Victorious Soviets Capture Krivoi Rog

Iron Ore City Falls On Anniversary Of Red Army; Stalin Pays Tribute To Men

By TOM HARBROUGH
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Feb. 23 (Wednesday)—On the 26th anniversary of the Red Army today, Moscow celebrated the capture of Krivoi Rog, the Ukraine town of iron mine fame, and Premier Marshal Joseph Stalin triumphantly announced that in one year the Russians had swept the Germans from almost three-quarters of occupied Russia in a westward advance that in places exceeded 1,000 miles.

At the same time a Soviet information bureau statement announced "the German fascist war machine has been placed by the Red Army on the verge of complete defeat."

Stalin announced yesterday the capture of Krivoi Rog, which the Germans had defended with fanatic zeal in four months of bitter fighting.

Town Taken By Storm

Gen. Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Third Ukrainian front forces took the valuable town by storm, an order of the day announced a few hours after the Germans admitted they had evacuated it. The iron mines captured were a major military prize.

The Soviet communique, recorded by the Soviet monitor from a broadcast, added that 300 more communities were captured in the north, where the Germans were retreating upon Pskov along a 150-mile curving front.

It was at Pskov in 1918 that the Russians defeated the Germans in a battle which has been officially designated as the Army's beginning. In the celebration of this date Stalin announced that in the three months of the current winter campaign the Russians have cleared the invaders from about 77,000 square miles, won back over 13,000 populated places including 82 towns and 320 railway stations.

Stalin's Statement

"It should now be clear to all that Hitlerite Germany is advancing inevitably towards catastrophe," Stalin said, but he warned against over-confidence or complacency.

He stated that Germany has been "fighting with all her main forces on one front," but emphasized the fighting alliance of Russia, the United States and Britain and said "the hour is approaching of the final reckoning for all the crimes committed by the Hitlerites on Soviet soil and the occupied countries of Europe."

As a unique tribute for the Red Army he ordered a salute of 20 salvoes fired simultaneously in

U. S. Heavies From Britain And Italy Lash Four Cities

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Major aircraft factories at four cities deep inside Germany were blasted today in coordinated assaults by American heavy bombers from Britain and Italy.

This first and effective demonstration of the double-barreled assault system towards which the U. S. Strategic Air forces in Europe have been working called out some of the bitterest German fighter opposition of the war. Some of the bombers from Britain fought for four hours against rocket-firing Nazi planes manned by highly-skilled pilots. As many as 200 German planes swarmed up at some places to challenge the raiders.

41 Bombers Missing

Bernburg, Aschersleben and Halberstadt were the points slammed by the bombers from Britain, while those from Italy struck two vital Messerschmitt fighter plants at Regensburg.

Forty-one of the British-based bombers are missing. American escort fighters shot down 58 of the enemy, with one American fighter definitely destroyed and 10 missing. The bombers' score against the German fliers has not yet been tabulated, the communique edded.

Losses in the operations from Italy have not yet been announced.

The bombers from Britain successfully attacked the Junkers 88 assembly plant at Bernburg, for the second time in three days, and major airframe and component factories at Aschersleben and Halberstadt, while those from Italy struck at Regensburg.

Other Targets Pounded

Those from Britain also attacked air fields and other targets in southern and central Germany, and those from Italy bombed ports on the Dalmatian coast and the Zagreb airport.

Some groups of the force from Britain penetrated Germany so deeply that their fighter escort was unable to go all the way with them.

German fighters attacked in waves of 10 or more. Several pilots estimated they saw at least 200 enemy planes, piloted by obviously skilled men who jumped them after the bombers got beyond range of the escort. The Germans used many rockets.

Flying Fortresses and Liberators of the Mediterranean Air command attacked Regensburg, 50 miles north of Munich and 550 miles from the major Allied airdrome in Italy at Foggia, the airfield of the Croat capital of Zagreb; harbor works at the Dalmatian port of Zara; and Silenek, 30 miles farther down the coast.

NAZIS NOW USING "SUPERBOYS"—Appearing entirely too young to be fighting in the ranks of Hitler's "supermen" the two German boys pictured above were photographed when a detachment of 800 German prisoners, captured on the Italian front, entrained at an English port for concentration camp.

Churchill Doubts Early End Of War

New And Increasingly Heavy Air Blows "Beyond Any Imagined" Promised Nazis

By WILLIAM SMITH WHITE
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Prime Minister Churchill today promised Germany new air blows increasing sharply this spring and summer to "reach far beyond the dimensions of anything yet employed or indeed imagined," but he soberly withheld encouragement that the European war would end in 1944.

Speaking before the House of Commons for an hour and 18 minutes in his first war review in five months, Churchill declared that "victory may not be so far away — and will certainly not be denied us in the end," but he spoke with studied caution of the power the German Army still wields and derided the view that Hitler is about to collapse.

Principal Points

Churchill made these points:

There has been no "cooling off in Anglo-Russian or American-Russian friendship," and "none of the ground made good at Moscow and Tehran has been lost."

Britain is going all-out in support of Marshal Tito in Yugoslavia.

Although Britain is sympathetic to the Poles, she recognizes Russia's right of reassurance against future attacks from the west" and is "going all the way" with Russia to see that she gets it. Britain has not guaranteed "any particular frontier line" to Poland.

Churchill covered a wide range of both military and political affairs around the world. Here is a summary of the picture he drew:

Military Phase

1. Declaring that he had "certainly given no guarantee or even held out any expectation that the year 1944 will see the end of the European war," Churchill said his information was that "Hitler and his police are still in full control and that the Nazi party and the generals have decided to hang together."

2. "The Anglo-American air attack upon Germany must be regarded as our chief offensive effort at the present time," and during the spring and summer there will be "a vast increase in the force of the attack directed upon all objectives in Germany and German-occupied countries."

3. "The whole of this air offensive constitutes the foundation on which our plans for overseas invasion stand in the scales, and the degrees of attack will reach far beyond the dimensions of any-

Rabaul Lashed With No Aerial Resistance

Planes On Ground Scarce, Ships In Harbor Very Low

By MURLIN SPENCER
Associated Press Staff Writer

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Southwest Pacific, Wednesday, Feb. 23.—Flashing over Rabaul's airdromes and harbor, which contained the lowest number of planes and ships ever reported at that New Britain stronghold, American bombers from Solomon islands airfields smashed the recently-repaired Lakunai airdrome, one of four in the area, with 52 tons of bombs Sunday, starting five large fires.

No aerial resistance was encountered.

Antiaircraft fire knocked down one of the raiding planes.

A headquarters spokesman said today that reconnaissance disclosed that Rabaul's "air complement was unusually low and less than 100 planes were counted."

He said that ships in the harbor, which was pounded last Friday by American destroyers in the first sea raid on the enemy's South Pacific bastion, also were "unusually low in number." He offered no explanation for the sharp decline in Japanese activity there.

The daily heavy air raids on Rabaul, along with the destroyer attack and possibility of more to come, may have persuaded the Japanese to move their ships to concealed bays elsewhere in the Bismarck archipelago.

Hint Japs Pull Out

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique yesterday hinted of Japanese merchantmen deserting Rabaul's harbor, telling of an aerial attack on an enemy convoy off New Ireland Saturday and Sunday, in which six freighters and three escort ships were sunk and three more merchantmen probably destroyed. These vessels, the communique said, were "outward bound from Rabaul."

But on prior occasions when it has been concluded that the Japanese airforce had been virtually eliminated from the Rabaul area, they have come back in large numbers to offer strong resistance to Allied planes.

With bases in the enemy's possession, whereby planes may be moved in and out of Rabaul without great difficulty, it is unsafe to say that the Japanese are even thinking of abandoning Rabaul as its number one South Pacific base.

Japs Badly Hurt By Heavy Allied Blows

FDR Believes Damages In Nip Shipping Losses Worse Than Appears On Surface

By HAMILTON W. FARON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 — President Roosevelt expressed belief today the Japanese have been hurt even worse than appears on the surface by the war of attrition American forces have been conducting against enemy supply lines.

In a press-radio conference, he said the Japanese high command must be confronted with a very painful situation in trying to develop new plans and means of supplying island bases.

Both the President and Secretary of the Navy Knox, at separate conferences, spoke glowingly of the recent accomplishments in the Pacific. Knox pointed out that in the first three weeks of February 92 Japanese ships were sunk while American losses were two submarines.

Learning As We Win

Mr. Roosevelt observed, too, that we are learning as we go along. He said not a ship was lost in the Marshall islands operations. In the great raid on Truk, he added, one ship was torpedoed but is on the way to be repaired.

In saying the Japanese have been more than is readily apparent, the President estimated that at least 1,000 enemy barges have been sunk in the last year. He went on in this manner:

These barges are used for transportation of both supplies and men throughout the islands where the Japanese have established themselves. There is no telling how many men were lost in the sinking of these craft but each one probably carried 10 to 20 enemy naval officers and men aside from any army personnel aboard.

Old Strategy Fails

Developments in the Pacific point to a Japanese attempt to repeat the sea strategy that won the Russo-Japanese war, Secretary Knox said — and the American Navy hopes they'll try it.

In broad outline that Nipponese naval strategy of 1904-05 consisted of a sneak attack at Port Arthur, much like Pearl Harbor, followed by evasion of full-scale action for a time until the Russian fleet had been lured far from its bases, then an all-out attack.

Drawing the parallel at his news conference, the Navy secretary pointed out that since Pearl Harbor the enemy at sea has "avoided any measure of strength up to now."

Asked whether he saw any possibility for victory for the Japanese Navy when the showdown comes, he replied: "I do not."

He was echoing the general view

Nazis Back Off For New Start

Lull Marks Fierce Struggle At Anzio

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK
Associated Press Staff Writer

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Naples, Feb. 22.—Allied and German heavy guns pounded each other's lines in heavy artillery dueling on the Anzio beachhead today as both sides recuperated from unbroken days of bitter fighting and prepared for further battle.

Fighting on a comparatively small scale took place yesterday near Carroceto, scene of the heaviest Nazi assaults last week, without a decision being reached.

Constanly On Alert

But, for all the temporary lull in the main conflict, American and British troops gripped their rifles firmly and remained constantly on the alert for a third enemy effort to drive them into the sea. They felt it would come, for the Nazis were believed still under Hitler's personal order to wipe out the beachhead at any cost.

German infantry and tanks, in fact, were observed concentrating yesterday in the so-called "factory" area of Aprilia, just east of Carroceto, but were scattered by accurate fire of Allied artillery and the attack, if one was contemplated, did not materialize.

As fighting for the beachhead entered its second month without either grim antagonist showing any sign of yielding, the Allies still held approximately 100 square miles of ground—all of its subject to Nazi artillery fire from the hills.

Boundaries of the holding, starting from a point on the coast northwest of Anzio, run more or less in a straight eastward line, passing about a mile and a half south of Carroceto to a point about two miles southwest of Cisterna, then due south to the beach again.

Nazis Infer That Western Invasion Delayed To Fall

(By The Associated Press)

Prime Minister Churchill's speech yesterday indicated in the opinion of "competent Berlin quarters "that the invasion of Europe from the west has been postponed until fall, a German Transocean radio broadcast said last night.

The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, quoted excerpts from the speech—"the spring and summer will see a vast increase in the force of the (aerial) attack directed upon all military objectives in Germany and German-occupied countries," and "the whole of this air offensive constitutes the foundation on which our plans for overseas invasion stand in the scales."

From the reference to the spring and summer seasons it was said that "it appears the invasion is to be started when summer is over."

U. S. Chiefs Share Churchill View

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill's reluctance even to hint at an Allied victory over Germany this year is shared in military and naval circles here. A strong belief has grown up that the European war could go on into 1945.

The clue to what will happen is an utterly immeasurable factor—German morale. A morale crack-up, under the pressure of reverses at the front and cumulative bombings at home, is what is meant by those who like Lord Halifax, British ambassador, hold that "anything can happen."

The best informaiton is that the Germans still have sufficient productive capacity, resources and manpower and a sufficiently strong geographical position to maintain their resistance for another 12 months.

X-Day Enthusiasm Wanes

There is little enthusiasm in service quarters at present, therefore, for predictions that "X-day"—the War department's hypothetical date for defeat of Germany—will come before 1945.

Now, however, there is accumulated evidence that the Germans' enormous losses at home have been no more disastrous than their enormous losses in Russia. They are still producing

College Heads Seek To Offset New Move

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22. (AP)—A committee of college presidents, meeting here to discuss the Army's drastic reduction in its student training program, urged the War department today to enroll 100,000 volunteer 17-year-olds and send them to college this summer.

The Army's pre-induction program for 17-year-olds now includes less than 5,000 boys.

The educators voted to request an immediate expansion of this group, who would attend college until 18 years old and then be called to active duty.

Abandoned Japs Cut To Pieces

BRITISH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Western Burma Front, Feb. 22. (AP) — Scores of demoralized Japanese, abandoned by guerrilla forces behind the British lines, have been wiped out in the northern Arakan jungles in the past 48 hours by yelling, knife-swinging Ghurkas.

Word of the death of these lost, wandering Japanese in the hills, jungles and forests of the western Burma front — remnants of an enemy raiding party from the Bawli front who stubbornly refused to surrender — came today from British 14th Army headquarters.

Farther south, meantime, Allied troops were reported in a communique from Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's Southeast Asia command to have almost entirely cleared the enemy from the important Ngakyedauk pass into the Muya hills.

Tanks Sweep Jungle

The Ghurkas caught up with the enemy after tanks had rolled up to point-blank range and swept the Japanese-infested jungle with light machine-guns. Casting aside modern weapons and shouting their deepthroated battlecry, the Ghurkas charged, waving their heavy curved knives. Most of the Japanese were wiped out in a few minutes.

