Stock market has best week in history

NEW YORK (AP) — Investors stampeded into the stock market Friday, ending Wall Street's best week in history with a surge that sent trading volume skyrocketing past the once-unthinkable level of 200 million shares.

"This is too irrational right now," said Ralph J. Acampora, a market analyst for Kidder, Peabody & Co. "It's fun, but it's crazy."

The unprecedented frenzy, triggered by expectations of lower interest rates, propelled the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials to a 36.00-point gain to 1,202.08.

For the week, the blue-chip average surged a record 87.46 points, exceeding the previous mark of 81.24 points in the week ended Aug. 20, 1982.

A roar went up on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange at the close in a day that saw trading explode to 236.57 million shares, easily surpassing the previous record of 172.8 million set only a day earlier. Before Thursday, the best trading day had been Jan. 5, when 159.99 million shares traded.

"I've never seen anything like it," said Jacques S. Theriot, senior vice pesident of Smith Barney, Harris Upham & Co.

In the opening hour alone, 72.59 million shares changed hands on the Big Board — equaling what only a few years ago accounted for a whole day's activity and shattering the previous mark of 47.98 million set Jan. 5.

Despite the volume, trading went smoothly thanks to recent upgrades of computer systems both at the NYSE and at many of Wall Street's brokerage houses, said NYSE spokesman Richard Torrenzano. He said the system is now easily capable of handling 250 million shares a day.

The market's rally was credited to a confluence of several factors that dramatically changed investor psychology.

"It's the biggest shift I've ever seen," said Robert Stovall, investment strategist for Dean Witter Reynolds Inc. and a market watcher for 25 years.

But others cautioned that the rally might be more a reflection of the market's "herd instinct," where nobody wants to be left behind once a major move up begins, rather than the start of another long-term bull market.

Recent government reports indicated the economy might be slowing from its dramatic expansion in the first half of 1984, something Wall Street has been wanting because a less-robust economy would slow the strong increase in business borrowing that had helped keep interest rates high.

Indeed, the high level of rates appeared to be the only economic factor holding stocks back, since the economy was strong, inflation low and corporate earnings and dividends higher.

Yet skepticism about lower rates remained — until July 25.

That is when Paul Volcker, the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, told a Senate committee that the economy appeared to be moderating on its own, and that no further tightening of credit by the central bank — which would lift interest rates — was needed.

Then the government issued more reports signaling an economic slowdown, including declines in factory orders and construction spending. International Business Machines Corp., whose stock is a bellwether issue for the market, raised its dividend, and the bond market continued to improve.

Finally on Wednesday, NYSE volume shot above 100 million shares — its highest level since February and a clear-cut sign that Wall Street's big players, the institutional investors, believed interest rates might not go higher and wanted to buy stocks in a big way.

Lawmaker Perkins dies

Carl Perkins

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Rep. Carl D. Perkins, who spent 36 years in Congress battling for programs to improve life in Appalachia, died Friday of a heart attack after collapsing aboard a flight from Washington. He was 71.

Gov. Martha Layne Collins ordered that flags at all government sites be flown at half-staff and said she would announce plans later for a special election to pick a successor to the Democratic lawmaker who was the state's senior congressman.

In Washington, government figures hailed Perkins as a "giant in the field of education" and "one of the pillars of Congress."

Perkins, who had a history of heart problems including three previous heart attacks, died at 12:37 p.m., said his son, Chris, a 29-year-old lawyer and state representative.

The congressman had been feeling sick for the past week and went to a hospital last week with chest pains, but doctors attributed that to problems caused by a cold, his son said.

Perkins told a stewardess that he felt ill and went into a bathroom of plane, said Dr. Barry Parsley, the attending physician at the St. Joseph's Hospital emergency room. The stewardess then "heard a moan and a thump," Parsley said, quoting paramedics who treated Perkins at Lexington's Blue Grass Field.

Paramedics found no pulse and no respiration, and said Perkins' pupils were fixed and dialated, said Parsley. Nurses and doctors at the hospital spent 35 to 40 minutes trying to revive Perkins, but "he never responded at all," Parsley said.

In Washington, tributes flowed from Perkins' colleagues.

"We're in a state of shock up here," said Rep. William Natcher, a fellow Kentucky Democrat.

"Carl was my friend all down through the years...I have lost a true friend and this country has lost an outstanding member of Congress," Natcher said in a telephone interview.

Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., described Perkins as "a very quiet, unassuming person, and yet he was a leader in the educational field."

"He was a giant in the field of education; the school lunch program, a good portion of all the elementary and secondary programs — Carl was instrumental in getting those started," Simon said.

Perkins, who was born Oct. 15, 1912, spent half his life in Congress representing the state's 7th congressional district, the heart of the eastern Kentucky region where he was born and raised. He was among the five most senior members of the 435-member House of Representatives and had built a reputation on Capitol Hill as a champion of social legislation, particularly in education.

Precautions discussed at pretrial hearing

By LAWRENCE BUDD
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Special precautions, including a metal detector, were discussed Friday during a pretrial hearing for two brothers who allegedly murdered two 19-year-olds in late June — the latest incident of a longstanding southside feud.

District Judge Gene Ater said he would have a metal detection device stationed at the single entrance into the 70th District courtroom during the upcoming murder trial of David Perez Mendoza and Jose Perez Mendoza, charged with gunning down Ronald Don Lopez and Juan Moreno in front of the Mendoza home on a southside street.

Ater also said he would arrange seating in the courtroom so the victims' friends and family would sit on one side and supporters of the Mendozas on the other.

David Mendoza, 35, has been indicted for murdering Moreno and Lopez, both 19 years old at the time of the slayings. He has been in jail since June 23 when he was arrested at the scene. Bond was set at $50,000 for each murder charge.

Jose Mendoza, 29, remains in jail after turning himself in to police June 27. Indicted for Moreno's murder, his bond has been set at $20,000.

The shootings reportedly stemmed from a beating a younger Mendoza suffered days before at the hands of a group including Lopez. He had questioned 17-year-old Johnny Mendoza about an incident which left Jessie Lopez, the victim's 37-year-old mother, wounded when bullets were fired into the family residence May 27.

Ater overruled objections by the Mendozas' attorneys that the metal detector would prejudice the jury chosen. "It can't do anything but prejudice the rights of the defendants," said attorney Cliff Hardwick.

"Their safety is at stake as much as anyone else's," answered Ater.

The judge decided against Hardwick's request that the number of police officers in the courtroom be limited during the case, despite the attorney's protest that large numbers of police would indicate an "obviously partisan gathering."

Jury still out in attempted murder trial

By LAWRENCE BUDD
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Jurors had not reached a verdict late Friday night in the attempted murder trial of the widow of a man killed during shooting which broke out when a planned Dec. 9, 1983 undercover drug bust broke down.

The jury had deliberated more than five hours without a decision in the trial of 22-year-old Jana Matheny, charged as an accomplice in the shooting of two police officers. They had been wounded during gunfire exchanged in and outside a room at an Odessa motel between narcotics officers and alleged drug dealers.

Ms. Matheny testified to her guilt on charges of delivery of cocaine she also faces stemming from the "buy-bust" set up by narcotics officers. She and a third alleged conspirator, Gerald Leon Hardin, 31, were indicted for attempted capital murder and delivery of cocaine.

If found guilty of either of these charges, the defendant faces a maximum sentence of life imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

Wounded as they attempted to force their way into the room at the La Quinta Motor Inn, 5001 E. Highway 80 in Odessa, were Detective Phil Harrold, a narcotics officer with the police department, and Ector County Sheriff's Deputy Jim Dickson.

Testimony has shown Dickson was wounded by a bullet fired by OPD narcotics officer Steve Frederick, who was the single officer inside the room where the drug transaction was to take place. The bullet which passed through the door and Harrold has not been recovered.

Perot's 'sabotage' claim disputed; Midlander nominated to board

From Staff and Wire Reports

AUSTIN — Members of the elected State Board of Education, reorganized and made appointive by the recent Legislature, on Friday disputed H. Ross Perot's claim that some board members are trying to "sabotage" the new public school reform bill.

"We have been very, very careful to do nothing more than implement the new bill enough so schools can get started this September," said Will Davis, of Austin, a board member who also was a member of Perot's Select Committee on Public Education.

Perot also made public a list of 31 suggested nominations to the new 15-member appointed school board. Midlander Beth Blakemore is on the list Perot submitted to Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, according to current board member J. Murphy Horton of Midland.

Davis' remarks came during the second special meeting of the state board to implement the $2.8 billion school reform measure.

"I don't see any indication that any of the staff or members of the board are doing anything to 'sabotage' the new bill. We're only doing the things that have to be done before September and leaving the rest to the new board," Davis said.

Perot told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram earlier "the Texas Education Agency and some of the old board members are trying to sabotage the new school system. They are putting out bad numbers and trying to confuse the school system and the superintendents."

Perot said he might call a news conference to "name names...if it doesn't clear up in a hurry."

State Board Chairman Joe Kelly Butler, of Houston, called the attention of board members to the Perot story.

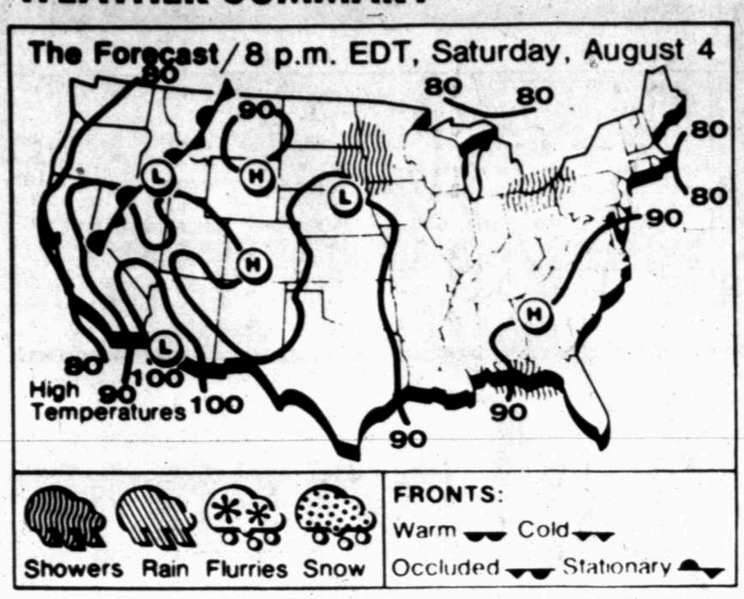
WEATHER SUMMARY



AP Laserphoto Map

The National Weather Service forecasts showers for today for parts of Minnesota, the Dakotas, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan and Florida.

There's 20 percent chance Permian Basin will get rain

Clouds will continue to cover the Permian Basin and a 20 percent chance of showers or thunderstorms should stick with the area through Sunday.

According to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport, a minimal 0.11 of an inch of rain was recorded by 10 p.m. Friday, bringing the total for the year to 7.09 inches.

Temperatures shouldn't rise much with a high today and Sunday expected in the middle 90s. The low tonight will drop into the lower 70s.

Winds will be from the south at 5-15 mph today.

Friday's high of 91 was 15 degrees cooler than 1953's blistering record high of 106. The overnight low of 72 was 11 degrees warmer than the record low of 61, set for that date in 1973.

STATE

West Texas and other areas of the state Friday received scattered showers, which lowered the temperature to 69 degrees in one West Texas community.

Afternoon temperatures were in the 90s over the state outside of the rain areas, which also included the High Plains, North Central and East Texas and the coastal regions.

There were no fronts or major weather systems in Texas Friday and the National Weather Service said the rain activity was the result of daytime heating. A weak wave of low pressure in the west Gulf, combined with the sea breeze, made showers a little more numerous in the coastal sections.

Cotulla in South Texas had the highest reading Friday afternoon with 99 degrees. Waco and Wichita Falls were close behind at 98. The lowest at 4 p.m. was an almost nippy 69 degrees under rainy skies in the West Texas town of Marfa.

The forecast for the weekend calls for fair to partly cloudy skies with overnight lows in the 60s in Northwest Texas and in the mountains. Temperatures in other parts of the state should be in the 70s.

NATION

Heavy downpours from thunderstorms drenched parts of Louisiana and western Pennsylvania on Friday, with rainfall that measured as much as 8 inches causing widespread flooding in lowland areas.

In Burbank, Ill., meanwhile, storm-generated winds gusted to 60 mph during the early afternoon, the National Weather Service said.

The weather service said local flooding was reported after as much as 2 inches of rain fell in Pittsburgh during a two-hour period, and 4½ inches in Butler County about 10 miles north.

Local flood warnings were posted over portions of southeast Louisiana where as much as eight inches of rain was measured. Local and lowland flooding was widespread there, the weather service said.

Thunderstorms continued over the central Gulf Coast states through midafternoon, extending across the Ohio Valley to the lower Great Lakes. Showers were also scattered over the northern Plains into southwest Minnesota, and across northwest Texas.

Heavier rainfall during the six hours ending at 3 p.m. EDT included 3.18 inches at New Orleans, 0.93 inch at Watertown, S.D., and 0.9 inch in Toledo, Ohio.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 p.m. EDT ranged from 58 at Bremerton, Wash., to 106 at Palm Springs, Calif.

The early-morning low was 37 degrees at Truckee, Calif., in the Sierra Nevadas.

The forecast for today calls for showers and possible thunderstorms in the upper Ohio Valley, the lower Great Lakes and along the central Gulf Coast.

Showers will be scattered from New Jersey across Florida, extending through much of the Mississippi Valley.

Judge's power being tested in Odessa

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Whether or not a federal bankruptcy court judge is really a judge and has judicial powers is being tested in an Odessa bankruptcy case in federal court in Midland.

Counsel for Odessa retail business executive William E. "Bill" Howard and his wife, Mary Elizabeth Howard, is contesting the jurisdiction of U.S. Bankruptcy Court Judge Joseph C. Elliott of San Antonio.

The couple filed for personal bankruptcy in federal court on Oct. 21, 1983.

Elliott, who routinely sits in Midland in hearing bankruptcy cases, said he was surprised his authority had not been contested earlier.

The dispute stems from Texas National Bank's contention that a $40,000 loan to the Howards is non-dischargeable in the bankruptcy proceedings. The Odessa bank contends the Howards "supplied false information" when the September 1982 loan was made and that they intended to "deceive" the bank in order to secure the loan.

The Howards deny the allegations. They contend the "loan was funded on the same day that it was applied for" and that the bank "did not rely on the personal loan application" in making the loan.

The bank says at time of the loan Howard indicated he "was not a guarantor of any other loan." But the bank said it subsequently found out Howard had "personally guaranteed" indebtedness in excess of $1 million.

The Howards contend the loan is dischargeable in bankruptcy court.

But in a July 25 hearing in Midland, Elliott denied the Howards' motion to dismiss the suit on grounds Elliott does not have judgeship powers — authority to make legal findings. Elliott signed the order as a "consultant to the United States District Court."

The order was approved two days later in San Antonio by William S. Sessions, chief judge of the U.S. District Court for the Western District of Texas.

"The jurisdictional question concerns whether Judge Elliott as a consultant to the United States District Court is entitled to hear this non-dischargeability complaint," argued El Paso lawyer Margaret A. Christian, co-counsel for the Howards, in the July 25 hearing.

Ms. Christian said she based her contention on U.S. law dealing with the appointment by a U.S. district clerk, his employees, the clerk system and deputies.

"We feel as if the judge is not really a judge," she said, "but an employee of the district clerk's...If the (Supreme) Court has held that Congress was unable to appoint someone with judicial powers, neither is a district clerk able to appoint someone to hear bankruptcy matters."

Role of the nation's 225 bankruptcy court judges became subject of debate in July after Congress passed legislation, mandated by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1982, to modernize the bankruptcy courts.

The Supreme Court ordered that bankruptcy court judges should be appointed for life by the president. If judges were appointed by the judiciary, their range of jurisdiction would be limited.

However, the legislation passed by Congress allowed the president to appoint bankruptcy court judges for 14-year terms and denied them judicial powers in non-bankruptcy court matters.

But owing to Congress' slowness in passing the legislation, the judges temporarily were out of jobs; the legislators voted to reappoint the justices. But Congress apparently doesn't have the constitutional power to do so.

In the meantime, bankruptcy judges were advised by administrator of the U.S. Courts to act as consultants to district court judges until their status is settled. That would be a "stop-gap" measure to keep the bankruptcy court system still active. Otherwise, U.S. district judges would take on the added burden of deciding bankruptcy cases.

Mike Kelly, representing Texas National Bank, held that the bankruptcy court does have jurisdiction, since "all orders are approved by (federal) district court...This (district court) court retains ultimate authority and reponsibility for any action taken in the (bankruptcy) court," he said.

"As everyone's well aware of," Kelly noted, "the jurisdictional question is complex and unsure."

The Howard-bank contention on the $40,000 was held in abeyance, while the dispute on the jurisdiction of bankruptcy court judges is appealed to U.S. District Court Judge Lucius D. Bunton of the Midland-Odessa Division. It could be sent to the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans and to U.S. Supreme Court.

