Odd Bits Salvaged
By The Editor

To meet up with him for a visit meant that you usually enjoyed a good laugh before departing. He loved jokes about people and humorous happenings. Many times in the stories he told, the "joke" was on himself, but the "joke" was on himself, but as those on the other fellow.

k-k

He knew what to say, usually; how to say it and when to say it. His storehouse of knowledge of the country and its people was, in a way, responsible for him saying the right thing at the right time.

k-k

He loved people, and he liked to help them. People from all walks of life called on him for advice and help. The colored people had a friend in him—and many of them received financial help from him.

k-k

He loved life, which had many enjoyments for him. Living among people, seeing a new crop planted and watching through its growing stage until maturity—plant life, human life, animal life—all these brought enjoyment to him.

k-k

He held many positions of service—from city marshal to sheriff, to mayor, to Chamber of Commerce committees, to state labor committees, all of which he performed with honor. Parolees from state institutions often reported to him and confided their problems to him.

k-k

He enjoyed the progress which had been made during the 45 years he had been in Knox County. Progress from horse and buggy days to the sleek, modern automobile and the airplane that flies faster than sound. Progress from an early-day bucket brigade fire department to the man-pulled "fire wagon," then to a modern three-truck fire department.

k-k

He had many friends; and, of course, some enemies. His friends were not limited to just one race, color or creed. Practically everyone knew him and he knew them and counted them as friends. Letters from colored friends who knew him only as "Mr. C. R." were delivered to his post office box.

k-k

The 45 years of his life spent in Knox County left imprints that will not soon be erased, and the memory of C. R. Elliott will remain alive as long as any of this present generation is alive. His death was a distinct loss to his loved ones, his friends and his community and county.

k-k

We who live here and watch growth develop from spring through summer scarcely notice the condition our town is getting in, but we've been reminded that people returning to their home town of Munday during summer vacations are somewhat critical of the town. Vacant lots grown up in grass and weeds, many vacant buildings, several dilapidated buildings and general unkempt conditions cause them to fear we've lost our civic pride. Many towns have their unsightly spots to tourists, and Munday has many of them.

Just why, we never knew, but back in our school days we received the nickname of George. Few call us by that name, now, but we've acquired some new ones since our battle with the folding machine about a month ago, in which we lost the end of our finger. Among them are "Stubby," "One Less" and "One Gone." Guess there's some humor to every situation!

Bond Sales In County Reach $20,000 For August

$20,097 Series E and H United States Savings Bonds were purchased by the residents of this county during August. These figures were released recently by W. E. Braly, Chairman of the Knox County Savings Bonds Committee. Sales in this county during the first eight months of this year totaled $157,994 which is 51.4 per cent of the yearly goal of $307,580.

Sales in Texas during the first eight months of 1957 totaled $112,863,400, or 58.4 per cent of the 1957 goal of $193,100,000. August sales in Texas were $13,118,000.

"During the months of September and October, many schools throughout Texas are again installing the Savings Stamp program for their students. The School Stamp Program affords our younger citizens an opportunity to learn the habit of thrift. In addition, they will develop a better understanding of our government and will learn to realize their responsibilities as citizens of this great land," Chairman Braly said.

The Knox County Savings Bonds Committee is hoping that many of the schools in this county will continue conducting their weekly "Stamp Days" or, in those schools that do not have the program, the Savings Stamp program will be installed. Mr. Braly concluded.

Baptist Leader Is Speaker At Meeting Of Association In Goree Monday, Tues.

Dr. J. Woodrow Fuller, associate executive secretary of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, was one of the principal speakers at the annual Haskell-Knox Baptist Association meeting last Monday and Tuesday at the First Baptist Church of Goree.

Purpose of the associational

meeting is to bring messengers from all churches in the association to gether to share progress reports, get first-hand knowledge of denominational work and hear inspirational messages.

More people attend the annual meetings in Texas' 122 Baptist associations than either the Southern Baptist Convention or the Texas Baptist convention.

Over Million Acres Of Wheat Placed In Acreage Reserve; 1,262 In Knox County

The 1958 winter wheat acreage reserve signup started on August 26, and slightly over a million acres of winter wheat allotment land was put in the 1958 acreage reserve of the soil bank during the two-week period ending September 6, the U. S. Department of Agriculture announced recently.

In Knox County, for the same period, approximately 1,262 acres of winter wheat were placed in the 1958 acreage reserve, according to H. H. Partridge, chairman of the Knox County A. S. C. committee.

Mr. Partridge said that this program was aimed primarily at reducing price-depressing surpluses of "basic" agricultural commodities, and is available only to producers having acreage allotments.