One Indian patrol heard firing on its left flank and moved in that direction, coming in to the rear of a Japanese pocket under attack by British troops. The British reported they were mystified when resistance suddenly melted. Advancing on the enemy positions, they came upon the Ghurkas wiping their bloody knives and rounding up the Japanese mules.

Bombs Dropped On Stockholm

Neutral Capital Is Said In Panic

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 22 (AP) — Bombs from "foreign planes" fell in Stockholm tonight for the first time in the war and the official Swedish news agency said citizens of the neutral capital were in a "panic mood."

The bombs landed in an open air theater in southern Stockholm and in the town of Strangnas, just west of Stockholm. No persons were reported killed or injured, but thousands of windows were said to have been shattered by the explosions.

Signal lights dropped by the planes indicated they were trying to land. The air raid siren which have been tested at 3 p. m. each Monday were not sounded, although an emergency alarm went out to home guardsmen.

Plane Reported Down

(A Reuters dispatch from London said that according to an unconfirmed report, a Russian bomber had crashed at Nacka, near Stockholm.)

The planes approached the city from the east.

The raiders, officially described as "foreign planes," passed over the Stockholm archipelago and dropped three bombs in Strangnas, a communique said. The number dropped on Stockholm, where an emergency alarm was sounded, was not given.

The communique said one plane apparently crashed in flames north of Stockholm.

Future Farmers Sponsor Banquet

By WALTER SWITZER
Avalanche Staff Writer

SLATON, Feb. 22.—A banquet, the first of its kind ever held in Lubbock county, sponsored by the eight chapters of the Future Farmers of America of Lubbock county, was held tonight in the Clubhouse here, attended by approximately 150 FFA boys and guests.

Guest speaker was Ray L. Chappelle, head of the department of agricultural education at Texas Technological college. He commended the boys on having the banquet.

He reminded them they have an uphill fight and that two years ago there were more than 9,000 vocational agriculture teachers in the United States. Due to the war that number has dwindled to a little more than 6,000. Also enrollment has dropped considerably because of the war. Future farmers were advised not to belittle their own part in the war effort.

Impressive Ceremony

The program was opened with an impressive ceremony in which all officers participated, followed by the singing of "America" and the invocation by Bill Tanner of Idalou.

V. C. Bozeman of Lubbock, president of the county organization, presided, and Billy Walden of Lubbock served as toastmaster.

The welcoming address was given by Roland McCormack of Slaton, with the response by Roy Boyd, Lubbock county school superintendent. A. C. Strickland, advisor of the Slaton chapter, introduced the guests.

Brinker spoke at the 32nd annual convention of the Texas Wholesale Grocers association.

H. D. Shuford, Tyler, Tex., discussed transportation problems of wholesale grocers. Another speaker was Jeff H. Williams, attorney of Chickasha, Okla.

Jean F. Carroll, director of the food price division, Office of Price administration, Washington, will be among speakers tomorrow, the last day of the meeting. Other speakers will include G. H. McKinney, Fort Worth, and Kenneth Stauffer, Washington, of the food rationing division, OPA.

Joe Martin of Jonesboro and Little Rock, Ark., executive secretary to Gov. Homer M. Adkins of Arkansas and a national committeeman of the young Democratic league, made the suggestion in an address prepared for delivery before the Oklahoma league.

The trio he named were Rep. Rayburn (D-Texas) Governor Broughton (D-NC) and Gov. Robert Kerr of Oklahoma.

Martin did not mention the presidential nomination.

Japs Impressed By Truk Losses

NEW YORK, Feb. 22. (AP)—The Japanese news agency Domei admitted in broadcast to the controlled Asiatic press today that the United States assault on Truk had impressed the Japanese people more than any other development since the start of the war.

At the same time another Tokyo broadcast to Japanese areas said Premier Hideki Tojo had told his ministers that "the war situation is truly grave," but pledged "firm determination to carry on the present war to its conclusion."

The Domei broadcast to the controlled press of Asia said the imperial headquarters admission of the loss of 18 ships at Truk — "losses greater than the enemy's" —had proved to be "the one among all the announcements heard by the people since the start of the war that created the deepest impression."

Tojo Explains Situation

Domei's evaluation of Japanese reaction to the Truk assault and the report of Tojo's talk to his ministers were recorded by U. S. government monitors.

In an apparent attempt to explain to the Japanese his motives for ousting Field Marshal Gen. Sugiyama as chief of staff of the Army and Fleet Admiral Osami Nagano as Navy chief of staff and himself assuming the Army post, Tojo was reported to have described the move as an effort to consolidate "political and military commands."

"At present the empire is literally standing at the crossroad of a rise or fall," the Japanese premier was quoted as saying. "At this time the key to certain victory is to establish still closer relations between the high command and state affairs."

Italy's 'Lost Battalion' Fights Way Out To Safety

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press Staff Writer

THE ANZIO BEACHHEAD, Italy, Feb. 21. (Delayed) — Lt. Stanley S. Lemert, 27, of Chandler, Ariz., leaned wearily against the trunk of a scrub oak and with eyes squinting from lack of sleep told me the epic of the "lost battalion" which held out through the fury of a 72-hour German offensive.

Now the "lost battalion," commanded by Lt. Col. Lawrence C. Brown of Syracuse, N. Y., has finished its job. It lost neither its position nor the battle. It lost physical contact with other Allied forces for a time, but the men never lost their nerve.

The battle started last Wednesday, Lemon recalled, "when the Germans hit our most advanced company, commanded by Capt. Felix (Larry) Sparks of Tucson and Globe, Ariz.

Only Two Squads Left

"The attack began before daylight and continued all day and night. After 24 hours Sparks had only two squads left and he reported that he could not hold out another half hour. Then he was ordered to fall back to the main battalion position. He never moved a man until that order was received.

"German tanks came down the main highway to Anzio and shelled us point blank. We fired back with bazookas and anything else. We threw grenades. They didn't dare come into our rough ground.

"German mortar fire was constant. Our battling line was thin and each night the Germans infiltrated and our men in each foxhole had to fight on their own. With daylight they'd clean up pockets of the enemy.

"Thursday no supplies could reach us by the main highway because the German Army held it, so I reconnoitered a back road and Friday night I took in a supply column just about the time the battalion was running very short.

"I didn't have a very hard fight, fortunately. My men seized a German guarding two American prisoners and took all three into the battalion position where the two Americans immediately resumed fighting. My men also bottled up two German machineguns within a hundred yards of the battalion rearguard. Some Germans were dug deep in a wooded place and they fired at us when we made contact with the rearguard at a little footbridge, but in the dark that didn't stop us. Those supplies had to get in and they got in.

Killed Many Germans

"It was just fight, fight all the time. I don't know how many Germans our battalion killed. But we must have killed five or ten for every man we lost.

"Several times the Germans changed the battalions attacking us. They couldn't stand their losses. They couldn't make us crack.

"Ever since Saturday the Germans kept hammering at us, but they had no more heart for hand-to-hand fighting. I don't think any battalion ever fought harder than this battalion."

"How's Aunt Emma (Mrs. Emma Gillingham, Los Angeles, Calif)"? he asked.

"She sent me a box of cookies for Christmas," I replied.

"This is an odd place for cousins to meet," he said.

Two 1,000-Pounders Put On Thunderbolts

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Naples, Feb. 22. (AP)—The P-47 Thunderbolt has been turned into "the war's most potent fighter-bomber" by loading it with two 1,000-pound bombs—a weight previously undreamed of for fighters, 12th Allied Air Force officials disclosed today.

Farm Gas Coupons To Be Issued As Needed

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22. (AP) — Coupons for gasoline to be used in non-highway farming operations will be issued in installments instead of in six month blocs, the Office of Price administration said today.

Estimates of farm gasoline consumption are inaccurate if made for six-month periods in advance, as weather largely determines farm gasoline use, the rationing agency reported. Numerous instances were found of excessive issuance under the six-months bloc plan, the OPA said, adding that in some cases the extra coupons reached improper channels.

Under the new regulations, local ration boards will issue only a part of the estimated six-months ration needs, which will be adjusted later in the period on application of the user.

Ex-Service Woman Is Back In The WACS

AUSTIN, Feb. 22. (AP) — Alling Collins of Austin, who served a turn with the WAC, was discharged, and now is reenlisting, is the first WAC to join the American Legion, officials who swore her in at ceremonies of the Travis Legion post No. 76 yesterday believe.

She was discharged honorably from the WAC in November; as an ex-service woman she was eligible to join the legion, and now with reenlistment can continue as a legion member.

"I just don't feel right in civilian clothes," she said at the legion ceremonies.

New Yorker Named To Succeed Will Clayton

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22. (AP) — William A. M. Burden of New York, special aviation assistant to Secretary of Commerce Jones, was nominated by President Roosevelt today to be assistant secretary of commerce succeeding Will P. Clayton.

Clayton resigned to take charge of disposal of surplus war materials for the government.

Illegal Possession Of T Cards Charged

In lieu of $1,000 bail, Marion Gunter, 20, was in Lubbock county jail Monday afternoon charged with illegal possession of 749 serially numbered "T" gasoline coupons good for 3,745 gallons.

He pleaded innocent before Mrs. Olive Fluke, U. S. commissioner.

He was arrested at Sweetwater and the coupons were in his hotel room, according to Ed Sanders, Texas ranger who made the arrest.

The charge was made out by H. L. Patterson, district OPA enforcement attorney. Bond is returnable April 10 to the Abilene division of federal court.

Bomber Crew Rescued Within 55 Minutes

HEADQUARTERS, Thirteenth Army Air Forces, South Pacific, Feb. 22.— (U.P.)—The six-man crew of an Army Billy Mitchell bomber was rescued by a Navy patrol plane only 55 minutes after it had been forced into the sea returning from a bombing raid on Rabaul, the Army revealed today.

A bomber, piloted by Lt. John H. Vanschaick, was hit by anti-aircraft fire over Vunakanau, but started home despite damage to the right rudder, stabilizers and engine. The engine died shortly after the plane passed the coast.

Radio Operator Pfc. Louis C. Langelier of Whitman, Mass., sent a distress signal just before the Billy Mitchell hit the water. The plane began filling with water at the impact, and Vanschaick, his co-pilot, Lt. James G. McClure, Rule, Tex., and Navigator Lt. Ralph C. Tittle of Detroit, Mich., pulled themselves out the escape hatch.

and Uncle Sam doesn't mean maybe!

If you are a patriotic American, this is an invitation which you must read and heed!

The life of our country may depend on the life of your car. If this sounds exaggerated, remember that official estimates declare that the nation's all-out war effort will be seriously endangered if the number of serviceable cars in the U. S. falls below 20,000,000.

In 1943, the number of cars scrapped was 1,500,000. This year 2,000,000 more will probably go to the junk heap. Yours must not be among them. Literally, you must coax and cajole every last bit of usefulness from the aging engine, chassis, and tires of your car.

Phillips 66 service men are specially pledged to perform all services which will improve the operating efficiency of your car and lengthen its life. Phillips Tire-Saving Service includes checking air pressures at least once a week . . . inspecting for nail holes, cuts, and bruises . . . examination of tire carcass to warn you when recapping is advisable and still possible.

U.S. Crude Reserves Said Adequate For Generations

NEW YORK, Feb. 22. (U.P.) — Proved reserves of crude oil in the United States amounted to 20,064,115,000 barrels at the close of 1943, the American Petroleum institute reported as it ridiculed, by implication at least, suggestions that this nation is in danger of depleting its petroleum reserves within the next few years.

The report—made to the API by its committee on petroleum reserves, of which J. Edgar Pew, vice-president of the Sun Oil company, Philadelphia, is chairman—declared that the "oil industry . . . will be able to meet this nation's requirements for oil products . . . for many generations to come."

Greatest Year-End Total

During 1943, the committee said, proved reserves declined by 18,641,000 barrels. However, the figure of 20,064,152,000 for the close of 1943 was greater than at any of the six year-ends prior to 1942 for which figures were available.

Throughout the report it was emphasized that the estimate of the committee was based only on reserves proved by drilling and production performance. Since it usually takes several years for a new field to reach full development, the amount of reserves estimated for such fields represents but a fraction of the total production which may eventually be obtained.

Moreover, the figure of proved crude reserves ignores the possibility of new fields being discovered.

Others Yet Untapped

"There is no doubt," Pew declared, "of the existence of great reserves of crude oil not yet discovered or proved. Every year new and important discoveries have been made and there is no reason to believe this trend shall suddenly come to an end in the foreseeable future.

"We know," he added, "there are vast areas yet unexplored that can produce oil, some of which have known structural conditions and all of which have sedimentary conditions favorable for the production of oil."

In the past three years, Pew pointed out, the oil industry has been handicapped in searching for oil by scarcity of skilled field manpower and of equipment. Despite these factors, however, the industry has "been able to maintain a favorable reserve position with little or no dimunition.'

Fair Price Level Urged

If this situation is to continue, he added, "a fair price level" is necessary.

The petroleum industry cannot discharge is responsibilities, according to Pew, "if it is required to continue depletion of its known reserves at a price based on costs which are less than the cost of replacing such reserves.

"A fair price level would be not only an incentive to the replacement of existing reserves, but it also would act as a spur to the development of synthetic oils derived from a distillation of coal and shale which we have in abundance. Thus if our reserves at some future date should fail, we would have synthetic substitutes on their way to commercial production.

Meet Need For Generations

"It is my opinion that the oil industry, with an adequate and fair price for its products, will be able to meet this nation's requirements for oil products from these sources of supply for many generations to come.

"In giving such an assurance and assuming such a responsibility, the industry should have maximum freedom of opportunity to operate in the national interest."