"I think it is, obviously, a very controversial matter," Elliott said, "and I am surprised that it hasn't been challenged before now. Somewhere in the country, perhaps, it has. I don't know."

JURY

The indictment charges Ms. Matheny with attempted capital murder for shooting Harrold, who was outside the door Ms. Matheny is to have fired through as the officers attempted to force their way into the room. Officers have testified Hardin also was firing toward the fallen Harrold as he sped away from the scene. That was the beginning of a high-speed chase through part of northeast Odessa which ended when the getaway vehicle's engine failed — the battered truck coming to rest over a curb in front of a residence.

Frederick has testified Ms. Matheny secured the deadbolt on the room door, then told her husband that men carrying guns were trying to enter from outside. But she admits no recollection of anything that occurred after voicing the warning.

Jurors were faced with deciphering a 14-page charge, from which they are expected to decide if the defendant is:

— Guilty of attempted capital murder, because of her knowledge of the drug transaction or because prosecutors have proved she was an accomplice.

— Guilty of attempted murder. What makes it an attempted capital offense is the fact the men wounded were police officers, so prosecutors needed to prove that Ms. Matheny was aware that plain-clothed Harrold was a police officer.

— Guilty of aggravated assault, if they were not convinced beyond a reasonable doubt that Ms. Matheny meant to kill Harrold.

— Not guilty, if they believed Ms. Matheny was justified in attempting to defend himself.

— Not guilty, if the state has failed to prove her guilt of any of the offenses.

Defense attorney Dan Sullivan, who wept briefly during an emotional closing argument, has insisted throughout the trial that the Matheneys had no way to recognize the officers as police.

Pointing out that narcotics officers wear long hair and take on the habits and vernacular of those in the drug subculture, he added, "They were the clothes the hippies do."

But David Rosado countered, "She's not some innocent child with flowers in her hair that just wandered into this incident.

"We're not talking about John Q. Public that just happens to be in a hotel resting overnight," said Rosado, calling the three "bona fide big time drug dealers."

"It's not pass-the-buck time, it's decision time today here in Ector County, Texas, right now," he said.

But the eight-woman, four-man panel had not come to a decision on her guilt or innocence by 9:30 p.m. One juror continued deliberations after being notified his mother, who had been on life-support systems at a local hospital since Tuesday, had died.

Man arrested after chase

Police Round-up

From Staff Reports

A 24-year-old Odessa man was taken into custody following a high-speed chase in Midland about 8 p.m. Friday.

The man was first spotted in the 1000 block of North Loop 250 clocked going 86 in a 55 mph speed limit zone. When he failed to pull over, at least four police units joined in the chase in which speeds exceeded 90 mph at times, police said.

The man was stopped when his motorcycle went through a parking lot in the 3300 block of West Andrews Highway and he lost control and skid across the highway.

He was arrested on charges of driving while intoxicated, attempting to evade arrest, speeding, expired license plates, an improper left turn and no insurance.

About $10,000 in cash and checks were taken from the office of Sloan Brothers Buick, 2600 W. Wall, between Thursday night and early Friday morning.

Entry to the business apparently was made by breaking a window pane in an eastside door between 6 p.m. Thursday and 4 a.m. Friday, according to police reports. The lock on a filing cabinet which contained the missing items had been drilled with company equipment, which was then returned to its proper storage place.

About $6,520 in checks and $3,525 in cash were taken in addition to credit card receipts.

Midland police were called to 3609 Gaston early Thursday morning where Gerald Peddy reported his house had been burglarized Wednesday and two rifles and three shotguns were missing.

Reports indicate the residence was entered through an eastside window, which Peddy said he found open when he returned home at 9:30 p.m. Wednesday. The guns, taken from a case in the living room, were valued at $2,085.

In other activity, Randall Burk reported his garage was burglarized sometime between Thursday afternoon and early Friday morning. Taken was a heavy tool box containing tools, valued at a total of $1,500.

MARKET

Institutional investors — the multimillion-dollar pension funds, insurance companies and the like — "had been sitting on the sidelines for months, had oodles of cash and were afraid to miss the market because the memory of August 1982 is still vivid," Acampora said.

It was in August 1982 when the stock market snapped out of a two-year low and began a historic bull rally that eventually lifted the Dow Jones industrial average to its all-time high of 1,287.20 on Nov. 29, 1983.

Acampora particularly noted that unlike two years ago, individual investors streamed into the market quickly this time, a further sign of a "very clear, abrupt shift in psychology."

On Thursday, "many of our retail offices had just an ordinary day in terms of volume" while the institutions dominated trading with big block trades, Stovall said. "Today it's different" — with individuals placing seven times more buy orders than sell orders.

A blizzard of orders also was reported coming from foreign investors, who have been buying up dollars because of high U.S. interest rates and thus have a lot of dollars to spend on stock.

The question now is whether this is the start of the "second leg" to the bull rally that began two years ago, or a temporary upswing.

Stovall said he expects the Dow Jones industrial average to climb back to its record high before 1985.

White announces funds for training

Gov. Mark White this week announced that $1,562,903 will be used for job training for economically disadvantaged, unemployed and underemployed Texans in the Permian Basin, including Midland County.

White approved the expenditure of these funds for job training programs in Andrews, Borden, Crane, Dawson, Ector, Gaines, Glasscock, Howard, Loving, Martin, Midland, Pecos, Reeves, Terrell, Upton, Ward and Winkler counties.

The Texas Department of Community Affairs has executed a contract effective July 1 for the provision of a job training program under the Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA).

"The Job Training Partnership Act is a catalyst for integrating the private and public sector in developing skills needed by Texans for productive employment and economic self-sufficiency," White said.

Under the Job Training Partnership Act, local elected officials in partnership with private industry councils, composed of business and community representatives, plan and provide programs best suited for residents of their area. Program services include basic education skills, training and job placement.

PRECAUTIONS

Ector County Sheriff's deputies stood behind Hispanic men sitting in the last row of the courtroom during the hearing until Ater suggested they take seats.

Moreno's car, which was stopped down the street from the Mendoza home when the shooting began, was ordered impounded by Ater at the request of the defense.

Criminal records of Moreno, Lopez and 15-year-old Jessie Hernandez, who was in Moreno's car and was stabbed during the incident, were released, with Ater setting the condition that any juvenile records released must come from cases in which the person had been certified to stand trial as an adult.

He denied defense motions to have other records related to the three, and specifically Lopez, released by police. Lopez has been certified to stand trial as an adult at least once, with defense attorney Richard Abalos recalling four instances in which the juvenile court felt the offense with which Lopez had been charged while still a juvenile was serious enough to make him eligible for punishments otherwise reserved for adult offenders.

DEATHS

Tom Elliot

LUFKIN — Tom Elliot, 75, of Lufkin, died Thursday. He was a former Midland resident.

Services are scheduled for 2:30 p.m. today at Gipson Funeral Home Chapel with burial in Garden of Memories Memorial Park.

Elliott was born in Franklin County. He was a self-employed truck driver and a member of the Foursquare Pentecostal Church.

Survivors include his wife, Madge, of Lufkin; a daughter, Wanda Davis of Lufkin; a son, James Elliott of Fort Worth; two brothers, J.J. Elliot of Mount Pleasant, and Walter Elliott of Sulphur Springs; three sisters, Hazel Tinsley and Dovie House, both of Mount Vernon, and Viola Bavlin of Pittsburg; 11 granchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Marjorie Lourcey

FORT WORTH — Marjorie Colvin Lourcey, 77, of Fort Worth and formerly of Midland, died here Friday.

Private services will be at 3:30 p.m. today in Greenwood Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. Murray Richey officiating. Entombment will be in Greenwood Mausoleum.

Her husband was an employee of Gulf Oil and the couple had lived in Midland. She was a member of John Knox First Presbyterian Church.

Survivors include her husband, William Lourcey of Fort Worth; a son, Bill Lourcey of Fort Worth; three grandchildren; a sister, Mildred Wood of Tyler; a cousin and several nieces and nephews.

BOARD

"Here's a list of the suggested new board that Mr. Perot wants to put in place," said Butler, also a member of SCOPE. "I think you will find it interesting."

One of the most controversial provisions of the education bill replaces the 27-member board, elected one from each congressional district, with a 15-member board appointed by the governor from 45 nominees by Senate and House leaders.

Perot submitted the list of 31 names to Hobby, who is vice chairman of the Legislative Education Board which will make the nominations to Gov. Mark White. Perot said the list was merely "a preliminary pile of suggestions."

The only one of the present 27 board members on Perot's list was Mary Helen Berlanga, of Corpus Christi, who led an unsuccessful move in April to oust Butler as board chairman.

Davis' name was not on Perot's list, but he said he understood he had been nominated for the new board by another person.

STATE

White pledges to work for Democratic ticket

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White pledged Friday that he will work hard for the Democratic presidential ticket in Texas, a state many political strategists consider crucial to the party's chances of unseating President Reagan.

"I've told them (the candidates) I would be urging my friends and supporters to be active in the campaign. I intend to be available whenever they need me," he said. "I'm going to work hard for the ticket."

White, who accompanied Walter Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro on their two-day Texas campaign swing this week, also said he believes they have a chance at winning the state.

"I think it's important that we get them better known in Texas. I think the better known they are the better they'll do," White said.

White said he and Mondale discussed the campaign, and "without expressing any particular titles, he asked if I would be active. I told him I would."

The governor said he believes Texans will accept Ms. Ferraro and will find much in her record that impresses them.

"I think that you're going to find that Geraldine Ferraro's background in law enforcement as an assistant district attorney is going to stand her in good sted," he said.

White also said Mondale is proposing solid alternatives to President Reagan's policies, adding that he expects businessmen to be attracted by them.

"I think you'll find that the fiscal policies of this administration — in contrast to the specific plan of the Mondale campaign — will be such to draw more and more business people into thinking realisticly that this systen proposed by the current administration will not long endure," he said.

"I think it's important that we get them better known in Texas. I think the better known they are the better they'll do...I think that ...Geraldine Ferraro's background in law enforcement is going to stand her in good sted."

— Gov. Mark White

"I think the people of the country want to hear about what are the plans of the future. They don't want to buy off on anybody's promise that everything's going to be OK," the governor said.

White said Mondale and Ms. Ferraro undoubtedly will be spending considerable time in the state before the November election.

"I'm sure they'll be here often, because Texas is important," he said.

The governor also downplayed the absence from this week's campaign tour of Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, who Mondale considered but rejected as a running mate.

"Congress is in session. I think Lloyd Bentsen is where he needs to be," White said.

White concerned about inmates' safety

Gov. Mark White

AUSTIN (AP) — In the wake of several stabbings in the state prison system, Gov. Mark White declared Friday that he wants Texas prisons to be safe for inmates.

White's comments came as a lockdown of 700 inmates continued in the Texas Department of Corrections' Coffield Unit at Palestine, where four black inmates were stabbed this week.

"I'm concerned whenever there's any incident in that prison. I want that to be a safe prison. I'm very concerned about reports that I receive from there," White told a news conference.

White said he called TDC Director Raymond Procunier to a meeting in Austin on Wednesday.

"I asked for him (Procunier) to come over and explain the circumstances and also give me his thoughts about what needed to be done to prevent it from occurring," White said.

White said specific proposals haven't yet been received, but are expected soon. He said he would review the plans with legislative leaders, as some legislative action may be need to fund the program.

The governor noted that the Legislature has made available enough money to hire and train 1,200 more prison guards, as required under a federal court order.

"I'm hopeful they will be put in place as quickly as we can," he said.

White said Procunier did not indicate there was a pressing need for other guards beyond those already being hired.

He also said he sees no reason, now, to consider using the National Guard for prison security.

"At this time, I don't have any thoughts that it (troops) would be necessary, even though that is one of the alternatives that would be available. But there are many options in between before you have to call out the guard."

White last week toured the Coffield Unit. On Friday he said he was "disappointed it wasn't cleaner," but has been told that some of the problems were the result of disturbances at the prison.

"There's no excuse not to have a clean prison," he said, adding that he also has questions about security.

White said he has confidence that the current prison administration will maintain control, but "if they're unable to do that, we'll have to have some other selectons made. I understand they are in control and they will continue to be."

The governor said he believes that the Legislature has provided prison officials with "everything they asked for, by and large" to improve the prisons. Further spending requests will have to stand the test of legislative scrutiny, he said.

Asked whether violence in increasing in the prisons, White said he wasn't sure.

"It may be the fact this is a more open administration. There's more communication with the press. And I think that's fine."

Jackson backers insist on black secretary of state

AUSTIN (AP) — Jesse Jackson supporters in Texas will not campaign for Democratic presidential nominee Walter Mondale unless Gov. Mark White picks a black for secretary of state, a state lawmaker said Friday.

"The Rainbow Coalition is insistant that we get a black as secretary of state," said Houston Rep. Al Edwards, who was chairman of the Jackson campaign in Texas.

The secretary of state post has been vacant since John Fainter resigned Tuesday.

Edwards said White told the Jackson camp to submit a list of blacks qualified for secretary of state. The list will be sent to White next week, according to Edwards.

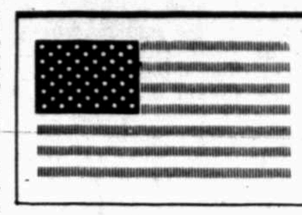
Spy sentenced to 15 years



NATION

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Convicted spy Ernest Ludwig Forbrich, saying he was "extremely sorry for what I have done," was sentenced to 15 years in prison Friday for buying U.S. military secrets to pass to East Germany.

Forbrich, 44, a West German auto mechanic, could have been sentenced to life in prison but will be eligible for parole in five years.

During a week-long trial in June, the government portrayed him as a "garbageman," a spy who scavenged for anything to sell.

Prosecutors showed a secretly made videotape of Forbrich handing over $550 in $50 bills to an FBI agent posing as a U.S. Army officer. In exchange, the agent gave him a secret 500-page military catalogue of intelligence documents.

After 2½ hours deliberation, the 12-member jury convicted Forbrich on two counts of espionage. One count, attempting to sell classified secrets to a foreign government, carried a maximum life term. The second, buying the secret document, was punishable by up to 10 years.

U.S. District Judge Ben Krentzman sentenced Forbrich to 10 years for buying the Defense Register of Intelligence Publications and 15 years for trying to pass it to East Germany. The terms are to run concurrently.

Forbrich, an admitted career spy, did not testify in his trial, but made a long statement of apology, saying he never intended to harm the U.S.

"I am extremely sorry for what I've done," he told the judge. "...I regret the way I have acted."

He spoke in German, in barely audible tones, as an interpretator gave a simultaneous translation.

His brother, Falko Forbrich, 40, of San Jose, Calif., told the judge he and his brother came from a poor but hard-working family of refugees who fled their native East Germany to escape religious persecution.

His father, he said, was imprisoned for eight years because he was a Jehovah's Witness, and there were times the family had only "bare bread" to eat, with salt one day, sugar the next.

The government said only the life sentence could effectively punish Forbrich and deter others.

Defense attorneys sought leniency, saying Forbrich had no prior record and was boasting about his activities when dealing with the undercover agents.

"It was apparent to me...the defendant never really understood the seriousness of this matter," said Ron Cacciatore, one of Forbrich's court-appointed attorneys.

Fobrich, who owns a garage in Goeppingen, Germany, was arrested March 19 in a motel room in nearby Clearwater immediately after his meeting with FBI agent Edward S. O'Keefe.

The agent was posing as "Lt. Col. Steve Smith," a fictitious intelligence officer at the Central Command of Tampa's MacDill Air Force Base.

Forbrich, caught carrying the document wrapped in a towel, has been in custody ever since.

During the trial, Assistant U.S. Attorney George Tragos presented audio and videotapes of Forbrich saying he had been in espionage work "15 or more years," and had passed documents "many, many times."

Forbrich said he wanted information on weapons and tanks, NATO and the Warsaw Pact to relay to East Germany through his contact, an intelligence agent named Manfred.

Tragos said the case unraveled because a woman named Holly Storey wanted revenge on her ex-husband, former Army Maj. Charles "Chuck" Storey, for divorcing her.

She claimed her ex-husband had been selling secrets to Forbrich for years. Storey was never charged, but have refused to discuss his whereabouts or status.

Mrs. Storey, the prosecution's key witness, testified that she began cooperating with the FBI after Forbrich recruited her with promises of good pay.

She said she taped her conversations with the West German and eventually introduced him to the undercover agent.

Cuomo sees need for debating implications of religion in politics

NEW YORK (AP) — Gov. Mario Cuomo, who says President Reagan's religion is "not my kind of Christianity," believes Democrats should not shirk a debate on the political implications of religion.

"I believe it was wrong for us to allow the president to preempt and co-opt us on the issue," Cuomo said in an interview published Friday in The New York Times.

"It's always been safer not to talk about religious beliefs because religious beliefs are so personal that they tend to antagonize," said Cuomo, a Roman Catholic. "But formal religion, more aggressively than ever before, is seeking to use the political process in the traditional way."

He added: "You have a president who has wrapped himself in religiosity. Reagan has used religion aggressively as a weapon, as a tool."

Cuomo, who was the keynote speaker at the Democratic convention in San Francisco, said that Reagan and Walter F. Mondale, the Democratic presidential nominee, should spell out their visions of the role of religion.

