking, wiped up the political map with him. Nevertheless, he brought a contest for the seat, alleging divers frauds, sundry irregularities and other injuries done him with malice aforethought. The senate committee on elections and privileges heard it all with more or less patience. Recently it unanimously voted to dismiss the Johnson-Schall contest. Minnesota, however, is not done with Mangus Johnson. His magnificent voice will boom and echo over the state, at least until June 21, for Mangus is all set to run for governor. Thus do Minnesota's sins of yesterday bring their punishment today.

RIGHTS DEMANDED

AMERICAN authors, illustrators, publishers and members of the bookmaking crafts and unions are again before congress asking for changes in the American copyright law that would place the United States in the International copyright union. It is intended to secure for Americans "a consistent protection of their literary property." These authors, artists and composers demand their full property rights in their own productions. The bill they are backing would give them this control and put them in the position to obtain the full return for their own labors to which they are entitled. Congress has had such measures before it many times. There seems to be no good reason why it should not approve a consistent as well as equitable copyright act.

A THOUGHT ON JEFFERSON

IN concluding a sound and vigorous Jefferson's birthday speech, Governor Ritchie, of Maryland, quoted Milton: "Through all the winds of doctrine were let loose to play upon the earth, so truth be in the field, we do ingloriously, by licensing and prohibiting, to misdoubt her strength. Let her and falsehood grapple; who ever knew truth put to the worse in a free and open encounter." But Governor Ritchie himself admits that Milton's truth struggled for "over a century until Jefferson vitalized it with the breath of political life." What good did it do Milton or any of humanity that was coeval with him? Nowadays we are not so patient. We want truth to triumph, at least partially, here and now, for us and ours. To say that all will be well in a hundred years does not suit us. We have to live now; we want the good things of life now. We want to enjoy some of the results and not leave them all to a future generation.

ANOTHER GOOD STEP

OF great importance to aerial navigation in Europe is the air pact now signed between France and Germany, under which new lines will begin to operate in June. A route from Paris to Berlin by way of Cologne needs to cross about 200 miles of German territory; a line to Copenhagen will pass for 300 miles above Germany. The shortest way to Moscow would be over German soil for about 600 miles. It was essential that Paris and Berlin should reach an understanding if the development of airways was to be unfettered. The agreement lifts the mutual ban that now prevents aircraft of either nation invading the atmosphere over the other—a veto that was obviously one of the legacies of wartime that stood very seriously in the way of international amity and the development of trade. American tourists planning to visit Europe this summer in greater numbers than ever have reason to rejoice in the new adjustment.

ON THE RIGHT TRACK

RECOMMENDATIONS that physical examination be required of all persons, that such examination be certified by a reputable physician, before a license be issued to any automobile owner, will be embodied in a proposed bill to be submitted to the Texas legislature by the Texas safety council.

Director W. E. James of the council predicts particular attention will be paid in the examination to a person's eyes, hearing and general neuro motor condition. Why not go all the road.

Why not test the ability of the applicant to drive a motor car. Why not prohibit the issuance of a license to children under 16? Why not bar speed maniacs? Why not bar morons. Make the test complete?

RIGHTS STILL RESPECTED

PRESIDENT Coolidge has indorsed the bill introduced into the house of representatives for adjustment of American and German claims growing out of the war. In announcing the president's approval of the measure drawn by the treasury, Secretary Mellon characterized it as one "recognizing the principle of the rights of property." This principle has always been supported by the American government, the tradition going back to Secretary of the Treasury Alexander Hamilton. His position, which has since been consistently followed, was that war does not invalidate private property rights, even though vested in the citizen of an enemy country. It is upon this principle that the administration is attempting to bring these war claims to a settlement fair to both sides.

TIME TO GET BUSY

THE vote on the Italian war debt agreement has at last been scheduled by the senate for next Wednesday afternoon. As a subject of reasonable controversy, this issue long since was worn to shreds. Nothing was left but the most piddling brand of political by-play—an opposition based upon a desire to embarrass the Coolidge administration and to affect the primary and regular elections which are to take place in the course of the year. No senator that has the slightest sense of responsibility in the conduct of American foreign relations would permit his vote to be influenced by such considerations. Those who vote against it from sincere and logical conviction will be only a handful. The rest will be triflers pure and simple, irresponsibles who abuse their constitutional right to have a voice in foreign affairs.

The Baby Established A Unique Record

DOROTHY DIX

Questions From the World of Love Answered by a Noted Authority

A woman said to me the other day: "I have two babies, and which is the greater baby I don't know. One of them is 30 years old, the other one is 3 months old, and when they make conflicting demands on my time or attention I don't know to which to give the preference."

"Give it to the big one," I replied, "you can find plenty of women to whom you can trust your baby, but you can't find any woman with whom it is safe to leave your husband. It is a lot more important to keep your big baby amused and pacified and cating out of your hand than it is your little baby, for an infant in the crib stays put, but a neglected husband is apt to roam.

"Many women never preceive this. Their first baby looms so big on their horizon that they lose sight of their husbands, and never see them again except as the baby's father.

"And while motherhood can be a career that fills a woman's life fatherhood is just as incident in a man's.

"He may be ever so fond of his children, but he wants his wife, also. He can't spend a perfectly thrilling evening watching the baby breathe just as naturally as can be. He gets bored to tears with sterilised conversation. He wants his wife to doll up for him as she used to do. He wants her to be interested in him, and to jolly him, and make a fuss over him as she did before the advent of his deadly gival.