The acreage signup will close October 4, 1957, and it is imperative that all producers of wheat contact the A. S. C. county office in Knox City before that date if they are interested in participating in the program. Complete details will be furnished at the county office.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McGee of Knox City visited relatives and friends here last Sunday.

Notes From Knox Farms, Ranches

By Roy England, Knox County Agent

An election of a Soil Conservation District Supervisor for Sub-division 4 of the Wichita-Brazos S.C.D., which includes all of Commissioners Precinct 2 of Knox County, will be held at 2:00 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 1, at the Court-house in Benjamin. Eligible voters include all persons over 21 years of age who hold title to land within Sub-division 4.

If you are buying small grain seed, consider the advantages of certified seed compared to the small extra costs involved. Certified seed must meet high germination standards, they have been inspected for purity and germination by the State Dept. of Agriculture, and a farmer can be certain he is planting the variety he desires.

Most Texas stockmen have had a five-year lesson on what it's like to be without grass so they are extremely careful about fire in their pastures. However, there's always the danger of lighted matches or cigarettes dropped along side highways or in the pastures by hunters. Fire guards should be plowed around pastures that contain an abundance of grasses. It is also a good idea to protect farm buildings with fire guards.

Moguls Journey To Throckmorton On Friday Night

The Munday Moguls, with Coaches Stewart and Snyder, will "take to the road" next Friday for their third non-conference game of the season and will engage the Throckmorton Greyhounds on the Throckmorton field at 8 p.m.

Records of the two teams show the Moguls again entering play as underdogs against the strong Greyhounds. Throckmorton has played three games, winning all three of them and running up a score of 86 points. Getting off to a poor start, the Moguls have lost both their games with 98 points racked up against them.

The local boys are showing improvement all along, and will likely show up stronger when conference play begins on October 4 when they meet Paducah here. Mogul fans, loyal to their team in defeat as in victory, will accompany the team to Throckmorton.

AN "INVISIBLE" PROFIT

No matter where you are in this vast country—and no matter how far you may be from the principal livestock producing regions—you can stop in at a store and get any cut of meat you want in any quantity you want.

Back of that fact is one of the most efficient and most competitive of all our enterprises—the meat industry.

Meat is perishable, and it must be moved quickly. It is also a tremendously varied product—for instance, more than 200 varieties of sausage are actually produced. And the volume of meat is staggering. Each day, the country's 4,000 packers ship an average of 66 million pounds of meat to some 300,000 stores that sell it, and some 270,000 eating places that serve it. And that isn't all. Only about half of a meat animal is meat. The rest consists of by-products. And by saving and selling these by-products the packer is able to "cancel out" many of the costs of producing meat—which means lower prices to consumers than would otherwise be the case.

Competition is hard at work all along the line. Producers compete for the best prices for their animals. So do the feeders, who fatten steers. And the packers are in continual competition for the best animals available.

One more fact is of interest to everyone who buys meat. In a typical year, the meat packer's net profit from all sources amounts to less than one cent on each dollar of sales.

Drake's well, which marked the commercial discovery of oil in 1859, produced from a depth of just under 70 feet. Today a well produces from a depth of 20,741 feet. It cost $2,500,000 to drill.

The Census Bureau reports that spending by all units of government set a record of $114,500,000,000 in the 1956 fiscal year.

From National Review: "Compulsory unionism promotes what amounts to industry-wide bargaining. Industry-wide bargaining leads to a calcified high-wage, high-cost and high-price business structure. Monopoly is the end result."

The U. S. Treasury recently issued a special security issue totaling $1,750,000,000. The interest rate of 4.173 per cent on the offering was the highest since the bank holiday period of 1933.

—SAY YOU SAW IT IN THE TIMES—

FAITH IS A MEDICINE

The marvelous achievements of American medicine in combatting disease and alleviating the ills the flesh is heir to are fairly well known. But there is another side to modern medicine—and an enormously important side, even though it has nothing to do with medication or surgery.

Writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association, Milton Golin says: "Today" medicine and religion are drawing together more closely than ever before. No longer, as occasionally in the past, do the doctor and the clergyman find themselves in competitive roles. Instead the men in white and the men in black, aware of a relationship between faith and health, are joining forces in mutual concern for the "whole" patient."

A larger proportion of American hospitals now either have religious affiliations or provide in other ways for ministering to the spiritual needs of patients. And one leading medical center has gone so far as to institute a program under which ministerial students from theological schools are given training—and medical students are offered courses in religion.

