Carriers Urge Strikers to Return to Jobs; Sunday Sees No New Developments; Signalmen Meet Heads for Conference; Will Ask Prevention of Strike Orders

By Associated Press.

HOUSTON, July 9.—All trains on the International & Great Northern branch from Georgetown to Round Rock, Texas, were suspended today because of the shop crafts strike, according to a message from Georgetown. About 30 men are affected by the tie-up.

CHICAGO, July 9.—With soldiers on active duty in Illinois and troops mobilized in five other states, railroads prepared to resume active operation of their shops tomorrow.

B. M. Jewell, head of the railway employes department of the American Federation of Labor, had nothing to say at strike headquarters here and no news was forthcoming from either the carriers or the United States railroad labor board.

Action Today

While the Sunday holiday was uneventful, the rest of the week was fraught with possibilities. Tomorrow members of the labor board who averted a strike of 400,000 maintenance of way men and 14,000 signal men through negotiations with union officials last week, were expected to confer with E. H. Fitzgerald, head of the clerk's union, in an effort to prevent the issuance of strike orders to this organization. Confidence was expressed here that the clerks would follow the example set by the maintenance of way employes and signalmen.

With the carriers urging striking employes to return to work at once preparations were practically complete tonight on a score of lines to attempt to resume active shopwork tomorrow.

Vacancies in the ranks, according to the railroads, will be filled by the hiring of new men. Realizing the possibility for trouble with such a program some of the railroads have asked for soldiers to protect their shops, while others expected to afford private protection to those who worked.

While the railroads predicted that many strikers would flock back to work when assured that protection would be afforded, union headquarters here has maintained that the strike is daily becoming more effective.

The week was also expected to reveal the attitude of the department of justice toward the strike.

From Washington came the announcement that the department was investigating reports that strike orders were interfering with the mails and that Charles Clines, United

Tax Free Securities—
Mayfield Raps Them—
The Land Banks Case—
They Help Farmers—

THERE are candidates for the senate and railroad commissioner. Earl B. Mayfield is one of the number who are advocating an amendment to the federal constitution prohibiting the issuance of tax free securities. They say that there are 14 billions of these tax free securities held by the wealthy investors of America. They say that these securities are bought up eagerly by the men of millions.

This may be true but there are two sides to the tax free securities. A democratic administration gave to the people the federal land banks and these federal land banks loan cheap money to the farmers of America or those who wish to become farmers. Texas has an army of white tenants. Fifty per cent of the farms of Texas are worked by tenants.

Federal land banks were instituted to give the tenant a chance to become a land owner. They were instituted to bring together the landless man and the manless land. They were instituted to at least minimize the evils of tenancy the republic over. There are thousands of farmers in Texas who have become land owners since the establishment of these banks. They were given 6 per cent money.

They availed themselves of the opportunity to evolute from a tenant into a land owner. Federal land banks to obtain this cheap money must sell cheap bonds. They are made cheap because they are non-taxable bonds. They are bought up by eastern investors, men who do not look for a large income or dividend in the money they invest. These federal land bank bonds find a ready market in the east. They do not find a ready market in the south or west.

CAPITALISTS in these sections expect eight to 10 per cent returns when they loan their money. Joint stock land bonds are non-taxable. They serve the same purpose.

They enable tenants or small farmers to obtain a foothold and create homes for those who are dependent upon them. They turn the tenant into a land owner. They build up waste places. They turn idle land into productive land. They add to the taxable value of county and state. They make two stalks of corn grow where rank grasses grew before. They make cotton rows where rank weeds grew before. All municipal bonds are tax free, all road district bonds, all school house bonds and all county bonds are tax exempt.

An amendment prohibiting tax free bonds would make all the builders of a community or commonwealth pay at least 8 per cent interest on the bonds which they issued for development purposes instead of the low rate in interest they are paying today. All farmers are interested in the federal land banks and in the joint stock land banks. They are interested for the reason that since the coming of these banks they have been able to borrow at a low rate on interest where before the coming of these banks, they were compelled to pay a high rate of interest whenever they were able to borrow the money.

MODERN roads are necessary. Isn't it helpful for the farmers who build the roads to pay a low rate of interest on their road bonds? School houses are necessary in the rural district.

Isn't a cheap interest bearing bond helpful to the farmer who is willing to tax himself to build a modern school house. There are many arguments for tax exempt bonds. There are many reasons why the federal land bank should not be destroyed. There are manyetaoinshrdluetaoinoin

Bolt In Switch Throws Passenger Off Track

TOPEKA, Kan., July 9.—The Golden State Limited, westbound, a Rock Island passenger train, left the track here at noon today just as it was leaving the Union Pacific tracks to cross the Rock Island bridge over the Kansas river. The engine, mail car, baggage car and the front trucks of a third car left the track but did not turn over. The track was torn up for some distance. The only injury was to Willis Sage, Kansas City, Mo., fireman, who jumped from the cab and sprained his ankle.

An investigation disclosed, according to officials, that a bolt was in the switch where the train left the track.

They pointed out, however, that it might easily be a bolt from the wrecked engine and did not necessarily imply malicious intent.

REDS READY TO SELL OUT

Highest Bidder to Get Concessions

By Associated Press.

THE HAGUE, July 9.—The experts conference on Russian problems has held on through a great crisis but it is not yet considered out of danger.

The danger arises from the attitude of the Russian delegation towards restitution of confiscated property and prominent European representatives frankly declared today that unless the soviet made many concessions from their intransigent policy announced Friday it would be quite useless to continue the conference.

The English delegation remains doggedly optimistic; it believes that a suitable compromise will be found on the vital problem of the property of foreigners in Russia. The Italians are also hopeful. The pessimistic groups think that the Russians do not care whether the conference succeeds or collapses.

"Russia's plan for restitution is not restitution at all," said one gloomy delegate today. "The bolshewiki have no intention to restore property, but plainly indicate that they will distribute concessions, including expropriated property, to the concessions hunters, who have the most money. If the former owner happens to have funds to develop his factories or mines he has a good chance of getting them back; otherwise, no."

That, indeed, is the bolshevik decision outlined on Friday by Maxim Litvinoff, Russia's chief delegate, but Leonid Krassin, who cleverly negotiated trade agreement with England and who is quietly coming forward as a figure of conciliation, has furnished hope that a way will be found to reach a compromise between unacceptable boshevik confiscation and the equally determined European demand for out and out restoration.

Edward Barrett Dies

By Associated Press.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 9.—Edward W. Barrett, editor and proprietor of the Birmingham Age Herald died suddenly tonight of heart failure at the Roebuck Country club.

Mr. Barrett had complained for several days of not feeling well. However, this evening he accepted an invitation for himself and Mrs. Barrett to a dinner party at the Roebuck club. It was while surrounded by a group of friends there that he suddenly expired.

$100,000 Saving in Retention Dam By Discovery of Huge Gravel Pit

Special to the Record News.

ELECTRA, July 9.—A saving of more than $100,000 in construction cost will be effected as a result of finding a gravel pit almost in the exact center of the survey for the retention dam across the big Wichita river, according to engineers in charge. Plans had been made to ship gravel by rail to Mabelle, and then haul it some seven miles to the dam site.

The immense gravel bed was uncovered while making borings to test for a base on which to rest the dam and is buried some two feet underneath the soil. On casual observation, the formation looks like a mass of conglomorate and seems to be solid rock. Closer examination reveals the fact that it is almost pure gravel. Laboratory tests show that it is of high quality for concrete work.

The gravel is broken up by blasting and an enormous steam shovel picks up a cubic yard at a reach and dumps it into the endless train of gravel wagons that haul it out of the workers on the dam. It is piled in a small mountain and later transported to various parts of the structure where concrete is being poured.

A roadway of gravel 12 inches thick and 25 feet wide is being placed on top of the dam, which will be more than a mile long and 600 feet through at the base in its main part. The lake will contain 20 odd thousand acres of water, having an average depth of 25 feet.

Troops Asked To Protect Memphis Line

By Associated Press.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 9.—Governor Alf Taylor tonight received a telegram from K. K. Kurn, president of the Frisco lines, with headquarters at St. Louis asking that state troops be sent immediately to Memphis to protect the properties of employes of his company at that place.

Governor Taylor after communicating with Mayor Payne of Memphis and the sheriff of Shelby county, who said they could handle the situation, declined to order troops to Memphis. Both of them claimed there is no reason for alarm, although admitting that several minor disorders between the strikers and the railway employes had occurred during the day.

COAL CUT IN PITT FIELDS

Serious Attempt to Break Strike

By Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, July 9.—Coal was being cut yesterday in two important pits in the Pittsburgh bituminous district; the first serious attempt on the part of the Pittsburgh coal producers association to break the strike which for 14 weeks has kept idle every union mine in the region. Deputy sheriffs were on guard, and there was no semblance of disorder.

Railroad switches have been filled with empty cars and it was stated at the mines shipments are expected to begin about the middle of the week.

The strikers reiterate that the men had no intention whatever of going to work, and if the company expected to operate the mine before an agreement was made with the union it would have to bring in the workers.

Arrangements are being made to place a number of other Washington county mines in operation, it was learned.

GERMANS ACT TO SKIP DEBT

Heads Sent to Take Up Payment

By Associated Press.

BERLIN, July 9.—The German government has started an action which may result in absolving Germany from meeting the payment of 50,000,000 gold marks required by the allies on July 15, in sending Dr. Fischer, chairman of the German war debt commission and Herr Schroeder, under-secretary of the ministry of finance, to Paris to confer with the reparations commission on the question of readjusting the present scredule of gold payments.

Although this move is considered a temporary expedient with the prime purpose of influencing the deliberations at Paris, official financial circles would welcome this revision as indicating a general solution of the present schedule of gold payments which Chancellor Wirth has decided Germany is in no position to carry out, particularly since the recent collapse of German exchange.

Delivery Possible.

Officially it was stated that the Reichsbank was technically in a position to deliver 50,000 gold marks next week, but that their release from bank vaults would "badly expose" the institution whose officials believe that this available gold fund shall be devoted to steadying the mark at home and abroad.

The mission undertaken by Dr. Fischer and Herr Schroeder at the instigation of the government will be carried out in the hope of sustaining the reichbanks position. The mission will consider the revision of the dates for further gold payments. Any formal request for an exact moratorium will depend upon the nature of the foor parleys at Paris and the attitude of the reparations commission.

Question Acute.

Bank officers believe that the progress which has marked the delegations at Berlin in the last few weeks has contributed materially to encourage the German government to approach the reparations commission at a time when marks are selling for less than five for one cent.

"The question 'can Germany pay'" has now become fundamentally acute," said one prominent official who believes that the situation has simmered to a question of adopting financial policies which affect the allies and German alike.

JOLLY YOUTH SHOT DOWN IN LONELY FIELD

Mrs. G. A. Fuller Is Left to Die From Her Wounds

One man dead with two bullet holes in his breast, a woman beaten to insensibility, her clothes torn almost from her body then bound, gaged and left in a pasture to die, is the work accomplished on Saturday night by a lone highwayman just two miles beyond Jolly on the Henrietta road.

The dead man is Ed Pheland, age 20, of Jolly and the woman who now is in Call Field hospital is Mrs. G. A. Fuller, age 20, who resides in East Wichita Falls.

After recovering consciousness in the lonely pasture, Mrs. Fuller succeeded in loosening the gag around her mouth and the rags that held her hands and feet, then crawled several hundred yards to the road where she fell unconscious in a ditch and was picked up by tourists en route from Dallas to Colorado just after noon Sunday.

Body Bruised.

Three deep gashes were in the woman's head, her body was bruised and bleeding and her hands and feet were blistered where she had crawled through the weeds and grass to the roadside.

The case which is one of the most startling that has come to the attention of the officers in months. Sheriffs from Wichita and Clay county and Texas rangers are trying to fathom the mystery.

Woman Tells Story.

When Mrs. Fuller regained consciousness this is the story she told:

"I went to the store at Jolly where we were waiting for my husband," she said, "and while there I talked to the young man and we walked into the road, but not from the store. When a man stepped out, put a pistol in our faces and said: 'So you are out joying are you' and marched us off down the road."

Mrs. Fuller said that they were marched down the road about two miles and robbed by the highway, $30 being taken from her and she did not know how much from the man. She said that after they got over into the pasture the highwayman shot Pheland down and after going a little distance said to her:

"I guess I had just as well finish you."

Screams For Help.

She said she screamed for help but that he struck her over the head with his revolver and that she knew no more until she regained consciousness some time Sunday morning.

Her clothes were most all torn from her body, her head was bleeding, her body bleeding, her mouth was gagged with a handkerchief, her hands and feet were tied and she was suffering terribly from pain.

Her own blood had stained the handkerchief about her mouth until it was soggy. After hours of pain she finally succeeded in loosening her hands and then took the rag from her mouth and feet. When she tried to get up she found one limb injured and she could not walk. She crawled through the weeds and grass and it seemed that it took hours, she said. When she reached the roadside she fell unconscious and was revived by the tourists who found her.

Had Been Camping.

