Reagan has plenty of reasons to run again

By JAMES GERSTENZANG

An Analysis

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pretend for a moment Ronald Reagan really hasn't decided whether to run for re-election. He could find ample reasons to go either way.

All signs indicate that he will tell the nation in a five-minute televised speech Sunday night that he wants to stay in the White House four more years. The only surprise would be if he didn't.

Why wouldn't he run? There are some arguments he might make to himself.

First, Reagan will be 73 years old on Feb. 6. That would mean that should he serve a full second term, he would be nearly 78 years old when he leaves office.

His re-election would mean that the next four years, when most people his age are retired, and perhaps in declining health, would be spent in what is considered one of the most demanding jobs in the world.

Should he step down, he and his wife could have the considerable perquisites of former White House residents while living a life of retirement in California, without any of the responsibilities of Washington.

There are other reasons — some with undertones of possibly affecting how history books will be written — that could cut both ways.

Proud of the fact that no country has turned communist during his watch over the presidency, Reagan is facing an uncertain situation in Central America, with no clear indication that the government in El Salvador will be able to withstand the pressure of the left-wing guerrillas. That challenge, of course, could lead Reagan to stick it out for another four years to put his stamp on the resolution of the conflict.

In the Middle East, he has claimed genuine progress in moving toward his goal of a stable Lebanon able to stand on its own, free of foreign forces. But an end to the deployment of the U.S. Marines is not in sight. Should the president decide to retire, he might just remove the issue of Lebanon from the U.S. political campaign.

Ditto arms control. With his advisers convinced that the Soviets would prefer to deal with any candidate other than Reagan, progress on arms control in 1984 is considered unlikely. Negotiations with the Soviet Union over reducing medium-range nuclear-tipped missiles in Europe and long-range, strategic nuclear weapons in the U.S. and Soviet arsenals have broken down, with no signs that they will become unstuck soon.

The president could step away from the political race and focus on the relationship of the superpowers.

Three day care centers terrorized by holdup men

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Police have issued a citywide warning following three recent holdups at day care centers, one by a gunman who warned terrified youngsters to keep quiet "or he'd kill them all."

"We don't know why anyone would choose to rob day care centers, it's just not worth it," Detective Sgt. Don Hardy said Friday. "The only thing we can think of is that the little kids and teachers are easy prey for holdup men."

Although the amount of loot taken in the stickups — the most recent Thursday — is relatively small and no one has been hurt, police are upset about the nature of the crimes.

"The most important thing is the emotional trauma this thing must have caused for those kids and their parents," said Detective Richard Brogan. "What a terrible, terrible experience."

On Jan. 9, gunmen forced five adults at the junior kindergarten of the Page Park YMCA to hand over about $2,000 in cash and jewelry. On Dec. 20, about $466 in cash and jewelry was taken from two adult victims at the St. Mark's Head Start Program.

And on Thursday, three gunmen held up day care classes at the St. Peters A.M.E. church in a North Side neighborhood.

Hardy said the department has issued an alert to all day care centers in the city, especially those on the North Side, to lock their doors if possible and refuse entrance to strangers.

The stickup Thursday began when three men entered the church. One went to the office and asked about enrolling a child, then burst into Emma Hopkins' class of 4- and 5-year-olds and pulled a revolver.

"I was sitting there with the kids at my feet," said Mrs. Hopkins, 63. "It was group time. He told me to keep them quiet or he'd kill them all."

As the 12 pre-school children watched in horror, the robber thrust his pistol into the cheek of assistant Eddie Wright, 27, and took him to the other classroom. There, about 20 students, three parents and three teachers were ordered to lie flat as the other two gunmen collected their money and jewelry.

After picking up about $84 and jewelry, the robber returned to Mrs. Hopkins' class, pointed the pistol "right up in my face," and ordered her to remove her watch and ring.

"I was trying to get my jewelry off, but then a child started crying so I went to comfort him," she said in an interview. The robber "put that gun right in my face and said, 'Don't move.' But another child started to cry, so I went to comfort him."

The robber waved his gun at her again, she said. "And they all started crying. Don't shoot Mrs. Hopkins, don't shoot her. They were very upset," she said.

At that point, Mrs. Hopkins "had to do some quick thinking." So she told her crying pupils, "Don't worry, the pastor's coming down the stairs now."

The robber fled, and the class ran up the stairs and into the sanctuary, where Mrs. Hopkins called police. By the time officers arrived, the men were gone.

Teen-age girl may be held in protective custody until year's end

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — A 15-year-old girl has been in custody for 10 months as a witness in a child-molestation case and may be held for the rest of the year to protect her life and prevent her from fleeing, a prosecutor said Friday.

The girl, who was not identified, is believed to be in jeopardy because of a death threat made against her and a prosecutor in the case, said Orange County Deputy District Attorney James Reilly.

The teen-ager, whose parents and four brothers live in Lake Elsinore in neighboring Riverside County, "has a history of being a runaway. She had run away (from home) at least six times," he said.

Attorney Marshall Schulman, representing one of the defendants, has contended the girl has been held illegally and should be freed. Reilly denies the accusation.

Although protective custody is occasionally used to ensure the safety of witnesses, this case is unusual because of the girl's age and the length of time she has been held.

The teen-ager is being held as a material witness in a 156-count felony case against six men accused of sex and perversion charges involving her and another girl, now 18.

Reilly said he doesn't expect those cases to be over until the end of 1984. The prosecution and defense are now arguing pretrial motions.

The girl soon will be moved from Orange County Juvenile Hall, where she has been held since March, to an undisclosed location out of state, Reilly said. She will return when it is time to testify.

He said a defendant, Nicholas Scollard, 61, told an undercover officer in jail last month that he and his associates were considering killing the girl and Deputy District Attorney Jan Sturla, who was prosecuting the case at the time.

Schulman has argued that the girl's testimony is unreliable because she is being held against her will and believes she must cooperate with prosecutors.

Physicians still puzzled by Alzheimer's disease

EDITOR'S NOTE: In laboratories across the United States and elsewhere, researchers are gradually bringing humanity's most feared diseases under control. In Part Five of a 10-part series, AP science writer Paul Raeburn deals with the steady — and sometimes remarkable — progress that has been made.

By PAUL RAEBURN
AP Science Writer

The first sign is that memory begins to falter. A visit to see the grandchildren is forgotten two or three days later.

Then the most familiar surroundings become strange. It's easy to get lost. Eventually, speech becomes difficult, balancing the checkbook impossible.

These are not the inexorable signs of advancing age. They are the mark of serious illness: Alzheimer's disease.

Two decades ago, the disease was scarcely recognized. Now it is known to affect more than a million Americans over 65. As America's population ages, interest in the disease is growing.

And the impasse in understanding the disease has finally been broken.

"I think everyone feels there is a real sense of excitement in a disease that was barely thought about or studied 20 years ago," says Dr. Dennis Selkoe of Harvard Medical School. "I think in the next five years, there will be a number of other major developments that will bring us closer to understanding the mechanism that causes this."

In its final stages, Alzheimer's disease leads to progressive paralysis and difficulty breathing. The breathing problems encourage the development of pneumonia, which is what most Alzheimer's disease victims die of.

Selkoe estimates that the disease, sometimes called senile dementia, kills 100,000 Americans a year.

When Alzheimer's disease was first discovered, examination of the brains of its victims after their deaths revealed a curious tangle of filaments in the cortex, the part of the brain responsible for intellectual functions.

Scientists tried for years to purify those tangled filaments, and were unsuccessful. Last year, Selkoe and his colleagues found out why. The filaments are made of an unusual kind of protein that is extremely difficult to dissolve. The usual methods of chemical analysis wouldn't work with it.

They hope to eventually develop a test for the protein that will enable doctors to make a definitive diagnosis of Alzheimer's disease, and perhaps even to identify likely victims before they get it.

The purification of the abnormal protein may also allow researchers to trace the ailment to a specific gene defect, perhaps explaining how the disease can be inherited.