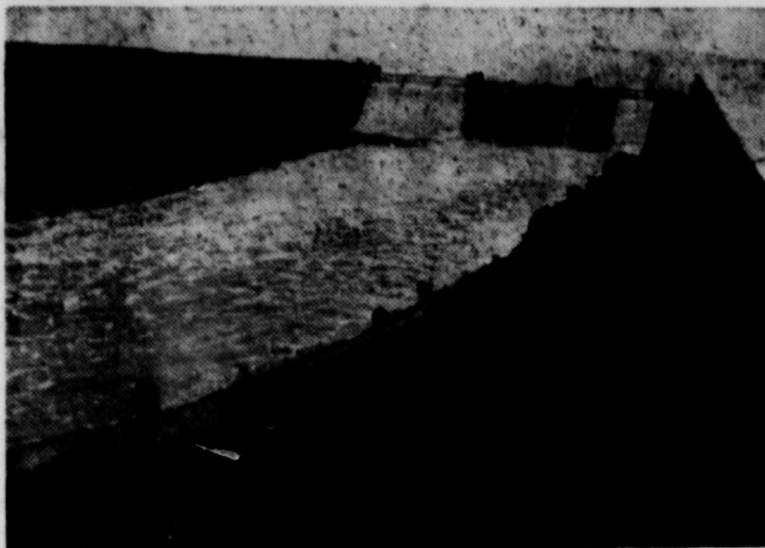

Modern medicine recognizes that faith is a medicine—sometimes the most effective of medicines. It is necessary to the well-being of us all. As one of the greatest physicians, the late Sir William Osler, said: "Nothing in life is more wonderful than faith—the one great moving force we can neither weigh in the balance nor test in the crucible."

A SORRY EXAMPLE

A 17-year-old school boy who attended the Youth Festival in Moscow, along with 160 other Americans has returned to his home in Portland, Oregon. According to news reports he said the only reason he didn't make the trip to Red China was because he didn't have enough money and that he wanted to be home when school started. Apparently the government ban on trips to Red China had no effect on his decision to return—"If I wanted to go, I'd go," he is quoted as saying.

Those who went to Red China from Russia in defiance of the government ban, showed their contempt for authority. If any of them get in trouble in China they will be the first to cry for protection from the government which they defied.

Are these young people, who thumb their noses at authority, a result of failure in home training and our educational system to teach respect for law and order?

DROUGHT AND FLOOD—Texas knows both. Here, at Possum Kingdom Reservoir, an installation of the Brazos River Authority, flood waters are pouring over the spillway. Up to May 21, Possum Kingdom released 1,773,540 acre-feet of water downstream. Meanwhile the dam was holding vast quantities of water. Just a few weeks earlier this was drought-parched land. The U. S. Corps of Engineers estimated that, up to May 6th, the two great flood-control dams—Whitney and Belton—had prevented damage of $23,700,000 during recent floods in the Brazos River Basin. The B.R.A. master plan calls for many more dams, for flood control and conservation, on the main Brazos and its tributaries.

MODERN HOMEMAKING

Recipes . . . Household Helps

By Julia Hunter

HOME ECONOMICS DIRECTOR, LONE STAR GAS CO.

Join the "National Fish Parade" by serving fish in any one or in several of the many ways it may be easily prepared. The summer's heavy production of fresh and frozen fishery products is in the markets ready for the cooking.

Delicate in flavor and texture, fish is high in nutritive values and is economical. Most fresh and frozen varieties come in fillets, slices cut lengthwise from the backbone, and in steaks, crosswise sections. These cuts need no further preparation before cooking. They are especially good for broiling, frying and baking.

Fish has little connective tissue so there is no such thing as tough fish, requiring long, slow cooking to tenderize. Cook it until it flakes easily with a fork. Further cooking makes it dry and chewy.

Because fish is tender and delicate with little connective tissue, it should be handled as little as possible. It needs no turning in broiling or baking and should be turned only once in frying.

Broiled fish is one of the easiest main dishes to prepare. For six servings use 2 pounds fish fillets or steaks. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and place on a cold lightly greased broiler pan, skin side up. Brush with melted butter or margarine and broil 3 inches from full gas flame 10 to 15 minutes, depending on thickness, or until fish flakes easily with a fork. If desired, baste once during broiling with melted butter or margarine. It takes about ¼ cup fat, melted, for 2 pounds fish. For added flavor, add a tablespoon or two of lemon juice to the melted fat.

Fish Stick Burgers will offer something new in the burger family. Place frozen fish sticks in a single layer in a greased shallow baking pan, allowing two sticks for each burger. Bake in hot gas oven (400 degrees F.) 15 to 20 minutes or until piping hot and crisp. While sticks are baking, place foil-wrapped hot dog rolls in the oven to heat. For each burger, place two fish sticks in a heated roll. Top with tartar sauce and serve at once. Potato chips on the side combine with the burgers for a new version of fish 'n' chips.

