Elections draw light turnout

Voter turnout was low in Colorado City and Mitchell County Hospital District elections Saturday.

Incumbents prevailed in both races except for one city council position where Terrilyn Faye Ross defeated Patrick Parker 44 to 28 for the district 6 seat.

Ross said she was pacing the floor Saturday evening awaiting the election returns which didn't come in until 10 p.m.

The hospital lab technician who works at the TDCJ Wallace Unit campaigned hard, going door to door to visit people in her district.

"I told them I would be their spokesman," she said. "They're depending on me to represent me."

In the two other district seats up for election this year, district 3 incumbent Gary Redwine defeated Jim Petty 31 to 24 and district 4 incumbent A. W. Rowe defeated his two challengers, Leslie Scott and Valerie Redwine.

Rowe received 19 votes; Scott received 17 and Redwine 12 votes. The close race did not require a run-off election because the city charter specifies a winner as the candidate with the greatest number of votes.

Returns for the hospital district race came in around 8 p.m. with all three incumbent hospital board of directors being re-elected.

Board member Dale Geiger received the most number of votes, a total of 217. In the days before the election Geiger was outspoken at a hospital board meeting, questioning hospital policies and practices on awarding raises to Mitchell County Hospital District employees.

Incumbent Vergil Stone received 216 votes and Fred Thompson, board president, received 201 votes. Newcomers David Alvarez and Tom Kelly received 180 and 139 votes respectively.

Celebration draws 500 in attendance

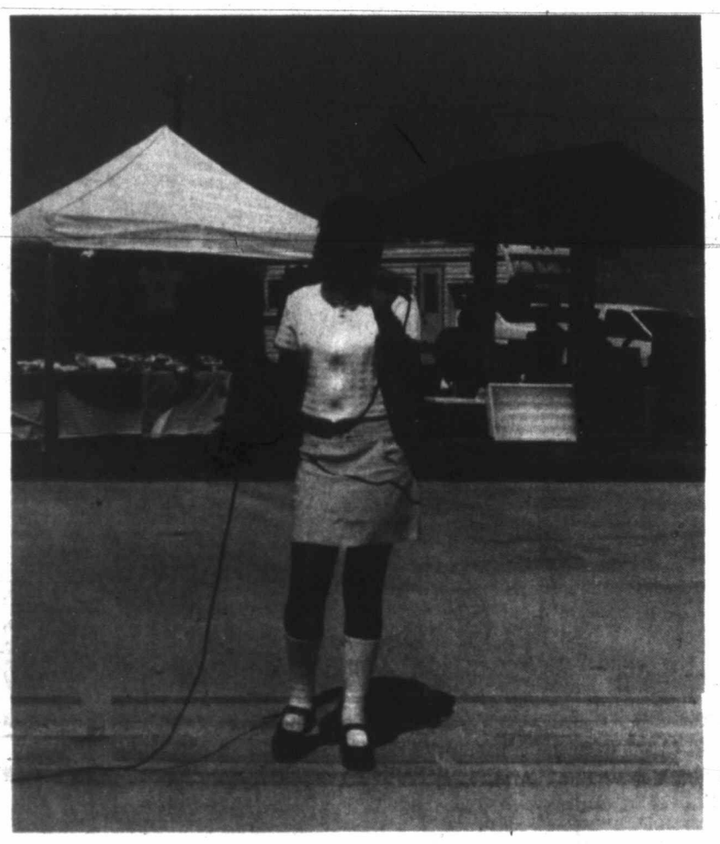

"It was another successful Cinco de Mayo celebration in Colorado City," said Santos Reyes, Cinco de Mayo committee director.

An estimated 500 people took part in the festivities held at Lake Colorado City Saturday. Those who attended enjoyed a variety of music and entertainment throughout the day and evening despite unseasonably hot weather.

Stephanie Ramos was the first place winner of the celebration's annual talent show. Brother and sister Ricky and Camille Molina took the second place prize in the show.

Plans are underway for next year's celebration. Organizers are considering expanding the number of days from one to two days to accommodate the larger- than-ever celebration planned for 1997. A cultural exchange effort is underway with Mexico to bring special entertainment to Colorado City for next year's celebration.

YOUNG SINGER STEPHANIE RAMOS won first place in the Cinco de Mayo Talent Show Saturday at Lake Colorado City State Park. She won a $100 savings bond. Ricky and Camille Molina, also singers, won second place. They received a $50 savings bond.

Record stands by story

By EUNICE FISHER, Editor

At last Friday's Noon Lions Club meeting, Hospital Administrator Wendell Alford handed out a letter in which he was critical of a story that appeared in Thursday's Record (May 2, 1996 edition) pertaining to employee salaries at the Mitchell County Hospital.

Alford said in the letter, "The Colorado City Record published an article that they do not know to be accurate and acted on information that had not been substantiated."

The Record stands behind the story. It was an account of the hospital board meeting—period. It summarized what happened and what was said at the volatile meeting. Anyone who was present as well as tape recordings made during the meeting will verify that it was an accurate account.

In the article, the newspaper performed two functions—to inform citizens so they can participate in democratic decision-making and to provide a forum for a wide range of views.

The article accurately and fairly presented both sides of the conflict that occurred in the meeting. The account gave both the hospital administrator's position and the board member's position without judgment or bias for either side.

The board member, Dale Geiger, gave a handout to everyone present at the meeting containing figures he had gathered from hospital records on raises. An excerpt from the figures in the handout was in the article, since it was an important part of Geiger's opposition to the policy. There was no attempt by me, the reporter, to interpret or analyze those figures for readers.

Mr. Alford's response was presented as well, with as much space given to his position and what he said as there was to Mr. Geiger's. As much time, care and thought went into relating the view Alford expressed in the meeting as was given to Geiger.

The story showed that Alford provided data to reinforce his position that hospital salaries were comparable to others around the state, despite the fact that the Record was not provided with a copy of the material, as usual.

The letter also said that the Record had "suggested that pay raises are being withheld from some employees." The story didn't suggest anything. It quoted Geiger saying that he didn't feel that raises were given fairly.

Anyone who reads the story will see that the story did not judge one view or the other but simply presented both sides.

Attacking the messenger rather than the message throws up a smokescreen, diverting attention away from addressing an issue and making it impossible to resolve differences of opinion.

When there's conflict or differing viewpoints on an issue, the newspaper doesn't try to persuade the reader that the truth is in one side or the other. It merely tries to present the various views and provide the public with enough information so they can decide for themselves.

4-H supporters request truck and trailer for county agent

Around 20 4-H supporters crowded the Mitchell County Commissioner's courtroom Tuesday morning to urge the commissioners to provide a pickup and trailer for the county agent.

After a presentation by 4-H parent Dale Sheets, who represented the group, and comments by other parents and supporters, Commissioner Ed Roach made a motion to consider the presentation when commissioners hold budget workshops in August. The motion, seconded by Commissioner Bill Preston, was unanimously approved.

The group also disagreed with the commissioner's decision to donate the pickup and trailer used by a former county agent to the Texas Department of Criminal Justice to be used by Wallace Unit field crews. Commissioner Carl Guelker asked that the second item be put on the meeting agenda but had the one dissenting vote when commissioners voted approval of the action.

This year's county budget, effective January 1, did not include providing the county agent with a vehicle as had been the practice in the past but allowed for a $600 car allowance for the agent to use his own pickup.

Sheets opened his presentation by saying that the group was concerned with what they saw in Mitchell County extension services since the new budget went into effect and felt the program would be better served by a county-owned pickup and trailer.

Squirrel rabies tests are negative

Rabies tests on a squirrel that attacked a Colorado City woman two weeks ago were negative, according to veterinarian Dr. Vardeman's office.

During the same week two other squirrels who bit people in Mitchell County were tested for rabies. Those tests were also negative.

The male squirrel that aggressively attacked Mrs. Wilda Holman was actually the third animal to be sent to Austin for tests during the third week of April, according to the local veterinarian's office. Mrs. Steve Graham in Colorado City was bitten by a squirrel in a cage after the young squirrel had been friendly earlier in the day. Although its behavior wasn't unusual, Steve Graham said they became concerned when the animal died the following day.

