Major Quake Rocks Pacific Coast Area

EUREKA, Calif. (AP) — A major earthquake measuring 7.0 on the Richter scale jolted a 500-mile stretch of the Pacific Coast early today, collapsing a highway overpass, causing widespread damage and injuring at least five people, officials said.

The tremor was the most powerful in the area since a 7.2 earthquake Jan. 22, 1923, said Don Finlay of the U.S. Geological Survey in Golden, Colo. He said it was the most powerful earthquake in the 48 contiguous United States since the Oct. 15, 1979, tremor near El Centro, Calif., that injured 91 people.

The quake was centered off the coast about 30 miles north of this community of 24,000, the USGS said. The area hit by the quake is a rural section of California and Oregon, where lumbering and fishing are the major industries. It is not an area of tall buildings.

Five people were injured when the southbound lanes of an overpass on U.S. 101 south of Eureka collapsed, said Capt. John McFarland of the Eureka Fire Department. He said four people in a car and a man in a pickup truck were injured when the vehicles plunged about 30 feet from the damaged overpass to the road below.

McFarland, who rode to the hospital with car's driver, quoted the man as saying that when the car dropped, he thought he had a flat tire, and that on the horizon he could see flashes from power lines.

"When he looked back to the roadway, there was no road," McFarland said. The pickup followed the car a moment later.

Richard Robinson, administrator of Eureka General Hospital, said the car's 32-year-old driver was being treated for a possible dislocated shoulder and his two sons had head injuries. They were listed in serious but stable condition.

The 31-year-old mother and a 4-year-old daughter were in stable condition at St. Joseph's Hospital in Eureka, night supervisor Muriel Arienti said. The woman suffered multiple fractures and the daughter had cuts on her forehead, she said.

One person was treated for a heart attack after the quake.

Estimates of the quake's duration varied from 30 to 40 seconds.

Power was knocked out across a wide area and gas and water mains were ruptured, authorities said. Al Seefeldt of Pacific Gas & Electric Co. said a power plant serving the area, which contains an unused nuclear reactor, was shut down when circuit breakers tripped. He said the plant would soon be back on line and that power was brought in from other areas in the meantime.

The building which contains nuclear fuel for the reactor, which hasn't been used since 1976, was undamaged, Seefeldt said.

There were no other immediate reports of injuries from the quake, which struck at 2:38 a.m. PST.

FIRST STEP TOWARD A PARK—Mike Smith, city engineer, and Juanita Farren, city secretary, look over a sketch at city hall that is the beginning of plans for developing Line Park. The new park will be located along Deep Creek between 30th and 37th Sts. on land given to the city for that purpose by the Line family. (SDN Staff Photo)

Along Deep Creek Shores...

City Of Snyder Preparing To Develop First Park Facility

Up to now, the City of Snyder has never owned or operated any parks. The main reason is that Scurry County started a park system back during the oil boom days of the early 50s and has done such a good job of it that there has been no need for the city to get into an overlapping situation.

But the picture is due to change soon. Not that the county has reduced either the scope or the quality of its services, but the city has received a gift of land in a area that would fill in a gap in the local park system—land that could hardly be used for other purposes because of its location in a flood plane.

The property, more than 30 acres located along Deep Creek between 30th and 37th Sts. was contributed by the Line family and the new facility will be named Line Park.

City officials say they hope to develop the new park in a professional and efficient manner. In fact, professional advice already has been sought. John Alford, director of parks and recreation, and Walter Heard, superintendent of parks, at Lubbock, have been engaged as consultants on development of the new park.

The city council, at its last meeting, approved the creation of a city parks board of five members. These posts likely will be filled by appointments at the council's December meeting.

What will the new park provide?

A preliminary proposal, which will serve as a starting point in planning, has been prepared by Alford and Heard and their sketch presented to the city council last week is on display in the lobby of city hall.

It shows trails, athletic fields, a pavilion, picnic areas, bridges and parking areas. Since the entire acreage is in a flood plane, all facilities would be of a type that, should they be inundated by floodwaters, they could be "dusted off" after the waters receded and be ready for use again.

The city already has been advised that it probably can qualify for some matching grants through the Parks and Wildlife Department.

At present, the city is proceeding with the idea that plans will be furnish by the consultants, supervision of construction will be the responsibility of the city engineer, and the work will be performed by city crews using city equipment.

What about maintenance once the park is put into use?

"We would like to enter into a contract with the county for that," said Gayle. "They have been operating parks for a long time and they do a darn good job of it."

Gayle said he could see no need for the city to establish a new department at city hall to maintain one park when the county already is operating several in a first-class manner. Although he has not discussed possible terms of a

John Anderson, running as an independent, siphoned off some votes from the two major parties in last Tuesday's election, and Ed Clark, the Libertarian Party candidate, got a few here and there. This revives that age-old question of whether there ever will be more than two major political parties in this country.

We doubt it.

Occasionally we hear someone lamenting the fact that voters must rely on no more than two organizations to come up with candidates for political offices, but nobody seems interested in recruiting enough people to form a third party. In the first place, it would take several years and during those formative years those holding loyal to the new party would be excluding themselves, at least temporarily, from helping make decisions that counted.

It is a known fact that a lot of Republicans in Texas have voted in the Democratic primary, even when their own party was holding one of its own, because there was no other way that they could participate in the selection of local officials. That situation appears to be fading, now that the GOP is finally gaining converts at the local level.

But a third party is something else. We have a feeling that most Americans would regard a race with three major party candidates as something like a football game between three teams. It would create a lot of confusion on the part of the voters, and there simply would not be enough television teams to go around when they hit the campaign trail.

We don't often hear of countries with three major parties, and in too many there is only one. Even the British, who have been in the government business longer than we have, still have only two major parties.

Also, we hear the suggestion occasionally that we should elect our presidents by popular vote, rather than the electoral college. We are reluctant to jump on that bandwagon, also. There is no sure-fire method of conducting an election that suits everybody, but we can see some danger flags down the popular vote trail.

For example, say that a candidate led in each of 49 states by 50,000 votes, which would give him a 2,450,000 vote edge. But, suppose that the one remaining state should be a big one with with at least five million votes and also should be the home state of the candidate rejected in the other 49 states. His home state could elect him by giving him a margin of 2.5 million or more votes. That may sound far-fetched, but it could happen. It would give the more populous states considerably more clout than they have under the electoral college system.

Ask Us

Q — Why are teachers in the local school district required to take a physical exam each year at their own expense?

A — As board policy, this has been a condition of employment for a number of years and school officials feel that it is a good one. There have been several instances in which physical problems have been detected in time for them to be corrected before more serious problems occur, says Supt. Bill J. Hood.

Strychnine Use To Be Restricted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government said Friday it plans to impose restrictions on the use of the poison strychnine because of a threat to endangered animals.

Farmers, mostly in Western states, use about 500,000 pounds of strychnine bait annually to kill rodents and other animals that feed on crops.

Five Bodies Found In Mine

ROBINSON, W. Va.(AP)—Rescue workers wearing gas masks to guard against deadly fumes Saturday located the bodies of five miners trapped by an explosion deep inside a coal mine.

The bodies were found a little less than 24 hours after a blast and fire in an isolated section of Westmoreland Coal Co.'s Ferrell No. 17 mine unleashed toxic methane fumes. The blast was so strong that it blew large cinder blocks 150 feet, according to United Mine workers President Sam Church.

Rescuers left the bodies where they were and did not plan to remove them until gas has been flushed out, according to Charles Brinley, a Westmoreland vice president.

Iran's Terms Studied

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Carter Administration will not flatly reject Iran's terms for releasing the 52 American hostages and is finalizing the U. S. reply, officials say.

The response, however, is not expected to be sent to Tehran before next week.

Plans To Open In January

Construction Begins On New Bank

First National Bank (in organization), which hopes to open in January, last week began construction of a permanent banking facility at 3610 College Avenue.

Workers Wednesday removed the service station at the 37th and College Avenue location, and site work was begun. Completion of the permanent facility is expected in early spring, according to Lewis Nance, president of the proposed bank.

Nance also said the bank plans to open in a temporary modular facility sometime in January. The modular unit will be located at the same address.

The bank has purchased the 6,500 square foot building formerly used as an oil company office and will completely renovate the building and add an additional 7,500 square feet.

Mike Klein Construction Co. of Lubbock is the general contractor, and architect is the firm of Whitaker and Hall of Lubbock. "The proposed building will feature a complete new look and give us a very modern and efficient banking facility," Nance added.

When complete, the bank will feature five drive-in windows and a 24-hour automatic teller. The bank will open with three officers and six additional employees.

The temporary modular facility will allow the proposed bank to offer all banking services except safety deposit boxes. The permanent facility will provide all banking services.

Nance said the automatic teller will begin operating when the new building is complete. He said this will allow customers to make deposits, withdrawals, loan payments and transfers from one account to another 24-hours a day.

Charter application for the proposed bank was approved Aug. 8 by the Comptroller of the Currency in Washington. Soon after that the nine organizers of the new bank were elected interim directors. In addition to Nance, they are Bill McCormick, Buster Anderson, Roy McQueen, Morris Light, Mal Donelson, Milton Ham, E. D. Walton and Sammy Spikes.

Spikes, a native of Snyder and currently president of Brownfield State Bank, is chairman of the board. Nance has purchased a home in Snyder and is in the process of moving.

Until the temporary building is put on location, Nance will be using an office at 1823 25th Street.

Nance, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin School of Banking, also attended East Central State University in Ada, Okla., and the Oklahoma City School of Law.

Nance, 50, has been in the banking business for more than 20 years. Prior to coming to Snyder, he was senior vice president and comptroller at Brownfield State Bank where he also serves on the board of directors.

Nance has been active in various professional and civic organizations. He is a Rotary Club past president and is a member of the Shrine Club. He also was active in the chamber of commerce and United Way. He also serves on the board of trustees of the College of Southwest in Hobbs, N.M.

He and his wife, Teddy, have four children, three of whom are attending Texas Tech University.

McQueen Had Only A Dim Hope Of Surviving

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Despite hopes that a highly unusual treatment was helping fight Steve McQueen's cancer, the surgeon who operated on him a day before his death found the actor's body ravaged by spreading tumors.

"The possibility of his surviving the operation was extremely poor," said Dr. Cesar Santos. "He had cancer all the way to his diaphragm, and cancer from the right lung was pushing into the left lung."

McQueen, 50, known for his film portrayals of maverick tough guys, died of a massive heart attack early Friday at a clinic in Juarez, Mexico, where he had undergone surgery Thursday for removal of a five-pound tumor from his abdomen and a smaller growth from his neck, according to his publicist, Warren Cowan.

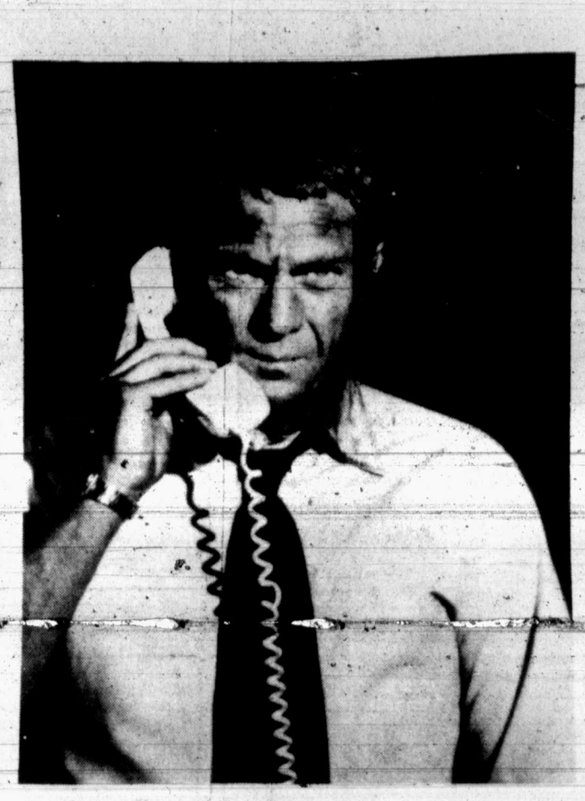

Santos said the surgery was an effort to reduce McQueen's "extreme pain."

No funeral was planned for McQueen, in accordance with the actor's wishes, Cowan said. His body was flown back to California on Friday, and Cowan said it would be cremated.

As word of his death spread through Hollywood, friends and fellow actors talked sorrowfully about McQueen, who starred in such action films such as "Papillon," "The Thomas Crown Affair," "Bullitt" and "The Towering Inferno."

"I think that Steve was a man who didn't realize how many people appreciated him and liked him personally," said Richard Crenna, who co-starred with McQueen in "The Sand Pebbles," for which McQueen was nominated for an Academy Award as best actor. "Steve was a real loner."

"I knew him as a friend," said actor Glenn Ford. "It's another great loss, another legend gone. I feel a great sadness, especially because of the passing of a man as vital as he was."

Exposed To Cancer Agents At Least 4 Times in Life

JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — Doctors theorized Steve McQueen's death was caused by four exposures to cancer-causing substances during his varied career, according to the surgeon who operated on the film star 13 hours before his death Friday.

"He was exposed to a substance during World War II that is carcinogenic," said Dr. Cesar Santos. "Two, he worked in construction where he was exposed to asbestos. Three, he was a pilot, and he flew in an open-cockpit plane and inhaled insecticide.

