Iran Risking Civil War, Claim Turks

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)— Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said today international observers will see the American hostages in the occupied U.S. Embassy "in the very near future."

Meanwhile, the spiritual leader of the Azerbaijani Turks who are rebelling against government authority in the northwest, said in an interview today that Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini would face civil war if he did not liberalize his policies toward Azerbaijan.

Today the dispute between Iran's two highest-ranking holy men intensified when Shariat-Madari, second most senior religious leader, said in an interview with Associated Press Correspondent Maureen Johnson at his home in the holy city of Qom. "If the executive makes mistakes again, the disturbances will continue in Azerbaijan, tension will increase, people will start to kill each other, civil war will take place.

"We are going to have independent international observers to go and visit the prisoners in. I hope, a very short time and afterwards I hope that visits will be made regularly," Ghotbzadeh told a news conference.

The news conference was for newspaper and magazine reporters, not wire services, but The Associated Press obtained a tape recording of the questions and answers.

"One visit certainly is agreed upon, and it will be done I hope in the very near future," Ghotbzadeh said. "I hope that visits will be regularly allowed. I can't guarantee that now."

Among the international intermediaries in Tehran is Harold Schmidt Degruneck of the International Red Cross, who saw 15 of the hostages earlier in the five-week-old siege.

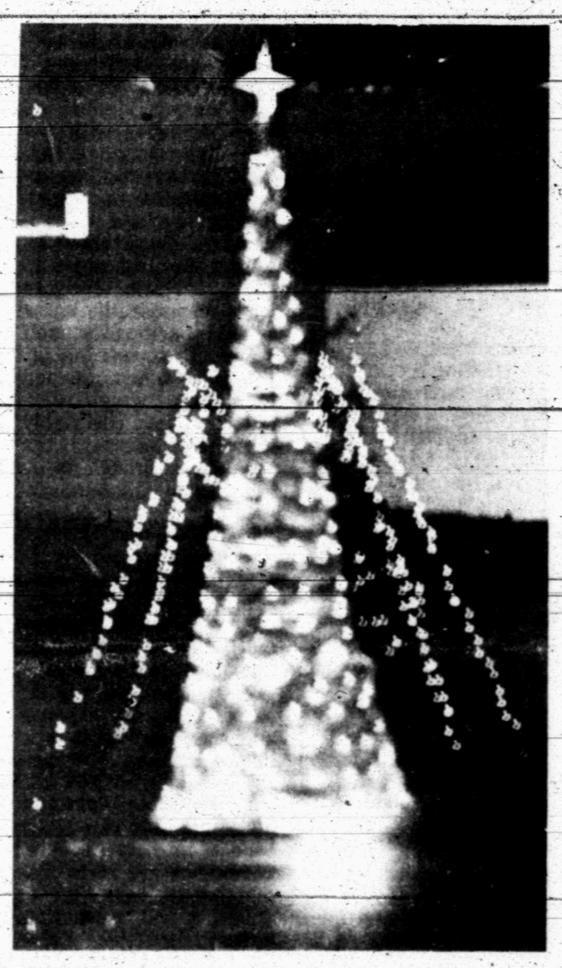

U.N. emissary Zuhair Yamin arrived in Tehran Monday and Sri Lankan Foreign Minister Shahul Hameed, who already has acted as an intermediary, is reportedly back in Tehran.

Ghotbzadeh said "attempts were being made by Iranian officials to assemble an international grand jury as soon as possible to investigate Iran's grievances, including crimes charged against the deposed shah.

Meanwhile, the official Pars news agency reported today that a revolutionary guard was shot dead behind the embassy last Sunday morning and said the "martyred" guard was buried in his home town in the Sennan central province. Pars said only that the man was killed by "an unknown person" during a change of guard.

Q--Are motorists required to stop behind church buses as they are school buses?

A--The police department could find no law stating that motorists must stop when church buses are loading or discharging students, but advised that it would be a good idea to do so.

600 Anti Busers Walk Out

AUSTIN (AP)-About 600 anti-busing parents walked out of a public meeting Monday night while the school board explained desegregation plans that involve cross-town busing of up to 15,000 students.

The group that left the school board session, which attacted some 2,000 persons, reconvened at a Catholic church in Northwest Austin to discuss ways to combat busing.

"We will use political force, we will use ecnomic force, we will not resort to violence," Dr. Peter Werner, a leader of the protest, told the protestors, who call themselves "Concerned Parents of Austin."

Stash Found In Boat

GALVESTON (AP)-When customs officials boarded what they termed a "suspicious-looking" fishing vessel, they said they found bales of marijuana stashed in the gun hold, the forward hole and the pilot house.

The illegal cargo, apparently bound for somewhere along the Texas coast, was seized about 5 p.m. Monday by customs officials who were on a routine patrol in the Gulf, about 16 miles southeast of Freeport on a 41-foot Coast Guard utility boat.

The estimated 15 to 20 tons of marijuana seized would be worth more than $15 million on the street, said Coast Guard Lt. Gabriel Kinney of Freeport.

Man Hunt In New Mexico

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP)-A manhunt using helicopters and dog teams continued today in northern New Mexico for five prison escapees after four others were captured without incident, authorities said.

Three escapees were taken into custody Monday night near the small village of Cerrillos south of Santa Fe and another was picked up in Santa Fe, said John Ramming of the state Criminal Justice Department. Ramming said none of the four offered any resistance nor were they armed. But authorities believe the remaining five escapees could be armed and are considered extremely dangerous, he said.

Slim Chance For Gas Tax

WASHINGTON (AP)— Congressional leaders are telling the White House that chances of enacting a suggested 50-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax range from slim to nonexistent.

Top administration economic officials, in a closed-door meeting Monday with House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, reportedly listed the tax as one of the options the president has under serious consideration as he prepares his 1980 agenda, sources said.

Administration economic officials see the tax as a way of forcing conservation of gasoline by making the fuel much more expensive at the pump.

But O'Neill, according to a participant at the meeting who declined to be identified, immediately threw cold water on the idea, telling the officials there was "little enthusiasm for a gas tax" on Capitol Hill.

Other sources said White House officials got much the same signal in a recent meeting with Senate Energy Committee Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and other Senate leaders.

O'Neill reportedly told the administration officials he didn't see much support in the House for either a 50-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax or a strengthened gas-rationing plan also being considered by the administration.

Rationing and the gas tax, according to the sources, were two of many items discussed at Monday's session with O'Neill, Treasury Secretary G. William Miller, White House domestic adviser Stuart E. Eizenstat and Charles L. Schultze, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers.

Five Persons Hurt In Area Road Mishaps

Five persons were injured in traffic accidents last night and early this morning.

Injured in a wreck about 8 last night were Donna Dunn, Erma Sanchez, Kevin Huddleston, and Jane McCarty.

Ms. Dunn was admitted to Cogdell Memorial Hospital for observation and Ms. McCarty was admitted to the hospital for observation during the night but released early today. Huddleston was treated and released following the mishap.

Erma Sanchez was transferred to Highland Hospital in Lubbock last night with a leg injury.

The accident occurred about 3½ miles north of the Ira Cemetery.

The wreck this morning occurred about 7:30 a.m. at Inadale.

Injured in that accident was Larry Hays, of Ballinger the driver of an 18-wheeler that jackknifed and overturned. He was treated and released.

The mishaps were investigated by Department of Public Safety Patrolmen, and the injured were taken to hospitals by Palmer EMS.

Iranians Get Signs Ripped

SAN ANTONIO (AP)- About 50 anti-Iranian protestors today ripped up the signs being carried by five Iranian students involved in a hunger strike on the steps of City Hall.

The confrontation erupted after country-western disc jockeys Ricci Ware and Jud Ashmore urged listeners on their morning show to join them at City Hall for what they termed "peaceful debate."

Only moments after the pair arrived, Ashmore approached the five students sitting on the steps and asked, "Would you mind taking your signs and getting the hell out of here?"

Ashmore then added, "We pay taxes and we think you are littering the steps. I've asked you to leave, now would you please do it?"

As the stunned students whispered among themselves, Ware grabbed a poster of Iran's new ruler Ayatollah Khomeini and tore it up in front of the students.

Ware and Ashmore's followers then ripped up the other signs. A police officer forced Ware to step back, but there were no arrests.

Until the confrontation, the students had quietly maintained their hunger strike, started Monday to protest the presence of the deposed shah at nearby Lackland Air Force Base.

Spokesman Mohsen Towliat said they also were protesting the city's refusal to issue a parade permit for a rally that had been planned for last Friday near Lackland.

