Making Effort To Save Crew

(By International News Service)
PORTLAND, Ore., June 17.—Another effort will be made today, if the hull of the steamer Laurel is still afloat, to take nine men, including the captain, Louis Johnson, from the ship that is pounding on Peacock Spit, at the mouth of the Columbia River. One of the seamen, named Smith, drowned when a huge wave swept him from the bridge of the vessel. Twenty-four others have been rescued. The ship was driven ashore by a terrific gale and broke in two. The fore part wallowed out to sea while the after part stayed near the beach. It was believed that no one was on the fore part.

Resolution Causes Uproar in Senate

(By International News Service)
WASHINGTON, June 17.—The action of Mrs. Herbert Hoover in entertaining Mrs. Oscar De Priest, wife of a Chicago negro congressman, caused an uproar in the senate this afternoon when Senator Bleasie of South Carolina sponsored a resolution urging the occupants of the White House to "be careful." The resolution carried a poem telling of the activities of negroes in the White House and the republican chieftains made heroic efforts to have it stricken from the congressional records. Bleasie finally withdrew the resolution as a favor to Senator Bingham of Connecticut and "not because it might be offensive to the negro race."

Stage Actors' Hollywood Invasion
No Worry for Regular Film Stars

By Frederick A. Chase

(International News Staff Correspondent)

LOS ANGELES, June 17.—The gestures of a stage actor would be too narrow in range to be seen by people in the peanut gallery. He must exaggerate them, yet be fine his exaggeration to a fine

point where he will not seem to exaggerate. A stage actor cannot be held in ordinary conversational tones. It must be loud and distinct enough to reach row 2,

and yet appear to be natural conversation. The necessity of the voice carrying has resulted in numerous tricks of speaking which become part of theatrical speech.

The close clipping of consonants

is an example.

It is the essence required to produce an illusion of naturalness

through unnatural conduct. Dean

Immel believes that makes good stage acting as rare as it is. Most amateurs appear to be "acting"

when they are upon the stage because they do not know how to seem natural without being natural.

In talking pictures, a different situation exists. The actor's audience is within a few feet of him

It is also acting before people in a small sitting room. His gestures must be more nearly natural. The director is constantly telling him to restrain his actions, to be natural. Many stage actors find it hard, if not impossible, to do this. My criticism of some of the talking pictures so far produced with stage actors in the leading roles is that the actors

seem to find it hard to tone themselves down for the close-up audience, the camera and the sound recorder. They cannot forget their stage technique. Their gestures tend to be exaggerated. Their speech is affected, although generally it is better than their patterns.

Because of this contrast in technique of the stage and talking pictures, Dean Immel does not believe that the stage can dominate the new field. Rather, he believes a class of new actors who have trained themselves particularly for the talking pictures will supply

most of the featured talent of the future pictures. These actors will be trained in the intimate, natural

style of acting which the picture

work demands, and they will have cultivated voices and speech based on American traditions of speech

rather than upon the English traditions which form the background

of the speech peculiar to the American theatrical world.

It Was a Grand Surprise to Her

Ballinger Woman Says She Had Suffered 3 Years Before Taking Orgatone

"I have gained daily on my first bottle of Orgatone and feel like a different person already," said Mrs. Horace Atmup, wife of a tailor at Armstrong's, and residing at 804 Twelfth St., Ballinger, Texas, the other day.

"I was in a very bad run-down condition," she explained, "from stomach disturbances and most especially I would eat and give me trouble my food would sour on my stomach and form gas that made me miserable for hours. My nerves were all on edge so I could not sleep at night, and when morning came I was most as tired as if when I went to bed. I had terrible spells of palpitation of the heart and felt so weak and tired as I could hardly get up in the morning. I was left to do anything."

"I heard so many people telling about the good of Orgatone had done them that I decided to try it. The day it took hold, my troubles were one hand surprise and I cannot know how to begin to think of all the benefits have derived from using it. I can say though it has made a new person of me. I now have a good appetite and can sit down to the table and eat a hearty meal, as a healthy person should. My kidneys are much better and the bloating has disappeared entirely and I have no more palpitation of the heart. I have no trouble with my digestion and sleep like a baby. Orgatone has been a fine thing for me, and I certainly am glad to recommend it."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called secret or patent remedy but also a new scientific preparation, and is sold in Ballinger exclusively by Weeks Drug Store, under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative.

Zeppelin Mishap Makes England Doubt Airship

By Charles A. Smith
(International News Staff Correspondent)
LONDON, June 17.—Is the airship worthwhile?

This question is exciting keen controversy in Britain as the result of the recent near-disaster to the German dirigible Graf Zeppelin, which had to make a forced landing in France due to acute engine trouble while on a flight to the United States.

