HUNGRY 'BONUS ARMY' MARCHES INTO CAPITAL

Vernon Boy Dies After Stepping In Front Of Rifle As Chum Pulls Trigger

YOUTH KILLED BY ACCIDENTAL SHOT OF GUN

Target Practice of Group Ends Tragically For Thomas Dunworth

PARENTS AWAY

Companions Rush Wounded Chum to Hospital But Wounds Fatal

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, May 29.—Thomas Dunworth, 15, was fatally wounded on the Pease river, near here, late this afternoon, when he stepped in front of a rifle as the gun was fired by a companion.

The boy was rushed to a hospital here but died on arrival.

Young Dunworth was a member of a party of eight boys of his own age who had taken the gun to a bridge on the river. They took turns firing it as they grouped together on the structure.

Passed Through Body

John Stewart, 14, pulled the trigger of the small .22 caliber rifle just as the other boy stepped suddenly in front of the gun. The bullet entered under the left arm, penetrated the heart and emerged under the boy's right arm.

The party of boys had a car with them. They sped back to town with their wounded companion as quickly as possible, but were unable to save his life.

The dead boy was the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Dunworth. Both his mother and father were out of the city when the fatal accident occurred. Mrs. Dunworth was visiting relatives in Enid, Okla., while the father, a conductor on the Frisco, was away on his run. Both parents were notified and were expected to arrive in Vernon early Monday.

Was Sophomore

The boy had just completed his sophomore year in high school.

The youth who was accidentally responsible for his playmate's accidental death is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Stewart of Vernon.

Funeral arrangements for the Dunworth boy had not been made Sunday night, pending the arrival of his parents.

Other survivors include three sisters, Mrs. H. L. Cope, and Gertrude and Margaret Jean Dunworth, all of Vernon.

Camera Studies Of New York's Mayor As He Parried With Seabury

Glimpses of James J. Walker on Stand Unnder Questioning of Graft Investigator

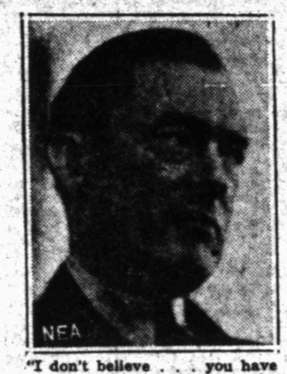

"Remember, I'm still the mayor of New York!"

"No; I don't remember what I have said at a meeting two weeks ago."

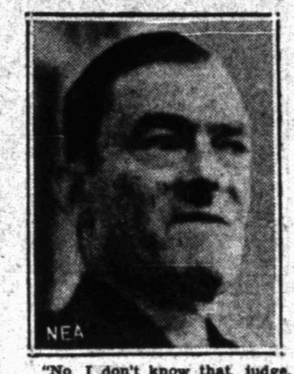

"I insist that counsel not testify in this way and put the answer up to me . . ."

"I don't believe . . . you have any legal right to inquire into the operations of an executive's mind . . ."

"A $100,000 check from one man mightn't be as good as J. P. Morgan's mere promise . . ."

"No, I don't know that, judge, and you know that I couldn't know it."

CITY TAXED TO FEED BAND OF WAR VETERANS

Leaders Expect Thousands Of Buddies to Arrive Within Week

MEN MAINTAIN ORDER

Group Members Declare They Will Stay Until Demand Met

WASHINGTON, May 29. (UP)—Three hundred tanned and hungry world war veterans from the far west arrived at the capital tonight in Maryland state trucks, determined to stay until congress and the president pay them the remaining half of their compensation certificates.

Escorted by motorcycle police, the 12 trucks and four moving vans that took the veterans across Maryland, crossed the District of Columbia line at 5:30 p. m.

Meal Prepared

After a halt of a few minutes, the procession moved through the fashionable Massachusetts avenue section and down town where a meal was being prepared for them at the headquarters of the Volunteers of America.

By 7 p. m. they were moving two by two into the headquarters, to reform later and march to the barracks prepared for them in an old department store building a mile away on the other side of the capitol building in which they intend to present their demands to congress.

W. W. Waters, commander of the little army, was with the police contingent waiting at the district line. Waters, who has brought his men across the country without a sign of disorder or a casualty, arrived this morning. He went to police headquarters to see what arrangements were being made for the veterans and then, exhausted, went across the street to the Courthouse park and went to sleep on the grass until police awakened him to greet the incoming procession.

Plans Go Awry

Arrangements for the veterans went awry today. It was necessary for Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, U. S. A., retired, chief of police, to buy himself $120 worth of food at the army base at Fort Myer, Va., to insure the men meals tonight and tomorrow morning. Army kitchens,

CITY HONORS MEMORY OF SOLDIER DEAD

Wood Makes Stirring Plea For World Peace In Sunday Sermon

Under the leadership of Pat Carrigan Post No. 120 of the American Legion, Wichita Falls Sunday turned its attention to soldier dead of this country's wars, honoring their memory in special services and decorating their graves to the accompaniment of military ceremonies.

More than 100 world war veterans and about 40 Spanish-American war veterans attended the special Memorial day services at the First Christian church Sunday morning when Dr. H. T. Wood, pastor, and chaplain of the local American Legion post, preached on the need for peace. About the same number of ex-soldiers participated Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in services at Riverside cemetery.

Extolling the spirit of those who have died in military conflict, Dr. Wood declared that "a warless world is possible," and that Memorial day is dedicated not "to the honor of war, but to the honor of our soldier dead who were willing to sacrifice their lives for their country."

In Memory of Dead

Speaking from the text, "Without the shedding of blood, there is no remission of sins," Dr. Wood said: "Common place as it may seem, that is the ultimate truth for which this day stands in the calendar of our nation. Only as individuals serve God and their fellowmen at real cost and sacrifice to themselves can truth and justice and freedom be established and become

Burglars Get Funds From Electra News Stand

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, May 29.—The Daily Times news stand, local agency for Times Publishing company, was entered Saturday night and $35 taken from the cash register. Intruders entered by breaking a rear window, according to J. P. Doherty, the manager. Sheriff Perry Browning and Jim Gonzales, finger print expert of Wichita Falls made the investigation. Several finger prints were located and officials expect to locate the thief.

Pretty Girls Take Place Of Lifeguards at Beach

NEW YORK, May 29. (US)—The movie-hero lifeguard is no more at Sheepshead bay.

He has been replaced by squads of pretty girls.

Their chief trouble thus far has been to distinguish the real from the spurious in the cries of "help! help!" that come from big brave men who think it would be fun to be rescued by a mermaid.

Russia Defiant Of Jap Plea For War

MOSCOW, May 30.—Tokyo dispatches stating that the Japanese Fascist organ, Nikhon, is urging immediate war on Russia to make Siberia independent of Moscow as a buffer state to Japan's Manchurian interests received defiant comment today in Pravda, semi-official Soviet newspaper. Pravda stated:

"We can't help what Nikhon wants to think; nevertheless, we believe that the imperialist controversy is a much harder nut to crack than Japan believes.

"This open call to war demonstrates the peacefulness of Japan. But let the editors of Nikhon realize they will no more see the open door into Siberia than they will ever see their own ears.

"Nikhon's call is another link in the chain of Japanese provocations for which the Soviet union is not afraid."

Five News Reporters Share Pulitzer Award

NEW YORK, May 29. (US)—A newspaper report of the American Legion parade at the 1931 convention in Detroit has won the $1,000 Pulitzer prize in outstanding reporting for five staff members of the Detroit Free Press, President Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia university announced today.

Their article was one of 15 nominations and exhibits selected by a jury from 1,000 news stories and submitted last week by Dr. Butler to a special committee for final decision.

New York Bootblacks Released by Court

NEW YORK, May 29. (US)—Twenty bootblacks, one of them 70 years old, who were rounded up on Broadway following complaints of store keepers, were dismissed in West Side court today. They told Magistrate Greenespan they were unable to find work and that the few nickels a day they earned kept them from starvation. The judge told them to seek side streets.

Irish Stops Payment Of Land Annuities

LONDON, May 29. (US)—The Irish Free State government is stopping land annuities to Great Britain and will demand repayment of the $150,000,000 Britain has "illegally" collected, Minister of Industry and Commerce Lemass was quoted as stating in dispatches from Cork today.

Hofstadter Inquisitor To Ask That Mayor Walker Be Ousted From Office

Seabury Plans to Complete Evidence Against New York Executive Tuesday, Then Petition Roosevelt

NEW YORK, May 29. (AP)—Samuel Seabury plans to complete his evidence against Mayor Walker at Tuesday's hearing of the Hofstadter committee and then proceed to draw up removal charges against him, it was learned today.

The charges will be filed with Governor Roosevelt before the Democratic national convention on June 23.

With the prospect of his aspirations for the Democratic presidential nomination being vitally affected by the Walker Case, Roosevelt is expected to deal cautiously with the charges.

In his arraignment of the mayor, Seabury will picture him as a public official with his hat out, willing to accept money from persons with an axe to grind as well as from personal friends actuated solely by generosity.

He will charge, secondly, that Walker, by his own testimony, has shown himself to be careless of his personal finances to the point of sheer irresponsibility.

He will assert the evidence indicates that the fugitive Russell T. Sherwood was Walker's fiscal agent and dummy; that Sherwood's million-dollar deposits actually belonged to the mayor, and that Sherwood's disappearance, in the midst of the inquiry into his relations with Walker, "is some evidence of guilt."

Admitted Taking Money

Walker has admitted accepting money from friends but has insisted the cash and the bonds he received were only his share of the profits in stock enterprises in which he was ready to bear his part of the losses, if any had resulted.

To this Seabury will point out in his charges that the mayor's friends have testified that Walker never put up any of his own money in the investments and they never expected to let him pay for any possible losses.

The mayor has flatly disowned Sherwood as his agent and denied

SHOT WOUNDS RANCH WOMAN

Llano County Youth Held After Shooting

LLANO, Texas, May 29. (AP)—Mrs. Nettie Ward, Llano county ranch owner, was wounded in her neck and and hands by a charge fired from a shot gun, at her home near here today.

She was taken to a hospital in Austin where physicians said her condition was serious. Hope for her recovery was expressed, however.

Rufus Deats Jr., Mrs. Ward's son-in-law, was arrested and placed in the Llano county jail here by Deputy Sheriff Frank Wallace. Wallace said Deats had not made a statement, and that Deats' wife, Mrs. Ward's daughter and only child, witnessed the shooting.

"We are holding Deats in jail pending outcome of Mrs. Ward's wounds before filing a formal charge," Wallace said.

Deats, his wife, and their little son, were making their home with Mrs. Ward, Deputy Sheriff Wallace said. He said he knew none of the particulars incident to the shooting. Only one shot was fired, he said. The shooting took place about noon. Deats is about 25 years old.

ERIE, Pa., May 29. (US)—Three men were killed and two other persons were injured, one probably fatally, today when the automobile in which they were riding crashed through the rear of a truck parked on a highway here.

Mexican Police On Trail Of Fleischer

MEXICO CITY, May 29.—Picking up the trail of a man believed to be Harry Fleischer, Detroit "Purple" gangster sought by New Jersey police for questioning into the Lindbergh kidnaping, hundreds of police and troops today poured into the mountains around Zimpan, state of Hidalgo.

A man resembling Fleisher and a "good-looking young woman from California" were reported stalled in an automobile along the international highway at Zimpan last night.

The report was sent police by a motorist who claims he recognized Fleisher from photographs posted throughout Mexico.

The highway is being watched and the towering mountain lands that lie along 200 miles of its length are being searched in the belief that Fleisher may be hiding in them.

Bulgaria Tells Greece She Can't Pay Debt

LONDON, May 29. (US)—The Bulgarian government has informed Greece it will be unable to make the next payment under the debt settlement of 1931, a dispatch from Athens stated today.

The advice added that the new Greek ministry will protest to Sofia and demand observance of the agreement.

FINANCIER DIES IN DROP FROM HIGH WINDOW

E. Bogardus Shaw Plunges To Death From Eighth Floor of Building

CHICAGO, May 29.(UP)—E. Bogardus Shaw, retired financier, plunged to his death today from a 13th floor Lake Shore apartment, a few blocks from the spot where Edward F. Swift, the meat packer, was killed similarly yesterday.

Shaw, a former member of the Chicago stock exchange, had been a semi-invalid for several months, said his wife, who also is in ill health. The janitor of the building, upon hearing a crash in the alley, found Shaw's pajama clad body.

Swift Rites Tuesday

After a coroner's jury held Swift's fall from an eighth story apartment on State Parkway accidental, members of his family announced that funeral services would be held Tuesday. He was 68 years old, chairman of the board of Swift & Co., and was one of the best known members of the meat packing industry in America.

Alfred A. Norton, 62, a lawyer, living in Highland Park, north of Chicago, was found dead of carbon monoxide gas from the running of his car in a closed garage behind his residence, today. People with whom he lived said he had been in poor health.

Hoover to Make Statement On Legislative Situation

WASHINGTON, May 29. (US)—President Hoover returned to Washington late today from the Rapidan camp, changing former plans to remain at the camp through tomorrow.

It was understood the president returned to prepare an official statement on the legislative situation, although the White House gave out no information.

German Scientist May Have to Do Crime To Reach Home

NEW YORK, May 29. (US)—Dr. Charles G. Franz, formerly wealthy German scientist and inventor of an oil cracking process, may have to commit a crime to be deported to Germany, he said today.

Dr. Franz, jobless and broke, unable to interest American companies in his inventions is anxious to get back to his wife and four children, who are starving in Germany. Government officials told him they did not see how he could be deported because he is a man of high character, and not an "undesirable."

NAT C. BROWNE FORCED DOWN IN TOKYO HOP

Oil Line Breaks After 7 Hours in Air From Seattle Airport

SEATTLE, May 29. (US)—Nat C. Browne today failed in his attempt to make a non-stop flight from Seattle to Tokyo.

But, undismayed by the fact that he had cheated death by only the narrowest margin, he announced that he will take off again tomorrow morning in a second attempt to win the $29,000 prize offered for the hop.

Browne succeeded in getting off the ground with his three-ton fuel load, but in doing so the tail of his big red monoplane brushed a tree at the end of the runway at Boeing field and a stabilizer brace wire was torn loose.

Oil Line Breaks

In spite of this, Browne continued on and was off the northwest coast of Vancouver island when an oil line broke and he was compelled to turn back.

The second mishap was a blessing in disguise, as, Browne declared upon his return to the airport, the tail of his plane would have come off had he continued the flight much further.

When the oil line broke, Browne was blinded by a stream of oil and barely escaped crashing into the sea.

Narrow Escape

"I was flying at a low altitude," Browne related, "and I had a pretty narrow escape. I just did manage to wipe the oil out of my eyes and off my goggles in time."

Browne turned his plane back toward Seattle as soon as he realized

Africa to Deport American Missionaries

LONDON, May 29. (US)—Four American missionaries will be deported from South Africa tomorrow because authorities fear their preaching might cause unrest among the natives, advices from Johannesburg today stated.

The dispatches said the missionaries, who came to South Africa under the auspices of the International Bible Students association, are P. De Jager, M. De Jager, S. Nashall and N. Isbet.

Dime Taxi Operators Call Public Meeting; Injunction Plea Postponed

Handbills inviting the public to attend a mass meeting at the courthouse Monday night at 8 o'clock to hear "the whole truth about the 10-cent taxi business" were being circulated Sunday by drivers of taxis here.

Reference is made on the handbill to the trial of several taxi drivers scheduled for 2 p. m. Tuesday in corporation court on charges of having violated the city's ordinance fixing 25 cents as a minimum per passenger charge for taxi service in Wichita Falls.

Operators of taxis here will ask public support in continuing such service at a rate lower than that stipulated by the city in its recently adopted ordinance, according to plans announced for Monday night's mass meeting.

Indefinite postponement of the hearing on a petition for injunction against the city, scheduled for Monday, was announced Sunday. According to Judge P. A. Martin of the 89th district court, before whom the petition was filed more than two weeks ago by Attorney Jack Ballard, the hearing has been postponed upon request of Mr. Ballard.