Several persons who walked past the SAC students Monday stopped just long enough to fling an obscenity or two at the protestors.

Blood Drive Here Friday

A blood drive has been scheduled for Friday afternoon and evening at Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Contributions of blood are needed to compensate for requirements of Scurry County patients.

The drive will be conducted from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. Friday in the hospital conference room.

Price Hike Looms For School Meals

Snyder school trustees are scheduled to consider proposals for increasing charges for cafeteria meals and for a cost effectiveness survey of non-academic area operations at a meeting tonight.

The meeting is set for 7:30 p.m. in the board room of the school administration building.

The board also will study expenses for holding playoff football games in the local stadium and take official action on acceptance of the annual audit.

An increase of 10 cents per meal has been proposed for school lunches. This would hike the cost from 55 cents to 65 cents for pupils in kindergarten through the sixth grade, and from 65 cents to 75 cents for pupils in the seventh through the 12th grade. No change is proposed for breakfast prices, since the breakfast program is operating in the black.

Included in the proposal to increase prices for school lunches is a plan for serving larger portions of some foods for sixth graders and in the secondary schools.

A representative of Exertia, Inc., will present a proposal for a cost effectiveness survey.

It was one of those situations that you dream about. At least we had thought it could happen only in a dream. But here it was, unfolding in front of us.

Have you ever witnessed an event that made you wish a peace officer was on the scene? Like a car speeding recklessly down the road? Or someone making an illegal turn, or running a traffic signal?

But of course people don't do those things when officers are around, or do they?

Yes they do. Occasionally, at least. And when they do, it is gratifying to behold.

We had been to Lubbock to get our first look at Miss America of the year 2000, who was only six or seven hours old. (Her name is Lisa Ann McNair in case you want to check 21 years hence at Atlantic City).

Anyway, we were returning home at about 9:15 p.m. between Lubbock and Slaton on U.S. Highway 84. Our vehicle's cruise control was set within shouting distance of the 55 mph speed limit. Suddenly this pickup truck came up and not only passed us as if we were parked, but also cut in too soon and almost nicked our left front fender.

Oh, if only a Highway Patrolman could see this, we thought. But we knew it was all but out of the question. Such things don't happen in real life.

But lo, and behold, there was a vehicle approaching in the opposite lane, and fortunately there was a cross-over in the right spot. The familiar red and blue flashing lights came on as the patrolman's car came over to our side of the highway and in less time than it takes to tell, he had the speeding pickup truck halted on the shoulder of the road.

Although it was dark and our car windows were closed, we gave a little cheer as we went past the scene.

Incidentally, we saw three DPS patrol cars on U.S. 84 between Post and Lubbock that evening, the most ever. And they seemed to be giving good account of themselves.

punishing producers

The thrust of government laws and regulations, contends Federal Reserve Governor Henry C. Wallich, is to improve the lot of the consumer at the expense of the producer.

That trend, despite the obvious fact that most consumers are also producers, is resulting in higher costs to producers, higher prices for consumers and a lowered standard of living for everyone.

Wallich contends that most law makes "consumer" synonymous with people and producers enemies.

The tax system favors the consumer at the expense of the producer. Corporations are taxed on profits and the stockholders taxed on profits and the stockholders taxed against on the same income. That cuts down on the income that might be reinvested to stimulate production.

The progressive income tax is punishing more people daily as inflation pushes them into steeper tax brackets while their real income rises not at all, encouraging early retirements because Social Security income is not taxed.

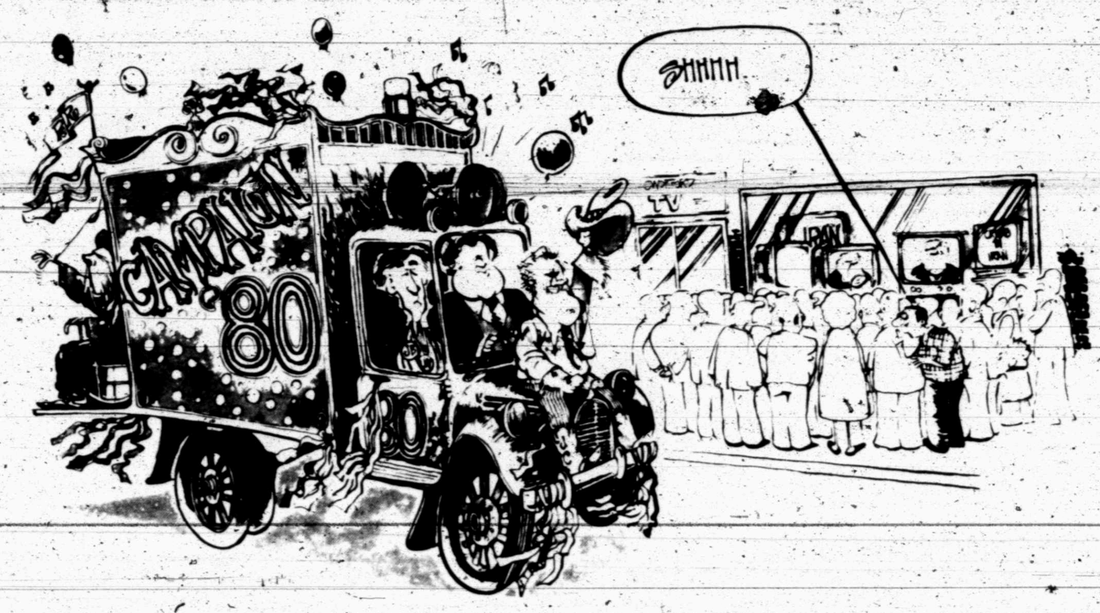

The capital gains tax perhaps is the clearest evidence of governmental intent to punish the producer. It is aimed directly at the segment of the population on which society relies to take the risk involved in any business enterprise.

In the United States, unlike other industrialized nations, the successful producer is penalized for that success.

And inflation, encouraged, if not directly caused by government policy, penalizes thrift. In times of high tax and high inflation, those who are not in debt are the biggest losers.

The final result of anti-producer activity in the U.S. economy is shown in the productivity statistics, which have dropped sharply since the late 1960s.

It is clear, as Wallich says, that the consumer movement, despite the loud protestations to the contrary, has turned against itself, feeding the very factors that lead to less, not more, for everyone.

it's tough all over

If the Soviets are holding a bad economic hand, their East European allies have been dealt one in spades.

Inflation is forcing official price increases everywhere, which is a cause of considerable official concern since memories are still fresh of the riots touched off in Poland by 1976 increases.

Productivity, never adequate to start with, is declining and "underground" economies - i.e., private enterprise by farmers and craftsmen - are thriving. Exports are falling as products are less and less up to the standards of world markets.

And the worst news of all may be coming from Moscow, which is moving to align prices of oil deliveries to its almost totally dependent satellite family with those of the OPEC cartel.

It just goes to prove what every family knows - that life with Big Brother can be rough.

less production means less

Politicians and labor leaders and prosperity -- all conspired to encourage Americans to demand more pay for less work.

They got it.

Now they are getting paid off in stage money.

This will help explain two things -- our shrinking dollars and our international trade imbalance.

The Labor Department confirms that American workers' wages increased the third quarter--but productivity declined.

Workers are paid more for producing less -- what they produce has to cost more.

Wages per man-hour in the United States increased 8.8 percent.

Work output per man-hour decreased .7 percent.

No wonder cars made in America cost so much more that Americans are buying foreign cars instead.

There is yet another cruel backlash resulting from this quest for more pay for less work.

The more pay is taxed more.

One of the most selfish sleight-of-hand devices which politicians employ is to espouse higher wages for workers -- knowing full well that the higher wages will push workers into higher tax brackets.

That way government gets more tax revenue without the politicians having to raise taxes.

Taxpayers in 1964 returned to government in taxes 12 percent of their earnings; this year they will have to kick back 18 percent!

And this increase has come, mind you, while the politicians were boasting to you that they were "reducing taxes."

Federal income tax rates were reduced in 1964 and again in 1965 -- some 25 percent.

While the politicians were boasting, "Look what we did for you!" they knew that your annually higher wages were shoving you into higher tax brackets -- so that you would be sending to Washington more, not less, of your income.

The official tax rate goes down but actually you pay more taxes.

Your income has been keeping pace with inflation.

During the past five years prices have increased 137 percent.

But so has your income increased about 137 percent.

The pinch comes because your higher income has put you in a higher tax bracket.

So the money your average family of four has left over for spending this year is $1,056 less than five years ago.

