New Watch For Second 50

Jim Tom, veteran Stanton banker, admires a watch presented Saturday by associates and friends on Tom's 50th anniversary with the First National Bank of Stanton. The presentation was made by E. Price, right, bank director and longtime friend of Mr. and Mrs. Tom.

Jim Tom Observes 50th Anniversary With Bank

By SAM BLACKBURN
STANTON—Fifty years ago Saturday, a young fellow reluctantly agreed to accept a job in the First National Bank of Stanton. He had already worked in the bank for a year prior to that date but had left the job to go back to ranching.

Pressed by the head of the bank to come back to his desk, he agreed on Jan. 24, 1909.

Saturday, this same man, no longer a young fellow but still with the same attitude toward work and responsibility, ended 50 years of continuous service in the same bank.

He is Jim Tom, president of the First National Bank of Stanton.

Cuba To Continue 'Carnival' Trials

HAVANA (AP)—Havana's revolutionary tribunal with thousands of Cubans looking on, is going ahead with plans to resume action in the city's big sports stadium Monday despite worldwide criticism of the carnival-like proceedings.

The tribunal will then call to trial Capt. Pedro Morejon on charges of assassination, homicide and robbery.

A five-man higher court has accepted the appeal of Maj. Jesus Sosa Blanco, the first man to be tried in the arena. He was sentenced to death Friday.

Army spokesmen announced late Saturday the appeal will be heard Tuesday at Camp Columbia, army headquarters in suburban Havana.

Reviewing The Big Spring Week

With Joe Pickle

If you'd just rather stand in line, then that time is mighty close. Deadline for paying your poll tax or securing your exemption certificate, is Friday evening. So far only little over 4,000 have qualified as voters for 1959. We ought to have at least twice that many, and even then that would not be anything to crow over. Don't put it off another day—insure your right to vote.

The legislative budget board slipped us the back of its hand on proposals for the Big Spring State Hospital, cutting a request for $1,436,367 per annum to $1,145,170 and the Howard County Junior College figure from $193,000 asked for the biennium to $149,000. The proposed college cut was attributed to use of outdated enrollment figures; that of the hospital to the fact that it is doing a good job. How odd.

Oil developments took a rosier hue for this area. Cities Service No. 1 Glass, in southwest Martin County, showed considerable distillate on two tests in the Strawn. Phillips No. 1-B Roxie, already a Fusselman producer, completed as a Canyon strike, too, just north of Big Spring.

Bill French was honored as the outstanding student on the football team and Wayne Fields as the outstanding player at the annual Lions club grid banquet Tuesday.

Lyndon Assails Ike For Using Veto Threat

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) said Saturday night President Eisenhower and his backers are trying to blackmail the new Democratic-controlled Congress "by the threat of veto."

"I think it is about time that somebody blows the whistle on threats to veto bills that have not been drafted and to cancel steps that have not been taken," the Senate Democratic leader said.

Johnson's attack on the Eisenhower administration was prepared for a Democratic dinner. The Senate leader said there is nothing left of Eisenhower's "great crusade" of six years ago except a desire for quiet, and "government by veto."

"Communism has declared economic war against our way of life," he said. "The United States which led the world into the atomic age—now lags in the exploration of outer space."

DEMAND FOR ACTION
Johnson said the Democratic sweep in last November's elections was a demand for action in government. And he said the Democrats in control of the Senate and House would do just that.

But hardly had the Democratic victories been chronicled, Johnson said, when reports began to seep out of Washington that "the President was determined to exercise his veto powers to the hilt to check a 'wild spending spree.'"

Deriding predictions of Eisenhower vetoes even before Congress had considered or passed a bill and "even before it is printed," Johnson said: "It becomes little more than an instrument to blackmail Congress."

Johnson did not spell out what veto predictions he referred to. Some Republican leaders, including Senate GOP Leader Everett Dirksen of Illinois, have talked of a possible veto in an airport aid bill is re-passed in the same form which Eisenhower rejected last year.

There also has been some Republican talk of a veto if Congress passes a considerably more expensive housing measure than Eisenhower wants.

Johnson ridiculed contentions that the new Democratic Congress may go on a wild spending spree. He said the Democratic Congress clipped more than five billion dollars from Eisenhower's last budget recommendations.

"To set the present administration up as the guardian of the balanced budget is in the same class as hiring a coyote for a watchdog over the sheep," he said.

He resigned from his ledger and his desk and resumed his work out of doors.

"S. C. Houston, one of the bank's bookkeepers, came to see me that summer," he recalls. "He told me he wanted to go on a vacation and that he couldn't go unless he could get someone to work in his place."

"I went to work, planning to return to the ranch as soon as S. C. came back on the job. Somehow, it didn't work out that way and I have been in the bank ever since."

Stantonites say that Jim Tom has a long way yet to go before he can leave the bank. "He told me he wanted to go on a vacation and that he couldn't go unless he could get someone to work in his place."

Deaths, Damage Mount In Floods

Ice Jams, Fires Add To Miseries

By The Associated Press

The flood-fed Ohio River rose Saturday while icy waters began to recede in most other areas. But freezing cold, fires and ice jams added to the woes of some cities in the broad flood zone.

Overflows hit new trouble spots in Ohio. A thaw raised fresh threats in Indiana.

The flood death toll stood at 23, including 14 in Ohio, 5 in New York, 3 in Indiana and 1 in Pennsylvania. Losses went over the 100 million dollar mark and the number of homeless topped 15,000.

The Red Cross estimated the disaster affected 22,000 families in five states and that at least 3,500 homes were destroyed.

The flood deaths, added to deaths attributed to severe cold and heavy snow over most of the nation earlier in the week, increased the toll due to furious weather to 99.

Troubleshooters dropped dynamite from a helicopter in an effort to break an ice gorge that dammed French Creek near Meadville, Pa. The blockade backed up water over 10 per cent of that city of 25,000 population, drove 2,000 persons from their homes and paralyzed business.

FIREMEN HELPLESS
Meadville firemen stood by helplessly while flames raced through the warehouse and office of the Race Street Lumber Co. The fire fighters reached the blaze in three amphibious vehicles. But hydrants were frozen and under water.

The Scioto River began to ebb slowly in Chillicothe, Ohio, after an overflow forced about 8,000 residents from their homes. Ohio's worst flooding since 1913 was past its peak.

But the mighty Ohio River, huge natural drain for much of the flood region, was swelling below Marietta.

High waters forced evacuation of 300 families at Marietta, where the Muskingum River joins the Ohio. Waterfront businesses were closed. But then the water level began to drop.

Ice jams in the Sandusky River in northern Ohio backed water into the main business streets of Fremont and prompted the evacuation of 1,000 persons.

A thaw in the wake of snow and a long hard freeze in the Midwest brought threats of a further rise in bloated rivers in Indiana.

Ice jams in the Wabash River caused flooding between Logansport and Lafayette, Ind., and menaced bridges.

Water from the Ohio River routed 10 families in Evansville, Ind.

Rescue workers strove anew to reach 12 men trapped in a flooded mine near Pittston, in northeastern Pennsylvania. There was little hope of finding them alive.

The ice-jammed Susquehanna River caused a backup of waters in southeastern Pennsylvania.

View Of Flooded Business District

The rampaging waters of the Shenango river completely engulfed the downtown section of Sharon, Pa., in northwestern Pennsylvania. All stores closed as the worst flood in 46 years brought most activity to a halt. State Street, main artery of the town, runs diagonally from top to bottom. (AP Wirephoto)

U. S. Replies To Mikoyan, Proposes 'Serious Talks'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States called on the Soviet Union Saturday to end "artificial pressures" over Berlin's future and join the West in serious talks on the problems of Germany and European security.

The State Department proposed the new East-West talks in commenting on Soviet Dep. Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan's criticisms of American policy toward Germany, voiced at a Kremlin news conference Saturday.

Mikoyan accused American leaders of standing pat on unacceptable proposals while Russia allegedly makes one peaceful offer after another without success.

In a swift reply, the State Department said:

"The United States recognizes the urgent need for a serious approach to these problems and we are glad to see that Mr. Mikoyan feels that artificial pressures regarding the timing of negotiations are not helpful."

Mikoyan was told during his visit here, the department statement added, that Berlin "cannot be treated in isolation." The American attitude toward new talks, it said, is this:

"We do believe that negotiations for a solution of the problems of Germany and European security."

Explosion Of Chemical Car Leaves At Least Five Dead

MONROE, La. (AP)—The fiery explosion of a chemical-laden railway tank car in wreckage of a 33-car derailment left at least five dead Saturday as workers probed the wreckage looking for any other bodies.

More than 50 workers were attempting to clear the Missouri and Pacific tracks as firemen stood by when the car blew up Friday night, tossing the tanker 200 feet into a cotton field.

Burning debris scattered over the area, hitting workers, firemen and spectators crowding the site. Three were killed in the blast. Two more died in hospitals Saturday. More than 50 were injured, five critically. Most of those hurt were railway workers. The others

BATISTA'S STRONG BOX YIELDS MILLIONS IN CASH AND BONDS

HAVANA (AP)—Revolutionary authorities announced today they had found the personally written will of former President Fulgencio Batista, along with $3,270,000 in cash and bonds, in two safe deposit boxes.

The Ministry for Recovery of Stolen and Misappropriated Properties said the will, dated Jan. 17, 1957, provided that the estate be equally divided among eight sons and daughters, and stated that previous arrangements had been made for his wife.

Another daughter, Marta, was born after the testament.

Beside the three children by his first marriage and the four sons by his second marriage the will provided for an "extramarital" daughter, Fermina Lazara Carmela Delas Mercedes Batista Yestevez, the ministry said.

then of course negotiations could be prolonged for a few days or a few months," he said.

The Soviet Union has threatened to turn over to East Germany control of the lifelines to West Berlin if a solution is not found in six months. The West has rejected the Soviet plan to make West Berlin an unarmed, free city.

Mikoyan said he was convinced many Americans considered the six-month period an ultimatum and were upset about it. But he denied it was an ultimatum, saying there was nothing unusual about a deadline for talks.

The deputy premier, who returned only from his U. S. visit Friday said he had found "many prejudices against the U.S.S.R." and its attitude in the United States, then added:

"An increasing number of Americans are beginning to understand that war and the threat of war under present conditions is an altogether unsuitable means of settling international disputes."

Mikoyan said he found this view expressed among business circles as well as workers. He insisted these groups would like to see the Cold War ended but in the State Department "apparently they are not yet ready for it."

Mikoyan said his government—and that presumably included Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev—"fully approved my activities in the United States" and is satisfied with the reception given him by President Eisenhower, Vice President Nixon and Secretary of State Dulles.

"Our government will reply with the same warm hospitality to Americans when they will come to the Soviet Union," he added.

Mikoyan was asked about possible sabotage to the Scandinavian plane that lost two engines and forced him to make an overnight stop at Argentina, New Foundland, on his trip home.

"It is fortunate that our plane was delayed for an hour in New York waiting for its turn to take off," he said. "Otherwise the failure would have happened far out over the ocean and the outcome might have been different."

Probe Plane Crash

GREENVILLE (AP)—Authorities moved Saturday to learn what caused an airplane to explode Friday night and kill one man and injure four others.

All were Tenco Aircraft Co. employees, overhauling a big KC97 tanker at Majors Field, seven miles north of this North Texas city.

Grand Jury Faces Big Task Monday

A heavy work-load of criminal cases, including three of murder with malice, one of murder by automobile, three of assault with intent to murder and nearly two score lesser offenses, faces the new grand jury to be empaneled Monday morning in 118th District Court.

Guilford Jones, district attorney, said he could not estimate how long the task of presenting the 32 cases would take. The grand jurors may be in session as long as four days before the work is completed.

Most spectacular of the murder cases is that against Armando Lopez, 17, involved with under-age Andres Marquez, in the holdup slaying on Jan. 7 of Gerald D. Linder, young filling station attendant. While Lopez apparently did not fire any of the fatal shots which took the life of Linder, he is charged in the complaint with murder and robbery.

Also allied to this case is the charge of robbery and assault with intent to kill lodged against Joe H. Lara, 17. Lara, according to officers, was Marquez' colleague in an earlier holdup on Jan. 3 in which Donald Bippus, young airman, was seriously wounded.

Another spectacular murder case is that against Robert Larez, accused of the sidewalk slaying on Dec. 28 of Joe Villa.

Villa, who had been involved last October in a gunfight in which Alfredo Larez, father of Robert, and two other persons perished, was shot to death in front of Alexander Grocery on North Gregg Street. Larez is accused of emptying two automatic pistols in the body of Villa as he sprawled on the curb.

Another case in which the charge is assault with intent to murder is a part of the Villa incident and occurred on the same afternoon. Alfonso Rodriguez, a bosom pal of Villa and with him in the gunfight last October, is accused of firing a shot into the Larez residence as an aftermath to the slaying of his friend, Louis Larez, a brother of Robert, escaped death in this incident by inches when the bullet clipped hairs from his head.

The third murder case that the jurors will be called upon to consider will be that against Elbert J. Ford, 28-year-old Negro. Ford, the officers assert, had admitted that he fatally knifed Julius Bedford, 28, his brother-in-law, to death on the night of Dec. 6.

James McCarty, who is alleged to have been driver of the car in which Melva Harrison died on the night of Nov. 9, will face charges of murder by automobile. Mrs. Harrison, young mother of two children, was killed instantly when the car in which she was a passenger plowed under a parked maize truck on Gregg St.

Lupe Martinez will be charged with attempt to murder in the shooting on Dec. 2, of Israel Garcia. Garcia recovered from his wounds.

Also on the list of cases Jones will present to the grand jury will be a charge of theft over $50, naming Ralph Gilbert, defendant. Trial of Gilbert, for the murder of Clayton Stewart, his 87-year-old employer, was a sensation of the fading days of 1958. Gilbert was found guilty and his punishment fixed at life in the state penitentiary. Jones is now seeking an indictment against the young ranchhand for theft of cattle from his slain employer. Jones has said he intends to obtain such an indictment as an added preventive should Gilbert some day apply for a parole for the murder conviction.

One charge of unlawful possession of narcotics will be considered by the grand jury. Miguel T. Rosales is the defendant and it is alleged that on Dec. 9 he was apprehended with 24 cigarettes which officers say was marijuana in his possession.

Other criminal matters to be heard by the grand jury include Clarence L. Metcalf, charged with burglary, in the raid on the Western Grocery on Nov. 12.

Don Sledge, charged with forging the name of C. A. Lane to a check.

Frelin Reavis, accused of trying to pass a forged check on Dec. 24.

Doyle Nelson and Thomas Milton Dyer, charged with passing a forged check on Dec. 12.

Samuel Ellis and Alex Banks, accused of passing a forged check on Nov. 16.

Albert Hunnicutt, accused of forging a check on Dec. 16.

M. S. Stewart, charged with giving a worthless check on Sept. 30.

Homer Miller, accused of giving a worthless check for $200 for an automobile on Nov. 18.

Kyle Jacks, theft by bailee. He is charged with having stolen a car on Aug. 12.

James Preston Pierce, theft of $51 on Nov. 20.

Willie Egger, theft of several articles worth more than $50 on Oct. 5.

Leo Houston, child desertion. Leroy Stanley, accused of burglarizing the Silver Wing Drive-In on Nov. 6.

Alexander J. Couette, accused of burglarizing the R&H Hardware on Oct. 26, taking several pistols which have not been recovered.

Eric Rasmussen, Charlie Bridges, and Charles Smith, charged with burglarizing a coin-operated machine in a laundromat.

Norman Beard and Berry Beard, accused of forging a check on Jan. 3.

Hattie Harris, alleged to have shoplifted a ladies' mink-trimmed suit from Swartz's on Dec. 19.

Farrell Hammill, alleged to have burglarized the residence of M. F. Hodnett on Nov. 11.

O. D. Roberts, charged with DWI second offense; Freddie Lee Mizell, DWI second offense; Lonnie Hayden Jr., forgery; James H. Webb, theft of a motor car and Marvin Robinson, issuing a worthless check over $50.

Jones said that this list of information may be augmented before the week ends.

The grand jurors are instructed to report to Judge Charlie Sullivan at 9 a.m. Monday.

The joint resolution I have proposed places a great responsibility upon the members of the Legislature," said Hardeman. "It removes present restrictions as to the payment of compensation and specifically authorizes the payment of expenses."

Pointing out that some restraint should be exercised, Hardeman says this is found in the provision requiring biennial appropriations only upon two-thirds vote which would be recorded by yeas and nays with the printing in both house journals of the names of the members voting.

"This safeguard is believed to be entirely adequate to prohibit wild spending and still leave the Legislature free to adjust the compensation and office expenses . . . in the light of current economic conditions." No such safeguard was provided in the defeated issue, he said.

"Another change is to be found in the duration of any regular session," Hardeman continued. "Presently, only the payment of compensation is fixed for not more than 120 days for a regular session with no limitation on duration. Such regular sessions have often exceeded 140 days and, based on this experience, it is believed this feature should be made realistic. Special or called sessions may now exceed 30 days which remains unchanged."

"The regular biennial session is authorized and empowered, under the proposal, to anticipate and provide for the compensation and expenses of any Special Session or Sessions that may be thereafter convened during the biennium, with any unused balance, less necessary interim expenses, reverting, of course, to the public treasury."

"Thus the Legislature will be permitted to operate similarly to comparable legislative bodies in determining the compensation and expenses to be allowed its members."

"It is believed that, with the restraints included, the constitutional provision safely may be left flexible. This should appeal to those who advocate the granting of broad or general authority or powers in the organic law. True, this is contrary to the general form of our Constitution, designed, as it is, in specific or restrictive language," Sen. Hardeman concluded.

Taking part in the parade were student pilots of the 3560th Pilot Training Group and 100 airmen of the 3560th M&S Group and Air Base Group. Music was provided by the 3320th USAF Band from Amarillo AFB, and color guard was furnished by the 3560th Air Police Squadron.

Each week the containers which have been placed by workers in Forsan, Garden City, Coahoma, Sand Springs and Big Spring are checked on and those that are filled are collected.

More than 600 containers and 300 posters were placed by workers who include Roland Beal, Harold Cain, Ray White, Dale Smith, Horace Wallin and Mrs. A. C. McClelland, Mrs. Thurman Gentry, Mrs. Odell Womack, Mrs. Armour Long, Mrs. Bryan McCracken, Mrs. Ray Richey, Mrs. Harold Summers, Mrs. C. Merrill, Mrs. J. Cunningham and Mrs. Froman.

Each coin collector consists of three cylinders symbolizing the three patient aid programs of the expanded National Foundation in the fields of arthritis, birth defects and polio. Also shown are pictures of three children suffering from these conditions.

In an appeal to the citizens of the Howard-Glascock county area, Rad Ware, campaign director, pointed out the added responsibilities of the National Foundation meet that the 1959 March of Dimes must raise more money.

"In the area of arthritis and rheumatism alone, at least 11 million are crippled in the United States, and of these 30,000 are infants and children. Add to this the 250,000 infants born each year with congenital malformations, and the 50,000 polio patients on aid rolls and it becomes clear why the contributions this year must be larger. The contributions of the past helped put polio on the run and more will help pave the way for greater accomplishments in the field of research," the director concluded.

DALLAS — Formal dedication of the $35,000,000 Southland Center, which includes the 42-story Southland Life Tower, tallest office building west of the Mississippi River, and the newest and most luxurious of the Sheraton Corp.'s 52 hotels, has been set for April 13.

Dan C. Williams, president of Southland Life Insurance Co., owners of Southland Center, said pre-dedication events would include a major social event on Saturday, April 11.

A settlement with one property owner for right of way was reached last Friday and Ed Carpenter, county judge, said that the commission believes that no difficulty will arise in obtaining easements from the four or five other property owners involved.

Carpenter said that he knew of no other special business to come before the court on Monday.

Jake Roberts, state highway department district engineer, told the commissioners some weeks ago that the state is ready to start work on this FM road. Contract will be awarded at the next letting provided right of way is obtained for the project, he said.

Howard County Commissioners Court will confer Monday with several property owners on the route of a new FM road slated by the State Highway Department for the Knott community.

Hardeman Has New Plan For Solons' Pay

SAN ANGELO — Sen. Dorsey B. Hardeman, who successfully opposed an annual session amendment last year, has come up with his own plan which leaves biennial meetings as they are and would set salaries by a two-thirds recorded vote of the Legislature.

Hardeman's joint resolution proposes a constitutional amendment for pay and expenses "as is provided biennially by law." The amendment would be that two-thirds of the members of both houses would have to approve the pay scale each two years. Regular sessions would be limited to 140 calendar days.

The present law provides for biennial sessions with members being paid $25 per day for the first 120 days and no pay for time served after that time.