"Are you saying we are a Christian country? And what does that mean? My kind of Christianity or yours?

"So, Mr. President, if you want to debate in this campaign on the implications of religion, I will start with the need for love in society and I will say that my platform, which says we're going to reach out to those people in wheelchairs and to shose people who have been left out, we're going to help them up.

"Your platform is, 'We'll take care of the poeple God has already taken care of, make them as strong as possible and hope that on their own they'll take care of everybody else.' That's not my kind of Christianity."

Gov. Mario Cuomo

Rep. Geraldine Ferraro, the Democratic nominee for vice president, said last month that Reagan "walks around calling himself a good Christian, but I don't for one minute believe it because the policies are so terribly unfair."

Speaking at a Catholic church in Hoboken, N.J., on July 26, Reagan struck back at the Demoratic ticket, saying: "Why do those who claim to represent the party of compassion feel no compassion whatsoever for the most helpless among us — the unborn?" Reagan characterized Republican as being "for life and against abortion" and "for prayer in the schools."

Ms. Ferraro, a Catholic, has said she is personally opposed to abortion but believes women should be free to choose.

Cuomo, who takes a similar position, has been indirectly criticized by Archbishop John J. O'Connor of New York.

"I don't see how a Catholic in good conscience can vote for a candidate who explicity supports abortion," O'Connor said at a news conference in June. He later said he didn't mean to tell Catholics how to vote.

Cuomo, who was interviewed Tuesday, explained his position this way:

"The Archbishop says, 'You, Mario, are a Catholic who agrees with me that abortion is an evil.' I say: 'I agree with you, archbishop, that as I see the world, abortion is not a good thing. I therefore will not encourage my daughter to have one, God forbid. I will not say that it is a good thing, and in so doing I will remain true to my belief and a member of the church, which is more important to me than remaining a member of the Democratic Party.'

"The Archbishop says, 'OK, now I want you to insist that everybody believe what we believe.'

"I am entitled to make the case that everybody should, but once the law has decided contrary, I have to respect that too," said Cuomo.

Cuomo indicated he plans to raise the issue of religion in politics frequently, beginning Friday night with remarks to the International Platform Association in Washington. He is also scheduled to lecutre on politics and religion at the University of Notre Dame in the fall.

Teacher barred from spanking in '84-85

SEVIERVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A teacher who spanked her pupils on the last day of school for infractions they had built up for months has been barred from paddling for a year.

The Sevier County Board of Education reprimanded Linda Russell and said the eighth-grade social studies teacher is "not allowed to whip a student the entire 1984-85 school year."

Superintendent Eugene Huskey said Ms. Russell's mistake was not filing an office record of the punishments of about 25 students.

He said that if Ms. Russell had produced "documented evidence, then she'd be perfectly fine and safe."

The spankings were justified and students were warned at the beginning of the school year that they would come at the end of the year, he said.

That practice prompted some parents to accuse Ms. Russell of keeping a "hit list" that led to spankings for infractions that the children couldn't remember committing.

Several parents angrily denounced the school board's decision at the heated meeting.

Marie Suggs said she was "totally disgusted and disheartened" at the board's action.

"If one child got what he got it was too much," said parent John Bandy. "Twenty-five is ridiculous."

A group of parents had originally claimed as many as 80 students were spanked on the day before summer vacation for such offenses as failure to bring pencils to class and sitting improperly.

At a June 28 hearing Ms. Russell admitted to spanking about 25 students and said she waited until the end of the year so as not to disrupt.

Texas families cope with 'pixie disease'

CLUTE, Texas (AP) — On May 14, 1983, a 15-minute segment on Williams syndrome was aired on the NBC news program "Monitor."

The segment featured a discussion of the history and symptoms of the syndrome and interviews with some of its victims.

"Monitor" was the lowest-rated program that week, the show with the fewest viewers.

But Brenda Sabo of Old Ocean was watching. So was Janice McEwen of Richwood.

For Mrs. Sabo and her husband, Mike, the program confirmed a doctor's diagnosis that their son, Jared, has the mysterious illness that marks its victims with pixie-like facial features and an outgoing personality. And it gave Mrs. McEwen and her husband, Thomas, their first clues about what could be causing the developmental problems plaguing their son, Christopher.

The syndrome, which afflicts fewer than one in 20,000 babies born each year, is characterized by excess calcium in the blood, heart disease, kidney problems, mild mental retardation, below-average growth and poor balance and coordination. About 250 known cases have been reported nationwide.

Although the symptoms vary, most victims have elf-like facial features, which has earned Williams syndrome its nickname as "the pixie disease."

The syndrome is not contagious and does not appear to be genetic. There is no known cause or cure. The Sabos began to realize something was wrong when Jared, now 3, was 6 months old.

"We began noticing ... that he was not developing normally as far as his milestones go," Brenda said. "The pediatrician said to keep an eye on him until he got a little older."

Jared's development continued to lag, and he was referred to Texas Children's Hospital in Houston. After a series of tests, Jared was diagnosed as having Williams syndrome.

"I had never heard of it," Mrs. Sabo said. "At the time, only 80 children in the United States were known to have Williams syndrome. I couldn't believe I had one of 80."

But the NBC program quelled her disbelief.

"They all share certain facial characteristics and mannerisms, and when I saw the program, it all clicked," she said. "It was like watching my own child on TV." Unlike the Sabos, the McEwens do not have a concrete diagnosis. Christopher exhibits most of the symptoms associated with Williams syndrome, but final test results have not been released.

Christopher, now 4, was several months old when his parents realized he wasn't rolling over or lifting his head as he should have been. He had problems keeping food down and never put anything in his mouth as most infants do.

They took him to Houston and were told he had a developmental delay, a catch-all term that covers any learning deficiency.

So Christopher was enrolled in an infant development program and made progress. The McEwens continued to visit doctors, hoping to find one who could give them definite answers. But none could.

Then they saw "Monitor."

"They started describing the symptoms and they fit Christopher almost exactly," Mrs. McEwen said.

Christopher now sees Dr. Gregory Mundy at the University of Texas Health Science Center in San Antonio. In addition, he is participating in a study of patients with rare and unusual disorders. Research also is under way by a doctor in Newfoundland, said Dr. Frank Greenberg, director of the Genetics Clinic at Texas Children's Hospital.

The doctor is analyzing facial features of children with Williams syndrome, which could help doctors make clinical diagnoses.

"That's important because we don't really have any diagnostic tests," Greenberg said. "The problem with Williams syndrome is that it is a condition we don't know the cause. There's no specific test like a blood test or X-ray to either prove or disprove the diagnosis.

According to The Journal of Pediatrics, the high calcium level shows up in the first few months after birth. The condition can be fatal, causing heart valve problems and kidney failure.

The syndrome was named for Dr. J.C. Williams, a New Zealand cardiologist, who described the disorder in four unrelated children with mental deficiency, unusual facial features and heart problems. His study was released in 1961.

In early infancy, children with Williams syndrome may be fretful and have feeding problems. During childhood, they are outgoing, a trait doctors have dubbed a "cocktail-party personality."

"We don't really understand the outgoing personality," Greenberg said. "Whether there is something going on in the various areas of the brain or various chemical changes that cause this to take place, we don't know. I don't know whether we ever will know." The syndrome's characteristic personality is obvious in both Jared and Christopher.

Jared is quick to greet strangers with outstretched hands, and Christopher will offer a hug and a kiss as easily as most children offer a smile.

That lovable nature has made dealing with the affliction easier, Mrs. McEwen said.

"No one wants their child to be handicapped, but I am grateful that he's loving and outgoing and not hard to live with," she said.

But coping with the syndrome hasn't been easy for either set of parents.

Mrs. Sabo said, "My first thought was, 'Why me, Lord?' I went through that for a long time there was a lot of bitterness and anger."

Judge lowers von Bulow's bail

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A judge lowered Claus von Bulow's bail from $1 million to $100,000 Friday on charges of trying to murder his wife, but said the Danish-born financier must leave his passport with the court.

Superior Court Judge Corrine P. Grande said the state Supreme Court's overturning of von Bulow's conviction of twice trying to kill his heiress wife with insulin injections justified lowering the bail.

But Mrs. Grande acknowledged the state's concern that he might flee the country if his bail were reduced. She ordered his passport to remain with the court and also ordered that von Bulow not leave the continental United States without the court's permission.

Von Bulow, who will post the required $10,000 cash Monday, said he was "obviously pleased" by the decision.

As part of the agreement, Mrs. Grande ordered von Bulow to keep at least $1 million in assets that will be seized if he leaves the country without the court's permission.

Mrs. Grande said at the time the $1 million bail was set, when von Bulow was sentenced to 30 years in prison, that it was not an unreasonable amount. But she said "the circumstances have in fact altered" and that bail was a financial deterrence of flight, not "financial oppression."

"Courts don't use bail as punishment. We use jail as punishment," the judge said.

Von Bulow's 1982 conviction for trying to kill Martha "Sunny" von Bulow at the couple's Newport mansion during the Christmas holidays in 1979 and 1980 was overturned by the Rhode Island Supreme Court. The state court ruled that his constitutional rights had been violated when the state did not obtain a search warrant to conduct additional tests on drugs and drug paraphernalia found in a black bag taken from his closet by a private investigator.

Claus von Bulow

Rhode Island Attorney General Dennis J. Roberts II has asked the U.S. Supreme Court to review the state court's decision.

Von Bulow, 57, now spends most of his time in a posh Fifth Avenue apartment he shares with his daughter, Cosima, 17, overlooking New York's Central Park.

Martha "Sunny" von Bulow, 52, remains in what doctors say is an irreversible coma in a New York hospital.

Von Bulow, tanned and dressed in a dark blue suit, white shirt and tie, appeared calm throughout the proceedings. During a recess, he relaxed and joked with reporters and attorneys arguing against him in the proceedings.

His attorney, John F. Sheehan, said von Bulow would not leave his daughter to flee the country. He said Cosima is not accepted by the rest of the family because she has continued to live with her father.

"She is alone at sea and the only boat she has is this man," Sheehan said, pointing to von Bulow.

"He would rather go to prison than have his daughter think he fled an obligation," Sheehan said. Mrs. von Bulow had two children from a previous marriage.

Marc DiSisto, an assistant attorney general, said von Bulow already has been found guilty once and now "has a greater motivation to flee."

Should the high court decline to take the case, DeSisto said the state is ready to retry von Bulow.

Meanwhile, three national law enforcement groups and one of President Reagan's appointees to his commission on crime victims have informed Roberts they are filing briefs to support his effort to win U.S. Supreme Court review of state Supreme Court's von Bulow decision.

The three organizatons are: Americans for Effective Law Enforcement, a group of prosecutors, attorneys, scholars and law enforcement professionals; the International Association of Chiefs of Police; and the Victims Assistance Legal Organization.

Joining the three is attorney Frank G. Carrington, immediate past chairman of the American Bar Association's Victims Committee and a member of the President's Commission on Victims of Crime.

NATION IN BRIEF

Remains of five more American casualties returned from Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — The remains of five more American casualties of the Vietnam war have been identified, the Pentagon announced Friday. Their remains were returned by the Vietnamese government last month.

They were listed as:

Air Force Lt. Col. Vincent J. Connolly of San Antonio, Texas, missing since Nov. 4, 1966; Marine Corps Maj. Stephen J. Kott of Greenville, S.C., missing since Oct. 31, 1967; Marine Capt. Hugh M. Fanning of Fort Worth, Texas, missing since Oct. 31, 1967; Navy Commander Richard C. Nelson of Drexel Hill, Pa., missing since March 6, 1968; and Navy Lt. Gary L. Shank of Prairie Village, Kan., missing since July 23, 1972.

Last week the Pentagon said the Central Identification Laboratory in Hawaii had identified the remains of Army SFC Dominick Sansone of New York City. His remains were brought home and he was buried with military honors Aug. 1.

Technicians are still trying to identify two sets of remains handed over by Vietnamese officials to a U.S. team in Hanoi on July 17.

Weightlifter awarded damages

VINTON, Iowa (AP) — A Vinton youth has been awarded $100,000 in damages as the result of injuries he suffered in a 1981 high school weightlifting accident.

Michael C. Lyons, a sophomore at Washington High School at the time of the accident, fractured a vertebra when he was lifting 265 pounds without adult supervision and fell with the weight on his shoulders, according to court records. He was left with a limp and must walk with a brace.

A Benton County jury on Wednesday ordered the Vinton Community School District to pay Lyons $200,000. However, Lyons was found 50 percent negligent in the accident and the award was cut in half.

Moonshiner suing authorities

MOUNTAIN GROVE, Mo. (AP) — An admitted moonshiner has filed a $7 million lawsuit against authorities who seized his non-working still, claiming they did so to embarrass and humiliate him.

The suit, filed this week by Ron Hofsommer, seeks $1 million in punitive damages from each of seven defendants, including Sheriff Leo Bradshaw and agents of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, Wright County and the city of Mountain Grove.

Hofsommer said that his still was seized and broken up in November, when he pleaded guilty to a moonshining charge. But when authorities put the pieces up for auction, he bought it back and put it on display in his auto repair shop "for sentimental reasons."

Accused murderer gets hearing

PUTNAM, Conn. (AP) — Michael Ross, charged with slaying six young women in Connecticut since 1982, appeared in court with hands chained on Friday to hear a judge schedule a hearing on some of the charges.

Ross, 24, an Ivy League graduate and insurance salesman from Griswold, is charged with 10 counts of capital felony, which carries the death penalty.

Two of the counts pertain to murders allegedly committed in Windham County, and Windham Superior Court Judge Richard Noren on Friday set a probable cause hearing for those counts. An Aug. 6 hearing was set for the eight counts being heard in New London County.

Ross' girlfriend, Debbie A. Wallace, and members of the victims' families attended the five-minute proceeding.

Walesa cheers U.S.' action

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The United States' decision to drop some sanctions against Poland was cheered by Solidarity leader Lech Walesa Friday, but the official Polish government spokesman demanded the lifting of two severe economic restrictions still in effect.

"We demand the lifting of all restrictions without any conditions," the spokesman, Jerzy Urban, said in a prepared statement read to Western correspondents.

Reagan on Friday officially approved a resumption in scientific exchanges with Poland and lifted the prohibition on regularly scheduled flights to the United States by LOT, the Polish national airline. The decision followed the Polish government's recent granting of a general amnesty to hundreds of political prisoners.

But the United States left in force a freeze on new credits, which are crucial to revitalizing Poland's troubled economy, and the suspension of Poland's most-favored-nation trading status with the United States, U.S. Embassy officials said.

The Reagan administration will also continue to oppose Poland's application to the International Monetary Fund. But an administration official who spoke on condition he not be identified said the United States may drop its opposition to Polish IMF membership later.

"The U.S.A. announces the lifting of some less significant restrictions, among them, possibly in the future, opposition to Poland's membership in the IMF (International Monetary Fund)," Urban said. "So it's difficult to expect that this statement will make us start singing Hosanna.

"The Polish government will analyze this U.S. step and will probably answer in proper time," Urban said.

Urban repeated Poland's position that it should be compensated for losses caused by the sanctions, which Polish officials maintain amount to nearly $13 billion.

Solidarity leader Lech Walesa applauded the U.S. action as he left work at the Lenin Shipyard in the Balitc port of Gdansk.

"As a Pole, I am happy," Walesa said in brief remarks to waiting Western reporters.

Contacted later by telephone at his Gdansk apartment, Walesa told The Associated Press that the United States should lift the freeze on new credits, provided the Communist government gives assurances the money is not wasted as in the past.

"As a unionist I still think, and others like me think so, too, that the whole problem is that there is no social control in our country," the 1983 winner of the Nobel Peace prize said. "If the money is not wasted again, we will call it a great step."

The general amnesty approved by the Parliament on July 21 will free 652 political prisoners, in addition to nearly 35,000 common criminals. More than 500 political prisoners have been released so far, according to the latest government figures, but five prominent Solidarity leaders and four of the union's advisers have not yet been released.

U.S. Embassy officials said Friday that once all political prisoners are freed, Poland will have met Reagan's three conditions for lifting the sanctions.

"We've gotten over the conditions now, so as long as there is continued moderation and liberalization here there will be forward movement," said one U.S. official who asked not to be identified.

The conditions were the lifting of martial law, which Poland did in July 1983, the freeing of all political prisoners and the resumption of a dialogue between the government and society. The Reagan administration quietly has dropped an initial demand for the restoration of free trade unions.

Reagan dropped two other sanctions last November in response to the lifting of martial law and the decision to free more than 800 political prisoners last year. The president restored Polish fishing rights in U.S. waters and agreed to permit 88 charter flights between Poland and the United States each year.

Solidarity, the only trade union free of government control in the Soviet bloc, was suspended when martial law was declared in 1981 and later outlawed.

Men caught smuggling precious stones into Egypt

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Police have arrested two Europeans accused of smuggling precious stones valued at $2.4 million into Egypt, a senior police officer said

Col. Alaa Abbas, director of the the Interior Police Ministry's Department for Currency and Smuggling Offenses, said the two men belonged to an "international smuggling ring" with branches posing as legitimate commercial firms in France, West Germany, East Germany and Czechoslovakia.

