MRS. BACHMAN RECEIVES CONGRATULATIONS ON CANCER DRIVE SUCCESS

Mrs. A. L. Bachman, perennial chairman of the Aransas County Cancer Campaigns, received a congratulatory telegram recently which said:

"I am excited and pleased that you and your workers exceeded your last year's record. Congratulations. Mrs. John B. Connally."

Mrs. Bachman said one of the factors contributing to the success of this year's drive was the gift, by the 1965 graduating class of Aransas County High School, all of the funds left in the class treasury at the time members graduated.

This amounted to $233.12, Mrs. Bachman said, and was given in memory of little Stephen Staes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Staes, who passed away recently, while his father was a teacher in the local high school.

Weed Ordinance Allows City To Foreclose on Lots

The City Council, plagued by absentee owners whose vacant lots are a nuisance because they harbor weeds, trash, mosquitoes, garbage and potential disease, has passed an ordinance making it illegal to allow such conditions and providing that the city may file liens against owners of such property.

The caption of the ordinance says that it is to protect public health and promote the public welfare of the city by providing for the filling or drainage of lots that have unwholesome places or places where stagnant water may accumulate.

For the cleaning of any building or premises of filth, carrion or other impure and unwholesome matter; requiring owners to keep lots free of such premises shall be notified and if they fail to clean up the property the same can be done at the expense of the city, with a lien assessed against the lot or lots on which such work is done. These liens are second to tax liens and liens for street improvements and the charges shall bear interest at 10 per cent from the day they are filed. If the expenditures are not paid, then the city has the right to foreclose on the property.

In addition, any person, firm or individual violating the ordinance, is subject to a fine of not more than $200 per person per day for such violation, with each day the ordinance is ignored constituting a separate offense.

The Aransas County Youth Center will hold a record hop on Friday, July 2, from 8 until 11:30 p.m. Admission will be 35 cents a head, with tourists welcome.

rapidly that there is little doubt that the 2500 units or so available will all be full by Saturday.

And, while the daddies and some of the mothers and children will do considerable fishing, either using their own boats or one of the big fare boats available at Rockport Fulton and Lamar, most of the vacationers will spend long hours at the beaches, where the Navigation District has done something unprecedented elsewhere in Texas.

All along the mile-and-a-half crescent that makes Rockport one of the finest bathing places in Texas, shelters with tables and benches have been built for free use by the public, and the beach has been closed to cars, so that children and grownups can play without the danger of being clobbered by some wild hot rod.

Cars are parked near the beach, along the road that leads from one end to the other.

When the district started its most recent construction program, now practically completed, commissioners decided one of the great lacks of Texas beaches was shade and that some provision for this would be welcomed by the public.

At some point in the District's history, it had built six such shelters on the Rockport sea wall, three in the Navigation District park area at Rockport boat basin, and seven in the little park adjoining the harbor at Fulton, and these were used almost constantly. Hence, when the beach at Fulton was built last year, five more shelters of concrete blocks, with tables and benches were built, sheltered by palm thatch; fifteen similar ones were built at Rockport.

So enthusiastically were all these used by bathers and sea-

Complaints Have Been Made About Water Skiers

Continued complaints have been heard by Chamber of Commerce officials on the wild disregard some water skiers have been showing for the safety of others, according to Ed Harper, of Key Allegro.

A number of marine hot-rodgers, either unaware of the rules of the road, or totally unmindful of the rights of others, have been heading in any direction, and have disregarded the unwritten rule at the ski basin that all traffic should be one way, in a counter-clockwise direction.

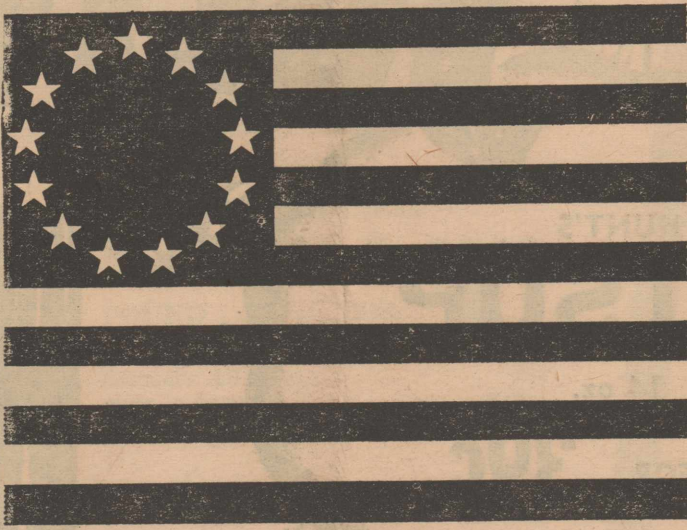

Several years ago, the now-defunct Rockport Water Ski Club adopted a set of rules to promote safety, and in addition to compiling a list of tips for skiers, aimed at preserving their own and other people's health, laid plans for the erection of a "Safe Procedure" sign at the quadruple launching ramp on the east side of the basin.