The amendment defeated last November would have provided annual sessions with annual salaries of $7,500 and no limit placed on expenses.

"The joint resolution I have proposed places a great responsibility upon the members of the Legislature," said Hardeman. "It removes present restrictions as to the payment of compensation and specifically authorizes the payment of expenses."

Pointing out that some restraint should be exercised, Hardeman says this is found in the provision requiring biennial appropriations only upon two-thirds vote which would be recorded by yeas and nays with the printing in both house journals of the names of the members voting.

Fourth annual Big Spring Junior Chamber of Commerce Employers-Employees banquet on Monday night will receive a plaque from the ment of the year's outstanding young farmer, school teacher and policeman.

Names of the three persons selected for these special honors are being kept secret. They will be introduced at the banquet, their qualifications outlined and each will receive a plane from the Jaycees in recognition for the contributions each has made to Howard County community life.

The banquet is to be at the new Howard County Junior College Student Union Building at 7 p.m.

Approximately 100 Jaycees and their employers are expected to be present. Chub Jones, president of the Jaycees, said Saturday that John Taylor will preside as master of ceremonies.

Speaker for the evening will be Joe Bell, editor and co-publisher of the Colorado City Record. Bell is a widely recognized figure in newspaper and civic affairs.

Motorists Save Negro From Fire

A 67-year-old Los Angeles Negro, trapped in the blazing wreckage of his 1957 Oldsmobile, owes his life to prompt rescue efforts of passing motorists, the highway patrol reported Saturday.

Patrol officers said that James Douglas Manley, Los Angeles, travelling alone in his car, plunged off the slab on U. S. 80 at 2:45 a.m. Saturday.

His car rolled down a steep embankment at a culvert, crashed into a ditch digging machine and carromed against the embankment. It turned over, trapping the driver in the seat, and caught on fire.

Passersby saw the flames, raced to the aid of the painfully injured Negro, and dragged him from the car just ahead of the flames. He was taken to the hospital in Colorado City. He suffered a fractured pelvis, a severe cut on the head and painful bruises and lacerations. His condition was said to be satisfactory on Saturday afternoon.

The accident occurred 16 miles east of Big Spring.

The patrol reported that Manley had pulled off the highway and had taken a nap. Later he awakened and decided to drive on. He had proceeded only a short distance before the car dived from the road into the deep ditch and crashed into the ditch digger.

The car was a complete loss and the ditchdigging machine was extensively damaged.

Considerable damage was caused to two cars in a second accident on U. S. 80 at 10:15 p.m. Friday, the patrol reported.

James Edward Carrington, Sweetwater, was in a 1949 Mercury going west. A tire blew out somewhere past Coahoma. The car continued on its way. A second tire went out at a point 7.6 miles east of Big Spring. One of the destroyed tires bundled up to the point where it locked the vehicle and halted its power.

A second car driven by Tom Ray Becker, topped a rise and had to attempt passage between the stalled car and another vehicle. A collision ensued and both cars were damaged but not extensively. Neither driver was injured.

Tiny Puppy Gets Her Milk From Eyedropper

LAMESA — "Darlene", one of three Chihuahua puppies born to Cubby Girl, registered long-hair Chihuahua belonging to Mrs. J. R. Westmoreland, 602 Court D, is as fragile and dainty as a china tea cup. In fact, she nearly fills one.

Born Dec. 28, Darlene weighed 2½ ounces when she was 19 days old, and now tips the scales at a little more than three ounces.

Mrs. Westmoreland found it necessary to take the tiny puppy from her mother when she was 10 days old to keep her from being crushed or smothered by the mother and two larger dogs in the litter.

Since then, Darlene has had her milk from an eye dropper, every three hours, day and night. In her tiny bed, she has her own electric heating pad to keep her comfortably warm.

Sire of the litter is a "deer type" male, also registered.

Mrs. Westmoreland, who has been raising the popular breed dog for the past four years, has had as many as 12 dogs at one time; now she has seven counting tiny Darlene. They sell for as much as $75 each.

Darlene's name will not be official until individual registration papers are completed; if she is sold before then, the name may be changed. But for the Westmorelands, who may not want to give her up, she'll be Darlene, derived from their first name for her, which was simply "Darlin'."

Funeral services were held at 2 p.m. Saturday in Mineral Wells for Mrs. J. L. Cunningham, 86, aunt of D. T. Evans of Big Spring.

Mrs. Cunningham died Thursday evening at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Grace Perkins, Mineral Wells. She also is survived by a son, David Cunningham of Houston; and several nieces and nephews, including D. T. Evans of Big Spring and John Evans, Odessa.

She was active in the Presbyterian church almost until the time of her death.

Negotiations Set With Landowners For Road Rights

Howard County Commissioners Court will confer Monday with several property owners on the route of a new FM road slated by the State Highway Department for the Knott community.

A settlement with one property owner for right of way was reached last Friday and Ed Carpenter, county judge, said that the commission believes that no difficulty will arise in obtaining easements from the four or five other property owners involved.

Carpenter said that he knew of no other special business to come before the court on Monday.

Jake Roberts, state highway department district engineer, told the commissioners some weeks ago that the state is ready to start work on this FM road. Contract will be awarded at the next letting provided right of way is obtained for the project, he said.

Southland Center Dedication Set For April 13

DALLAS — Formal dedication of the $35,000,000 Southland Center, which includes the 42-story Southland Life Tower, tallest office building west of the Mississippi River, and the newest and most luxurious of the Sheraton Corp.'s 52 hotels, has been set for April 13.

Dan C. Williams, president of Southland Life Insurance Co., owners of Southland Center, said pre-dedication events would include a major social event on Saturday, April 11.

The Man who Appreciates the Finest

BUYS HIS WIFE GAS APPLIANCES!

Elegance in one word . . . Chinchilla! The man who understands the language of quality is the kind of man who wants his wife to have a new built-in GAS Range. Like chinchilla, it bespeaks quality at a glance! Beautiful finishes and styles fit the decor of the most fashionable kitchen. But the real language of quality is a language of results! A modern built-in Gas Range is so accurate as to add slide-rule precision to the art of fine cookery. Completely automatic, it takes over the routine chore of pot-watching. It places complete control in the hands of the cook, following her instructions to the letter. Yes, in every way (economy included) GAS gives you more. And where the finest is truly appreciated . . . Two Big Spring Men Receive High Honors For Scout Work

Two Big Spring men — Sam McComb and S. M. Smith — were awarded Scouting's highest honor on the council level Friday evening.

For outstanding service to boys, they were presented with the coveted Silver Beaver at the 36th annual Buffalo Trail Council in Pecos. Others receiving the award were Charles A. McLintic, Midland, Luther W. Reynolds, Andrews, and C. J. (Andy) Anderson, Pecos.

Only seven others from this (Lone Star) district had received this award during the 36 years of council operation.

Both of the Big Spring men have served as district chairman, head of numerous committees, have taken leading roles in the annual Round Up (the largest single event in the council), have performed exceptional service in organizing new units, staging special events, etc., as well as achieving long records of community and church service. Their wives made the actual presentations of the award and in turn were given corsages.

Schools and colleges are not alone in bursting at the seams with maturity of the war-baby crop. Col. Homer Garrison, director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, told some 250 Scout volunteers at the Pecos Community Center. Reformatories and prisons also are bulging, and the end is nowhere in sight.

Recalling a dismal prophecy in 1943 of a post-war tide of crime, Col. Garrison said that the number of major crimes had reached 2,796,000 in 1957 and was up 12 per cent during the first half of 1958. Moreover, the 19 per cent of 18 years and younger criminals had jumped to 47 per cent in 1957.

SAM MCCOMB

S. M. SMITH

That means that now one of every two criminals in the nation is not over 18 years of age.

"Maybe while we were winning a war we were losing something of our moral standards, some of our national integrity, and the place of the home as the center of upright living," he declared.

Today for every dollar invested in education, the nation is spending $1.46 as the result of crime; for every dollar given to the church, $14 goes out as the crime bill.

"If we could only reach enough boys with Scouting, we could diminish our police force correspondingly," Col. Garrison declared.

J. L. (Dusty) Rhoades, Odessa, was installed as council president, succeeded Emmett Beauchamp, Pecos. Other officers were R. A. Lipscomb, Odessa; O. D. Albright, Odessa, Dr. Bryan Wildenthal, Alpine, and Frank Myers, Pecos, vice presidents; C. T. Breese, Midland, assistant treasurer; Luther May Jr., Midland, treasurer; Wayne Miller Sr., Odessa, commissioner.

G. N. Hughes, Midland, leadership training chairman, presented 14 woodbadge awards to volunteer leaders who had completed special training. Plaques were given to J. P. (Burn) Givens and Roy Miner, Midland, for leadership in the Scout capital funds campaign, and Rhoades paid tribute to Beauchamp for two years service as president. It was announced that seven of the eight field men for the council had qualified for the "top hand" award.

Approximately 20 Scouters and their wives from Big Spring attended the banquet.

Nixon Support Shaky Among GOP Leaders

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Vice President Nixon apparently retains too heavy support among Republican National Committee members for the party's 1960 presidential nomination. But his position may be shaky.

A cross-section check of committee members who met here this week disclosed some hedging on Nixon if Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York should become an active candidate for the nomination.

As the situation was summed up by several officials, Nixon remains the strong favorite for next year's standard bearer but there is an awareness that Rockefeller may look more like a winner than the vice president by the time the party convention meets.

Unlike most of his other colleagues, state Chairman Daniel E. McLean of Massachusetts was willing to take the plunge on Rockefeller without delay.

McLean, who told the committee at its closing session Friday that if the party comes up with "another Eisenhower we can win in 1960," said he believes Republicans need the most attractive candidate they can get.

NEILSON A WINNER

"I think we have got to have a Rockefeller to win," he said.

Thomas G. Judd, Utah state chairman, sounded a note echoed by several of his colleagues when he said he is a Nixon man right now "but 18 months from now I could be a Rockefeller man."

Claude J. Jasper, Wisconsin chairman, put it somewhat differently in a separate interview. "We in the party organization owe Nixon a great deal for all of the work he has put in for us," Jasper said. "I'm all for Nixon right now, but I recognize that he can stub his toe. Rockefeller also could stub his toe, of course, but he will have to be given consideration."

Minnesota state chairman Edwin Viehman said he regards Nixon as the top contender now. But he also added that Rockefeller cannot be counted out.

Maryland's chairman, Dr. Elfred Rinehart, said there is as much talk in his state about Rockefeller as about Nixon. He predicted that it will be several months before sentiment for either man jells.

Sen. Hugh Scott, general counsel of the National Committee, forecast solid Pennsylvania support for Nixon.

New Yorkers appeared to have made a conscious effort to keep Rockefeller talk at a low key during the national committee's meetings here.

Dean P. Taylor, the national committeeman, and his colleague, Mrs. Charles W. Weis Jr., a new member of Congress, did not show up for the session.

Narcotics Arrests

DALLAS (AP) — State narcotics agents and police had arrested 17 persons, most of them Negroes Saturday, in a drive against marijuana sellers and buyers. Four more were sought.

Dinner Meet Set For Exes Of H-SU

All ex-students of Hardin-Simmons University now living in Howard County are being invited to a dinner set for 7 p.m. Thursday at the First Baptist Church. Speaker for the meeting will be Dr. E. A. Reiff, H-SU president. He is to discuss the university's proposed long range expansion program, as well as a finance campaign now under way throughout Texas.

Here last week to explain the project to a group of local H-SU exes, Robert Bridge, director of the expansion fund campaign, said the long range goal is $4,500,000. However, the immediate objective is $1,500,000 to finance construction of a new chapel-auditorium to replace the Behrens

DR. E. A. REIFF

Chapel which was destroyed by fire last year, and for a student center.

Subsequent projects will be the remodeling and enlargement of Caldwell Hall, fine arts building; construction of other buildings, and enlargement of the school's endowment.

Accompanying Bridge here was Duane W. Amburn, public relations director and assistant to the president.

No solicitation is to be made at the Thursday meeting, the Hardin-Simmons officials said. However, they are hoping for a large turnout of former students for Dr. Reiff's explanation of the school's needs and plans. There will be no charge for the dinner.

HOW TO STOP A GAS WAR

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Leon Elizondo, an independent gasoline dealer, decided he knew how to stop a gasoline war yesterday.

He cut his price, already down more than 10 cents a gallon from the normal level, from 17.9 cents a gallon for regular to 10.9.

Traffic backed up for 20 blocks and several policemen were sent to the area to control it.

Elizondo estimated he sold 15,000 gallons of gasoline to between 1,200 and 1,500 customers in four hours.

It stopped the gas war, he said, claiming other dealers came to him and said they'd stop the war.

Asked if he lost money on the stunt, Elizondo replied: "Everything you do in life costs efforts, time or money."

Famed B25 Ends Active Service

LUBBOCK (AP) — The Air Force formally retired its B-25 bomber, workhorse of World War II combat, from active service yesterday.

The ceremonies were a highlight of the graduation of the last class of student pilots to train in the B-25 here at Reese Air Force Base. Future students will train in the T-33 jet.

Gen. Thomas D. White, Air Force chief of staff, dedicated a B-25 mounted on a concrete base "to the memory of the B-25 and its usefulness to the Air Force in 19 years of service."

Bitter Fight Brewing Over State Natural Resource Tax

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Price Daniel said Saturday the only opposition to his natural gas tax plan comes from those who want to levy on "everything from shirts to shoes and baby buggies."

He fired another blast in defense of his budget-balancing proposals as battle lines for a showdown fight on taxes were sharply drawn for the young and thus far unorganized Legislature.

Daniel issued a statement saying that the only caustic criticism of his revenue proposals has come from "those who favor either a state income tax or a general sales tax."

Scores of tax and other controversial bills heaped up a mountain of work on which nothing could be done until Speaker Wagner Carr and Lt. Gov. Ben Ramsey named committees to begin digging.

Many points in the governor's fiscal plan faced certain and stern opposition. Some has already developed. The powerful oil and gas industry with its active lobby sharply hit his export natural gas tax plan and he promptly refuted it had no basis for complaint.

The outlook at the end of the session's second week was increasingly clear that a battle was brewing in the House on the question of natural resource versus sales taxes, with the prospect of a state income tax looming in the background like a black summer thunderhead.

House and Senate leadership indicated committees would be named early this week.

All tax measures must originate in the House. But they may meet their first acid test in the potent Senate State Affairs Committee where they will go first after House approval.

Among Daniel's deficit-erasing and budget-balancing proposals bound to draw heavy fire were these:

1. His suggestion that users of Texas natural gas in Northern and Eastern states, now paying state taxes on it there, should bear their fair share of the revenue burden. He underlined the fact that 53 per cent of the contract gas now produced here is exported.

One segment of the industry slapped hard at this, saying the governor had not come up with a sound long-range plan, but that he was merely continuing the established patchwork system of taxation in Texas.

2. His plan to put the existing sales tax on cigarettes and beer now sold tax-free on military posts. The military and communities adjacent to Army, Navy and Air Force installations fought similar suggestions in the past with complete success.

3. His suggestion that dormant money now being used privately by banks, pipeline companies and others be transferred to the ailing general fund for use by the state. Banks especially have led the fight on past proposals for such legislation. There is no reason to believe they won't lobby against this one in full force.

4. The auto sales tax increase and changes in the franchise tax formula and rate will touch off opposition from organized business interests.

Mounted Patrol Has Quail Supper

Members of the Big Spring Mounted Patrol, their families and guests participated in a quail supper Friday evening at the National Guard armory.

Patrol members supplied the game, and their wives prepared the other food. About 65 persons attended. There was no formal program.

Ed Cherry is president of the Patrol, which has about 30 members.

LETTER

Wants Curfew To Curb Delinquents

To the Editor: My congratulations to Hack Wright for recognizing the problems of our town and for having the courage to speak of them.

It so happens that I am the mother of five children who have given me every reason to be proud of them, despite the fact that I have raised them on the wrong side of the tracks. It isn't an easy thing to do, believe me, especially since we over here are not given credit for having the desire for better things in life nor the decency that the people on the other side of town are endowed with.

I have read all of the pros and cons on crime in our otherwise nice city. True, there is much of it elsewhere, but is it not up to us to better our own situation? But how are we doing it when half of our population is neglected because it is North of Town. Isn't it a shabby thing to permit murder, theft and dope because it is among the Latin Americans and Negroes?

Many of these things could be avoided if the people on the juries would be less in a hurry to have it over with so they can go home, if they would carefully listen and then realize that no matter what the color of a person's skin, it is a human being that has been murdered and that the person who did it is just as guilty no matter who he is.

The terrible thing that happened to the Limer boy perhaps would not have happened if somewhere along the line, these boys who did it had seen the terrible consequences that can be derived from such an act as this. If others have killed and have received a mere sentence of two or five years, instead of the severe penalty they should have received, why then, they really hadn't much to worry about, did they? It is a terrible, terrible thing to think of that poor boy being killed with his hands in his pockets, not even defending himself, all because some little pipsqueak wanted to see if he could get away with it and all he seems to be worried about is that good little gun he is losing!

We have heard the people talk about the law enforcement officers, but how can they be blamed for the obvious fact that the parents themselves neglect to raise their children in a proper manner. I am sure that better parental guidance would help no end.

Too many children are able to have cars of their own and can ride as far into the night as they please, and wherever they please. A child is never too old for a word of advice, and they should be taught from the cradle up to respect other people. There is very little respect in the teen-ager nowadays. It is with a snicker or a sneer that they will look to the old fogies who will attempt to tell them right from wrong. We are terribly in need of a curfew, we need a way to control the children who lack the guidance of their parents. How else can we stop our children from becoming anything else but what we already have in abundance? I can see no better future for us if we do not make an attempt to better ourselves now.

Did I hear someone say that all kids are not the same? True, mister, but can you say what your children are doing at night in a car with a bunch of other kids? I could not. And tell me, mister, where were you at the age of 16 at 10 p.m.? Bet you were home in bed, same as I was, and no fooling around about it either.

So I say that these boys need punishment badly, severe punishment too. I also say that in the future, punishment should be just as severe for all comers.

Parents, let us ask for a curfew and have some peace of mind, knowing that our kids are tucked in bed and therefore out of mischief, on both sides of town. Sincerely,

Margaret (no relation) Marquez

15 Meet Graduation Requirements Friday

By PAT ROGERS

Fifteen students bade a fond farewell to BSHS when they finished their high school requirements on Friday. Fan Barber, Carol Alston, Nancy Eldridge, Monty Davis, David Leppert, Ronue Richardson, Janet Carpenter, Judy Cagle, Sue Helms, Linda Bond, Sherre Baker, Shirley Hawthorn, Beverly Martin, Janet Culwell and Jim Bumgarner, made the group of mid-term graduates. These students are making various plans for their lives away from high school. Some are planning to attend HCJC, to work, go off to college, and some are planning to set up housekeeping.

Friday, little ribbons and odd signs appeared upon couples around school. Since this was Sadie Hawkins' Week, the girls got ribbons and made signs to pin on their man to signify that they were already hooked up for the dance that night. After the hard, fought basketball game against Abilene, the senior class sponsored the Sadie Hawkins' dance. For some girls it will be a relief to have this week come to an end, for others, it's sad. The boys have finally found out how it feels to be a member of the "No-Rate-Data" Club.

The student council met Wednesday and started making plans for a faculty supper. In the past, the council has given the faculty a breakfast, but due to the schedule this year, it was changed to a supper. James Stephens, Celia Grant, Bill Engle, and Larry Moore will represent the Big Spring Student Council in the meeting of the TASC (Texas Association of Student Councils) to be held in Brownsville, March 12-14.

Dolores Baird, Judy Reagan, Toni Thomas, Shirley Terry, Joy Appleton, and Pat Rogers were the only students from BSHS to show up Tuesday in San Angelo for the Steers' basketball game. The team has been feeling a little "down-in-the-dumps" about the lack of support.

With tears in their eyes, the volleyball girls said good-bye to their coach, Miss Anna Smith. Of course they realize Miss Smith has a greater opportunity at HCJC, but for the senior members of the team, she had been their coach since the seventh grade in junior high school.

The future plans of the FHA include a sweetheart banquet in February where the crowning of their dream boy will take place. Speaking of homemakers, Miss Edna McGregor, home economics instructor, had to take a leave of absence because of the ill health of her mother.

"We are beginning to gain our dignity now!" observed one senior as he was measured for his cap and gown. If you're wondering why the seniors have had their noses in the air this past week, they paid $3.50 for the cap and gown they will wear at graduation. Some of them, however, worried about perhaps not getting to use the robes.

A new face appeared in the main office of BSHS. Mrs. Bobbie Lebkowsky joined our ranks to take the place of Lola Sheppard. Mrs. Sheppard is resigning to help her husband in the real estate business.