Committee Personnel

In addition to Chairman Pew, members of the API committee on petroleum reserves include R. F. Baker, the Texas company, New York; D. V. Carter, Magnolia Petroleum Co., Dallas; Frank R. Clark, the Ohio Oil Co., Tulsa; Alexander Deussen, consulting geologist, Houston; G. Clark Gester, Standard Oil company of California, San Francisco; F. H. Lahee, Sun Oil Co., Dallas; J. M. Sands, Phillips Petroleum, Bartlesville, Okla.; Fred Van Covern, API, New York; Theron Wasson, the Pure Oil Co., Chicago, and Fred E. Wood, Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, Chicago.

MRS. MOHANDAS K. GANDHI

Mrs. Gandhi Dies In Internment In India

LONDON, Feb. 22 — Mrs. Mohandas K. Gandhi, for 61 years the wife of the Indian leader—and so overshadowed by him she was called "the woman nobody knows"—died today in internment at Poona, India, the New Delhi radio announced.

Suffering for months from intermittent heart attacks, the frail little 74-year-old woman died at the Aga Khan's palace at Poona, where she had been confined with her husband since his arrest last August 9, when the All-India Congress adopted its resolution advocating civil disobedience and Indian independence.

At that time, her illness incited some demands that she be released. The government of India issued a statement, however, explaining that in that case she would be separated from her husband without provision for and better medical care than she was getting.

Death came at 7:35 p. m. (9:15 a. m., central war time), the governor of Bombay announced.

A quiet, retiring woman, she was married to Gandhi when both were 13, under what the Indian leader once described, in an extraordinarily revealing biography, as "the cruel custom of child marriage."

Although she remained by his side, time after time even going to jail with him under the miserable conditions of South African prisons of 40 years ago and more recently in India, it is probable Mrs. Gandhi—her first name was Kasturbai—had little effect upon the tempestous career of her husband.

Spies On Hubby In Frigid Car Trunk

BALTIMORE, Feb. 22. (AP) — A Baltimore divorcee, seeking $10,000 for alienation of affections, testified today that she spent five hours in the trunk of her husband's car—with the temperature at 23 degrees—while he made love to another woman.

"It was cold," Mrs. Verna W. Mace told a common pleas court jury in her suit against Mrs. Jean A. Landsman, also of Baltimore.

Asserting that "I loved my husband very much but watched him very hard," the auburn-haired Mrs. Mace named three dates when she had hidden in the trunk to spy on him.

Mrs. Mace and James H. Mace were divorced last autumn.

County Far Over In Bond Sales Drive

Neil H. Wright, county chairman, reported Monday official figures show Lubbock county even further over its quotas in the Fourth War Loan drive than has been indicated in the unofficial tabulations.

The official report came from C. M. Smith of Plainview, regional manager of the loan drive.

It credits Lubbock county with bond purchases totaling $4,490,208 during the drive, exceeding the $3,597,000 quota by $893,208, or 25 per cent.

Series E sales totaled $1,460,287.50, topping the $1,195,000 quota by $265,287.50, or more than 22 per cent.

Sales of Series E and several other types of bonds during the remainder of the month still are to be credited to the Lubbock county quotas.

The official total on sales of all bonds during the drive is more than $200,000 larger than was shown in the most recent unofficial compilations of sales in the county. The official figure for Series E bonds exceeds the unofficial by approximately $130,000.

Russell Faces Theft Charge In Gaines

Gaines county and state officers announced a charge of theft of over $50 was filed in Gaines county Monday afternoon naming Newell Cecil Russell, 34, known as "Sonny."

The charge grew out of the theft Jan. 30 of $140 from a hostess of a Gaines county beer tavern, officials said.

A man who allegedly had given the suspect a ride from Seminole to Lubbock identified Russell as the man who had paid him $5 for the trip, it was announced.

"He had a $100 bill in his mouth and a wad of $2 bills in his pocket and some change," the informer said.

"He took the bill out of his mouth and counted the $2 bills — 19 of them," then stuck them back in his pocket.

Russell, said Capt. N. R. Smith, of the state highway patrol, pleaded innocent before Joe Bailey, Gaines county justice of peace, after he had been charged by Deputy Sheriff Sid Hargrove.

The woman who lost the money identified Russell as having been in the tavern the day the money was taken, officials further said.

It was indicated the prisoner would ask examining trial.

De Haven Kin Seeks Repayment Of Loan

DENVER, Feb. 22. (U.P.) — Mrs. Zella Blanche de Haven Pope, great-great-granddaughter of Jacob de Haven, who loaned $500,000 to the U. S. government during the Revolutionary war, today sought repayment of the loan plus interest—a total of $5,000,000.

Mrs. Pope engaged an attorney and appealed to Sen. Eugene Millikin, R., Colo., in the sixth attempt by descendants of de Haven to recover the money. The five previous requests for repayment were refused by Congress.

The Continental Congress, which accepted the money from de Haven in 1777 while George Washington's army was camped at Valley Forge, offered to repay the debt in inflationary scrip after the war, she said, but de Haven refused to accept the scrip and died before conditions returned to normal.

Navy Commissions Offered Specialists

Men who meet certain special qualifications of the Navy may now obtain commissions for general sea duty, according to information received at the Navy recruiting office here Tuesday from Lt. Comdr. G. W. Cook, jr., officer in charge of the Dallas office of naval officer procurement.

Stressing the qualifications angle, Comdr. Cook said commissions will be awarded only to those men who fall into two classes: (1) They must hold a degree from an accredited college in addition to physical and mental qualifications and (2) they must possess at least two years successful college work in an accredited college and five years successful business or professional experience.

In defining the latter qualification, he pointed out the Navy has highly specialized needs and only men who can fill such needs will be considered for these commissions.

Men up to 38 may be considered, but only on the basis outlined above, the announcement said.

Full Nelson Hold On Man Proves Fatal

SEATTLE, Feb. 22. (U.P.)—White-haired, 57-year-old Floyd W. Miles, a former policeman, today clamped a full Nelson wrestling hold on his strapping 28-year-old son and held until police arrived to find the son dead.

Miles, who signed a confession and was released on recognizance, said his son, Russell, 225-pound shipyard worker, was drunk and that "if I let him loose I was afraid he would kill us all."

The fight occurred in Miles' apartment with Mrs. Dee Miles, estranged wife of the son, and 16-year-old David Wall, stepson of the elder Miles ,as witnesses. Mrs. Miles defended her father-in-law and said her husband "was just like a wild man when he was drinking."

Extension For Filing 1944 Estimates Given

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22. (AP)—The Treasury today formally announced a 30-day extension of time for filing declarations of estimated income and Victory tax for 1944, although emphasizing no delay would be granted for filing 1943 tax returns due March 15.

Originally intended to complement the 1943 returns, the estimating procedure was delayed pending presidential action on the new revenue bill.

Negro Posts Bond On Liquor Charge

Deferred payment bond in each of two cases wherein he was fined a total of $200 and court costs was posted Tuesday afternoon by John Green, 39, a negro, who had pleaded guilty of liquor law violation.

One complaint charged transportation, the other possession of beer for sale.

Alfred Greer, 40, who has been "printed" 55 times according to a record in FBI files, was sent to county jail for two years, after he had pleaded guilty that morning in county court of theft of a hydraulic jack from Mayor Carl Slaton.

John Truly and Tom Cannon, police patrolmen, arrested Greer Sunday, approximately 14 hours before the mayor discovered the jack missing.

The Woman's Angle
By Margaret Turner

NOTICE to the dozens of women who have called the office to inquire about the possibilities of a paper and tin can salvage campaign and to Ruby Lee Leary, who fears the pile of cans at the side if KFYO will be to the top of the building before anything is done:

There is to be a concentrated drive for grease, paper and iron staged in Lubbock early in March. Details are being worked out now and just as soon as we can learn anything definite about the matter we'll let you know. In the meantime remember to save your waste fat and separate your papers and magazines and smash your empty cans.

We know you have become discouraged because it seemed that C day (collection day, if you can't guess) would never come. But cheer up! There definitely will be a paper drive in March and collection of other salvage shortly afterward.

So you may refrain from calling KFYO, the Avalanche-Journal and the Chamber of Commerce offices for information on how to get rid of your salvage and remember the day is nearing when you can rid your premises of all of the scrap junk you saved.

Incidentally, the papers are to be stacked and folded the way you see them on the newsstands. And you don't have to let that waste grease stack up in the kitchen tin bucket because any butcher will buy it, now, giving you cool cash and brown ration stamps in exchange.

THE FAITHFUL FEW

SOMETIMES we hear irritated persons complain that Lubbock seems remiss in matters that other cities seem to put across without hesitation. Our reply is that it's because the faithful few who form the committees to organize plans for civic drives have to take time out once in a while to check up and see where they are so to speak. Whether it's to help with the program at the Community Center, to aid in a house-to-house canvass in selling War Bonds or soliciting membership in the Red Cross, to plan a paintup and cleanup campaign or to appear on parent-teacher, study club or church society programs, you'll find the same names appearing in the newspapers over and again.

What Lubbock could use, as we see it, is about 100 volunteers for home front work.

TAKE the matter of surgical dressings at the Red Cross production rooms, 1605 Avenue J, where only a few hundred of Lubbock's thousands of women have volunteered for duty. They are getting the job done but if twelve women came tomorrow where one came yesterday the quota would be completed weeks sooner.

"I'm so tired of hearing the same speakers everywhere I go I could scream," a friend confided the other day. "Why can't we get somebody new, if only to afford a change of scenery?"

Well, holding no membership in anything except the church, we don't know about the problems of program chairmen but we'd venture the guess the old faithfuls are called on because they never say no.

IN THE MAIL

DEAR Miss Turner: The quotation referred to in Sunday's Woman's Angle was written about 1890 and the author is unknown. For reference see "The Pocket Book of Quotations," editor, Henry Davidoff, page 52.

Yours sincerely,
Mrs. Charles V. Nelms,
Tahoka.

DEAR Miss Turner: The author of the quotation,

"Count that day lost whose low descending sun
Views from thy hand no worthy action done."

is not known. My authority on this is: The International Encyclopedia of Prose and Poetical Quotations, compiled by William S. Walsh and published by John C. Winston Co. A note beneath the quotation states: "A reminiscence of the exclamation of the Emperor Titus, 'Friends, I have lost a day', ('Amici diem perdidi') made one night at supper, on reflecting that he had assisted no one that day. The story is told by Suetonius."

BELT IS LOST

A FRIEND lost a gray flannel belt, striped in white and finished with a rectangle buckle late Thursday night. She thinks she must have lost it between the Lindsey theater and the corner of Texas avenue and Main street.

Although the belt could be of no possible use to someone who may have picked it up, it is a necessary part of the dress to which it belongs and which is an expensive garment. If you know about it, will you telephone her at 9014, please.

Ickes To Close Jap Camp In Arkansas

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22. (AP) — Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes announced today that the War Relocation authority center near Jerome, Ark., will be closed June 1.

Ickes said 18,000 persons of Japanese descent evacuated from the Pacific coast since the start of the war with Japan have been returned to their homes, leaving room in the other nine relocation centers for the 6,554 Japanese now residing at Jerome. Elimination of the center, one of two in the Mississippi delta region of Arkansas, is an economy move, Ickes explained.

The Jerome center was the last to be established by the WRA and at one time was the temporary home of 8,072 persons. Under the relocation program, 1,518 persons had left the center, Ickes said.

Approximately 2,000 Japanese of the Jerome center, it was believed, will be transferred to the Rohwer relocation center only 35 miles away and the remaining residents will be relocated at Granda Center, Colo., Heart Mountain, Wyo., and possibly other centers if more space is needed.

Who Is Admiral Spruance, U.S. Wizard Of Pacific?

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Admiral Raymond Ames Spruance, the man who dealt destruction to Truk, is virtually unknown to the general public but he long has been a hero to the U. S. Navy. Here is his personal story.)

By BOYD LEWIS
United Press Staff Writer

A weather-beaten, grizzled officer of medium build squints his sea-blue eyes westward across the Pacific from the flag bridge of a warship and gives an order that sends U. S. Navy planes and ships crashing upon Japan's island bastions.

That's Admiral Raymond Ames Spruance in battle—no fireworks, no breath-taking final phrases—just a few quiet words in a Hoosier drawl. He looks rather like the late Will Rogers, the cowboy philosopher, as he paces the bridge.

Dubbed "Fighting Fool"

But behind that calm, kindly exterior is a professional warrior so through in his preparations and so keen in his battle decisions that his fellow officers have dubbed him a "cold-blooded, fighting fool." One of the officers who holds him in high esteem is Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander of the Pacific fleet, who chose him to lead the present bold thrust through the Central Pacific aimed at seizing bases on the China coast.

People are beginning to ask "who is this man" whose hard-hitting aircraft carrier task forces have stabbed even to the enemy's "Pearl Harbor," the supposedly-invulnerable atoll of Truk and virtually finished it off as a naval base in two days of explosive punishment.

Like his boss, Nimitz, young Ray almost went to West Point instead of Annapolis. His father wanted him to be an Army officer but Ray was gripped by the lure of the sea which seems to exert an unusual tug in lads from the midwestern plains. He got an appointment to the Naval academy from Indiana in 1903.

Forecast Shows In 1922

His Navy career was neither more nor less exciting or unusual than that of a score of others. He commanded destroyers, cruisers, battleships; the Navy "shanghaied" him ashore to be electrical superintendent of the New York Navy yard during World war I. Not until 1922 do we begin to see a forecast of the miracle man of

ADM. RAYMOND SPRUANCE

Midway and the titan of Truk. In that year he became a member of a Navy board studying the doctrine of aircraft in connection with fleet fire control.

Here was the inauspicious birth of America's tremendous new naval potential — winged sea power. By its title, the board showed that the battleship-minded admirals still were thinking of airplanes as handy little auxiliary, useful to spot targets for the 16-inch guns of the surface craft, but at last the sea dogs were beginning to look to the air and Ray Spruance was beginning to learn some of the lessons that would stand him in good stead against the Japs.

