The Board of supervisors of Salt Fork Soil Conservation District voted Saturday night, March 7, to hold a grass judging contest for 4-H and FFA boys in the Greenbelt FFA district.

The date for the contest was set for Wednesday, April 22.

This will be in the nature of a warm-up contest for the boys who will judge at Texas Tech on April 25.

Any FFA chapter or 4-H Club within the Greenbelt FFA district is eligible to enter a team, according to Fred Squyres, work unit conservationist of the Soil Conservation Service.

The board also voted to make this an annual affair, but after this year it will be between the date of January 15 and February 10.

Frank Kennedy and Danny Garcia were appointed to make arrangements for the contest. The SCS Wellington office will furnish the grasses to be judged.

Each team will judge 50 grasses. The boys will judge these as to name, whether it is an annual or perennial, winter or summer, and how cattle like it.

Caldwell Burned in Accident

Charles Caldwell Jr., who recently moved his family to their farm near Hollis, was painfully burned Sunday, March 15, while working on an electric pump for the water system of the house.

Caldwell was using butane under pressure to blow dirt out of the pump, and thinking all the butane was out of it, switched on the electricity. A spark caught the butane and set fire to his clothes, a member of the family said.

He was badly burned on both arms and hands, and also received burns on his face and chest.

He was brought to St. Joseph's Hospital here, where his condition is reported as doing as well as possible. Mrs. Caldwell and their son, Chris, are with his parents. Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Caldwell here, and their daughter, Cheri, is with her grandmother at Hollis.

He will take office July 1, succeeding Paul Bell. Goodloe is vice president this year.

Jack Sanford was elected vice-president for next year and Wayne Gray secretary-treasurer. Gray will succeed Eldon Holley.

Three new directors were named, Zook Thomas, Bill Waits and Bura Handley. They, with the vice president, secretary and outgoing president, will make up the official board.

Retiring directors will be Goodloe, Holley, Sandy Parsons Jr., George Henry, Robert Lewis and Dr. J. M. Orr.

The program speaker Tuesday was Mohammad Rafi, of Rawalpindi, West Pakistan, who is working this week with the Soil Conservation Service. He is a member of the Rawalpindi Rotary Club, and this was a make-up meeting for him.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Souder and practically all its contents, and a barn and feed belonging to Rufus Nelson were destroyed by fire last week.

Ten other fires, all minor in nature, were put out by the Wellington Volunteer Fire Department during a two week period.

The fire at the Souder home was believed to have started from a water heater in the bathroom about 6 p.m. Wednesday, March 11. The blaze spread quickly through the five-room house, which was almost destroyed by the time the rural fire truck reached the farm.

Souder was away from home, but neighbors, Mrs. Souder and the children saved only a few items. The family is living at a vacant house on the Travis McGuire farm until they can replace the house. There are four children, Phenette Reed, Regie and Hope.

Souder said a first estimate of the loss would be at least 10,000. It was partially covered by insurance.

The barn at the Nelson farm burned at the height of the sand storm Saturday evening, March 14, with firemen helpless to fight that blaze. They were able, however, to put out small fires that started in the garage and chicken house, and prevent the blaze from getting to the house. The three buildings were in the path of the fire.

Firemen remained at the farm until 11:30 p.m. to put out any blaze that might be fanned by the high wind.

One calf burned to death when it ran into the burning building as Nelson tried to get several head of livestock out of the lot.

He also lost 600 bundles of feed he had ground and mixed only a few days before also grain, and implements, according to Lawrence Warrick of the Fire Department.

Nelson told firemen the blaze apparently started from a trash fire at a nearby place that got out of control and traveled down a dry draw.

A smaller than usual crowd went to the Nelson fire, as the blowing dust was so heavy that even neighbors could not see the smoke.

Other fire calls reported were: Firemen were called March 6 to put out a blaze in a pile of lumber in the 1400 block on Belton Street, on vacant lots between the Smith Rest Home and the house owned by Odie Killingsworth.

In second call that day, firemen put out a grass blaze at 307 East Avenue.

A grass fire at the Lloyd Clark place south of Loco March 3 destroyed a considerable acreage of pasture, according to Jim Williams, department secretary.

Another call was to a blaze that got out of hand in a shelterbelt between the A. C. Shipley and Gilroy Rummaged farms.

A small acreage of grass was destroyed by a fire at the Mill Iron Ranch March 8.

The motor of a car being repaired at Dub Gibbons Garage caught fire at 11:30 a.m. March 10, and firemen were called back at noon when another fire was discovered.

smouldering in the cushions of the same car.