Sherry Lurting, along with other juniors, has been selling ballpoint pens with BSHS written on them. Their sales talk goes something like this: "Seniors, if you want the prom to be better than ever, buy one."

You won't be seeing any more of the girls, clad in black and white representing the pep squad, at any more games — at least for awhile. When Miss Smith, sponsor, left, so did the pep squad. "Encourage all students to take part in our new play, either by trying out for a part in the play or by working on the crews. It's a play full of fun," said Mr. Phillip Wayne, speech instructor and play director.

Mr. Wayne announced Thursday that the senior play is to be "Heaven Can Wait." The cast will consist of 12 male and six female players. It is considered to be a comedy-fantasy about a man who gets called up to the pearly gates and was not due to appear until another 60 years. There will be many funny situations and a real fun show. The play will be presented April 9 and 10.

Congratulations Mary Jane Engstrom and Kathleen Soldan! Mary Jane and Kathleen qualified for the All-State Band. They will compete for their chairs in Galveston on February 18, where the concert is to be given.

To hear one teacher put it "The students are on their 'last legs' during this last semester they have a chance to pull up their grades or to just go on and fail." From the looks of some of the report cards issued Wednesday, a majority of the students of BSHS need to "get on the stick" and bring up their grades.

BSHS had two new names to add to the list of Quill and Scroll members. Judy Perdue and Teresa Smith became members of the society last week, that makes a total of four Quill and Scroll members from our high school.

Along with the senior play, students and the student council will be working hard on the Folies of '59. These folies, a student body talent show, will be presented in the early part of February.

Teachers had to raise their voices Friday in order to out-do the machinery racket out-of-doors. Work began Friday on the wing to be added to BSHS. Maybe this will do away with some of the "bulgin' seams."

24 Make Honor Roll At Runnels Jr. High School

Twenty-four pupils in the Runnels Junior High School rated a place on the honor roll for the second nine weeks of the fall semester.

This means that they made nothing lower than an A on subjects as well as on conduct.

Those announced by Thomas Ernest, principal, are: Janis Anderson, Tommy Bacus, Janie Barber, Marvin Bell, Tony Carrillo, Robert Clay, Sue Cook, Judy Engle, Albert Fierro, Humberto Hernandez, Bobby Marquez, John Polich, Ann Puckett and Susan Stephens of the seventh grade. Eighth graders on the honor roll are Kathleen Morton, Marie Neece, Anna Mae Tucker, Bobby Williams, Ricky Wisener.

Ninth graders are Carol Clark, Skipper Driver, LaJuana McPherson, Claudia Richardson, Cecil Vandegraer.

CAMPUS CHATTER

Most JC Students Survive 16,600 Hours Of Interrogation

By BOBBY HORTON

Now I feel qualified to say that I know what college means.

COLLEGE is an abbreviation for "Caught On Laborious, Lengthy Examinations Grind Eventually."

It seems humorous that some people might send their youngsters to college in order to get them off the streets and keep them from turning into irresponsible "night owls." Many a student has burned more midnight oil in the past week than was ever lit for a senior prom—all for the sake of education.

One instructor at the college was in sympathy with the hallow-eyed students, however; probably because exams brought back old memories. His test sheet had this conspicuous contribution tagged just above 100 favorite questions: "No penalty for guessing."

For statistics — minded people, there were 83 two-hour testing periods, beginning Monday and lasting through one exam on Thursday. For the some 625 full-time day students, that is a total of 16,600 hours of interrogation.

With that note, the fall semester ended informally. Registration for the spring semester begins officially Monday and spring semester classes begin Wednesday.

To pour more solemnity onto the examination week, a big red sandstorm came rolling into town Tuesday that practically made me homesick. Since I've been here for college work at HCJC there hasn't been a bad sandy like we had on the farm on the South Plains, although there's bound to be some old-timers on the street corner who can tell of the "bad old days" here.

One old place stands out in my mind, particularly. To the best of my memory, it was held down at each corner by a sand dune. On the western border we were fortunate in having a 200-foot wide strip of pasture that protected us from an adjacent neighbor we could have justifiably called Sandy. The hump of sand along the fence row was as big as the China Wall, I used to think.

Square in the middle of the harvest-worn half-section, however, was a little knoll of clay that refused to be flattened by the sand and the wind. It resisted eroding away to nature as I do studying for exams, and that's some resistance.

The sturdy little rise must have been a symbol for us. We never made a dime on that farm—or at least very few. But with the stubbornness of the hill, we hung on to that sandy cotton patch for something like five years.

But times are better now. The sand blows hard, but not quite like I used to think it did. And I'm sure there will be some sand on my college diploma, if and when the time ever comes for me to get such.

It seems to be increasingly difficult for anyone to get a raise these days—even colleges. HCJC asked for one from the state and got a proposed pay cut.

The college, receiving $33,475 in state aid funds for 1959, asked for $89,500 in 1960 and $107,500 in 1961, in correspondence with the rapid growth rate.

Last week, however, it was announced that HCJC and several other similar colleges in Texas would get a smaller allowance from state aid. HCJC will get $74,520 in each of the next two years if the legislative budget board recommendation is followed.

RUNNELS REPORT

Magazine Sales To Open Monday

By DIANE BAKER

On Monday the annual money-raising project will get under way with the start of the magazine sales campaign. James Hobbs, the publishing company will address the student body regarding this annual affair which will continue through Feb. 16. Points will be given for sales and prizes may be obtained by attaining a given number of points. There will be a grand prize for the student selling the most. Last year Runnels received an award for being the top school in the district. Proceeds go to school projects.

Thursday afternoon the eighth grade Yearlings played Ackerly here and won by a 23-19 score. Happy birthday wishes went to Shirley Bailey, school secretary, on Jan. 22. She received a corsage of red and white carnations — the school colors naturally. Congratulations were in order, if belatedly, for Mr. and Mrs. Dan Bustamente. Their daughter, little Paula Lisa, arrived, weighing six pounds and three ounces on Dec. 22.

Report cards came out Wednesday. Semester and nine weeks grades were listed on the cards. The staff of El Palomar, the school yearbook, completed the foreword to the annual during the past week.

The Round Up, school newspaper, has a new staff for the second semester. Ray Marshall was editor last semester, and David Stevenson served as assistant editor.

The election for president and vice president of the Student Council is coming up Monday, do be sure and vote.

Class Favorites Are Announced

By PAT ARMSTRONG

The favorites and Best-All-Around for this year were announced Wednesday. The Best-All-Around boy is Billy Moore and Karon Koger is Best-All-Around girl.

The ninth grade favorites are Katie Bess Morgan and George Ryan; Karen McGibbon and Pete Harmonson are the eighth grade favorites; Sonia Erickson and Donnie Anderson are seventh favorites. We are all proud of these students, who we know are very deserving of these honors.

The yearbook staff elected the annual queen and runner-up last Monday. Karen McGibbon and Winnie Greenlee were chosen.

The school paper was on sale last Monday. The paper staff deserves credit for the good job they are doing on the new publication.

The ninth grade Tri-Hi-Y held their weekly meeting Wednesday. Mrs. Toots Mansfield, Mrs. Arnold Marshall, Nancy Marshall, and Deane Mansfield formed a mother-daughter panel, and discussed plans for the "Y" Carnival that was held Saturday night.

A pep rally was held Thursday morning in the gym. Coach Lewis gave a pep talk following talks by Dick Ebling, Ernie Samples, and Skipper Neill. The band played several numbers.

Goliad seventh, eighth and ninth lost in their games with Snyder Thursday, but by a very close margin.

Legislature To Get Many Tax Measures

AUSTIN (AP)—A corporate income tax, increased levies on liquor, new automobiles and tobacco, small loan regulation and open meetings of public agencies would be required by bills introduced in the Legislature.

Other proposals include party affiliation on poll tax receipts, enabling legislation for the voter-approved program of medical aid for indigent persons, higher loan limits for trucks and changes in the water conservation laws.

Rep. Dean Johnston of Houston turned in a bill calling for a tax on the income of corporations, joint stock associations and partnerships. Rates would be nothing for the first $50,000, one and one-half per cent on $50,000 per year and two per cent on income above $150,000. Taxable income would be determined on the same formula as the federal income tax.

Gov. Price Daniel's proposals to increase the taxes on liquor, wines, malt liquor and new cars and impose new levies on cigars and smoking and chewing tobacco were filed by Rep. Peter J. La Valle of Texas City. The bill would raise the tax on hard liquor from $1.40 to $2.50 per gallon. Malt liquor would carry a tax on 16 1/2 cents per gallon, wines with less than 14 per cent alcohol 11 cents per gallon, and wines of 14 to 24 per cent alcohol 22 cents per gallon. The levy on new cars would be upped from 1.1 to 1.3 per cent.

TAX ON CIGARS
Cigars would be taxed on a sliding scale: $12 per thousand on those retailing for 10 cents or less; $18 per thousand on 10 to 20 cent cigars and $24 per thousand on cigars selling for more than 20 cents or weighing more than three pounds per thousand. The smoking tobacco tax would be 20 per cent of the list price and chewing tobacco tax would be levied for 25 cents per pound.

Rep. Truett Latimer filed a bill which would require that all meetings of "all boards, commissions, committees of the Legislature and all other agencies of the state, city, county or other political subdivision be open." Action taken at secret meetings would be declared invalid, and officials taking part could be fined and removed from office.

SMALL LOANS
A measure to regulate small loan businesses by dividing them into classes according to their size and bringing them under jurisdiction of the state banking commissioner was introduced.

Businesses would be classified according to the size of loans—under $100 and $100 to $3,000. The authors include Tony Koriath of Sherman and Franklin Spears of San Antonio.

Rep. Jamie Clements of Crockett turned in two measures—a bill calling for an end to the exemption from state tax on cigarettes sold on military posts, and a plan co-authored with Rep. Koriath to require that political party affiliation be listed on the poll tax receipt or exemption certificate of Texas voters.

Rep. R. L. Strickland of San Antonio, Don Kennard of Fort Worth and R. H. Cory of Victoria submitted a bill raising the maximum loan limit for Texas highways to 72,000 pounds. The measure, they said, would remove the present limit of 58,000 pounds, which they termed "restrictive" and said was the third lowest in the U.S.

The bill to put into effect the constitutional amendment for medical benefits for indigent persons was introduced by Rep. Bob Bullock of Hillsboro. It would empower the state to accept federal funds and add state money to provide the care. The amendment was in the November general election.

Diarrhea Infects 35 Persons Here
Diarrhea was the chief infection in Big Spring last week, according to a health report from the city-county health unit. Diarrhea cases numbered 35.

The health unit survey showed 30 cases of colds, 25 of tonsillitis, and 23 of upper respiratory trouble. Twenty were bothered by influenza. Eight had gastroenteritis, four had scarletina, three gonorrhea, two contracted measles and one each had tuberculosis and strep-throat.

'Coffee Days' Set For March Of Dimes
March of Dimes "coffee days" have been scheduled for this week by Big Spring cafes.

Herb Vinson, chairman of the project, said cafes from midtown east will give their coffee proceeds to the March of Dimes Monday. Those from the center of town west will participate Tuesday, those in the southern sector Wednesday, and in the northern part of the town Thursday.

Trip Around The Moon May Occur Within Next 10 Years

WASHINGTON (AP)—There is a good chance that Americans will circle the moon without landing in the next 10 years, the nation's civilian space chief said Saturday.

Dr. T. Keith Glennan said that in the same decade "an active program should be under way to attempt a similar (circumnavigational) flight to Mars or Venus."

And, he added, there is an outside chance that samples of the moon's surface may be brought back to earth by some undisclosed technique.

Outlining in an interview the expectations of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration he heads, Glennan said prospects for success are conditioned on the assumption there will be vigorous national support.

Glennan's prognostications, representing also the thinking of his top scientists, envision such things as:

Good progress toward manned space laboratories orbiting the earth for long periods and being supplied by rockets.

Development and operation of a system of weather satellites having world-wide coverage.

Establishment of practical global system of communications satellites relaying radio, television and other signals.

Tremendous advances in rocket propulsion, with the probability of developing rockets having up to six million pounds thrust—much higher than present capabilities.

Development of a nuclear powered engine for space rockets.

Glennan did not go into details on how it might be possible to bring back samples of the moon's surface without landing a manned space vehicle. He said it is ex-

Stanton FFA Youths Take Abilene Prizes
Stanton FFA members swept to the championships in the capon, chicken and turkey broiler classes of the Abilene Fat Stock Show Thursday.

Kenneth Haggard, 18, a student at Howard County Junior College and honorary member of the Stanton FFA, showed the grand champion capon of the show, edging a bird exhibited by Linda Steele, 10, of Big Lake. Linda is the daughter of Elbert Steele, former FFA advisor at Stanton.

Morris Hastings, 15, of the Stanton FFA showed the champion pen of three broilers. He also exhibited a third place pen of three in the same class.

Terry Shanks, also of Stanton FFA, exhibited the grand champion pen of three turkeys and Tommy Davis, another Stanton FFA youth, showed the reserve champion pen.

In the sale Friday afternoon, Haggard received $100 for his champion capon, a 11 1/4-pound bird. Shanks received $100 for his three broilers.

In all, the Stanton youths collected $460 in premiums and sale proceeds, said their advisor, Travis Scott, vocational agriculture teacher in Stanton High School.

Other Stanton winners were Gerald Mattingly, third; Donnie Hull, seventh; Gilbert Castor, eighth; and Steve Springer, 10th, in the turkey broiler class; Porky Britton, seventh; Haggard, eighth; and Springer, 10th, in the heavy-weight capon class; Haggard, second, and Shanks, ninth, in the lightweight capon class; and Britton, sixth; Springer, seventh; Mattingly, eighth; and Jerry Hildreth, 10th, in the pen of three capons division.

Don Wortham was elected senior patrol leader, and new patrol leaders are Randy Cahoon, Bill Clements, Harold Scott, and Arnold Gibson.

It was also announced that another Court of Honor and parents' dinner would be held at the church on Feb. 23.

Officers Return With 2 Defendants
Deputy Tommy Cole and Patrolman J. B. Hall, who left a week ago Saturday, returned to Big Spring yesterday afternoon with two prisoners wanted here to face felony charges.

Cole and Hall encountered bad weather on their long trip to Pawnee, Mich., and then to Danville, Va.

They returned Lonnie L. Hayden Jr., charged with forgery, and James H. Sebb, charged with car theft. Both men's cases are scheduled to be presented to the grand jury this week.

Daughters Of Republic Are Determined To Keep Alamo

DALLAS (AP)—Daughters of the Republic of Texas, watchdogs of the Alamo for more than 53 years, have risen indignantly against a move to take that Texas shrine out of their hands.

It all started recently, when a research division of the Texas Legislative Council recommended that the Alamo and a few other historic spots in Texas be brought under control of the State Parks Board.

Cut to the quick, the DRT got busy with formal protests.

Mrs. Joe N. Sanderson, state president, and other Dallas DRT leaders dispatched letters telling how the Alamo and its grounds have been well preserved and efficiently operated since 1905, when the 29th Texas Legislature placed it in their custody.

"This whole move caught us by surprise," Mrs. Sanderson said. "The Alamo has been maintained beautifully and run efficiently, and at no cost to the State of Texas. Why, we don't even charge admission."

In a letter to the Texas Legislative Council, Mrs. Sanderson said the 2,300 DRT members in Texas regard care of the Alamo "as a sacred duty, done in memory of those who sacrificed their lives there."

Gov. Price Daniel, in his budget recommendations, made no reference to the proposal by the council. The Budget Board not only ignored the suggestion but trimmed the State Parks Board budget request by several hundred thousand dollars.

The Budget Board's reason: Lack of statewide policy on state parks.

Tom is an optimist. He has seen many changes in the half century he has been a banker in Stanton. Right now, the future looks good to him.

He sees prosperity ahead for ranching and agriculture in his county. He points to the increased oil development that looms for the county. Irrigation has become an important farming element in Martin County and contributes materially to the sound economy of the area.

"Things look pretty bright," he said. "I think there are good days ahead for all of us."

He turned back to his desk, where stacks of work were waiting for him.

Friends dropped in to congratulate him on his 50th anniversary as Stanton's banker.

For Jim Tom, however, it was just another busy day—the same sort of busy day he has always enjoyed.

Tomorrow? Why, it will be another Monday and with it will come the usual problems and decisions—which Jim Tom will meet with the same calmness and efficiency as he always has displayed.

Bergman Wins Custody Of 3 Children

PARIS (AP)—Ingrid Bergman won a crucial battle Saturday in her fight with former husband Roberto Rossellini for custody of their three children.

A complicated provisional ruling by a French court gave the Swedish actress custody of the children, but gave Rossellini what amounts to visiting rights on weekends.

The decision, read to an almost empty courtroom by Judge Rene Drouillet, also decreed the children must attend an Italian school in Paris and cannot be taken out of France until a final custody ruling is made. This is expected to take at least a year. Miss Bergman immediately took legal steps to start the process.

The important point in Saturday's ruling is that it means the French courts have assumed jurisdiction in the case. French law heavily favors the mother in custody cases.

Both Miss Bergman and Rossellini have filed custody suits—Miss Bergman in France, Rossellini in Italy. A decision by a French court awarding the children to Miss Bergman would cancel any action by Italian courts—at least in France.

Aged Man Dies At Colorado City

COLORADO CITY—Services will be conducted at the Kiker and Son Funeral Chapel at 2 p. m. Sunday for John M. Wells, 80, who died suddenly Friday of a heart attack at his residence here. Burial will be in the Colorado City Cemetery.

Officiating will be Rev. Clarence Collins, First Methodist pastor, assisted by Rev. Rayon Hester, a former Abilene pastor.

Mr. Wells was a member of the Austin St. church and had lived in Colorado City for 24 years.

Mr. Wells, a retired butcher, was born on Nov. 9, 1878, in Madisonville.

He is survived by his wife; two sons, John Wells Jr. of Kermit and Jack Wells of Lubbock; two brothers, J. A. Wells of Houston and Mark Wells of Bay City; two sisters, Mrs. Nancy Tinsley of Houston and Mrs. Ben Magnus of Madisonville, and three grandchildren.

THE WEEK

Darrell Royal, University of Texas coach, did the best job to date as a speaker. He had something to say.

Sherman Smith and Sam McComb were paid the highest honor or possible by the Buffalo Trail Boy Scout council Friday by being given the Silver Beaver for distinguished service to boys.

We got our first measurable moisture in 60 days last Tuesday evening—and it would have been better without it. Snow and rain combined with dust to give us slud and mud. The weather pattern of moisture sliding in east of us gives us an uneasy feeling.

The service station bandit mystery, broken open a week ago, continues to unravel. Now it develops that confessed killer Andres Marquez had a different partner for each of his jobs. Joe Lara is the latest to "fess up to his part. There may be other angles yet to unfold.

Dirt was broken for beginning of the addition for Big Spring Senior High School. This job will cost something like $340,000 and will vastly increase classroom space. HCJC, meanwhile, decided to include air conditioning in its dormitories, which probably was wise inasmuch as this is virtually an essential now.

If we had someone on the all-star football, baseball or basketball team, we'd beat the drums. Well, some figurative beating is in order for Mary Jane Engstrom and Kathleen Soldan, who were chosen for the all-state band.

Fifty acres of grass burned off in a baby prairie fire last week. This should serve as a reminder to never throw a cigarette or cigar from your automobile. Pastures are like tinder.

Chicago Opera Ballet company members scored a solid hit with the Big Spring Civic Concert audience on Thursday. An appreciation for the beautiful music for any local lack of understanding in the art of ballet or interpretative dance.

Ted Hull is the newest service club president. Last week he took over the top spot in the Evening Lions Club when Owen Gee, for whom he has been substituting, was transferred by Cabo to France.

The YMCA kicks off its membership enlistment Monday with an objective of completing it before the week is out. This is the annual enlistment which contributes to program and operation and is not to be confused with the capital funds (building) effort last spring.

The Country Club said "no" to a proposal for roadway on a proposed Route from U. S. 87 near the Jet westward as a new outlet to the Old San Angelo Highway. Perhaps one reason is that the club is considering offers to sell or trade, and doesn't want to chop anything off its package.

are able to serve 50 years on a single job," she said proudly, commenting on the half century her husband has been Stanton's banker.

Today the First National Bank has $5,683,933.76 deposits, loans of $963,347.19. Its capital stock is now $100,000 and its assets are $6,154,424.50.

The bank has been in three locations since Tom has been with it.

He remembers that when the bank was first organized in 1906, it occupied an old frame building on Front Street while a new building at St. Peter and St. Anna was being completed.

