Profits Levy Proves To Be Heavy Burden

Flat Tax Of 12½ Per Cent On Capital Gains Is Proposed To Replace Present Plan

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17. — A representative of the New York board of trade urged the house ways and means committee today to approve immediate repeal of the undistributed profits and capital gains taxes as a "stimulant" to business.

M. L. Seidman, chairman of the board's tax committee, said no tax was "more hated and discredited" or puts such fear in business.

First Private Witness

Seidman was the first private witness at hearings on tax revision recommendations of a ways and means subcommittee. The subcommittee has proposed modification of the undistributed profits tax for all but a few closely held corporations. These modifications would abolish the tax so far as firms with incomes of $25,000 or less are concerned.

The great majority of businessmen, Seidman said, sincerely believe the undistributed profits and capital gains taxes "had much to do with the distortion of our capital economy and with the breaking down of confidence in the future functioning of our economy."

He recommended a flat tax of 12 and 1-2 percent on capital gains to replace the present levy.

Showdown On Lynching Bill Is Expected During Week

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17. (AP)—Predictions of a showdown in the senate's anti-lynching filibuster brought expressions of confidence today from supporters and foes of the controversial bill.

Senator Connally (D-Tex), leader of the southern opponents, said there were enough speakers to continue talking against the measure until the pressure of other legislation forces proponents to shelve it.

Night Sessions Forecast

Some administration senators, however, forecast that night sessions would be ordered soon, and that such a step would cause the Plans for special classes for men and women at which instructions will be given in safe driving and for a public meeting at which traffic safety will be the theme were announced this morning by O. B. Conley, president of Lubbock Safety council.

Plans for driving courses on dates to be set were announced after Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of Texas Technological college, and Mrs. H. F. Godeke had accepted appointment on the council's educational committee. Mrs. Godeke, a former president of City Parent-Teacher association, has been active for years in traffic safety work among school pupils.

End Of Crisis In France Is Being Sought

Search For New Cabinet Still On; New Successes Reported As Russia Helps China

(By The Associated Press)

France started all over again today in the search for a new cabinet and the end of a four-day crisis, the Soviet union put finishing touches to its new constitutional government, Spain's warriors marked time, while embattled China reported new successes.

The Spanish war was virtually stalled except for insurgent air raids along the eastern coast, but Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's armies, bolstered by Russian warplanes and pilots, were reported to have pushed the Japanese invasion back on the northern, central and Yangtze valley fronts.

Britain Has Problem

The British government, intimately concerned by all these world developments, wrestled with a problem within what it considers the British "family"—negotiations with often recalcitrant Eire (formerly the Irish Free State) on trade, defense and political issues.

Prime Minister Eamon De Valera and his Irish ministers conferred at London with British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, intent upon raising the question—among others—of union between his nation and Northern Ireland, an objective outlined in the new De Valera constitution.

Crisis At Starting Point

Across the English channel, France's government crisis was back pretty much where it started. Camille Chautemps, who declined last week to attempt to form a new cabinet to replace his own people's front government—wrecked by monetary and labor troubles—was called on again by President Albert Lebrun. Socialist Leader Leon Blum abandoned his efforts to form a "national union" government.

Another who had tried and failed was the radical-socialist financier-

Although "third degree" burns were described as the most serious type, the injury was confined to the hand and arm and attendants said that unless complications should develop, he should suffer no permanent effects. He was released after the injury was dressed.

No charge had been filed against the man, known also as Reovitch.

He was sought for questioning in the slaying of Mrs. Lenida Waite, 59-year-old widow, and Miss Jeanne Schuellain, 19, her neighbor, who were found shot to death last Wednesday in Mrs. Waite's home in nearby Elmont.

College Professor Will Seek Governor's Job In Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 17 (AP)—A college professor, mapping a unique campaign with no stump speeches or solicitation of funds, was in the field today as the first announced candidate for governor of Arkansas at the August Democratic primary.

Dr. Walter Scott McNutt, a professor at Arkansas college, Batesville, and formerly connected with the staff of Henderson State Teachers college, said that if elected he would seek the enactment of legislation to bring prohibition to the state again.

Two Plodding Prospectors Are Searching Panhandle Section For Rich Deposits Of Gold

(By The Associated Press)

AMARILLO, Jan. 17.—Two plodding prospectors are searching in gold-bearing ore for richer diggings near bloody "Ransom trail," over which many wagon trains passed to the gold rush in California in 1849.

The two, H. L. Baker and Jim Anders have found in Potter county near the Canadian river a strata of ore which officials assays show to contain up to $8.45 worth of gold per ton and as high as 32 per cent copper.

Baker, reeared among the Indians in the Oklahoma territory, says he learned of the ore from young Indians who had heard old warriors talk about it. He says the Indians told him of a "sign trail" leading from below the caprock to the ore on the high plains.

The prospector says he started tracing the trail 40 years ago but didn't find the vicinity of the ore until two years ago.

Then, to his surprise, he found other prospectors had beaten him to it. In 1904, Judge Charles Landis sank a mine shaft in the vicinity of Baker's diggings. He gave up the venture, although he had found some gold and copper.

Centuries before Landis probed into the sandstone covered Panhandle earth a Spanish nobleman named Coronado had toured the plains in search for gold.

Coronado, according to the writings of his secretary, visited the Palo Duro canyon, vast gash in the face of the plains

Legion Chief Will Visit In Lubbock

Daniel J. Doherty of Woburn, Mass., national commander of the American Legion, will be in Lubbock for a noon address Thursday, Feb. 10, according to a message received this morning by A. C. Jackson, commander of Allen Bros. post.

He will be the third national commander and the second in succession to visit Lubbock. Those previously here were Harry W. Colmery, immediate past commander, and Ralph T. O'Neal, who was here several years ago.

Turnout Was Large

The fact that Lubbock has been placed on the itinerary of annual tours of consecutive commanders was accepted by Jackson as a recognition of the fact that the city's turnout for Colmery last year was by far the largest of any city in Texas.

Accompanying the national commander here will be W. J. Danforth of Fort Worth, Texas department commander, and Fred E. Young of Austin, state adjutant.

Committee Is Chosen

While arrangements for their reception are still tentative, Jackson immediately announced the appointment of a committee which will arrange for a special program, including a "feed," Monday night at which plans will be discussed. Members of that committee are Glen Hess, chairman; Alex McDonald, mess sergeant; and J. L. Murfee, C. C. Craig, Sam Newman, E. T. Pope, and H. I. Kiefe.

The house was practically sold out at noon today, said R. A. Mills, Artists course chairman.

Frankie Wags Bandaged Finger And Tells His Own Fish Tale

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 17 (AP)—Five-year-old Frankie Tate wagged a bandaged finger at fishermen and told his own fish story:

Tired of skating on blackbird pond, Frankie cut a hole in the ice, then shoved in his hand to test the temperature.

The hand came out like a shot—with an eight inch pickerel hanging on to his forefinger. Frankie had the pickerel for supper.

Oregon City Today Is Without Newspapers; Workers Strike

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 17 (AP)—Mankind's age-old craving to know what the Joneses did last night sought satisfaction in backfence gossip and radio broadcasts today as Portland settled down to its first day completely devoid of regularly printed news.

Three daily newspapers, closed Saturday when 245 members of the Multnomah Typographical union walked out on strike, remained shut down although thin Sunday papers, set in advance, were sold. Publishers and union representatives, while still conducting meetings seemed prepared to enter an endurance contest.

Speed Sought For Building Of Warships

Navy's Chief Of Operations Says That Any Delay Will Mean Menace To Security

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Congress received a warning from the navy's chief of operations today that any delay in the shipbuilding or aircraft programs would "jeopardize" the nation's security.

Admiral William D. Leahy, testifying before a house appropriations subcommittee on the navy's financial needs, said the international situation was so serious the United States, "must continue to maintain our national defense establishments at their highest efficiency."

Conditions Threatening

"The political conditions in the world, both in Europe and the far east, are more threatening than at any time since 1918, and are distinctly worse than a year ago," he said.

President Roosevelt is drafting a message expected to call for a naval construction program substantially in excess of present limitations.

The material condition of the navy's most powerful weapons—its battleships—is satisfactory, Leahy said but they "are rapidly approaching obsolescence."

Legal To Build Others

Under these circumstances, he explained, it would be legal for the United States, under the Vinson-Trammell act authorizing a "treaty navy," to build 13 battleships by 1942, including two now under construction and two for which an initial appropriation was included in the budget for the next fiscal year.

Admiral W. G. Du Bose, chief of the bureau of construction and repair, estimated it would take $289,000,000 to complete the 72 ships now

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 17. (AP)—A lid of silence was suddenly clamped down today as a grand jury opened a widely-heralded investigation into charges of rampant gambling, prostitution, and municipal bribery and maladministration.

"Too much publicity about what is going on before the jury might deter volunteer information," explained George A. Worley, state attorney.

One-Ton Bouquet To Be Given Mrs. Roosevelt At Amarillo

(By The Associated Press)

AMARILLO, Jan. 17—The nation's "first mother-in-law" will receive a one-ton bouquet of "better times" roses at the Mother-In-Law Day festival in Amarillo March 9.

Gene Howe, Amarillo newspaper publisher and columnist who originated the idea of Mother-in-Law Day several years ago, announced today that Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt had accepted an invitation to attend.