"And four, he smoked two packs of cigarettes a day for the past 20 years," said Santos, 52, who removed a five-pound tumor from McQueen's abdomen Thursday. Santos said McQueen's body was riddled with cancer.

"His entire intestine was covered with cancer. His right lung was entirely cancerous. He had a small tumor on the left side of his neck and a much larger tumor in his abdomen," the surgeon said.

He said McQueen had suffered from cancer for two years and was in "extreme pain" before Thursday's surgery.

"McQueen and wife asked for the operation because of the pain," Santos said. But "the possiblity of his surviving the operation were extremely poor. He had cancer all the way to his diaphram and cancer from the right lung was pushing into the left lung."

Santos said after the operation the pain was not as bad, and McQueen was able to breath on his own. But then, early Friday, a sudden heart attack killed him, he said.

"We tried for 10 minutes to save him. It didn't work," Santos said. "Without the operation he might have lived for two or three more months.

"McQueen had a desire to live. That's why he wanted the surgery."

Santos said he could not say why the actor chose his 20-bed clinic on a side street in this Mexican border city for major cancer surgery. But two American doctors who work in Juarez said McQueen sought treatment in Mexico because American doctors "told him just to go home and die."

"The Mexicans offered him at least some hope," said Dr. Jack Silverthorne.

"Mexican doctors are more willing than Americans to try methods that have been abandoned or not tried in the United States."

Remove Keys From Autos, Say Police

Law enforcement officials reported two more vehicles reported stolen and then found a few hours later. A rash of these incidents have turned up in the past few days. A policeman says its almost always a company pickup with the keys left in the ignition, being taken. Later, it will be found abandoned with contents, often including valuable tools, untouched. The policeman urged that motorists not leave their keys in their cars.

At 6:14 a.m. Friday, a 1978 Chevrolet pickup was stolen from 313 36th Place. It was found at 7:30 a.m. a couple of blocks away.

At 6:26 a.m. Friday, a 1980 white Ford pickup was reported stolen from 2611 Ave. V. It was located at 8:18 a.m. Saturday at 2701 Ave. 0.

Also in the police files were two incidents of criminal mischief. The first one occurred sometime Friday in the Snyder high school parking lot where shoe polish was smeared on several windshields and one set of wipers were reported broken. The second involved obscenities place on a dumpster at Snyder Lanes.

Six Counties Disaster Areas

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said Thursday the Small Business Administration has declared Brazoria, Calhoun, Hays, Refugio, Travis and Webb counties as disaster areas as a result of damage caused by Hurricane Allen.

The declaration allows individuals and businesses adversely affected by the high winds, rain, flooding and tornadoes to apply for low-interest emergency loans through the federal SBA.

LAWN WEEDS:

Remember those unsightly weeds and grasses that emerged in your lawn last winter? Now is the time to take action to prevent a similar situation this year.

Winter weeds begin to germinate as the temperature drops in October or November. Weed seedlings emerge from November through January but remain small and often don't become obvious until January or February.

A number of herbicides will control winter weeds in St. Augustine and bermudagrass if applied before weed seeds begin to germinate. This means applying preemergence herbicides in October or early November.

Benefin (Balan), bensulide (Betasan, Pre-San) and DCPA (Dacthal) are all available in granular formulations and will give good weed control if properly applied. Granular materials are easier to apply than spray because calibration is more simple. Drop type applicators are better than spinner type distributors because of uniformity of coverage and ease of calibration.

All these herbicides are available mixed with fertilizer (weed and feed products), but thse mixtures must be used with care. Areas that need fertilization, such as flower beds and gardens, could be damaged by the herbicide, depending on what is growing there or what will be planted later. Proper application rates are more important when applying a herbicide than when fertilizer only is applied.

Two other effective preemergence herbicides are atrazine and simazine, but these are labelled for use only in fertilizer mixtures. Never apply fertilizers containing atrazine or simazine near young trees or ornamentals or injury will occur.

Unless there is rain soon after herbicide application, the lawn should be watered thoroughly to carry the herbicide down into the soil to contact weed seeds.

Before buying and using a herbicide, check the label for the exact rate and specific weeds and grasses to be controlled as well as precautions for use.

GARDEN DISEASE PROBLEMS:

Gardeners can help hold down future plant disease problems by practicing some simple preventive maintenance this fall.

Plant disease organisms usually overwinter in infected plant parts such as leaves, stems, and rotted or dried up fruits. Remove this infested plant material from flower beds or garden to help reduce next year's disease problems.

Remove infected leaves and fruits from plants and rake them up. Prune stems back below the infection site. When pruning, cut back branches six or more inches before the last sign of infection. Use a disinfectant dip for the pruning instrument such as a 10 percent solution of household bleach to avoid mechanical spread of disease.

Fall plowing can follow this clean-up.

Deep burial of plant residues is one method of disease control that has been used successfully by farmers for many years.

Diseases can't be completely eliminated by clean-up practices, but a gardener who cleans up his garden in the fall will have fewer disease problems next year.

The temperature of snow is usually several degrees higher than the surrounding atmosphere. When the air temperature is below freezing, the snow on the ground will be 3 to 4 degrees warmer. Snow is composed of about nine tenths air and one tenth water.

Voyager Zooms In On Saturn And Its Flock Of 14 Moons

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Voyager 1, about 4 million miles from Saturn on Friday, is turning its television eyes upon the planet's 14 moons, a strange flock that includes the largest in the solar system and two others that apparently trade orbits to avoid collision.

"We are on our way for a very interesting ride through the Saturn system," said chief scientist Edward Stone of the California Institute of Technology. "We're on the verge of some very major discoveries in the next few days."

Mission officials at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory said Friday the one-ton spacecraft was operating smoothly and, following an overnight course correction, "is right on course for its fly-by of the large moon Titan on Tuesday night and Saturn on Wednesday afternoon."

Stone said astronomers know very little about Saturn's moons. Even an accurate measure of their sizes remains for Voyager's robot laboratory to determine.

Until the size is known, their composition can only be guessed at. "We don't know whether the Saturnian satellites are rocks or iceballs or what they are," Stone said.

He said moons circling a planet so far from the sun's warmth are almost certainly icy objects.

Program On Weaving Set

Monday's brown bag luncheon in the Scurry County Museum will feature a program on the History of Weaving by an avid weaver, Star Shelton of Lamesa.

Mrs. Shelton weaves on looms inherited from her grandmother, and feels that personal involvement in weaving is a good means of retaining contact with past generations to whom weaving was a necessity. Weavings by Mrs. Shelton will be displayed in the museum this month.

There is no admission charge for the brown bag luncheons and the public is invited to attend. Persons who would like the museum staff to pick up a sandwich or box lunch for them may make arrangements by calling 573-6107 before 11 a.m. Monday.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Before I met Bob, I corresponded with several men who wanted to communicate with women by mail. (I had signed up with a "lonely hearts" club.) Well, after marrying Bob, I quit writing to these men, but every now and then I get a letter from a strange man who wants to correspond with me.

Abby, this club I signed with is no longer in business, but it must have sold its membership list to another such club because I'm still getting letters from men.

Bob says I should tear up these letters without even opening them. I say that because these letters are addressed to me, I have the legal right to read them, and then tear them up if I want to.

My husband gets very upset by these letters. He says that a happily married woman who really loves her husband (and I do) should have no interest whatsoever in reading a letter from a strange man, and I should destroy such mail without even reading it. What is your opinion?

BOB'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Loving your husband as you do, why upset him by showing even the slightest interest in mail from men who are seeking to form a relationship with an unattached woman? When the next one arrives, ceremoniously set fire to it (unopened) in Bob's presence. It will warm his heart.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from NEEDS A BREAK, whose husband couldn't understand why his wife wanted a little vacation away from her family, prompted me to write.

My parents, both retired, live 420 miles from us. When our youngest child was out of diapers, my husband volunteered to look after our three children for a weekend so I could visit my parents and "get away from it all."

What a marvelous time I had sleeping late, visiting old friends, shopping and going out to dinner. My parents spoiled me rotten. Best of all, I didn't have to answer to "Mommy" all weekend.

I returned home completely refreshed with a wonderful new attitude toward my husband and children. My sweet husband has been doing this for seven years now. (We call it "Mom's R & R.")

It gives me a little vacation away from my routine at home, my parents love pampering me, and my husband and kids admit they enjoy getting rid of me for a few days.

After seeing that letter in your column, Abby, I just had to send in my support.

CINDY IN HUNTINGTON BEACH

DEAR CINDY: Three cheers for your sweet husband. What a terrific Mother's Day gift a "Mom's R & R" would be for mothers of small children — scheduled, of course, for any weekend during the year.

DEAR ABBY: May I address this to victims of so-called "male menopause"?

I was one, and I beg you to learn from my experience. Don't give in. The price is much too high. I'm recently divorced (one month) because I thought it was possible to recapture my youth by "falling in love" with a girl 20 years my wife's junior. It wasn't love, it was a case of male menopause, and now all that remains is a destroyed 19-year marriage and four badly hurt people — two fine teen-agers, my ex-wife and me.

I tried to relive the excitement I knew 25 years ago. For a brief moment, I did. But it didn't last, and now I realize the value of what I foolishly threw away.

To you men over 45 who go in for one-night stands: Accept them for what they are, and don't try to fantasize that they are a lasting love relationship. They aren't. I made the mistake of trying to build a one-night stand with a 19-year-old girl into a lasting love affair. It couldn't be done. I made a fool of myself and I broke the heart of my wonderful, intelligent, caring, warm, 39-year-old wife. I must have been crazy.

FRANK

DEAR FRANK: Thanks for a good — and frank — letter.

Medical Fund Established

PARK

maintenance contract with county officials, Gayle said he had discussed such a proposal in general terms with some members of the commissioners court and with J. K. Ward, county park superintendent. They appeared to be receptive to further discussion, the city manager said.

City officials envision the new park as a facility that will help take care of increasing outdoor recreation activities. There will be space for such things as soccer fields and diamonds for baseball and-or softball. Construction of athletic fields are somewhat costly, but if matching grants can be obtained, the city probably could swing its part by providingg "in kind" services, such as supervision and actual construcion work.

And, back in the minds of some is speculation that development of Line Park might be a catalyst that could ultimately lead to other development along Deep Creek.

Police Report Hit And Runs

Police investigated two hit and run offenses to buildings Saturday morning. The first was reported at 8:20 and resulted in damage to a wall at Snyder Oaks Rest Home on 37th St.

At 8:47, Patternson's Used Cars on the East Highway reported that a vehicle had struck a wall sometime during the night. A suspect has been taken into custody in the Snyder Oaks case.

More Needed For Course

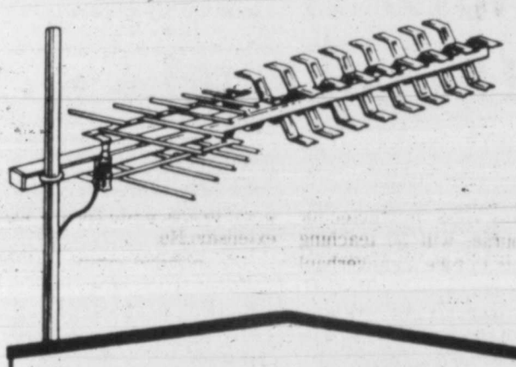

More students are needed to form the new cosmetology class scheduled to begin Dec. 2 at the Western Texas College.

"We need at least four additional students for this class," Judy Border, cosmetology instructor, said. "I realize that some prospective students hesitate to begin their program at this time of year because of the holiday season ahead and the winter months, but since our classes meet for 12 months this is actually a good time for students to enter the program."

Mrs. Border needs to hear from students by Wednesday. She may be contacted in the cosmetology lab at the east end of the WTC campus. Her telephone there is 573-8511, extension 267.

Written By Chance...

'Becket' Opens Here Thursday

French playwright Jean Anouilh confesses that he wrote "Becket" by chance.

"I had bought on the quays of the Seine---where, in curious little stalls old gentlemen of another age sell old books---'The Conquest of England by the Normans' by Augustin Thierry, a historian of the Romantic school.

"I did not expect to read this respectable work," Anouilh continued. "I had bought it because it had a pretty green binding and I needed a spot of green on my shelves. All the same, when I returned home, I skimmed through the book and I happened upon the chapters that tell the story of Becket, some 30 pages, which one might have taken to be fiction except that the bottoms of the pages were jammed with references in Latin from the chroniclers of the twelfth century.

"I was dazzled. I had expected to find a saint...and I found a man."

Anouilh began the play about the man Becket, then put it aside and finally, at his wife's insistence, took it up again. It was performed first in Paris, then opened in New York on Oct. 5, 1960, at the St. James Theatre with Anthony Quinn as Becket's friend-turned-enemy Henry II and Laurence Olivier as Becket.

The theatre department at Western Texas College has selected "Becket" as its fall production, and will also use it as their entry in the American College Theatre Festival. The opening performance on Thursday is reserved for members of the Fine Arts Association, and memberships in the association may be purchased at the door. Tickets for the remaining performances on Nov. 14, 15, and 17, may be obtained by calling the fine arts division office at 573-8511, extension 234.