"I helped build that building," Tom says. "The bank bought an old frame from my uncle to pull the elevator which hauled material to the second floor. I got a job riding that horse. I was paid $10 a day—which was darned good money," he proudly reports.

He was 11 years old at the time he had this responsible position.

The present home of the bank was built and occupied in 1951. Jim Tom and his brother, Edmund, purchased the old Frank King Ranch south of Stanton in 1939. The brothers operate the ranch now with Edmund in charge of the project.

Tom is an optimist. He has seen many changes in the half century he has been a banker in Stanton. Right now, the future looks good to him.

He sees prosperity ahead for ranching and agriculture in his county. He points to the increased oil development that looms for the county. Irrigation has become an important farming element in Martin County and contributes materially to the sound economy of the area.

"Things look pretty bright," he said. "I think there are good days ahead for all of us."

Cuban Officer Faces Death, Tells His Family Goodbye

HAVANA (AP)—Maj. Jesus Sosa Blanco, awaiting an order to step before a firing squad, said a dramatic goodbye to his wife and three daughters in La Cabasa Fortress Saturday.

The balding 51-year-old former commander at Holguin in Oriente province awaited the outcome of his appeal to a five-man superior court from the death sentence imposed Friday by a military tribunal in Havana's sports stadium.

But he told newsmen: "I have no hope. I have confessed and I feel calm."

He had made his Roman Catholic confession to the fortress chaplain.

"If military regulations permit, I want to direct the firing squad and order them to fire," he said.

Others among the 253 persons executed by the revolutionary regime on war crimes charges have had the privilege of giving the order to fire. It seemed likely his request would be granted.

Dressed in blue denim jacket and trousers, Sosa Blanco stretched his arms through iron bars and tearfully clasped his wife, kissing her repeatedly.

"I am innocent of all charges of assassination, robbery and burning of homes of which I am accused," he told her.

After embracing twin daughters Magdalena and Missis, 12, and Amelia, 15, Sosa Blanco denounced former President Fulgencio Batista, who fled to the Dominican Republic.

"Batista!" Sosa Blanco exclaimed. "Batista is the traitor pig and coward and the one guilty of all."

Tears slipped down his cheeks. Sosa Blanco forced a wan smile as he waved farewell to his wife and children.

"Don't cry, don't cry," he called as they were led away.

Fire Destroys Tire Concern
Firemen fought a tire shop fire on W. 3rd Friday night for over 3 1/2 hours only to see the structure completely destroyed.

Fire of an undetermined cause swept through the Texas Tire & Wheel building at 510 W. 3rd about 10:45 p.m. Friday, and firemen didn't leave the scene of the blaze until 1:30 a.m. Saturday.

The building was a total loss, and firemen reported about one-third of the tires in and around the building were either destroyed or heavily damaged by fire.

No estimate has been placed on the loss.

R. G. Ledbetter Succumbs In Hospital Here

LAMESA—Funeral arrangements had not been completed Saturday night for Robert G. Ledbetter, 67, who died in the VA Hospital at Big Spring Friday. Mr. Ledbetter had been a Lynn County resident since 1916.

The time and date have not been set, but the services will be held in the First Baptist Church at O'Donnell with Rev. Ernest Stewart, pastor, officiating.

Mr. Ledbetter is survived by his wife; three sons, R. G. Ledbetter Jr. of Fort Stockton, Leroy Ledbetter of Arabia, and Thomas Ledbetter of O'Donnell; three sisters, Mrs. Ethel Travis of Ford City, Myrtle Ledbetter and Ima Ledbetter of O'Donnell; and two brothers, Roy Ledbetter of O'Donnell and W. A. Ledbetter of Tahoka.

Jury Commission To Meet Monday

Jury commissioners for the Howard County Court are to be convened at 9 a.m. Monday by Judge Ed Carpenter to draw the names of 180 citizens for jury duty in the county court.

Jury commissioners are Arthur Stallings, Joe Hayden and Woner Robinson.

First panel of the veniremen selected will be called to report on Feb. 9 at 10 a.m. Judge Carpenter said. He plans to open a week's trial of criminal cases.

He and W. A. Burns, county attorney, are planning a series of jury trial weeks throughout the current court term in an effort to dispose of a mass of long pending criminal cases on the county court criminal docket.

Y Leaders Stage ABC Club Program

YMCA officials took charge of the program at the American Business Club's luncheon at the Settles Hotel Friday.

Bobby Hardy, general secretary, delivered a brief address to the group on behalf of YMCA week after mechanical difficulties prevented showing of a film devoted to Y activities.

Hardy cited the need for larger facilities, reminding those present that there had been a 29 per cent increase in youth participation within a year's time. Everett Taylor was a guest.

Freed In Bombing, Lawyer Is Jailed

ATLANTA (AP)—George Michael Bright is free of charges of bombing the Jewish temple, but his lawyer is in jail.

While the balding, 35-year-old industrial engineer enjoyed his first day of freedom in more than three months, relatives and friends of Attorney Jacob A. Garland busied themselves Saturday with efforts to free him.

The 56-year-old, gray-haired lawyer drew a 40-day sentence for contempt of court immediately after a jury acquitted his client just before Friday midnight.

Judge Jephtha C. Tankley held his conduct had been contemptuous repeatedly during the 11-day trial and ordered him locked up for two consecutive 20-day terms.

He refused to allow an appeal which would have permitted the attorney to go free pending a ruling by a higher court.

The four are Wallace H. Allen, Kenneth Chester Griffin and brothers Robert and Richard Bowling. They are free on bond but Bright, who had a mistrial in December, was held in jail until his acquittal.

Jury foreman Henry D. Furniss disclosed that the decision for Bright's acquittal had been unanimous on the first vote. He said the jurors felt the state simply had not presented sufficient evidence for a conviction.

Law Tightened On Juvenile Violators Of Traffic Laws

Serious traffic violators who are juveniles can expect to receive the same treatment—jail—as adults as far as traffic is concerned, C. L. Rogers announced this weekend.

Rogers' announcement came as a result of a recent statement by Atty. Gen. Will Wilson. In effect, Wilson's statement said that minors charged with a serious traffic violation can be put in jail if unable to make bond or pay fines.

The opinion was asked by Security County Atty. George Killiam who called attention to a law passed by the 1949 Legislature.

The law provided that minors could be punished by fines of up to $100 for driving while intoxicated or for violating any state traffic law.

A minor could not be jailed for failure to pay such a fine but his driver's license could be suspended until the fine is paid.

The attorney general said that the 1949 law created an entirely new offense, not in the jurisdiction of juvenile courts, and "such minor fails to make bond pending trial will be treated as adults and may be confined in jail."

Rogers said Saturday that the new regulation would be enforced here.

Roof Collapse Fatal To Three

HUNTSVILLE, Mont. (AP)—Three persons—a married couple and a 13-year-old boy—were killed Saturday when the roof of a curling rink collapsed. Eight other persons were injured.

Eleven persons were in the building about noon when the roof caved in under the weight of snow and a heavy wind.

Rescuers removed the three bodies and the eight other persons within an hour. Earlier reports had said only two persons were killed.

Authorities identified the dead as Mr. and Mrs. Eric Chudleigh of Dixie, near Toronto, and John Canfield of Woodstock, Ont.

Details regarding the injuries of the others were not immediately available but some were believed in serious condition.

The two-sheet curling rink was erected at the resort, 16 miles southeast of here, about three years ago at a cost of $25,000. The building had a laminated-tye roof.

Curling is a game with a rough resemblance to shuffleboard on ice.

Agricultural Study Is Under Way Here

How Howard County can best fit into the agricultural system in the next decade and a half is under study by a special committee.

Serving on the county Conservation Needs Committee are J. C. Ebersole, work unit leader for the Soil Conservation Service, the county chairman; Dr. Earl Burnett, head of U. S. Experiment Station; Fred Ross, head of the Howard County Farm Home Administration office; Gabe Hamack, administrative officer for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation unit; Bill Pratt, Texas State Game and Fish Commission; Horace Mitchell and Keith Brock, SCS soil scientists.

Work under taken concerns developing an inventory of conservation needs, and to anticipate acreage of soil types and land use of it in the county through 1975.

A projection of statistics shows that the 1935-54 rate of increase would mean an additional five million (or nine per cent) to the 54 million acres of cropland in Texas and Oklahoma by 1975. Yet, the population is due to jump from 8,407,000 to 12,000,000 by that time, a gain of 50 per cent. A 60 per cent increase in farm products in Texas is forecast for the period.

Sharp competition for water from domestic and industrial demand will mean the addition of only some 850,000 acres of irrigated farm land, just about enough to offset retirement from present irrigation. Hence, most of the increased productivity may have to come from dryland farming.

Major shifts in land use in the direction of livestock, dairying, forage production and vegetation is indicated. One of the prime considerations is the type of conservation measures which may fit into this pattern.

The committee's work is based upon a scientifically developed random sampling of soils and their present use in the county. Seventy-six 160-acre blocks were selected mechanically on Howard County aerial maps sent to Ames, Iowa. Two per cent of the county acreage singled out was surveyed by Mitchell and Brock. They noted the soil series, the slopes, present land use, areas of urban development, open and brush rangeland, etc. These findings were expanded by mathematical formula to determine the county acreage and present land use.

Studies are continuing to project acreages and their required use through 1975 for the county. Once this is done, suggested conservation treatments will be listed.

Additional Speakers Chosen For Agri-Business Program

Three more speakers have been chosen for the second annual Agri-Business Day program to be presented here Feb. 24 and in Colorado City Feb. 25.

They are C. E. Sewell of Abilene, district manager for the Ralston Purina Co., Roy B. Davis of Lubbock, general manager of the Plains Cooperative Oil Mill, and C. G. Scruggs, associate editor of the Progressive Farmer Magazine.

Named earlier for one of the leading roles in the program was Dr. T. R. Timm, chairman of the Department of Agricultural Economics at Texas A&M College.

Davis is a native of Dawson County. He grew up on a farm east of Lamesa, graduated from Lubbock High School and Texas A&M, majoring in agriculture. He served as county agent in Gaines, Terry and Hale counties, later taking over management of the Plains Cooperative Creamery at Plainview, before accepting his present position. He also has served as vice president of the Houston Bank for Cooperatives.

He is a past director of Texas A&M College and currently is director of the Texas District of the Farm Credit Administration. He also has served on numerous industrial committees and on the Department of Agriculture research and marketing advisory committee for cotton and cottonseed.

Sewell was born in Taylor County and graduated from Texas A&M in 1949, also with a degree in agriculture. He worked as county agent in Bexar County before becoming production manager for the Rio Vista Dairy Farms of San Antonio.

He joined the Ralston Purina Co. at San Antonio in 1953, and was assigned as district manager at Abilene in 1956.

Scruggs, of Dallas, was born and raised on a farm in Central Texas. As a high school youth, he was elected president of the Texas Assn. of Future Farmers of America in 1941. He also received the FFA degree of American Farmer, highest honor of the youth organization.

After service as a combat infantry officer in Europe during World War II, Scruggs enrolled in Texas A&M and received his degree in agricultural economics. He was employed by the Progressive Farmer in 1947.

He is past president of the Texas Commercial Agriculturalists Council and the Dallas Agricultural Club, and at present is president of the Texas Rural Safety Council and secretary of the Texas Animal Health Council. He also is vice chairman of the National Brucellosis Committee and a member of the board for the National Conference on Farm Safety.

Along with his other activities, Scruggs operates ranches in Mills and Bosque counties, raising goats and cattle.

Dr. Timm is in charge of all resident instruction, research and economics and rural sociology at Texas A&M. A native of Hallettsville, he graduated from high school there in 1930. He received his degree in marketing and finance from A&M in 1934 and secured a master's degree in agricultural economics at the same school in 1936.

He later attended Iowa State College and received a master's degree in public administration from Harvard University in 1947. He received his doctorate from Harvard, in the same field, in 1949.

Dr. Timm taught at Texas A&M

Modern Living In Turner Home

HOLDOVER FROM HOUSE PLANNING, probably, is the pastime of studying magazines on home decorating, in which Mrs. C. D. Turner was indulging when the Herald photographer snapped her picture in the living room at the new home at 1710 Yale. An Oriental motif is carried in the decorations of this combination living and dining room, with its one wall of pale gold and the opposite wall taken up with the immense window, attractively draped in nubby fabric of off-white. Carpet and additional walls of off-white add to the air of spaciousness in the home, modern in line and furnishings.

ADMIRING GLANCES are cast by young Jay Turner at the indirect lighting in the new home of the family at 1710 Yale. The entire home is illuminated with a soft glow from hidden fixtures which extend along walls near the ceilings. Mrs.

Turner and Jay are seated on the large Hollywood bed in the master bedroom. Muted shades were used throughout the home, with bright accents of color placed at various spots to add to the beauty and interest of the interior.

PLANNED ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY is the comfortable white and mahogany room at the C. D. Turner home, 1710 Yale, where all members of the family gather for fun, work or play. The raised hearth of the fireplace, which joins a large planter, makes a good resting place for Gary, 10 years old, as he talks to his five-year-old sister, Cheryl. Out of the picture is a most convenient arrangement of shelves, table and chair—just right for study, working on hobbies or perhaps menus and household accounts. The circular light fixture is particularly effective when used alone to spotlight the fireplace.

A BOON FOR THE HOST-ESS is the kitchen (above) which opens into the wide expanse of the family room, because she need not miss the fun shared by guests while performing her tasks. High stools make breakfast serving a breeze, while at the right of the pass-through is a table where informal meals may be served. White vinyl tile and white tops on cabinets and table make a delightful contrast with the rich tones of the mahogany paneled walls in the kitchen and in the adjacent space. Color accents of coral and white are the two bottles at right.

SO EFFECTIVE was a family room set-up of shelves and table that it was repeated in the brown and beige bedroom arranged for Gary Turner, pictured left. Here he has assembled some of his books, his always fascinating airplane and ship models along with other treasured articles. Just the right height for comfortable study, the table top is covered with white formica for easy care. To supplement the diffused lighting, there is a lamp for use in study and hobby activity.

Artist And Canvas

Robert Dean Hobbs, art instructor at West Texas State College, stands with one of his paintings, Still Life, at the HCJC library. His one-man show, comprising 25 watercolors, oils and mosaics, opens today for a three-week period. The gifted artist, who was reared in Big Spring, holds the BS degree from WTSC and the MA degree from Colorado State College. His stunning canvases proclaim an arresting style, with interest in color, form and texture.

Robert Hobbs' Paintings Comprise One-Man Show Opening Today

By HELEN HURT
It is only fitting that Robert Dean Hobbs' first art show in Big Spring, the town where he was reared, should be installed at HCJC library. For it was at new-born HCJC that the young West Texas teacher-artist amassed a fourth of his college credits.

The exciting collection of 25 Hobbs paintings will be unveiled to the public at 2 o'clock this afternoon, under the sponsorship of the college's art department. Hobbs, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Hobbs, 310 West 7th, will be on hand to visit with those who call until 4 p.m. For the remainder of the exhibit's tenure, which will be through Feb. 15, the paintings may be viewed during the regular library hours, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., and 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. daily.

Virtually half oils and half watercolors, the show also includes two unusual and impressive mosaics: Fish II is executed in enameled copper, whereas The King is created with tiles. Characterized by a fresh style, a feeling for color, an occasional mixing of mediums, and a dynamic technique, the works embrace both realism and abstraction. Landscapes are heavily represented, scenes recaptured from sketches done in Hobbs' travels. There is also a sprinkling of still lifes.

Garden City People Report Guests, Trips

GARDEN CITY—Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Scott of Big Spring were recent guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tucker Duncan.

In San Antonio recently were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Stephens and Mrs. Clifford Stephens. They were guests of Clifford Stephens who is at Randolph Field.

Visitors in the town were Mr. and Mrs. Phillips Cunningham and Mrs. Jake Grigsby of Monahans.

Perhaps the most commented-on entry is the abstract oil, Religious Concepts, which depicts the majestic arches of a cathedral's stained glass window; the artist achieved its classical and antique effect by palette knife slashes through heavy oil on white-painted masonry.

Now art instructor at West Texas State College, Hobbs is part of the school where he first began serious painting and from which he received the BS degree in art in 1951. He had also studied at Texas Tech for a year. Diploma in hand, he was a draftsman for Standard Oil for a couple of years before yielding to a desire to teach. For four years he taught art and crafts at Cowden Junior High in Midland. Summer study at Colorado State College brought him the Master of Arts degree.

In his bachelor apartment at Canyon, he devotes time to reading, painting and fitting mosaic tiles into a table top for his place. Occasional weekends find him speeding homeward in his Corvette.

Hobbs' artistic talents have hitherto been publicly revealed in one-man shows at Midland, Amarillo, Canyon, and in Mexico.

The collection now hanging in the library is composed of these oils: Tampico I, Trinidad, Colorado, Taxco Square, Three Houses And A Tree, Snow Scene, Shacks, Tampico II, Still Life, Palo Duro Canyon, Cliffs And Tree, Pirate's Alley, City At Night (casein), Fireworks, and Religious Concepts.

Watercolors are Colorado Mountains, Acapulco Bay, Mexico City Scene, Palo Duro Canyon II, Fish I, Houston, Port Isabel, Bottles, Vases.

C. D. Turners Discover Painless Home-Building

By ANNE LEFEVER

Recipe for building a new home with no trouble, no headaches and no worry over the color scheme, floor plan or the number of closets to be worked in: let your brother-in-law take charge.

That's the formula followed by Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Turner, who have recently moved into their attractive new home at 1710 Yale. Planned especially for the family, with three children, the home is the product of planning by Darryle Hohertz, brother-in-law of the Turners.

An air of spaciousness pervades the entire home, with the family room centrally located and an integral part of the kitchen and dining nook.

White vinyl tile covers the floor of this part of the home and is much easier to keep clean than you'd think, Mrs. Turner remarks.

Rudy Dolan Gets USAF Discharge

FORSAN — Rudy Dolan, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Dolan who reside on Sterling City Route, Big Spring, and brother of Mrs. Frank Thieme of Forsan, is home after receiving his discharge from the Air Force. He had just returned from Iceland where he had been stationed since last November.

Visiting Mrs. Edna McGee are two granddaughters, Rosetta and Dianna McAfee from Nebraska. They are attending grade school here. Mrs. McGee is a member of the high school faculty.

In San Angelo Tuesday night were Mrs. Frank Shannon and Mrs. John Kubecka, who accompanied Mrs. Dorothy Ragan and Mrs. Dorothy Ragan and Mrs. W. O. Averett of Big Spring. The group attended a Christian Science lecture.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Park were in San Angelo Tuesday to visit her mother, Mrs. J. J. Watkins.

W. B. Dunn and Wilma of Odessa were in Forsan recently on business.

Tommy Gilmore has been in Abilene several days this week.

It contrasts beautifully with the mahogany cabinets, walls and the built-in shelves and desk — placed just right for supervised study while a meal is prepared. Accents of aqua coral, gold and brown appear in the draperies which open to disclose the back yard on two levels. Plans are already made to develop the garden on the sides of the patio, with plenty of space for the play area. Sliding glass doors on each side of the fireplace, with its stone divider, provide an uninterrupted view of the landscape.

In the living room, carpeted in off-white, a dining area is set against a pale gold wall, while the adjacent walls complement the carpeting. A large picture in an oriental mood is balanced with a panel in the same tempo, and another large window gives a feeling of space and light.

Like all homemakers who move into a new home, Mrs. Turner is determined — at this time — to reserve one of the three closets in the hall so that it will be empty when needed. Louvers on the doors add to the beauty of the passage-way.

An individual touch is the louvered door in each of the baths which sets off the shower and tub and allows ventilation to prevent clouding of mirrors. Baths continue the color scheme of the bedroom which they accommodate.

Brown tones are emphasized in the bedroom of 10-year-old Gary, who will share the room later with Jay, who is now only four months old. A study nook similar to the one in the family room holds the many treasures of boyhood and provides space for hobby working, study and writing.

It's like walking into a pink cloud to enter the room of Cheryl, 5, the "young lady" of the family. Pink spreads cover the twin beds, and figures in the draperies stress pink tones with other harmonizing shades.

A large window in the east wall of the master bedroom welcomes the morning sun and will, with the draperies closed, provide a comfortable background for a living room set-up of chairs and radio or television. Here, an oversize bed is spread with a coverlet in champagne hue, which blends in perfectly with the neutral tone of the carpet.

Blue tones dominate in the bedroom and bath which was designated as "Mary's room" when the home was planned. Mary is a teen-aged Latin-American girl who assisted with the children when the Turners lived in Coahoma, and who is still considered a "member of the family," Mrs. Turner said.