In about 15 percent of the cases, it is clearly passed on from one generation to half the members of the following generation. In about half of the remaining 85 percent, there is clear evidence of an inherited predisposition toward the illness.

At the University of Rochester, Dr. Lowell Weitkamp has found evidence that a gene related to Alzheimer's is located on the chromosomes in a place that would suggest it is somehow linked to a deficiency in the body's immune system. Further studies are necessary to confirm that link, Weitkamp says.

Former child star recalls his days as Tarzan's 'boy'

CHULA VISTA, Calif. (AP) — Forty-five years ago, John Sheffield's parents spotted an advertisement in a Hollywood trade journal that asked, "Do you have a Tarzan Jr. in the house?"

They were convinced their son fit the bill, and they were right as young Sheffield passed a screen test at MGM studios, beating out 300 other youngsters for the part of "Boy," the cinematic son of Tarzan.

Sheffield was just 8 when he first met the popular film star, Johnny Weissmuller, who was playing Tarzan at that time.

"He was a fine guy. He was like a father to me," Sheffield says of Weissmuller, who died in Mexico last week at the age of 79.

Sheffield, now 32, starred with Weissmuller in five Tarzan movies between 1939 and 1949, spending much of his formative years clad in a leather loin cloth in the backwaters of Florida, where much of the jungle footage for each production was shot.

Sheffield says the first thing he had to do was learn to swim, and he had the best teacher — Weissmuller himself, who was a record-setting Olympic swimming champion.

Sheffield recalls he got his first lesson at the Hollywood Athletic Club, prior to the filming of "Tarzan Finds a Son," which also starred actress Maureen O'Sullivan as Jane.

"Big John got into the deep end of the pool and told me to jump in," he says. "I jumped in like he told me. He grabbed me as I was thrashing around and when I put my foot on his knee to catch my breath, it was like I was standing on a rock. He was so strong. It was like standing on dry land."

"Today's swimmers are specialists. But he did it all — up-river, down-river, sprints and long-distance. He was like a motorboat in the water."

Although Sheffield rarely saw Weissmuller after he left show business 30 years ago, he says his Hollywood father was always "kind and tender toward me."

"He was always looking out for me. We worked with a lot of live animals and a lot of times, when they got tired, the animals would get feisty," Sheffield recalled.

"There was this one big chimp who got pretty mad one day and was about to bite me while we were on the set. But Big John stuck his leg between me and the chimp and he was the one who was bitten," he said. Weissmuller's rush to rescue his young co-star was a central theme in their movies, which included "Tarzan's Secret Treasure," "Tarzan's New York Adventure," "Tarzan Triumphs," and "Tarzan and the Huntress."

Sheffield went on to make seven jungle-genre films, among them "Bomba the Jungle Boy" and "The Lost Volcano," before ending his film career in the mid 1950s.

"I wasn't into the crowds and adulation. You got to love it to be in that business," says Sheffield, who is married and has three children.

Although he has been out of show business for years, Sheffield says he has paid keen attention to the recent Tarzan films, complimenting the modern versions "as nice clean entertainment."

But, while he compliments Weissmuller's successors, Sheffield reserves his highest praise for his Tarzan.

"The others were good, but Big John was the best. I believe that," Sheffield says.

Pennies cashed in AUSTIN (AP) — A crowd of tellers and customers gathered at Eugene Villarreal Jr. and his father made 25 trips into the lobby of the InterFirst Bank carrying one-gallon jars.

The jars, which had formerly contained picante sauce or jalapeno peppers, were filled with pennies, and after the counting was over, Villarreal was credited with $1,165.

He started saving pennies two years ago because he said a penny by itself won't buy much. Thursday he decided to cash them all in.

Bankers poured the coins into automatic counting machines and put the money into Villarreal's children's savings account.

"I called the bank yesterday to make sure they wouldn't charge me for counting them," said Villarreal, who owns a taco restaurant. A bank official who did not give his name said he had never seen anyone deposit that many pennies at the bank before.

state INS detains aliens at Houston motel

HOUSTON (AP) — The federal government, which is detaining 70 illegal aliens in a north Houston motel, has no right to hire private companies to hold prisoners, an attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union says.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service has been keeping the group of illegal aliens in the Olympic Motel this week, neighbors said. "In the Anglo-American legal tradition, the only party that can detain another is the sovereign, in this case the state or federal government," attorney Stefan Presser said.

The converted motel is now surrounded by a chain-link fence topped with barbed wire.

Linda McWhitney said she and her husband were never given any information about the conversion even though they live next door to the motel.

"There are some people trying to sell houses on this street and I don't think they're going to be able to how," she said.

The INS has also hired the Nashville-based Corrections Corp. of America to operate a 300-bed detention center north of Houston, district Director Paul O'Neill said. The contract is worth $22 million, officials said.

Presser is awaiting a ruling in another federal case related to the issue of private companies holding prisoners.

In that case, Presser contends Danner's Inc., a Houston private security group, was operating a private detention center at which a Colombian stowaway was shot to death in 1981. Officials of the company said the man was shot while trying to escape. Presser argued that the Constitution does not allow the government to "retail out the detention of human beings."

Also at issue is the expected hiring of an Amarillo firm, Palo Duro Detention Services Inc., to operate a 400- to 600-bed federal minimum security prison at an abandoned Army base in Mineral Wells.

HOUSTON (AP)

Murder charges against a 35-year-old woman accused of killing her former pro football player husband were thrown out Friday by a Texas judge who said the case lacked sufficient evidence.

Patricia Latourette broke into tears as District Judge Pete Moore announced he would grant a defense motion and instruct a jury to find the woman innocent of killing Charles "Chuck" Latourette, 38, a former defensive back with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Latourette died Dec. 22, 1982, shortly after he was shot in the eye with a .25-caliber pistol while with his wife in the bedroom of their Houston-area condominium.

Defense attorney Jack Zimmermann contended the shooting was accidental.

Prosecutors tried to show that the couple, married 11 months, argued frequently and often fought, with Mrs. Latourette the aggressor. The only evidence, however, was a tape recording made two months before the shooting in which she threatened to kill her husband, accusing him of having sex with other women.

"I feel relieved, just very relieved," Mrs. Latourette said after the jury was discharged. "I'm going to thank God. My thoughts were with God this morning. I was very confident."

"This still doesn't bring Chuck back," she said. She was Latourette's third wife.

"There was no question in my mind," Moore said of his decision, describing the state's evidence as "strictly insufficient."

"All findings were consistent with accidental death and homicide," the judge said, noting that the prosecution needed to present evidence ruling out accidental death to support its charge.

Harris County Prosecutor Chuck Rosenthal left the courtroom quickly after the decision and could not be reached for comment. In his argument before Moore, however, Rosenthal said the evidence showed "constant threats" and "specific threats" against her husband's life.

"We feel the jury ought to have a chance to rule," Rosenthal said.

Moore said he met the jury after giving them his decision and was told they would have voted unanimously to acquit.

"We thought it was the right decision," said Zimmermann, who filed his brief for a directed verdict of acquittal late Thursday with the conclusion of the state's case. "We are gratified he did it."

The trial was in its second week before a five-woman, seven-man jury.

A family acquaintance who took Mrs. Latourette to the hospital the night of the shooting testified she told him that she and her husband, who became a radiologist after his football career, thought they heard a noise and feared it was a burglar.

The friend, Dr. Charles Baker, said she told him the gun went off as Latourette reached over, grabbed the gun from a box on the bedside table and was attempting to get out of bed. Zimmermann said Friday the explanation was an accurate one but he refused to allow Mrs. Latourette to recount details of the shooting.

On Thursday, Latourette's father, Harry, testified he suspected his son's name may have been forged on a $320,000 insurance policy that made Patricia Latourette the prime beneficiary. Latourette, of Jonesboro, Ark., and executor of his son's estate, originally was named as the beneficiary on the policy.

When he filed a claim on the policy, he said he was unaware that a change had been made, removing him and naming Patricia Latourette the beneficiary.

Testimony in the trial showed the insurance policy was to expire due to non-payment the day Latourette died.