At 10 o'clock Monday morning before Judge W. W. Cook in the 78th district court there will be an habeas corpus hearing for G. C. Williams, operator of the Williams 10-cent taxis here, who was arrested last week for alleged violation of the city's taxi-rate ordinance. The petition for such a writ was filed by Mr. Ballard last Friday morning for an immediate hearing, but postponement to Monday was granted at the city's request.

Relative Tells New Stories In Life Of Blazer Of Famous Chisholm Trail

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Texas, May 29.—John S. Chisholm, blazer of that trail which bears his name and over which countless hordes of longhorn cattle have been driven to northern markets from Texas, once established almost unlimited credit through a $40,000 check which was turned down as worthless by a Texas bank.

This new story, and other interesting tales of incidents in the life of that pioneer of the plains, probably the best known rancher in all the annals of the west, is told by T. R. Chisholm of El Paso, who is conducting revival services at the Chruch of Christ here. The Rev. Mr. Chisholm is a relative of the founder of the Chisholm trail.

Once, while buying supplies at Col. Zack Miller's store at Belton, then an outpost of Texas' great cattle ranges, John S. Chisholm offered a $40,000 check drawn on a St. Louis bank by Charles Goodnight, in payment for his purchases.

Colonel Miller, himself now ranked as one of the most colorful figures of the Southwest, accepted the check, giving change in cash. Chisholm proceeded on his way.

The next day Miller tendered the $40,000 check at his bank. It was turned down as worthless. Colonel Miller hastily opened pursuit of Chisholm. After three days of hard riding, he caught up with the rancher.

Chisholm contended the check was good and instructed Miller to wire the St. Louis bank for confir-

CITY HONORS SOLDIER DEAD

Flags Decorate Graves In Cemeteries Here

universal in the earth. In memory of other days, thousands are tenting today on the old camp ground where they live again those scenes of other days, and more fervently voice a prayer of gratitude for the dawn and day of peace. We come today not to honor war, but to honor our soldier dead, and those who were willing to make the supreme sacrifice.

"America has never been a warlike nation. God grant she never will. Separated by the Atlantic from Europe and by the Pacific from the Orient, we have never believed that war was either a biological or moral necessity. As a people we have cultivated the arts of peace; we have believed in the little red school house and not the fort; in the home and not the armory. When, therefore on April 12, 1861, our flag was fired on at Fort Sumpter, the union was entirely unprepared. Yet when Lincoln in the North and Lee in the South called for volunteers, men answered by the thousands. And for four black purgatorial years faced death in every form. They discovered that without the shedding of blood there could be no nation. Today we all rejoice that the animosities of the past are forgotten and the North and South clasp hands as brothers.

On Foreign Soil

"Again in 1898, our men marched away to war, realizing there could be no freedom for our nation to the south without the shedding of blood. These men of the Spanish-American war were the first to plant the Stars and Stripes on foreign soil. They fought with nothing to gain but that the weak should not be oppressed and that truth and freedom might be established everywhere.

"How much more the spirit of sacrifice was manifest in the great Armegeddon of the world. Never before was there such shedding of blood and sacrifice of life. In 'The direct and indirect cost of the war,' E. L. Bogart says: 'The total known dead numbered 10,000,000. Seriously wounded 6,000,000, otherwise wounded 14,000,000.' What did we gain?

"We are still debating who won the war. May I tell you? Mars won, death conquered, hell rejoiced. The silent graves of our comrades today speak with a voice louder than any oratory, moving us to resolve that others shall not die as they have done.

"A warless world is possible. Isaiah predicted this long, long ago. A modern prophet has said, 'The day will come when war between Paris and London will be as impossible as between New York and Washington. Bonds will be replaced by ballots and the United States of Europe will shake hands with the United States of America. Your task and mine is to bridge the gap between the day that is and the day that is to be. God help the church never to surrender her opposition to war. Christ rides on ahead; He bids us follow.' I plead with you service men today to complete the service which you began to your country; great as you were in war, greater can you be in peace. Abraham Lincoln at Gettysburg said, 'The world will little note, nor long remember what we say here but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us to here resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation under God shall have a new birth of freedom and that government of the people, for the people and by the people shall never perish from the earth.' Your blood ran warm on the field of battle, let it run warm today. Some of America's greatest enemies are not on the outside but within her borders. Let us face them as we faced her enemies of other days.

Anchor of Liberty

"We sang 'Faith of Our Fathers.' Their faith was a faith in the ultimate triumph of righteousness. Faith in God was the hope of this nation in the past. Benjamin Franklin, before a great convention said, 'I am an old man of four score years with my head right for the grave. I do not believe an empire or a republic can be launched without God's help, and I move, Mr. President, that this convention be opened with prayer, and that we invoke divine guidance and help in the step we are about to take.' George Washington sealed the event with prayer. The Bible is the basis of our constitution, the anchor of our liberty. Proverbs says, 'Righteousness exalteth a nation. Sin is a reproach to any people.' The nation that closes her doors against that Bible, closes them against God. The story of America is a story of a book and that Book is the Bible. As each Memorial day comes may it find America grounded more firmly on the great corner-stone of her faith, the Bible.

"The supreme sacrifice was that of Jesus Christ, our Lord. He came from the ivory palaces and the golden throne to the depths of sin and shame, to the death on the cross for your sake and mine. That was Memorial day of Memorial days. Are you living today the life He meant for you to live? As you fought in other days under the stars and stripes, let me urge you this morning to volunteer under the flag of Christ and join with us in a war against wrong and for righteousness."

The entire center section of the main auditorium at the First Christian church was occupied by veterans of military service, with the American Legion Drum and Bugle corps personnel of about 40 in uniform. "Tenting on the Old Camp Ground" was sung by R. E. Shepherd as a solo, and the choir sang Paul Rodney's "Cavalry" as an anthem.

Graves Decorated

Approximately 100 soldiers' graves in Rosemont and Riverside cemeteries were decorated with American flags Sunday by a detail of local legionnaires in charge of Service Officer J. F. Friberg. Services in honor of Spanish-American war veterans conducted at Riverside cemetery were in charge of Roy J. Daniel, post-commander of the American Legion here. Prayer was said by Dr. Wood, and the rifle salute presented by L. M. Thayer, G. W. Jackson, Tom Cunningham, Ellis McCaig, C. W. Andree, E. W. Bourland and A. L. Tucker.

The column which formed at the Riverside cemetery gates at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon was headed by the colors, carried by J. H. Simmons and Leonard Hotham, with John Glabb and H. A. Carter as color guards. Buglers and the firing squad followed, after which were veterans of the Spanish-American war, David C. McCaleb camp; members of Pat Carrigan post, American Legion; and members of auxiliaries of both the ex-soldiers' organizations.

During the entire day, decoration of hundreds of graves in all local cemeteries by friends and relatives took place.

A special musical program, in charge of R. E. Shepherd, was presented at the First Christian church Sunday night in further commemoration of the day. Hymns and wartime songs were presented in sequence to suggest the experiences of a soldier from enlistment to memorial service. The program closed with taps, played by a bugler.

Hawaii's coffee crop is expected to be greater than that of last year.

KING CAROL GETS WARNING

Mystery Writer Hints At Death for Rumanian

VIENNA, May 29. (AP)—A mysterious parable writer who signs himself "" and is believed by many to be Gen. Alexandru Averescu, leader of the Rumanian people's party, caused excitement in Bucharest today with veiled warnings of death for King Carol of Rumania and his friend, Mme Magda Lupescu.

Months ago he hinted strongly at dethronement of the Rumanian king, but recently his writings have taken a more sober turn. A week ago he alluded to the death of the French king, Henry II, in terms leaving no doubt he was warning King Carol.

Cafes Buzz With Talk

The cafes buzzed today over his latest "history parable" in the people's party organ, "Indreptarea" which again plays with the death theme in what some readers interpreted as an attack on Madame Lupescu, red-haired companion of Carol's Paris exile before he became king.

In this sensational parable, the text of which has appeared in Vienna, "" took as his theme Madame Du Barry and her influence over Louis XV.

It was out of the corruption of Louis' court that grew the French revolution, the mysterious writer said, "and only slaves and lackeys could glorify kings like Louis XV today."

Parable Cites Weakness

Even as a youth his "weakness for women" was a problem, the parable said, and in the hope of overcoming this weakness the French royal family and government decided to marry Louis to the foreign princess, Marie Leszinska, daughter of the dethroned king of Poland.

"But although his young wife was beautiful in body and soul, Louis—the ladies' friend—soon abandoned her and resumed his former way of life," the parable continued, "instead of his queen, there ruled in France she whom history knows as Du Barry.

"Beautiful and blonde, spirited, perverse and uncommonly ingratiating she won the king without difficulty. He bought her a villa and gave her a monthly allowance of 300,000 pounds."

Political interpreters of this "history parable" in looking for a parallel recalled that Princess Helen, estranged wife of King Carol, is the daughter of a dethroned Polish king.

Residence Destroyed

Reading "he bought her a villa," the cafe crowds remembered the recent purchase of a villa for Madame Lupescu in fashionable Lipescu park of Bucharest, where she lately was said to be giving teas and bridge parties.

The death note was particularly pronuonced in view of a story persistently circulated in Bucharest to the effect that a soothsayer years ago foretold an attempt would be made to assassinate King Carol "not long after fire destroyed one of his residences." The royal chateau recently burned down at Sinaia.

Many persons believe the story is just another attempt to warn or intimidate King Carol.

Drunk Turns in Alarm When 'Insides' Burn

NEW YORK, May 29. (US)—Demott Broderick turned in a fire alarm today.

"Where's the fire?" a battalion chief asked him, after looking vainly around the vicinity.

"Inside me—hic!" replied Broderick. "I'm burning up."

"Two days in the cooler will fix that," said the magistrate an hour later.

Mishap Forces Browne To Land

the situation and dumped a large part of his fuel load to make it safe to land.

"A third of my oil supply had been used up," Browne explained. "I was only in the air a little more than seven hours. I realized it would be out of the question to continue. But I am going to try again tomorrow."

To Fuel in Air

Next time Browne will not try to get off the ground with a full load of fuel. Instead, he will take off with his tanks only partially filled, drop his landing gear and then refuel over the field.

He must reach Tokyo on or before June 1, to qualify for the prize money.

The flight from Seattle to Tokyo via the "great circle" route, a distance of from 4,500 to 5,000 miles will take 48 hours, if winds are favorable.

Browne had estimated that he would land in Tokyo in 55 hours.

Thus he must make a start tomorrow if he is to reach Japan by Wednesday, June 1.

The big, sunburned range rider, a former airmail pilot, had waited for several days for favorable winds, finally taking off at 5:20 a. m. today (9:20 New York time.)

Crowd Anxious

He was greeted on his unexpected return by crowds who had watched his take-off and had settled down at Boeing field to await bulletins of his progress.

Considerable anxiety had been felt for his safety when, as the afternoon wore on, the big red plane was unreported by ships at sea.

Browne's ship was heavily loaded with 950 gallons of gasoline at his take-off. He averted a near-accident by dumping gasoline when his plane was a few feet off the ground and barely succeeded in clearing the tops of trees surrounding the field.

BROMLEY TO FLY TO LOS ANGELES

NEW YORK, May 29. (US)—Harold Bromley, former Canadian army flier, will take off at dawn tomorrow from Lloyd Bennett field here for an attempted 20-hour nonstop flight to Los Angeles. He denied he had made any definite plans to fly from Seattle to Tokyo.

HAUSNER PREPARES TO TRY AGAIN

NEW YORK, May 29. (US)—Stanislaus Hausner, Polish-American amateur flier and motion picture operator who was forced back last night on his projected solo flight to Warsaw, announced today that he would try again some time next week.

Undiscouraged, the smiling Hausner spent the day tinkering with his Bellanca monoplane at Floyd Bennett airport. His bride of a year, Martha, who collapsed after his take-off yesterday afternoon, was at his side, happy over his safe if inglorious return.

Wichita Girl Injured In Auto Collision

Virginia Jo Lawrence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Lawrence, 1005 Holliday, suffered minor cuts about her head when struck by flying glass in an automobile crash at Avenue G and Taylor at 7 o'clock Sunday night. The girl was riding in a large sedan with Mrs. C. H. Evans when the car figured in a smashup with a sedan driven by C. H. Parker Jr. Emergency treatment was given the girl at the Wichita General hospital where she was taken by Police Sergeant R. M. Hurst. Motorcycle Officers Harry King and Herbert Pogue investigated.

Young Woman Named U. S. Assistant Attorney

NEW YORK, May 29. (US)—Miss Dorothy Aronson, 24, has never studied law and never taken a bar examination.

Yet she has been appointed assistant United States attorney in the office of Howard Ameli, in Brooklyn.

Miss Aronson explains that you don't have to be a lawyer to be a United States attorney. But you have to be "learned in the law." And she thinks she can qualify in that respect, after five years as secretary to Mr. Ameli and five years before that in other law offices.

NEW CHISHOLM STORIES TOLD

El Paso Minister Relates Tales of Trail Blazer

mation. If the check was not good, he said, he would make it good.

Returning to Belton, while Chisholm again proceeded on his way, Colonel Miller found that his bank had wired St. Louis and was informed that the check was good.

This incident proved to be valuable to Chisholm, and from that time thereafter, his name was as good as cash at Miller's store.

Dissatisfied With Prices

Chisholm came to Texas from Mississippi in 1837 with his father, Claybourne Chisholm. When about 25 years of age he and his brother, James, moved to Denton, where they engaged in the cattle business.

John became dissatisfied with prices paid in Texas for cattle. He decided northern markets offered more advantageous prices for cattle raisers, and thereupon embarked on that project that made his name famous in the history of Texas and other Southwestern cattle states.

With a herd of Texas longhorns, he and a group of his ranch hands launched forth on a long and perilous journey. After days upon days of driving and herding the wild, longhorned creatures, now almost extinct, beset by many hardships and dangers, the small band of cowboys eventually arrived at their destination, Abilene, Kan.

Marked New Era

The successful termination of the trail blazing expedition marked the beginning of a new era in Texas and in the lives of Texas ranchers. It spelled the difference between success and failure for the settlers of the state, who, hardy and resourceful as they were, otherwise faced a financial catastrophe.

Chisholm's herd pioneered the path that soon became a little highway for other herds of Texas cattle. Shortly it became the accepted route along which cattlemen of the state drove their herds to market—and higher, profitable prices. Chisholm blazed the way—other cattlemen followed.

Ranched on Big Scale

In time, as the Chisholm trail proved its worth, it was a common sight to see literally thousands of longhorns being driven, seething, bellowing, in huge clouds of dust, slowly, gradually, to the north.

At the time of his adventurous trail-blazing expedition, John Chisholm ranched on a larger scale, by far, than any other man in Texas. It was said that his cattle ranged from the Brazos river to the Concho. His headquarters were at Fort Concho (now San Angelo), an important point along the first mail route from the east to California.

Keen Business Man

The Rev. Mr. Chisholm tells another story of his forebear, in which John Chisholm, with the business acumen which characterized him, took advantage of the gullibility of an inexperienced English rancher, whose lands neighbored the Chisholm domain.

The Englishman one morning came to Chisholm with a tale of distressing woe. A snow had fallen during the night, collecting in great drifts. The Englishman's herds had disappeared. Overestimating the fall of the snow by reason of the huge drifts, John Bull's representative, who had come to America to prospect for wealth in Texas' cattle industry, was convinced he had been "wiped out," that his herds had been exterminated by the storm of the night before. He, inexperienced as he was, didn't realize that cattle, particularly Texas longhorns, were unusually hardy critters with the habit of shifting for themselves in time of peril, and capable of seeking out shelter in time of storm.

Rolled With Mirth

Chisholm lent sympathetic ear to the Englishman's tale of misfortune.

He offered to take a chance, to buy the Englishman's ranch and his herd, if, by the fates that guide disaster into the lap of Texas ranchmen, any of the herd was left.

The Englishman was overjoyed at such a proposition, even though the offer was small. He would realize a tidy sum where he had expected to profit not at all. He accepted; he was tired of ranching, anyway.

The deal complete, Chisholm could hold himself no longer.

He fell to the ground, rolling with mirth in the foot-deep snow. Such British ignorance!