According to reports, two Loraine teenagers were also bitten when they cornered a squirrel. During the same week, two children were treated for a squirrel bite at Mitchell County Hospital after they cornered a squirrel in a church basement. That squirrel was not tested for rabies.

Dr. James H. Wright, Texas Department of Health regional zoonosis veterinarian, said that squirrels were classified as low

Fisher Park due for major facelift

It's Fisher Park's turn for a major facelift this year. A neglected stepchild for many years, the park is now under the supervision of a parks director who is in charge of both Ruddick Park and the park at Lake Champion.

Now that the major improvements are completed at Ruddick Park, the city is planning park capital improvements at the two parks of $18,700 for 1986-87, with Fisher Park receiving a large share of the budget and attention this year.

The boat ramp will be extended by 30 feet to make it usable with the present low water level in the lake. That project is expected to begin next week, said Walter Mitchell, city parks director.

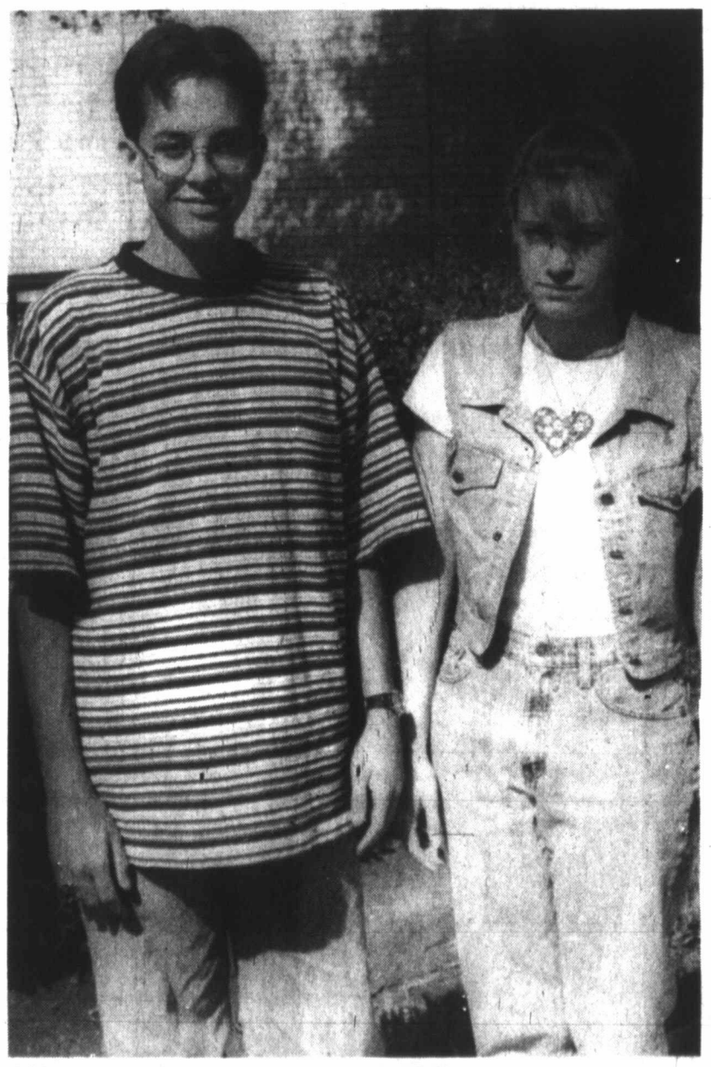

Mitchell said Monday that city work crews were in the process of putting up a new Fisher Park sign on Highway 208.

Four new shelters with picnic benches and tables have been completed and five more will be built this year. Other plans include electricity and water hookups for RVs in the shelter area; landscaping with additional trees and plants; and paving for some of the roads at the park.

With the new attention and improvements at the park, the city expects revenues to increase this year compared to last.

"The park is already making more money," said City Manager Steve Shutt.

Last year the city budgeted revenues of $8,000 and received around $12,000. This year the city expects to take in conservatively estimated revenues at Fisher Park of at least $15,000.

Rees appoints two women to council

Two women were appointed by the mayor to serve on the Westbrook City Council after no one filed as candidates for two of the three open council seats.

Elizabeth Morton and Sue Hawley were appointed by Mayor Bill Reese last week.

Morton, Hawley, the mayor and Nick Lopez, who was unopposed in his bid for re-election to the council, were sworn into office Monday morning.

The city did not hold an election Saturday since the mayor and Lopez were not challenged in their bids for re-election. A new state law permits cities and school districts to cancel elections if all candidates are unopposed.

Colorado City included in Texas Midwest Guide

The Texas Midwest Community Network has published a regional information guide. Already distributed to Texas Information Centers statewide, the guides are also available at most chamber of commerce offices in the region.

The Texas Midwest Guide is a 40-page booklet that includes a variety of information about 24 communities in the Texas Midwest, including Colorado City. In addition to a regional calendar of annual events, listings can be found for attractions, accommodations, bed and breakfasts, golf courses, lakes and camping, medical facilities, recreation and state parks. Each participating town is featured with a description of its history and highlights.

The guide is a project of the Texas Midwest Community Network and supported by Abilene Regional Medical Center, Hendrick Medical Center and Texas State Technical College. The booklets are designed to attract and assist visitors to the region but are also very useful for residents who want to learn more about the area in which they live.

A new web site on the Internet also offers the information guide to travelers in cyberspace. To locate the Texas Midwest Guide through your computer, key in http.//camalott.com/~tmcn.

CHIEF LONE WOLF

BY JIM BAUM

It's hard to believe such a small mountain as Lone Wolf Mountain can hold such big mysteries!! The slight rise in the landscape just north of Loraine has long been a favorite meeting place of hundreds, if not thousands of youngsters and adults.

The mountain has literally been scoured by visitors in modern times. (And apparently many early day residents of this area frequented it also.) Many former residents of Mitchell County return each year and are dismayed at how much the hill has shrunk over the years. Of course, they're really saying the mountain was much taller in their memory than in reality.

During the turn of the century, the hill was a popular place for young couples who picnicked and "kodaked," i.e., the fine art of taking pictures with a Kodak camera, on the historic mountain.

As a boy, Foster Stephenson, his brothers Frank and Henry and sister Susie used to play on Lone Wolf Mountain. And why not? They lived right at the foot of the landmark and it became their playground. "We played on it all the time," Stephenson once told us. "When we weren't working in the field, we were playing on the mountain."

Over the years, the Stephenson kids found places where Indians had ground corn. They also referred to one specific area as the 'Indian Kitchen.'

"It was a natural cave," Stephenson explained, "with a place where the wind would pull through there making a draft. It was a good place to build a fire."

One day in 1925, Stephenson and his brother Henry were playing follow-the-leader on Lone Wolf Mountain when they came to the Indian Kitchen. The two boys dropped down on all fours and started crawling through the opening. Hundreds of times they had gone through this same ritual, but this time there was something different.

Stephenson said he stopped cold! "The corner of this pot was sticking up [out of the floor of the cave] and it was unusual to see such a thing."

He commenced digging in loose sand and gravel. "And I dug this pot out. There were some beads in it an some arrow [heads] and small bones."

The pot was made of brass and it had obviously been hammered out by an artisan. The two youths continued digging until...they uncovered a skull!

"We really didn't dig deep after we found that because it was a little scary," Stephenson continued. In record time the two boys grabbed their loot and scampered down the mountain to show other family members what they had unearthed. To say the least, others were equally impressed with their finds.

The skull eventually was taken to Snyder by Frank Stephenson and it was displayed in a bank for several years. Unfortunately, its whereabouts today are not known.

But the brass pot is another story. In 1981 Foster Stephenson returned to Mitchell County and donated the artifact to the Colorado City Museum, now the Heart of West Texas Museum. So, what did the two boys really find?

Dr. R.N. Gray has made a lifelong study of Indians and their habits. While denying he's an authority on the subject, Doc says he has always throught the pot had Spanish origins.