"And it is when a man finds out that his wife has no time for him, and that his nose has been put permanently out of joint by the little stranger who is absorbing her every thought, that he first begins straying away from his own heartstone in search of diversion, which the earnest seeker generally finds. And while wife is sitting at home holding the baby's hand while it sleeps, some other lady is holding hubby's.

"You see, the thing that wives forget is the eternal small boy that lives down in the depths of every man's soul to the day of his death. We women haven't got that. The girl in us dies by the same time we are 15, and when we are grown up we are so terribly grown up and sophisticated.

"But a man never really grows up. He always has the child in him, with childish impulses and childish desires, and the ability to be amused by childish things.

"Sometimes wives forget this. Sometimes they are too dull to understand it. So when they see that they are married to great, strong six-foot men, who have made for themselves big places in business or politics, or the arts, and who, perhaps, have hundreds of men under them that they control, they fail to remember that these same men have the little boy in them, who wants to be babied and petted and coddled just as much as if he were 3 months old or 6 months old instead of his 30 years old or 60 years old.

Tchitcherin Europe's Great Menace Now

Russia's Foreign Minister Blamed for Geneva Fiasco

By MAXIMILIAN HARDEN
Special Radio Dispatch to the Record News.
Copyright, 1926, by the Consolidated Press Assn.

BERLIN, April 18.—If Georges Tchitcherin did not exist, enemies of Bolshevism would have invented him as a scarecrow.

Even the observer who endeavors to recognize the cultural work of the Russian soviet leaders is seized by a strong antipathy as soon as the commissar for international policies speaks publicly. The Lenins, Trotskys, Stalins, etc, have impressed even their opponents by their reconstruction work but Tchitcherin poses upon the field of ruin which cannot menace this Russia which is indestructable. This product of czaristic diplomacy, who resembles a fat polecat, works mainly at night, and enjoys sending evil reports abroad. He obviously regards himself as "the latest novelty," but he employs all the methods of old cabinet diplomacy—intrigue, intimidation and incitation of nation against nation—and merely substitutes brutality for the former hypocritical courtesy.

Turns on Conference.

Having failed to induce Germany not to apply for admission to the league of nations, or to bandon the Locarno pacts, Tchitcherin now is endeavoring to render the disarmament conference ineffective. He not only rudely rejects an invitation to Geneva, but accuses the league of false play. This is the trick of a pickpocket who flees and cries "stop thief."

The Woronsky murder in Switzerland, which is Tchitcherin's pretext for refusing the Geneva invitation, had no connection with the league of nations and the conflicts arising from that murder involve only Russia and Switzerland, to which Bolshevists should be grateful for the refuge it granted them in 1917. Furthermore, the league is ex-territorial and all its members and officials enjoy diplomatic privileges and immupities. The Berne government, moreover, expressly assured the Russian delegates the same protection and immunity as was accorded members of the league.

Easy to Quarrel.

But it was all too easy to pick a quarrel with Switzerland and thus escape the verdict of the league. Germany, whose ambassador, Count Morbach, was murdered in Moscow, could not, if it followed Tchitcherin's principle, negotiate at all with Russia, which appears quite as dishonest in its condemnation of political murders as in its flattery of the United States and President Coolidge.

The doubt of the United States as to Europe's serious will to disarm is praised by the same Tchitcherin as declared a week earlier that Washington was endeavoring by all means to conceal the real aim of its policy—world domination by American capital—and who declared that Russia must save Europe from being subjugated by non-continental powers.

Tchitcherin calls the Geneva and Locarno pacts repetitions of the Holy alliance of 1815 which, however, was organized by Russia and which England never joined. He declares angrily that the purpose of all these pacts is isolation and destruction of the soviet union. He emphasizes his glowing desire for disarmament, and at the same time strives for a Russo-Germany treaty, which even the political dilattanites in Berlin would regard as worthless if Russia should really disarm.

The thread which holds all this together is visible even in the dark. Lack of capital, remnants of communist dogmas and false estimates of the relations between agriculture and industry, again have upset the slowly beginning recuperation of Russia's economic life. The emergency structure of the trading organization wabbles and the purchasing power of the chervonts is sinking. The foreign minister is compelled to establish relations with countries that can lend money.

Characteristic Work.

Tchitcherin who is a friend of the German ambassador, Count Brockdorf Rantzau, bitterest enemy of the Geneva and Locarno pacts, is making his attempts along characteristic lines. He promises Germany to loosen the fetters of the Versailles treaty; he promises France assurance against British it can regain Vilna, which was seized domination; he makes Lithuania think by Poland; he employs alternate threats and amorous glance in his communications with the English, Turks, Rumanians, Poles, the Letts and the Esthonians; he tries to make confusion everywhere, and thus compel capitalistic countries to reach an understanding with the soviet union.

For this reason, he believes Russia needs an army and he therefore avoids the disarmament conference. But the game looks more dangerous than it really is. Only the guilty person need tremble at extortion and blackmail.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

Today's planetary aspects are excellent until a little after noon when they undergo a complete change, becoming overcast and adverse. This condition obtains until after dusk, at which time the aspects assume a benign character, without being actively favorable. If there be anything demanding immediate action or resolution it should, of course, receive your attention in the morning and whatever is attempted in this brief space of time promises successful results. For the balance of the day only the carrying out of routine or customary duties is recommended, as there will be sensed a sluggishness that is not conducive to progressive thought or effort.