Took Revenge

On another instance, Indians raided the Chisholm cattle, with impudent impunity, so they thought. They held no fear for the government forces stationed to guard against such onslaughts.

But John Chisholm was not a man to let a thing like that go unrevenged and the raiders unpunished. He proceeded to induce officers commanding the troops to drink. As soldiers will, they shortly arrived at a state of deep intoxication. Then—

John Chisholm loosed his cowboys at the offending Indians. Several redskins were killed in the engagement. From that time thenceforward the Chisholm herds ranged without danger of Indian raids.

Outlaw Threatened Life

Chisholm once had trouble with Billy the Kid, notorious outlaw of his day. The Kid claimed wages from the Chisholm outfit and which Chisholm claimed were not due.

After this difference, the Kid threatened his former employer's life on several occasions.

One time particularly did Chisholm get into a "tight spot" with the Kid. The outlaw walked up to Chisholm and bluntly told the rancher that he was going to kill him, there and then.

The Kid was known as a killer. His reputation was one of fearlessness. Chisholm knew that his life might be flicked out the next moment, as the Kid's gun belched smoke—and lead.

Chisholm thought fast.

Calmly he pulled back his coat, exposing his chest.

"Kid," he said, "you wouldn't kill your Uncle John."

The Kid didn't.

Soviet Troops Give Emir Royal Salute

MOSCOW, May 29. (AP)—The troops of Soviet Russia drew up to rigid salute to a royal visitor today, the second such personage to pay a state visit to the stronghold of Communism since the czar was overthrown 14 years ago.

The visitor was the Emir Feisal, viceroy of Hedjaz, and son of the all-powerful Ibn Sa'ud of Arabia.

Two of the highest officials of Communism were sent to greet the princely tourist at the railway station, where a royal carpet was spread for him.

Sleep-Walker Awakened At Police Station After Hour's Jaunt

One Fort Worth man who is visiting in Wichita Falls and who is a frequent sleep-walker was awakened at the police station at 5 o'clock Sunday morning an hour after he had walked from a residence on Lucile street where he is visiting. Neighbors telephoned police at 4 o'clock that a scantily clad man was walking the street.

Officers Fred Stengel and George Garrett located the sleep-walker wrapped in a quilt in a car with a group of Wichita Falls boys. He had asked for aid in keeping warm. Officers awakened the man at police headquarters, sent for his clothes and released him.

SEABURY TO ASK OUSTER

Evidence Against Walker To End Tuesday

he ever had "a penny's interest" in the missing witness' bank accounts. At last Thursday's hearing Walker said:

"I am either guilty of perjury or not on that answer, and if I am I would expect to be prosecuted for it."

Important Point

This, apparently, will be an important point in Walker's defense—that if his testimony conflicts with documentary evidence or testimony of other witnesses, the governor cannot decide the issue of veracity but the courts must.

The governor leaned toward this attitude when he removed Thomas M. Farley from the sheriff's office four months ago. In that decision Roosevelt declined to pass on the question of perjury in Farley's denial of the testimony of police officials that professional gamblers operated under his protection in his Tammany district club.

Laid Down Rule

In the same Farley decision, however, Roosevelt laid down a rule on the financial responsibilities of public officials that may have an important bearing on the Walker case.

Roosevelt held that public officials under inquiry owe a "positive public duty" to give a "reasonable or credible" explanation of the sources of their personal wealth.

In order to wind up the presentation of evidence relating to Mayor Walker, Seabury expects to call J. Allen Smith, Equitable bus promoter, State Senator John A. Hastings and Edward Stanton, former secretary to Walker, at tomorrow's hearing of the Hofstadter committee.

Back Up Denial

Hastings and Stanton have demanded an opportunity to back up the mayor's denial of a direct or indirect interest in the purchase of 300 shares of Interstate Trust company stock which later was traced to the hands of the Equitable group. Park Commisioner Herrick has contradicted Walker's story on this transaction.

Smith also will be questioned about this matter, as well as the $10,000 letter of credit and the $3,000 overdraft which he paid for and which was used te defray the incidental expenses of the mayor's party on the 1927 trip to Europe.

Seabury regards this trio as "hostile" witnesses but is willing to let them tell their stories for the record.

Brother Missing

Unless Dr. William H. Walker, the mayor's brother who has been reported "missing" for the past two weeks, appears for questioning, no further public hearings are likely to be held this week.

Seabury wishes to question Dr. Walker about his receipt of $2,620 from William P. Scanlon, city hall hanger-on who sold equipment to the city commission. The sum paid to Dr. Walker represents half of the commission Scanlon received on one sale.

Dr. Walker is also to be questioned about an alleged monopoly by a group of six physicians, headed by him and Dr. William Schroeder Jr., chairman of the board of sanitation, on medical services for city employes injured while on duty.

At Dr. Walker's home tonight a maid said he was "out of town" but expected back Tuesday.

Arkansas Makes Arrest In Auto Tag Thefts

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 29. (US)—Proceeding on the theory that the guilty persons are members of a band of automobile thieves, members of the state highway patrol today were trying to learn the identity of persons who during the past several months have stolen unissued motor vehicle license plates from the highway department store room in the basement of the state house.

Theft of the tags was revealed by a check which followed arrest of an automobile operator last week when a member of the highway patrol saw a car bearing a tag number which was supposed to be still in stock.

SENATE GIRDS FOR TAX FIGHT

Sales Levy Opponents Seek Names on Petition

WASHINGTON, May 29. (AP)—Rival leaders in the momentous sales tax dispute in the senate flung challenges for an immediate showdown today apparently assuring an early decision and prompt enactment of the revenue bill.

The disputed levy seemed beaten as the opposition claimed a majority pledged to a petition against it and the proponents admitted it was a "close fight."

Forty-two members had signed the round robin petitions declaring against the sales tax substitute, and those circulating them confidently predicted 50 names—an absolute majority—would be enrolled by noon tomorrow.

Senator Harrison of Mississippi, the Democratic tax leader, had 33 Democratic signatures on the opposition petition. Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, leader of the Republican independenents in the tax concontroversy, had nine Republicans signed up.

Walsh Confident

Senator Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, sponsor of the maunfacturers' sales tax of 1.75 per cent proposed as a substitute for the various excise rates, made no claims but expressed confidence that a majority could be won by the time a vote is reached.

Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader, who is favorable to the sales levy, said he was ready for a vote and insisted responsibility for any delay would rest on the opposition.

Senator Harrison also said he was ready for a vote and demanded it. He argued that the best way to speed the budget balancing measure was to lay aside the disputed sales tax.

"Of course," Watson said, "if a majority signs the petition against the sales tax that ends it right there."

Meanwhile, looking about for the additional $56,000,000 which Secretary Mills says must be provided by the revenue measure, senate sentiment was swinging today to a further increase in the income tax rates along the lines proposed by Senator Connally, Democrat, Texas.

Senate eyes are directed toward the White House with the sales tax controversy raging bitterly, but it appeared tonight that President Hoover would keep hands off for a while, at least.

The Connally income tax schedule, once defeated by the senate, provides for normal income rates of four per cent on the first $4,000 and eight per cent above $4,000 with a surtax schedule graduating to 55 per cent on incomes in excess of $1,000,000.

The income schedule now in the bill provides normal rates of three per cent on the first $4,000; six per cent on the next $4,000 and nine per cent on income over $8,000 with a maximum surtax of 45 per cent.

Defeat of the sales tax by the house is playing a big part in the senate contest, opponents there contending it would be futile and a waste of time for the senate to restore the levy to the bill in view of the house decision.

Woman Dies After Collapse in Beauty Shop

CHICAGO, May 29. (US)—Mystery veiled the death of a woman here today who collapsed while receiving treatment in a beauty parlor and was unconscious for 64 hours until she died.

The death of the woman, Mrs. James T. Liddy, 56, was explained by the discovery of a small phial in her coat pocket.

She was being given a facial treatment in the Josephine beauty parlor when she fell unconscious from her chair.

It is believed that she had taken an overdose of a sleeping potion, and weakened by a period of sleepless nights, succumbed to its effects.

Bonus Marchers Reach Washington

promised, failed to arrive at the barracks prepared for the veterans, and Glassford got the Volunteers of America to do the cooking tonight.

These men found awaiting them here 225 more veterans, most of them from the far West, who came ahead of the main parade in box cars, in automobiles, and by hitch hiking across the continent. The advance guard is housed in another barracks.

Vets Determined

The veterans seem determined to remain here, though Glassford hopes to get them out of town within two or three days. They say they will stay if necessary till 1945, when the bonus certificates automatically mature and are payable in full.

Also, though Glassford believes other bonus armies are being discouraged at the source by telegrams pleading lack of facilities to house and feed them, the veterans here, who seem in remarkably close touch with other towns, believe that several thousand more will arrive this week, to demand that $2,000,000,000 be paid to the millions of war veterans as an unemployment relief measure calculated to put money into circulation—for there is little doubt that the two billion would be spent promptly.

Varied Costumes

It was an impressive group of men, the veterans who arrived today. Waters, their leader, in mid-thirties, is tall, slim, tanned, fair haired, with keen gray eyes. He is dressed in civilian khaki with high woodsman's boot. His men, coming cheering and waving into town, were in all sorts of costumes—except army uniforms. They wore their own clothes, many with service ribbons. Some were in overalls, others in worn and wrinkled suits, some in sports khaki. There were mackinaws and sweaters. The men were mostly thin and somewhat gaunt. They have not been eating regularly on their trip across the country.

The veterans are organized in military fashion. As soon as their trucks stopped here, a patrol of "veterans' police" with blue and white arm bands and little home made "billies" jumped out and started walking post up and down the line of trucks. The leaders are elected by popular vote.

There was no sign of disorder. The men received a friendly response from Washingtonians to their cheers and hand waves, and they seemed happy.

Their plans for demonstrations have not been formed. They were tired and hungry tonight, and intend tomorrow to talk over the possibilities of demonstrations—they hope, in concert with thousands of others.

BASE OF LINDY SEARCH MOVED

Jersey Police Establish New Headquarters

HOPEWELL, N. J., May 29. (AP)—The rough-hewn tables, the hastily placed cots, the bulky files and the emergency communication system—police headquarters for 90 days—were borne from the Lindbergh estate today and the wide flung search for the slayers of the flier's baby given a new base of operations.

The destination of much of the equipment was the state police training school at Wilburtha, not far from Trenton.

Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh escaped the moving scene for they now are staying at the Dwight Morrow estate in Englewood, a two-hour automobile trip from Hopewell. So that the colonel may be in close touch with authorities an enlarged police station was ordered set up at Alpine, near Englewood.

"The detail will maintain daily contacts with Colonel Lindbergh," said Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey police.

It was a busy day at the big white house on the Lindbergh estate, which is once more to assume aspect of a normal American home. Betty Gow, nurse of the 1ste baby, stayed to help, but it is expected she later will go to Englewood.

A guard is to be maintained at the gateway to the Lindbergh estate, for protection against curious marauders. It was indicated the home will be kept open, with the Wheatleys in charge, at least for the time being.

The plans of the Lindberghs still are indefinite. Friends said there seemed little likelihood they would leave New Jersey for some time, for Colonel Lindbergh has assured police he will "stay by" to give all cooperation in the search for the kidnapers. Mrs. Lindbergh expects another child in the late summer.

John Hughes Curtis, confessed hoax negotiator, spent a quiet Sunday in jail at Flemington.

Original Luncheon Program Closes Season For Writers

A Russian motif furnished the background for the annual spring luncheon and program that closed the official meetings of the Manuscript club in a private dining room at the Wichita club Saturday. A heavy cream lace cloth covered the long table and richly colored garlardias flanked the handsome brass samovar that centered the table.

Eight line poems on a Russian theme were tickets of admission for members. Place cards were in red with the program enclosed and names of members and guests were in black lettering on the red covers. Mrs. Sam Kruger served as interpreter, and translated each name into English.

Mrs. Bentley Nelson was toast mistress and called the meeting to order. As the members and guests were seated, Mrs. Kruger entered, dressed as an aristocrat of old Russia, in a rich blue gown, heavy furs and carrying a lorgnette. She was seated when Mrs. H. B. Van Emden, in a peasant's frock of Bolshevik red, with red bandanna round her head, entered, looked up and down the table and took a chair whereupon Mrs. Kruger rose in remonstrance. The clever play of words in the ensuing dialogue was the work of Mesdames Nelson, Kruger and Van Emden as co-authors. The discussion between the two representatives of Russia waxed warm until when Mrs. Kruger said indignantly, "She's nothing but a Communist," Mrs. Nelson rose and told the two actresses that if they wished to continue the discussion, they would have to go outside. Their departure gave them an opportunity to change into their usual dress. The skit was so clever that it was repeated by request at the close of the regular program.

Mrs. Van Emden Wins

Mrs. Nelson read the poems submitted by the members and the small pencils attached to place cards were used in a vote for the best. Mrs. H. B. Van Emden was winner and received a handsome Russian ash tray. "The Cycle," the poem submitted by Mrs. Bently Nelson, won second place and Mrs. Nelson won a novel Russian covered telephone directory.

Excerpts from letters written by a friend of Mrs. Bentley Nelson gave an interesting conclusion to the program. The writer, formerly a resident of Wichita Falls, has been in Russia for two years, and her comments were brilliant and informative.

Members of the club for whom covers were laid included Mesdames Sam Kruger, Faye Yauger, H. B. Van Emden, E. C. deMontel, James P. Bowen, Claude Williamson, W. B. Whiting, Bentley Nelson, Ann Pence Davis, Mary C. Hindman, John Kay Jr. and L. N. Cason; Misses Lucille Sherrod, Ollie Roediger, Edith Slaton, Annie Edwards and Mary Louise Staley. Guests were Mrs. Jack Rayzor of Longview, Mrs. Arthur Henderson of Boston, Mass., Mesdames Otis Nelson and Max Shain.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

I've a new friend, thanks to the old column. A letter from a regular reader in Iowa Park was a cheering thing. The woman who wrote it is also a native of Tennessee and mutual love of the grand old state has been a common bond between us.

She must be a great deal like myself. We are exactly the same age and I know what it is to have a "house full of children"—most of them grown.

But she wants a picture of the writer at the head of my column! And oh my dear friend, don't you know that would take away any glamour the column might have. I had a picture made last winter and until then did not realize I was not still a sylph like person.

It is much more fun to be a mystery. One day two readers came up to meet me and see what I looked like. Because I wrote one day with "a foot in the grave" and the next like a very young person, they had their curiosity aroused. Well it's just that way. One day I feel years older than on another, and though each year is an added one, I am, as this friend says in her letter she is doing, "growing younger in my heart as the years roll on."

If I had my motherly visage (the picture is plain motherly) at the head of my column, I'd be laughed at a little more when I write of the moonrise and sunset and stars and flowers. And I shall reserve the right to speak of beauty even if I am not beautiful. There was a time when to be beautiful was the one thing I would have asked of a good fairy. That time has passed. My wishes go deeper into things of the heart and soul and spirit now.

But I thank you; and some day, when I feel very, very young, I shall drive to Iowa Park and meet you.

Being from Tennessee, I wonder if you feel as I do about flies. I always knew I hated them; even when mosquitoes were threats of every sort of contagion, I could stand the buzz of a mosquito better than that of a fly. And for the latter to light on me, was always horror.

I picked up the Pathfinder the other day and read that the Rex Research Foundation points out that two flies can produce in one summer a family totaling 5,600,000,000,000 flies. (I suppose they counted the eggs when the flies bred every two weeks).

Then each fly can carry 6,000,000 germs. Now if you will just multiply the germs that may be carried by the possible descendants of two flies, (going up into the trillions), would you blame me for going about as I do in the spring with a swatter tied round my waist? (I still have one).

There's something loathesome in the thought of the dirt hooks on their shining wings; of 30 different varieties of disease germs they may leave on your food and mine, once they have walked across it with their hairy legs. The annual economic loss from disease carried by flies, (according to the Rex Foundation), is $70,000,000 per year. A nice little bit of pin money, isn't it?

Swat the fly!

Young Organists Give Delightful Recital Sunday

Misses Mary Brown Basham, Ruth Lucile Crouch and Lillie Maye Kerr, advanced pupils of Mrs. J. W. Akin Jr., were centers of interest in an unusual organ recital at Floral Heights Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.