Project this ahead and next year looks worse.

Next year prices will increase eight percent plus.

Your wages will increase eight percent plus.

But because of higher taxes you will have $505 less spendable income than this year!

Here is the rule of thumb: A 10 percent increase in income will increase a family's federal income taxes by 16 percent.

That's right--you and I can't win unless we do two things: demand of ourselves increased output to match increased income, and demand of our government less spending, less taxes.

We'll not get ahead until we do.

my turn

by john dunnam

Just a few short weeks ago Kennedy was the darling of the press and the favorite in the polls. Suddenly all that has changed. What happened?

Khomeini, it seems, has also caused a crisis in the Kennedy campaign. Ever since the take over of the embassy this country has rallied around it's elected leader. Right away Carter began catching up in the polls. Last week he was even and this weekend Kennedy got the toughest break of all. Khomeini appealed to the American people NOT to vote for Carter for president. I'll bet that is better than the endorsement of Big Business and Big Labor combined.

But Khomeini shouldn't get all the credit for changing the tide. Kennedy contributed his share with his off-the-cuff criticism of the U.S. taking in the Shah.

And foreign affairs aside, I think once Kennedy officially announced his candidacy, people realized that he might actually get elected and took a closer look at him.

After all, stranger things have happened. Consider the last presidential election.

If Carter can keep the crisis from turning into a disaster, he has a campaign strategy a dog could win with.

Anytime he wants and without leaving his office he can make instant headlines and with a subject every American is emotionally involved in. Nothing wins elections like emotions and that peanut farmer from Georgia demonstrated in his first campaign that he knows how to milk them for all they are worth.

Meanwhile the other candidates must go stumping around the country. Anything they say that even comes close to criticizing Carter's handling of the Iranian affair has a ring of treason to it at this point. That limits them to their tired old speeches on inflation and the gas shortage and that recession that was promised months ago but has yet to materialize.

Lately Kennedy has been directing most of his rhetoric towards inflation. He says he will make it a personal battle if elected president. I wonder if he realizes that it has been personal for us poor folks for a long time. He does have the gift of gab and sounds almost convincing at times. That is pretty incredible when you consider the massive social programs he wants to impose. His national health plan by itself would do much to fuel inflation. And his plan for the energy problem is also the pits.

It makes anyone who is fond of driving and staying warm want to build a still. If he gets elected I know I'm going to need one.

letter to editor

To The Daily News:

The government wants to ration gasoline because of the shortage. The only reason there is a shortage is because of Department of Energy regulations. 25 percent more gasoline could be made if the refiners were allowed to make it. Another 25 percent more could be made in the field if a method producers know of were put into use.

Florida has used solar power for the last 20 years, but the DOE will not even ask to see the units. They had rather spend 10 billion on new experiments.

Texas A&M has the formula used by the Germans during World War II to make synthetic fuels, but the DOE will not talk to them. They had rather spend $15 billion on experiments.

The government wants to tax the "Windfall Profits" of the oil companies. They aren't taxing the oil companies. They are taxing YOU. This will keep the companies from finding more oil so that this "crisis" will continue. Even the OPEC wants the tax, to restrict the oil exploration efforts.

How can you help? Change your Congressman, those who vote to support the government in these actions.

donald f. graff

Single interest politics are a fairly recent development while the special interest variety has been around for a long time.

When the two get together, the whole in terms of political impact may be greater than the parts, as demonstrated in the current drive in Congress to restrict drastically the mandate of the Federal Trade Commission.

The agency of late has been among the most activist in the federal fold in part because of a go-getum chairman, Michael Pertschuk, and in larger part because of a congressional grant of powers in 1974. These have enabled it to apply fair-trade regulations to whole industries at a stroke rather than piecemeal to individual enterprises as specific violations or other appropriate cause arose.

The FTC has been zealous in the exercise, and in the process a number of oxes have been gored. And as a consequence, their owners have joined forces to pressure Congress for redress.

Their cause finds considerable sympathy in a public and on a Capitol Hill turned off by broadening government regulation. But the remedy proposed would appear to be a case of over-redress.

Businesses as varied as funeral homes, farm cooperatives, the tobacco industry and used car dealers have managed to get special exemptions for their interests written into proposed legislation.

More serious than the catering to the special interests, however, could be contemplated elimination or restriction of several FTC general powers. One such is the authority to bar unfair sales practices, such as unsubstantiated claims for product performance, which it has employed for four decades. Another provision would subject FTC actions to legislative veto by either house of Congress.

There may be something to the view that the FTC has been too exuberant in recent years, becoming, as The Wall Street Journal asserts in a characteristically hard-nosed editorial comment, "A law unto itself-literally lawmaker, prosecutor, judge and jury."

But there is also something to assertions that the proposed cure could turn out to be worse than the ailment. Congress certainly has the right and the legislative means to specify the powers of any federal agency it charters, and to call any to account if performance warrants it.

But the wisdom of substituting itself -- or part of itself -- for the agency in administrating those powers is questionable. The principle of the one-house veto could become a precedent to be extended to any number of other agencies with potentially chaotic results. Conflict between regulatory agencies and regulated interests is inescapable, and should these interests be encouraged to seek specific redress from Congress the latter would be writing for itself a role as a super-agency.

The tendency toward legislation through regulation may be justifiably criticized these days, but regulation through legislation is no more desirable.

A sign of the energy-conscious times:

Rustlers are thriving again in the Southwest, only they aren't interested in what's on the hoof but what's in the ground.

The rush to seek new oil sources plus the expense and short supply of drilling equipment has created a black market for stolen drill bits, pipes and other parts, The Wall Street Journal reports. Whole rigs are being dismantled and carted off.

Industry and law authorities are developing a special "branding" system for equipment to thwart thieves, but it's a sticky proposition.

Today's North-South hands are taken from a 1967 Bridge World magazine bidding contest. We have added the East-West hands ourselves.

South has no trouble at six notrump. At some stage of the proceedings he leads dummy's queen clubs and lets it ride to West's king. This gives him an easy 12 tricks.

Note the bidding. South's four-club bid tells North that South has some slam interest. It was made by both pairs in the bidding match as was North's four-heart bid and South's four-spade bid.

Then one North jumped to six spades. The other bid the same five spades we suggest, but South simply went on to six spades to get to the same inferior slam contract.

Whys is it inferior? Because even if made it counts 10 points less than notrump and the match was intended to reflect match point bidding.

Will a diamond lead defeat North's six-spade contract? Almost surely at the bridge table, but North can make it. He plays a low diamond from South. West takes his jack and makes a safe return. Now North cashes dummy's ace of clubs and runs the spades and hearts. On the last spade or heart, West must unguard his king of diamonds or chuck his king of clubs.

MR. AND MRS. GUY FLOYD
... married 50 years

Former Residents Note Golden Anniversary

Mrs. Giles Dalby, Mrs. Jerrel [redacted], both of Post, and Mrs. Ann Mauer of Conago Park, Calif., hosted a reception for their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Floyd on their 50th wedding anniversary Nov. 18 from 3 to 5 p.m. It was held in the home of Judge and Mrs. Giles Dalby.

Approximately 200 guests attended and were served from a table centered with 50 gold roses arranged in a brass container. The table featured a pair of Lalique swans, in a setting atop a mirror, which reflected the table settings along with the couple's three tiered cake.

Piano music was provided by Mrs. Ginger Carlisle and Mrs. Margaret Pilcher.

Floyd and El Dess Hester were married May 25, 1929 in Snyder. They moved to Post in 1945.

Mrs. Pilcher, Golda Thorpe and Mr. and Mrs. Pat Falls, teachers of the three Floyd children when they attended the Ira school, were visitors during the afternoon. Mrs. Floyd graduated from Snyder High School in 1929.

The couple has nine grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Guests registered from Snyder, Dallas, Houston, Rotan, Lubbock, Odessa, Midland, San Antonio, Amarillo, Perryton, Monahans, Colorado City, Ira, Big Spring, Lamesa, New Mexico, Florida and California.

When storing gasoline, keep the container where only an adult can reach it, advises Claudia Kerbel, a consumer information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

The smell of gasoline often intrigues children, she cautions.

Don't let their curiosity cause them or anyone else harm, Ms. Kerbel urges.

Allergy to sun

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR LAMB — I am 61 years old and I am allergic to the sun. My daughter wants me to come to Hawaii to live with her and I'm wondering if you know of something I can take or do to help me with this problem. I can tolerate the sun for a few minutes and that is all. I sure would appreciate it if you would help me with this. Thank you.