An ambulance from Merkle & Luan was sent to Jolly and brought the injured woman to the Call Field hospital where it is said she will recover.

G. A. Fuller, husband of the woman, told a Record News reporter that he had been camping with his wife at a point near Henrietta and that they were returning to Wichita Falls at about 8 o'clock Saturday night when at Jolly they met his mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. T. Niles.

He said that he then left his wife there with his relatives and went back to the camp to get some things he had left there. He said when he returned his wife was gone and that his parents had not seen where she went.

Searched for Wife

He said he started searching for her and searched nearly all night but found no trace of her. He said that about daylight he decided that she might have taken a train to Wichita Falls and decided to come in, his parents having preceeded him. He said when he found his wife was not at home he returned to Jolly and when he reached the town they had his wife there ready to bring her to the hospital.

According to Mr. Fuller, his wife told him that it was an unmasked white man wearing a white straw hat and a dark suit and who would weigh about 160 or 170 pounds who held her up. He said she expressed a certainty that she would recognize the man.

Mr. Fuller, who is in his twenties, said his occupation is a trainman but that he has not worked for some time.

Smith Rushes to Scene.

Just as soon as the report of the robbery came in to Wichita Falls Sheriff Frank Smith went to the scene. Sheriff G. P. Jones and City Marshall F. A. Funley of Henrietta and many citizens had gathered.

OFFICIALS CRY FOR STATE AID

Unions Say Able to Control Men

By Associated Press.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., July 9.—Civil authority has collapsed in McLean county and only the prompt arrival of state troops can avert a tragedy if the Chicago & Alton railroad carries out its announced purpose of reopening the shops here tomorrow, county and city authorities declared tonight.

At midnight word came from Lieutenant Governor Fred E. Sterling, acting in the absence of Governor Len Small, that no action will be taken on the request for national guardsmen until tomorrow. Railroad officials remained silent refusing to say whether the threat of W. G. Bierd to bring in private guards and non-union men tomorrow will be called out. Importation of guards and new employes will lead to bloodshed, officials here declared tonight. Sheriff "Jake" Morrison said he had tried in vain to mobilize and equip a force of deputies. Most of the men called out, declared they would not serve to protect strikebreakers.

State investigators who are here say civil government is paralyzed in McLean county, but that Mayor Jones and other citizens had promised to undertake the reorganization of law enforcement officers. The striking shopmen held a mass meeting this afternoon as a result of last night's conference with General Black. About 500 of the 2,000 strikers attended and adopted a resolution endorsing the stand taken by the strike committee in telling the adjutant general that troops were not needed, that the union could maintain order among its members and that there had been no violence here warranting state intervention.

TEXAS ROADS SEEK GUARDS

U. S. Marshal Will Appoint Deputies

By Associated Press.

DALLAS, July 9.—J. A. Baggett, United States marshal for the northern Texas district, tomorrow will begin selecting deputy marshals to aid in the protection of mails and interstate commerce on the Texas and Pacific, Missouri, Kansas & Texas and International & Great Northern railroads. Marshal Baggett's action is in line with instructions received from Washington today directing him to appoint deputies and give the protection asked by the railroads yesterday.

Marshal Baggett said tonight that 40 or 50 men probably will be assigned to the T. & P., as many more to the M., K. & T., and half as many to the I. & G. N.

Railroad executives here said there were no developments of consequence in the strike situation today. T. G. White, chairman in Dallas for the federated railway shop crafts, expressed the belief that the situation is rapidly reaching a point where the railroads must seek a settlement or the federal government will take over and operate trains.

Voters Ignore Issues at Time When Nation Faces Grave Problems

Candidate Who Best Appeals to Passion and Prejudice Gets the Big Gland Hand

By H. N. F.

DALLAS, Texas, July 9.—Only 13 more days and the agony will be over.

Only 13 more days and the names of the names of the runners-off will be known. Only 13 more days and near normalcy will return. There is no popular idol before the people battling for senatorial honors. There is no mighty issue which concerns all the people uppermost or being presented by the senatorial contenders. This is an admitted fact. It is agreed by all the newspaper correspondents that there has been no vast outpourings of the people to hear a discussion of issues the state over.

Large crowds assemble where there are barbecues given or county picnics held in the shady groves. This is due mainly to the fact that there are red hot contests everywhere for the county offices which are the fat spoils won by the little fellows on primary election day.

Never before in the history of America has as many weighty problems confronted the lawmakers of the nation and yet those who are buzzing around are content to applaud the orator or the candidate who best apeals to their passions or their prejudices.

There is a vast silent majority who do not attend these meetings or shout their applause. This vast silent majority may settle the question of who shall be the successor of Chas. A. Culberson for six years. All democrats are for the rule of the white man and a white man's government.

Plan Potato Plant

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, July 9.—A potato curing plant of 10,000 bushels capacity is being planned for Vernon by the chamber of commerce. More than 200 acres have been planted to sweet potatoes in the vicinity of Vernon this year. It is pointed out that green potatoes which sell for 40 cents a bushel at harvest time are later sold at $1.40 a bushel when cured. The inducements for a plant here are said to be liberal.

Troops Guard Town After Killing

By Associated Press.

CLINTON, Ill., July 9. — With three companies of state troops on duty here, Clinton was quiet today after yesterday's disorders which resulted in the death of a 12-year-old youth and the wounding of his father and another striking railway shopman, following a clash between striking shopmen and guards employed by the Illinois Central.

Officials of the federated shop crafts demanded today that local civil authorities request adjutant general Carlos E. Black to withdraw the soldiers while William F. Smith, states attorney, said that yesterday's shooting will be investigated by the regular grand jury meeting September 11. He said it might stir the smouldering sentiment of resentment to a dangerous pitch to call a special grand jury.

Three shots were fired in the direction of a sentry on duty near the Illinois Central roundhouse here today. The firing was traced to a garage near the roundhouse. Major Smith said. Two men in uniform were seen near there earlier in the day, Major Smith said, and advanced the theory that they may have been soldiers on leave or men on their way to Camp Grant or else were radicals trying to start trouble while masquerading as soldiers.

About 400 local shop crafts members met here today and unanimously expressed themselves against the "importation of strikebreakers to work under protecting guns of militiamen."

The local maintenance of way organization also held a meeting today and decided to return to work, but to protest against working with armed guards on watch. Chairman Glenn of the shop crafts advised the maintenance of way men to go back to work.

As a result of yesterday's shooting one man was a prisoner in the jail at Monticello today charged with manslaughter and complaints charging three others with manslaughter have been filed with the states attorney.

Strikebreakers Refused Bread And Tobacco in Missouri Town

By Associated Press.

SLATER, Mo., July 9.—This railroad spent a quiet Sunday after a hectic four days which began with the storming of the Chicago and Alton shops by striking shopmen and the driving out of the strike breakers and ended with deputy United States marshals in charge of the situation with orders from Washington to see that the strike breakers were not molested.

Strike breakers continued to come in and go to work in the Alton shops and railroad officials evidently felt that the crisis which for a few days threatened to force suspension of trains on the road was past. Tomorrow morning the railroad power plant is to steam up once more and tomorrow also, according to present plans, strikers intend to make a demonstration to "persuade" the strike breakers to leave the shops.

The strike breakers are somewhat apprehensive and grin nervously. They are not having a very happy time of it. Today they were short of tobocco and none could be obtained in Slater for them. An effort to buy ten loaves of bread to feed these men also failed today. A negro janitor from the local trainmaster's office was sent out to buy the bread. The strikers saw where the negro came from, and stores refused to sell him any bread.

FREER MONEY GIVES IMPETUS TO BOND TRADE

High Prices Are Paid For Good Grade Issues

NEW YORK, July 9.—Large sums available for reinvestment the first of the month gave an added impetus to the demand and new bond offering which reached a total of $98,250,000 as compared with $30,000,000 last week and a weekly average of $100,000,000 in the early months of the year.

Prices of bonds last week were distinctly upward. All government war loans except the first convertible registered 4s and the second registered 4s now are selling at a premium, several of the liberties making new high records for the year last week.

Rail Bonds Up

Rail bonds enjoyed one of their best markets this year, a majority of the high grade issues reaching their highest price since the first of the year and some of them going to new top prices.

Sales of corporate issues are exceeding those of governments and foreign war loans.

Improved business conditions as reflected in the constantly increasing car loadings of revenue freight is expected to result in some heavy railroad financing during the next few weeks. Among the issues recently approved by the interstate commerce commission which will be offered shortly are, $25,000,000 New York Central refunding and improvement 5s, $8,085,000 St. Paul railway equipment trust certificates and $5,900,000 New Haven first and refunding mortgage bonds.

Municipal Financing

Municipal financing in June totalled $154,273,633, the largest amount of municipal bonds marketed in June in 10 years. The total for the first six months was $715,070,097.

Among the large offerings last week were: $25,000,000 ten year 5½ per cent gold debenture bonds of the Humble Oil & Refining corporation offered at par and $20,000,000 25 year 6¼ per cent first mortgage gold bonds of the B. F. Goodrich company offered at 97 to yield $6.75.

At Clinton, Ill., where troops were sent yesterday after a boy had been killed and two men, one a striker, had been wounded in a clash between strike sympathizers and Illinois Central guards, all was reported quite today. State cavalry and infantry were mobilized for duty in eight down state towns, however.

The entire state guard of Missouri has been mobilized while in Indiana, Cal., and Kansas state troops have been ordered to be prepared for an emergency. The Michigan state police at East Lansing, Mich., received orders to be ready to move if the occasion arises.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 9.—Infantrymen of the Illinois National guard mobilized through the strike last night, remained inactive today, except the companies sent to the scene of Saturday's shooing at Clinton, according to announcement here tonight by Adjutant General C. E. Black. There were no reports of threatened violence since last night, General Black said.

MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

Are the tenant farmers ready to return to the old order of things? Are farmers who own mortgaged land and who need cheap money ready to return to the old order of things? There isn't a mortgage company in Texas whose officials are not in favor of the amendment to the federal constitution championed by Mr. Mayfield. There isn't a private money loaning concern that isn't lined up for the amendment which means the destruction of the federal land banks everywhere.

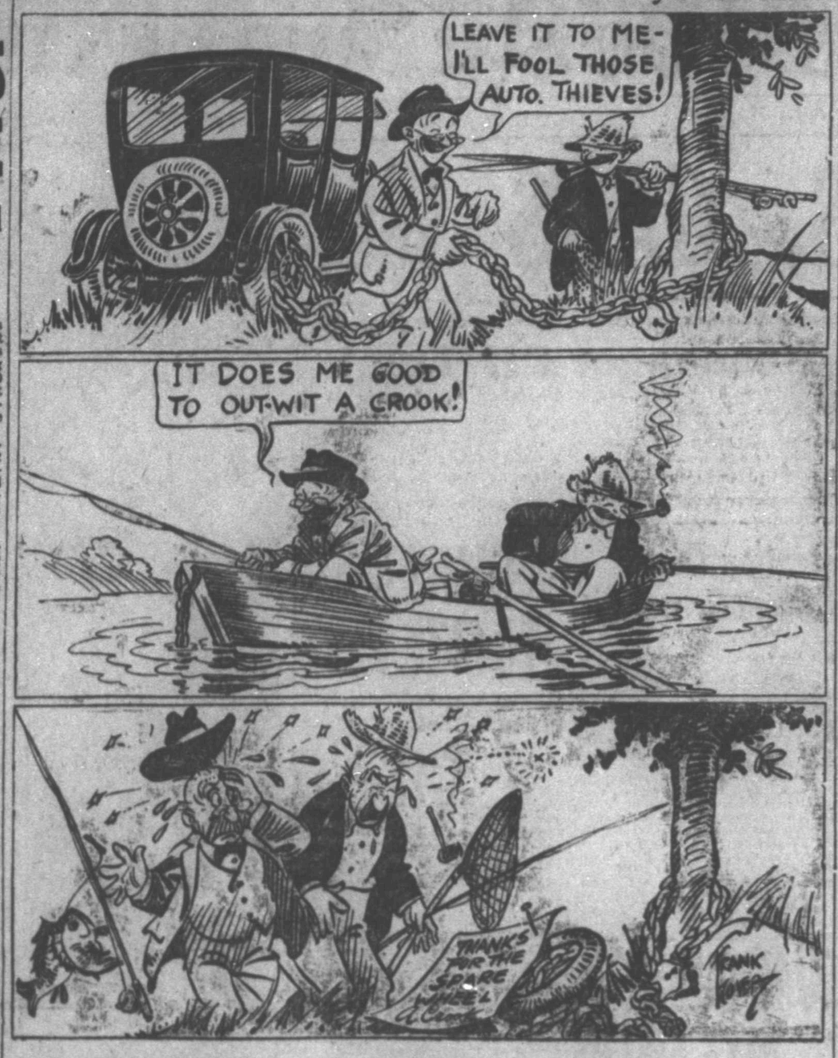

BUSINESS is business. All life insurance and investment companies are opposed to federal land banks. They are opposed to the system. They are opposed to the government operating these banks. Cheap money does not help their business. A rate of interest is contrary to their plan of precedure. Of course it is perfectly legitimate for the officers and stock holders in these concerns to do all in their power for the adoption of a federal amendment to the constitution which will knock out land banks and all tax exempt securities, such as joint stock land bonds, municipal bonds, road district bonds, school house bonds and all bonds issued by counties or commonwealth for building purposes.

