GIRL SHOOTS YOUTH ON VERNON STREET

Small Boys Save 6 From Drowning

Dollar Bills to be Given Away

$1 for the best one one daily.

$5 for the best of the whole bunch.

Not that it needs it particularly, but the Texas-Oklahoma fair can always stand some boosting—and the Record News accordingly wants some snappy lines to boost it with. Furthermore, it will pay for 'em.

If you have a brain throb and can compose some short and brilliant bit of rehtoric, write it down and mail it to the editor. It can't be long, just a phase or sentence that says something about the Texas-Oklahoma fair being the biggest baby in the fall exposition cradle. Prose, poetry, propaganda and profanity are acceptable.

The daily budget of these will be called and the author of the best one will see his name emblazoned in seven-point type on the front page of the Record News next morning. Then if he or she calls at the office, a $1 bill will be handed over the counter.

When the contest closes, the line adjudged best of the whole bunch will earn a five-spot for its composer.

Here's a chance to cash in. Let's have 'em.

He Knows A Coming Country

And the Texas Panhandle Is it, Says President of Southern Pacific

NOT many years ago the Panhandle of Texas was given over to the cow man and his herds. Not many years ago Col. Charles Goodnight was the first gentleman of the Panhandle. Now the Panhandle is a great wheat producing section and a great petroleum producing section and its natural gas wells are the wonder of the world.

President W. R. Scott of the Southern Pacific railroad made a tour of the Panhandle. When he had finished he made a speech at Childress. He predicted that within five years there would be more than six cities in the Panhandle country with populations between 25,000 and 30,000 and also some of greater population. He said that the Panhandle was one of the greatest tonnage areas in America and that it would continue to increase.

WITHIN sixty days he predicted Panhandle oil pools will produce a hundred million pounds of crude oil per day and that several railroad lines would be constructed to serve that section of Texas. Many Texans went to Florida, some to make some money and some to invest money. Now the Florida boom is over.

There is no boom in west Texas. There is no boom in east Texas. There is no boom in south Texas. There is no boom in north Texas but home seekers are coming to Texas by the thousands from other states and the men of millions ever seeking investment are placing their coin in a state whose rapid growth, without a boom fringe is another wonder of the world. Railroad operators, active heads of great American lines, know a coming country when they see it.

GET JUST ONE MORE, MOTHER URGES YOUTHS

They Pull Entire Party From River Near Houston Beach

HOUSTON, Sept. 8.—(AP)—While their mother urged them to "save just one more," two small brothers rescued six persons from drowning in the San Jacinto river on Labor Day.

The party included: Mrs. W. G. Foster, her daughter, Gale Foster, 8; Mrs. F. M. O'Brien, a sister of Mrs. Foster; Mary Agnes Fatheree, 11; Vida Fatheree, about 17; Edna Long, 11; Mrs. Josie Fatheree and her two sons, Fred and Leslie.

The three little girls, Gale, Mary Agnes and Edna Long waded into the deep water and were caught in the current.

Mrs. Foster, Mrs. O'Brien and Miss Vida Fatheree plunged in to save them. Miss Fatheree was unable to swim and the other women could swim only slightly.

Mrs. Fatheree was in the shallow water, and on seeing the six in the grip of the current, called her two boys. The boys are expert swimmers, and have lived on the river most of their lives. They plunged into the water and managed to drag Mrs. Foster and Gale to the bank. The girls and Mrs. O'Brien were pulled in one by one as Mrs. Fatheree encouraged the boys to save "just one more." The whole party was rescued in this manner.

Mrs. Foster and her daughter are in a serious condition as a result of the near fatality.

Too Much Betting Riles Dallas Judge

DALLAS, Sept. 8—(AP)— The Dallas county sheriff race contest was featured Wednesday by an old-fashioned debate on whether it is more ethical to bet on elections or horse races.

While the large crowd of spectators seemed to enjoy the debates, which was rather uniquely presented in the form of testimony by witnesses and cross examination, the courts exasperation reached the breaking point when W. B. Brazeale, bailiff for the grand jury charged with ferreting out all election irregularities swore that he bet $500 on Allen Seale. The bet, he said, was made with Sheriff Schuyler Marshall Jr., who is contesting Seale's plurality of 124 votes in the July primary.

"There will be no more testimony heard in this court relative to betting," Judge Claude McCallum announced.

"Let Onions Go, Stick To Potatoes," Is Word Of Market Expert Here

Wichitans Get Some Advice On What to Do With Crops

A group of Wichita Falls business men and chamber of commerce officials were given some new lights on the marketing problem Wednesday afternoon in conference with G. L. Crawford, marketing research specialist from the experiment bureau at College Station. Mr. Crawford will spend several days here with local people, going over the problems peculiar to this section and especially the irrigated valley. Yesterday's meeting was the first of a group to be held, another having been held last night at Iowa Park, and another will be held this morning at 10 o'clock at the court house.

The meeting yesterday was more of a round table discussion rather than an address. Numerous questions were asked Mr. Crawford and to each he gave facts and figures to substantiate his statements. It would seem that the huge problem of competition is facing almost every crop that could be produced in this section, and the answer to this question as given by Mr. Crawford was that producers and farmers of this section must organize more for quality and quality in packing if they would successfully market their crops.

Sweet Potato Drying Successful

The matter of drying or curing sweet potatoes was asked about and Mr. Crawford stated it could be easily and cheaply done but that the product must be first class and free from black rot or other damaging diseases. He stated that several plants had been established in east Texas but now practically all of them had been abandoned, principally because of lack of enterprise rather than failure in the method.

"Sweet potatoes must be of finest quality whether sold cured or from the field," Mr. Crawford declared, adding that this would hold good with any crop as well.

Not Sure About Onions.

In commenting on the onion situation Mr. Crawford offered little encouragement for that crop. He called attention to the vigorous competition offered by the south Texas belt and the McKinney district. In some years he stated this crop would come in between the south Texas and the McKinney crops and in these years market would be availabe, but when that was not the case it would be awfully hard to meet their competition.

The foreign production is also hurting the domestic onion market, Mr. Crawford revealed. Egypt is shipping

Threatened Rupture In Texas Legion Averted By Plea For Committees

AMARILLO, Texas, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Threatened discussion of the financial affairs of the Texas department, American legion, that seemed destined to disrupt the harmony of the organization's convention was forestalled today. A resolution requesting that all matters pertaining to the legion's activities be first thrashed out in the proper committees was adopted this afternoon.

State Adjutant Station Hankin's report during today's session revealed figures that were questioned pertaining to certain expense accounts. Although the entries on the financial records were not sufficient no discussion was had in connection with the alleged discrepancies.

Just previous to the reading of Hankins' report, the resolution that would prevent discussion of mooted matters on the convention floor was made by Archie D. Gray of Ennis.

Determination that the Texas legionnaires should not be deprived of having a band playing he "Old Gray Mare," famous marching song of the thirty-sixth division, at the head of the state delegation ot the national convention in Philadelphia next month, was voiced today.

GRAFT CLAIMS STALK TRIAL OF DAUGHERTY

Government Strikes With Power in Charge On Ex-Officials

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—(AP)—The government struck swiftly today in the trial of Harry M. Daugherty, attorney general in the Harding administration, and Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian.

Richard Merton, the government's chief witness testified that the Societe Suisse Pour Valours de Metaux, of which he, a German citizen, was agent was owned by the Metallgesellschaft and the Metall bank, German companies of which Merton was an officer at the time Daugherty and Miller paid him approximately $7,000,000 in lieu of property of the American Metal company which had been seized under the enemy trading act.

District Attorney Buckner in his preliminary address outlining the government's case, held that the refund was illegal even without consideration of the graft factor, since the law required all such payments to be made only to neutrals or companies controlled by neutrals.

Letters Produced

The government also produced two letters which were in files in Miller's office as alien property custodian at the time of the restitution which showed partial German ownership of the societe suisse.

The jury hearing the case in federal court was told of a champagne dinner in the exclusive Ritz-Carlton hotel at which were present the principals in the transfer of the $7,000,000.

Daugherty was charged by Mr. Buckner with having personally destroyed bank records to obliterate the trial of graft which the government contends the $7,000,000 transfer and out of which it is alleged arose one of the biggest post war graft cases affecting the government.

Other Witnesses

Merton's testimony came as a capsheaf to that of two other witnesses and a four-hour opening address by Mr. Buckner who asserted he would show that Daugherty and Miller participated in bribes totalling $441,000. He alleged that Daugherty, his brother, Mal S. Daugherty and Jesse Smith an aide of Daugherty who committed suicide destroyed or arranged to have destroyed records of the Midland National bank at Washington Court House, Ohio, which would have revealed that some of the $441,000 was deposited to Daugherty's account.

Dorothy Joe Perkins Dies Late Wednesday At Home of Parents

The little girl had been ill for four or five days, but it was not known her condition was serious until about 24 hours before her death. Wednesday morning, however, her condition became critical, and although a corps of physicians brought every force of medical science to bear, their efforts were unavailing.

Dorothy Joe was a prime favorite in the neighborhood and, for that matter, with every one who knew her. In the wide circle of friends with whom she came in contact through her parents' active work in the business, social and religious life of the community she was esteemed and cherished as a cheerful, happy youngster of lovable disposition. News of her death brought widespread expressions of regret and sympathy in the city Wednesday night.

Funeral services will be held at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon in the First Methodist church, south. Rev. Walter J. Johnson, pastor of the church will be in charge, and will be assisted by Rev. DEMO SESSION LOTS OF FUN

Parnell Says Meeting Was Comparatively Quiet In San Antonio

Despite reports of fights and squabbles on the floor of the democratic convention held Tuesday at San Antonio, the conclave was far from a disorderly and unharmonious affair, according to Senator J. D. Parnell, the only member of the Wichita Falls delegation that had returned to this city Wednesday.

"There was an evident desire on the part of every delegation to sit square back of Dan Moody and the policies he advocated," Senator Parnell said.

Charles I. Francis of Wichita Falls acting as temporary chairman of the meeting at one time on appeal from the chair's ruling on a point of order quieted the convention at its most tumultous period, according to Parnell. "Mr. Francis was called upon when things had reached their stormiest aspect," he said, "Francis' handling of the crowd at this time—the only time that it ever became obstreperous and almost unmanageable, commanded the respect of the entire meeting."

Parnell characterized Moody's action in withdrawing his objection to the seating of Thornton as purely for harmony's sake, and said that the desire to satisfy and pacify the erstwhile antagonistic factions was one of the salient characteristics of the convention.

5 SHOTS FELL RALPH ADAMS; SISTERS HELD

Affray Takes Place on Vernon Court House Lawn At 6 P. M.

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Sept. 8.—Ralph Adams, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Adams, who live seven miles west of Vernon, is in a local hospital in a serious condition with five bullet wounds in his body as a result of a shooting affair which took place on the square east of the Wilbarger county court house at 6 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Two sisters, Addie May Selmon, 16, and Johnnie Lou Selmon, 17, are being held by officers pending developments in the wounded man's condition.

The younger sister had a .25 caliber automatic revolver in her possession when arrested, and has admitted firing the shots, according to officers.

Leaving Court House.

The shooting took place as Ralph and Cecil Adams, a brother, and O. D. Phillips were entering a car after leaving the court house. The young men had passed the two young women, who were sitting in a car, as they came out of the court house, and had stopped to light cigarettes beside their own car, according to Phillips. The young women left their car and came around behind the men, from where the shots were fired, Phillips said.

Seven shots were fired, according to witnesses, five taking effect in various part of Adams' body. One bullet struck him in the left side of the neck, another in the right shoulder, another punctured his bladder lodging in his groin. Others hit him the left arm.

Able to Talk.

The wounded man is able to talk, and has made a statement to officers. Physicians hold hope for his recovery.

The two girls are daughters of John S. Selmon of Lockett, and officers give no reason for the shooting, but state that Adams was recently arrested on charges growing out of trouble with the older Selmon girl.