Costuming "Becket" has been a study in iself, Jim Rambo, director, says. The fabrics for the costumes were selected to be as near in appearance as possible to those in the 12th century, somber in color and coarse in texture. A portion of the workroom in the fine arts building has been partitioned off for use as a costume shop so the project could be carried out without having to move the equipment from place to place.

"Becket" is sub-titled "The Honor of God," and deals with the changing relationships between two close friends, Thomas Becket and King Henry II. The friends become deadly enemies as they pursue their separate destinies, and eventually Henry orders Becket put to death.

Anouilh is recognized as one of France's most esteemed contemporary dramatists and one of the titans of the modern theatre.

KING IN TURMOIL—Henry II (Mark White) finds himself in turmoil in this scene from "Becket," opening Thursday night at Western Texas College. Henry and Thomas Becket, bound together by similar pride of flesh and spirit, become deadly enemies after Henry names Becket Archbishop of Canterbury. "Becket" will continue Nov. 14, 15 and 17 at 8 p. m. each night in the WTC Fine Arts Theatre.

Report Oil, Gas Finds

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas operators reported 31 oil discoveries and 48 gas discoveries during the last half of October, the Railroad Commission said Thursday.

Through the first 10 months of the year, the commission said, operators have reported 605 oil discoveries, an increase of 175 from the same period last year.

Veteran Compensation Checks Are Increased

Nearly 2.3 million veterans, 240,000 surviving spouses and more than 83,000 children of deceased veterans are receiving larger Veterans Administration compensation checks in November, E. H. (Dan) Dever, Scurry County Veterans service Officer, said.

A detailed explanation is included with the November compensation checks.

Under the new rates, a veteran with a service-connected disability rated at 10 percent will receive $54 a month, an increase from $48. The rate for a 50 percent disability goes from $255 monthly to $291, and a veteran with 100 percent disability will receive $1,016 monthly, instead of the previous $889. Additional amounts, providing a maximum monthly payment of $2,898 (up from $2,536), will be paid for specific severe disabilities.

Veterans and their dependents who need information about VA benefits may contact Dever in his office in the Western Texas College Administration Building. The office is open each weekday and appointments for visits can be made by calling 573-8511, extension 212.

DPS Robbed By A Bold Burglar

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A bold thief smashed the window of a display case in the lobby of the Department of Public Safety headquarters Thursday and made off with 19 handguns and some simulated drugs.

Officers said the loss occurred about 5 a.m. despite 24-hour security at the headquarters including closed-circuit television surveillance.

Prince Don Pedro defied the Cortes in Portugal in 1822 and refused to return to Portugal from Brazil. His father had fled to Brazil in 1807 when Napoleon captured Portugal and made Brazil the seat of the Portuguese empire. The father returned to Portugal in 1821 and the Cortes - which ruled Brazil from Portugal - wanted to return the country to its former colonial status. Don Pedro later declared Brazil independent and ruled for half a century before being ousted by a military coup.

Financial & tax-planning

TAX FREE EXCHANGES

Each year an increasing number of real estate sales are being designed to qualify as tax free exchanges. The inflated value of a parcel of real estate over its purchase price causes a high gain on the sale of that property. The income taxes, otherwise payable on a sale of real estate, can be deferred by arranging a tax free exchange.

It is unlikely that you will find a person with acceptable property to trade you when you are ready to sell. However, you can arrange for your buyer to acquire satisfactory replacement property which he then trades you for your real estate. This latter approach is referred to as the three-way exchange and should be considered by anyone intending to sell property and buy replacement property.

There are four categories of real estate by use.
(1) Investment property
(2) Property held for productive use in a trade or business
(3) Taxpayer's primary residence
(4) Inventory held primarily for sale

Of these four categories of real estate, the first two qualify for tax free exchange under Internal Revenue Code, Section 1031. We normally wouldn't mention Code Sections except that "1031 Exchange" is becoming a household word.

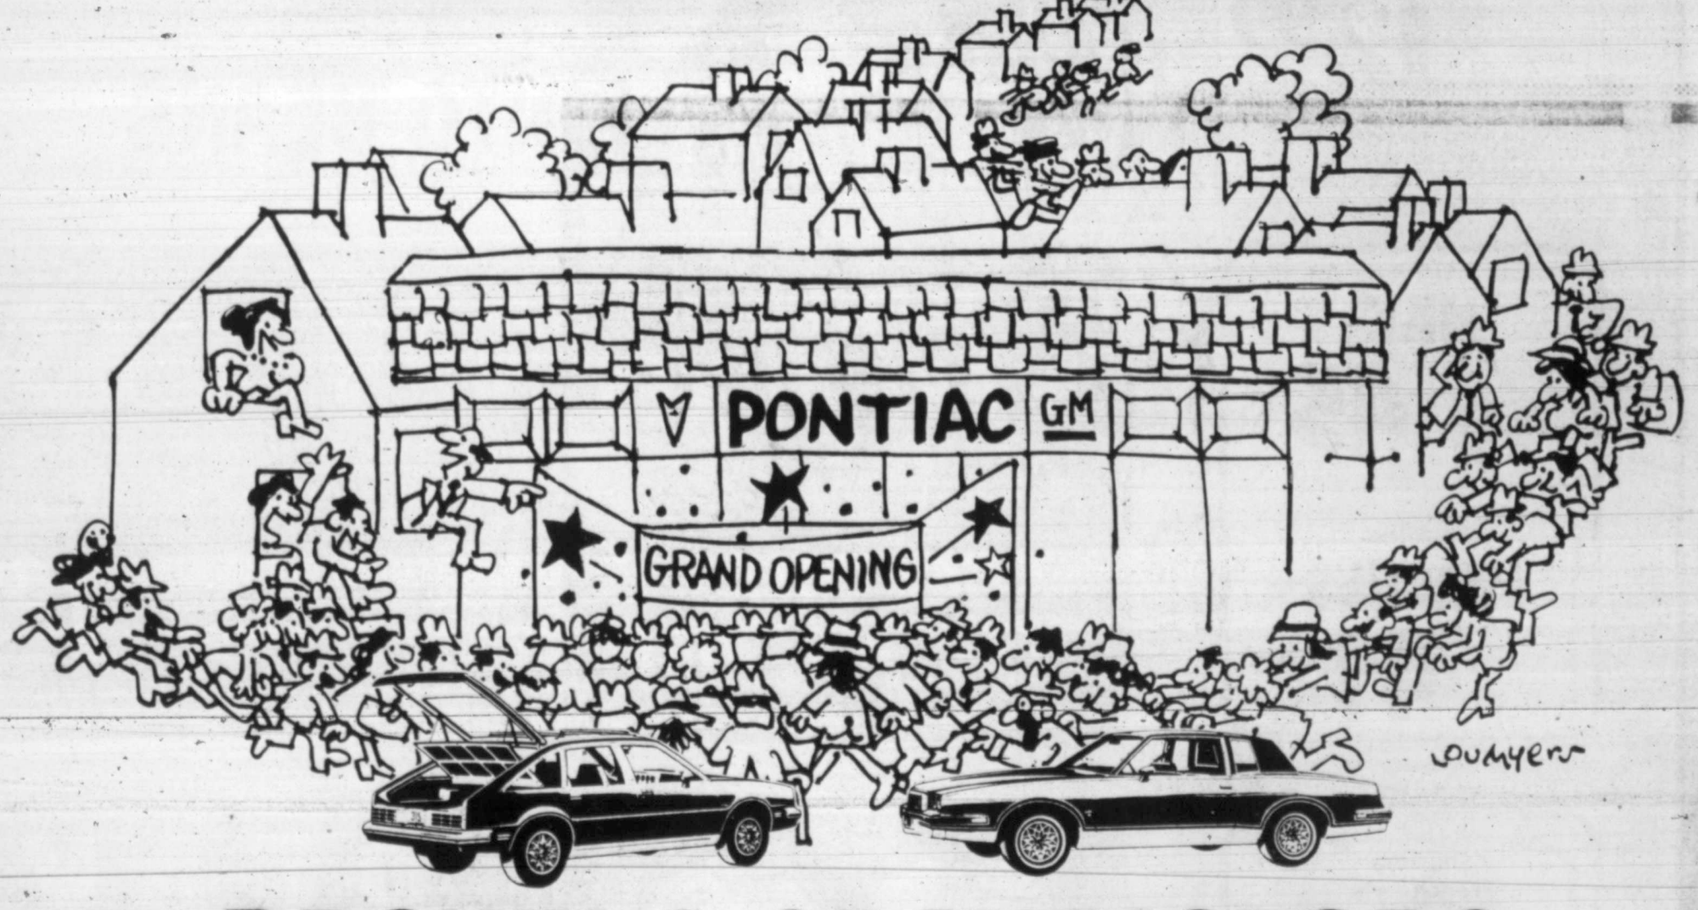

There is a common misunderstanding that you can sell "investment" or "productive use" property and replace it within a given time limit to eliminate the income tax. Your primary residence is the only property which can be sold and replaced within a given time limit to avoid the income tax. If you accept cash or a contract on the sale of commercial real estate, you will pay the income taxes on that transaction even if you buy replacement property the same day.

Since inflation is causing most taxpayers to be in a higher tax bracket, the use of the tax free exchange can save you thousands of dollars in income taxes.

GRAND OPENING!

KNOW-HOW IN OUR NEW PONTIACS. Our 1981 line-up offers exciting innovations from Research and Development, Engineering and Design that combine to make up Pontiac's new Efficiency System. In all gasoline-powered models, this System includes GM's Computer Command Control. A series of sensors continuously monitors engine temperature, engine speed, throttle position, altitude, barometric pressure and oxygen content in the exhaust. Tiny computer chips in the electronic control module analyze this data, then regulate the carburetion for a precise air/fuel mixture. But that's just the beginning.

Pontiac know-how shows up in many exciting ways. For example, Grand Prix glides into 1981 with dramatic new aerodynamic lines. LeMans and Grand LeMans 4-door sedans show the world a formal new roofline. And Phoenix, Pontiac's "X" car, invites five people to enjoy the advantages of front-wheel drive.

1980 Election May Awaken Texas Democrats

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Nov. 4, 1980, may go down in political history as the great awakening of the Texas Democratic Party.

Since the surprise election of Republican Gov. Bill Clements in 1978, it has been a common practice for Democratic party leaders to end their comments with "when we get rid of Clements in 1982."

There has been some new thinking since last Tuesday.

Clements' chances of being re-elected to another four-year term soared spectacularly with his enthusiastic and aggressive leadership of Ronald Reagan's campaign in Texas.

And apparently a second term is on Clements' mind.

On election night, he stressed to reporters he would not "under any circumstances take any job in Washington."

Friends such as Vice President-elect George Bush, an adopted Texan, and Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, probable next chairman of the powerful Senate Armed Services Committee, owe Clements plenty of favors for the successful November campaign.

With friends like that and the ability to raise $7 million for his 1978 campaign and $3 million for Reagan's Texas campaign, Clements is the big shadow over the Texas Democratic Party.

"There is no question but that the two-party system is here to stay," Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, a co-chairman of the state Carter-Mondale drive, said after Tuesday night.

"The extent of the Reagan victory in Texas as well as around the country is historic," said Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, the other co-chairman.

No one is suggesting the Texas Democratic Party is dead, but it is hurting.

"You can't write off the Democratic Party after one defeat. Texans have spoken clearly and as a result Republicans will get stronger in Texas," said Ernest Angelo, director of the Reagan-Bush campaign, "but the Democrats are not dead."

Former Texas Gov. John Connally, a former Democrat, said he thought "Texas will become one of the strongest Republican states in this nation in the 1980s."

A review of the presidential campaign in Texas shows the Republicans started first, were better financed, better organized and in many ways more enthusiastic.

While the Republicans were hard at work in September on the Reagan campaign, Texas Democrats, still divided between followers of President Jimmy Carter and Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., were feuding over a state party chairman.

The top Democratic contenders for governor in 1982 usually are considered to be former Attorney General John Hill and National Democratic Chairman John White.

Ambulance Operator To Appeal Subsidy Decision

Kerrie Palmer, operator of Palmer EMS, the city-county ambulance service, is appealing a city council decision made last month rejecting her request for a subsidy hike.

Mrs. Palmer said she plans to go before the city council next month and again ask for a rate hike and wants to go before the public and explain to the people served by the ambulance service why she feels a subsidy hike is needed.

Mrs. Palmer, who took over operation of the ambulance service last year, said the ambulance service grossed $33,733.10 from Nov. 21, 1979 to Oct. 31, 1980. However, the expenses in operating the ambulance service came to $33,721.10, leaving her with a net gain of $12.

Although corners can be cut in the ambulance operation, Mrs. Palmer said the people served by the service would suffer.

"The reason I want this in the paper is we're trying to get this publicized so that people can see what's going on financially with the ambulance. And if something ish't done the people are going to lose their service. An ambulance service cannot be expected to operate off what we're operating off of," she said.

At the November city council meeting, the mileage rates for the ambulance service were upped 50 cents per mile, but it is not enough, said Mrs. Palmer.

Specifically, what Mrs. Palmer is asking for is $500 more per month.

Presently, she said, the service is operating with three ambulances and three full-time employees, including herself.

Of her two coworkers, one is a certified emergency medical technician (EMT) and a paramedic student and the other, the driver, is an EMT student. Mrs. Palmer said she starts off her EMTs at $800 a month and her drivers at $600 a month, which is in line with what ambulance employees are paid in other towns. Both employees, she noted, have families to support.