Children born today are, according to the signs, destined to escape most of the vicissitudes of infancy. This, however, does not obviate the necessity of careful nutrition as without this, they will not be in the best position to resist the ailments that will, in all probability, cause much anxiety in the period of adolescence. In disposition, they will be pleasing and attractive. They will readily accommodate themselves to circumstances and rarely, if ever, complain. They do not promise to be aggressive but they will possess philosophical minds and this condition will prevent them from worrying.

If today is your birthday, you have many excellent traits but they are all overshadowed by the facility with which you can conjure up difficulties that will never happen and troubles that will never occur. No matter how good a prospect may be, no matter how safe a venture may appear, you always create in your own mind insuperable obstacles to success, that would not occur to anyone possessing an ordinarily sanguine temperament. You could, and would accomplish much more in life if you were a little more disposed to await trouble, rather than to anticipate it.

You possess a good degree of intellectual ability, combined with tenacity of purpose and perseverance. Your unreasonable fear, however, of what might happen dulls the edge of effort.

Your home life is probably, quite happy, and should be ideally so if you are mated with one born in June or December.

Successful people born this date are:

Mary L. Booth, author.
Wayne MacVeagh, lawyer and politician.
Leo Rassieur, lawyer and soldier.
John Uri Lloyd, chemist.

TAKE TIME TO VOTE

What are you doing to serve the flag?
You are mighty and proud and you like to brag
What a flag it is with its folds unfurled
Like a flag of hope all over the world.
Oh, you love the red, and the white, and the blue,
But what are you doing to show you do?

Once the farmers fought by the old stone wall
Before there was ever a flag at all,
And once our sailors sailed the sea
With only a dream of a flag to be.
'Twas born in battle and bathed in fire—
Now an easier task new times require.

For it's not enough that you sound the praise
Of the braver deeds of the harder days,
And it's not enough that the tale you tell
Of a nation planned that was planned so well,
Once the bravest fought and the wisest wrote—
Now can't you at least take time to vote?

Tomorrow: "On Good Concrete."

Doctrine of Signatures

Nothing in the hitsory of medicine is so curious as the quaint old doctrine of signatures, by which it was believed that every plant bore some mark upon it which would tell you exactly what it was for. Plants with heart shaped leaves were considered to be good for the heart; the liver-leaf of hepatica was good for the liver. What all medieval physicians were looking for was a panacea, some medicine that would cure anything. Following the doctrine of signatures logically, a plant that looked like a man would be this panacea, and so because the root of the ginseng is generally forked and looks like the body and two legs of a man, the Chinese believed that ginseng would cure anything. Long ago ginseng in China had been so much dug up that it was extremely rare, in great demand, and very costly. Our own ginseng has consequently been much dug for sale in China. As a matter of fact it is of absolutely no medical value.

Now what do you know about that?

THE SLIP.
By Frances Norton

Prisoner No. 1734 unwrapped the package that his wife had sent him. It contained a hamburger sandwich—soft, fresh bun with a big layer of juicy meat. With a sigh of satisfaction, the convict sank his teeth into it and munched heartily. First, however, he removed the tiny steel saw that was cleverly concealed in it. It was a good sandwich, and he finished it with a grin. His wife was a clever woman—what

That night, when all was still in the prison, he sawed through the bars of his cell and crawled through the darkness toward the guard at the gate. He had brought one of the sawed bars with him and planned to use it on the man who stood between him and freedom. The guard was armed with a rifle, but if he could creep with the iron bar—

One step, then another. He was very close now—so near that he could hear the breathing of the guard. He lifted the bar—

"Drop that!" the guard snapped, and the convict felt a gun barrel against his chest. With a curse, he loosened his hold on the bar ard it dropped with a clang.

"Thought you'd catch me napping, eh?" sneered the guard. "Listen, fellow, I smelled you ten minutes ago!"

Prinsoner No. 1734 groaned in disgust. Why—why had his wife put an onion in that hamburger sandwich!!

More Truth Than Poetry

GO GETTERS

The English sparrow has no song,
His ways are rough and rude—
He chirps and chatters all day long
While questing for his food.
He is not beautiful a-wing,
And all that he enjoys
Is evil mannered bickering

Before the dawn his raucous "cheep"
With its insistent zest
Awakes us from our peaceful sleep,
And robs us of our rest.
All day he hurries to and fro
Still clamoring for bread—
Till long past time when he should go
To bed.

The robins and the orioles
That sing as fall of dew
Are cheerful, happy, kindly souls
But they are growing few,
And soon their pleasant, friendly cult,
Will vanish from the skies
The while the strident sparrow mult-
Iplies.

And thus it is with all the pests
We meet with every day
Who on their predatory quests
Persue their noisy way.
They fuss and quarrel and fight and fret—
They have no gift of song,
But its amazing how they get Along!