Firemen were called to a grass fire on vacant lots in the 300 block of 13th Street. They let the dry grass and weeds burn, but stayed to see the fire did not get out of control.

The department was called to the Greenbelt Rural Electric Co-operative short wave radio tower twice Friday afternoon, March 13, where grass was burning and a bridge on a county road threatened. This was believed to have

"Your Paper Gets Speedy Results" Says Advertiser

"Will you please discontinue the two classified ads which Mrs. Austin O'Neil placed with you concerning the sale of a duplex and small residence belonging to me... your paper gets speedy results," Mrs. Joe Atkins of Roy N. M. wrote The Wellington Leader.

These ads, costing only a few cents each, sold the houses on the first insertion.

started from a blaze that got out of control when a farmer was burning tumbleweeds west of the tower.

A fire in scrap lumber blazed up at 12:30 a.m. Monday, March 16, behind the Leon Hartman house near Ellison Park. It was believed caught from a trash fire and smouldered undetected several hours, Williams said.

Fire from burning grass caught a fence at the Bob Stephenson home at 1206 Childress Street late Monday morning, March 16.

Les White, who notified Sheriff John Rainey of the crash, told the sheriff he watched the plane circling in the area for a considerable period of time, getting lower and lower. He drove to town to contact Rainey after it dropped from sight.

The plane crashed in rough pasture land on the John Henard place, first diving into a small rise, then dropping into a draw, Sheriff Rainey reported. He described the plane as "torn all to pieces."

Beam's body was thrown clear of the plane and was found about 25 feet from the wreckage.

Beam was en route to Oklahoma City, although he did not file a flight plan before leaving Carlsbad, according to information of officers gained from the Civil Aeronautics Administration.

He left Carlsbad about 10 a.m. and talked by radio to the Lubbock airport about noon.

Beam had lived in Carlsbad many years and was a barber. He operated both a barber shop and beauty shop. He had been flying about five years, and according to friends flew quite a lot.

A representative of the CAA was due in Wellington Wednesday to investigate the crash, Sheriff Rainey was notified.

His body was taken to Kelo Funeral Home and flown to Carlsbad Wednesday, although the date of services has not been set.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Bonnie Beam; one daughter, Mrs. Joe Stell Jr. of Carlsbad; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Beam of Wewoka, Okla.; a brother and two sisters: Rudell Beam of Ardmore, Okla.; Mrs. Ruby Markham of Farmington, N. M. and Mrs. J. D. Noland of Wewoka and four grandchildren.

Assisting Sheriff Rainey in the investigation were Deputy Sheriff Kenneth Hodge and two members of the Highway Patrol, Sgt. E. G. Albers of Pampa and Sgt. D. R. Dowdy of Childress.

Put Newspapers Out Early

The pick up of old newspapers will get under way by 8:30 a.m., Saturday, March 21, Mrs. John Coleman announced this week.

"It will save the boys a great deal of time if people will place their papers on the front porch by 8 a.m. Saturday," she said.

"Since we are having so much wind, it seems that placing papers in a cardboard box is the most satisfactory arrangement. It is planned to have enough trucks to gather all papers in a short while Saturday morning."

"If you forget to put your papers out on pick up day, it will help if you will just keep them until the next pickup. Please remember that the pickup is in the early morning and not all day."

City Council Rejects Greenbelt Request

The Wellington City Council, meeting Monday night, March 16, turned down the request of the Greenbelt Municipal and Industrial Water Authority for an assessment to help with exploratory work at the dam site.

Directors of the Authority had asked for an assessment of $150 per meter in the city. Similar requests were made from all other towns now in the Authority, Childress, Memphis, Paducah, Quanah, Hedley and Clarendon.

Mayor Hiram Cudd said the city council felt it did not have assurance that the dam will be built, and it also feels the city cannot afford the cost.

Mayor Cudd explained that this action does not affect Wellington's membership in the Greenbelt Authority, which is headed by Dr. S. H. Townsend of Childress.

Other towns of the authority have voted the requested assessment.

In other business Monday night, the City Council reappointed Buster Hughes and Joe Terry as members of the Wellington Housing Authority board.

In SCS Office Here

Visitor from Pakistan Studies Conservation

Mohammad Rafi, conservator of Forests of the government of West Pakistan, is in Wellington this week to study the organization and operation of the Soil Conservation Service office. This is part of six months training in soil and water conservation. Mr. Rafi is here on an ICA fellowship, provided in cooperation with the government of Pakistan, and when he returns home, he will set up a new Soil Conservation Service in West Pakistan Province. His home is in Rawalpindi.