Although her contract calls for only two ambulances, Mrs. Palmer said a third is needed.

Not only is Snyder served by the ambulance service, but all Scurry County is.

Currently, the city and county together pay $1,550 per month in subsidy. Of that sum, $550 is to go to ambulance upkeep and $1,000 is to pay one full-time employee.

"But, you see, you can't operate with only one full-time employee," she said.

Mrs. Palmer said she does not want to cut back on the number of ambulances or the number of employees because the services offered by the ambulance operation would suffer, and the public that is served by the operation would suffer in consequence.

But Injuries Mount Up...

Westerners Claim 41st

JUAREZ, Mexico--Western Texas College won here Friday night, but the victory may prove to be extremely costly.

Coach Larry Dunaway's Westerners stretched WTC's winning string to 41 straight, 4-0 for the 1980-81 season, by popping Juarez University 83-75. It was a hard-fought win for the Westerners, and as is with all tight battles, there were some casualties.

"Right now we're like the walking wounded," sighed Dunaway. "I'm sure glad we've got a week to rest and hopefully get some people healthy."

Apparently the worst of the injuries occurred to Darren Lee, who suffered a broken finger that will keep him sidelined for a reported three weeks. Troy Stevenson re-injured a knee that kept him out of workouts for three weeks before the season began, and Keith Denis is also on the "disabled list".

Denis was involved in a mid-air collision that resulted in bruises to his head, back and elbow.

"We're concerned he may have a pinched nerve," reported Dunaway. "He was having some trouble walking this (Saturday) morning. We're going to take the whole bunch over to UTEP today and have their trainer check them over. If need be, we will see a doctor, too."

WTC will have until next Saturday to recuperate before they host Angelo State University in the coliseum.

Western Texas jumped out to a 10-point lead in the first half and held it until late in the game, when the hosts trimmed it by 4-5 points.

"It was by far our poorest effort of the season. It's just something you go through when you are a young team like this one. You beat someone pretty soundly (111-75 Friday night) and you have trouble getting mentally prepared for them the next time. What they've learned is that you can beat a team by 36 points one night and they may be capable of coming back and beating you the next night," said Dunaway.

"We shot at least 70 percent from the field the first half and that's what kept us in the lead. We couldn't hit anything in the second half, but we did play better defense. That 10-point lead was important. Chuck (North) and Bryan (Baker) got several key rebounds at the end of the game that helped us to hold on, too."

Ceaser Scott, who incidentally is suffering from a knee injury himself, led the scoring with 21 points. Denis netted 20 before his collision which put him out of the game with eight minutes to go. North added 14 points, and Lee - who suffered his injury early in the second half - dropped in 8 points.

Norton Given Split Decision

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Former World Boxing Council heavyweight champion Ken Norton came out of a 16-month retirement to battle undefeated Randall "Tex" Cobb Friday night and took a 10-round split-decision with a flurry of counter-punches in the final round.

Norton, 36, obviously dead on his feet at the end of the ninth round, summed enough energy in the final round to batter the lumbering Cobb with a series of uppercuts in the center of the ring and capture the deciding round.

Referee Tony Perez of New York scored the match 97-94 for Norton, judge Spider Bynum of Dallas saw it 97-95 for Cobb and judge Chuck Hasset of Norton's hometown of Los Angeles cast the deciding 96-95 ballot for Norton.

Norton weighed in for the fight at a trim 218 pounds after paring off 35 pounds of excess weight, while Cobb, 24, of Abilene, Texas, tipped the scales at 226.

Cobb appeared in command in the early rounds, backing Norton against the ropes and closing Norton's left eye with a series of devastating left jabs.

In the fourth round, Norton began using his superior skill against the slower Texan, landing several telling blows to Cobb's face on counter-punches.

Norton rocked the stronger Cobb only one time during the fight when he landed a left between Cobb's gloves and brought a slight trickle of blood to the Texan's nose.

"I never really got a good shot," Norton said. "He kept me off-balance with his left jabs.

"A year and a half layoff really hurts. I didn't have as much left as I thought I would have."

Dusters Ride Over Blinn JC

TEMPLE--Western Texas College's Dusters burned Blinn College here Friday night, 78-59. The Dusters, 3-0, were to test Temple here Saturday night before returning to Snyder.

Four Dusters managed double-figure scoring as 11 girls were able to put points on the board against the Bucs. Western Texas hit 28 of 70 from the field for a 40 percent figure, and was 22 of 32 from the line.

A major difference in the game was the boards where WTC led with 51 rebounds. Blinn had 31.

Shari Teal paced the winning effort with 18 points and nine rebounds. Linda Holubec pitched in 16 points and seven rebounds, while Valerie Wells and Karen Washington added 11 points apiece. Wells also blocked two shots.

For Blinn, Sohet scored 13 points and Mills had 11. The Bucs hit 22 of 49 from the field and 11 of 22 from the line.

Giants Looking Inside For Motivation Now

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP)--Phil Simms, the New York Giants quarterback, can remember the Dallas Cowboys as the National Football League team that drove him to tears.

Now, injuries, rapidly changing faces and a dismal 1-8 record have plummeted the hapless Giants into even deeper despair than they experienced after their 23-4 loss to the Cowboys Oct. 5.

The Cowboys invade The Meadowlands Sunday for another confrontation with the Giants.

"You have to dig down deep to find personal motivation for a thing like this," said Giants veteran linebacker John Skorupan. "You have to try not to let the situation around you bring you down."

Skorupan said that after eight years in the NFL he's become accustomed to losing. But he warned that rookies or second-year players, like Simms, who are used to leading college teams to victories, find it difficult to accept defeat. The Giants have 18 rookies on their roster.

"For the younger people, it's hard," Skorupan said. After the last Cowboys' game, when the Giants were 1-4, Simms was so angry and frustrated he tearfully threw his equipment into his locker piece by piece.

Dave Jennings, the veteran punter, says the weekly changes in the roster are demoralizing.

"If it was the same 45, it would be different now," said Jennings. "It's hard with all the new players to get anything going. It's almost like we should be wearing name tags."

The Cowboys don't have that problem. Whereas the Giants have lost six starters since the last battle at Dallas, the Cowboys are going in with the same 22 starters they used Oct. 10.

What the Giants are evoking now is not competition but sympathy.

"I hate to see anybody get hurt that badly," said Cowboys Coach Tom Landry, who is tied with Miami's Don Shuls for third place as the NFL's winingest coaches. "It can hit you anytime, so you have to be sympathetic."

The only Cowboys who may miss Sunday's game are running back Preston Pearson, out with a bruised bicep, and tackle Jim Cooper, recovering from a sprained knee.

In the Cowboys' last victory over the Giants, quarterback Danny White completed 22 of 33 passes for 266 yards. Simms, who was benched by Coach Ray Perkins before the end of the game, finished with 22 of 34 for 155 yards after completing the first half with 3 of 7 passes for just 10 yards.

The odds would have been against the Giants even if the squad was healthy. The Cowboys have won their last 12 games against New York and hold an overall 27-9-2 lead in the 21-year series.

A Cowboy who has played some of his best games against the New Yorkers is another Pearson: Drew, who grew up in New Jersey. He needs just six more receptions to become the Cowboys' all-time leading receiver.

Benjamin Franklin was born in 1706.

Containing Grogan Key For Houston Monday

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oiler Coach Bum Phillips isn't worried about New England quarterback Steve Grogan the runner, it's the runner-passer combination that will cause problems Monday night in the Astrodome.

"A running quarterback is not a problem if he can't throw," Phillips said. "Fran Tarkenton never would have been so great if he couldn't throw after he scrambled out of the pocket. Grogan can hurt you the same way."

The Oilers will get their chance to contain Grogan beginning at 8 p.m. Monday night in a battle of division leaders who possibly could meet again in the playoffs.

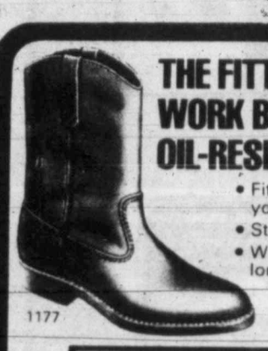

Houston goes into the game with a 6-3 record and tied for the American Football Conference Central Division lead with Cleveland while the Patriots lead the AFC East with a 7-2 record.

"It just gives them another option," Phillips said of Grogan, the No. 7 rated AFC passer. "He can delay the rush and give himself more time while you're trying to figure out what he's going to do."

But Grogan is by no means the only offensive threat the Oilers will face. They'll also be confronted by wide receivers Stanley Morgan and Harold Jackson and tight end Russ Francis.

"Now that's about as good a group of receivers as we're going to face," Phillips said. "And with Grogan throwing to them, I think they have become the type of team

DRIVIN' THROUGH--Fort Stockton's Tracy Pasqua breaks through Tiger defenses on one of his 20 carries Friday night as the Panthers nailed Snyder 57-0. Over 500 Yards Rushing As...

Panthers Blast Snyder, 57-0

FORT STOCKTON--Fort Stockton Panthers cranked up a steamroller-style ground game here Friday night to flatten the Tigers of Snyder High School, 57-0 in a District 2-AAAA contest.

The Tigers, now 2-7, found its young defensive line unable to cope with the more experienced offensive attack of the hosts, and likewise, could manage little yardage against the aggressive Panther wall.

Snyder closes out the season at home Nov. 15 against undefeated and state-ranked Andrews, while Fort Stockton travels to San Angelo Lake View.

The Panthers rumbled to a 35-0 halftime lead, scoring once in the first period and four times in the second quarter, while emassing 342 steps on the turf; 509 yards for the entire game. Fullback Brad Jackson scored the first pair of TD's, on a 1-yard plunge with 7:34 in the opening stanza and again on a 14-yard scamper with 8:34 left before halftime. Jackson ravaged the Tigers for 201 yards on 16 carries for the evening, but ironically was not the Panthers' leading ballcarrier. That honor went to tailback Tracy Pasqua, who picked up 220 on 19 totes.

The hosts found little resistance up the middle against the sophomore-stacked Tigers, and in fact, averaged just under 9.7 yards per carry.

Offensively, Snyder tried several combinations against the Panthers, including the switching of starting quarterback Mike Roemisch to runningback, but the quicker defensive personnel of the hosts managed to thwart the Tigers on almost every play.

Fort Stockton's third touchdown came on a 60-yard, three-play drive as Jackson rambled for 44 yards on first down and Pasqua pushed it 13 more steps to the Tiger 1-yard line moments later. Quarterback Robbie Roberson lunged over on the ensuing play, giving Fort Stockton a 20-0 lead with 6:18 to go in the half. Roberson, who missed his kick-after on the first touchdown and ran over a 2-point conversion after the second, booted this one good.

Minutes afterward, the Panthers were knocking at the door again. Taking over possession at their own 46, they fashioned a six-play drive that ended when Roberson ran almost untouched 15 yards to the end zone. Roberson's kick-after was good again.

It appeared Snyder could hold the hosts to a 28-0 halftime lead with only 1:25 left before intermission, but Pecos defensive back Ronnie Chadez had different ideas. Chadez intercepted a Brent Beck pass and the Panthers were running again. In four plays, Fort Stockton drove the ball 50 yards, scoring on a 15-yard run by halfback David Richardson with only four ticks left on the clock. Roberson's conversion kick was good again.

The third quarter started out no easier for the Tigers. The second half opened with a clipping penalty against the visitors, followed by a fumble which set Fort Stockton in motion again at the Snyder 9-yard line.

Snyder's defensive stiffened for three downs to keep the Panthers short of the paystripe, but on fourth, Roberson hit Orry Bustos on a 7-yard toss for the TD. Roberson again booted the conversion.

Snyder began to move the ball late in the contest, but suffered two more pass interceptions and a fumble to stop any threat of a possible score. One of the interceptions went for Fort Stockton's seventh touchdown of the night as linebacker Merle Bowen picked it off and raced 50 yards. Roberson's kick was good.

The final touchdown came in with 4:11 left in the game when Jackson blasted through the Tiger line and galloped 64 yards to the end zone. The conversion pass - Roberson to halfback Pete Dominguez - was good, and the Panthers held a 57-0 advantage, Snyder's worst defeat since 1935 when Lubbock beat the Tigers 75-0.

'Stangs Clinch Title

ANDREWS--Andrews' Mustangs wrapped up the District 2-AAAA football title here Friday night by flipping Sweetwater, 29-8.

The Mustangs, ranked No. 5 in Class 4A, broke an 8-8 halftime deadlock with three scores by running back Van Pearcy. Pearcy rushed for 128 yards on 22 carries for the night.

The victory gives Andrews a 9-0 season record with one game remaining. District 2-4A representation rights would go to the Mustangs even if they should lose their final game of the season next week at Snyder however, as all other conference members have at least two district losses.

In other 2-4A contests Friday, Fort Stockton bombed Snyder 57-0, Monahans minced Lake View 12-0 and Lamesa outlasted Odessa Ector, 28-21.

Friday's loss concluded Sweetwater's season at 6-4. Next week's lineup for the rest of the conference has 9-0 Andrews as 2-7 Snyder, 5-3-1 Pecos at 0-8-1 Ector, 5-4 Monahans at 3-5-1 Lamesa, and 4-5 Lake View at 4-5 Fort Stockton.

