Grimes Proves Too Tough For World Champs

Grizzled Old Veteran Pitches Cardinals Into Lead With A Two-Hit Game To Win 5 To 2 From Athletics

Grove Powerless

Starting As Underdogs, Cards Now Are Favorites To Take Majority Of Games; Hoover Is In Stands

BY ALAN GOULD

SHIBE PARK, PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 5.—The grizzled old warhorse of the mound, Burleigh Grimes, whose twirling arm was supposed to be cracking, came out with a two days growth of beard today, held the Athletics to a pair of hits and pitched the Cardinals into the lead for the baseball championship of the world.

Witnessing world series play for the third straight year, President Hoover was among nearly 33,000 spectators who saw Grimes hold the Athletics hitless for the first seven innings, and beat them, 5 to 2, in the third game of a dramatic intersectional war.

Robbed of Shutout

Grimes was robbed of a shutout in the final inning when the mighty Al Simmons emerged from his slump to bank a home run over the right field wall, with one on and two out, but the veteran spitballer subdued his old time rivals with almost ridiculous ease up to this final gesture.

The Cardinals conquered none other than the great Robert Moses Grove as they bombarded the ace southpaw's delivery for the second straight time in the series. Grimes, on top of his superlative pitching, struck the blow in the fourth inning that proved to be decisive. It was a single, with two out, scoring runners from second and third, and gave the Cardinals a commanding lead of 4 to 0.

AMARILLO, Oct. 5. (AP) — Some mysterious food poisoning which physicians say they do not understand today brought death to the J. H. Grider home for the second time since Saturday.

Johnnie Grider, 7-year old daughter, was not affected by the food, but she was ill today with what physicians diagnosed for the time being as scarlet fever. Health officers said they were not sure what Johnnie's affliction might be.

Superintendent Is Wounded By Negro Worker Who Turns Gun On Himself; Two Others Are Unhurt By Gunfire

(By The Associated Press)

LONGVIEW, Oct. 5.—H. Whynot, 60, superintendent of a Longview box and basket factory, was shot and wounded critically today by Zeno Blackman, 35-year-old negro, who then committed suicide by firing a pistol bullet into his heart.

Two charges from a shotgun struck Whynot, one of which mangled an arm necessitating its amputation.

Others Fired On

C. H. Jones and Howard Tutt, workmen at the plant, were fired upon by the negro, both of whom were missed.

B. C. Pinson, telephone lineman, saw Blackman sit down on an embankment, press the pistol to his chest and fire.

Whynot instructed Blackman, an employe at the factory for 15 years, to repair a broken machine. He refused, leaving the plant.

Inquest Is Held

He returned shortly armed with a shotgun and a pistol. Blackman encountered Whynot at the basket factory entrance and opened fire. The first charge struck the superintendent in the thigh. Whynot dodged behind a stack of baskets and as he raised himself the negro fired a second shot.

E. B. Penick, justice of the peace, held an inquest pronouncing Blackman's death a suicide.

Whynot had been connected with the factory for many years.

Style Showing Is Feature Of Program Today

Slow Motion Activity Is Seen Monday As Market Week Gets Underway Here But Interest Today To Be Livelier

Crowds Expected

Style Show Will Begin Tonight At 8 O'Clock; Interesting Program Promised; Modes Of Season To Be Seen

INCREASED activity is expected around sample rooms today as the time for the style revue, the principal feature of the fourth semi-annual West Texas Market Week, draws near.

Monday's business in general was reported slow. However, with dollar day and first Monday bargains in Lubbock clothing stores and in stores of many other plains towns, this was expected. Retail merchants were too busy in their own stores to visit the market.

In spite of this handicap, many firms reported satisfactory business.

Today Is Big Day

All connected with the wholesale firms seem to be waiting for today, the day of the style show, for the best business.

A large crowd is expected in town, as retail merchants over the Plains section have been sent complimentary tickets and invitations to the show.

Ticket sales to the style revue for local people sold as slow as the merchandise yesterday, however, officials of the chamber of commerce expect the tickets to move today. A number of local firms have purchased a few tickets to be given to customers. Tickets for local people are on sale at Bowen's Drug Store, Bowen's Hilton Phar-

Eleven Undersea Sailors Back In New York After Harrowing Experience; High Spirit Is Bared In Attitude

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Eleven undersea sailors, back from two months of suffering smiled, bravely today and chorused that if some one would give them a better submarine they'd try again to reach the north pole.

They were half of the crew of the Nautilus, once a navy submersible, now a battered wreck ready to be sunk in the North Sea. Under the command of Sir Hubert Wilkins, they conquered cold, sickness and many breakdowns in mechanical equipment to drive their craft to within 350 miles of the pole. The fury of oncoming winter then drove them back.

Comraderie Revealed

A spirit of comraderie prevailed today as the men greeted relatives after disembarking from a liner.

"The spirit among us was splendid," say Ray Meyers, of Philadelphia, chief radio man.

Flight Requires 41 Hours And 13 Minutes For 4,500 Miles Over Most Dangerous Water Stretch Attempted

(By The Associated Press)

WENATCHEE, Wash., Oct. 5. — Skidding to a dizzy stop, Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon landed their wheelless plane here today to complete the first non-stop airplane crossing of the Pacific ocean from Japan, and one of the few round-the-world flights on record.

The American barnstorming aviators made one of the most dangerous ocean hops ever attempted, flying nearly 4,500 miles in 41 hours and 13 minutes from Samushiro Beach, Japan, to Wenatchee.

A Japanese newspaper reporter handed the fliers a $25,000 check, issued by a Tokyo newspaper, for the first successful non-stop flight between Japan and the United States.

In Stocking Feet

"Very glad to see you boys," he shouted.

Herndon and Pangborn were in their stocking feet as they climbed from the plane.

"Give me a cigarette," Herndon requested.

Pangborn laughed.

"We have been in Japan so long, we're still going barefooted."

Drop Landing Gear

To lighten their load, the daring aviators had dropped their landing gear soon after taking off from the Japanese island at 4:01 p. m. (CST) Saturday. They smashed their propellor and Herndon received a nasty gash over his eye. The plane

Prevention Of Fire Is Urged

Lubbock Joins Nation Monday In Observance Of Week Of Fire Prevention; Chairman Sounds An Appeal

An appeal to Lubbock citizens to observe National Fire Prevention week, which started Monday, in practice as well as in theory, was made last night by Guy McAfee, chairman of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce fire prevention committee.

"During this period we should make an effort to see that fire hazards about our homes and places of business are reduced to a minimum," McAfee said. "Every possible effort should be made to reduce Lubbock's fire loss to a minimum in order that the city may regain its good fire insurance rating, which was lost on account of last year's fire loses.

Causes Are Listed

"Some of the causes of costly fires, many of which could be remedied with a little work, are as follows: Lack of standard fire wall protection, unprotected stairways, elevators and other floor openings, failure to provide private fire protection, rubbish accumulations and delayed alarms.

"Over 60 per cent of the number of fires take place in homes, which means a home burns in the United States every four minutes.

Penalties And Interest Will Be Paid Here

Tax Collector Declares That Recent Act Of Legislature Suspending Penalties Will Not Be Observed

Penalties and interest on delinquent state and county taxes will be collected here in spite of a recent act of the legislature suspending the penalties on taxes paid before January 31, 1932, it was indicated at the tax collector's office Monday.

A. J. Clark, state and county collector, received a communication from George H. Shappard, state comptroller, advising him of the attorney general's opinion of the emergency act, labeled House Bill No. 30.

Validity In Doubt

"I am directing your attention to this act because it is my opinion that its validity is so doubtful that it ought to be tested before the Supreme court before it is followed by tax collectors," Attorney General James V. Allred wrote the comptroller.