These tax exempt bonds enumerated bear a low rate of interest. Now why should the property owner or tax payer vote upon himself a high rate of interest for all the public improvements which are necessary in a new country and why should he vote against federal land banks in a commonwealth where 50 per cent of the tillers of the soil are tenants and a majority of these tenants hope to be land owners some day with the assistance of the cheap money loaned by the federal reserve banks? It would be well for all the people to read and think before they cast their ballots on primary election day.

Broom Corn Pays

TUCUMCARI, July 9.—Roosevelt county is estimated to have 6,000 acres planted to broom corn this season. The average price received the past season was $66 a ton, with a yield of about 300 pounds to the acre. It is said that about 75 per cent of the growers of broom corn in the county are now members of the association.

ADJUTANT GENERAL CLASHES WITH ILLINOIS SHERIFF OVER BLOOMING SITUATION CONFAB

City Officials Ask for State Aid When the Chicago and Alton Says Trains to Run

By Associated Press.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., July 9.—Adjutant General Carlos Black, left Bloomington for Springfield this afternoon after 24 hours of conference with county, city and railroad officials and without announcing whether or not he will send troops here as asked.

Mayor Edward E. Jones and Sheriff "Jake" Morrison tonight declared only troops can avert a tragedy if the Chicago & Alton railroad carries out its announced intention to import non-union men tomorrow.

President W. G. Bierd of the railroad was in conference with Mayor Jones at 6 o'clock and expected to announce shortly what action will be taken.

Sheriff Morrison told the adjutant general he had deputized 130 men, but that the majority declared they would not serve and not more than 20 can be counted on in an emergency.

The sheriff and General Black clashed last night in a conference, according to the sheriff, when the adjutant general told Morrison he was weak and lacking in backbone.

The sheriff retaliated today by declaring General Black was "trying to pass the busk and make me the goat."

Rail Work to Start

Special to the Record News.

ABILENE, July 9.—Actual work may be started in the next few weeks on the Cross Plains & Abilene railroad following a joint meeting of representatives of the towns of Rising Star, Pioneer, Cross Plains and Abilene. The proposed road would be approximately 50 miles in length and run through a territory with Edenic fertility and give a western connection with the rapidly expanding and rich oil fields.

JOLLY YOUTH—

When the woman told of the murder of Young Phelan they started a search of the pasture.

The father of the murdered boy who runs a store at Jolly was a member of the searching party. For more than two hours the search kept up and the searchers found several pieces of the woman's clothing scattered about in the pasture.

It was late in the afternoon before they came upon the body of the dead boy in a pool of his own blood out in the weeds and underbrush with two bullet holes in his breast.

As soon as the woman's wounds were dressed, Ranger M. N. Koonsman questioned her for an hour or more. Later she was questioned by Sheriff Smith. The officers were still trying to unravel the mystery at midnight.

After working until midnight on the murder and robbery case Ranger Koonsman announced at 1 o'clock this morning that he is holding in jail for investigation three white men and two white women, all from Wichita Falls. He expects to file formal murder charges against members of the party sometime Monday, he said. A strong line of evidence was worked up by Ranger Koonsman during the early night and he said there is no doubt but that among those held in jail he has the party guilty of the murder and robbery.

Harvey Miller Dies, Nine Others Hurt

By Associated Press.

HUTCHINSON, Kan., July 9.—Harvey F. Miller of New York, vice president of the Fairbanks company died at 9:30 o'clock this morning in a local hospital of injuries he received in the Santa collision at Burrton, Kansas late yesterday afternoon. Nine other persons were injured, three seriously.

VOTERS

Texas has had a white man's government since 1872. There has never been a time that white democrats did not absolutely dominate all branches of the state government. All democrats are for the protection of their women and the sanctiey of the home. It has been so from the beginning under Texas skies. All democrats worthy of the name have been opposed to union of church and state. Why the early fathers of the republic so decreed and that decree has never been set aside.

Indeed the makers of the first constitution of Texas prohibited preacher or priest from serving in a law-making capacity and this held good for a number of years.

If there has been a union of church and state in Texas, then white democrats, the sons of white democrats and not the sons of foreigners or foreigners are responsible for the departure from the early teachings of the fathers and the men who laid the foundation for the civilization of today.

And these early fathers gave the people civil and religious liberty and the bill of rights. They gave the people a constitution worthy of their vision, their heroism and their conception as to what constituted the fundamentals of a true democracy and a peoples government.

There are senatorial candidates who are in favor of hacking to pieces the federal reserve act not withstanding the federal reserve banks saved the nation from financial disaster during the war and again saved it from financial ruin after the signing of the armistice. There are senatorial candidates who would repeal it in its entirety, thus permitting the financiers of Wall street to control the money and the credit of the American people as they controlled it for more than sixty years.

Another Issue Dynamited.

There are senatorial candidates who are calling for Americanization of foreigners, unmindful of the fact that when the world war came and the call was made there wasn't a "foreign" family in Texas that did not send its sons to the training camps and thence overseas to fight for the freedom of the oppressed peoples of Europe and in defense of that starry emblem which is without a stain. There are senatorial candidates who would have the people believe that restriction of immigration is something new. Why, the leaders of organized labor have been fighting for restriction of immigration for years and years, they have pointed out the evils of unrestricted immigration and the coming of hordes of pauper labor to the United States.

Democrats of Texas two short years ago endorsed William Gibbs McAdoo as their choice for president. In his address of a recent date before the Kansas state democratic convention speaking of the federal reserve act, Mr. McAdoo said:

What M'Adoo Says.

"An instance of what I mean by solving economic problems through political action is the federal reserve system. For generations we have suffered financial panics and colossal losses because of a financial system which was both unsound and insufficient for the needs of the nation. It could be remedied only through political action. The republican party, despite its claim that it alone possessed the best minds of the nation, had proven itself during 50 years of power, wholly incompetent to solve this problem and was consistent in its solid opposition to this great reform. But this bill was passed and the federal reserve system was established under a democratic administration. The great economic problem involved in our financial system was thus solved through political action."

Two years ago a large majority of the democrats of Texas gave sweeping endorsement to the federal reserve system. They gave it their approval as the greatest legislative achievement and the safest financial system in American history. An American dollar is worth 100 cents. An American bond is worth 100 cents. There is not an American security that is not worth its face value.

There is no 40 cent dollar in America. It is 100 cent dollar. There was a 40 cent dollar in America when inflation was at its peak and war prices prevailed everywhere. Americans should be proud of their financial system. They should be proud of the stability of the war bonds. They should beproud of the stability of all American securities. They should not slay the goose that laid the golden egg. They should not destroy the bridge that carried them over.

A truck load of Russian rubles is worth that much when sold by the pound. Twenty hundred German marks have the value of an English pound sterling. Russia is a hungry bankrupt. Its mark has the same value as the dry grass of the wild waste. Republican Germany is not only facing bankrupcy but she may totter and fall.

This is the proudest of all nations, the richest of all nations and the mightiest achievement of the Wilson administration in a legislative sense is the financial system that it gave to the people. Throughout the historic years since annexation came, the safe and the sane have dominated the elections of Texas and directed affairs of state. If Texans run true to form, then history should repeat itself this year.

Old South American Dispute Near an End

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Having at last reached an agreement to arbitrate the generation-old dispute over Tacana-Arica the representatives of Chile and Peru made plans today to bring to a quick conclusion the conference which they began here eight weeks ago tomorrow at the invitation of President Harding.

"SOLD OUT"

This is the report the circulation manager made at 10 o'clock Sunday morning, after the Sunday edition of the Growing Record News had been on the streets a few hours.

Iowa Park ordered additional copies; Burkburnett called for more and Electra sold out before noon. Henrietta and other Wichita Falls trade territory towns also failed to order enough copies of the Sunday edition of The Record News to supply the demand.

Everybody knows what this means.

It's just another way of saying that The Wichita Falls Record News is giving the people just what they want; that it is the kind of newspaper for the Wichita Falls trade radius, as well as Wichita Falls proper.

The Record News is setting the pace in the publication of a daily oil page, publication of a complete trade radius news service and is publishing almost twice as much local news as any other paper in the state of Texas.

MILLER WELL IN STEPHENSON MAKES 2 MILE EXTENTION

ACTIVITY WILL BE QUICKENED

Well Opens Up Wide Territory

Flowing at the rate of 2850 barrels a day, the Miller well on the Black ranch, Denson and Spurk subdivision in Stephens county was drilled in Sunday afternoon, according to a telegram received by T. C. Thomas of this city, who is interested with Denson and Spurk in the lease on which the new well was drilled.

The Miller well gives an extension of a little more than two miles due east of the Humble Oil company's No. 1-A Poindexter, completed about two weeks ago for a 700 barrel well, in the 3,300 foot lime.

The Texas company, the Empire Gas and Fuel company, the Landreth company and several others have made purchases of leases in this vicinity, according to reports from Albany shortly after the completion of the Humble Poindexter well, and will start drilling immediately.

Sunday's completion will result in an immediate quickening of activity, it is believed. The Miller well opens up a wide stretch of territory extending from the Humble and other Shackleford producers into Stephens county, as it is almost midway between the Brown and Ibex pools.

EXTRA TURMAN OIL DIVIDEND

Turman oil board of directors have ordered payment of the regular 1 per cent dividend per month for the ensuing three months, with an extra dividend of 2 per cent for the quarter, making a total of 5 per cent for the quarter. Definite dates of payment will be announced from month to month.

BURK BOOSTS ITS OIL FIELD

"World's Greatest" Is Slogan Adopted

Special to the Record News.

BURKBURNETT, July 9.—One of the most unique community advertisements ever issued in the commercial development of Burkburnett is the large envelope bearing a history of the city since 1918, gotten out by the chamber of commerce and adopted by a number of the business men this week.

The following interesting story may be read on the back of each outgoing envelope concerning Burkburnett—the city built on facts:

"The world's greatest oil field."

Twenty million barrels of oil from Burkburnett pool in 1918; 40,000,000 in 1919; 20,000,000 in 1921. Now producing 35,000 barrels daily. New wells continually being brought in and new territory developed.

Burkburnett is not an oil boom town. The production is on a settled basis and this is now a "home town." Population of trade territory twenty-five thousand.

Burkburnett—"The oil gateway to Texas."

Three grammar schools; 1 high school; 2,200 pupils; 55 teachers; 6 churches; 20 blocks pavement; adequate water, sewer, light, telephone and natural gas; natural trade territory for the richest farm area in North Texas and Southern Oklahoma; deposits in 3 banks $1,759,167. Seven operating refineries; 5 casinghead plants, including largest in the world; 7 oil well supply houses; 2 wholesale houses (groceries); 2 grain elevators, 4 lumber yards; ice plant; a modern weekly newspaper and two job offices; 75 business including all kinds of retail business.

Old Anderson Boom Well at 'At Abilene Booked to Come Back

Special to The Record News.

ABILENE, July 9.—In the old Anderson oil well, drilled before the McClesky discovery well at Ranger started the boom, coming back? Recently the Anderson was purchased by H. C. Lewis and W. W. Middleton and was being cleared of obstacles said to have been placed in its bore to prevent its becoming a big well several years ago.

After a few days work the Anderson was partly cleared and oil and gas became overly prominent, the gas pressure lifting the oil to a point half way up the derrick. Conservative reports indicate that the well is good for between 75 and 100 barrels a day. It is a high grade of oil. The well when first drilled in went over the top and caused a furore of excitement in this section. Then it suddenly ceased to produce more than ten barrels a day after rumors, somewhat substantiated, declared that a 40-foot telegraph pole of large diameter was driven into it.

HUMBLE PLANS TEST AT BURK

Electric Power to Be Used in Deep Well

Special to the Record News.

BURKBURNETT, July 9.—The Humble Oil & Gas company is making preparations to drill a deep test well on the Serrien lease, eight miles southeast of this city.

Electrical power will be used in the drilling and the machinery is being installed for that purpose this week.

Freeman Well Flows 65 Bbls. For 20 Minutes

One head of 65 barrels was made on Sunday during a 20 minute period by the Freeman and Hampton well, Archer county's latest sensation. According to visitors at the well, the bailer was dropped down about 200 feet, when the flow started, the well putting on a show equal to some of the big gushers of boom days.

The well is still shut down for storage and while waiting on the pump. There is still much evidence of gas, it is stated, and with each successive showing expectations are increasingly optimistic for a large producer.

DRILLING CAMPAIGN IN BROWN COUNTY

By Associated Press.

BROWNWOOD, July 9. — The Brown County Drilling company met recently and they formulated plans for real intensive drilling in this section. The company reports its financial condition splendid and ordered payment of dividends. Directors include, C. R. Cox, T. M. Windham, W. L. Mann, M. W. Lang secretary-treasurer.