Book Of Memories

Significant moments in their courtship were somewhat documented by Lt. and Mrs. Charles J. Winquist, who kept mementoes of the events they shared and compiled them into a scrapbook. Programs, ticket stubs, invitations, telegrams and photographs will lose none of their importance through the years.

Lt. Winquist And His Bride Settle Into Housekeeping Here

Just two more days and 2nd Lt. and Mrs. Charles J. Winquist, 104 West 8th, will have been married one month. They repeated their "I Do's" Dec. 27 at a Methodist Church in Grand Rapids, Mich., and started south to Big Spring. The journey was interrupted long enough for the newlyweds to enjoy the Cotton Bowl Classic in Dallas on New Year's Day. Naturally, the USAF Academy team had a couple of staunch rooters.

It was a wedding which had originally brought the pair together. The former Marilyn VanZee attended a friend as maid of honor, and Lt. Winquist was an usher. One meeting led to another until last month when the officer caused the Michigan Bell Telephone system to lose one of their service representatives.

Having come here last fall as a student pilot at Webb AFB, Lt. Winquist had already become a member of the First Methodist choir; his wife has joined the singers too. Both are fond of music and collect records, largely of the classical and semi-classical variety.

Mrs. Winquist holds the BA degree in speech from Albion College; she also has a teacher's certificate. An accomplished equestrienne, she has shown horses. One of them was shipped to her from Odessa, and she is looking forward to meeting the former owner on this, her first time in Texas.

Wheeling, Ill., is the hometown of Lt. Winquist. His BA degree in economics was granted by Michigan State College. So far, his 14 months in the USAF have included primary training at Malden, Mo., and a period at Lackland AFB. He joins his wife in a liking for travel, colored slides and outdoor sports, including ice skating.

Texas can take a bow for his vivacious bride's comment: "You people certainly live up to your reputation for friendliness."

NEW TOUCH

Lined Sweater Adds Variety To Classic

Hollywood designers love to dress the leading ladies in some version of the shirt-waist because it is truly classic, timeless, and becoming to all.

Helen Rose, a fashion authority at M.G.M. did this for one of her stars, added a sweater lined to match the tuck-in scarf.

Simply cut, but with a definite distinction, the dress has buttoned tabs across the low V of the bodice and on the pressed inverted pleat of the skirt front. The skirt sides are gathered but the back is made with a two gore flare.

The slight bloused effect of the top is achieved with three tiny box pleats at the sides. These fine details that give it high fashion quality are all simple to manage since the custom cut pattern is accurately perforated for easy marking and matching.

Select shantung, plain crepes, cottons, wool crepe, linen or novelty wool. If your dress fabric is fancy, choose a solid color for the scarf.

From this size chart select the one size best for you:

Size 12 requires 3 1/2 yards of 54-inch material for dress and 1 1/2 yards of 36 or 39-inch material for contrast. To order Pattern No. 1282, state size, send $1, plus 5 cents postage.

For Pattern Book No. 15, send $1.

All-Cotton Fashion Set Against Unique Staging

Cotton - around - the - clock will be the theme of the program cover which will be used as part of the free premiere of a show to be given Tuesday in Lubbock Municipal Auditorium.

Sponsored by the Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce and individuals in the cotton industry, the all-cotton fashion show will be presented by home economics majors from Texas Tech and is open to the public.

An elaborate setting, planned and staged by the students of applied arts in the college, was designed in such a way that it can be folded and packed for transportation to the various fashion centers of the United States where the revue is to be presented.

Spotlights will point up a giant replica of a fashion magazine in the center of the stage, and from the pages will step a model attired in colorful spring apparel.

To her right on the opposite page of the magazine will be a sketch of the pattern for the ensemble being modeled.

Panel of vivid and subtly-colored fabrics will surround the fashion magazine, and as the model appears in a garment, one spotlight will feature the panel of fabric from which the garment was made. The panels will be different depths and heights, and will envelop the model and magazine in color.

The show will include two performances - one at 2 p.m. for high school and college students and teachers, another at 8 p.m. for the general public.

MRS. MORRIS CECIL RHODES

Bridegroom's Father Reads Wedding Vows

In a double ring ceremony, read by the father of the bridegroom, Sandra Neas became the bride of Morris Cecil Rhodes in the First Christian Church in Abilene, Friday evening.

The Rev. Cecil Rhodes, pastor of the local Westside Baptist Church, read the ritual for his son and his bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Neas of Abilene.

The couple knelt on a white prayer bench which was part of the background for the wedding party. Candelabra held white tapers to form an archway, and baskets of white mums and stock completed the altar.

Johnnie Lee Cole, organist, accompanied Carolyn Duckett as she sang "O Promise Me, Entreat Me Not To Leave Thee and The Lord's Prayer."

Gowned in French lace and tulle, the bride was given in marriage by her father. Lace banded the full skirt of tulle, which swept in to a chapel train. The bodice featured a transparent yoke with high neckline marked by appliques of lace; sleeves tapered to points over the hands. Caught to a tiara of pearls was a veil of illusion.

On a white Bible, the bride carried a cascade of red roses.

Flora Simons of Abilene was maid of honor; attending as bridesmaids were Grace Kester of Abilene, Leila Griggs of Baird, and Margaret Horton of Sweetwater.

All attendants were identically attired in red satin princess style frocks, with scooped necklines and three-quarter sleeves. They carried bouquets of white roses.

Joe Rhodes of Lubbock was his brother's best man. Ushers and groomsmen were Jerry and Gerald Sanderson, both of Big Spring; and Donald Baber.

Tapers were lighted by Dwight Neas, brother of the bride, and Anthony Rhodes, brother of the bridegroom.

At the reception, held in the fellowship hall of the church, the couple was assisted in greeting guests by their parents and the members of the wedding party.

Presiding at the register was Neta Milner of Abilene; house party members were Kay Weldon of Carlsbad, N. M.; Janet Burge of

Pre-Nuptial Shower Fetes Miss Averett

FORSAN — As a pre-nuptial compliment to Sue Averett, bride-elect of Derrell Sanders, several friends arranged a miscellaneous shower for her Saturday night in the music room at Forsan School.

Parents of the couple, who will exchange vows Monday evening at Baptist Temple, are Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Averett, 1611 East Sixth, and Mr. and Mrs. Garland Sanders, 1701 Johnson.

Three of the hostesses, Mrs. John Kubecka, Mrs. M. M. Fairchild, and Mrs. O. W. Fletcher, greeted the guests and introduced them to the honoree, to Mrs. Averett and Mrs. Sanders. Others of the entertaining group, Mrs. L. T. Shoults and Mrs. T. R. Camp, assisted in showing the gifts.

Mrs. E. M. Bailey, Mrs. Roy Klahr, Mrs. S. C. Cowley, Mrs. Frank Shannon, with Mrs. R. D. Garrett of Coahoma, and Mrs. Dorothy Ragan and Mrs. C. C. Suttles of Big Spring, alternated in various hostess duties.

A cloth of natural lace and drawwork covered the refreshment table, where punch and cake squares iced in pink were served by Linda Camp and Sherrie Fletcher. The centerpiece on a reflector was a church made of sugar cubes and pink icing; a bride and groom walked toward it on a sugar-cube pathway. Plate favors were double hearts edged in white and tied with white ribbon.

Judy Shoults registered the guests in a book made by her mother. Shaped as a heart, the book was covered in white satin and edged in ruffled lace. Mrs. Shoults had also fashioned a corsage for the honoree; its pink flower was encircled with white lace and ribbons, and tied with gold rings and wedding bells.

Refreshments were served to 11 members.

Mrs. Jo Jon, council chairman of the Texas Home Demonstration Association, presided at the HD Council meeting held Tuesday at the county agent's office.

Mrs. W. T. Wells and Mrs. Jim Miller were appointed to represent Stanton Club at the training school in McCarney Friday.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Hulen Henderson of Lamesa and Mr. and Mrs. Allen Adams of Patricia.

Mrs. Lavoy Miller was organist for the ceremony and accompanied the soloist, Jean Stone.

Tapers were lighted by sisters of the bride, Patsy and Eva Henderson, dressed in pale pink tulle with their full skirts caught with tiny roses.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a dress of brocade white satin featuring a fitted jacket and long tapered sleeves. From a white satin tiara floated a shoulder length veil of illusion. She carried a cascade arrangement of white roses atop a white Bible.

Mrs. Kenneth Carmichael, sister of the bride from Ackerly, was the maid of honor. She wore a dress of American Beauty red chiffon over tulle with a cascade of white carnations.

Following the exchange of vows, a reception was held in the parlor of the church. The bride's table was laid with a white linen cut-work cloth and featured pink carnations.

When the couple left on a wedding trip, the bride wore an aqua blue knit suit with black alligator accessories.

Mrs. Adams attended Lamesa High School; her husband went to Klondike High School. They will make their home in the Patricia community where he will engage in farming.

Members of the Piano Teachers Forum will present a group of their students in recital this afternoon in the auditorium at Howard County Junior College.

The public is invited to attend the program, which will begin at 2:30 p.m.

Students who will appear in the recital include Linda Lu Liles, Peggy Rihard, Janie Chavez, Kaye Yates, Elaine Langley, Henri Ann Perry, Linda Kay Kirby, Sheryl Wayne Gambill, Candis Bacus, Lynn Boyd, Lois Tarbox.

Also, Anna Beth McNeil, Jacqueline Cook, Brenda Lou Hooser, Virginia Morris, Tommie Diltz, Bob Settles, Madeline Prager, Glenda Webb, Kay McGibbon, Jane Cowper, Avenell Greenwood and Mrs. Telford Durham.

Attending the wedding were guests from Ardmore, Okla.; El Paso, Wichita Falls, Lubbock, Wimbrow; Albuquerque, N. M. and Minnesota.

ett and Mrs. Sanders. Others of the entertaining group, Mrs. L. T. Shoults and Mrs. T. R. Camp, assisted in showing the gifts.

Mrs. E. M. Bailey, Mrs. Roy Klahr, Mrs. S. C. Cowley, Mrs. Frank Shannon, with Mrs. R. D. Garrett of Coahoma, and Mrs. Dorothy Ragan and Mrs. C. C. Suttles of Big Spring, alternated in various hostess duties.

A cloth of natural lace and drawwork covered the refreshment table, where punch and cake squares iced in pink were served by Linda Camp and Sherrie Fletcher. The centerpiece on a reflector was a church made of sugar cubes and pink icing; a bride and groom walked toward it on a sugar-cube pathway. Plate favors were double hearts edged in white and tied with white ribbon.

Judy Shoults registered the guests in a book made by her mother. Shaped as a heart, the book was covered in white satin and edged in ruffled lace. Mrs. Shoults had also fashioned a corsage for the honoree; its pink flower was encircled with white lace and ribbons, and tied with gold rings and wedding bells.

Refreshments were served to 11 members.

Mrs. Jo Jon, council chairman of the Texas Home Demonstration Association, presided at the HD Council meeting held Tuesday at the county agent's office.

Mrs. W. T. Wells and Mrs. Jim Miller were appointed to represent Stanton Club at the training school in McCarney Friday.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Hulen Henderson of Lamesa and Mr. and Mrs. Allen Adams of Patricia.

Mrs. Lavoy Miller was organist for the ceremony and accompanied the soloist, Jean Stone.

Tapers were lighted by sisters of the bride, Patsy and Eva Henderson, dressed in pale pink tulle with their full skirts caught with tiny roses.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a dress of brocade white satin featuring a fitted jacket and long tapered sleeves. From a white satin tiara floated a shoulder length veil of illusion. She carried a cascade arrangement of white roses atop a white Bible.

Mrs. Kenneth Carmichael, sister of the bride from Ackerly, was the maid of honor. She wore a dress of American Beauty red chiffon over tulle with a cascade of white carnations.

Following the exchange of vows, a reception was held in the parlor of the church. The bride's table was laid with a white linen cut-work cloth and featured pink carnations.

When the couple left on a wedding trip, the bride wore an aqua blue knit suit with black alligator accessories.

Mrs. Adams attended Lamesa High School; her husband went to Klondike High School. They will make their home in the Patricia community where he will engage in farming.

'ROUND TOWN

With Lucille Pickle

Most of the people who live in the south or southwest find the winter in these states more comfortable than up north, but to those who were reared 'way up there', there's nothing like spending a real rousing winter in their own home town.

MRS. Y. C. GRAY and her seven-year-old son, Pat, plan to leave by plane Wednesday for Lansford, Penn., where they will spend the remainder of the winter. Mrs. Gray is a native of Lansford, which is not very far from Philadelphia and right at the edge of the Poconos. The two will stay in the home of Mrs. Gray's sister, Mrs. P. J. Mitchell.

HELEN GRAY, a sophomore student at Texas Tech, arrived here Saturday for a between-semester visit with her mother and brother.

Pat will finish the school year at Lansford and is looking forward to riding on real snow in a sleigh, ice skating and, possibly, learning to ski. Anyway, right now, Pat has put in orders for his aunt to get the sleigh out and she says she's been polishing up the runners.

MR. AND MRS. E. G. BRITTON JR. have as guests this week-end her mother, Mrs. Viola Tucker, and Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Bradley, all of Colorado City.

MRS. DOROTHY WARD, who has been visiting her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Carey, plans to leave Monday for her home in Oklahoma City.

WALTER MOORE, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Moore, is here for a week from his studies at Texas A&M.

JOHNNY ROY PHILLIPS arrived here Thursday from A&M. He plans to enter HCJC or Texas between semesters.

JERRY McMAHON and DENNIS JONES are here from Tech between semesters.

After the wonderful performance of the Chicago Opera Ballet, Big Spring people will surely get on the ball and buy their season tickets early for future programs planned by the Concert Association.

So little is said about costuming for such productions but isn't it amazing how the designers of costumes for ballet can get just the right color, period of style and character into the small amount of covering. The Camille costumes were beautiful and gay for the happier scenes and appropriately faded into softer tones as the final curtain neared.

We've had some good entertainment this concert season. We'll look forward to more.

ESA Sorority, Guests See Film At MOD Benefit

A film on the work of the National Foundation was shown for members of the Epsilon Sigma Sorority and their guests Thursday evening at the tea which the group sponsored for the March of Dimes.

Gathering in the small auditorium at Howard County Junior College, the group viewed the film and heard a humorous reading given by Mrs. Bob James.

Tea was served from a table emphasizing the colors of the sorority, blue and gold.

Hostesses were Bo Bowen, Mrs. John Nobles and Mrs. B. E. Reagan.

Certificate Won

Brenda Barr is one of eight Christian College students who have been awarded a three-year Senior American Red Cross Life-saving certificate. The award was made after she completed a semester course and passed tests in Lifesaving. Now a junior (first-year student) at the junior college for women, Miss Barr is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Barr, 1707 Harvard.

A Devotional For Today

Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God. (Matthew 5:9.)

PRAYER: Heavenly Father, how humble we are because of our ineffectiveness as Thy instruments in this world. O Lord, help everyone to realize that there can be no peace unless we become reconciled to Thee; through Jesus Christ, our Redeemer. Amen.

Time To Put Up Or Shut Up

The time has come to put up or shut up. If this is harsh doctrine, it is nevertheless true. Those who do not take the trouble this week to qualify as voters do not deserve a voice in government. They do not deserve to speak up in democracy if they do not regard this right as important enough to protect at the polls.

Not many — if any — people are prevented from qualifying as a voter by a poll tax charge. And were this nominal charge ($1.75) sufficient to present a problem, the precious right that it represents would justify doing without even food or raiment to protect.

In fact and in truth, about the only thing that keeps people from obtaining their poll taxes or their exemption certificates is apathy or civic laziness.

If you're too busy to secure your basic right to vote on any of the issues which might come up at any time during the year, then you're too busy. First thing you know, someone who has less to do will be telling you what to do.

So if you won't take the time this week to get your poll tax receipt or exemption certificate, please don't bother us with your opinions on public affairs this year. We just figure that if you're not interested enough to be able to vote, you're not really interested at all. That's why we say the time has come to put up or shut up.

A Most Important Thing

The law enforcement committee named by the Chamber of Commerce has an opportunity to make an unique contribution to the welfare of the community.

Perhaps one reason for the opportunity is not so much the need as the attitude in which the committee was conceived — an attitude of helpfulness. Thus the group launches into its broad inquiry with a constructive approach.

Its function will be no more to learn what is wrong than it will be to suggest means of fortifying existing agencies for meeting the conditions which are creating many of our problems. Certainly officers will welcome such an approach and will receive suggestions in a positive spirit.

To barge into the picture with disruptive intent would more than likely meet with a negative resistance from enforcement agencies, and the net result would be disappointing if not frustrating. But to realize that we are all in this same boat together and that something needs to be done to strengthen our arm in dealing with anti-social acts is to encourage contributions from every side.

Appropriately, the work is being broken down into a preliminary study, which in turn might well lead into other fundamental studies. It is quite probable that the task will be a long and slow one, but so long as the work goes seriously forward, there is no reason to despair because no miracles are worked overnight. This is one of the most important things facing us, and its success to be devoutly desired.

GOP's Fate In 1960 Up To Eisenhower

WASHINGTON—The Republican National Committee's meeting in Des Moines this week focuses attention on two questions—why did the Republicans lose the last election? What do they intend to do about the 1960 election?

As of this writing and assuming no substantial change for the better in the economic situation, the Republicans are doomed to defeat again no matter whether they nominate Nixon or Rockefeller.

The man who holds the key to 1960 is President Eisenhower. If his record in the next 18 months is outstanding and business is booming, the Republican nominee can win—either Nixon or Rockefeller.

At the moment Nixon is a part of the Eisenhower administration and will naturally defend it vigorously if he is nominated. Rockefeller was reported last autumn to have maneuvered away from the Eisenhower administration and actually to have won some Democratic votes that way during his campaign for governor of New York State. Sometime between now and the Republican National Convention in 1960, Rockefeller will have to demonstrate that he is strongly behind the Eisenhower administration and that he is willing to defend it wholeheartedly. Unless he does, he cannot win conservative support for the nomination, and so he has an influential part in the Republican party.

The argument that "Rockefeller can win the election but Nixon can't" is being heard now, just as in 1952 it was said that "like can win but Taft can't." This correspondent thought so, too, before the election returns, came to the conclusion that any Republican nominee, including Senator Taft, could have won, and wrote that comment within a week after the election in 1952.

The Truman administration in power in 1952 was not popular—any Republican nominee for the presidency could have benefited by its shortcomings. Ike's personal popularity did swell the majority, but the verdict of the country was anti-Truman and not pro-Republican.

The 1952 experience may have a significant meaning to the Democrats this time. As of today, any Democrat of prominence could win the presidency because the trend is against the Eisenhower administration due primarily to economic adversity—for the country has not yet pulled out of the recession. By 1960 a better economic situation may favor the Republicans.

As of today, moreover, Adlai Stevenson is the most likely Democratic presidential nominee. He is stronger with the rank and file of the Democratic state organizations than anyone else—and they do the nominating. The argument that "Stevenson can't win, because he has been beaten twice" doesn't mean much in a year when the party of the incumbent administra-

WHAT OTHERS SAY

The current flood of criticism of education falls mostly into well-defined categories: More science and mathematics; back to the Three R's; down with educationists, etc.

One of the more original attacks on the problem lately is Prof. George Williams' new book, "Some of My Best Friends Are Professors: A Critical Commentary on Higher Education" (published by Abelard-Schumann, New York, $3.95).

After 30 years of university teaching, Williams has a reluctantly concluded that a great many of his colleagues are doing a needlessly poor job of teaching and blaming it on the inherent qualities and lack of effort by the students.

He thinks they do an appalling job of recognizing the abilities, eliciting the best work, and inspiring the interest of the great bulk of their students, including some of the very best as well as the not-so-able.

Worse yet, for many professors, the ideal is not to be understanding and enthusiastic, but to be "tough," to "maintain standards," to "dish it out," and let the hapless students "get" it or not, as may be.

Williams is convinced that preaching on "hard work" is largely wasted, and that the spirit of the age now is based upon a sense of delight. Young people will study like beavers if this is touched. They marry young and raise large families because they delight in marriage and children. They pick careers not to "take care of No. 1," much less to achieve fame and fortune, or to serve humanity, but to find something they enjoy doing. He thinks the perceptive teacher can exploit this attitude.

This is a highly personal view of higher education. But at least it is based upon personal experience and observation, not on blind adherence to a particular school.

Landlords Are Like That

J. A. Livingston

It's Unanimous That 1959 Will Be Best Year Yet

WASHINGTON—Now it's unanimous.

The President of the United States, the members of the Council of Economic Advisers, the Secretary of the Treasury, yes, even that seven-headed impersonality known as the Federal Reserve Board are confidently agreed that 1959 will be the best year ever, ever—bullish, bullish, and even boomy.