The attorney general advised the comptroller to instruct tax collectors to collect all penalties as provided for under previous acts. Collectors failing to obtain penalties and interest probably will be held personally responsible for the additionals in case the act is held unconstitutional, the attorney general said.

Under the house bill, passed as an emergency measure, all taxes delinquent up to and including October 20, 1931, are exempt from interest and penalties, provided the taxes are paid by January 1, 1931. Sponsors of the bill stated it would aid persons who were having difficulties in paying their taxes.

Attorneys here expressed the opinion that the bill was class legislation and was unfair to taxpayers who paid their levies under previous acts.

About $175,000 in 1930 state, county and Lubbock Independent school taxes, is unpaid and will become delinquent after October 15, unless payment is made before then, it was said.

New Jersey Senator Dies In His Sleep At Peak Of Career As An International Figure

Cerebral Hemorrhage Is Cause Of Death; Nation Mourns As News Of Passing Is Broadcast; Hoover, Portes Gil And Others Are Shocked; Lindberghs Notified In China

(By The Associated Press)

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., Oct. 5.—Senator Dwight W. Morrow died in his sleep today at the peak of a career which carried him into international prominence as a financier and diplomat. He was 58 years old.

A secretary tried in vain to waken the New Jersey senator late in the morning and then called physicians. Although Mr. Morrow lived for two more hours, he never regained consciousness, and died at 1:52 p. m. of a cerebral hemorrhage.

Washington Stunned On Receiving News

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5. (AP)—Washington was stunned today by the death of Senator Dwight W. Morrow of New Jersey.

The news spread rapidly through the capital in which Senator Morrow had been prominent and active in his four years of public service.

Senate Is Divided

Senator Morrow's death, which is the first in the senate since adjournment March 4, left the makeup of the new senate meeting in December 47 Republicans, 47 Democrats and one Farmer Labor.

New Jersey has a general election this November but because the filing time for candidates has closed it was stated the governor could fill the vacancy by appointment until the 1932 election.

Morrow took his seat in the senate last session, and completed the unexpired term of Walter E. Edge, who was named ambassador to France. He was elected last year to a 6-year term in his own right.

Ambassador To Mexico

Before going to the Senate Mr. Morrow had served three years as ambassador to Mexico. He was a member of the American naval delegation to the London conference last year.

Called in 1927 by Calvin Coolidge, a college classmate, to the diplomatic corps for the difficult Mexico City post, Mr. Morrow was so successful he was urged upon President Hoover by many Republicans for secretary of state.

Since entering politics a year ago, his name had been mentioned frequently in Republican circles in discussion of the vice-presidency next year and in speculation over the presidency in 1936.

Never Entered Debate

In his brief service in the Senate, Mr. Morrow carefully refrained from entering the debate but he was frequently found in confer-

Death Unexpected

The news of his death was intensified by its unexpectedness. The father-in-law of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, who was a partner in the Morgan banking house until he resigned to become ambassador to Mexico, appeared in excellent health last night as he addressed a large gathering in New York and was cheered by 1,200 men and women for his advice about welfare work.

To Name Successor

His death placed in the hands of Morgan F. Larson, Republican governor of New Jersey, the power to preserve the Republicans' one-vote margin in the United States senate. He will name a successor who will hold office until the general election in 1932 or until a special election is called. Senator Morrow's death leaves 47 Republicans, 47 Democrats and one farm-laborite in the senate.

Barbara Stanwyck Suffers Injuries

LAGUNA BEACH, Cal., Oct. 5. (AP) —A horse ridden by Barbara Stanwyck in the filming of a picture at Emerald Bay near here, reared up and fell upon the actress today when its hoofs became imbedded in sand. A physician said both the actress' legs had been sprained.

Adolphe Menjou, screen star, and others working with her rushed to her side and pulled her free. She had fainted but a dash of sea water revived her. As she lay upon the beach she felt the muscles in her legs tightening and cried out: "Hurry—We'll have to finish this scene now; my legs are stiffening."

The scene called for a plunge into the ocean. With Menjou, she walked into the surf, swam fifty yards off shore and returned. As she regained the beach, she lost consciousness.

TAHOKA, Oct. 5. McGuire when the case was called for trial.

A special venire called by Judge McGuire and the regular jury panel were dismissed until next Monday.

Mrs. Redman's attorney asked for the continuance on the grounds that material witnesses were absent.

Amherst Man Committed To Amarillo Jail; Woman Free

Pleading guilty to a charge of transporting a stolen automobile from Lincoln, Neb., to Dallas, Fort Worth and Big Spring, R. W. Eagan Monday afternoon was committed to the Amarillo jail by United States Commissioner Victor H. Lindsey in default of $2,000 bond.

The man's wife, Susie Eagan, jointly charged with the offense, pleaded not guilty and was released under $1,000 bond pending action of the federal grand jury. Mr. and Mrs. Eagan were arrested by J. P. Edgar, deputy United States marshal, Sunday afternoon at Littlefield. Their home is at Amherst.

Fairest Of The Fair Are To Compete For National Beauty Honors

She's "from Missouri." But nobody has to "be shown" any further that there were many beautiful reasons for choosing Dorothy Chandler of Kansas City as a delegate to the forthcoming Beauty Congress in New York.

She's 35 years old and the mother of a 15-year-old boy, but you wouldn't guess it to see this picture of Mrs. Lillian Hogan of New York. She is one of the women who will seek the national beauty title in New York soon.

No beauty contest would be complete without a red-haired entrant —and in the case of the forthcoming American Beauty Congress, it's Mrs. Francis Smith of Hartford, Conn. She's a newspaper woman and mother of two children.

The platinum hair and brown eyes of Miss Beth Ray Myers of Orangeburg, S. C., will be pretty points in her favor when she competes for the title of the nation's most beautiful girl at the coming Beauty Congress in New York.

ILLS BROS' METHOD OF ROASTING COFFEE ALWAYS ACCURATE

Patented, Exclusive Process—Controlled Roasting—Creates Marvelous, Unvarying Flavor

Just as the accuracy of bewhiskered Father Time's hour-glass depends upon an even, continuous flow . . . a little at a time . . . so the matchless, unvarying flavor of Hills Bros. Coffee is produced by Controlled Roasting — Hills Bros.' patented process that roasts evenly, continuously . . . a little at a time.

This continuous process has advantages over ordinary roasting methods. It guarantees a perfect roast for every berry in the blend. Bulk-roasting doesn't insure such a thing. Sometimes the coffee is roasted right. But frequently, it may be underdone or overdone, with an unpleasant flavor resulting.

That can't happen to Hills Bros. Coffee! Every pound is developed to perfection — to the fullest and finest flavor. It is a flavor no other coffee has, because no other is roasted the same way.

Vacuum cans keep Hills Bros. Coffee ever-fresh. Air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is removed and kept out of these cans. Even ordinary, "air-tight" cans won't keep coffee fresh. Order Hills Bros. Coffee today. Ask for it by name, and look for the Arab trademark on the can.

The fury of a woman scorned! I pitied but dared not warn her to be more careful about "B. O."

The OTHER WOMAN'S STORY

ROMANCE cannot live when carelessness about "B.O."—body odor—creeps in. Men instinctively turn from the girl, women shun the man who is guilty.

To this day she hates me—blames me for stealing him away. But it was her own carelessness that cost her his love.

Don't risk your happiness through over-confidence. Don't feel that you can never offend. Pores are constantly giving off odor-causing waste—a quart daily. We become so used to this ever-present odor that we don't notice "B.O." in ourselves. But others do—instantly!