The program consisted of three numbers by each of the pretty young artists and their rendition of Stainer, Bach and Mendelssohn compositions showed unusual ability to demonstrate the full capacity of their instrument. The organ is the one formerly used in the First Methodist church where Mrs. Akin has been organist for a number of years.

The church was filled with more than 200 friends of the group and baskets of larkspur, roses and thistles formed a pretty setting for a delightful hour's entertainment. Mrs. Akin and Mrs. C. E. Basham arranged the flowers.

The program was given as follows:

Caprice ..... Cadman
Dance Caprice ..... Sheldon
Fantasie ..... Stainer
Mary Brown Basham
March ..... Lemmens
Concert Caprice ..... Kreiser
Fugue in F Minor ..... Bach
Ruth Lucile Crouch
First Organ Sonata ..... Mendelssohn
(First Movement)
Schersando ..... Gillette
Festival March ..... Lemmens
Lillie Maye Kerr

Wichita Falls Girls Honored in College

Misses Wilma Brown and Marilyn Miller were among San Antonio Westmoreland college students chosen as honor guests of Miss Sue Schiller at Camp Waldemar, in the mountains near Kerrville, Kerr county, as one of the pretty courtesies of the end-of-school season. Canoeing, dancing, and horseback riding were among the entertainment features arranged for the group of charming representative girls.

They were also among the honor guests when 250 girls and their escorts were entertained at a beautiful garden party by Miss Mary Catherine Hall. Sheer organdy frocks and garden hats added to the color of the occasion.

Misses Brown and Miller will spend the summer with their parents in Wichita Falls and will enroll at Ward Belmont college, Nashville, Tenn., for the autumn season.

High Waistline Effect
Pattern 2137
Step-by-Step Instruction Diagrams Given With This Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

There are several ways of obtaining the new higher waistline effect, without actually having it, and this is one. By bringing the printed skirt fabric up into the bodice, and using a plain color for the dress top, the results are achieved without disturbing the lines of the figure. The low skirt flare adds to the smart effect.

Pattern 2137 is obtainable only in sizes 14 to 20 and 32 to 42. Size 16 requires 2¼ yards of 36-inch fabric, 1 yard contrasting.

Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred), for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. Be sure to state size wanted.

Garden Club To Sponsor Seed Gathering Contest

Committees were appointed and rules completed when Mesdames W. W. Cook, J. C. Mytinger and Floyd Randel of the Woman's Forum Garden club, and Miss Mary McIlheran, Camp Fire executive, met Saturday morning in Camp Fire headquarters in the Memorial auditorium to complete plans for the seed gathering contest suggested by Dr. F. R. Collard, member of the Camp Fire board, and adopted as the last project of conservation work of the Garden club in the administration of Mrs. J. C. Mytinger at the final meeting of the Garden club May 26.

As chairman of the Garden club conservation committee, Mrs. W. W. Cook appointed Mesdames J. C. Mytinger, Floyd Randel and Miss McIlheran on the committee. Stressing junior work and conservation work during her administration, Mrs. Mytinger was an enthusiastic endorser of the campaign which is intended as an organized effort to teach Camp Fire girls, who will take part in the project in groups, the value of using what they have, saving what might otherwise go to waste, learning the lesson of thrift as well as the value of beauty culture.

Seed Divided

The larkspur and poppy seed gathered will be divided, after the award of prizes, between Mrs. Floyd Randel, for the junior Garden clubs, and C. C. Brunnenberg, superintendent of parks, for beautification through the city.

The Garden club and Junior Garden club will sponsor the gift of prizes to go to the groups. The first prize will be $3, the second $2 and the third $1.

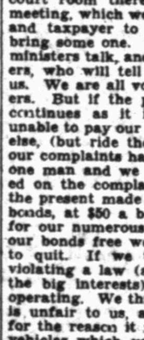

Rules given out for the contests included the following: First, the contest will open June 1 and close June 15; second, all seeds must be turned in to Camp Fire headquarters before 5 p. m. on June 15; third, poppy seed and larkspur must be kept separate; fourth, prizes will be given to groups; fifth, seeds may be collected at any place where the girls get permission to gather them.

Miss McIlheran will be in charge of the containers at the headquarters in the Memorial auditorium where each group will have a container labeled with the name of the group. Seeds are to be put in these containers and weighed by a florist, before the gift of prizes.

Much interest is being manifested by the groups of Camp Fire girls and Mesdames Mytinger and Randel are quite as enthusiastic.

Questions About Weddings Keep Emily Post Busy

By EMILY POST

Instead of one column, I should have the whole newspaper to answer all the questions from brides. So, if you, who are to be married; have not found your answer yet, it is because there have been so many other letters ahead of yours. I'm sorry!

Question: What are the duties of a maid of honor?

Answer: She walks in the processional directly in front of the bride, holds the bride's bouquet during the ceremony, straightens bride's train and veil and follows the bride in the recessional. She stands on the bride's right at the reception, and sits on the bridegroom's left at the bridal table.

Question: In giving a shower for the bride to be, should her mother be invited?

Answer: Yes, if any other older women are invited, or if her mother is staying (transiently) at her daughter's house. Otherwise it is not necessary that she be included in a group of her daughter's age.

Question: At a wedding reception, what is the correct thing to say to the parents of the bride and groom?

Answer: Say anything that is pleasant, and true. "How beautiful Mary is today and how happy they both look." "I've never been to a lovelier wedding," or "I've never seen a lovelier bride," or "I hope they will both be very happy always, and you too," and so on.

Question: Is it advisable for a young widow to send out invitations to her second wedding?

Answer: Yes, but her invitations should be limited to her (and his) relatives and intimate friends.

Question: Is it permissible to have both a maid of honor and a matron of honor?

Answer: No, because it is not possible to have two persons fill the requirements noted in my answer to the first of today's letters.

Readers' Opinion

Editor, The Record News: Tonight at 8 p. m. in the 89th district court room there will be a mass meeting, which we want every voter and taxpayer to be there, and to bring some one. There will be two ministers talk, and other able speakers, who will tell you plenty about us. We are all voters and tax payers. But if the present legislation continues as it is we will all be unable to pay our taxes, or anything else, (but ride the street cars). All our complaints have been signed by one man and we have been arrested on the complaints, and have at the present made something like 20 bonds, at $50 a bond. If it wasn't for our numerous friends who sign our bonds free we would be forced to quit. If we thought we were violating a law (and not a law for the big interests) we would cease operating. We think this ordinance is unfair to us, and unfair to you for the reason it forces you to ride vehicles which you don't desire to ride. Each man will tell you about it tonight, and we will show you that nothing but a citizen of this county ever operated a taxi, and not a transient as the council's emergency clause in the ordinance alleges. If we fail in the courts we will petition the city for an election on whether or not the public wants us. If the other companies who are against us would cut their price to meet the times and give better service than we, then we would be forced to quit. But to force us out of business for their benefit and money gain, we don't think it fair, and don't think the great constitution of this state permits it. Galveston, Austin, and other cities have the dime taxi. The courts in Galveston upheld an injunction in favor of the dime taxi. We want every voter who can spare the time to be on hand tonight. We are going to get as many candidates for office to speak as possible, and at this time we invite them all to come and let the public know how they stand for I am sure we don't want ones who straddles the fence. Folks, let's turn out tonight. —George Williams, manager; O. T. Robinson, driver; A. Powell, driver; R. Saunders, driver.

YOUTH EAGER FOR AIR TOUR

Winner of Slogan Contest Hopes to Be Flier

When Robert McMinn, 16-year-old junior in the Wichita Falls High school, takes off Thursday afternoon as a guest of the Reed Airlines en route to Oklahoma City it will be his initial airplane ride. Young McMinn is a well rounded American boy who regards the trip won by writing the winning slogan for "aviation week" in Wichita Falls, as one of the major thrills of his life.

"Saved" Slogan

The prize winning slogan, "cities grow where airlines go," first came to Robert's mind more than a year ago when Wichita Falls leaders were working to secure airmail connections. He neglected turning it in to the chamber of commerce at that time and is glad he saved it, he declared when notified he had won first place in last week's contest.

Like many youths of his age, aviation has been a growing interest with young McMinn for a long time. He voiced an ambition to go into aviation as a business when he finishes his education. He said he also hoped winning the slogan would aid him in securing work during the current vacation months to enable him to return to school next fall.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Granville R. McMinn, 2107 Princeton and his younger brothers and sisters are almost equally thrilled over his good fortune.

He plans to leave Thursday afternoon and will be a guest of the Reed Airlines at the Huckins hotel in Oklahoma City with the chamber of commerce at the Sooner capital assisting in a round of entertainment which will include a tour of the city, shows, and other pleasures. He will return to Wichita Falls Saturday afternoon and will attend the air show at Kell field on Sunday.

Other Winners

The winning slogan will be featured through June 5, when the week's activity will close. Wichita Falls merchants are planning to use the lines in advertisements through the week. Other winning slogans were: Second, Mrs. Bentley Nelson's "for mail or travel anywhere; quickly, safely use the air" and third, C. L. Hammond's "let's use that air service."

The second prize will be a round trip to Dallas, courtesy of the American Airways, at any time the winner desires to go. Third prize is a mile-high ride over the city with Airport Manager Fulcher Armstrong, the donor.

A featured exhibit of the week is a new glider on display at the North Texas Furniture company which is attracting much interest among Wichitans. Both Mr. Armstrong and the air services have secured various aviation equipment for use in merchant displays this week.

Chairman C. E. McCutchen of the chamber of commerce aviation committee is scheduled to deliver five-minute talks at luncheon clubs during the week on the aviation theme.

Judge Martin Credits Dreamers With Much Of World's Progress

Joseph, son of Jacob, became a truly great man because his early "superiority complex" was cured through humiliation and discipline, Judge P. A. Martin told members of the Men's Bible class of the Floral Heights Methodist church Sunday morning.

"Much of the progress of the world is due to the dreamers we have produced," the speaker said. "Were it not for our dreams, we should be rather a sordid people indeed."

Favoritism shown by Jacob advanced the boy Joseph's satisfaction with himself, the speaker said, with the result that the lad became highly unpopular with his elder brothers. He continued:

"It is not unnatural to resent such fellow. We have all seen young men whose very presence arouses a feeling of resentment. One wants to tell such a man just where to 'head in' and where to 'get off'—if you will allow me to use a very expressive bit of Texas slang—and usually some one does the job. This 'superiority complex' is not an incurable disease, by any means. I have know severe cases to yield under treatment of the cowboys in a cow camp or under the kindly ministrations of samll-town wags ready to stage a snipe-hunt or a badger-fight; in fact these two popular amusements have been almost universally dedicated to the curing of the smart-aleck tenderfoot and the swell-head.

Vigorous Measures

"Unfortunately the sons of Israel seem to have had no sense of humor, so they adopted more vigorous measures with young Joseph; measures however that resulted in a complete cure and in the end almost literally brought his dreams to pass in reality. But he had to go through a baptism of trouble before he amounted to anything. He had to become a slave and be cast into an Egyptian prison in order to become a man. He finally made the grade, and became the first man in history who successfully cornered the grain market of the world. And this accomplishment was the result of still another dream, not connected with this lesson. The dreams of the 17-year-old lad may have been idle dreams and full of self-importance, prompted by the generosity of a doting father but the dreams of later life made him one of the greatest men in ancient times.

"There is all hope in the world for the man with the superiority complex and the dreamer of hopeful dreams but very little for the man with an inferiority complex. The poor fellow who stands in abject terror in the presence of his fellow man; who cringes and kotows to wealth and social position, feeling that his whole existence depends upon the favor of those who stand high in financial or social scale, has very little chance in the world ever to be anything more than a common sycophant.

"Much of the progress of the world is due to the dreamers of the world. Columbus, Morse, Edison, Marconi, Woodrow Wilson and hundreds of other dreamers have contributed to the wealth and welfare of humanity in all ages. The world owes much to its dreamers. In fact, were it no for our dreams we would be rather a sordid people.

Facing Realities

"For most of us dream-days are over and we face the stern realities of life; the dream-days however, have added their influence in making us what we are today and we fondly look back to them as the happiest days of our lives. Wonderful dreams they were; dreams never to come true, of course, and yet they were dreams that went into the very fiber of our being and became foundation stones in the building of our character.

"Did I say that our dream-days are over? Not so. We are all dreamers yet, for without dreams we would have no hope. We are all dreaming of better times coming, if not in this world, then in the world to come. And these dreams give us rest when we are tired and comfort when we are depressed and despairing. In them we see the silver lining to the darkest cloud, the end of sorrow and strife and trouble and vexation and again, as in the days of our youth, we uncover the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow and behind the sunset of life we see a brighter and better world reserved for the children of God.

"'O! that home of the soul, in my visions and dreams,
Its bright jasper walls, I can see;
Till I fancy but thinly the veil intervenes,
Between that fair city and me'."

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE SIMPSON

WASHINGTON.—With Governor Roosevelt's supporters counting his first ballot strength at Chicago up to 691, the appearance of gossipy stories about moves to push that over the 770 nominating requirements is a natural result.

And for almost the first time with any appearance of authenticity, the vice presidential bait for that added strength is dangled.

Which possibly serves to explain the recent suggestion of Mayor Cermak of Chicago that after a complimentary vote or so for the colorful Senator James Hamilton Lewis for the presidential nomination, the big Illinois delegation might swing to Melvin Traylor.

Senator Lewis, however, on the heels of Speaker Garner's California victory, suggested a Roosevelt-Garner ticket.

A Look Into Strategy

Practical considerations are involved in these suggestions.

That Garner could have the vice presidential nomination if he wanted it, without effort, has been a foregone conclusion for months; but the one thing about the speaker upon which his most intimate friends have seemed agreed was that he did not want to be vice president.

The house is his favorite environment.

He would feel strange in a senate setting—and even stranger among the second-string duties of the administration.

The reported basis of the new Roosevelt-Garner idea is that William Gibbs McAdoo has developed senatorial aspirations of his own. He is described as expecting to run against Senator Shortridge.

In that event a rapprochement with the Roosevelt wing of the party in California might help.

Shortridge hails from the San Francisco area, McAdoo from Los Angeles. The Roosevelt strength, in the event of a Roosevelt-Garner combination, might do the trick for McAdoo.

Getting a Local Angle

As to Cermak's intimation that Illinois would go for Traylor, gubernatorial ambitions on Cermak's part are worked into the picture by those who claim to know. To have a Chicago vice presidential candidate on the national ticket conceivably could help the mayor's aspirations.

The Illinois convention delegation is supposed to be almost solid for Roosevelt, outside of Cook county's contingent.

Mayor Cermak dominates the Chicago group, yet the fact that there was no discord at the convention which named the delegates at large, appears significant.

It savors of some sort of understanding and most observers credit that to Cermak's desire for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Whatever all this may mean, it is clear that the Roosevelters have reached a point where a pre-convention agreement as to a vice presidential candidate looms as a possibility.

Political Rally Slated At Frederick Tonight

Special to The Record News

FREDERICK, Okla., May 29.—Arrangements have been completed for the political rally to be held at the city auditorium Monday night under the auspices of the Oklahoma League of Young Democrats. Preceding the speaking Katherine Weiser's band will parade the business section of the city and will also play at the auditorium.

Each of the seven Democratic candidates have assured officers of the local Young Democrats organization that they will be here. Each will be allowed not to exceed 35 minutes. The candidates are Grover Hope and R. L. Case of Frederick, A. G. T. Vaughan of Altus, Neil B. Gardner of Sentinel, Mrs. Lamar Looney of Hollis, and J. V. McClintic of Snyder, present incumbent.

Record News' Program for Wichita Falls

1. OIL—Place the Wichita Falls district on a parity with other centers in the marketing of both crude oil and refined products.
2. THE VALLEY—Systematic, vigorous development of the irrigated valley in keeping with its possibilities as Wichita Falls' greatest physical asset.
3. WATER—An ample, assured supply of soft water.
4. EDUCATION—Maintenance of a junior college in Wichita Falls to give opportunity for higher education to our youth—the highest standards in elementary schools.
5. THE LAKES—Full development of the recreational opportunities offered by the three lakes.
6. HIGHWAYS—Early consummation of a highway program covering all the main routes radiating from this city and all the local roads that serve its agricultural community.
7. DRAINAGE—Solution of the drainage problem in all three phases; first, in the irrigated valley; second, with regard to Holliday creek; third, in those portions of the city now inadequately drained.
8. GOVERNMENTAL ECONOMY—The adoption of such means as may be found most feasible to reduce the cost of local government by elimination of unnecessary offices and consolidation of others.