Problems solved.

MCCAULLEY--Coach Clarence Spieker's Hermleigh Cardinals sacked up their first win of the season here Friday night, bagging the McCaulley Eagles 78-33 and ending the District 2-1A six-man contest via the 45-point rule in the fourth quarter.

In other area six-man contests, Highland smashed Borden County 50-0 and Trent topped Ira 46-26. Highland and Trent, both undefeated, meet next Friday for the 2-1A title.

Hermleigh's Dennis Jones racked up six touchdowns and Kenny Riley added four as the Cardinals routed McCaulley. Jones scored on runs of 70, 43, 2, 6, 58, 6 and 23 yards.

Michael Nachlinger and Billy Wallace also scored TD's for the Cardinals, while Melvin Wallace kicked six two-point conversions.

It was John Paul Jones doing his thing once again as Highland overpowered Borden County. Jones, a district track standout, scored four touchdowns, while Monte Richburg, Ed Williams and Harrold Light added one apiece.

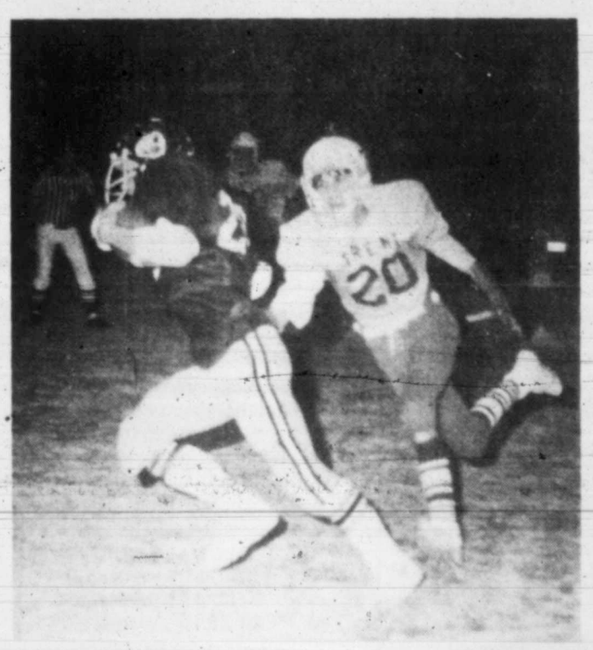

At Ira, Lloyd Williams and speedster Richard Beaver raced in two touchdowns to pace Trent's victory. Greg Beazley and Matt Jackson added a touchdown each.

Ira got its points on two touchdowns by Scott Kesner and one each by Scott Sharp and Robert Mitchell.

The loss concludes Ira's season at 6-4. Trent is 8-0.

Hermleigh, 1-7, hosts Grady in its closer, while Borden County, 5-4, entertains winless McCaulley.

Aerobic Dancing Is Popular Here

According to Debbie Row, director of the West Texas Theatric Arts Centre, aerobic dancing has become very popular in the Snyder area.

"Aerobics are stimulating, fun and provide the much needed heart and lung activity which most Americans forget," she said.

Aerobic exercises are those which are designed to help the cardio-vascular system and lungs, making the heart muscle stronger.

In Aerobic dance classes the students learn various routines that incorporate aerobic exercises, including dances such as the Charleston and the Hustle. Flexibility stretching is also important, said Mrs. Row, and are employed in her classes.

She said she will be beginning new classses the week of Nov. 17

Grogan

everyone thought they would be last year."

The Oilers also appear to be shaping into the type of team that everyone expected of them this season--a Super Bowl contender. Quarterback Ken Stabler has directed the Oilers two-tight end alignment effectively and Earl Campbell has rounded back into form from an early season groin injury.

Campbell rushed ONLY 157 yards in last week's 20-16 victory over Denver after putting together back to back 200-yard performances.

New England Coach Ron Erhardt anticipates a tough test against the Oilers.

"The test we will have against the Oilers should typify how capable we are against a playoff-caliber team," Erhardt said. "Their defense is very tough especially when you have linebackers like Gregg Bingham and Robert Brazile."

It will be the first meeting between the two teams since last year's trade that sent offensive tackle Leon Gray to the Oilers in exchange for Houston's first and sixth round selections in the 1980 draft.

The Patriots used Houston's first round pick to select Notre Dame running back Vagas Ferguson, now the team's leading rusher.

Borg Makes Quarterfinals

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Bjorn Borg advanced to the quarterfinals of the $175,000 Stockholm Open with a 6-2, 6-3 victory over Heinz Gunthardt, then was fined $500 for the second time for skipping a press conference.

In other action, Gene Mayer scored a 6-2, 6-1 victory over Butch Walts; France's Yannick Noah downed Victor Amaya 7-5, 6-3; and Per Hjertquist beat Ulf Eriksson in an all-Swedish match 6-2, 6-4.

Hall of Fame player Rogers Hornsby had a career slugging percentage of .578, the best in National League history.

THANK YOU

I want to thank the people in Precinct 3 and Scurry County for the fine support you have shown me the past eight years.

You don't need a watch dog over the county budget as so stated by my opponent.

We have a sound county that is almost debt free and a strong County Commissioners Court which I had the pleasure to serve.

Thank you

Ambulance

there were gripes about there not being enough attendants," she said. "Now we have the attendants and if that's what the people want they're going to have to do something about it."

The $500 extra monthly subsidy she is asking for amounts to $6,000 per year. One reason she feels her request for a subsidy hike was denied was because she was owed $8,701.95 in uncollected bills, more than $2,000 over what she was asking for in increased subsidy. It is true, Mrs. Palmer said, that if everyone paid his bills the ambulance could operate better financially, but she pointed out that unpaid bills are to be expected in any ambulance operation.

"We can't refuse service to people just because they don't pay us, and even if we could we wouldn't," she said.

California entered the Union in 1850 as a bilingual state, its constitution requiring that all laws be published in both Spanish and English.

Teachers Request Increase In Pay

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas classroom teachers have asked for $784 million in pay raises, less than the Texas State Teachers Association proposal but more than recommended by the Texas Education Agency.

"The state is facing a crisis in teacher recruitment and retention," Rae Juan Markunas, Killeen, president of the Texas Classroom Teachers Association, told a news conference. "our proposed salary increase will be a message of encouragement to teachers."

She stressed the classroom teachers would not be asking the 1981 Legislature for collective bargaining or teacher unionization.

Under the proposal classroom teachers would get an average salary increase of 16 percent the first year and 17.5 percent the second year of the 1982-83 business period. The individual amount would depend on pay grades.

Administrators would get an average 22 percent increase over the two year period.

The TSTA proposes a $1.1 billion for across-the-board raises of 33 percent for both classroom teachers and administrators. The Texas Education Agency supports an across-the-board raise of less than 23 percent.

The association said it also would ask the legislature for a public school employees group insurance program, that would cost the state another $125 million.

Ethiopia is as large as Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico combined.

In Textbook Battle...

Phonics Pushers Win Round

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Advocates of the phonics system, a letter-by-letter approach to reading, have won a round here in the battle about how to teach children to read.

However, educators opposed to a phonics-only method managed to get in some good shots before the State Board of Education on Friday.

Board members meet here again today to finalize textbook purchase decisions.

The board voted to adopt five readng textbook series for use in Texas public schools. Board member Laura Tynes of Waco then complained none of the texts relied heavily enough on phonics, a system in which a young student first learns letter sounds.

Mrs. Tynes made a motion to instruct Education Commissioner Alton Bowen to look for materials based on "intensive phonics." After a thorough discussion, the board voted 14-5 for the motion.

The action means phonics-based materials will have to go through the full textbook selection process. Once approved, the materials will be offered to local school districts wanting to use them as supplements to another series.

Bowen said the reading method battle drew more than 1,000 letters from pro-phonics supporters.

"I have not had a decision in my career that I agonized more over," he said.

Mrs. Tynes complained the failure to adopt supplemental, phonics-based reading series, would mean "we have mandated to teachers how they must teach reading."

Lois Whitson, director of elementary instruction for the Wichita Falls Independent School District, spoke in favor of the books proposed by the textbook committee, of which she is a member.

"All the books recommended are phonics first — phonics enough to unlock a word, decode a word," she said.

She warned against overemphasis on phonics, leading "to the point where (a student) labors over each word. He should learn to use context clues."

Board member Virginia Currey of Arlington said the decision should not "weasel out and let the quarrel continue at the local level."

Mrs. Currey said phonics is effective for children "with relatively good backgrounds at home ... in relatively affluent kinds of areas where the child has enrichment in the home."

Chairman Joe Kelly Butler of Houston supported the Tynes motion.

"There is no harm, and its possibility for good may be unlimited," he said.

After the meeting, Bowen said the phonics-based books will have to go through the textbook approval process, which means a delay of one year beyond the September 1981 effective date for Saturday's adoptions.

Bowen said phonics has proved helpful to Spanish-speaking students trying to learn English.

Northeast Parent Club Plans Goals For Year

The Parent Club of Northeast Elementary met at 7 p.m. Oct. 28.

Geraldine Parker, principal, opened the meeting by presenting John and Mary Lamb as new co-chairpersons.

Lamb presided over the meeting and presented plans for the 1980-81 school year.

Committees were formed with parents volunteering for their choice.

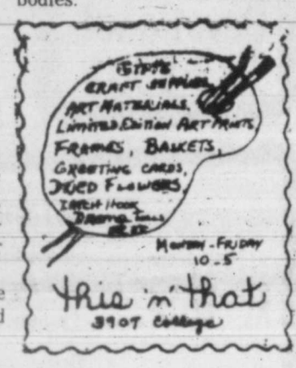

Volunteers are still needed for the activity committee concerned, parent tutoring and material helpers.

The improved relations committee has to do with the relationship between parents and the school. They offer their help dealing with any problems the parent may have.

The parent group also decided to have an "Ask Us" for people who want to remain anonymous. Questions can be sent to Improved Relations, care of Northeast Elementary, or by calling John or Mary Lamb at 573-6185.

Parent meetings are scheduled every third Tuesday of each month.

QUARRELS CAN BE AVOIDED:

Have you ever stopped to think about the real cause of a quarrel?

Most quarrels start over petty, unimportant matters. But before a truce is finally declared, all sorts of accusations are made by both parties.

Money, sex, in-laws, premarital or postmarital promises and lack of competence are introduced into a quarrel. When the battle is over, both parties leave nervous and tense, but begin immediately to store new ammunition to make the next quarrel even more vicious.

Little things—or petty thinking—cause quarrels. It follows that to eliminate quarrels, eliminate petty thinking. But it's easier to read about than to practice.

When bringing a quarrel to a successful or profitable end, one must have positive, good feelings. There is almost always some appreciation of what you resent most. If you can discover this appreciation, and bring it into the forefront, you will be much more balanced in outlook and aware of both sides of a difficult situation.

If resentment remains very strong, it is often more useful to work it out first in dialogue with yourself in fantasy. When you are less confused and conflicted with yourself, you can settle the quarrelsome points with the other person easier.

The real world of contact sometimes has pain, conflict and othr unpleasantness. But it can also have pleasure, satisfying activities, joy and participation. Rejecting reality because it isn't perfect adds pain and loss of pleasures. Loss without gain is a bad quarrel.

HERMLEIGH NEWS

By ADALA DRENNAN

Guests of Eva Mae Brackeen last week were her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Moore of Covina, Calif., Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Aycock of Stonewall, Okla., a former pastor of the Church of Christ here, and her son, Mr. and Mrs. Travis Brackeen of Big Spring.

Word has been received that Mrs. Ellis Carter, the former Viriginia Clements formerly of Snyder, has been appointed Deputy Grand Matron of District II, Section 7 of the Grand Chapter of Texas, Order of the Eastern Star. Mrs. Clements and this correspondent worked for Southwestern Bell Telephone in Snyder at the same time after World War II.

Mr. and Mrs. Bobby (Pat) James, formerly of Snyder and now of Midland, visited her parents, the James Davidsons, last week.

Mrs. Raymond Lloyd recently accompanied her sister, Lorena Cole to Asher, Okla. The highlight of the trip was a stopover in Decatur. While there, they saw what was the world's oldest junior college constructed in 1892. The old college building is now being used for the Wise County Museum. Mrs. Lloyd's brother-in-law, Hollis Lloyd, attended college there. He and Roxie Soules of the Inadale community taught their first schools at the old Gannaway school.

Guests of the Jimmie Cornetts last Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Jim (Dorothy) Patrick, David, Jon, Mrs. Fred Liner and Amanda of Van Horn, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cornett and Allison of Garland, and her mother, Mrs. Raymond Lloyd. Monday Mrs. Raymond Lloyd attend the revival services at Greenhill Baptist Church in Snyder.

Mr. and Mrs. Anson Martin accompanied his father, Carl Martin, to Mineral Wells recently where he is to be fitted with a wooden leg this week. The Anson Martins also visited their daughter Karin over the weekend, and his sisters and families, the James Yates and I. J. Thompsons.

Attending the Needlecraft Club last Tuesday were Josie Maule, Roxie Soules, Elree Baremore, Oleta Jackson, Leta Lloyd, Dorthy Martin, Rella Young, Rachel Lassiter and Adala Drennan. The group had previously agreed to bring some article each lady had used since she began keeping house, which proved to be interesting.