Play safe. End all "B.O." danger the sure way. Not by trying to cover it up with powders and lotions but by keeping pores clean and deodorized. Frequent bathing with Lifebuoy will do it! Lifebuoy is different from ordinary toilet soaps. Its very smell is different—a pleasant, extra-clean scent that vanishes as you rinse. It lathers more abundantly—leaves you feeling fresher, cleaner. Its creamy, searching lather purifies pores—removes every trace of "B.O."

A complexion secret

"Don't be afraid of soap-and-water cleansing for your face," complexion authorities urge. There's no risk if the soap is as pure and bland as Lifebuoy. Work its gentle, pore-purifying lather well into the pores at night; then rinse. See how quickly dull complexions freshen and glow with healthy radiance.

Matadors And Westerners Point To Important Games

Notre Dame And Northwestern To Renew Old Gridiron Feud Saturday

College Boys Meet Indians Next Tuesday

Cawthon Inaugurates Strenuous Week Of Training As Matador Team Prepares For Hardest Game So Far

The Texas Tech Matadors came out of the West with a 7 to 0 victory clutched tightly to their shoulder pads. And Dutchey T. Smith, assistant varsity coach, came out of the north with a stirring story of how the Haskell Institute Indians defeated the Big Six Conference champions, the University of Kansas Jawhawkers.

Coach Smith yesterday was pondering over the question, "How can the Matadors beat the Haskell Indians next Tuesday when they meet at Dallas?" Head Coach Pete Cawthon and Assistant Del Morgan were both on the negative side of the question, "How can the Matadors beat anybody, and play like they played Saturday against the New Mexico Aggies at Las Cruces?"

Decide To Practice

And so the three coaches went into a huddle and decided that a week of practice on Matador Field and other practice fields in the evicinity might result in something approaching an answer to both questions.

And yesterday afternoon saw the Matadors go into battle against the Haskell Indians, whom they meet in the feature athletic attraction of Dallas and Lubbock Day at the state fair. Visitors at the training field yesterday were impressed with the start, and particularly with the way by which coaches and players took hold of the situation and advanced through a rigid two hours of practice.

Long Ride Weakens

For the Matadors, may it be said that they went through an experience almost as tough as a ball game when they rode half way across the country in a bus, with no workout at all on the day preceding the game and possibly with the thought of the Haskell game uppermost in their minds. According to reports of the game, enhanced by statements of Tech coaches, the Aggies were stronger than expected and, since the game was one of the biggest on the Aggie schedule for the season, were fighting every inch for victory. As it was, they never seriously threatened to score. It was Tech's game, even though by a low score.

Vigorous training days lie between the Matadors and their game with the Indians, and enough scrimmage will be worked in to prevent staleness. With a thorough knowledge of the attack that the Indians will present next Tuesday, Coach Smith will outline case to freshmen gridsters who will run Haskell plays against the varsity this week. The Matadors will mix in enough of their own offensive practice to round out a week of general workouts.

Matadors In Fair Shape

With no serious casualties resulting from the Aggie game, Cawthon's charges appear to be in good shape for a week of hard work. The Matador "first string" will get plenty to do in the week's preparation because upon the shoulders of that line and backfield will hang the heavy responsibility of holding Haskell.

Coach Smith reports, after scouting the Indians and after comparing figures, that the Matador line of Bill Teal and Matt Hitchcock at ends, Bennie McWilliams and George Langford or Truett Owens at tackles, Greer and Ayers or Turner or Baker at guards and Tribble at center will campare favorably with the Haskell line in weight and size. The Tech backfield will measure up in weight and size with the Haskell set of backs. Jim O'Leary, Lawrence France, Harrold Crites and Yancy Price will stack up along with Shepard, Louis Weller, Duffina and Johnson so far as weight is concerned.

Concession Operator Says Wife Took $1,000 And Ran Off With Another Saturday

A thousand dollars in currency went with his wife, who allegedly was accompanied by another man, when she left her husband and his concession stand at the Panhandle-South Plains fairgrounds, the husband reported to police Saturday.

The concessionaire said $500 was in $100 and $50 bills and the other $500 in smaller denominations. The husband, who said his name was Barrett, named the man with whom he charged his wife had run away. His wife left their baby with him, he said.

Schedule Sets Classic Early For Mid-West

Probably Biggest Game Of Year For Notre Dame Comes Along At Time For Warmup, To Make Or Break Ramblers

BY JOHN W. STARR

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—From a showman's viewpoint the midwest's 1931 football setup is all wrong.

Schedule-making vicissitudes have put Notre Dame and Northwestern in that inglorious spot known as "opening the show."

And if ever there was a natural headliner, the clash of the Irish and the Purple at Soldier Field, October 10, is one.

Producers of four gridiron classics in their five meetings since 1924, these two elevens have built up a tradition for hard fought battles, although it has been 30 years since Northwestern triumphed over Notre Dame.

It will be the first big test, possibly the toughest of the year, for Notre Dame's first squad of the post-Rockne period.

Experts and fans alike, cognizant of the great powers in Dick Hanley's Northwestern team, a Big Ten favorite, agree it may be the "make or break" game for Heartley Anderson and his Fighting Irish.

Northwestern, 1930 Big Ten co-champion with Michigan, and Notre Dame, which had to share last year's national crown with no other, figure to duplicate the great battle they waged at Evanston last fall when the Irish won, 14 to 0.

Both squads still have many veterans of that struggle. Their losses in personnel were about equal, though Northwestern seems to have come up with a greater number of first-rate sophomores.

Despite the closeness of scores in Irish-Wildcat meetings of the last decade, Northwestern has to go back to 1901 to point to a victory—its only one in 10 engagements over a 42-year period.

In the years 1924, '25 and '26 occurred three of the games that first gave the Purple-Irish series much of its glamor. The "Four Horsemen" team was given its toughest battle of the 1924 season before subduing the Wildcats in Soldier Field, 13 to 6.

The next fall, at South Bend, saw the game, between halves of which Rockne made his famous 35-word speech, concluding with a threat to go up in the stands and let the team battle out of its 10-0 hole by itself.

Total Of 79,343 Persons Visit 1931 Fair In City

A total of 79,343 persons visited the eighteenth annual Panhandle-South Plains fair, which closed here Saturday night, A. B. Davis, manager, reported Monday. This total is 18,683 less than attended the exposition in 1930, he said.

Saturday's attendance was 15,236, as compared with 21,517 the last day of last year's fair.

Whether the fair association paid expenses or went into debt this year will be determined within the next few days, the manager said. A financial statement is being prepared.

AUSTIN, Oct. 5. (AP) — John La Frentz, 76, retired ranchman, was found dead hanging from a rafter in a garage at his home here last night. J. M. Griffith, justice of the peace, returned a suicide verdict. A trunk cord was fastened around La Frentz's neck, one end tied to a rafter. He formerly ranched near Llano.

fielder, Pepper Martin, was a thorn in the side of the A's as he figured prominently in the winning drive. Martin connected for two hits, running his total for three games to seven, but he was well supported in the attack on Grove by Catcher Wilson, who redeemed himself with three hits, as well as by Grimes and Jim Bottomley. Altogether, the Cardinals shelled Grove for 11 hits and four runs in eight innings, concentrating their scoring drives in the second and fourth frames. They tallied once more in the ninth, off young Leroy Mahaffey.

The Cardinals, in fighting their way into the lead, gained this advantage for the National League's forces for the first time since they turned the trick themselves in 1926 against the Yankees. The Red Birds flew off with the world championship that year and they are now suddenly installed as favorites to repeat, on the strength of their sensational pitching and brilliant offense in the last two games.