WELL TO SPUD IN

Special to The Record News.

BROWNWOOD, July 9.—On the Worth lease, 5½ miles from this city, Monea & Godwin are building a derrick. They expect to spud in in a few days, according to announcement. Geological report is reported very favorable for finding oil and gas.

JOHN W. STUART IS DEAD AT BURK

Special to the Record News.

BURKBURNETT, July 9.—John W. Stuart, age 50, died in the Burk hospital at 11 o'clock Saturday morning. The body was shipped by the Miller undertakers Saturday night to Pittsburgh, Penn., for burial, accompanied by his wife. There were no children, or other relatives in the south.

The deceased was lease superintendent of an oil corporation in the Northwest field, about five miles from this city, and, notwithstanding the fact that he had been ill for many years, he was busy at his duties up to a few days before his death. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Stuart also of Pennsylvania.

FASHIONS

The Linen Frock Is a Midsummer Favorite.

More linen frocks and suits are being worn this summer than for many seasons, and their vogue appear; but this is quite in keeping vances. More dresses than suits appear; but this is quite in keeping with the rule that applies no matter what the fabric. Certainly the two-piece suit has had rather a fight for life for several years, the one-piece dress having long ago successfully ousted it from the place in the line-up of street costumes.

Among the linen frocks shown, those more or less elaborately embroidered in gay contrasting colors are great favorites, whether the fabric employed for the frock is in white or color. The sketch shows a simple linen dress that may easily be made by the average home dressmaker, as it is of the chemise type with set on panels and a little self fabric string belt to dress it up a bit.

This dress was displayed in a range of colors as well as white, the one from which the sketch was made being a pale yellow, with embroidery in various high shades. These embroideries are done in wool as well as in heavy linen and cotton floss, and they are very effective decorations.

Narrow collar and vestee of this dress are of tucked organdy, and they may very properly be white, whatever the color of the dress.

Another smart linen frock recently seen was of the coat type, buttoning from neck to hem in front, equipped with pockets and held in with a belt of self fabric.

Sleeveless linen frocks of the straight chemise type, to be worn with sheer blouses of either silk or cotton fabric are much featured.

NEWEST STYLES FOR GIRLS WHO SWIM

By ELOISE

Swimmers always want wool jersey for their swimming suits, but the girls want more than a plain wool jersey pair of tights. They have a bit of color and trimming even on the simplest bathing suit. If they can't have a pretty jersey suit they will turn back to the frilly taffetas and satins which are not durable but are surely fetching.

Here are three wool jersey suits which a designer has made for the very feminine swimmer. At the left is an orange and brown suit, a rather form-fitting affair, but different from the usual run of suits. It is sleeveless and the orange overdress is cut deep in the front and edged with bands of the brown jersey. This type of suit will be wanted by expert swimmers who spend little or no time on the sands.

The other two suits are more appropriate for wear on public beaches. The one in the center is a very modest and attractive style. It is made of black jersey piped in white. The scalloped skirt is short enough to be no hindrance to the swimmer and the cut of the blouse is more appropriate.

A bit more startling is the suit at the right. It is a vivid blue jersey made unique by a long panel of black braided in white. White buttons and a pocket are other distinctive features of this suit. Any one of these three models ought to find a place in one's vacation bag.

IN SOCIETY AT ELECTRA

ELECTRA, July 9. — Mrs. Ella Jackson and daughter, Miss Nell Jackson, returned Thursday from Fort Worth, where they have been visiting relatives and friends for the past three weeks.

Mrs. Grace Jennings and son, Jim Jennings, spent Wednesday in Wichita Falls.

Mrs. John Berry from Chilicothe spent the week end as a guest of Mrs. Guy McNeely.

Mr. Renoids of Birmingham, Ala., who has been a student of Auburn university is spending his vacation here as a guest of Joe Hodges.

Helen Robertson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Robertson, leaves Sunday for Clinton, Mo., where she will spend the summer visiting her grandmother, Mrs. J. C. Inloes.

Misses Irene and Laura V. LeBus leave Sunday for Dallas to visit their sister, Mrs. Homer Grizzle.

Rev. and Mrs. Byron Hester left Monday for Mayfield, Ky., where they will spend a month visiting Mr. Hester's parents, Judge and Mrs. R. O. Hester.

Mrs. Tom Hoxie and sons, Mitchell and Billy Bob of El Paso, also Miss Dolly Mal Thompson of Waxahachie are house guests of Mrs. J. W. Kennedy.

Mrs. Tom Winn of Waxahachie who was matron of honor in the Hodges-Kennedy wedding, returned to her home Saturday.

Mrs. T. H. Smith and Mrs. George McGann spent Tuesday in Wichita Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Brogue Magee and family and Mr. Clarence McDonald and family composed a congenial party to Wichita Falls to enjoy the Shrine circus.

Mr. and Mrs. John Briggs and Mr. and Mrs. Warner Lobaugh of Wichita Falls, also Mr. Gene Hall of Urich, Mo., are guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Robertson.

Christian Endeavors Picnic

One of the most enjoyable parties of the summer was a moonlight picnic, given by the Senior Christian Endeavors of the Christian church.

The picnickers journeyed forth in cars to a wooded spot about five miles from Electra, Magnolia tank, taking with them a Victrola, numerous good records and plenty of tempting eats.

Chaperones for the affair were Messrs and Mesdames George LeBus, Frank LeBus and J. V. Freese.

Madge Guio Has Slumber Party

Madge Guio was hostess at a slumber party Thursday night. Games were played, candy made and a general good time enjoyed by all.

Friday morning a bountiful chicken breakfast was served to Mildred Francis, Fanny Godwin and Ruby Brown.

Civic League Holds Meeting

The Electra Civic league meets in basement of Methodist church with many important matters under discussion. Electra is proud of this new organization and with such able officers many worthy things will be accomplished to better and beautify our city. The officers have been well chosen and are: Mrs. George McGaun, president; Mrs. Grace Jennings, first vice president; Mrs. C. P. Engleking, corresponding secretary; Miss Nell Jackson, secretary; Mrs. Archer McDavid, treasurer, and Mrs. E. M. Friend, parliamentarian.

MRS. SIMS ENTERTAINS FOR BROTHER.

Mrs. C. O. Sims entertained Friday afternoon, July 7th honoring her brother, Edward Francis, son of Rev. and Mrs. E. M. Francis with a birthday party.

Music, readings and contests were enjoyed. Edith Mason won the girls' prize in the "Rat Contest" and P. L. Gennings the boy's. Both were huge sticks of candy tied with fluffy bows of red ribbon.

The children were then ushered into the dining room which was fairy-like in appearance. The shades were lowered and only the ten lights of the candles on the birthday cake gave light. Red and blue streamers from the chandelier were artistically caught at the table corners, while cut flowers were used profusely. The beautiful cake was cut, each slice accompanied by a hearty good wish for the honor guest. With this, delicious ice-cream was served.

In the cake eating contest, Nona Miller found the needle, Pauline Cobb the button, Dolly Buchanan the ring, Virginia Smith the penny and Odessa Stevens the dime.

Those wishing Edward many happy returns of the day were: Odessa Stevens, Mary Ruth Tubb, Dolly Buchanan, Mary Frances Gino, Sevena Taylor, Edith Mason, Pauline Cobb, Ruth Frances, Mina Cobb, Virginia Smith, Opal Hedrin, Hortense Buchanan, Louise Stroud, Annie Godwin, Leo Miller, Nona Mae Miller, Christine Hamilton, Mary Deen Reneau, Virginia Sims, Clyde Miller, Clyde Miller, Clyde Reneau, Bob Brownlee, P. L. Gennings, Brandon Smith Jr. and Gene Reneau.

MRS. MAGEE HOSTESS.

Mrs. Brogue Magee was the charming hostess Friday, entertaining the Primo Bridge club.

The Magee home was simply but effectively decorated for the occasion in Shasta daisies and a red, white and blue color scheme being observed.

The afternoon was spent playing bridge, Mrs. Ed Campbell winning high score and was presented with a beautifully bound book.

At the close of the games, a tempting ice course was served. Frozen cantaloupe, centered with pyramids of cream, angel food cake and red soda pop served on blue plates with tiny Fourth of July flags as plate favors.

Club members present were Mesdames T. H. Smith, Merkt, J. F. McDonnald, Clarence McDonnald, Hunter Cramer, Campbell, Harris, Williams, Cameron and Goldsmith.

This being the last meeting of the club for the summer, the members adjourned to meet again in the early fall.

MRS. E. M. FRANCIS, HOSTESS

One of the most important as well as enjoyable meetings ever held in Electra was a "Circle Party." Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. M. Francis, wife of the pastor of the Baptist church.

There were six circles represented, each headed by a captain who made their financial report for only a few days work. When the total amount was given, it was found that $1400 had been collected by these capable women to add to the $1200.44 already in the church treasury, making a sum total of $2600.44 up to date. This is over half the amount necessary to build the new Baptist church which when completed will cost over $50,000. The plans are now in the hands of a Wichita Falls architect and promises to have one of the largest auditoriums in this part of the state.

After the business session, a social hour followed in which Mrs. Francis served a refreshing salad plate assisted by Miss Ruth Francis and Mary Deen Reneau.

Those present included: Mesdames Fletcher, Gault, Reneau, Weatheral, Jodie Smith, S. W. Smith, C. O. Sims, Kirshke, Kirby, Clayton, Lancaster, Foard, Cason, W. D. Taylor, Dozier, Gossage Godwin and the hostess, Mrs. Francis.

HEAVY TRADING IN COTTON MART

Net Gains Scored Late in Week

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, July 9.—The widest fluctuations and heaviest trading of last week in the cotton market came on the opening session which was bureau day.

The unfavorable report on the crop by the government caused gains of almost $10 a bale compared with the close of the preceding week, July rising to 23.20 cents a pound and all months making new high records for the season. At the highest the trading months were 180 to 195 points over the close of the preceding week. During the remaining sessions the market had more or less of a reactionary tendency, but it closed at net gains of 98 to 114 points, closing at 22.50 against 21.50 on the close of this week last year.

The government report of 71.2 as the percentage of condition of the crop on June 25 was a surprise to the trade and was a supporting influence the week through.

The only item in the report that could be called bearish related to the acreage for the estimated increase of 10 per cent was larger than expected. The area under cotton this season was returned at 34,852,000 acres against 31,678,000 a year ago, a gain of 3,174,000 acres.

Clarendon Court Opens Today With Bishop on Bench

Special to the Record News.

CLARENDON, Texas, July 9.—The summer term of district court in this county will convene here Monday, July 17. Judge Henry S. Bishop will be on the bench, and the district attorney for the term will be appointed later. The civil docket is a very heavy one and the criminal docket has a case that is one of the most famous ever tried here, the case of the State vs. Houston Upton, being tried here for murder on a change of venue.

RED CROSS NURSE LEAVES

Special to the Record News.

CLARENDON, Texas, July 9.—Miss Ella Yeager, who has been the Red Cross nurse in this county for the past two years, leaves tonight for Austin, where she will be connected with the state health department in that city. Miss Yeager's work has been very successful in this county, and the Red Cross committee regret to give up her services.

Poor Richard Said---

"A penny saved is a penny earned." In his day, pennies were as large as our quarters. Yet all the pennies in the world wouldn't have taken Poor Richard to a movie, bought him a flivver, or paid his street car fare. The pennies of a hundred years ago were not as big in buying power as those of today.

But Poor Richard's advice is still good. And it is no less valuable when applied to dollars instead of cents.

Every year you spend a large proportion of the money you earn. So much for clothing. So much for shoes. So much for things to eat, house furnishings, garden seeds, tools and what not.

There's just one way to save money in making your purchases. Know what you want before you buy. Read the advertisements.

They tell you what is new and good. They tell you where and when to buy to best advantage. They help keep you posted on what the stores and manufacturers are offering.

Read the advertisements. They save money and earn money for you.

BUYING EDUCATION

TEXAS is "muddling through" toward eventual success in the building of its educational machinery.

The going occasionally is almost as tough as along the road through the Brazos bottom after an overflow. But an optimist realizes that the Ford will somehow get through mud roads and that Texas has the reputation of moving forward. Things certainly are better educationally in Texas than they were 10 years ago.

There is, of course, a long road ahead. There can be no consistent and smooth progress until there is definite knowledge as to how much money will be forthcoming over a period of years. Education is not a business of selling a pair of shoes. A college cannot expand and contract as can the overhead of a dry goods store.

Take, for example, the experiments concerning the improvement of cotton seed at A. & M. college. Let us suppose an expert is on the job down there, and that he knows it will take him six years to prove out a given set of experiments through which he expects to make his name respected and to accomplish a definite good in life. Such a man can never do his best work as long as he knows that a legislature meeting every two years has the power to cut off all revenue necessary to his experiment and may eliminate his salary in the very middle of his job. You can't blame such a man for joining some private plant breeding organization where there is a fair assurance of uninterrupted work, coupled with the knowledge that a privately-owned plant improvement can be capitalized for profit as well as for fame.