The sign is gone, but here are the tips:

Stay away from fishermen, swimmers and people wading. Have an extra person in any boat towing a skier to watch the person on skis or, if this is not possible, at least have a rear view mirror.

Learn and use hand signals between skiers and boat operators.

Rockport Lions To Stage 11th Annual Barbecue

The Rockport Lions Club will stage their eleventh annual Fourth of July barbecue at the Lions Pit, in front of the Woman's Club building on July 4, from as soon as the barbecue is ready until there isn't any more.

Chief cook, as usual will be Seth H. Steele, who was the originator of the idea many years ago, and a leader in obtaining funds for construction of the first pit, which has been enlarged at least once since then.

The barbecue has been serving more and more people every year, as its fame grew, and has become one of the local institutions. Proceeds from the affair go to the various charitable projects of the Rockport Lions.

May Bond Sales Reach $10,932

May Series E and H Bond sales in Aransas County totaled $10,932, according to Fred Bracht, chairman of the Aransas County Savings Bonds Committee. This figure represents 52 per cent of the 1965 goal.

Savings Bond sales in Texas for the first five months of 1965 totaled $63,388,088 which represents 41 per cent of the state's goal of $152.8 million.

"During recent years, sales of $25, $50, and $100 denomination bonds have shown a substantial increase. One reason for this increase is the use of Series E Bonds as a retirement instrument. Income is usually lower in retirement years and with the added benefit of double exemption after age 65, tax liability on E Bond interest could be greatly reduced—or even eliminated entirely under some circumstances," Chairman Bracht stated.

De-Salinization Of Salt Water Here To Be Discussed Soon

Firemen Ask Pay For Practice And Fire Calls

Spokesman for the Rockport Volunteer Fire Department, appearing at the regular session of the City Council, asked $2 per call per fireman, and $1 per meeting, without offering any concrete information on what this could cost the city.

However, several of the council estimated that this could easily amount to over $10,000 a year and, if granted, would require a raise in taxes to meet.

When pressed for the thinking behind the demand, the firemen's spokesmen said that the money would help pay for burned clothes, and similar items of expense. Moreover, they said, when local firemen attended quarterly and other meetings, they were laughed at because they had not asked for pay and because they were paying for the privilege of belonging to the organization, rather than being paid.

The spokesmen for the firemen said there were now 32 men in the fire department, but that if the demand was granted, they would not accept any more applicants.

Twenty-three members had been present when the department members decided to present their request to the city council, they said, and while some of them didn't vote, all that did were in favor.

Asked if it was not true that some members of the department were opposed to the demand, the group said that if this was so, the dissident members had not expressed their opinions.

In figures presented for April, May and June, it was shown that the total of men attending 12 meetings was 276, which, under the demand, would have cost the city $276. Prorating this for the rest of the year, attendance at meetings would cost the city about $1,462.00.

Pay for calls was more difficult to figure, but using the 23 average attendance at meetings, and a figure of approximately 200 calls, the number given in a meeting some time ago, when the question of fire marshal pay was discussed, it would seem entirely possible that pay for firemen answering calls could run in the neighborhood of $9,200.00. Total would then be close to $10,662.00 or about one sixth the money the city now collects in taxes.

The council, after hearing the firemen out, asked for time to consider the matter, and requested that the firemen present accurate statistics on what the city would have to budget to meet the demand.

Spokesmen appearing for the department were Chief Coy C. Truelove, T. E. Minyard, and Gary Smith.

In other business, the council approved a request of the Mercer Construction Co. for payment of the $3518.68 still owing that company on the recent sewer and water program, and authorized the mayor to sign an extension of the city's water agreement with

Potable Water Can Be Produced For 35 Cents Per 1,000 Gallons

Bruce Dunn, president, and L. L. Gragg, chairman of the board of Western Engineering and Development Co., told officials of the Aransas County Conservation and Reclamation District yesterday that the de-salinization plant at Port Mansfield is finishing pilot runs, and can produce potable water for 35 cents a thousand gallons.

Dunn, who designed the Port Mansfield plant, and Gragg were here to arrange a meeting with members of the conservation district sometime within the next two weeks, to discuss the possibility of a similar plant in this area, either as a supplement to, or as a primary source for, the water Aransas County needs so badly.

The plant at Port Mansfield, which has a capacity of 250,000 gallons per day, cost $312,700, and includes filters for removal of iron and manganese content—the same minerals which prove so troublesome to housewives here, staining their clothes a rusty red.

Also included in this initial cost were two service pumps, a 100,000 gallon concrete raw water tank, the plant building, a second 100,000-gallon tank for the treated water, and the necessary piping and controls.

Raw water comes from a well near the port, which has a total mineral content of 2240 milligrams per litre, of which approximately 500 milligrams per litre are salts of one sort and another. This is about twice the state allowance for approval.