Harry Latourette also acknowledged he had hired an attorney, who was in court taking notes on the trial, with the possibility that a wrongful death suit later could be filed.

Geter will return to work in Greenville

DALLAS (AP) — Lenell Geter says he plans to fly from his South Carolina home to Texas in time for a hearing Monday in the court battle over a "60 Minutes" telecast about the freed engineer's legal problems.

Dallas County District Attorney Henry Wade has asked a state district judge to prevent CBS News from destroying any videotaped interviews, including those never broadcast, used in the "60 Minutes" segment.

Prosecutors said Thursday they eventually plan to subpoena the tapes. Geter, whose life sentence for an armed robbery was overturned shortly after the telecast was aired Dec. 4, is scheduled to be retried April 9.

Geter said he will return to Greenville after Monday's court hearing and will live in the same apartment complex and work at the same E-Systems Inc. job he had before his August 1982 arrest.

Officials at E-Systems, a major defense contractor, have asked him not to reveal the date he will return to work, Geter said.

Assistant District Attorney Karen Beverly said the request for a "protective order" to preserve the tapes was made because "we obviously feel that some of that material might become relevant to the state's case" against Geter. Ms. Beverly signed the request for Wade.

"We'd like to look at some of the things they didn't play," said Wade, who has called the "60 Minutes" telecast "slanted."

He said he was not interested in seeing any specific material from the program. CBS attorney Howard Jaeckel said, "As a general matter, we resist the production of outtakes," or tapes not broadcast. "We essentially take the position that material we don't broadcast is privileged under the First Amendment," which guarantees freedom of the press.

Geter was convicted in October 1982 of robbing a Balch Springs restaurant. A Dallas jury sentenced him to life in prison, although he had no previous criminal record.

Geter's case drew widespread publicity and civil rights groups and some co-workers at E-Systems claimed he was a victim of racism and shoddy police work. Ten days after the "60 Minutes" segment aired, Wade agreed to a plan that overturned Geter's armed robbery conviction and granted him a new trial, scheduled for April 9.

Wade said he wanted to restore the public's faith in the criminal justice system.

State District Judge John Ovard is scheduled to consider the prosecution's request for preservation of the CBS tapes on Monday. Attorneys said Geter is expected to be in Ovard's court then, and other pretrial motions could be filed by defense lawyers and prosecutors.

Geter said in South Carolina he will depart from his mother's Bamberg County home in time to appear at the Monday hearing.

Lawyer in race for chief justice of state court

AUSTIN (AP) — Former Attorney General John Hill pledged Friday that if elected chief justice of the Texas Supreme Court he would be "out of politics" in Texas.

"It is the highest and best service I could render to the people of Texas," Hill told a Capitol news conference in announcing as a Democratic candidate for the top position in the state's highest court.

Hill, 60, who lost a close race to Republican Bill Clements in the 1978 gubernatorial race, apparently will be opposed in the Democratic primary by Justice Sears McGee, a member of the Supreme Court for 15 years.

McGee, 66, said Thursday he planned to make the race.

"I really think he (Hill) is running for governor," McGee said. "I just can't imagine him on the Supreme Court." McGee said.

"Let me say this about any future governor's race," Hill said Friday. "If nominated, I will not run. If elected, I will not serve."

"As you know, someone else said that but that's my sentiments," Hill said he did not know of any possible Republican candidates.

Hill told the news conference he would devote his six-year term of office as chief justice, if elected, to "trying to help lead the effort to improve our system of justice by utilizing the judicial and administrative responsibilities of the office of chief justice."

He said he was supporting a series of proposed changes in disciplinary procedures for lawyers and judges as proposed by the State Bar.

"Basically we need to deal with the complaints that are stacked up against lawyers and need to be handled in the public interest," he said.

He said he also would support a proposed state constitution change on the November ballot that would allow a state judge to be removed from office if he violates the judicial code of procedures.

"The competency and integrity of our lawyers and judges must be unquestioned," Hill said.

He said he would discourage "even the appearance of judicial impropriety and would work for reasonable limits on political contributions in judicial candidates."

Hill said he had a current campaign fund of about $150,000 and believed he had the support of most of the leading law firms in Dallas and Houston.

Hill served as attorney general from 1973 to 1978. Before that he served two years as secretary of state.

He is a senior partner in the firm of Hughes and Hill with offices in Dallas and Austin.

Tickets to be scarce, official says

DALLAS (AP) — Guest tickets to this summer's Republican National Convention will be scarce, a convention official says, because of the large number of requests for media space and the capacity of the Dallas Convention Center.

"We're going to be deluged with requests for guest tickets," said Tabor Ward, convention coordinator for the Republican Party of Texas. "We don't have the foggiest idea right now of how many tickets we will have, but I assure you they will be scarce."

Tickets for non-delegates are distributed by national party officials to each state's three members of the Republican National Committee.

In Texas, the three members are State GOP Chairman George Strake of Houston, Ernest Angelo of Midland and Fran Chiles of Fort Worth.

WEATHER SUMMARY

The Forecast For 7 p.m. EST
Saturday, January 28
High Temperatures

National Weather Service
NOAA, U.S. Dept. of Commerce

The National Weather Service forecasts snow for parts of New York state and showers for parts of Washington, Idaho and Montana.

Pleasant weekend forecast for Basin

Residents of the Permian Basin should be blessed with a pleasant weekend, if forecasts hold true from the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

The high today should be in the mid-60s and the high Sunday in the upper 60s while skies should be sunny.

Winds today should be westerly to northwesterly at 5-15 miles per hour and tonight's low should be in the mid 30s.

The high Friday of 58 was considerably below the record 80 on the same date in 1970, while the low of 29 was 19 degrees off the record set in 1948.

No precipitation is forecast. The year's total remains at 0.41 inch.

Democrats give Reagan low score

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Democrats issued a 114-page political boxscore on Friday that gives President Reagan a "batting average of a mere .250" when it comes to keeping his promises and makes clear they will hold him with that assertion all along the 1984 campaign trail.

"Americans cannot trust Ronald Reagan," said Rep. Tony Coelho of California, who released the document at a Capitol Hill news conference.

It was timed by the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee to take a poke at Reagan just before he announces his re-election plans Sunday night in a paid telecast.

"It is essential to review the president's record on his original promises in order to judge adequately the prospective value of the ones he will begin making two days from now," said Coelho, chairman of the campaign committee.

"In fairness to the president, he has kept some of his promises and, frankly, the American people would be better off if he had broken some of them," said Coelho.

"He has gutted the Environmental Protection Agency, opposed the Equal Rights Amendment and slashed support for education, as he promised to do."

On the other hand, Coelho said Reagan has broken most of the promises he should have kept.

—On promising to revitalize American industry: "America's basic industries — steel autos, textiles, and others — have experienced the worst slump in 50 years and are still operating at greatly diminished capacity, despite one year of supposed recovery."

Doctor testifies about nurse's suicide note

GEORGETOWN (AP) — A nurse charged with murdering a 15-month-old girl and injuring six other children once wrote an apparent suicide note referring to "lives she may have affected," her former employer testified Friday.

Gene Jones, 34, is accused of injecting Chelsea McClellan with a powerful muscle relaxant that caused the child's death Sept. 17, 1982.

In another case, Ms. Jones is accused of injuring six children in her care in Kerrville. And she is charged in San Antonio with administering life-threatening injections to a month-old boy at a hospital where she worked before moving to Kerrville.

Dr. Kathleen Holland, a pediatrician, testified Friday that in September 1982, Ms. Jones left in her office a handwritten note that appeared to be a suicide letter. It was found 11 days after the baby died and the day after Ms. Jones was hospitalized for a drug overdose.

Ms. Holland said the note referred to "seven people she may have affected."

District Judge John Carter kept jurors out of the courtroom while Kerr County District Attorney Ron Sutton questioned Ms. Holland about the letter.

Carter later ruled that he would allow Sutton to make the jury aware of the letter, but that he could not present its contents.