Not very long ago the writer heard a former member of the extension department at A. & M. college lecture on pecan growing before a civic club. This man is reputed to know more about pecan culture than anyone else in America. If A. & M. college could have paid him an adequate salary and given him the assurance of uninterrupted revenues for experimentation, the man would still be at A. & M. and his discoveries would have had the unmixed motive of public good rather than of private gain.

A survey of 58 state colleges show that the middle west and the middle Atlantic states have made largest progress in the acquisition of good men and fixed revenue for state educational institutions. These states average $11,500 per year for presidents of the state schools as against $8,000 in southern states, and approximately $10,000 in western states.

Texas has 5,000,000 people. If she paid her college presidents as does the average of the United States, she would still be far below the average in her recognition of the importance of education. Yet Texas is paying less for the headships of its state educational institutions than small states of a million population.

Incidentally the law of supply and demand works just as thoroughly in an educational system as it does in commerce. It is impossible to conceive that the president of Ohio State university, for example, receiving $15,000 a year and worth every cent of it, would be interested in the headship of the University of Texas at a salary of $6,000 a year. And Texas is more nearly apt to get a $6,000 man if she only pays $6,000 for him than she is to get a $15,000 man for $6,000.

The present effort among Texas educational supporters should be directed toward the guaranteeing of a definite income to education through direct taxation and not through legislative appropriation. The next step should be a recognition of the actual value of the teaching function, and that brains are not a matter of geography. There are some good educators who have not yet taught in Texas. A $15,000 president of the University of Texas, really worth $15,000 and backed by a progressive and dependable income for the institution, would see the University of Texas doubled in attendance and efficiency within four years.

As we understand the argument, the American merchant marine can't hope for full passenger lists unless it has full passengers.

We are a funny people, and the only news value in a slight operation on a rich man is the fact that he tries to keep it secret.

TEXAS AND M'ADOO

APPARENTLY James Cox of Ohio has not accepted his defeat by his brother Buckeyes as final. His occasional speaking activities, jaunts in Europe, and quiet insistence upon the ultimate American participation in the league of nations, indicates more than a private citizen's interest in politics.

There are also signs that William McAdoo gives occasional thought to the white house. It is hardly probable, for instance, that Kansas democratic leaders brought "McAdoo in 1924" to the front recently without McAdoo knowing anything about it in advance. There is a clear road for Texas in regard to McAdoo. He has done nothing during the last two years to justify any change of position from that held by Texas at San Francisco two years ago. Any movement in this state seeking to crystalize sentiment in favor of another democratic presidential possibility than McAdoo would be abortive.

In fact, McAdoo has Texas in 1924 unless he definitely requests that Texas not consider him.

Two years ago Tom Love of Dallas was McAdoo's chief spokesman. Nothing has happened to change the friendship and confidence existing between these two men as far as anyone knows.

Texas should have Love's opinion regarding "McAdoo in 1924" some time this summer. Certainly Love should not wait much longer than the time required for the dust of the state election to settle, probably by the middle of August.

McAdoo's conduct during the last year has been that of a sincere and successful general who is looking forward to the possibility of a presidential campaign. He has given the public a rest after a keen and vigorous public service, during which his name may have been in the public mind over frequently for a maximum of personal popularity. The American voter is constantly gunning after heroes—that is, after he accepts heroes as such. A man in politics reaches first magnitude, then that great desire of the human mind for equality in fact, as well as in fiction, seems to translate the word "hero" into idol. The idol is worshipped a brief span. Forthwith out steps a few million American voters to obey the Biblical injunction to destroy all idols. Had McAdoo possessed a less clear mind he would have continued to function as an advisor of the American public in things political—his very force would have demanded political expression. But McAdoo's training and his sense of proportion both helped him into the saner course. His position is that he has given service to the United States, expressed his full personality while he was on the job, and that after he returned to the business of making a living the public was entitled to a rest while he uses his talents upon personal lines for a few years. It is such clearness of thought that makes McAdoo at this time the hope of democracy.

Every report from Washington and almost every election carries its story of the slow collapse within the republican party. The present condition is quite similar to that of the elephant in 1910; a republican president after two years failing to capture the imagination or heart interest of the voters who elected him. Millions of these republican voters are restive. The stronger republican leaders, unattached to Wall street, are seeking to protect themselves from the accumulating weakness of Harding. The party is breaking into a group of divisional chieftains leading sectional groups of voters. For instance La Follette, a republican of Wisconsin, has been indorsed by the socialists of his state.

Capper of Kansas becomes a chief critic of the republican control. Middle west republicans join with democrats in preventing class legislation designed to bolster up the Atlantic industrial seaboard and the financial centers of New York and Boston.

The republican party, in fact, is where it was in 1910, except that the insurgents have no Roosevelt. But the insurgents have Capper of Kansas, who may be able to consolidate them at an anti-Harding meeting during the republican convention.

This is, of course, very early to predict political conditions two years hence, but at this time it certainly looks as if McAdoo could defeat Harding in 1924, and that any other candidate put up by the republicans could be nominated only after such a bitter fight that unity necessary for success within the G. O. P. would be lacking.

The position of Texas should be to anticipate these conditions sufficiently early to get behind McAdoo this year and not wait until a dozen other states have taken the edge off of Lone Star action.

HIGHWAY ASSOCIATION TO MEET IN GALVESTON.

Special to the Record News.

AUSTIN, Texas, July 9.—Plans are being made for a statewide meeting of the Texas highway association in Galveston August 4 and 5, to follow up the work outlined in the organization at Austin, and the first general session at Waco.

The Texas Highway association is pledged to aid the creation of a connected, comprehensive system of highways throughout the state. It was organized to work up public support of roads, and to assist in finding means of meeting the $10,000 tax requirements to enable the state to match available federal road appropriations, during the next three years.

The association will probably adopt a tentative taxation program, at its Galveston meeting, which will be recommended to the Texas legislature. A committee is now at work devising a legislative program which the organization will favor for the advancement of highways.

President W. V. Crawford of Waco and Secretary W. T. Wheeler of Fort Worth have just sent out notices to members of the coming meeting in Galveston. Other members, those persons interested in highway advancement, will be secured by the association before the August meeting.

CONFERENCE OF ENGINEERS TO BE HELD.

Special to the Record News.

AUSTIN, Texas, July 9.—A conference of engineers will be held in Austin August 7 to study flood control and a comprehensive reclamation program, dealing with conditions such as those following the 1922 floods, it was announced Saturday. The conference was called by Governor Neff through invitation to county engineers and others.

The state reclamation department and the board of water engineers will assist in the solution of statewide problems of flood prevention, it was announced.

Sam Pickens has now gone to smoking cigaretts. All he lacks now of being a dude is wearing his derby on the side of his head.

Sap Spradlen of the Calf Ribs neighborhood wash in our midst on Thursday of this week. He reports they are needing rain so bad over there that his umbrella has gone to screaking.

o o o

Mrs. Jeff Potlocks says the men on the farm can sit down and wait till it rains before they work, but that a woman can't set the dishes out and wait for the rain to wash them.

"It is a capitalistic plot to throw a sop to the masses," he declared.

o o o

"You are under a misapprehension; it's a golf ball, not a sop, and it is most impossible to sop a golf ball to a point where, after you threw it to the masses, they would know it had been sopped," he was informed.

o o o

"Whatever it is, the people will not be satisfied," he replied. "What the working classes want is the eighteen-hole day."

o o o

Among the upper crust golfers the very idea of a 10-cent Scotch pellet is being met with resentment. There's talk of indignation meetings. They feel that with golf balls at a dime even the middle class set can afford to lose them.

o o o

With golf balls worth from $1.50 to $3.50 each a man's wealth was estimated by the number he could drive into the underbrush per day without flinching. Income tax department spies used to hide in the bushes for weeks counting the golf balls lost by rich men and estimating their wealth accordingly.

o o o

But the 10-cent ball threatens to make a millionaire's life miserable. He will have to lose 144 golf balls to lose $9, the retail rate per gross. Which will not be accepted as a form of extravagant dissipation.

o o o

Of course, the golfer who belongs to both the Country club and the Thrift club will continue to call out a posse every time he loses a ball, even though the rate were three for a nickel.

o o o

We know a golfer who is experimenting with a process by which the yolk of an egg can be inserted into a golf ball, his ambition being to raise a setting of them under a hen and hatch golf balls. He figures he could produce them at 40 cents a dozen.

o o o

Incidentally the cheap golf ball will settle the question whether golf is fatal to men over fifty, as recently claimed. It probably will prove that the breakdown on the links of most men over that age has been due to the desperate struggle to pay for the balls.

o o o

Now for the nickel brassie, the eight-cent driver and the 25c pair of knickerbockers! Golf is getting to be Woolworth the effort.

TEN-CENT GOLF BALLS AND THEIR INFLUENCE ON AMERICAN LIFE

Let railroad strikes come or go! Away with worries over the tie-up in the coal mines! Who gives a whoop about the prospect of the new tariff greatly increasing the high cost of living? The ten-cent golf ball has arrived.

o o o

It's on the market already, manufactured by a tire company, handled by a chain store organization and pronounced a perfectly good golf ball by those who have tried it. Great is the joy throughout the land! Wonderful is the feeling of relief being experienced by the masses! The common people are storming the 10-cent golf ball stores in droves.

o o o

The dime golf ball, they declare, is as good as any other when taken either before or after meals. Two, dissolved in hot water or warm milk, will work wonders, they testify.

o o o

A book of receipts showing 57 different ways to prepare a golf ball is being issued with every 10-cent purchase. The millennium seems at hand. Both the democratic and republican parties are claiming the credit.

o o o

The only question is whether there will be enough golf balls at 10 cents each to go around. Some people will fail to get theirs and wide-spread dissatisfaction will be sure to follow. Promise the masses a supply of golf balls and then go back on the promise and you stir up dangerous unrest.

o o o

A revolution is entirely possible. There has never been a revolution started by golf balls yet. It would be quite a novelty.

The Mucker

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

"Billy!" he exclaimed. "Why—Billy—was it you who robbed the bank?"

Even as he spoke Bridge was busy easing the weight of the dead pony from Billy's leg.

"Anything broken?" he asked as the bandit struggled to free himself.

"Not so you could notice it," replied Billy, and a moment later he was on his feet. "Say bo," he added, "it's a mighty good thing you dropped little pinto here, for I'd a sure got you my next shot. Gee! it makes me sweat to think of it. But about this bank robbin' business. You can't exactly say that I robbed a bank. That money was the enemy's resources, an' I just nicked their resources. That's war. That ain't robbery, I ain't takin' it for myself—it's for the cause—the cause o' poor, bleedin' Mexico," and Billy grinned a large grin.

"You took it for Pesita?" asked Bridge.

"Of course," replied Billy. "I won't get a jitney of it. I wouldn't take none of it, Bridge, honest. I'm on the square now."

"I know you are, Billy," replied the other; "but if you're caught you might find it difficult to convince the authorities of your highmindedness and your disinterestedness."

"Authorities!" scoffed Billy. "There ain't no authorities in Mexico. One bandit is just as good as another, and from Pesita to Carranza they're all bndits at heart. They ain't a one of 'em that gives two whoops in hell for poor, bleedin' Mexico—unless they can do the bleedin' themselves. It's a dog eat dog here. If they caught me they'd shoot me whether 'd robbed their bank or not. What's that?" Billy was suddenly alert, straining his eyes back in the direction of Cuivaca.

"They're coming, Billy," said Bridge. "Take my horse—quick! You must get out of here in a hurry. The whole pest is searching for you. I thought that they went toward the south, though. Some of them must have encircled."

"What'll you do if I take your horse?" asked Billy.

"I can walk back," said Bridge, "it isn't far to town. I'll tell them that I had come only a short distance when my horse threw me and ran away. They'll believe it for they think I'm a rotten horseman—the two vaqueros who escorted me to town I mean."

Billy hesitated. "I hate to do it, Bridge," he said.

"You must, Billy," urged the other.

"If they find us here together it'll merely mean that the two of us will get it, for I'll stick with you, Billy, and we can't fight off a whole troop of cavalry out here in the open. If you take my horse we can both get out of it and later I'll see you in Rio. Good-bye, Billy, I'm off for town," and Bridge turned and started back along the road on foot.

Billy watched him in silence for a moment. The truth of Bridge's statement of fact was so apparent that Billy was forced to accept the plan. A moment later he transferred the bags of loot to Bridge's pony, swung into the saddle, and took a last backward look at the diminishing figure of the man swinging along in the direction of Cuivaca.

"Say," he muttered to himself, "but you're a right one, bo," and wheeling to the north he clapped his spurs to his new mount and loped easily off into the night.

CAPTER XI.

Barbara Releases a Conspirator.

It was a week later, yet Grayson still was growling about the loss of "that there Brazos pony." Grayson, the boss, and the boss's daughter were sitting upon the veranda of the ranchhouse when the foreman reverted to the subject.