Met Japs At Midway

Spruance was commander of a cruiser squadron when Nimitz sent him out with a carrier task forse to head off the Japanese invasion armada sighted about 700 miles off Midway on June 3, 1942. Navy patrol planes, acting as scouts of the sea lanes, had sent back warning that the Japanese were rolling east with everything in the book—battleships, cruisers, destroyers, carriers—and transports laden with troops. There was little doubt that they were coming to do what we had feared ever since Pearl Harbor: Return for the mop up.

Spruance steamed to intercept. His task force hadn't a prayer in a knock-down-and-drag out encounter but he counted on Navy air power and it came through. Spruance won one of the most amazing naval battles in history—a long-range duel in which the two forces hurled their planes at one another but never came to grips—by an overwhelming score. The Japanese turned tail and ran back to Tokyo with a loss of 10 ships, including four carriers, two cruisers, three destroyers and at least one transport. We lost the carrier Yorktown, and one destroyer.

"His seamanship, eudrance and tenacity in handling his task force were of the highest quality," Nimitz said when he pinned the Distinguished Service Medal on Spurance three months later. Speaking more informally on another occasion, Nimitz added this:

"I have the highest regard for Admiral Spurance and the highest expectations. Nothing you can say about him would be praise enough."

Before Spruance moved aboard his flagship, he and Nimitz shared bachelor quarters in a house overlooking Pearl Harbor. They hiked and swam together and entertained in a modest way. Spruance mixed the drinks, but aside from a testing sip, abstained, for he uses neither tobacco nor alcohol.

When perplexed by a knotty problem he likes to put a record on his phonograph and relax to the music. The Japanese are beginning to suspect that he has been listening to battle songs exclusively in the last few months.

Bright Postwar Future Is Seen

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (AP) — Speaking over a radio hookup from here in connection with installation ceremonies of an Owens-Illinois Glass company plant in Waco, Tex., Senator Connally declared today that war-born industrial activities in Texas "are but harbingers" of what the state will do in peace.

"Texas offers alluring and sompelling inducements to industrial development," he said. "Her natural resources, the mildness of her climate, and the variety of her products all join in extending a beckoning hand toward those seeking the largest and most promising opportunities.

"In aircraft, factories, in shipbuilding plants, in synthetic rubber plants, in high octane gasoline production, in general petroleum production, in the production of clothing, tents and mattresses for the comfort of our armed services, it is performing magnificently.

Harbingers Of Peace Time

"These things are but harbingers of what Texas will do in post-war times of peace.

"The record of Texas boys in this war challenges the most brilliant pages of military annals of the earth. The spirit of the Alamo and of Goliad and of San Jacinto has been transmitted through the generations to the brave and heroic men who are now fighting in defense of all the great things we love. Texas in war is giving her best in courage, in high patriotism and in dauntless gallantry.

"When peace comes, we want a developed and a balanced industry in this great old commonwealth which will give employment to discharged soldiers and will make strong in peace what our gallant heroes are protecting in time if war."

(High officials of the company were present for the formal opening ceremonies at Waco. Customers of the firm attended a preview of the plant this morning, there was luncheon at noon, and a flag-raising and public inspection in the afternoon.)

POSTMASTER CONFIRMED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22. (AP)—The Senate today confirmed the appointment of Wayland B. Weatherred, as postmaster at Pampa, Tex.

Jap Lapse In Engine Development Cited

BALTIMORE, Feb. 22. (AP)—The Japanese lag of three to four years in aircraft engine development was cited today by Rear Admiral Arthur W. Radford as the probable basic reason for the readiness with which Navy carrier pilots knocked out Nippon's airmen over Truk and other strong Pacific island bases.

The Baltimore Evening Sun, in a special dispatch from Pearl Harbor, reported that Admiral Radford, chief of staff of the Pacific fleet air force, declared in an interview that Japanese aviation does not belong in the "the big league" and was convinced it could not stay there much longer.

The "fatal weakness," Radford said, is in the engine department.

"I don't know of a single Jap engine that isn't a basis 'swipe' from one of our old models," Radford said, "though, of course, they may have copied some German models also."

The the same time, the admiral said the Japanese have some "beautifully designed planes and expressed admiration for Jap flyers' ability to make the best of them.

Certain Materials Are Still Needed For War

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22. (U.P.)—Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the War Production Board said today that little if any materials or manpower will be available in the near future for construction of dams for flood control or electric power.

Testifying before the House flood control committee, Nelson said the manpower situation is acute and that until the military chiefs of staff say they no longer need certain materials, those items will not be available for civilian use.

Cement is plentiful and the steel situation is "easing," he said, but they still can be used only for war purposes.

Mother Of Late Texas Army Captain Buried

BELTON, Feb. 22. (U.P.)—Funeral services were held here today for Mrs. Mary Goth Waskow, mother of the Army captain immortalized by Columnist Ernie Pyle on an Italian battlefield.

A memorial service for the son, the late Capt. Henry T. Waskow, was held in connection with last rites for the 66-year-old Mrs. Waskow, who died yesterday.

Two sergeants of the 36th division who served with Waskow were here to attend the services. They came from McCloskey General hospital at Temple, where they are patients.

Biddle Denounces Spain's Falangists

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22. (AP) — Attorney General Biddle said today that the official Falange party of Generalissimo Franco of Spain is no better than Fascism and Nazism, and that no Falangist is fit to be a United States citizen.

Biddle flung this charge, which follows other examples of Allied displeasure with the Franco government, in commenting on plans for action, begun in San Juan, Puerto Rico, today ,to take away the American citizenship of Isidro Conde Fernandez on the grounds that he belonged to the Falange.

This is the first such action involving the Falange, but Biddle intimated there will be others.

The Woman's Angle
By Margaret Turner

NOTICE to the dozens of women who have called the office to inquire about the possibilities of a paper and tin can salvage campaign and to Ruby Lee Leary, who fears the pile of cans at the side if KFYO will be to the top of the building before anything is done:

There is to be a concentrated drive for grease, paper and iron staged in Lubbock early in March. Details are being worked out now and just as soon as we can learn anything definite about the matter we'll let you know. In the meantime remember to save your waste fat and separate your papers and magazines and smash your empty cans.

We know you have become discouraged because it seemed that C day (collection day, if you can't guess) would never come. But cheer up! There definitely will be a paper drive in March and collection of other salvage shortly afterward.

So you may refrain from calling KFYO, the Avalanche-Journal and the Chamber of Commerce offices for information on how to get rid of your salvage and remember the day is nearing when you can rid your premises of all of the scrap junk you saved.

Incidentally, the papers are to be stacked and folded the way you see them on the newsstands. And you don't have to let that waste grease stack up in the kitchen tin bucket because any butcher will buy it, now, giving you cool cash and brown ration stamps in exchange.

THE FAITHFUL FEW

SOMETIMES we hear irritated persons complain that Lubbock seems remiss in matters that other cities seem to put across without hesitation. Our reply is that it's because the faithful few who form the committees to organize plans for civic drives have to take time out once in a while to check up and see where they are so to speak. Whether it's to help with the program at the Community Center, to aid in a house-to-house canvass in selling War Bonds or soliciting membership in the Red Cross, to plan a paintup and cleanup campaign or to appear on parent-teacher, study club or church society programs, you'll find the same names appearing in the newspapers over and again.

What Lubbock could use, as we see it, is about 100 volunteers for home front work.

TAKE the matter of surgical dressings at the Red Cross production rooms, 1605 Avenue J, where only a few hundred of Lubbock's thousands of women have volunteered for duty. They are getting the job done but if twelve women came tomorrow where one came yesterday the quota would be completed weeks sooner.

"I'm so tired of hearing the same speakers everywhere I go I could scream," a friend confided the other day. "Why can't we get somebody new, if only to afford a change of scenery?"

Well, holding no membership in anything except the church, we don't know about the problems of program chairmen but we'd venture the guess the old faithfuls are called on because they never say no.

IN THE MAIL

DEAR Miss Turner: The quotation referred to in Sunday's Woman's Angle was written about 1690 and the author is unknown. For reference see "The Pocket Book of Quotations," editor, Henry Davidoff, page 52.

Yours sincerely,
Mrs. Charles V. Nelms,
Tahoka.

DEAR Miss Turner: The author of the quotation,
"Count that day lost whose low descending sun
Views from thy hand no worthy action done."
is not known. My authority on this is: The International Encyclopedia of Prose and Poetical Quotations, compiled by William S. Walsh and published by John C. Winston Co. A note beneath the quotation states: "A reminiscence of the exclamation of the Emperor Titus, 'Friends, I have lost a day', ('Amici diem perdidi'), made one night at supper, on reflecting that he had assisted no one that day. The story is told by Suetonius."

Ickes To Close Jap Camp In Arkansas

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22. (U.P.) — Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes announced today that the War Relocation authority center near Jerome, Ark., will be closed June 1.

Ickes said 18,000 persons of Japanese descent evacuated from the Pacific coast since the start of the war with Japan have been returned to their homes, leaving room in the other nine relocation centers for the 6,554 Japanese now residing at Jerome. Elimination of the center, one of two in the Mississippi delta region of Arkansas, is an economy move, Ickes explained.

The Jerome center was the last to be established by the WRA and at one time was the temporary home of 8,072 persons. Under the relocation program, 1,518 persons had left the center, Ickes said.

Approximately 2,000 Japanese of the Jerome center, it was believed, will be transferred to the Rohwer relocation center only 35 miles away and the remaining residents will be relocated at Granada Center, Colo., Heart Mountain, Wyo., and possibly other centers if more space is needed.

Who Is Admiral Spruance, U.S. Wizard Of Pacific?

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Admiral Raymond Ames Spruance, the man who dealt destruction to Truk, is virtually unknown to the general public but he long has been a hero to the U. S. Navy. Here is his personal story.)

By BOYD LEWIS
United Press Staff Writer

A weather-beaten, grizzled officer of medium build squints his sea-blue eyes westward across the Pacific from the flag bridge of a warship and gives an order that sends U. S. Navy planes and ships crashing upon Japan's island bastions.

That's Admiral Raymond Ames Spruance in battle—no fireworks, no breath-taking final phrases—just a few quiet words in a Hoosier drawl. He looks rather like the late Will Rogers, the cowboy philosopher, as he paces the bridge.

Dubbed "Fighting Fool"

But behind that calm, kindly exterior is a professional warrior so through in his preparations and so keen in his battle decisions that his fellow officers have dubbed him a "cold-blooded, fighting fool." One of the officers who holds him in high esteem is Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander of the Pacific fleet, who chose him to lead the present bold thrust through the Central Pacific aimed at seizing bases on the China coast.

People are beginning to ask "who is this man" whose hard-hitting aircraft carrier task forces have stabbed even to the enemy's "Pearl Harbor," the supposedly-invulnerable atoll of Truk and virtually finished it off as a naval base in two days of explosive punishment.

Like his boss, Nimitz, young Ray almost went to West Point instead of Annapolis. His father wanted him to be an Army officer but Ray was gripped by the lure of the sea which seems to exert an unusual tug in lads from the midwestern plains. He got an appointment to the Naval academy from Indiana in 1903.

Forecast Shows In 1922

His Navy career was neither more nor less exciting or unusual than that of a score of others. He commanded destroyers, cruisers, battleships; the Navy "shanghaied" him ashore to be electrical superintendent of the New York Navy yard during World war I. Not until 1922 do we begin to see a forecast of the miracle man of

ADM. RAYMOND SPRUANCE

Midway and the titan of Truk. In that year he became a member of a Navy board studying the doctrine of aircraft in connection with fleet fire control.

Here was the inauspicious birth of America's tremendous new naval potential — winged sea power. By its title, the board showed that the battleship-minded admirals still were thinking of airplanes as handy little auxiliary, useful to spot targets for the 16-inch guns of the surface craft, but at last the sea dogs were beginning to look to the air and Ray Spruance was beginning to learn some of the lessons that would stand him in good stead against the Japs.

Met Japs At Midway

Spruance was commander of a cruiser squadron when Nimitz sent him out with a carrier task forse to head off the Japanese invasion armada sighted about 700 miles off Midway on June 3, 1942. Navy patrol planes, acting as scouts of the sea lanes, had sent back warning that the Japanese were rolling east with everything in the book—battleships, cruisers, destroyers, carriers—and transports laden with troops. There was little doubt that they were coming to do what we had feared ever since Pearl Harbor: Return for the mop up.

Spruance steamed to intercept. His task force hadn't a prayer in a knock-down-and-drag out encounter but he counted on Navy air power and it came through. Spruance won one of the most amazing naval battles in history—a long-range duel in which the two forces hurled their planes at one another but never came to grips—by an overwhelming score. The Japanese turned tail and ran back to Tokyo with a loss of 10 ships, including four carriers, two cruisers, three destroyers and at least one transport. We lost the carrier Yorktown, and one destroyer.

"His seamanship, eudrance and tenacity in handling his task force were of the highest quality," Nimitz said when he pinned the Distinguished Service Medal on Spurance three months later.

Speaking more informally on another occasion, Nimitz added this:

"I have the highest regard for Admiral Spurance and the highest expectations. Nothing you can say about him would be praise enough."

Before Spruance moved aboard his flagship, he and Nimitz shared bachelor quarters in a house overlooking Pearl Harbor. They hiked and swam together and entertained in a modest way. Spruance mixed the drinks, but aside from a testing sip, abstained, for he uses neither tobacco nor alcohol.

When perplexed by a knotty problem he likes to put a record on his phonograph and relax to the music. The Japanese are beginning to suspect that he has been listening to battle songs exclusively in the last few months.