"It seemed to me (from reading the letter) as though she was going to try to commit suicide," the Kerrville doctor said. "She referred to her father, who was dead, and said she was going to be with him."

Ms. Holland said she told the nurse it would be best "after all that has happened," if Ms. Jones left her employer.

"She got angry," the doctor testified, "and said the only thing she regretted was that 'someone has finally convinced you that I'm guilty.'"

At one point in her testimony after the jury returned, Ms. Holland read the nurse's report on the death of Chelsea as the child was being transported to a San Antonio medical center. After technical comments, Ms. Jones added in her report, "I would have given my life for hers. Goodbye, Chelsea."

Ms. Jones, who had shown no emotion during the day's testimony, sniffed and clutched a tissue in her hand.

On Thursday, the doctor testified that Ms. Jones had offered no explanation for two holes that Ms. Holland found in a vial of succinylcholine, the drug allegedly used to kill the baby.

He said the Democrats will use the "fear factor," a method he said has worked well in past campaigns.

For instance, he said, in 1982 political campaigns, people generally were fearful of losing their jobs and whether they could meet financial obligations.

"In 1984, the fear factor is saying, that his man (Reagan) has not done anything to stabilize peace in this world," said Coelho.

Coelho said he also is seriously discussing with Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., a member of the Appropriations Committee, a proposal to immediately give Reagan the power to veto individual items in spending bills for one year.

Reagan wants the line-item veto power and Coelho said he feels the way the president would use such power could be a prime campaign issue for Democrats.

Gardener says pesticide made him kill woman

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A gardener who says lawn pesticides drove him insane calmly described Friday how he garrotted a housewife and attacked her with watermelon-size rocks.

"I really don't know what got into me," David Garabedian testified in measured, boyish tones as his mother covered her face and relatives of the victim wept.

"I grabbed her with my hands around her neck," he said. "I started to squeeze her neck."

Garabedian, 23, is being tried for the murder of 34-year-old Eileen Muldoon on March 29, 1983. Prosecutors say the 6-foot-4, 230-pound gardener strangled and bludgeoned the woman after he came to her Dunstable home to perform a yard survey.

The defense claims temporary insanity, saying Garabedian's mind was clouded by the pesticides he contacted on the job.

Garabedian told a Middlesex Superior Court jury Friday that he began to change after he went to work for Old Fox Lawn Care Inc., in his hometown of Chelmsford on Feb. 28, 1983.

"I had no knowledge of what the chemicals could do," he said.

"I noticed myself getting headaches a lot," he testified. "My eyes got very irritated almost to the point where sometimes I looked like I was crying." He said once he inexplicably became enraged at his teenage sister and knocked her onto a bed.

Garabedian testified that he attacked Mrs. Muldoon after she discovered him urinating in her yard. He said he grabbed the housewife by the throat and she went limp.

"There was a string lying next to me, and I picked up the string and I put it around the front part of her neck, and I used it to squeeze her neck," he said. "Then I got up and, I don't know why, I found myself picking up rocks from the ledge and just throwing them at her."

He said he burst into tears and drove away.

"I wanted to tell somebody about it, but I really didn't know what to do. I was very confused at the time," he said.

Earlier in the trial a neighbor told of hearing a woman scream "No, no!" shortly before the lawn truck drove away.

A medical examiner testified Mrs. Muldoon was killed by strangulation and bludgeoning with rocks weighing up to 48 pounds.

Defense attorney Robert Mardiroian said doctors will testify Garabedian was under the influence of pesticides and not responsible for his acts.

Doctors still puzzled by Alzheimer's disease

One of the first important discoveries came in 1976 in England, when researchers discovered a deficiency of a certain chemical in certain parts of the brains of Alzheimer's victims.

The chemical, acetylcholine, is a neurotransmitter, a substance that brain cells use to send signals to one another. The discovery that it was deficient prompted an immediate trial to correct the deficiency with a special diet.

Lecithin, a substance found in many foods, is one of the raw materials of acetylcholine. Could a diet rich in lecithin boost levels of the deficient neurotransmitter?

In about one-third of the cases, it produced a brief improvement in mental ability. Thus it becomes an interesting subject for further research, but not an immediately available treatment.

The next advance came when researchers at the Johns Hopkins School of Medicine in Baltimore discovered exactly where in the brain these cells deficient in acetylcholine reside.

The finding, that the cells were located in what's called the nucleus basalis of Meynert, helps narrow the search for the ailment's cause.

Other scientists have found abnormalities in another brain chemical called somatostatin. Another study has shown excess levels of D-aspartic acid, an amino acid, one of the building blocks of proteins.

Boy nominated for prestigious award

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) — An 11-year-old boy who pulled an elderly neighbor from her burning apartment, suffering severe burns himself, has been nominated for the Carnegie Foundation's national heroism award.

Timothy Diakis "risked his life to save the life of another. His courage is an inspiration," said Sen. Paul Trible, R-Va., who sent a telegram Thursday to the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission in Pittsburgh to nominate the youth.

The $2,500 award and its accompanying medal are given to people injured during a heroic life-saving act.

"I'm surprised, but I'm gratified," Tim's mother, Diana Diakis, said after hearing of the nomination by Trible. "I think that was really nice of him, and I don't even know him."

Tim crawled through 83-year-old Sarah Sherman's burning apartment Saturday night and pulled her to a hallway, where he collapsed. Both were saved by firefighters. Tim was in fair condition today, and Mrs. Sherman was in satisfactory condition, at Hampton General Hospital.

Tim's family has no insurance to cover his estimated $25,000 in medical bills for treatment of burns on his back and hands. But contributions began arriving after the rescue received nationwide attention.

The Tidewater Shriners have offered to fly Tim to a Shrine Burn Hospital for Children in Cleveland or Boston, where his burns would be treated free of charge.

Mrs. Diakis said Thursday she and her husband were still weighing the offer.

"In a way, we can't afford to say no," Mrs. Diakis said. "But we'd hate to be so far from Tim. The distance involved makes it a hard decision."

Judge: Photos may be taken of figures in rape case

DEDDHAM, Mass. (AP) — News photographers won't be barred from taking pictures outside the courtroom of central figures in the Big Dan's rape case when six men go on trial next month, a judge ruled Friday.

But Superior Court Judge William Young said he will reserve ruling on requests to restrict cameras inside the courtroom until after jurors are chosen.

Prosecution and defense attorneys filed motions to block photographs of the six men, a key prosecution witness and the 21-year-old woman who said she was gang-raped for two hours on a pool table last spring in the New Bedford bar while patrons cheered.

Attorneys for several newspapers and television stations were in court Friday to oppose motions to restrict coverage.

James M. Ragsdale, editor of The Standard-Times of New Bedford, said his newspaper does not intend to identify the woman or to publish her photograph, but resists court-imposed restrictions as a matter of principle.

"Here's a golden opportunity for the court to understand that the news media have standards and ethics," he said. "Here's a chance for them to demonstrate that they do have these voluntary restraints."

Four men were originally charged with the rape: Daniel Silva, 26, John Cordeiro, 23, Victor Raposo, 23, and nation

Joseph Vieira, 26.

Two others, Jose Medeiros, 22, and Virgilio Medeiros, 23, not related, were initially charged as accessories before the fact. Earlier this month they were indicted on charges of aggravated rape.

Because of the case's complexity, Young has decided to hold two trials, with four defendants to be tried mornings and the other two in the afternoon. Jury selection is to begin Feb. 6 in Fall River.

Young said he believes he has the authority to restrict photography in the courtroom, but said he was afraid that announcing his decision before the trials begin could prejudice potential jurors.

Witnesses who want to avoid being photographed outside court could hide their faces, he said.

Young warned the news media against harassment of witnesses. "As a citizen, I must tell you that my own instincts are that flocking around the complaining witness... would seem to lower the press to the level of a paramercum (a one-celled organism)."

District Attorney Ronald A. Pina asked Young to bar photos of the victim, saying she is "worried, concerned and alarmed" about the possibility of being photographed.