Too Much Speed On Curves Cause Of Colorado Wreck

SALIDA, Colo., Sept. 8.—(AP)—That excessive speed caused derailment of the Scenic Limited, crack Denver and Rio Grande Western passenger train near Granite, Colo., with a loss of 28 lives was the conclusion reached late today by a joint inquiry into the crash participated in by officials of the road and representatives of the Interstate Commerce Commission and state public utilities commissions.

This corroborated the statement made Monday night by President J. S. Pyeatt of the system, who declared that the train was running at a speed of from 40 to 45 miles an hour around an 11-degree curve when the engine left the tracks, pulling five coaches into the Arkansas river with it.

At twenty, she falls in her course at business college, to the great disappointment of MOMS, her ambitious mother. When her father dies suddenly she takes a job in LILLIE DALE'S neighborhood beauty shop. A nice lazy job with a tiny salary attached to it.

At that time she is having the first real love affair of her life. The man in the case is TONY GAINES, a young lawyer, who wants to marry her. But their engagement is broken when he finds out that Merry goes out with other men no the nights when he does't call on her. He goes to Montana and later Merry hears he is engaged to a girl there.

HELEN, the oldest of the four Locke sisters, marries and settles down to have her family. CASSIE, the second oldest, marries her rich employer, MORLEY KAUFMAN. Merry envies Cassie her easy life.

When she meets BILL ERSKINE, a wealthy bachelor, she decides he is the husband for her, because he can give her all the things Cassie has. But Bill keeps putting off the date for their wedding, even after Merry has trapped him into an engagement. It is finally set for September, but in September Bill goes to Florida. Merry begins not to care whether she "lands" him or not.

Moms takes Lillie in to live at the house. She rents another room to MR. HEFFLINGER, and promptly begins to "act too silly for words" over him, as JINNY, the youngest of the sisters, says. Jinny finally runs away from home and marries DERRICK JONES, who lives next door. She goes to live with the Jones family.

One night Bill returns unexpectedly, and finds Merry in the arms of LES PURCELL, an old beau. He has just been breaking the news to Merry that he is married, and his wife is about to divorce him. Bill becomes jealous of him, and he and Merry quarrel. When he is gone, she has hysterics, and sobs out to Moms that she doesn't care about Bill anyway, but is heart-broken about Tony Gaines, still.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XLIII.

Early the next morning Bill Erskine called up.

Merry, wan and without color, was sitting at the breakfast table trying to eat milk toast, when the telephone rang and Moms went to answer it.

"I won't talk to him!" she declared, with a firm shake of her head, when Moms told her who was on the wire. "I just won't—and you can tell him so for me!"

Merry did not know whether Moms was glad to break that bit of news to Bill or not. It was hard to tell what Moms thought about her engagement to him.

Sometimes she said she thought Bill was too old for Merry.

Sometimes she urged Merry to marry him and settle down.

"At any rate, he's able to take care of you," she would say at such times. "And it seems to me that you'd be better off married to a sensible man like him than running around with every Tom, Dick and Harry, the way you do."

She seemed to be as unsettled in her mind about Merry and Bill Erskine as Merry herself was.

She signed now as she came back from the telephone and sat down at the table.

"Oh, my! Oh, my, Merry!" she said. "I wonder where you're going to wind up. The other girls all knew just what they wanted, and got it. But you—you don't know your own mind from one day to the next. Here you were, last week, writing to Fatty Erskine two or three times a week! And now you won't even talk to him on the telephone! I don't know how to figure you out!"

Merry's glossy black eyebrows went up into her yellow curls.

"I don't know myself, Moms," she admitted unhappily. "I don't know what I want—" She broke off talking as Lillie opened the dining room door and came in for her starvation breakfast of unsweetened black coffee.

Lillie was always on some diet or other. Her newest one was black coffee for breakfast, black coffee for lunch, and a tomato and hard-boiled egg for her evening meal.

"I took off two pounds last week, but I've put it all back again," she remarked in a woe-begone voice as she sat down at the table, and stroked her double chin with her plump white fingers.

When she tasted her coffee, she shuddered as if it were bitter medicine.

"Ugh!" she said, and then all at once she began to laugh.

"Well, what did your friend, Tubby, have to say when I went upstairs last night? I took the wind out of his sails, all right, all right, all right! Didn't I?" she chortled.

The telephone rang again.

"It's Fatty on the line, again," Moms reported, when she had answered it. "You may as well talk to him, Merry, or he'll ring the house down."

Merry made a little face and got up.

"Hello," she said, picking up the receiver, "what do you want?"

"You," Bill's voice came to her. Not the matter-of-fact voice she had come to expect from him. But the wooing, persuasive, smooth voice he had used in talking to her when he first knew her.

"I want you to hop in the taxicab I'm going to send out there for you," that silky smooth voice went on. "I want you to come downtown for me. I'll be waiting for you at the corner of Fir street and Eighth."

"What do you want with me?" Merry asked.

But Bill refused to tell her. She would know when she got there, he said.

"All right," Merry answered indifferently. "I'll try 'most anything once."

She ran upstairs to get dressed.

She did not try to make herself alluring and lovely this morning, as she usually did. The desire to please was gone from her. She didn't care how she looked for Bill Erskine. Not even to the extent of reddening her mouth, or bathing her tear-swollen eyes with boric acid solution.

In her old tan coat and her old felt hat, she ran down the stairs when the taxi honked out in the rainy autumnal dimness of Chester street.

Moms and Lillie were still at breakfast. She could hear their comfortable gossipy voices through the closed doors of the dining room.

"Goodby," she called. "Goodby, Moms," and Moms came swiftly into the hall.

"Why! Where are you going?" she cried, looking out into the street where the taxicab stood shuddering and shaking. "You going to meet Bill somewhere?"

The girl nodded and gave her a dutiful kiss on the cheek.

"Next time you see me, I may be a married woman," she said as she started down the front steps. She gave a little bitter laugh as she said it.

Moms called her back.

"What do you mean?" she asked severely. "I hope you're not thinking of doing anything foolish! Remember how you felt about Bill Erskine last night! You couldn't bear to have him in the house—"

Merry looked down at the wet floor of the porch. "I had the jimjams last night," she said. "I didn't know what I was saying or doing. I—"

"Just the same," Moms interrupted anxiously. "Just the same, Mary Ann Locke, I want you to solemnly promise me you won't do anything rash this morning."

Merry looked up at her then, and the sea-green eyes were full of mocking laughter. Laughter that somehow had no merriment in it.

"You don't call getting married a rash act, do you?" she asked lightly, and before her mother could stop her she was gone. The yellow cab started away and the gray curtains of the rain hid it from Mom's sight. As it jolted along through the puddles Merry began to count up all the reasons why she ought not to marry Bill Erskine.

First—she didn't love him. Not the way a woman should when she gives herself to a man.

Second—he was twenty years older than she was, at the very least.

Third—he didn't want to marry her in the whole-souled way that a man should want to marry his woman. He loved to make love to her, and that was all.

"He never wants to know what I'm thinking about. We never have a good talk about anything," she told herself truthfully.

She knew exactly what it was that Bill loved in her. He was in love with her beauty, and with the thrill that her beauty gave him. He was in love with her youth, her freshness, and the "come hither" look in her eyes.

"If I had a brain," she said to herself, "Bill never would know it. A girl's just a toy—just an amusement to him."

But she did not care.

She was in that dangerous reckless mood when a woman will do anything. Anything!

If Bill Erskine had asked her to marry him that rainy autumn morning she would have done it, almost without thinking.

But he didn't! He was waiting for her on the windy corner of Fir street and Eighth avenue, and he jumped into the taxi as it swung up to the curb beside him.

His ruddy face was more ruddy than ever from the crisp air, and it was spangled with rain drops. His hand was wet as he laid it on hers.

He whipped out his handkerchief.

"Let me measure your finger," he said in the brisk way that he used when he was putting over a business deal.

"Which finger?" Merry asked, holding up both of her little hands.

Bill chuckled. "You know which one, you little demon!" he said and measured the third finger of her left hand—the finger that once had worn an old engagement ring of beaten gold and pearls.

Then he leaned forward and gave an address to the driver.

"I've been thinking over your little attack of nerves, last night, Little Sister!" he said as he helped Merry out of the cab, and led her up to the biggest jewelry store in this town of ours. "And I've made up my mind that what ails you is 'peeve.' Just plain, good old-fashioned peevishness! You think I ought to marry you right now, and you think if you're hateful enough, I'll do it—don't you?"

Merry was too surprised to answer him. She just stared at him, her lips parted, her eyes wide.

"Well, and I'm going to do it," Bill went on smoothly. "But not right now. I've told you how things are with my father. He may not live more than a week or so. But in the meantime just to show you that my heart's in the right place, I'm going to get you that engagement ring that you've been beefing about for so long—"

"BILL!" Merry found her voice at last. "Bill, I don't want your old engagement ring—" She turned and started back toward the doorway of the great, glittering shop.

But Bill stopped her. "Now, Merrylips, don't act like that, just because I scold you a little bit," he said to her, taking her by the arm. "You had it coming to you. Don't you think you were a pretty bad little girl last night. Sneaking in another beaux when you thought old Bill was away off in Florida. Now, come on over here, like a good kid, and pick out your sparkler."

With a little toss of her yellow head, Merry allowed herself to be led to the case where the "sparklers," as Bill called them, lay gleaming and glittering like a sea of stars.

In the middle of the first of the velvet-lined boxes that the salesman showed them was the kind of ring that Merry had always dreamed about—dreamed about even when she was wearing the gold and pearl ring that had belonged to Tony Gaines' mother. A square-cut diamond, set in platinum!!

"O-o-oh!" she breathed, as she looked at it. She slipped it on her finger and looked up at Bill. She held it out for him to see.

"O-o-oh!" she said again. It was all she could say. Like Enid in the old English ballad, "she let her eyes speak for her."

"May I have any ring I want?" she asked at last, breathlessly.

Bill shrugged his heavy shoulders. "Take your pick," he answered grandly, and then added, "but don't soar above two hundred dollars. I'm no Rockefeller, you know, nor yet a Henry Ford."

Merry peeped at the price mark on the ring she was wearing—"$480."

Quietly she slipped it off, and looked through the tray for a two hundred-dollar one.

There was only one at that price. "And she said to herself, "it would take a miscroscope to find the diamond in it!"

That was not quite true, of course. The diamond was a fairly large one, and it shone like a little star. But beside the square-cut one that Merry wanted, it looked cheap and ordinary.

"If I work this right, I can have the big one," she thought. She knew that if she made eyes at Bill, and flattered him, and told him he just must buy that big diamond for his own Little Sister Merrylips, he probably would do it!

But, all at once, she couldn't. She did not know why, either.

"Bill, I don't want any ring," she said, and picked up her handbag and walked out of the shop.

Bill, more puzzled than ever he had been, trotted out after her, his fat sides shaking as he walked.

What happens to Merry at the Blue Admiral Inn? Why was she taken to Lillie Dale's shoppe instead of her home? Why did Bill check out at his hotel without telephoning? You'll know in tomorrow's instalment of "The Petter."

Miss Fay Boyd Weds Joe B. Carrigan Here In Pretty Ceremony

The First Christian church was the scene of one of the most brilliant weddings of the early fall season Wednesday afternoon when Miss Fay Boyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Boyd became the bride of Joe Carrigan, son of Judge and Mrs. A. H. Carrigan.

The double ring ceremony was read by Dr. Randolph Clark of Ranger, under a dainty wedding bell formed of southern smilax, lilies-of-the-valley and sweetheart roses. The altar and chancel were embanked with smilax and other greenery which formed a blanket background for the wedding party. Tall floor baskets held pink sweetheart roses tied with fluffy pink tulle bows while white cathedral tapers shed a soft glow over the attractive picture. Pews for the families and relatives of the young people were designated with white ribbon, tulle and pink rosebuds.