DEAR READER — Yes, there is such a thing as being allergic to the sun. It can cause hives. Technically, we call this solar urticaria. Even the specific lengths of the sun's rays that cause such reactions have been identified. It's understood to be an allergy. Individuals who have a severe form of this really should avoid the sun because it can even cause the person to collapse.

It can be treated. Antihistaminics sometimes help as they do with other allergens. And then you can use barrier creams on the surface of your skin. These will filter out the sun rays. I would like you to see either a dermatologist or allergist to discuss this problem with him. Some specialists in allergy think that hydroxychloroquine (Plaquenil) will protect some sensitive people who anticipate exposure to the sun.

There are a number of skin disorders that are caused or made worse by the sun. I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-10, Your Skin: Sun, Aging, Spots And Cancer. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Many people can profit from sun protection in the winter as well as summer to prevent skin aging.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My brother passed away from acute myelomonocytic leukemia. He died 10 days after the onset of his symptoms. I've made numerous inquiries to determine the approximate length of time that he had this condition prior to his symptoms. The opinions have varied from one year, eight months, three months or to the day the symptoms were detected.

I'd like your opinion on a more definite length of time. My brother was 72.

DEAR READER — Unfortunately, no one can give you a definite time. Untreated acute leukemia usually has a stormy course and ends in death in less than one year. Treatment in recent years has altered this picture in many instances.

You must remember that we do not know the exact cause of leukemia although there is a body of evidence that suggests certain forms of leukemia may be related to viral infections that alter basic cell reproductive mechanisms.

To make matters more complex, a chronic form of leukemia can change suddenly to an acute form. A person may live for years in relative comfort with no symptoms at all with chronic leukemia, then suddenly it changes to the acute form and the life expectancy may be very short indeed.

It's not unusual for a person to have leukemia, particularly the chronic form, and have no symptoms. The acute forms usually cause symptoms by affecting a certain organ or by causing a severe anemia, bleeding or what appears as a respiratory infection. When the doctor examines the patient for the symptoms, he finds out there's an underlying leukemia.

California Has Chavez Tied Up

SAN ANTONIO (AP)— There can be no major United Farm Workers Union effort to organize Texas farm laborers until the UFW completes numerous labor battles still being fought in California, says union leader Cesar Chavez.

"Once we get our battles consolidated in California, we can concentrate on Texas," the UFW president said here Monday in the first stop of a five-day swing through Texas.

"We can't be effective in two places. All of our resources now are committed to California. We've never been able to come down with all our might in Texas," he added in an interview.

Chavez, 52, said the UFW is engaged in seven strikes in California with 13 companies that have not signed union contracts. Chavez' trip to Texas is aimed at promoting the UFW's 11-month-old California lettuce strike.

Chavez' final stop will be Friday in San Juan, where he will inspect the labor situation among farm workers in the Rio Grande Valley.

Valley growers have headed off organizing efforts by the Texas UFW and the Texas Farm Workers Union. The UFW's most concerted effort was a major strike attempt in 1966 that ended in violence.

Antonio Orendain, once a Chavez lieutenant who split with the California UFW, formed the thus far ineffective TFW. Orendain's group has also failed in attempts to secure a state law guaranteeing the farm workers' right to collective bargaining.

When the powerful UFW is finally able to concentrate on Texas, Chavez said it would do so in direct competition with Orendain's group.

"It will make it more difficult for the organizations, but it will be good for the worker. The organizations will have to compete for the workers' loyalty and work harder to get the best contracts," said Chavez.

White House Gardeners War With Starlings

WASHINGTON (AP)— White House gardeners are launching their annual campaign against a foe with no political loyalties - starlings.

At dusk, the gardeners band wooden paddles together, accompanied by recordings of frightened birds blaring from loudspeakers. The clamorous ritual has been part of every administration since Eisenhower's. Thousands of starlings are attracted at this time of year by the shelter of trees on the north and south lawns. Chief White House horticulturist Irvin Williams of the National Park Service says the main problem is the plastering the birds leave behind: "There have been places where there's a layer three-quarters of an inch thick."

Parmesan Cheese People Having A Rough Season

By DENNIS REDMONT
Associated Press Writer

PARMA, Italy (AP)— It's been a rough season for Parmesan cheese makers. Competitors are marketing a successful imitation, consumers are rebelling because of rising prices and the "Cheese Gang" steals regularly from the cavernous cheese storerooms.

Scarcely a week goes by without a nighttime raid by trucks driven out of the fog shrouded plains surrounding Parma, police say.

The prize is Parmigiano Reggiano, commonly called Parmesan, the costly cheese which has tickled people's palates since Roman Days.

Because of the insatiable appetite of most Italians for grated cheese on their spaghetti, Parmesan -- fetching as much as $8 a pound -- has developed into a billion-dollar business in Italy.

Banking on that appetite, speculators buy up stocks of the cheese while it's still maturing. Then, after the mandatory maturation period of 18-24 months, the speculators cash in for huge profits.

Trying to beat the middlemen, imitators outside the circumscribed production area of Parma, Modena, Reggio Emilia and Mantua have created an inexpensive look-alike cheese called Grana Padana. It matures faster than Parmesan by using chemicals rather than the enzymes from the linings of calves' stomachs.

In the past two years, converted cheese factories in 27 provinces up and down the Italian boot have been churning out the new Grana.

But thieves are also after a piece of the curd, hijacking trailer trucks or rolling the wheels of cheese out of the depositories with the complicity of "insiders," police say.

One typical night raid occurred last month, at the end of the April-November Parmesan production season, when thieves stole a big milk rig as driver Bruno Grassi ducked into a roadside men's room.

They dumped the load of milk cartons, drove the truck past electronic surveillance into the Consorzio Agrario storeroom and loaded more than 300 wheels of Parmesan, each weighing 77 pounds, in a couple of hours.

Their haul was worth more than $100,000.

"The next day it probably was already on the grocery shelves, retailing at high prices," lamented Lorenzo Cattabiani, secretary of the Parmigiano Reggiano Association. "The product is as good as gold, and thieves always find fences for their loot."

More damaging than the weekly robberies has been a recent consumer rebellion against escalating Parmesan prices. Since 1974, retail prices have tripled from about $2.40 a pound to almost $8.

Many Italians switched from Parmesan to Grana, and as a result 45 percent of the 1978 production -- maturing for retail in 1980 -- lies unsold in the storerooms. Parmnesan thus earned the distinction of being one of the only food staples to drop in price.

The concern of the Parmese these days is how to get Italians and foreigners munching on Parmesan again.

For every way to use electricity in the kitchen, there's a way to use it more efficiently.

Keeping your heating and cooling costs down are the biggest ways to save electricity, but there are lots of little ways, too.

Your kitchen is a good place to start. Here are a few ways to save.

Use flat-bottomed pans. The flatter the pan the better its contact with the cooking unit. A tight-fitting lid on your pan will reduce cooking time.

Use less water. By cooking vegetables with the least amount of water possible, you'll improve their appearance and nutritive value, and you'll save electricity.

Reduce cooking time. Thaw meats before cooking them. This will save cooking time and energy.

Make efficient use of your oven's heat by cooking several foods at the same time.

Use your oven timer and keep the oven door closed. Opening the door unnecessarily causes heat loss and extended cooking time.

Get our free booklet, "Tips To Help You Use Electricity More Efficiently Throughout Your Home." Copies are available in our office or you can request one on the comment portion of your electric service bill.

She's Staying Home for Xmas

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading your column for years, and around holiday time someone always asks, "Should we go to HIS mother's or to MY mother's for Christmas dinner? And your answer is always, "Why not alternate?"

Abby, my husband and I struggled with that problem for years, and we resolved it according to your suggestion. Both sets of parents lived nearby, and it seemed the only fair thing to do. So for 22 years, we spent Thanksgiving and Christmas in parents' homes instead of our own.

It never dawned on us until this year — as our children are ready to strike out on their own — that we never developed our own holiday traditions. We always went to Grandma's for the holidays. She insisted on doing all the cooking herself — and then complained for months about how much work it was and how tired she got. When we, her daughters and daughters-in-law, asked if we could bring something for dinner, she wouldn't hear of it. When we brought food without asking her, she refused to serve it, so we finally gave up.

I realize now what a high price I've paid over the years for peace in the family. I wish I hadn't. Abby, please urge young marrieds to have their own holiday celebrations in their own homes. Suggest that they invite their parents and grandparents, who might even be relieved to be finally free of the burden of entertaining three generations.