Cubs Take Hitfest From Gallowayites

BEAUMONT, April 18.—(AP)—Dell weakened while carrying an 8 to 1 lead today and Waco rallied for seven runs in the seventh to pass Beaumont's apparently safe margin, the Cubs eventually winning 15 to 9. Errors in fielding and throwing contributed to Waco's scoring in three innings while misjudged drives to the outfield by Handley, an infielder, were doubly costly. Wilson's line single in the sixth hoppin past Handley and rolling through the club house gate for four bases. Manager Pratt protested the game in the first inning when the umpires gave Yank Davis four bases when his drive over third base rolled into the ditch along he fence, going from sight of the officials. Longhorns Run Riot Against Cyclers

The Panhandle Longhorns slaughtered the Munden Cyclers Sunday afternoon by a score of 34 to 3. The game was a hitting spree and every man, but one on the Panhandle club broke into the hit column. Keys, second baseman, went hitless in two attempts.

McDuffy and Hatton pitched great ball while they were on the hill. Hoehn, Panhandle third baseman, led the hitters with six hits in seven times at bat. Falchney, Kerr and Rawls each poked out five hits.

Red Hicks, Panhandle catcher, hit a home run. The Panhandle team hit a total of 38 base knocks but were charged with six errors.

Petty's Fumble Blocks Shut Out

BROOKLYN, April 18.—(AP)—Jess Petty robbed himself of his second successive shut out of the season today when his fumble of an easy grounder in the second let in Philadelphia's only run. What should have been the winning run for Brooklyn was earned in the 6th, but the game went 11 innings, Brooklyn winning 2 to 1. Score:

W. F. Texhomas Beat Burkburnett Club

The Wichita Falls Texhomas defeated the Burkburnett Texhomas 21 to 1 in Burkburnett Sunday afternoon. Frank Howell, Wichita Falls slab artist, hurled the first six innings and blanked them. He allowed but two hits over the span. Jimmie Parker finished the game.

Jimmie Parker whiffed seven and allowed but one hit in the three innings that he pitched. Jimmie Parker also helped the cause by hitting one out over center for all four sacks.

Burkburnett used three pitchers, including Mayfield, a Spudder tryout this spring. Mayfield was greeted with the same shower of base hits that his mates had met.

Freddie Boone and Doc Allen, Wichita Falls, each hit four base knocks. Several of the other players poked out three bingles, but this pair were all that could get the fourth hit.

Ledbetter, Burkburnett left fielder, robbed Riley of a home run in the fourth inning with a sensational running catch.

FIGHTERS END HARD TRAINING

Principals In Day Nursery Boxing Card Taper Off Work

Principals in the Day Nursery boxing card Tuesday night at the Majestic theatre went through their final workouts against sparring partners Sunday afternoon before a large gathering of fans.

Opinion is divided as to the outcome of the main event between Clyde Hull and Tommy White. Comparison of the respective records of the two battlers indicate that the bout will be a thriller. A close study of the showing made by each of these men against the same opponents before the present welterweight champion of the southwest, Tommy White.

Against Sid Young and Duke Trammel, White completely outclassed his opponent at every stage of the fight, winning a decisive victory. Hull met the same men and was returned the winner, but at no time was his margin so great as that of Tommy. Hull claims to have improved a great deal since his last appearance here and shows much speed and class in his workouts. What he will do against the shifty, infighting Tommy White, remains to be seen.

In size and weight, Hull has a few pounds and a few inches the best of the argument, but according to Tommy, the advantage ends there. The semi-final between Mercy Montez and Wildcat Monte, is creating much interest among the railbirds. The winner of this bout is looking forward to a main event in Galveston next week. Montez worked with Hull Sunday and showed the onlookers a fair example of what he hopes to hand Monte Tuesday.

Out-of-town fans who will be on hand at the Spudder's opening game Tuesday are grabbing most of the best seats available. A capacity crowd is predicted.

NEWCASTLE WINS

Wichita Falls Eagles Blanked On Foreign Diamond.

The Newcastle All-Stars defeated the American Refinery Eagles from Wichita Falls on the Newcastle diamond Sunday afternoon, 1 to 0. It was the same lineup that faced the Spudders there April 1.

It was a pitchers' battle between Lefty Coop of Newcastle, and Ronie Glidewell, of Wichita Falls. Both pitchers allowed but three hits. Coop kept the Eagle hits well scattered while two of the All-Stars were bunched in the fifth with a walk to put over the winning run.

Spudders Don't Win But They Keep Cats From Doing the Same

Mighty Maulers Toil Vainlessly For Thirteen Long Innings to 3 to 3 Score

BY BLONDY CROSS

FORT WORTH, April 18.—Misfortune that has followed Fred Brainard's proud Spudder aggregation through a hectic spring training season and on into the initial Texas League series the past week at Shreveport laid in wait here again today, ambushed the bludgeoning Wichita Falls brigade and sneaked up on our noble athletes in rear attack as they stormed the stockyards this afternoon.

Defenders of the cow-town citadel won a moral victory. Fort Worth, formerly recognized as champion of the Lone Star circuit held the dough-ty Wichita Falls detachment to a 3-3 tie in 13 tumultous stanzas. Such a deplorable situation today was unavoidable. The "breaks," those off-the-trail events which often turn back the better team in ignoble defeat, were all against Brainard's Bruisers here today. It is not written in the books that Fort Worth's exceedingly domesticated Cats, 1926 breed, should ever be fortunate enough to force the arrogant Wichita Falls detachment into extra innings. It is flagrant insult that these same Cats should be fortunate enough to play these Spudders to a deadlock score.