Referring to Lone Wolf Mountain, Gray stated, "I'm sure the Spanish used that as a guidepost or camp site whenever they explored this area" centuries ago. Gray adds that the mountain was a conspicuous landmark back then.

What about the skull? Over the years anyone could have been buried at that location, but the most prominent story concerns the burial of Kiowa Chief Lone Wolf's son (and nephew). The two had left a reservation in Oklahoma and gone with a raiding party through Texas into Mexico. While being pursued by soldiers back in Texas, the son and nephew were killed.

Chief Lone Wolf, according to the story, went to Texas to claim the bodies for burial. Eventually, Lone Wolf was also chased by soldiers and history says he buried his son "on a mountain."

Could the skull found by the Stephensons have been that of Lone Wolf's son? One more mystery about Lone Wolf Mountain: the late Trinidad Chavez once found a sword on the mountain. The blade was inscribed with one letter and number, but no other identification.

A skull...a brass pot...and a sword. Does Lone Wolf Mountain hold any other mysteries? Probably. But it's not giving any answers.

OIL & GAS NEWS

First production data have been posted for a newly completed oil well in Mitchell County's STM Field, about nine and a half miles southwest of Ira.

It is designated the No. 2 Lottie Williams with Chisholm Exploration Co. as the operator.

The well showed ability to flow 127 barrels of oil on a 9/64 choke. Flowing tubing pressure registered 500 PSI.

Bottomed at 7,335 feet, it will produce from Canyon Reef Formation, 76,330 to 7,335 feet into the wellbore.

The No. 11 Morrison "35" has come on line in Mitchell County's Turner-Gregory Field, about six miles west of Westbrook.

It produced 20 barrels of oil per day when gauged on an 11/64 choke. Flowing casing pressure stood at 90 PSI.

The well probed to a 3,207-ft. bottom and will produce from a Clearfork Formation interval, 2,771 to 3,036 feet into the wellbore.

SDX Resources Inc. is the operator.

The same operator has filed first production reports on the No. 3 Morrison-Jones about six miles northwest of Westbrook, also in Mitchell County's Turner-Gregory Field.

The well flowed 27 barrels of oil daily on a open choke. Flowing tubing pressure came in at 30 PSI.

With total depth of 3,202 feet, it was perforated for Clearfork Formation pay, 2,636 to 2,758 feet into the hole.

Dry conditions make lawn watering essential

By JOE RAFF, CEA-AG

Like most of the state, Mitchell County is suffering from a lack of moisture. This, coupled with extreme temperatures and high winds, has zapped most of the moisture. This means that unless you're blessed with an automatic sprinkler system, your lawn may be suffering from heat stress earlier than normal this year.

Most of the house calls I have made this year have concerned lawns, and of these calls 80 percent of the problem has been poor watering.

The most common mistake is made by watering every day. In the absense of rainfall, your lawn needs a half-inch of water once every three to four days. However, due to our dry conditions, watering every other day is probably needed. But watering every other day will not benefit your lawn if you water at the wrong time.

Watering lawns early in the morning or just before the sun sets is the optimum time to maximize the water's effect on the lawn and minimize evaporation.

Another good practice for our yard is "drought-proofing". A good practice is applying a layer of organic mulch for shrubs, flower beds and trees. The mulch helps retain moisture for the shrubs and flowers, and it helps keep the root systems cooler.

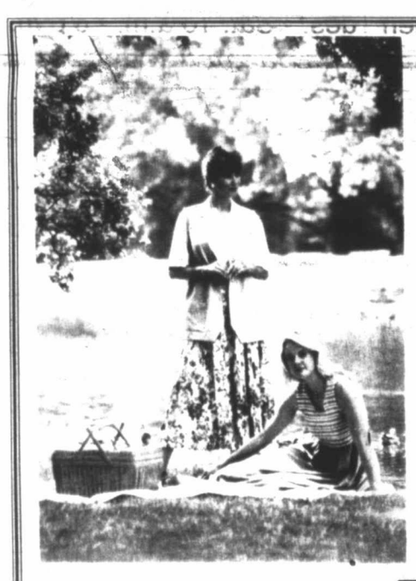

Plastic mulches do not work as well. They may be good for preventing weed growth, but they are not helpful during these hot dry conditions.

It's also a good practice not to fertilize your lawn during these hot days. I know people put down fertilizer to get the yellow out of the lawn, but if it begins growing too fast after fertilization, it will then require inordinate amounts of water to stay green. Plus a yellowing lawn is a sign of iron deficiencies, not a need for nitrogen.

Valley Fair resident enjoy annual llama visit

CHARMIN THE LLAMA visited Valley Fair Lodge April 23. The Leon River Llamas, owned by Dean and Ann Madison, have come to Valley Fair each year for the past three years. Charmin's baby, Quigley, also visited this year.

For the third year, the Leon River Llamas, owned by Dean and Ann Madison, visited Valley Fair Lodge, bringing big smiles to residents.

Three years ago, Fiesta, a nine-month-old llama, visited; last year, Fiesta's brother, So Silver, came and this year on April 23 Charmin and her baby, Quigley, arrived, stirring up interest throughout the building.

According to the South Central Llama Association, llamas are especially suited for nursing home visits as they are not excitable, their wool is extremely soft, they have no odor, are house trained, and their natural curiosity makes them interested in everyone they meet.

Llamas average between five and six feet in height and weigh between 300 and 400 pounds by age four, when they are full grown. Their movements are graceful and not sudden.

They will follow their handler footstep for footstep with two toes, not a hoof. This allows them to move very quietly and gives them sure footing that they need for packing on mountain trails and on smooth tile floors.