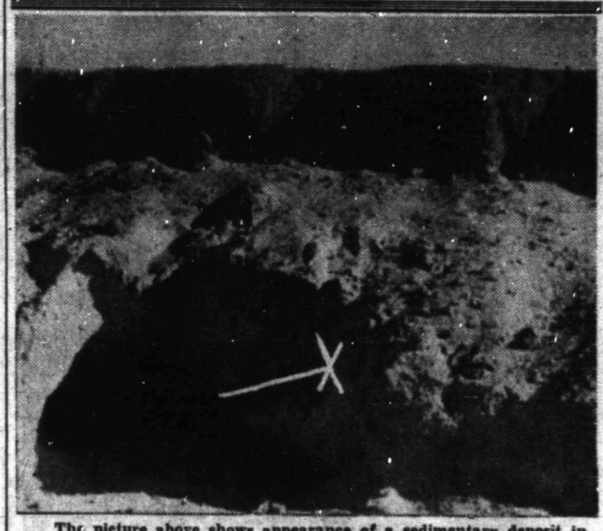

Mrs. Roosevelt will be the honor guest and will be joined by thousands of mothers-in-law at the celebration which will be featured by a parade designed to be the most colorful ever staged. More than 200,000 persons are expected.

Here's What Tech Party Found On Jaunt Into New Mexico

The picture above shows appearance of a sedimentary deposit in which a skeleton was found last Wednesday near Portales, N. M. "X" indicates position of where the head lay and the line leading from it the rest of the fossil.

Above may be seen the same sand bank after persons unauthorized had dug it back six feet, presumably in search of "buried treasure." Because the deposit had been disturbed Tech geologists, who had hoped to identify the skeleton as Folsom man, would venture no opinion on whether the fossil had been buried since earlier geological ages.

When en route to excavations in a Folsom pit, near Portales, a group of Lubbock men found Sunday—an aged man tentatively identified as "Trauber." The man presumably had shot himself fatally when attempting to crawl through the fence. Note the gun leaning on one strand of the fence, and the man's clenched fist. The head, mangled in the right temple region, lies behind the sack.

Texas Tech Scientists Balked In Efforts To Determine Age Of Deposits Near Portales

BY R. C. HANKINS
Journal Staff Writer

Possible paleontologic and geologic findings of Texas Technological college scientists were discouraged Sunday when they discovered sedimentary strata of a seven-foot bank near Portales, N. M., in which a skeleton had been found four days earlier had been dug back six feet by unknown persons believed to have been "seeking treasure."

Balked temporarily in efforts to determine geological age of the deposit and whether the deposit had been disturbed only recently, the party, headed by Dr. William Curry Holden, head of the college department of history and director of archeological research, said the skeleton would be sent to the Peabody museum of Harvard university.

Others In Local Group

Others in the Lubbock group were Dr. Leroy T. Patton, head of the geology department of Tech, and Dr. M. L. Stainbrook and Dr. Raymond Sidwell, assistant professors of geology, and Dr. C. J. Wagner of West Texas hospital.

The faculty members had hoped by studying the strata to determine whether the fossil might be classified as the long-sought Folsom man.

Handicaps Are Met

They were confronted by definite handicap, from the beginning. Workers had removed the skeleton before notifying scientists who otherwise might have taken photographs as the uncovering process went on, showing position of the Farm Session To Be Tonight

Irrigation farmers are to meet tonight in the district courtroom at 7:30 o'clock to discuss problems. Meeting is to be presided over by Robert H. Bean, chairman of the county irrigation group.

Purpose of the meeting is to discuss new crops for irrigation farms, water supply, legislation, fertilizers, vegetable production in large amounts, marketing of crops, vegetable cannery, drying sheds, alkaline problems, application for water, etc.

While vegetables do well in this area, the local market is rather poor, on the whole, as there is usually more grown than is consumed and not enough grown to market in other places, it is pointed out. The question of marketing is to be the big problem, in the event a large acreage of vegetables is planted, several leaders have pointed out.

Tonight's meeting is to be one of a series.

Two building permits for construction to cost $3,100 were issued by City Building Inspector Jim Reid this morning to increase totals for the month and year beyond the $70,000 mark.

Several other pending applications, he added, probably will shove the total today for the 17 days of the month above that for the whole of January, 1937. The total for that month was $73,412, and for January up to noon today it was $72,003.

Permits issued this morning were to A. T. Cocanougher, owner, and M. G. Dysart, contractor, for frame residence costing $2,400 at 1926 Twenty-third street; and to J. P. Oliver, for box building to cost $600 at 201 Sixteenth street.

Fifty-Fourth Addition Given Family In Birth Of Child

Birth of a girl weighing eight pounds to Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Pearson, 1511 West Eighth street, Plainview, just four days after her great-grandparents had celebrated their golden wedding anniversary was reported at West Texas hospital this morning. The baby arrived Sunday.

Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. L. S. McClellan, pioneer West Texans of Spearman, whose home was the scene of elaborate celebration of the occasion of the anniversary. At that time it was disclosed that although there were 53 direct descendants of the couple, the first death is yet to occur in the immediate family. The baby is the 54th addition to the family circle.

Mr. and Mrs. Pearson are former residents of Lubbock, having moved last May to Plainview where he is illuminating engineer for the Texas-New Mexico Utilities company. He was power salesman for the same company here before his promotion.

The Greek government recently opened a tourist trade training school to teach hotel management and to educate generally employes of bureaus dealing with tourists.

I am an advertising man

For over thirty years I have been writing advertisements for national advertisers—shoes, soap, cereals, automobiles, radios, tobacco, blankets, tooth-powder.

To me it is the most fascinating work in the world—learning about the merits of merchandise and then telling people about them—bringing greater comfort, and enjoyment, into people's lives—introducing people to new pleasures, helping them to get the most for their money.

Besides being fascinating, it is satisfying. My intimate experience with advertisers has shown me that, except for rare exceptions, the manufacturers and merchants of this nation lean over backwards to be sincere and honest.

The law of advertising is simple once one understands its working—the more people know about the merit of a product, the more people buy it. The greater the volume of sales, the less the cost to manufacture. Savings in making mean either lower prices to the consumer or greater value put back into the merchandise.

As an advertising man I can sincerely affirm that it pays to read the advertisements in the newspapers—for news of new things, for news of bargains and savings.

There are thousands of other men—and women—devoting their lives to advertising writing, who will tell you the same thing. They know!

British Golf Champ Doesn't Feel Lure Of American Gold

BY GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—Henry Cotton, regarded by many as the greatest golfer since Bobby Jones hit his peak, still doesn't feel the lure of American gold.

The swarthy Englishman has turned down every invitation to come over this season and fight it out with the American stars on their home grounds.

He doesn't need the money, and doesn't feel that he needs to come to America to prove he is the champion. When he whipped the entire American Ryder cup team in the last British open and polished off Denny Shute in their 72-hole "championship" match, Cotton decided he had done enough for the time being.

It is to be regretted, because his invasion this summer would give golf a shot-in-the-arm.

"Of course, we have hoped he would come," said an official of the United States Golf association. "But Cotton wants a big guarantee, and it is not within our province to offer one."

The British ace scarcely can be blamed.

Cotton is the hero of every golfing kid in England. He's the guy who finally set the Americans on their heads when everybody had about decided it couldn't be done. He has the sweetest teaching job in England, so many pupils that he's had to take on several extra assistants. The money is rolling in, and Henry is sitting pretty.

To cut loose from all that and come over here for a summer's free-for-all would be strictly a gamble.

Henry might come over in the summer of 1939 with the British Ryder cup team, but even that is not assured. Some think he won't come, ever.

Southwest Cage Loop May Be Jumbled Affair

Texas Aggies Give Trouble For Others

BY FELIX R. McKNIGHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Down in the Southwest conference cage standings ensconced in fifth place are the Texas Aggies — but don't weep for the gentlemen without first consulting your statistician.

It's generally conceded the idea of basketball is to wear out the little net that hangs from the barrel staves at each end of the court, and the Aggies have caught on.

Four High Scorers

Four of the five starting members of the Cadet crew can be located among the first eight scorers of the individual basketringing race, which is a colossal percentage. Heading up the parade is knock-kneed Louie Freiberger, a little item of six feet, seven inches who has draped 28 points.

Two points behind him in second place is Jimmy Clark, Aggie forward, while just three points behind him at 23 markers, is Capt. Buddy Harris. Eighth in the race is Sammy Dwyer, a guard who has sneaked up to ring in 16 counters.

May Jumble The Race

No one believes the Aggies will win the title, but such offensive antics may more than jumble the race before its all over. Into North Texas this weekend the Aggies, winner of one and loser of two, march to meet Texas Christian at Fort Worth Friday night and Southern Methodist, defending champion, Saturday night at Dallas. The Aggies focused their eyes on the basket in the waning minutes to stop Rice, 45-39, in their only game last week.

Rice, which, after all, can rest awhile on its football laurels, on Thursday and Friday night unpacks its shots in Arkansas' Fayetteville gym.

Arkansas, idle last week, could go a long way toward tying up the title by stopping Rice twice.

Ponies Break Even

The Methodists, considered a potent threat, could do no better than break even in two games. Against a weakened Baylor team they missed scoring chances frequently, falling 23-26, and only last-minute work on the foul line brought in a 29-26 win over Texas, also playing without two regulars.

Texas meanwhile, came up as more than just another entry by its strong showing against S. M. U. and a 39-18 licking they strapped on Texas Christian. Both Capt. Don White and Warren Osborne were out of the lineup for those two games.

The Longhorns, with a 2 and 1 percentage, meet Baylor at Austin Tuesday night and then rest the remainder of the week.

Originally scheduled for Saturday night at Houston was a Rice-Baylor tussle, but inability of the Owls to return from Arkansas in time for the date caused an indefinite postponement.