Blows Timely

The Cards hit the great Grove no harder than they did last Thursday but their blows were more timely. They have now conquered the twin aces of the Mack staff, Earnshaw and Grove, in succession and they don't think they can be stopped.

It wasn't Groves' day, whether the blister on one of his pitching fingers bothered him or not—and Mack said afterward it didn't—the famous southpaw lacked his usual fine control.

Old Burleigh was not considered in good enough shape to start the series, an assignment that was given to young Paul Derringer with unfortunate results for the Cardinals. The spitballer, they said, had not been up to his old form the latter part of the season. He never looked better than he did this afternoon, mowing down the Mackmen with consummate ease as he gained revenge for two hear-breaking defeats in the 1930 series.

Spell Is Broken

Mixing his spitball with a fast curve and change of pace, pitching smartly all the way, Grimes was in sight of the all-time goal—a no hit world series game—when he completed seven innings without alowing the semblance of a hit. Bing Miller broke the spell with a line single to centerfield.

Burleigh's 2-hit stunt was the sixth of its kind to be recorded in a world series fray. The first was achieved by Ed Walsh of the White Sox in 1906 and the last by Waite Hoyt, then with the Yankees, in 1921. The closest to a perfect game in series annals was Ed Reulbach's one hit triumph for the Cubs over the White Sox in 1906.

Bruin Captain Doubles Late In Game To Give Cubs Win And Tie At 3-All With Sox In Chicago City Series

CHICAGO, Oct. 5. (AP) — Captain Charley Grimm, climaxing his greatest year with the Chicago Cubs, gave the Bruins a thrilling 3 to 2 victory over the White Sox in the sixth game of the city series today when he doubled in the ninth inning to score the tying and winning runs.

Two more outs were all the White Sox would have needed to become champions of Chicago. The seventh and deciding game will be played tomorrow.

Slaton Tigers Come Here For District Game

Westerners Back At Own Field In Hard Practice For Test Friday Night With Slaton In First District Tilt

Back on their Fair Park practice field after a forced lay-off of a week due to a series of daily games there last week, the Lubbock High school Westerners, contenders for the District title in the Texas Interscholastic league race, settled down yesterday to devoting their practice hours in preparing for their first league game of the season.

The Westerners meet the Slaton High school Tigers Friday night on the Texas Tech field. It will be the second district game for the Tigers, they having played the Plainview Bulldogs to a 7-7 tie at Plainview last Friday night.

Although they are favored to win over the Tigers, the Chapman charges are taking the prospect seriously and in no way show overconfidence. They expect the Tigers to run true to tradition and put up their hardest fight of the year here Friday night. There are not many members of the club who remember the close game of 1929, won by a single touchdown by the Westerners, but there is not a man on the team who is not cognizant of the coming responsibilities.

Already the flags are out at Slaton, and the team and the town are making extensive plans to make it a true Slaton Day in Lubbock. Far from being satisfied with the outcome of last week's game at Plainview, which was awarded to Plainview in spite of the tied score, Coach Paul Wright sees as his own probable chance for a victory in the Class A race a win over Lubbock's Westerners.

For the first time in years, there will be no restrictions on the number of tickets each applicant may order for Illinois home football games this fall.

Response Is Disputed

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

Lincoln Memorial

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5. — The steel industry's recent 10 per cent wage slash not only is not the first that any industry has made since the depression set in; it is not the deepest.

However, it affects the greatest number of workers at once. It is an open-and-above-board slash, whereas most of those which have preceded it have been disguised in one way or another. And unquestionably it will be accepted by more employers, as an example to be imitated.

In brief, it is widely admitted in official circles in Washington that the steel trade's action probably marks the beginning of a general crumbling in the resistance hitherto offered by organized labor, with President Hoover's strong encouragement, to a reduction of wages in accordance with what is described as the new commodity price level.

HOW BUSINESS will respond to the wage trend downward is a vehemently disputed issue.

Curiously enough the group which has most strenuously opposed a reduction in the size of pay envelopes consists by no means wholly of the folk best known as defenders of labor's interests, but numbers also a quite conspicuous sprinkling of individuals usually classed among the hardest-boiled of conservatives. On the other side, not, indeed, actually in favor of lower wages, but at least speaking of them as inevitable, are several public men with notable records as liberals; even radicals.

The question between them, of course, is:

Does very high pay, by giving the masses a large buying power, make for commercial prosperity?—or—is the country's economic balance so disturbed by disproportionately high wages, paid to certain classes of labor, that other large classes suffer, with hard times as a consequence?

FOR EXAMPLE:

Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, wo frankly calls himself an ultra-conservative, while progressives refer to him as an out-and-out reactionary, in a conversation I had with him a fortnight or two ago, said:

"Above everything, wages must be maintained.

"This country, greatly to its own advantage, is upon a very high price level. It is of the first importance to support that level by very highly paid labor."

About the same time Senator Lynn J. Frazier of North Dakota, an outstanding progressive, told me:

"Industrial labor simply cannot continue to receive war wages with everything else deflated. Unemployment is the inevitable result of attempting it.

"Conspicuously in the transportation field an enormous proportion of workers are idle, though the railroad men who do hold their jobs still draw pay at pre-deflation figures. In my opinion a moderate all-around reduction would have been, on the average, much better."

IN OPPOSITION to Senator Frazier's view, Senator James Couzens of Michigan contends that labor never did receive its just due.

"If the workingman had been fairly paid when commodity prices were at their peak," argues the Wolverine statesman, "it might be reasonable to say that he ought to be satisfied with a cut as the cost of living begins to decline, but he was not fairly paid. The advent of the depression proved it. Times tightened because of the inadequacy of the masses' purchasing power. An equitable balance might be established by the continuance of peak wages with declining living costs; not by wage reduction to match reduced prices of life's requirements."

Representative Percy E. Quin of Mississippi, one of congress' foremost economic authorities, shakes his head, however, at the suggestion that wage inflation, as a means of maintaining or recovering prosperity is a practical proposition.

"High wages are a fine thing," he agrees, "for particular industries which are directly dependent on them, but to expect them to remain long above the normal general price level is to expect the impossible even if desirable."

PERHAPS IT IS significant that farm spokesmen (Senator Frazier from the northern wheat belt and Representative Quin from the southern cotton area), who may attribute agriculture's prolonged distress to the correspondingly prolonged inflation of urban industry are less perturbed at the latter's deflation, in turn, than those of the type of the factory-trained Senator Couzens and Senator Watson, traditional guardian of the National Association of Manufacturers' interests.

At any rate, agriculture's plaint, of being compelled to sell in a deflated market and buy in an inflated one, is of a decade's standing.

The idea that labor's present troubles are largely due to the farmers' inability to buy normally for so extended a period also evidently was in both Senator Frazier's and Representative Quin's minds at the time they expressed themselves as quoted above, which was before the cut in steel wages.

IT IS EVIDENT, at all events, that the prospect of a wage readjustment to a lower index level is not unanimously regarded as certain to make bad matters worse.

On the contrary, there is a school of thought (and not altogether reactionary thought) which foresees an improvement in it.

It must be confessed that it is an improvement which seems to be predicted upon an anticipation that urban labor will be brought part way down to the level of agriculture, in order to enable agriculture to lift itself up to the level of urban labor.

It's a funny world, this! In this country hard times are blamed on the tariffs. In England, for lack of them.

The chief weakness of government is that man is never so carefree as when spending other people's money.

Perseverance is merely keeping on doing what you decided to do even after you decide tha tmaybe you shouldnt.

Simile for today: As inappropriate as gray hair in a rumble seat.