By a process known as electro-dialysis, these salts and other dissolved matter are removed from the water, and the salt content lowered to approximately 150 milligrams per litre. This is well below the state tolerance level, and only about one-tenth as salty as the water Port Mansfield residents are now using through necessity.

Dunn, during the course of the conversation with Harold Picton and J. L. Baughman, president and secretary of the Conservation District, said that with the knowledge gained from construction of the Port Mansfield plant, and from plants that have been in operation in Buckeye, Ariz., and at Coalinga, Calif., there was a distinct possibility that the 35 cents per thousand gallon cost could be lowered slightly, and this reduction would probably become somewhat larger as the size of the plant increased.

Dunn said his company was at present engaged in a survey of the possibilities around Kingsville, which has recently

CP&L Enlarges Fulton Substation

Construction work is under way on a major expansion project which will double the size of Central Power and Light Company's Fulton substation, CPL Manager B. T. Hardeman said this week.

The foundation for the station addition has already been completed, and work was under way early this week on erection of steel for the superstructure.

All equipment is expected to be installed and the substation ready for service in early July, the CPL manager said.

The substation addition is designed to meet rapidly-expanding electrical requirements of the Rockport-Fulton area and to provide capacity for future growth. The expansion calls for the addition of a 5,000-KVA transformer bank. The new equipment will increase the capacity of the station to 10,000 KVA.

The substation steps down power from CPL's high voltage transmission system for distribution throughout this area at 12,000 volts.

Hardeman said the increased use of electricity and the growing number of customers in the Rockport-Fulton area dictated the construction of the new substation.

Power lines also connect CPL's Fulton and Rockport substations as a further assurance of dependable electric service.

TROUBLE SPOT. For the second time in this century, U.S. troops have had to be sent to the Dominican Republic to preserve law and order. Map shows strategic locale of the nation on the Caribbean. President Johnson, reaffirming that U.S. will not permit establishment of another Communist dictatorship in western hemisphere, sent in forces when it appeared Communists were taking over democratically-inspired revolt against the civilian junta which runs the country with Dominican army support. — WFS Photo.

Local Men Listed In Who's Who

Two Rockport men appear in the latest issue of "Who's Who in the South and Southwest," Emory M. Spencer, who has been listed previously, and James H. Sorenson, Jr., who makes his first appearance in this issue.

Spencer's biography lists him as an oil operator and lawyer, born at Redwater, Texas, March 13, 1905, the son of Cuthbert and Thurey Spencer. He received his A.B. Degree at Rice Institute in 1926; later was a student at the University of Texas Law School, between the years 1931 and 1935.

Married to Mildred Farrow in September, 1943, he has three children, Sandra Carol, James Darrell, and Mary.

After leaving Rice Institute, he was employed as a geophysicist by the Sun Oil Company from 1927 to 1934, and was admitted to the Texas Bar in 1936.

For a number of years thereafter he practiced law in Rockport; was city attorney, 1943-45; county judge, 1948-49; county attorney, 1949-53, and 1945-48; and has been an oil and real estate operator since 1948.

He was chairman of the Aransas County Democratic Executive Committee 1955-58; and is a member of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, a co-chairman of the Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association, and a member of the committee on unauthorized practice of the 36th Judicial since 1947. He is also a member of the Texas Bar Association, of Delta Tau Delta, and of St. Peter's Episcopal Church.

Sorenson was born in Rockport, July 14, 1918, and attended St. Mary's University in San Antonio. He is executive vice president of the First National Bank, is also a member of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, and director on a number of banks and other financial institutions. He is twice past president of the Rockport Chamber of Commerce, and a current director; is chairman of the Aransas County Planning and Development Board, of which Spencer is a member, and is financial advisor to the Aransas County Independent School District, just as Spencer is the District's unofficial legal advisor.

Sorenson, who was a major in the Air Force during World War II, has been an officer of the First National Bank at Rockport for the past 20 years. He is a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; of the Rockport Lions Club; and president of the Port Bay Hunting and Fishing Club, twice director of the Live Oak Country Club, and a member of the Board of Governors of St. Mary's University in San Antonio.

He is on the local Salvation Army Committee, has been a member of the Board of the United Fund (as has Spencer) and is a member of the local chapter of the National Foundation.

Sorenson is also director and chairman of the National Federation of Independent Businesses, a past chairman of the Coastal Bend Tourist Association, a member of the Aransas County Literacy Council, and of the Executive Board of the Diocese of West Texas of the Episcopal Church.

Prominent in the encouragement of education, Sorenson is also a member of the Board of Trustees of the Seminary of the Southwest, at Austin.

A partner in Glass, Sorenson and McDavid Insurance Agency of Rockport, he is also a director of the First Victoria National Bank, Victoria, Texas; a director of the United Savings Association, of Corpus Christi; and director of the Coastal Bend Savings and Loan Association, Port Lavaca, where he is also president of the Hollamon Land Company and The Shofner Realty Company.