Sam Snead Captures Big Share Of Prize Money In Tourney Conducted By Bing Crosby

DEL MAR, Calif., Jan. 17. (AP)—For the second straight year, Sam Snead, of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., had the major share of prize money in the Bing Crosby golf tournament in his jeans today.

Slammin' Sam romped home yesterday with a new Rancho Santa Fe course record of 67, fashioned on his final round. He put together a score of 139 for 36 holes. Par for the Rancho layout is 72.

Crosby put out $3,000 in prize money and Snead took $500 for first prize in pro competition.

Playing with Doug McKinnon of Los Angeles, he also won $225—second place money in the pro-amateur contest captured by Art Bell of Pasadena and Phil Finlay of Redlands, Calif. with a total of 134.

Jimmy Hines of Garden City, N. Y. trailed Snead by two strokes and Jimmy Demaret of Houston, Tex., was third with 142. They got $350 and $250, respectively.

Gossip Of Sports Over The Nation

BY SID FEDER
Pinch Hitting For Eddie Brietz

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (AP)—This should give those Cub master-minds something to think about: when Lonnie Frey was working at second base for the Dodgers, infield grounders used to slide through his legs like greased pigs, whenever Van Mungo was pitching . . . And Van burned up — but plenty . . . It got so bad, Mungo once slammed his glove down and refused to go on 'till Frey was yanked . . . Now the grapevine says Van is ticketed for the Cubs . . . Where (you guessed it) Frey draws his pay-check. . . .

The Browns-Indians catching deal is still alive . . . Cleveland's after Rollie Hemsley . . . But the Browns won't give him up unless they get Frankie Pytlak in return . . . The Tigers are offering Hank Greenberg $30,000 — a $5,000 boost. . . . Lots of fight men can't figure out all the howl for new "foul" rules since the Steele-Apostoli and Venturi-Armstrong affairs . . . Experienced fighters insist they can't be hurt by any low blow if they're wearing the protective device approved by the athletic commission.

The tip is out that a set of rules governing ball-players playing the hosses will be handed down before spring training's over . . . As a result of Commissioner Landis' rumored investigation . . . Whenever Don Budge turns pro, it'll probably be for the same outfit handling Ellsworth Vines and Fred Perry . . . Because the three of them together would draw the most do-re-mi.

The term Euphuism, denoting a style of writing with excessive figures of speech, was derived from John Lyly's "Euphues" published in 1579.

"Journey" originally meant a day's work or travel, and the distance covered in a day, usually reckoned in the middle ages as 20 miles.

Amateurs Make Too Much Money, Net Group Declares

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 17 (AP) The United States Lawn Tennis association moved Saturday to curb excessive payments to amateurs under the heading of traveling expenses a practice Chairman Louis J. Carruthers of the amateur rule committee said had led to numerous abuses.

The association reelected President Holcombe Ward of New York and other officers. It approved a committee report awarding the 1938 Davis Cup challenge round to the Germantown Cricket Club of Philadelphia and appropriated $11,641 for junior Davis Cup teams and other junior development.

The new rule on traveling expenses prohibits lump sum or round figure payments to amateurs and provides that "such payments shall cover only expenses actually incurred."

Clubs or sub-associations are required to submit detailed reports of payments for traveling and living expenses of players within 10 days after tournaments or exhibitions.

Carruthers said in an interview that in numerous instances lump sum payments to amateurs for traveling expenses to and from tournaments were considerably in excess of actual transportation cost and left players tidy profits.

The curb on traveling expenses, he declared, eliminates one of the chief sources by which an amateur may receive payment for participation in a tournament.

Recommendations of the national ranking committee again giving J. Donald Budge of Oakland, Calif., No 1 position was approved.

Fast Program To Be Staged; 8 Matches For Titles Slated

Boxing in Lubbock reaches another important stage tonight at the Auditorium when competitors battle for championship honors and trophies in eight divisions of Golden Gloves activity.

Tonight's show, second of four scheduled at the Auditorium this month and next, begins at 8 o'clock. Advance ticket sales and "talk" over town indicate a considerably larger crowd will be on hand than that of nearly 900 which cheered through 19 fast fights last Monday night.

The same procedure regarding the handling of fighters, inside and outside the ring, that made last week's card go off in a hurry with no long pauses between bouts and no "messing around" inside the ring, will be followed tonight. Except for a regular intermission, there will be no hesitation between bouts, one fight starting immediately after the fighters of the preceding bout step from the ring.

In addition to the eight championship fights, highlighted by what may turn out to be an unusually interesting heavyweight scrap, a number of exhibition or "test" matches have been arranged. Several classy scrappers who were defeated in last Monday night's semi-finals, and several newcomers who have registered for the District Golden Gloves tournament on Feb. 7 and 8, will be pitted in enough exhibitions to round out an entertaining two-hour program.

Lineup For Tonight

The lineup for championship bouts tonight:

112-pound class—Bennie Moore of Brownfield vs. Rudy Russell of Crowell and Texas Tech.

118-pound class—Fred Pendleton of Wilson vs. J. C. Followill of Lubbock.

126-pound class—Tommy Coats of Seagraves and Texas Tech vs. Wayne Penn of Lubbock.

135-pound class—Jack Lovin, Lubbock, vs. Pete Nachlinger, Hermleigh and Texas Tech.

147-pound class—Buck Gregory, Texas Tech, vs. Clarence Little, Lorenzo.

160-pound class—Ed Morrison, Colorado and Texas Tech, vs. Yeats Causey, Ballinger and Texas Tech.

175-pound class—Bob Ritchie, Lubbock, vs. Albert Wuensche, Wilson.

Heavyweight class—Bob Bryant, Olton and Texas Tech, vs. Babe Ritchie, Lubbock.

Tonight's finals will show scrappers in two divisions which were not demonstrated last week—the bantamweight and heavyweight. Lewis Terrell, who won the district and state bantam title last year, is not defending his title, and only two others were listed in the division. Only two heavyweights reported for the city tournament. Babe Ritchie, who won district and state titles last year, is expected to find tough competition in Bob Bryant, 220-pound footballer of Texas Tech.

Five exhibition bouts have been definitely arranged. The following cards are anticipated:

Darrell Carpenter, Lubbock, vs. Melvin Reed, Ralls, flyweights.

Slim Thetford, Texas Tech vs. Tom Copeland, Texas Tech, middleweights.

Charles Gardner, Texas Tech, vs. Odell Justice, Texas Tech, welters.

Cloys Mapes, Texas Tech, vs. Robert Parks, Lubbock, flyweights.

Pat Gary, O'Donnell, vs. Thomas Payne, Lubbock, flyweights.

Texas Exes, "Bible" Plan

By Collier Parris

BOXING TONIGHT, the Golden Gloves variety, at the Auditorium.

The show, in which eight City Golden Gloves champions are to be determined, begins at 8 o'clock.

We figure you'll be there, if you went to the fight last week, or if you have been conversing with someone who did go. They were worth the money, and tonight's card promises to be better.

THAT UNIVERSITY of Texas plans to produce football teams in keeping with the size of the school and the state is indicated by statements and reports carried in a recent Associated Press story from Austin.

The athletic committee of the university ex-students association, the story goes, is to meet in Austin Saturday to discuss with Coach Bible its program of inducing promising athletes to come to the university for their education. The committee consists of representatives from each of the 15 districts into which the state has been divided.

John A. McCurdy, secretary of the ex-students association, the story continues, said the organization was attempting to accomplish these three objectives in its athletic program:

"1. Education of Texans generally, through its district organizations; to the 'so-called Bible plan,' which places emphasis on the education of young men who participate in athletics, rather than 'training football players,' and which provides for no financial offers to athletes but does help athletes work their way through school.

"2. Contacting prospective university students through its district and county committees.

"3. Raising of money to augment the university athletic council work fund."

Quoting Mr. McCurdy: "Mr. Bible wishes those ex-students who are interested financially in athletics to send their contributions to state headquarters of the ex-students' association instead of attempting to aid some young man of their own selection. These funds are disbursed at regular university student rates to those athletes who are employed as janitors at the gymnasium, to clean up the stadium, and other similar capacities."

The above story, one of the first out-and-out public announcements of recruiting plans, no doubt will precipitate a stream of protests from other institutions of the league, although it is plain to see that "nothing can be done about it." To all practical purposes, the "ex-students' association" has taken the matter out of the hands of university officials, except the disbursement of funds for turning calendar leaves, raising the flag and mending broken arrows for the archery department.

After which will come more stories like that above, as the schools vie with one another in getting the most attractive public announcements in the papers.

Anyway, it is better to see the schools come out in the open with their advertising and proselyting.

ONE E. F. NANCE, of Altoona, Pa., evidently with nothing more important to do one sluggish Monday afternoon, browsed through the football lineups and came up with his "All-Names Football team," or, as he terms it, the "Names All-America teams."

And with nothing more important this afternoon, outside of Golden Gloves, we'll repeat a few of his "Names" teams. The names are real, and the boys actually played college football last season. There's the "all-female" team, for instance:

Kate of Wooster, Hanna of Villanova, Hazel of Holy Cross, Betty of Missouri, Pegg of Bucknell, Fay of Illinois, Ruth of Syracuse, Stella of Army, Rose of Case, May of Kansas and Susano of Duquesne.

The "all-Stein" team: Stein of Oregon; Schwartstein of Upsula, Finklestein and Bernstein of Brown, Liljenstein of Middlebury, Rubenstein of Buffalo, etc.

It was easy to get an all-Jones team, and this list includes the Jones from Creighton. There's an all-German team, with Schweitzer of Amherst, Friedrichs of Tulane, etc.