Sign me . . .

"DOING MY OWN THING"

DEAR DOING: You make an excellent point. Your answer was better than mine.

DEAR ABBY: Last Christmas Eve, during my busy preparations for 18 dinner guests (and also during our meal), I was called to the phone three times and kept there from 20 to 30 minutes while the callers wished me a "Merry Christmas." Each said, "I decided to phone rather than send cards this year," then proceeded to bring me up to date on their health, families and activities!

I appreciate their thoughts, and realize that by placing such calls they probably filled an otherwise lonely Christmas Eve, but if they must save the expense of sending Christmas cards, why can't they wait until the holiday is over, and then phone with their annual accounts of joys and sorrows?

Am I the only one who feels such phone calls are impositions?

UNAPPRECIATIVE IN OREGON

DEAR UNAPPRECIATIVE: Probably not. But if it's inconvenient for you to take the call, say so. And ask if you may return the call when you're able to visit longer.

DEAR ABBY: Our employer used to give Christmas bonuses to all employees, based on their length of service.

In the last couple of years, he eliminated the holiday bonuses in favor of a Christmas party. Well, the only ones who attended these parties are the young, or those who want to act young. Most people drink too much, the music is deafening, and there is more food wasted than eaten.

Many of us here are not party-minded because of finances and inability to get sitters, and we would much rather have the money instead — whatever the amount.

So how about running this letter to ask the boss people — foremen, administrators, managers, etc. — to let the employees have a choice.

JOPLIN, MO.

DEAR JOPLIN: It seems fair to me. Bosses?

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.

NBC Gives It A Shot...

Hostage 'Interview' Turned Down By CBS

NEW YORK (AP)— While NBC News broadcast a question-and-answer session with a hostage at the U.S. Embassy in Iran, CBS News said it had turned down the opportunity for a similar "so-called interview."

"Two of the three U.S. networks, including this one, flatly rejected the proposition," said anchorman Walter Cronkite on the CBS Evening News.

ABC had no comment Monday night.

It was not known whether CBS had rejected the exact conditions accepted by NBC. NBC said it did not have to submit its questions in advance. CBS said "questions would have to be cleared by a student censor."

"The students holding the embassy are stepping up the use of the hostages to promote their cause," Cronkite said. "Over the weekend, they offered to the American networks a so-called interview with one of the hostages with some stringent conditions assuring their control of the presentation.

"The questions would have to be cleared by a student censor, a statement by one of the students must precede the interview, the broadcast would be packaged entirely by the Iranian television station," Cronkite said, describing the conditions rejected by CBS. "It could not be edited by the network and the recording had to be in prime time."

In a news release about the broadcast from Iran, NBC said "arrangements for this interview were concluded over the weekend in discussions between NBC News and the students at the embassy."

NBC said all three networks -- NBC, CBS and ABC -- had rejected two proposals from the students by last Sunday and said at that point, "NBC News went back to the students with its own proposal, which resulted in the interview to be seen tonight (Monday).

NBC agreed to carry the session in its entirety, to include a statement from the students, and to telecast it in prime time. It was taped in the embassy by Iranian cameramen, NBC said, at about 7 a.m. Monday EST.

NBC aired part of the interview on its Nightly News, and the entire session beginning at about 9:45 p.m. EST.

Little Big Horn Lives...

Supreme Court Settling Dispute Custer Sparked

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)-A legal controversy sparked by Custer's last stand at the Little Big Horn 103 years ago will be settled by the Supreme Court.

The justices agreed Monday to decide whether the Sioux Indian Nation is owed more than $100 million for land taken from it in 1877 by a Congress angered by Custer's defeat and death the year before.

The U.S. Court of Claims, in awarding its largest judgment ever on June 13, said the Sioux are entitled to the money for 7.3 million acres of South Dakota's Black Hills country.

Lawyers said at that time that the award would benefit about 60,000 Sioux.

Government lawyers argue, however, that the Indian nation is entitled to only $17.5 million.

At issue is whether the federal government must pay 102 years worth of interest at 5 percent a year on top of the $17.5 million value of the taken land. As of June, the still-growing interest was nearly $90 million.

The case likely will be argued next spring and decided before the end of the current court term in June.

In an 1868 treaty, the United States promised that a huge portion of South Dakota lands, including the 7.3 million Black Hills acres, would be for the "absolute and undisturbed use and occupation of the Indians."

But in 1874, then Lt. Col. George Armstrong Custer discovered substantial amounts of gold in the Black Hills. The discovery sent white prospectors, miners and settlers flocking onto the Sioux's treaty land.

After President U.S. Grant secretly ordered the Army to turn its back on the interlopers, fighting broke out. It culminated in Custer's defeat and death in the Battle of Little Big Horn on June 25, 1876.

In other matters Monday, the justices took these actions before leaving the bench for a four-week holiday recess:

-Did not take up a challenge to the imminent end of a mutual defense treaty with Taiwan. The treaty will end on Jan. 1 under a decision by President Carter, and a group of congressional conservatives led by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., wanted the high court to hear their arguments that Carter has no right to end the treaty without congressional consent.

Ending the treaty with Taiwan was part of an agreement whereby the United States and the People's Republic of China established diplomatic relations.

-Agreed to consider weakening an after-the-fact protection against illegal police searches.

-Agreed to decide what procedural steps the federal government must take when it sues an employer on behalf of all employees potentially victimized by illegal discrimination. The court's eventual ruling in a California case could significantly affect how well the government enforces anti-bias laws.

RCA Satellite Lost In Space

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Satcom III, a one-ton, $20 million RCA Corp. communications satellite, is lost in space after technicians fired an engine meant to send the craft into permanent orbit.

"We lost the satellite and haven't found it yet," said John Williamson, a spokesman for Americom, an RCA subsidiary, in New Jersey.

The television relay satellite disappeared from Americom's New Jersey tracking screens shortly after a kick motor switched on Monday afternoon, Williamson said.

"We don't know what happened to it," he said. "We hope it will come out OK. But there is certainly cause for dismay."

Williamson said if the satellite were to fall to earth, it would burn up in the atmosphere before reaching the ground.

Sources close to the RCA project told the newspaper TODAY in Cocoa, Fla., "either it blew up or it's flying somewhere out in the universe." One source said the satellite probably blew up because it would have remained on tracking screens longer had it been propelled into outer space, the newspaper reported.

Satcom III was launched from Cape Canaveral Thursday night by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration under a contract with RCA. James Lacy, public information officer at a NASA tracking station in Maryland, said the craft went into a temporary looping orbit, and NASA tracked it for two hours before turning the job over to RCA.

"I don't remember ever losing a satellite under these conditions," said Lacy.

Williamson said the kick motor was to have sent the satellite into a permanent orbit 22,300 miles above the Pacific, midway between Hawaii and California.

The North American Air Defense Command in Colorado Springs joined in the search for the box-like satellite measuring about 5 feet by 4 feet by 4 feet, Capt. Mary Noeller, public information officer for NORAD, said the search was being conducted by the agency's Worldwide Space Detection and Tracking system.

RCA also has asked NASA, Western Union, Comsat General Corp. and Telesat of Canada for help.

Williamson said the total cost of the mission was $50 million, including the space craft itself, insurance and launching costs.

Before the launch, RCA officials said they paid $5.3 million for a 90-day insurance policy on the mission. The satellite's 24 channels were to be leased for $800,000 a year to uninsured users and $1.2 million a year for insured users, officials said.

Dog Poisoning Reported Here

A reported dog poisoning and a traffic accident were investigated Monday by police.

Rita Thompson, 812 32nd St., told officer Greg Patterson that her two Doberman dogs had been poisoned. The dogs were valued at $200.

The traffic accident was worked by Don Cheek at 9:50 a.m. yesterday at the parking lot of Western Texas College. It involved a parked 1978 Buick owned by Kathleen Genuchi and a vehicle which left the scene.

Museum Showing Traveling Exhibit

A traveling exhibit made up of prints by Charles Harper is currently being featured in the Scurry County Museum at Western Texas College.

Harper, who resides in Cincinnati, Ohio, is known for his unusual technique of interpreting wildlife. The exhibit in the Scurry County Museum is one of two displays assembled by the national Park Service featuring Harper's works.

The Harper exhibit was hung in the lobby of Harpers Ferry Center at Harpers Ferry, West Virginia, before being made available as a traveling exhibit. Many inquiries were received there about purchasing prints, and the National Park Service says prints may be ordered from Framehouse Gallery, Inc. 110 East Market Street, Louisville, KY 40202. The prints are often difficult to get because there is a waiting list of people wanting to buy them, the Park Service says, so delivery on mail orders may be slow.

