Trash rates raised

By SHAWN COCKRUM
Staff Writer

Hereford residents will soon be seeing an increase of one dollar in their monthly trash bill. That is the decision that the city commission handed down during Monday night's meeting.

The increase is due to the cost of developing a new landfill site. In order for the city to get the application for the new landfill approved, they must attatch a fee of $14,200. The raise to $4.50 from $3.50 a month for trash pickup will offset the cost to the city and will provide the residents with another dumping area.

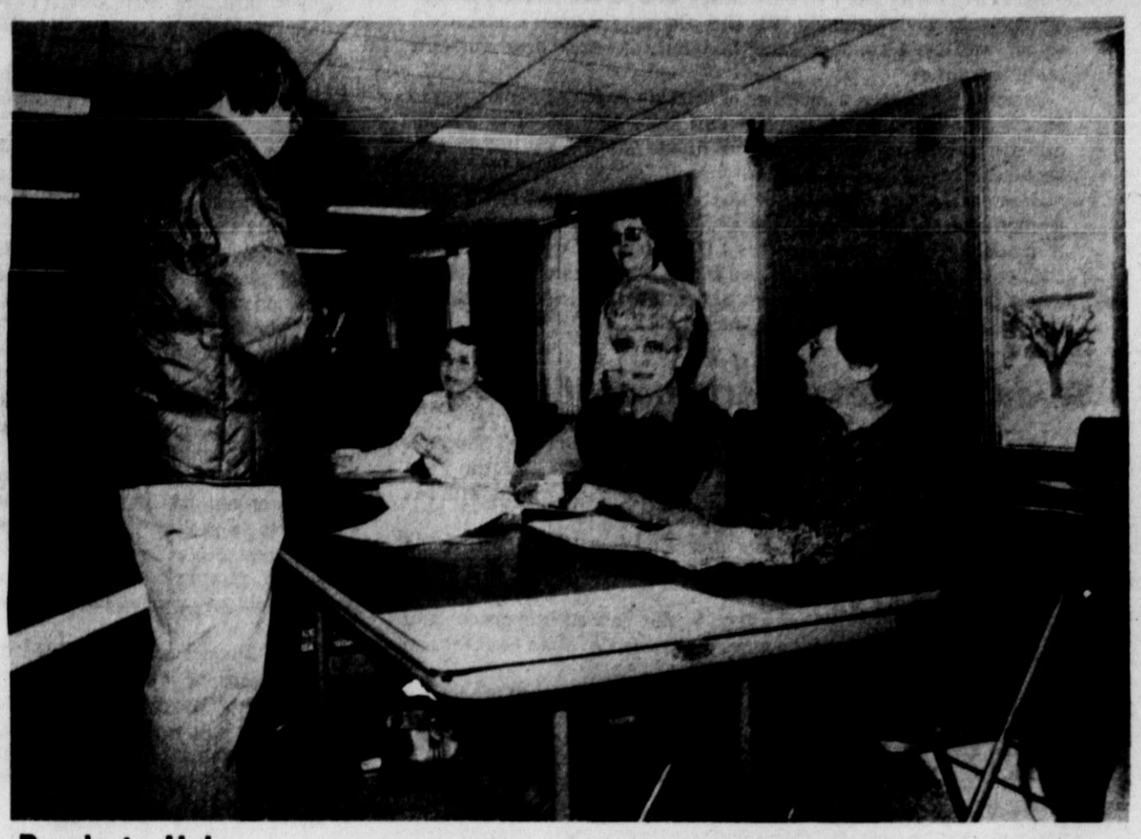

According to city manager Darwin McGill the city will have to wait about one year before they will know if their landfill application will be approved. No development can take place until the application is approved.

The increase will appear on the water, sewer, and trash bill and is due to go into effect on the Dec. bill.

In other business the commission heard from Henry C. Reid of Hereford and Paul Wolfolk of Clovis. Wolfolk and Reid were addressing the commission on the issue of development of a 22-acre tract of land on the northwest portion of Hereford. Wolfolk, the primary investor, told the commission that Hereford will soon be in need of nice rental housing. Wolfolk plans on developing the land for different types of housing including single family homes and apartments.

"We want the homes to be affordable so inflation will not deny people from buying them 10 or 15 years from now," Wolfolk told the commission.

Wolfolk suggested to the commission that part of the land be zoned for retail use. Wolfolk felt that the land directly across from an electricial power staion be zoned for a convience store or something of similar nature. The commission stated that no zoning issues could be addressed until Dec. 2, when the commission will act upon the suggestions of Reid and Wolfolk.

Shultz, Gorbachev work on agenda

MOSCOW (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev met in the Kremlin today for discussions aimed at crafting an agenda for this month's superpower summit meeting.

Four hours were set aside for the meeting, which also included the Soviet foreign minister, Eduard Shevardnadze, and other officials from both sides. All were prepared to talk long into the night to work out plans for the Nov. 19-20 meeting between Gorbachev and President Reagan.

"We will go as long as necessary," said Rozanne Ridgway, the U.S. assistant secretary of state for European affairs.

Gorbachev greeted Shultz with a handshake and a declaration that "misunderstandings come from the lack of knowledge."

"That's right," Shultz responded as photographers captured the greeting. "One of President Reagan's favorite sayings is that it's better to talk to each other than about each other."

Shultz was joined by U.S. National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane and U.S. Ambassador to Moscow Arthur Hartman. Gorbachev and Shevardnadze were joined by the Soviet ambassador to Washington, Anatoly Dobrynin.

Ms. Ridgway refused to say whether Shultz and Shevardnadze made any progress during nearly eight hours of talks on Monday.

"I can't characterize any of this," Ms. Ridgway said.

Shultz tentatively planned to leave Moscow following a news conference tonight. He was to stop in Reykjavik, Iceland, for refueling and rest before returning to Washington to report to President Reagan on Wednesday.

Both U.S. and Soviet officials virtually ruled out the chances of reaching an agreement to limited nuclear weapons by the start of the summit meeting. Instead, Shultz and the Soviets are working on a statement of principles that would have

For amendment election

Low turnout expected at polls today

AUSTIN (AP) — Texans go to the polls today to vote on 14 proposed constitutional amendments, highlighted by two that would set up a statewide plan billed as an answer to Texas' water needs.

Secretary of State Myra McDaniel predicted 11 percent of the state's eight million voters would turn out for the off-year election. Voting is expected to be heaviest in Houston, where a heated mayor's race has drawn much attention.

In addition to the two water amendments, the statewide ballot includes proposals that could send incorrigible inmates to other states, eliminate some county offices, reduce the number of convictions thrown out because of indictment mistakes and make more money available for the purchase of farm and ranch land.

The $1.4 billion water package is split among Propositions 1 and 2. The first amendment would authorize $980 million in state bonds to raise money for reservoirs, pipelines, treatment plants and flood control projects. It also would set up a $250 million insurance fund to back local water bonds.

Proposition 2 would authorize $200 million in bonds for low-interest loans to farmers who buy water-saving irrigation equipment.

Lawmakers approved the water plan this year. Gov. Mark White, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Gib Lewis have been campaigning in support of the package.

There has been scattered opposition, including some from groups who fear the plan could lead to a program in which water collected in East Texas reservoirs would be sent to West Texas.

The statewide ballot also includes these proposed constitutional amendments:

Proposition 3 — Allowing cities to spend public money to relocate or replace certain water lines on public property.

Proposition 4 — Allowing proceeds from sale of Permanent School Fund land to be used to buy other land.

Proposition 5 — Authorizing the Legislature to mandate services that must be offered by a hospital district and set requirements a resident must meet to qualify for services.

Proposition 6 — Allowing state prison officials to trade inmates with other states. Officials see the plan as a way to rid the Texas Department of Corrections of troublemakers.

Proposition 7 — Allowing Chambers County to keep its six justice of the peace precincts.

Proposition 8 — Authorizing the Veterans Land Board to issue an additional $500 million in bonds. The proceeds would be used to increase the veterans housing assistance fund.

Proposition 9 — Authorizing the Legislature to require state agencies to get approval to spend money in a manner other than that set out by lawmakers.

Proposition 10 — Authorizing the Legislature to issue $500 million in general obligation bonds to help farmers and ranchers buy land.

Proposition 11 — Allowing judges to correct indictment mistakes that could lead to reversal of convictions in criminal cases.

Proposition 12 — Allowing Texas Supreme Court and Texas Court of Criminal Appeals to answer state law questions raised by federal appeals courts.

Proposition 13 — Creating the Judicial Districts Board to reapportion state district courts.

Proposition 14 — Abolishing certain county offices in Andrews, El Paso, Collin, Dallas, Denton, Henderson and Randall counties.

Officials describe policy differently

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House, trying to stave off a new reading of American military policy, staged a hasty retreat from President Reagan's declaration that the United States will not deploy the "Star Wars" defense shield against nuclear weapons until U.S. missiles are eliminated.

White House officials refused to say publicly or privately Monday that Reagan had erred. But they described U.S. policy on Star Wars in completely different terms than the president, insisted that the policy had not changed, and underscored that the United States will not disarm unilaterally.

The president's statement was contained in a rare interview with four Moscow reporters, the first such session between an American president and the Soviet press in 24 years.