Needed: A Dole Substitute

ONE out of every four of the 2,700,000 unemployed men in England is no longer fit for normal work.

This bit of news is contained in statistics recently released by the British government. It presents a problem which might well be given some extended consideration on this side of the water.

These jobless men who are below par physically number between 600,000 and 700,000. A United Press cable summarizing the report about them remarks:

"Long idle, they have dropped into a permanent rut, out of which only full-fledged prosperity can rescue them. Their muscles have become soft, their thoughts chronically soured and twisted. Their condition has been likened to shell shock, and some experts now refer to it as 'unemployment shock.'"

This, then, seems to be one of the brightest fruits of England's famous dole policy. We over here are going to have to think more seriously about an American dole, or its equivalent, in the coming year than we ever have before; it might pay us to keep this English object lesson in mind.

And yet it will not be enough for us simply to say, "The dole has tragic results and we want none of it." If things go on as they have been going, we shall assuredly have to have either the dole or something to take its place; and this little object lesson is useful chiefly because it warns us how vitally important it is that we dig up a good substitute.

The dole doesn't work out well. Those 600,000 English sufferers from "unemployment shock" will be a major problem for England for a good many years to come. But the dole does prevent starvation. It is probably fair to say that in England it has prevented a revolution.

If, then, we reach the point at which some sort of government help for the unemployed becomes necessary, it is up to us to profit by England's example and find a better solution than the dole. It may be extremely hard to find one. But it is quite evident that the job must be done.

A Silly Proposal

THE silliest proposal of the season, quite clearly, is the bill introduced in congress the other day to put the territory of Hawaii under military control, with rulership vested in a governor chosen either from the army's generals or the navy's admirals.

To any one who has reviewed the tragic Massie case objectively, it is fairly apparent that a fundamental cause of the trouble there was the lamentable fact that civilians and military people do not always get along well together when they are placed in close proximity. There is an age-old rivalry between the two groups, which probably dates 'way back to the days of Roman garrison towns in ancient Gaul. It seems to be inevitable.

Putting Hawaii under strict military control would intensify that rivalry many fold. A better way of making the islands question the value of their American citizenship could hardly be imagined.

Why Gangsters Feel Secure

A CHICAGO gangster named "Three-Fingered Jack" White was set free the other day when the courts finally dismissed a seven-year-old charge of murdering a policeman; and in that story of unconscionable legal delays there is a pretty fair explanation of gangland's notorious feeling of immunity.

The killing took place in 1925. In 1927 White was convicted and sentenced to life in prison. Then the verdict was reversed by a higher court, and in 1931 he was re-tried, convicted and sentenced to 14 years. Now the case has been reversed again, and this time the charge has been dropped.

White may be perfectly innocent; but when you reflect that we have a legal system which took seven years to settle the matter, you can see how it is that criminals have lost most of their fear of the courts.

SO THEY SAY!

Statesmen alone cannot solve the problems which arise in international affairs. The nations must become accustomed to look to the organized system of the expert report, which gives a just and impartial lead to governments and public opinion and should be regularly accepted just as judicial decisions are accepted as a matter of course.—Gen. Jan Smuts, South African leader.

Every time the nation has needed to be rescued . . . it has turned to the Democratic party.—Newton D. Baker, Democratic presidential possibility.

In America . . . the owners of industry have sacked the richest continent in the world, sold gold brick after gold brick to the producers whom they needed to grow the wheat and the hogs, to drill the oil wells and run the adding machines and buy the Fords and the stocks.—John Dos Passos, novelist.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

(Copyright, 1932, Daily Mirror, Inc.)

(During illness of Mr. Winchell this column is being conducted by Paul Yawitz)

The Little Red Book!

Doris Duke, America's wealthiest heiress, and Sailing Baruch Jr. will not vigorously deny they are headed for a September altar . . . Mrs. Drexel (Soc. Reg.) Steel, who received her decree on Friday, the 13th, will pound at the license door with Prince Kaplanoff, a former employe at Gimbels, immediately after the June wedding of her dgtr., Vernon Siems . . . Newton Baker flatly refused an intern'l radio hook-up of the speech he will deliver at his dgtr's graduation from the Bronxville school on June 19, on the grounds that family sentiments must not be capitalized in his candidacy . . . Who was the angry blond who threw a glass of water into Lou Wagner's face at Pierriette Saturday night? . . . James Cagney, short-ender in the Warner Bros. contract tussle, has booked August 1 passage to Europe for a personal app. tour. . . . The sponsors of Pierrette, the celeb's Sattidy night club, are negotiating for the purchase of the Mayflower, Hoover's dismantled yacht, for their hot weather conclaves . . . The Lindy ransom signature is an old Sicilian threat symbol . . . The blue ring stands for silence, the red for lips . . . The punctured circles indicate that if the receiver revealed its contents his lips would be silenced forever . . . Arthur Sullivan Brown selected Grantland Rice's dgtr., Florence, as the "ideal American girl" for his series of Sat. Eve. Post illustrations . . . Gendarmes are stationed in all local picture theaters where crime screemies are showing on the theory that suspects are attracted to them . . . Florence (Park Ave.) Davis, recently out of the arena, and Bob Ross, head of that snooty stage society, have turned on the heat . . . Mrs. Kent Thuber (Dorothy Chesmond) is divorseeing Paris, now that she completed her Shakespearean tour.

Broadway . . . where you can't really enjoy the night unless you start out completely fatigued.

Oliver Borden and Dick Krakeur, the ex-producer, are singing Hosannas . . . Libby (Soc. Reg.) Young, last seen in "Child of Manhattan," has finally won parental consent to continue with her cab-reer! . . . Harry Richman has forsaken his Rolls for an 8-cyl. Ford . . . Ed Graham, the art idea man, returned from Haiti, where he was the house guest of the Pres., wearing a 20-cent straw hat and carting 2 dog kites . . . kite flying being the national pastime of the island . . . "Tillie Gob" supplied the inmates of the alimony jail with a lobster dinner last night . . . The heartiest eater was Walter (Tony Mayfair) Marshall, whose re-married X, the wealthy Mrs. E. Hamilton Campbell, insists he remain behind bars until he pays $1,450 back alimony . . . Regardless of circumstances, it is difficult to understand the mind of a woman who compels a penniless former husband to remain jailed while she is living in luxury with another man . . . You figure it out! . . . Veree Teasdale took a runout potion on Lew Leslie's fol-de-rol to sign a Hollywood paper . . . Pearl Harris, the hot charmer, is oh, so blue because of Buddy Roger's secy., Max. . . . Hy Daab will be the new publicity spouter for Paramount.

Broadway . . . where it takes 2 to make a marriage—a chorus girl and her scheming mother.

More pictures of James Walker were sold in Germany for the 12 mos. to May 1 than of Von Hindenburg or Hitler . . . Dorinda Kennerly of the social registerrian is readying altar carpets with Kenneth Beeson, the Pittsburgh money man, and Fred Bauchens will have a try to forget . . . Mickey Kosman, the poultry king, and Irene Hamlin are sighing into each other's eyes . . . Jackie Aronsohn, grand-scion of the silk fortune, is in the military acad. hosp. in Cornwall with 8 head stitches from a baseball wound . . . The late Robert Henri's paintings of his famous model, Margo Rafferty, are now hanging in the Chi. cafe of her recent mate, Daniel Alexander . . . The John (Paramount chief) Balabans were holding hands and necking in the Cent. Park Casino . . . And only married 14 yrs? . . . Ginger Roger's X, Jack Pepper, is Altarward with Ann Boland, the red-topped Guinan lass . . . The INP snap-shooters fought the dawn in an airplane for 7 hrs. before they could get the proper light for the Lindy kidnaping panorama . . . Elsie Rossi, the Folly Dolly, is the reason for the Boston tremors that shake John Dwyer . . . Altho she has been sec'y to the NJ boxing comm. for almost a decade, Mrs. Ruth Upton has never witnessed a match . . . Lady Ashley, England's celebrated blue-blood, is making Leslie Hutchins, the negro entertainer, the rage of London by attending nightly the Gafe Anglais, where he warbles, in spot clothes.

Broadway . . . where it's news if a man doesn't bite the underdog.

Stephan Cantley, the wide-eyed playboy, is arming it about town with the pet cobra he brought back from Bombay . . . As if there weren't enough snakes here already, they're importing them now . . . Franz Hubert, the headline drunk-dancer, was taken to the hosp. from the Palace stage during the Sat. mat. with a fractured skull, the result of a slip . . . Dolly Martinez, the Scandoll, and Ted Lloyd, Paul Tremaine's p. a., will try to live as cheaply as one . . . Co-ed hero-worshipers are now asking for autographs on the inside of their long gloves . . . The Parker Baldwin Turnbulls will clash on the Areno . . . That dazzling blonde with Sady Bruck-Weiss at Belmont Satiddy was Frances Acker, who will say yes under the June Moon to Bunny Mendelsohn, the Wall Streeter . . . Irving Mills, the music man, was tonsilly, so he had them jerked this wk. . . . Harry Morrisey, who was featured by Geo. White in the Elm City quartet, is now keeper of the county jail in Bridgeport . . . The regulars in the Columbus circle bread line spend the time between servings playing baseball at the entrance to Central park, the whites lining up vs. the blacks . . . Florence Hughes, Ned Wayburn's sec'y, and Dr. James Reeves of Lil Rock, have turned on the heat.

Broadway . . . where family trees are just stumps.

Thornton ("Bridge of San Luis Rey") Wilder is stubbornly snubbing screemie offers that he may complete that "different" American drama . . . Despite the jewelers' resistance, Park Ave. and stage people are going back to the old-fashioned wide wedding band . . . E. Ray Goetz is promoting the Parisque "Follies Bergere" show for the world's fair in Chi. . . . Harry Rodzogin, the village artist, realized more money displaying his painting in the 12th St. drug store during the past 3 days than from all his gallery exhibits . . . It's Villa Milli, Wodek Zbysko's X who's on fire with that Warner Bros. exec. Andre Taylor will be out of the operation room in a few days . . . John Herts, the Paramount prexy, is still under cover of bodyguards . . . You can expect an explosion in the musicians' union because some of the local boys object to the invasion of hinterland bands . . . And now Lupe Velez has a bulldog . . . We'll ask, who was that disheveled dowager, wrapped in yds. of ermine, who stumbled in and out of Reuben's Sundawning? And close the little Red Book.

Answers To Questions

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN

The answer to questions printed here each day are specimens picked from the mass of inquiries handled by our great information bureau maintained in Washington, D. C. This valuable service is for the free use of the public. Ask any question of fact you may want to know and you will get an immediate reply. Write plainly, enclose two cents in coin or stamps for return postage and address the Record News Information bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, director, Washington, D. C.

Q.—Where was the first aviation repair shop established?—P. H.

A.—This is not on record. The first one officially recognized by the United States department of commerce was the Boeing station at Cheyenne, Wyo. It was recognized March 26, 1930.

Q.—How many people from other countries are working in Soviet Russia?—G. D.

A.—The number of foreign workers now totals 6,800, and there would be more if it were possible to provide living quarters for them.

Q.—Do they still have public letter writers on the streets of Mexico?—E. B. C.

A.—The inlux of typewriting machines and the spread of education has practically eliminated this institution. There are, however, a few who still follow their calling.

For whom was the Chase National bank named?—R. J. T.

A.—The Chase National bank of the City of New York was organized on Sept. 12, 1877 by John and Samuel Thompson, well known bankers of that period who also founded the First National bank in 1863. The new bank, capitalized at $300,000 was named for Salmon P. Chase, secretary of treasury under Lincoln, and opened on Sept. 10, 1877 at 117 Broadway. Mr. Chase himself, however, had no official connection with the bank.

Q.—What is the diameter of the dome of St. Peter's in Rome and of St. Paul's in London?—L. A. V.

A.—St. Peter's is between 136 and 138 feet in internal diameter. The inner shell of St. Paul's is 102 feet in diameter.

Q.—What kind of a bill was the first one enacted by congress and signed by George Washington?—F. S. B.

A.—It was a tariff bill.

Q.—Please give a short biography of Leslie Howard.—F. W.

A.—He was born in London and attended Dulwich college. He enlisted in the service when war broke out and was invalided out in 1917. After acting in the provinces a while, he made his London debut in Pinero's The Freaks. He appeared for the first time in New York in 1921 in The Wren. His real name is Leslie Stainer.

Q.—What kind of tree is the smallest?—A. L. B.

A.—A dwarf variety of willow is the smallest tree. It grows one inch or less in height and is found only at high altitudes in the Rocky mountains, in Idaho, Montana, and in a limited area in the White mountains of New Hampshire.

Q.—When was Jimmy Walker elected mayor of New York City the first time?—E. L.

A.—Mayor Walker was first elected to serve New York City, Nov. 8, 1924.

Q.—What prompted Rudyard Kipling to write The Houses?—J. A. H.

A.—The inner meaning of the poem is an appeal to the dominions and colonies to stand together and stand by the mother country. It was written in 1896 at the first sign of growing independence of political action on the part of the dominions. The idea is expressed in the couplet—If my house be taken, thine tumbleth down. If thy house be forfeit mine followeth soon.

Q.—What is the time zone called which is directly east of eastern standard time?—R. P. B.

A.—It is Atlantic intercolonial time.

Q.—What is the largest hospital for the insane in the United States?—T. C.

A.—The office of Dr. William Allen White of St. Elizabeth's hospital says that the largest hospital for the insane in the United States, if not in the world, is the Manhattan State hospital, Ward's island, New York. It has between 6,000 and 7,000 patients.

Q.—Is a midshipman a member of the United States navy?—S.M.C.

A.—The department of the navy says that midshipmen are members of the United States navy. They are not, however, eligible for retirement as a result of service incurred disability until they have become commissioned officers in the navy.

Q.—What is silver in ingot form called?—M. McA.

It is called bar silver.

Q.—How does the United States court and claims function?—E. Q.

A.—The United States court of claims was established in 1855 to adjudicate claims against the United States. It consists of five judges, a chief justice and four associates, and sits at Washington, D. C. The court considers matters placed before it and upon the first day of each regular session of congress presents the findings of the court for the year, and upon recommendation of the court, congress appropriates money for the payment of the awards. It is not necessary for more than a majority of the judges to approve.

Q.—Is rhubarb a fruit or a vegetable?—R. N.

A.—It is a vegetables since the edible part is prepared from the leaf stalk of the plant. Botanically, a fruit is the seed of a plant, or the seeds and the case which contains or holds them.

Q.—Are there presentations at the Dutch court as there are at the English?—F. F.

A.—The Dutch court has only occasional presentations. It does not have the regular presentations that are held in England.

Q.—Did Thomas Edison actually make a light bulb or did he just design one?—C. M.

A.—He actually made his first electric light bulb. Some biographies state that more than 2,000 experiments were necessary to complete it satisfactorily.

Q.—Has the DO-X been in a hangar during its stay in this country?—C. K.

A.—Since it was too large to accommodate in a hangar, it has been on the beach at the Glenn Curtiss airport all winter.

Q.—Who established the first poorhouse?—K. S.

A.—While almsgiving is almost as old as history and beggars have always existed, Constantine, the first Christian emperor of Rome, was the first to establish a publicly supported poorhouse.

Q.—Why are little-neck clams so called?—N. R.

A.—The quahaug or hard clam is often called little-neck to distinguish it from the soft or long-neck clam.

Q.—Who is at the head of the Nicaraguan government?—V. P.

A.—Nicaragua is a republic. The president is Gen. Jose Moncada who was elected on Nov. 4, 1928, and inaugurated on Jan. 1, 1929.

Henrietta Band to Give Concerts This Summer

Special to The Record News.