"My main fields of study are organization, operation and training as applicable to dryland farming and rangeland husbandry," Mr. Rafi explained. "I have been with the Southwestern Region of the U.S. Forest Service for a month, mostly in Arizona, now I will be in Pampa SCS area for six weeks, three weeks in Stillwater with Oklahoma State University, four weeks in Fort Robinson, Nebraska, SCS training school, and the last four weeks in Washington D. C., with the USDA for a course in public administration." Mr. Rafi explains that West Pakistan has two problems of erosion. Near the Himalaya Mountains, in the north, the problem is water erosion, cutting deep gullies through the land. In other areas, the deep soil blows easily.

Like the Panhandle, Pakistan has rangeland, too, with rainfall amounting from four to 15 inches per year. While there are some cattle, stock includes mostly sheep or goats.

"It is not utilized in the proper season. It doesn't get much chance to grow, that is the reason we are suffering tremendously," he explained the overgrazing problem.

West Pakistan grows 20,000,000 acres of winter wheat, as well as sorghums and the smaller millets. Before he left, Mr. Rafi had four SCS technicians from the United States working with him — and two were from West Texas.

"My biggest problem is I can't hire enough trained men, turned out by agricultural colleges, there are not enough colleges to train men, and there is always a long waiting list of students," he said.

Another problem comes from the fact that many of the Pakistani farmers are unable to read. Personal contact must be used. But like farmers the world over, they have the farming instinct that if something will help them, they want to use it.

With the coming of compulsory education in the last 10 years, there is now in most families at least one child who can read.

One of the hopes of Mr. Rafi is that he can set up a school especially to train men in soil conservation work.

You Can Serve— Through the Red Cross

Each March we Americans rededicate ourselves to the task of helping our neighbors in need. This is Red Cross Month—a time when we join and serve with the organization that is on the job when we need it most.

We may well ask ourselves, "What does the Red Cross mean to me as well as to my community and nation?"

Almost all of us know part of the answer; have observed or benefitted from or taken part in Red Cross activities. To get the whole answer, we have only to look at the record.

In three special situations last summer the Red Cross was on the job when it meant the most. It was on hand to help U.S. servicemen when they were rushed to Lebanon in the Near East and Formosa in the western Pacific because of critical international conditions. By discussions with the East German Red Cross, it was able to break the deadlock between our government and that of East Germany, and effect the liberation of nine American soldiers forced down in their helicopter behind the Iron Curtain.

Every day last year it helped other servicemen and their families solve personal and domestic problems, in more than 100,000 instances each month.

The Red Cross was on hand with shelters and hot food when people in the Carolinas had to flee from the threat of Hurricane Helene last September.

Throughout the year and across the nation it was on the job to provide the blood thousands of us, ill and injured, needed to speed our recovery and in many cases save our lives.

The Red Cross trained over 2,000,000 of us last year in first aid, water safety, and home nursing. Through the Junior Red Cross, it helped guide young people to responsible maturity by teaching them the importance of service to others.

The Red Cross has proved, again and again, that it can be relied upon all the time and everywhere. Now we must insure that this vital organization will continue its work during the coming year, that it is "On the Job When You Need It Most," by joining and contributing in its member and fund campaign.

Over-Indulgence of Children Great Parental Error of Day

So often nowadays the question is asked when something goes wrong, "Where have we failed our teenagers?"

The answers should be easy to come by.

When a big, husky boy 14 to 17 years old kills himself or someone else on an 80-mile-an-hour joy-ride, while his indulgent parents are hiring the yard work done, the answer should suggest itself readily.

When some young girl finds herself in trouble should mama blame herself? Yes. But not because she didn't show enough love for her daughter. The mistake was in the misguided manner in which she showed her love—in giving her privileges for which she was not ready emotionally and mentally.

Parents nowadays want to give their children things and privileges they did not have in their own youth. The trouble is that too often it's something the child should not have. Too much spending money, for instance. Or a course of lessons in social dancing for fifth-graders. Or a formal dance dress at the age of 12. Or an automobile. Or freedom from doing chores about the house.

Or letting them grow up too soon. Perhaps the worst mistake of all is giving adult privileges without adult responsibility.

Changes His Viewpoint

Trumpeter Louis Armstrong showed his callousness toward the American republic of which he is a citizen in the statement he made in Vienna. Commenting that he may go into Russia on his current world tour, Armstrong added "My trumpet knows nothing about politics."