There were many base blasts stored up in Spudder bludgeons, but blows to virgin territory could not be purchased at any price when needed the most. The initial Wichita Falls sortie was mild but the boisterous mitters from the North Texas Metropolis opened in the second with a rifle-like volley that proved ineffective for the simple reason the dynamite drives were lined directly into the mitts of a waiting fielder.

And Thus It Was.

And thus it was throughout. The entire outfit mauled the apple at a riotous gait, but Dame Fortune ruled that meteoric arm should not travel straight to the Fort Worth inner and outer defenses. If a third of the well-slammed wallops smashed out this afternoon by the Gardner squadron had been only a few feet to right or left in direction of unprotected territory, Jake Atz's Panthers would have avalanched over the precipice of dismal defeat instead of winning today—winning a moral victory!

Rip Wheeler opened the hurling eminence.

Rip was extremely right—after the first two couples. Two bases on balls abetted by a sacrifice and a trio of bingles netted the Cowtowners a pair of scoring augres in the inaugural. Three singles and a sacrifice garnered another run in the second. That was all.

The veteran star boarder, the pitcher who is expected to lead the league this year, if Carl Williams, Jim Roberts, Jess Martin, Suds Sutherland, Fred Fussell or Dick Morgan don't, twirled spotless ball until taken out in the eighth to give way for a pinch hitter.

Long Jim Works.

Long Jim worked the rest of the route, Roberts boaster everything in the bag of flinging tricks. He had so much stuff that it was difficult for him to control it. He came away unscathed.

Jinxed apparently for the day, vicious wallops driving straight at fielders, base hits a scarce article, and with a three-run lead stacked up like a mountainous barricade before them, the Wichita Falls battalion tore from its dug-out in the eighth, swarmed all over Red Bird, who had given up but a brace of bingles, bombarded the left handed person uproariously and put the eccentric one to rout, and before the battle din had subsided by dint of brutal bludgeon work, forced three runners into the scoring station and knotted the score.

Bears Down Nobly.

With the tabulation even-up, but the Cats ahead figuratively speaking, our James bore down nicely. Four men faced him in the eighth. One whiffed dead away. Two passed out at the infield's behest. Somebody got on in the ninth. Oh, well, if you must know who, it was—Eddie Moore flunked a single at third. Then with three balls and no strikes on Ezzell, Jim flogged a couple down the alley, and then flitted a spiral up that Homer nearly broke his back in slewing a scant six inches to right of the keystone. Jete Turgeon dived over, scooped 'er at a cowboy gallop, turned a near hand-spring (Jete is quite an acrobat) tagged second and then launched a perfect throw to Washburn at first for double murder. The play was made to order for Pete. Doubtless no other second baseman in the league could have duplicated. No cornl

Three Cats looked at Jim's smoke in the tenth. Three more gassed fearfully at the same fire-ball stuff in the eleventh. Mr. Atz broke down and wept copiously until Jim became reckless in the twelfth and teased 'em along by walking a couple. Pitcher, catcher and first handled the three put-outs. The other rolled gently to Washburn. Jim tightened in the thirteenth, two batters (allow us to call 'em that, please) popped out, the other fanned.

Work Perfectly.

The Spudders worked afield immeculately. The inner guard functioned with well-oiled precision. The outer defense was impregnable. Wichita Falls fought bitterly all the way. There was an explosive in every movement but, as already typed the "breaks" were many but unpleasant. With exception of that volcanic outburst in the eighth, Spudder wallops, no matter how lustily slammed, amounted to several degrees below zero in value. Jim manufactured a dirty menace in the twelfth by pecking a vociferous double to right with none away. He advanced to third on sacrifical effort by Distel, but couldnit get off the bag. Fitz crammed a bullet at Palmer. The blow was so swift that Jim didn't stand a chance of taking possession of the scoring counter. Eddie chunked Fitz out at first. Turgeon evicated to center.

But what occurred in the eighth, we always save the best until last. Lapan worked Bird for a four-ball donation. Defate, hitting for Wheeler, forced Pete at second. Tony was safe on fielder's choice. There was verbal strife in the Spud dug-out. Ping Bodie, coaching at first sounded like 40 carnival ballyhooers in extemporeous verbal debate. The gang was on the war-path. Distel rifled a liner through short, sending Tony to second, Fitzgerald, the lone southpaw to the Spudder batting order, cruelly socked his left handed opponent with a blistering drive to right that sent Defate speeding home. Distel drew up at second. Wes Pete Turgeon got in a bad way, dribbled a bounder to short, apparently a sure double-play ball. Fitz cut down at the keystone. Palmer uncorked a perfect heave to Roney at first.

Save the Day.

It appeared for a split second that the Spudders were going to be balked in their desperate rally. But Turgeon, racing with the wind, and as if life depended on his making the base, did a swan dive fully 15 feet from the sack. Whit clay on his nose and cold as a cloud of dust to safety. The urchin had saved the day. The mighty Royce (Mule) Washburn, strode to the platter and poured the hickory to one of Bird's slants for a two-base drive high over the mid-gardners' domes. Distel tabulated. Pete navigated the run-ways and slid home like a cannon-ball express.