Israel's president to choose man who will form new government

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — President Chaim Herzog is expected to announce his choice to form Israel's new government early next week, and the country's news media predicted Friday he will choose opposition Labor Party leader Shimon Peres.

Herzog may decide as early as Sunday whether Peres or incumbent Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir will be named prime minister-designate, Israel television and radio said. Politicians' statements after meeting with Herzog made it clear that Peres had greater support, the radio said.

Herzog spokesman Ami Gluska gave no hint in a telephone interview if Herzog would pick Peres or Shamir, but he said Herzog "doesn't intend to delay his decision too long."

Shamir and Peres met for a total of eight hours earlier this week after Herzog persuaded them to try to reach agreement on forming a national unity government. This would break a stalemate resulting from the inconclusive July 23 general election. But the two failed to agree which one should be prime minister.

During the talks, Shamir, the first to call for a national unity government, proposed that whichever party did not get the premiership should fill the defense and foreign affairs ministries. Peres refused to talk about this and instead limited the talks to economic and social issues.

Leaders from the Likud bloc said Herzog should delay his decision until the parties complete their national unity talks, television said.

Labor won 44 seats to Likud's 41 in the 120-seat Knesset, or parliament, but neither was able to patch together a 61-seat majority.

Israel television reported that 60 Knesset members support Peres, while 54 members back Shamir.

The man Herzog chooses will have 21 days to form a government and present it to the Knesset for a vote of confidence.The nominee can ask Herzog for an additional 21 days. But the daily Maariv said that if Peres failed to form a unity government in time, Herzog would probably ask Shamir to try.

Many Israeli commentators forecast national unity coalition talks would fail because both Labor and Likud really preferred to form a narrow coalition without the other.

Gluska said the designated leader was free to form whatever coalition he liked. "It's not (Herzog's) function to dictate whether the government is broader or narrower."

The daily Yediot Aharonot said Peres and Shamir both must try to become prime minister for their own political futures.

Shamir, 68, won and hung onto his leadership of Likud by narrow margins against challenges from Deputy Premier David Levy and former Defense Minister Ariel Sharon.

Peres, 60, has already lost two elections to Likud and could face challenges from former Premier Yitzhak Rabin and former President Yitzhak Navon.

But Maariv said the belief that the one who goes into opposition would be rejected as party leader could encourage the two leaders to join in government together.

The two parties agree their first priority is an economic austerity program to pull Israel back from the edge of national bankruptcy, fueled by a 400 percent annual inflation rate and a $22.7 billion foreign debt.

Mexican congressmen planning to visit China

WORLD

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Chinese Foreign Minister Wu Xuequian and his Mexican hosts pledged to strengthen their relations and annnounced a visit to China later this year by Mexican congressmen.

Wu said Thursday his country supports the Contadora group's efforts to bring peace to Central America, and said he backs Mexico and other Latin American countries' efforts to resolve their crushing $350 billion debt.

"We support the just demands of the developing countries for the industrialized countries to lower their interest rates and improve debt payment conditions," Wu said, in a toast to President Miguel de la Madrid and Foreign Minister Bernardo Sepulveda.

He made the toast during a luncheon offered by Sepulveda, who announced that a Mexican congressional group will be traveling to China "soon."

Sepulveda gave no details on the trip, but said it was part of the efforts by both countries "to strengthen our bonds and build efforts to activate economic, scientific, cultural, educational and economic exchanges."

Before the luncheon, Sepulveda presented Wu with the Order of the Aztec Eagle, the highest award a foreigner can recive from the Mexican government.

The government newspaper El Nacional Thursday quoted Wu as saying on his arrival here Wednesday for a four-day visit that the trip would improve knowledge and understanding between the two nations.

Wu said the Contadora group's positions are the "definitive" steps to solving the problems of Central America. The group — formed by Mexico, Panama, Venezuela and Colombia in January 1983 — calls for a general demilitarization of Central America, including an end of all foreign military intervention.

Wu also planned to visit the National Museum of History and Anthropolgy. He met with President Miguel de la Madrid on Friday.

The visit to Mexico is to be followed by a tour of Venezuela, Brazil and Argentina after departure Saturday. The trip is considered China's most ambitious foray into Latin America in recent years.

The Foreign Ministry has issued a statement saying Mexico and China will try to strengthen diplomatic and commercial ties during Wu's visit.

Mexico and China established diplomatic relations in 1972. Since that time relations have grown steadily stronger, with the signing of treaties for scientific cooperation, cultural exchange and increased commerce, according to the Foreign Ministry statement.

In 1973, then President Luis Echeverria visited China. His successor, Jose Lopez Portillo, made an official trip in 1978. In 1981, Chinese Prime Minister Zhao Ziyang came to Mexico.

Mexico, Venezuela adopt new oil policy

New York Times News Service

MEXICO CITY — Mexico and Venezuela announced Friday that they would suspend shipments of low-priced oil to Central American and Caribbean countries "that initiate warlike actions" against other countries in the region.

The two countries said they were adopting the new policy to provide an incentive for "the preservaton of peace" in the region, as well as "to strengthen democratic and social development."

A spokesman for Mexico's Ministry of Foreign Relations said the new condition would apply only to future actions. It would be up to Mexico and Venezuela, he said, to determine whether a country should be sanctioned.

The condition was a new feature in the renewal of the four-year-old San Jose pact, which is renewed annually. Under the agreement, Mexico and Venezuela provide generous credit terms to 10 Central American and Caribbean countries for the purchase of oil. Essentially, the terms allow for the export of oil to the countries at subsidized prices.

The pact gave no indication of what countries it might consider sanctioning for "warlike actions." Nicaragua has accused Honduras of helping rebels engaged in efforts to topple its government, and El Salvador, Honduras and Costa Rica have accused the Nicaraguan government of backing actions against them.

All four of these countries benefit from the San Jose accord, along with the Dominican Republic, Barbados, Belize, Guatemala, Jamaica and Panama.

The two countries asserted in the pact that the sanctions against aggressive actions were an effort to "take every effort necessary for the complete fulfillment of the Contadora Group."

They did not specify how a decision to apply sanctions would be made.

Heart transplant victim's parents allowed to touch her

LONDON (AP) — The mother and father of the world's youngest heart transplant patient touched their only child Friday for the first time since surgeons gave her a new heart.

Two-week-old Hollie Roffey, who underwent transplant surgery Monday, showed "slight improvement" Friday. But she was still in critical condition after emergency surgery to repair a hole in her bowel, said Paul Haigh, deputy administrator of the National Heart Hospital in London.

The baby's parents Anthony, 26, and Janet, 24, donned surgical gloves Friday morning and reached through portholes in a germ-free incubator to touch their daughter.

The infant, said the hospital's chief administrator, Tom Cosgrove, is "still on the critical list because of... the problem of rejection can occur."

Remains of WWII pilot will be buried today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry Jefferson Miars, whose World War II bomber disappeared into the jungles of New Guinea 40 years ago, will be buried in his home town of Hubbard, Texas, today with full military honors, Pentagon officials said Friday.

The wreckage of Miars' A20 light bomber was found in March 1983, and Miars' remains were identified in June, said Pentagon spokesman Lt. Col. Bruce Beals.

Miars, a second lieutenant in the Army Air Corps, was listed as missing in action on March 13, 1944, Beals said.

Chris Miars of Dallas said in a telephone interview that he was notified by the Army last Thursday that his brother's remains had been found.

"After 40 years, you've kind of laid it aside," he said. "Of course it's still on your mind. It was quite a shock."

Henry Miars, then 27, was the pilot of one of three planes, each with a two-man crew, on a bombing and strafing mission. No trace of the other two planes or the other five men have been found, Miars said.

"I was in the Marine Corps on Guadalcanal not very far from where he came up missing," Miars said. "I had written him a letter the first of March and I got it back about four or five days after the 13th marked MIA."

The Army declared his brother dead in 1946, Miars said.

He said a report given him this week by the Army showed that Henry Miars had checked in with his base by radio at 3:30 in the afternoon, saying the planes could not make it over the mountains because of bad weather and would have to turn back. That was the last that was heard of them.

The wreckage, scattered over about 200 yards, was found by New Guinea natives 13,000 feet up in the mountains, Miars said.

Slick oozes onto shoreline

GALVESTON (AP) — A 75-mile-long slick of gooey oil began oozing onto the Texas shoreline Friday, and scientists and state officials said the thick sludge could devastate environmentally sensitive estuaries, choice fishing grounds and a booming tourist industry.

The oil, which leaked from a British tanker grounded off the Louisiana coast, was expected to hit Galveston Island today.

"Unless there are stong winds, it's going to keep dragging along shore," said Roy Hann, head of Texas A&M University's oil spill assistance team.

Hann said the molasses-like sludge is so thick that it will creep ashore slowly — for weeks or even months — fouling beaches from High Island to as far south as Corpus Christi, about 200 miles away.

The oil slick is following the same path as a 1979 spill that washed ashore from Matagorda to Port Mansfield, he said.

By Friday, the sludge had split into two "arms," with the thickest mass poised only a mile off Galveston Island, Hann said. Balls of tar two to three inches in diameter from the thinner section began showing up Friday morning on Bolivar Peninsula, across Galveston Bay from Galveston.

Crews from the state highway department began building dikes on inlets along the peninsula, and the Coast Guard stretched containment booms across at least five sections of Galveston Bay.

But, Coast Guard officials said, strong currents made it impossible to seal off the entire bay from the snaking strip of oil, which reached a width of more than five miles in some places.

Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox said the state may sue whoever is responsible for the slick, and Gov. Mark White headed for the coast to survey the damage.

Clean-up crews were stationed at Galveston, High Island and Gilchrist on Bolivar Peninsula on Friday, waiting with loads of straw and heavy equipment for the sludge to hit the beaches.

"Ordinarily, we literally skim the sand off using bullozers, tractors or even by hand," said Jim Kosch, a senior U.S. Coast Guard chief in Port Arthur. "The problem is how long it continues to hit."

The slick resulted from a 1.2 million gallon spill, which leaked out of the 609-foot British tanker Alvenus beginning Monday. The owners of the Alvenus have assumed responsibility for the cleanup.

The flow of oil from the ruptured tank finally was staunched on Friday, according to Coast Guard spokesman Dale Puckett.

By Friday, tourists appeared to be avoiding Galveston and the prospect of dirty beaches.

Jack Bushong, director of the Galveston Convention and Visitors Bureau, said hotel and motel reservations were down about 20 percent. Officials feared hotel business might fall off another 15 percent this weekend, he said.

Authorities hunting for suspects in cocaine seizure

HOUSTON (AP) — State authorities hunted Friday for suspects in the largest cocaine seizure in Texas history while federal officials began an investigation to determine where the drug was processed.

More than 900 pounds of cocaine, with an estimated street value of $200 million, were confiscated by Texas Department of Public Safety troopers Thursday on Farm to Market Road 2351 in southeast Houston, said DPS Capt. Jack Curtis.

DPS narcotics investigator Jim Burleyson said Friday he had no suspects in the case, but was "looking at some leads and making phone calls."

Officials with the federal Drug Enforcement Agency sent samples of the cocaine to Dallas on Friday to determine where the drug came from and Burleyson said his office believes the search for suspects could lead to "South America and Mexico.".

Two troopers were making regular drivers license checks Thursday night when they noticed a white van pulled to the side of the road near the checkpoint, Curtis said.

"When they looked back a few minutes later, they found the van was still there and when they went to see, they discovered that the van had been abandoned," Curtis said.

Retton triumphs; America makes gold rush

Silver Streak

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mary Lou Retton scored a perfect "10" on her final routine to win the women's all-around gymnastics gold medal at the Summer Olympics Friday, a day in which people complained the competition was becoming America's Games — and U.S. athletes did their best to prove it.

Retton, 16, from Fairmount, W.Va., needed a 10 on the vault to defeat Romania's Ecaterina Szabo for the gold. She got it, sending the Pauley Pavilion crowd into hysterics and Szabo into tears.

Retton held up her hands to the crowd like a football referee signalling a touchdown.

She was the latest hero in a star-studded field of American athletes, who added seven gold medals to their nation's total Friday and produced the Games' first triple-gold medalists in swimmers Tracy Caulkins and Nancy Hogshead.

West Germany's Michael Gross, perhaps the best swimmer in the world, failed in his bid for a third gold medal. His country was second in the medals race, with 20. but the U.S. swimmers had almost matched that themselves.

Gross has been one of the few non-American stars of the Games, winning the 100-meter butterfly and 200-meter freestyle. And the home-team fervor was beginning to bother some foreign athletes and officials.

Juan Antonio Samaranch, president of the International Olympic Committee, wrote a stern letter to Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee President Peter V. Ueberroth, criticizing ABC's television coverage. Though the text was not available, the LAOOC said Samaranch complained that the coverage was too American oriented and threatened to diminish the international flavor of the Games.

Later, the IOC tempered its criticism. In a news release after Samaranch met with ABC officials, the IOC expressed satisfaction with ABC's "television production of the Games."

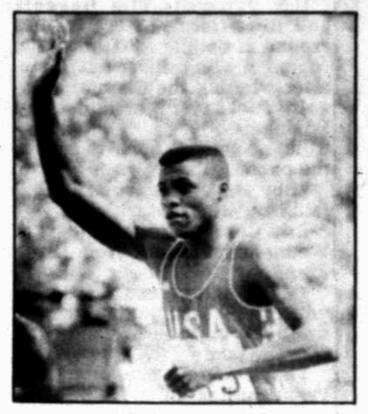
Caulkins, Tiffany Cohen and Rick Carey of the United States each won their second individual gold medals. And the 400-meter medley relay team of Theresa Andrews, Caulkins, Nancy Hogshead and Mary T. Meagher won in 4:08.34.

That gave Caulkins and Hogshead three golds each and made Andrews and Meagher double-gold winners. The team has won 18 golds and 28 total medals, with five more events Saturday.

The U.S. medal total of 50 included 28 gold, 18 silver and four bronze. West Germany was in second place with 20 total medals, five, eight silver and seven bronze, while China was third with 15 total medals and seven gold.

On the opening day of track and field, Carl Lewis and Edwin Moses, cornerstone of the U.S. track and field team, won as expected in their heats — Lewis twice in the 100-meter dash, Moses once in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles to keep his amazing winning streak alive.

Both ran only as fast as necessary before a huge crowd at the 93,514-seat Coliseum.



AP Laserphoto

Carl Lewis

U.S. cyclist Mark Gorski struck gold in the sprint event, and the U.S. equestrian team also won gold.

Gross was favored in his shot at a third gold medal in swimming, but in the final of the 200-meter butterfly, it was unheralded Australian Jon Sieben who won the gold and broke Gross' world record with a time of one minute, 57.04.

Sieben had never swam the distance faster than two minutes prior to the qualifier.

"This morning, I was just looking toward getting a medal, not winning. I was just hoping to do my best," Sieben said.

Shamrocks rip through Hi-Juniors, 21-0

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

The J.I. O'Neil Shamrocks of Midland never gave the heart pulse a chance to rise in the Hi-Junior District playoff baseball tournament at Cubs Stadium Thursday and Friday.

The Shamrocks scooted through the tournament with three straight victories to claim the crown and a berth in the state Hi-Junior tournament next week in Brownwood.

Friday's tournament clincher in the finals against the San Angelo Athletics was much like the rest of the tournament for the Shamrocks. The Midland team erupted for 19 hits and scored a 21-0 victory over the Athletics for the championship.

Baker seeks second City golf title

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

Midland City Golf Tournament defending champion Bill Baker will be chasing his second consecutive title this weekend when he tees off in today's first round of the 36-hole tournament at Hogan Park Golf Course.

Baker, who won the title back in 1973, rebounded from a four-stroke deficit last year, to shoot a 67 in the second round for a two-day total of 138. He finished regulation play tied for first with Grant Spencer and went on to to win the sudden death playoff on the second hole.

This year, Baker will be competing against 27 golfers in the championship flight for city champion honors. A total of 88 golfers have entered the tournament and will be playing in five flights, based on handicap.

From the championship flight, which is set up for zero to five handicappers, several of the higher shooting golfers will be moved to the president's flight after the first day of competition, leaving the leaders to fight for championship honors.

"Having a president's flight will make it more interesting for those golfers who have a bad first round in the championship flight, give them something else to play for on the second day," said HPGC assistant pro Scotty Niemann.

Baker says he doesn't know what handicap he carries. Since "I always play in the championship flight, I've never bothered to join the men's golf association to determine my handicap."

Other handicap breakdowns are as follows: First flight, 6-10; Second flight, 11-14 and third flight, 15 and up.

While Baker feels honored to have won the City title a year ago, he feels it could be an even bigger honor if more of the cities top golfers were to participate in the tournament. Baker is an advocate of a 72-hole tournament instead of the current 36 and wouldn't mind seeing one round played on each course.

For the championship flight players, Baker said, "What I was thinking is that each of the four courses, Ranchland, Green Tree, Midland and Hogan, each have a qualifying round and from that send their top eight players to City. Now, a lot of the top golfers at the three country clubs don't play in the tournament."