Tartar sauce is a must with fish for many people. Stir up a batch in a hurry by combining ½ cup mayonnaise, 1 tablespoon minced onion, 1 tablespoon chopped sour pickle, 1 tablespoon minced parsley and 1 tablespoon chopped green olives.

Weekly Health LETTER

Issued by Henry A. Holla,
M. D., State Health Officer of Texas

AUSTIN—Earlier predictions of a widespread Asian influenza epidemic this fall and winter appear to be materializing. Reports of cases coming in from all quarters indicate that Texas has been well

"seeded" with the virus.

Only five brief months have passed since late April when the disease was first recognized in Hong Kong. This speed of spread is typical of the illness.

So far, Asian influenza, which is really a new strain of a virus type well known to laboratory technicians, has been comparatively mild. This very fact has caused many people to ask why so much noise is being made about it. There are several good answers.

First, even mild influenza can be disabling for four or five days, followed by a period of lassitude and weakness. If enough people are stricken at the same time, as in an epidemic, medical care facilities may be overtaxed and vital community services may break down. These possibilities may be averted by forewarning and careful planning.

Second, influenza is always unpredictable. Cases are frequently complicated by bacterial infections. And, even when uncomplicated, the illness has a particularly dangerous impact on persons suffering from heart ailments or other chronic diseases.

Experience has shown that the average period of a local epidemic is about four weeks, but 80 per cent of those who become ill do so within a period of about two weeks. Frequently whole families get sick at the same time so there is no one to care for the sick, to fix meals, or look after family affairs.

The unusual features associated with Asian influenza has rekindled interest in events just preceding the world-wide epidemic of 1918-1919. It started in Western Europe in 1918, and by August had spread into Scandinavia and the Orient. By October most of the United States was involved.

In January and February of 1919, the epidemic intensified and mortality rates rose sharply. Before it was over it had killed more than 800,000 people in the United States alone.

Fortunately, with modern epidemiology and laboratory techniques, we are in a better position today to cope with the situation. Too, for the first time in history this nation is in the unique position of having already begun production on a vaccine before an anticipated epidemic actually struck. Six drug houses have been licensed to produce the vaccine and are working on around-the-clock schedules. Vaccines will be released to states on the basis of population as it becomes available.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Tuggle and sons of Fort Worth spent the week end with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Offutt and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Tuggle. Mr. and Mrs. Ben Tuggle returned home with them Sunday. Mr. Tuggle will visit in Fort Worth, while Mrs. Tuggle will go to Irvington, Calif., to visit her son and family. Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Tuggle and Brenda, for a month's vacation.

Don Haynie of Lubbock and Miss Janie Haynie of Fort Worth visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Haynie, Sr. and other relatives over the week end.

Frank Judkins was a lawyer in Eastland in the 1920's. Of the 52 members of the Eastland bar, he was probably the best jury speaker. He was close to six feet in height, heavy-set, with dark clothes that were not too well pressed—a jury would have resented a dandy. He had rather luxuriant hair, with one lock that curled over his brow.

In addressing a jury, when he made a strong assertion, he would thrust out his jaw, his dark eyes would flash and that lock of hair would shake like the mane of an angry lion.

While the prosecuting attorney was questioning the State's witnesses, Judkins would sit with half-closed eyes and would smile, now and then, in disbelief as some statement, and would placidly chew tobacco. But when it came time for him to cross-examine, he underwent a complete change. Gone was the air of semi-sleepiness and his eyes became alert and when he uncovered a clink in the witness' story, he would lean forward and his questions would crackle.

He would maneuver, in the course of the case, to place the accusing witness or the prosecuting attorney on trial and would picture his client as the victim of emnity, conspiracy or the ambition of the district attorney to make a "record."

On one occasion, Judkins defended a man who was accused of having gone into a man's place of business and beating him over the head with a club. (They were on opposite sides in a bitter political fight). The injured man had bled copiously but his wounds had healed completely by the time of the trial. The selection of the jury and the taking of testimony required two days and, throughout that time, Judkins slowly whittled on a stick with a pocket-knife.

The State rested. Judkins then placed the defendant on the stand and that individual identified the stick which Judkins had as the one used in striking the complaining witness. The stick did not impress the jury as being a very dangerous weapon—they overlooked the fact that the lawyer had been whittling on it for two days before their very eyes—and they returned a verdict of acquittal.

Once, when Judkins was going to introduce a State candidate, he was asked by a newspaperman for an advanced copy of his remarks. He replied, "I never know what I am going to say until I start speaking."