The new exhibit may be seen in the museum during regular hours, 9 a.m. to 12 noon and 1-5 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 9-12 and 1-4 on Fridays and 1-5 p.m. on Sundays. There is no admission charge.

The museum will be closed from noon on Dec. 21 until Jan. 2 for the mid-winter vacation to be observed by all campus buildings.

Campbell Gains 100 Yards As...

Oilers Ease Past Pittsburgh

HOUSTON (AP)-The Houston Oilers, following sage advice, declined to spit into the wind or step on Superman's cape Monday night.

Having come within one second of defeating the world champion Pittsburgh Steelers, Oiler quarterback Dan Pastorini politely fell on the ball for the final play of the game at the Steeler one yard line and the Oilers trotted into the dressing room with a 20-17 victory.

The Oilers had better sense and sportsmanship than to rub the Steelers noses in the Astroturf.

"Pittsburgh is too good a team to rub their noses in a loss," Oiler Coach Bum Phillips said.

"If the touchdown would have made a difference in the division championship, we could have scored," Pastorini said. "We weren't trying to rub their faces in it."

The Oilers had accomplished their goal. They kept the Steelers from clinching their sixth straight American Football conference Central Division championship and kept alive their own chances of claiming a title for the first time since 1967.

"After the way we lost to them the first time we played this year we had to be a little psyched up," Pastorini said. "So we just went out and got a little sweet revenge."

The Oilers, who lost to the Steelers 34-5 in last season's AFC championship game and 38-7 in their first meeting this season, clearly were ready for the challenge this game.

Houston held the Steelers to four first downs and took a 7-0 halftime lead on a 25-yard pass from pastorini to Ken Burrough. They went ahead 13-3 on field goals of 24 yards and 34 yards by Toni Fritsch in the third and fourth quarters.

The record crowd of 55,293 in the Astrodome and a national television audience kept waiting for the sleeping giant Steelers to wake up and they finally did.

Matt Bahr kicked a 37 yard field goal in the third quarter and Lynn Swann ran nine yards for a touchdown on an end around play that narrowed the Oiler led to 13-10.

But the Oilers didn't fold. Rob Carpenter ran four yards with 2:10 to play to boost the lead to 20-10 for what proved to be the winning margin.

Pittsburgh quarterback Terry Bradshaw whipped the Steelers to the game's final touchdown with a 34-yard bomb to John Stallworth with 1:18 left in the game. But the Steelers tried an on-sides kick that found its way to Oiler tight end Mike Barber.

"They took the football and ran it down our throats for five minutes and scored a touchdown," Steeler defensive tackle Joe Greene said of Carpenter's touchdown. "That was as disappointing as anything that happened and they did it the way they weren't supposed to."

The Oilers weren't supposed to be able to run on the Steelers but that's where Oiler running back Earl Campbell came into the picture with 109 yards on 33 carries, his first 100-yard performance ever against the Steelers.

Pardee Likes Idea Of Final Title Tilt

WASHINGTON (AP)—Coach Jack Pardee likes the idea of having the NFC East title decided on the final weekend of the season in a game between arch-rivals Washington and Dallas.

Asked for his thoughts on the game Monday, the Redskins coach replied: "Before the season no one had any reason to think that the 16th week of the season would determine our divisional winner, whether ourselves or Dallas.

"I thought we would have a good shot at making the playoffs but I really didn't think anybody could beat them (for the division title) with Dallas being a Super Bowl team last year. I thought they would have the division wrapped up by now.

"But the way it's falling, with them having problems, and us playing a little better than most people thought, it makes it a little bigger and better.

"We still have our destiny in our hands," he said. "It's ours if we're good enough."

The Redskins, Cowboys and Philadelphia, each with 10-5 records, are in a three-way tie for National Football Conference East Division title but only Dallas and the Eagles have been assured at least a wild card playoff berth. Because of the rules, the winner of the Dallas-Washington game will be declared the division champion, no matter what Philadelphia does against Houston.

Several things can happen to Washington in Dallas, ranging from winning the division title to being eliminated from post-season play.

"We'll have a good week," said Pardee. "The emotional level of the team has been pretty good all along."

Tigers Bout Lee Tonight

MIDLAND--Coach George Byerly's Tiger varsity team will be looking to thump Midland Lee's Bulldogs for the second time this season when the two meet 8 p.m. here tonight.

The Tigers, now 7-2 for the season, drilled the 'Dogs 71-56 in an earlier meeting in Snyder. Tim Fisher was the leading point man for Lee, scoring 18 points, while Tim Walker added 12.

Byerly will be counting on the quickness and floor leadership of seniors Kyle Short and Thomas Selmon, and the all-around abilities of Eric Arnold, Kris Seale, Brad Richardson, Dayton Robertson, Barry Blackmon, Brent Taylor, Mark Preston and Keith McClain - a unit which prides itself on defense - to overcome the Bulldogs again.

An improving board game helped the Tigers win the 25th annual Canyon Reef Tournament last weekend. Offensively, Richardson leads the Cat scoring, but Short, Seale, Arnold and Blackmon are close behind, giving Snyder a well-balanced threat.

The triple-header here tips off at 4:15 with sophomore action, and will be followed by a junior varsity game at 6:15 before the varsities clash. Lee won the sophomore game 87-41 and the JV tilt 69-45 at last meeting.

Cats Win One, Lose Another

Snyder eighth grade boys teams split with Sweetwater here in cage contests.

Snyder Gold, playing Sweetwater B team won 53-35, while the local Black squad lost to the Pony A group, 40-27.

James Melott led the Gold team with 18, followed by Robert Cobb with 12, Jimmy Cain with 9, Johnny Martinez 8, Fred Fleming 4 and Ernest Salazar 2.

For Snyder Black, Jerry Comstock had 6 points while Tim Derryberry, Abey Munoz and Kyle Freeman basketed 4 each and Carlos Carrisales, Chris Wiman, Marcus McGlouthin and John Murphy had 2 each.

Thursday, the groups travel to Sweetwater for tournament play. Snyder Gold plays Sweetwater at 1:15 p.m. while the Black team takes on Big Spring at 6:30.

Jazz Begins To Swing

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) —Utah Jazz Coach Tom Nissalke says his team has "more overall balance" now than it did at the start of the season.

To prove it, he points with pride to his 5-2 record since some recent key personnel adjustments, including Monday night's 100-93 triumph over Golden State.

The game was the only National Basketball Association regular-season contest of the night. In the Hall of Fame Game in Springfield, Mass., the Kansas City Kings edged the Atlanta Hawks 100-98.

Winning five of seven games may not sound impressive, but it's a considerable improvement for the Jazz, which lost 19 of its first 21 and is now 7-21.

The Jazz is still in last place in the NBA's Midwest Division, but Monday's victory, the third straight for Utah, indicates there may be brighter days ahead for Nissalke and his crew.

Three recently acquired players, Terry Furlow, Mack Calvin and Tom Boswell, were key factors in Monday's victory, coming off the bench to score 16, 11 and 10 point respectively.

But the spotlight belonged once again to Utah's Adrian Dantley, who drove, twisted and jumped his way to 39 points to lead all scorers.

Wayne Cooper was the top point producer for Golden State, with 22 points. He had help from John Lucas, who finished with 19, and 7-foot Robert Parish, who had 17.

After being down 49-47 at the half, despite a 25-point first-half show by Dantley, the Jazz came back to move ahead 70-68 after three quarters.

Ira Divides With Hobbs

IRA--Ira junior high boys team, led by Danny Denson's 12 points and 9 from Jay Clark, dumped Hobbs 42-17 last evening.

Hobbs, whose Doug Anderle had 15 points in the game, paid the Bulldogs back in the girls game however, as the Panthers won, 29-20.

Irma Sanchez led Ira with 10 points. D. Alaniz had 12 and S. Anderle had 10 for Hobbs.

Hall of Fame righthander Bob Feller never pitched in the minor leagues and had only one losing season in his long major league career.

Defeat Clarendon...

Dusters Wild In 2nd Half

CLARENDON — Last night's game may have been just what the doctor ordered, at least from Joe Cushing's point of view. His Western Texas College Dusters, suffering nagging injuries for a couple of weeks now, easily handled Clarendon College here, 76-47.