Perhaps the nations could get better results by holding a conference for the limitation of ambitions.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Pretty Norma Kent, 20-year-old secretary in a law office, marries MARK TRAVERS, son of F. M. TRAVERS, millionaire real estate dealer, after the father has sworn to cut Mark off without a penny if the marriage takes place, Norma has known Mark only a few weeks, did not know during the courtship that he was a millionaire's son.

The story opens in Marlboro, middle western metropolis. CHRISTINE SAUNDERS, with whom Norma shares an apartment, and BRADLEY HART, Chris' employer, are witnesses at the wedding. Before this Norma has refused to marry BOB FARRELL, young lawyer of whom she is fond as a friend.

Mark sells his expensive roadster to get money for the honeymoon. He and Norma go to fashionable Blue Springs, where the young man takes delight in surrounding his bride with expensive luxuries. He introduces her to HOLLIS STONE, an old friend, and it is evident from the girl's discomposure that she has known Stone before. For some reason she also fears him. She tries to confide in Mark but loses courage. One night Mark joins a card game, and does not return until 3 a. m. He admits he has lost all his money. The young couple have only what is in Norma's purse. Next day they face the problem of getting money enough together to pay their hotel bill and buy railroad tickets. Mark wires his mother but when the answer comes it is a curt refusal from his father. Mark borrows $500 from Hollis Stone and he and Norma leave next morning for Marlboro.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XX

Norma came down the aisle of the Pullman car, her silk robe held tightly about her. Her hair was waved softly in place. She had powdered and added a dash of rouge to her lips. She had only to change the robe for her street suit to be completely dressed.

Most of the berths had been converted into seats. The white-coated porter was working on one of the curtained enclosures. Norma passed him, made her way ahead to where Mark was sitting.

His back was toward her. He turned in surprise.

"Good Lord, Norma, aren't you dressed yet? We'll miss breakfast!"

The girl had opened a traveling case and was rummaging through it.

"I had to have another pair of hose. Found a dreadful runner. Here—these will do." She closed the lid of the case. "I—why I thought we'd have breakfast after we got off the train. It isn't nearly so expensive—"

"Say—I guess I've got the price of a cup of coffee! I'm hungry and I always feel like the dickens until I've had coffee. Been waiting 15 minutes for you." (He hadn't but Mark was given to extravagant speeches.)

"Oh, I'm sorry! If I'd known I could have hurried. I'll be right back—it won't take me a second now!"

Repentant, the girl disappeared. In a few moments she was back, wearing hat and coat. Her purse and gloves were tucked under one arm.

"Ready, Mark," she announced.

"It's too late," he grumbled. "Look, we've passed Brookside. In 10 minutes we'll be in the station."

"But won't that give us time if we hurry?"

The porter approached with whisk broom. "Can I brush you now, sir?" he inquired with a wide grin. His tone was solicitous.

Mark arose and submitted to the brushing. When he sat down again he said, "We'll have to wait until we pull in to get something to eat."

He wasn't cross about it. Just annoyed and making no effort to conceal that annoyance. Thus the first item on the day's program started badly. An ill omen if the girl had allowed herself to think of such a thing.

The trival incident was sufficient to make Norma refrain from suggestions when they had stepped down from the train.

"Well, it'll be ham and eggs for mine!" Mark announced, brisk and smiling. "Where do we eat?"

"Anywhere at all. I'm hungry too." That was because she had scarcely tasted dinner the night before.

"Restaurant here in the station all right?"

She nodded. They entered the big lunch room and found places at a counter. Over steaming coffee and a platter of ham and eggs the remnants of Mark's displeasure fled. Norma brightened also.

The activity and stir about the big terminal was contagious. So many men and women going places. Train men, red caps bustling about. Waitresses hurrying trays of food to customers who ate with one eye on the clock. Boys calling out headlines from early edition newspapers.

"Think ,Mark—we're home!"

"That's what I've been thinking, baby. Old home town. Old grind of work again. It's different now though, I've got you! Well, we'll show 'em a thing or two yet, won't we?"

"Of course we will."

She knew of whom Mark was thinking. His parents, of course Oh, but this fine young husband of hers would show the world how little his good qualities had been appreciated!

As he paid the check and they moved out of the lunch room nothing was said about their destina-

Letters To The Editor

Lubbock Citizen Roundly Scores Avalanche Editorial Based On Recent Opinions Of Dr. Clarence True Wilson

Editor, Lubbock Morning Avalanche: Your editorial in this morning's paper berating Dr. Clarence True Wilson is based on an error. No doubt Dr. Wilson is greatly embarrassed over having incurred your displeasure, but if my copy of the Avalanche carries correctly the Associated Press story, the temperance leader did not say that the newspapers had "misquoted" him. He said that "certain newspapers" had "misinterpreted" him — which is a vastly different thing. No newspaper is supposed to interpret a statement in its news columns except in the cases where the interpreter's name appears with the article. As I understand it, interpretations are reserved for editorials. Obviously, Dr. Wilson was referring to "certain newspapers" who carried editorials not yet seen in this section of the country.

The first report of Dr. Wilson's criticism which you carried did not give us his statement in a direct quotation but merely quoted phrases with the substance of his remarks coming to us in indirect quotations. This was very careless of your infallible Associated Press, to say the least, and certainly lays it open to the charge of injecting its own coloring into the story. Picking out the phrases which were direct quotations, I find they correspond surprisingly well with the statement Dr. Wilson made yesterday morning, reiterating what he says he first said, and it seems to me, making his charge as forceful and scathing as could be desired without the slightest appearance of trying to "cover up," as you very pettily charged in your editorial this morning.

One reason why so many men claim to be misquoted is that newspapers so often misquote them. A fair sample of the carelessness with which newspapers handle statements is the quotation from Dr. Wilson given in your editorial of this morning's paper." It's the wet newspapers!' he wails, 'it's the wet newspapers. They misquoted me—they misquoted me!'" Now I have carefully checked the story both in clippings from your paper and from another Texas newspaper and I fail to find the statement. To be sure, you may say, those were not his words but the substance of his cry. It seems to me you should have a higher standard of accuracy. Attributing a statement to a gentleman by using direct quotation marks when actually he did not make the statement is being rather approximate and too many newspapers seem to think that is accurate enough. If you are going to indict a man's statement with impunity, I submit that his exact words must be carefully considered. Often the whole argument pivots on the meaning of a single word.

Criticisms can be glibly uttered—for instance, your statement that Dr. Wilson has discovered "that his unsolicited criticism of the legion was unpopular and now is trying to cover up." Anyone familiar with the history of Dr. Clarence True Wilson would be inclined to question a charge that he is of the type of some newspaper editors that might be named—always fearful of getting on the unpopular side of a question. There are men of firmer stuff, and Mr. Wilson's record, including this last incident, will not bear out your accusation. I am inclined to feel, recalling your advice to Dr. Wilson, that this is an instance where you should have been reading instead of writing.

I'm not through yet. Your last sentence in the editorial reads, "At any rate, we fail to see where the activities of any organization can be of vital importance to a non-member." To my mind, this is a most amazing statement. I am not a member of the Republican party, the Tammany machine, or the Ku Klux Klan. Yet the activities of these organizations are of vital importance to me because they affect me as a citizen. Since the powers that control the American Legion have appointed themselves to run the nation, their looting of the United States treasury irrespective of the individual needs of veterans, and their attempts to nullify the constitution by publicly flouting it in periodic brawls becomes the concern of every American citizen. The man who can't see that it does must have been rather inappropriately crowned Chief "See Far Ahead." Unless one has a very abnormal nose, the end of it really isn't so "far ahead" as to merit much ceremony or comment.

I do you the credit of assuming that you are sufficiently imbued with the ethics of your profession to print this letter en toto.