A Texas Tech player makes good on the all-Murphy team. Tackle A. B. Murphy of Tech landing on the club along with the Murphys of Detroit, Notre Dame, Villanova, Colgate, Penn, Lafayette, etc.

Then there's the all-football team, consisting of Rushing of Texas A. & M., Buck of Johns Hopkins, Crouch of S. M. U., Ball of Oklahoma, Mark of N. C. State, Pelt of Lowell Textile, Riffle of Albright, Quick of Bucknell, Downes of Harvard, Gaines of Michigan State and Klick of Bucknell.

Mungo Ranks Ahead Of The Great Diz

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 17 (AP) —One of the best known farmers in these parts stalked out of the hogpen to talk a little baseball.

And during the course of the conversation, Farmer Burleigh Grimes led with his chin and declared:

"In my opinion, Van Lingle Mungo is a better pitcher than Dizzy Dean."

Even so, Grimes asserted a trade involving Mungo "still could be made," if cash were included. But otherwise the big righthander will be in a Brooklyn uniform this year.

"We won't trade him at what's been offered so far. I've heard we were offered three ball players and $75,000. I know about the three ball players—and I wouldn't have them—but I wasn't there when they talked cash, too.

"Everybody seems to think I want to get rid of Van. I don't. I think he's a great pitcher, and he's got good years ahead of him. Not only that, but he's a good hitter and knows how to field.

"If we don't trade Van, he'll pitch for us, all right, and win."

Moseley Gets Baseball Post

HENDERSON, Jan. 17 (AP)—C. P. Moseley of Jacksonville, a former Baylor university coach, will head the East Texas baseball league through its 1938 season.

Moseley, who succeeds J. Walter Morris, head of the loop the last two years, was selected here yesterday at the annual winter meeting of directors.

Schedule Adopted

A schedule calling for 140 games, drawn by Harry Faulkner, business manager of Longview, was adopted, and opening and closing dates set at April 20 and August 28.

Tyler will open at Longview; Kilgore at Henderson, Jacksonville at Palestine, and Texarkana at Marshall.

Directors also voted to adopt a new official ball, decided on a revised constitution, and planned an all star game between northern and southern division clubs on July 19, site to be selected later.

Class D Baseball League For South Texas To Be Formed

CORPUS CHRISTI, Jan. 17. (AP) —Backers of a proposed class D baseball league for South Texas laid plans today to effect permanent organization of the loop at a meeting here next Sunday.

Representatives of Corpus Christi, Harlingen, Brownsville, Refugio, and Laredo announced these cities ready to enter clubs, at a preliminary meeting here yesterday.

Those present expressed belief a six-club league was a certainty, and that an eight club circuit may materalize in negotiations to be concluded this week.

John C. Calhoun, vice president of the United States under John Quincy Adams, was the only one ever to resign from that office.

Shreveport Businessmen Given Week's Grace To Raise Cash

DALLAS, Jan. 17 (AP)—Shreveport businessmen today had a week's grace on their option for purchase of the Galveston, Tex., franchise in the Texas league.

J. Alvin Gardner, circuit president, said here last night an extension of the option was granted because leaders in the drive to finance the Louisiana city's re-entrance in the league would not have time to contact all interested before the original expiration of the option at midnight tonight.

Both Gardner and Henry O'Neal, president of the Shreveport Chamber of Commerce, expressed confidence the deal would go through.

JUDGING from what has come to light since Saturday morning, when he was announced as a nominee for the Supreme court bench, and from everything that has been known of him in the years before, Solicitor General Stanley Reed is the best choice President Roosevelt could have made.

We believe that from reading the Kentuckian's record—and we take further belief as result of statements by Senator Connally, of Texas, and Senator Burke, of Nebraska, both real Democrats and both defenders of the constitution and the court.

Said Senator Connally: "Mr. Reed is an able, accomplished lawyer of the conservative type."

Said Senator Burke: "He has all the qualifications to make an outstanding judge."

Readers will remember that Senators Connally and Burke were in the forefront of the battle last year when President Roosevelt was pursuing his ill-advised and impatient fight to take over the judiciary.

When one remembers what the President might have done in the way of a nomination—and when one recalls his last appointment of Alabama's Black—one cannot help but cheer the appointment of Mr. Reed.

FDR could have sent in the name of Frank Murphy, weak-kneed governor of Michigan to whom he owes a political debt and who was one of those "in line" for the appointment.

He could have duplicated his cabinet appointment of "Modom Secretary Perkins" and nominated Florence Allen or some other woman with a law degree.

And he could even have honored one of his staunch Washington supporters, San Antonio's crackpot representative, Maury Maverick; or Felix Frankfurter, or Tom Corcoran, or Ben Cohen or any of a number of parlor pinks.

The Plainsman believes almost everybody will join in a glad chorus of approval of President Roosevelt's latest court nomination.

WHILE all too few people realize the fact, Lubbock's gradually growing stockyards business is becoming one of the city's most valuable industries.

The Plainsman wouldn't be surprised if, before long, we are pointing with community pride to that section of town lying along John Santa Fe's right-of-way, from Broadway to about 15th street.

From a small beginning it has grown almost miraculously.

Like many another desk-bound business man, The Plainsman rarely gets out of that part of town bounded on the east by Avenue H, on the north by Main street, on the south by 13th and on the west by Avenue L.

But he was down in the stockyards district the other day shortly after noon and he got an eyeful of activity that most of us don't realize is right under our very noses.

Incidentally, the department of animal husbandry out at Tech knows about our stockyards—and has known about it for quite a spell. That august educator, Prof. Wenzel Launcelot Stangel, has been using the sales and other activities down there for a training ground for his young hopefuls.

JUST as one example of the value of that stockyards business—and The Journal is soon going to get more information so that other examples may be given the public—was stumbled across in a brief conversation between The Plainsman and Dick Roberts.

Mr. Roberts, manager of the Lubbock Hog company and representative of the Leuer Packing company, Los Angeles, remarked that since his firm has been in business here it has bought 10 million dollars worth of South Plains stock—principally hogs—and shipped it to the West coast plant.

And if our memory serves us right, Mr. Roberts has been in our midst not over five years—perhaps not quite that long.

We don't know at the moment about the record of other concerns, like Bob Harvey's Armour business. Neither do we have any information concerning the business being carried on by Kirby McDonald in the horse and mule line, or any of the others.

But we do know that the crowded stockyards district is a beehive of activity much of the time and that it is bound to contribute much to the general business picture of Lubbock.

INCIDENTALLY, Mr. Roberts also remarked that South Plains hogs are the best porkers being grown in the United States.

Naturally, The Plainsman wanted to know why, and Dick explained his theory.

"The northern hogs," he said, "get a lot of green stuff. Our hogs do not. The result is, South Plains hogs produce a firmer meat. The difference in the meat is readily discernible to anyone who knows pork."

Pointing out that the hog population in this area has suffered in the face of big cotton crops and government subsidies, Mr. Roberts believes farmers are making a mistake in not raising more porkers for market.

It's surprising how much one can learn in a few minutes conversation over in the stockyards district.

For instance, we also learned from Mr. Roberts about a German gent who lives about 90 miles west of here in Cochran county—right on the New Mexico line. The man's name is, as best Mr. Roberts could say, George Fermilner.

It seems that Mr. Fermilner is pretty much of a wizard at finishing cattle and that he can top the Kansas City market almost any time he sends any stock up there.

His name and fame, as a result, is spreading quite rapidly.

IF you're interested in Lubbock's amazing growth and expansion over the past couple of years, and in what it's liable to do in the next couple, you really ought to slip over to the stockyards section sometime.

If you're like The Plainsman, and have been sitting here without any idea of what's going on over there, it will be an education—and an eye-opener—for you.

If it will help keep any more tripe concerning the incident out of the papers, The Plainsman here and now offers his blessing to the advertised marriage of Eleanor Holm Jarrett and Billie Rose.

As we see it, they're both getting stung—and the sooner the better!

Yesterday: The crisis of the sacrifice is met when Bob rises to the occasion and tells the strange people the Sun God wants only happiness on this earth.

CHAPTER XXI

The celebration continued until well past noon, and Bob was forced to do some tactful hinting in order to get more food for himself and 'Lissa.

"Evidently white gods aren't supposed to eat much," Bob grumbled, good-naturedly. "I'd give a lot to sit down to one of Honey Bee's meals right now."

"Me too!" 'Lissa greed. "Say, I wonder what's happening back in camp, Bob? Don't you imagine Uncle Hades is likely to start after us?"

"Your guess is as good as mine. It all depends on what the cook tells. Unfortunately, we ordered her not to tell anything, you know. We've got to get out of here as soon as possible."

Bob need not have worried about their escape, for the brown people themselves had been planning. When the huge bonfire had died down and the merrymaking subsided, the chieftain approached Bob, with great deference. The two men talked with signs and a few words which Bob had picked up, for more than an hour. A ring of villagers stood around to watch, at respectful distance.

"I think we understand each other, at last," Bob eventually said to 'Lissa. "The chief here is begging a boon for his people. He petitions us never to reveal the location of their village to their enemies."

'Lissa stared questioningly at Bob.

"Who are their enemies? Now, I mean?"

"Nobody. But they don't understand that. Their word-of-mouth history tells of raiding cutthroats, who drove their ancestors out of the cliff castle, you know. They fled here to hide. They've been hiding for a long time, and they don't know anything else."

"Oh—that's right. And I don't much blame them, Bob."

"Nor I. They begged us not to destroy them ourselves, too. I promised, provided we would have an escort back up the cave trail."