Bright Postwar Future Is Seen

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (AP) — Speaking over a radio hookup from here in connection with installation ceremonies of an Owens-Illinois Glass company plant in Waco, Tex., Senator Connally declared today that war-born industrial activities in Texas "are but harbingers" of what the state will do in peace.

"Texas offers alluring and sompelling inducements to industrial development," he said. "Her natural resources, the mildness of her climate, and the variety of her products all join in extending a beckoning hand toward those seeking the largest and most promising opportunities.

"In aircraft, factories, in shipbuilding plants, in synthetic rubber plants, in high octane gasoline production, in general petroleum production, in the production of clothing, tents and mattresses for the comfort of our armed services, it is performing magnificently.

Harbingers Of Peace Time

"These things are but harbingers of what Texas will do in post-war times of peace.

"The record of Texas boys in this war challenges the most brilliant pages of military annals of the earth. The spirit of the Alamo and of Goliad and of San Jacinto has been transmitted through the generations to the brave and heroic men who are now fighting in defense of all the great things we love. Texas in war is giving her best in courage, in high patriotism and in dauntless gallantry.

"When peace comes, we want a developed and a balanced industry in this great old commonwealth which will give employment to discharged soldiers and will make strong in peace what our gallant heroes are protecting in time if war."

(High officials of the company were present for the formal opening ceremonies at Waco. Customers of the firm attended a preview of the plant this morning, there was luncheon at noon, and a flag-raising and public inspection in the afternoon.)

Jap Lapse In Engine Development Cited

BALTIMORE, Feb. 22. (AP)—The Japanese lag of three to four years in aircraft engine development was cited today by Rear Admiral Arthur W. Radford as the probable basic reason for the readiness with which Navy carrier pilots knocked out Nippon's airmen over Truk and other strong Pacific island bases.

The Baltimore Evening Sun, in a special dispatch from Pearl Harbor, reported that Admiral Radford, chief of staff of the Pacific fleet air force, declared in an interview that Japanese aviation does not belong in the "the big league" and was convinced it could not stay there much longer.

The "fatal weakness," Radford said, is in the engine department.

"I don't know of a single Jap engine that isn't a basis 'swipe' from one of our old models," Radford said, "though, of course, they may have copied some German models also."

The the same time, the admiral said the Japanese have some "beautifully designed planes and expressed admiration for Jap flyers' ability to make the best of them.

Certain Materials Are Still Needed For War

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22. (U.P.)—Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the War Production Board said today that little if any materials or manpower will be available in the near future for construction of dams for flood control or electric power.

Testifying before the House flood control committee, Nelson said the manpower situation is acute and that until the military chiefs of staff say they no longer need certain materials, those items will not be available for civilian use.

Cement is plentiful and the steel situation is "easing," he said, but they still can be used only for war purposes.

Mother Of Late Texas Army Captain Buried

BELTON, Feb. 22. (U.P.)—Funeral services were held here today for Mrs. Mary Goth Waskow, mother of the Army captain immortalized by Columnist Ernie Pyle on an Italian battlefield.

Two sergeants of the 36th division who served with Waskow were here to attend the services. They came from McCloskey General hospital at Temple, where they are patients.

Biddle Denounces Spain's Falangists

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22. (AP) — Attorney General Biddle said today that the official Falange party of Generalissimo Franco of Spain is no better than Fascism and Nazism, and that no Falangist is fit to be a United States citizen.

Biddle flung this charge, which follows other examples of Allied displeasure with the Franco government, in commenting on plans for action, begun in San Juan, Puerto Rico, today ,to take away the American citizenship of Isidro Conde Fernandez on the grounds that he belonged to the Falange.

This is the first such action involving the Falange, but Biddle intimated there will be others.

Childress Wins Bi-District Opener Over Lubbock, 39-23

The Lubbock Westerners, champions of District 1-AA, are again faced with making a sensational comeback if they have any designs on a trip to Austin for the state high school basketball tournament.

The Childress Bobcats were hot last night at the Westerner gym, and the Westerners were just about as cold, and when the smoke of battle had been cleared from the gym, the Bobcats had tucked a 39 to 23 victory in their ball bag and were on the way back home.

The Westerners were in the thick of the ball game for the first period, but when Risenhoover dropped in a free pitch, and Cotton and C. Kitchens sank a pair of long ones to take a 9 to 6 lead as the gun sounded to end the first quarter, that was the ball game.

H. Kitchens hit a pair in quick order to start the second quarter, and build the lead to 13 to 6, and from then on, the Bobcats were in complete control of the situation, and were never pressed.

At Childress Thursday

It was much the same type of ball game as the Lubbock opener with Amarillo, and found the Westerners completely outclassed in the first game. The question of whether history will repeat will be answered Thursday night at the Childress gym when the series is resumed once more in the lair of the Bobcats.

The Lubbock outlook took on an even darker appearance in the fourth quarter when Bill Cope went out of the ball game with a sprained ankle, and the condition of this ankle may mean the difference in the two ball clubs when they meet at Childress.

When Cope went out of the ball game, he was setting the pace for the Westerners with nine points. His place was taken by Jerry Crawford, who arched in three long desperation shots in the closing minutes to finish with second honors on the Westerner club.

The flurry by the Westerners in the closing minutes found Crawford hitting three from far, and Billy Walker, another sub, sank one from the corner of the floor, but the rally came too late.

Top scoring honors of the night went to H. Kitchens, Childress veteran, who looped in 12 points. But the Bobcat scoring was well bunched with four men sharing in the honors.

Barry tied with Cope for runnerup honors of the game with his nine, while Cotton finished with eight and Risenhoover looped in seven points. The Bobcats shot from all angles on the floor, and made hard ones look easy while the Westerners were unable to contact with the basket from any angle.

The Westerners gained an early lead as Cope arched one through the meshes from the corner for the first score of the game. H. Kitchens then looped in a foul shot and Cotton sank one from the floor for a 3 to 2 lead for the Bobcats.

Manderson regained the lead for the Westerners with a field goal, then added a free pitch for a 5 to 3 lead. Barry and Cope exchanged free pitches, then Risenhoover sank a free one to pull within one point, then Cotton and C. Kitchens sank their long ones for the 9-6 lead at the quarter.

The Bobcats ran this to 21 to 12 at the half, then with Barry setting the pace in the third period, the Bobcats roared to a 32 to 15 lead in the third period, then coasted in with the victory.

Schoolboy Rowe Sent To Great Lakes Navy

GREAT LAKES, Ill., Feb. 22. (U.P.)—Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, former pitcher for the Detroit Tigers, Brooklyn Dodgers and Philadelphia Phils, began his boot training today at Great Lakes Naval Training Station.

Rowe reported yesterday with a group of inductees, Great Lakes officials announced.

Eddie Dyer Doubtful Texas Loop Can Play

HOUSTON, Feb. 22. (U.P.) — Eddie Dyer, executive assistant to President Sam Breadon of the St. Louis Cardinals and business Manager of the Houston baseball club of the suspended Texas league, said today he saw no alternative to continue suspension in 1944.

Texas league representatives meet in Dallas Feb. 27 to discuss 1944 prospects. Dyer, writing in the Houston Press, said he was prepared to take a stand that there are at least two "good reasons" for not attempting to revive the league this year.

They are the manpower and transportation problems, he said.

"The manpower situation is far more acute than it was last year. Consequently, Texas league fans would have to see an inferior class of baseball," he wrote.

"And they would have to pay the same Texas league prices for it, because it is impossible to operate the league at lower prices."

On his second point, he said:

"Anyone who has tried to buy railroad accommodations for himself lately knows what a problem it would be to try to transport a party of approximately 20 persons around the circuit all season.

"The great concentration of Army camps, flying fields and Navy bases throughout this sector with the attendant heavy rail traffic makes travel . . . even more difficult than it is in the East and North. The ODT does not permit travel by bus or private automobile for professional sports teams."

SPAAF Plans Opened For Softball Loop

A softball league with 14 squadron and organization teams going to bat is being planned at South Plains Army Air Field for this spring.

A recurrence of the hot diamond competition which featured the same league at SPAAF last spring and summer is expected as the soldiers get out their bats and balls and begin practicing their throws to home plate.

Squadron competition in the post basketball loop has been brisk and popular, as has the field bowling league.

Whether or not SPAAF will field a baseball team this year probably depends to a large extent on SPAAF's chances of getting opponents. Capt. Nathan B. Eubank, post athletic officer, has announced that SPAAF can put a good team on the diamond if any opponents can be scheduled.

Fight Card Set At Petersburg

PETERSBURG, Feb. 22—Fresh from a decisive triumph over the Tahoka boxing team, the high geared Petersburg pugilistic performers will face perhaps their most important test Friday night at 8:30 when Coach Joe Scoggins lead his crew of Amarillo anhilators into the local arena for a 15 fight dual match.

The Amarillo contingent is star studded with hard hitting, experienced veterans, but Petersburg has a crew of ringmen who have not yet learned to concede victories to more experienced fighters.

Amarillo will meet the fury of an eager crew that last week unleashed a devastating attack against Tahoka's ringmen to chalk up eight victories in a 14 fight dual match. Four of the eight wins came by knockouts.

Scoring knockouts for Petersburg were slender Bob Fowler, Coyt Thompson, Frankie Stanton and power laden Claude Mickey. The Amarillo team will be called upon to weather the attacks of these hard hitting boys as well as the cream of the crop, chosen from more than 40 boys comprising the local boxing team.

The feature fight of the card will be a battle involving either Ralph White or Wendy Surratt against classy Ed Gill, prize Amarillo lightweight. The esteem in which Gill is held in Amarillo was evidenced by the request from Coach Scroggins that outside opposition be brought in to face the classy Gill.

Ralph White, conqueror of SPAAF's vaunted Milt Papps, or Subratt are both classy performers, and a meeting with either one of these boys will assure Gill of a very busy evening.

Ringside seats for the fight were placed on sale in Petersburg Saturday morning, and more than 200 were sold in 45 minutes, Sidney Reeves, superintendent of schools said. This fact attests to the great interest worked up among fans over this card. Ringside seats are priced at 65 cents and outside calls will be filled until the supply is exhausted.

848th. Squadron Is Winner In Cage Tilt

With a share in the title at stake, the 848th Squadron basketball five of the South Plains Army Air field Squadron cage league, turned on the pressure last night to beat the 64th Squadron five 61 to 47, in a free scoring battle that found four men "getting hot."

Honors for the night went to Green of the losers, who poured 21 points through the meshes, but was unable to cope with Williams, Parker and Cullum of the winners, who hit the hoop for 15, 14 and 12 points, respectively.

In the second game, the 995th Squadron romped over the 370th Squadron to win a 28 to 19 victory in a battle between a pair of second division clubs. Brooks of the winner was top scorer of the game with eight points, while Capp paced the losers with six points.

Frogs Beat Baylor To Tie For Third Place In Race

WACO, Feb. 22. (AP)—The Texas Christian University Horned Frogs romped to a 49 to 29 victory over the Baylor University Bears here tonight as both teams closed their Southwest conference basketball season.

The Horned Frogs' victory tied them for third place with Southern Methodist university, and the University of Texas while Baylor wound up in sixth place, ahead of Texas A&M.

Allen with 12, McFarland with 11, and Chronister and Johnson with 9 apiece split up the majority of the TCU scoring. Marlin Hicks with ten tallies paced Baylor.

TCU jumped into an early lead and slowly expanded their total to the 28-12 halftime margin as Allen and McFarland hit their long shots. Tall Marlin Hicks of the Bruins stopped Chronister with two free throws the first half.

Coming back strong the second half the Horned Frogs added to their total with both long and short shots. Before TCU began substituting freely, the Horned Frogs held a 44-19 margin after which Hicks led the Bruin attack with three long ones to finish the final score of 49-29 in TCU's favor.

With TCU mixing fast passing and long shots, the Bruins remained hapless from the first.

Zoomers Win Easily Over Childress Five

NORMAN, Okla., Feb. 22. (AP)—Norman's Navy Zoomers stacked up a comfortable lead tonight and let their reserves carry the load most of the second half in a 43-31 basketball triumph over the Childress, Texas, Air base.

Cab Renick topped scoring with 16 points for the Zoomers, while Tutweiler, Childress forward, was the Texans' high man with 14.

ANOTHER COACH GOES

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 22. (U.P.) — Carnegie Tech, whose football squad was hard hit by the manpower shortage last season, faced another blow to its grid prospects today with disclosure that Head Coach Joseph P. (Muggsy) Skladany faced induction into the Navy at an early date.

He is the second grid coach to be lost to the Navy by Tech in little more than a year. Skladany's predecessor, Dr. Eddie Baker, entered the Naval reserve as a lieutenant.

McSpaden Seeks Part Pay For Golf Stars

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 22. (AP)—Golfer Harold (Jug) McSpaden, rejected today for military service, was returning tonight to the tournament trail, an advocate of revision in the prize system now in use. A change is necessary, McSpaden said, if professionals are to continue playing the tournament circuit.

McSpaden, top-ranking star of the winter season and winner in three of five tournaments, left the touring professionals last week to report to his Bryn Mawr draft board. Before boarding a train for New Orleans, where he plans to compete this weekend, the 34-year-old Philadelphia Country Club pro disclosed that he appeared voluntarily yesterday at the Army Induction Center, was recalled for further tests today, and finally classified 4-F. He has suffered from acute asthma for several years.

Every golfer, said the current kingpin of the winter circuit, is proud that the sport is the only one in whic hall prizes are paid in war bonds. But traveling professionals, faced with expenses 50 per cent above normal and many with no other cash income, are finding it increasingly difficult to continue.

To meet this situation, McSpaden proposed that a small part of each tourney purse be set aside in cash for equal distribution among the first dozen or so finishers. The remainder, all in war bonds, would be distributed on the present basis.