He is president of The West Terrace Development Company of Rockport; a trustee of Little Bay Shores, and the Mildred Shofner Trust, as well as being interested in various investments in the area.

Jack L. Ballou, Miss Stewart To Pledge Vows

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Stewart of Three Rivers have announced the engagement of their daughter Linda Joyce to Jack Lyndon Ballou, son of Mrs. A. L. Ballou and the late Mr. Ballou. A July 3 wedding in the First Baptist Church in Three Rivers is planned.

The bride-elect is a graduate of the Aransas County High School and the University of Corpus Christi.

Live Oak Decline Covers Most of State

There has been much destruction of live oak trees in Texas in the last 35 years by what researchers at Texas A&M believe to be a specific fungus, reveals Dr. R. S. Halliwell, a assistant professor, Plant Sciences Department, Texas A&M University.

Halliwell goes on to explain that live oak decline was first observed in the vicinity of Austin in 1933. Since then it has spread to include most of the live oak habitats of Texas.

He says that occurrence of the "disease" in many new areas during the past year has caused growing concern among tree owners and researchers alike.

The disease has little preference as to locality or environmental conditions. It has been observed to affect cultivated as well as forest trees, young as well as old trees, trees on both acid and alkaline soils, trees on sandy and heavy clay soils, and trees in humid and dry climates.

Yellowing of leaves is the first outward symptom of an infected tree, Halliwell says. Leaf yellowing may occur on certain branches or on the entire tree. If the whole tree is affected death occurs within one to two weeks; otherwise, the decline takes from one to two years.

The heartwood of infected trees has a brown discoloration and a faint odor resembling acetic acid.

It is from heartwood of infected trees that researchers at A&M have isolated the pathogenic fungus which they believe is responsible for live oak decline. This fungus was found in the heart of every infected tree examined. However, it has never been located in the dying terminals of infected trees.

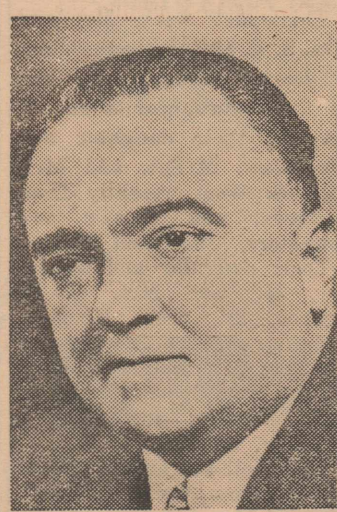

The absence of this fungus in dying branches, combined with difficulty in isolating the fungus, led early researchers to the conclusion that the disease was caused by a virus.

"The apparent absence of the pathogen in dying terminals indicates that yellowing of leaves on dying trees is caused by an interference of the flow of nutrients within the tree and/or the presence of a toxin produced by the fungus," Halliwell states.

No satisfactory control for live oak decline has been developed to date. However, Halliwell says that live oak tree owners can reduce the chances of their trees becoming infected by removing all infected trees immediately after detection, and by maintaining the trees in a healthy condition by supplying sufficient amounts of moisture and plant nutrients.

TELEVISION ADDICT. Used to be a gorilla in a zoo could think of no better entertainment than peering through the bars at the antics of people. But now, gorillas at Bronx zoo in New York would much prefer to watch television, and have received a 16-inch set to ease away their leisure hours. They only get television, however, when they're inside . . . outside, they have to satisfy themselves with people. — WFS Photo.

EXPECTS TROUBLE. J. Edgar Hoover, FBI Director, charges that U.S. Communists took part in April peace march on Washington, and says they are now planning other student protests on U.S. foreign policy. He said they will likely press for nationwide peace strikes or work stoppages. — WFS Photo.

MORE PAY IN FUTURE? Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz has endorsed inclusion of farm workers such as above under minimum wage legislation. Wirtz declared farm workers earn an average of 90 cents an hour, while minimum wage law figure is $1.25. Wirtz said there is no administration policy on whether the minimum wage should apply to farm workers, but added it would "be a good and important thing to do." — WFS Photo.

Rockport News Gets Around

Rockport news continues to get around, and this month the Oil Information Committee of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association helped the good work along with the following widely-disseminated news release:

"If your sightseeing tastes run to deer, wild turkey, great blue heron, javelina, caracara—or several hundred other types of wildlife—then the Aransas Wildlife Refuge should be on your list of Texas places to visit this year.

This National Wildlife Refuge covers 47,261 acres on Blackjack Peninsula, about 75 miles north and slightly east of Corpus Christi off State Highway 35. The Refuge was established in 1937 for the protection and production of all forms of wildlife. It is administered by the Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife under the U. S. Department of Interior.

Visitors are asked to register at Refuge headquarters, located eight miles southeast of Austwell, Texas (Refugio County).

Summer visitors are encouraged to plan visits for late afternoon when more wildlife can be observed from the Refuge's 25 miles of shell surfaced roads. Visiting hours are from 8 a.m. to sunset, daily.