Openly displaying their political bias, the Soviet journalists told Reagan that his answers to various questions were "unbalanced and one-sided in favor of the U.S. side." Reagan said some of their questions contained misstatements or assertions that were "totally unfounded."

Arguing over which superpower has more nuclear warheads, Reagan and the Soviets both disavowed superiority. The disagreement ended with Reagan saying, "Oh, no we don't" and a Soviet journalist saying, "Yes, you have."

The interview was released in Washington on Monday, the same day it was published in Moscow in a full-page display on page 4 of the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia. The newspaper did not run a text of the interview and omitted some key points by Reagan on arms control, the role of Soviet troops in Afghanistan and Eastern Europe and other issues.

Fed bank to keep same course

The nation's central bank will probably keep to its current monetary policy course, a strategy that suggests interest rates will not make any dramatic movement in the immediate future, economists say.

Meanwhile, a new survey showed that most U.S. consumers feel confident economic conditions will remain the same or improve in the next six months, but a growing minority foresees deterioration.

Foster home recruiter considers area 'reliable source'

By JERI CURTIS
Managing Editor

This week three families here will begin a six-week foster parent training course, giving Ira Purdy more reasons to brag.

"Deaf Smith, Parmer and Castro Counties are the only rural counties in West Texas with an incorporated foster parent association," says Purdy, the regional Department of Human Resources rep for foster home development. "I've always been very proud of that."

From his Amarillo office Purdy recruits foster homes for the western half of the Panhandle. He considers the three-county area a "reliable source" for such homes. Purdy says it's the stable rural lifestyle with deep religious values that usually produce a youth oriented community which is fruitful for finding foster homes.

But whether the foster home is city or country, Purdy says that to the child being placed it's as much culture shock as it is trauma to be swept from what was always known as home and put under another care by the DHR.

He's sure that for some of the children placed it's their first night to sleep on clean sheets.

He remembers picking up nasty children who have probably never known how it feels to be clean and have combed hair until their first day of foster care.

He has seen kids with junk food stained faces sit in wide-eyed amazement as a foster parent serves hot cookies and glasses of milk. He knows that some children have probably never had a full hot meal where the family sits at the table and eats in a civilized manner. He's quite sure the reason they don't want to eat vegetables is because they've never seen them before.

But most poignant are his memories of children who may not have known how to hug begin to respond to the love of a foster family.

That's what his recruiting is all about.

Even the most modest home, if it passes licensing inspection, provides a loving environment for a foster child, Purdy says.

The house must pass a fire inspection, have all pets immunized and have each person tested for tuberculosis, among other items on a checklist. Three non-family references are needed, too.

More importantly, DHR officials meet with the family in the home before approval.

"We've got to be comfortable with them," Purdy said. "In rural communities, that's not hard."

"The main thing is that they agree to be part of a team," he said. The foster parent must comply with agency rules and learn to work with

UT hires women's athletic trainer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Tina Bonci, who served as head trainer for the gold medal-winning 1984 U.S. Olympic women's basketball squad, was hired Monday as the University of Texas' head women's athletic trainer.

Bonci, 30, has been a member of the University of Pennsylvania Sports Medicine Center training staff since 1979 and also was an athletic trainer at the University of Rhode Island from 1977-79. She replaces Becky Marshall, who resigned in August.

Bonci will oversee clinical evaluation and treatment of UT's 110 women athletes with Trainer-Rehabilitation Specialist Angela Rich.

In addition to her experience as a U.S. Olympic Committee sports medicine staff, she has served as a U.S. national team trainer at the Jones Cup competition in Taiwan, several National Sports Festivals and the 1982 U.S.-East Germany track meet.

Study criticizes entertainment industry

DALLAS (AP) — A study by the National Council of Churches shows that the entertainment industry is hiding behind the First Amendment while invading the living rooms of Americans with sex and violence that leads to agressive behavior.

The ecumenical organization's governing board will examine and debate the study when it meets Wednesday through Friday at the Hyatt Regency in Fort Worth.

But the committee did not intend to silence free expression, said James M. Wall, editor of the news magazine Christian Century and the study committee's chairman.

"The NCC has long defended garbage in entertainment in order to avoid curbing artistically valuable presentations," Wall told the Dallas Morning News. "Better to permit the bad than to curb the good."

Study of origin of universe conducted

THE WOODLANDS, Texas (AP) — Scientists at a research center here say tests will be run on a 10-ton, 92-foot superconducting magnet to determine whether it can be used to control beams of subatomic particles in a study of matter and the origin of the universe.

The magnet, nicknamed "SuperTex," was trucked from a General Dynamics Corp. plant in San Diego and arrived at the Texas Accelerator Center on Monday. Scientists from Rice University, Texas A&M University, the University of Texas and University of Houston are scheduled to run several months of tests on the magnet billed at the world's largest.

Church members start patrol

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Male parishoners have volunteered to stand guard during a church's open prayer hours after a woman was raped as she knelt at the altar.

The pastor of the Holy Family of Nazareth Catholic Church told parishioners during Sunday services that the church would fight back.

"Not like Rambo or Dirty Harry," said the Rev. Thomas R. O'Connor. "But through prayer."

After the priest asked for at least two men to stand guard during open hours, volunteers crowded around a table outside the church to sign up.

A 32-year-old woman was accosted by two men in the church about 10 p.m. on Oct. 18. She was robbed and raped at gunpoint, police said.

Two Dallas men were charged with aggravated sexual assault and aggravated robbery.

NRC Committee to discuss Unit 1

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission committee has scheduled a meeting Thursday in Washington, D.C., to discuss the startup of the primary reactor at the Palo Verde Nuclear Generating Station, officials said.

The panel will disclose its "overall impression" of the startup program and possible effects on plans to start Unit 2, said Greg Cook, a spokesman with the NRC.

The 14-member advisory committee on reactor safeguards provides technical experts outside the NRC to evaluate commercial nuclear reactors, Cook said. Its members are federally appointed to four-year terms.

Woman transferred to mental hospital

THORNTON, Pa. (AP) — A prison psychiatrist diagnosed a woman charged with killing two people and wounding seven in a mall shooting spree as "extremely dangerous" and she was transferred to a high-security mental hospital.

Navy shortening overseas deployments

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chief of naval operations, saying it's time to take advantage of the Navy's buildup in size, has issued guidelines specifying shorter overseas deployments and more time in home ports for ships and aircraft squadrons.

The directive, signed by Adm. James D. Watkins Jr. last week and released Monday, commits Navy fleet commanders to planning maximum six-month deployments and "turn-around ratios of 2-to-1 or better," meaning that for every month a ship or squadron is at sea, two months should elapse prior to the next deployment.

3 men arrested in drug-trafficking case

MINATITLAN, Mexico (AP) — Officials said they arrested three men in connection with the slayings of 22 members of an anti-drug team, and vowed that police would conduct drug raids more carefully in the future.

The chief of Interpol in Mexico, Cmdr. Florentino Ventura, said Monday that the three men were arrested on suspicion of telling agents they would find a large marijuana cache at the site in southern Mexico where they allegedly were ambushed and killed by drug traffickers last Friday.

The three suspects, whom police would not identify, and some of the victims' bodies were taken Monday to Mexico City, authorities said. At least 60 other people have been questioned so far, Ventura said.

Ventura said at least 80 drug traffickers armed with high-powered rifles were awaiting the agents when they arrived before dawn Friday at a marijuana plantation in the mountainous jungle of Veracruz state.

Houston's symphony a classical success

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Symphony Orchestra, broke and near collapse two years ago, may be out of the red this season, thanks in part to a conductor who once was labeled a traitor and kicked out of his native Romania.

Maestro Sergiu Comissiona, the symphony director since 1982, has helped turn the struggling, debt-ridden orchestra into a thriving major artistic force.

Now he has set out to reshape the entertainment patterns of the Bayou City.

About a quarter of million people attended symphony concerts in Houston last year, but for Comissiona that's not enough.

"People here tend to put sports, dinner parties and concerts in that order on their list of things to do," says the 58-year-old conductor. "I want them to change their lifestyle to make music part of their daily lives. When they get out their books, I want them to put concerts first, then sports or dinner parties."

Comissiona made his conducting debut at age 18 in his homeland, replacing an ailing conductor at the Bucharest State Opera. His career flourished until 1958 when he and his wife, Robinne, applied for exit visas to Israel.

Just 12 hours after they filed the applications, a voice boomed over speakers at the Bucharest concert hall, interrupting Comissiona during a dress rehearsal. The voce screamed that he and his wife were traitors. They were given 20 minutes to leave the hall.

The Romanian government canceled a tax exemption, granted Comissiona because of his artistic position, and ordered him to pay heavy back taxes. The couple was forced to sell all their belongings.

"When I had to sell my white tie and tails, which I always wore when I conducted, I thought I had lost my identity," Comissiona says.

Nine months later, with only the clothes they wore, he and his wife were hustled out of the country on a midnight train. They arrived in Israel in 1959, where he struggled to build the Haifa Symphony and the Israel Chamber Orchestra.

In 1965, Comissiona directed the Philadelphia Orchestra, his first U.S. engagement, and so impressed conductor Eugene Ormandy that the American conductor recommended heo take the podium two years later in Baltimore.