HENRIETTA, Texas, May 29.—The Henrietta band, recently reorganized under the direction of C. G. Hilburn, pioneer bandmaster of Henrietta, will be known as the Chamber of Commerce band, according to V. Lefevre, chamber of commerce president.

There will be about 20 members in the band when the organization is perfected, according to Mr. Hilburn. Many of the former members of the band will again play, and a number of the high school players will join. Band concerts are being planned for each Saturday night during the months of June, July, August and September.

Present members of the band are as follows: C. G. Hilburn, director, cornet; W. K. Millsapps, cornet; Percy Neville, cornet; Junior LeBus, cornet; Tom McCluer, bass tuba; A. J. Oheim, baritone; John Ansley, trombone; Lee L. Wells, trombone; Ralph Boyd, trombone; Glenn Younger, alto; Kenneth Slagle, alto; Henry Oheim, clarinet; Arthur Bragg, clarinet; Ben Ingram, bass drum; Harold Twyman, snare drum.

Henrietta Prepares July 4 Celebration

Special to The Record News.

HENRIETTA, Texas, May 29.—Plans are being completed by the Henrietta Chamber of Commerce for observing July 4. A barbecue and street dance will be features of entertainment for the day, with former Governors Jim and Miriam Ferguson to be invited for the principal addresses.

Several committees have been appointed by V. Lefevre, chamber of commerce president, to have charge of the various features of the Fourth of July celebration. J. H. Douglass, Jack Petro and Otto Gilliland are in charge of arrangements for the band music, and C. S. Scheer, Carl Green and Grover Thaxton are members of the barbecue and lunch committee. The recently organized Chamber of Commerce band will play during the day.

HURLERS STAGE GREAT DUEL

Crowd of 4,000 Sees Contest at Longview

LONGVIEW, Texas, May 29. (AP)—The Tyler Sports defeated the Longview Cannibals 2 to 1 here today before 4,000 shivering fans.

Milt Steengrafe and Hal Wiltse hooked up in a beautiful pitching duel with infield hits accounting for two of the three runs.

The winning run crossed in the seventh inning when O'Neill scored on an infield hit.

Longview threatened in the ninth when Scharein doubled and Euller singled but Clift fanned and Garms grounded out. Score:

SHIPPERS WIN NO. 13

BEAUMONT, Texas, May 29. (AP)—The league leading Beaumont Exporters won an abbreviated game today, their 13th straight, when rain halted the go with San Antonio in the middle of the sixth inning. The Tribe had just tied the count at 2-all when heavy showers interrupted the proceedings and then continued for an hour until further playing was out of the question. Thus the score returned to that of the fifth inning, which was 2 to 0, the Baker boys having counted twice in the fourth.

A paid attendance of 5,053, the largest crowd of the season, had gathered for a double-header. Joe Jachym opposed Bob House on the mound. The former Notre Dame flinger had the better of the argument until the sixth, and then was lucky enough to have that inning cancelled after he had loaded the bases, Judge Schulz relieving him.

Beaumont tallied on Tauby's single, Jones' sacrifice, an infield out and singles by Easterling and Fox mixed with Brewer's error. Two games will be played Monday with an off-day Tuesday. Score:

BUCS WIN IN 11TH

HOUSTON, May 29. (AP)—Big Ed Heusser and Art Seydler, the pride of Victoria, tangled here Sunday in a well pitched duel, with Heusser cracking in the 11th, and Del Pratt's Galveston Buccaneers pounding out an 8 to 4 victory over Houston. The 11 innings were played in one hour and 50 minutes. Heusser waited until the 11th to walk his first man, and that walk paved the way for Galveston's triumph.

Here's how Galveston won the game:

Accused Robbers Hurt In Battle With Police

DENVER, Colo., May 29. (US)—Albert Martin, 33, and Herman Richards, 25, both of Chicago, were in the Denver General hospital today, recovering from wounds incurred in a downtown gun battle with police officers last night.

Martin was wounded in the neck; Richards in the right leg. A companion of the two, Robert Graham, 30, of Clintonville, Wis., was not wounded.

Police accused the trio of robbing two drug stores of approximately $100.

BREAKS RECORD

NEW YORK, May 29.—Juan Carlos Zabala, greatest of Argentine runners, displaced Joie Ray's American record for 10,000 meters by winning that event in 31:26 3-5 at the Lewisohn stadium this afternoon. Ray's standard was 31:28 3-5 made in 1928 at the Olympic tryouts in the Harvard stadium.

German railways will run excursion trains with secret destinations.

DAREDEVILS RACE TODAY

40 Entered in Indianapolis Auto Speed Classic

INDIANAPOLIS, May 29. (AP)—Undaunted by the wildest series of mishaps that has preceded a 500-mile automobile race here in years, 40 intrepid pilots and their equally nervy riding mechanics today awaited the starting bomb of the annual Memorial day classic at the Indianapolis Motor speedway.

A driver and a mechanic were killed, and another driver and another mechanic were sent to a hospital with injuries as the result of crashes during practice preparatory to the race. A half dozen other daredevils of the track escaped with their lives in crackups.

"Too bad about Milt Jones and Charley Cox," they say and in the next breath the drivers tell how fast they intended to negotiate the two and a half mile brick course in quest of fame and a portion of the $100,000 prize money. Jones was the driver and Cox the mechanic who met death in the practice runs.

The race starts tomorrow at 10 a. m. In the pole position will be Lou Moore of Hollywood, Calif., a place he attained by making the fastest time during the qualifying trials—117 miles an hour average for a 10-mile run.

Lined up alongside Moore in the front row will be Billy Arnold of Chicago, the 1930 winner, and Bryan Saulpaugh, a huge young man from Rock Island, Ill., who has been cutting speed capers on west coast tracks.

The other entrants will line up three to a row behind Moore, Arnold and Saulpaugh. The field includes all types of drivers.

Noconan Relative of Late Bozeman Bulger

Special to The Record News.

NOCONA, Texas, May 29.—Bozeman Bulger, noted sports writer who died at his home at Lynbrook, L. I., a few days ago, was a first cousin of Judge Henry M. Burns of this city, publisher of The Nocona Press. According to a recent Associated Press dispatch in a New York paper, Bulger was one of baseball's best known reporters. He was a writer for the New York Evening World for 26 years, and also wrote magazine articles. The dispatch also states that Bulger was a staff writer on the Saturday Evening Post at time of his death. He served in the world war as a major and later lieutenant colonel and was cited for bravery under fire in the Argonne offensive. Later he was with Pershing's headquarters in charge of press relations. He also served in the Spanish American war.

Bulger did his first newspaper work with the Birmingham Age-Herald, where he finally became managing editor. Burial was in the National cemetery at Arlington.

Thornberry Team Blanks Highway Garage, 12 to 0

The Highway Garage nine of the Wichita Falls Commercial league journeyed to Thornberry Sunday afternoon and acquired a row of goose-eggs from the sterling pitching arm of Prince, Thornberry hurler who held the Wichitans to two hits to register a 12 to 0 shut-out. Hill of the garagemen pitched a nice game himself, yielding only eight hits.

SPENCER SHUTS OUT CUBS, 2-0

But Leaders Win Opener From Pirates, 7-3

CHICAGO, May 29. (AP)—Glenn Spencer and the Pittsburgh Pirates shut out the league leading Chicago Cubs, 2 to 0, in the second game of today's double-header, after the Cubs had blasted out a 7 to 3 victory in the opener.

Bob Smith gave the Pirates only four hits in the second game, but three of them were grouped in the fourth for both runs. Sixteen hits, including a homer by Charlie Grimm, won the first game for the Cubs. Score:

GIANTS 10-2, PHILS 8-4

NEW YORK, May 29. (AP)—The Giants and the Phillies split a double-header here today, New York winning the opening slugfest 10 to 8 and the Phils taking a close second game, 4 to 2.

The Giant's runs in the sixth, seventh and eighth innings after Roy Hansen blew up. Jim Elliott pitched hitless ball for 6 2-3 innings of the second clash before O'Farrell made the first Giant hit. Mel Ott's triple in the ninth brought in both New York runs. Homers by Les Mallon and Don Hurst cost Jim Mooney the game. Scores:

BOSTON 10-2, DODGERS 6-3

BROOKLYN, May 29. (AP)—The Dodgers and the Boston Braves waged a pair of exciting battles for the edification of some 25,000 fans today, but wound up just where they started, each winning one game.

Boston landed on Babe Phelps for eight runs in the second inning and took the opener, 10 to 6. Brooklyn came back with a ninth-inning rally behind the three-hit pitching of Dazzy Vance to capture the second game, 3 to 2.

A barrage of hits, capped by a homer by Art Shires and aided by errors by Phelps and Finn made Boston's big rally. The Braves' lead was never threatened although Bob Brown was very wild and had to be relieved with two out in the ninth. Huck Betts fanned the last Brooklyn batter.

Manager Max Carey was banished from the coaching lines after his protest to Umpire Donnelly on a called third strike in the fifth. Scores:

CARDS, REDS SPLIT

CINCINNATI, May 29. (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds and St. Louis Cardinals split a double-header today, the Cards winning the first, 5 to 0, and the Reds the second, 3 to 2, with a run in the 11th inning.

The first game was a pitching duel between Si Johnson and "Wild Bill" Hallahan. However, the Reds defense cracked in the last inning and St. Louis scored four runs.

A 2 to 2 tie, chalked up in the eighth, was broken by the Reds in the 11th with two singles and a sacrifice. Scores:

Lefty Gomez Outlasts Three Senator Hurlers As Yanks Win Slugfest, 11-8

WASHINGTON, May 29. (AP)—Lefty Gomez outlasted three Washington pitchers today to give New York an 11 to 8 decision and shoot the Yankees' first place lead back up to three full games.

Apparently developing into a semi-brilliant pitching duel between two young portsiders, Gomez and Bob Burke, after the Senators had scored twice in the first, the game dwindled away into a ball smashing epidemic. Babe Ruth hit his 14th home run of the season over the right field wall, his third in three games.

Burke took the official loss, but Ragland and Fischer, who followed him to the firing pit, took the real punishment of the Yankee attack.

Buddy Myer, flashy Washington second baseman, was summarily benched by Manager Johnson after a flare-up against the boss and Kerr took his place. Score:

BROWNS, TRIBE SPLIT

ST. LOUIS, May 29. (AP)—The Cleveland Indians split a double-header with the St. Louis Browns today, and ended a four-game series with three victories. The Browns already leading 5 to 3, went on a batting rampage in the eighth inning of the first game and made seven runs to win 12 to 3. They got 14 hits off three Cleveland pitchers.

The Indians won the second game 2 to 1 behind the pitching of Harder, who held the Browns scoreless until the ninth inning, when Campbell, right fielder, hit a home run for the Browns only score. Score:

TIGERS WHIP CHISOX, 4 TO 3

Detroit Scores Winning Run in Seventh

DETROIT, May 29. (AP)—Detroit made it four out of five against Chicago today by winning the final game of a series, 4 to 3.

The winning run was scored in the seventh inning and was aided by an error of Appling who fumbled a grounder. Whitlow Wyatt, starting pitcher for Detroit, was wild, walking six men and hitting one before he gave way to Elon Hogsett in the sixth inning. Red Faber, who started for Chicago, also failed to last, being replaced at the end of the seventh by Caraway.

The game was featured by the fielding of Charley Gehringer and Bill Rogell, Detroit second baseman and shortstop, respectively. Each figured in three double plays. Rogell had 17 chances. He booted one, made six putouts and was credited with 10 assists. Score:

Graduating Athletes at Electra Will Be Missed

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, May 29—Members of the Electra High school senior class who were graduated this week will be greatly missed in athletic circles next year. The coach who is selected as a successor to Harvey Stanford will have a hard time finding men to take the places of Monty McDannald, Robert Cloninger, Arthur White, and Eual Sandefer. Eleven of the 15 letter men were not graduated. They are J. C. McCracken, Lee Parnell, Oren Stroud, Maynard Stroud, R. T. Boutwell, James Magee, Alton Hogle, F. L. Able, George Ellis, Clarence Koerth and Griffith Lambdin, however some may not be eligible.

Four of the seven letter men in basketball were graduated. Monty McDannald, Robert Cloninger, Hall Kelts, and James Parr received their diplomas Tuesday. Cloninger, Parr and McDannald had played three years. For the first time in several years the Tigers won the county championship this year. Sidney Smith, Leonard Foy, and Albert Byrd, are the other three letter men who did not graduate.

Cloninger, Parr, Kelts, Haynes, W. Sheldon, T. Sheldon and Lane were among the track men to graduate. Cloninger was the only Tiger to represent Electra high in three events and letter in all of them, football, basketball, and track. Parr will be missed in tennis as will Catherine Robertson. Agness Brashear was the only letter man of the volley ball team to graduate.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

Prospects for Another Grid Crown Bright At Quanah

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, May 29.—Coach Dan Stallworth is taking stock for the coming football season.

The letter men returning from last year's championship team are Captain Jarrell Bolton, Bob Barnett, Hervey Blue, Oscar Richardson, Eugene Jones, A. W. Hall. All other future Indians are reported eligible.

The squad lost heavily by graduation. Captain Jim Harrill, Pug Norman, Cecil Faircloth and Garland Cox were lost.

J. D. Rogers, Wayland Marsalis, Lowell Page, and Glen Smith are lost through the age rule and 10 semester rule.

With prospects from the Palooka squad showing promise in spring practice, the outlook for another championship team is bright. Coach Stallworth will again lead the squad, having been re-elected.

MACKS SPLIT WITH RED SOX

Boston Takes First, 6-4, And A's Second, 3-0

BOSTON, May 29. (AP)—The Athletics and Red Sox split a double-header today, Boston winning the opener, 6 to 4, behind the fine pitching of Bob Weiland, and Walberg hurling shut out ball as the visitors took the nightcap, 3 to 0.

Connie Mack used three young hurlers in the first game, but their efforts were not as good as those of Weiland who allowed only five hits, one of which was Jimmy Foxx's 16th homer of the season.

Walberg limited the Sox to four hits while Durham and Kline allowed seven. The A's bunched four of their hits in the sixth to clinch the game. Scores:

CITY LEAGUE LEADERS WIN

Nichols Holds Star to 3 Hits, But Loses

Red and White and Star Transfer still paced the first City league field Sunday afternoon after both had returned victorious in the weekly double-header at Katy park. Red and White jumped on Thomason's Super Service pitchers in the late innings to overcome a big lead and blast out a 9 to 7 victory in the first game. Lefty Marvin Robertson captured a heated 3 to 2 pitchers' battle over Red Nichols in the second game and Star Transfer beat Meyer's Grocery in 11 innings.

Scoring seven runs in the last three rounds off Steve Franklin and with McDuffy coming into form in the late innings after a rocky start, Red and White pulled a victory from the fire. Cox and Cossey led the attack with three hits each. The power of the Red and White attack can be seen in the fact that they left 18 men stranded on the bases, half of them in the last three innings.

Anderson, Smith and Myers led the attack for Thomason's, but this went for nothing as their pitchers weakened behind them. Smith, a Red and White castoff scored two runs, drove in two with a double and played a great game in the outfield.

Red Nichols dropped a tough battle to Lefty Robertson when all the Star nine could comb from his slants in 11 innings was three hits and three unearned runs. Robertson whiffed 15 men and Nichols whiffed 11. Robertson collected two of the three hits off Nichols and scoured all three of the Star Transfer runs. Robertson was perfect in the pinches and 11 Meyer's Grocery men were stranded on the bases when he began to tighten down in the pinches. Sensational catches by Baumgardner and Hibbs twice saved the Robertson in the late innings.

The Grocerymen made three errors, each following a base hit and each meant a run. Scores:

Varicose Veins

While the practice of sitting for a few minutes each day with the feet elevated on a desk or table is a poor social custom, it is a good way to prevent varicose veins. One who has been standing for a long time may note a sensation of heaviness, fullness, and fatigue in the legs which is relieved when the heels are placed higher than the hips.