At a hearing Thursday, prosecutors asked the judge to extend the same protection to Carlos Machado, the bartender on duty March 6, 1983, at Big Dan's Tavern.

Then attorneys for the defendants, arguing that their clients are presumed to be innocent, asked the judge for the same treatment.

On Friday, attorneys for two newspapers and three television stations argued that restricting photos of witnesses or defendants would violate the news media's constitutional rights by putting an arbitrary limit on their ability to gather information.

Joseph Cavanaugh, a Providence, R.I., attorney representing The Providence Journal and WJAR-TV, said the court has no authority to restrict the media except to retain decorum and dignity.

Killer of paraplegic sentenced

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The only adult convicted along with four teen-age girls in the torture murder of a paraplegic veteran was sentenced to 40 years to life in prison Friday by a judge who said the criminals apparently got a "perverse satisfaction" from their deed.

Harry Richard Sherwood, 38, of Yuma, died last March of exposure after being robbed, beaten, burned, stripped and thrown, helpless, on a snowy hillside in the eastern San Diego County mountains.

Noting that the victim "forfeited his life in such an awful way," Superior Court Judge David Gill imposed 25 years to life on Timothy Elliott for the first degree murder conviction, 10 years for the kidnapping, and 5 years because Elliott had a prior manslaughter conviction.

"It seems to be senseless and for the perverse satisfaction of torturing him," Gill said of the crime. "These people live from moment to moment, from drink to drink. I don't think these people think for five minutes ahead, the next drink ahead, the next thrill."

Of the four teen-agers also convicted in connection with the crimes against Sherwood, two, aged 13 and 14, were placed in custody of the California Youth Authority after pleading guilty to second degree murder.

Diagnostic studies on an 18-year-old and a 16-year-old are being completed before they are sentenced in adult court. The 18-year-old was not convicted of murder.

"It is one of the most savage kidnapping cases I've ever come across," said Deputy District Attorney Dan Williams. "They beat the man for their own personal pleasure. They stripped him...and left him to die. This is one of the most despicable, diabolical crimes."

Sherwood had been on his way to San Diego with a traveling companion, Stacy Arnold, 22, when they were invited to spend the night at a house on the Viejas Indian Reservation. Arnold told authorities that the next morning, they were kidnapped by several people, who demanded the keys to the van at gunpoint.

Sherwood and Arnold were forced into the back of the van. When it was stopped for gas, Arnold got out and asked for help, as the van sped away with Sherwood inside.

TV surveillance raises questions

CHICAGO (AP) — Tiny cameras concealed by the FBI in two apartments used by four reputed members of the shadowy Puerto Rican nationalist group FALN rolled for more than 130 hours over six months.

What the lenses captured — including bomb-making and weapons-stockpiling, according to the FBI — provided what prosecutors considered the only means of convicting the four.

But on Jan. 10, the eve of their trial on bomb plot charges, U.S. District Judge George N. Leighton banned the videotapes on grounds that they amounted to "unreasonable search and seizure."

"The home is a sacred place in this country," he said.

His decision, which the government has now taken to the appeals court level, has legal authorities questioning whether society can be protected from terrorists skilled at outwitting more conventional technology like wiretaps.

The FBI won court permission for the surveillance by demonstrating "probable cause" to believe that crimes were being planned. They based their argument on "hundreds of hours of debriefing" by a convicted FALN member-turned-informer and on the defendants' use of disguises, false names and zigzag routes to throw off possible pursuers.

FBI affidavits say the FALN suspects used code language — picked up by phone taps and hidden microphones in the apartments — that made it seem as if a party was taking place.

Examples: "fiesta" was bombing or, literally, party; "fiesta economica" was armed robbery or, literally, economic party; "nenes" meant guns or, literally, babies.

A radio in the apartment also was turned up loud.

But the rolling cameras foiled those subterfuges, federal prosecutors say, and recorded the assembling of detonating caps, handguns, disguise materials, false IDs and bulletproof vests.

"If the community expects the FBI to be effective in (terrorist) investigations, then they have to make sure we have certain tools available," said Edward D. Hegarty, head of the FBI's Chicago office.

Cameras portray the crime "as it's taking place," he said. "That's the beauty of television."

It's a far more effective tool than audio."

Defense attorney David Thomas said FBI agents who had rented an adjacent apartment apparently activated the cameras whenever they heard someone going into the apartment. He said the agents watched what was going on as the cameras rolled.

The operation was a "Big Brother" destruction of privacy, he said.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Joseph Hartzler argued before Leighton: "There was no other way we could obtain that kind of corroborating evidence."

The four were arrested June 29, charged with a plot to bomb military installations over the 1983 Fourth of July weekend, and ordered held on multimillion-dollar bonds.

FALN, the acronym for Armed Forces of National Liberation, seeks the independence of Puerto Rico through violent means. It has claimed responsibility for more than 100 bombings in the United States since 1974.

Ten FALN members are serving long prison terms for bombings in the Chicago area. They were convicted in 1981 after a tumultuous trial in which the defendants shouted down the judge with political rhetoric and called him a "clown" and "puppet" of government authority they did not recognize.

If Leighton's ruling is upheld, terrorism will get worse in the United States, says a former Justice Department prosecutor who wrote the federal legislation governing electronic surveillance.

"With terrorists, it's virtually impossible to turn them as witnesses because they're ideologically motivated," said G. Robert Blakey, now a law professor at University of Notre Dame. "You can't infiltrate them because they only deal with people they've known for years, and very early on they ask a person to engage in unlawful contact, which a police officer cannot do."

"That leaves electronic surveillance, but unfortunately these people do not always talk about what they're doing; they just do it. So if you can't videotape them, you deprive the law of an absolutely essential tool."

"That will mean a few more buildings blown up, a few more innocent people losing their lives," he said.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Sunday, January 29, 1984

YOUR BIRTHDAY TO-DAY: "Common Sense" author Tom Paine, comedian W.C. Fields, "Network" creator Paddy Chayefsky and Standard Oil founder John D. Rockefeller were born on this date. Also sharing your birthday: "Magnum" star Tom Selleck, actor John Forsythe, the Los Angeles Dodgers' Steve Sax and actress Katharine Ross. Your loneliness disappears once you start to socialize more. Competitions prove highly lucky. Go ahead and take a chance. With persistence, a bright idea can be turned into a gold mine. An old problem takes on a new urgency. Consult family members before deciding what to do. A young person points out something you have overlooked. Show appreciation.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): This can be a wonderful day if you exercise restraint and let everyone do their own thing. Former loves try to complicate a current romance. Stay one step ahead of them.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A romantic routine is not working. Better change your approach if partner is really important to you. Think about what you must do to get love back on track.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You would be wise to accept an invitation from a new acquaintance. A family discussion finds everyone on the same wavelength for a change. Stop deferring to others.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You have more supporters than you realize. Rushing partner could hurt romance. News from a distance boosts your spirits. An invitation to travel sounds exciting. Consult loved one before saying "yes."

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Work pressures may be getting to you. Plan a weekend where you can rest and pull yourself together. A close friend or relative offers encouragement. You are too volatile for your own good.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): An oversight could lead you to change your social plans. Challenge an individual who deals in gossip and innuendo. A new course of study is not the snap you expected it to be.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A marital squabble requires careful handling. You feel ready to take a big step toward a cherished goal. Mate may not understand. Ask for his or her immediate cooperation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be careful not to idle away this potentially great day. You are capable of working at top speed. Influential person is impressed with your special talents and accomplishments.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A long-time wish is fulfilled by a most unlikely person. Your confidence in a friend could be misplaced. Are you expecting too much? Solo efforts bring great satisfaction.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Summon family members to discuss a troubling financial situation. More money is going out than is coming in. Keep in touch with friends who could pop into town unexpectedly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Romance is blissful if you obey the Golden Rule. You could lose a valuable friend if you divulge a secret. Entertaining at home proves both fun and inexpensive.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You may want smaller quarters if your offspring have left home. A friend helps you locate a new apartment or house. Mate will understand if you save your energies for a special project.