The four heavier boys see action Tuesday night and all the winners are due for action again Wednesday night. By that time the field will be cut to 32 semifinalists, who will return to Chicago for a final show March 10.

Sherman Is Winner Over Highland Park

SHERMAN, Feb. 22. (AP) — Sparked by their sensational jump-shot artist, Joiner, who flipped in seven field goals and one foul for individual scoring honors, the Sherman High Bearcats defeated the Highland Park Highlanders, 43 to 32, here tonight in the opener of their bi-district basketball championship series. Sherman had won the title in District 5-AA and Highland Park in District 6-AA.

John Reagan Cagers Nose By Goose Creek

HOUSTON, Feb. 22. (AP)—Houston's John Reagan Bulldogs, coming from behind twice in the last minute and half to tie the count at 32-32, beat the Robert E. Lee Ganders of Goose Creek in an extra period, 36-34, as they opened a three-game bi-district series here tonight. The other two will be in Goose Creek Friday and Saturday nights.

Tilmon Carter and George Kadera, with 10 and nine, paced Reagan. James Ellis scored nine and Bobby Foley and Ted Hunt got eight each for the Ganders.

Dick and Bob Reash, basketball-playing brothers at Bucknell university, are identical twins.

OUR PLEDGE

I/E pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands; One Nation, indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all.

A Curb On The Veto Power

THE President's veto of the Anti-Subsidy bill is sure to revive agitation for a curb upon this opportunity for abuse of executive powers. Whether the agitation will get anywhere remains to be seen. Probably it won't, even though the possibilities seem stronger that something actually might be done than ever before in American history.

The wisdom of the existing veto power has been questioned from time to time since the republic was founded. But agitation never has come to a head, chiefly because nearly all Presidents have exercised the power with wisdom and caution. Most Presidents have proved by their acts—not merely with empty words—their consciousness of the fact that they were the servants, not the over-lords, of the American people.

The opportunity for abuse offered by the veto power is obvious and unquestionable. Under the existing law, one-third of the members present and voting in either house of Congress can block the wish and will of all the others. Thus it could happen that as few as 32 senators could, by voting to sustain a veto, prevent the passage of a measure supported by every one of the 435 members of the house and the remaining 64 members of the senate. That is a lot of power to entrust to any President who has proved that he will not hesitite to manipulate authority to gain his own ends.

Properly used, the veto has been and can be made to serve as a splendid safety brake. But it is valuable and desirable only so long as it is used properly. This power, if abused, can be made to defeat the functioning of democratic government. It is not a power to be unreservedly entrusted to those who demonstrate that they can't control it.

Military Control Of News

FEW things connected with the war have caused more dissatisfaction at home than the handling of news from the fighting fronts.

Almost invariably, such news has been delayed, sometimes for months. Usually it has been incomplete, often no more than fragmentary. Frequently dispatches have been colored, sometimes to the point of distortion. Instances have occurred—as in the General Patton matter, the Nazi bombing of Bari harbor and the Jap atrocities—of apparent attempts to keep the American people in ignorance of events. On at least one occasion, in the Patton matter, deliberate falsification of reports has been admitted.

Certainly this mishandling of censoring authority has caused dissatisfaction. It is not a dissatisfaction which results for a wish to hear anything that might help the enemy. It does not result from morbid curiosity. One reason for it is the realization that a knowledge at home of events on the front lines is an added protection for men who fight.

Consider: The men at the front can't question any order. They might be shot if they did. But if they people at home can see that things aren't going well on the fighting fronts, they can at least ask questions. The asking of questions often is the starting point for the determination of whether there is fault in the strategy or leadership overseas. If people at home ask questions and aren't satisfied with the answers, they often can exert a pressure which is felt by the leadership across the water. Adequate news, promptly reported, offers added protection to the boys who are doing the fighting.

True, many leaders don't like questions. They take the attitude that it is none of the business of the people back home what the leaders do or how they do it. They apparently do not take cognizance of the self-evident fact that the leaders in a war or a battle would be the last to recognize and confess that reverses might be due to their own mistakes, their own faulty strategy, or their own incapacity. If things go badly, they always have an alibi that sounds persuasive to them.

But, regardless of the sensitive feelings of commanders, the people at home want the war news, and they want it as quickly as reasonable circumstance will permit. They want it before the battle is lost and while the information might still be turned to the advantage, through public opinion, of fighting men who dare not protest against incompetent commanders or foolish commands.

Our guess is that prominent among Americans who are wondering if President Roosevelt will offer for a fourth term is Franklin D. Roosevelt.

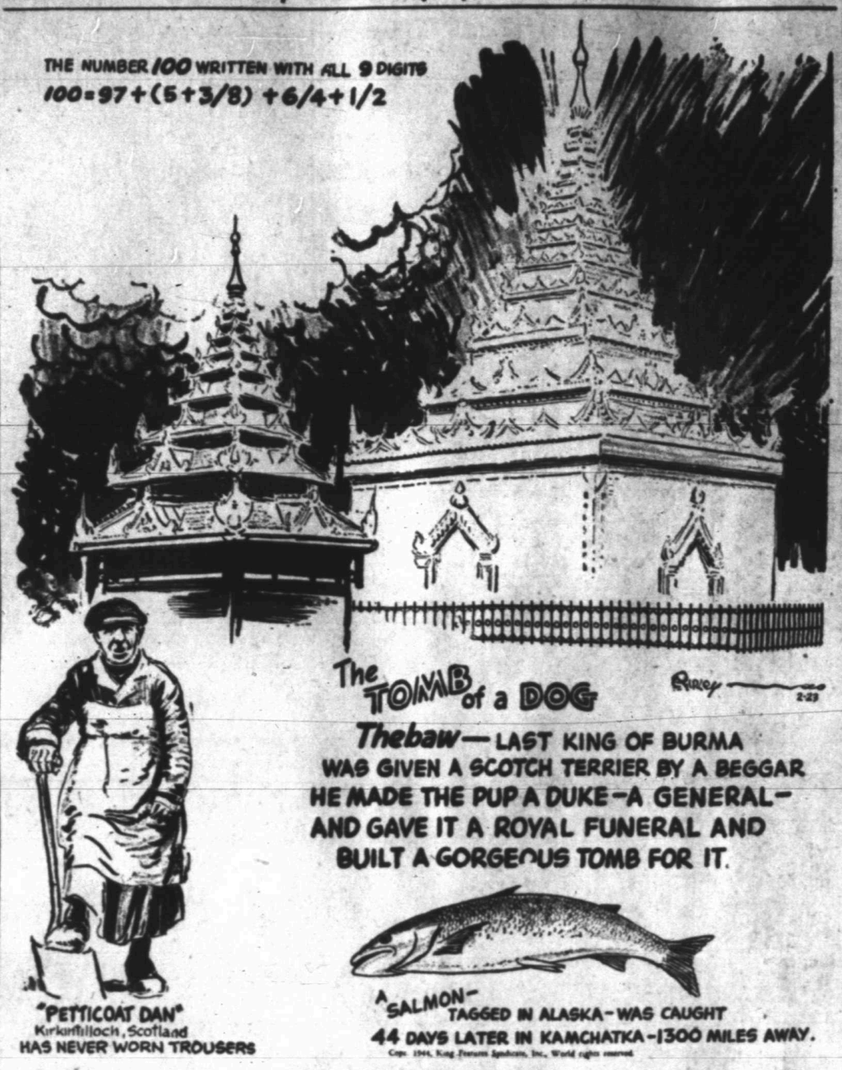

The Allies will have to reconstruct the main street of Berlin before they can stage a triumphant victory march through Germany's capital city.

The war boom brings to light a most deplorable fact, to wit: A large number of persons don't have to have much money in order to have more money than sense.

EXPLANATION OF CARTOON

THE TOMB OF A DOG

Thebaw, the last King of Burma, was a tyrant of extraordinary cruelty. Yet he had a fanatical love for a Scotch terrier which an itinerant beggar presented to him. He gave the animal the rank of a Duke, appointed it a General and Admiral of the Royal Armed Forces, and after its death gave it a royal funeral and had a magnificent tomb erected over it.

Gideon Planish

XXXII

GOVERNOR BLIZZARD had summoned Dr. Planish, who found a changed man.

"Doc, I'm going to get out of this town and go back to the United States of America. This is the time for it. I think maybe I'm the boy to put up against FDR at the next Democratic National convention, and till then I want to just set in Waskeegan and get the garlic and Chanel smells off me.

"Yep, I'm reverting to Main Street with some of the fastest reversion you ever saw.

"But I might be able to use the lowdown on the virtuous shenanigans that Marduc and that daughter of his may pull from now on. My bank will be sending you—at your home address—a check for one hundred dollars, every month, and I'd like you to keep me informed on whatever that enlightened pair get away with."

Dr. Planish gasped, "You don't mean you want me to spy on Colonel Marduc?"

"Sure I do!"

"Oh! Oh, I see. Well—"

THE PUBLICIZING of the Marduc Plan was interrupted by the most strategic idea Dr. Planish had had for a year. He saw a way in which, even during these troublous times, the DDD might be kept alive and useful no matter how wartime finances might go.

The aureous life-blood of all organizations was, to Dr. Planish's public rejoicing and private worry, flowing into war bonds and Red Cross subscriptions, just when he had to pay the installments on Peony's new near-diamond and semi-sapphire bracelet. He knew that the other organizations must be suffering from the same anemia. Why not save expenses by combining all of them—with Dr. Gideon Planish as the executive secretary of the lot?

The idea was simple and brilliant, he felt, and Colonel Marduc approved it.

The word "Co-operation" had long been one of the most valuable in the organizational treasure-house.

Now, with his secretary, he began to list all the national welfare and educational organizations with headquarters in New York City.

He stopped when he had listed 2,000 of them.

He arbitrarily picked out every hundredth league, called a taxicab, started out to co-operate the 20 he had chosen—and quit his crusade at 4:37 that afternoon.

By 4:37 p. m., the innocent Doctor had been shocked by the whole business of organizationality. He had found that the National American Eclectic Institute for the Advancement of the Popular Principle in Education was one large, gray old gentleman who had a small desk in a corner of a public stenographer's clattering office; that its rival, the Society for the Humanization of Higher Education, did have rooms and rooms and pamphlets and pamphlets, but was, all the while, just another league for attacking union labor; and that another rival, the Institute of Investigative Consideration of Education, was nothing at all but No. 3 telephone in a row of 12 telephones upon the desk of a backroom real estate dealer, which desk was equally the headquarters of of the Mount Celestial Cemetery Corp., the Fig Leaf Publishing Co., and the League for the Protection of Home and Marriage.

Dr. Planish returned to his office, and left the world to darkness and to philanthrobbing. He was so sunk that for a moment he thought of going back to work, of taking a school job so that some younger teacher might be released for enlistment.

But, he snorted, what percentage was there in being a professional Light to the Toilers if you merely become a toiler? That would be as silly as for a professional evangelist to go to somebody else's mission and get saved, with not even a look-in on the collection box.

No, he would go on with his co-operation, but he would perform it with sound, reliable organizators, the ones he already knew personally.

NEXT morning, at 11, he was in the anteroom of the Anti-Racial Youth committee for the Organization of Global Co-operation, waiting to see its managing secretary, Prof. Goetz Buchwald.

Into this room militarily strode still another friend: Commdr. Orris Gall, executive director of the Zero-Hour American National Committee on Anti-Totaliarian Defense, which even since Pearl Harbor had gone right on in a surprised way telling the country that Adolf Hitler was no real friend of America.

"Well, well, well, Dr. Planish, this is swell finding you here. This will save me a trip to your office. I phoned you, but they said you'd just left," said the Commander. "I've got a perfectly revolutionary idea. Like this. I needn't tell you how the sources of philanthropy are threatening to dry up. So why don't a lot of us that have a common ideology join up and economize on expenses and efforts? Let's co-operate!"

The Doctor glowed. "Why, that's what I was going to suggest to you! I suppose you'll be going back into the Navy."

"No, not—exactly. But I am going to take a key post with one of the most important manufacturers of naval equipment—in the public relations department. Right away."

"So that'll leave your ZANC without a director. I'll be glad to take it over—"

"That wasn't exactly my idea, Doctor. The fact is, my wife is going to continue my work—she's really a lot more capable than I am—and what I was thinking was that since your DDD has always merely covered the same field as ours, like exposing scoundrels like Zeke Bittery—and after all, it was I who first showed him up!—why, Marduc and you might like to put the DDD under Mrs. Gall's supervision and you could—well, you could go on to something else, don't you see?"

Dr. Planish was staring at this insolence when out of Professor Buchwald's office glided Dr. Christian Stern. He bubbled as he saw them:

"Well, well, boys, this is a coincidence! I was going to call on you both this afternoon, but I guess this'll save me some taxi-fares, ha ha! What I want to talk to you about is—You know how busy I always am, with my big institutional church, but somehow this crisis gives one superhuman energies, and I was thinking I might be able to combine your DDD and ZANC with Professor Buchwald's ARYC, and serve, or shall I say function, as executive secretary of the whole caboodle—and, practically speaking, at no extra salary, say just 35 hundred beyond what I'm getting now—and thus release you boys for war work, I regret to say that Buchwald can't see it my way. If there's any co-operating, he wants to do the operating and let us do the co! But you boys are more like practical men of affairs, and so—Let's co-operate!"

TWO MEN INJURED

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 22. (AP)—Early Rector Taylor, 50, Raymondville, and Joe Francis Ackerman, 30, Casa Grande, Ariz., were reported by hospital attendants to be in a serious condition today as a result of injuries sustained when hit by an automobile here late yesterday.

Looking At Life - - - - - - By Erich Brandeis

DID you see that story about the 80-year old Connecticut politician who is being sued for $50,000 damages by a New Jersey man, for alienating his wife's affections?