Occupants of vehicles bearing a Land and Water Conservation Fund sticker are admitted free. For all other persons over 16 years of age, there is a 25c fee, effective about June 1, 1965. Picnic areas are available in the Refuge.

For complete information on the area, you may write to Refuge Manager, Aransas National Wildlife Refuge, Austwell, Texas 77950, or Director, Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, Washington, D.C. 10240."

A Message

To All Voters of Aransas County

If I have not been fortunate enough to have visited with you and presented my qualifications and views to you, might I reach you by presenting them to you in this message.

(1) I am retired and can therefore devote my full time to the affairs of the Navigation District.

(2) I have no interests either in waterfront property or in any business located there so my decisions will be based solely on what I consider is good for the County as a whole.

(3) I have always felt that there is room for both tourism and commercial fishing interests to prosper in the area together.

(4) It is my firm belief that the affairs of the Navigation District would be better served by having a five-man board.

(5) A resident of the County for nineteen years. I was President of our Independent School Board for six of the eight years I served on the board, was Democratic Chairman of Precinct 3 for 4 years, a director of the Chamber of Commerce for 8 years, a director and for the past fifteen years, treasurer of the Fulton Lions Club and at present a director of Aransas County Water and Conservation District.

(6) My aim has always been and will continue to be to make Aransas County a better place to live in and to work in.

Your vote on July 10th will be evidence of your confidence in me and if elected I will not let you down.

DE-SALINIZATION—

petitioned the Texas Water Commission to be allowed to use 10,000 acre feet yearly from the Nueces River, below the Wesley Seale Dam.

There are large water supplies of brackish underground water in that area, and a plant there could either supplement the surface water supply, or, if large enough, produce enough potable water to furnish a primary water supply.

The plant at Buckeye, Ariz., produces 650,000 gallons a day, and was brought to the attention of the Aransas County Conservation and Reclamation District soon after its formation by M. W. Cochran, who discussed the matter at some length with members of the District's board. It was manufactured by Ionics, Inc., whose representative accompanied Cochran. On a visit by Charles R. Johnson, general manager of the Port Mansfield Navigation District, prior to designing of the Texas facility, residents of Buckeye were practically unanimous in their praise of the system there. And Ionics, Inc., stacks are the heart of the Port Mansfield plant.

The system at Coalinga produces drinking water only by the electrochemical process employed at Port Mansfield and Buckeye, with additional untreated water being supplied through a separate distribution system for commercial and fire fighting purposes.

A fourth such plant is being operated by the U. S. Department of the Interior, Office of Saline Water, at Webster, S. D., on an experimental basis.

Proponents of the de-salinization of brackish water point out that such plants as that at Port Mansfield have a very real place in Texas' battle for water.

"Wherever brackish well water with a total solid content of 5,000 milligrams per liter or under are available," says J. C. Oliver, president of the National Engineering Co. at Austin, who were the Port Mansfield engineers, "a prospective water user will find the capital cost of an electro-dialysis plant are much lower than capital cost for constructing the usual system of reservoirs, water transmission lines, and water treatment plants."

Many Texas cities, including Rockport are located on top of, or near underground brackish water resources that will supply their needs for many years; the chief drawback to such use at present, in the higher cost. For instance, in comparison, Port Mansfield costs are 10 cents per 1,000 gallons higher than would be the case if the water was obtained from the San Patricio Municipal Water District, as was proposed in the recent survey made by Lockwood, Andrews and Newnam for the Conservation District.

side picnicers that the Navigation District Commissioners—Chairman Ted R. Little and secretary Charles Schindler—decided to add still more, in anticipation of the summer crowds, and 25 new ones were added at Rockport, rimming the Aransas Bay bathing beach and the eastern side of the ski basin which is also being used more and more by both local and out-of-town skiers.

Then, to add to the swimming facilities, the commissioners made another departure from the usual Texas coast facilities, and constructed a more-than-Olympic sized salt water swimming pool, at which high diving boards and slides are being installed this week.

Using an arm of the channel that leads to Key Allegro and its canals, the commissioners had one end of this bulkheaded in a vast semicircle, with the sands of the beach coming to the pool's edge. To keep out jellyfish and other harmful animals, but to maintain free flow of the water into and out of the pool, they barred its entrance with nylon webbing, and to make it an excellent place to swim and dive, they deepened it to 12 feet, so that expert swimmers would have some place to practice their specialties.

Elsewhere in the area, the dozen shelters at Goose Island are already full, and the Rockport Lions are getting ready for the 11th annual Fourth of July barbecue, when they will feed several thousand people from the Lions' pit in front of the Doman's Club building at Rockport Harbor. This event, like everything else in the area, has become larger from year to year, with the increase in local population and as the excellent vacation facilities of Rockport become more and more widely known.