New show to air on CBS

NEW YORK (AP) — All signs point to success for "The Four Seasons," the comedy about continuing friendships, that debuts on CBS Sunday night. The humor is adult. The timeslot, behind "60 Minutes," is enviable. But its biggest benefit is having Alan Alda as its godfather. Alda is creator, executive producer, contributing writer, occasional star and network intimidator for this project, which began as a hit movie and has survived, in style and substance, as a situation comedy — no small feat. Give credit to the former Hawkeye Pierce of "M-A-S-H" and the current Mr. Atari of Madison Avenue. Alda has the clout to stifle the CBS programmers who have not fared well in comedy in recent years. "Nobody (at CBS) questions Alda," said Jack Weston, the series star and a holdover from the movie. "They're all afraid. They don't want to rock the boat. He's for us, and we're for him." Alda's demands, all revolving around the product, are not the egotistical tantrums for larger trailers or more close-ups that are life and death to some less talented but more swelled heads. h other with some hurtful truths. Ms. Kowal said the only rebuff Alda received was his request that the show be filmed in New York. The series has Danny (Weston) moving to California to reunite with several old friends (former New Yorkers who weren't in the film by anybody, except Miss Moreno, whose part is now played by Marcia Rodd. Jack (Alda), who won't be in most episodes and will be missed, begins Sunday's show by bidding farewell to his best friend, Danny. Danny is anxious about the cross-country move, as he would be about a walk across the street. He's a worrywart. He gives his galoshes to Jack, washing his hands of New York. "I love this city," he says, spying an excavation site. "Call me when it's finished." Danny and Claudia (Miss Rodd) then head off for "sun, surf and safety."

But Danny would be a neurotic in any climate; California's counter-culture just aggravates his anxieties. "These people have eaten too many avocados," he says. One friend (Tony Roberts) lives in a house built over a cliff. Danny refers to it as a "house on Q-Tips." Another friend (Alan Arbus, who played Dr. Sidney Freedman on "M-A-S-H") turned in his legal shingle for a bicycle-repair shop. He's married to a medical professor, played by Barbara Babcock (Grace Gardner in "Hill Street Blues"). Alda's real-life daughters, Elizabeth and Beatrice, who were in the movie, are regulars. They're friends — Elizabeth plays Jack's daughter — who've moved to California to try writing for a profession. It must be the genes; they're both quite good, too.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) — Academy Award-winning actor Richard Dreyfuss, whose pictures include "Jaws" and "Close Encounters of the Third Kind," briefly stepped back into a role he cast off some time ago — that of a student. Dreyfuss, 36, who won an Oscar as best actor for "The Goodbye Girl" in 1977, spent about an hour recently in a class on constitutional law at Housatonic Regional Community College.

The course is taught by John Conway, associate professor of criminal justice, who is appearing with Dreyfuss in "Requiem for a Heavyweight" at New Haven's Long Wharf Theater. In the play, Dreyfuss plays the part of manager of an aging fighter. "I was talking with Dreyfuss and he said he'd like to sit in on a class," Conway said. "At first I thought he was kidding. He was perfectly serious. We scheduled a day for him to sit in on a class and he showed up."

Man on trial for son's murder

Psychiatrist says he's schizophrenic

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A man accused of murdering his teen-age son and another boy a decade ago began his defense Friday with a psychiatrist describing him as a schizophrenic who began killing under orders from God.

"When he committed outrageously wrongful acts he thinks he is doing good and under divine guidance," Dr. Nathan Roth of New York City testified at the trial of Joseph Kallinger.

"He told me that God had ordered him to kill all peoples on earth, the many billions of them, and when he did he would be reincarnated as God and a new race of people would inhabit the earth."

Kallinger, 47, is charged with murder in the July 1974 deaths of his son Joseph Jr., 14, and neighbor Jose Collazo, 10.

He previously was convicted of fatally stabbing a nurse in New Jersey, raping another New Jersey woman and terrorizing and robbing a group of women in Pennsylvania.

The charges came after publication last year of "The Shoemaker," a book in which Kallinger described the killing of the two youths with the assistance of a younger son, Michael, now 21.

Kallinger has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity.

The book by Flora Rheta Schreiber, who also wrote "Sybil," a story of a woman with 16 personalities, was the result of seven years of interviews with the jailed Kallinger. The Philadelphia shoemaker was portrayed as an insane psychotic with "a strong desire to kill people."

Roth testified he interviewed Kallinger on Jan. 17, a week before the non-jury trial began.

The interview took place at the Fairview State Hospital for the Criminally Insane in northeastern Pennsylvania, where Kallinger is serving a 30- to 80-year sentence for terrorizing and robbing women in Harrisburg in 1974.

Roth said it was his medical opinion that Kallinger, when he killed and up to the present, "cannot understand between right and wrong."

"He suffers from a steadily disabling mental disorder," he said, tracing it back to his childhood with adoptive parents who beat and abused him, gave him no love and allowed him no friends.

"This isolated upbringing would destroy anyone's mind," Roth testified. "Killing became a holy art to him."

Roth said that at the age of 6 Kallinger had a hernia operation and his adoptive parents told him they had given the surgeon orders to castrate him.

This created great mental stress, Roth said, and when he married — twice with a total of seven children — "he found he had to grasp a knife to become sexually potent."

Roth said that in Kallinger's shoe repair business, inherited from his adoptive father, "he constantly experimented by working on the heels of shoes customers brought in, believing there was some connection between heels and mind, and that the proper leverage on the shoe would improve the human race."

Assistant District Attorney Arnold Gordon challenged Roth's diagnosis.

He pointed out that at least four psychiatrists who examined Kallinger after his arrests for other crimes indicated he might have had an immature personality, but was neither schizophrenic or psychotic. He said the other psychiatrists also indicated Kallinger might be feigning insanity.

"I disagree with those opinions," Roth said. "He's no faker."

Married couple doing fine despite murder plot

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Anthony Toto and his wife, Francine, are getting along fine these days, even though a year ago she got involved in a bizarre plot to kill him.

Thursday was the anniversary of the day Toto was supposed to die, and the thought of that kept both of them awake late Wednesday night.

"We sat there until about 3:30 a.m., trying to fall asleep," said Mrs. Toto, who is to be sentenced March 6 after pleading guilty to charges that she participated in the plot to murder her husband.

"I tried to drink some scotch, hoping that it would make me sleepy," said Toto. "I even tried to make a joke. I said 'Fran, you're not going to try a shoot me?'"

After a toast of scotch and her assurance that she would not shoot him, the Totos, who run a pizza parlor in Allentown, retired for the night.

It was a year ago, on the morning of Jan. 26, that Toto was shot in the back of the head as he slept. Police later charged 20-year-old Anthony Bruno, who dated Toto's daughter, Elizabeth, with the shooting.

Bruno is to be sentenced March 6, after pleading guilty to attempted murder. Police charge he had help from Mrs. Toto, who they said was fed up after beatings and arguments with her husband.

When the shot failed to kill Toto, police charge, he was given large doses of barbiturates by his wife. Two days later, they said, he was shot in the chest by his cousins, Ronald and Donald Barlip, who allegedly were hired by Bruno to finish Toto off.

Toto, critically wounded and disoriented, was rescued by police who received an anonymous tip on Jan. 30. Ronald Barlip later pleaded guilty to attempted murder, as did Mrs. Toto. Donald Barlip pleaded guilty to conspiracy to commit murder.

Mrs. Toto says she never wanted her husband dead, and became trapped in the situation because she was afraid of Bruno.

"She told me she was afraid of Bruno because he had the gun and she was afraid of what he might do to the children," her husband said in a recent interview.

"That's true," said Mrs. Toto, who also claimed Bruno was feeding her drugs and that she was not completely aware of what she was doing. She said she gave her husband sleeping pills with his chicken noodle soup, thinking they would help him.

"There are a lot of things still unclear in my head. I was so messed up, I didn't want you to die," she said, looking tearfully at her husband.

"Then why didn't you help me?" Toto asked.