He addressed a jury without notes, finding his inspiration in the zest of conflict, with a man's liberty at stake. He studied the faces of the jurors and when he found it necessary, he elaborated a point, and when he saw he had won acceptance of a contention, he passed on to another.

Judkins did not stride up and down nor did he bellow, although his naturally powerful voice rang out. He waxed sarcastic, indignant or emotional, depending on whether he was tearing into the testimony of an opposing witness or denouncing the conduct of the deceased who had forced his client to kill him, or picturing the happy home to which the jury should return the prisoner. Which the jury usually did.

As a newspaperman looking for "good copy" and as an individual, I liked Frank Judkins very much.

Folders Tell How To Catch Catfish, Carp

AUSTIN—Be you carp or catfisherman The Texas Game and Fish Commission has some red hot information for you. In pamphlets just issued there is expert advice on how to catch both catfish and carp. The publications also tell how to cook them.

Carp fishing has become quite a fad on many Texas lakes and streams, where fishermen have found them to be plentiful and real battlers. Biologists of the Commission are doing everything they can to eradicate carp as "rough fish."

There are still thousands of fishermen who like to catch carp. Many private dock owners bait holes for carp fishing. They grow big and fight hard.

Outclassed Moguls Drop Second Game Of Season To Lions On Friday Night

Jerry Atwell raced for touch-down runs of 98, 69, and three yards and caught a 32-yard scoring toss from quarterback Charles Woodward to lead the Albany Lions to a 45-0 slaughter of the Munday Moguls here Friday night.

Fullback Kenneth Hill scored a fifth touchdown on a one-yard plunge to climax an 87-yard drive and Lion subs took care of the other two.

Harold Durham scored the sixth touchdown from eight yards out with only 5:45 left in the game and Munday folks settled back to watch their Moguls try for at least one touchdown.

But Albany guard Edward Ledbetter deflected a Munday pass on the Mogul 16 and end Larry Cauble ran under it and carried it on across with 5:25 left in the ball game.

The Moguls were outclassed from start to finish, but never stopped fighting, particularly 150-pound halfback James Goodwin. Goodwin was still hitting the line as hard in the fourth quarter as in the first.

The victory was the third straight for Albany while the Moguls dropped their second in two games.

So one-sided was the game that Albany netted 285 yards rushing to 60 for Munday and racked up 17 first downs to seven.

Woodward, and alternate quarterback Jackie Eubanks completed five of nine passes for 58 yards while Munday's Phillip McAtee completed three of eight for 37.

Goodwin sparked for Munday in punting as well as running, averaging 38.8 yards on eight kicks despite one 12-yarder.

But his best boot, a 65-yard quick kick, led to Albany's first score as Atwell picked up the ball on the Lion two, faked to the inside, then scooted 98 yards down the left sideline.

Albany's other halfback, Jim Ellis, almost duplicated Atwell's feat minutes later when he took a Mogul punt on the Albany 28 and raced all the way across the double strips 62 yards away. But a clipping penalty set the Lions back to their own 13.

Whereupon they drove 87 yards for their second score with Hill getting the TD from the one. Big gainers of the drive were a 10-yard pass from Woodward to end Jackie Jenkins, a 12-yarder from Eubanks to Ellis and 20-yard scamper by Atwell.

Other Lion touchdowns came like this:

(3) Lions drove 89 yards in three plays. Ellis got four and 16 yards, with Atwell bursting inside right end and speeding 69 yards to the right corner.

(4) A Munday fumble recovered on the Mogul 16 led to the five play touchdown climax. Atwell got the final three yards.

(5) Guard Ralph Boling recovered a bad lateral by Munday fullback Boyd Meers on the 50-yard line. Woodward hit Ellis for 16 yards to the Munday 34, and Ellis rammed to the 32. Woodward faded, passed in the left flat to Atwell, who was behind a defender. The Mogul deflected the ball, but Atwell shoe-strung it and raced the last 20-yards for a TD, cutting diagonally from left to right as he dodged two or three Moguls on the way.

(6) A fourth down gamble by Munday failed on the Albany 44, and the Lion second stringers, with Eubanks in command, drove 56 yards in eight plays with Durham going the last eight. Big plays on the drive were a pair of 10-yard tosses from Eubanks to Archie Freeman and Jim Lawrence, and a 16-yard run and lateral by Eubanks to Freeman.

(7) Cauble's 16-yard interception runback after Ledbetter's deflection.

Eubanks, Atwell and Boling each booted one extra point.

Top Lion defenders were tackles Tommy Stapp and Joe Willie and centers James Woodward and Buddy Webb.

Tackle Bunny Norville and halfback Charles Partridge led what defense Munday had.