In working up revenue estimates for the 1960 budget, Secretary of the Treasury Anderson did what a thorough Secretary of the Treasury does. He sounded out the various departments and agencies in government: What do you expect during the next 12 to 18 months? What will happen to production, employment, profits, wages?

Then, after economists and statisticians in the Treasury alchemized these expectations, through their own slide rules, computers and regression equations, Secretary Anderson told newspapermen at his Budget Conference that "recovery from the recession has reached encouraging proportions"; that the "economy is moving forward with strength"; that he expects the gross national product this year to "exceed $470 billion."

In mid-November, at the Department of Agriculture outlook conference, William F. Butler, vice president and economist of the Chase Manhattan Bank of New York, forecast that by the end of 1959 the gross national output would be running at an annual rate of $490,000,000. At the time, Butler was alone and way out in front in optimism. Now he has plenty of company.

The Treasury projection which by the way, is not the highest among the agencies in Washington—assumes that the rise which began last spring has plenty of follow-through and will carry the G.N.P. in the closing months of this year well above a $480,000,000 annual rate. Here's the pattern, as I've worked it out, based on the Anderson assumptions:

Period	G.N.P. Annual Rate
1958—First Qtr.	$426
Second Qtr.	$429
Third Qtr.	$439
Fourth Qtr.	$453
Year	$437
1959—First Qtr.	$463
Second Qtr.	$470
Third Qtr.	$477
Fourth Qtr.	$482
Year	$473

The Treasury took advantage of the business-cycle upswing to get its $77.1 billion estimate of revenue for fiscal 1960. Past Treasury estimates usually assumed no massive change up or down in production, employment, incomes, and profits. The January 1958 budget made scant allowance for the decline then taking place and the revenue estimates proved much too high.

Today the only area of debate among economists in general and government economists in particular is, how great will be the rise? For similar unanimity my mind slips to 1945—right after the war. Predictions of reconversion unemployment exceeded 8,000,000. Economists assumed nearly everything would go wrong in reconversion adjustment. They were wrong.

As I see it, this forecast assumes that every segment of the economy will fit snugly into a proper place, that there will be no unpleasant surprises. Automobiles will have a good year—sales of domestic cars will approach 5,500,000 versus 4,300,000 last year. Housing starts will continue at high levels, if somewhat below the extraordinary and surprising annual rate of 1,430,000 in December. Business men will increase expenditures on plant and equipment, even though excess capacity still exists (see chart). Moreover, it takes for granted that financial markets will behave. Will they?

The Treasury recently put out two new issues—$750,000,000 of 4 per cent 21-year bonds and $2,500,000,000 of 3½ per cent 16-month notes. Within a week the 4's sold down ½ point below the offering price of 99. Government bonds are selling to yield better than 4 per cent. This makes them attractive for savings banks and insurance companies. This will make mortgage money expensive and scarce. It could force delays in plans for new office buildings, and other projects; it might deter state and local governments from financing public works.

Government bonds now yield a percentage point more than blue-chip industrial stocks. Investors and speculators are committed to continuing inflation, and/or increased corporate profits and dividends.

Yet, the rate of industrial expansion slowed in January. My feeling is that 1959 will be a flatter year than most government economists expect; that government revenues won't come up to Secretary Anderson's expectations; and that interest rates—financing—will become a major industrial problem sometime during the year. Fluctuating government bond markets such as we've been having are not conducive to confidence.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

Senator Hubert Humphrey (Dem., Minn.) has returned home from Moscow and other places, bringing President Eisenhower, the State Department and the Atomic Energy Commission "important" and "secret" messages from Soviet Premier Khrushchev. Both military and political "secrets" are supposed to be involved.

This kind of irregular communication reflects no credit on anyone concerned. There is an American embassy in Moscow and a Russian embassy in Washington. There is no need for Khrushchev to view the appearance of a senator in Moscow as a providential opportunity to communicate with the president of the United States.

The president's office could teach both Khrushchev and Humphrey a needed lesson if it declined to take any notice of "important" messages confined to junketing senators. Both men need to be reminded what ambassadors are for.

Around The Rim

They Even Played Hosses, On Tippy-Toe

DEAR RUFÉ

Pardner, we had it agin. Culture, that is. And I mean culture spelled bal-lay.

Yessir, them dancin' folks showed up at the auditorium again, with that tippy-toe business, and you woulda busted yourself a-likin' it, same as most of the folks who was there, and that was a lot. I wish you knew a little more about this bal-lay, so I wouldn't have to be writin' you about it. Just between us, I think a lot of other people don't know too much more, because the play people have to print a little book to tell everybody what's goin' on on the stage. If you can tell that one feller is plottin' to steal another feller's girl just by seein' 'em flit around on the stage in them fancy get-ups, you're ahead of everybody else. It's the book that tells you what they're a-doin'.

Well, this first piece, on tippy-toe, was all about one feller tryin' to fool the other, and save one girl for her boy friend, and keep her from marryin' an old man. This put me to readin' the book so close, I missed some of the dancin'. But the thing was, when they all got through, sure enough the right lovers was together and the old man was left out in the cold, just barely short of the pokey, and by golly, that was the way the book said. It takes pretty fair dancers, you understand, to work this thing out like the book said.

But it was the second act that you would of gone for, Rufe. Believe me, it had hosses. I mean just the same as real hosses. Actually, they was people diked out in dyed union suits and carryin' outfits on their heads pretendin' they was hosses. And good, too, by golly! Them people pranced around, a-pawin' their feet till you got to thinkin' that maybe after all some ponies had got in through the stage door.

There was this white filly who got to flirtin' with a big black hoss, and you can't hardly blame her. They was doin' right well with their romancin' until here come chargin' in what looked like a blue hoss. Course, they ain't many blue hosses, and I guess he was supposed to be a dappled gray. Anyway, this gray put on the daggonest circus-horse act you ever seen, 'till he had this white filly a-chasin' him, and forgettin' all about the black hoss. All of a sudden, this gray hoss lost some of his trappin's, and for all I know, maybe looked like a mule to the white filly. She quit him quick — like fillies will — and went right back to the old black. That's the way the thing ended, but for all we know, there may be some gray colts yet.

Now remember, Rufe, this was all on tippy-toe. It wasn't no hoss show. It was dancin'.

Well, they all come out for the third act, and this time it was about a pore, sick girl. Seems like she had been quite a doll in her day, but the consumption had got her. Oh, they tried to cheer her up with some gay dancin', but wasn't no use. She died, but it took her a danged long time to do it. This was pretty sad, you understand, and you didn't even have to read the book to feel that a-way.

Few things about this bal-lay, Rufe. The union suits were a lot better covered up than before, and the people had on coats and dresses, and fancy stuff till they was downright good lookin'. Another thing is that the men folks legs looked about as good as the ladies', though you wouldn't believe that till you see tippy-toe dancin'. And still another thing is that there ain't no fat bal-lay dancers.

I'll let you know when there is some more of this stuff.

Drawing On The Power Of Faith

Not long ago I had some correspondence with a woman who runs two weekly newspapers. She's a remarkable writer and I've enjoyed reading her letters and editorials from her newspapers.

She has the gift of economy of words. She knows how to select words and how to make each bear maximum weight. She's picturesque in her writing style. She gets to the point and has a sound philosophy as well. Let me quote from her letter:

"I am forty-three, built with broad shoulders and strictly all beef, which means I can and do carry a load. I work long hours without rest and still feel bubbling with energy and hope. I have bright, clear eyes; don't use glasses, although I read or write constantly; have no gray hair and feel young. I'm never sick simply because I cannot afford the time or the money. Both my mother and grandmother were crippled for years with arthritis, but the minute it hit me, I just simply stated to my hands that they would have to type whether it hurt them or not, and asked God to make it possible, and after a while the pain left and so did the stiffness."

"I rarely even get a cold, except if I get discouraged. My last illness was a day off when my sixth son was born one Monday night, but I was able to get the paper out on Thursday. This is just to tell you that I do draw on the power of faith."

Well, you may say that's very interesting but it just doesn't work that way. What do you mean it doesn't work that way? It certainly does. It is my certain opinion that we bring many of our troubles upon ourselves, including physical ones, simply because we are willing to accept them. In our negativism and defeatism we create a mental climate favorable to their development. When you refuse to accept troubles, when you make every effort to overcome their crippling effects, when you draw upon the power of faith, and strongly believe that victory will be yours, then you have a very good chance of overcoming them.

Of course, you cannot think your troubles away without a real, active follow-through. But one thing is sure: Unless you do think positively you will never judge your troubles at all. To gain victory over troubles you must think victory, believe in victory, and then effectively go about achieving it.

What a wonderful affirmation: "I draw on the power of faith!" Have you ever really done that? And even more important, have you built up within yourself a deposit of faith upon which you can draw in time of need?

If you haven't, this is one investment program you ought to start now. It's more important than any insurance, any savings, any property. For, without faith in God, in your fellow man and in yourself, all your other investments are worthless.

I am very interested in dynamic experiences with faith such as those the newspaper woman wrote to me about. For, as Dr. Samuel M. Shoemaker writes in his book "Faith at Work": "We live in an experimental age; and, while we value the work of scholars and theologians, we must also have the continual evidence of faith which the experiments of laymen provide. These often provoke more experimentation on the part of other laymen than do more abstract and theoretical declarations about religious faith by the professionals." If you have had a real experience of the power of faith, write and tell me about it.

And start drawing on the power of your faith and see what wonderful things you too can accomplish.

Government Bids And The Cold War

WASHINGTON—As a result of what has the look of a political deal, the Eisenhower Administration is once again put in the position of seeming to repudiate the often-proclaimed principle of encouraging trade with America's allies in order to build up the economy of the West.

Last November 1, on the eve of the election, Rep. Hugh Scott, Republican of Pennsylvania, announced that a $1,750,000 contract for two hydraulic turbines for a dam in Arkansas would go to a Pennsylvania company, the Baldwin-Lima-Hamilton Corporation, instead of to the English Electric Company of London. In a close race against former Gov. George Leader for a Senate seat Scott was looking for any and all crumbs of comfort for the jobless in the depressed areas in his state.

What made his announcement especially significant was that he said the word had come directly from the White House. President Eisenhower's veto of the depressed areas bill had caused wide resentment and Scott may have hoped this would be a small offset. He announced that the contract represented more than 207,000 man hours of employment for Baldwin-Lima-Hamilton and an additional 80,694 man hours for suppliers of the company.

The original bids for the turbines had been opened on September 4. The English bid was 19 per cent below the lowest domestic bid, that of Baldwin-Lima-Hamilton. Presumably, therefore, it was mandatory to accept the English bid, since the law says that in depressed areas any bid that is more than 12 per cent below the domestic bid gets priority.

But an interdepartmental committee had been set up to determine whether in the interests of "national security" all imports of turbines and generators should be cut off. Three weeks ago Leo A. Hoeg, Director of Defense Mobilization and Civil Defense, said he could make no decision on the turbines for Arkansas until the larger question had been resolved. Then 10 days ago he reversed himself and found that in the interests of "national security" the contract should go to the Philadelphia firm because it was one of a limited number of companies possessing the required machine tools.

During all the intervening weeks after November 1 representatives of the English company had been going through an elaborate bureaucratic rigamarole to try to establish their case. While Hoeg is empowered by the White House to make recommendations in these matters, his office says now that he knew nothing of an earlier decision. A spokesman for Scott, now a Senator, was unable to recall who in the White House authorized the announcement.

British Ambassador Sir Harold Caccia went to the State Department to lodge a strong protest. He said that if the rules were not to be lived up to, then British firms should know it so that they would not go through the costly process of entering bids and trying to push their case over the massive hurdles of Pentagon State-Commerce bureaucracy.

In three previous instances—1953, '54 and '55—the English Electric Company had the same experience. The last time was on low bids for generators for the Chief Joseph Dam on the Columbia River in the State of Washington. The then Secretary of Defense, Charles E. Wilson, ruled in favor of Westinghouse on grounds of employment. The British press burst out in angry protest.

The present instance, the Greer's Ferry Dam in Arkansas, is the first time that "national security" has been given as a reason for rejection. It raises the larger question of how meaningful is the Administration's declared policy so long as depressed areas exist and unemployment stays over 4,000,000. The question is also being asked as to what part Under Secretary of State C. Douglas Dillon, supposedly in charge of foreign economic affairs, may have played.

The trend appears, to some critics, to be more and more in the direction of shutting the door to foreign goods. The quotas imposed on lead and zinc continue in force. To permit the pressure of local interests to determine world-wide economic policy is not, as has been repeatedly pointed out, the way to win the cold war. It may prove to be the way to lose it.

Bible Words for Today

PSALM 73:16, 17. "When I thought to know this, it was too painful for me; until I went into the sanctuary of God; then understood I." (King James)

Line after line through more than half of this psalm its writer wrestles with what is sometimes spoken of as "the oldest problem in religion and philosophy,"—the problem of evil. In his case it takes the specific form of the question, How does it happen that so often good people have more than their share of suffering while wicked men prosper and are at ease?

And he tells us, in effect, that when he tried to figure the answer out, all he got was a headache; that it was when he went into the sanctuary of God — when he went to church, as we would put it now — that he saw the fact of suffering and evil in a perspective which helped him to understand it.

What good does it do a man to go to church? Many goods could be pointed out. But perhaps the best good which comes of regular presence in the house of God is that for one hour each week a man can, so to speak, stand off at a distance from the rush and pressure of life, and see its many and varied components in clearer relation to each other and to the whole of life. Thus to "see life steadily, and see it whole" must be to get a glimpse of life as God can see it.

Program Reaches Every Age Group

Program of the YMCA in Big Spring reaches into just about every age group with just about every type of activity. In stories appearing last week in the Herald, a glimpse was given of the youth and small boy programs. For instance, the 10 senior Hi-Y (boys) and Tri-Hi-Y (girls) clubs have 210 members. The 15 junior clubs have 349, or a grand total of 549 in the junior and senior high club groups.

Social Security Program Outlined

The current social security program was explained to some 100 civilian employees of Webb AFB Thursday by John A. Powers, area representative of the Social Security Administration. Powers gave special emphasis to recent changes in the Social Security Act and explained their scope and effect. He was introduced by Warren A. Farrow, civilian personnel officer at Webb. The lecture is the first of a series planned by the civilian personnel office to provide employees with assistance in their plans for retirement. Future lectures will cover such areas as "Social Usefulness after Retirement," as well as legal and medical subjects concerned with retirement.

YMCA Opens Membership Enlistment Campaign Monday

With prospects of a new home being realized during the year, the YMCA launches its annual membership enlistment Monday morning. Dependent upon the success of the Y's program and some 55 per cent of the operation costs is the campaign which opens with a breakfast session at 7 a.m. in the First Methodist Church Fellowship Hall. More than a score of workers in the sustaining division have been in the field since Jan. 9. No formal reports have been tabulated, but K. H. McGibbon, chief of this division, said that there is a good possibility the $3,150 slice of the division will be met. Dan M. Krause, general chairman of the membership enlistment, said the general division plan of attack will be the same as the one which has won the Big Spring Assn. national attention. Efforts will be compressed into four days with a victory dinner scheduled for 6 p.m. Friday. Division chairmen heading five captains and teams with five workers are Wendal Parks, Joe Pickle, Bill Quimby and Roy Worley. Each division is aiming for the brightest result on the very first report session at 5:15 p.m. Monday in the YMCA basement. Krause pointed out that the membership effort is not to be confused with the capital (building) fund effort. Memberships are just what the name implies," he said, "and they

'Dial-Thought' Is Project Of Lamesa Pastor

LAMESA — Because of the desire of a Lamesa minister to help fill the needs of his community, and the marvels of modern electronics, residents here can get 120 seconds of uplifting thought by picking up a phone and dialing 2400. "Dial-A-Thought", a project started by Rev. Walter G. Horn, minister of First Presbyterian Church, is designed to give listeners a "moment with God". Rev. Horn records the two-minute devotions on a tape each day, providing listeners with a new message each 24 hours. The mechanics of the project are similar to an automatic telephone secretary now in use by some business offices. When the number is dialed, the tape recorder-transmitter is triggered into action automatically. The telephone number, 2400, is connected directly to the tape recording and is ready for service 24 hours a day. Response to the idea has been terrific, according to Rev. Horn. At the present time there is no way of checking the number of calls to "Dial-A-Thought", but Rev. Horn counted 22 calls during a one hour period recently. Acceptance also has come in the forms of all kinds of messages of appreciation from residents. An example was a letter from one woman, reporting that all four members of her family dialed for the message each night before retiring. The Presbyterian Church has also received unsolicited contributions to help keep the program going. Rev. Horn's idea for Dial-A-Thought came from an article he read in a church publication which told of a similar project. A minister recorded daily prayers which could be heard via this method. The local minister's idea was to offer either devotional explanation, religious facts, inspirational poems, Scripture and prayer, or a combination of several or all. Although the program is a novel thing to many people, Rev. Horn does not consider it to be a temporary program. He believes it fills a real need in the community.

CINEMA COMMENT

By BOB SMITH

KATHY-O, starring Patty McCormack. Produced by Sy Gombert. Directed by Jack Sher. Screenplay by Jack Sher and Sy Gombert, from the Saturday Evening Post story, "Memo on Kathy O'Rourke," by Jack Sher. Tuesday and Wednesday at the Ritz.

Here are two of the meanest villains ever to grace the screen doing the kind of about face ex-villain Richard Widmark once did, and they seem to have profited as much.

JOHN MILLS
Dunkirk in perspective

Patty McCormack made her screen debut in "Bad Seed" as an innocent-seeming child who turned out to be a murdering monster, and Dan Duryea's heavy roles have been numerous. But in "Kathy-O," they both have the opportunity to show what they can do with a softer characterization.

They both succeed, which is a happy circumstance for the potential audience.

The story is a variation on the poor little rich girl theme. Patty is a child star in Hollywood who rebels against the riches that are strangling her and goes in search of the love she cannot get from her pushy, greedy aunt. She ends up adopting the family of her press agent, played by Duryea.

As in the art of cooking, too much sugar spoils the concoction. There is a bit too much sugar in the screenplay, but it has wisely been cut with a cupful of acid dialogue.

Result: An entertaining bit of froth that doesn't lean too far toward the maudlin or the tragic.

DUNKIRK, starring John Mills. Produced by Michael Balcon. Directed by Leslie Norman. Screenplay by David Devine and W. F. Lipscomb. Photography by Paul Beeson. Music by Malcolm Arnold. Tuesday and Wednesday at the State.

The tremendous film of Britain's finest hour would have been more properly scheduled for the Ritz. One sometimes wonders about those Dallas distributors.

This story of the day that civilization might have died under the Nazi heel puts Dunkirk into proper perspective. A British import, the film concerns an epic event, but it is not treated as an epic. It is the story of a small squad of men, led by a brave corporal, lost in the confusion of Dunkirk's beaches. John Mills performs admirably in this role.

Also, the plot line uses the old gimmick of following the lives of three men through the confusion of war to a point at which they cross. The other two lines are those of a newspaperman who smells something wrong amongst the blundering brass, and a complaining civilian. Both own small boats, and both are called upon to help in the evacuation.

It is a film that is almost as critical of civilian softness as it is of military blundering. There are many memorable scenes in "Dunkirk," and it will be well worth your while to see it. You may ignore the sneer by Time Magazine's reviewer.

"Some Came Running." This excellent screen dramatization of a rather boring book continues its first run at the Ritz. Frank Sin-tra stars as a crazy mixed-up serviceman returning home to try his hand at civilian life, and Shirley MacLaine deserves an Oscar for the trollop in whom Sinatra finds surcease.

"Mardi Gras." Not much of a story, but who cares if you like Pat Boone. Besides his excellent vocals, the film also sports Gary Crosby and Tommy Sands.

"The Goddess." Kim Stanley gives a sterling performance in Paddy Chayevsky's portrait of a Hollywood sex goddess, whose material success cannot assuage the emptiness in her heart.

"Tonka." Sal Mineo as a young Sioux brave who captures a beautiful and spirited horse, who there- after exchanges owners several times before meeting up with the young warrior again. Whether you like this one will depend on several factors: if you like Walt Disney, are pro-Indian, or love horses, you'll like it.

TV Week Not Best, Some Worth Seeing

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—The coming seven days can't be called the most memorable week of the season on television, but there are several programs well worth the twisting of a dial. For example:

Sunday afternoon Bernstein and the Philharmonic will be seen and heard again in their regular monthly program. The theme of the program, which made such an excellent debut last month, is the use of jazz by modern composers of serious music both in this country and abroad.