That just about closes this yarn. Red Bird limped to the club-house, and Atz after sobbing eloquently about "how the whole blankety-blank league is ganged up against me," sent Ralph Head to the mound. Head walked Bodie. A double maneuver, albeit incident. Brainard grounded out to short. Head was menaced at intervals the rest of the game, but Spud guns were silent in the pinches.

DALLAS STEERS FALL BEFORE SPORT ATTACK

Louisianans Feast on Every Sort of Pitching Dishes

DALLAS, April 18.—(AP)—Shreveport trimmed the Dallas Steers this afternoon 8 to 4 keeping the bovines in the side show throughout the game. Young Mr. Thompson, who southpawed considerably for the Sports last season, and ground rules which probably turned a number of probable outs into two baggers, combined to make the game one of unpleasant memories for Dallas fans.

After issuing his first walk to Rhino Williams, Thompson nipped the big left fielder off first and Don Brown made an almost miraculous catch of Billings' long drive, with two men in position to score, for the final out.

The Sports was rather impartial as to what sort of pitching was served to them, hammerin, Tom Estill's right hand delivery with great gusto and then duplicating their performance at the expense of Lefty Darrough. Jimmy Andrews worked the final inning for Dallas and escaped without being scored on.

Chink Taylor and Dutch Hoffman led the Sport heavy artillery with a trio of bingles apiece, but Thompson was the only man on his side who did not bingle safety.

At the end of the eighth inning the herd had only amassed six hits, and while they smashed Thompson's shoots pretty hard in the ninth, his lead never was endangered.

Although Hack Miller failed to place one outside the park, he hit a single, which did no good, and two doubles, each of which figured in the Dallas scoring. Riley and Billings each lammed out a pair of safe blows. The game was entirely free from errors.

MAYOR TOSSES FIRST SPHERE FOR TWILIGHTS

Quiesser Strikes Out But Curd Drops Ball And Batter's Safe

Eddie Kollman, Wichita Falls Electrics heaver, stepped out Sunday afternoon and let the City Water Department baseball team down with three scattered hits and won the game 4 to 2.

Garland Lyle was the only man that could get an extra base wallop off Kollman. Martin dropped one back of the box which none of the Electrics could touch. The other bingle by Rice was a well-spanked ball through the box.

Mayor R. E. Shepherd and City Commissioner P. B. Curd comprised opening batteries for the game. Police Commissioner Frank Quiesser was at bat. The opening pitch was a strike, things were spoiled when Curd got rattled and dropped the ball.

Worley had a busy day in the field and accepted nine chances without an error.

Pitching Duel

The game was a pitching duel between Kollman and Delaney and both men pitched some great ball. The Electries scored four runs in the first three innings and from there on were blanked. Kollman struck out twelve men while Delaney whiffed nine. A total of twenty-one men whiffed during the game.

The Electrics lost very little time in taking a lead in the first inning. Brown was hit with a pitched ball. Sid Stanfield slapped on through the infield for one base, Brown halting at second. Lee Courtney hit to Worley and was thrown out at first, Brown scoring on the play.

Blue was safe on Lyle's miscue and stole second in the second inning. Coolidge walked. Fritz Taylor slammed a single to left and Blue romped home. The next three men were easy outs.

In the third inning the Electrics brought their scoring to a close. Whatley was hit with a pitched ball. Courtney poped to Worley. Whatley stole second. Guy Taylor dropped a Texas leaguer back of short. Whatley pulled up at third. Blue singled to center and took second on the throw to the plate, Whatley and Guy Taylor both scoring.

Pulls Out

Eddie Kollman pulled out of a bad hole in the last of the third and came out without a scratch. L. Taylor hit to first and was safe when F. Taylor booted the ball. Delaney walked. L. Taylor stole third, and a few minutes later Delaney pilfered second. Kollman tightened and whiffed Ray Walker. Martin popped to Whatley and Worley walked, filling the bases. Campbell struck out.

The Americans and Panhandles will open their season on the Twilight diamond Wednesday afternoon at 5:30.

Clubs Which Looked Strongest in Pre-Season Games Bow to Superiority of Rank Outsiders

NEW YORK, April 18.—(AP)—The end of the opening week of major league baseball marks an upset in pre-season prophecies. Two clubs regarded as among the strongest in the American league, Philadelphia and St. Louis, rested at the foot of the standing. And in the National, the Philadelphia team, preseason selection for the second division, had gained the top, while the world-champion Pittsburgh Pirates were tied with the Boston Braves for last position. The Browns' great hitters failed to record a single conquest in four starts. Only ten runs were scored from 33 hits, indicating that safe blows did not come at opportune times. Philadelphia went down before the league champion Senators three times and the Red Sox defeated the men of Mack yesterday.

Fletcher's Phillies out slugged the Braves in three out of four contests, one of them providing a commendable pitching performance by Wayland Dean and then won the opening game of the series with Brooklyn. Pittsburgh took three lickings from the Cardinals and one from the Cincinnati Reds.

Excellent pitching came in the first five days with one league as good as the other in this department.

Hitting honors for the five days went to the Phillies in an attack that took baseball followers by surprise.

Most critics granted improvement for Fletcher's club over 1925 through the addition of Bentley and Dean from the Giants, but there had been on indication of a power sufficient to drive out 68 safe hits and score 44 runs in five games an approximate average of of 14 hits and 5 runs a game.