After 17 years in Baltimore, Comissiona decided he had reached his peak of popularity and musical accomplishment. He sought a new challenge in Houston.

"I'm sure I could have done more in Baltimore, but I needed the freshness of having a new organization and I believed Houston could give new artistic possibilities," he says.

The challenge turned out to be more formidable than he expected.

When he arrived in late 1982, Houston's economic lifeline — the energy industry — was sagging. And the conductor's plans for recordings, tours and an enhanced repertoire were in jeopardy, threatened by debts and labor problems.

"I was angry with what had happened. Even in economic crisis there are other values as important, even more important, than the dollar. And music and culture are important," says Comissiona.

Determined to develop the orchestra's artistic potential despite the money problems, Comissiona arranged an East Coast tour, including an appearance at Carnegie Hall in New York, expanded the repertoire and secured an exclusive five-year recording contract.

"Throughout the whole time, we managed to keep our artistic integrity," he says proudly. "But we did very well. If we had had more money, we might be further ahead, but we certainly didn't go down."

The Houston Symphony was founded in 1913 and throughout its history has had a very strong group of musical leaders, including Leopold Stowkowski, Sir John Barbirolli and Andre Previn. Many extraordinary musicians were hired and served as the backbone of the orchestra for three decades.

But the 1970s brought to a peak problems that had been ignored for nearly a decade.

Deficits grew and attendance eroded as the rival Houston Grand Opera and the Houston Ballet fired the imagination of the socially elite and captured their loyalty. The orchestra's labor relations soured, resulting in a four-month dispute that forced cancellation of the opening weeks of the 1976-77 season.

The symphony had operated at annual deficits averaging $1.5 million, with the difference being covered by unrestricted endowment funds. But these funds were nearly depleted by 1982.

The Houston Symphony Society adopted a five-year plan in 1982 that was designed to achieve a balanced budget, but by 1984, the orchestra was almost out of money. The musicians approved a wage freeze in June 1984, followed later that year by a waiver of a scheduled wage increase. Money problems continued into this year and negotiations for a new contract were delayed several months to give more time to develop a financial plan and to harvest the benefits of Comissiona's artistic improvements..

The plan worked. Last month, the symphony society directors announced that the red ink had been reduced to $188,993 from the previous deficit of $892,000. They forecast a surplus for the year with the orchestra keeping to the tough, ambitious schedule planned by Comissiona.

Behind a splashy marketing blitz, the orchestra will be making about 180 performances, all closely designed to provide "something for everybody," says Comissiona.

Houston's Symphony Orchestra, says the director, has arrived at a new artistic plateau.

"The last season was the first time I experienced a very positive sign of music-making with an orchestra," he says. "In the first years, I probably was too busy organizing other aspects of the orchestra. Last season I went much more to making music with the orchestra, and I think it was a good sign."

Mercer named chairman

Robert Mercer will be the chairman of the Hereford Hustlers for 1986, it was announced this week by Bill Harris, president-elect of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

The Hustler organization is a special committee of the chamber that works with membership and serves as a goodwill ambassador group. Membership in the committee must be earned on a point system that begins with signing up new members for the C of C.

Terry Bromlow is the current chairman of the group, and Carol Sue LeGate is secretary. The Hustler's elected Donna Jones as the secretary for 1986.

The Hustlers conduct ribbon-cutting ceremonies for new buisnesses in the community. Two such events were held this week–one today at The Lemon Tree and one Monday at Floor Decor.

—The Middle East Economic Survey reported from Nicosia, Cyprus that crude oil production by members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries rose to 17.3 million barrels per day in October. It was OPEC's highest monthly total since July 1984, when the oil cartel produced 17.8 million barrels, according to an estimate by the New York-based newsletter, Petroleum Intelligence Weekly.

—The American Iron and Steel Institute, headquartered in Washington, said steel production declined to 1.583 million tons in the week ended Nov. 2, a drop of 2.6 percent from the previous week's 1.626 million tons.

The Federal Reserve Board's policymaking arm, the Federal Open Market Committee was meeting behind closed doors Monday and today to set policy for the rest of the year.

The results of their deliberations will not be formally disclosed until late December, but economists said they would be surprised to see interest rates move up or down much in coming weeks in response to FOMC actions.

"I don't look for any major policy swings," said David Berson, an economist at Wharton Econometrics of Philadelphia.

A growing group of consumers seems to be wary about the economy's growth prospects, according to the Conference Board, a business-oriented research organization which reported on the results of a survey of 5,000 families.

It said 66.8 percent believe the business outlook will remain unchanged through April, 22.1 percent forecast an improvement and 11.1 percent predicts a deterioration.

In September the survey showed 70.5 percent believed business conditions would stay the same for six months.

AGENDA

Reagan and Gorbachev pledge to continue the quest for a treaty.

Also under discussion, according to U.S. officials who spoke on condition of anonymity, is a second summit meeting to be held at least a year later, giving the superpowers a new deadline to slow the arms race.

POLICY

Distribution of Izvestia was delayed in Moscow, and several newspaper kiosks in the city center closed before they received copies.

Reagan appeared to break new ground on Star Wars when he said, "We won't put this weapon — or this system in place, this defensive system, until we do away with our nuclear missiles, our offensive missiles.

"But we will make it available to other countries, including the Soviet Union, to do the same thing," Reagan said.

Suggesting that the Kremlin should join the United States in disarmament, Reagan said, "And if the Soviet Union and the United States both say we will eliminate our offensive weapons, we will put in this defensive thing (Star Wars) in case some place in the world a madman some day tries to create these weapons again — nuclear weapons — because, remember, we all know how to make them now."

At three separate points in the interview, Reagan firmly linked Star Wars deployment with disarmament, a position never before voiced by the administration.

Taken at face value, Reagan's statement put the United States on record as pledging to keep any missile defense system on the shelf until America eliminates the nuclear arsenal that for four decades has been used to deter attack against this country.

White House spokesmen Larry Speakes and Edward Djerejian said the president was not spelling out a new policy.

They said the program envisions sharing missile-defense technology with the Soviets, and then an agreement between the superpowers to cut nuclear arsenals as the components of a defense shield are put into place by both sides.

"There has to be a transition period from offense to defensive weapons," Djerejian said. "The president is not implying doing away with all offensive weapons immediately."

Speakes said the United States would not disarm its missile arsenal unilaterally.

Asked directly whether the elimination of U.S. missiles was a prerequisite for deploying Star Wars, Speakes said, "It's to be worked out. I mean, it's clearly an area that is somewhere in the distant future that these discussions would involve."

Snow in West

By The Associated Press

Much of the Eastern half of the nation had rain today from a strong low pressure system that dumped a half-foot of snow on the southern Appalachians, while a cold front spread rain and snow in the West.

The low pressure over northern Virginia caused rain from North Carolina across the upper Ohio Valley and lower Great Lakes region and from the mid-Atlantic states to southern New England.

Rain changed to snow over the southern Appalachians, prompting travelers' advisories for mountainous areas of northeast Tennessee and the northern mountains of North Carolina. Six inches of snow blanketed Mount Mitchell, N.C., and the Roan Mountain area of Tennessee.

The low pressure also pushed strong winds to the northern and middle-Alantic Coast, prompting gale warnings for the northern and central North Carolina coast and from the Maryland coast to the Massachusetts coast.

A cold front spread rain from the northern Rockies to the Pacific Northwest. The rain changed to snow in the mountains, and travelers' advisories were issued for the Cascade passes of Washington and the Idaho Panhandle.

Temperatures around the nation at 2 a.m. EST ranged from 26 degrees in Mason City and Waterloo, Iowa, to 72 in Key West, Fla.

Even among the foster homes, the home best fitting a child is chosen. Foster parents may even select an age group or gender they prefer.

"These people are kid junkies, they are exceptional people," Purdy said of the foster families. "They get a lot of gratification, they enjoy working with children.

Purdy will tout the community advantages of having homes in the area, too. He says with more homes available, foster children can be kept in the community and in their own schools. Local Child Welfare Boards and judges prefer working with local homes, and local medical professionals are more attentive to local children. And, when a child stays in a hometown while in foster care, the transition of returning home is easier.

Ann Landers

Hindsight is easy

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Here's a word to "Upset in the Midwest," regarding the son and daughter who always fight when they get together. Maybe my story will help your children.

My brother and I had the same problem for more years than I care to admit. It took the death of our father to make us quit squabbling and enjoy one another's company.

We had six lovely summer vacations together. On our seventh, my brother had a heart attack and died in my arms.

I am grateful for the years we had together but I could scream when I think of all the years we missed because we were too bullheaded and shortsighted to try to get along. Now he is gone and I am–HEARTSICK IN ARIZ.

DEAR ARIZ.: Twenty-twenty hindsight is easy. If it's any comfort, think of the six good years instead of the ones you missed. I suggest you heed the timeless message in the Rubaiyat by Omar Khayyam: "The Moving Finger writes; and, having writ, moves on; nor all your piety nor wit shall lure it back to cancel half a line, nor all your tears wash out a word of it."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A few months ago our son became a paperboy. I don't think the average person knows what these kids are up against.