"I knew I didn't have no business hirin' a man thet can't ride," he said. "Why thet there Brazos pony never did stumble, an' if he'd of stumbled he'd a-stood around a year waitin' to be caught up agin. I just can't figure it out no ways how thet there tenderfoot bookkeeper lost him. He must a-shooed him away with a stick. An' saddle an' bridle an' all gone too. Doggone it!"

"I'm the one who should be peeved" spoke up the girl with a wry smile. "Brazos was my pony. He's the one you picked out for me to ride while I am here; but I am sure poor Mr. Bridge feels as badly about it as anyone, and I know that he couldn't help it. We shouldn't be too hard on him. We might just as well attempt to hold him responsible for the looting of the bank and the loss of the pay-roll money."

"Well," said Grayson, "I give him thet horse 'cause I knew he couldn't ride, an' thet was the safest horse in the cavvy. I wisht I'd given him Santa Anna instid—I wouldn't a-minded losin' him. There won't no ever ride him anyhow he's that onery."

"The thing that surprises me most" remarked the boss, "is that Brazos doesn't come back. He was foaled on this range, and he's never been ridden anywhere else has he?"

"He was foaled right here on this ranch," Grayson corrected him, "and he ain't never been more'n a hundred miles from it. If he ain't dead or stolen he'd a-ben back afore the bookkeeper was. It's almighty queer."

"What sort of bookkeeper is Mr. Bridge?" asked the girl.

"Oh, he's all right I guess," replied Grayson grudgingly. "A feller's got to be some good at something. He's probably one of these here paper-collar, cracker-fed college dudes thet don't know nothin' 'cept writin' in books."

The girl rose, smiled, and moved away.

"I like Mr. Bridge, anyhow," she called back over her shoulder, "for whatever he may not be he is certainly a well-bred gentleman," which speech did not tend to raise Mr. Bridge in the estimation of the hard-fisted ranch foreman.

"Funny them greasers don't come in from the north range with thet bunch o' steers. They ben gone all day now," he said to the boss, ignoring the girl's parting sally.

Bridge sat tip-tilted against the front of the office building reading an ancient magazine which he had found within. His day's work was done and he was but waiting for the gong that would call him to the evening meal with the other employees of the ranch. The magazine failed to rouse his interest. He let it drop idly to his knees and with eyes closed reverted to his never-failing source of entertainment.

And then that slim, poetic guy he turned and looked me in the eye; "....It's overland and overland and overseas to—where?"

"Most anywhere that isn't here," I says. His face went kind of gauss.

"The place we're in is always here. The other place is there."

Bridge stretched luxuriously. "There," he repeated. "I've been searching for there for many years; but for some reason I can never get away from here. About two weeks of any place on earth and that place is just plain here to me, and I'm longing once again for there."

His musings were interrupted by a sweet feminine voice close by. Bridge did not open his eyes at once—he just sat there, listening.

As I was hiking past the woods, the cool and sleepy summer woods,
I saw a guy a-talking to the sunshine in the air;
Thinks I, "He's going to have a fit —I'll stick around and watch a bit;"
But he paid no attention, hardly knowing I was there.

Then the girl broke into a merry laugh and Bridge opened his eyes and came to his feet.

"I didn't know you cared for that sort of stuff," he said. "Knibbs writes man-verse. I shouldn't have imagined that it would appeal to a young lady."

"But it does though," she replied; "at least to me. There's a swing to it and a freedom that 'gets me in the eye.'"

Again she laughed, and when this girl laughed, harder-headed and much older men than Mr. L. Bridge felt strange emotions move within their breasts.

For a week Barbara had seen a great deal of the new bookkeeper. Aside from her father he was the only man of culture and refinement of which the rancho could boast, or, as the rancho would have put it, be ashamed of.

She had often sought the veranda of the little office and lured the new bookkeeper from his work, and on several occasions had had him at the ranchhouse. Not only was he an interesting talker; but there was an element of mystery about him which appealed to the girl's sense of romance.

She knew that he was a gentleman born and reared and she often found herself wondering what tragic train of circumstances had set him adrift among the flotsam of humanity's wreckage. Too, the same persistent conviction that she had known him somewhere in the past that possessed her father clung to her mind; but she could not place him.

"I overheard your dissertation on here and there," said the girl. "I could not very well help it—it would have been rude to interrupt a conversation." Her eyes [illegible] chievously and her cheeks dimpled.

"You wouldn't have been interrupting a conversation," objected Bridge, smiling; "you would have been turning a monologue into a conversation."

"But it was a conversation," insisted the girl. "The wanderer was conversing with the bookkeeper. You are a victim of wanderlust, Mr. L. Bridge—don't deny it. You hate bookkeeping, or any other such prosaic vocation as requires permanent residence in one place."

"Come now," expostulated the man "That is hardly fair. Haven't I been here a whole week?"

They both laughed.

"What in the world can have induced you to remain so long?" cried Barbara. "You very much like an old timer you must feel—one of the oldest inhabitants."

"I am a regular aborigine," declared Bridge; but his heart would have chosen another reply. It would have been glad to tell the girl that there was a very real and a very growing inducement to remain at El Orobo Rancho. The man was too self-controlled, however, to give way to the impulses of his heart.

At first he had just liked the girl, and been immensely glad of her companionship because there was so much that was common to them both—a love for good music, good pictures, and good literature—things Bridge hadn't had an opportunity to discuss with another for a long, long time.

And slowly he had found delight in just sitting and looking at her. He was experienced enough to realise that this was a dangerous symptom, and so from the moment he had been forced to acknowledge it to himself he had been very careful to guard his speech and his manner in the girl's presence.

He found pleasure in dreaming of what might have been as he sat watching the girl's changing expression as different moods possessed her; but as for permitting a hope, even, of realization of his dreams—ah, he was far too practical for that, dreamer though he was.

As the two talked Grayson passed. His rather stern face concluded as he saw the girl and the new bookkeeper laughing there together.

"Ain't you got nothin' to do?" he asked Bridge.

"Yes, indeed," replied the latter.

"Then why don't you do it?" snapped Grayson.

"I am," said Bridge.

"Mr. Bridge is entertaining me," interrupted the girl, before Grayson could make any rejoinder. "It is my fault—I took him from his work. You don't mind, do you, Mr. Grayson?"

Grayson mumbled an inarticulate reply and went his way.

"Mr. Grayson does not seem particularly enthusiastic about me," laughed Bridge.

"No," replied the girl, candidly; "but I think it's just because you can't ride."

"Can't ride!" ejaculated Bridge. "Why haven't I been riding ever since I came here?"

"Mr. Grayson doesn't consider anything in the way of equestrianism unless the ridden is perpetually seeking the life of the rider," explained Barbara. "Just at present he is terribly put out because you lost Brazos. He says Brazos never stumbled in his life, and even if you had fallen from his back he would have stood beside you waiting for you to remount him. You see he was the kindest horse on the ranch—especially picked for me to ride. However, in the world did you lose him, Mr. Bridge?"

The girl was looking full at the man as she propounded her query. Bridge was silent. A faint flush overspread his face. He had not before known that the horse was hers. He couldn't very well tell her the truth, and he wouldn't lie to her, so he made no reply.

Spuds Split Bargain Bill With Gassers as Series Ends

RUTH STOPS SHREVEPORT IN OPENER, BUT WEAKENS WHEN IRON-MAN STUNT IS ATTEMPTED

White's Homer Sews Up First; Summa Again Stages Hitting Spree; Gassers Lambast Ruth for Many Bases in Second; Storey and Felix Drive Out Knocks for the Circuit

SHREVEPORT, La., July 9.—The Spudders and Gassers divided a double bill the visitors taking the first 9-4, and dropping [illegible] second, a seven-inning affair, 1-12.

The Spudders slugged their way to the long end of the opener, while the Gassers turned the same trick in the closing act of the matinee.

Perdue started for the Spudders but gave way to Ruth in the seventh with the count tied and two runners aboard. Ruth retired the side and prevented further scoring. He then attempted to hurl the second go, but was found for many hits, a majority of which were extra base blows. These coupled with two errors enabled the home team to count a dozen runs, while a bad throw by Storey to catch Beck at third resulted in the only run allotted the Spudders in the last game.

Bird was the nomination for the second, and allowed but three hits, one of which was of the scratch variety. He was in great form and hurled masterful ball throughout.

McGrew was sent to open the first, but a series of hits drove him from the mound before the second runner had been retired. Three runners chased across the plate in that round. He gave way to Lohman, but he was not as effective as in the opening game of the series and yielded up six runs.

trips up. He went hitless in the second encounter.

White iced the game for the Spudders in the seventh when he found two runners on the bags ahead of him, and promptly drove the ball over the left field fence.

Ruth was fairly effective in the second game until the fifth round when he weakened and a volley of hits including homers by Storey and Felix netted nine runs. After the lead was piled up, Salm let Ruth remain to take his punishment, and one more was tallied in the sixth. Two errors coupled with 12 hits gave the Gassers their dozen runs. The 12 hits gathered by the Gassers totaled 23 bases in the second game.

Two double plays were executed by the Spudders, White to Beck, in the first contest. Both were fast throws after line drives had been snared but the second sacker, and both plays retired the side.

Ezzell pulled a neat piece of base running in the fourth inning of the first game when he stole home as Ruth wound up. He added another to his string of thefts in the second game.

SPUDS RETURN FOR GAME TODAY

Dallas Entertained As First of Guests

By "SPIKE" COOPER.

The Spudders return to the local lot today for a series of engagements with all members of the league.

The Spudders return today, following the most disastrous road trip in the memory of Spudder fans.

Crippled, injured and handicapped at many turns, they finished the first half in a miserable slump. As a starter in the second section of the schedule they managed to drop their first seven contests.

But all these things have not dampened the ardor of the Wichita machine. The games of the last two days at Shreveport demonstrated that the old fight is still there. They showed the old time hitting attack that made them the ones feared of all clubs in the first half.

The pitching staff has been rebuilt. Kenne stepped out and won his first game Saturday. Flaherty was obtained in a trade for Bowman. Freeman is expected hourly. These additions together with Wheeler, Ruth, Mokan and Perdue round out the present corps of gunners. But a staff should be picked from their number that will win a large majority of their games this season. Then there are Ramsey and Fincher resting at the beck and call of Salm in case of a necessity.

Weiss was sent into the game on the day that he appeared in the Spudder fold. He has put up a creditable game and shows he can hit. He is fast and accurate with a good arm. He seems to fill the center position admirably. But the change has shunted Tex McDonald to the bench, perhaps only temporarily, but for the past three games he has failed to break into the column.

Beck and Summa are pounding away on their averages with determination at present, though neither seemed to fance anther pitching.

But the Spudders are coming into the home lot full of fight.

They are coming back to their new home which is complete except some few minor details, which will be easily finished within the week. New and more comfortable seats are awaiting the opening of the ticket window by Will Gray this afternoon.

Bill Newell has a new and fresh supply of cushions, pop, peanuts and such other paraphernalia as is necessary for a contest.

Walter Salm is fighting hard. The team is fighting hard. And if the loyal Spudder fans will step out and fight with them, then there is no limit to the accomplishment of the Spudder "hit and run" mill during the coming protracted home stay.

One game today at 4:00 o'clock, a matinee with James Galloway's appleknockers is the program.

There is room for 4,000 fans in the new ball lot. Nuf sed.

IOWA PARK WINS IN OIL BELT LOOP

IOWA PARK, July 9.—The local team of the Oil Belt league defeated the Northwest Field team 5-1.

Superior hitting by the home team was responsible for the win. Both clubs played clean fast ball.

ELECTRA ARTIST GIVEN AWARD

Color Scheme Wins For Mrs. Dyson

Special to the Record News.

ELECTRA, July 9.—Mrs. J. W. Dyson, 700 Wichita avenue, has been awarded the prize offered by the Devoe Inter-View Decoration contest of New York city for "having developed the most effective color scheme for artistic decoration of the Devoe Model Home." In addition to a cash prize, Mrs. Dyson received a Devoe interior decorating contest diploma, indicating her ability and taste, and and a congratulatory letter asking for further suggestions on decortions.

CHILD IS RECOVERING.

ELECTRA, July 9.—Following her fall from the grandstand at Legion Park July 4, Betty Joe, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Miller, seems to be in a fair way to recovery. She was sitting with her parents and became excited during the rodeo. Slipping through an opening between the footrest and seat, she fell some eighteen feet. When picked up the child seemed lifeless. Fortunately she had no bones broken and it seems suffered no internal injuries.

CAR INJURES MAN.

ELECTRA, July 9.—A brokn collar bone was the extent of injuries received by Reese Morgan of Burkburnett when a Studebaker automobile he was driving turned over just outside of Electra shortly after noon Friday. John Reese, a companion was badly bruised.

TENNIS FANS MEET FOR ACTION

Tournament Plans Will Be Laid Tonight

Tennis fans of the city will meet tonight at Collier and Landon's store for the purpose of forming such committees and organization as may be deemed necessary to promote the Record News championship tournament.

Arrangements have all practically been completed, but will not be passed until committees agreeable to all parties shall adjudge them so.

Grounds are available for play and court owners seem willing to tender their use to the tournament committee, and will see tha nothing interferes with play on the days scheduled for regular matches.