Atwell paced Albany on the ground with 145 yards in 13 carries, while Goodwin was Munday's top runner with 58 yards in 14 carries.

Farmers Urged To Take Samples For Test Of Soil

Wheat farmers should take their soil samples now so the results will be known before time to sow. It is practically impossible to determine the fertilizer needs of a soil without an analysis. Each year many farmers spend needless thousands of dollars for fertilizers of the wrong analysis and amounts, when, for only one dollar per sample, they could have an analysis made of their soil and determine the right amount and kind of fertilizer to buy.

The Soil Testing Laboratory at Seymour, a branch of the state lab. at Texas A&M College, has been in operation since January 1956. The lab has run 1957 samples from 38 counties in Texas, 2 in Oklahoma, and one in New Mexico. The lab was set up to serve this area of the state and makes the same tests as the state lab at College Station.

Your county agent has a supply of soil sample bags and will be glad to give anyone information on how to take samples, etc. When using fertilizers, it is always a good policy to leave a small portion unfertilized as a check to determine the benefit of the fertilizer.

NEW TRENDS IN THE EGG BUSINESS

With the advent of the new standard-setting Texas Egg Law and accompanying changes in egg marketing, farmers with laying flocks might do well to look at some of the latest trends in producing and selling eggs, however, far-fetched they may seem at the present.

Latest developments in poultry science tell us, for instance, that laying hens may pay greater dividends when fed rations which are fortified with some of the new tranquilizing drugs.

It is believed that tranquilizers may be of special help in hot summer months by bringing birds through hot weather without a serious drop in laying and by lowering hot weather death losses.

Promising studies are also underway to determine if shell and interior egg quality which drops off during hot weather may be improved by tranquilizers.

If a suitable and inexpensive type drug is found—and there is some promise that a heretofore unused tranquilizer by-product may work out—feed manufacturers may be spicing summer rations with helpful "happiness" drugs to help overcome hot weather difficulties.

Something else worth looking into is the spreading use of automatic coin-type vending machines to sell eggs.

These refrigerated road-side wonders are solving the marketing problem for a number of producers in various states, including Colorado, Alabama, Missouri, New York, and California, to name a few.

All a farmer needs to sell his eggs mechanically is the machine, a good location such as a shopping center, a service station or just a busy roadside, and some good quality eggs. He's more apt to maintain a stable market with less down price variation and the difference in marketing at the retail level could pay for the machine in a few months.

One New York firm makes an egg vendor which handles two different grades and keeps the eggs cool in summer and warm in winter, selling for $1.495 f.o.b. the factory. A special shelter that fits over the machine costs an extra $150.

With savings in time, money and trouble, this type of automation may be just what the egg producer needs.

fall semester, the matter of segregation is back in the headlines in Texas and elsewhere, and some school boards may now be pondering upon a law passed by the 55th Texas Legislature.

By now everyone knows that the Supreme Court of the United States has decreed that segregation of public schools by race is unconstitutional. Since the Court's decision, however, the Legislature passed House Bill 65. The constitutionality of this law has not as yet been tested.

In effect the bill provides for local option elections to determine whether dual school systems shall be continued or abolished. It prohibits any board of trustees or any school authority from abolishing its dual school system (desegregating or integrating) prior to an election on the question. A prerequisite to such an election is a petition filed by at least 20-per cent of the qualified electors residing in the school district.

The election is to be conducted in a manner similar to elections for school trustees. It can be called on the same date as a school trustee election if the petition was filed within 60 days of the trustee election. Otherwise the election must be called within 60 days after the petition has been filed. Subsequent elections upon the same questions cannot be called within 2 years of any prior election.

Under this law those schools which integrated during the 1956-1957 term are permitted to continue integration unless this system of operation is abolished by an election held in the manner mentioned above. Another provision under a section of the law dealing with integrated schools is that a student shall not be denied transfer from one school to another because of race or color.

The bill provides that if a school district should desegregate without first being authorized to do so by an election of the qualified electors residing therein, then the district becomes ineligible for accreditation and ineligible to receive and Foundation Program Funds. In other words, it loses State School Support funds.

The same penalty is placed upon a school district, already integrated, which fails to segregate its schools after an election calling for such action.

A fine of not less than $100.00 or more than $1,000.00 is provided for any person guilty of violating any of the provisions of this Dual School System Law. (This column, based on Federal law and prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform—not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

LET'S TALK LIVESTOCK BY TED GOULDY

Cattle Trade Active Fat Calves Higher

FORT WORTH — Slaughter calves brought fully 50 cents to $1 higher prices than the low close of last week at Fort Worth Monday. Cows also sold in a strong to 50 cents higher trade. Stocker and feeder cattle were very scarce, and prices fully steady to strong with considerable inquiry in the trade for thin calves, yearlings and cows suitable to winter in the grain fields.