In our state (Arizona) they have to put $150 up front, for bonding. The responsibilities are endless. After school they must be at their station, rain or shine, to get the paper out. THis means no church or school activities for a kid who carries the evening route.

On Sunday, our son gets up at 3:30 a.m. to stuff, roll and deliver his papers so his customers will have them early in the morning. He must collect on weekends and turn the money in on Monday.

You would not believe the excuses people make for not paying. They say they have nothing smaller than a $50 bill or they hide and pretent not to be at home. This means the kid has to come back a second or third time.

We wanted our son to be a paperboy so he could learn responsibility, but it's awfully hard when customers try to stiff him for 25 cents because a paper was wet or they claim they didn't get it.

Ann, paper carriers work awfully hard. I believe if the public knew the facts they would treat them better. Thanks for any help you can give.–MOM IN PHOENIX

DEAR MOM: Over the years I have printed at least a dozen letters similar to yours. Paper carriers (both boys and girls) nee to be encouraged. A kind word, paying on time and an occasional tip would be greatly appreciated.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A small crisis has arisen in our family of three women–ages from 16 to 38.

When all-sheer pantyhose are worn, do the cotton briefs go under the pantyhose or over?

The loser takes the other two to lunch.–VANCOUVER Q

DEAR VAN Q.: Good hygiene dictates that the cotton briefs should be worn next to the skin.

Are you, or is someone you care about messing around with drugs - or considering it? Are all drugs bad? What about pot – in moderation? Ann Landers' all-new booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope," separates the facts from the fiction. For each booklet ordered, send $2.00, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Garden Beautiful Club members meet Friday

Members of Garden Beautiful Club met Friday in the home of Helen Spinks with Jean Dowell serving as co-hostess.

Ruby Carmichael reminded the club that now is the time to plant trees and shrubs. She said that inquiries should be made as to the characteristics of the trees before planting to be sure of the kind that is really needed and wanted.

The club discussed the Christmas tea which will be Dec. 6 in the home of Louise Axe. This will be guest day for the club.

Audine Dettman presented the program telling of her trip to South America. She told of the wealth of gold and precious stones to be found in South America and how the Spanish explorers had taken the Indians as slaves to work the mines.

Dettman also told of the beautiful beaches along the coast of Argentina, Chile and Brazil and showed pictures of the mammoth Iguasi Falls. She described the customs of the people there and told of the differences in different countries there. She visited the Sugar Loaf Mountain and saw the statue of the Christ of the Andes.

Members present included Mmes. W.P. Axe, Ray Cowsert, C. V. Darden, E.W. Dettmann, W.B. Dowell, Bill Emmons, Francis Hill, Wayne Jones, Charlie Noland, Joe Story, J.W. Witherspoon, and hostess, Spinks.

DR. GOTT

Peter Gott, M.D.

Symptoms of thyroid trouble

DEAR DR. GOTT — I cannot gain one pound in weight unless I consume 6,000 calories and cannot maintain weight without consuming 3,000 calories. I have a little bulging of the eyes, feel drained of strength and have a light sweat when sleeping. I was told I had hyperthyroidism by 30 percent and received a radioactive pill to destroy the thyroid a year ago, but the symptoms still persist. My T3 blood test and pituitary X-ray were OK. Should I now visit an endocrinologist?

DEAR READER — Yes, you should. Treatment of hyperthyroidism (overactive thyroid) is, at best, an inexact science. Your one dose of radioactive iodine may have been insufficient to cure you. Furthermore, even though your T3 is "OK," you may have an excess of T4 — the more complicated form of thyroid hormone that is a much more common cause of hyperthyroidism.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am in my late 20s. 5 feet 8-and-a-half and 190 pounds. The problem is I have "girlie breasts." I've done 200-pushups, 300 situps and weightlifting (50 pounds each day), all to no avail. I'm a man, and don't want breasts. Should I exercise more? Less? I have a brother who doesn't have this problem. Boy, do I envy him.

DEAR READER — At 5 feet 8-and-a-half, 190 pounds, you are overweight, and your enlarged breasts are probably due to normal deposits of fat. You need to go on a diet. Your exercises may build muscle — particularly in the pectoral area, behind your breasts — but they will not alter your configuration the way dieting will.

If, after you lose about 20 pounds, your breasts are still too prominent, see a plastic surgeon, who may consider a breast-reduction operation to spare you further embarrassment. Your best approach, however, is to get that weight off; diet and exercise should accomplish that goal at a lot less expense.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have an eight-year history of high blood pressure (180/96). My doctor has me on 50 mgs. of HCTZ once a day, and Slow-K three times a day. Do you know what else I should do?

DEAR READER — I don't want to second-guess your doctor but, based on the information you supply, I'd say your blood pressure is still too high. You are taking a minimal dose of diuretic (hydrochlorthiazide), with more potassium supplement (Slow K) than you probably need. I advise you to review the situation with your physician, because your blood pressure should really not exceed 150/90. There is a great deal that can be done to lower your pressure; if your doctor chooses to ignore your concerns, ask for a referral to another doctor.

Gilillands observe anniversary Friday

Marlin and Eva Gililland celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Friday in Deaf Smith General Hospital.

The couple were married in the hospital in 1935.

Eva Virden Gililland was superintendant of Deaf Smith County Hospital. She lived with other nurses in the old part of the hospital in nurses quarters.

Virden had come from Tulia and was especially close to the owners of Brooke's Drugstore because they were also from Tulia.

The couple met at the local drugstore which was located on Main. Marlin was working at E.B. Black and Co. at the time.

"The reason we were married in the hospital," said Mrs. Gililland, "is because my nurse friends wanted to have a reception and we had a beautiful reception area here in the hospital at that time."

Thirty-five people attended the wedding in the hospital with Rev. Shepherd, pastor of First Baptist Church in 1935, officiating.

After the wedding the couple made their home at 409 6th St. where they have resided since their marriage.

Garden Club members receive contribution

Although Phase I of "Operation Wildflower" has successfully completed, this week the Bud to Blossom Garden Club was surprised with a contribution from Lady Bird Johnson, the former First Lady. Johnson is a devout enthusiast of the propagation of wildflowers and supports the movement nationally.

Since the completion of Phase I, additional contributions have come from Mrs. Ruby Kendrick Sears, Mrs. Dorothy Renfro, the Deaf Smith County Museum and the La Plata Study Club.

Thirty-one pounds of a wildflower mixture designed specifically for this area was distributed recently to several select locations over the city. The National Cowgirl Hall of Fame received 24 pounds; the YMCA, Hereford Senior Citizens Center and the Hereford Garden Club each received one poiuns, and eight of the public schools received a half-pound each.

The Bud to Blossom Club's civic achievement portion of the project funded and distributed Indian Paintbrush seeds for the E.B. Black House, bluebonnet seeds for the Chamber of Commerce, and Coreopsis and Gallardia to the Beautification Committee of the Women's division of the C of C.

Mrs. Joe Spann and Mrs. Jack Hughes are heading the project and can provide information on participation.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The major league baseball players' union has filed an unfair-labor-practice claim against Commissioner Peter Ueberroth and the 26 clubowners, accusing them of illegally circumventing the union to set up a drug-testing program for players, according to a published report.

The Los Angeles Times, in today's editions, quoted union leader Don Fehr as saying the owners' Player Relations Committee also was included in the complaint to the National Labor Relations Board.

Fehr said a second complaint alleged the owners decided Oct. 22 to discard the 1984 joint drug agreement with the union because the players refused to allow the union to be bypassed. Under the 1984 agreement, testing was limited to those with known drug problems.

For the most part, the players told Ueberroth that they would not accept the volunteer drug testing program he proposed Sept. 24 unless arrangements for testing were made through the union.

Talks over that issue began in early October, but were broken off last week.

NLRB regional director Daniel Silverman said Monday in New York that he will conduct a preliminary inquiry to determine whether to conduct a formal hearing on the union's complaint.

BASKETBALL

NEW YORK (AP) — Special Master Kingman Brewster ruled that a free agent offer sheet tendered by the New York Knicks to forward Albert King of the New Jersey Nets is legal.

The Knicks made the offer Oct. 24, and the Nets will have until Friday, Nov. 8 to match it. If King, who averaged 14.4 points per game in four seasons with the Nets, winds up with the Knicks, he would be united with his brother, Bernard.

NEW YORK (AP) — Derek Smith, a guard who averaged 25 points a game to lead the unbeaten Los Angeles Clippers to five victories, was named the season's first National Basketball Association Player of the Week.

Smith started the season with a 36-point game, the second-best of his career, in a 108-104 victory over Sacramento.

TENNIS

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Sixth-seeded Scott Davis of the United States rallied to defeat Davis Cup hero Michael Westphal of West Germany 5-7, 6-4, 6-2 in the opening round of the $375,000 Stockolm Open-Scandinavian tennis championships.

Peter Lundgren, a Swedish baseliner who frequently works out with retired superstar Bjorn Borg, knocked out Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia 4-6, 6-4, 6-2 for the biggest upset of the first day of the Nabisco Grand Prix tournament.