Jarrell Gose gave for the prenuptial music, two violin solos, "I Love You Truly" and his own arrangement of "O Promise Me," accompanied at the organ by Mrs. R. E. Strange, who also played the processional and recessional.

A color scheme prevailed in all the arrangements, and the period costumes of the six bridesmaids in the orchid, pink and blue shades, with poke bonnets and slippers to harmonize, were especially effective. The gowns were fashioned out of heavy corded taffeta with long buffant skirts and basques trimmed in hand-made flowers, lace and rhinestones. Each one carried a colonial bouquet. Miss Donnella Evans of Fort Worth and Miss Elizabeth Jordan of Collinsville, Ill., wore blue frocks, Miss Elizabeth Carrigan, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Mary Louise Wilford of Houston, wore orchid, while Miss Bearniece Martin and Miss Margaret Collins of Fort Worth, wore peach color.

Miss Frances Boyd, sister of the bride, was her maid of honor, and wore a bouffant gown of pink chiffon trimmed in the hand-made flowers, with the skirt bordered several inches in pink velvet. Her hat was a large pink maline model with trimmings of pink velvet flowers, and her slippers harmonized. She carried a colonial bouquet of sweetheart roses.

Two Flower Girls.

Two small girls, Patsy McGregor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carter McGregor, and niece of the bridegroom, and Virginia Barwise, daughter of Judge and Mrs. J. H. Barwise of Fort Worth, were the flower girls, and both wore the colonial frocks, hats and slippers in blue.

The bride entered on the arm of her father, who gave her to be married, and was met at the altar by the bridegroom attended by his father, Judge Carrigan as best man. She was charming in her wedding gown, a bouffant model in flesh tinted chiffon trimmed in hand-made flowers, with a Queen Ann collar, and accordian plaited train. Her veil was of imported Venetian lace which fell from a cap headdress bordered in orange blossoms. She carried a colonial bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley.

Groomsmen were Seth Barwise of Fort Worth, Carter McGregor, Britt Cranfill, Edwin Hooks of Electra, Walter Nelson and Allan Montgomery.

Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Carrigan left for a two weeks' stay in Mexico City after which they will be at home at the Mary-Ruth Tavern.

Both bride and bridegroom are members of Wichita Falls' most prominent families and are popular in the social set of the city. The bride is a graduate of Ward-Belmont, afterwards taking a special course at T. C. U. The bridesmaids were all Ward-Belmont school friends. Mr. Carrigan attended state university, finishing in law and is a member of the firm, Kilgore, Rogers, Montgomery and Carrigan.

Preceding the wedding, the bride furnished inspiration for some of the most elaborate affairs of the season.

Tuesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Carter McGregor entertained the bridal party at their home with a buffet supper when the bride-elect gave her bridesmaids lovely hand-painted boudoir pillows, and Mr. Carrigan presented his groomsmen with gold monogramed belt buckles.

Eyes may be round and big and long-lashed; but if there be not within them the spark of intelligence and sympathy, they win no more than a passing glance. A mouth may have a cupid's bow and red, red lips; but if it is not mobile with understanding, and if from it does not issue well-phrased ideas and interesting speech, that mouth might as well be carved on a statue. Personality is greater than beauty. Charm is vastly preferable to prettiness.

A girl with a sallow skin, irregular eyes, a doubtful nose, and an ordinary mouth may not be beautiful, but such a girl, if she wisely makes the most of every opportunity, may leave far behind her sister, who has no irregularity of feature, and who has an unblemished complexion. She may cultivate a well-modulated voice, a gracious carriage, and radiate the light of intelligence and the warmth of sympathy. By diet, and by utilizing the modern scientific aids to the skin, she may expand her points of beauty and her other shortcomings. A wise choice of dress and perfume will add glamor; vivacity and poise will eclipse irregularities of form and feature. Such a girl, if she but use her brains and her heart and her mind, may achieve charm.

You will meet the girl I have pictured; you will find her a responsive listener, and an engaging conversationalist full of life and animation. You will like her; you will want to see more of her, and all this in entire forgetfulness of her snub nose; all this without being mindful of the many ways in which she differs from a "beauty."

Charm is greater to be desired than beauty; and charm comes from the mind rather than from the surface. Because beauty is only skin-deep, its possessor is only a picture on a printed page; but charm is personality, and the possessor of charm is a girl to take to, whose companionship is to be sought, a girl whose personality ever suggests the beauty that may be lacking.

I shall tell you later practical methods of acquiring charm.

TWO WOMEN PRAISE SAME MEDICINE

Both Helped by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"After the birth of my little daughter I was very badly run-down. I could not think of going to a hospital, but grew steadily worse, being compelled to stay in bed two or three days each week. A friend of my sister's told of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done her, and my sister bought me two bottles of it. I had not taken all of one bottle when I was up and able to do some work. I am truly a booster for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and you may use my testimonial."—Mrs. Mayme Lynch, 1119 Island Ave. Ext., McKee's Rocks, Pa.

Mrs. Hope L. Smith, a farmer's wife of Route 3, Floyd, Va., says she was ill for ten years with a good deal of pain in her side and so weak she could hardly work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped her so much she is telling her friends about it.

LESS WORK LESS WORK

Less work but cleaner, whiter clothes and easier washing! Isn't it a pleasant thought? And so easy to make a reality with Savex!

Savex is a good soap, cleansing easily and thoroughly. It's a water softener, taking all the deadliness out of hard water. It's a mild, safe bleach, making things snow white without bluing.

Use Savex in a washing machine without rubbing or soaking; use it in tub or hand basin and only soak and rub badly soiled things. You need never boil or blue.

And Savex is perfectly safe. Cherished linens retain their natural white whiteness. Colored things keep their brightness. Silks and woolens retain their textile beauty.

Savex is a delight to use, too, for it will both protect and whiten your hands!

ONE YEAR AGO TODAY
September 9, 1925

Whitfield asks for new trial. Alvin Ireland, Wichita Falls youth, held in connection with Dundee bank robbery, breaks jail at Archer City.

ARE AMERICANS LAW MAD?

ARE Americans law mad? Are they the greatest lawbreakers in the world. If so, why? Arthur Twain of New York, noted law writer and novelist says that they are the greatest lawbreakers on earth "because there are so many laws to break."

In Texas there are lawyers and editors who are clamoring for swifter justice and fewer technicalities. These reformers do not tell the people why the Americans are the greatest lawbreakers on earth. They do not tell the people, as Arthur Twain tells them, they are the greatest lawbreakers because there are so many laws to break.

Judge Leigh A. Clark of Hunt county is a dissenter. He does not agree with the reformers of his own profession or the newspaper writers. In speaking of the flood of literature let loose by the reformers this Greenville jurist and lawyer says,

"In my opinion the time of specifications has arrived. Let those who really desire judical reform put their finger upon the specific remedy they offer. Let them tell us what laws should be repealed and what new laws should be enacted. Let them cease to slander an honorable profession and get down to business. For my part I am willing to go on record.

This is a direct challenge to the reformers to come across with a remedy, to specify, to tell the people just what they are driving at and where they intend to go from here.

Arthur Train, in a remarkable interview given to the editor of Henry Ford's newspaper bluntly states that the American people are law mad. He says that Americans have a perfect mania for lawmaking.

He says that our federal constitution was grafted 137 years ago, "and since that time we have framed and passed more laws to govern the conduct of our citizens than all others passed since Adam."

He reminds the public that out of the 48 states there annually go onto American statute books upward of 15,000 laws and many of the state legislatures meet but once in two years. And Lawyer Train drives this point home,

"In a recent five-year period more than 62,000 separate laws were passed by these 49 bodies, and an average of 1,200 or more each for the state law making bodies and the rest for congress. It required 65,000 decisions of courts of last resort to interpret these. These decisions fill 630 large volumes."

It isn't surprising that Americans are the greatest law breakers on earth "because there are so many laws to break." There is a special session of the 39th legislature coming. More laws coming. In the winter of 1926-27 the 40th legislature will be in session and continues to grind perhaps for 90 days.

Many of the lawmakers have their bills ready. Hundreds of bills will be thrown into the legislative hopper and at least 1,000 news bills will be crowded onto the fat statute books of Texas.

There are ambitious men found everywhere in Texas clamoring for regularity legislation. They never read the fat statute books. They are in dense ignorance of the laws already in existence. This for the reformers, the lawyers who are clamoring for changes in proceedure and the editors who are clamoring for something new under the sun.

Why not a campaign for the repeal of hundreds of laws that are absolute? Why not a campaign for laws that are simple and understandable. If the laws of the congress and the state for a five-year period fill more than 600 volumes how is it possible for a layman to know when he is a lawbreaker or a law abiding citizen.

Lynch Davidson, in two campaigns where he lost, declared if elected governor before he would sign a new law he would ask for the repeal of two old or obsolete laws. It was a common sense declaration.

A WORD FOR THE SCHOOLS

ONE of the best bits of evidence yet unearthed on the progressive status of Wichita Falls is the plaint of Dr. J. W. Cantwell and other officials that the impending influx of students for the fall term will virtually swamp the physical properties of the schools for a few weeks.

With the existing system enlarged by additions during the summer, there still seems to be too little space to properly accomodate all those requiring scholastic attention; and that, it would seem, should be evidence enough that more people are making of Wichita Falls a place to live and rear their families. A drop in scholastic enrollment would be a grave misfortune. A gain, while it taxes the ingenuity and resources of the school officials, brings its blessings in other and manifold ways.

Dr. Cantwell and his cohorts are deserving of consideration during the next trying weeks. Starting a city school system that must handle over 4,000 youngsters is no small task. And when limited facilities are at hand for handling the crowds, the task is rendered all the more difficult.

So if 6-year-old Jimmy and 8-year-old Mary can't get the exact class room they want right at the start, it isn't that the school powers are maliciously determined to inflict hardship on the youngsters. They would like to accommodate everybody with what everybody wants, insofar as it is reasonable, but when it can't be done that way it just can't be done.

Wichita Falls can truthfully boast of as fine a school system as any in the southwest; its executives are as able; its faculties as efficient and well-trained and its equipment as complete. In time the growing pains with which it is now suffering will have disappeared. Until then, a little sympathetic understanding on the part of the public will go a long way to help out.

AN ANCIENT FARRIOR

AMASA CLARK of the Bandera Hills and the oldest survivor of the war with Mexico celebrated his 101st anniversary in the Alamo City. This was most fitting. Members of the veterans of foreign wars assisted in the celebration. Members of the Pioneer Freighters' association assisted.

Dan Moody assisted.

Col. Handford MacNider assisted. There was a cake bearing 101 candles. There was a smoker that was largely attended. Amasa Clark is a ranchman. A man who passed 101 mileposts isn't a curosity in the Bandera hills. He is a veteran of many wars. He saw Texas a wilderness.

He is here today living in a Texas that ranks fifth in the list of Texas in population and wealth and may rank fourth in the year 1930.

TEACHERS AND DEMAND

FOUR HUNDRED school teachers in Ellis county held a mass meeting and aired their grievances. They resolved to ask the governor to submit to the special session of the legislature a request for the lawmakers to increase the per capita apportionment for education and also as favoring the $15 per capita annual apportionment.

This is not all they resolved. Senator Pierce B. Ward and Representatives Bowd Farrar and Roy Stout of Ellis county were requested to give their support to the legislation outlined. There are thousands of teachers in Texas. They are members of a powerful machine. It functions as the State Teachers association.

When it thunders its demands the senators and representatives usually come out of their trance and after coming out they decide which way to jump. Now the teachers are after gasoline.

Why not a tax on tea? Why not a tax on coffee. Are the motorists and the cigar and cigarette smokers expected to pay all the taxes in Texas that is for the support of the schools and the building and maintenance of public highways.