'Lissa wasn't sure she wanted ever to see the inside of any cave again. But Bob told her there might be no other way out of the box canyon, even with dangerous climbing. The brown chief said so, his people surely ought to know. Rock walls can be defiant of man.

"However, I'll bet Hades Jones and Holliman and I could figure a way to get out," Bob was staring speculatively at the cliffs. "Take some lengths of rope, spiked shoes, a short miner's pick, and—"

"Bob, aren't you assuming too much, though? These people have no rope. Or shoes. Or metal tools of any kind."

"That's right, sweetheart. But I was just supposing. Anyhow I want to go back through the cave. We'll have a guide back to my lost shoulder pack. And I marked our own way down to there, you remember."

'Lissa shuddered, in memory. But she nodded agreement.

"Will you come back here soon?" she asked, looking up at his eyes.

He hesitated a long while before answering. "What do you think? Would you?" He kissed her full on the lips. "I'm going to be busy for a while, getting married, and making love, and—"

She blushed at that, smiled at him. "Most gentlemen make love to girls first, then get married sir!"

"Not me! I'm going to make love right along, true enough, but believe me Miss Lane you're going to marry your business partner as quickly as we can get a license and a preacher."

"Fraid I'd run away?" she teased.

"Maybe. Wouldn't blame you a lot. I'm taking no chances."

"But honey." She snuggled to him then. "You will want to see this place again, and you know it. This would fascinate any archaeologist.

"'Lissa girl, this experience has been bigger than any archaeology, or any other science. It's not real, yet it is. It's almost unbelievable. The living dead. The existing past. I know it's a heaven for an archaeologist, in one way. But you've done something to me here. Don't forget also that we're demigods in this village, supernatural. Just imagine it—the only white people they've ever seen or heard of. These folk still live back in the fourteenth century, in effect."

"I know, Bob. I have thought about it all day. It would be cruel, inhuman to disturb them."

"I'll say! Imagine the newspapers. And the newsreel cameramen. And the tourists, and hot dog stands and filling stations popping up on the new road out here—gosh!"

The enormity of the affair impressed them both. So called white civilization can be very heartless, for all its greatness. The Lost Kingdom would be overrun with white men in a week's time. In a year its people would be disintegrated, scattered, confused, saddened, their contentment and perhaps their very existence doomed.

"Mary Melissa," Bob was very gentle and very serious, "let's never tell. Let's keep it our love secret—yours and mine. We found our own happiness here. Why destroy theirs? Let's—let's allow one aboriginal American race to stay unmolested by whites, and so work out its own destiny!"

Against his chest she sobbed a little, reached up and patted his now stubble-covered cheek. "Robert Barry," she murmured, "I would have loved you in any event, but right now I think you are the greatest man who ever lived!"

Bob managed to obtain a bit of dried meat for their food, but they had to spend another night in the canyon village. They slept again in the chieftain's house. Many presents were brought to them—mostly useless, valueless, but evidently highly-prized ceremonial sticks, fetishes, feather ornaments, and other things with religious significance to the brown folk. Bob showed gratitude as best he could, and returned them. It was toward midnight before they could get to lie down. They slept at once, soundly, happily.

The chief himself selected a guide for them next day, a young brown lad who appeared signally honored. Probably he had a reward coming to him, Bob suggested to 'Lissa, and this was it.

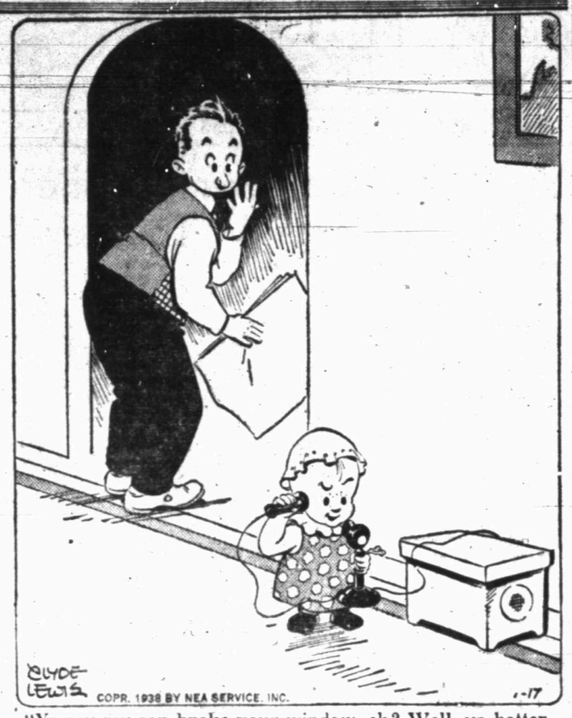

He hadn't far to lead them, really. Bob wanted to explore the cave, but he resisted all temptation to take back any evidence of the cave or the hidden valley. When the guide found their pack, and Bob located his own chalk trail markers, he turned and addressed the brown boy.

The lad never understood, but he was obviously impressed with Bob's speech. Bob then opened the blades of his pocket knife, indicated its possible use, and gave it to the boy. Short of life itself, he couldn't have offered anybody a gift more wonderful. The boy's happiness was almost divine.

When the lad had disappeared back down the subterranean trail and his torchlight was no longer visible, Bob held his own light and —taking 'Lissa's hand—led the way slowly upward, alone with her again.

A HIGHLY COMMENDABLE MOVE

Proposal of West Texas and Eastern New Mexico peace officers to establish a short-wave broadcasting station will, if carried out as planned strike one of the most powerful blows possible for the cause of law enforcement in the immense area involved.

The greatest problem officers have faced in comparatively recent years has been the ease and speed with which the criminal can leave the scene of his crime. The near-perfect answer to that problem has been found, by experiments in other states, to be the radio blockade.

As operated in other states and as planned in this area, according to County Judge Alvin R. Allison of Levelland who is president of the peace officers' association, every official automobile equipped with a receiving set and every road, crossing and bridge is given a particular designation. Thus, the operator of the broadcasting station is in position to move the officers about as he might move checkers on a board in the effort to surround the spot where the fleeing fugitive last was seen.

The plan has worked in other states and The Evening Journal joins with all law-abiding citizens in commending the efforts which seemingly assure early establishment of the same system for the South Plains and our neighbors in Eastern New Mexico.

Hollywood Chit-Chat

BY PAUL HARRISON
Journal Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 17.—Dolores Costello has come back to celluloid, and everybody from the watchman at the gates to the toughest director on the sets is wishing her luck.

A stroll with her across the Warner lot at noontime offers proof enough of what old-timers think of the blue-eyed, golden-haired actress who quit pictures seven years ago at the crest of her stardom.

Prop men, electricians, wardrobe women, hairdressers, cameramen—all of them greet her, and in turn are hailed by their first names.

They also look back, some of them, to the years of "The Sea Beast," "Glorious Betsy," "Hearts in Exile," and "Noah's Ark," and they wonder, naturally, whether any such triumphs are in store for the future. The comeback road is hard.

Prettier Than Ever

Miss Costello's chances seem better than those of other dimmed stars because, for one thing, she went out voluntarily. And for another reason, because she hasn't changed in appearance, unless favorably. At 32, she's younger than many a current feminine star, and still can play romantic leads.

It's a romantic lead she has in "Girls on Probation," a picture which she describes as dealing with "a select reformatory." Originally intended only as an unassuming little program piece, it has turned out so well that the studio has boosted it into the A rating.

When Miss Costello retired, it was to devote herself to her children, husband and home, believing that one actor in the family was enough. But the actor didn't remain in the family very long. After the divorce from John Barrymore she continued in retirement, traveling a good deal and spending her time with Dolores Ethel Mae Barrymore, now 7, and John Blythe Barrymore, 5.

Manages Own Affairs

In 1936 Miss Costello emerged for the role of Freddie Bartholomew's mother in "Little Lord Fauntleroy." She followed it with only one picture, a very bad one called "Yours for the Asking," which she entered unwillingly.

Afterward she traveled again, returning last summer and buying a substantial home in Los Angeles, well removed from Hollywood and Beverly Hills.

"I've kept busy managing my business affairs," she said. "Do it all myself, and really find it fun.

"The children? Well, from the way they're always acting, I'd judge they're bound for the screen eventually, but I'm trying not to influence them in any way until they want to make a choice. Why, only a few weeks ago they asked me if I was ever a movie actress. They hadn't known."

Dolores Was No Whale

Miss Costello was an actress when she was their age, playing little boy roles. Later she became a model, danced in Broadway shows, and was brought to Hollywood by Warner Brothers for "The Sea Beast."

Barrymore, also cast in that adaptation of "Moby Dick," was concerned lest the picture should have no romantic interest. He pointed out that it just wouldn't do for him to marry a whale.

But the scenarists put in plenty of heart throbs and pretty soon Barrymore found himself actually marrying the leading lady.

She was popular at once, and became the star of pictures directed by the newly-imported Michael Curtiz.

Once She Didn't Laugh

At first Curtiz couldn't speak a word of English, but he could swear in seven other languages. Most people took his tantrums seriously, as when he chased a terrified bearded lady all over the lot, but Miss Costello just laughed.

Only time she didn't laugh was one evening after an exhausting week of day-and-night work punctured by the director's explosions.

She told him in three languages that he was wasting his talents on the wrong side of the camera—and then walked out.

The actress still is a little ashamed of that incident; says it was the only temperamental thing she ever did in her life.

Imaginary Trip To Hawaii Scheduled

Mothers will accompany their children Tuesday when they take an imaginary trip to Hawaii as a culmination of their study in Mrs. Ivy Savage's room in Dupre school. The trip will be taken during the afternoon, and each mother will be wearing a lei made by the children as a part of their social science.