LARGO, Fla. (AP) — Unseeded Grace Kim pulled off the first upset of the $150,000 Florida Federal Tennis Open, outlasting sixth-seeded Kate Gompert 2-6, 6-3, 6-2 at Bardmoor Country Club.

Top-seeded Bonnie Gadusek came from behind in both sets to beat Caroline Kuhlman 6-3, 6-3 in a night match.

The other three seeded players who played in the afternoon matches advanced without losing a set.

BOXING

LIVINGSTON, N.J. (AP) — Charley Fusari, a contender for the world welterweight boxing title in the early 1950s, died of cancer. He was 62.

The Italian-born Fusari had two shots at the welterweight title, but he lost a pair of 15-round decisions — to Sugar Ray Robinson in 1950, and another to Johnny Bratton in 1951.

Fusari won his first 46 fights, and finished his boxing career with a 65-12-1 mark and 38 knockouts.

GENERAL

HAMILTON TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — A state judge refused to reinstate a 15-year-old boy who claims he was discriminated against when he was kicked off the girl's field hockey team at Cumberland Regional High School.

Administrative Law Judge Bruce Campbell refused to grant a temporary, emergency order sought by the American Civil Liberties Union on behalf of Charles Carney, a sophomore at the school in Upper Deerfield Township, but scheduled a hearing on the issue for Jan. 13 and 14.

MONTREAL (AP) — Darren Puppa of the Buffalo Sabres, who became only the 18th goalie in history to record a shutout in his first National Hockey League game, was named Player of the Week.

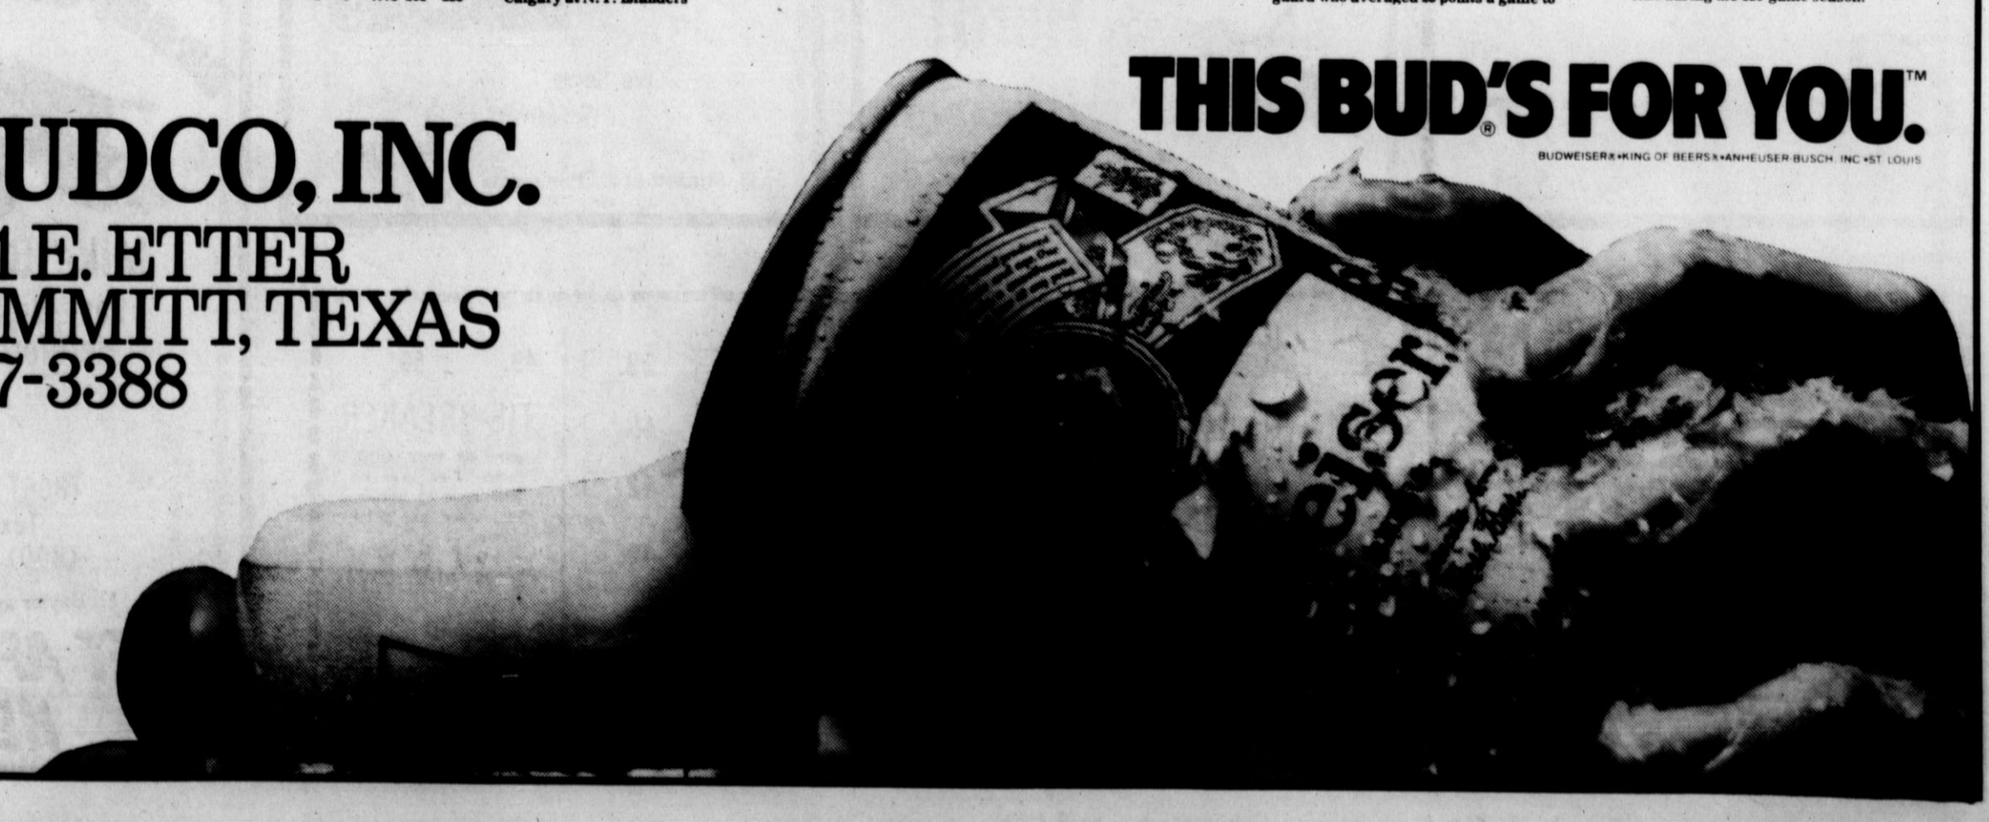

The 20-year-old Puppa, the Sabres' fourth-round amateur draft choice in 1983, stopped all 37 Edmonton shots to help Buffalo to a 2-0 victory Nov. 1.

TOKYO (AP) — Former U.S. major leaguer Randy Bass, whose slugging helped the Hanshin Tigers win their first Central League pennant in 21 years and their first Japan Series championship ever, was voted the league's Most Valuable Player, a league official said Tuesday.

Bass was the fifth foreign player to receive the MVP award in Japanese professional baseball history. American Greg "Boomer" Wells of the Pacific League's Hankyu Braves won it last year, but this was the first time in 28 years that a foreign player won the Central League's MVP award. The Yomiuri Giants' Kaname Yonamine of Hawaii, the first foreign player in the league, won it in 1957.