WALTON ON THE ROAD

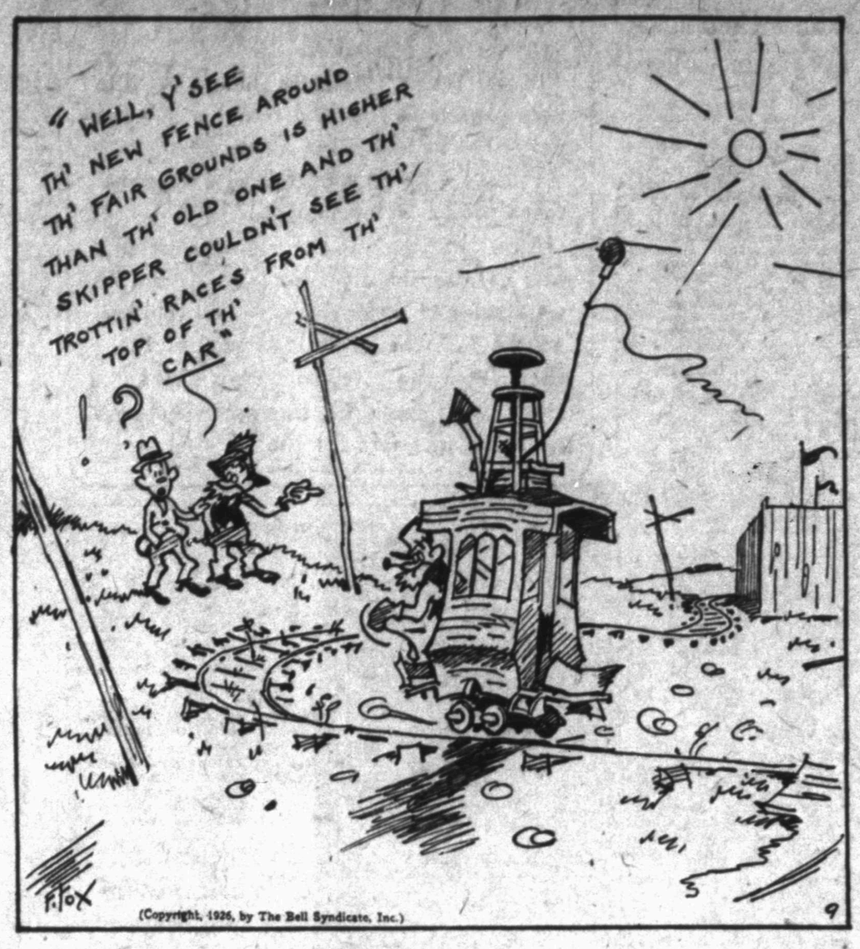

PRESIDENT T. O. WALTON of A. & M. college is on the road. Indeed most of the educators are on the road. President Walton says education is not receiving the attention that it deserves "because those of us who have had the advantage of higher education are not living up to our obligation to see that education is given the proper attention."

Is the charge true? This is another excerpt from the Walton address.

"Texas is tremendously rich, rich in oil, rich in farm products, immeasurably rich. There are more than a million automobiles in Texas in which the annual depreciation is around $100,000,000 and yet we are miserly with the most important function of government education.

There are more than a million automobiles in Texas but what has the number of motor cars in Texas to do with public education. Would the president of A. & M. college go back to the buckboard or the ox cart? Certainly he wouldn't. He said something that should make the people in the following, "from present indications more than 1,300,000 public school children may be able to attend school the coming session only from four to six months." It's criminal.

The Toonerville Trolley That Meets All The Trains

SMELL

By Arthur B. Reeve

"Every crime depends for its solution on one of the five senses—touch, taste, sight, feeling, or smell."

Craig Kennedy, tall and square, leaned back in the big leather club chair, with an indolent smile on his lips. No one at that moment would have thought that his active mind was engrossed on an unusually gruesome murder mystery.

Yet I knew he had spent many hours on a case for the prohibition director and that now, for relief, he had asked me to meet him in the exclusive All Night Club which carried on its roster some of the keenest men in the big city, men of high standing in the financial world, internationally famous artists, writers, and playwrights.

Kennedy was a popular member. To many, his startling, unusual profession gave the grueling competitive stress of the day's work. There was always a crowd near Kennedy, and this night was no different from the others.

It had been a hot day. Many of the men were temporary bachelors, detained in the city by business responsibilities, while their families were away. Among them were faces I saw frequently in the Star—people who were doing things of interest in the world. There was Chalmers Chandler, the famous playwright who had made a half million in royalties from his latest play; Harry Halpin, the middle-aged importer, reputed wealthy, retired, but whose activities in the way of pleasure drove him all over the country. There was Clarke, the banker and broker, whose fortune was long, but mercy scant when he had the market rigged right. There were others, a never-ending succession of them, coming and going.

It had not been long with our little group of four or five in a corner before the discussion turned to crime and its detection.

"Oh, I say, Kennedy, you can't mean that!" There was good-natured raillery in his laugh as young Hewitt stood up, smoothed his mop of blonde hair thoughtfully, and took a step or two nearer from the chair where he had been sitting apart. "No, Kennedy. That stuff about the five senses will not go here, with us. Now, for example, that Cronk case, which I understand you are interested in, dismisses that statement as too broad."

Craig half turned on Hewitt. He had been left half a million and had run it up to four times that in a couple of years. Hewitt was not one to be disregarded.

"I am willing to wager with anyone when the Cronk case is solved it will be found that one of the senses is at the bottom of it."

"Now, Kennedy, when it comes to vision, for instance, most of us have seen something that wasn't just on the level. But that is hardly what could be called detection through one of the senses. It is sight, of course. But that's too broad, too obvious. We'd do nothing at all if we didn't have eyes and ears, tongues, noses, hands and feet, and so on." It was Larry Halpin who spoke. Larry was a popular man about town and the club.

"You're right, Larry, as far as you go. What most of us think we see is only half, or less. We supply a good deal mentally for many a thing we see. Probably we give to deeds the impelling thoughts that would have prompted us to commit the same acts. We don't see straight. Very few do. That is the trouble with so much of our direct testimony. If I were on a jury and a man's life depended on such direct evidence alone, I would hold out for a long time. The right kind of circumstantial evidence is the best evidence.

A deep booming laugh from Chalmers Chandler. He was a lovable type, cultured, a traveler all over the world, well read, observing. His plays were popular because they hurt no one, but appealed to the ideals of struggling humans. "Isn't that the case of Hinman's chauffeur you're talking about?" he aked as he sauntered across the floor.

"Yes. The papers are full of it," I explained. "It's mighty queer because there seems to be no clues. The police don't seem to have a thing, yet, if they have, they're mighty reticent."

"Well, who did it, do you think? Hijackers? That is my impression," added Chandler. How does that strike you, Kennedy? Don't you think these hijackers are responsible for most of the bootleg crimes nowadays "

"Chalmers, I haven't figured that out, about hijackers, yet. But I think I'm on the way."

Chandler was leaning back in an introspective, attitude. Passing his hand slowly over his face, he remarked, thoughtfully, "It's drama—this Cronk case. There's drama in it, somewhere. Some one is going to make a name for himself with a hijacker drama. I would like to do it."

"The great American drama," added Hewitt, mischievously. "Hijackers vs. Bootleggers, Quite American, I'll say."

"What are the facts of the case—and what case is it?" A newcomer had joined us. It was General Tams, whose reminiscences of two wars were the delight of the club.

"Why, this Cronk case," I took it upon myself to answer.

"Yes, I was talking this evening to one of the Hinman girls—Gladys," informed young Hewitt. "They feel terribly about the whole affair. In spite of the notoriety it will bring them, though, they have acknowledged frankly the ownership of the stolen contraband stuff. They are going to make a fight to bring the criminal to justice. Gladys says her father feels responsible in a way for Cronk. If he hadn't sent Cronk out for the stuff, she says, it wouldn't have happened."

"But," suggested Tams, feeling out the facts of the case, "Cronk might have stolen the stuff, sold out his boss, Hinman, fled with a pocketful of money by this time."

"They found his body!" Kennedy cut in, slowly.

"Where? Near the car, as if there had been a fight? Was the car out of commission, too?"

"No; nothing as simple as that," I intervened. "They found his body in the cellar of the old fish-glue factory down there, along the road, not so very far away. He must have been murdered before he was taken there."

"Hijackers, I tell you, General," reiterated Chandler. "Don't you say? Nothing under the sun but those criminals."

"All right, Chandler, but will you tell me how the case of that poor chauffeur of the blue sedan full of rare wines and liquors smuggled in, who was killed on a lonely Long Island road and whose body was hidden, has anything to do with the senses, any more than with the circulation of blood?" It was Timothy Dodd, an old recluse as far as anything involving the ladies was concerned, but upon whom many men's clubs depended for his generosity of support. His was a mixture of sound reasoning and curious hobbies.

I nodded in accord with him this once. I was a little put out at what had seemed to me Kennedy's dilatory and lackadaisical method about this murder.

"That's it—a fact, not a theory," I chimed in. "Some one killed Cronk and hid his body in that place, of all places, apparently just because it was most convenient."

"You don't suppose, putting a little horse sense into this mystery," queried Timothy Dodd, "that anyone from that German tanker, knowing the value, could have stolen back the goods?"

Questions from the World of Love Answered by a Noted Authority

The Wild Flapper Who Wants to Be Good, But Fears to Reform Because She Will Lose Her Beaux, Miss Thirteen, Who Threatens to Leave Nagging Mother—How to Cure a "Walt-a-Minute" Family.

Dear Dorothy Dix.—I drink, smoke and neck, and ti doesn't get me anywhere. Here I am with no one who really loves me, and no one I really care for, worse off than when I was a nice little maiden. I want some one to love me. Not because I am a good sport, but because I am me; not because I am very funny when I am tight, but because I am sweet. What can we do, all of us tarnished girls? Not bad, just tarnished. It is hard to give up the old ways, and it will probably mean no dates at all for a very long time, while we sit at home and wait for the right man. Our boy friends of now won't care for us when we become wet blankets. Shall I stop drinking, smoking and promiscuous loving and wait for real love? And will real love if it comes, be worth all the lonesome waiting? It is a question of how to live. FLAPPER.

Answer: There is no question about how a woman should live her life, my dear. I tpays her to be good and to walk the straight and narrow path. The only happy women are the women who have lived lives that were above reproach.

As you say, being a wild woman gets you nowhere. While you are young and pretty you can get a lot of thrills out of it. As long as you will neck and smoke and drink and be a good sport, you will have plenty of dates with the boys who want a girl to play with. But not many men want to go any farther than he playing.

Mos men don' wan ha kind of girl for a wife or for the mother of their children if they are worthwhile themselves. So when they get ready to marry they give their flashy little playmates a particularly wet party and kiss them goodby, and bestow their names upon some girl who hasn't been fondled by every Tom, Dick and Harry, and who won't bequeath any alcoholic tendencies to her babies.

And what sort of men are willing to marry the girls who get drunk and go on booze parties, and who are what you will call good sports? Sometimes they are the wasrtel sons of rich men who will marry a girl while they are drunk and repudiate the marriage as soon as they are sober and their fathers have read the riot act to them. Generally they are cheap little rounders, drunkards, gamblers, crap-shooters, tin-horn sports who try to graft a living instead of working for it; who are with out purpose or ambition, without even a steady job, and who have no ideals of honor or honesty; no sense of duty, no stability of chracter. What happiness could any girl promise herself in marrying such a man?

Truly, the wild life gets you nowhere. It does not "" you a husband woth having. It burns up your youth and beauty and makes you old before your time. It is women who live good lives who keep their beauty.

Compare a woman of 60 or 70 who has, kept herself sweet and pure whose days have been filled with gentle deeds. Her face will be calm and serene and lovely, but the woman of 60 or 70 who has led a fast life will be a hag, hideous to look upon.