The Duster coach relied on good help from the bench to overcome the Bulldogs and improve WTC's conference record to 2-1. Every member of the team except Bonnie Bludworth scored for the Duster team. Bludworth, a freshman, has been out for several weeks with back problems, and may be out from some time to come, according to the coach.

Linda Holubec led the balanced scoring attack with 12 points, followed closely by Katie Fisher with 11, Jennifer Gregg with 10, Liz Hooper and Ginger Peden with 8 each and Kathy Rigsby and Joyce Plagens with 6 each. Tonya Ivie, Stella Bickley, Delbra Ray, Cindy Boone and Jenni Anderson all put points on the board.

Western Texas led only 33-27 at halftime, but poured on the heat in the second 20-minute period to quickly determine the outcome of the game.

"We had no real concentration in the first half offensively," said Cushing. "Defensively we played well, but we were not coming down and working the ball on offense."

The coach attributed the slow start, in part, to last week's "barn-burners" with Howard College and Odessa College, both tough games with WJCAC powerhouses.

"In the second half we started doing the things we should have been all along. We had people come off the bench for us and play well," said the coach, who praised the efforts of Holubec, Gregg, Fisher, Peden, Boone and others. "All in all everybody played real well in the second half, on both ends of the floor."

The Dusters held Clarendon to only 16 field goals (16 of 56 for .29 percent), led by Pearly Butler with 15 points and Lisa Lamb with 10.

Getting in shape for the second half of the season is what concerns the Duster coach now, though two non-conference games remain on the schedule before the Christmas break.

"We need to get over all these nagging injuries we've been having, and the break should give us a chance to do that," he explained. "They've kept us from going 100 percent, and I sympathize with the girls. I'm not alibing...but our players are not full speed right now."

The Dusters have been plagued with minor but painful injuries or illnesses such as twisted or sprained knees and ankles, an abcessed tooth, bruised arm and other ailments which have hampered the abilities of as many as five or six individuals in some games this season.

Meanwhile, the Dusters, 11-3, will travel to Ranger Junior College on Friday to meet the Rangerettes aet 6 p.m. A Dec. 17 game in Plainview with Wayland JV is also on the schedule.

Westerners Wrap Up Victory No. 13

CLARENDON - Western Texas College's Westerners have a rude awakening for teams that put the game in an icebox. They'll turn on the defroster.

That's exactly what happened here last night, as Western Texas combined a total team effort to warm Clarendon College's four-corners type offense and walk away with an 86-49 victory.

The Westerners, who conclude the 1979 season in Snyder on Thursday against New Mexico Junior College, are now 13-0 on the season and 4-0 in Western JC Athletic Conference play.

"The kids played a super basketball game," said an elated Coach Nolan Richardson. "Clarendon went into a stall type offense, four corners, and our kids did the job."

Western Texas immediately countered with a pressing game and Clarendon's Bulldogs began to come apart at the seams. Using a unique combination of strong press and patience, the Westerners simply wore the 'Dogs down.

"We kept after them the whole ballgame and made them play both ends of the floor, not just on defense. It was a total team effort both offensively and defensively on our part."

Offensively, a dozen Westerners put points on the board, led by Freddie Davis and Paul Pressey with 14 each, Franklin Bennett with 12 and Greg Stewart with 7.

Ralph Scott led the Bulldogs with 18. Lindsey Lewis scored 11.

"The pattern has been set for a lot of teams," said Richardson, who pointed out that Odessa College tried the same tactics against WTC last Monday. The Westerners also won that game.

"I think we'll see a lot more of it. A team is going to have to play us however they can, the best way that they can. I think maybe three teams in the conference will try to run with us. The rest I expect will try and control the tempo of the game. They'll slow it down, try to put it in the icebox. We put a defroster on it last night," he grinned.

WTC 43-42 --86
Clarendon 25-24 --49
WTC--Davis 7-0-14; Patterson 2-0-4; Stewart 2-3-7; Alvarado 1-0-2; Bennett 6-0-12; Portee 3-2-8; Spradling 1-0-2; Vantress 2-0-4; Brown 6-1-13; Pressey 7-0-14; Denis 2-0-4; Price 1-0-2. Totals 40-6-86.

New TV Gadget Goes Beyond Neilsen Ratings

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP)— In Seattle, Joe Tubejock is home after a long and trying day. He flops on the couch, kicks off his shoes and flips on his TV set. Junk. He switches channels. Garbage everywhere.

A smile comes to Joe's face. He reaches to a mysterious box and punches a button. "Zap!" The offensive program — sound and picture — disappears from Joe's set.

Roger Percy, son of Illinois Sen. Charles Percy, has developed a sophisticated television ratings operation that goes far beyond Nielsen ratings. It records not only how many people watched a program, which is as far as Nielsen carries the matter, but viewer attitudes, as well.

A top-rated Nielsen program, for example, has earned that status because more people had their sets tuned into that show than to other shows.

Nielsen ratings do not say whether viewers thought the thing was a piece of junk, or whether viewers were even paying attention.

Percy's system can do what Nielsen does, plus more. It works this way:

About 200 homes in the Seattle area are equipped with the R.D. Percy Co.'s VoxBox, which automatically records what program viewers are watching as soon as they turn on their sets, much the way the Nielsen meters do. But the VoxBox is equipped with 10 buttons, which carry such labels as, "Excellent," "Informative," "Credible," "Funny," "Unbelievable," "Dumb" and "Zap."

The information is fed to the Percy Co.'s computers, where it is compiled and deciphered.

Percy's 13 clients, who are charged from $1,000 to $10,000 a month for the service, include mostly advertising accounts, such as Sears and Weyerhauser, and several ad agencies. Only recently has Percy approached the networks with his programming by-product.

The networks are understandably reluctant to adopt a qualitative rating system such as Percy's. The Nielsen system has served networks well. The networks' only concern for ratings is letting an advertiser know how many homes his commercial will reach with a particular program, from which advertising rates are set.

Thus was born the "least objectionable product" school of television programming. If your program is less crummy than the other guy's, viewers will escape to your show. A network doesn't want to know that viewers hate a particular show but are watching it anyway because it's less objectionable than the stuff on the other networks.

Students Of Jane Womack In Recital

Voice students of Jane Womack at Western Texas College will be presented in a recital at 7 o'clock this evening in the Fine Arts Theatre on the campus.

The public is invited to attend and there is no admission charge.

Students in the recital will be Rocky Youngblood, Kathy Ward, Freddie Quiros, Lynn Wimmer, Gary Miller and Sheryl Burk, all of Snyder, and Noel Nease of Abilene.

Voice and piano students presented in a recital this afternoon were Carolyn Gree, and Lana Muncy of Marynoal, Claire MacGarrigle of Fluvanna, and Peggy Highfield, Dorothy Ratliff and Jan McCathern of Snyder.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Ricky E. Williams of West 37th are parents of a baby girl, Misty Jane, weighing 7 lbs. 1½ ozs. She was born Dec. 10, 11:08 a.m. at the Malone-Hogan Hospital, Big Spring. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Dwayne Featherston and Mr. and Mrs. G.B. Williams, all of Snyder.

Cotton

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures No. 2 were lower at midday dealings today.

The average price for strict low middling 1 1-16 inch spot cotton declined 20 points to 64.45 cents a pound Monday for the ten leading markets, according to the New York Cotton Exchange.

Midday prices were unchanged to $1.05 a bale lower than the previous close. Mar 70.59, and May 71.92 July 73.28.

staging playoff football games is being made in connection with a study of policies in several other towns that have established rental fees for such activities. Fees of $200 per game when striping of the field is required and $150 per game when striping is not required have been suggested here.

A five-year plan for special education services for the handicapped will be presented for adoption. This is required by the Texas Education Agency.

Service Pins Are Awarded

Numerous service awards pins were presented during an awards ceremony and banquet put on by D.M. Cogdell Memorial Hospital Friday night.

Receiving a 25-year pin was Virgil Walton. Twenty-year pins went to Mildred Baze, Carolina Wilkinson, and Pearl Schwartz.

Fifteen-year pins were awarded to Kathryn Hanks, Maggie Barnes, Nova James, Clara Rhodes, Bula Richardson, and Gaynelle Greene.

Recieving 10-year service pins were Sarah Klein, Evelyn Durham, and Wanda Rinehart. Five-year pins went to Abelia Espinosa, Bobbie Wheelus, Icy Foree, Helen Robinson, Sadie Skains, and Edith Crady.

FARM BUREAU CONVENTION-Attending the Farm Bureau convention in McAllen were these Scurry County delegates. Beginning from left are Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Merritt, Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Pate, Mr. and Mrs. F.J. Rosson, Mr. and Mrs. C.D. Gray, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Royce Summers and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Daugherty.