"NBC Kaleidoscope" offers a detailed report on the new possibilities in nuclear research being revealed at Brookhaven National Laboratories on Long Island. Also Sunday afternoon, on CBS "Twentieth Century," presents the second part of an excellent examination of juvenile delinquency.

"Maverick" does another twist away from its Western origins Sunday night on ABC with Richard Brinsley Sheridan's 18th century comedy, "The Rivals." Later Dan Dailey makes a rare TV appearance on "General Electric Theater" over CBS as a trumpet player in "Bill Bailey Won't You Please Come Home."

There is another rare TV dramatic appearance Sunday night on CBS when Betty Davis stars on "Alfred Hitchcock Presents" as a middle-aged spinster whose mistaken identification of a robbery suspect sends a young man to prison for a year.

Monday night "The Bell System Science Series" presents the story of linguistic science over NBC. Dr. Frank Baxter is the guide on the program called "The Alphabet Conspiracy."

Followers of "Trackdown," formerly seen on Friday evenings over CBS, should be informed that the network has switched its time to Wednesday night.

Wednesday night the "Du Pont Show of the Month" will present an adaptation of Sir James M. Barrie's "What Every Woman Knows" on CBS. Siobhan McKenna, James Donald, Martita Hunt, Cyril Cusack and Diana Van Der Vlis are the stars. It is the story of a stubborn, ambitious Scot who marries a plain, intelligent and subtly domineering woman.

"The Goddess." Kim Stanley gives a sterling performance in Paddy Chayevsky's portrait of a Hollywood sex goddess, whose material success cannot assuage the emptiness in her heart.

"Tonka." Sal Mineo as a young Sioux brave who captures a beautiful and spirited horse, who there- after exchanges owners several times before meeting up with the young warrior again. Whether you like this one will depend on several factors: if you like Walt Disney, are pro-Indian, or love horses, you'll like it.

Mack Sennett At 75 Talks Over Old Days

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)— "I don't want to talk about birthdays," Mack Sennett said grumpily.

He grudgingly said he was observing his 75th birthday. The record books say he's 75, but there's still enough ham left in his rugged frame to fudge a year.

Even though he was passing the three-quarter century mark, he shunned celebration. He'd much rather talk about the thing he knows best, comedy.

Mack was sitting in the lobby of the Garden Court Apartments, the proud old building on Hollywood Boulevard where he has watched the filmland scene pass by for many years. He seemed a little slowed down from the kidney stone operation that kept him away from his beloved golf game for a year. But the fedora was still tilted jauntily, and the deep laugh came easily as he remembered the old days when Charlie Chaplin and W. C. Fields worked for him.

"Bill Fields always had a resistance for any story idea I suggested," he recalled. "Whenever I showed him a script, he'd say, 'It's good, but you better get Harry Langdon or one of the other boys to do it.'"

"So I fixed him. The next time I had a story for him, I said, 'Bill, we got a script out of that idea you gave me when we were playing golf out at Lakeside that day.' He said, 'I don't remember it, but if you say so, I'll do it.'"

Mack, whose Keystone Cops and bathing beauties delighted a generation of movie goers, had some comments on the decline of comedy on TV.

"Their trouble is writing," he said. "If I were the sponsor of a comedy show, I would immediately double the budget for writers. I'd have two or three crews of writers working not just on next week's show, but the ones after that."

"That's what I did in the old days. I always had my crews working on two or three projects. I found the more money I put into writing a picture, the cheaper it was to shoot and the better it came out. The ill-prepared films were the ones that cost a lot of money."

Dialogue And Ballet Don't Mix

Even ballet is not immune to the new experimental urge among the seven lively arts.

The classics are fine, but not necessarily the only medium of expression. Thus, artists are to be respected for the courage to attempt innovations. It takes courage to put forth something new, many times placing one's career in danger, not knowing if the new thing will prove acceptable.

Everyone, from the research scientist to the night club comedian, who attempts innovation, is well aware of the fact that most experiments are bound to flop. In this light, it was commendable for the Chicago Opera Ballet to attempt the new approach to their ancient art of inserting dialogue into a ballet sequence.

As it turned out, the audience didn't go for it. It may well be that the basic appeal of ballet, that of telling a story through movement, is better left alone. Dialogue is for theatre.

Earlier experiments in ballet have produced modern dance, which some like and others feel is at best a mixed blessing. These experiments also have produced a uniquely American ballet, such as the stage and movie industry have used to good effect in the past few years.

Okay, so dialogue didn't work out. What next?

Slide Film On Religious Art

A slide film on "Religious Art of the Western World" has been added to the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts extension loan exhibits for schools, museums, and art groups of Texas.

Based on the wisely acclaimed exhibit of religious art objects displayed last spring at the museum, the film runs 15 minutes and features a recorded script.

Gable To Ride In Motorized Hotel

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Clark Gable, who drives a $14,000 foreign car offscreen, will drive an even fancier American model in "But Not for Me."

It contains an office, a coffee-maker, a small bar, air conditioning, radio, television, a dictaphone, an electric razor and two telephones.

Mitchell Barely Misses Quota For Bond Sales

None of the counties in district No. 14 of the El Paso area managed to exceed their quota in United States Savings Bond Sales during 1958.

Reports on December sales show $128,619 for the district, which boosted the total for the year to $1,553,520, or 84.2 per cent of the quota. The state average was 98 per cent of quotas.

Mitchell County came the nearest to reaching its quota in the district with $269,456 sales or 99.4 per cent. Other records in the district included Andrews $59,023 for 95.2 per cent; Dawson $94,965 for 88.7 per cent; Gaines $100,772 for 76.3 per cent; Howard $709,757 for 88.5 per cent; Martin $31,003 for 64.6 per cent; Scurry $288,541 for 71.4 per cent.

Other counties in the area included Midland $619,568 for 72.3 per cent; Reagan $32,921 for 137.2 per cent; Sterling $17,356 for 86.8 per cent; Tom Green $816,796 for 63 per cent; Ector $583,408 for 70.2 per cent.

Public Lecture Slated Tonight

"Educating Ourselves for Peace and Life" will be the subject of a public lecture at 6 p.m. at Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses, 500 Donley St. The speaker will be F. Garig, minister from La Mesa.

The talk will be the first of a series to be given weekly over a period of two months, according to W. M. Woods, associate minister of Jehovah's Witnesses in Big Spring.

The subjects to be covered in the coming series are designed to stimulate the new interest shown in the work of the Witnesses as a result of the city-wide distribution of the resolution adopted earlier in the summer by more than 250,000 Witnesses of Jehovah at their "Divine Will International Assembly" in New York City.

The resolution contains an expression of their faith in God's Kingdom as the only hope for mankind and sets forth their position regarding world developments and their meaning.

Following the lecture will be the weekly Watchtower Bible study on the subject "The Crucial Time for Staying Awake." The public is invited to all meetings of Jehovah's Witnesses, said Woods.

Registration For Spring Term Set Monday At Junior College

Registration for the spring semester of Howard County Junior College begins Monday.

Dr. W. A. Hunt, president, is optimistic about the outlook because those taking work for college credit held steady during the fall semester.

The college had estimated the total enrollment of some 650 included the equivalent of 371 full time students. Final audit by the state showed 369.3 equivalency.

Hours for registration Monday and Tuesday will be 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., and from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

Classes will begin at 8 a.m. Wednesday, but the deadline for registration will not fall until some 10 days after that.

Meanwhile, college officials turned to the problem of state support after the legislative board last week announced a cut which would have cost the college upwards of $20,000 per annum.

Overlooked in the general reports of the board's recommendation (which were based on 1957 enrollment figures) was a line which said that application of actual 1958 figures would modify the changes and in some cases raise the colleges. In that event, H.C.J.C. because of its greater enrollment, would come up with something like $83,860, a slight increase.

Rep. Obie Bristow bristles at the board's proposal.

"We're not about to settle for the amount the board suggested," he said.

Executive board of the Texas public junior colleges met last week in Austin, and another session this week of the college presidents is in the mill to map unified strategy before the Legislature. Dr. Hunt was confident that the junior colleges could get better treatment when the appropriations bill finally comes up on the floor.

He and other proponents of the junior colleges have argued that stronger state support of them is still the biggest educational bargain in the state. Junior colleges receive only about $230 per capita, whereas the same level student in a senior college costs the state $780.

DEAR ABBY

SEE THE DOCTOR

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband's mother lives with us and I admit she's a saint. She makes my life much easier (she's a built-in baby sitter, a wonderful cook, etc.) but she has one fault that drives me nuts. When she feeds my baby (16 months old) she sits there telling him stories and everytime he opens his mouth to laugh she shoves in another spoonful. The baby should be handling the spoon himself but he refuses to try because it's so much fun having Nanny feed him. Should I skip it or say something? I hate to hurt her feelings.

DEAR PUZZLED: Let the doctor be the goat and tell "Nanny" that HE recommends that the baby start feeding himself.

DEAR ABBY: My girlfriend is getting married this Sunday. A boy I am VERY fond of asked me for a date on that day. Do you think if I asked him to go to the wedding with me he would think I was hinting?

DEAR NETTIE: If you ARE, he will probably think so. If you AREN'T, it won't even occur to him.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the mother with the teen-ager problem reminded us of our own situation. We have a High School boy in our family. He wags his hair in a freakish way, rarely bathes or brushes his teeth (that is strictly for squares). He walks with a vulgar swagger and says all his teachers are slobes. He smokes, swears and treats his clothes like rags. He talks back and has no respect for anybody. His father is so disgusted with him he calls him "The Thing." I am lower than a snake because I won't let this monster drive the family car. He is 15 and we have only three more years of obligation to feed this parasite. I shudder to think of where he will end up.

DEAR DISGUSTED: And who raised this "monster"?

DEAR ABBY: I am a woman of 75 who has 9 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren. I run a respectable rooming house and no monkey business. One of my roomers is a woman of 43. She has 3 grandchildren and is divorced. She told me herself that she'd do anything to get married again so she could quit working. She is out to rope in my 27-year-old grandson. I warned him against her, but he still goes up there to see her. I told her if she didn't lay off my grandson I would evict her, but she claims HE won't leave HER alone. Would I be wrong to throw her out anyway?

DEAR L. F.: Your grandson is 3 times 7 and if he wants to see this woman you can't stop him. "Throwing her out" won't solve anything.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "CHICKEN-PICKER": You need not be ashamed of how you make your living as long as it's honest. If she laughs, you picked the wrong chicken.

New Requirements For Exemption On Wage-Hour Law

Business men in West Texas are being reminded that the new higher salary tests for exemption of some white-collar employees under the Federal Wage-Hour Law go into effect next week.

"Starting Feb. 2, 1959, executive employees of firms engaged in interstate commerce must be paid at least $80 a week on a salary basis to qualify for exemption from the wage and hour provisions of the law," according to Field Supervisor John A. Lakeman Jr. of the U. S. Department of Labor's wage-hour office in El Paso.

Administrative and professional employees must be paid at least $95 a week on a salary or fee basis to be exempt. Previous salary requirements for exemption were $55 for executive employees and $75 for administrative and professional employees.

Grain Drying And Storage Problems To Be Explored

LUBBOCK — Problems of grain drying and storage — from mass effects of marketing to undesirable chemicals in small grains — will be under expert scrutiny Feb. 18-19 at Texas Tech.

Nineteen specialists will speak at the meeting, expected to attract more than 100 grain men, engineers and farmers. Ira Williams, Tech agricultural engineering department head, is in charge of the conference, scheduled in the Tech union building.

JIMMY DEMARET LOW AT PALM SPRINGS

By BOB MYERS

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Flamboyant Jimmy Demaret forged into the lead of the $15,000 Thunderbird Invitational Tournament Saturday at the end of the third round.

The fashionable Texan, who plays out of Grossinger, N. Y., ruined par 71 of the Thunderbird Country Club with a 64, which gave him a 54-hole score of 199 and a firm two-stroke lead over his nearest rival.

AT SANTA ANITA

Round Table Sets New Track Record

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Round Table, carrying a staggering 132 pounds, set a new track record Saturday as he romped home by five lengths in the $28,250 San Marcos Handicap over a mile and one quarter on the grass at Santa Anita.

The time of 1:58 2-5 was also a new North American grass course record.

Spotting the field 15 to 26 pounds, racing's all-time money winner led all the way around the rolling course and pulled away at will in the back stretch. Willie Shoemaker was looking back through the stretch as the Table glided to the wire.

The winner's share of $16,700 boosted the Table's total earnings to $1,363,189.

Little Eddie Schmidt was second, followed by Andrew Alan and Anxious Moment.

Round Table, the heavy favorite, paid $3.10, $2.60 and $2.20; Eddie Schmidt returned $4.90 and $3.20 and Andrew Alan $3.10.

Round Table carried the same weight assigned for next month's $145,000-guaranteed Santa Anita Handicap—also at a mile and one quarter.

Saturday was the first time in Santa Anita's history that a horse had lugged more than 130 pounds into the winner's circle. Discovery and Citation had tried, but failed.

It was the fifth time in the Table's magnificent career that he has been under two minutes for the mile and one quarter. No other thoroughbred has cracked two minutes for the distance more than twice.

The Table held the lead from wire to wire.

Ackerly Girls Claim Crown

GAIL, (SC)—Ackerly's girls won championship honors in the Gail Invitational Basketball Tournament by defeating Gail in the finals here Saturday night, 45-42.

The Eagles played catch-up in the final period. They were two points in arrears at the end of the third period. Gail led at the end of the opening round, 11-10, but trailed at half time, 22-18.

Janice Bearden led in scoring for Ackerly with 21 points. Dorothy Williams had 19, Janie Kunkel three and Linda Bristow two.

For Gail, Burrus scored 21, Rawlings 12 and Gilmore nine.

Shirley Williams and Sandra Adams were outstanding on defense for Ackerly.

The Eagles had defeated Ira, 56-34, Friday night to enter the finals. Bearden hit 29 points for Ackerly while Patterson scored 25 for Ira.

The Knott girls won consolation laurels by nipping Dawson, 39-36; while Highland flogged Knott in the boys' consolation finals, 78-30.

Bobby Morrow Wins Indoor 70-Yard Dash By Whisker

WASHINGTON (AP)—Nick Ellis of Morgan State, who hadn't won a major race before, stunned a packed house at the Evening Star Games Saturday night by upsetting Olympic star Glenn Davis in the 600-yard run.

Davis, the great athlete from Ohio State, finished third in his first attempt at the 600 and his first showing on the Eastern indoor track circuit.

Josh Culbreath, a former Morgan Stater, was second. Ellis darted ahead at the start of the last lap and Davis couldn't catch him. Davis was second until he tired abruptly 10 yards from the finish and Culbreath overtook him.

Ellis, a 21-year-old junior from New Brunswick, N. J., was timed in 1 minute 13.8 seconds.

The husky Morgan Stater had finished fifth in the NCAA championships last year when Davis set a world record of 45.7 seconds in the 440.

Bobby Morrow, the Olympic sprint king, had better luck than Davis. He won the 70 and 80-yard dashes, beating out ex-Morgan Stater Ken Kave in the first and the second.

This was Morrow's indoor track debut and he demonstrated to the crowd of 5,300 that he has tremendous speed on the boards as well as the cinders when he captured the 70.

Morrow, of Abilene Christian College, was timed in 7.2 seconds. That was two-tenths off the meet record set by Dave Sims of Duke—Morrow's arch rival.

Sims had been expected to run here in the meet which brought him to prominence three years ago but withdrew because of the press of studies.

Morrow had finished second in his very first try at running on boards when he came in a 10th of a second behind Frank Budd, Villanova freshman, in the 70-yard qualifying heat for the main series at 70, 80 and 100 yards.

Budd, who did 7.2 in the heat, finished fourth in the 70 final.

Lee Calhoun, holder of the Olympic 110-meter hurdles record, and Elias Gilbert, his chief rival over the barriers, won the 70-yard hurdle heats.

Famed Arizona Coach On Staff

ABILENE (SC)—The nation's No. 1 high school track and field coach Vernon Wolfe of North Phoenix (Ariz.) will be on staff at the 6th Annual Abilene Christian College Track and Field Clinic Feb. 21.

Oliver Jackson, ACC track coach and director of the clinic, says that a record setting crowd of over 200 high school and college coaches are expected for the one-day clinic.

The Arizona coach will lecture on the shot put, discus throw and pole vault. He will also explain the weight-training program which he uses for his athletes.

Wolfe is a graduate of the University of Southern California where he was a 14-foot pole vaulter on the Trojan track team. He has had eight years of high school coaching experience, four at Torrance, Calif., and four at North Phoenix.

North Phoenix High School now leads the nation, according to Track and Field News, as the number one high school in track. This is based on the best marks recorded in each event and scored on a 10-6-4-2-1 basis.

Wolfe coached Jim Brewer, the first prep to clear 14 and 15 feet in the high school pole vault and to achieve three successive National Interscholastic Records.

He also coached Dallas Long who last spring set new prep records of 69-3 1-8 with the 12-pound shot and 61-6 with the 16-pound shot.

OC Chiefs Down Purple, 75-65

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Oklahoma City pulled away in the closing minutes to gain a 75-65 revenge victory over Texas Christian Saturday night.

The big height advantage with a slashing fast break and pinpoint shooting that saw them hit 25 of 51 from the field for 49 percent.

Troy Hill and Bud Sahuant, smallest men on the court, led the speedy Chiefs to their 12th victory against two losses with 18 and 14 points, respectively.

Texas Christian, leading the Southwest Conference, dropped its fourth game in 15 starts as Ronnie Stevenson, H.E. Kirchner and Ken Brunson each scored 14 points.

Hank Armstrong Doing A Single

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Former triple crown boxing champion Hank Armstrong no longer is a married man.

Mrs. Willa Mae Armstrong, 45, was granted a divorce decree on her testimony that the 46-year-old evangelist doesn't love her.

"He never showed me any affection," she told the court. "He left me at home and went out alone."

DEFEAT HSU GIRLS

Jayhawk Queens Win Two Games

Two of the closest games yet played between girls' teams in the HCJC gymnasium went by the regulation game with H-SU at 43-41, after staging a comeback. The locals chased the Abilene crew until the final two minutes when they took their second lead of the game.

Peggy Bryant, who scored 15, was a worry to H-SU the entire game, and it was her two free throws—combined with a gratis pitch by Kay Burroughs—that brought Big Spring through in the overtime. HCJC had fallen back, 14-17, at halftime.

Claudene Pyle and Peggy Francis had six, behind Kay Burroughs with 11, Diane Tidwell was outstanding on defense.

The HCJC B squad lead 16-10 at half in its victory.

The Jayhawk Queens travel to Belton to face Mary Hardin Baylor on Jan. 31. The HCJC team will be under the guidance of Miss Arah Phillips, who recently resigned, for the final three games.

A game with McMurry on Jan. 27 was cancelled, but on Feb. 3, the B team will play the Methodist school as the varsity tries H-SU again, in a doubleheader.

Big Leaguers Open Drills In February

Spring training for major league baseball players will be a bit different this time. All of the healthy ones, except those doing a six-month stint in the National Defense Service and the stubborn holdouts, are expected to be in uniform and working out by Feb. 28. Three teams will have squads on hand by Feb. 23.

For the past few years the latest reporting date was March 1, but that's changed now because the American and National League seasons open one week sooner.

President Eisenhower probably will throw out the first American president Cronin's signature on it in Washington where Baltimore

SLATER TO UT JOB?

Martin Says Money Could Swing Him

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—They're beating the drums to lure Slater Martin of the St. Louis Hawks back to the University of Texas to coach his old school out of its basketball doldrums. Martin says only that money talks.

Dr. Bobby Moers, who pounded the hardwood as a flashy backcourt ballhawk at Texas in the late '30s, says he plans to talk to Martin personally about the job.

"I just feel Texas couldn't do any better than to have Dugie as its coach," Moers said Saturday. "I'll talk to him and if he wants it I'll do everything in my power to help him get the job."

Moers plans to be in St. Louis for a Slater Martin night planned by fans Jan. 30 for the flashy playmaker of the St. Louis Hawks.

Marshall Hughes announced Friday he is quitting as coach at Texas at the end of this season. Martin and Jimmy Viramontes, freshman basketball coach whose teams at Texas own a 15-0 record over the past two years, have been mentioned as possible successors.

Martin told the Houston Chronicle by telephone Saturday from Detroit. "It is possible that I could go into coaching if it's a convenient job, close to Houston where I could move my family without interfering too much with my private business."

"It depends a lot on what kind of salary I am offered," he added. "I can't quit big money to take smaller money."

Martin now operates a sporting goods store here.

Tulsa Hurricane Batters Porkers

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—Tulsa's Hurricane weathered an Arkansas rally in the last 10 minutes to defeat the Razorbacks 61-54 before 2,544 basketball fans Saturday night.