A native dance, in real hula hula skirts, will be done by Beverly Ann Giles, Ann Wharton and D'Aun Corcorran as a part of the program to be given for mothers and guests.

During their study of Hawaii the 39 children in Mrs. Savage's room heard Mrs. Bradford Knapp tell of her trip there, made posters, pictures and charts, grafts showing the difference in temperature in Lubbock and Hawaii, and grafs showing the comparative size of the islands. They have also learned Hawaiian songs which they will sing at their program Tuesday.

Miss Ioway Claunch, a student in Texas Tech, who has lived in Hawaii told the children about life there, and Mrs. Clemma Wade Boyd played for them on her Hawaiian guitar.

Alien Labor Agitator Goes "On Spot" Soon-- Unless "Miss Perkins" Changes Her Mind

BY RODNEY DUTCHER.
Journal Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 — Harry Bridges, spectacular west coast regional director of the C. I. O., will be placed on the spot within the next few weeks at a Department of Labor hearing to pass on charges that he is legally deportable.

Rodney Dutcher

That is, unless Secretary Frances Perkins — who hasn't announced her decision — exercises the feminine prerogative of changing her mind.

Actual deportation of a major labor leader and conspicuous aide to John L. Lewis would be a cause celebre in labor history. But although there has been heavy pressure on the Labor department both from west coast employers and enemies of Bridges within the labor movement, Bridges — an Australian citizen who has taken out first citizenship papers in this country — is a long way from being deported.

Denies He's Communist

Bridges is charged, in depositions brought by members of labor organizations outside the C. I. O., with being a member of the communist party. In some depositions it is alleged that he was present at major deliberations of the "inner circle" of that party on the Pacific coast.

The C. I. O. leader, however, has repeatedly denied that he was a member of the communist party. He would not be legally deportable unless it were proved that he belonged to an organization which sought overthrow of the government by force and violence, as charged, or that he himself had advocated overthrow of government by force and violence, which is not charged.

Immigration lawyers say it would be necessary, in order to deport Bridges, to prove not only that he was a party member, but also that the communist party advocated overthrow of the government by force and violence.

They point out that although the party has in the past been held to be that kind of an organization, the "party line" has been shifted in recent years and the question will have to be decided all over again.

The hearing probably will be held at Seattle by an inspector designated by the department, who will send his recommendations to a board of review here. The board's findings will be subject to approval by Secretary Perkins.

Monopolies All There

The $100 a plate Jackson Day dinner in Washington, at which Roosevelt again denounced monopolies, was not as heavily attended as previous similar occasions. But the lawyer-lobbyists turned out in force and it seemed doubtful whether any monopoly or semi-monopoly was not represented in a crowd otherwise largely made up of government officials and members of Congress.

Fence-Makers Gain

Among all the things that seem to be the matter with the farm bill now in conference, the administration — and many farmers — have picked on the Bolleau-McNary amendment. The amendment provides that acres taken out of cotton, corn or other production can't be used to feed livestock when the livestock or its products (such as milk, eggs and butter) are to be taken off the farm.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace thinks this proposal would be even more unenforceable than the unpopular potato act which the Supreme court killed.

The general program would be sufficiently difficult to administer without that one, he feels. The amendment tends toward setting up a geographic monopoly at a time when various surveys show that American children as a group are getting far from an adequate quantity of milk.

The amendment fails to suggest a method for AAA to keep track of just which cows graze in which fields. It leaves unsolved the problem of how to keep millions of chickens from wandering into forbidden acreage. But it does seem to play into the hands of the U. S. Steel Corporation's wire fence subsidiaries.

Ask The Master Psychologist
Dr. La. Rose, Ps. D.

How to obtain Love, Happiness, Success, being loved and admired for yourself alone, capturing the hearts and friendship of all about you, can bring you more happiness than all the jewels and fine clothes you could wear than all the wealth you could spend in a lifetime. Without friendship and love, life would not be worth living, for admiration and affection are the breath and heart beat of all human happiness. Within you is a power that controls your destiny. It is in every woman and man, but few discover it. Those who do are blessed with the key to Life's Happiness. With all my heart I urge you to bring forth this innate charm that is yours Develop it, and you will attract to yourself those things that make life worth while. You are helpless in the hands of women who have learned how to use their hidden powers of attraction. You have these powers. You can discover and develop them and swiftly make yourself irresistible to men . . even in competition with women far more attractive-looking. You can win and hold the love of the one you want. So if in doubt, ask the man who knows.

Negro Bandit Knew What He Wanted—And He Got It

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 17 (AP)—The negro who held up a drug store last night knew what he wanted—and got it.

"This is a holdup," he said, pointing a pistol at Gordon Hunt, a clerk.

"Well, what do you want?" asked Hunt.

"Six dollars," said the robber.

Hunt peeled a $1 and $5 bill from a roll of currency in the cash register. The negro grabbed them and ran.

A move is on foot to dam England's Thames river. Advocates say it would make the river more accessible to shipping by substituting an artificial lake for the daily tides.

Cotton Market

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 17 (AP)—Cotton futures opened quiet but steady here today and initial transactions were three points below the previous close.

Buying support was small and limited to scale down trade calling. Cables were not as good as expected and induced some liquidation in early dealings.

March contracts opened at 8.63, May at 8.70, July at 8.74 bid, Oct., 8.80 and Dec. at 8.82 bid. Trading continued quiet and near the end of the first half hour prices remained at their opening figures.

The French cabinet crisis and an unsettling effect on sentiment but selling orders were small and enough demand developed during the morning to hold prices steady.

Towards mid-session May traded at 8.69, July 8.75 and Oct. at 8.79, or 3 to 4 points net lower.

Trading continued quiet during the first part of the session and was limited to professional transactions.

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (AP)—Cotton futures opened 3 to 5 lower on disappointing cables and under liquidation and hedge selling. March 8.51; May 8.57; July 8.61; Oct. 8.69; Dec. 8.72.

The market moved over a narrow range in quiet trading during the remainder of the morning. May reacted from 8.58 to 8.54 and around midday was selling at 8.55, with prices generally 4 to 7 points net lower.

Trading was quiet with the influence of easier foreign markets partly offset by trade and commission house buying. May reacted from 8.57 to 8.55 and shortly after the first half hour the market showed net losses of 4 to 6 points.

Stock Market

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (AP)—Profit realizing took the rallying edge off the stock market today, although a few aircrafts and specialties managed to contest the trend.

Dealings were exceptionally slow, with the ticker tape frequently motionless. Declines were in the majority near the fourth hour.

Brokers seemed encouraged by the lightness of offerings and attributed the moderate set-back, following a slightly higher opening, mainly to the desire of some speculative forces to cash in on last week's substantial advance.

Bonds and commodities were uneven. The French franc recovered briskly in terms of the dollar notwithstanding failure thus far in the organization of a new cabinet at Paris.

Losses running to a point or so were registered for U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Du Pont, Allied Chemical, Anaconda, Kennecott, American Telephone, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, Electric Power & Light, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Union Carbide and International Paper & Power preferred.

In the resistant division were Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, Sperry, Chesapeake & Ohio, Northern Pacific, J. C. Penney, Newport Industries, Electric Boat, Deere and Woolworth.

Safety Classes

mass meeting will depend on when and whether Capt. George Schauer, head of the safety division of the state highway patrol, can accept an invitation to be the principal speaker. Capt. W. W. Legge, head of Lubbock district of the patrol, is to extend an invitation to Capt. Schauer on behalf of the council and expressed the belief that he probably will be in position to accept. Capt. Schauer now is in Tennessee making a traffic safety survey.

Meeting Set Tonight

Conley also announced that operators of taxicab and bus companies and of the other concerns with commercial vehicles will meet at the American Legion hall at 7 o'clock tonight to plan further participation of commercial vehicle operators in the safety movement.

One of the matters to be submitted will be the agreement of such operators that employes convicted of various phases of reckless driving will be discharged and that others will not hire them. Plans for a substantial award for the commercial vehicle driver with the best record through the year and for the distribution of emblems to drivers participating in the campaign also will be discussed. The emblems, Conley said, will be of a type the driver can display in or on his vehicle.

Legion Chief

ed to have charge of general arrangements, including the extending of personal invitations to every Legion post on the South Plains to be represented. Lubbock will be one of the three stops in West Texas of the national commander's party.

His itinerary in Texas will be Mineola, Greenville and Waco on Feb. 7; Houston and LaGrange on Feb. 8; the state Legion hospital and Abilene on Feb. 9; and Lubbock and Amarillo on Feb. 10.

Doherty, an attorney by profession, was elevated to the national commandership after serving through the successive stages of post, county, department, area and national offices. Soon after his discharge from the navy in 1919 he assisted in the organization of the local post at Woburn.

Offices he has held in the Legion have included those of post and state commander of Massachusetts; secretary, judge advocate and commander of the Middlesex county council; department vice commander; chairman of the department legislative and war orphans' committees; member for three years of the war orphans' committee; national vice commander in 1934; and chairman of the national rehabilitation committee in 1935. His selection as national commander in the 1937 convention was on the first ballot.

Ballet Here

and Houston en route for an appearance in New Orleans, La.

Assisting the stage crew in arranging the high school auditorium stage today were ten stage hands, college students supplied by the Lubbock sponsors. Three 20-foot trucks were used in delivering the scenery. Elaborate lighting effects will be used. A dimmer board necessitated the placing of a special cable in the building which carries as many amperes as that already supplying light.