Thanking you for the courtesy, I beg to remain,

Very respectfully yours,
W. R. KIRK.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Space limit for Letters to the Editor is 500 words but the above letter, although 250 words over the space limit, is being published because it is in criticism of an editorial appearing in this paper. Future correspondents will please limit letters to 500 words.)

entered the room with her!

The Law was on her husband's side—that Latin "Judas" who claimed her child. She came to plead for mercy—armed—prepared to kill, but then—FATE stepped in to play an amazing role in this great true-life story of war, infidelity, and mother love!

"I LOVED that man, Paul-Louis," this confessing woman writes. "I loved him with all the yielding devotion of a country girl from Illinois. We met and married in France during the war, and gladly did I sacrifice all—my citizenship and property—to let him possess me.

"But Paul-Louis was French—a gentleman of a foreign land with a foreign code of morals—and soon his faithless kisses fouled my lips, his honeyed phrases sickened my soul.

"How could I—how could any woman endure such torture and still go on? I had to smuggle our child out of France, because The Law gave it to him. We sailed to New York. He followed and had The Law take my baby from me!

"Frantic—I had almost given up the battle—WHEN—a murderous thought blazed through my mind. At any cost, I'd save my precious baby boy from being brought up to the degrading morals of his faithless father. And so I rushed madly to Paul-Louis' apartment—and it was on that terrifying afternoon—that—I—"

Here, into this thundering climax, Fate hurled a bolt that shook the very depths of this suffering woman's soul. tion. Mark signalled a red cap to carry their luggage to a taxicab.

"Hotel Marlboro," he said as he followed Norma into the cab.

The words electrified her. She put a restraining hand on his arm. "Oh, but we can't afford the Marlboro! Why, that's as expensive as the Inn at Blue Springs!"

"Well—?" The stormy light that frightened the girl whenever she saw it appeared in those dark eyes. "We've got to live decently, haven't we? Think I'm going to have people saying Mark Travers can't support his wife? Why, everybody knows me here! If I'm going to get a job we've got to put up a front, haven't we? I'm not going to have anybody think it's charity we're after—!"

There was no use to argue. Norma knew that. But what of the plans they had made the night before? Plans to live frugally, work hard, save their earnings.

At the Marlboro young Mr. and Mrs. Travers were shown to quarters less opulent than the suite they had occupied on their wedding night. After all, Norma thought hopefully, one hotel was probably little more expensive than another. There were other ways to economize. If "putting up front," as Mark called it, was to help him find a good job that of course was what they must do.

"Saw old Charlie Sumner down in the lobby," the young man confided. "You don't mind if I run down and try to catch him, do you? Charlie's old man runs the First National. Never can tell — might land a job there."

"Oh that would be wonderful! Go ahead, Mark. Of course I don't mind."

He took up his hat, kissed her. In the doorway he turned to say over his shoulder, "If you want lunch before I get back just go down stairs. I'll probably want to scout around—"

For half an hour Norma was busy. She unpacked the bags and hung garments away. No use letting clothing acquire wrinkles even though their stay here would be brief. Then she undressed, took a warm bath and stimulating shower. Trains always made Norma feel untidy.

As she emerged, fresh and glowing from the tub, she caught a glimpse of the tower clock in the Madison building a block away. The great hands pointed to a quarter af 2 o'clock.

No use to expect Mark for lunch. She had known that when he left. Mark might be anywhere. She could not make demands on him now because he was trying to find work. That in itself was a job.

Thinking of lunch gave Norma an inspiration. She would call Chris. The thought enveloped her in a warm radiance. Dear Chris! There were a thousand things she had to tell her!

Norma picked up the French telephone and gave the number. There was a delay and then she heard Chris' voice over the wire.

"It's me, Chris—Norma! We just got in this morning. Can I meet you at your lunch hour?"

"You don't mean the Bride—!"

"We got tired of Blue Springs. Oh, Chris. I'm so anxious to see you! Everything's been wonderful but it's good to be back. Where shall I meet you?"

The appointment was made quickly. Forty minutes later they met in the lobby of the building in which Chris Saunders worked. There were happy, excited greetings. They crossed the street and entered a tea room favored by feminine shoppers. It was a place with oak paneled walls, tasteful heavy silk hangings, noiseless service.

"This is a party!" Chris insisted firmly. "No, I don't make a practice of coming here daily but we can splurge once."

They were seated at a table now. "Imagine," Chris went on, "how it would sound in the newspapers. She quoted mincingly: "Miss Christine Saunders entertained at a postnuptial luncheon honoring Mrs. Mark Travers how has recently returned from Blue Springs—!"

They laughed gaily.

"Honestly, Chris, you don't know how good it is to see you! Tell me every single thing you've been doing. Just think, it's nearly three weeks—"!

Almost every speech was interrupted. Chris praised Norma's costume. She wanted to know all about Blue Springs. What was it like being a young society matron? Where were Norma and Mark living? Question followed question. The other girl tried to answer, plied Chris for news of mutual acquaintances. Each breath was filled with tributes to Mark.

"He's—he's wonderful!" Norma said, lifting shining eyes. "I can't think why I ever hesitated a minute about marrying him. Why—I might have lost him! Oh, Chris, even to say those words terrifies me! I wouldn't want to live without Mark—"

"Aren't you the model wife!" Chris patted Norma's hand. Her tone was teasing yet just for an instant Chris Saunders had seen something in Norma's face that was startling. Something that terrified her. The next moment Chris was chiding herself for imagining things.

The conversation took a matter-of-fact turn. "Guess who I ran into on the street yesterday?" Chris challenged a little later.

"The king of Siam!"

"Foolish! It was Bob Farrell. He asked me about you too. By the way they say Bob's coming along in great style in Kaskell's office. Selby knows him and he was telling me about a case Bob handled."

"But I thought Bob was going away?"

"Must have changed his mind. He didn't say anything about it yesterday. Selby said Bob managed to get a settlement in some land deal after his boss—I mean Bob's—had practically given up the attempt."

"That's fine," Norma said. She added slowly, "I hope Bob will be a big success some day. He ought to be. Bob works hard and he's so—so on the level."

They talked of the apartment the girls had shared. Chris was still living there. There was a new girl, Dot Phillips, working at the Hart Advertising agency. Dot was anxious to move in with Chris but it hadn't been definitely settled. Chris said she liked Dot but liking a person and living with them were two different things.

Before they knew it the lunch hour had sped. The two parted with promises to see each other soon.

Those promises were fated to be broken. When Norma saw Mark again late in the afternoon he was in the highest spirits. A new musical show had opened the night before. A knockout, according to the fellows at the club. Mark had tickets. He and Norma dressed, dined and rode to the theater. Afterward they went to a supper club and danced. Mark confided he had "several lines out" for jobs.

Next day he did not rise until noon. He left the girl alone, returning at six with news they were to join friends of his for the evening. Just a little party. People Norma would like.

She didn't like them or their ideas of a good time. When Mark announced similar plans for the following evening she begged off, spent the evening alone.

It was their third night in Marlboro that Mark and Norma, having finished dinner, stepped out on the street. Travers paused to touch a match to his cigaret.

Suddenly across their vision floated a shimmering figure in gold cloth and dark fur. The warm, heady scent of mimosa. Shrill soprano laughter and a glimpse of parted red lips. The figure swept towark Mark, caught his arm.