Following the first announcement of the tourney, many inquiries have been received but owing to the meeting tonight, nothing definite has been decided.

Local court followers are highly interested in the event and many have signified their intention of entering and pledged their support in every way to further the interest of the event.

Corner Stone Laying To Be Celebrated

Special to the Record News.

VERNON, July 9.—An educational rally, celebrating the laying of the corner-stone for the new school building now in the course of construction at Oklaunion, eight miles west of here, will be held July 21. There will be a barbecue and picnic, and the corner stone laying exercises will be conducted by the Masons, with the Dallas degree team putting on the work.

Citizens of the community have arranged to barbecue a number of beeves to supplement the basket dinners. In the afternoon there will be a ball game. Candidates for office will also be given an opportunity to appeal to the voters.

Fifteen Minutes of Radio a Day

By EDWARD N. DAVIS

(Formerly Technical Electrical Expert for United States Government)

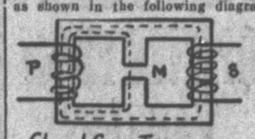

Lesson No. 15

The voltage induced in the secondary winding of an alternating current transformer bears a direct relation to the voltage of the primary winding. The ratio of transformation is very approximately the ratio of the turns in the secondary winding to the turns of the primary winding. For example, if the turns in the secondary winding are one hundred times more in number than the turns in the primary winding, the induced voltage in the secondary winding will be approximately one hundred times greater than the impressed voltage in the primary winding.

If the current is developed by the alternating current generator at a frequency of 500 cycles per second and flows through the primary winding, there will be 1,000 alternations per second of the magnetic lines of force, generated by this current. The lines of force interlink with the secondary winding and induce a current which alternates 1,000 times per second. As explained above, if the turns in the secondary winding are greater in number than the turns in the primary winding, the transformer will "step-up" the voltage to a greatly increased value.

The closed core transformer may have an additional feature design known as the magnetic leakage gap, as shown in the following diagram:

Closed Core Transformer with Gap.

The function of the magnetic leakage gap (M) is to prevent the burning out of the coils of the transformer as under the conditions of spark discharge in the radio transmitter, the secondary winding of the transformer is practically short circuited when the transmitting key closes the primary circuit. The secondary winding, consequently, draws an abnormal current which is very liable to burn out the coils. The ability of this gap to provide a path for magnetic leakage gives a practically constant value to the self-inductance of the primary winding and eliminates the danger to the coils during the short periods when the secondary winding is undergoing short circuit conditions.

The open core transformer, also used in radio work, is described as follows: The core is cylindrical in shape and composed of small iron wires. Wound on the core, and insulated from it, is the primary winding consisting of a few turns of fairly coarse wire. Covering the primary winding is an insulating shield or tube over which the form wound coils of the secondary winding are slipped. These secondary coils are in sections composed of many turns of fine wire and the various sections are connected in series.

The auto transformer consists of a single coil of wire wound on an iron core and used for both the primary and secondary circuits. By this method both the primary and secondary windings have turns in common. This type of transformer is not suited to the development of high voltage but with an air core may be used in the high frequency oscillating circuits of the radio transmitter or receiver.

BAPTISTS AND POND PLAY TODAY

The Ponds Laundry nine will meet the Baptists today to play off the game which was tied last week. The schedule game was called in the seventh inning because of darkness, with the score 5-5. Both teams are fighting hard for the Twilight league pennant and the contest should be a snappy one.

STAMFORD HOME BURNS

Special to The Record News.

STAMFORD, July 9. — The residence of J. P. Terry was partially destroyed by fire last night. The total damage was in the neighborhood of $1,000.

The Stamford volunteer fire department prevented the total destruction of the residence and rendered efficient service.

The loss was partially covered by insurance.

VERNON, July 9.—Examinations for county and city teachers' certificates were held in Vernon last Friday and Saturday under the direction of local officials. Eight teachers appeared for examination.

GIRL'S PIG SETS RECORD

Special to the Record News.

VERNON, July 9.—What a young girl can do with a registered pig is strikingly demonstrated by Miss Lorell Dobbins, of Oklaunion, eight miles east of Vernon, who is feeding a registered big-boned Poland China pig and is keeping an accurate record of the gains made by the animal month by month. When she bought the pig in December it weighed only 41 pounds. Under the careful feeding by the young girl the future hog has put on weight at a lively rate and when weighed July 4 tipped the beam at 353 pounds, representing a gain of 312 pounds in seven months.

SCHOOLS 'LL GET MONEY IN FALL

Miss Blanton Writes Supt. Bryant

Six reasons answering the question of why school funds have not been paid as promptly this year as in the past three years are fully outlined in a communication received by County Superintendent Burl Bryant. The communication emanated from Miss Annie Webb Blanton's office at Austin.

Unpaid taxes, the letter from Miss Blanton states, are due to a large extent for the delayed payments. It is her expressed opinion, however, that at no time has she found funds in the treasury and requested that they be sent out to the various school disricts, that some funds were not forwarded at once.

The opinion is expressed that all the state of Texas has promised its schools will be paid in the early fall, for, the communication says, "the state has never yet failed, eventually, to keep its promise."

Miss Blanton says that if each county and city superintendent would urge the payment of delinquent taxes, that "this would help considerably." The state department of education, she avers, should not be held responsible for all the situation when the source of revenue—the tax-payer—will not meet the necessary obligations.

Surplus Had Prevailed.

In outlining her reasons as to why school funds have not been paid promptly, Miss Blanton, according to Superintendent Bryant, says that in the past three years there was most of the time a large surplus. The state tax board fixed the rate so high, she says, as to meet all appropriations and leave an excellent surplus. The $4,000,000 appropriated last year and the rural school appropriations, she says, were made from the general fund, and money was consequently available from the inception of the scholastic year.

Under present conditions, with delinquent tax rolls swelled to enormous proportions, the schools are forced to run from five to six months before state taxes on which they are partially supported are paid into the state treasury. In this connection Miss Blanton calls attention, in her letter to the fact that the schools derive the main portion of their support from the 35 per cent advalorem tax, which is used in paying teachers, buying school books, etc.

Lowered Tax Rate.

Although there was a $3,000,000 general appropriation made by the state legislature for school purposes this year, according to Superintendent Bryant, the state tax board had lowered the tax rate to such an extent that there was no surplus remaining in the treasury. Consequently the appropriation, by its own terms he said, could not be used until in the early spring.

It is estimated by the county superintendent that approximately 20 per cent of all the state taxes are unpaid for this year. This information, Mr. Bryant intimates, is issued through Miss Blanton, who in turn received such statements from the state comptroller's department.

The present depository law, according to Miss Blanton's letter, is another cause of delay in payment of school funds. Under this law, Miss Blanton points out, state funds are deposited in various banks throughout the state; when appropriations are made by the legislature, the banks forward the money instantly to the various districts—if they have the money. Because they have not had money at all times, Miss Blanton argues, the law has caused payments to be blocked.

It is suggested by Miss Blanton that where sufficient money is not on hand, that schools should borrow the funds needed, pay at least the salaries of teachers and continue their work.

Little Stories For Bedtime

MR. GARTERSNAKE LOSES A BREAKFAST.

When Farmer Brown's boy came around a turn in the old cow-path in the Old Pasture and saw right in front of him little Mr. Gartersnake trying to swallow one of the children of Sticktoes, the Tree Toad, he knew right away who it was who had been crying, "Help! Help!" in a faint, funny, little voice. Of course it was young Master Stickytoes. And he knew now why those cries had so suddenly stopped. They had stopped because young Master Stickytoes was on his way down the throat of little Mr. Gartersnake, and he was going down head first. With his head in Mr. Gartersnake's mouth of course he couldn't make a sound.

But young Master Stickytoes was very much alive. That was easy to see by the way he was kicking his legs, which were sticking out of little Mr. Gartersnake's mouth. Those kicking legs were begging for help. There was no doubt about that. Of course, little Mr. Gartersnake saw Farmer Brown's boy, and into his two little eyes, which never wink and never blink, because you know, they have no lids, crept a look of fear and anger combined. Right away little Mr. Gartersnake tried to wiggle out of sight among the bushes. But wriggling wasn't easy. Oh, my no! In fact it was rather hard work, because—why because he had to carry young Master Stickytoes with him. He had got Master Stickytoes so far down his throat that he couldn't get him out again. That is what comes of bolting your food without chewing it, and from trying to swallow it whole. Little Mr. Gartersnake isn't to be blamed for such seeming greediness. You see, he hasn't any teeth to chew with and he has to swallow his food whole. He just has to. But sometimes he has to pay a penalty just the same as you or I would.

The first thing Farmer Brown's boy did was to look for a stick to kill little Mr. Gartersnake. And then a little blush of shame crept over his freckled face. "The idea!" said he right out loud. "The idea of great big me hurting a little fellow like Mr. Gartersnake, who never in all his life has done me any harm and couldn't if he would. Fact is, he is a friend, only he doesn't know it, and I owe him a lot for the good work he and his relatives do every day by killing harmful insects. Master Stickytoes should have known enough to keep out of his way."

With that he stopped suddenly and picked up little Mr. Gartersnake just back of his head, and with the other hand caught the kicking legs of young Master Stickytoes and pulled. Out came Master Stickytoes gasping for breath and with his eyes popping right out of his head with fright. Farmer Brown's boy put him down on the ground and young Master Stickytoes didn't even stop to say thank you. He just started to get as far away from here as his legs would take him. Farmer Brown's boy watched him and then he began to laugh.

"Phew!" he exclaimed. "I didn't suppose any kind of a toad could travel so fast."

Young Master Stickytoes was soon out of sight, but Farmer Brown's boy still held little Mr. Gartersnake to give Master Stickytoes a chance to reach a place of safety. Mr. Gartersnake wriggled and twisted and struggled until he found that it was of no use. Then he lay quiet, just running out his tongue at Farmer Brown's boy in the most impudent way. Farmer Brown's boy laughed.

"Somebody ought to teach you better manners," said he, "but I don't know as I blame you. Perhaps I wouldn't be any better mannered if some big giant took my breakfast away when I was hungry."

After a little he very gently put little Mr. Gartersnake down. Mr. Gartersnake paused just a minute, ran his tongue out at him once more, then glided away among the bushes.

"I hope that he knows that I am his friend even if I did take his breakfast away," muttered Farmer Brown's boy as he went back for his berry pail.

G. O. P. VOTERS MEET JULY 19

Wichita Falls Gets County Parley

Republican voters of Wichita county have been called to meet in Wichita Falls July 29 to elect delegates and alternates to the state republican convention August 8.

At the meeting, delegates and alternates will also be elected to attend the various district conventions to be held.

A complete republican ticket for all county and precinct offices will be designated at the local meeting.

The meeting is called by D. T. Bacon, republican county chairman, at the instance of the state republican executive committee.

Each election precinct will be entitled to one vote in the county convention for every 25 votes or major fraction thereof, cast in such precinct for John G. Culbertson, republican candidate for governor in the election of 1920.

Precinct primary conventions will be held July 22, but locations have not yet been announced. These announcements will be made by the chairman of each precinct in the near future.

KAY PREACHES ON DREAMERS

Hard to Think In a Dignified Way

In the Olympic theater Sunday morning Judge John C. Kay delivered one of the most interesting lectures of the many he has delivered to his men's Bible class. There were 108 men present and the lecture Judge Kay gave held them in rapt attention. Judge Kay said in part:

Nebuchadnezzar dreamed about himself. So do you. You dream in day time, while you are walking alone. All your dreams are not at night and while you sleep and are mostly about yourself. You know, if I had done some of my thinking that was done on myself, if I had put that energy on other things, I would have been much further down the road of life.

Now, Daniel was a man called a prophet and an interpreter of dreams. Daniel was down there in prison, a sort of a prisoner. He was in exile, in the hands of a great king—not a good king, but a strong one; in a foreign land, still true to his religion, still true to himself, still thinking right.

It is mighty hard to think right. It is because we don't think with enough dignity. That's one of our weaknesses, that most of our dignity is of ourselves, not outside on other things.

Now, we haven't had in this country, in a good while—hear me, men—we haven't had in this country in a good while, the clear, strong, steady voice of authority. But, he's coming. There's a fellow going to rise up in these United States some day that, when he opens his mouth and speaks, you will hear the voice of the old viking that left the shores of Mooseland, going out in the sea in his craft to fight. You will hear the voice of the great captain. You will hear the voice that none will dare to dispute.

It don't take a prophet to see that. That's happened in every land. And, then it is that we will listen and think—maybe not too late—maybe too late. I don't know.

These French people said there wasn't any God. They set up the throne of reason and laughed to scorn the thoughts of the pious; and, while they were having their riots and their crime and their circuses, one day—away down the street—they heard the voice of a little bronze lieutenant from Corsica and he said: "Fire!" And they knew it when they heard him, and the streets were clean.

So Daniel was talking to these people, to the king and to everybody through the king, not about what was going to happen, but what must happen. He wasn't the prophet there saying that this thing is going to happen, but his words meant more. It meant that it was inevitable that it will happen. Two and two makes four. That's what he talked to them about.