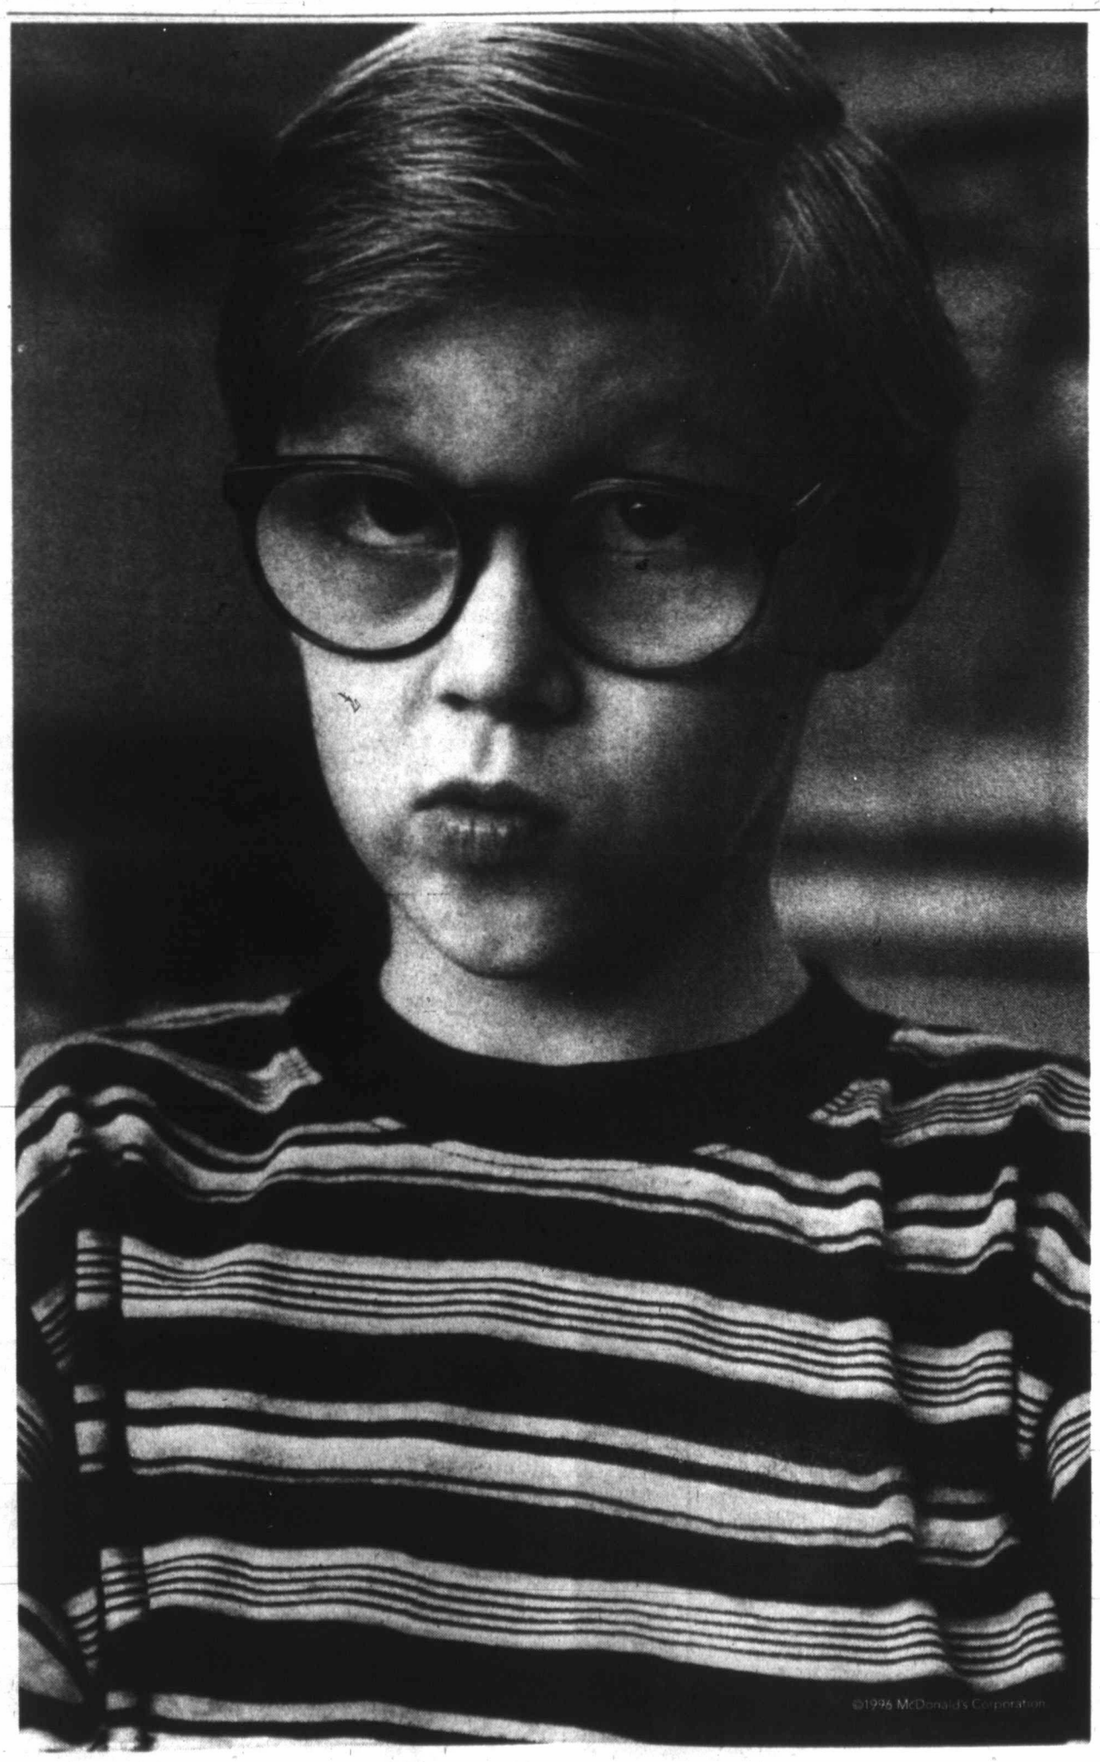

Each resident had the opportunity to visit with Charmin and Quigley, who seemed to enjoy the attention as much as the Valley Fair residents enjoyed them.

County trapper keeps a low profile

The county trapper keeps a low profile. Outside of landowners who call on him when a predator is killing their livestock, few people realize there is such a position as a county trapper.

Nor do they know that the Mitchell County trapper, Doyle Currey, is recognized as the most experienced professional trapper in the state.

"He's our senior-most animal damage control specialist in the state of Texas and highly respected," said his district supervisor, Rick Gilliland.

Currey, 66, lives in Dunn and has been a trapper for 37 years, the last four in Mitchell County.

He was named Trapper of the Year by the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers Association last year.

However, his supervisors had a hard time getting him to go to San Angelo to accept the plaque honoring him for his dedicated contributions.

Naturally reserved, he's also wary of attracting the attention of environmentalists or animal rights activists who are often critical of his profession.

"They don't understand we're not trying to eradicate predators like coyotes, just trying to keep them under control so they won't cause problems," he said.

Trappers are paid through a cooperative agreement between the county and landowners, with the county paying two-thirds and the ranchers one-third.

In Mitchell County, ranchers with predator problems contact the county judge, Ray Mayo, who then contacts Currey.

Currey goes out to the farm or ranch and talks with the landowner about the problem, learning all he can about the situation before he sets out to trap the culprit. He usually begins work early in the morning or works late at night to catch the nocturnal animals.

He works a 40-hour week, leaving the weekends to spend with his wife, Betty.

His dog, Sally, accompanies him when he's hunting as she has for the past 12 years. Mrs. Currey said that the experienced hunting dog saves her husband lots of steps.

Currey files a monthly report with the state's Dept. of Agriculture, Animal Control Division and is under the supervision of the federal APHIS, Animal Damage Control office in Canyon.

The animal control agency assists people with any type of wildlife damage management, said Gilliland. Coyotes, bobcats or red foxes are the biggest problems in this area but wildlife damage problems can include rodents or birds. The office gives technical assistance by disseminating information to the public.

"Sometimes it takes more than information to control damage. Just mailing a leaflet to a rancher whose livestock is being attacked by coyotes isn't going to be much help," said Gilliland.

Trappers like Currey provide direct control.

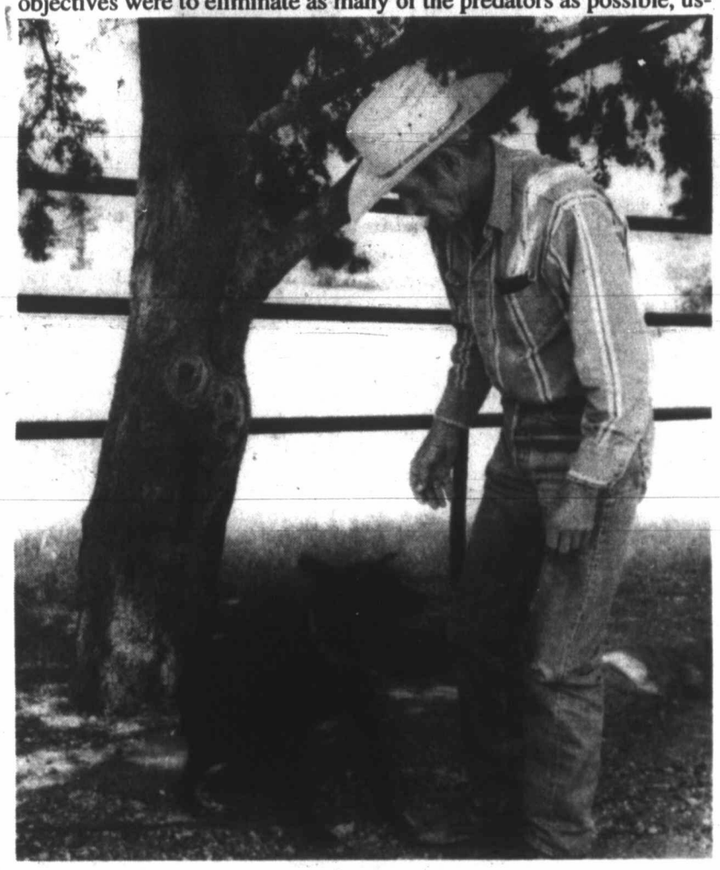

They also assist health agencies by collecting blood samples to monitor diseases such as bubonic plague and fox rabies.