Couchman Triumphs Over Kid Hurler

HOUSTON, April 18.—(AP)—For eight innings here today Bob Couchman, veteran, and Ray Pipkin, youngster, battled in a great pitcher's duel, but when Pipkin gave way to a pinch hitter in the ninth and San Antonio won the first of the series, four to one. Najo and Peel hit home runs, Peel's coming with two out in the ninth. In the seventh Peel missed another circuit drive when his terrific drive went outside the park a few feet foul. An overflow crowd witnessed the game.

HORNSBY ASKS MOODY'S PLACE

Travis County Jurist Announces For Attorney General

AUSTIN, April 18.—John W. Hornsby, Travis county attorney, Saturday announced his candidacy for attorney general of Texas to succeed Dan Moody.

Mr. Hornsby, former county clerk and county judge and for several terms county attorney of Travis county, has had charge of many of the state cases arising because Travis county courts have jurisdiction over matters affecting state departments. He was associated with Attorney General Dan Moody in conducting the Hoffman road contract venue case, and he declined to enter as a representative of Governor Ferguson to seek to take prosecution of the road suit against American Road company away from Moody.

Mr. Hornsby announced as his campaign platform: "I will not combat men, but the evil that men do. I will place conscience above cunning and the public good above private greed.

Judge Hornsby is the great-grandson of Reuben Hornsby, pioneer and Indian fighter, who located in 1830 as a member of Stephen F. Austin's upper colony at Hornsby's Bend, Travis county. Judge Hornsby was born here, the grandson of William W. Hornsby, veteran of the Mexican wars, son of Malcolm M. Hornsby, Confederate veteran and later sheriff of the county.

Judge Hornsby was president of the County Clerks' association; member of the County Judges and Commissioners association and of the District and County Attorneys, also an honorary member of the sheriff's association which his father assisted to organize. He has been acquainted with all legislators for a quarter of a century, and has been engaged in the general practice of law here for more than 20 years.

One hundred dollars has been expended on additions to the high school library and two hundred dollars on the elementary school library. Over nine hundred dollars has been spent for standard science tables and stools and four hundred dollars on additional laboratory equipment. One hundred dollars has been used to purchase maps and charts for primary grades. Additional playground equipment for the primary grades has been installed, and a four hundred dollar athletic house with rooms and showers was built for the high school athletes.

Mr. Horn paid special tribute to the work of Prof. Bruce Schulker, superintendent of schools, and to all the teachers for their splendid work during the year. He made special note of the strongly visible school spirit, for the fine order observed, and for the active interest taken by the boys and girls in the work of the school.

DEDICATE NEW IOWA PARK M.E. CHURCH SUNDAY

Bishop John Moore Delivers Sermon To a Large Audience

IOWA PARK, April 18.—More than 1,000 people attended the dedication services of the M. E. church of Iowa Park, Sunday morning. A great day was experienced by the entire congregation and the people of Iowa Park.

Iowa Park now has one of the finest, if not the finest church in north Texas in a town of the size of this one. All churches of Iowa Park dismissed with usual Sunday morning services for the special service and came in bodies to be with the Methodists in this great congregation.

Bishop John M. Moore preached the sermon and officiated in the dedication of the church. In his sermon his text was taken from the third chapter of First Corinthians. He stated that nobody could plan and build a house except Jesus, the real house, and Bishop Moore brought out the fact that the greatest need of the people today was a religion that meets the demands of the people. We are the agonistic toward God, and the best medicine for the human body would be a good case of religion, a God-fearing religion, also needed this religion for the minds, also a religion that will direct ones faults in God regardless of the church he may be a member of.

Enemies of Religion

Some of the great enemies of religion are the spirit of don't know, or agnastism, also the people are thinking of things such as fine automobiles, oil wells, bonds, valuable property, and things other than God and His plan of salvation, or the spiritual things. A great enemy of religion is infidelity, this is one who is easily turned from the straight and narrow path.

Bishop Moore stated from the pulpit that our young people are not responsible for the wrongs and sins that are permitted by them today. The people who live in the communities where the crimes occur are to blame. Ignorance on the part of a person is a sin if the person has had a chance to be enlightened and refused to heed to God.

Bishop Moore stated that the average person's education was the sixth grade and showed to his congregation that a person with a sixth grade education could not solve the problems from the complex activities of ones daily work. He also stated that there was none who knew all of the Bible for it was God's work.

World Getting Better

Bishop Moore says that the world is getting better and better each year and will continue to do so as long as God has control of it. The church was presented to Bishop Moore by the following: J. E. Murphy, C. M. Zuik, Linn Troutman, D. O. Smith, T. J. Pace, Paul Zuik, J. P. Smidey, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Hines, J. H. Angleu, Mrs. J. E. Keller, Jack Ralston, Curtis Sewell, C. C. Davis, Charles Coppack.

The program of the morning services were:

Prelude, hymn, congregation; The Apostles Creed, congregation; Prayer, Bishop John M. Moore; Response, choir; Anthem, choir; Old Testament lesson, Rev. C. W. Dennis; Gloria Patri, congregation; New Testament lesson, Rev. F. M. Richardson; Offertory, selected; Announcements, Rev. H. C. Houd; Adore and Be Still, quartet, Mesdames C. M. Zuik, Chas. Coppack, James Sewell and Fenton Dale. Sermon, Bishop John M. Moore; Dedication, Bishop John M Moore; Doxology, congregation; Benediction, Bishop John M. Moore.