His instrument knew about politics in his own country. Last fall he cancelled a State department-sponsored tour in protest against what he termed the mistreatment of his people in the United States. He noisily criticized the United States.

Dear Editor:

I see where there is considerable to-do in Washington about a painting of Abraham Lincoln in his nightshirt.

My so-what neighbor says even in this condition Old Abe looks majestic, which gives him an idea as to how we might pick out better officials.

Says we ought to have our congressional and presidential candidates campaign in their nightshirts and bare feet, and only vote for the ones who still look impressive.

I see where government is making the farming business so complicated that some farmers are threatening to leave the U.S. flat and go to Australia.

My born farmer neighbor says red tape, cash fines, hunger, etc., are chasing lots of rural people off to the cities and elsewhere these days.

Which he says is especially bad for folks like the Michigan farm program rebel who has got to enjoy farm life only a little while, on account of not noticing the beauties of same until about the time the draft set in.

I see where, while Berlin boils, the U. S. Senate has been fiddling with the problem of naming us a national flower.

My hayfeverish neighbor says they ought to pick the poison ivy as our floral symbol, and rig up a foreign policy to match it.

But says if they want a horticultural emblem for the country as a whole, they couldn't find one more fitting than the milk weed, in honor of what is happening to taxpayers.

I see where a Pennsylvania senator is very upset about he says patriotism is going out of style in the U. S., and us people don't love our country any more except maybe when holding down a government job.

My tax-pooped neighbor says he is not either any less patriotic than he was when the government just carried our mail, fumbled our foreign affairs, and sent us garden seed.

Says the flame of patriotism does sort of flicker a little, though, when it gets close to a Form 1040.

I see where 21 Texas University students got expelled here the other day on account of the teachers thought, they cheated on an exam in a government course.

My tolerant neighbor says it's likely just as well these people got sent home, on account if they had been let to go on and get degraded in the science of government, they might have gone into the politicking business.

And he figures that a citizen who can't do a little cheating without getting caught at it would not make much of a politician.

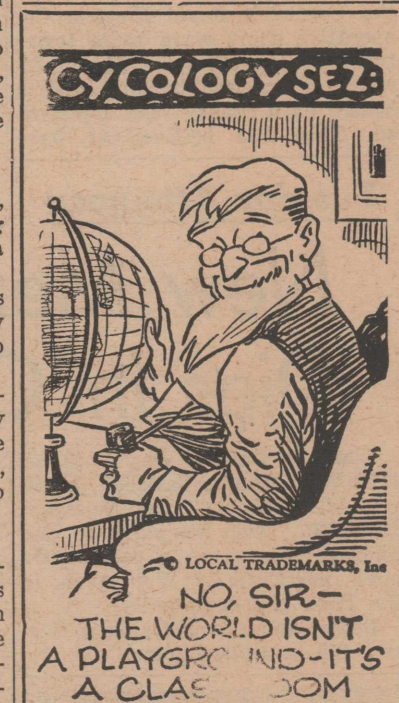

I see where there is a considerable crop of civil rights bills now being run through the legislative confusion in Washington.

My civil righteous neighbor says one or more will likely pass, now that voting against anything called civil rights is nearly as unconstitutional as voting against appropriations or unions.

Says whatever bill is passed, he hopes it will put a stop to the rank discrimination now being practiced by our local stores between him and the people who pay their bills.

First application for a patent on making condensed milk was turned down on grounds it lacked novelty and usefulness.

Red Cross Ready to Serve in Disaster

Suppose the front page of this newspaper tomorrow carried these headlines:

"Tornado Strikes City; Scores Dead, Hundreds Injured as Twister Paralyzes Community."

Unlikely? No. For a tornado or any other type of disaster could just as well hit here as any one of the other 300 or more American communities that suffer from the destructive forces of nature each year.

Such a thought raises a number of questions.

Where would the injured be cared for? Where could extra doctors and nurses and medicines be obtained quickly? Where would shelters be set up for the homeless? Who would help those who lost their homes get back on their feet?

The answers to all these questions can be found at one place—the Collingsworth Chapter of the American Red Cross.

"We are not immune to disaster here," says Mrs. John Coleman, chairman of the membership drive now under way. "No community is. Disaster can strike anywhere with breath-taking speed and devastation. Some of the worst disasters in history have occurred in cities and towns previously untouched by catastrophe. No community is completely safe."

Because of this fact, The Red Cross is constantly engaged in a year-round program of preparation for disaster. Working with the city and county government and other community agencies, they have plans ready for evacuation and rescue mass shelter and feeding, medical and nursing care, and for obtaining outside help in the event that it is needed.