Currey said that right now he is working at six different properties in the county. Monday he caught a coyote north of the city that had killed three calves. Coyotes are the biggest problems, he says, and there are more in the area than people realize.

"Every coyote that's seen means that there are 20 more around," he said.

According to his records, predators are more of a problem in Mitchell County this year than last. In only the first three months of 1996, he's disposed of 65 animals. Last year's total was 158.

His job is more difficult now than it was for former trappers whose objectives were to eliminate as many of the predators as possible, using methods that are now outlawed such as stricnine or 10-80 poison.

MITCHELL COUNTY TRAPPER Doyle Currey gives his faithful hunting dog Sally some well-earned attention. Currey, recognized as the most experienced professional trapper in the state, says the well-trained dog is a big asset to him in performing his job.

Attitudes have changed drastically since Currey first learned trapping from a Glasscock County trapper, Mike O'Bannon, in 1957. His first job was as trapper for Crockett County and then he spent 22 years as Borden County's trapper.

Now, as an animal damage control specialist, the key phrase is "manage for damage". His efforts are focused on just the animal or animals who are attacking livestock.

Animal control efforts aim towards finding a balance—recognizing that a predator, such as a coyote, is still an important part of the ecosystem yet eliminating those that are hurting the livelihood of landowners.

He disagrees with environmentalists who believe that his job is unnecessary and that natural selection will keep the number of predators, like coyotes, in check.

For example, coyotes can depredate a deer population, he said. Studies by the state's animal damage control office show that areas that have an animal damage control specialist have high or above average deer populations.

"Coyotes will eat anything—mesquite beans, fruit, any kind of bug," Currey said. "They kill calves, goats, sheep, deer, turkeys. Quail, doves and other ground nesting animals—they find their eggs and eat them."

He talks about the coyotes habits and traits and particular ones he's encountered over the years. Sometimes he's able to find the coyote he's hunting in two or three nights but he's spent as much as five months hunting a particularly elusive, intelligent coyote.

"Like humans or dogs, there are ones that are real smart and others that aren't very bright," he said.

People could learn a thing or two from coyotes he said. They mate for life, take care of their young and firmly send the young on their way when they're big enough.

As Currey talks about their adaptability and strong sense of survival, one can hear the admiration in his voice and stroies.

"People have asked me if I hated coyotes since I hunt them. Not at all. I respect them," he said.

They have a sense of smell as acute as a bloodhound. He's seen them kill a sheep and then leave without coming back to the area.

"I've known them to come five to 11 miles to kill and then go back," he said.

"When you see the tracks, you can bet that there's no coyote around. He's done gone," he said.

What if there weren't any trappers?

"I'd say that in 10 years there wouldn't be any stock," he said.

Ranchers and landowners aren't the only ones to benefit from controlling predators he says. People in town don't think about how it beneficially affects the price of meat, he said.

"Just two miles out of town coyotes are killing calves," he points out.

RABIES

The rabies virus is spread through a continual ongoing transmission cycle, said Texas Department of Health veterinarian Kevin Cocker of El Paso. When a carnivore, that has the rabies virus, attacks a small animal like a squirrel, other rodent or rabbit, the smaller animal usually doesn't survive the attack, so it doesn't spread the virus, explained Cocker.

There were other reports of aggressive squirrels and squirrel bites during the same period as the ones that occurred in Mitchell County.

A Sweetwater woman was also attacked by a squirrel in a very similar manner to what occurred to Mrs. Holman, according to the Nolan County game warden.

And, the media reported that during the same time, a squirrel in Pasadena, Texas, near Houston, attacked two people. A humorous columnist in an Austin newspaper, John Kelso, said that the "nut-case gray squirrel" jumped on a woman's back and bit her when she tried to brush it off. That squirrel "took on mythical proportions" in the neighborhood, wrote the columnist, when it was reported to have killed a dog. The columnist wasn't convinced that the rumor wasn't true. "If a squirrel can survive all those petrochemical fumes around Pasadena, it might be able to mug a hippo," wrote Kelso.

So, what has caused them to be so aggressive since the three Mitchell County squirrels weren't the only ones with bad attitudes?

Jan Buck, Public Health Technician in Arlington, has almost made a specialty of squirrel behavior since she checks out reports of people being bitten by squirrels and is often called on to answer questions about them.

"We've heard these stories for years," she says. "Squirrels have bizarre behavior. What seems like bizarre behavor to us is common for squirrels."

Buck said she had heard of one attack squirrel who had terrorized a neighborhood, biting three people before it was trapped and one woman claimed that a squirrel had stalked her and then chased her as she ran down the street.

Most of the reports of squirrely, bizarre behavior occur in April and usually involve males, Buck said.

A heavy inf[illegible] of flees is squirrels, she said.

Many of the bites happen around ponds, golf courses or other places where people often feed squirrels.

Rick Gilliland, Animal Damage Control supervisor in Canyon, said, "It's a matter of urbanized squirrels losing their fear of humans. Typical adult rodents are aggressive and males are very territorial."

Many have made behavior adaptations to be aggressive to humans, he said.

Although squirrels are unlikely to carry the rabies virus, health officials say they, like prairie dogs, can carry plague.

Buck stressed that the reported squirrels don't—do not—show signs of plague; however, people need to be aware of the danger.

"A lot of people feed squirrels and like to get them to eat out of their hands," she said. "Trying to lure any type of wildlife is risky."

C-COURT

He said he wanted to be sure the commissioners understood that they were not accusing the court of undermining the 4-H program.

Sheets provided commissioners with figures which he said showed that money was available for the pickup by cutting out the travel allowance and social security.

"When you average the cost of the pickup out over time—it may hurt you one time, but it should only count $4,000 against the budget for three years to five years," said Sheets.

Commissioner Buddy Hertenberger said that the county had over a $100,000 deficit last year.

"This is one thing that concerns me. We cut and cut and cut and asked folks to streamline and do more with less money. I can't find a valid reason why it doesn't include everybody because we have these deficit budgets," Hertenberger told Sheets.

Commissioner Bill Preston said that precincts were underbudgeted [illegible] had checked with extension [illegible] istrators on how Mitchell County [illegible] among other extension services in a 19 county area.

"I was told that Mitchell County has always been considered a top player," said Preston.

The total budget for the extension service had been $57,000 and was increased by $900 last year to $66,349.

One parent said that she had been told by an insurance agent that when parents are "hauling kids" they are liable if there should be an accident and that the county would also be liable.

Members of the group protested the county's move to donate the used $2500 pickup and $1500 trailer to the Wallace Unit field crews saying that they could be used for trade-in to purchase a truck for the county agent.

Commissioner Preston said that the work crews would use the pickup for projects such as cleaning the cemeteries in the city and county.

Sheets said, "the best intentions sometimes go astray," noting that the prison system could move the pickup and trailer to another part of the state if needed.

"The prison has come here and they've done a lot of work all over the county. This is one way of saying thank you," said Preston.

The commissioner talked about work done on long neglected cemeteries and recounted some of the major field crew projects.

"I appreciate it and I think the public does too," Preston said.

Hertenberger said that because of budget cuts, inmate labor has been used to "pick up the slack" after he had to lay off two maintenance people.

"Are you saying you laid off two taxpaying citizens and replaced them with prison labor?" asked one man in the audience.

"Yes and I may have to do more," replied Hertenberger.

In other business, commissioners approved the lease of the Ed Lee Building on Hwy. 208 for $400 a month for three years with a two year option to be sub-leased to the Texas Boll Weevil Eradication program.

The lease agreement is between City National Bank and the Mitchell County Economic Board.

"This will create 15 full-time jobs and 25 to 30 part-time jobs," said Nancy Sullivan, executive director for the board of economic development.

County Commissioners also decided to suspend hunting and fishing license services in the county clerk's office.