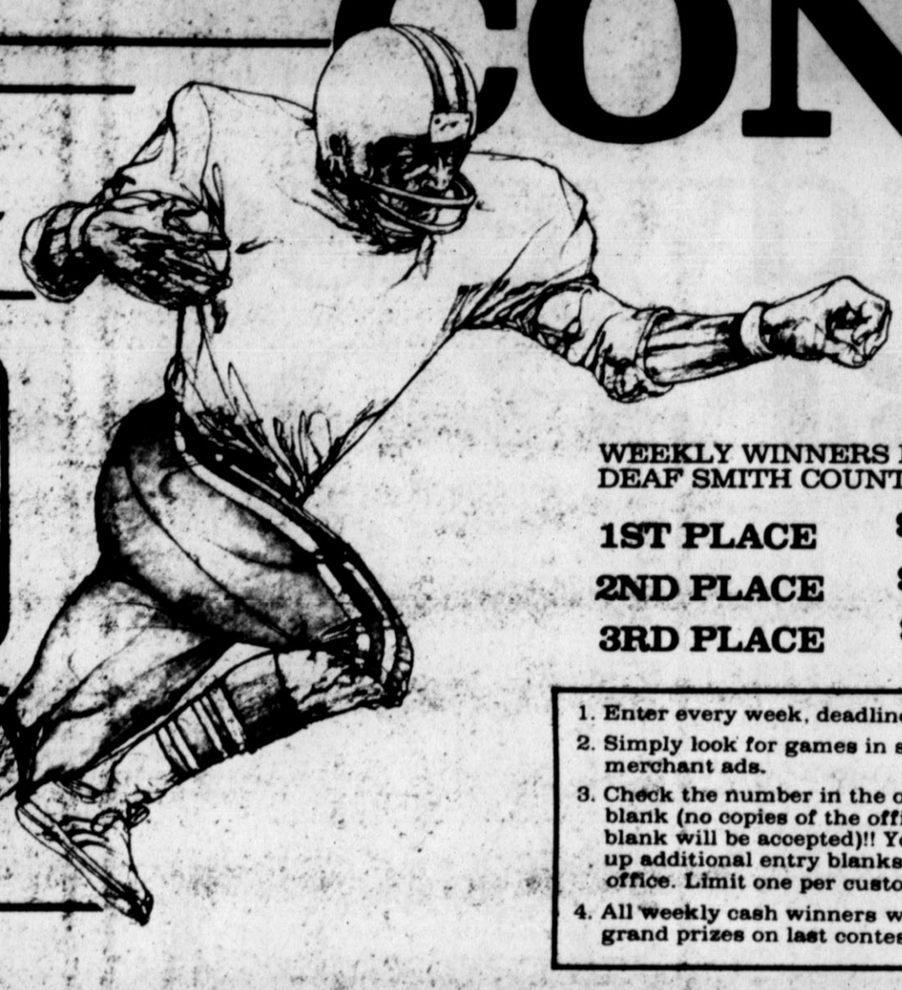

Bass, a 31-year-old Oklahoma native, won the batting Triple Crown this year, batting .350 with 54 home runs and 134 RBI during the 130-game season.

HHS volleyball teams lose season finales

The Hereford High School varsity volleyball team played a close battle in the opening game of Saturday's match against Lubbock Monterey, but went down to defeat in the match that closed out the 1985 season.

Monterey defeated Hereford, 15-13, 15-9. The loss left the HHS varsity with a final season record of 0-23, including a District 3-5A record of 0-14. Monterey finished the season at 4-10 in the district and 9-17 overall.

In Saturday's junior varsity match, Monterey scored a 15-3, 15-4 win over Hereford. The Hereford junior varsity's final season record is 0-19.

Hereford fell behind Monterey in game one of the varsity match, 6-2, before closing the gap to 6-5. Hereford's fifth point came on a dink executed by Don Ann Cummings.

Monterey then built up an 11-5 lead before Hereford rallied to take a 12-11 lead. A spike by Kamille Martin gave Hereford a side out to start the rally.

Hereford gained a point when a violation was called on Monterey for illegal positioning when receiving a serve. Monterey committed three straight violations when attempting to return serves, and Hereford trailed 9-11.

A block by Sharon Wright made the score 10-11, and a dink by Emma Gonzales resulted in the game-tying point.

Hereford gained the lead, 12-11, when a Monterey player touched the net.

Monterey tied up the game 12-12 and moved in front on a service ace. Monterey then led 14-12 in winning game one, 15-13.

Tricia Kahlich served three straight points, including one service ace, to put Hereford ahead 3-0 in game two. Later Hereford held leads of 4-1 and 5-3 before Monterey tied the game at 5-5.

Monterey then gained a 7-5 lead and also led 12-6 in winning game two 15-9.

Hereford's seventh point of the game came on a service ace by Sharon Wright. The other Hereford points were scored when a Monterey player stepped over the center line, and when another Monterey player double hit the ball.

Saberhagen is named World Series MVP

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — What, Bret Saberhagen was asked, could possibly top 1985?

He won 20 games for the Kansas City Royals during the season, won their two most crucial World Series games, was named the Series Most Valuable Player and — the day before the Series ended — became a father for the first time.

"It's going to be tough to top this kind of year I've had," he said. "But you can always try. Maybe next year I can win 21 games, win three in the World Series and have twins."

He laughed. "I haven't spoken to Janeane about it, but I don't think she'd be too happy about the twins part."

About the only things left for the 21-year-old right-hander, 20-6 with a 2.87 earned-run average this year, would be the Cy Young Award as the American League's premier pitcher, the $25,000 provided by a Cy Young bonus clause in his 1985 contract, and a big salary increase for 1986 and beyond.

"I'm not counting on it," he said of the Cy Young, to be announced next Tuesday, "but I'm hoping. I'm crossing my fingers, toes, anything I can cross."

Saberhagen beat St. Louis 6-1 in the third game, after the Cardinals had won the first two in Kansas City, and 11-0 with a five-hitter in the seventh and deciding game. It was the greatest comeback by any team in World Series history.

His 2-0 record and 0.50 ERA made him the unanimous selection as Sport Magazine's Series MVP. On Monday he received the trophy and a mini-van.

In the Series' seventh game, the Royals got to John Tudor and the St. Louis bullpen in a hurry, scoring two runs in the second inning, three in the third and six in the fifth. "When you get an 11-run cushion early in the game, it makes my job so much easier," Saberhagen said.

Two HHS runners just miss state berths

Being close does not count in many sports, including cross country running, as two Hereford High School girls found out last Saturday at the Region I meet in Lubbock.

Nancy Garza and Selma Moreno both were within 10 seconds behind the 10th place runner in the meet, and only the top 10 individuals go to the state meet.

Hereford placed fifth in the meet, behind El Paso Bowie, Tascosa, Socorro of El Paso, and Irving.

The order of teams placing behind Hereford were: El Paso High, Trinity, El Paso Bel Air, Abilene, San Angelo Central, L.D. Bell, Richland, Haltom, R.L. Turner, Arlington Heights, and Fort Worth South.

Nancy Garza, who placed 11th, was timed at 12:22 in Saturday's reginals--two seconds behind the 10th place finisher. Selma Moreno had a time of 12:28 to place 13th.

Frances Flores came in 23rd place, with a clocking of 12:48. Delia Rodriguez was 52nd in 13:44.

Other placings and times for Hereford runners were: Terry Valdez, 59th, 13:51; Eva Medrano, 74th, 14:19; and Elia Hernandez, 78th, 14:23.

Saturday's run was the last one in the high school cross country career for five Hereford seniors--Rodriguez, Valdez, Medrano, Flores, and Moreno.

"Delia and Terry both have been valuable team members this year," said HHS Coach Martha Emerson.

"Terry ran her best time of the year Saturday, and Delia ran her second best time of the season," Emerson adds. Rodriguez and Valdez were both one-year lettermen.

Medrano, a two-year letterman, also recorded her best time of the season at the regional meet.

Coach Emerson said Flores, a three-year letterman, "has probably received little attention.

"She has been the team's third runner and a most important member during the three years she has been in cross country," Emerson continues.

"She and Selma Moreno, also a three-year letterman, are two big reasons the team won the district championship in 1983 and was second in 1984 and 1985.

"Selma has been a regional qualifier three years, district champion in 1984, and a member of the 5A all-state team in 1984."

Two sophomore ran for the Hereford High varsity in the regional meet--Nancy Garza and Elia Hernandez.

Garza won three meets this season and placed second in two other meets.

"Nancy has been a top competitor all year and has done a great job," Coach Emerson said.

Hernandez ran with the varsity team the last three meets of the season.

"Elia has improved steadily all season. She also ran her best time of the year at the regional meet," Emerson notes.

In summarizing the efforts of the 1985 HHS girls' team, Coach Emerson declares, "This has been a good year for the girls' cross country team.

"They won one meet, placed second to Tascosa three times and were third at the Lubbock meet, then fifth at the regional meet.

"Tascosa is ranked seventh in the state, so we have had some good competition. I'm proud of the effort, hard work and pride these girls have shown this season."

13 teams play in First Baptist golf tournament

Thirteen teams braved the early-morning chill to participate in the men's First Baptist Church Golf Tourney Saturday, with the threesome of Craig Nieman, Mike Carr and Chris White capturing the scramble title.

The Nieman-led team posted a low score of 68, while two teams tied for second with a two-under par 69. One team was composed of Ed Line, Chuck Cosper, John Poindexter and Harvey Milton, while the other included Ken Helms, Speedy Nieman, Herschel Black and K. Don Spurgin.

The fourth-place team, with a 71, was composed of Mike Fields, Doug Manning, Jeryl Baker and Ed Wuerflein. High score for the day was posted by a threesome composed of Pat Robbins, Rev. Ron Cook and Jack Kirksey.

A total of 51 players were entered. Dean Herring, tourney chairman, reported that players were able to "peel off several layers of clothes" after a few holes and the weather was better as the day progressed.

Cards rally to beat Cowboys

By PAUL LeBAR
AP Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Even with his team behind, Pat Tilley believed something good would happen to the St. Louis Cardinals. What the wide receiver didn't know was how soon.

"When we came in here at halftime, nobody said much," Tilley said after triggering St. Louis' 21-10 comeback National Football League victory Monday night over the Dallas Cowboys. "Nobody had to. We knew that unless we turned things around, our season was pretty much gone."

Tilley, by using the sure hands that have long made him one of St. Louis' most reliable receivers, triggered the turnaround in the third period.

"I don't know how he caught that pass," St. Louis Coach Jim Hanifan said of Tilley's reception on a 46-yard touchdown play. "He had to have marvelous concentration, because there were hands all over, many of them in his face."

Actually, said Tilley, two hands tipped the Neil Lomax spiral that launched the Cards' rally from their 10-0 deficit.