Baker named a few of the golfers he knows pretty well that will be playing in the tournament, "Royce Woolard, Harry Bettis, C.E. Boyd, Bill Wampler, Tim Peden, they're all good golfers but there's not one of the top golfers from Ranchland and not a single one from Midland Country Club that I know of playing in the tournament."

The golfers Baker named are on the list that Hogan Park pro Rex Worrell mentioned as favorites for this tournament, adding Baker's name to the list. "There are about 30 golfers in the flight and about 10 or 12 of them are capable of winning it," said Worrell. It should be a good match this year."

Baker and Woolard are the only two past champions to play in this year's city tournament. Baker displaced Woolard as city champ last year in his playoff victory over Spencer.

"Most of the boys who have won this tournament are college players and they grow up and leave."

Well, Baker and Woolard are still here and Baker, for one, would like to match or surpass a feat accomplished by Tom Nesbit in 1968: Winning the title three consecutive years.

As to couse playing conditions, Niemann said and Worrell confirmed, "the course is in great shape. The greens have a lot of grass on them and are in the best shape of the summer right now."

The golfers, with the first foursome teeing off at 8:15 a.m., will be playing holes 10-27 this year.

"The reason we're using 10-27 is because we're re-working the tee boxes on the front nine," said Niemann.

"Unbelievable, fantastic. I never thought it would happen in my lifetime. What comes to mind is Lake Placid. This is certainly equal to that because anyone who knows gymnastics didn't think we could beat the Chinese." — United States men's gymnastic coach Abie Grossfeld after three perfect scores enabled the U.S. to win its first men's Olympic gymnastics gold medal in 80 years.

Did You Know?...

Muhammad Ali, then known as Cassius Clay, won the light-heavyweight gold medal in the 1960 Olympic Games in Rome.

St. Joseph's of Pennsylvania set an NCAA record when eight of its players fouled out in a game in 1976 against Xavier.

The run-up in the Olympic javelin throw is 120 feet and experts estimate it supplies about 25 percent of the throwing power.

Ross calls, Reagan doesn't

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — What good is it to win an Olympic gold medal if you can't call anybody for congratulations?

U.S. gymnasts Tim Daggett and Bart Conner were tooling around in a white ABC limousine, complete with cellular telephone, after winning the Olympic team gold Tuesday night and early Wednesday.

But no one was home to answer the phone.

"Boy, was that frustrating," said Daggett.

But Conner got a telegram Wednesday morning from Diana Ross.

"My daughter and I watched you on TV last night. We just wanted to say we love you," the message said.

There was no greeting from President Reagan.

"Hey, that's right," Daggett said. "We haven't heard from Ron yet."...

Some LAOOC volunteers had an unexpected but welcome addition to their group photograph at the conclusion of the 165-pound weightlifting competition Thursday night.

West Germany's Karl-Heinz Radschinsky, the gold medalist, was lingering near the weightlifting platform where the group had assembled when one of the volunteers beckoned to him to join them.

Radschinsky, breaking into a smile, bounded back onto the platform, positioned himself in the center of the front row and offered his best "cheese."...

The Olympic pool is being kept clean with ozone gas instead of the usual liquid chlorine. The method, tested for four months at the Mission Viejo Swim Complex, seems to help reduce eye irritation.

"It works great," said Mark Schubert, the Mission Viejo coach and an Olympic assistant. "They inject it once in the morning and it works all day. It's like 50 or 100 times more powerful at killing bacteria than chlorine, and there's no residual like with chlorine. Your eyes never hurt after a workout."

Some swimmers, however, still wear goggles for improved visibility...

The Los Angeles Dodgers are on the road during the Olympic baseball demonstration tournament, but there are some reminders of the National League team that normally occupies the third-base dugout at Dodger Stadium.

Italy's uniforms are exactly like the ones the Dodgers wear on the road. They're gray with blue and white trim, and the number on the front of the jersey is red.

But instead of saying Dodgers on the front, the shirts say Italia. Maybe Dodger Manager Tom Lasorda, a well-known Italian-American, helped design them...

America's Cheerleader in Chief plans to meet with the country's Olympic medalists Aug. 13 in Century City.

The Los Angeles Herald-Examienr reported Friday that Reagan plans a private breakfast with winning U.S. athletes at the Century Plaza Hotel the day after the Olympics close.

That would be the first stop on a five-city, six-day post-Olympics tour involving both Summer and Winter Games medalists.

Reagan met with the U.S. team a few hours before the opening ceremonies, urging the athletes to "do it for the Gipper," the dying Notre Dame football player he played in the movie "Knute Rockne — All-American."...

Coke is it at the Olympics.

Through Wednesday, the Coca-Cola Bottling Co. says, it served 9.1 servings of Coke, Diet Coke, Sprite and Tab to athletes, officials and fans at the Olympic venues and Villages.

The company, which began providing Olympic drinks in 1928 at Amsterdam, expects to dish out more than 21 million 7-ounce soft drinks by the time the Los Angeles Games close. In Sarajevo last winter, Coke provided 1.7 million drinks...

All of North Dakota is laying claim to U.S. Olympic boxer Virgil Hill.

Hill, who originally boxed out of Williston, N.D., now lives in Grand Forks. But the people of Williston, about 20 miles from the Montana border, were less than thrilled when the middleweight changed his hometown listing to Grand Forks, a city on the Minnesota line.

Now the middleweight lists his home as Williston-Grand Forks. The towns are at least 350 miles apart...

Three of the U.S. Olympic boxers have relatives who are pros.

Steve McCrory is the younger brother of Milton McCrory; Meldrick Taylor is the younger brother of Myron Taylor. Jerry Page's brother-in-law is Hilmer Kenty.

Banks, Conley get same results; use opposite styles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — They compete for the same country, but Willie Banks and Mike Conley live in different worlds. Sometimes, those worlds collide.

The soft-spoken Conley and the exuberant Banks are America's double threats for the triple jump gold medal in Olympic track and field. Conley lets his feet do the talking. For Banks, that's not enough.

Conley, the new kid on the block, says Banks, who has owned the block, likes to play mind games.

"If you have to psych someone out or do something other than jump far to beat a person, that's a sign of insecurity," said Conley, who jumped 56 feet, 11½ inches on his first try Friday to lead all qualifiers into Saturday's finals. "He may need that, but as far as I'm concerned, I think that psychological advantage will only work on a weak mind and I don't have a weak mind."

Banks, who barely qualified on his last jump with a distance of 54-5¼, acknowledged that Conley was winning the mind games.

"No mind game is going to reach his mind," said Banks, relaxing after his pressure-filled, last-chance leap. "I've tried everything and he seems to go right through it.

"Mind games are fun because that's part of the competition," he added. "At times, it is a measure of insecurity."

Psychological battles "shouldn't happen with teammates," Conley said. "He takes the team spirit out of it when he talks like that."

At 28, Banks is the wily veteran with the wonderful record. In 1981 he was ranked first in the world in the triple jump. In 1980 and 1983 he was second. The UCLA law school graduate is the American record-holder at 57-7½.

Conley, from Chicago and the University of Arkansas, is just 21. Last year, he was ranked fourth in the world in the triple jump. His leap Friday was the second best of his career behind his 57-5 earlier this year.

Conley hasn't jumped competitively for the past three weeks and was worried.

"You don't really know what you're able to do and you may not be sharp," he said. "I had the adrenaline going. I haven't had that feeling in a long time."

Banks said he often has trouble in qualifications but forecast a better performance in the finals.

"This is the apex of my jumping career and I just want this moment (Saturday) to be as wonderful as it could be," he said.

Banks is "the old king of triple jumping but his philosophy is all in the mind," Conley said. "I'm in the crop of the new age . Go out and go for it and don't worry about anything else."

Banks, who said "I like Mike," couldn't afford to worry about anything else after he fouled on his first attempt Friday and came up short on his second.

Blatnick story one of comebacks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — For the gentle giant, a man who could fall to his knees and cry tears of joy, a man inspired by the memory of a brother who died seven years ago, the golden Olympic moment was yet another comeback.

Jeff Blatnick, a hefty 27-year-old pipelayer from Niskayuna, N.Y., had walked away from two serious car accidents and a plane crash. He had survived cancer, operations and radiation treatments only two years ago.

He wasn't even supposed to make the U.S. Olympic team.

But late Thursday night, with his parents joining a standing, cheering throng at the Anaheim Convention Center, he won an Olympic gold medal in the superheavyweight division of Greco-Roman wrestling, fell to his knees, made the sign of the cross and cried.

"I'm a happy dude," he said, tears and sweat covering his face, his voice choking with emotion after he walked off the mat.

"I tried to put the cancer in the past," he said Friday. "The real battle was coming back."

Coming back. Blatnick and his parents did it when his only brother David died in a motorcycle accident in 1977. They did it again in 1982 when the doctors told Blatnick the lumps in his neck meant he had Hodgkin's Disease.

Before the match in which he defeated Thomas Johansson of Sweden, his mother whispered in his ear: "Do it for Dave."

Dave "never got a chance to see me wrestle in the Olympics," Blatnick said. "It was just something where he was an inspiration. I just kept thinking about him in my mind."

He did it for Dave, but he did it also for youngsters watching the Olympics, youngsters "who can do the same thing," he said.

And he did it for his teammates, coaches and friends. "They deserve a piece of this medal," he said. "I wish I could break it up."

Blatnick, who has been an assistant coach at Nebraska and at North Dakota State, most recently has been working for a construction company at Selkirk, N.Y.

The genial 238-pound wrestler, who calls himself a "lover of life," was lifting weights in May 1982 when he first noticed the small lumps. Doctors told Blatnick, already a world class wrestler, that he had cancer. His spleen was removed. He underwent radiation therapy.

His doctors told him to give up wrestling and concentrate on recovery. But he decided that "until I do feel sick, I'm not going to act sick," he said in an interview before the Games began.

Last summer, a year after his disease was diagnosed, he was proclaimed cured and resumed his workouts in earnest.

"I feel very, very healthy, but they say you can't consider yourself definitely in remission for 10 years," he said. "But I can honestly say that days go by now when I don't even think about it."

"Everybody jumps to the conclusion that cancer has to be a killer," he said. "But Hodgkin's is 95 percent curable, medicine has come a long way with it. A positive attitude helps a lot, and I'm telling you without friends you don't get nowhere in this world."

In Greco-Roman wrestling, a contestant cannot use his legs, only his arms, and cannot hold below the waist. It is an event usually dominated by Eastern European countries, many of which joined the Soviet-led boycott of the Games, but that didn't take the shine off the medal for Blatnick.

Their absence "had nothing to do with me making the team and that was an effort in itself," he said.

The Soviets "are good wrestlers, but they're not here. And I did what I had to do."

Harris fills Lewis' shoes by accident

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Danny Harris probably never thought about filling Carl Lewis' shoes. But that's what he did Friday — literally — on the opening day of track and field competition at Los Angeles Olympics.

Harris showed up for the qualifying heat in the 400-meter hurdles, but his coach never brought his shoes.

So Harris, the world junior record-holder and sophomore-to-be at Iowa State University, borrowed Lewis' shoes.

They must have fit, because Harris won his heat in 49.81 seconds.

Meanwhile, Lewis was without his shoes.

Garner Roberts, a press assistant for the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, said Harris had trouble making it back on the track to give Lewis his shoes in time for the latter's second 100-meter heat.

Eventually, he found an official escort, and Lewis got his shoes in time to run the event — in 10.04 seconds, fastest in the competition.

First woman ref survives Olympic test

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The first woman ever to officiate at an Olympic basketball game said she "blew a couple of calls," but quickly added, "I don't know an official alive that doesn't."

Darlene May refereed the South Korea-Australia women's game Friday.

There were no complaints from the coaches of either South Korea or Australia. South Korea won the women's contest 54-48.

"I was satisfied with the job I did and I think I did as good of a job any official could do," said the 43-year-old May, who is the head women's basketball coach at Cal Poly Pomona.

"I don't know an official alive that doesn't blow a few calls. If all I made was two mistakes, I feel pretty good about it."

May, who lives in Placientia, Calif., has been officiating since 1974 and has worked on the international level before, including women's world championships.

Women's basketball became an Olympic sport in 1976.

"I was nervous before the start of the game, but I settled down after my first call," she said.

Ivan Mainini was her partner.

"I was glad to be with him because we had worked together before," May said.

"I hope my being here will open the door for other female officials,' she said. "I see a tremendous difference in foreign and American officiating. I feel I can do as good a job as the men from other countries are doing."

May said she had no aspirations to become a professional referee.

She said she received word on her Olympic assignment Thursday and did not know whether she would work any more games here.

"This is the pinnacle of my career," she said. "I'm hoping in the 1988 Games in Seoul, they'll need a female official and I'd like to do it again."

MHS girls open V-ball tryouts

From Staff Reports

New Midland High volleyball coach Sonja Pittman is ready to inaugurate her coaching career Monday and asks that all girls interested in playing this year report to the MHS gym at 8 a.m. ready to start workouts.

Pittman, a 1981 graduate of Texas Tech and former Monahans student, doesn't have much coaching experience, but says, "I have a stronger playing background."

She says she played in the United States Volleyball Association "off and on for eight years and played for Tech for four years."

Pittman is replacing Linda Jolly who left Midland and is teaching and coaching for Hurst L.D. Bell.

With the volleyball season only a couple of weeks away, Midland High will be holding two-a-day workouts Monday through Friday from 8-11:30 a.m. and 1:30-4:30 p.m. Pittman also asks that those interested in playing bring their physical cards.

Olympic Facts

"Citius, Altius, Fortius," the motto of the Olympic Games, translates to "Faster, Higher, Stronger."

The three-step platform for Olympic medalists with the gold medal winner slightly higher in the center, first was used at the games in Los Angeles in 1932.

The marathon runners in the 1960 Olympics in Rome followed the famous Roman road, the Appian Way, and finished at the Arch of Constantine.

The 1920 Olympics were held in shell-shattered Antwerp, Belgium, less than two years after the end of World War I and only 29 nations competed.

Danny Sartain (3) of the Midland Shamrocks is safe at second as San Angelo's Joe Garza goes up for the high throw. The Shamrocks won the Hi-Junior tournament at Cubs Stadium by a score of 21-0.

JUNIORS

Michael Gonzales tossed a two-hit shutout at the San Angelo team to record the victory, but he didn't have to be that strong to win this one. He KOed nine batters on the way to his victory, giving up meager singles in the first and fourth innings.

Meanwhile, the Shamrock bats rocked the San Angelo boat as Ricky Castaneda, Gary Stanton and Terry Baxter all laced doubles in the contest. In one inning the Shamrocks scored nine times.

In another tournament game, the Shamrocks took a 19-0 win over the Midland Astros. The Shamrocks were the class of this tournament.

San Angelo was probably a very tired team in the finals, however. The Shamrocks only had to play one game Friday while San Angelo was playing for the third time after fighting its way to a 3-2 win over Odessa American Leagion and a 9-2 win over the Astros in loser's bracket games.

The Shamrocks were rewarded for the title by placing eight players on the All-Tournament team. They were Gonzales, Stanton, Castaneda, Scott Smith, Kenny DeLaGarza, Jason Logi, Tuey Rankin and Mike Rittenberry.

Danny Jordan of the Astros was also a tournament pick as well as Roy Torres, Stacy William and Vince Garcia of San Angelo. The Odessa member was Paul Chavez.

Midland will now host the State Senior tournament, beginning Monday at 10 a.m. at Cubs Stadium. Games will run through the day with the last game set for 8 p.m. Tuesday's schedule will be the same, but the tournament will move to the Midland Lee diamond Wednesday for the final day of action. The finals will be at 3 p.m. Wednesday with a second game to follow if needed.

Dodgers defeat Cubs with sound pitching

From Staff Reports

SAN ANTONIO — The Midland Cubs started a brief five-game road trip here Friday night on the wrong foot as they dropped a 4-1 decision to the San Antonio Dodgers.

The Dodgers struck for four runs in the first four innings of play against Doug Potestio and then rested on the pitching of Tim Meeks (12-7) and reliever Bill Skutter, who picked up his second save of the year with 3⅓ innings of no-hit relief.

Cecil Espy led off the Dodger first with his seventh homer of the year off of Potestio and Mariano Duncan hit a two-run blast off Potestio in the second to give the Dodgers an early 3-0 lead. The Dodgers scored again in the fourth when Espy singled home Reyes from second base.

The Cubs, who got only six hits all night, scored in the fifth when Danny Norman singled hom Paul Noce. That was the only inning the Cubs could put hits together as Meeks and Skutter dominated the contest.

The only bright spot for the Cubs was the performance of its bullpen. Jim Beaudreau and David Rosenhaun combined for 4⅓ innings of shutout relief, yielding only three hits over that span. The bullpen is showing some signs of coming around in the last three games.

The Dodgers ended a two-game Cub winning streak with the victory and also put some distance between them and the Cubs in the standings.

OLYMPICS

Gorski and Nelson Vails had been guaranteed gold and silver medals in the first all-American final ever in the cycling event. Gorski, of La Jolla, Calif., won straight heats to take the gold as Vails, of New York, settled for silver.