Varicose veins occur in the superficial veins of the legs and thigh, and appear tortuous, jagged, bluish or purplish. The walls of these veins are thicker than normal in some places and very thin in others. This swelling and enlargement occurs most often with the veins of the leg; in them the blood is more or less trying to flow uphill against the force of gravity. To control the flow, the veins are fitted with valves, which are to keep the blood from flowing backward. While the blood in the arteries is pumped along by the heart and by the contracting power of the arterial walls, the heart force is not very strong by the time each impulse reaches the veins in the legs; if any condition then occurs which prevents the return of the blood from the veins, it will accumulate, causing the valves to break down, the veins become engorged, distended and stretched and varicose veins are present.

Other Causes

Predisposing causes toward their formation are: Tight garters, bearing of children, work calling for long standing, overweight and prolapsus. The most prominent symptom is the tortuous enlarged vein, however, there may be swelling of the leg, redness of the skin together with aching and paining. The condition tends to become worse rather than better, and in time the veins may inflame so that varicose ulcers form, which are slow to heal. Such an ulcer may keep the patient off his feet and interfere with activity.

The cure depends upon: 1. Removing the cause as far as possible; 2. Strengthening the walls of the veins through local treatments; 3. A general health building regime to revitalize the blood so that the veins will be better nourished. Where the patient is overweight, it is helpful to reduce and, where the cause is prolapsus of the abdominal organs, these organs should be raised to their proper position as this will pull them away from the lower pelvis and relieve the blood congestion in the lower limbs. Where the cause is too much standing, it is always helpful to secure more rest.

The best local treatment which you can give yourself at home to strengthen the vein walls is to hold a piece of ice lightly against the vein. Press the ice against the protruding vein after raising the leg. Continue the ice treatment three or four times daily for several months. Another treatment which often gives relief from the aching in the legs is the use of hot showers followed by cold; allow hot or warm water to spray over the legs for about five minutes then use the cold for about one minute. This is an excellent toning treatment.

Local treatments of some kind are indispensable if you wish to shrink the veins to normal. Those who can obtain local treatments given by a physician with certain electrical apparatus will find them beneficial. Varicose ulcers should be treated by your doctor with the actinic light or the close contact high frequency spark. One cannot consider the use of the rubber bandage or stocking a satisfactory cure.

Slanting board exercises should be used as these help the blood to flow out of the veins toward the heart. Some patients have found it helpful to raise the foot of the bed several inches from the floor as this helps drain the veins during the night.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Tapeworm

Question—R. G. D. asks: "Will you kindly publish the symptoms of tapeworm, and what to do?"

Answer—There are no definite symptoms of tapeworm which can be depended on. Sometimes the patient loses weight, and has a ferocious appetite, but this is not always the case. If you suspect you have a tapeworm, I suggest that you go to your druggist, and have him give you a tapeworm remedy. Then watch the stools. There are many different kinds of intestinal worms besides the tapeworm, and some of the others will produce trouble such as nervousness, rectal itching, nausea, etc.

Child Is Irritable

Question—Mrs. J. K. asks: "Will you suggest the proper diet for a child of 2½ years? He does not seem to be ill, but has rough red spots on his cheeks at times and is unusually cross and irritable after waking from his afternoon nap."

Answers—Try giving him four feedings of milk a day, using eight or ten ounces of milk at each feeding. At the second, third and fourth feedings give him a good-sized dish of minced spinach, carrots, string beans, summer squash or celery. It is a good plan to use also one of the vegetables raw along with the cooked one.

Fasting

Question—Reader writes: "When you speak of fasting, do you mean that a person having mental work should do with absolutely no food on those days, or should some liquid, such as fruit juice be taken if one keeps at work?"

Answer—I usually recommend a fruit fast rather than a plain water fast. It seems to me that patients eliminate better while taking the fruit juices. Of course, there is some stimulation from the fruit sugar which makes it easier for one to keep on with his work while taking the fast.

65 EXPECTED AT CLUB RALLY

Optimist District Meeting Here Monday

Members of the Wichita Falls Optimist club made ready Sunday night to welcome approximately 65 out-of-town Optimists expected to assemble at the Kemp hotel at 8:45 o'clock Monday morning for a two-day convention of the Seventh district, Optimist International.

Arrangements for entertaining the sixth annual district convention have been made by a committee headed by Wilburn Page. Aside from business sessions in the morning and afternoon, visiting Optimists and members of the local club will be offered a variety of entertainment Monday. Golf is on the schedule from 3 to 4:30 p. m.; varied entertainment from that time to 7 o'clock, when a banquet will be held in the Kemp hotel ball room. A dance at 9 o'clock will conclude the day's program.

Committee reports and officers' addresses will comprise the program for Tuesday. Leon Horn, president of the Wichita Falls Optimist club, will be active in the convention. All local Optimists have indicated their intention of attending the convention.

Memorial Day Celebration Opens at Washington

WASHINGTON, May 29. (US)—The national capital today opened its celebration of Memorial day with a massing of colors and appropriate services before a crowd of 25,000 people.

Although President Hoover did not participate, he sent his aide, Col. Campbell Hodges, to represent him.

The ceremonies today, arranged by the George Washington Bicentennial commission and the military order of the world war, were the most gigantic ever held in Washington. They took place in the great open-air Sylvan theater, at the Washington mounment, and were attended by members of the cabinet, diplomatic corps and other notables.

SUMMER TERM OPENS TODAY

300 Expected to Register For Vacation Classes

Registration Monday for the 1932 summer session of the Wichita Falls Junior college, high school and elementary grades is expected to pass the 300 mark on basis of inquiries received by Registrar A. K. Presson, who will direct the short term.

A schedule of classes has been completed which will allow students to complete many degree requirements at convenient morning hours. In addition special attention will be given needs of teachers for certificate renewals, Mr. Presson said.

Registration of students will be completed Monday and the regular class schedule launched Tuesday. All work outside of the elementary grades will be concentrated at the Junior college and the grade work will be offered at the Alamo building in charge of J. T. Rundell and Miss Helen Dubois. Elementary subjects for all classes of primary and intermediate departments are offered.

The college work will offer both physical and biological sciences, English, history, education, phychology, government, economics, mathematics, the science work to include zoology if desired. The staff includes Eva Weber, B. T. Adams, Mamie Raborn, R. O. Jonas, T. F. Richardson and W. A. Mangum (if needed).

Senior high school work is offered in English, history, mathematics, civics, economics, biology, chemistry, Spanish, Latin and other subjects as demanded. The faculty includes Elfie Savage, W. J. Webb, J. C. Mathis, Lona Betty Brown, Agnes Zihlman and Elizabeth Brown.

Junior high work offers both seventh and eighth grade history, English and mathematics and the faculty will include Annie Laurie Smith, Dudley M. Gordon, and Fannye Vance.

Iowa Park News

IOWA PARK, Texas, May 29.—Miss Pauline Gladden is visiting friends at Abilene.

Mrs. Gradey Wigley and son, Eugene, accompanied Mrs. Charles F. Thompson to Muskogee, Okla., where they will make an extended visit. Mr. Wigley will join them later in the summer.

Noel Troutman of Floydada visited his mother, Mrs. L. Troutman, Thursday. Mrs. Troutman and daughters, Josephine and Ruth Margaret, continued to Waxahatchie, where they will visit other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Apple of Denver, arrived Friday for a visit with Mr. Apple's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Apple.

Johnnie Detiefs returns Tuesday to Kelley field, where he is in training, after an extended visit with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Will Detiefs.

Costello Taylor, student at Amarillo Junior college, is visiting Wayne Beasley. He will leave this week for Salina, Kan., to spend the summer with his parents. While at junior college Costello won several athletic events from competing schools.

James Williamson, former Iowa Park High school athlete and student at Amarillo Junior college, has secured employment in Amarillo and will spend the summer there, continuing his work in school next year.

Mrs. J. Paul Lusk, member of the Iowa Park High school faculty for the past several years, is spending the summer with her husband, at Edinburgh, Texas.

Mrs. A. J. Henson and Mrs. J. C. Searl will leave this week for an extended visit with Mrs. Henson's son at Friona.

Mrs. W. W. Teague will leave this week to join her husband at Pecos.

State Weddings

The groom's brother, Monty, acted as best man; Miss Janie Pearl Shipley, sister of the bride, served as bridesmaid.

Following the impressive wedding ceremony a wedding breakfast was served. Guests included W. P. Conley, grandfather of the groom, and his brother, C. M. Conley, of Chattanooga, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. Hall Worthington, Mrs. A. Perryman, Miss Opal Perryman, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Paul B. Allen, Mrs. A. R. Davis, Mrs. Chester Perkins, Miss Maxine Perkins and Nadine Tomlinson.

Amelia Earhart in Bed At London With Illness

LONDON, May 29. (US)—Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam spent today in bed at the American embassy, nursing a sore throat and resting from her round of social engagements.

Tonight her condition was so improved that she expects to go out tomorrow.

The American airwoman, first to fly the Atlantic alone, became ill last night after a round-trip flight to Brooklands where she watched a civilian pilots' air meet. She declined to summon a physician.

'Sunflower Class' Of 1912 Hears New Baccalaureate Sermon By McKenney

Changes in Past 20 Years Discussed by Pastor in Talk; Reception at L. T. Burns Home Closes Reunion

Opening with a "baccalaureate" sermon "20 years after" the Sunflower class of 1912 of the Wichita Falls High school closed the first annual reunion Sunday. The final activity of the day was a reception at the home of Mrs. L. T. Burns, 2025 Clarinda, in the afternoon attended by 150 class members and relatives.

Immediate families of the 19 class members with their parents and other relatives joined in the party in their honor and moving pictures were made of the entire group on the lawn of the beautiful Burns residence. The movies were made as the group filed from the house. Photographs of family units of the members were made and numerous group pictures were taken during the afternoon.

Sunflower Theme

The refreshment course for the reception offered ice cream in the shape of sunflowers with the colors formed in the moulds. Icing on the cake was mounted with miniature sunflowers, also in life-like colors. The dining room of the Burns home was decorated in the yellow color scheme to follow the class Sunflower scheme. The home was decorated throughout with spring flowers.

The "baccalaureate" sermon was delivered by Dr. S. S. McKenney, First Methodist church pastor, at the church with the 19 class members and their families filling a reserved section in the auditorium. A group picture was taken at the close of the church hour.

In the 20th anniversary "baccalaureate" sermon, "Milestones of Life," Dr. McKenney opened with a discussion of the background of the Psalmist who said, "So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom."

"Against the eternity of God man appears as a speck upon a sunbeam; an isle in a boundless ocean, a star in infinite space. What of the brief span of years since you as a high school class were granted a diploma? Yet, what are any of these transitory periods compared with the eternal years of God? So, reasons the author of our text," the speaker said in opening.

In discussing the analogies of nature, Dr. McKenney quoted Frederick W. Robertson, who said, "All things here are double." "That is, what we see in nature is also reflected in human life. As we sail along the waters the very shores seem to be moving behind us, yet we are really advancing upon them. When we watch the movements upon a screen where there is naught else but a stationary object, we are, in reality, but tracing the action of our own consciousness.

Great Changes

"In spite of ourselves we seem to be borne onward by the resistless tides of passing years. The very world itself is slipping from beneath our feet. Yesterday we were born; today we live, tomorrow we must die! Such is the story of every human life. We live by days rather than by weeks, months, years. Twenty years have passed since your graduation—just 7,300 days! Yet this period has wrought wondrous changes in the earth. Perhaps no previous century in history has made so great a contribution to our race and witnessed so many changes as the past two decades! Within this span the world war, costing billions of money and millions of men, has come and gone, leaving its bloody footprints in the sands of Time.

"But, constructive as well as destructive forces have been at work. Since this class graduated a score of years ago, radio, television, telephotography, talking pictures have become realized dreams. Aerial transportation has passed from experimentation to commercial use. Only five years ago a lone man flew acros sthe Atlantic in 30-odd hours, while only a few days ago a lone woman made the flight in little more than half the time," Dr. McKenney said in touching upon the facts of experience.

"Have you kept pace with the progress of the passing years? Many changes have taken place in each of your lives. Of the 29 original members of this class, two have passed into the Great Beyond, while one of the nine teachers has gone the way of all the earth. Of the remaining 27 graduates most of them have married and become the heads of families until the total number today has reached 88 souls. Not one of this class is as strong physically as you were 20 years ago, though I am told that no member of the group has reached 40 years of age, all the ladies, at least, being several years younger.

Two Figures

"But, I am sure that each one has advanced intellectually during that time, and I pray that all are daily growing in Grace and in the knowledge of God. Your bodies were grown at graduation, but mentally, you are only now coming into your own, while morally and spiritually you will ever be called to 'go on unto perfection!'

"I am sure that each of you must be daily conscious of two journeying companions: namely, the boy you used to be and the man you might have been. One is trailing along the dusty highway of the past while the other is leading on over the brow of the hill and around the bend of the road."

Employment in Jamaica is increasing.

VERNON, Texas, May 29.—What was believed to be the first loads of barley and oats purchased in Wilbarger county this year were bought here Saturday by the W. M. Judd Grain company. The oats, about 200 bushels, were purchased from R. M. Kennedy of Oklaunion, at 12 cents a bushel. About 100 bushels of barley was purchased at 18 cents per bushel from D. P. Quiesenberry of southeast Vernon.

DEMO CHIEFS ASSAIL HOOVER

Garner, Rainey Hammer Away at President

WASHINGTON, May 29. (US)—Speaker Garner today declared President Hoover has recommended more than $400,000,000 of the projects included in the Garner relief program. Continuing to hammer at the president's claim that the Garner measure to aid the jobless is a "pork barrel," Garner said:

"It is rather difficult for me to see how if these are 'pork barrel' projects now they were anything else when he sent them to congress with a request for appropriations to complete them."

House Majority Leader Rainey of Illinois, who introduced the Garner bill, also issued a reply to the president's assault on the measure.

Hoover "Inconsistent"

Declaring many millions of dollars worth of projects carried in the $2,300,000,000 bill had been recommended by President Hoover and millions additional by President Coolidge, Rainey said the former was inconsistent in line with his "vacillating course."

Hearings on the Garner bill start Tuesday before the house ways and means committee. Prospects are for speedy passage by the house.

At the same time hearings on the $2,300,000,000 senate Democratic relief program, carrying a bond issue of but $500,000,000 for federal public works, will start Wednesday before the banking and currency committee.

Democratic Leader Robinson of Arkansas announced the measure will be called up for passage after the senate disposes of the tax and economy bills.

Republicans will attempt to kill all public works provisions except those authorizing income-producing projects, as advocated by President Hoover.

Progressives Want Bonds

A $5,000,000,000 federal prosperity loan will be offered as a substitute by the progressives.

Garner in his statement, issued through the Democratic national committee, said:

"The president had two and one-half years since this panic started in which to effect economies, which he could have done without any action of congress by merely cutting his budget recommendations and by asking for taxes sufficient to meet the recurring treasury deficits instead of permitting them to roll up and up.

"I understand that the president is hitting congress over my head. He must blame congress as the coordinate branch of the government charged with the responsibility of meeting the problems of this nation as they arise.

"This necessity is the more apparent as he is a candidate for reelection this year and if the popular verdict stands as has been indicated by every recent election he must realize that his stay at the White House is drawing to a close."

QUANAH SEEKS CARLSBAD ROAD

Routing of Highway Over No. 16 Asked

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, May 29.—Advice has come to Quanah and Hardeman county officials that a telegram was sent Friday by Engineer Gib Gilchrist of the state highway department to the federal highway commission at Washington, D. C., urging that the Carlsbad Cavern highway be designated to enter Texas over state highway 16.

Highway 16 conects with the free bridge over Red river eight miles north of Quanah. This bridge was completed in the summer of 1931 at a cost of $162,000, and highway 16 has but recently been paved from Red river to Pease river across Hardeman county.

Temporary Designation

A temporary designation of the cavern route was made to route the tourists from Altus to Hollis, Okla., thence to Childress, Texas, but the favorable progress of the road building and the greater amount of paved roads on highway 16 in Texas caused the authorities to seek the alternate designation as the main route.

The Carlsbad Cavern association was organized in Quanah several years ago, and Quanah citizens have been very active in securing completion of the paving of No. 16 to accommodate the traffic expected to be routed over the Carlsbad Cavern highway which would be known as U. S. highway 62 and state highway 16.