So I entreat you, Flapper, now that you have come to the crossroads, totake the upper one. Be good. You will find that it will pay. Being a sport gets you onwhere except to the pit, but the other leads to all the beautiful things in life. Especially ti leads to the love of a good man, who will respect you, and that is the only kind of love that lasts.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

HIS OWN WIFE'S COOKING

He likes to joke about my cooking.
For husbands have a way of looking
For little faults in cakes and pies;
But women who are really wise
Don't let these little matters fret them
As husbands will, if wives will let them.

If you would like the truth about it,
Though husbands criticize and doubt it,
If you would like to know just what
They think about a thing or not,
Yes, if you want to see right through them,
Just watch, and don't just listen to them.

Next time the ladies have a dinner
Down at the church, then take the sinner
And se the things he want to eat:
He'll want your pie, he'll want your meat—
No matter what, no matter who made it,
He'll always reach for things that you made.

He likes to talk about my cooking.
But I look, when he isn't looking,
And that's the only way to find
The truth about a husband's mind—
Don't take a man the way he preaches
But judge a man the way he reaches.

LOVE APPLES

When tomatoes were first brought from South America where they are native to Europe they were considered poisonous, perhaps because people took their red skins to be a danger signal. More probably it was because new things, especially new foods are greeted with hostility by everybody. For a long time people grew tomatoes only for ornaments, in greenhouses, and it was considered, once the "poison" idea was rid from the popular mind, that tomatoes if eaten lightly turned a young man's fancy (or a girl's) to thoughts of love. Until the last few years it was still believed that tomatoes were nearly fatal for young children, but now doctors are prescribing them as a substitute for the daily glass of orange juice.

Now what do you know about that?

Answers to yesterday's questions:

1. Unlike the European cuckoo, which says cuckoo! like a clock, the American cuckoo has a rapid rattling cry, like kuhkuhkuhkuhkuhkuh! which dies away slowly.
2. Imitative song birds are mocking birds, catbirds, and thrashers.
3. The catbird repeats every phrase of his song three times, the thrasher twice.
4. The rain crow does not caw, not being a crow at all; it is merely another name for the yellow-billed cuckoo.
5. Three night-calling birds are owls, whipoorwills and mocking birds.
6. True larks (skylarks) are not found in America; we have what we call meadowlarks, however.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

BY MARY BLAKE

VIRGO

Today's planetary aspects are somewhat dubious. In the morning, they are adverse; in the afternoon they are negative; and in the evening and for the balance of the day they are benign, without being actively favorable. It would be advisable to devote your attention today only to duties of a customary and an obligatory nature, and not yield to the temptation to seek "fresh fields and pastures new." There will be, from time to time during the day, a desire to say or do things hastily, and there will be sensed, at all times, an air of impetuosity. In order to counteract this, poise must be established, otherwise the day will only end unhappily.

Children born today are destined, during infancy, to experience quite a number of ailments. They will, however, be of a mild variety, and yield readily to ordinary methods of treatment. In their teens, they will develop satisfactorily, but are liable to outgrow their strength or become anaemic, and, in such cases, skillful advise will be needed in order to overcome these difficulties, and enable them to attain vigorous maturity. Their dispositions will be difficult in early years, and they will not be easy to manage. It is more than probable that discipline will have more effect on these children's characters than either persuasion or kindness. They will show great love for and display great skill in all outdoor sports, and will be prone to neglect their studies in order to follow these pursuits.

If today is your birthday, you possess a fund of information of a superficial character with regard to a number of subjects; and are interested in many things. Your outlook on life would be improved, however, if you concentrated on one or two subjects, so that your acquaintance with these may become fundamental. You are very self assertive and take the leading part whenever possible and are never averse to basking in the sunlight. You are inclined to be too hasty in your judgments, and very often rush into an undertaking without having worked out clearly the probable outcome. As a result of this you have attained the success in life, so far, to which your natural ability entitles you.

You are magnetic, as well as intuitive, and are capable of developing considerable phychic power. In your home life you are loving, kind and sympathetic, not only of your kith and kin, but of many friends.

Successful people born this date are:

Richard Riker, lawyer and politician.

Eleazer Lord, financier and author.

William Clanch Bond, astronomer.

Joseph Leidy, physician and naturalist.

I'M THE GINK!

I'm the gink who sends you a curio from some place I visit. It may be a shell from Florida or a carved something from Cuba or out west. When I call I expect to see in on your mantel-piece or on a table in your "parlor." Of course I know that it is probably vile looking and you don't like it. If it isn't given a place of prominence though I talk about it and let you know I feel slighted.

WELLINGTON, Texas, Sept. 8.—Gas to supply the cities of Wellington, Childress and Quanah will be turned into the mains about September 15th, according to advices received here from the Northern Texas Utilities.

The line which runs from the Wheeler field to Quanah through Wellington and Childress is complete with the exception of the river crossing on Buck creek which is expected to be completed within the next few days.

There are 100 calorie portions in two and one-half teaspoonsful of Colvert's Ice Cream.—Adv.

GULF PLANS NEW PIPELINE

Shackleford County Will Be Tapped By Pipe From Childress

CHILDRESS, Sept. 8.—The Gulf Pipeline company will begin construction of its pipeline from the Panhandle fields to the Moran field of Shackelford county in the early fall months following completion of the survey for the line which is rapidly nearing completion. The line will cross the southwest part of Childress county near Tell and passes through the J. J. Richards ranch in Cottle county. A local effort to have the line changed to pass through Gray county is expected to receive favorable action in view of the recently completed wells in the Shamrock pool of that county. Gulf officials will be asked to establish a tank farm and pumping plant here in event the change is made.

PANHANDLE

The Texas Panhandle field for the week ended Saturday, Sept. 4, averaged 117,160 barrels a day from 396 producing wells. This was a gain of 22 well and 7,001 barrels of production.

Gulf Production company No. 1 Worley-Reynolds, in section 83, block 3, I&GN survey, Gray county, had sand at 2,978 feet for a show of oil. It is a diagonal offset of the Shamrock Oil company-Prairie Oil and Gas company No. 1 Worley, a producer.

Magnolia Petroleum company No. 1 Minster, in section 82, block 3, H&GN survey, Gray county, shot with 20 quarts at 2,987 feet, it cleaned itself but was not filling up again.

Texhoma Oil and Refining company No. 1 Company, in section 12, block 27, H&GN survey, Wheeler county, is flowing at the rate of 35 barrels per hour from sand at 2,240 to 2,288 feet.

BRIDWELL ET AL, W'C'R

Bridwell and Heydrick are cementing the pipe on their No. 1 Witcher (Saunders estate) west of Sunshine Hill in Wichita county after experiencing considerable pipe trouble since topping a sand at 1,830 feet. This well is showing up to be one of the best completions yet in that active territory, and will probably be drilled in Thursday.

WEST TEXAS

In west Texas the Crane-Upton line pool continues active. The Independent Oil and Gas company No. 2 Wooley, a south offset of the Dixie Oil company No. 4 Hughes, that did 10,000 barrels the second 24 hours after blowing in is estimated good for 6,000 barrels from 2,160 to 2,210 feet. Its production is cutting 20 per cent.

Dix Scores Third Success in Row

The third Richard Dix success in a row is a record to be proud of. Yet, that is just what Director Gregory La Cava has achieved. Starting with "Womanhandled," his name on the billing became something to think about. "Let's Get Married" proved the first film was not just a "flash in the pan." Now—"Say It Again," Richard's third Paramount comedy to be directed by La Cava, which comes to the Olympic today definitely proves him to be no longer a "comer" but instead, one who is very much "arrived."

Mr. La Cava has had an unusual career. He started out to be a painter, later became a newspaper cartoonist, and then made animated cartoons for movies.

Little more than a year ago, La Cava joined Paramount. He helped on "Too Many Kisses," directed scenes for Dix's, "The Shock Punch" on the steel framework of the unfinished New York Telephone company building, and took charge of the racing scenes in "The Lucky Devil."

THE WITHDRAWAL OF THE CANDIDATE

When Miss Annie Oakley, the famous rifle shot, was traveling through the country giving exhibitions of her skill at theatres, she reached a small town in Texas, and her manager inserted an advertisement in the home paper for a smart colored boy to assist in the performance. Applicants were instructed to apply at the stage door of the local opera house at 1 p. m.

When the manager arrived he found the passageway congested with little negroes, each eager to testify to his smartness. He made a selection, picking out a spry boy of about 12. He took his applicant inside and stationed him near the wings.

"You will stand right here and not move," he said. "When the curtain goes up, Miss Oakley will come out and talk to the audience for a few moments. Then I will balance a small apple on your forehead and the lady will go over on the other side of the stage yonder and shoot it off."

The candidate grabbed for his hat, his eyes wildly rolling in search of the nearest path to safety.

"Mistah," he demanded, "who's goin' to shoot whut apple offen whose haid? Me, why I wouldn't let mah own mammy shoot no apple offen mah heaid, let alone it's some stranger!"

Wichita Falls Takes Cats In First of Four Double Headers Today

Spudders Give Sports First Game But Snatch Second By Big Margin

Kiefer Loses 6-2; All Runs Unearned as Defense Falters—Fussell Master by 8-1 Count.

BY BLONDY CROSS.

If our noble Spudders had played errorless ball in the first set-to of yesterday's double-melee with Shreveport at the Gardner emporium we'd have won that game by a 2-0 score and surprised even ourselves by grabbing two bargain bills in two days.

As it was, the boys turned in a ragged defensive brand and Dugan's outfit scored six runs in the early frames at Joe Kiefer's expense. Nary a one of the markers was of the technically earned calibre. The Sports copped the opener, 6 to 2, the Spudder brace being earned tallies.

'Twould have been a mighty pitcher's battle between Kiefer and Grady Adkins if the enemy hadn't found the weak spots in the Spud trenches and shoved through for two runs in the first, three in the third and another in the fourth before our nine got started. Grady gave up nine hits and just naturally couldn't be located by Williams' sluggers at the necessary stages. Kiefer was nicked for a paltry seven bingles, including a Texas leaguer or something or other hoisted into center by Nason for two bases.

But having donated the one tilt, the Wichita Falls outfit tightened in the nightcap and behind super slinging by Southpaw Freddy Fussell annexed an 8 to 1 victory. That made it three wins in four with the Sports. Not so bad, eh?

Fussell Right.

The Louisianans murdered (?) Fussell's delivery for the huge total of four safeties, all of 'em one-basers. The lone run scored also was unearned.

DeFate and Query batted in two runs apiece for Fred. Turgeon hit a homer with none on. Denton and LaFayette knocked in the other two tallies. Benton, incidently, fielded royally at third.

LaFayette shook up the right field fence with a two-bagger in the fourth inning, went to third on an infield safety by Jenkins and scored on a fly to left raised by Williams for the first of the only two earned markers made in the initial contest. A single by Fitzgerald, a base on balls to DeFate, a fly to center by Lapan, Fitz hoofing it to third after the catch, and a balk gave the Spudders their other score in the seventh.

The high spot of the game was reached in the final frame when Williams charged in from right, took Gulley's larrup off his shoes in an almost impossible catch and doubled Distel at second base. The play was so near the miraculous that a long speech and an eloquent flow of oratory was necessary before Umphs Osborne would believe so much as one putout had been enacted, to say nothing of two.

Bill Gets Air.

Bill Whittaker aviated in the fourth frame of the afterpiece and disappeared from the knob with three on and no out. LaFayette had nicked Bubber for a full-bloom double far over the center fielder's dome and Bill had become so excited he walked Jenkins and Williams after Turgeon in effort to sacrifice bunted a popup to the box. Lefty Cason joined the argument and pushed George home with a base on balls to Benton. Fitz forced Jenkins at the plate but DeFate singled between third and short, sending Carl and Rabbit across the plate. Query singled to right center, scoring Fitzgerald. Fussell rocketed to right.

Turgeon's homer, a drive over the port barrier, came in the fifth.

Singles by Benton, Fitzgerald and DeFate combed from the delivery of Wilkens, a righthander, in the sixth, with a two-cushioner rifted by Query and a sacrifice fly by LaFayette accounted for three more runs.