"I couldn't...when Bruno wasn't around I just sat there with you. After the first shot, he came out and told me he just shot Tony. I said I was going to call police but he said I couldn't, he wouldn't let me...I was so scared," she said.

The couple said the ordeal was largely the result of their failure to communicate.

Mrs. Toto faces a maximum sentence of 12 years.

Goodman thanks York, Pa., for letters sent during captivity

YORK, Pa. (AP) — Amid flag-waving crowds and the songs of school children, Navy Lt. Robert Goodman Jr. said Friday he hopes to be back flying missions within six months after his captivity in Syria.

Goodman, a 27-year-old bombardier who was shot down over Lebanon Dec. 4 during a mission against Syrian positions, visited York because he said the outpouring of affection from townspeople here moved him.

"It touched me that total strangers were writing to me and saying that they were keeping me in their prayers," Goodman said. "It really meant a lot."

Goodman received about 2,500 cards and letters from the people of York during his captivity. His father, Robert Sr., is a marketing director for a York company.

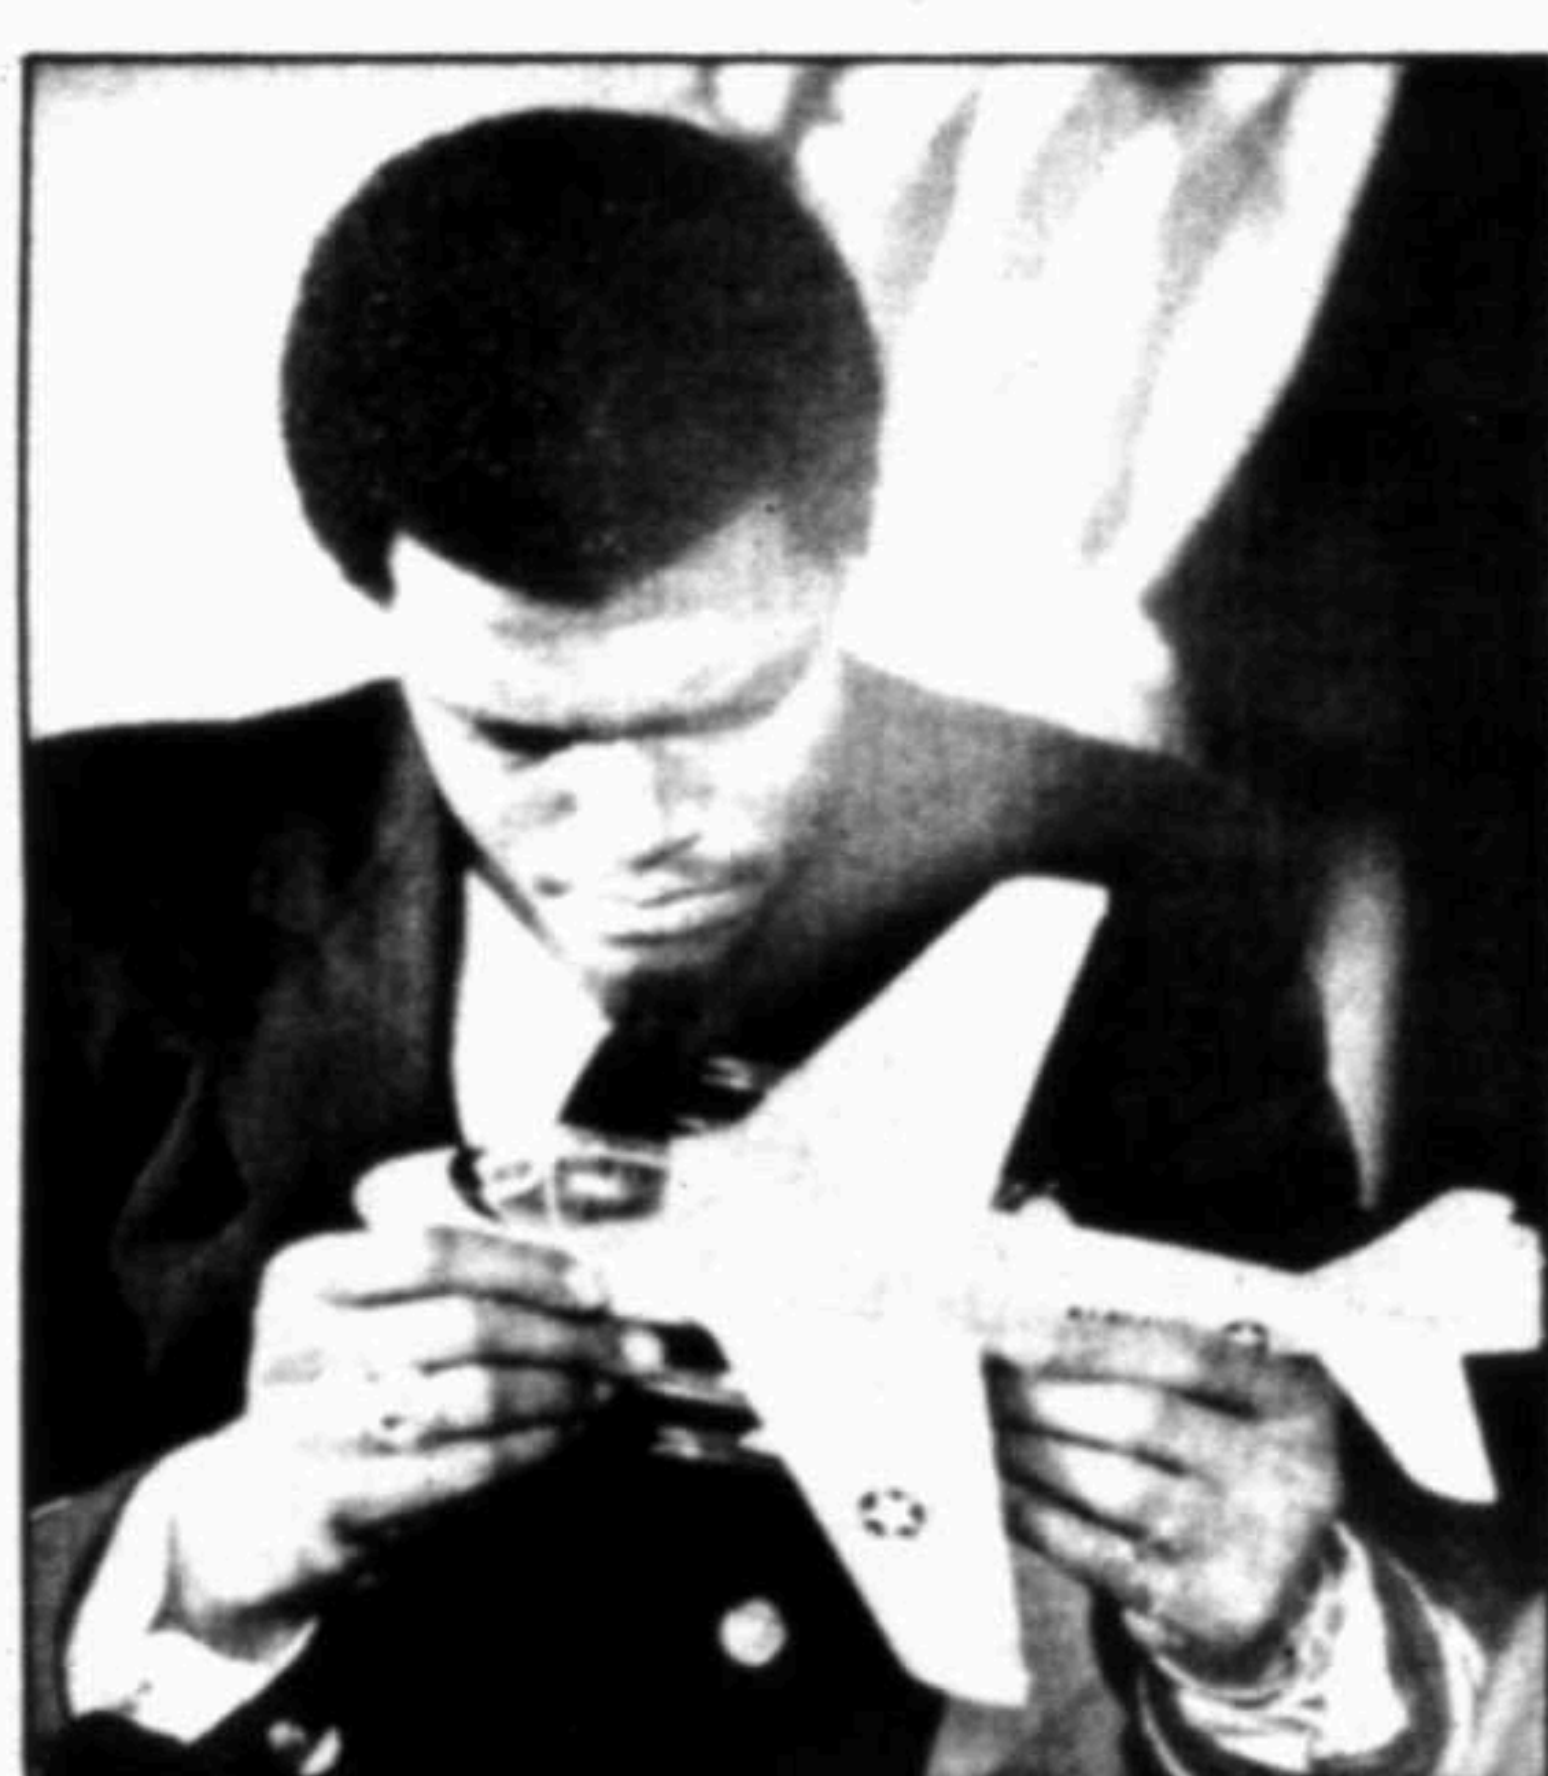

As a guest of the local chamber of commerce, Goodman visited three local high schools and an elementary school where he was greeted by flag-waving and singing children.

The trip came more than three weeks after his Syrian captors released him Jan. 3 through the intercession of the Rev. Jesse Jackson, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination. Goodman also visited the offices of the York Daily Record newspaper, where Executive Editor Sam Fosdick and Publisher Kaj Spencer presented him with two cartons of letters and a box of Christmas cookies mailed from California.

Repeatedly during the day, Goodman said he was surprised by the outpouring of affection but insisted he was not a hero.

"I really don't accept the hero tag," he told an assembly at the Central York High School. "I'm no different from the others in my squad."

However, Goodman said their enthusiasm for their jobs should not be interpreted as "war-mongering" and that they are not anxious "to drop bombs on people."

Goodman, a Navy pilot, was aboard an A6-E when he was shot down over Syria last December 4. He was in York thanking people for letters when he was a prisoner.

Goodman said he is temporarily grounded until he can have knee surgery for injuries sustained when he ejected from his plane. But he said he expected to be flying again within six months.

Real estate magnate wants to top Chicago's Sears Tower

NEW YORK (AP) — Real estate magnate Donald Trump says he wants to bring the title of "World's Tallest Building" back to Manhattan with a building taller than Chicago's Sears Tower.

"I thought it would be an idea that would be very exciting for New York City — something that would be psychologically great for New York and balance off the World Trade Center on the other side," Trump said, the New York Post reported Thursday.

Manhattan had the world's tallest building until 1974, when the 1,454-foot, 110-story Sears Tower went up in Chicago, topping New York's World Trade Center.

Campus officials ban KAOS

SEATTLE (AP) — Officials of Seattle University have shot down a campus game called KAOS, or "Killing As an Organized Sport."

The game, in which squirt gun-armed players commit mock "assassinations" of other players, was aimed at increasing student activity on campus. But Aric Schwan, second vice president of SU's associated students and a prime backer of KAOS, met with school officials Thursday and they agreed to end the game.

The game is being played at a number of other campuses nationwide. In Washington state, KAOS has been played at the University of Washington and Pacific Lutheran University.

Schwan said a public forum on KAOS will be held Thursday at the library auditorium to discuss the game. He said it might be modified and resumed after that. Schwan said that among the changes were ones suggested by students at the school's bookstore: modify the rules and the name to "Killing As an Organized Sport."

Company won't get tax break

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — A state appeals court says a food company listed by Fortune magazine among the nation's 100 largest industrial firms is not entitled to a tax break on its "opulent" headquarters.