Fed steers and yearlings were very slow, bids being largely steady with the close last week, and salesmen asking higher prices for the offering.

Receipts in all divisions of the market were sharply curtailed by the general rains over the week end, and reports to the market indicated pasture men were jubilant over the prospects for making winter feed and in many places low stockwater tanks were replenished.

Wheat and oats farmers reported moisture conditions "excellent" and predicted a sharp expansion in the already good demand for cattle and sheep to graze their fields this winter.

The "local" nature of the stocker outlets were pointed out by representatives of corn belt interests, who said western and northwestern stockers and feeders were moving in numbers and current Texas prices were out of reach of their clients in most cases.

However, there representatives were quick to point out that in much of the corn belt the crop is late, and an early frost would mean much "soft" corn. A situation with usually results in a sharp increase in cattle feeding since such corn will not store.

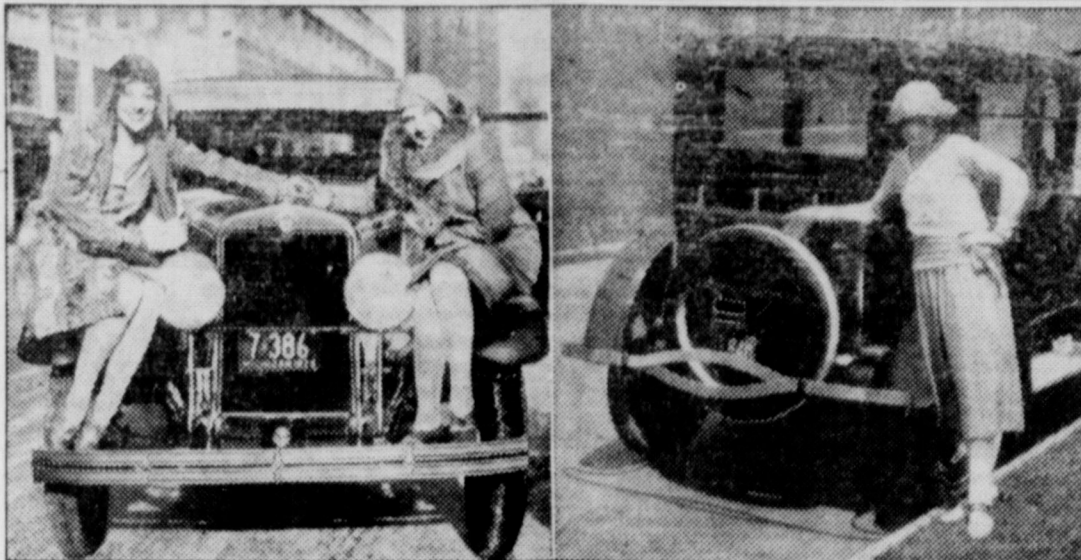

Good and choice slaughter steers and yearlings bulked at $19 to $23, and common, plain and medium butcher sorts sold from $13 to $18.50.

Fat cows sold from $12.50 to $15.50, and canners and cutters drew $8 to $12.50. Bulls sold from $11 to $16.

Good and choice slaughter calves cashed at $18.50 to $21, and a few fancy heavies sold to $22. Plain and medium slaughter calves sold from $14 to $18, and rannies and common sorts sold from $11 to $13.

Good and choice stocker steer calves ranged from $20 to $23.75, and stocker heifer calves cashed at $21 down. Stocker steer yearlings sold from $20.50 downward. Feeder heifers sold from $17.50 down. Stocker cows cashed at $10 to $14.50.

Hogs Open Strong To 25 Cents Higher

About ten thousand less hogs than a week earlier were reported around the major marketing circle Monday than a week ago, and the sagging hog market staged a mild rally of 25 cents per hundred at Fort Worth Monday.

Choice butcher hogs scored $19.25 to $19.50, and the medium to good variety sold from $17 to $19. Sows cashed at $17.50 to $18.50.

Sheep And Lambs Open Fully Steady

The trade on sheep and lambs was fully steady, quality considered, and high grade offerings were practically lacking in the offering at Fort Worth Monday.

Medium and good fat lambs sold at $20 to $21, and cull and common sorts drew $15 to $18. Stocker and feeder lambs sold from $19 to $20. Slaughter ewes sold from $7.50 to $8.50. Old bucks cycle may not be as long or the decrease in numbers as great as in most recent years.

Cattle numbers were reported down one, and two per cent last year and the year before respectively.