Elree Baremore brought stainless steel mixing bowls, a cansister set and matching cookie jar, and a plastic water pitcher for the refrigerator which has been used almost each day for over 30 years.

Josie Maule brought handmade tatting, crochet and embroidery, appliqued scarfs and doilies. Oleta Jackson brought a rolling pin which she still uses that was given to her at her bridal shower in 1938.

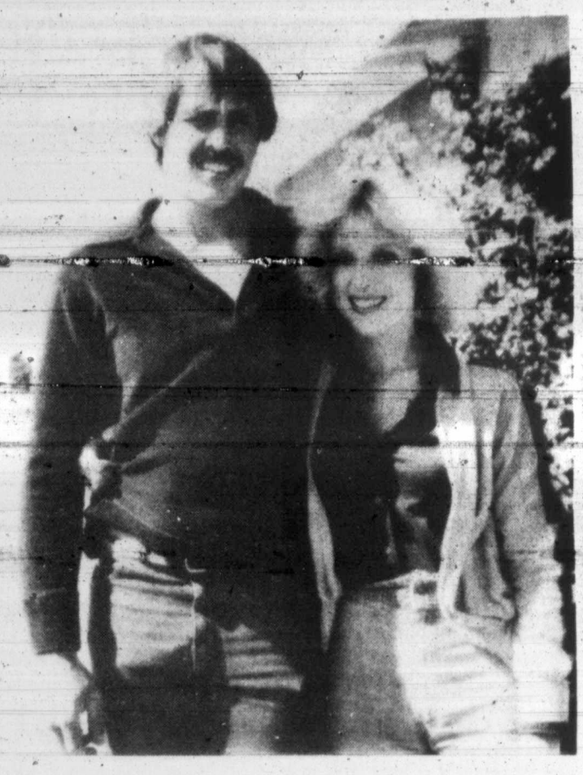

Roxie Soules brought her mother's brown milk crock which she uses to put fruit in. Dorthy Martin displayed a crochet apron made by her grandmother, the late Lydia Harper, given to her on her 18th birthday, and a flower girl quilt given to her on her 16th birthday.

Leta Lloyd brought a glass rolling pin and a biscuit cutter she received in her wedding shower in 1928. Rachel Lassiter showed the clothes brush she has continued using since she and her husband married.

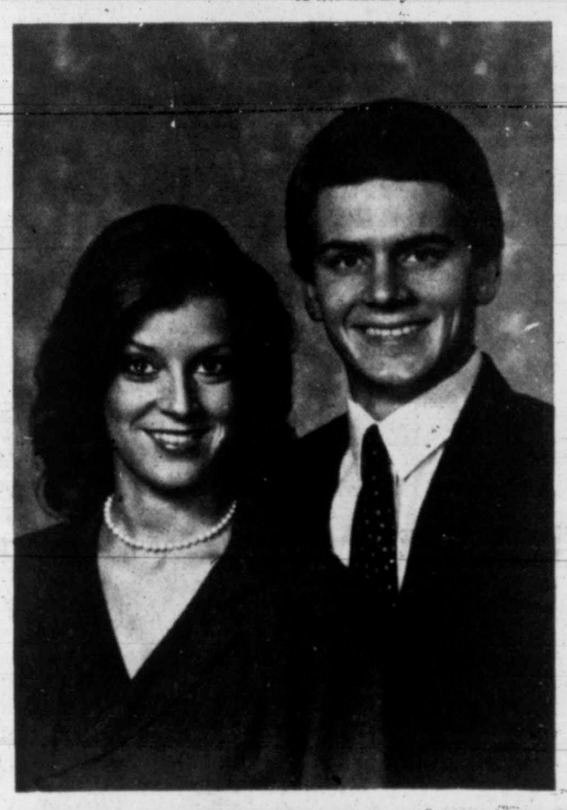

Adala Drennan proudly showed an embroidered doily her mother made over 73 years ago and gave to her. The design is of two roses and buds in rose, green and pink which are shaded this was done long before variegated embroidery thread was put on the market. The work was done in a satin stitch. Mrs. Drennan plans to frame it.

Mrs. Drennan also showed a butter dish which belonged to her late husband, H. L. (Barney) Drennan. It is of clear glass and designed like a railroad engine. His grandmother, the late Mrs. John Adams, gave it to him filled with candy when he was a small child.

The carnival held at the school last Tuesday night was a success, netting approximately $2700. A good crowd attended, despite the fact that it was on the night of the Carter-Reagan debate. The quilt made by Mrs. Jim Wright was won by Mrs. Gradene Roemisch. The proceeds from the quilt went to the library fund.

Comer of San Antonio and the late W. G. Sims. Grandparents of the pair are Mr. and Mrs. T. E. McCollum, now of McAllen and formerly of Snyder, and Mrs. W. D. Sims and the late W. D. Sims of Snyder. The wedding has been scheduled for Jan. 3 in Refugio.

Beta Sorority Discusses Philosophy

President Mona Bryan presided at the Nov. 4 meeting of Beta Sigma Phi at the Martha Ann Woman's Club at 7:30 p.m.

Seventeen members were present.

Bette League, ways and means chairman, familiarized the chapter with procedures for the Christmas gift wrap sales. Sample books were passed out. The paper, ribbon and bows are available from any Beta Sigma Phi member.

Carolyn Greene reminded members of the "Night Out" trip to Lubbock on Nov. 8.

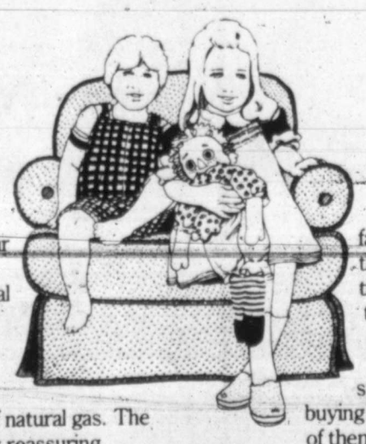

Dena Ellis reported that the Woman's Club bazaar will be on Dec. 6.

Mrs. Bryan announced that the chapter will enter the International Beta Sigma Phi "Idea Fair."

For the evening's cultural program, Susan Chesser spoke on the subject of philosophy. After first sharing a dictionary's definition of philosophy, Mrs. Chesser asked members to share their personal philosophies. She compared the dictionary's definition, "investigating the essential character of reality," with the theories of noted philosophers of the ages, including Plato and Freud. She closed her program by quoting several maxims from the book of Proverbs in the Bible.

Hostesses for the evening were Twila Polk and Dena Ellis.

LIKE YOU, THEY'LL HAVE ALL OF THE NATURAL GAS THEY'LL NEED.

Just as you do today, your children will have a dependable supply of natural gas for their homes — if they're served by Lone Star Gas Company.

In other words, we aren't about to run out of natural gas. The facts are strong and very reassuring.

Our supply is based on purchase contracts for the gas from more than 15,700 wells in Texas and Oklahoma. And because no well lasts forever, we prepare for your future needs by steadily buying new long-term reserves.

The fact that we're well established in Texas and Oklahoma also works in your favor. Nine basins in these two states are estimated to contain 50% of the nation's remaining onshore gas reserves.

And Lone Star's pipeline system gives us excellent buying opportunities in eight of them.

Producers drilled thousands of wells in these major basins last year. They're drilling more this year. And we'll be shopping hard, just as we always have, for the best energy values for your future.

Ira FHA Conducts Annual Bake Sale

The Ira Chapter of Future Homemakers of America (FHA) is conducting its 2nd annual Thanksgiving bake sale for its only fund raising project.

The FHA is asking for support from the Ira community.

"Last year the girls worked very hard to make this project a success and we are very grateful for the support we received," Nell Marquart, Ira homemaking teacher and F. H. A. sponsor, said. "The funds received from this bake sale are the primary means of support for the chapter in Ira, and are used for financing our Christmas workshop and open house, for helping a needy family at Christmas, and for sending two deserving FHA members to the state FHA convention in San Antonio in late April."

The items can be ordered between now and the Nov. 14 deadline and include chocolate chip cookies, peanut brittle, apple pie and pumpkin bread. All of these goods are homemade by the FHA members in their homemaking classes.

Persons interested in ordering may obtain an order form from any FHA member or from any one of several businesses in Ira. The order blank and payment must be given directly to a FHA member by the Nov. 14 deadline.

The baked goods may be picked up in the Ira homemaking room from 2:30 p.m.-4 p.m. on Nov. 24-26.

IRA BAKE SALE—Orders for Thanksgiving goodies are now being taken by the Ira chapter of Future Homemakers of America (FHA). Above, Ellen Crane (left), 7th grade FHA member, takes an order from Margaret Trulock, business education teacher at Ira. Order blanks may be obtained from any FHA member or Ira businesses.

TOPS Honors Huffman

Tops Club No. 56 met Nov. 4, weighed and then went to the home of Ima D. England for the regular meeting.

Janie Gibson, weight recorder, gave the monthly report showing a net loss of 25¾ pounds for the month of October. Club best losers for the month were Nelda Blythe, Janie Gibson and Peggy Vernon.

The occasion for the club's digression from regular meeting place was to pay honor to Emma Huffman who has completed 10 years as TOPS. She was awarded a necklace and a bouquet of white carnations by the local club.

Ms. Huffman is faithful in attendance of meetings and is rarely out of her goal limit.

Worldwide charity games

Every year the American Contract Bridge League runs two continent-wide charity games. Hands are made up by computer and distributed for simultaneous play all over the continent. Each game is scored independently.

This fall's game will be played on Tuesday, Nov. 18. You can play in it almost anywhere on the continent and compare your results with expert analysis.

The expert analysis shows how the hand is likely to be bid and played, although with thousands of tables in play almost anything is going to happen somewhere.

In any event we can recommend to anyone who ever plays duplicate to come out and play on Nov. 18.

We will devote next week's articles to some of the hands from previous games, discussing normal and bizarre results.

To show the difference between serious duplicate play and rubber bridge, the Robert Falcon Scott reached the South Pole Jan. 18, 1912, one month after the Norwegian explorer Roald Amundsen reached it. Scott, who was backed by the British and Dominion governments, had begun his sledge journey in November of 1911. The British explorer and his four companions all perished on the return journey because f sickness, shortage of food and the severe weather. Their remains and Scott's journal were found by a search party the following November.

uncle on our backs

Middle income taxpayers are unhappy and with plenty of cause. They have been reminded by recent statistics that they not only shoulder a larger share of the tax burden but that due to inflation that share keeps getting larger.

The new figures were reported by the Internal Revenue Service, based on a study of 1979 tax returns which the agency processed the first seven months of this year.

These figures indicate that individuals in the $15,000 to $50,000 income range bear the greatest share of the tax burden--60.1 percent of all federal income taxes paid for 1979.

In comments for the Congressional Record, Rep. James T. Broyhill (R-N.C) said it is "disturbing" that the middle class share in 1977 was under 60 percent. Meanwhile, the share of taxes paid by those with incomes under $10,000 amounted to only 4.4 percent of all taxes in 1979, compared with 5.6 percent two years ago.

"The figures contained in the IRS study," he concludes, "indicate an alarming shift of the federal income tax burden toward the the middle income class, concentrating an ever-increasing portion of all federal income taxes on these taxpayers."

As taxpayers have come to learn, to their great chagrin, inflation plays tricks on them. As they earn more money simply to offset the higher cost of living, they are pushed into tax brackets that take a larger percentage of their income.

Rep. Broyhill cites data of the Tax Foundation, an impartial research organization, showing the increase in tax burden of a typical worker with a median income of $20,000 and supporting a spouse and two children. In 1979, the worker paid $4,814 in direct and indirect federal taxes, or 26.7 percent of his earnings. In 1980, his taxes will eat up $5,441, or 27.3 percent of his earnings.

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce points out that inflation, plus the growing prevalence of two earner families, is rapidly increasing the number of taxpayers being pushed into 50 percent and higher tax brackets.

These are the taxpayers who, in a recent survey by the Gallup Organization, helped form an overwhelming majority who favor a cut in income tax rates, rather than a tax credit to help offset scheduled increases in Social Security.

next union target

The year of 1981 is less than two months away, and when the Texas legislature convenes in the new year there may be trouble brewing for the worker who believes in a freedom of choice and a right to work without being a member of a union.

Recently when the Texas Citrus and Vegetable Growers and Shippers were in the association's 38th annual convention in New York City, Mike Frost of McAllen, the outgoing president of the group, warned that more involvement in the legislative process by the freedom-thinking citizenry is imperative to prevent a union oriented labor law from passing during the next session of the legislature.

"We must go to Austin and be heard," he said.

Already being heard in Austin and sure to be heard there when the legislature convenes are strong supporters of the unions. Texas is a target. The state is one of the 20 in the nation still having a law which permits workers to choose if they want to belong to a union or not, even if his company is unionized.

At the same grower-shipper convention at which Frost spoke, Reed Larson, president of the National Right to Work Committee, said that unions are scheming every day ways of repealing Section 14-b of the Taft-Hartley Act which gives states the right to enact right-to-work laws.

And there, too, Pat Smith, state affairs director with the Texas Farm Bureau, said the growers-shippers must become more active in Austin or legislators from the Texas urban areas who have very little knowledge or concern about agriculture, will be persuaded to pass an agricultural bill similar to, or even worse than, the one California has had to live with for the past five years.