BEARS DIVIDE

SAN ANTONIO Sept. 8.—(AP)—San Antonio mathematically stepped out of the pennant race by dividing a double bill with Waco Wednesday, but made second place secure by gaining a half game on Fort Worth.

The Bears won the first game, 17 to 2 on 17 hits and 12 bases on balls, hitting Cannon, Hensen and Manager Pratt at will in every inning but the second.

But they apparently used up all their energy in piling up the big score, for in the aftermath they were decidedly weak at the bat in the pinches against Ace Elliott's shots. Waco won easily, 7 to 4.

Dallas Clinches Texas League Championship

9-RUN RALLY DEFEATS ATZ

Pelicans Look Like Dixie Series Opponents For Steers

DALLAS, Sept. 8.—(AP)—A nine-rurally in the seventh inning spelled victory and the pennant for Dallas Steers here Wednesday. They defeated Fort Worth Cats, who have won six consecutive Texas league championships, by the score of 11 to 10.

Although having five more games to play, the victory gave the Steers a mathematical cinch on the pennant. San Antonio stepped out of the race by splitting a double bill with Waco but made second place secure by gaining a half-game on Fort Worth.

As champions of the Texas league, the Steers will now oppose the Southern Association title holders, an honor on which the New Orleans Pelicans seem to have a strangle grip, in the annual Dixie series. Arrangements for the series will be made at a conference of officials of the two teams in Shreveport as soon as the southern contest is finally decided.

Probabilities are, Texas league officials say, the series will start September 21 or 22. At least one, and possibly several trains will be needed to convey the Dallas contingent to whatever city the out-of-state games are played, it was announced.

Dallas club officials will ask, they announce, that the first two games of the series be played in New Orleans if the Pels win the grail.

BILLINGS SQUEEZES WINNING RUN OVER

DALLAS, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Dallas won its first pennant since 1918 Wednesday when in magnificient rallies in the seventh and ninth innings they defeated Fort Worth Cats, 11 to 10. The Steers came to bat in the ninth with the score tied at 10-10 and singles by Woeber and Tate put the winning run on third base. Billings then laid down a perfect bunt for a squeeze play and Woeber darted in with the run that won the game and clinched the pennant regardless of further wins or losses by either the Steers or second place San Antonio Bears.

"Little Bill" and "Big Bill" Carry American Colors In International Net Play

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 8.—(AP)—For the sixth time in seven years America has placed the chief burden of her battles for international tennis laurels in the hands of the famous "Bills"—William T. Tilden and William M. Johnston.

"Little Bill' Johnston will oppose Rene LaCoste while "Big Bill" Tilden will face the "Bounding Basque" Jean Borotra tomorrow in the Germantown Cricket club in the opening two singles matches of the challenge round series between the United States and France for the Davis cup, historic trophy that represents world's team supremacy on the courts. The first match is scheduled at 2:30 p. m.

Johnston's selection today instead of Vincent Richards as Tilden's running mate in the singles came as a surprise. The seeding of Richards yesterday in New York as the number two man, following Tilden, in the draw for the national singles championship had led to the belief that the young New Yorker would get the preference in Davis cup assignment. This was strengthened by Richard's more impressive tournament record on home courts this season and Johnston's recent illness.

Strategy, however, was the factor that influenced the Davis cup committee of the United States Lawn Tennis association to select "Little Bill" for the role he has occupied since 1920 with the exception of one year. It was stated officially that the committee considered Johnston's convincing victories previously over ity to rise to his greatest heights in the French challengers plus his abil- emergencies and his apparent return to good condition as outweighing Richards' brilliant tournament record this year. It also was pointed out that Richard's defeat at the hands of several French stars abroad early this year had a bearing on the committee's decision.

Richards however will play in the doubles match on Friday with Richard N. Williams, the team captain as a partner. This combination has won the national doubles title two years in a row and defeated the Frenchmen in the doubles of the Davis cup tourney last year. Their opponents are expected to be the other two members of the French squad, Henri Cochet and Jacques Brugnon, holders of the Wimbledon championship. In the concluding singles contests scheduled for Saturday, Johnston will meet Borota while Tilden will oppose LaCoste.

Links Challengers March On National Open Battle Field

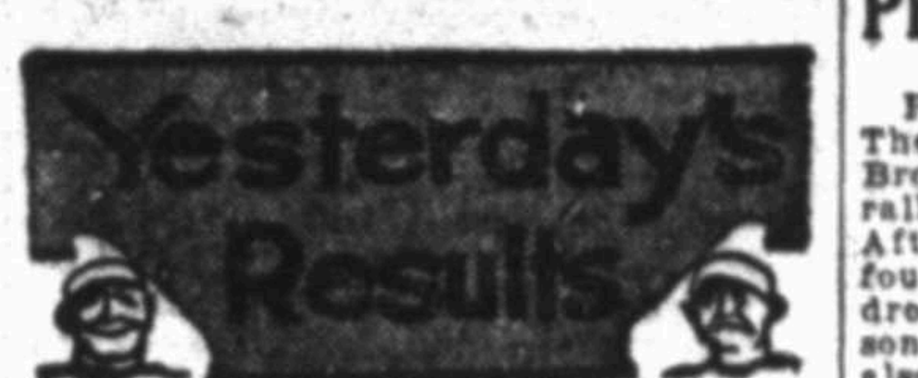

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—(AP)—The vanguard of the 151 links challengers who will seek to wrest the national amateur golf crown from Bobby Jones already has marched upon Baltusrol, scene of the 1926 championship event next week.

Fifteen contenders played over the difficult New Jersey layout today but none of the group was able to equal par 72 for the course which has never been bettered in a championship group.

George Von Elm, the Los Angeles star, who reached the final round two years ago posted the best mark of 76.

Among the players who took practice rounds were Frank Dolp of Portland, Ore., who recently annexed the western amateur title and Keefe Carter of Oklahoma City.

Jones is expected to arrive tomorrow.

TRIBE DEFEATED

DETROIT Sept. 8.—(AP)—Cleveland lost a chance to pick up a game on the Yankees today, falling before Detroit 10 to 7 while Boston was beating the league leaders. Manush and Fothergill continued their personal argument for the league's batting leadership, each getting two hits out of five times at bat. Score:

Charlie Root, first-year pitching ace of the Chicago Cubs, has won his spurs in the big show.

He was admitted into baseball's inner circle a few days ago when Virgil Barnes, ranked as a veteran pitcher by the Giants and baseball folk in general, was permitted to boast of his second victory over Root in a week.

A pretty compliment this, to a rookie hurler with a baseball club in the making, as the Chicago team is.

Barnes has been in world's series duels. He is a player seasoned under the Napoleonic eye of John McGraw. Yet to Barnes his victories over the Cub youngster, have pleased him more than any other achievement to date in his career.

Root has been poison to every club in the league.

Definite reorganization plans are being worked out by several of the big league ball clubs as the season rolls toward the end.

It's a good bet that the Brooklyn Dodgers will furnish the greatest number of new faces when the clubs treek south next spring. Of all the National league clubs at least the Brooklyn team is most in need of a house cleaning. And it is known that President-Manager Robinson plans to use the mop and pail gaily and with abandon.

His first two moves have been made at this early date—the releasing of Rabbit Maranville and Whitey Witt, both vets. The release of Maranville verifies the belief most folk held last spring, that Robbie's hopes of getting a big year out of the aged shortstop would be blasted. Maranville, it was generally felt, had reached the point where he could not stand the rigid discipline demanded for a full season's play at top speed.

Witt was a gamble. He was a dissatisfied player with the Athletics and an in and outer with the Yanks, albeit at times a brilliant fielder and dangerous hitter.

Among the others who are booked to travel before another season rolls around are Zack Wheat, Jacques Fournier, Gus Feliz and Chick Fewster. One or two pitchers probably will join the list.

DOAK ORDERS BARGAIN BILLS

Shores Hurls Opener With Williams or White in Nightcap

Williams' whamming Spudders have developed the double header habit. No sooner do they brush Shreveport off in a brace of twin bills before they turn on Jake's Cowtowners in a quartet.

One J. Doak Roberts, who, by the way, is the Texas league's president, ordered up the batch of bargain encounters for Wichita Falls fans last night by long distance telephone.

The initial set is carded for this afternoon.

The first game, instead of the usual 2:30 will start at 3 o'clock, said Prez Gardner. That's because the Panthers aren't expected in the city until 1:55 and, of course, Mr. Atz and his athletes will need a few minutes in which to grab a bite to eat and shift from their traveling clothes to baseball uniforms.

So that's settled — today's opener begins at 3 o'clock. The rest of the series starts at 2:30.

President Roberts in issuing his ordered last light that the two clubs play all four double headers and make up back games rained out explained that Beaumont and Fort Worth both hope to break into the third place money and that Wichita Falls itself stands a chance to get in on the cut, hence the overtime labor. If Wichita Falls refused to play off the games Shipper officials no doubt would elevate their eyebrows and cast sundry insinuations that the Spudders are favoring Atz and company, Roberts pointed out.

Bill Shores pitches the first game today. Williams will use either himself or Lester White in the second.

Lefty Glass blew back into camp yesterday.

Romonoff Sure of Beating Dutchman

At Least, So He Says On Eve of Revenge Bout With Mantell

THE CARD

Billy Romonoff, New York, versus Dutch Mantell, Columbus. Welterweights, two falls to a finish.

Yaqui Joe, Sonora, versus Joe Kopeck, Chicago. Catchweights, hour limit.

Time: 8:15 tonight.
Place: Eleventh and Ohio arena.

All principals were on hand yesterday prepared for action, according to the matchmaker.

The Romonoff-Mantell affair looms as a sort of revenge bout. Mantell tricked the Russian in a match here several weeks ago for one fall and then when apparently defeated kicked his opponent in the middle sector, knocking him cold for the deciding fall. Mantell was awarded the match by an honest referee. The wrasselers had agreed that absolutely nothing but eye-gouging, biting and strangling was barred in that match.

Romonoff, looked upon by many as one of the greatest little men in the game today, declared at the close of the match that sooner or later he would get Mantell and give him a beating "fair and square without resorting to unorthodox tactics."

Mantell said last night that he expects to slam a knockout on Romonoff before the match has gone very far, declaring he had been forced into the bout against his will and therefore wanted to finish matters as quickly as possible.

Kopecky has agreed to pin the Indian twice within an hour. He is a middleweight, rough and rugged, fairly clever. The clever Yaqui, of course, has his doubts about Kopecky's ability to beat him once, much less twice.

GIANTS SPLIT

BOSTON, Sept. 8.—(AP)—The Braves divided a double header today with the Giants by winning the second game by four to two after having dropped the opener 5 to 1. Boston clinched the season's series from the Giants, 12 victories to nine with a single game remaining to be played tomorrow. Captain Frank Frisch played at second base for the Giants in the first game and then retired for the day to avoid weariness. Score:

Brickell Leads Attack With Three Doubles And Three Singles

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 8.—(AP)—Fighting desperately to remain in the pennant race, Pittsburgh came to life today and trounced Cincinnati in two games, 6 to 1 and 11 to 0. The double victory brought the champions to within a half game of the second place Reds and three and a half games from the league leading St. Louis Cardinals, who were idle today. The Pirates were on a batting rampage. They collected 15 hits in the first game off Donohue and Lucas and 17 bingles in the second off Luque, Meeker, Lucas and Nehf. Meadows held the Reds powerless in the first contest keeping their hits well scattered. Carmen Hill, who came to the Pirates recently in the second game, blanking the visitors. Fred Brickell, Pirate recruit outfielder, won the batting honors of the day with the three doubles and three singles. The Pirates play another double header tomorrow with the Chicago Cubs as opponents. Score:

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 8.—(AP)—The cotton market was very active today due to the publication of the government report on condition and indicated yield based on returns to September 1. The report showed an average condition of 59.6 per cent of normal and an indicated yield of 15,166,000 bales, equivalent to a loss of 3.9 points in condition and 82,000 bales in the crop indication compared with two weeks ago. The census bureau showed total ginnings to September 1, of 694,877 bales.