Gorski's times were 10:49 seconds and 10.45 seconds. Tsutomu Sakamoto of Japan won the bronze

The United States added a silver in the 4,000-team pursuit, giving Americans a unprecedented total of seven medals in cycling.

In Greco-Roman wrestling, American Greg Gibson advanced to the final of the 220-pound division, insuring him a gold or silver medal in the final later Friday.

U.S. equestrian heroics were both team and individual. The team won the gold in the three-day team event, edging the British riding team 186-189.2.

In individual competition, Karen Stives of Dover, Mass., and riding on Ben Arthur, took a silver, second to New Zealand's Mark Tood, riding Charisma.

The U.S. men's basketball team routed the French, 120-62 as Steve Alford had 18 points and Michael Jordan. They have now won four straight, and got an added break when the French benched three starters in a disciplinary move.

Mexico won both the gold and silver in the 20 kilometer walk. Ernesto Canto took the gold in Olympic record time of 1 hour, 23:12.36, then donned a huge blue sombrero as his fans cheered. Raul Gonzalez won the silver.

Australia won the 4,000-meter team pursuit, while the U.S. team of Californians Steve Hegg of Dana Point, Dave Grylls of San Diego, Pat McDonough of Long Beach and Leonard Harvey Nitz of Sacramento took the silver.

American cyclists now have won four gold medals, two silver and one bronze in six cycling events. Before the 1984 Games began, the United States had not won a medal since 1912 in the sport, which has become dominated by the boycotting Eastern-bloc nations.

France won its first gold medal of the Games, when Philippe Heberle finished first in the air rifle competition.

Lewis goes in the 100 finals — his first of four potential gold-medal events — Saturday.

His ran the first heat in 10.32 seconds, then turned on the burner in the second round, blazing to victory in 10.04 seconds. That compares with Calvin Smith's world mark of 9.93.

"Physically, it felt great out there," Lewis said in a statement released through Olympic officials. "I practically walked through the whole race. I knew I could win from the time I left the blocks."

Two other Americans, Ron Brown of Phoenix and Sam Graddy of Atlanta, also won their first-round heats in the men's 100 with impressive runs.

Moses, of Laguna Beach, Calif., was clocked in a relatively slow 49.33 (his world record is 47.02.), but he had no reason to run faster.

"I felt reasonably well," Moses said after winning his 103rd straight race, including 89 finals. "The time is great. I started slowing on the turns. It was a good race considering I had not run competitively in six weeks."

Asked if he saw any way he could lose the final, Moses paused, smiled and answered softly: "No, I can't."

Two other American hurdlers, Danny Harris of Perris, Calif., and Tranel Hawkins of Dayton, Ohio, also won their opening-round heats. Hawkins was timed in 49.51 and Harris in 49.81.

"Edwin Moses hasn't lost in some time," Hawkins said. "But he's human. He can be beat."

Glynis Nunn of Australia, smashed the Olympic record in the women's 100-meter heptathlon hurdles, with a time of 13.02 seconds, beating the previous mark of 13.25.

In triple-jump qualifying, Mike Conley of Chicago leaped 56 feet, 11¼ inches, equalling the fourth-best in the United States.

Tyrell Biggs, the world super heavyweight boxing champion, opened his bid for a gold medal with an easy victory over Isaac Barrientos of Puerto Rico. Pernell "Sweet Pea" Whitaker of Norfolk, Va., also won, Omar Mendez of Nicaragua, 5-0.

He was the 11th American to fight and win. None has lost.

Caulkins, of Nashville, Tenn., won her second gold medal of the Games in the 200-meter individual medley in 2:12.64, breaking her own record of 2:14.47. Michele Richardson, a 15-year-old from Miami, was second in 2:30.73.

BOSTON — Gary Ward led off the 10th inning with a single and scored on a three-base throwing error by Boston third baseman Wade Boggs on Buddy Bell's sacrifice bunt Friday night, lifting the Texas Rangers to a 4-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

The Rangers, 7-13 in their last 20 starts but 5-2 on their current road trip, pulled out the victory against Boston reliever Bob Stanley, 7-7, after the Red Sox' Tony Armas hit his 29th homer, a game-tying two-run shot in the eighth with two out.

Ward began the 10th with a single to center and Bell bunted down the third-base line. Boggs barehanded the ball and threw to first but nobody was covering the bag. The ball rolled into right field, enabling Ward to score and Bell to reach third.

The victory went to Dave Schmidt, 4-4, who replaced starter Danny Darwin and pitched out of a bases-loaded jam in the eighth. After Armas' homer, Mike Easler's single chased Darwin. Bill Buckner greeted Schmidt with a double and Rich Gedman was walked intentionally, loading the bases. Schmidt then struck out pinch-hitter Rick Miller.

The Rangers took a 3-0 lead in the fourth inning after Ward drew a leadoff walk. Bell lined a 3-2 pitch to the wall in left-center for a double, moving Ward to third. On a 3-2 pitch, Larry Parrish looped a double to right, just out of Dwight Evans' reach, Ward scoring and Bell advancing to third. Bell scored as Pete O'Brien grounded out and Jeff Kunkel beat out a topper 10 feet down the third-base line as Parrish scored the third run of the inning.

The Red Sox scored in the fifth when, with two out, Gedman sliced a double off the left-field wall and came home on Marty Barrett's bloop single to shallow right.

American League

Royals 9, Tigers 6

DETROIT — Frank White's grand slam homer highlighted a seven-run fourth inning and Dan Quisenberry earned his 28th save, leading the Kansas City Royals to a 9-6 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Quisenberry shut the Tigers down on two hits after entering the game with one out in the seventh in relief of winner Bret Saberhagen, 5-8, who allowed one run in 1⅔ innings after replacing starter Bud Black.

The Royals sent 11 batters to the plate and collected six hits in the fourth inning. Jorge Orta started the outburst with a single, Darryl Motley was hit by a pitch and a walk to Steve Balboni loasded the bases. White followed with his third career grand slam and his 11th home run of the season, putting Kansas City in front 5-2.

Don Slaught's single chased Detroit starter Milt Wilcox, 11-7, and the Royals continued their assault against Aurelio Lopez. Onix Concepcion got an infield hit and Slaught scored when third baseman Marty Castillo threw the ball away, with Concepcion reaching third. Willie Wilson tripled to make it 7-2 and scored the final run of the inning on George Brett's sacrifice fly.

White Sox 5, Brewers 1

MILWAUKEE — Chicago's Carlton Fisk and Greg Luzinski homered in a three-run third inning and Floyd Bannister checked Milwaukee on six hits and struck out 11, leading the White Sox to a 5-1 victory that saddled the Brewers with their sixth consecutive setback.

Fisk opened the third with his 14th home run, driving a 3-2 pitch from Don Sutton, 10-9, into the left-field stands.Harold Baines followed with a triple before Luzinski hit Sutton's first pitch over the center-field wall for his 11th homer.

Athletics 5, Mariners 3

OAKLAND — Ray Burris, with last-out help from Bill Caudill, stopped Oakland's losing streak at six games by pitching a seven-hitter and the Athletics got all their runs in the first inning to beat the Seattle Mariners 5-3 in the opener of a twi-night doubleheader.

Burris, 10-6, pitched perfect baseball for 4⅔ innings before Dave Henderson doubled.

Bruce Bochte and Mike Heath drove in two runs apiece in Oakland's first-inning outburst off Seattle starter Mike Moore, 5-10, who retired only two batters. Dave Geisel blanked the A's over the final 7⅓ innings.

With one out in the first, Carney Lansford walked, Joe Morgan singled and Dave Kingman walked to load the bases. Lansford was forced at the plate when Dwayne Murphy grounded to first baseman Phelps, but Bochte followed with a two-run bloop single to right.

Heath ripped a two-run double to left, chasing Moore, and Bill Almon singled Heath home.

The Mariners scored their first run in the seventh on a double by Alvin Davis, a single by Ken Phelps and Al Cowens' RBI grounder. Cowens and Dave Henderson singled with two out in the Seattle ninth and scored on Steve Henderson's triple, bringing Caudill on for his 22nd save.

Yankees 9, Indians 0

Joe Cowley, making his second American League start, fired a three-hitter for his first major-league shutout and two-run singles by Dave Winfield, Steve Kemp and Tim Foli highlighted an eight-run sixth inning as the New York Yankees routed the Cleveland Indians 9-0 in the opener of a twi-night doubleheader and then swept the Indians with a 3-2 win in the second game.

Cub miscue gives staggering Montreal 6-5 victory

Associated Press

CHICAGO — Pinch-hitter Max Venable drew a leadoff walk in the ninth inning, went to third on a single by Mike Stenhouse and scored the winning run when the Chicago Cubs failed to convert what would have been an inning-ending double play Friday as the Montreal Expos staggered to a 6-5 victory over the Cubs.

The triumph snapped a three-game Expos losing streak while the National League East-leading Cubs suffered their second loss in the last eight games.

After reliever Tim Stoddard, 7-4, walked Venable, Doug Flynn sacrificed. Stenhouse singled to right as Venable stopped at third while Stenhouse took second on the throw home. Tim Raines was given an intentional walk to fill the bases.

Pinch-hitter Dan Driessen then groudned to second, forcing Raines, but when shortstop Larry Bowa's throw to first was late, Venable scored the winning run. The Cubs had tied the score 5-5 in the eighth off reliever Bob James when Gary Matthews walked, moved to third on a single by Leon Durham and scored on Keith Moreland's double. Reliever Jeff Reardon, 4-4, replaced James and pitched out of a baaes-loaded, no-out situation to earn the victory.

Montreal took a 5-0 lead as Andre Dawson opened the Montreal fourth with a single off Cubs starter Steve Trout and scored on a triple by Tim Wallach, who then scored on a single by Jim Wohlford.

An RBI grounder by Derrel Thomas and Gary Carter's two-run single added three more Expo runs in the fifth.

Montreal starter Bill Gullickson was sailing along until the sixth when Henry Cotto singled and two outs later Durham crashed his 15th home run. Ron Cey led off the seventh with his 16th homer, which knocked out Gullickson and brought in James. James allowed a sacrifice fly to Jody Davis to make tthe score 5-4.

Mets 4, Pirates 1

PITTSBURGH — George Foster belted a two-run homer and Kelvin Chapman and Jerry Martin added solo shots as the New York Mets, behind Walt Terrell's five-hitter, beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-1 to end a seven-game losing streak.

The victory, the Mets' first in exactly a week, halted their longest losing streak since August 1982 and drew them to within a half-game of the first-place Chicago Cubs in the National League East.

Terrell, 9-8, allowed just five singles, and the Pirates' only run was unearned. He struck out five and didn't walked a batter.

The Mets, who lost six games in the standings to the Cubs in seven days, jumped into a 1-0 lead in the first when Chapman drilled his first major league homer.

The Pirates briefly gained a 1-1 tie in the fourth. Left fielder Foster dropped Dale Berra's long fly ball for a two-base error before losing pitcher John Candelaria, 9-8, singled. Marvell Wynne then bounced into a force play, scoring Berra.

Martin's second homer of the season made it 2-0 in the Mets' fifth. An inning later, Chapman doubled before Foster hit a 2-2 pitch over the left field wall for his 14th homer.

The Mets' seven-game losing streak was their longest since Aug. 15-31, 1982, when they lost 15 in a row.

National League

Astros 6, Padres 2

HOUSTON — Nolan Ryan scattered seven hits and Jerry Mumphrey homered and singled and drove in four runs as the Houston Astros defeated the San Diego Padres 6-2.

Ryan, 9-7, struck out four and walked one while winning for only the second time in his last seven decisions. Ryan, who ranks second in the all-time major league strikeout list, increased his career total to 3,808, 13 behind leader Steve Carlton.

Eric Show, 11-7, was the loser, going 5 1-3 innings and giving up four runs on six hits.

Houston took a 2-0 lead in the first. Phil Garner led off with a double and scored on a single by Craig Reynolds. Reynolds moved to third on a single by Denny Walling and scored on Jose Cruz's sacrifice fly.

The Padres made it 2-1 in the third. Kevin McReynolds led off with a single, took second on a single by Show and scored on a base hit by Alan Wiggins.

The Astros added two runs in the sixth after Show hit Garner with a pitch, Reynolds reached on a bunt single and Cruz walked to load the bases. Mumphrey then singled, driving in Garner and Reynolds.

McReynolds slammed his 16th homer of the season in the seventh for San Diego.

Mumphrey responded with a two-run homer in the eighth, his seventh of the season, following a Cruz triple.

Braves 2, Giants 1

ATLANTA — Rufino Linares, pinch-hitting for Glenn Hubbard with one out and the bases loaded in the 11th inning, singled home the winning run as the Atlanta Braves defeated the San Francisco Giants 2-1.

With one out, Gerald Perry doubled and took third on a short single by Brad Komminsk. Greg Minton, 1-8, the third Giants' pitcher, then walked Randy Johnson intentionally to load the bases before Linares hit Minton's first pitch into right field for the game-winner.

Reliever and former Midland Cub Donnie Moore, 2-2, the Braves' third pitcher, was the winner.

The Braves tied the game 1-1 in the eighth inning. Bruce Benedict led off with a single and Albert Hall came into run for him. Hall stole second, took third on Giant catcher Bob Brenly's throwing error and scored one out later on Claudell Washington's single.

Dusty Baker gave the Giants a 1-0 lead in the fifth with an RBI double.

Cardinals 4, Phillies 3

ST. LOUIS — George Hendrick doubled home two runs in the first inning and added a third RBI with a double in the third, powering the St. Louis Cardinals to a 4-3 triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Both of Hendrick's hits came off Jerry Koosman, 12-8. The Phillies, who outhit the Cardinals 13-7, stranded 11 runners against Rick Horton, 6-1, and St. Louis relievers Jeff Lahti and Bruce Sutter, who posted his 28th save.

In collecting his 14th game-winning hit of the year, Hendrick picked on a 1-2 delivery by Koosman for his first-inning double.

Lonnie Smith started the inning by walking on four pitches. Smith stopped at second ou Willie McGee's single, and Hendrick lashed his hit down the foul line in left field after Terry Pendleton grounded into a forceout at second base.

Pendleton's two-out single followed by Hendrick's double made it 3-0 for the Cardinals in the third.

A wild pickoff throw by Horton at first base sent Von Hayes home for the Phillies' first run in the fifth, and Philadelphia scored again in the same inning on John Wockenfuss' RBI single.

Horton left for pinch-hitter Tito Landrum at the start of the Cardinals' fifth. Landrum responded with a triple and later scored the eventual winning run when McGee grounded into a double play.

Sutter came in for Lahti after Ozzie Virgil singled home Sixto Lezcano to make it 4-3 in the Phillies' seventh.

Dodgers 5, Reds 2

CINCINNATI — Mike Marshall drilled a two-run homer and Bob Welch baffled Cincinnati for the second straight time, allowing just two hits over seven innings, as the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Reds 5-2 to end a three-game losing streak.

Welch, 8-11, continued a string of brilliant pitching against the Reds, whom he blanked on two hits in his previous start last Saturday. He allowed just a first-inning single by Ron Oester and a seventh-inning single by Dave Parker, striking out four and walking two before yielding to Tom Niedenfuer.

Niedenfuer gave up a homer to Duane Walker and a sacrifice fly to Gary Redus in the eighth before Ken Howell finished up for his first save.

Cincinnati starter Mario Soto, 11-5, shut out the Dodgers on three hits over the first five innings, but allowed a leadoff single to Ed Amelung in the sixth. One out later Marshall lined his 19th homer, off the facing of the second deck in left field. It was the 17th homer allowed by Soto in 23 games this season.

Singleton ties Classic record

WHEELING, W.Va (AP) — Vicki Singleton, who nearly quit the tour earlier this year, fired a tournament record-tying 6-under-par 66 Friday to take the first round lead in the West Virginia LPGA Classic.

Singleton, a 5-year pro from Oberlin, Ohio, had a no-bogey round with six birdies in the rain-delayed $150,000 tournament at Oglebay Park's Speidel golf course.

Singleton was 1 shot ahead of defending champion Alice Miller, whose first-round 67 included a 6-under 30 on the first nine holes, also a tournament record.

"I've shot 66 before but I had bogeys," said the 27-year old Singleton, who left the tour for six weeks earlier this season. "I just hit the ball off the tee into the greens and made some putts."

Singleton, whose previous best finish was a third, left the tour in April after she "lost all my confidence."

Starting the back nine first, Singleton scored her first birdies on 14 and 15, right after a cold rain halted the tournament for 40 minutes.

Singleton added birdies on the first, second, third and fifth holes and then parred in to hold the lead over Miller. Four other golfers — Lynn Stroney, Cathy Morse, Carolyn Hill and Cynthia Figg — had 3-under par 69s on the 6,100-yard course.

Singleton's 66 tied the tournament record shared previously by Karolyn Kertzman (1975) and Hollis Stacy (1982).

Landry goes with veteran QB

Danny White wins first round

Associated Press

Danny White will start at quarterback when the Dallas Cowboys open their National Football League exhibition season tonight against the Green Bay Packers, but Coach Tom Landry says that doesn't mean White has the edge over Gary Hogeboom in their battle for the job.