Now, this king had sense enough to listen. He promoted this great man. He set him up as one of his great officers.

So they set up this man Daniel there for leadership. Now Daniel had always been as fine and clean as he could be. While everybody else was down there drinking wine in that party—not everybody else, but nearly everybody else—and eating these highly seasoned foods and meats, he was eating black-eyed peas. The book says. It is not me that says that. I may offend some grammarian here, they say the right name is black-eye peas and not black-eyed. But they say that's what he was eating.

Now you can't bribe a fellow like that. When a fellow doesn't want anything but just enough food to keep his blood circulating, you can't buy, nor bluff, nor bribe him. The reason we fall down is that we see so many things we want and do some strange things, sometimes, to get them. If more of you would eat simple food and confine yourselves to the satisfaction of simple wants, you would be more able to interpret your own dreams and the dreams of other people.

Now where did these dreams come from? Not from Babylon. They didn't float down the Euprates river. They didn't bring them from Palestine, but they came from up above. They came because of man's relation to infinity; because of the divinity that is in him.

How about that Joseph that went down into Egypt and saved the lives of his people and the lives of the people of Egypt and, yet, men said about him: "Behold this dreamer coming!"

We know about Daniel and Joseph and all these prophets, and all the other great men of every age and we have inherited all of the wisdom and all the science of life that they have taught us to know and yet, often we are like the rich heir who squanders that that their ancestor toiled to get.

A man went out and died that you might have this christian religion; they were burned at the stake; they were thrown to the wild beasts, and by that suffering, and by that struggling, and more, and most of all, by the supreme sacrifice of the blood of the Master on the cross; it was by these things that we come into this great inheritance.

What ought our thinking to be? It ought to be to making a kingdom in our minds to cultivate that part of us that is going to live always, to cultivate that part which is moral and social and religious and to leave out and destroy our selfish thoughts, our mean thoughts, our avaricious thoughts and all that thing.

SMART MIDSUMMER MILLINERY EFFECTS

By ELOISE

With the approach of July and August the sun's rays bring forth the largest hats of the season. Hats for both town and country wear take on huge proportions. Large drooping brimmed sailors of straw are favored for garden and general utility wear but soft brimmed leghorns, organdies and georgette hats are worn upon more formal occasions.

Here are three attractive models for midsummer wear which might find a place in a single wardrobe. The hat at the left is one of the popular garden hats of straw. They are smart in black trimmed with white flowers or colored field flowers or in highly colored straws trimmed with flowers in a contrasting shade. This hat is of russet straw with flowers and cherries of the same shade.

A charming hat for the bridesmaid's costume or other formal outfit is shown in the center. It is a graceful leghorn shape faced with flesh colored georgette and trimmed with a long sash of wide blue ribbon held in place by a huge pink cabbage rose.

The hat at the right is designed for the matron. It is a stunning mushroom shape of orchid, beige and rose organdie folds. The wreath of flowers and grass is of different shades of henna. The color combination is a bit daring but it goes well with many different costumes.

Aside from such styles as these the white sports hats in large shapes are also modish.

Men of Nine Crafts Offered Work

Part of the railroads at least are not contemplating the return of the "walk-out" labor. The Missouri, Kansas & Texas are endeavoring to replace their depleted forces with experienced men.

Superintendents at all division points in the state have been instructed and authorized to employ capable men to fill the vacancies now existing.

Openings are now existing in nine of the crafts which are essential to traffic maintenance, and the heads of the system desire all places filled immediately.

3,000 THRILLED BY DYANSHINE

"Death Drag" Put on At Lake Wichita

A crowd estimated at 3,000 people witnessed Daredevil Dyanshine in his "death drag" exhibition yesterday evening under a wager with Barton Manufacturing company, out of Waco, Texas, was strapped inside a regulation strait-jacket, and laid on the ground 20 feet behind a Nash car furnished by King & Weaver Auto Co., starting at the gate of the insane asylum he was dragged down the country road to the Lake Wichita gate at the rate of 40 miles an hour.

The wild drive was led by a motorcycle officer. The exhibition was far more sensational than anybody would imagine. In fact, it has to be seen to be appreciated as no newspaper story can give it the credit it justly deserves. The manager, Mr. Albritton, was well satisfied with the results and hopes that the stunt just performed will be the means of attracting the attention of the Wichita Falls people to the fact that they have one of the prettiest lakes in this part of the country as well as lots of amusements to help them pass away the summer months.

Daredevil Dyanshine has knocked off another stunt from his list, bringing him tht much closer toward the end of his trip as well as being closer to win the wager which he is under he is leaving here today for Electra then he will go into Oklahoma and then north.

Moving pitcures of the stunt was made by Duffy Mapes who also intends to take some more of Daredevil Dyanshine in case he performs in Electra in the next day or so.

Daredevil Dyanshine came through the exhibition without a scratch, however he says that he was not quite on his middle as he made several slips on his wild trip and rolled over several times losing complete control of himself but managed to get control again and finished the drive without a scratch.

Second Expedition of Commerce Will "Take Off" at 4 o'Clock

At 4 o'clock this afternoon, the second trade trip of the season will pull out from the Wichita Falls station.

Regardless of rail strike and incidents that might be interpreted to interfere with the excursion, the trippers will "take off" on scheduled time.

Only one stop is carded for the first day's activities. Arriving at Henrietta at 4:45 p. m., the expedition will hold forth on its mission until 10 p. m., when they leave for Gainesville. An early start from Gainesville will begin a day's journey which ends at midnight in Breckenridge.

According to those in charge of the trip, all arrangements have been complete. Particular stress has been laid on the fact that all meals have been engaged.

The "eat" schedule calls for Monday dinner, Henrietta at 10 p. m.; Tuesday, breakfast, Gainesville, 9:15 a. m.; lunch, Nocona, 2 p. m.; dinner, Jacksboro, 10 p. m.; Wednesday, breakfast, Elinsville, 9:45 a. m.; lunch New Castle, 2:45 p. m.; dinner, home.

The second commercial journey takes the trippers through sections of the fertile lands of north Texas, loops around through the Young and Stephens county oil fields and back across the wheat lands of Archer county.

more than 100 reservations for the excursion have been made.

Enthusiasm is at high tide on the eve of departure. Souvenirs, mementos and various "give-aways" are all ready for the start.

At 4 o'clock the trippers will be on their way.

Irrigation Makes Hog Study Interesting—Here's One Lesson

By FRANK S. REID.

It was the writer's privilege, while in irrigation work in Idaho, to have not only handled a shovel, spread irrigation water, do all manner of things that were to be done in he development of an irrigated ranch, but to attend agricultural meetings, fostered by the State university and the United States government; to become acquainted with noted authorities along agricultural lines, men who specialized in the different branches of agriculture. During an interesting course of two weeks instruction given by the Movable School of Agriculture, I gathered together a book full of shorthand notes, which were later published as Bulletin No. 1, Movable Schools of Agriculture, University of Idaho.

This bulletin contained the meat of the practical talks given by agricultural specialists, and it has occurred to me that, through the kindness of the local papers, I might pass on to interested readers, some of this information that I gathered, since the question of agriculture is going to be one of vital interest upon the completion of our local irrigation project, and so with this idea in mind. I am going to refer you to the following verbatim notes which I took of a talk on "Types and Breeds of Hogs" given by one Edward J. Idding, considered by livestock men of the west, as one of the foremost raisers and judges of livestock of all kinds. Mr. Iddings was then in charge of the animal husbandry work of the University of Idaho located at Moscow:

Hog Classification.

In speaking of the hog he said: "Hogs are divided into two general classifications: Lard and bacon. The former is popular in the United States and the latter in the old world. The bacon type of hog has a long nose, narrow head, and small jole. He has a longer neck than the finer types of hogs seen. He has a finer shoulder. He has a long, deep, flat side in back of the shoulder. His rib comes out square from the backbone. Instead of having a deep wide spring, it seems to drop off rather suddenly. Look for a long and deep side. The hams have a nice curve from the top of the hips down to the tail. He stands higher off the ground than the lard type. His whole make-up is more on the line of an animal that is built for getting around, and being more active on his feet, he is freer from disease. He is a slower grower, and needs more feed and care than a lard hog.

Bacon Hog More Prolific.

The bacon hog is usually the more prolific. Hogs of this type do not generally drop less than 10 pigs at a litter, while the lard hogs run from 6 to 9 at a litter. The lard hog has a short nose. In some of the breeds the nose is so short that the lower jaw is deformed. He has a wide head. H eis full in the jole. Going back with his head he is short and thick and deep in the neck and his neck fits into the shoulder so that you can hardly tell where neck stops and shoulder begins. The shoulder is short and wider over the top than the bacon hog, and much deeper through the middle of the shoulder. He has a broad back and deep side, which gives him a great middle. The hips are broad, smooth and well covered.

Three Bacon Breeds.

You want a lard hog well developed in the ham. You want a ham that, when you look at it from the side is wide and rounds up. You do not want any straight lines on the ham of a lard hog. He wants to be full between the legs and fully rounded out on the sides. The best lard hogs are set very low and close to the ground.

Of the bacon breeds there are three principal types: The most attractive breed of bacon hog is probably the Tamworth or red breed. They vary in color from a light red to a dark red, which, in old age, gets almost black. The Tamworth has a long nose and long legs and has considerable belly under him.

In judging a hog of the bacon type, particularly the Tamworth, you want to look out for a lot of coarseness in the shoulder. The Tamworth hog approaches, closely, to the ideal bacon type. They are good rustlers and good breeders.

Another breed of the bacon hog is a large black breed. The chief points of difference from the other breeds are that they are light in the shoulder, and have a great elephant ear. The ear is so large that it blinds them and they are a hard hog to drive.

In judging lard hogs you will look for great development of the ham, but I would never want a great big ham off a narrow loin and back and probably heavy shoulders.

The Berkshire is one of the oldest breeds. The modern Berkshire has a long regular ear, short nose, black in color with six white points. His fore feet are alike. He has some white on tip of tail and somewhere about his nose and face. He is noted especially for his style, early maturity and fine quality. The Berkshire breed, compared with the other fat hogs, is a little long and has a little more style and more length, and is probably as good a rustler as any breed."

These verbatim notes, for their simplicity, should appeal to the man who handles hogs, yet who is not a thorough judge of the different types.

BUSINESS HAS BETTER TREND

Commodity Prices Are Improved

NEW YORK, July 9.—While the holidays have served to obscure the trend in business and finance during the past week, the available evidence indicates a continuation of the improvement in general business.

The securities markets have continued to show considerable irregularity, but the tendency has been, on the whole, toward higher prices. Call money also has been a variable factor and the reserve ratio of the combined federal reserve system has fallen for the second consecutive week. The normally heavy demand for currency in connection with early July holidays has caused latest declines in ratio and that real tendency of money rate during the month remains to be disclosed.

No falling off is discernible, meanwhile in the demand for steel, despite the fact that pig iron output for June set a new high record for the year, a daily average of 78,000 tons comparing with 74,400 tons in May and 53,100 tons in January. Loadings of railroad cars also have risen to a new high record.

Other signs of increasing stability in business are furnished by firmness in the general level of commodity prices and a continuation of the falling off in the volume of business failures. Thus Dun's index of wholesale prices rose 2.2 per cent during June, with all seven groups of constituent commodities participating in the advance.

Commercial failures as reported by the same agency declined to 1,740, which is 220 less than in any month of the year.

Liabilities involved fell off in similar measure. These facts illustrated, apparently, the growing safety of doing business and explain the increase in confidence which lately has been apparent.

Although existing strikes continue to supply an element of uncertainty, most quarters consider that the events of the week have justified optimistic views as to the effect of the railroad walkout.

The New England textile strike is dragging on with mixed results so far as one side or the other is concerned, but the suspension of coal mining is still regarded as the most important of the country's industrial disputes. It is too early to estimate the probable results of the negotiations now going on at Washington to end the strike.

Economy Versus Waste
During the warm Summer months when there is so little fuel used, if you feel your gas bill is too high, take a look at your dial on your gas meter. The test or one-foot hand at the top of the dial should not be moving if all fires are out. In case it is moving there is a leak of gas some place which is expensive and dangerous. Call us up. We are always glad to come out and see where the trouble is. We want pay for only what you use and are anxious to help you economize on your fuel bill.

That Curious Device for Making Fire
It was only seventy-five years ago that a woman of the Middle West wrote to her cousin in New York:
"Last winter I was told of a curious new device for making fire. It consisted of small splinters of wood with tips of some substance that bursts into flame when rubbed on a rough surface. If you can procure some of them for me I shall be grateful."
Matches were in general use in Europe for years before they were seen in this country. There was no means for spreading such news rapidly.
Today, the new invention that contributes to comfort or convenience is quickly known the country over. Advertising conveys the information. The farmer's wife in Texas or Idaho is as well posted on these things as the city woman of the East.
Don't Overlook the advertisements in these columns. They are heralds of progress, with real news for you and your family. They save time, lighten your work and enable you to obtain the utmost in value for the money you spend.