It was Tulsa's second victory of the season over Arkansas. Tulsa took the lead after the first 10 minutes and stayed out front the rest of the way.

With the season starting earlier than usual, the Florida and Arizona exhibition seasons are moved up. That means earlier reporting dates for the athletes.

All teams open their exhibition activity on Saturday, March 7. In the National League Cincinnati plays host to Pittsburgh on the same day. On April 10 all teams in both leagues are scheduled to play except Washington and Baltimore. They have the 10th open in case of a rainout on the 9th.

Several clubs are holding instruction camps for farm team players and untested rookies who could be added to major league rosters before opening day. But the first National League regulars who will report are the San Francisco batterymen.

There are only two major changes in the training camp set-up of the four previous springs. The Boston Red Sox and the Baltimore Orioles have traded states, so to speak.

Boston is moving from Sarasota, Fla., to Scottsdale, Ariz., former base of the Orioles. Baltimore will make new headquarters in Miami and replaces the Los Angeles Dodgers as the home team for exhibition games in Miami Stadium.

The Dodgers, a monetary success in their first season in Los Angeles but a flop in the standings, will continue to train at Vero Beach, Fla., but most of their exhibitions will be played at Payson Park, Sarasota where 10 are scheduled.

Missed A Tackle

Jay LeFevre of Big Spring looks as if he missed a tackle as he falls to the floor in the above picture. Actually, he was going for the ball, held here by Clay Brooks of Abilene. The action was snapped in the District 2-AAAA basketball thriller here Friday night, won by the local club, 63-59.

STEERS FIGHT BACK TO TRIM ABILENE

Down 11 points at one stage in the third period, the Big Spring Steers fought back like a team possessed to eclipse the Abilene Eagles, 63-59, in a dingdong District 2-AAAA basketball cliff-hanger here Friday night.

The game meant little in the conference, other than the fact that the loser was to drop into the cellar, but the clubs scrapped as if the championship was at stake.

The Longhorns, with their backs to the wall, resorted to a zone press in the third round and the Abilene attack came apart at the seams.

Jay LeFevre, a reserve pivot man who went onto the court when his twin, Zay, fouled out, hit a beauty of a hook shot that put the resident quintet out front to stay, 59-57, with less than a minute showing on the clock.

AT NEW MEXICO STATE

Local Lad Named To Honor Roll

STATE COLLEGE, N. M. (SC)—Charley Johnson, New Mexico State University's outstanding sophomore quarterback, has been named to the 1958 Chemical and Engineering News Football Honor Roll.

Eligible for the honor roll are students who starred on both the gridiron and in the classrooms and laboratories as chemical or chemical engineering majors.

Johnson, a student from Big Spring, Tex., who attended Schreiner Institute at Kerrville, Tex., prior to transferring to NMSU, is a chemical engineering major.

Chemical and Engineering News in its announcement story recalled that when its first honor roll was published in 1952, "scholarship and football were not regarded as a mixture capable of producing an end product which would be useful for either purpose."

Responses to 1952 requests for candidates, C&E News said, showed that the major in chemistry or chemical engineering was still the rarity among college football players.

"But today," the publication

adds, "chemistry and chemical engineering rank high among football players' choices." This year Chemical and Engineering News received more than eight times the number of nominations received in 1952.

NMSU Athletic Director and Head Football Coach Warren Woodson noted that "Charley Johnson is one of the young men we are constantly seeking in intercollegiate sports today. They are a different type than the traditional public image of a varsity competitor. Our policy here is that education comes first, and that young men with intelligence, stamina, and self-discipline to compete on both the playing floors and in the classroom and laboratories."

Big Spring Hardware nudged Gillman's, 3-10; Henderson's Couden flogged Tot 'n Teen, 3-1; and Hemphill Wells blanked Good Housekeeping, 4-0, in Thursday Matinee Bowling league competition the past week.

UT Coach Quits His Post; Will Return To Teaching

AUSTIN (AP)—Marshall Hughes is quitting as head basketball coach at the University of Texas at the end of this season, to return to what he says is his first love—teaching.

Hughes said he felt the time had come when he should make the decision between coaching and teaching. I came to the university to prepare myself for teaching, and have kept that objective in mind throughout my stay here.

He said he had no definite plans except to complete his doctorate. I can't if developments permit it," Hughes has a master's degree in education.

His resignation was announced eight days after he was hanged in effigy from the flagpole in front of the main administration building of the university.

At the time, Hughes said, "I attach no significance at all to it," and yesterday he said he and his players "are determined to make a strong finish."

Texas has a 3-12 record for the season. The Longhorns are last in the conference race, and finished last in the pre-season conference tournament at Houston.

Hughes has never had a winning season as head coach although his freshman teams rolled up a 61-22 record in seven seasons, starting in 1949. After Hughes took over the varsity from Thurman (Shue) Hull, the Longhorns won 11 and lost 13 in 1957 and were 10 and 13 last season for an overall mark of 24 and 38 under his direction.

"The decision to resign is my own decision," Hughes said. "It

Olmedo Reaches Aussie Finals

By WILL GRIMSLEY

ADELAIDE (AP)—The two top-seeded favorites, Peruvian Alex Olmedo and Australia's Neale Fraser, met Monday for the Australian National Tennis Championship. The big question is can Olmedo's celebrated stomach muscle hold out for one more day?

Olmedo, hero of the U.S. Davis Cup victory last month, has battled into the finals on nerve and fantastic shot control and is convinced, he can make it. "I feel better today," he said, "and in the finals I may be able to go all out again."

Olmedo, 22, made the finals by whipping the consistently inconsistent Barry McKay of Dayton, Ohio, 3-6, 6-4, 6-1, 3-6, 6-3 today.

IN O'S CAMP

Nicholson Will Show His Stuff

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Dave Nicholson, the highly publicized St. Louis bonus boy who has yet to justify the $100,000-plus bonanza he struck a year ago, will show his stuff in the Baltimore Orioles' new training camp at Miami next month.

The big 19-year-old outfielder probably will command most of the attention from reporters and photographers, but a couple of other youngsters—outfielder Willie Tasby and pitcher Jerry Walker—will be the ones to watch for possible regular Oriole berths in 1959.

Tasby has speed and power. In seven minor league seasons, he hit 134 home runs and twice led his league in stolen bases. With Louisville last year, he batted .322 and led the American Assn. with his 291 total bases.

Walker, signed out of Ada, Okla., led the Sally League with 18 victories against only four defeats.

Nicholson received a taste of minor league life last year, moving from Georgia to league, including Dublin, Ga., of the class D Georgia-Florida League, where he batted .227 in 27 games, clubbing 15 home runs and driving in 60 runs in 113 games.

Angelo Dagres and Leo Burke, two others who will vie for outfield berths, enjoyed fine seasons with Knoxville last year. Dagres batted .311. Burke collected 61 extra base hits, including 17 home runs.

Manager Paul Richards also will inspect five freshmen infielders. Roy Barker, who hit .253 at Vancouver, and Wayne Causey, .243 at Louisville, are the only ones with triple A experience.

The pitching squad contains only three new pitchers, besides Walker. George Bamberger was purchased from Vancouver where he led the Pacific Coast League with a 2.45 earned run average. He won 15, lost 11.

John Fisher had a 14-11 record with Wilson. Ron Moeller was 3-1 at Vancouver.

Catcher Charlie White, formerly with the Milwaukee Braves, rounds out the freshman crew. He caught 119 games at Vancouver and ended up with a .291 batting average.

Next—Milwaukee Braves.

He has never won a national championship. Neither has Fraser, who breezed past countryman Bob Mark 6-4, 6-4, 6-3.

If it wasn't for his three close friends—Davis Cup Capt. Perry Jones, pro promoter Jack Kramer and pro king Pancho Gonzales—Olmedo might have pulled out of the nationals long ago. His three advisers, however, urged him to make the effort, short of risking permanent injury, to win the Australian title for its prestige value.

Already rocketed into world prominence by his Davis Cup feats, Alex could establish a beachhead toward becoming the king of amateur tennis. The Australian title is one of the four jewels in the crown, which also includes the Wimbledon, French and U.S. titles.

Olmedo could become the first to haul the Australian title out of this country since Dick Savitt packed in off to America in 1951. Without befitting Fraser's ability, however, Alex's biggest foe Monday will be that cantankerous stomach muscle.

Earl Buchholz of St. Louis goes after a junior slam Monday against the Australian. Buchholz already holds the Wimbledon, French and U.S. junior titles.

Robertson Hits For 38 Points

CINCINNATI (AP)—Oscar Robertson pitched in 38 points Saturday afternoon as the fast-breaking University of Cincinnati Bearcats broke open their annual hometown rivalry game with Xavier University in the last half for a 92-66 basketball victory.

The game between the sixth rated Bearcats and Xavier's 1958 NIT champions was nationally televised.

Robertson turned in a brilliant scoring performance but had to share honors with Cincinnati's Bob Wiesenhahn, a 6 foot 4 sophomore who turned in a tremendous rebounding job. He also contributed 13 points to the Cincinnati cause.

Xavier's Musketeers never were ahead although they managed to pull into a tie three times in the first half.

The victory was Cincinnati's 11th in 13 games. Xavier has an 8-6 record.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

Strange how a school will let a competent coach go and replace him with a man totally without experience as a head instructor, yet start him out with a bigger salary than the former hireling was getting. . . . Tom Nugent was getting $13,000 per annum as coach at Florida State University when he quit to take a similar job at the University of Maryland. . . . FSU then hired Perry Moss, former Wisconsin aide, as Nugent's successor and will start him out at a wage of $14,000 yearly. . . . Glenn Davis, the stellar Ohio State University athlete who races here in the American Business Club Relays March 28-29, did the quarter-mile in the world record-equalling time of 45.8 on May 24 last year. . . . As a high school boy at Barbenton, Ohio, in 1954, Davis was clocked in 19.1 in the 180-yard low hurdles, found out later he was better at the longer races. . . . Delnor Poss, the former Garden City coach who is now located at Menard, can still stuff that roundball through the hoop. . . . Delnor scored 39 points for a Barnhart adult team in a recent game against Goodfellow AFB. . . . Willie Besmanoff, the transplanted German Heavyweight who meets Texan Donnie Fleeman in his adopted home town tomorrow night, now prefers to be known as Billy. . . . Besmanoff says the hardest punchers he has met in his career are Archie Moore and Mike DeJohn, in that order. . . . He'll find Fleeman is no powder-puff puncher, either. . . . Texan Slater Martin is the only player standing under six feet now active in the professional basketball league. . . . Talk has been revived that Martin will be tapped, when Marshall Hughes is dismissed as the University of Texas basketball mentor. . . . Slater could have had the job after Jack Gray quit down there, but wanted to continue playing pro ball. . . . Jimmy Joe Robinson, the former HCJC cager, is now a regular on the Eastern New Mexico University club.

HCJC Loses Splendid Track Prospect

Red Lewis, the HCJC track coach, had his head hanging low recently. . . . One of his best prospects, Dick Barrett of Pampa, decided against returning to school for the spring term. . . . He's married and has to find a job. . . . Barrett ran the high hurdles in 19.2 seconds and the low in 14.8 while in high school. . . . He can also do the quarter under 32 seconds. . . . Lewis has lost a miler, a hurdler, and a pole vaulter since the fall term began. . . . His Jayhawks open their track season in Abilene Feb. 21, meeting McMurry in a dual meet. . . . The same two teams clash here on Feb. 28. . . . The Big Spring Steers, by the way, will launch their track campaign Feb. 28 in Fort Stockton. . . . New Mexico Military Institute is one of about ten schools which have already entered teams in the junior college division of the ABC Relays March 28-29. . . . The state junior college track and field meet will again be held in Abilene May 4-5. . . . Darrell Royal, who came to Big Spring the other day for the Lions' Club football banquet, is still hatched with Maryland's Tom Nugent for the story: Tom put out that Royal boasted he would have a good football team at the University of Texas next fall only to change his mind and plead he was misquoted when he found out Maryland was on the UT schedule. . . . Darrell says he met Nugent only once and never passed any remarks with him at that time. . . . Incidentally, Royal thinks Bobby Bryant, his senior end from Plainview, can make the ripple in pro football, even though Bobby isn't exceptionally fast. . . . The UT mentor would use Bryant at the end opposite the flanker on offense. . . . Royal says he's banking heavily upon the help of his freshman quarterback who will give the varsity next fall. . . . The f-o-s-h signal barker sparked when the UT Shortthorns upset the Texas A&M Fish, six touchdowns to one, in the season's final game in 1958.

Charles Greene Good On Defense

Best of the analysts in professional football telecasts I heard the past season was Paul Christman, the former All-American from the University of Missouri. . . . Christman concealed his partiality toward his former employers, the Chicago Cardinals, very well. . . . When the Supreme Court decreed recently that the International Boxing Commission be dissolved as a monopoly, one of the losers was the former Heavyweight boxing champion, Joe Louis, who was drawing $20,000 annually from the fight trust for chores no one could quite identify. . . . The Columbia Broadcasting System estimated recently that an average of 23,500,000 watched their pro football telecasts each week last fall. . . . Doc Hayes, the SMU cage mentor, says Big Spring's Jan Loudermilk is one of six freshmen at his school who will play varsity ball. . . . It's going to take some one with more than a casual knowledge of golf architecture to save the third and fourth holes at the Munny course here, once that thoroughfare to the Douglass Addition is put down. . . . Charles Greene is regarded as the best defensive basketball player on the local high school team. . . . His burning desire is also an asset. . . . The Plainview Bulldogs, who lost two practice tilts to Midland and split even in two games with Big Spring, won three of their first four District 3-AAAA, which might be a tipoff on how far that conference has gone downhill in the last couple of seasons. . . . Between halves of the last Gator Bowl football game between Ole Miss and Florida, an intoxicated fan in Arizona called the television broadcaster, Ray Scott, to say: "Wish my friend, the referee, a very happy New Year, will ya?" . . . Charles Smith probably would have made one of the Big Spring High School track team's best distance runners in recent years, had he not been out of practice the past couple of years. . . . Rev. Bob Richards, the former vaulting champion, reasons Bob Gutkowski may be better 16 feet this year. . . . The people who promoted those professional fights in Odessa last Wednesday took a financial licking to the extent of $1,000.

Vancouver Fight Exhibition Off

VANCOUVER (AP) — Boxing promoter Earle Kalani said Saturday said the Archie Moore-Ed die Cotton exhibition fight scheduled here Monday night has been postponed to Feb. 2 because Moore has another appointment. . . . Moore is to attend the Rae Hickok Award presentation in Rochester, N. Y., to the outstanding professional athlete of 1958. He is one of those nominated for the honor.

Malouf To Go With Sophs

Big Spring High School golf coach Mitchell Malouf has worked out arrangements whereby his players will work out regularly at both the Munny course and Webb AFB's layout.

The Steers have been permitted to use the Big Spring Country Club facilities in the past but permission to use the course was not granted this year.

Mitchell will work with almost exclusively a sophomore team this spring. Included in the group is one junior, Ronald Carlson.

The sophs competing for positions on the links team are Richard Atkins, Emmett Kent Morgan, Tommy Wilkerson, Chuck Carter and Joe Ewing.

Tommy Patterson and Johnny Freeman have signified they will report for practice after basketball season.

Malouf has entered his team in tournaments at Odessa, Amarillo and Andrews and will line up a number of dual meets within the next few weeks.

Bearcats Kayo Forsan Buffs In 19-B Go

FORSAN (SC)—A sizzling Garden City basketball team, ignoring a visiting court jinx that usually strangles it, defeated Forsan's Buffs, 59-50, before a near capacity house here Friday night and moved into a commanding position in the District 19-B race.

James Blake's team outshot the Bearcats from the field but committed 23 fouls compared to only 14 for the visitors. Garden City made good on 19 of 32 free shot opportunities, Forsan only eight of 18.

Forsan led at half time by two points but Marlin Dadds' team outscored the Buffs in the third period, 14-6.

Forsan's problem became more complex when George White, an excellent rebounder, fouled out early in the third period. Charles Skeen led Forsan with 17 points. Dennis Calverley, who had counted no more than seven points in either of the previous games between the teams, wound up with 17 points for Garden City. Frank Murphy followed with 15.

Garden City also won the girls' game, 38-36. The result left four teams tied for first place in that division.

Sherry Fletcher had 28 points and Sue Dunagan six for Forsan while Linda Camp played fine ball on defense.

For Garden City, Pat Saunders scored 19, Wanda Williams 17 while Darla Williams was a stand-out on defense.

Garden City made the evening complete by winning the boys' B game, 30-23, despite 14 points scored by an ex-Garden City boy, Jack Asbill. Janson Parrish had 11 for Garden City.

All proceeds from the games go to the March of Dimes campaign. The Buffaloes visit Knott Tuesday for conference games.

12-Year-Old A Top Bowler

Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Winterrowd, 805 Runnels, are watching the bowling progress of their 12-year-old grandson, Curtis Winterrowd Jr., in Pecos.

This young kegler, who took up the game only a year ago, gained considerable publicity at a recent bowling tourney in Pecos where he was the youngest entrant.

He made a highly respectable showing — with a high game of 182 in the singles competition, 132 in the doubles and a high three-game total of 617 with handicap. Mrs. Winterrowd said that young Curtis has a high game of 242 to his credit.

His father, Curtis Winterrowd Sr., formerly of Big Spring, owns a bowling alley in Pecos.

Curtis was the youngest entrant in the Pecos tournament and the oldest was a 70-year-old bowler named Lewis Ivey.

The boy visits his grandparents in Big Spring frequently and his father is well known to many residents. They moved to Pecos about 10 years ago.

Zoning, Annexation Still On Commission's Agenda

The City Commission can look forward to a comparatively short session if nothing else materializes before the regular meeting Tuesday night.

Zoning and annexation ordinances, and a report on sewer line costs for an area on the agenda for Tuesday night.

The zoning ordinance will change a segment of property in the Douglass Addition from one-party residence (A) to a business district. The area faces the Old San Angelo Highway on the north side of the accident.

The city is annexing a tract of land west of the Old San Angelo Highway and third reading of the ordinance will be held Tuesday.

City Manager A. K. Steinheimer will make a report on costs of installing a sewer system to serve residents on Robin, Mesa, and State Park streets. The residents came before the commission at its last meeting and asked for sewer service; they are inside the city limits.

The city was to open bids Tuesday on a new street sweeper, but the bid opening has been postponed until Feb. 10, Steinheimer said this week.

Burglars Raid Gin At Knott

Burglars, believed to be juveniles, broke into the office of the Co-Op Gin at Knott sometime Friday night. They succeeded only in damaging the safe door to the point where it will no longer open or close, according to Jack Hackney, deputy, who investigated the case.

Hackney said the prowlers forced a rear window by tearing off the screen and breaking the glass. Inside the office, the safe, which was an old one and lacking one hinge pin at the bottom, was attacked. Using some heavy tool as a lever, the prowlers sought to force the door open. They failed.

Nothing was stolen, the operator of the gin reported.

'Career Day' Slated For Lamesa High

LAMESA — Feb. 3 will be career day at Lamesa High School. Plans for the annual program are under the sponsorship of the Lamesa Kiwanis Club's committee on vocational guidance, according to Paul Gentry, chairman of the group.

Co-ordinating the program at the high school is Mrs. H. A. Wilkins, guidance counselor. Under her direction, a student committee is functioning to arrange schedules for the day.

The school committee includes Bill McCulloch, chairman; Karen Campbell and Bobby Wilson, seniors; Mike Miller and Sandra Jordan, juniors; Richard Crump and Marilyn Boswell, sophomores; and Charles Darwin and Elena Esmond, freshmen.

Questionnaires are being distributed among the student body to determine what vocation each is interested in. First and second choices are being requested, so that if possible, each student in the school will have an opportunity to attend two group conferences.

During the coming week, members of the Kiwanis committee on vocational guidance will contact about 25 business and professional people of the city who will act as counselors for each vocational group organized. Working on this committee in addition to Gentry will be Don Nutt and B. P. Middleton.

Gentry stated that this year students in each of the high school grades will have an opportunity to participate in Career Day. Previously only those students in 11th and 12th grades had attended the conferences.

Truck Accident Is Cause Of Lawsuit

A driverless truck crashing into a business building on June 19, 1957, has led to the filing of a suit by the owner of the building for $4,166 damages.

The case was filed in the 118th District Court on Friday.

Frank Rutherford, operator of the Gregg Street Cleaners at 17th and Gregg, relates in his petition that a truck owned by Fred Nichols but driven at the time of the collision, rolled into the front of his cleaning plant on June 19, 1957.

In addition to the damages to the building, Rutherford claims loss of business due to necessary repairs, damage to equipment and merchandise.