County Clerk Debby Carlock told commissioners that the state now requires electronic procedures for issuing the licenses.

The licenses can be purchased at several businesses in the area and the county clerk's office only received $20 in revenue from offering the service last year, Carlock pointed out.

Youth flees law officers, is later apprehended

Five Odessa youths were charged after fleeing Mitchell and Howard County law enforcement officers last Wednesday afternoon.

Department of Public Safety trooper Mark Negri pursued a pickup truck on I-20 when the driver failed to stop after he had attempted to pull the truck over for a traffic offense at 1:47 p.m.

The westbound chase on the interstate reached speeds of over 100 m.p.h. until the driver of the Ford pickup hit a fence at 2:10 p.m. after turning south on Moss Lake Road in Howard County, according to reports.

Nickolas Montana, 20; Lacoy Oshay Hawkins, 17; Iry James Williams, 17; and a 16-year-old male juvenile, all of Odessa, were taken into custody at the scene.

The driver, Camer Jackson, 17, also of Odessa, fled on foot. Howard County Deputy Ed Covington found Jackson about two hours later hiding in a storage shed in Sand Springs.

Tracking dogs from the TDCJ Wallace Unit and a DPS helicopter were used in the search. DPS, Mitchell County sheriff and deputy, Howard County sheriff's deputies, Big Spring police, and a game warden assisted.

The youths were charged in Mitchell County with fleeing to elude officers and unauthorized use of a motor vehicle in Brown County. The pickup was reportedly stolen in Brownwood.

Grand jury returns five indictments

Mitchell County grand jury returned five indictments April 18. Three of the indictments were sealed.

Paul Gonzalez, 22, of 836 Pine in Colorado City, was indicted for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

Marilyn Morce, 25, of Colorado City was indicted for theft of over $1500 but less than $20,000.

Mitchell Co. weather warnings will now come from San Angelo

Warning responsibility for Mitchell County and eight other west-central Texas counties will be transferred to the San Angelo National Weather Service Office (NWSO) from the Abilene Office August 1.

On July 31, the San Angelo office plans to commission their new WSR-88D radar system, according to a recent release from the San Angelo office.

Shirley Jean Matejka, San Angelo meteorologist, said the new radar system will usher in a new era of weather forecasts and warnings for our area.

The transfer will occur on Thursday, August 1 at 11 a.m.

Other counties included in the transfer are Brown, Callahan, Coleman, Fisher, Jones, Nolan, Shackelford and Taylor.

Weather information can be obtained by using NOAA Weather Radio. NWSFO San Angelo broadcasts weather information 24 hours a day with severe weather watches and warnings broadcast as quickly as they are issued. Transmitters are located in Abilene and San Angelo.

According to Mateja, NOAA weather radio receivers can be purchased from eletronics and department stores. Some models feature tone alerts that NWSO San Angelo can activate during severe weather watches and warnings.

Subscribers to the NOAA Weather Wire Service or the Family of Service will need to make the appropriate changes to receive short-fuse warnings and related products from NWSO San Angelo. Universal Generic Codes will remain unchanged.

Valley Fair participates in training session

The staff of Valley Fair Lodge participated in a severe weather information and training session presented by Richard May, warning coordinator meteorologist for the National Weather Service in San Angelo.

Safety was discussed for all severe weather situations, including developing plans and having drills.

Mr. May explained the various types of lightning, pointing out that it is hotter than the sun's surface and kills more people than tornadoes do in Texas.

He explained that before the Doppler system only the outside of a storm could be watched but with Doppler today the inside of a storm may be seen.

A slide presentation concluded the session, showing a variety of storms and the damage they left behind.

Reese AFB schedules air show for May 18-19th

Colonel Randy Gelwix, commander of Reese Air Force Base's 64th Flying Training Wing, announced today that the U.S. Air Force's Thunderbirds and the U.S. Army's Golden Knights will perform at Reese during the base's annual Air Show and community appreciation day on Saturday, May 18, 1996.

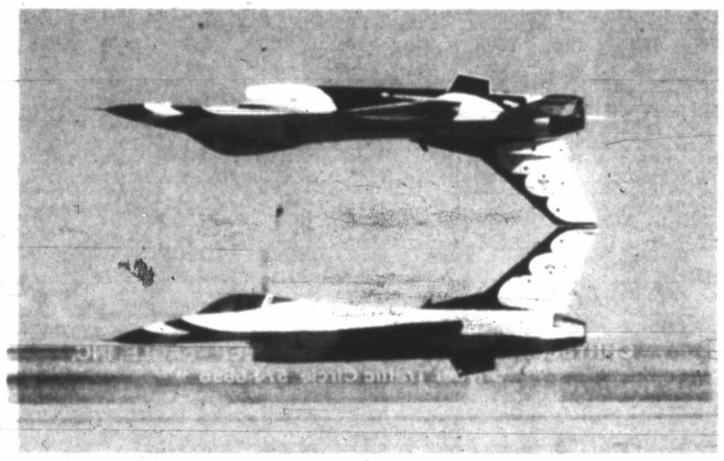

The air show and community appreciation day will be a two day event on Saturday and Sunday, May 18th and 19th, but the Thunderbirds and Golden Knights will only fly on Saturday, May 18th, which is Armed Forces Day.

The base will be open to the public from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. both days. "The two demonstration teams will have to share top billing in the flying department with some of the armed services' newest aircraft and some civilian-owned vintage military aircraft," Colonel Gelwix said.

Colonel Gelwix noted that: "This year's air show will have more than 50 aircraft on display, perform a flyover or aerial demonstration above Reese. Our personnel are really looking forward to hosting our visitors from all over the South plains area in order to thank them for their great support for Reese AFB. We will also be honoring all those area citizens who have encouraged us, wished us well and supported our flying training mission during the past 55 years.

"I invite all residents of the West Texas-Eastern New Mexico area to come out on May 18th and 19th to help us celebrate the fifty-five years of support. This is an opportunity to see up close how the members of our Armed Services work together at Reese to accomplish our Joint Services Pilot Training mission," said Colonel Gelwix.

The Thunderbirds is the Air Force's renowned Air Demonstration Squadron from Nellis Air Force Base, Nevada. The Golden Knights is the Army's famed Parachute Demonstration Team based at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, They both will help the personnel of Reese Air Force Base celebrate "fifty-five years of training the world's best military pilots," said Lt. Colonel Mark Edwards, this year's Air Show project officer.

CRP acres are eligible for grazing

Due to existing drought conditions, low livestock prices, scarcity of available hay and forage, and record high grain prices, President Clinton announced April 30 that all CRP acres throughout the nation are eligible for haying and grazing upon request.

Emergency grazing privileges are effective immediately. Haying privileges will be effective starting July 1, 1996 through September 30, 1996.

Producers requesting to graze eligible acreage will be assessed a five percent grazing fee per month per acre grazed not to exceed 25 percent of the total annual rental payment for acres grazed. CRP participants may rent or lease grazing privileges to any livestock producer.

Haying request may be filed by any CRP producer for their own livestock, or by CRP producers wishing to sell standing or cut hay to assist livestock producers.

For more information please contact our local Farm Service Agency at (915) 728-2651.

Key wins finalist place in art competition

A Colorado High School student was one of 10 finalists in Congressman Charles Stenholm's 15th Annual Congressional Art Competition.

Alicia Key won a finalist's place in the competition with Three's a Crowd. She and the other finalists received certificates and ribbons, which were presented at an awards brunch April 20 in Abilene. The brunch was hosted by Charlie and Cindy Stenholm and included the honorees' families and art teachers.

The contest is part of a program entitled "An Artistic Discovery" to encourage and recognize the creative talents of young artists. This year the contest, which is open to all high school students, attracted over 350 entries from students in the 17th District.