Labor as such is not motivating the attack on the right to work laws, but instead it is labor's "leadership," the officials of the unions who seek more power over the lives of Americans and the destiny of the nation. The individual worker is being used, and his freedoms removed in the name of unionism.

send money to church

You who do not go to church, please send money.

Pastors plead with you to show up in person to save your soul; that's their business.

I'm urging you to send money if only to save your skin.

As is, you are locked behind bolted doors and shuttered windows, and with automatic night lights you try to hold back the dark: While out there in the streets people are being killed, raped, beaten, robbed at a rate that's increasing seven times faster than our population is increasing.

You pay higher insurance premiums every day to try to shelter your wife, your life, your possessions, your property, your car...

The best cure for drugs and the best preventive for crime that any amount of money can buy is the discipline imposed by religion.

Why am I coming to you?

Because inside that church too many two-dollar bettors are reaping more than they're sowing.

So please, if you can't or won't go -- send help!

Inflation is escalating the costs of running a church, too. The church down the street from you is hurting, and maybe dying.

There is no church which could not give more young people more things to do than mischief -- except that many churches can't keep up with heat and light bills.

There's never been a time you've walked down that street and not been silently thankful that the church is there.

You don't know what it looks like inside, but nonetheless -- midst so many dirty movies, taverns and porno shops -- the church makes your community look good.

Your daily paper is all smeared with blood, corruption and busted Commandments.

Cops are handcuffed, schoolteachers can't paddle and parents won't.

The Church -- alone now -- seeks to catch the criminal before the crime.

I'm asking you for money because somebody has to and it's unbecoming for church pastors to.

The high and mighty televisionary clergy has no compunction about pleading for money with all sorts of gimmickry -- and thus such resources get sent elsewhere, to the neglect of the neighborhood.

You don't have to be a believer to be an understander.

You have a stake in the strength or weakness of your corner church as surely as you have a stake in keeping traffic lights lit.

You are also entitled to criticize the people inside that church who pray for and get a lot more blessings than they pay for.

We've a lot of people singing "God Bless America" without giving Him any good reason why He should.

I've heard you say that some of the best people don't even go to church. Prove it. Thank you.

robert walters

DETROIT(NEA)—More than 20 years after the passage of a federal law supposedly guaranteeing the democratic rights of union members, the government remains unable or unwilling to assist those seeking to reform corrupt labor organizations.

"Don't rely on the government — and especially don't rely on the Labor Department," advises Dan Siegel, a California attorney whose clients include numerous insurgents challenging unresponsive or insensitive union officials.

"In general, the government's role has been a negative one," says Peter Camarata, co-chairman of a labor group concentrating upon reform of one of the nation's most notorious unions, the International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

Those views were echoed repeatedly at the First National Conference on Union Democracy, held here recently under the sponsorship of the Association for Union Democracy.

"You're just wasting your time bringing your complaint to the Labor Department," says Alaska attorney William Schendel.

"The law is a total and dismal failure — and it's a failure because of the Labor Department," adds Washington, D.C., labor lawyer Joseph L. Rauh Jr.

Even representatives of the Labor Department acknowledge that they often are unresponsive or ineffective in enforcing the law. "The fact of the matter is that action is awfully slow," admits department official Fred Heitman.

He and others from the department offer the standard litany of bureaucratic explanations and excuses — not enough money and personnel, too much office politics and frequent jurisdictional disputes with other federal departments.

The law that was supposed to bring an end to union corruption is the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act of 1959, better known s the Landrum-Griffin Act. But the government has used the statute to prosecute only the blatant cases of maladministration and corruption. Even in those cases, investigations have been initiated reluctantly, then litigation drags on for years.

"One reason the investigators don't like to look at union books is that they haven't been trained as accountants," says Doris McLaughlin, author of a book on the 1959 law. "They learn the job from another guy who's been trained on the job."

A more recent law — the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, or ERISA — is supposed to prevent pension fund theft, fraud and other abuses. But the Labor Department refuses to pursue allegations of criminal activity. "The policy of the department is to investigate only civil violations," admits James de Haan, a Labor official.

Undoubtedly the most scandalous recent development is the probe of the Teamsters' Central States Pension Fund by a special investigative unit within the department. After spending five years and almost $5.5 million on the task, the department completed what La Vern Duffy, general counsel of the Senate Permanent Investigations Subcommittee, describes as "a very limited investigation."

The General Accounting Office concluded that the probe was "not effectively planned, coordinated, managed or carried out." New York labor lawyer Phyllis Curott says "it was bungled, perhaps intentionally." Even an internal Labor Department evaluation was highly critical of the investigation.

At the root of many of the problems lies the inherent conflict between two of the Labor Department's most fundamental tasks — serving as advocate for the interests of labor and investigating wrongdoing within labor organizations.

In contrast, the Commerce Department is charged with promoting the interests of the business community within the federal government, while investigation and prosecution of corporate anti-trust violations is assigned to the Justice Department.

That same division of authority makes sense in the labor field. The Labor Department's law-enforcment responsibilities ought to be shifted the the Justice Department, which might provide the public with more results and fewer excuses.

my turn

The feller on Deep Creek says, 'It's a matter of principle' often means that's the only excuse we can think of.

Next Friday night the Snyder Tigers end their football season and the Tigers will play host to the Andrews Mustangs, the leader in the district race.

Even though we are a native of Andrews, there is no team we had rather beat, and we would dearly love to see the Tigers derail the high-riding Mustangs.

There is one person on the Andrews team that we are going to pay particular attention to. He is, in fact, a good football player, but a situation last week made us have considerable respect for this young man.

Most football and track fans are well aware of the name Van Pearcy. He is a dandy halfback bluechipper and an all-state performer in track.

And there in lies a tale of hero worship, cancer of the brain, compassion and sympathy.

Last week, Pearcy received a letter from San Angelo. The younger brother of the letter writer had followed Van Pearcy's career since watching him run in a San Angelo track meet in 1978. The letter said the dying youngster was a faithful and dedicated fan of Pearcy, reading all newspaper articles about Pearcy and the Mustangs.

The letter said that 17 year-old Andy Bosman was dying of brain cancer and was bedridden at his parents home in Eldorado. The letter writer stated that he wanted to invite Pearcy to visit the ailing youngster, but had decided to wait until after the close of football season.

"But time is against us," wrote the older brother. They added that they believed that a visit by Pearcy and some words of inspiration would be "one of Andy's last great moments."

Van Pearcy showed the letter to his coach, Bill Shipman, who in turn asked what he would like to do. Pearcy responded that he would like to see the youngster and would like the coach to go with him.

Coach Shipman read portions of the letter to the Andrews team as an example of why they should lead exemplary lives both on and off the gridiron. "There are kids out there that you don't even know watching your every move..." Shipman said.

A teammate told his father about the situation, and the father volunteered to fly the boys and the coach to Eldorado for the visit.

Pearcy not only visited with the sick boy, but took him a 8x10 picture. Before leaving, Pearcy also offered one of his most prized possessions, the state track meet medal won at Austin two years ago.

Obviously Mr. Pearcy is a pretty classy fellow, and we appreciate the coach using the opportunity to teach an important human lesson.

We have a great deal of respect for the Mustangs, but we'll still be rooting for the Tigers Friday night.

thoughts

Stocks were a wooden frame in which the feet were firmly held as a method of punishment. In some stocks a collar was included, so the neck, arms and legs were held fast. Some think Jeremiah was placed in that type of stocks for prophesying God's punishment of the Jews.

"Then Pashur smote Jeremiah the prophet, and put him in the stocks that were in the high gate of Benjamin, which was by the house of the Lord." — Jer. 20:2

GROWING OLDER

Lou Cottin

Young people never need a reason to get out of bed in the morning. The world is waiting to provide a variety of new experiences.

Adults have their waking hours dictated by their jobs or the jobs of their spouses.

Then comes retirement. Every day is Saturday.

"Why get up at all?" the new retiree asks. "What will I do today? Oh, well, there's always television..."

The retiree's wife gets out of bed first. She has always made his breakfast while he has tended to his ablutions.

That habit is not easily broken. Besides, she has cleaning, shopping and other chores on her busy schedule.

And there lies the big retired lunk, hugging his pillow.

He is upsetting her lifestyle. Making his breakfast at 10 a.m. or later is not part of a well-organized day.

Actually, she doesn't see herself as a retiree at all.

And how does she feel about the continued presence of her retired husband at home?

Say it plainly. He's in the way. He's a nuisance. He's underfoot all the time.

The wife of a retiree can't be blamed for saying, "I married you for better or worse, but not for lunch seven days a week."

The injustice does rankle!

She knows that a man who has rarely if ever done household chores must be retrained. He must be taught to understand and respect her contributions to the household during his working years.

Clever wives of retirees start this retraining slowly.

"Hey," she may say. "Get the dirty clothes from the hamper. Shove them into the washer and turn it on to six minutes normal."

Or she may say: "It's a beautiful day. Wash the breakfast dishes, and let's go somewhere."

More problems arise on shopping day. Among the elderly, every wife considers herself a smart, economical shopper.

"Should I give him a list and let him buy the groceries?" she wonders. "Maybe I'd better con him into joining me at the supermarket."

That may not work either. She remembers the few times he joined her on such trips.

What disasters! Chances are he upset her budget by picking up goodies that neither of them should eat or gadgets that neither will ever use.

"There's an answer for that," she reasons. "Let him roll his own basket around. Then I'll put back most of the stuff he collects." (This works only if he doesn't get into the check-out line independently.)

There's no doubt that preparing for retirement is difficult. The pre-retirment classes have no answers to the question: How do old people who in essence have lived different lives adjust to their new home environment after retirement?

Don't ask me to supply an answer. Talk the situation over and make your own decisions.

Retirement calls for a new way of life for both of you.

In The Oil Patch...

Wildcat Test Staked In Northwest Scurry

Houston Oil Associates, Inc., No. 2 Leo H. Beaver is to be drilled as an 8,500-foot wildcat in Scurry County, 2.5 miles southeast of Fluvanna.

Location is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 461, block 97, H&TC survey.

It is an east offset to an 8,257-foot dry hole and ½ mile northwest of Fluvanna, South (Strawn) field.

Ike Lovelady, Inc., of Midland will re-enter his No. 1 Dunn, recently plugged wildcat in Scurry County, and deepen from 7,731 to 7,750 feet.

The project, which was abandoned Oct. 18, is 1,980 feet from north and 2,250 feet from west lines of section 74, block 20, LaVaca Navigation survey and 7 ½ miles southwest of Ira.

Bentley & Laing has completed No. 4 M. A. Shannon Estate in the Revilo (Glorietta) field of Scurry County.

It finaled pumping 45 barrels of 40-gravity oil per day, plus 71 barrels of water. On a total depth of 1,803 feet, it had 4 ½-inch casing set at that depth. It was then plugged back to 1,743 feet.

Wellsite is 330 feet from north and 2,310 feet from east lines of section 87, block 3, H&GN survey, abstract 43, one mile northeast of Dunn.

Aminoil USA, Inc., operating from Midland, spotted No. 1 Hughes as an 8,700-foot wildcat in Borden County, 4.2 miles southwest of Fluvanna.

Location is 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 408, block 97, H&TC survey.

Jack G. Elam of Midland will drill his No. 1 Hamilton as a 4,000-foot wildcat two miles west of Jayton in Kent County.

The location has been staked 1,514 feet from south and 1,465 feet from east lines of section 74, block 98, H&TC survey.

ARCO Oil & Gas Corp., operating from Midland, announced location for a 6,000-foot wildcat in Fisher County, eight miles northeast of Sweetwater.

The prospector is No. 1 F. M. Newman, 1,445 feet from north and 467 feet from west lines of section 12, block K, T&P survey and 1 ½ miles northwest of the Newman (Swastika) field and the same distance northeast of the Bonner (Flippen) pool.

Hill Production Co. of Dallas No. 2 W. R. Hudspeth "D" is a new well in the Raven Creek (Canyon sand) field of Fisher County, 4 ½ miles northwest of Noodle.

On 24-hour potential test it pumped 12 barrels of 40-gravity oil, with gas-oil ratio too small to measure.

Completion was through perforations from 4,156 to 4,216 feet after 1,500 gallons of acid and a 40,000-gallon fracture job.

Total depth is 5,025 feet, 4 ½-inch casing is set at 4,317 feet and hole is plugged back to 4,317 feet.

Wellsite is 467 feet from south and 1,667 feet from east lines of subdivision 23, Edward Miles survey No. 219.

The producer is 990 feet from south and west lines of section 432, block 97, H&TC survey, abstract 2501, 14 miles northwest of Snyder.

The Sharon Ridge (1700) field of Scurry County gained a new producer with the completion of CAG Petroleum Corp. No. 5 Arlie.

On a 24-hour potential test it pumped 25 barrels of oil and 10 barrels of water per day, through perforations at 1,707-1,738 feet. Gravity of the oil was 26 degrees and gas-oil ratio measured 40-1.

The potential was taken after the producing section had been treated with 1,000 gallons of acid and 20,000 gallons of fracture material. Gas-oil ratio was too small to measure.

The potential was taken through perforations at 2,758-2,790 feet, which had been acidized with 2,000 gallons and fractured with 30,000 gallons.

Drilled to a depth of 2,908 feet, with 4 ½-inch casing set at 2,907 feet, it was plugged back to 2,902 feet.