"The full resources of the national Red Cross organization, including supplies and personnel, would be available to us," Mrs. Coleman says.

"The first important step in any disaster planning," he continues, "is the creation of a disaster preparedness and relief committee with sub-committees to handle the various phases of a disaster operation here in Collingsworth County."

Mrs. Coleman said that early in any disaster preparedness program a survey should be made of the types of disasters most likely to occur in any given community. The findings of this survey naturally form an important part of the written disaster plan.

To insure understanding of Red Cross procedures in time of disaster, the plan of the local Red Cross Chapter provides for the following divisions of responsibility:

ty between the Red Cross, on one hand, and city, state and federal governments, on the other.

Government responsibility, as distinguished from that of the Red Cross, includes warning, rescue, and enforced evacuation, maintenance of law and order, public health and usual municipal services; sanitation, traffic control, and restoration of public property.

The Red Cross gives assistance in, but is not primarily responsible for, warning voluntary evacuation and rescue. One of its main duties is providing victims with food, shelter, clothing, and medical, nursing and hospital care when needed.

The Red Cross also is responsible for the transportation of victims, supplies and equipment; handling welfare inquiries; surveying family needs, and maintenance of its own communication lines.

In the important rehabilitation phase of disaster, on which the Red Cross spends approximately 85 per cent of its disaster funds, the organization is responsible for temporary maintenance of the homeless and filling such needs as medical, nursing and hospital care; repairing and rebuilding of homes; replacing household furnishings, and replacing farm equipment and livestock.

Daniel Praised for Reduction in Traffic Deaths

Governor Price Daniel has received congratulations from two officials of the National Safety Council for the 8 per cent reduction in traffic deaths on Texas highways during 1958.

Second preliminary estimate on the 1958 death list from the Statistical Service of the Department of Public Safety on February 18 showed 2,336 traffic fatalities as compared with the official total of 2,539 for 1957. This reduction of 203 represents one of the greatest improvements reported by any State, according to NSC figures, and the Texas percentage reduction is double that of 4 per cent reported for the country as a whole.

NSC President Howard Pyle wrote Governor Daniel as follows: "I can think of no more pleasant way to begin my activities as president of NSC than to congratulate you and the people of your State on the reduction in your traffic accident record in 1958."

"... We are keenly aware of the fact that the improvement in your State could never have been achieved in the face of increasing traffic if you and your associates, and the people themselves, hadn't teamed up in a real and continuing effort to make your highways safer..."

The national figures quoted by the NSC president show that only Ohio, with a reported saving of 224 lives, and Illinois, with a saving of 221 lives, exceeded Texas in reducing highway deaths. The Illinois percentage of reduction was 11, Ohio's was 11, and Texas' was 8. All figures are subject to final change on March 15, when all States and the Nation close their traffic death-books.

Meantime, NSC District Director Don Hill of Dallas visited the Governor in Austin to extend his congratulation also. Said Hill:

"The outstanding leadership of Governor Daniel, and the splendid response by public officials and the people of Texas, saved 200 lives in Texas' street and highway traffic in 1958."

"The most encouraging thing about this accomplishment is that it is a firm harbinger of what can be attained through sustaining the trend begun last year. It was substantially the result of a mere direction of attention, by government agencies and the public, to the State's appalling traffic toll and to the duties and capacities of public servants and private citizens to reduce it."

"The really sensational gains are in the future... if we keep the faith. Cumulative gains of 200 deaths prevented each year are possible, and can be sustained over an indefinite period, by implementation of proposals now advanced by the Governor's Highway Safety Commission and the Texas Safety Association."

Director Hill concluded with the estimate that if "better tools" are provided, Texas traffic deaths can be reduced from 2,500 a year to 1,500 a year within five years. He named the "better tools" as a stronger driver licensing law, a chemical test law for suspected drunk drivers, traffic courts of record and of original jurisdiction, increasing the manpower of the Texas Highway Patrol, universal driver education in Texas public schools and a stronger speed law.

LETTERS from the People

Springfield, Oregon
March 12, 1959

Dear Deck,

I understand our subscription to the Leader runs out this month. We look forward to getting the paper each Saturday and don't want to miss a copy, so enclosed is a check to cover.

We are all well and happy. The climate here in the Northwest seems to agree with us, especially David, who had so much trouble there.

Both Deanna and David enjoy attending school here. Since the schools are so large and this is only a three year high school they have had quite a few adjustments to make.

We attend a very nice church in Eugene. Most of the members are from Texas or Oklahoma, so that makes us feel at home.