The top 10 pieces of artwork were displayed in the First National Bank of Abilene during the week following the final district competition.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED SURCHARGE
GTE* has filed an Application with the Public Utility Commission of Texas (Commission) to establish a maximum $1.06 monthly surcharge to be added to the monthly bill of each customer for each access line. The purpose of the surcharge is to recover lost revenues and increased costs associated with (i) reductions in Extended Area Service (EAS) charges referred to in PURA 95 Section 3.308 and (ii) providing Expanded Local Calling Service (ELCS) in certain exchanges pursuant to PURA '95 Section 3.304 and the Commission's Substantive Rule Section 23.49(c)(6) and (c)(12). If approved by the Commission, the monthly surcharge will be up to $1.06 per month per access line. All ELCS customers currently subscribing to basic local service that are currently paying less than the ELCS rates of $3.50 for residential lines and $7.00 for business lines, will be surcharged $1.06 up to a maximum rate of $3.50/$7.00 beginning no sooner than the June 1996 billing cycles. GTE will also request that a surcharge of up to, but not in excess of, $1.06 per month per access line be implemented on an interim basis, subject to refund, until such time as the Commission has entered a final order on this matter. The requested surcharge is intended to (i) replace lost EAS revenues and (ii) replace lost revenues and reimburse GTE for the increased direct cost of service associated with all of GTE's ELCS by January 31, 1996. The deadline for intervention in this matter is July 12, 1996. Persons who wish to intervene in or comment up these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. All requests to intervene should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission's Public Information Office at (512) 458-0256, or (512) 458-0221 for text telephone, or by writing the Public Utility Commission.

Suits filed for non-payment

The Texas Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation (TBWEF) continues to file lawsuits against individuals who have not paid their 1995 assessment for the boll weevil eradication program in four zones.

The board authorized the Foundation to file the lawsuits when it became increasingly clear that legal action was necessary to enforce collection from those who have either failed or refused to pay their share of the annual assessments, some of which have been past due since June of last year.

The lawsuits are being filed in Abilene in Taylor County Courts-at-Law Nos. 1 and 2 against delinquent individuals in the High Plains, Lower Rio Grande Valley, Rolling Plains Central and the Southern Rolling Plains Boll Weevil Eradication Zones. More than 30 lawsuits will have been filed by the end of this week.

In addition to the actions being taken by TBWEF, the nonpayers also face penalties of up to 40 percent from the Texas Department of Agriculture under the 1993 law that created the Foundation.

As of April 16, 1996, the Foundation had collected 97.4 percent of the total 1995 assessments due from producers in the four zones. The following is a breakdown of the unpaid assessments in the zones:

- Lower Rio Grande Valley: $303,096
- High Plains: $229,832
- Rolling Plains Central: $51,054
- Southern Rolling Plains: $14,386

Foundation officials have said that fairness to the vast majority of cotton producers who paid their assessments in a timely and responsible manner was a key factor in their decision to file the lawsuits.

A legal judgment perfected in a court of law against these individuals will certainly have an impact on their credit records and could result in a lien, according to Foundation officials.

TBWEF will begin mailing out invoices of 1996 assessments in the four zones within the next few months.

Fundraiser planned for Special Olympics

Special Olympics Torch Run organizers are hoping to get the entire community involved in the fundraising and special events planned for this year.

Texas Department of Criminal Justice Wallace Unit employees, Colorado City Police Department personnel and local schools are taking an active role in fundraising. They also plan to participate in the Sunday, May 19 torch run.

Lt. B. Stansell at the Wallace Unit, who is organizing the local effort, said that a walking group will walk a mile from the unit into town and then a running/jogging group will take the torch to the courthouse.

A waiver to run must be signed and returned to Stansell by May 18.

Several fundraisers have already been held by competing sections of the Wallace Unit such as a team roping, barbecue dinner, etc.

Antique Assn. announces changes

Although the local Antiques Association has only been in existence a few months, the organization is a dynamic group. Recently there have been several changes in the businesses and their owners, from new businesses and owners to the relocation of others.

An update on the association members includes:

•Good Ole Days Antique Mall on Second Street has new owners–Ed and Ginny Harmon. Railhead Festival visitors in March enjoyed their display window which contains a hay bale with legs sticking up as if a poor guy fell head first in the bale.

The display complemented the stuffed cowboy lounging in an old fashioned bathtub in front of Glenda Stinson's Heartfelt Treasures next door.

•That stuffed cowboy and his tub have made the rounds. Now he's back out at Betty Boedeker's Our House, his original home on the Snyder Highway. You know Betty combines antiques with furniture refinishing. Well, it's fun to watch shoppers' mouths drop open when she tells them she's a "stripper and a junkie".

•John Williamson, owner of Log Cabin Collectibles, moved his business from Second Street to Walnut, next to Nam's and C-City Hayride. He opened for business a couple of Saturdays ago but says he's still in the process of rearranging. It's amazing how different things look in a new building, he says.

•Speaking of the old drug store, Ken Farmer is now in the Colorado Drug Antique Emporium on Second Street. He has started staying open throughout the week now and hopes to begin work on the old drug store counter and stools this summer. Ken said he's noticed that lots of dealers from other cities are stopping in Colorado City to visit the antique stores.

•Doyle Mitchell's Apache Flats Auction & Trading Post has moved from its downtown location to where Bob's used to be located, further east on Second. It's a larger building and Doyle has added a retail store to the auction business. He said he plans to have auctions once or twice a month on Saturdays during the summer and then go back to the weeknight auctions in the fall.

•A new business, All Bowed Out, at Fourth and Walnut Street, is the newest member of the association. Located in a house across from the Colorado City Opera House, the arts, crafts and collectible business is owned by Billie and Gaye Key. The owners have had a booth at Sharon Dockrey's Homegrown Crafts and Antiques and expanded into their own place last November.

•A.W. and Gene Rowe, owners of The Lazy 7 Antique Haven, have replaced their clothing line with an expanded selection of furniture, especially primitives. Won't the antique shoppers from out-of-town get a warm C-City welcome when they see the new bright green benches in front of their store!

•Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Hertenberger, owners of Nam's on Walnut, are looking forward to January when Buddy, who has been serving as a county commissioner, will be able to spend more time in the antiques business. They're hoping to be able to combine a little traveling with auction shopping.

COMMISSIONER'S COURT

Mitchell County Commissioners' Court called meeting held at 9 a.m. on May 7.

ROLL CALL: County Judge Ray Mayo; Commissioners-Precinct 1, Ed Roach; Precinct 2, Carl Guelker; Precinct 3, Buddy Hertenberger; Precinct 4, Bill Preston. Also present: Debby Carlock, county clerk.

Property Tax Protest and Appeal Procedures

The law gives property owners the right to protest actions concerning their property tax app0raisals. You may follow these appeal procedures if you have a concern about

•the value placed on your property
•any exemptions that may apply to you
•the cancellation of an agricultural appraisal
•the taxable status of your property
•the local governments which should be taxing your property
•any action taken by the appraisal district that adversely affected you

Informal Review

The staff of the Appraisal District will be happy to visit with you concerning the value of your property or any other aspect regarding its taxation. Please call 728-5028 to make an appointment. You will be able to visit with an appraiser who will explain why your property was appraised as it was, and you may offer additional information which could impact its market value. Pictures of the interior or written estimates of repair bids are good evidence to present. If you and the appraiser can reach an agreement on the value of your property, you will receive a written agreement for your records.

Review by the Appraisal Review Board

If you can't resolve your problem informally with the appraisal district staff, you may have your case heard by the appraisal review board (ARB).

The ARB is an independent board of citizens that reviews problems with appraisals or other concerns listed above. It has the power to order the appraisal district to make the necessary changes to solve the problems. If you file a written request for an ARB hearing (called a notice of protest) before the deadline, the ARB will set your case for a hearing. You'll receive written notice of the time, date and place of the hearing. The hearing will be informal. You and the appraisal district representative will be asked to present the evidence about the case. The ARB will make a decision based on the evidence presented. You can get a copy of a protest form from the appraisal district office at 12th & Hickory St, Colorado City, TX 79512.

Note: You shouldn't try to contact ARB members outside of the hearing. The law requires the ARB members to sign an affidavit saying that they haven't talked about your case before the ARB hears it.