Prior to the publication of the report, the market had developed considerable strength advancing 30 to 38 points over the previous close. After the indicated yield figure was known prices declined to levels 52 to 60 points below the highs of the day. From this level there was a moderate recovery of 13 to 16 points and the close showed net losses of only 8 to 12 points.

The weekly weather and crop report was considered bullish and helped the morning advance.

The opening was rather irregular, near months losing two to three points and late months gaining 3 to 9. The market soon started to rally and near the end of the second hour October traded at 18.20, December at 18.30 and January at 18.35, or 30 to 38 points above the close of yesterday. A sharp decline immediately followed the publication of the bureau report. October trading as low as 17.63, December 17.70, and January 17.73 or 52 to 60 points down from the highs of the morning. The market gradually rallied 13 to 16 points from the bottom and the close showed a very moderate net loss for the day.

Exports totaled 15,782 bales.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—(AP)—The government crop report was followed by a break of about 45 to 65 points in the cotton market today but after selling off from 18.25 to 17.70, December closed at 17.87. The general market closed steady at net declines of four to 16 points.

The market showed considerable strength preceding publication of the official crop figures. The opening was at an advance of 10 to 14 points on buying promoted by further advances in the market for Egyption cotton at Alexandria, relatively steady cables from Liverpool and reports of further showers in Oklahoma.

Rather a bullish view of the details of the weekly report of the weather bureau stimulated buying during the forenoon, and the market showed net gains of 19 to 22 points. October selling around 18.05 and January 18.25, shortly before business was suspended to receive the government crop report. This placed the condition of the crop at 59.6 as of September 1, and the indicated yield at 15,166,000 bales, compared with the mid-August indication of 15,248,000 and recent private end-August reports averaging about 14,750,000 bales.

Evidently the official crop figures were above expectations. There was heavy liquidation when the market re-opened combined with considerable local and southern selling. October broke to 17.38 and January to 17.83 about 26 to 47 points below yesterday's closing quotations but at these figures the market steadied on covering and trade buying. A good part of the latter was supposed to come from abroad, and the partial recoveries which followed were accompanied by bullish comment on the reduction of the government's minimum crop probability figures from 14,800,000 bales at the middle of August to 14,104,000 bales at the beginning of September. This was regarded by local traders as indicating that the size of the crop was still very largely dependent upon weather conditions and the frost date.

October closed at 17.70 and January at 17.97, or 15 to 22 points up from the lowest.

Exports today 15,782, making 480,121 so far this season. Port receipts 39,552; U. S. port stocks 681,908 bales.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—(AP)—The "bogey" of higher money rates hung over today's stock market which broke sharply in the last hour after an early period of strength. The late selling was accompanied by rumors, which later proved to be unfounded that the Boston federal reserve bank would increase its re-discount rate, such action bing considrd possible because of the recent sharp increase in brokers' loans and the expanding commercial and agricultural demand for funds.

Bear traders had tried ineffectually to unsettle the general list soon after the opening, but operators working for higher prices absorbed all offerings, and continued to bid up prices, specializing in a select list of industrials and specialities. Rals were practically neglected, despite the announcement that freight traffic established a new high record for all time in the week ended August 28.

The early "bull" movement was aided by the raising of the regular dividends on commercial solvents "B" and air reduction and the optimistic tenor of the weekly steel trade reviews which pointed out that operations were being maintained at the high level of the two preceding months.

General Motors again changed hands in enormous volume. From a low of 216½ in the morning, it rallied to 222 and then collapsed to 217 where it was off ⅝ net on the day. U. S. Steel common dropped from an early high of 152⅝ to 150, off one point net some of the late selling in these issues was said to represent the closing out of accounts in preparation for the observance of the Jewish religious holidays, which began at sundown tonight. While the late selling was directed chiefly against U. S. Steel and General Motors, sharp recessions from the early highs also took place in such popular industrials as Allied Chemical, Consolidated Gas, Pullman, United Drug, Westinghouse Air Brake, Woolworth and Yellow Truck. Jordan Motors sank to a new low at 19¼ on the omission of the dividend.

Independent strong spots were scattered, however, throughout the industrial list. Warner Fictures was bid up over three points on the announcement that the company had leased a theater in Atlantic City to show its new viaphone and planned to open another in Chicago. Butterick was bid up 3½ points to a new high at 65½ and gains of two points or more were recorded by American Machine and Foundry, First National Stores, General Asphalt preferred, Postum Cereal and South Porto Rican Sugar. Loose Wiles Biscuit common and second preferred each soared about 12 points to record high levels.

With the exception of Kansas City Southern, which touched a new 1926 high at 49⅜, the rails lost ground with the industrials. The recessions were fairly substantial in such issues as Atlantic Coast Line, Chesapeake and Ohio, Lackawanna and Illinois Central.

Call money held steady at 5 per cent all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

With the exception of sterling, which held firm around $4.85, the principal foreign exchanges lost ground. French francs ruled four points lower around 291 cents and Italian lire broke nearly 10 points to around 3.59 cents. Other recessions were nominal.

Grain

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Clearing weather in the Canadian northwest and weakness in the Winnepeg market brought about a sharp reaction in wheat values here today after a firm start. The action was reflected in other grains. Wheat closed weak at a net loss of ⅝ to 1⅝c, corn was unchanged to ¼c higher, oats finished unchanged to ⅜c off and provisions were 12½c down to 10c up.

Corn displayed independent firmness, but friends of higher prices were hampered by the weakness in wheat which cooled the enthusiasm of buyers to a considerable extent. Sentiment is growing more bullish owing to continued wet weather over the belt and a forecast of further rains.

Oats were affected by the action of other grains but moved within relatively narrow limits.

Scattered commission house buying of lard and a falling off in hog receipts gave provisions a slightly firmer undertone.

10 Additions To Church In Revival Services In Tent

The additions to the church, two of them for baptism, was the outcome of the third service of the revival meeting being held under the auspices of the Walnut Street Baptist church, under a tent in the block just east of the Wichita Valley tracks at the south end of Lamar avenue on the Henrietta highway.

Rev. J. F. Walters, who recently accepted a call to the pastorate of the church, is doing the preaching. T. F. Glossip is leading the choir. Miss Thelma Wilson is doing personal work and story telling and chalk talk work with the children and young people. Miss Sylvia Smith is pianist for the meeting.

Last night Miss Wilson made talks to the juniors and young people in the preliminary services preceding the preaching hour, and Rev. C. G. Lee of Holliday led the older folk in a prayer service.

Services for today are announced as follows: Morning worship at 10 o'clock. Miss Wilson will meet with the juniors at 7 o'clock and give a chalk talk. The older folk will meet at the tent for a pre-service prayer morning, evening service beginning at 8 o'clock.

NEW RAILWAY PLEA VOICED

Ardmore, Vernon and Lubbock Line Asks For Certificate

VERNON, Sept. 8.—An application for a certificate of public convenience and necessity and for authority to construct and finance a railroad from Ardmore to Lubbock was mailed to the interstate commerce commission at Washington late Tuesday evening by officials of the Ardmore, Vernon and Lubbock Railroad company, which was recently granted a charter in the state of Oklahoma. Officials of the company held a conference with S. M. Porter, veteran railroad promoter of Caney, Kan., late Tuesday at which the maps and formal application were prepared.

The application asks for hearings at Vernon and Grandfield, Okla. The proposed railroad would traverse a large and fertile district now without adequate railroad facilities, and a very large population would be served by it, according to the application sent the commission. The road will be approximately 265 miles in length, and will connect Ardmore, Wilson, Randlett, Grandfield and Davidson in Oklahoma, and Vernon, Thelia, Crowell, Grow, Challa, Dickens, Crosbyton, Ralls, Lorenzo, Idalour and Lubbock in Texas, according to maps and specifications sent with the application.

enormous supplies into Boston and New York, and due to the low tariff on this commodity, are doinng much damage to domestic onion markets.

Favors Fall Potatoes.

Mr. Crawford believes that the fall potato crop here will prove a much more marketable product than the spring crop when it is finally worked into a practical basis. He told of methods used in south Texas and pointed out that the competition could not be so strong on fall potatoes. He stated that the Rio Grande valley had not been able to double a crop on potatoes in the same year, and that they had litle success with their fall potatoes. The organization of growers there has made their crop favorable by creating a demand for it. This was done by grading the potatoes, putting them in standard sacks and using uniform tags. All small potatoes and scaly potatoes were thrown out, and the product was most desirable to the consumer.

Proper Things to Do.

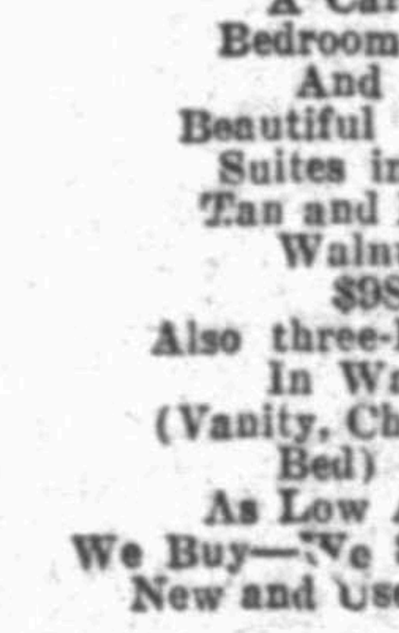

"Organization is first of all essential but this must be done properly," Mr. Crawford stated, "and observation and inspection has convinced me that a definite idea as to the crops to be raised should be made and then a growers organization made for each of these products." In other words it seems that the only organizations to make a success are those which are concerned over one crop alone. Of course one man may be a member of each of these organizations but they should be independent of each other, and in that way it will be easy to see which crops are paying and which are not. This system is working out nicely in the Rio Grande valley where ordinary Truck Growers associations were a failure.

Other important details are the employment of field inspectors, use of graders, uniformity in packing and strict culling of the products shipped were urged by Mr. Crawford. Then it would be alright to organize a marketing organization, but that is not needed until you have something to sell, and until that commodity is of high enough quality to be worth selling.

Mr. Crawford will speak in an open meeting at the court house this morning at 10 o'clock and everybody is invited to attend the meeting and hear him.

'RETURN TO GOD NATION'S NEED'

Rabbi Phillips Tells Big Audience World Has Drifted Away

"Return to God. Nothing will save us except we become a God-fearing, a God-worshipping— a synagogue and church-attending people."

Such was the admonition given by Rabbi Samuel Phillips of Temple Israel to the large congregation that crowded the synagogue Wednesday night in the celebration of Rosh Hashanah of Jewish New Year, the first meeting of the congregation of Temple Israel for the fall.

"What changes may not a single year bring forth? What blessings and curses may it not usher in? Within the space of a year Napoleon, the emperor, became a prisoner; the autocrat of Russia, Czar Nicholas passed from the palace at Petrograd to death in Siberia; the kaiser of Germany passed from chief commander of the greatest army of the world to a place of exile," Rabbi Phillips told the large assembly.

The Face's Picture

"But why go to foreign lands for illustrations when we can find others here? One face tells of a success that was little dreamed of a year ago; another has stamped upon it the joy that springs from a happy marital union; all faces are not lit with joy, some are sad. It is not because of our lesser business prosperity that we should be apprehensive of the future but because of our lesser religion," he said as he sounded a warning to take into account the tendency of the age.

"In this apprehensiveness, rabbis and ministers stand not alone. The vices entwine into a corruption that has been rampant in our midst for some time that have given rise to loud outeries of alarm from laymen as well.

"We know of immoralities, lawlessness, corruption and crime that fully rival those of the decline of Rome that led on to the revolution of France.

"We know that divorce swamps our courts and the marital tie has lost its sanctity, that life and property have ceased to be inviolable and corruption fills our politics."