Law Of Supply And Demand At Work In America's Gas Fields

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Robert H. Willis says the law of supply and demand is at work again in the gas fields.

Willis, Connecticut Natural Gas Corp. chairman, also says the natural gas industry expects in 1981 plentiful supplies, some lessening of upward price pressures, and a continuing inflationary and regulatory squeeze on profits.

"And less than an easy time in attracting capital for vital new programs," added the newly elected chairman of the American Gas Association.

Willis said gas supply is not a problem, "but is instead a great national opportunity."

"However, the money to produce gas from new sources and distribute it to the burner tips of the nation's industries and homes may be another matter," he said.

Gas industry experience, Willis said, offers a powerful economic lesson that may be of help to all business people.

"In 1968, we warned Congress that misguided wellhead price controls were stifling exploration and drilling and that an artificial shortage would develop unless adequate incentives were provided to producers," he said.

"Congress did nothing. The shortages developed as forecast. Federal regulators then, in desperation, allowed the controlled prices to rise far more rapidly than would have been necessary without controls. In 1978, some 10 years after our first warning, Congress finally approved phased price decontrol of new gas discoveries."

Willis said the results of higher prices and less control were that additions to domestic reserves, including Alaska, jumped 35 percent in 1979 as compared with 1978 and additions to reserves in the lower 48 states were the highest since 1967.

"Drilling is continuing at a record pace, and natural gas replaced about 435,000 barrels of imported oil a day in 1979," he said.

"While gas prices will continue to rise, the law of supply and demand is again at work in the gas fields and will have a tempering effect on rates at the point of use."

Willis said the AGA estimates the gas energy equivalent of 2.3 million barrels of oil a day can be made available by 1985 to reduce dependence on foreign oil if the nation makes the required commitment.

Also expected are further medium term improvements in lower 48 production, gas from Alaska, growing imports from Canada and Mexico, more gas from various tight formations, and rising imports of liquefied natural gas.

And, Willis said, a $1.4 billion coal gasification plant in North Dakota is expected to be the forerunner of a giant industry capable of supplying 3.5 trillion cubic feet of gas from coal annually by the year 2000.

Willis said the gas industry must invest $360 billion, in 1978 dollars, to meet anticipated supply needs by the year 2000 but utilities are particularly sensitive to financing trends that may later affect the general economy.

But, he added, return on equity of the best managed, most efficient utility depends on results of its last and next state rate cases.

"Investor disenchantment with fixed income securities whose real value and real rate of return decline with inflation, plus current high interest rates, has made bond and preferred stock financing extremely expensive, which contributes to increases in utility rates," he said.

He added there is indication of "a beginning of investor reluctance to put up huge sums for utility financing on a continuing basis under regulatory conditions that in effect demand legalized theft of their equity."

As was the case with gas in 1968, Willis said he believes the industry and many others now face another developing crisis, the impending lack of funds vital to improved productivity growth and national economic progress.

One of the great challenges for 1981, he said, "is to encourage the spark of recognition that industry's ability to attract capital is an essential key to the solution of economic and energy problems and the full development of our total national economic potential."

Governor Blamed For Overcrowding

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements has blocked "outlets" to overcrowded prison conditions that could spark inmate riots, says the head of Texas' only lobby for prisoners.

Charles Sullivan said Thursday that Clements' veto of money for new cell blocks at existing prisons, coupled with his rejection of 28 percent of the paroles recommended to him, were partly responsible for the overcrowding.

"There has got to be an outlet (to overcrowding) somewhere, but it looks to me that he has blocked off each of those outlets. ... Something's got to give. ... Sure I think something is going to happen," said Sullivan, director of Citizens United for Rehabilitation of Errants.

Clements' staff says his parole denials have not contributed all that much to overcrowding. A staff report says only 1,787 of 3,944 inmates he has rejected for parole since taking office were in prison on Aug. 29. The rest finished their sentences or were paroled later, the report says.

Sullivan also called for repeal of a state law requiring persons convicted of certain violent crimes to serve a third of their sentences, with no time off for good behavior, before they may be considered for parole.

Sullivan told a news conference that letters from inmates speak of cases where three prisoners live in cells built for one.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

A healthy person faints

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm very worried about my husband. He is only 33 and I thought he was in good health. He is very active and runs at least three days a week. He went to the doctor for a check up and had some blood tests done. A lab technician took some blood for the tests. Then he got up and fainted. Why would a big healthy man faint like that? Does that mean he has heart disease? Could he have epilepsy?

DEAR READER — Anyone who has such a faint should be seen by a physician but many of them occur in perfectly healthy individuals. I doubt that your husband has heart trouble as a cause for his faint — or epilepsy either for that matter.

Most common faints occur because there is not enough blood flow to the brain. This can occur because the heart is not pumping enough blood. Sometimes it slows or even stops for a few seconds in some faints. It can occur if the arteries in your legs dilate and let all the blood flow downhill into your legs when you stand up, or if too much blood accumulates in large dilated veins in the legs as can happen after bed rest.

There are lots of causes for fainting. Your husband probably had a reflex action affecting his circulation for a few seconds. In such instances when the person lies down there is increased blood flow to the brain and he recovers.

Fainting is common today because of fad diets. The loss of normal body water from the tissues also causes a loss of normal blood fluids and allows blood to pool in your legs when you stand up.

Any acute illness, such as the flu, can cause you to have a tendency to faint, as The Health Letter number 9-2, Fainting, Loss of Consciousness or Syncope, that I am sending you explains. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I recently visited my doctor and had a Pap smear which was negative but it showed that I have trichomonas. My husband and I have been put on medication to clear this up.

My pharmacist told me it could be caused by a number of things including sexual relations or unclean instruments during examinations. Is this true? My husband bathes once a week so my question is, could it be uncleanliness?

DEAR READER — Infections with trichomonas are relatively common. The organism belongs to the group that we call parasites. It's not a bacteria. In some ways it more closely resembles an ameba. It does cause vaginal infections. It can involve the bladder and urethra of either males or females and it can involve the prostate and rectal area.

It is commonly transmitted through sexual activity but since it affects both partners a frequent problem is that the woman may be treated and the man may not. Then the reinfection process occurs again. That's why your doctor has wisely decided to treat both of you at the same time. The organism can be found in a variety of places in the body, even in the fluid around the lungs and in the cerebral spinal fluid.

It's really not so much a question of cleanliness as whether or not the infectious organism is present. It's frequently present in people who are very conscientious about their personal hygiene.

The biggest cash robbery in the history of the United States was committed in 1950 when a nine-man gang of bandits robbed the Boston waterfront garage of Brinks Inc. More than $1.2 million of the $2.7 million haul taken was in cash. The gang was exposed in 1956.

Looks At Tonight Show

THE TONIGHT SHOW. By Robert Metz. Playboy. 290 Pages. $11.95.

TV's "Tonight" has been America's "nightlight and nightcap rolled into one" for three decades, from the "Broadway Open House" of early television, featuring Jerry Lester and his blonde sidekick, Dagmar, to the present-day version starring perhaps the most influential performer on the airwaves, Johnny Carson.

Robert Metz's book takes a look at the show from its early days right up to the present in an interesting and sometimes revealing history of the show, its stars and some of the goings-on behind the curtain.

Metz profiles each of "Tonight's" three major hosts: Steve Allen, Jack Paar and Carson. Allen, who captained the show during the mid-'50s, is revealed as the perfect straight man who helped develop a band of fine comedians, including Tom Poston, Don Knotts and Louis Nye, but was nevertheless, discontented at his post. Paar, the sensitive and emotional host who followed Allen through the early '60s, is treated here with kindness and sympathy.

Carson was the little-known host of a daytime quiz show when he became "Tonight's" host in 1962.

In Fight Against Cancer...

Role Of Interferon Seems Long Way Down Road

NEW YORK (AP) — Whatever role the drug interferon may ultimately play in the battle against cancer, clear-cut scientific results still seem a long way off.

Clinical research so far has shown that interferon does indeed have an effect on cancer — and that it has relatively few side effects.

But results have been mixed and research has been slowed by a shortage of the drug and preparations of insufficient purity.

"Interferon is still in the earlier stages of clinical testing," the American Cancer Society points out.

And now researchers are reporting new laboratory findings that show just how complicated interferon is. There may be, for example, as many as 10 to 15 different genes that produce different series of interferon.

This could both complicate the use of the various strains of interferon, and also explain the varying responses in patients to the drugs being tested. In the long run, the full understanding of interferon lies in further discoveries through basic research.

One researcher who believes that interferon is "clearly promising" is Dr. Susan Krown of Memorial Hospital Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center, who has given the drug to 18 patients. But she adds:

"Most of the interferon studies so far haven't proven anything except that we need to do more studies.

"People have read things that make them think this is some kind of miracle cure," Dr. Krown says. "Because interferon is scarce and our studies are limited, we have to turn down patients every day who have invested a lot of emotional energy in trying to get interferon.

"When they can't get it, they feel like they're being cheated out of something that's the answer for them. It's sad."

In a report of her work with the drug to a recent cancer meeting, Dr. Krown attempted to put the role of interferon into perspective.

"I think it likely that interferon's potential in man will be best realized not as a single agent, but rather in combination with chemotherapy or as an adjutant to surgery when tumor burden is low."

And many researchers now believe it could take a decade before all the questions are answered and interferon can take its place in the arsenal of weapons against cancer.

The mixed reactions among researchers are due to such findings as those reported earlier this year showing "some significant response" in only four of 14 patients with the bone cancer called multiple myeloma, and a "partial response" in five of 16 women with breast cancer — results less impressive than previous studies reported by European scientists.

However, the results are significant enough "to satisfy us that the interferon used, even though it is only one onethousandth pure, has definite anti-cancer activity," says Dr. Frank J. Rauscher, senior vice president for research of the American Cancer Society.

Because of this potential, trials will continue with these aims:

Why does interferon help some patients and not others? How long do the benefits last? What are the optimal doses, which may have been too low? How long should treatment be continued? What will be the results in combining interferon with other drugs? What are the differences among the three different forms of interferon?

The widespread public interest and expectation in interferon began with an unusual move — the announcement in August, 1978, by the American Cancer Society that it was allocating $2 million on short notice for the initial purchase of the costly drug for the early clinical trials at 10 institutions. The ACS contribution has reached a total of 15.9 million.

The cost of treating a single patient can range up to $30,000 now, the ACS says.

But more ice water has been thrown on any immediate widespread use of interferon by the American Society of Clinical Oncology, an organization of cancer specialists.

A society resolution warned that it can be a "toxic drug that causes chills, fever, lowered blood pressure and depression of blood counts" — all this in a substance once described as virtually free of side effects.

"Any benefit achieved has frequently been equivocal and very transitory," the resolution said. "There is no evidence or even remote suggestion that interferon may be curative for advanced cancer."

In the new basic research, the discovery of multiple genes for interferon was reported in a recent issue of the British journal Nature by Shigekazu Nagata, Ned Mantei and Charles Weissmann of the Institute for Molecular Biology at the University of Zurich. They concluded that at least eight but perhaps as many as 10 or 15 distinct interferon genes exist.

One possible approach to the problem of short supply may be the use of recombinant DNA or "gene splicing" techniques to produce interferon, by isolating genes of human interferon and splicing them into bacteria where they grow to become "factories" for producing the substance.

Another possibility is to synthesize the interferon itself, or part of it. To do this, researchers will need to know the precise chemical structure of the molecule.

A human leukocyte interferon has been synthesized and cloned, report several researchers from Genentech, Inc., of San Francisco, and the Roche Institute for Molecular Biology, Nutley, N.J. This interferon protected squirrel monkeys from a usually lethal virus infection. The work suggests a fresh look at interferon's original attraction, as an anti-viral agent.

For now, however, efforts by the ACS are centering on enlarging the available supply of interferon for clinical testing.

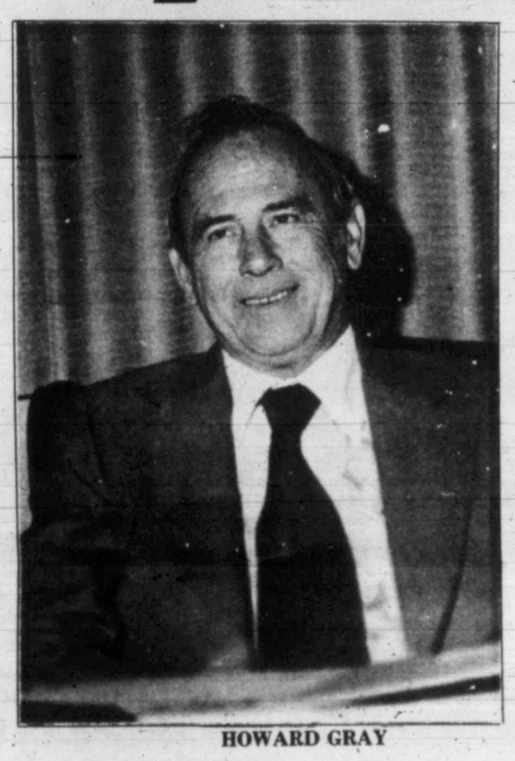

In evaluating the clinical testing so far, the Cancer Society's Dr. Rauscher says it has achieved its original major objectives, one of which was to determine if interferon is active against human cancers.