The funniest part about the story was that, according to the suit, the alleged alienation began in 1912—32 years ago—and continued right up to the present.

Maybe love isn't quite as tempestuous when a fellow is 48—that's what he was when it is supposed to have started—and it certainly does slow up by the time one gets to 60, 70 and 80.

But how can a fellow take 32 years to find out that his wife doesn't love him any more?

Or is that such a gradual and slow process (like approaching old age) that you don't notice it until the wife packs up and gets out?

How about this "alienation of affection" business, anyway?

Can affection be alienated?

Can love be turned on and off like a faucet?

Is it like a piece of jewelry or like money that can be stolen by a clever wolf?

I don't know, of course, and you don't know, because nobody knows what love is anymore than anybody knows what a cold is.

But you know by experience (at least I hope so) what the symptoms of love are and how it affects you.

And you also know that nobody can steal your wife's or your husband's love if it really is love and if you deserve it.

LOVE is part of you just like your character, your disposition, your looks.

And real love can stand an awful lot of abuse before it dies, if it ever dies.

No, Mr. New Jersey, that 80-year-old swain didn't alienate your wife's affections.

You either never had them, or she gave them to the other fellow of her own free will.

An "alienation of affection" suit is just another racket. It's an easy way to get money out of a sucker if you have a good lawyer and a pliable conscience.

I think if anybody alienated my wife's affections, I'd be the guilty party and not he.

Or I would know how to hold her.

P. S. At any rate, I'm going to take a box of candy home this evening.

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

TOPNOTCH military and naval officers bewail privately the Administration's frequent use of the armed forces to guard and operate plants involved in labor disputes. Secretary Henry L. Stinson shares their feeling of uneasiness but he dare not voice a protest to the Commander in Chief.

Troops in recent months have been assigned to the textile mills of Fall River and the leather factories of Peabody and Salem, Massachusetts. They may soon be sent into Cleveland unless controversies centering around independent unions there are settled amicably. The Navy department has commandeered establishments where weapons are being manufactured for that arm.

In few instances have local authorities requested Federal intervention of this nature. During the automobile sit-down strikes in Michigan several years ago it was ex-Governor Frank Murphy's failure to call on Washington for aid, so FDR explained, that kept the President from restoring the seized propeties to the owners. Now, of course, he acts under his wartime emergency powers.

Few of the quarrels in which soldiers have interfered concerned wages and hours. In the main they have been caused by disagreements regarding the jurisdiction of the various unions. In other words, the men in uniform are being used to police the A.F. of L., the CIO and rebel factions.

DISTURBANCES: General George C. Marshall contends that the machine he has built for defeating the Axis should not be employed in this kind of work. He thinks that there are plenty of other agencies strewn around the Capital that could handle economic and civilian questions.

The Chief of Staff was deeply upset when the War Department was compelled to take over the railroads a few months ago; he believed that the Office of Denfense Transportation was better fitted for that task. Colonels who had won their eagles by years of hard work and seniority were indignant when the same rank was bestowed on presidents of the lines.

More farsighted officers are apprehensive lest the policy may become permanent through its general adoption now, and they foresee that it might provoke trouble in postwar days. The fighters are reported to resent labor disturbances in the present crisis; they might show their feelings in an unfortunate manner at some future time.

William H. Davis is chiefly responsible for this procedure. His National War Labor Board has no enforcement authority. Whenever it gets into a jam because of defiance of its orders, he insists that its dignity must be upheld by the military. So far he has been able to sell this idea to the White House.

Union leaders have been quick to take advantage of the practice. When they submit petitions to employers, they frequently attach to the list of grievances the suggestion that managements agree in a hurry — otherwise they may impel the Government to "call out the troops."

NEGOTIATIONS: The millions of average American taxpayers should not be too quick to order dunce caps because of their inability to make out their 1944 returns. The men who frame the laws on this subject, as well as the officials who administer them, are just as dumb.

Members of the Ways and Means Committee shy from the straight-out question of whether or not they can fill out their blanks without outside assistance. It would hardly do for them to admit that they have written such a tortuous measure that they do not understand it themselves.

But it is a fact that more than fifty per cent of both the House and Senate groups which worked on the document for months have given up in disgust and turned the job over to their lawyers or Treasury experts.

Morgenthau aides and subordinates in the office of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue are also replying upon revenue consultants. It is even probable that the Secretary of the Treasury, whose recent sale of his "hobby" farm on the Hudson has complicated his financial affairs, may have to depend on others better acquainted with the ramifications of the statute.

The confusion resulting from its intricacies may make it impossible for Uncle Sam to recover large sums in future court actions. In most cases the litigants will produce Government witnesses who will be unable to agree on the amounts they should have paid. The result will be wrangles and negotiations lasting many years, and, in some instances, long after the disputing parties have died.

WINNING THE WAR
By Albert Leman

AFTER every downpour of steel — such as the two thousand eight hundred tons dropped in the recent RAF raid on Berlin — the layman redates his guess for Germany's fall. Experts themselves hold conflicting opinions as to the time the Reich will crack.

One of the highest officials in Washington, back from Stockholm where he conferred with Scandinavian businessmen who had visited Hitler's smoking capital, tells close friends, "The most pessimistic Swede sets July as the month the Nazis will wave the white flag. The optimists forecast their quitting much sooner."

But before the reader hangs out the Victory bunting, the following additional authoritative information should be weighed. Important Swedish industrialists lately visited Wall Street. They also had toured Germany. In their judgment although Berlin and other cities have been reduced to shambles, there is no evidence that collapse is just around the corner.

REBELS: Vital factories are eliminated from target zones. New buildings have been erected else where or the bombed-out firms are sharing space with distant manufacturers. Production always drops after an onslaught. But employes whose dwellings are destroyed are housed in plants. As they no longer have food troubles, commuting difficulties and home problems, their working capacity increases notiecably.

The shortages of lumber and bricks are overcome in Hamburg by the substitution of local clay. Those skilled in handling it give free instruction to amateur masons. Abandoned mine gallies in the Rhur are open for storing furniture of refugees. The old shafts are dry, warm and safe from explosives.

Debris from wrecked centers adds to the supply of scrap iron needed by steel mills. Privately owned revolvers and surplus military weapons are locked in arsenals guared by the Gestapo—beyond the reach of potentional rebels.

SUFFERERS: New complications, however, have arisen. Dr. Walther Funk, president of the Reichsbank, admits that in no country is the gap between currency in circulation and available merchandise so great as in that under the Swastika. Only through "permit requirements" can anything be purchased with cash. This control stops a rise in prices except in black markets.

But distribution is menaced by demands from blitz victims for beds, blankets, tables, clothing, kitchen utensils and other necessities.

The government is in a dilemma: It must prevent rapid depletion of scarce civilians goods resulting from buying sprees, yet it must be generous to the destitute. One "out" has been the reduction in compensation to air raid sufferers so that they will not have too much money to spend. But this restriction and the rejection of their pleas for replacement of essentials are more shattering to morale than is the war of nerves carried on by Anglo-American attacks.

(Copyright McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

"Excessive spending by the administration is a primary cause of inflation," says the House Ways and Means committee. Shame on the administration for preaching thrift and practicing prodigality!

On Being A REAL PERSON

BY DR. HARRY EMERSON FOSDICK

Loss of Positive Religious Faith Brings Ruinous Personal Results

THE failure to achieve, or the loss of a positive, constructive religious faith, is today having ruinous personal results.

Irreligion leaves the best areas of man's experience unaccounted for. Every man has spiritual experiences that materialism cannot explain. On the basis of thoroughgoing irreligion, what made Plato Plato, Beethoven Beethoven, Christ Christ, is an accidental byproduct of merely physical processes—"a curious accident in a backwater." The entire spiritual life of man, then, involving whatever gives humanity such distinction and dignity as it possesses, is a misfit in the cosmos.

When any man feels that way about life he faces distraction at the very center of his personality. His best is a cosmic mischance and misfit. He may decide to stand by his best and he may do well at it, but whenever he turns his thought to the total meaning of life, the sense of ultimate futility cannot be escaped.

This disintegrating effect of irreligion becomes more manifest when its ethical results appear. A man of sensitive spiritual life may pass, by some combined emotional and intellectual route, into a materialistic philosophy, but there he finds himself facing a profound personal schism. What in his idealism he thinks ought to be pulls in one direction; what in his philosophy he thinks really is pulls in another. He thinks man ought to be a high-minded, spiritual being, but he thinks man basically is an animal, accidentally produced.

This disintegrating effect of irreligion is apparent when attention is centered on a man's opinion of himself. Schopenhauer, so runs the story, walking down the street, accidentally bumped into a stranger. The stranger, irritated, turned on the philosopher and exclaimed, "Who are you anyway?" to which Schopenhauer, lost in meditation, answered, "Who am I? How I wish I knew!"

THE essence of every philosophy appears in its reply to that question, and in view of this fact the relevance of one's total faith to one's psychological health is obvious. A student's editorial in the Yale News says that atheism makes us seem like "ridiculous parasites on a dying speck of matter in infininite space and infinite cold."

To be sure, man has many ways of sustaining his self-esteem. His need of thinking highly of himself is so urgent that, even when his total faith would legically picture him as a ridiculous parasite, he manages to make the most of every minor justification he can find for self-appreciation.

In seeking satisfaction for that desire man uses any support for self-approbation he can find, but the more thoughtful a person is, the more his ultimate answer to the question, Who am I? springs from and shares the quality of his total philosophy. To call man a "child of God" is doubtless a metaphor, but so too is the statement that man is "a bundle of cellular matter upon its way to become manure," and both affirmations illustrate the necessary impact of one's basic faith, not simply on one's thought about the universe, but on one's thought oneself.

Any personality trying to live a high life on the basis of a low idea as to who he is, faces distraction at the center of his endeavor. Whatever else religious faith does, it sees man as essentially spirit and not matter; it regards him as a soul with a body and not as a body with accidental mental and spiritual functions: it grounds his best in eternal reality and teaches him to esteem himself as a being of divine origin, nature, and destiny. Great religion furnishes the most stimulating answer ever given to the question, Who am I? and the history of religious experience at its best is rich in illustrations of Adler's statement, "By changing our opinion of ourselves we can also change ourselves."

GEORGE Bernard Shaw describes an experience of his that took "a mob of appetites and organized them into an army of purposes and principles." This process of organization, essential to personal wholeness, always involves two elements, discrimination and renunciation and is never self-produced. It takes a positive faith to get it started. Some idea, cause, or person captures our confidence and devotion; we believe in some value and give ourselves to it; and in that act of faith we practice discrimination in its most profoundly satisfying form, and renunciation of faith's opposites follows with a minimum of strain.

A constructive faith is thus the supreme organizer of life, and, lacking it, like Humpty Dumpty we fall and break to pieces, and the wonder is whether all the king's horses and all the king's men can ever put us together again.

GRANDDAUGHTER WEDS

ROCKVILLE, Md., Feb. 22. (AP)—Patrizia Cobb Chapman, 21, granddaughter of Humorist Irvin S. Cobb, and Naval Lieutenant Gregson B. Bautzer, 31, former Hollywood attorney, were married in the Episcopal chapel yesterday a few hours after Lieut. Bautzer received orders to report for foreign duty.

Hari Kari Discounted In Jap Shake-Up

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Morris Harris, for 16 years prior to the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor was chief of the Associated Press bureau in east Asia, with headquarters at Shanghai. He was in Shanghai December 7, 1941. Shortly afterward he was arrested by the Japanese military and imprisoned, accused of being a spy. He was released and repatriated home late in 1942.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (AP) — The Japanese government's announced removal of its army and navy staff chiefs as a result of the smashing American victory at Truk and elsewhere in the Pacific has stirred speculation in high quarters here that hari kiri (suicide by ripping open the stomach with a sword) at the command of Emperor Hirohito can be the only end for these deposed high Japanese officers.

Maybe. But that's contrary to present day thought among officers of the Japanese imperial services. The present generation of Japan's uniformed men love life as much as we do.

Removal of Fleet Admiral Osami Nagano and Field Marshal Hajimi Sugiyama undoubtedly rocked Japan's military circles to its depths. But with Tokyo's announcement of Nacano's and Sugiyama's removel came assurance they would hereafter serve as highest military advisers to his majesty the emperor. That doesn't seem to indicate they have been told to go kill themselves.

Senate Group Favors Extension Of CCC

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22. (AP) — Legislation to continue the Commodity Credit corporation to June 30, 1945, minus the controversial section banning food subsidies, was approved unanimously today by the Senate banking committee.

Senator Bankhead (D-Ala), the author, said he would call it up for Senate consideration tomorrow.

In endorsing the bill in an executive session, the committee agreed to defer action on a proposed amendment by Senator Lafollette (Prog-Wis) which would restate the provision of the CCC act of July 1, 1941, requiring the government to support the market prices of some commodities at 90 per cent of parity.

Lafollette's office said the purpose of the amendment was to require the secretary of agriculture and war food administrator to "fulfill their support price commitments to farmers."

Hearing On Airliner Crash Gets Underway

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 22 (AP)—The Civil Aeronautics board launched a hearing here today into the cause of an American airliner crash Feb. 10 that cost 24 lives.

The plane crashed into the Mississippi river about 19 miles south of here a few minutes before midnight. It was the second worst civilian air crash in the nation's history.

William Andrews, chief of the investigation section of the CAB, is presiding officer at the hearing.

Meanwhile, the U. S. engineers have announced discontinuance of salvage operations of the crash. Seven of the 24 bodies, and about 95 per cent of the airliner have been recovered. The engineers' announcement said there was "slim possibility of effecting additional recovery at this time."