"J.T. (Smith) was running a breaking pattern, and their nickel back was following me on a crossing route," Tilley said. "Both of them touched it. It just hit my hand, and it stuck. I just said, 'Praise God.'"

Tilley, with Dallas rookie Ricky Easom giving futile pursuit, ignited St. Louis by scoring to cap an 81-yard drive.

It also turned on Lomax. The St. Louis quarterback, who had been in a slump, began seeking out and finding his receivers. In seven plays, he guided the Cards to a 14-10 lead on a 65-yard march that Earl Ferrell capped with an eight-yard run.

"Once we had shown that we could put some points on the board, that seemed to get the Cowboys' attention," Hanifan said.

"The team just played hellaciously after that, both offensively and defensively," St. Louis coach said. "It was Lomax' best performance this year by far. He was more decisive. He was the old Lomax."

For clinchers, the Cards mounted one more impressive drive. It covered 80 yards after starting innocently enough with an incomplete pass.

Stump Mitchell stepped into the gap created when Ottis Anderson was sidelined by a sore toe. The backup St. Louis back broke off a 21-yard run, then tucked in a 25-yard pass that preceded three more catches by Smith.

"What turned me on was J.T.'s touchdown," right guard Joe Bostic said of Smith's determined lunge to the end zone on a eight-yard play with 4:13 left.

"That sort of typified the way we played this game. We'd been getting beat. We just decided to let it all hang out. It just showed what can happen when you refuse to give up."

St. Louis, by winning, unlocked the stranglehold the Cowboys had had on the Cards since 1981 in Busch Stadium.

The outcome also knocked Dallas out of sole possession of first place in the National Conference East. The Cowboys and New York Giants are now co-leaders at 6-3, with St. Louis sharing fourth place at 4-5.

"It's kind of early to tell what this victory will mean, but I still want to savor it," a beaming Tilley said.

Until their dramatic reversal of form, the Cards and their opponents had been locked in what Dallas Coach Tom Landry labeled "one of the dullest first halves I have ever seen."

Cowboys quarterback Danny White caught fire just long enough to march his team 93 yards to a touchdown late in the first half on an eight-yard pass to Tony Hill. But after Rafael Septien booted a 19-yard field goal with one second left, Dallas never seriously threatened again.

"We were fired up. You have to give them credit for stopping us," said White, who completed 21 of 36 passes for 202 yards and was intercepted once.

"Tilley's catch was the biggest play of the game. He's been a thorn in our side ever since I remember," Dallas' quarterback said. "They (Cards) just played the best defense we've played all year without question."

Lomax, with top receiver Roy Green on the sidelines with a leg injury, went six times each to Smith and Tilley in engineering the Cards' comeback.

"I think tonight I was just a lot more aggressive. J.T. made some fine catches," said Lomax, who wound up with 17-of-32 passing for 261 yards. "I was happy for Pat on his touchdown. But to tell you the truth, I didn't even see him catch the ball."

Landry, in evaluating the outcome, said he wasn't certain how much to credit the Cards and how much to discredit his beaten team.

"They got the big plays in the second half and we didn't," he said. "We didn't run, we didn't pass, we didn't perform."

Wes Unseld, one of the all-time greats of the National Basketball Association, has to be considered an authority on rebounding, his specialty when he played.

"There's always a spot open for a guy who can rebound," Unseld said. "You can't shoot the ball unless you have it. What makes a good rebounder? All rebounding means is hard work. Anybody can be a good rebounder. It's a mental thing. You have to want it, that's all. You have to want the ball. Once you get in the habit, you're on your way."

Former KGB bigwig says he was kidnapped

Oleg Bitov went back, telling tales of drugs, beatings and bribery. Svetlana Peters, daughter of Josef Stalin, went back saying she had never had a day of freedom in the United States.

Miroslav Medvid jumped off a Soviet freighter twice in the Mississippi River last month, then declared after talking it over with U.S. officials that he wanted to go home — "voluntarily of my own free will."

Now former KGB bigwig Vitaly Yurchenko has thrown himself back in the arms of "Mother Russia," claiming that he had been kidnapped, drugged and offered a chance to become a millionaire to turn against his homeland.

Prodigal comrades all, rarer by far than those who take the one-way trip but cherished by a Soviet press which holds them up as if to say: "You see?"

Yurchenko, 50, described as the fifth-ranking official in the KGB at the time he defected in Rome in August, turned up at the Soviet embassy Monday claiming he had been kidnapped.

The State Department said Yurchenko's charges were "completely false" and said he would not be permitted to return to the Soviet Union until he convinced U.S. officials that he was going voluntarily.

Recounting his story of "three horrible months," Yurchenko denied cooperating with U.S. officials.

"In the period when I was conscious and in control of my behavior, I did not pass any secret information," he said. "When I was drugged ... I don't know what I was doing or saying."

Bitov, an editor of the Literary Gazette who was granted asylum in Britain in 1983, said at the time that the Soviet attack which killed 269 people aboard an unarmed Korean airliner was the "last straw."

He wrote articles denouncing Soviet censorship and negotiated a book contract.

Then in September of last year, Bitov was back in Moscow, claiming he had not defected but had been kidnapped. According to Bitov, he was knocked unconscious in a hotel room in Venice, Italy, stuffed full of drugs which kept him groggy until he arrived in Britain.

At last report, Bitov was back at work at the Literary Gazette and was trying to claim about $50,000 he had left behind — his earnings from writing what he now calls "anti-Soviet trash."

Friends in London suggested that Bitov may have become despondent because of being separated from a family left behind in Moscow. Soviets allowed to travel abroad are rarely allowed to take their families along, and the chance of a defector's family being allowed to emigrate is negligible.

Life in the West can be daunting for Soviet emigres, who are not prepared for the expensive rents, the difficulty of finding work and the high crime in U.S. cities.

Those problems defeated Michale and Anna Polovchak, who had emigrated from the Ukraine in 1979 but returned in 1981. Their son, then 12 years old, and an adult daughter, however, found America more congenial and touched off a long-running legal battle by refusing to go back.

The Soviet press called it a kidnapping.

Walter Polovchak turned 18 last month, became a U.S. citizen and registered for the draft.

"I knew what I was doing," Polovchak told well-wishers after he took the oath of citizenship. "I'd been living under communism for 12 years and after six months in a free country, the difference was pretty obvious."

The most famous of the defectors, coming and going, was Stalin's daughter, who had defected in India in 1967 and was granted asylum in the United States.

She had married an American architect, William Peters, given birth to a daughter, published two volumes of memoirs and had even registered to vote while living quietly in the United States.

She went back to Moscow last November, taking her daughter Olga with her.

"I feel happy at last. I have returned home," she said. "We have been met here with generosity and with good will that I did not expect. We have been met like the prodigal son in the Bible."

She returned, she noted, to a son and a daughter by her first marriage, and to meet grandchildren born after her defection.

In the United States, she complained, she was the "favorite pet" of the CIA and that she was "never free for a single day."

The 59-year-old Miss Alliluyeva now lives in Tbilisi, the capital of her father's native Soviet Georgia, where she lives in a modest but comfortable home and has refused all requests for interviews.

Mexican traffickers draw power from guns, peasants

By CHARLES J. HANLEY
Associated Press Writer

The massacre of 22 policemen in Mexico's southern marijuana belt has pointed up the brazen power of the Mexican narcotics empires, gangs that feed the demand of millions of American drug users.

The Mexican attorney general, Sergio Garcia Ramirez, has described the wealthy marijuana-heroin rings as "extensive, complex and strong organizations." They are clearly deadly dangerous as well.

The Mexican government reports that 315 soldiers were killed in a series of military sweeps against narcotics operations nationwide in 1983-84.

In the latest bloodshed, traffickers ambushed a police anti-drug squad last Friday in a remote marijuana-growing area of Vera Cruz state, 300 miles southeast of Mexico City.