Is Cattle Population Turning Upward Again?

Two reports, within a week of each other, arrived in Fort Worth in which well-informed persons raised the questions as to whether the cattle population of the United States may not have started upward again this year.

Norman G. Warsinke, publisher of the Western Livestock Reporter at Billings, Mont., said: "There is a basic uptrend in the cattle population cycle. Considering drought liquidation of the past two years, this is quite normal. Cattle are being held in pasture and range areas for maximum feed utilization, which means that grass beef is accumulating for the fall market. Despite the reduced calf crop, the inventory of cattle numbers on January 1, 1938 may be up."

This past week the annual meeting of the American Meat Institute, Oris V. Wells, administrator of the Agricultural Marketing Service of the United States Department of Agriculture, said: "Cattle marketings this year are likely to be two per cent under 1936. In several previous cycles the down phase has lasted as long or longer than the expansion or buildup phase. However, some of us feel that under present conditions this phase of the current

Irrigation On High Plains Still Continues To Grow

Almost a quarter of a million acres was added to the total acreage being irrigated in the High Plains area of Texas during the past year. Water to take care of the additional acreage and to permit a better job of irrigating existing lands came from an additional 5,653 wells.

These facts are revealed in the annual survey of irrigation on the High Plains recently released by D. W. Sherrill, irrigation agent for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service with headquarters in Lubbock. Sherrill's report covered irrigation activities in 42 counties.

Information in the survey was obtained from data supplied by the agricultural agents in the counties concerned, and points up the great importance of irrigation to the Plains' agricultural industry.

The report shows that 18,344 farms in the 42 counties are irrigated. The total acreage under irrigation now stands at 4,568,880 acres and the number of wells at 42,225. Hale county farmers are now irrigating 500,000 acres and lead the area in that respect. Lubbock and Hockley counties have the largest number of irrigated farms and number of wells. Seven counties in the area, Deaf Smith, Farmer, Castro, Swisher, Lamb, Hale and Lubbock, are listed as having in excess of 300,000 acres each under irrigation. Natural gas is being used for fuel on 19,644 wells, butane on 16,226 and electricity on 5,840 wells. The lift on 12,307 wells was listed as under 125 feet and over 125 feet on 29,918 wells.

Sherrill reports that grain sorghums, cotton and wheat were the major crops irrigated last year with a combined acreage total of just over 4 million. Other crops irrigated included sorghum, barley, corn, legumes, pastures, vegetables and other specialty crops.

Copies of the report may be obtained from Sherrill's office which is located in the Agricultural Building on the Texas Tech campus at Lubbock.

Knox Prairie Philosopher Differs With The Experts On Theory Reckless Spending Is The Cause Of Inflation

Editor's note: The Knox Prairie Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Miller Creek Considers another angle of inflation in his letter this week, but we doubt if it'll have any effect on the problem, one way or the other. Dear editor:

I was reading the other night in a copy of a magazine which some company sent me in the hope I'd subscribe, which on a small scale is about like sending a million dollars to Europe in the hope somebody'll re-pay it, where an expert in Washington has been studying the problem of inflation and has come up with the notion that the cure for it is to stop reckless spending.

According to him, the more willing we are to spend, the more willing somebody is to take our money, and this keeps the price of things edging up.

Now I have been giving considerable thought to this idea for the past few days, letting a lot of my farm work slide in the belief whipping inflation is more important to the nation than whipping Johnson grass on my farm, and I'll admit that while

J. A.

I have come to several different conclusions, I'm still just as puzzled as I was when I started.

For example, as far as I know, reckless spending does cause inflation, however, on the other hand, I know of a lot of cases where reckless spending resulted in a depression, at least for the people doing the spending.

And also, if everybody stopped spending, stores would stop selling, manufacturing plants would stop producing, then stop hiring, and while this would sure whip inflation, it'd result in a depression, and whipping good times by substituting hard times is not exactly what me and that expert in Washington had in mind.

To tell the truth, reckless spending is probably what put this country where it is. That is, if the average housewife spent her money 100 per cent carefully and for essentials only, most supermarkets could cut their size in half and stock mostly salt, pepper, stew meat, potatoes and molasses. Drygood stores would be cut down to work pants and gingham dresses, the air-conditioning industry would switch over to palmetto fans, and drug stores would disappear. And you know right off what the eliminating of reckless spending would do to government.

It seems to me, that expert in Wayne Thompson of Dallas is spending this week with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Burnison.

Washington better try some other plan. He's about to argue himself out of a job.

Yours faithfully
J. A.

P. S. Everybody is wondering how this Asian flu got into this country. All I know is it didn't come in on any foreign currency sent in to pay off loans with.