Tell everyone hello and if any of our friends are ever out this way, we would love to have them drop in.

Yours truly,
Mrs. Ervin Kersten

Duty in Europe Offered by Army

M-SGT. Jay B. Smith, Army recruiter for the Wellington area, announced today that the Army has opened its doors to qualified young men interested in assignments to units that are scheduled for assignment to Europe under the Army's "Operation Gyroscope Program". M-SGT. Smith emphasized however, "That only those applicants meeting the high physical and mental standards can be accepted."

Applications for enlistment of non-prior service men are accepted now for assignment to the 547th Transportation Co. Fort Bragg, N. C. Applications will be accepted for this unit until 9 April, 1959. Applications are now being accepted for enlistment in the 215th Quartermaster Co., Fort Lee, Va., and will be accepted until 9 April, 1959. Applications will be accepted for enlistment in the 6th Armored Cavalry Regiment, Fort Knox, Ky. until 30 April, 1959.

M-SGT. Smith further stated, "That the Army's reasoning for setting up the 'Operation Gyroscope Program' is that the personnel in these units are trained together and stay together as an individual unit while here at the State-Side military posts and in Europe alike. Units develop a greater personal pride and a better understanding; also it provides an ideal means for friends and relatives to serve together, thus making a more effective organization."

For complete information concerning the requirements necessary for assignment to any of the units listed call or visit either of the US Army Recruiting Stations located at 212 East 7th Ave. or 312 East 5th Ave. in Amarillo, Texas or contact M-SGT. Smith at the Post Office in Wellington on Friday afternoon of each week from 2:00 o'clock til 5:00 o'clock.

Perpetual

Motion

A Community Economy is not a perpetual motion machine which, once started, goes on forever without any further care or feeding.

Like other American communities, this one of ours was built by people with faith in themselves and in their neighbors . . . people who used their money over and over again to create the trade volume it took to establish the homes and businesses, schools and churches, and other civic facilities . . . which make this the pleasant place that it is to live, and to bring up our children.

Obviously the degree of growth and prosperity which any community area can reach and maintain . . . its attainable and continuing social and economic momentum . . . is determined almost wholly by the volume of trade that it earns . . . and gets.

No community has ever been built . . . none can be kept functioning at a satisfactory economic level . . . by confirmed out-of-town shoppers, mail-order fans, and peddler-pushovers.

County Population Estimated 8,500

The estimated population of Collingsworth County is 8,500, according to figures furnished by the West Texas Chambers of Commerce.

The current estimated population is 639 less than the 9,139 shown in the last official census in 1950, and almost 6,000 less than the census in 1930, when Collingsworth, like other counties in this area, reached its peak of population.

Through 1930, the population figures showed a steady increase. In 1900, the county had 1,233 residents and the population increased from 4,000 to 5,000 each decade through 1930.

The greatest loss in population came during the years 1930 to 1940, and the loss has been slower since then. This loss of population since 1930 is attributed to the general away-from-the-farm movement experienced throughout the nation.

Other counties in the area where agriculture is the basis of the economy show a similar pattern.

A style show and amateur program of much interest was given in the high school Friday night by the home economics class of Mrs. Adams. Many new and varied clothes were modeled by the girls. Interest was kept high by numbers which were rendered by the class and Mrs. Adams.

Few Cars Here Have Required Safety Test

Only 45% of the vehicles registered in Region No. 5 of the Texas Department of Public Safety have been safety inspected for 1959, according to Captain Alan Johnson, Motor Vehicle Inspection Supervisor in this Region.

With slightly less than one month separating them from the April 15 deadline 236,679 motorists of the sixty-county Region still have not obtained their stickers which have been available at inspection stations for several months.

"This number includes about 1,940 vehicles in Collingsworth County where there are 5 inspection stations to do the work," said Captain Johnson.

Many motorists are going to find long lines awaiting them as the deadline rolls nearer as the inspection stations will not be able to cope with the usual last minute rush.

He added, "It is as much a violation to display an old sticker as not to have one at all."