County's Farm Bureau Leaders Attend Meet

Scurry County Farm Bureau leaders and members have returned from the Texas Farm Bureau convention in McAllen where 1980 state policies and recommendations on national policies were adopted.

Twelve voting delegates (pictured above) this county attended the organization's 46th annual meeting Dec. 2-5.

Policies to guide the state's largest organization on the state level next year were adopted by more than 1,100 voting delegates from 213 organized counties. Also approved were recommendations on national policies. These will be forwarded to the American Farm Bureau Federation annual meeting Jan. 6-10, 1980, in Phoenix, Ariz.

Speaker at the McAllen convention included TFB President Carrol Chaloupka of Dalhart; U.S. Congressman Kida de la Garza of Mission; Texas House Speaker Bill Clayton, Springlake; Warren Newberry, Waco, TFB executive director; and S.M. True Jr., Plainview, TFB secretary-treasurer.

The business session covered the final day and a half of the meeting. The last order of business was the election of directors and the president. Re-elected as president for 1980 was Carrol Chaloupka of Dalhart.

Kicked Out Of Carter's Sunday Class

WASHINGTON (AP)—A man who claims God has told him how to resolve the Iranian crisis was escorted out of President Carter's Sunday school class after shouting at the president to "be a leader."

After the man was led outside the First Baptist Church, he distributed leaflets identifying him as Edwin Tiemann of Tulsa, Okla. His leaflets urged that Iran be given 72 hours to release 50 American hostages "or else."

County leaders also attended a number of special conferences while at the convention. Conferences included, energy, FB services, animal health, wheat and feed grains, cotton, rice, research and education, farm labor, livestock, water peanuts and oil seeds and dairy.

Youth events winners included the 1980 Queen Miss Tracy Syma of Sinton, and Miss Beverly Carothers, Miss Kay Collier, and Stephen Schwartz, a trio from Goldwaithe, were winners of the Talent Find.

Iranians On Hunger Strike Get Taste Of Local Sentiment

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—Iranian students who have launched a hunger strike on the steps of City Hall are getting a taste of local sentiment on the Iranian crisis, often in the form of obscene comments from passersby.

The five San Antonio College students began the hunger strike Monday to protest the presence of the deposed shah at nearby Lackland Air Force Base.

Spokesman Mohsen Towliat said they also are protesting the city's refusal to issue a parade permit for a rally that had been planned for last Friday near Lackland.

Several persons who walked past the SAC students stopped just long enough to fling an obscenity or two at the protestors.

"Someone ought to shoot those SOBs," said one man.

A woman in a car stopped and made a common obscene gesture at the students.

Police officers kept a wary eye on the situation.

The students merely sat silently with their anti-shah signs and a poster of new Iranian ruler Ayatollah Khomeini. They took a prayer break at 1 p.m., chanting and bowing to the East in Islamic tradition.

Towliat, 22, said, "This (the hunger strike) is the only way we can express our opinion of what is going on. We'll do it as long as we can survive."

As the students dodged insults and intermittent raindrops, the former monarch spent a quiet ninth day at Lackland. He is scheduled at the base for an indefinite stay while American diplomats try to find him a home.

During the early hours of the hunger strike, one white-haired woman stopped on the stairs to challenge Towliat and the others.

"Do you think if I was in Iran they would allow me to sit on the steps of your city hall and do what you're doing?" asked the unidentified woman.

"Yes," responded Towliat.

"No," the woman fired back.

"An American would be killed for doing what you're doing. That's the kind of country your country is under that ruler Khomeini."

The five students are missing classes in order the pursue the protest. Associate Dean Earl Wright said the students could face expulsion if they miss classes for three weeks. If expelled, their visas could be canceled.

The hunger strike is one of the few Iran-related protests to develop since the shah's Dec. 2 arrival. Air Force officials installed extra security precautions for the weekend, when Lackland and nearby Kelly Air Force Base were almost deserted.

The extra precautions - including barbed wire and floodlights—remained in use Monday at Kelly, but an extra lane of traffic was opened to allow the 17,500 civilian employees to get onto the bases.

Furniture Mart's Lease Loss Is Lucky Break For Shoppers

If you've been waiting for a lucky break to come along and make your Christmas shopping easier on you and your pocketbook, you're in luck.

The Furniture Mart at 1012 25th St., across from the Shack, has lost their lease and must sell all present stock by January 1.

Everything in the store is marked from 10-50 percent off. Many items are marked at cost, and make great Christmas gifts!

Jerry Cline, owner, can make this Christmas easier for you with one-half off the cost of top quality living room suites in a variety of styles and colors, including florals, plaids, prints, etc.

Sofa beds, regularly $600-$700, are now as low as $336, and all bedroom suites are one-half off.

A waterbed is an excellent Christmas gift, and an inexpensive one at The Furniture Mart. Jerry has one complete waterbed and one waterbed without a heater for 50 percent off.

A wide selection of chairs, all wood rockers, coffee tables, and end tables, and dinettes have also been drastically reduced.

SELLING OUT--Mary Cline and Sue Franklin show some of the furniture at The Furniture Mart which must be sold. The store located at 1012 25th lost its lease and must sell all present stock by Jan. (SDN Staff Photo)

Only one or two headboards are left, so Jerry has marked them down to cost. You'll also find lamps marked at cost, and if you hurry, he has one stereo that he'll let go at cost.

All wood night stands, regularly $120-$130 are now only $50 each.

You won't believe the buys you'll find at The Furniture Mart between now and Jan. 1. All stock must absolutely be sold and it couldn't have happened at a better time for Snyder Christmas shoppers.

Jerry isn't taking trade-ins during the sale, but he adds that Sue Franklin, store manager, has the option of offering even better prices than the advertised discounts.

Carpet squares are abundant at the Furniture Mart and you can't beat a gift of carpeting for Christmas. The small squares are 50 cents and the large ones $1.

Be watching for The Furniture Mart's reopening at a new location after the first of the year. Until then you can visit at his new discount gas station at 2411 25th St.

Besides discount gas, Jerry's Sparkle Shop can offer car washes, oil changes, engine cleaning and painting, and winterizing cars.

Stop by to see him at The Furniture Mart for some great Christmas buys, then go by the Sparkle Shop for some discount gas and service for your car.

RENT-A-ROOTER—The newest rental offering of Norman Clement at U-Rent-Em is a Rent-a-Rooter. Clean out your sewer lines yourself and save the expense of a plumber. (SDN Staff Photo)

FREE CARE PACKAGE-George Lowe at U-Rent-Em shows the Frontier chainsaw, which comes with a free care package including 2½ gallon gas can, 6-pack of 2-cycle engine oil, 12 oz. can of 2+4 fuel conditioner, and ½ inch paint brush for easy clean up. (SDN Staff Photo)

U-Rent-Em Handy Service Can Help Save On Plumbing Bills

Saving money is on everyone's mind these days and U-Rent-Em, located at 3403 College Ave., can certainly do their part in helping you out.

You can now Rent-A-Rooter and take care of all those plumbing needs yourself. Electrically powered Rent-A-Rooters are also available to clear out roots from your sewer line.

So next time you have a problem with your plumbing--don't call a plumber--call U-Rent-Em and check out their new Rent-A-Rooter Center.

Is Christmas presenting a different kind of problem?

For those little "guys" on your list U-Rent-Em has a large assortment of steel U-Haul toys.

How about a Frontier chain saw for that man of your list? The Frontier is the finest chain saw in it's class. At 7.5 pounds in weight you can work all day with little fatigue. Electronic ignition makes for a fast, reliable start everytime, plus many more convenient features. To top off this great Christmas gift they are also offering a $15.95 value free with each purchase of their frontier chain saw.

U-Rent-Em is the warranty dealer for Homelite chainsaws and can get you any size of chainsaw, water pump, or generator you might want.

If you need something sharpened, which is much cheaper than replacing it, U-Rent-Em can do it. They sharpen steel and carbide saws, scissors, lawnmower blades, router bits, hole saws, knives and planer blades.

The Robo Car Wash is also a part of U-Rent-Em and offers a free wash with any fill-up of 15 gallons or more. Or if you would rather wash your car yourself, bays are available.

Roll-a-way bed rental, and Steamex carpet cleaners are just part of the diverse line of rental equipment available at your U-Rent-Em.

If you need to rent, or something repaired or to buy, come by and see George Lowe or Norman Clement at U-Rent-Em.