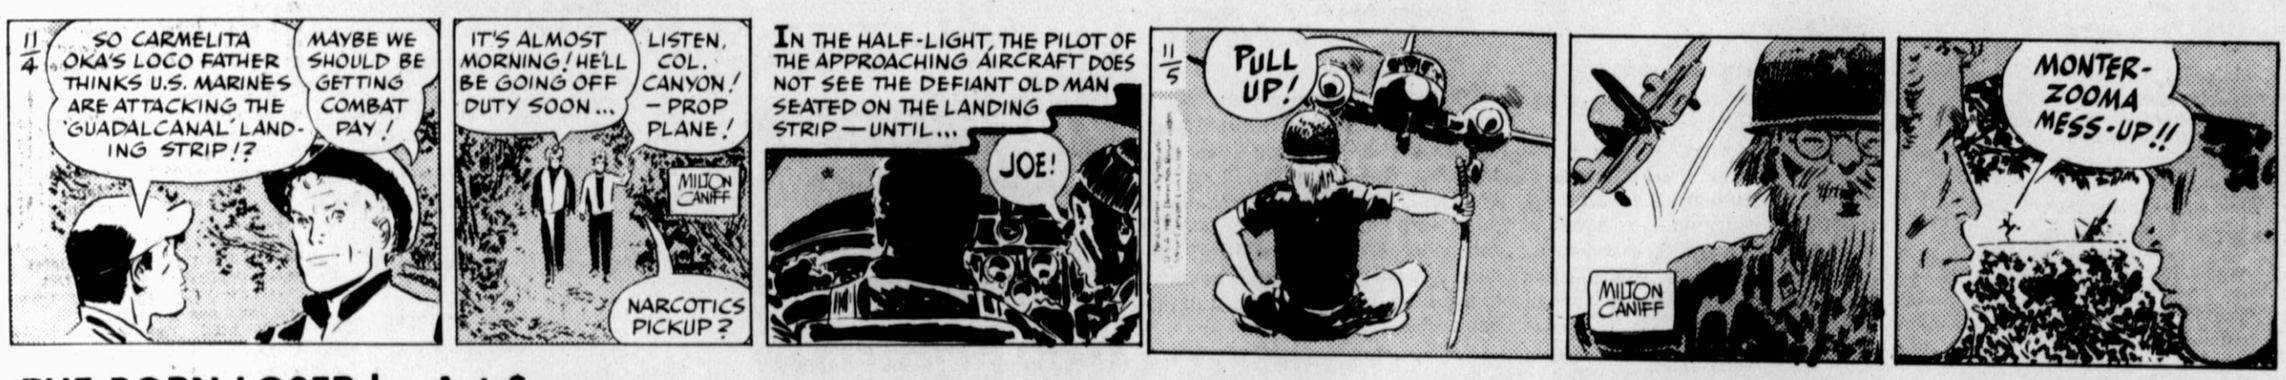

The "narcotraficantes" derive their power from more than guns, however. Their organizations are built on the labor of tens of thousands of Mexican peasants who earn three or four times the minimum wage of 1,260 pesos a day — $2.62 — by working marijuana and opium poppy fields in areas stretching from Mexico's tropics to the U.S. border.

ITALIAN SCULPTURE

DETROIT (AP) — An exhibition, "Italian Renaissance Sculpture in the Time of Donatello," at the Detroit Institute of Art through Jan. 5, 1986, ties together the 600th anniversary of Donatello's birth and the museum's own centennial celebrations.

About 100 works, including marble, bronze, terracotta and stucco masterpieces borrowed from European and American collections, have been assembled for the first time in a single exhibition, here, appropriately in Detroit, twin city with Florence.

The exhibition was organized by the Detroit institute in association with the Kimbell Art Museum, Fort Worth, Texas, where it will go on show Feb. 22-April 27, 1986, after its showing in Detroit.

Sheriff leads band called 'The Inmates'

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — There they were, maybe 300 participants in a motorcycle rally in Buffalo Gap, ready to have a good time, possibly do some two-steppin' and a little drinking, and then the sheriff of Callahan County has to show up in his patrol car and ruin it all.

You can probably guess what most bikers did.

They left.

It's just natural people get the wrong impression about Bill Skinner. The bikers sure did.

As it turned out, the sheriff just happened to be off-duty, and he was getting ready to lead his band — they're know as The Inmates — in another performance.

Joni Dodson, a familiar face to area country music fans and a member of Skinner's band, remembers the incident well. "When Bill pulled his car up there — well, there were about 300 people out there, and I think only 25 came to the dance.

"Talk about intimidation."

As for himself, Skinner just shrugs and laughs it off.

"Next time," he said, "I'll come in a plain car."

That's the way it goes sometimes for Skinner, the guitar-twanging sheriff of Callahan County. Just when some folks think he's going to get them for some outstanding fine, he pulls out a guitar and starts singing.

And frankly, the people of the county are happy he does.

"I do this mainly because I just love music," says Skinner, county sheriff since 1976. "I don't do this for a living. I have another profession."

And unlike so many frantically aspiring country musicians in these parts, he doesn't seek the big times.

"It's really relaxing," said Skinner before a gig at an Abilene retirement center, following a long day transporting prisoners from Eastland's jail to Baird. "I guess whatever a person likes to do is relaxing if you're getting away from your main job."

Music is not his main line, but if one were present during Putnam's first-ever public dance last spring, they'd find plenty of Callahan County folk who'd swear he's as good as those who actually do make it their profession.

Still, he insists, being county sheriff comes first, and occasionally the band will find itself doing without the bass guitarist, who has gone off to take part in a stakeout or settling a dispute. Each of the band members has his own account of such an interruption.

Keyboardist Tim Fails recalls the time The Inmates were playing at one major gig, and how Sheriff Skinner got a call and "left right in the middle of the whole shebang to go pick up some crazy guy on I-20."

Skinner calmly admits there have been occasions when no deputies were available to bring law and order to Callahan County. "I've been called out of gigs quite a few times. If I can't get anyone to do it for me, I do it myself."

"Sheriffing," as he calls it, has turned out to be a bigger job than he expected. "I had no idea of the crime in these small counties like Callahan County. I figured I'd work three, four days and then be off three, four days.

"It's actually a seven-day, 24-hour-a-day job. It really is."

Reared in Marshall, Skinner has had an on-again, off-again affair with music, one that began while he was in high school and "won a couple of talent shows."

He didn't play too often during his later years with the railroad but took it up again in the Army. While at Fort Benning, Ga., he encountered "two or three boys from Tennessee, and we just started playing."

But he dropped the guitar when he was transferred to Germany. He left the service in 1958 and went back to working with the railroad. It was about 1965 when some friends, knowing of Skinner's talent at the guitar (he originally started out on string bass), "talked me into playing in the musicals. I've just knocked around with it since 1965.

"We haven't tried to do anything with it, however," he added.

Skinner reflects puzzlement when asked why he decided to run for sheriff in 1976.

"You know, I haven't figured out why yet," he said. "I'd never had any previous law enforcement experience. I didn't think I'd ever have a chance of winning, really."

As one might guess, Bill Skinner's gigs seldom find anyone creating a disturbance.

"Before I became sheriff," he said, smiling, "we had a few problems with fights, but since I became sheriff we haven't had them."

The sound of the band is remarkably cohesive, and it's no surprise to discover that the group is something of a "family affair." Bill's son, Kerry, who plays rhythm guitar and does vocals, is married to Joni Dodson's daughter, Terri, who also does vocals.

Joni Dodson, formerly of Joni Dodson and the County Kings, is joined by her husband, Tommy, who plays lead guitar. Other members include Fails — who once performed with Tommy Ross — and Donny Weeks on drums.

Like most country musicians, all have other jobs by day.

"We don't make a lot pickin', " said Joni. "We don't make a lot of money like Cole Younger or Shadetree." But that's fine with Skinner, since money isn't his motivation.

"I find I'll keep doing this and then quit," Skinner said of his future in country-western music. "I won't go any further." The sheriff said he is "satisfied with what I'm doing and the way I'm doing it."

Skinner's country inclinations did earn him some criticism during a recent re-election bid. A few critics felt he should spend more time at law enforcement and less time twanging a guitar. But most voters obviously felt he was doing fine at both.

Nevertheless, the campaign — which got relatively nasty and involved a few scathing letters to newspaper editors — hurt him, Joni Dodson remembers. "It bothered him that somebody felt that way," she said.

"We kind of look out for him, and he kind of looks out for us," she said. Terri Skinner feels Skinner's decision to continue playing country music after those long days at work and despite occasional criticism reflects his feeling for that music. "If he could still manage to play through all that, he must love it."

Most of the time, though, there's a relaxed, happy air surrounding the band's work, with Skinner engaging in his brand of laid-back humor. "Bill tells 'em he has to take us back and lock us up about midnight," Joni said.

Still, Skinner said, little misunderstandings about the sheriff of Callahan County arise now and then. He remembers the time a woman approached him and asked him if it was really proper taking The Inmates out on gigs.

The sheriff smiles at this recollection.

"She thought I was pulling prisoners out to play music."

Almost 500 people died Nov. 28, 1942, when a flash fire raced through a Boston nightclub. Dozens were crushed to death or jammed too tightly to escape the flames as the blaze roared through the packed pleasure spot in seconds. Nightclub singer Bill Payne saved 10 patrons by leading them into a huge icebox in the building's basement.

The Newspaper BIBLE

WOULD YOU LIKE A FAITH WITHOUT FRILLS?

While Paul and Barnabas were at Antioch, some men from Judea arrived and began to teach the believers that unless they adhered to the ancient Jewish custom of circumcision, they could not be saved.

Paul and Barnabas argued and discussed this with them at length, and finally the believers sent them to Jerusalem, accompanied by some local men, to talk to the apostles and elders there about this question.

After the entire congregation had escorted them out of the city the delegates went on to Jerusalem, stopping along the way in the cities of Phoenicia and Samaria to visit believers, telling them -- much to everyone's joy -- that the Gentiles, too, were being converted.

Arriving in Jerusalem, they met with the church leaders -- all the apostles and elders were present - and Paul and Barnabas reported on what God had been doing through their ministry.

But then some of the men who had been Pharisees before their conversion stood to their feet and declared that all Gentile converts must be circumcised and required to follow all the Jewish customs and ceremonies. So the apostles and church elders set a further meeting to decide this question.

At the meeting, after long discussion, Peter stood and addressed them as follows: "Brothers, you all know that God chose me from among you long ago to preach the Good News to the Gentiles, so that they also could believe."