Mrs. Bailey's guests were Mrs. Jones Christian, Mrs. John Cox, Mrs. A. C. Glass, Mrs. H. A. McDonald, Miss Danyace Wilhelm, of Maywood, N.J., Mrs. Roy Hinton, Mrs. Loy Simms of Sinton, Mrs. W. T. Foster of San Antonio, Mrs. Newell Boughton and Mrs. White.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Jamison, after spending a week in British Honduras, flew in Friday afternoon to visit his aunt, Mrs. A. C. Glass and Mr. Glass. They left for their home in Dallas Saturday.

Key Allegro.

Carl Krueger, who appeared as head of the Key Allegro Development, told the council that there were approximately 100 houses on the island at present, either occupied, ready for occupancy, or in various stages of construction. Approximately 50 or 60 were occupied he said.

Councilmen then heard the city attorney, Richard Hatch, as he told of steps being taken to collect delinquent taxes. A letter is being sent to such taxpayers, he said, reading as follows:

"This is to inform you I am now preparing to file a delinquent tax suit for the City of Rockport. I hope to have this suit ready to file in August, 1965. I have been advised that you have taxes on the delinquent roll.

"It is impossible for the City to file delinquent tax suits without incurring expenses in the filing of the suit and the serving of citations by the sheriff. This expense is passed on to property owners involved in such suits.

"The city does not want to impose a hardship on anyone, but the delinquent taxes on your property must be paid. If you are unable to pay all of your taxes at this time, please contact Mr. Johnson at the City Hall and try to work out a payment plan."

Laguna's Salt Wrecking South Texas Counties

Salt from the Laguna Madre is moving inland over an area stretching from Corpus Christi to the southern edge of Kenedy County, and as far inland as Falfurrias, destroying vegetation and ranch cover, causing loss to farmer's crops, encrusting and damaging power and telephone lines, and wrecking household appliances.

Just what can be done about the matter, no one seems to know, but everyone is emphatic about the need for action.

The whole trouble stems from a 260-square mile area on the southwestern corner of the Kenedy Ranch so shallow that sea water evaporates there very rapidly, especially in times of low tides. Then the flats are left bare and glittering with salt crystals that the ever-present southeastern trade winds whirl high in the air, to fall out over areas as much as a hundred miles inland.

Commander Pete Loomis, at Kingsville NAAS, says that sometimes the clouds of salty dust reach as high as 10,000 feet in the air, and that over the five years he has been at the station long fingers of salty sand have crept back into the ranch vegetation dimming the Laguna, where the salt content is normally about three times that of sea water.

Before the opening of the Intracoastal Canal, the barrier across the Laguna prevented northward flow of water, and it stacked up against the sand flats, with the wind-induced difference between the water in the Laguna sometimes as much as two to three feet greater than in the upper portion of the long, narrow bay between Padre Island and the mainland. Then the flats in question were not as damaging to the area.

Now, as the water levels in the southern Laguna dropped along with the salinity in the dead end, more of the marginal land along the western shore is subject to evaporation which can, and has in the past, reached as much as six feet a year, and the present conditions have arisen.

John Herring, a soil conservation official, says that approximately 900 acres of Kenedy Ranch grazing lands have been covered by blowing sand since a survey was made in 1948, about the time the Intracoastal Canal was cut through the sand banks in the center of the Laguna.

Herring said that some coastal areas had lost 100 percent of their cover in the past three years with all the live oak trees nearest the Laguna completely killed. Near U.S. Highway 77, he said, which is a considerable distance inland, damage so far has amounted to about 10 percent.

Bill Tomas, agricultural agent for Kleberg and Kenedy counties says that even the prickly pear is showing the effects of the salt-laden winds, and that salt damages to farmers in the area amount to around $9 per bale of cotton. In urban areas, he said, people call and complain about the death of trees.

"Every time you can see where the southeast side of the trees has been killed by salt in the prevailing winds."

A number of people have indicated that so-called fish passes through Padre Island would probably alleviate the condition. There seems to be little room for such belief, as only an actual rise in the water-level, so that the offending flats are covered most of the time, offers any sort of a permanent remedy.

The argument advanced by these people, most of whom are untrained in the biological sciences, is that the water in the Laguna, one of the saltiest bodies of water in the world, would be freshened and the salt content lowered to the point where there would be little damage.

Apparently none of them are familiar with the fact that when the first of the so-called "fish passes" was cut through to the Laguna that Gordon Gunter, then biologist for the old Texas Game, Fish and Oyster Commission, proved that the Gulf water, of lesser salinity, formed a small ring around the inner end of the pass, but that it never entered far into the Laguna.

Again, when the John F. Kennedy Causeway was first proposed, scientists working for the Commission proved that the less saline waters of Corpus Christi Bay slid up over the Flour Bluff flats in the shape of a wedge, on top of the saltier waters of the Laguna Madre, and without mixing with them.