White, who became the starter when Roger Staubach retired following the 1979 season, is scheduled to play the first half. Then Hogeboom, his backup for four years, will take over in the first stage of a battle for the job that has already divided both the team and the city of Dallas.

But Landry downplays the significance of the opening game.

"I don't know how important it is for them," he says. "If I would make a decision on a quarterback, it would come sometime down the way. It won't be a play-by-play or game-by-game description."

This weekend marks the first full slate of NFL exhibition contests following Seattle's 38-0 victory over Tampa Bay last Saturday in the annual Hall of Fame game.

In addition to the Cowboy-Packer confrontation Saturday night at Irving, Texas, St. Louis is at Chicago, Atlanta at Minnesota, Philadelphia at Detroit, Houston at Tampa Bay, Indianapolis at Miami, New Orleans at Kansas City, Pittsburgh at Cleveland, Cincinnati at the New York Jets, the Los Angeles Raiders at San Francisco, the Los Angeles Rams at San Diego, Washington at Denver and Buffalo at Seattle.

The Packers-Cowboys game also marks the debut of Forrest Gregg as Green Bay coach, replacing his old Packer teammate, Bart Starr.

Gregg doesn't expect that much Saturday night fromn his team, which is still learning new offensive and defensive systems he has put in place.

"As a team, I think we've made progress but we still have a long way to go," he said. "We're starting to get a feel for out personnel but, in a lot of cases, we can't make decisions on backups. By no stretch of the imagination is it cleaf right now who will be here."

By contrast, the Raiders will put a team on the field against the 49ers not be much different from the one that beat the Redskins 38-9 in the Super Bowl last January. But tight end Todd Christensen is holding out and linebacker Ted Hendricks says he is retiring, and Coach Tom Flores will be taking a look at some young veterans and rookies, including defensive end Sean Jones, the team's top draft choice.

"I don't think you can win by making drastic changes on a team and I don't think you can win by standing still," Flores says. "There has to be a continual evolution that can create the opportunity for success."

Like Dallas, New Orleans will begin on the path to resolving a battle for the quarterback's job, this one a three-way tiff among veteran Ken Stabler, young Dave Wilson and Richard Todd, obtained from the New York Jets during the off season.

Coach Bum Phillips indicated that Stabler wound not see much action against the Chiefs with Wilson and Todd getting most of the playing time. But Phillips said Stabler, 15 pounds lighther coming of arthoscopic surgery on both knees, is "in the best shape he's been in for about five years."

The Falcons will be experimenting in their game at Minnesota, but not with quarterbacks. Radio receivers will be inserted in the helmets of quarterbacks and receivers to overcome crowd noise in the Medtrodome.

They're the idea of Eddie LeBaron, Atlanta's executive vice president and a member of the NFL's competition committee, which has been studying proposals to use the radios to avoid miscommunicating on signals and cadences due to crowd noise.

But Falcons Coach Dan Henning isn't all that enthusiastic about the idea.

"If they want to, we'll put it on in pregame and see if it works," he said. "If it doesn't interfere with our preparation, we may try it."

After six CFL years, Moon debuts in NFL

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The preseason game between Houston and the Tampa Bay Buccaneers Saturday night marks the National Football League debut of Warren Moon, who signed with the Oilers off season after six years in the Canadian Football League.

Moon was courted last winter by a half dozen NFL teams, including the Bucs.

In the past two seasons at Edmonton, he passed for 10,648 yards and 67 touchdowns.

Now he must help revive a team that shared the NFL basement with Tampa with identical 2-14 records last year.

"I'm not so much here trying to prove anything to anybody," Moon said. "The only people I'm trying to prove something to now are my coaches and my teammates. Because those are the guys who are going to be relying on me this season. I want to instill confidence in them that I'm able to do a job," he said.

He reportedly was signed to a five-year contract worth $1.1 million a year.

This also marks the first season for Hugh Campbell as Oilers head coach after a career that established him as the most successful head coach in Canadian Football League history. He had an 81-22-5 record as boss of the Edmonton Eskimos and five consecutive Grey Cup Championships.

With Houston, Moon is reunited with Campbell, his coach on the five champion Eskimo teams.

Moon, and Bucs quarterback Jack Thompson, again are on opposite sides of the field as they were in college when they played for cross-state rivals, Washington and Washington State respectively.

The two squared off against each other as starting quarterbacks twice with Moon's Washington team winning both times — 51-31 in 1976 and 35-15 in 1977.

Despite the Bucs' 38-0 shellacking by Seattle in last week's Hall of Fame Game at Canton, Ohio, coach John McKay says Thompson will start.

Coaches come to grips with eligibility rule

HOUSTON (AP) — Veteran Brownwood High School Coach Gordon Wood, like many coaches attending the Texas High School Coaches Assocation convention, is wary of a new state law that requires athletes to be passing all courses they take to be eligible for competiton.

"If the Lord said the same thing to us that the first sin and you're out, it wouldn't be too good," Wood said Wednesday after hearing from State Rep. Bill Haley, D-Center, chairman of the House Education Committee.

"But that's what this law has done. If a kid is failing one subject, he's out for the rest of the football season."

More than 300 coaches and high school athletic directors attended the session hoping to get specific interpretations to the new law that goes into effect Jan. 1.

Most of the coaches were disappointed.

"This is about the 15th time someone's made out like they are going to explain this to us and we still don't know," said El Paso Coach J. Clay Cox.

Haley told the coaches he could not interpret the law but tried to soothe the angry coaches by telling them they could work to change the law.

"We have a vehicle now but it's a vehicle that has to be worked on every time we meet," Haley said. "We have to be back Jan. 1 (the start of the next legislative session) for some cleanup on this bill. If you sit and do nothing, then you are going to be stuck with it."

The bill requires an athlete, or students involved in other extra-curricular activities, to pass all courses he or she takes and maintain a 70 average or be declared ineligible for six weeks.

The bill also requires coaches to teach four classes per day in addition to their coaching duties and calls for an appointed state board to implement the new law.

"That appointed state board worries me more than anything," Wood said. "I don't think the board will be appointed by the governor, I think it will be done by (H. Ross) Perot."

Perot, a Dallas millionaire businessman, spearheaded an educational reform movement that led to the introduction of the new legislation.

Haley denied that Perot had rammed the bill through his Select Committee On Public Education.

"A lot of people are saying that Perot did it," Haley told a meeting of athletic directors and coaches at the Texas High School Coaches' Association convention. "If you believe that, get a copy of what Perot wrote and the final bill and see who runs the state of Texas."

Haley said the bill was a compromise measure that had some good and bad points.

"What you need to do is make it work," Haley said. "Find out what will work and what won't work and come back to the legislature in January to clean up the job."

Coaches already feel that the academic requirements are too stiff for athletes.

"All athletes are not created equally in the classroom," said Buddy Hopson, athletic director of the Fort Bend Independent School District. "I don't think a kid should be kicked out of athletics if he stubs his toe one time."

Hopson said the new law also could tempt students to take less demanding courses to remain eligible.

Giants rattle Patriots, 48-20

Associated Press

Quarterback Phil Simms tossed three touchdown passes as the New York Giants overcame a 14-point deficit and defeated the New England Patriots 48-20 Friday night in an NFL exhibition opener for both teams.

Pats signal-caller Tony Eason threw for two touchdowns and ran for another as New England built a 20-6 lead in the second quarter.

Cheryl Creson of Pittsburg, Calif., is helped into a pressure suit by project director Barry G. Lastiner of Ten Miles High, a parachute team training at NASA to break Russian high altitude parachute records. The two are part of a group of ten men and ten women training to make the jump the first week of September.

Pioneer skydiver inspires sport parachutists to break world's records

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — A pioneer American skydiver who was imprisoned 50 years ago by the Soviet Union has inspired a team of sport parachutists to attempt a jump from 10 miles high, a feat that would take from the Soviets two cherished world's records.

The American skydivers, 10 men and 10 women, have formed a group called Ten Miles High to try to win the group skydiving records now held by the Soviets.

Group members, who range in age from 24 to 41, plan to jump at 55,000 feet and then free fall for more than 10 miles before opening their parachutes just 2,000 feet above the Earth. The $2 million project would top at least two marks held by Soviet military parachutists.

"We're doing this for our country — and for Victor," said Lynn Fogleman, 33, of Lake Elsinore, Calif., who has made more than 1,600 sport jumps.

Victor Herman, an American, was living in the Soviet Union 50 years ago when he set the first freefall record. The Soviets asked him to renounce his American citizenship. He refused and spent the following 42 years in Soviet jails or isolated in Siberia. He was permitted to leave in 1976, and now lives in Detroit.

"Victor was a fellow skydiver who was wronged," said Fogleman. "The Russians are super competitive in aviation records. We want to take something away that they hold most dear."

"We're doing this as a vindication of Victor Herman," said Steve Parker, 41, a team member from San Clemente, Calif., who has made almost 4,000 jumps. "It's also a challenge and a culmination of lots of years of jumping."

The Soviets hold a team jump record of 48,478 feet for men, and 45,749 feet for women.

The American team plans to smash both records with a daytime jump and then make a second jump in darkness to set a nighttime record.

The individual parachute record belongs to Joseph W. Kittinger, who jumped from 16.04 miles from a balloon in Tularosa, N.M., in 1960, according to the "Guinness Book of World Records."

Ten team members are at the Johnson Space Center near Houston this week to learn how to breathe in the pressurized suits they need for the high-altitude jump. The other team members will undergo the training later.

The jump, set for the first week in September over the El Centro, Calif., Naval Air Station, requires that the team leap from a modified Boeing 720-B jetliner traveling at near the speed of sound into a thin, virtually oxygen-free atmosphere 10 miles above the Earth. Temperatures at that altitude are minus 60 degrees.

Without suits and helmets pressurized with oxygen, the jumpers would be dead in minutes.

After leaving the plane, the skydivers will fall for 3½ minutes, reaching a speed of 350 mph within 10 seconds, slowing slightly as the atmosphere thickens, and then finally opening their chutes.

To certify the record, a barometric pressure device automatically records speeds and altitudes. It will also trigger the automatic opening of a parachute at 1,000 feet should the jumper fail to open it manually at 2,000 feet as planned.

Barry G. Lastinger, 41, project director and a member of the team, said he began planning the jump three years ago. Lastinger, who grew up in Detroit, said he learned about Herman from a lawyer who represented him.

The jump is being financed by private investors, said Lastinge, adding he hopes to recoup some of the costs with a documentary and a feature film being made of the effort.

Despite the competitive edge, the team is also jumping "for fun," said Fogleman.

"There's a great sense of freedom in a skydive," he said. For a few seconds, "you can do anything a bird can do but go back up."

'Stolen' car actually missing

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — When attorney James C. Hawks' car was missing from his parking space last week he reported it stolen. Now he wishes it really had been.

The police department began its investigation. Hawks' insurance company provided him with a rental car.

"I kept expecting it to turn up," Hawks said of his 1977 Mercury Cougar. It did.

Wednesday afternoon, as Hawks was driving his rental car, he found someone else had parked in his parking spot. So he pulled the rental car around the corner to the city municipal lot.

"I pulled in right beside my car," he said. "Suddenly it all came back to me."

According to Hawks, he had parked his car in the city lot on the evening of July 26 — and forgot about it. It had been there ever since.

Have you heard the new definition of a "hyprocrite"? He is an atheist who writes a book on atheism and then prays that it will sell a million copies.

The Bible teaches that a hypocrite is a person who wears a false face. He's really not what he appears to be. That's his problem.

Don't let somebody else's problem keep you out of church. Worship with us at Genius on the way up!

Maybe—and maybe not. Millions of us build our castles only in the sand.

The talents and skills which become evident as we grow up are gifts from God. What we are able to do with them depends on many human factors such as education, opportunity, attitude, aim and perseverance.

God is very much involved in the development of our talents. The Christian training, the spiritual environment of our "budding architect" can influence the way he develops and uses his God-given gifts.

Look around you each time you go to church. You'll see tomorrow's leaders learning from today's leaders to commit their talents to the service of God and man.

Bible history seminar sponsored by church

A Bible history seminar is being sponsored by Faith Alliance Church this weekend. Sessions remaining are from 7 to 9 p.m. today and Sunday.

The seminar covers Bible history, tracing 12 prominent Bible themes from Genesis to Revelation. The 22-point outline includes Messianic prophecies fulfilled by Christ, archaeological comments and insights from the original languages.

Seminar teacher is James J.S. Johnson, an American Bible Society Award scholar.

Outline, notes, charts and time lines are provided. Prepared outlines will be distributed.

No offering will be taken. A nursery will be provided.

Faith Alliance, formerly First Alliance, is located at 1610 W. Wall Ave. For more information call Les McDannell, pastor, at 683-2642.

Church to begin school

First Church of the Nazarene is having its Vacation Bible School Monday through Aug. 12 at the church, 1208 W. Wall Ave., from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m.

This year's theme is "Choices and the Bible." Director is Judy Cummens. The daily schedule provides fun times of crafts and recreation, as well as learning experiences with the Bible.

"The goal of this summer's Vacation Bible School," Ms. Cummens says, "is to help children from preschool age through young teens develop the spiritual dimension of their lives. This will be accomplished through a study of Bible heroes who made choices that pleased God."

For more information call the church, 682-4524.

Church to hold revival

Northeast Baptist Church, County Road 1130 North, is holding a revival featuring evangelist Jerry Ralston at 7 p.m. Sunday through Aug. 12.

The week's events include Senior Citizens Night Sunday, Bring a Friend Night Monday, Young Adult Night Tuesday, Family Night Wednesday, Youth Night Thursday, Youth Fellowship at 9 p.m. Thursday, Sunday School Night Friday, Children's Hot Dog Supper at 6 p.m. Aug. 11, Children's Night Aug. 11 and Covered Dinner on the Grounds at noon Aug. 12.

Music will be provided by Jim Adkins.

Nazarene school to begin

Permian Basin Church of the Nazarene, 2813 W. Loop 250 North, will begin its Vacation Bible School Monday.

The free school is open to boys and girls ages 3 through Grade 6. Classes will meet from 6:30 to 8:45 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Activities will include a balloon launch, free ice cream cones, Bible stories, crafts, singing, puppets and object lessons. All children in the correct age groups are invited to attend.

A program will be presented by the children at 9:45 a.m. Aug. 12.

Church to host dinner

The evangelist department of the San Angelo District will host a spaghetti dinner at 7:30 p.m. today in the Fellowship Hall of the Alexander Temple Church of God in Christ, 200 N. Tyler St.

The Rev. G.J. Samuel, president of the evangelist board, will preside. Guest speaker will be the Rev. W.D. Coble, pastor of the Holy Temple Church of God in Christ, Amarillo.

The public is invited to attend.

Puppeteer show presented

The Fannin Terrace Puppeteers will present a puppet musical "On the Road for Jesus" at 8 p.m. Saturday at Fannin Terrace Baptist Church, corner of Mogford and Fannin streets.

The public is invited to attend.

Little Angels come to town

The Little Angels of Dallas will be at St. Ann's Spiritual Church, 1800 E. Illinois Ave., at 3 p.m. Sunday.

Mother Scott-Williams is pastor of the church. The public is invited to attend.

Sports bring out many 'spirits' at Olympics

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

RELIGION

Sports bring out assorted spiritual dimensions, and the Summer Olympics in Los Angeles are generating their share of them.

The religious element is not just in the stirring rituals and pageantry and the way performances sometimes seem to transcend physical capability — as athletes often note — but in the turnout of religious workers themselves.

They have invaded the place with music, singing, dramas, hospitality, street-corner persuasion and "personal testimonies" of champions.

The efforts vary from blunt to obliging, from accommodating visitors to seeking to sway them.

A "Billboards for Jesus" campaign has placed a reported 605 posters in various languages on buses, declaring: "Peace for the world through Jesus Christ."

On street corners, in shopping malls and in special centers, according to circulated information notices, the religious teams were exercising their various services and skills.

Some of the activities sought directly to instill belief, while others concentrated on meeting special needs of the out-of-towners, ranging from transportation and housing to counseling.

The main religious operation was being coordinated by the Interreligious Council of Southern California in cooperation with the Los Angeles Olympics Organizing Committee.

That official effort involved more than a score of agencies in providing such services as emergency shelter, food, medicine, counseling and a multilingual crisis hotline.

The council, which includes Christians, Jews, Hindus, Moslems and Buddhists, also is providing a pool of 16 chaplains representing major faiths, the only religious personnel allowed inside the Olympic Village sites.

They will do no direct evangelizing, says the council's president, Msgr. William Barry of the Los Angeles Roman Catholic Archdiocese, but rather assist visiting athletes and deal with any personal problems.

"We are to help them in whatever way is appropriate," says one of the chaplains, Southern Baptist Randy Deering. He says this "does not mean that we cannot share our faith if we are sought out for other purposes."

Baptist, United Methodist and Lutheran churches were offering bed-and-breakfast accommodations in homes of church members to visitors at from $20 to $30 a night.

About 80 Christian athletes, including some Olympic contenders, were scheduled to talk about their faith in churches near Olympic events.