Large manufacturing industries are located in the city, including iron foundries and machine shops. In addition to its manufacturing interests, the city is a large port ranking first in Sweden for imports and second to Goeteborg for exports.

The dispatches did not intimate the nationality of the attackers.

Both German and Russian air bases lie east of Stockholm, across the Baltic sea.

Relations between Stockholm and Berlin have been strained since Sweden cancelled transit permits for German troops and war supplies to Finland and Norway across her railroads last August, although the two nations did renew a trade agreement recently.

It seems a safe bet that the war in Europe, judged by such things as the long-expected capture of Rome, is running behind schedule.

But the Pacific war appears to be way ahead of schedule. Veteran commanders here are still open-mouthed about the quick Japanese collapse at Kwajalein, key base in the Marshall islands, and the astonishing raid on Truk.

Churchill Believes Crisis In Europe War Is Near

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

Despite its specific disclaimer of the role of prophet as to the duration of the war in Europe, Prime Minister Churchill's war review leaves the impression that he still believes as he did last November that the crisis will be reached this year.

SIMPSON

The very caution with which the British war leader paved the way verbally for what is to come in the west suggests that. His promise of an Anglo-American air attack to precede actual landings on the continental coast beyond anything yet even "imagined" has that significance.

The whole of this (Allied) air offensive (from the south as well as the west) constitutes the foundation on which our plans for the overseas invasion stand," Churchill said. "The idea that we should fetter or further restrict the use of this prime instrument for shortening the war will not be accepted by the governments of the United Nations."

Raids Emphasize Point

Even as he spoke, American heavy bombers based in Italy and Britain were striking anew at targets in Germany to make good his pledge that every corner of the Reich would be reached by air. There was a veiled Churchill hint, also, that the hour of coordinated long range Russian bombing of the Nazi home front might be close, as Red armies roll nearer to Germany's eastern frontiers. It was a United Nations doctrine of pre-invasion "saturation" bombing of Nazi war industries, not Anglo-American policy alone, that he proclaimed.

That gave special significance to the Churchill sketch in broad outline of what the air relativities in Europe actually are. By "every possible test" he said, British and Russian plane production are about equal and each "already far exceeds Germany's while American production "alone is double or treble" the Nazi output.

Reluctance Justified

What that expanding Russian-Allied air potential means for Germany in the weeks and months ahead fully justifies the Churchill reluctance to hazard any conjecture as to how long the war in Europe might last. It is the great unknown factor in the struggle. His own inability to foresee what the effect on Nazi war morale might be was clearly indicated.

The British prime minister revealed that the overseas assault when launched from Britain would at the outset be composed of British and American troops in relatively equal numbers; but that with a continuous flow of reinforcements from the United States, American forces ultimately would predominate—"if" the struggle on the continent is "prolonged." There again he hinted strongly that 1944 will see the crisis reached in Europe and that victory is not only certain but "may not be so far away."

Capt. Wesley Dunlap Home From England

Capt. Wesley W. Dunlap, 2216 Twenty-ninth is back home after a year as a squadron leader with the 8th Air Force operating from an English base. Wearing the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Air Medal and three oak leaf clusters he has taken his B-17 over Kiel, Kassel, Hanover, Bremen, Hamburg, Frankfort and many other strategic German points.

He is home to rest, to soak up some good West Texas sun and to eat his fill of eggs, chocolate malts and all the other American delicacies that the British are a bit short on, Captain Dunlap says. His wife, the former Viola Edwards is here, but Captain Dunlap's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Dunlap are at present in California.

He graduated from Williams Field, Phoenix, Arizona with Class 42-I and went to England soon after the first of last year. A pilot of the "Spirit of a Nation" he flew 25 combat missions. He described the English countryside as very beautiful but admitted that he much preferred the U.S.A.

American Institute of Electrical Engineers of Texas Tech heard Chief of Police Don Reeder speak Monday night on the communications system of the Lubbock police and fire departments.

Mimeographed student directories of Tech can now be purchased at the registrar's office, according to Registrar W. P. Clement. The directories contain full information concerning the spring semester students and faculty members. In the past, directories have been printed; however, no directory was published during the fall semester.

Professor J. Hollie Cross, physics instructor at Tech from 1936 until 1941, has returned as a member of the pre-flight faculty, and began instruction in physics to the new pre-flight groups who arrived Monday. Since his departure from Tech, Professor Cross has been an instructor in physics and mathematics at the Philadelphis Textile institute.

Advanced marketing class of Tech, continuing their visits to Lubbock firms studying business problems, recently visited R. F. Bayless of the Santa Fe Railway company and C. C. File of Waples-Platter Grocery company, according to Dean J. O. Ellsworth, dean of commerce and professor marketing at Tech. Bayless discussed railroads, both in war and peace and File discussed the development of the Waples-Platter Grocery company.

Anzio Beachhead

scene of last week's desperate fighting, Edward Kennedy of the Associated Press today described the beachhead as "no brilliant victory, no triumphal entry into Rome, but a hard, gruelling struggle against odds and with risks, which has tied up a great German force on the southern front and which probably will have a profound effect on the course of the war."

Ready To Strike Back

Kennedy said the present prospect was that the Allies would hold the beachhead against every assault, and, when the Nazis had spent themselves, would strike back in force. He said some boys 17 and 18 years old were among the attacking German forces, but that others represented the cream of Hitler's Army.

(In his report to Parliament Tuesday, Prime Minister Churchill quoted Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, commander of Allied ground troops in Italy, as declaring that the fighting there, both on the beachhead and on the Cassino front, was the bitterest he ever saw. Alexander described it as "terrific.")

WAR ERA CONSTIPATION IS DAMAGING

In these times it is everyone's duty NOT to neglect constipation and suffer miserable acid indigestion, headaches, biliousness or that sluggish feeling which may follow. Every person should assume their own responsibility for keeping themselves fit. We know of no better preparation than Gly-Cas, the pharmaceutical product which gives effective and dependable relief in a comfortable way. Over 90 Million Gly-Cas capsules already used should be proof enough of the public's acceptance. Caution: Use only as directed.

Full Report On Tests Awaited

BROWNFIELD, Feb. 22. (Special) — It may be two more days before a complete analysis is received from a state laboratory in Austin, Brownfield officials investigating the poison death of two persons and the serious illness of two others, said today.

Deputy Sheriff Monroe Telford said it definitely had been learned, however, from Austin that arsenic had been in the stomachs of at least two of the victims.

Mrs. Anna Belle McCracken, 38, died Saturday, her step-daughter, Maude Alice McCracken, 11, early Monday.

The child's father, Forrest McCracken, 42, and her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Ellen McCracken, 60, were evidencing satisfactory change in condition, it was learned. They are in a hospital.

No Autopsy Is Asked

No autopsy has been asked by the only relative of the immediate family, another daughter of the Brownfield dairyman, Louise, 17, it was said. She was at Denton, in school, when advised of the tragedy.

The four persons poisoned ate dinner Friday at the residence of the elderly Mrs. McCracken. It is believed, officers reiterated, that the poison was taken accidentally, but the state laboratory so far has found no poison in any of the leftover food, it was announced. A tube of rat poison was found in Mrs. McCracken's residence, but officials had suggested that an insufficient amount of poison was missing from the tube to have caused the deaths and serious illnesses.

Two highway patrolmen, Finis Carter and John Wood, returned early today from Austin, where they had taken specimens of food to the laboratory.

They said "so many tests will have to be run" that the laboratory might require at least two days before submitting a final report.

Japs Badly Hurt

of naval men who are confident that the most powerful Navy ever to fly the American flag could administer a disastrous defeat to the enemy.

Knox warned against overconfidence, saying that victories in the Pacific have brought "optimism to an undue degree."

"We haven't yet tested the strength of the Japanese," he said, "we are operating only in their intermediate defenses and haven't yet entered the inner defenses of the empire. . . . It's a long, hard war in the Pacific."

He pointed out that Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander of the Pacific fleet, has indicated that he favors a drive to the Chinese coast to open the way for assaults on the Japanese homeland.

In accomplishing those sinkings, he said, our losses were only two submarines. The Japanese losses listed by Knox were:

Combatant vessels — two cruisers, four destroyers, one seaplane tender and seven miscellaneous, sunk; and one cruiser probably sunk.

Non-combatant — seven fleet tankers, three transports, 52 cargo ships, and 15 miscellaneous sunk; two fleet tankers and six cargo ships probably sunk.

Churchill Report

thing yet employed or indeed imagined."

The United States and Britain "are in the advent of the greatest joint operation between two Allies that has ever been planned in history."

4. The progress of the American and British forces in Italy has been affected by "extremely bad weather" and by the fact that the Germans "bit by bit have been drawn into Italy and have decided to make extreme exertions for retention of the city of Rime," but the Allies welcome the opportunity to engage the 18 divisions the Germans have sent there, and "this wearing battle in Italy occupies troops which cannot be employed in other greater operations and it is an effective prelude to them." Churchill said "I trust and believe" that the Allies will "succeed in the present battle and enter Rome."

5. British and American forces will be "approximately equal" at the outset of the invasion of Europe from the west, but if "its duration is prolonged the continuous inflow of Americans, built up at an enormous rate, will naturally give them superiority in numbers."

Political Situation

Political:

1. Discussing the question of whether recent Soviet press articles "imply a cooling off in Anglo-Russian or American-Russian friendship," Churchill declared he could reassure the House that "none of the ground made good at Moscow and Tehran has been lost." He said "the three great Allies are absilutely united in their action against the common foe."

2. Stalin is "resolved upon the creation and maintenance of a strong, integral independent Poland as one of the leading powers in Europe," and the British government, while not guaranteeing "any particular frontier line" to Poland, favors that "all questions of territorial settlement and readjustment should stand over until the end of the war." Then "the victorious powers should arrive at a formal and final agreement governing the articulations of Europe as a whole."

3. Britain cooperated with Marshal Tito's Partisans in Yugoslavia after General Mihailovic "drifted gradually into a position where some of his commanders made accommodations with Italian and German troops, which resulted . . . in doing nothing or very little against the enemy."

4. Churchill said he found it "hard to bear with Christian patience" a feeling "in some quarters" at home "that the way to win the war is to knock the government about, keep them up to collar and harry them from every side."

"Looking further abroad," he continued, "it is also election year in the United States, and that is a time when naturally a lot of rough things have to be said about Great Britain and when popularity is to be gained in that vast community in demonstrating Americanism in its highest forms.

"We are ourselves accustomed to the process of elections and I think we should not allow ourselves to be unduly concerned by anything that may be said or written there in the course of the great constitutional process which is taking place."

Bricker Refuses To Enter State Primaries

CHICAGO, Feb. 22. (U.P.)—Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio, candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination, will refuse to enter state primaries as a test of strength, he said today.

"I have received encouragement from all over the country and prefer to build up (nomination support) by personal appearances," he said in outlining his plans for an extensive speech-making tour.

Texan Gets Slick Tonsorial Job On Bougainville

BOUGAINVILLE, Feb. 22 (AP)—"Deep in the heart of Baugainville," is the name of the song that Private Manson H. Connelly of Bearfort, Tex., intends to write.

While on patrol far beyond the American lines this week, Connelly and an officer were trapped by a Japanese outpost. The officer reached safety by leaping into the Torokina river, wading downstream and cutting back to the lines.

But Conneily got into an old enemy foxhole and had to hug the ground for hours while the enemy sprayed the spot with machinegun bullets. Then the Japanese searched the area, often getting within a few feet of him in the dense jungle. At nightfall Connelly managed to crawl to the river and get away.

"If there is any medal given for close shaves, I oughta get it," said Connelly.

Small Enterprise Is Urged For Veterans

HOUSTON, Feb. 22 (AP)— The federal government should finance small enterprise during the reconversion period to create a reservoir of employment of returning veteans, national commander Carl Schoeninger of the Veterans of Foreign Wars asserted today.

"If the government can finance industry for war at the present rate of $300,000,000 daily, it can finance small enterprises for peace," Schoeninger said in an interview.

Schoeninger criticized what he termed a lack if coordination among the Army, Navy, veterans hospitals and veteran organizations "as far as acquainting disabled veterans with their rights and privileges to medical attention."

The 49-year-old Detroit municipal electric engineer will address a veterans meeting here tonight. From here he will go to the Texas valley and then to New Mexico and California.

200 Localities Captured

The advance toward Pskov in the past 24 hours brought the Russians to within ten miles of Dno, half-way point between Staraya Russa and Pskov. More than 200 localities were captured in this area alone, including Mikhaylovskoye, 10 miles southeast of Dno—an advance of 19 miles.

They also captured Vashkova, 38 miles southwest of Staraya Russa, the communique said.

Another part of the drive on Pskov, moving down the Leningrad railway, captured Bukino, 50 miles northeast of Pskov and drew to within seven miles of the rail and highway towns of Strugi Belaya and Feofilova Pustin. Strugi Belaya is 43 miles north of Pskov.

In the Kholm area, on the southeastern end of the Pskov arc, the Russians captured more than 100 towns including Mazury, nine miles to the west, and Sakhod, 14 miles southwest.

Dire Things Seen In A GOP Victory

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 22. (AP) — Chairman Robert E. Hannegan of the Democratic national committee said tonight the election of a Republican president in November would turn the government over to "unpracticed hands" and bring "unescapable confusion and indecision" in winding up the war and planning the peace.

In his second major address since his election to the Democratic chairmanship, Hannegan told a Washington day dinner:

"What could hearten Hitler, or the Japanese war lords, more than tidings that America has repudiated the administration of Franklin Roosevelt?"

"I do not think any of us can contemplate with equanimity or complacency the idea of the confusion that would be the inevitable result in a change of administration from Democratic to Republican. We know that such a change means more than a shifting of personalities in the White House. It connotes a change in every important office in the government."