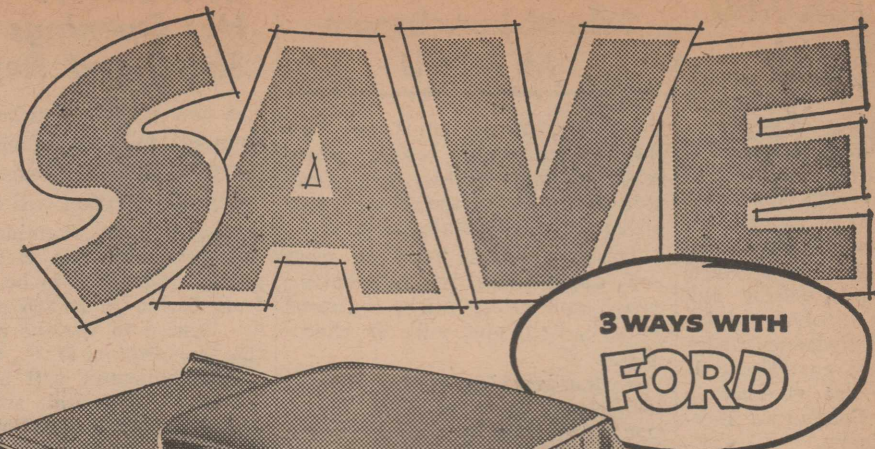

The Captain pointed out the law provides a fine of from one dollar to two hundred plus court costs for operating a vehicle registered in Texas without the current inspection sticker.

Secretary Benson is now suggesting that the soil bank acreage be doubled. That may be a good thing for some people who have marginal land that will not produce much anyway, but it seems certain that it will not reduce the surpluses of farm crops. Benson seems to be fitting into the Washington groove very nicely. If something doesn't work, just double the dose.

You needn't be hollering about the high winds and dust here last Saturday. We were in Mineral Wells at the time and from the standpoint of breathing it was worse than anything I have encountered in a lifetime in Wellington. We were in Ft. Worth the day before and the winds were higher than they were in Amarillo at the same time. On the average we have about the best weather in the United States. Compare it to the smog of Los Angeles, the humidity of Houston or the storms in the north and you will know we have a desirable climate.

At Mineral Wells we ran into the Newton Harrel's who have a ranch on the Palo Duro. He also has a stock enterprise on Unalak Island in the Aleutians where he has 4,000 head of sheep. These are a breed that thrive in the damp climate. Unalak is in the same latitude as Ireland and is warmed by the Japanese Current just as Western Europe is warmed by the Gulf Stream. If it were not for this current, the island would be as cold as the interior of Alaska.

Both John Coleman and Paul Spillman came back from Washington well pleased with the active interest Walter Rogers is taking in the Salt Fork dam project. However they say that is going to take constant work and continued alertness if the dam is to become a reality.

Quite a number of people phoned last Wednesday night to report Venus showing at the tip of a crescent moon. It was a beautiful sight. Actually the two heavenly bodies were million of miles apart, but our line of vision was such that they seemed to be touching. Some people wanted to know if it could be a satellite that had been fired from the earth. If it had been you would not have been able to have seen it with the naked eye.

Lloyd Holloway dropped by to ask if we knew what caused the lights to go on and off at the baseball park last Saturday night. We didn't at the time, but soon found out. The high wind was causing two wires to touch and each time they touched it was as if a light switch had been thrown.

Earl Lynn Bartlett was telling me about a new fertilizer that contains all 13 of the trace elements as well as such minerals as nitrogen, phosphate, potash etc. He is also trying out a new variety of blight resistant cotton that is supposed to produce a staple of over an inch. Farming sure has changed since I was Earl Lynn's age.

Only 25 days remain in which to have your car safety inspected. Many motorists are going to find long lines in front of them if they delay. Captain Alan Johnson says that it is just as much against the law to display an old sticker as it is not to have one at all.

Funeral at Plainview for Herbert Dysart

Funeral services for Herbert Dysart, 70, long-time Plainview civic and business leader, were held at the First Methodist Church in that City Tuesday, March 10. Mr. Dysart was a brother of Mrs. Jenny Holcomb and Mrs. J. W. Loter of Wellington.

A member of one of the first families to settle here, he grew up in the Fresno community. He was elected county clerk of Collingsworth County in 1915, taking office in 1916. He served two terms.

In 1922, Mr. Dysart moved to Amarillo and a year later to Plainview, where he entered the insurance business, in which he continued until his death. He was proud of having loaned around 100 million dollars for the company he represented in the Texas Panhandle and New Mexico.

For 13 years he was a member of the Plainview City Council, was a steward of First Methodist Church and also a trustee, served on the board of the Plainview Hospital, a past president of the Plainview County Club, and was a charter member of the Senior Golf Association.

He was a 32nd degree Mason and a Shriner.

Surviving are his wife; a son, Bill Dysart; a granddaughter; his two sisters and two brothers, Charles Dysart of Clayton, N. M. and Carey Dysart of Mobeetie.