EIGHT MILES FOR $1.02

SONORA, Calif.—Six weeks or so ago Peter Kaspar, Lithuanian, pushed a wheelbarrow loaded with prospecting and camping equipment back into Tuolumne county. BIBLE CLASS HONORS VETS

Spanish War Fighters Hear Talk by Daniel

Fifty veterans of the Spanish-American war were honor guests at the weekly meeting of the Kay Bible class of the First Methodist church Sunday morning when Memorial day was celebrated in a talk by Roy J. Daniel and in a short musical program.

J. O. Bradshaw, one of the veterans present, made a brief talk bespeaking for the dead in past wars the lasting respect and gratitude of this generation.

The significance of Memorial day should be emphasized in the annual services of commemoration, Mr. Daniel said, in order that the children of each generation should think of the soldier dead as having paid a great price for liberty and democracy.

After reviewing briefly the day's lesson based upon Joseph's rise to power in Egypt, Mr. Daniel declared that "true greatness lies in unselfish service to God and man."

Continuing, he spoke as follows:

Meaning of Day

"What group of people so represent the ideal of service and self-sacrifice as does a group of soldiers of any war? Memorial or Decoration day is understood by all soldiers but some innocent child may ask what the day means, and then it is our duty to explain so that even a little child may come to know and forever remember. Those of us who share common memories must tell thoes who do not share them the meaning of Memorial day. It is a day when we pause from the cares of life, when we pay tribute to the buried dead of all wars, when we decorate their graves with flowers. The first national Memorial day was May 30, 1869. It was so designated by Gen. John A. Logan, the commander-in-chief of the newly organized Grand Army of the Republic. Since 1899 the graves of the Spanish-American war dead have been decorated. And now in our own day we have about 4,000,000 veterans of the world war and more than 50,000 died on the battle fields of France, Italy and Russia. A passing generation instituted Memorial day. We of the present and coming generations will continue to honor the valor of those who fell in defense of human liberty, and will each year deck with flowers the graves in which they lie.

"What tales could be told us today if all the dead we honor on Memorial day could speak! Men who were at Bunker Hill and at Valley Forge in the American revolution could tell us of Washington and his unselfishness. Those who fell defending frontier settlements and were with Jackson at New Orleans, and with Perry on Lake Erie could tell of deeds of heroism that won us a firm place among the nations. Those who fell in the mighty battles by land and sea in the civil war could tell us of the great Americans of that day —Lee, Davis, Lincoln and Grant. Those who fell going up San Juan hill, in the fighting before Peking and in the Philippines could tell us of our birth as a world power. And those who did not come back when they went over the top in France, your buddies and mine, could tell us of the high idealism and willingness to serve that filled our souls and actuated our lives in the war to save civilization. Teach your children that our glorious flag has never gone down in defeat in any war. Let it be theirs to hold it high. We must keep faith with those who lie in the silent cities of the dead or they shall not sleep though poppies blow in Flanders field!

Banners of Dead

"The memories that this day brings overwhelm us. Our generation that carried on the world war, in fact any generation that has fought a war, has been set apart by that experience. In our youth our hearts were touched with fire. It was given us to learn at the outset that life is a profound and passionate thing. We learned that life has only two great events—birth and death—and that one is no more to be feared than the other. But above all we have learned that whether a man accepts from Fortune her spade and will look downward and dig, or from Aspiration her airplane and will soar into the azure blue, success must be earned by bringing to our work mighty hearts. Soldiers have mighty hearts.

"There comes to mind the vision of my company commander, John W. Thomason. He was a man who loved his men and whose men loved him. He fought for his men and they fought for him. Today he is still serving Old Glory in China, and he has become a successful writer of world war stories.

"There was Gene Tunney who was the boxer of my regiment. He was not such a great boxer in France and Bob Martin won the A. E. F. championship but Gene came back home, worked hard until he won the belt from the most popular mauler of all time—Jack Dempsey.

"But Memorial day must not be a day of grief. In the distance we see the moving banners of a hidden column. They are the banners of our dead comrades of all wars, who still live for us and bid us think of life—not death—of life so sweet to which in their youth they lent the passion and glory of eternal spring.

"May I remind you that there is an army in which all of us—the soldiers of all wars—can and should enlist? It is that great army whose banner is the Cross, whose fortress is the church, whose commander-in-chief is God, whose chief of staff is Christ. It is that army whose objective is the gate of heaven, and whose zero hour is now here."

Jake Avis sang "That Old Pal of Mine," and the class quartet consisting of Messrs. L. R. Thurman, J. S. Minton, J. W. Akin Jr., and Grover Bullington, accompanied by Mrs. Akin, sang numbers appropriate to the occasion.

"Bring 'Em Back Alive"

By FRANK BUCK with EDWARD ANTHONY

THE STORY THUS FAR:

Dead animals mean nothing to Frank Buck—he brings 'em back alive! He hunts them barehanded; with snare and coil; in jungle, and mountainfastness, in wildest Africa, in darkest Thibet—but always he brings 'em back alive. Many of his living trophies can be seen today in the New York Zoological park, in the Lincoln Park zoo in Chicago, in municipal collections all over America, in circuses throughout the world. He has crossed the Pacific 40 times, encircles the world five times, knocked out an orang-utan in fair fight, walked the width of Borneo, and delivered to the city of Dallas one complete zoo.

Buck has just obtained, in Singapore, the largest orang-utan ever captured. He asks the natives how they accomplished the capture.

CHAPTER III

Well, tuan, we played a mean trick on that orang. (Laughing.) If we hadn't, you wouldn't be his owner. He'd still be roaming the jungle.

Abdul here (pointing to one of his men) found the brute's house in a big tree. (High up in some big tree the orang-utan builds a platform of branches over and around which he weaves more branches until he has a sort of shelter of limbs and leaves.)

Abdul discovered the big fellow's tree-house in the jungle tiga maken sari from our kompong. (Those three Malay words mean "three chews of betel nut." The Malay frequently figures time in such picturesque terms. It takes him about 25 minutes to polish off a mouthful of sari, or betel nut, so three chews would be about an hour and a quarter's walk, during which he would cover about 3½ miles.)

It was the dry season of the year in our section. That big orang had to go a long way for water or go thirsty, which he did for days at a time to save himself the long journey through the tree-tops.

It was easy to watch his movements, a task to which Abdul was assigned. We knew the value of such an animal and we made up our minds to capture him if we possibly could. Naturally we were in great fear of such a giant, having witnessed the terrible results when smaller specimens went on a rampage.

It struck me that the thing to do first was to conduct an experiment at a safe distance. We filled a small tub with water, placed it near his tree and retired to await developments.

From a clump of bushes a fair distance off we watched the big fellow's movements. For quite a while nothing happened. We were beginning to wonder how long we would have to wait before our friend (though he was hardly that, eh, tuan?) would decide to leave his house in the tree to see what was doing in the world below.

He came down at length. For several minutes he devoted himself to studying the tub and its contents. He was obviously suspicious about something, though what actually went on in his head no one will ever know. He got close enough to the tub to take a drink and started bending over as if he were going to do so. Then, very suddenly, he righted himself. He had changed his mind. He took another hard look at the tub, his expression plainly indicating that he wasn't at all sure that he liked what he saw. By the time an orang gets to be as old as this one (my captive was probably 20 or 25 years old, and he might well have been more) he has had many tricks played on him and he is nothing if not cautious.

"He's not going to drink," I said to one of my comrades. "Not this time anyhow." I had hardly uttered these words when the animal knocked over the tub and scrambled up his tree again.

The next day we refilled the tub and again awaited developments. One has to have patience in dealing with these wild creatures. One would never capture them otherwise.

After a few hours the big fellow came down again, practically repeating his performance of the day before, the only difference being that this time, as he tipped the tub over with his foot, he jumped back as the contents splashed on the ground, as if expecting something to happen to him. Perhaps the fact that nothing did happen encouraged him to view the tub and its contents in a friendlier light. The third day he did not tip it over so vehemently and the fourth day he drank—first a sample swallow, then another and another, finally drinking his fill.

Each day we filled the tub, getting him used to the idea that he could depend upon this as a steady source. There were rambutans, banyan berries and other fruits not far distant, so the big fellow need make only short trips out for food early mornings and late evenings, knowing that his water was near at hand. It made things quite convenient for this lazy giant.

Then we started adding to the water a small amount of arric, our native gin. (Probably there is no drink in the world quite so powerful as the arric distilled by the Malays and the Dyaks, an innocent-looking fluid that, like other gins, looks exactly like water. It was unnecessary for the dato to tell me about Bornean arric. I sampled it once, and though it went down smoothly enough, not long afterwards I thought I was on fire. Once a Malay, in describing the concoction, said to me, "Why, tuan, three drops of this would make a rabbit walk right up and spit in a tiger's eye.")

Evidently the orang did not notice the taste of arric in the water, or did not mind it. After all, he had drunk plenty of water in his time that tasted worse than this. A thirsty animal in the jungle has learned not to be too particular, there being times when he is grateful for anything he can get, even muddy water seeming a luxury.

However, the quantity of arric that we used at the start was so small that the water could not have tasted much differently. Each day we increased the dose and the animal continued to drink. The arric taste did not seem to bother him at all. For all we knew, he might have developed a liking for it and the faint glow he must have experienced afterwards. The quantity we were giving him, tuan, was still not large and was so well diluted that it couldn't have had more than a mild effect on him.

When we felt that this "man of the forest" was ready for it, we filled the tub with straight arric. As soon as he was thirsty he slid down his tree for a drink, as was now his custom, the tub having become a regular part of his life. He took a mouthful, wasn't quite sure that this was the kind of water he wanted, retained it in his mouth for half a minute and then spat it out. He regarded the tub thoughtfully for a time, then decided to reconsider. He began to drink slowly and continued until he had drained the last drop.

Then he sat down beside the tub, evidently feeling he needed a rest. After sitting there for a about five minutes he started swaying to the right and then to the left like a mother rocking a baby to sleep by hand. Then he got up uncertainly and started to walk across the clearing, stumbling over something in the process and almost falling over. In the typical manner of a drunk who has stubbed his toe, he looked down angrily at the enemy that was trying to throw him, some matted underbrush, and decided to deal it a kick. In doing this he lost his balance and landed foolishly on his back-side.

He got up unsteadily, evidently concluding that something was wrong, in which event he had better go home to his tree-top hut. He turned around and looked doubtfully for his tree. Finally locating the tree with his eye, he made for it, in anything but a straight line.

He managed to get part of the way up the trunk, but arric is arric and when it starts asserting itself it's a serious handicap to man or beast in a tree-climbing mood. Down slid the bewildered animal, landing with a thud on its now battered bottom.

He would teach this drunken tree a lesson! Picking up a log, he wrathfully swung it against the trunk, the log snapping in half and its wielder, leaning over so far in dealing the blow that he became top-heavy, landing in a heap where he sat blinking in silly fashion at the part of the club that remained in his grasp. Again he rose uncertainly and started shakily across the clearing. Coming to a fallen tree, he put his hands on it to support himself, raised one leg to step over and fell down dead drunk.

When he came to, some hours later, he found himself neatly crated at Jesselton awaiting shipment to Singapore.

Shortly after the dato had finished his story, Ali and I, with the aid of some boatmen, loaded the king of orangs onto a lighter, and we headed for Johnson's pier. There Ali got some coolies to help us lift our cage onto a bullock cart which was sent on its way to my compound at Katong. A few days later I had the job of transferring my big "man of the forest" from his cramped box, which I considered bad for his health and his disposition, to a fine new roomy one that Hin Mong, my Chinese carpenter, had built for the newcomer.

I've had much easier tasks in my time than the one of getting this savage beast out of his old box into the new. The two boxes were nailed and lashed together, with the openings (bars removed) facing each other. Some bananas were placed in the new box as an inducement to the beast to enter his new home. The stubborn cuss refused to be tempted, for quite a while devoting himself to grunting and sucking in wind, his favorite method of expressing rage. When we pounded on his old cage in an effort to drive him into the new, he pounded back with powerful blows. If those cages had not been securely fastened together, we would have had to reckon with a terrible foeman.

After much effort, we got this great ape to go for the bananas, dropping the iron bars as soon as he entered. These bars, by the way, were spaced so close together that it was impossible for the animal to reach through. An orang as powerful as this one could have pulled a person to him, had he been able to reach his arms through the bars, and killed him in a jiffy.

Although this giant jungle-man's new cage was much more comfortable than the old one, giving him plenty of room, he showed no signs of taming down. He was in a rage most of the time. Every morning, when the boy came to clean his cage, running an iron scraper through an opening at the bottom, the animal would take the implement in his powerful grip. The boy's efforts to wrench it loose couldn't have been any less futile if he had been trying to yank a tree out by the roots. He would have to let go and wait until the animal tired of hanging on.

My orang was in fine condition when I got him ready for shipment to Hong Kong, along with hundreds of other specimens, aboard the West Sequana on the first leg of my journey to America. He was still a perfect example of sustained wrath but he was eating regularly. His new diet consisted of carrots, sweet potatoes, bananas, sugar cane, boiled rice, raw eggs and bread, and he was thriving on it.

At Hong Kong I transferred to the President Cleveland. We stopped at Kobe where I cabled my agent in San Francisco that I had a record-breaking full-grown male orang—(I included the creature's astonishing measurements in my message)—which I would sell for $5,000, a price I considered small enough for the biggest representative of this species in captivity.

A reply was waiting for me at Yokohama. It was to the effect that the Ringling Brothers circus was willing to pay $4,000 and accept delivery on the dock, which, of course, would relieve me of the risk involved in getting the animal to its ultimate destination in the United States. I accepted. This didn't allow me much profit if I added to the original cost of the animal the various incidental expenses involved, plus a decent charge for my time, but I had sense enough to know that with the Ringling Brothers circus, the finest in the world, the animal would receive excellent care and would be constantly in the limelight, which wouldn't do my reputation as a collector any harm.

So far so good. The rest was not so good. About five days out of San Francisco my prize orang developed a bad case of dysentery, which is always serious in anthropoid apes. He had suddenly achieved one of those sunken stomachs that invariably spell disaster in his species. The ship's doctor had a serum that he though would help if he could manage to inject it. Patiently we strove to make a quick injection but we had no luck, two or three needles breaking off in the animal's fingers.

That night the rajah of all orangs, as the date had called him, died. I tossed him over the side cage and all. Hin Mong would have had a fit if he had seen his fine orang box go overboard. He mightn't have regarded the loss of the animal as a tragedy—he could be quite matter-of-fact about animals—but he would never have understood my throwing away a well-made crate, contaminated or not.

My experience with this orang will give an idea of the risks involved in the business of collecting wild animals. If enough specimens die en route the collector finds himself "in the red." I ought to know. It's happened to me.

Woodcock Says Education Rather Than Force Best For Prohibition

DENVER, Colo., May 29. (US)—Education rather than force, the method to which the federal prohibition department is restricted at present, is the most powerful weapon with which to enforce the 18th amendment, Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock said in an address today before commissioners attending the 144th annual assembly of the Presbyterian church here.

"Education in its largest and fullest sense," he said, "is a more powerful influence than the mere fear of punishment. If that were not so our present courts would be inadequate.

"Perhaps congress would have done better not to have restricted the bureau of prohibition to the use of the more primitive method of force. It might have been wiser to have allowed us to use the more persuasive methods of education as well."

Colonel Woodcock said that because of this restriction it clearly is the duty of such bodies as the Presbyterian church to carry on temperance education more than ever.

Colonel Woodcock admitted that there are "strategic reasons" which, combined with constitutional restrictions, make the detection of the private offense "so fraught with difficulties that the law is practically powerless to punish it."

"There was obviously a divided public opinion on prohibition," he said. "I thought that if the law were directed at the traffic there would be less resentment and more acquiescence.

"Thus the evolution of national prohibition is that the law is directed against the commerce in liquor while the person who supports the commerce is free from direct interference."

Colonel Woodcock informed the commissioners that one of his main objects has been to make enforcement lawful, with vigorous punishment for agents who have been guilty of acts of violence.

Much of Colonel Woodcock's discussion was on state cooperation. He admitted some states cooperate very little, others not at all. However, where states won't "help themselves the federal government will try to help them," he said.