The discussion has a particular significance for Britain, where two giant airships are shortly to be launched after months of constructional effort and an expenditure involving millions of dollars.

Two questions of paramount importance are concerning the public mind: Even with five engines, it is asked, can the airship beat the plane for speed, comfort and safety? Further, is the airship durable in a storm?

The controversy has been rekindled all the more acute by reason of attacks made upon the Zeppelin system of airship construction by an eminent British naval engineer who declares Britain's two new airships are "too big and too slow to be of any service in the night."

It is possible that the Zeppelin, which is expected to make an expedition to the United States, will make an expedition to the United States.

The question now being widely asked was whether it would be better to have the Graf Zeppelin built as a flying boat or as a rigid airship. It is also being asked whether it should be designed by Germany or America.

In the case of the nationality question, there are no difficulties which must be overcome before airships of any type can be regarded as safe or economically feasible; that is, their inability to land anywhere except at prepared points many hundreds of miles apart. The theory that the moon landing mast had solved all trouble is no longer accepted by airship designers. The Germans, who have led the world in airship construction, have never adopted it.

It is asserted the British vessel will stand a better chance than the Graf because in design she represents a complete breakaway from previous practice in a ship construction.

Stresses have been mathematically calculated and it is stated that the R-100 will be able to stand a strain five times as great as the Graf.

For all that, the majority of critics believe the two British ships will still be a poor merge of the elements.

Commander Burry, who has devoted much time and attendefinite conclusion that these giant craft, twice the size of the Graf, must be regarded as too small for a dependable Atlantic service.

A Public Institution---
Your Bank

Banks are privileged to do business primarily for the reason of public welfare. This fundamental thought is the key to understanding and appreciation of a bank's decisions, methods, traditional attitudes, business practices, etc.

A banker's decisions must be determined by established principles, which experience has proved sound and safe.

9th Inning Rally Wins for Locals

Ballinger made it two straight Sunday afternoon at San Angelo against Midland when a ninth inning rally netted five runs and won the game 9 to 8. The game was one of those affairs filled with thrills and included everything known to baseball. Even the grandstand caught on fire right beneath President Roy Reeder and Ballinger firemen rushed to the scene with soda water bottles and extinguished the flames before any damage was done.

Speck Dockery hit the last ball of the game far over the left field fence with two on for the winning run of the game.

With the win Sunday Ballinger went to third place in the league standing which is the highest the club has been this year. The race narrows down to a close margin with only six games difference between the top and bottom clubs.

Many Family Trees Produce Good Timber

GIVE YOUR HOUSE GOOD BONES

Any time you try to tighten up on the cost of lumber for your home or building, you are playing a big joke on yourself.

If you don't give your house good bones it'll likely shake itself to pieces with structural rheumatism.

But GOOD LUMBER does not cost any more, and we can prove it.

Behind the pitching of Parker Saturday the Kats broke the winning streak of the Midland club. Hail opposed Parker on the mound and had fair sailing until the sixth inning when he was hit for seven safe blows and seven runs in a row. Lynch hit the ball over right field fence with two men on base. This makes four straight wins for Parker since joining the Ballinger club.

Up in third place looks mighty good and there is still time to get on top before the last of the first half.

It begins to look like that when one man gets a hit the whole club will come through and as long as that spirit prevails, the game is never over until the last out is made.

Manager John King filed a protest on the Sunday game, claiming that a runner was inside the first base line causing Kallina to miss a ball at first base.

Speck Dockery lost his temper in the Sunday game and had the fans on him pretty hard. Speck said Monday morning that he was sorry about the affair, and felt that he owed every fan an apology for the display of temper. Speck is big enough to do the right thing and everything is all right between him and all the players and he is offering an apology to every fan. To try to even things with everybody he drove the ball over the fence to win the game for Ballinger.

RUM RUNNERS IN NEW PLAN TO BEAT AGENTS

(By International News Service) DETROIT, June 17.—River rum runners have adopted a new plan to avoid arrest, according to government officials here to squelch rumming activities. Liquor cargoes are landed on vacant stretches of the shore, to be picked up later by crews which lurk in the background to make sure no raiders are near. Thus, river and ground men have no actual contact.

Agreement that this procedure was being followed generally was reached after customs agents had uncovered a cache of 225 bags of Canadian beer near the river and four cases of whiskey.

GERMAN SCHOOL BOARDS FIGHT OVER CO-EDUCATION

(By International News Service) BERLIN, June 17.—Co-education in the public schools has precipitated a conflict between the school boards of Berlin and of the province of Brandenburg, in which Berlin is situated.

The Berlin school board is for it. The provincial school board is against it.

"Co-education promotes immorality, especially in city schools," says the rural school fathers.

"It does nothing of the kind," reply the city school heads, who have protested against the ruling.