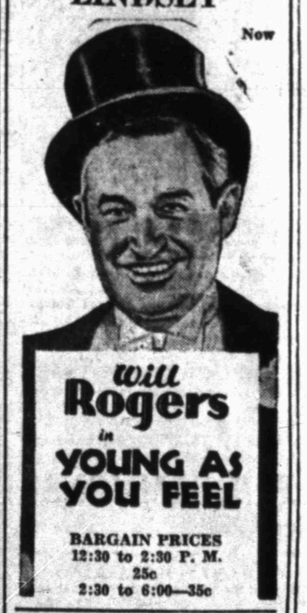

"Mark!" cried Natalie Price. "Of all surprises! Say something so I'll know it's really you!"

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 5. (AP)—Cotton continued to move downward slowly today. Prices developed no important fluctuations but eased off point by point under pressure of hedge selling and liquidation caused by weakness in stocks and lack of buying power, and closed barely steady at net declines of 10 to 14 points.

Three private crop reports appeared during the day, one estimating the crop at 15,904,000 bales, a second at 15,825,000 and the third at 15,387,000. One of the authorities estimated total ginnings to October 1 at 4,382,000.

ences of party leaders.

Because of his wide acquaintance with financial and international problems, the diminutive and able New Jersey senator was frequently consulted by the administration.

Despite his brief senate service, Senator Morrow had won the friendship of the body. Democrats and Republicans joined in expressing sorrow over his passing.

Hoover Has Praise For Jersey Leader

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5. (AP)—President Hoover tonight praised Senator Morrow as "that sort of an American who makes our country great."

On his way back to Washington from the world series baseball game in Philadelphia, the President issued the following statement to newspaper men aboard his special train:

"This country has suffered a great loss in the death of Senator Dwight W. Morrow. His loyal and generous character as a neighbor and a friend; his public spirit as a citizen; his services during the war; his accomplishments as ambassador to Mexico; his unique contribution to the success of the London naval conference—all are the record of that sort of an American who makes our country great."

Mexico Regrets Untimely Death

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 5. (AP)—Emilio Portes Gil, former President of Mexico, now minister to France, when informed of Senator Dwight W. Morrow's death, today, said:

"Mr. Morrow, as ambassador of his country to mine, played an excellent role. His work for better relations was very intense and crowned with magnificent success. Mexico will deeply regret Mr. Morrow's passing."

Stocks Are Thrust Downward Sharply Under Liquidation; Rumors Circulate

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 5. (AP)—Stocks were thrust sharply downward today under liquidation that seemed to be prompted much more by fear than fact. Rumors circulated widely; the news, aside from the reported suspension of a Montreal investment firm, contained nothing that threw any unexpected light on the world's troubles.

There was undoubtedly large foreign selling here, but domestic liquidators contributed their own offerings of the country's most prominent equity securities. Net losses in a number of such stocks ran to half a dozen points, with rails and utilities making the poorest showing. The average decline was 4.4 points, bringing the composite down to 70. Sales of 3,162,650 shares were smaller than some of last week's totals.

considered for the office appeared remote at least in so far as the appointment is concerned. It was pointed out he would not be 30 years old until next February, whereas a man must have passed his 30th birthday before he can be named to the senate.

Baird Considered

David Baird, jr., who stepped down from a temporary appointment to the senate in favor of Mr. Morrow and who now is running for governor, is regarded as a possible appointee to the seat in congress.

The shock of Senator Morrow's death, however, was so fresh in the minds of his associates that none mentioned the political significance of the situation.

Small of stature, quiet in speech, Mr. Morrow, college classmate of Calvin Coolidge, was known best perhaps as a conciliator. He seemed to possess a unique ability to bring individuals, groups and even nations into agreement. Throughout his career as a lawyer, banker, and statesman he strictly adhered to what he termed "rule six." That rule simply was: "Don't take yourself so darn seriously."

No Alarm Felt

It was after midnight last night before Mr. Morrow retired. He made no complaint at that time about his feeling ill. Because he had been in the habit recently of arising late, Secretary Arthur S. Springer, was not alarmed when he went to the senator's bedroom at 11 o'clock this morning and found him apparently sleeping soundly.

Mrs. Morrow was playing golf when the news of her husband's condition was brought to her. She hurried home from the links to find the senator dying.

Dr. Walter Phillips and Dr. Alvin Cloud of Englewood and Dr. Nellis B. Foster of New York, who were summoned by the senator's secretary, shook their heads when they arrived and said death was only a matter of a few hours.

Four At Bedside

At the senator's bedside were his wife; Miss Elizabeth Morrow, a daughter; Mrs. A. M. Scandret, the senator's sister, and Mrs. Rebecca Greathouse, a niece.

Cables were sent to Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh, who were aboard a British aircraft carrier on their way to Shanghai with the disabled plane from which they were thrown into the Yangtse river last week when the plane capsized.

They were not scheduled to reach Shanghai until late Tuesday or early Wednesday.

Miss Constance Morrow, a daughter attending Smith college, and Dwight W. Morrow, jr., a student at Amherst and Mrs. E. L. McIlvaine of Meadville, Pa., a sister were notified.

Nearly 10,000 members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians recently held their annual parade in Edinburgh, Scotland.

Twenty-One Young Women To Have Part In Fashion Parade; Fall And Winter Costumes Will Be Modeled

In a season when there is an unusual lot of interest in styles, Lubbock people and those from the surrounding territory will have an opportunity to see what the well dressed woman is going to wear this evening at 8 o'clock at the style show that is being conducted in connection with the fourth semi-annual West Texas Market week. The show will be at the Uptown Dance Palace.

Lubbock young women have been chosen to march down the long platform wearing fall and winter clothes and will appear in dress for sport and street, in wash and house dresses, in lounging pajamas and robes and winter coats. A program of dances and music will be interspersed.

The models that have been selected for this show are Misses Louise Sneed, Pauline Warren, Donna Vaughn, Edna, Kane, Sue Brown, Johnnie Jo Whitley, Francis Gunn, Azora Adams, Marjorie Ann Ainsworth, Helen Womack, Mildred Price, Oline Bates, Gail Quinlan, Chloedell Whitley, Denver Davis, Mary Florence Knox, Grace Morris, Eileen Graves, Carolyn Powell, Mrs. Leland Mast, and Mrs. Joyce Howell.

Yesterday, this group chose from the models that have been brought in for market week and this evening they will wear their selections in the parade of fashion.

Livestock

MIDDLEWESTERN LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 5. (AP) — Cattle trade around the eleven market circuit was featured by a fairly broad demand for strictly grain fed steers and yearlings at steady to strong prices. Heavy steers in Chicago topped at 10.50. Packers, however, operated rather slowly on western steers, both short feds and grassers at steady to 25 lower values. Fed grassers sold around 6.25@7.75 and a spread of 3.75@5.75 took bulk of the straight grassers. There was a fair country demand for stockers and feeders at generally steady rates, some points reporting strength on the better grades. Bulk of replacement steers sold from 4.00@6.00 with a few choice stockers at 6.25@6.50. Aggregate receipts estimated at 117,000 were 10,000 more than a week ago.

Hogs were tendered an uneven decline of 5-35. The day's extreme top was 5.60. Total offerings were around 105,400 as compared with 118,694 last Monday.

Fliers Land

jolted to the ground here at 7:14 a. m. (PST) 9:14 o'clock (CST).

Mrs. Opal Pangborn, almost unnerved by two nights of watching for reports of her 37 year old son's flight to this region, where he was born and reared, was crying with joy when he embraced her.

Pangborn, who brought the plane down and did most of the piloting appeared more tired and shaky than his 21 year old companion. But the youthful wealthy New York sportsman-aviator admitted he was "wobbly" as their automobile poked its way through a jam of cars to a hotel, three miles from the field.

Thrills Recounted

Two thrilling moments in the flights, when they thought they would never get through, were recounted by the fliers, ice on the wings, most dreaded danger faced by fliers in northern climes, almost brought their flight to an untimely end soon after they left Japan. Then over the southern end of the Gulf of Alaska, their engine stopped running when one gasoline tank unexpectedly went dry.