Four ballets from the most popular works in the repertory of the Jooss Ballet will be offered the Lubbock audience tonight for the company's first appearance in this city.

The four numbers are "The Big City," "A Ball in Old Vienna," "Ballade," and "The Green Table". Critics everywhere have been lavish in praise of the ballets which are staged by a company of 22 young dancers wearing beautiful costumes unique in design.

The Jooss Ballet comes to America direct from triumphs in Europe. While ballets known to our public have been based heretofore mostly on mythological and classical themes drawn from fancy and folk-lore, the Jooss company draws its inspiration mostly from the life of today. The exception, of course, is the ballet of the "Ball in Old Vienna."

Stories To Be Told

"The Big City" tells the story of a crowded European boulevard with a busy, hurrying throng of working girls, newsboys, the man about town and children playing in the street.

"The Green Table" is a satire on conferences in which the batters of secret diplomacy take place.

"Ballade" is a tale of medieval lore.

Simplicity is the credo of the Jooss ballet. Tragedy, comedy and satire are achieved through the medium of dance movements and facial expression, though not a word is spoken.

Naval Program

under construction and $228,000,000 to finish 23 vessels for which initial appropriations were sought for the 1939 fiscal year.

Rear Admiral H. E. Kimmel, navy budget officer, told the committee 16 more ships and 117 new airplanes would be operated in the coming fiscal year than the navy had during the current fiscal year. He said the new ships would be larger and stronger, have more offensive armament and "better ability to withstand damage."

Work For 77,000 Men Will Be Provided In New Program

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP)—The United States' new warship building program, tentative statistics showed today, will provide work in the next fiscal year for 77,000 men.

This estimate was made by navy officials on the basis of recommendations in President Roosevelt's 1939 budget message. Requests for supplementary construction are expected in his national defense message, which may be sent to congress in a few days.

Asks Huge Expenditure

The 1939 budget asked for an expenditure of $134,000,000 for new construction. Of this sum, 122,500,000 is for new warships, but the whole $134,000,000 may be considered in estimating the employment to be provided.

Add an estimated 20 to 25 per cent for the supplementary estimates, and the total comes to about $163,000,000.

Naval officials say 85 per cent of the cost of a warship goes for labor. This means labor will receive about $138,550,000.

Officials figure the average labor cost at $6 a day for each man. This means that 23,091,000 working days will be paid for.

diplomat Georges Bonnet.

Russia's new parliament, the supreme Soviet, selected Michael Kalinin as chairman of its permanent presiding committee, the presidium, thus giving him under the new constitution the post of virtual president of the Soviet union he had held since 1923.

Stalin Is Member

Joseph Stalin, secretary-general of the communist party, was named a member of the presidium, which consists of a chairman, 11 vice chairmen, a secretary and 24 other members. The presidium was empowered by constitutional amendment on Saturday to proclaim a state of war or martial law in national emergencies.

A Chinese war dispatch provided a concrete example of the aid given to Generalissimo Chiang by the Russian government. At least 100 Russian planes, mostly bombers, and more than 100 Soviet pilots and mechanics were operating from the Nanchang air base, about 400 miles southwest of Shanghai, against Japanese flying fields and troop concentrations.

Cotton Damaged—Fire that originated when the cotton was ginned, broke out in some 40 to 50 bales of cotton at the Lubbock compress Sunday. The city department was called to extinguish the blaze. No estimate of the probable loss was made, said Supt. Chas. Stilwell of the compress. The cotton came from several gins over the territory.

skeleton and the strata in which it had reposed. Or they might have placed a guard over the deposits and notified scientists of international repute to supervise the removal, recognized as difficult. That would have allowed of incontrovertible proof the fossil had lain in definite formation and would have provided conditions more adaptable to study of geological conditions.

But, it was decided by Tech and Eastern New Mexico Junior college faculty members, the overshadowing yen for gain over scientific knowledge probably had precluded chances for determining whether the skeleton had been in the deposit since earlier geological age or had been placed there later in burial rites.

Dead Man Is Found

Scientific reverie was shaken early in the afternoon when, en route to visit excavation in a Folsom pit identified with the work of Dr. E. B. Howard of the University of Pennsylvania museum, the "manhunt" developed into attempts at identifying a dead man found alongside the road.

Two miles northeast of Portales, the party, which had been joined that morning by Dr. H. B. Carroll of the social science department of the college there, and Mrs. Carroll; Dr. Gilford Ikenberry of the science department; A. E. Hunt, director of public relations; Jimmie Drake, J. G. Greaves and G. K. Greaves, all of the Portales Daily News; Howard Jones, superintendent of the Eastern New Mexico State park; Forrest Wood, guard of the Folsom pit in the Hugh Mill pasture where the skeleton was found, stopped to investigate the finding of a body.

Believed Accident Victim

An aged man was lying just beyond the fence to the north, a gun leaning on the barbed wire strand. Presumably he had shot himself accidentally in attempting to climb through the fence.

Dr. Wagner, introduced to Sheriff R. L. Hollis, offered to examine the man but Sheriff Hollis, waiting for the justice of peace, averred his certainty of the man's death, since he had looked over the fence at him.

Dr. Wagner, who examined the skeleton temporarily stored in a laboratory of the junior college, expressed opinion from size of the pelvis it was of a male.

The pit where the fossil had been recovered is two miles south and 15 west of Portales, in the eastern end of the Portales valley.

Rich In Folsom Remains

Members of the Portales group said that general section is rich in Folsom remains, of fossilized elephants, bison, horses and the like. Scientists express belief, because of Folsom points found in vertebra and leg bones, to mention only two specific cases, there would be found more evidence of Folsom man, hoping eventually to uncover his skeleton.

Dr. Howard excavated approximately seven miles north and a mile west of Portales.

Members of Sunday's party said, however, the public must "give cooperation if findings of scientific value result." Since "publications of Coronado's Children," said another, "the public has got the idea where human skeletons are found there is likely to be wealth in gold. It has made for a great handicap to those seeking to adduce scientific facts. When someone finds a bone deemed of importance he should not dig it out, but should report his findings to those engaged in scientific pursuits." They, in turn, can notify those more eminently prepared to remove the fossil. Until that time our work will be hampered and invaluable facts possibly be hidden."

Bride Denies Snakes Had Part In Her Wedding Sunday Night

(By The Associated Press)

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., —Mrs. Joseph Sam Brantley said today "there were no snakes" connected with her wedding in Tampa last night.

Mrs. Brantley, the former Mrs. Hezel R. Carpenter of West Palm Beach, denied reports that she and Brantley, an Arcadia, Fla., business man, had snakes entwined about their necks at the time of the ceremony.

She said they were married in the home of friends and "perhaps two hours afterward we were inspecting a curio shop connected with the home, when someone brought in a gopher snake. One of the wedding party was scared of it, and I handled it and put it across my shoulders to show it was harmless. That's all there was to it. Yes, they took a picture of us with the snake, but it had nothing to do with the wedding and there was no hatful of snakes, as reported."

A dispatch from Tampa had said snakes, instead of the traditional rice and old shoes, were flung at the couple after the ceremony.

L. G. WILSON

PLAINVIEW, Jan. 17 (Special)—L. G. Wilson, 74, first district attorney of the 64th judicial district and father of Maple Wilson, member of the board of trustees of Lubbock independent school district, died in a sanitarium here Sunday afternoon after a brief illness with pneumonia.

Funeral services were to be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ethel Sanford, a daughter. His widow also survives.

Wilson had been a resident of the area more than half a century and took an active part in bringing about the creation of Hale county in 1876 and in the organization in 1888.

Boy Scout Troop Is Organized At State's School For Boys

GATESVILLE, Jan. 17 (AP) — Two dozen boys at the Gatesville reformatory recently promised to do their duty to God and their country, to obey the scout law, to help other people at all times, and to keep themselves physically strong, mentally awake, and morally straight.

A boy scout troop of 24 members was organized at the reformatory by George Powell of Waco, scout executive of the Heart O'Texas council.

The boys had been selected by reformatory officials because of their age, from 12 to 14, and records at the training school. When they leave the reformatory they will be given transfers to scout troops in their home communities. Other boys will be selected to take their place in the reformatory troop.

Two Prospectors

south of Amarillo, and other points in the Texas Panhandle and New Mexico in search of Quivira, a fabulous city of gold, which is considered by modern historians to have been one of the famous seven cities of Cibola.

Since that time—1540—many prospectors, some with stirring tales of cities of gold and hidden treasures and all of them with some sort of a map obtained by a friend from a dying old Mexican, have plodded along the streams and foothills of the plains in search of gold.

Old-time cowmen say prospectors used to drop into cowcamps and tell tall tales of treasures, lost mines and hunks of gold. With these reports they let it be known that all they needed was one more grubstake.

So far as authentic records show, Baker and Andrews have found more gold than all of the rest of the plains prospectors. They have sent their ore to smelters at Amarillo, Dumas, Denver and El Paso for assays and found that the gold content is near the pay-dirt figure.

The high copper content in the ore would be more profitable in a mining enterprise then the gold. The prospectors are planning additional tests before shipping any of the ore to a smelter for a carload test.

The Texas spur of the southern route to California in the gold rush days was named "Ransom trail" because many persons, say old legends of the west, were kidnapped by Indians and outlaws and held for ransom or killed.

Huge Bouquet

may have floats in the parade.

The bouquet of roses, say veteran florists, will be the largest ever constructed. All the 2,400 individual roses in the bouquet will be red and of one variety.

The bouquet will be so large, mechanical equipment, perhaps a large crane, will be used in presenting it to the president's wife.