Evening program was:

Voluntary selected hymn, congregation; prayer, Dr. C. C. Selecman; anthem, choir; scripture lesson, Rev. C. C. Davis; announcements, Rev. H. C. Houd; Hold Thou My Hand, duet, Miss Katherine Sou Ralston and Maurine McDonald. Sermon, Dr. C. C. Selecman. Selection, Mrs. C. M. Zuik, pianoist and Miss Maurine McDonald, choir director.

Drys To Bombard Wets In Hearing

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(AP)—The drys will train their heaviest artillery on the wets this week as they conclude presentation of their case before the senate prohibition committee.

Chief among their witnesses will be General Lincoln C. Andrews, in charge of prohibition enforcement who has become a center of fire because of his statement before the committee that government sale of non-intoxicating beer might aid in making the dry laws more effective.

Wooded Gates Hold Back Flood Waters

PORTAGE, Wis., April 18.—(AP)—Two massive wooden gates today successfully checked swollen waters of the Wisconsin river and protected the Fox river valley from a flood that was believed imminent last night when a 75 foot section of wooden wall in the Portage canal locks collapsed.

Hundreds of sand bags, tons of granite and steel cables put in place Saturday night reinforced the hollow quoin on which the gates swing, provided a barrier to the rush of water in the canal, which is the sole connecting link between the Wisconsin and Fox rivers.

397 Go Up Sunday In Laredo Planes

A total of 397 Wichitans were carried Sunday by Laredo, Texas, air passengers now in the city. One ship was used in carrying the crowd, mechanics just finishing Sunday evening in installing a new motor in the second ship. Two are ready to go now and will be maintained at the flying field three miles out on the Henrietta road all the rest of the week.

It had been planned Sunday to give some stunts and parachute drops from a 5,000-foot altitude, but the high wind made this inadvisable and it was postponed until a later date.

LEGION WOMEN OPEN MEETING

District Convention of Auxiliary Begins at Breckenridge

BRECKENRIDGE, April 18.—(AP)—With the largest attendance present since its organization, the seventeenth congressional district convention, American Legion auxiliary, met here today, approximately 500 delegates being on hand.

Unanimous endorsement of R. G. Winters, Abilene, for state commander of the legion for 1927 was given by the delegates. Mark Magee, former state commander and adjutant general of Texas was the principal speaker at the morning session. Mrs. W. D. Armstrong, Brownwood, state president of the legion auxiliary, spoke also this morning. Business sessions were held this afternoon.

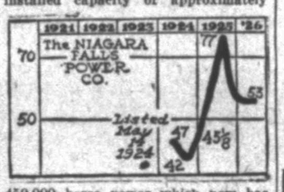

Stamford won the loving cup for the greatest mileage of any post attending the convention. Ballinger defeated Ballinger in the race for the next meeting place. The next convention will be held in June or July.

A committee was appointed to make arrangements for a special train for the seventeenth district legionnaires who will attend the state legino convention in Amarillo during the second week of September.

All the hydro electric power plants on the American side of Niagara Falls are operated by the Niagara Falls Power company and, though a subsidiary, a plant on the Canadian side is controlled. It wholesales most of its produced current. As a result of the formation of the Buffalo Niagara and Eastern Power corporation to take over common stock ownership of the Niagara Falls Power company, Buffalo General Electric, Tnoawanda Power and Niagara, Lockport and Ontario companies, common shareholders of Niagara Power company had the right to exchange their common share holdings.

The federal power commission has guaranteed the company a 50 year license to use 19,500 cubic feet a second of the water permitted to be diverted above the Niagara Falls. The combined companies had an estimated installed capacity of approximately 450,000 horse power which now has been brought up to nearly 500,000 horse power.

Capital stock of the Niagara Falls Power consists of $17,021,200 outstanding in 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock of $25 par and 721,152 shares of no par common. Funded debt amounts to $37,309,500. The earnings of the company have been stable, ranging between 8.04 and 9 per cent on the old common stock in the 6-year period ending Jan. 1, 1925. In 1925 the earnings on the new no par common were equivalent to $2.50 a share. The change in stock took place in April 1924 on the basis of 4 to 1.

As of Jan. 1, 1925, current assets amounted to $4,709,180 and current liabilities to $2,418,268. (Bank loans were $500,000. Dividends have been paid on both preferred and common shares since organization. The present rates are 7 per cent on the preferred and $2 per share annually on the common.

PIONEER DIES IN SAN ANTONIO

Venerable Cattlemen Of South Texas Passes Away

SAN ANTONIO, April 18.—(AP) William Winerick, 90, a pioneer resident and cattleman of southwest Texas and who had resided near Karnes City for more than 50 years, died in a San Antonio hospital today after an illness of three months.

The body was taken to Karnes City where funeral services will be held tomorrow.

Winerick was born in Germany and came to this country with his parents when six years old. The voyage across the Atlantic in a sailing vessel required three months. His mother died a few days after landing and his father soon afterward, leaving young Winerich an orphan when 8 years old in a strange land and without means of support.

The young immigrant started out to earn his own living at once and worked at odd jobs about Indianola, never receiving more than $2 a month in pay until he was 12 years old, he related.

For several years before the civil war he was engaged in the cattle business, and at the outbreak of the hostilities he enlisted and served in the confederate army until the end.