From time to time with in recent years, scientists have warned that the interference with the free flow of the Laguna Madre waters was leading to more rapid sedimentation and quicker shallowing of the bays, so some observers believe it is possible that the exposed flats will become greater instead of less, and the salt nuisance will become even more of a menace. Padre sands are also moving into the Laguna, thus accelerating the process.

One offered the comment that probably the best way to stop the continual deposit of sale would be to take draglines and dam the flats off, as they have done in Holland, where they reclaim such land from the sea.

Some idea of the damage to utilities may be gained from the statement by C. M. Wagner, of Robstown, manager of the Nueces Electric Cooperative, who says that his company has spent nearly $500,000 in the past 15 years to prevent or repair damage caused by salt deposits on electrical equipment. Crews must continually wash down equipment to keep electricity from arcing over insulators onto the poles.

At Sarita, he said, corrosion forced replacement of lines in two and a half years, and, he said, "we knew we would have trouble when we installed a transformer at Riviera Beach; however, we didn't expect it to fall off the pole within six months."

Similar trouble has been experienced by Bill Colston, manager of the Riviera Telephone Co., who said salt damage to exposed wiring finally caused his company to replace this with underground cable. Pure copper wire once tried just turned to green dust.

L. E. Turcotte, manager of the Kenedy Ranch, said at first the ranch had thought the problem was its own, then it was found that the devastation was moving on to ranch neighbors to the north and west.

Congressional help has been sought, and, although Representative John Young expects to lose Kleberg and Kenedy counties by redistricting, he said recently that he is much interested and will continue to work with the problem. He has also contacted U. S. Representative Kika de la Garza, who will gain the two counties, and de la Garza assured Young of his interest in the situation, promising his aid to correct it.

It may be, however, that nature is unaware of the power of the U. S. Congress.

Outdoors in Texas

By Vern Sanford

Every year Texas newspapers publish articles on water safety. Yet every year people are hurt or killed . . . while boating, swimming, wading, skiing, fishing, or just plain falling into the water.

There are all kinds of accidents . . . minor, painful, fatal. Most of them are caused by failure to THINK.

Little is written about what can happen to the fisherman. So let's talk about the angler and his safety problems. Here's a guy who doesn't want to think about anything but catching fish.

One friend of mine didn't even have to go near the water to get himself full of fish-hooks. He laughs as he tells it on himself now, but it wasn't so humorous at the time it happened.

He kept lures hooked into the liner of a minnow bucket suspended from a garage rafter by a cord. One day he undertook to reach up and get some lures for a fishing trip, and the whole apparatus fell down on his head. For awhile he looked like a walking tackle shop, with baits festooned all over him.

Some of the hooks were in his clothes, but others were snared in his hide. He had quite a session with the doctor before all the hooks were removed.

Let's suppose that you are out on the river or lake fishing and a hook gets imbedded in you. Do you know how to remove it? This is something every angler should know. No matter how careful you may be, you are going to get hooked sometime . . . either by your buddy or by your own carelessness.

If the point has penetrated deep into the flesh, it is next to impossible—and very painful—to extract a hook by trying to take it out the way it went in. After all—barbs are there to hold the hook securely in place. And they do a good job of it.

So take your pliers (don't ever go fishing with wire-cutting pliers) and cut the shank of the hook. This is done to remove the eye.

Next push the hook so that its point will move forward. That is, so that its movement will not be impeded by the barb. With a little pressure the point will move through the flesh, puncture an exit in the skin and emerge there.

Let the wound bleed a little. Blood washes out the wound and removes whatever impurities there may be on the hook. Now take your safety kit (you do carry a safety kit, don't you?) and apply iodine, mercurochrome, or whatever disinfectant is available.

After the disinfectant, apply a Band-Aid and you're as good as new.

As for hook accidents—the best idea, of course, if for them not to happen. A few simple precautions will prevent them.

If two men are in a boat, both should cast from the same side and in the same general direction. Never cast in opposite directions or toward the bow or stern.

If you cast longways of the boat, your backswing will put your lure right in your partner's face. If it doesn't hook him it will scare him to death, or nearly so, and even if he survives you will have lost a fishing buddy.

You're going to get lures hung in bushes, trees, and weeds near the shore. When you do, avoid trying to free them with a hard, steady pull.

Use a series of short, sharp yanks on the line, and even then look out! Even the latter method sometimes will free a lure so that it will come flying right back at you. Be ready to duck anytime either you or your buddy is trying to free a hook that's snagged.

If you hold your rod out to one side, in trying to free a snagged hook, the lure, suddenly loosened, is more likely to miss you in its return flight. If you want to play it safe, simply move the boat to the lure and free it by hand.

There's a good rule about safety in small fishing boats. Watch your partner, and when he moves to one side, you move to the other.

If he leans over the side to pull up a heavy anchor and you lean over the same side at the same time, to reach for the floating minnow bucket—don't be surprised if you both get a bath, even if it isn't Saturday.

Keep the boat in balance at all times! And don't stand up in a small boat unless you absolutely have to.