Review by District Court

After it decides your case, the ARB must send you a copy of its order by certified mail. If you're not satisfied with the decision, you have the right to appeal to district court. If you choose to go to court, you must start the process by filing a petition within 45 days of the date you received the ARB's order. If the appraisal district has appraised your property at $1,000,000 or more, you must file a notice of appeal with the chief appraiser within 15 days of the date you receive the ARB's order.

More Information

You can get more information by contacting your appraisal district at 12th & Hickory, Colorado City, TX, (915) 728-5028. You can also get a pamphlet describing how to prepare a protest from the appraisal district or from the State Comptroller's Property Tax Division at P.O. Box 13528, Austin, TX, 78711.

Deadline for Filing Protests with the ARB*

Usual Deadline

On or before June 1 (or 30 days after a notice of appraised value was mailed to you, whichever is later). If you have been unable to call the District for an appointment, you can protect your right of appeal by writing the District, noting the property description and expressing dissatisfaction with the value.

Late protests are allowed if you miss the usual deadline for a good cause. Good cause is some reason beyond your control, like a medical emergency. The ARB decides whether you have a good cause.

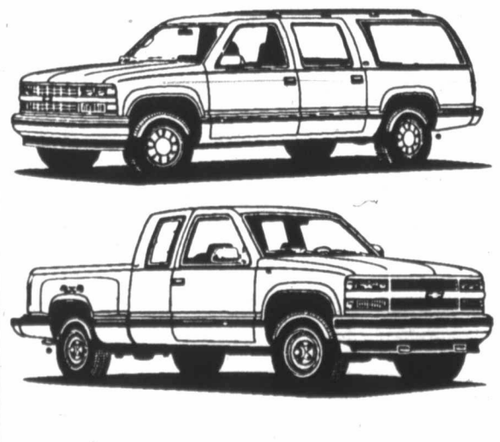

Late protests are due the day before the appraisal review board approves records for the year. Contact your appraisal district for more information.

Special Deadlines

For change of use (the appraisal district informed you that you are losing agricultural appraisal because you changed the use of your land), the deadline is before the 30th day after the of determination was mailed to you. For ARB changes (the ARB has informed you of a change that increases your tax liability and the change didn't result from a protest you filed), the deadline is before the 30th day after the notice of the determination was mailed to you. If you believe the appraisal district or ARB should have sent you a notice and did not, you may file a protest until the day before taxes become delinquent (usually February 1). The ARB decides whether it will hear your case based on evidence about whether a required notice was mailed to you.

*The deadline is postponed to the next business day if it falls on a weekend or holiday.

Loraine News

By BESSIE ANN VAUGHN

Greetings from Loraine.

While sitting in the Dairy Queen recently, several men and two women, all "Old Timers," were talking back and forth, mostly about the dry weather.

When one of them mentioned the big "D" word, he sure wasn't talking about Dallas but about the drought.

Each person seemed to have a story they wanted to tell about the drought and following Depression of the '30s.

One lady's tale was so pitiful it made The Grapes of Wrath seem like a holiday, or Scarlett's radishes in Gone with the Wind a banquet.

All kidding aside, ranchers are burning cactus stickers down south to feed their cattle cactus and we may find more ways yet to fix pinto beans and dry weather peas.

After Sunday night's sprinkles, we are spurred on to believe we may soon get a good rain.

The "D" word can then stand for "deluge" or "downpour," even "drizzle."

Jimmie Jacks has just returned home from a week's stay at Clarksville, Tenn., where she visited with her daughter and family, Micki, her husband Steven and children Lauren, Travis and Grayson.

Jimmie said the azaleas and dogwood were in full bloom and beautiful.

Before returning home she stayed three days in Dallas with her cousin Doris Camp.

Last Thursday, Billie Wood, dietician for Mitchell County Hospital, along with Bertha Fay Snyder of Loraine, went to Abilene for a state meeting there.

The couple returned Saturday.

Marsha Rickard and Darlene Hamrick went to San Antonio last Friday to be guests of Marsha's daughter, Stephanie Jones and children Emily, Pierce and Michael.

When the couple from Loraine arrived at their destination, to Darlene's surprise and amazement there were her daughters, Sheryl Dawn and Stacy Smith, grandchildren Margaret and Karen Dawn, Jake Smith and Mary Beth Hamrick, all from Pahrump, Nev. They had flown in from Nevada to surprise Darlene with an early Mother's Day visit.

Darlene reports a great time visiting, eating out and making garage sales.

Stephanie's husband, Greg, had fled to Austin before the group arrived! (Can you blame him?)

Best ever Mother's Day gift, reports Darlene.

F.C.E. Club News

Last Wednesday, Millie Rose was the hostess at our F.C.E. Club meeting and Faye Lee, County Tax Assessor/ Collector, was speaker for this meeting.

She covered a lot of territory about tax appraisal such as protesting, going before the board of review if one challenges, how one may obtain a tax certificate. Phases in the tax calendar show that the tax office is with the collections phase plus assessment phase, and the appraisal phase is with equalization phase.

On January 1, the tax year begins; February 1 is the prior year's delinquency date; April 1 is the rendition deadline, May 15 the appraisal records to ARB. July 20 the appraisal roll is approved and October 1 the tax bills are mailed.

The regular meeting got underway with minutes and treasurer's report.

The treasurer gave us an itemized copy of what our fundraiser dinner cost and our profit from it after bills were paid.

The upcoming book review was mentioned and plans for our July picnic are being made. Shirley Kendall won the door prize.

Those attending this meeting were Billie Ruth Abernathy, Wanza Graham, Billie Schroeder, Margaret Brame, Millie Rose, Melba Wilkes, Eva Wells, Shirley Kendall, Elaine McMichael, Doris Henderson and Bessie Ann Vaughn.

Fairview F.C.E. Club is in charge of the book review this year. Terry McAdams will give the review May 16 at 2 p.m. in the C.C. Thompson Room.

There was some discussion about our July 4 picnic—more discussion about this at the next meeting.

Is there a girl out there anywhere who will cook, clean and take care of me, my house and my animals?

I don't care how ugly you are and I don't want any ugly kids. (Or pretty ones, either.)

I do like pretty dogs and pretty horses. My woman don't have to be pretty, just keep quiet!

You can have room and board but don't expect nothing else.

I'm handsome and you'd be lucky to get me. Send late photo of your ugly self.

Employers needed for jobs program

In order for the "Summer Jobs for Youth" program to be a success, Representative Rob Junell is requesting more employers and agencies in Mitchell County to consider providing jobs of at least 20 hours per week for six weeks, paying minimum wage, for students ages 14-21.

There has been an overwhelming response from students, and Representative Junell asks that you give serious consideration to assisting our young people in finding jobs in Mitchell County this summer.

Some employers have already returned their commitment forms and their promptness and interest in our youth is appreciated. This is an investment in the future of our communities that is well worth the price. Call Representative Junell's office, 728-8955 or 728-3909, or the Chamber of Commerce, 728-3403 with your job today!

Any student who needs an application may get one at the Chamber of Commerce, 157 West 2nd, or at Representative Junell's office, 2135-D Hickory. Office hours are 9-11 a.m. and 1-3:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

Farm bill meetings planned for May 23

By JOE RAFF, CEA-AG

There will be TWO county-wide Farm Bill meetings in Mitchell County. The first will start at 9 a.m. at the C.C. Thompson Room on Thursday, May 23, 1996. The second will start at 7 p.m. at the C.C. Thompson Room on May 23. The meeting will be sponsored by the Mitchell County Extension Office, Consolidated Farm Service and the Natural Resourse Conservation Service.

In an attempt to gather as many growers as possible, the two meetings (one in the morning and one at night) were developed. Each meeting will discuss compliance, different options growers have under the new legislation and EPA Laws and Regs.

In addition to the meetings growers can receive five CEUs at each meeting. At each meeting one CEU will be in Laws and Regs and four in General. These 10 CEUs will total to 15 CEUs offered in Mitchell County this year.

If you have questions about the new Farm Bill please plan to attend this meeting.