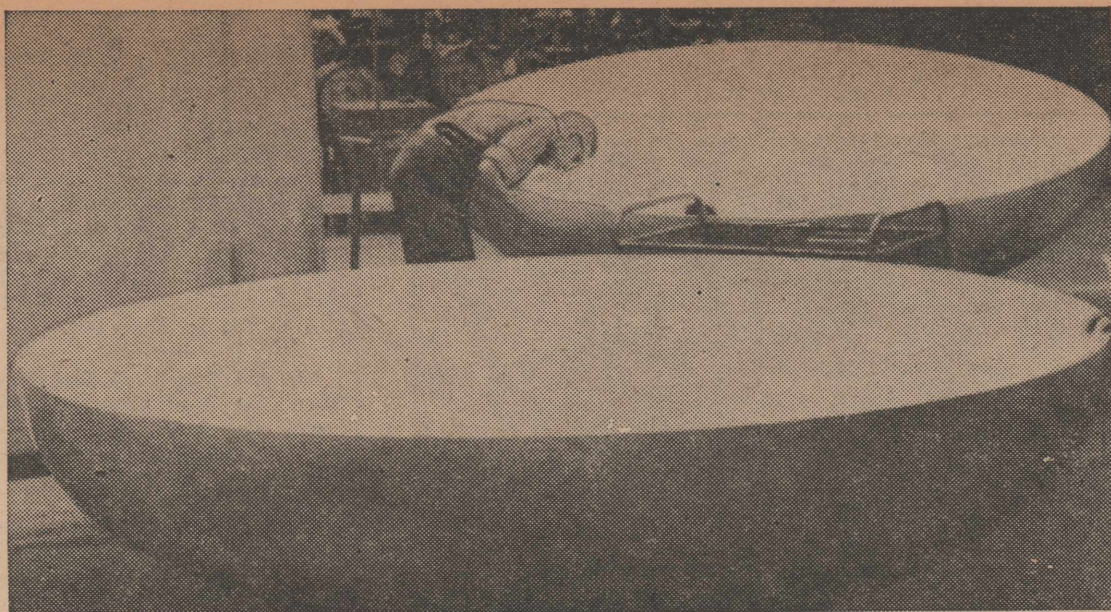

Vinson Cemetery Group Meets

New officers elected for another year are Emery Davidson, president; Forrest Overton, vice-president; and Una Reynolds, secretary. An offering of $124.00 was made with much more pledged.

In 1921 the Navy installed the first radio set in the White House.

FOR SPACE "SOUP"—Hottest soup being served these days goes into these "bowls," shown under inspection in Detroit, Mich. Through March

Less Than Half Red Cross Quota Raised

Collingsworth County's Red Cross Fund Raising drive will continue through March, with an effort to give every person an opportunity to support it, Mrs. John Coleman, drive chairman, has announced.

Up to Wednesday morning, March 18, the amount reported totals $668. The Quota is $1641.

Part of the money collected remains here to care for the work of the Red Cross on a local scale. Much of this is administered by Mrs. Katie Cummings, on a year-round basis. The remainder goes to National Headquarters to help carry on work such as disaster relief in which Red Cross engages.

"We can think of that part of our money that goes to the National Red Cross as the premium on an insurance policy," Mrs. Coleman said. "It is insurance that if we ever need the services of the Red Cross in a disaster here in Collingsworth County, we will receive them."

Any persons overlooked in the drive are asked to turn in their donations to some worker or contact Mrs. Coleman.

Self Employed Must Report Social Security

Self-employed persons are reminded by Harold S. Geldon, District Manager of the Amarillo Social Security Office to report their earnings for social security purposes with their income tax returns. Generally, these reports must be filed with Internal Revenue Service by April 15, 1959.

Any person engaged in a trade, business, or profession covered by social security who has $400 or more net profit from his business must report this income for social security purposes. Also, he must pay the 1958 social security self-employment tax on his net earnings on earnings up to $4,200 for 1958. The tax for self-employed persons on 1958 earnings is 3-3/8 percent.

Geldon also reminded self-employed persons that the payment of the social security tax is mandatory and not voluntary. Often a self-employed person may have enough exemptions to result in his not owing any income tax, yet the net earnings from his business are $400 or more, so he must pay the social security self-employment tax.

For further information regarding social security tax questions, consult the nearest Internal Revenue Service Office. For information regarding old-age, survivors, and disability benefits, contact the social security office at Amarillo or a representative from that office when he is in your town. Check with your local postmaster for the dates of his visits.