Don't fool around in swift, rocky waters in your fishing boat. If you're going upstream and hit a rock with your propeller shaft, your motor will tilt and the boat will go out of control and possibly overturn. put your motor in reverse to reduce speed and try your best to avoid the rocks.

Best of all though, avoid that kind of water whenever possible. If you must get into it, or through it, to catch fish, get out and tow the boat through the shallow, dangerous places. Or go to the bank and pull the boat along until you reach deeper, quieter water. You'll have to be guided by the situation, but in case of doubt, don't take chances. It's not worth it!

Another thing . . . don't fool around with storms. Head for home as fast possible!

You don't have to be in a boat to get into trouble while fishing.

I'm thinking of some places below river dams, where the STUDY THE STREAM. Oceanographers have decided that it's high time to put the Gulf Stream under intensive surveillance. It was almost 200 years ago that Benjamin Franklin made the first scientific study of the warm ocean current, flowing from the Gulf of Mexico through Florida Strait, and there have been many studies since, but little is still known about how it warms western Europe and balances the heat of the Atlantic Ocean. The "river of the sea" will be studied for a year by the U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey, joined by five universities and institutes. — WFS Photo.

white bass bite fabulously. Here the banks are usually rocky and steep. When power is being generated, the water comes out of the tail race in a great rush.

There is a giant sort of whirlpool effect; the currents smash against each other and against the boulders as the water fights for a route downstream.

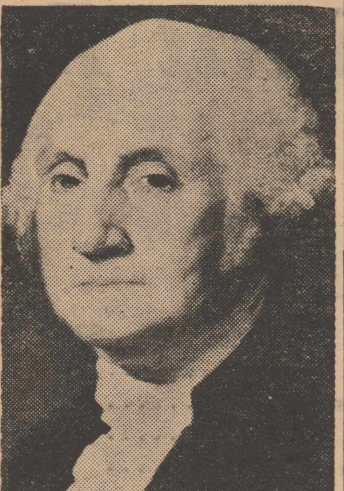

Little springs ooze out of the cliffsides, and the rocks along the precipitous banks are slippery. One false step and you're in that terrifying current. I wouldn't give a dime for your chances.

These are just a few of the hazards of fishing, and a few precautions. Anytime you're fishing you're in danger of drowning — so if you value your life — wear a life-saving jacket. You'll never know in advance when you need it.

None of these accidents or incidents are very likely to happen to you, if you think before you act and use ordinary precautions.

So good luck, enjoy some fishing and keep your head. Literally, that is.

GARRISON ESTIMATES 31 PERSONS WILL DIE IN TRAFFIC JULY 4

Austin.—Col Homer Garrison, director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, reported today that DPS estimates indicate that 31 persons will die in traffic accidents in Texas during the three-day Fourth of July holiday.

Garrison said the estimate was compiled by the DPS Statistical Services on the basis of past experience and the present trend of traffic deaths. Last year, 33 persons were killed during the Independence Day holiday.

He said "Operation Motorcade" will be placed into effect from 12:01 a.m. on July 2, through 11:59 p.m. July 4, in order to focus attention on the added dangers of holiday travel. During this statewide emphasis program, fatalities will be tabulated by the Department and the totals will be announced officially three times daily as a means of trying to keep safety uppermost in the minds of the traveling public.

"Over one-third of the deaths during the last Fourth of July holiday were the result of one car accidents," Garrison said. "In this type of accident there is no 'other guy' to blame. It indicates that the most effective work in the drive to cut down on deaths, injuries and economic loss can be done only by the drivers themselves."

As a part of the DPS' operation, which calls for maximum enforcement and public support, additional personnel from other uniformed services of the DPS will augment the regular Highway Patrol force.

Garrison added that numerous agencies, organizations and individuals will help in the coordinated attack on traffic accidents by taking part in "Operation Motorcade." He pointed out that the Texas Council of Safety Supervisors and the Texas Motor Transportation Association will conduct a "Holiday Road Patrol" in which a fleet of 35 to 40 cars will be used over the state to assist stranded motorists and thus help relieve highway patrolmen for enforcement work.

The Texas Highway Department will conduct an information and education program instructing drivers on freeway driving and stressing the need for a three-dimensional focus of attention (to the front, rear and sides) in operating a motor vehicle. And the Texas Safety Association will stress the need for court- easy and caution on the highways, coordinate local safety council holiday safety emphasis programs and continue their information program pointing out the need for cooperation with law enforcement officials in order to cut down on the number of traffic deaths.

Dear Brigitte

I am a candidate for Navigation District Commissioner, in position No. 1 on the official ballot.

Most likely I will not get to see each one of you personally as I would like to, but I would like to take this means to ask for your vote, and assure you that as a lifelong resident of Aransas County I will forever have your interest and that of the County at heart. I have in the past had constructive ideas that have been incorporated into the growth and development of this area, and I have other ideas I would like to see carried out in the future that cause me to seek this post.