A nationally televised evangelistic program, "Three Hours with the stars," was scheduled Aug. 7 from First Baptist Church of Van Nuys, Calif.

Mormons call leader for city's Third Ward

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints has recently created a third congregation or ward in Midland. Called as the leader of Midland Third Ward is Bishop John A. Johnson.

First counselor to Johnson is Clifford Coleman and second counselor is Donald Gregg Howard.

Johnson has lived in Midland for 2½ years and is employed by Superior Oil Company as a petroleum engineer. He and his wife Shirley have three children, Beth, Katie and Andy.

Coleman works as a mechanic for Texaco and his been here for two years. His family consists of his wife Gay and their children Amy and Jared as well as five other children and five grandchildren.

Howard works for Shell Western E and P, Inc., as a materials foreman. He and his wife Bonnie and family Brian, Debra Aaron and Clifford, have lived here for two months.

The creation of a third ward in Midland indicates the growth and strength of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in this area, says Johnson.

Thirty-four years ago, a few members of the church traveled 55 miles to Monahans to meet with fellow church members.

A small congregation (branch) of church members was formed in Midland in 1953. The group met in various places until a chapel was constructed at 1000 Upland St. The branch grew until the members moved into the first phase of a new building at 2101 Tarleton St. As the congregation grew, three new phases were added to the building to accommodate the needs of the church members.

In September of 1979, the Midland Ward, with a membership of 634 members, was divided into Midland First Ward and Midland Second Ward. Less than five years later, on June 17, in a joint meeting of the two Midland wards, the division was announced to form Midland Third Ward.

Kenneth H. Gray serves as bishop of Midland First Ward and Lloyd A. Hales serves as bishop of Midland Second Ward.

Midland Third Ward meets for Sacramental Meeting at 10:30 a.m. Sundays with Sunday School and other meetings following directly thereafter. The public is invited to attend any of the services.

St. Luke's Methodist to host 'Cotton Patch'

The Indiana Central University Theatre from Indianapolis will present the greatest story every retold, "Cotton Patch Gospel," a full-length musical at St. Luke's United Methodist Church, 3011 W. Kansas Ave., at 7 p.m. Aug. 6.

This up-to-date bluegrass version of the Gospel was written by Tom Key and Russell Treyz with music and lyrics by the late Harry Chapin.

The setting is the state of Georgia. In this production, Jesus is born in Gainesville and later in his life goes to Atlanta where people are gathering for a big "Bible Meeting."

Christian publications have said of the musical:

— Contemporary Christian Music, "A dream come true. A breath of fresh air. Something good is happening. It takes the Bible's passionate intensity and directness for contemporary meaning into the popular vein without diluting it."

— Episcopalian, "Powerful drama and a joyous celebration. This musical succeeds mightly."

— American Baptist Standard, "The show offers a vivid witness. This is the Gospel."

— The Long Island Catholic, "Entertaining and inspiring, it will lift your spirts and renew your hope."

The musical is adapted from "The Cotton Patch Version of Matthew and John," with some stories from Luke, by the late Clarence Jordan. The Indiana Central University players is the first amateur group to receive the rights to take the play on a national tour.

"Cotton Patch Gospel" is directed by the Rev. Richard A. Williams, theater director at ICU and an ordained minister in the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ). Williams has emphasized a ministry of drama during his 17 years at the university. Sue Conway, a graduate of ICU and organist at Southport Christian Church, Indianapolis, is the musical director.

A free-will offering will be taken to help defray expenses. For more information call St. Luke's UMC, 694-2571.

Grace Lutheran Church to focus on Christian family during school

The Christian family will be the emphasis of Grace Lutheran Church's second annual Family Vacation Bible School, being held at 6:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The theme will be "Share the Good News" and it features a Share Fair. Classes are offered for everyone, infant through senior citizen. The topics for the adult classes will be "You Are My Witness" and "Communication: Key to Your Marriage."

The Share Fair program will open with puppets each night. It will also feature Good News Gates, Grace Grandstand, Hall of Faith, First Fruits Stand, Blessing Booth and Tent of Thanks.

The week will climax with a Good News Celebration on the church lawn at 7:30 p.m. Friday. The Puppet Ministry will present "David, The Chosen One."

Coordinator for the Family Vacation school is Mrs. Del Daeling. She is assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Larry Risley, Mrs. Ted Fitting, Mrs. Art Stevenson, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Schneider and Sam Flores. Song leaders are Mrs. Gordon Schrank and Mrs. Ron Sullivan.

Registration is open to the public and pre-enrollment may be made by calling the church, 697-3221. The church is located at 3000 W. Golf Course Road.

Women commemorate 'irregular' priesthood

By JANE SEAGRAVE
Associated Press Writer

Ten years ago last Sunday, 11 women cloaked in white robes forced their way into an institution that for centuries was reserved for men in black.

The "irregular" ordination of the first women Episcopal priests on July 29, 1974, was planned as a secret ceremony for a small group of women determined to take their rightful place at the altar.

After opponents threatened to expose their act of defiance, the women, who ranged in age from 27 to 79, sought their own publicity.

On a sweltering summer day, 2,000 people filled the Church of the Advocate in Philadelphia for what became a rallying point for women committed to cracking the male hold on a highly traditional faith.

It took more than two years before the Episcopal Church grudgingly accepted the ordination and women were officially allowed into the clerical ranks.

In the past eight years, about 500 more women have been ordained priests, but women still account for only about 5 percent of Episcopal Church clergy. Although women have been eligible to become bishops since 1977, none has been elected.

Janet Vetter, deputy news director for the 3.1 million-member Protestant Episcopal Church, which has its headquarters in New York, said no church-sanctioned services are planned to mark the 10th anniversary of the controversial ordination.

"It's not a deliberate slight," she said. "(The ordination) wasn't an official act of the church and it isn't being recognized as an official act."

Rabbis seek ban

GROSSINGER, N.Y. (AP) — Reform rabbis have called for a treaty to ban weapons in space, an issue on which the United States and the Soviet Union have been fencing in regard to possible negotiations this fall.

The annual convention of the Central Conference of America Rabbis also urged a bilateral nuclear freeze, a moratorium on deloying first-strike nuclear weapons and a delay in further United States deployment in Europe of cruise and Pershing 2 missiles.

Calling on the two superpowers "to move from their current posture of confrontation and invective to good faith negotiations," the rabbis said progress in arms control can succeed only with "increased mutual understanding and trust."

'Born-again' Dylan receives welcome in European tour

Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

WEST BERLIN — Bob Dylan has gone in less than a decade from the most acclaimed figure in American rock to the most controversial. Reviewers have mocked him and admirers have written him off.

Many of his fans from the '60s were confused in the late '70s when Dylan embraced born-again Christianity in his "Slow Train Coming" and "Saved" albums.

Dylan, who played to enthusiastic audiences in sold-out arenas during his 1974 reunion tour with the Band, saw empty seats in 2,500-capacity halls during his 1979 gospel tour. Some even booed. Dylan has kept a low U.S. concert profile since then.

But there was no trace of hostility in Europe. His summer tour, with Santana as opening act, has attracted up to 70,000 fans.

The audience cheered most for Dylan's classic tunes, including "Blowin' in the Wind" and "Like a Rolling Stone." But they also listened politely to the new ones.

Dylan, who was raised as a Jew, has avoided defining his current religious beliefs. There are signs he has returned to Judaism, although at least one person close to him insists that he has simply taken a lower "born-again" profile.

FANS HERE SPOKE OF Dylan as a philosopher and poet, an artist worthy of respect and attention even if he never makes another album. One scholarly looking man mentioned Picasso and Hemingway in describing Dylan.

Despite all this affection, Dylan seemed as independent as ever at the outdoor Waldbuhne amphitheater here. There is such a maverick edge to him that it is hard to tell whether he is oblivious to the audience or governed by an almost perverse stubbornness.

Musicians who have known the Minnesota-born singer from his early New York folk-club days differ on his emotional makeup. Some say that he loves to manipulate people and plots every step. Others say that Dylan is shy and spontaneous and goes instinctively from situation to situation, and that all the contradictions in his personality reflect his various sides.

In his hotel suite after the Waldbuhne concert, Dylan said that he has learned to adjust to the highs and lows of his career.

"The reaction on the U.S. 'Slow Train' tour was disheartening at times," he said. "But it doesn't wound you because you get used to the ups and downs. You get to where the praise doesn't mean anything because it's often for the wrong reason, and it's the same with the criticism.

"BESIDES, I DON'T think I'll be perceived properly till 100 years after I'm gone. I really believe that. I don't think anybody has really even caught on to 'Blonde on Blonde' yet."

Dylan's pop-rock unorthodoxy reached humorous levels during the European tour. Consider this dispatch by London Express writer Garth Pearce, who opened his coverage of the tour by saying that the shows could best be described as "unpredictable."

He wrote: "In Verona, Italian National Television was there to record just one song, 'Blowin' in the Wind,' for a news program ... and Dylan forgot to sing it.

"But a few nights later, in Rotterdam, he not only delivered the song, but surprised everybody by dividing the audience into two and urging them to sing along to the chorus."

Pearce also described the confusion around the offstage Dylan. "Executives of the giant record company CBS have yet to meet their star," he wrote from Brussels. "They suffer from the ignominy of never knowing where he is.

"This is because Dylan refuses to stay in any of the lavish, well-protected hotels that have been selected in advance for the tour. ...

"When promoters finally persuaded Dylan to make a brief appearance before television cameras and the press in Germany, he spent most of the time giggling or uttering monosyllabic answers."

DYLAN DOES MOVE AT his own speed. He guards his privacy and mistrusts the media. He can be cold and elusive during interviews.

But he is also capable, when relaxed, of exhibiting the insight and warmth that have characterized his most memorable songs.

In discussing his new, well-received and generally secular "Infidels" album last October in Los Angeles, Dylan appeared unusually open. In West Berlin, he was equally engaging. Without a new album to talk about, the conversation centered on his musical development.

Backstage at the Waldbuhne, Dylan paced nervously and said that he has heard more heart and passion from New Orleans street singers than from today's record makers.

In the more comfortable hotel setting, Dylan softened his tone. He admitted enjoying Bruce Springsteen's "Nebraska" album and praised the Clash and U2. He would like to record with Willie Nelson. Mostly, though, Dylan is discouraged by the mechanical anonymity of British synthesizer groups and the commercialism of U.S. acts. He misses the raw roots music — blues, country and folk — that inspired him and formed '50s-'60s rock.

"We're constantly being bombarded by insulting and humiliating music, which people are making for you the way they make those Wonder Bread products," said Dylan, strumming a guitar.

"Just as food can be bad for your system, music can be bad for your spiritual and emotional feelings. It might taste good or clever, but in the long run it's not going to do anything for you. Haven't you ever been in your car and turned on the radio and you just couldn't find anything?"

DYLAN BELIEVES THAT music is therapeutic.

"It puts you in tune with your own existence," he said. "Sometimes you really don't know how you feel, but really good music can define how you feel. It can make you feel not so much alone. That's what it has always done for me, people like Hank Williams, Bill Monroe, Muddy Waters, Robert Johnson. ... I'm afraid roots music is going to be obsolete the way we're going. I hope people go back to it. But most people who make records don't care about feeling. They just want success."

But wasn't Dylan also after success when he left Hibbing, Minn., to become the next Elvis Presley?

"Sure you want success, but there really wasn't that much to be had in those days. The business wasn't so big. I never wanted to be as big as Elvis — I read that somewhere, but I never said that. I never would have dreamed that. When I left home, I was off to see the world; I was caught up in the excitement of it all. I wasn't so much after success, but after excitement.

Can TV sports rights fee be kept in line?

NEW YORK (AP) — The president of CBS Sports is pulling for ABC's Olympics to do well, while also trying to sabotage the ratings with counterprogramming.

"As a sports enthusiast, I'd like to see the Olympics do well," said Neal Pilson, "but, from a competitive point of view, our plans are to counterprogram with auto racing, golf, tennis — events that differ from the Olympics."

Pilson is doing what any red-blooded network executive would do, but it's these very same competitive instincts that could undercut his recent warning to sports organizations not to expect "ever-increasing rights fees."

At a news conference, Pilson said:

"We have a very real concern that major sports packages may build their economic model for the future with the expectation that network television sports will continue to fund the enterprise through the payment of rights fees escalating far beyond potential audience or advertiser revenue growth. ...

"We are giving fair notice to all sports enterprises not to create an overdependence on network television financing."

Pilson's words might really stick if ABC and NBC agreed to them, but that form of collaboration is a violation of the antitrust laws.

And the networks have a history of paying for winners.

Just because CBS walked away from the 1988 Calgary Olympics at $260 million didn't stop NBC's bid of $304 million and ABC's winning the sweepstakes at $309 million.

Just because CBS wasn't interested in a three-way split of baseball didn't stop ABC and NBC from dividing the package and paying $500 million each.

Many sports executives said that a $1 billion TV package for the NFL was preposterous. They were right. The three networks ended up paying $2.1 billion for five years.

The point here is that Pilson's threat is meant for certain small- and middle-size sports events and leagues — auto racing, some tennis tournaments, soccer and pro basketball, which has fewer games on CBS now than three years ago and is operating more efficiently and successfully.

It's also meant to appeal to CBS' cost-conscious stockholders and Wall Street.

It's not meant, for example, for the New York Racing Association. Even though CBS loses money on its racing package, it's not going to surrender the Belmont and risk giving ABC the Triple Crown.

It's not meant for the U.S. Tennis Open, which attracts the right advertisers and gives CBS a great chance to promote its new season offerings.

And it's certainly not meant for the Nationa! Football League.

"Pilson is a guy who doesn't have any major negotiations coming up," said Barry Frank, former head of CBS Sports and now vice president of the sports packaging and negotiating firm Trans World International. "He's in a perfect position to talk that way now, but what's he going to do when he has to bid for the NFL again? Let CBS lose it?

"I sat on the same side of the desk," Frank said in an interview in Newsday. "I don't begrudge what Pilson says because I would say the same thing. But let's see what happens when the crunch comes. The U.S. Open Tennis and the NFL are the things he really wants.

"We'll see if he sits back and lets them get away."

Pilson is backing up his words in some selected areas. He negotiated a lower payment on the Cotton Bowl because CBS, which loses money on that game, was willing to end the relationship. Pilson also could play tough knowing that ABC and NBC didn't want it either.

If the minor sports demand too much, Pilson seems willing to cut them loose. "The networks can turn to other sports that are more economical," he said.

So where do the 1988 Summer Olympics in Seoul, South Korea, fit? Are they expendable because of the time-zone and potential political problems? Or are they top priority, particularly now that the Los Angeles Olympics ratings are doing well?

After the ratings disappointment of the Sarajevo Olympics last winter, Frank, who is arranging the bidding for the Seoul organizers, decided that network negotiating on Seoul should wait until after the Summer Games.

Pilson says CBS will be there, but not at unreasonable terms.

"If we allow our business to become less efficient," he said, "we won't be managing our business."

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Actress Loni Anderson, director John Huston, "Night Court's" Selma Diamond, Detroit Tigers pitcher Dave Rozema and football's Roman Gabriel celebrate birthdays today. Also born on this date: poet Conrad Aiken and actor Robert Taylor. This is no time to sit back and take things easy. Do the very best you can in everything you undertake. Romance is filled with adventures. An existing love relationship becomes more intense. A desire to settle down changes your views. Do not let a casual fling jeopardize your chances for lasting happiness. Loyalty is very important to that special someone. A temporary sacrifice brings greater financial security.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Express your feelings, but do not come down hard on a loved one who disagrees. You need to be more active physically. Be sure you get full value when making a major purchase.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Be generous. Anyone can make a mistake. Compassion is a valuable asset now. Call a friend or family member overseas; you gain valuable insights or information.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Getting more education is the key to greater success. Family members applaud your decision. The sparks begin to fly as romance heats up. Be careful not to eat too many sweets this weekend.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Try not to be too critical of others today. You need family support for a new undertaking. A deep sense of responsibility helps you make all the right moves at a family gathering.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Get out in the fresh air today. You benefit from a change of scenery. This is no time to stand on ceremony with a family member. Make amends. A financial windfall is possible.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): No one but you has the insight to make a family decision. You may have to go against the odds to do the right thing. Follow your intuition. Give romance more time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A family crisis can be averted. Show self-confidence and the others will feel reassured. Faith is the key to success. Romance is closely linked to a social event. Foreign travel is favored.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A vacation idea suits you to a "T." Make your reservations now to avoid being disappointed. An adventure involving the water leads you to new romance. Children are more receptive to advice now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You get secret support in a family matter from an unexpected quarter. Investigative work turns up valuable information. Good news arrives from those at a distance. A romance is just beginning.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An older family member shares good news. A long-standing disagreement is finally resolved. You feel special satisfaction at the outcome. A surprise gift boosts your spirits. Self-reliance pays off handsomely.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): New rapport between family members sets the stage for a wonderful day. You need to relax and recharge your batteries for the busy week ahead. Romance leads you on a merry chase!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You are feeling much better about yourself. Be sensitive when pursuing a personal goal. There is no way you can meet everyone's every expectation. Set your own timetable and priorities. Romance sizzles.