War Is Blamed

Rabbi Phillips said that war is held responsible for that condition, but "our moral decline antedates the war," he said. "It begun in the time when, owing to unprecedented prosperity, the people relinquished their hold on the Rock of Religion on which the Pilgrim fathers founded the American commonwealth and which has kept it intact."

The main remedy is to "return to God whom they have forsaken. Nothing will save us except we become a God-fearing, God-worshiping, a synagogue and church-attending people," Rabbi Phillips declared in conclusion.

In the reform synagogue, Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year is celebrated from sunset of September 8 to sunset of the following day.

Richardson In Staunch Defense Of Ex-President

"Woodrow Wilson was a democrat long before he was elected president. One principle ruled his life—that the average man at heart was a good one."

So said Rev. Frank M. Richardson, presiding elder of the Wichita Falls district of the Methodist church, South, in an address Wednesday at noon at the Kemp before the Lions club when he spoke on the subject, "Democracy in the Personal and Religious Life of Woodrow Wilson."

Rev. Richardson was a student in Princeton university for three years while Mr. Wilson was president of the college, and he gave an interesting insight into the life of the late president.

"He made a fight at school that gave him notoriety," the speaker told the club, and he related how Mr. Wilson went to Princeton as its president to find that institution not the place of learning and culture he had pictured it to be, but an institution of wealth, a school of magnificent clubs. He believed that to be wrong, and he launched his fight.

"Wilson built a common eating place 'The Commons.' He did more than that, when he forced the young men to the campus, taking them from the clubs where many lived lewd and shameful lives.

"He worked out a drawing plan, and he put the boys in line to draw a number for his room, and it was done honestly, too. Mr. Wilson was a democrat; he believed in the rights and principles of the average man," Rev. Richardson declared.

Of his personal life, the speaker said that any unfavorable word against his character was a common dirty slander, for his was upright and clean in every way.

B. G. Ripley, chairman of the boys 'band committee, said that 25 boys had already signed as members of the odganization, and several telephone calls had been made. The committee composed of Mr. Ripley, M. C. Millican, Joe D. Harris, Joe S. Dickey and Dr. R. H. Graham will meet in Dr. Graham's office at noon Thursday to perfect plans for financing the organization.

The president Joe B. Hatchitt, was in charge of the meeting and presented the speaker of the day.

Rone Bribe Case Passed For Term

Three cases against L. E. Rone, charged with bribery in conection with his trial on a charge of violation of the prohibition laws several months ago, have been continued for the term of the 89th district court, it was announced Wednesday by the district attorney's office. The continuance was approved by Judge P. A. Martin of the 89th court, before whom the defendant was scheduled to be tried in the week of September 13th. Rone represented to the district attorney that his father's illness necessitated a long trip out of the city.

FILE ASSAULT CHARGE

Charges of assault with intent to murder were filed by the district attorney's office Wednesday, naming Izola Hart, who is alleged to have shot and seriously wounded her husband, Bill Hart, Wednesday morning. Hart himself was at the general hospital late yesterday where it was said that his wounds would probably not prove serious.

The shooting is alleged to have grown out of a domestic quarrel, in the course of which Hart was shot twice in the abdomen and leg by his wife. The arrest was made by Homer Bentley of the city motorcycle squad.

Ads Break Out In All Sections For Huge Circus

Oh Jim-min-ee! The circus is coming!

The biggest circus that mortal eyes have ever gazed upon is on its way to Wichita Falls. It's the combined Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey greatest show on earth that is being advertised to exhibit here both afternoon and night on Wednesday, September 29.

Fifty bill-posters, lithographers and bannermen armed with tons of eye-snaring posters are making the fact known for miles around today. Needless to say the announcement is meeting with the thorough approval of youngsters of all ages and both sexes, and from one to another the good news wings its way.

The first of the three publicity cars devoted to the extensive billing of the vast amusement institution arrived Wednesday morning. The advance press representative states that the mammoth program presented by the circus this season is in every respect bigger than anything in gigantic entertainment heretofore witnessed. Such amazing features as five massive wooden rings of imposing displays and six elevated stages of areic wonders are now presented for the first time in history. Three hundred and fifty performing horses, one act alone bringing into superb action 200 dancing, marching thoroughbreds are offered in a dazzlingly beautiful "Equine Ballet."

AWFUL SICK HEADACHE AND SALLOW COMPLEXION

"I was almost down with stomach trouble when I began taking Black-Draught," says Mrs. Ada Blackmar, of Alexander City, Ala. "I would turn a dull, yellow color, and for days at a time would have no appetite.

"Everything I ate sickened me, and every morning I would wake up with a bad taste in my mouth. Along with this I would have awful sick headaches which would almost drive me wild. I would have to lie down on the bed for hours, as every time I would get up I would feel a rush of nausea. I tried various medicines, but did not get relief from any of them.

"My mother had been a user of Black-Draught, so one time, while I was at home visiting, she asked me why I did not try Black-Draught. I had never taken it regularly—just a dose now and then for constipation—so then I decided to take a regular course to see if it would not straighten out my trouble. I began by taking a small dose of the powder three times a day before my meals. I kept this up fon several weeks, and it was just a little while before I began to note an improvement in my condition.

"The sallowness of my complexion disappeared and my digestion was ever so much better. After that, there was no more sick headache for me. When I felt one coming on, I would start on Black-Draught and a few doses would successfully head off the trouble."

Black-Draught has helped to relieve thousands of similar cases, and should benefit you.

MODEL DAIRY BARN BURNED

Bullington to Construct Big Building On Farm Here

Construction work will start this week on a huge model dairy barn on the farm of Orville Bullington near the Wichita Falls Fair grounds. When finished this will be the most up-to-date farm building in the county as it will be built from plans furnished by the United States Bureau of Animal Husbandry.

The plans as furnished will provide milking space for about 50 cows, and there are now more than 30 cows on the farm to be accomodated. When built under the specifications from the U. S. bureau, it will be classified as a certified milk barn, and will be a model for others to pattern from. The plans are furnished free of charge by the Bureau of Husbandry to anyone who gives assurance that the structure will be built according to plans and specifications, and are urged to all dairymen in the interests of better dairy farming.

Jones Makes Plea For Quality Farms

Quality products on irrigated lands of the farmers in the Wichita Falls Irrigated Valley is to be the hope of the truck grower, according to County Agricultural Agent Guy R. Jones, who spoke before the weekly meeting of the Wichita Falls real estate board. "If we sell our farm products, they must be sold on quality," he said.

The speaker said that Wichita county had already consumed more onions than it produced last year, in speaking of the onion crop of the past season. He told of the poor market and the large number of cars of onions that rotted in Collins county, Oklahoma, and the Rio Grande Valley because of low prices.

Crops that can be grown successfully in the Wichita valley are spinach, cabbage, potatoes and onions as well as other crops, Mr. Jones said. He spoke of canning surplus fruits and vegetables but advised against the practice of canning culls that had been disastrously done in some communities.

Plans for the coming realtors convention were discussed.

Eight Letter Men Return To Iowa Park Grid Fold

The Iowa Park Hawks started football practice Monday with about 20 men coming out for the team. Of this number, eight are letter men from last year's squad. Coach Brewster is building his team around these eight men, and with the wealth of new material that he has should put out a formidable team. In the initial workouts, Baxter, a new man, who is out for a guard position, and who tips the scales at about 200 pounds, has shown up remarkably well. It seems almost an impossibility to get by the big fellow, and with a little more experience should make a very valuable man.

Coach Brewster is being ably assisted by the two captains, Enloe and Cheeves. Enloe has shifted from the backfield to center, due to the graduation of Tanner, star center of last year's team, and bids fair to become one of the most valuable men in the Hawks' line.

Beasley is back with the same old fight that has made him one of the best little backs in this part of the state. Fields is back for his old position in the line, and should have little difficulty in making it as his superor knowledge of the game puts him ahead of the new men that are out, although he realizes that he will have plenty of competition from Smith, a new man. The other letter men are: Wiley, Thompson, Smith and Fitzgerald, all of whom are expected to win back their old positions.

Other promising men who are making their debut this year are Corder, Filmore, Wigley, Davis and Sunday.

The workouts so far have consisted mostly of tackling, kicking and passing with very little signal running. Each day the workouts are becoming more strenous. A letup is not expected until next week when the finer points of the game will be taken up.

BARNSDALL NOT STUNG ON DEAL

Rumors to Contrary Are Incorrect, Says Executive

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 8.—Because one or two tests that the Barnsdall Oil company had made on acreage it secured in the purchase of the Waite Phillips company were small or failures, many remarks have been passed about that the Barnsdall was stung in buying the Waite Phillips properties.

E. B. Reeser, president of the Barnsdall corporation, states that this is far from being correct. He says that several of the Waite Phillips tracts are already paying big, and others are yet to be developed, and that the Waite Phillips properties look better and better.

One of the richest tracts is the Carter lease in the south half of the northwest of 24-9-6. The 80 acres, it is reported today is worth $3,000,000 as it stands. The No. 1, in the southwest corner of the northwest, was completed June 1 for 2,500 barrels in the Hunton lime, and is still doing 1,200 barrels a day. A twin well is now to be drilled to it that will seek the Wilcox sand. No. 2 in the northeast corner of the southeast of the northwest, completed June 4, for 400 barrels, is still doing 300 barrels a day. In addition to recovering the Hunton lime production, the hole is being deepened to the Wilcox sand. It is the south offset of the Gypsy Oil company No. 1, Carter, now doing 3,800 barrels a day from the Wilcox.

Barnsdall's No. 3, in the southwest of the southeast of the northwest of 24-9-6 completed July 29, for 320 barrels, in the Hunton lime, from 3,895 to 3,922 feet. was Sunday deepened seven feet to a total depth of 3,929 feet, and still in the Hunton lime. The deepening increased its production to 1,700 barrels a day, making a total of 3,200 barrels a day from Nos. 1, 2 and 3. No. 4, in the northwest of the southeast of the northwest, is drilling at 3,505 feet; No. 5 in the southeast of the southwest of the northwest, is drilling at 90 feet; No. 6, in the northwest corner of the southwest of the northwest, is rigging up.

Joe Guess Shows Farmers How To Handle The Cows

The three-act play "Joe Guess Wins $1,000" was presented at the County Line school house Tuesday night under the auspices of the Electra Chamber of Commerce, County Agent Guy R. Jones and the Farmers Elevator company. A large crowd enjoyed the event. More than 500 persons filled the school house to overflowing.

This play is a humorous little skit on the vagaries of farming life, giving some good examples of poor farming and good farming, especially in reference to milk cows. No admission charge is made, as the play is staged in the interest of better farming and has been shown in various parts of the country by chambers of commerce and county agents.

Principals in the play were Guy R. Jones, county agent for Wichita Falls, who took the part of Joe Guess, and Albert H. Leonard, of the Purina Feed company of St. Louis, and J. C. Philo, a resident of the city. These men did excellent caricature work, if praise and applaud from the audience means anything, as well as to demonstrate to the many farmers and dairy men present the value of using modern methods in their business.

At the close of the show prizes of six feeding measures and a milk scale were given to farmers in the audience who had the best showing from a questionnaire which was filled out by each one.

ARMY LEAGUE AIDS CHARITY

Home Work Service Is Performed by Salvation Army Unit

Members of the Home League of the Salvation Army are doing constructive work for the charity of the army and have recently completed a patchwork quilt as a part of their fall program of work. The quilt which is on display at Saul's store is to be given to some worthy family, it was announced yesterday by Captain Cardiff.

The Home League, headed by Mrs. L. A. Roberson, has finished a complete set of school clothes for a family whose mother has been unable to prepare clothing for the children in time for the opening of school. Old clothes are remade into garments for children by the Home League.

Many calls were made to Salvation Army headquarters Wednesday by persons who wanted clothing, and the supply on hand is short, it was said. If anyone has clothing that they wish to donate, the Army expressed a willingness to accept it.