"We didn't expect it then and it was several minutes before we hooked up with the extra gas tank," said young Horndon.

They flew almost to Spokane, Wash., they said, before returning to Wenatchee to land where they knew preparations were made to take care of them. They had considered flying on to Salt Lake City, to complete well over 5,000 miles, which would have broken the distance record Russell Boardman and John Polando set on their New York-Turkey flight this year.

"But our barograph wasn't functioning and we had to gun the motor too much in rising over the fog, so we came back," Pangborn explained.

Their brilliant achievement came after failure to better the round-the-world speed record of Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, another pair of American airmen, and a disheartening delay in Japan.

Leaving New York on July 28, they hopped across the Atlantic and headed over Europe and Asia. Their plane was damaged in landing at Khabarovsk, Siberia, Aug. 3, and they gave up the attempt for a new round-the-world record, deciding to try for the honor of being the first to cross the Pacific non-stop.

After reaching Tokyo, they were arrested for flying over and photographing Japanese fortified areas. They pleaded ignorance of the stringent Japanese laws on the subject and denied any illegal intentions, but they were fined $2,050. Then came weeks of waiting until the Japanese government, after representations from Washington, granted them permission to start the Pacific flight.

A Pound of Butter

Takes a Ride!

OFTEN a pound of butter takes a ride of a thousand miles to find its dinner table!

In more than a hundred produce plants, Swift & Company is taking the butterfat, eggs and poultry of its 200,000 farm patrons daily, paying cash for them and sending them into national channels of distribution.

Thousands of miles of leased telegraph wires keep Swift & Company executives informed where these products command the best prices. To the best markets are rushed the surpluses of over-supplied districts. Lacking a national market like this one, many a pound of butter—and many an egg, too—would grow useless right at home, or else be sold at much less than present prices.

To distribute produce as well as quality meats, Swift & Company uses all the facilities of its over 400 branch houses and its 600 refrigerator car routes. Its great organization has 55,000 employees living in hundreds of towns where their pay checks help support community interests and trade. They are local men doing a national job, relieving producers of all selling worries and minimizing local gluts and shortages.

A nation-wide marketing system for poultry, eggs and butterfat must render a complete service, covering purchasing, grading, refrigeration, transportation, selling and delivery. The system functions smoothly when one concern undertakes all these steps. Swift & Company performs all these services at the lowest possible cost. Swift & Company profits from all sources, over a long term of years, have averaged less than a half cent a pound.

Rodeo Queen To Be Named Today

Announcement of the identity of the queen for the annual Tech Aggie rodeo, to be held at Texas Technological college Friday and Saturday, probably will be made tonight. Balloting began Monday morning and is to continue through today, B. E. Snyder, rodeo manager, said.

Campus rumors Monday were that Virginia Wester, 16-year-old freshman in the school of agriculture, would be named queen of the annual event. Daughter of a Virginian who operates a dude ranch in the Sangre de Cristo mountains, 30 miles from Las Vegas, N. M., Miss Wester came to the Matador school with a string of nine horses to make her way through college by operating a riding academy and teaching horsemanship.

The crowning of the queen will take place at the opening of the rodeo at 3 p. m. Friday. Saturday afternoon's events will begin at 2:30 o'clock. A parade will be staged through the downtown section before the opening of the show Saturday.

Individual events will include steer riding, broncho riding and calf roping. Liberal arts and engineering students will meet in team competition.

Proceeds from the rodeo will be used to defray expenses of college livestock judging teams.

Lubbock Is Complimented On Annual Market Program

George L. Minter of Abilene, owner of a department store there and part owner of the Minter-Gamel store here, Monday complimented Lubbock on its semi-annual Market week plan. Mr. Minter and C. B. Hicks, department manager of the Abilene store, arrived yesterday for the market.

"This market week is destined to make Lubbock one of the leading jobbing centers of West Texas and eventually will attract small manufacturing concerns here," he said. "It is a nice thing for Lubbock, convenient for nearby merchants and good for the jobbers."

GALVESTON, Oct. 5. (AP) — The loading of deep sea vessels, interrupted since Sept. 30 because of union longshoremen going on a strike in protest against wage cuts, was resumed today with non-union labor.

The San Francisco Maru, a Japanese ship, was the first to be loaded. Several other vessels were at the docks awaiting loads and preparations were made to load them immediately.

Scores of non-union negro and white laborers responded to advertisements issued by the maritime committee. They were housed in barracks on the waterfront. The wharf police force, detailed to guard them, was increased.

The 1,200 union longshoremen continued to maintain order and quiet. They made no demonstrations and apparently were determined to continue negotiations through union officials.

You purchase shoes, fruit and candy. You call for cigarettes.

It's like this: WHEN YOU GO TO BUY A PAIR OF SHOES, you examine the leather, the way the shoes are made, their shape. You try them to see if they fit—if they satisfy you.

Why not follow the same method in purchasing your cigarettes? You want cigarettes that are made from the very best tobacco—mild, ripe, sweet. You want them made right. You want them free from harshness and bite and "pinches." In other words, you want cigarettes that satisfy you.

WHEN YOU GO TO BUY FRUIT—oranges, grapefruit, apples—you want ripe fruit, fruit that has matured before being taken from the tree; fruit that has been handled right and packed right; fruit that's the same throughout—not green on one side and ripe on the other.

Why not apply the same test in purchasing your cigarettes? You want cigarettes made from tobaccos handled right by the farmer—ripened, sweetened in the sun and cured right. You want cigarettes that taste the same, day in and day out. You want them pleasing in taste—mild and satisfying.

WHEN YOU BUY CANDY, you want to know, above all things, that it is pure. Is it real candy or are there a lot of other things mixed in with it? And you want it fresh. You want it freshly made and you want it so packed as to reach you just as it was when it was made.

Why not apply the same test when you buy your cigarettes? You want a cigarette that's pure; for purity counts in cigarettes just as it does in candy. Then again, you want a cigarette that's just as fresh as when it was made.

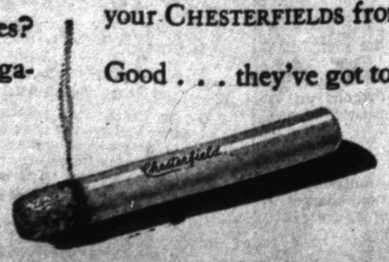

Now, if you apply to cigarettes all the tests that you apply in buying shoes and fruit and candy you will purchase CHESTERFIELD like millions of other smokers.

First, because tobacco men will tell you that in Turkey, Kentucky, Georgia, the Carolinas, Virginia, and Maryland, only the mildest, ripest tobacco is bought for CHESTERFIELD—tobacco cured by the sun's pure rays, by the farmers' slow-burning ovens, and finally by great high-pressure steam drying machines. In the tobacco regions where they grow tobacco and know tobacco, CHESTERFIELD is usually the leading seller.

Second, because the carefully selected CHESTERFIELD tobacco leaves are blended and cross-blended. This exclusive CHESTERFIELD blending method is not just mixing together different tobaccos—it is mixing them in such a way as to bring out the finer qualities of each. It's like producing a new and better type of tobacco—tobacco with greater mildness, more smoothness, much better taste.

Third, because the cigarette paper is selected with the same care. CHESTERFIELD paper is the purest, the best that money can buy. Then the cigarettes are made and packed by machinery in clean, sanitary factories. And the moisture-proof, attractive package—free from heavy inks or inky odor—comes to you just as if you passed the factory in the morning and took your CHESTERFIELDS from the machine.

Good . . . they've got to be good.