Actual weight of the roses will be about 850 pounds. Wire used in tying the stems together will weigh 150 pounds. Ferns and other material used in making the bouquet, including a large "irrigation system," will bring the total weight to at least one ton.

Gold hoardings in India are such that no one can accurately estimate the amount; the common estimate, however, sets it at above $5,000,000,000.

Law Violators Quiet In City

Petty violations faced police and sheriff's departments over the week-end, principally arrests for being drunk or held for investigation. There were 41 persons in city jail Sunday night.

Police arrested eight persons Sunday for being drunk and the county four. Three more were placed in county jail this morning. Three of those held Sunday paid fines in justice court. One man was held by police on a theft charge, two for investigation, one man for driving while drunk and the state highway patrol placed a man in city jail on a drunken driving charge.

Impersonation Charged

One arrest for alleged impersonation of an officer was made.

A Mrs. Ellis reported her eight-year-old daughter was missing.

Eastland officers advised police they had a bicycle that they believed was stolen. A man, wanted for skipping bond, was reported being held by Chicago police.

Six thefts were reported to police Sunday. Plainview authorities said a bale of cotton and a truck had been stolen. Glen Walker, 2614 Twenty-fourth, reported his bicycle stolen as did Junior Chadwick, 1612 Avenue H. An 8-tube radio, table model, was reported stolen from Wayne Hardy, 1921 Main. R. L. Southard, route 6, reported theft from a car of a pair of overalls, a grey shirt and a roll of tire tape.

Two wrecks, in which none was injured, were investigated by police. Tommy Gentry, 807 Avenue J and J. T. Nash, Lorenzo, were involved in a collision Sunday in the 1600 block on Broadway. Flora Mae Lokey, 2301 Fourteenth and Paul Nixon, Anton, were involved in a left turn crash at Fifteenth street and College Sunday.

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, emphasized that "the administration is not taking sides" in the anti-lynching fight.

Administraton leaders have been hopeful some decision could be reached soon so that the government reorganization bill can be taken up.

The crop control and housing bills—on which joint committees still are trying to agree—may be ready soon for senate and house approval.

The senate appropriations committee scrutinized the house-approved bill providing funds for the government's independent agencies, and the judiciary committee met to consider President Roosevelt's nomination of Solicitor General Stanley Reed for the supreme court.

The house debated the treasury-postoffice appropriations bill, and leaders hoped to pass it by nightfall. The house ways and means committee continued hearings on tax revision proposals.

Lady "Tells All" After Night Out With Her Hired Escort

In New York The Guide Escort Service supplies escorts for women who want to see the town. On the theory that this is an interesting, if not significant, sociological development, the AP Feature Service assigned a girl writer to engage an escort and spend the evening with him. Here is her report. (The correct name of the escort is not given in her story because he probably would lose his job if his boss knew how many rules he had violated.)

BY MISS X

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—I called up the Guide Escort Service, and asked for an escort for Friday evening. I stipulated he must be tall, aged 28 to 30, and a good dancer.

The Guide Escort Service told me the fee was $10, with an additional $10 for every two hours after midnight. I arranged to meet the escort in the apartment lobby.

Instead, Mr. Smith appeared at the apartment door. We shook hands, and I gave him two envelopes, one containing his fee, the other the $10 alloted for the evening's entertainment.

We got off to a bad start. Mr. Smith was in a business suit. In spite of the agency's instructions, I had got the impression somewhere that Mr. Smith in a business suit was $5 cheaper than Mr. Smith in a Tuxedo. I said so. But Mr. Smith insisted he had always been equally expensive either way. I took his word for it. He told me I should be glad I hadn't picked a Saturday night, because he cost $15 on Saturdays.

Doesn't Like Dates

He was nearly six feet tall, had dark wavy hair, blue eyes, a deep voice, a turned-up nose, and a big smile. He told me he worked six days a week in a business house, studied two nights a week in graduate school, and served the Escort Service two other nights.

On off nights, he doesn't care about dates. He seldom drinks. Most of the time he doesn't even play bridge. He gets a lot of sleep instead. He's been with the Escort Service a year. He doesn't think it glamorous . . . just a lot of hard work. But it pays well. He collects a third of the fees. Most people stay out overtime, and the fees run up.

We took a subway to the hotel because Mr. Smith felt sorry for me. He was afraid my $10 wouldn't go far. So we economized. Mr. Smith picked the hotel because I was a stranger in the city, and besides, he wanted to hear his favorite orchestra. I wanted to eat, dance and get a good story.

I asked him if he worried about prospective dates. He said he didn't. He thought the lady ran the greater risk. But I don't think so.

A $90 Evening

He said about half the women he took out were middle-aged, and half were young. He admitted that women of all ages who were more interested in liquor than anything else were something of a problem. But he doesn't let them buy all the drinks they want. He has the money, after all.

The week before he had taken out two girls from the middle west. The bill came to $90. I was horrified, but Mr. Smith said $90 wasn't bad for an evening from 10 p. m. to 5:30 a. m. The girls paid Mr. Smith $30 overtime of which he got about $10. They liked El Morocco and the Stork Club best. Drinks are expensive there.

Mr. Smith said everyone knew El Morocco and the Stork Club, even if they'd never heard of the Metropolitan Museum. "Single women seldom get away for less than a $40 evening. They don't start making the rounds until 10 o'clock.

I felt ashamed of my $10 (the office's $10) and told Mr. Smith I was sorry I didn't have $40 to spend. He didn't seem to care. When we got out on the dance floor he sighed with relief and said "I'm glad you don't have to have four or five drinks to be able to dance."

(Editor's note: He probably says that to all the girls).

I started feeling sorry for Mr. Smith. Women loved to complain, he said. After three complaints an escort is dropped. Women complain because they don't draw a Clark Gable for $10. They get on the phone the next morning, and tell Ted Peckham, originator of the Service, what they think of his staff. They even complain if a lenient escort lets them stay out a few minutes overtime without charge. They have the money. They want to pay.

It isn't so hard to join the Escort Service. But it's hard to keep the job. Mr. Smith said all the escorts must be college graduates, have poise, good manners, and references. On the first three dates they are watched by "spotters." The spotters can check on the escort's ability as a dancer and as a conversationalist. If the spotters don't like the escort's manner, he is dropped. He never knows the spotter is there.

Spots Reporters

Escorts don't know each other. Occasionally they go out on double dates. But even from those, Mr. Smith knows only five or six fellow employees. Escorts can't speak to their friends while on duty. They can only bow.

Mr. Smith got tired of talking about his job. "Everybody is curious about it," he said. "But I wouldn't have told you all these things if I thought you were a reporter."

"Reporter?"

"Yes," said Mr. Smith. "I've been out with two reporters who were trying to get stories, but both of them made slips before the evening was over, and I found out who they were. What do you do, by the way?"

I said I was an English teacher.

A Little Overtime

The floor show came on at 11:30, and I told Mr. Smith I couldn't stay because he was more expensive after midnight. He said I must stay and see it. He told me to forget the overtime. So I did. We talked about the "Big Apple." Mr. Smith demonstrated.

Back at the apartment house, Mr. Smith announced that never had he done such careful figuring with his charges' money. He had exactly a dime left. I didn't ask him for it.

We approached the elevator, and I asked him if he would care to come up, or wasn't he allowed to. He said he wasn't allowed to, but he would come up anyway. He'd never come to an apartment before. I asked him why all the caution. He told me women try to frame escorts. You have to be wary, he said, when you are an escort. I believed him. I thanked him for a gay evening. I had forgotten it cost $10. So had he. He thanked me. He still thought I was a school teacher.

RULES BROKEN

1. He went up to girl's apartment at beginning of the evening.
2. He went up to apartment again at close of the evening.

Steady Improvement Shown In Study Of Local Directories

BY CHARLOTTE COOPER

A constant increase in population, business and city improvements in Lubbock is shown in Lubbock city directories dating from the first, issued in 1926, to the new 1938 edition.

The classified business directory in 1926 listed 8,856 names, indicating a population of 17,712. Number of names listed is doubled to arrive at population estimate.

The 1929 city directory had 10,296, indicating a total population of about 20,592.

Larger Edition In 1930

A much larger edition, with 11,724 names and estimating a population of 23,448, was issued in 1930. Directories from 1931 through 1935 gradually increased in size from 448 to 482 pages.

The 1936 issue had a preface by the Chamber of Commerce citing statistics for Lubbock's rapid growth. A population of 27,528 was estimated with 13,764 names listed. A discussion of Texas Technological college was included.

A statistical review of Lubbock, with the slogan "The Hub of the Plains," was used in the 1937 volume. The area, climate, parks, and education were discussed. There were 553 pages.

Largest Volume This Year

The 1938 city directory, with 599 pages, is the largest edition ever issued in Lubbock. The price is $10 and 16,968 names are listed, indicating a population of 30,543.

The 1926 edition is dwarfed in comparison. It is about one-third the thickness of those following. A buyer's guide, street, general, and classified directories were main features.

No Publication In 1927

No directory was issued in 1927. The 1928 edition, which was almost twice the size of that of 1926, sold for $7. The publishers were trying to standardize all city directories that year, and, accordingly, the street directory was changed from its former position and placed between the general directory of names and the classified business directory.

A miscellaneous section with information about city, county and state governments, and churches, schools and clubs was included.

The street guide contained the names of all streets alphabetically arranged and house number in numerical order.

"Supervisors and administrators will be interested in the lectures and discussions on coordinating the school music program. These clinics or schools of instruction are sponsored each year as a part of the educational program of the association."