The court overturned a 1982 Tax Court decision, which granted CPC International Inc. a 16 percent reduction in its $17 million property tax assessment. The 1982 ruling said luxuries such as climate control systems and 34,000 square feet of terraces, "while attractive, are neither rentable nor utilitarian."

"A wealthy financier is reputed to have remarked that if you must be concerned about the cost of upkeep, you should not buy a yacht," Judge Charles Joelson wrote in Thursday's opinion.

Whale died of pneumonia

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — A 515-pound pygmy sperm whale that beached itself on an island off the southwest Florida coast apparently died of pneumonia.

The whale had several wounds made by a sharp object, said Sandra Garrett, animal information representative at Sea World in Orlando. However, they were not bullet wounds as Florida Marine Patrol officers originally had thought, she said Thursday.

The adult whale died Wednesday as it was being taken to Sea World for treatment.

Kaiser Steel fined for smoke

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Kaiser Steel Co. has been fined $825,000 for what a judge described as "cavalier conduct" in releasing too much smoke from its Fontana blast furnaces before the plant's recent closure.

Senior U.S. District Judge Irving Hill, who heard the case without a jury, found Kaiser guilty of 33 violations between 1978 and 1982 by emitting smoke that obscured more than 20 percent of sunlight. The company was sued by the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

Hill said Kaiser made no serious effort to even investigate whether it could comply with regulations and took the risk of continued violations, ignoring notices received over a considerable time.

Hookers plan to lobby Democrats

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Prostitutes from around the nation plan to hold a convention here three days before the Democratic National Convention starts to publicize the increased violence they say they are suffering on the streets.

The 50 to 100 prostitutes who plan to attend the Second International Hookers' Convention on July 13 will lobby the Democrats for the legalization of the oldest profession, said Margo St. James, founder of COYOTE, a prostitutes' rights group.

COYOTE is an acronym for Cast Off Your Old Tired Ethics.

As a way to personalize their cause during the Democratic convention July 16-20, St. James said Bay area prostitutes will offer "alternative housing, particularly to women delegates so we can informally lobby them."

For $10 a night, the prostitutes will provide delegates a room in their own homes. The delegates must provide their own sleeping bags, Ms. St. James said.

The hookers also are planning to picket Moscone Center, where the Democratic Convention will be held, she said.

The police, meanwhile, are planning a crackdown on the hookers.

"It's not going to be profitable for them to come here because a lot of them are going to wind up being arrested," said Capt. Diarmuid Philpott, head of the vice and narcotics investigation division.

"Every time the police start cracking down, a message goes out to men that they can do it too and help in the cleanup."

— Margo St. James, founder of prostitutes' rights group

"We are increasing our enforcement efforts and we'll arrest both the prostitutes and the customers," Philpott said. "The important thing is to try to give the impression that prostitution is not tolerated in San Francisco."

Ms. St. James says stepped-up police vigilance against prostitutes means increased violence from others.

"Every time the police start cracking down, a message goes out to men that they can do it too and help in the cleanup," she said.

Starting in March, Ms. St. James said, the prostitutes are going to begin documenting instances of illegal arrests so that "when the Democrats come to town, we'll have something to talk about."

She said the point of the hookers' convention is not to antagonize the delegates, but to convince them that prostitution is a human rights and labor issue.

"We want the right to work," she said. "Without it, the message is that whores are legitimate victims."

Thirty-thousand robots to enter Japanese industry

TOKYO (AP) — Japan expects to produce 30,000 robots this year — about 25 percent more than last year — as unions and some executives grow increasingly concerned with the sophisticated machines' effects on human co-workers.

The 30,000 robots will be worth a total of about $1 billion, the Japan Industrial Robot Association said in an announcement Friday.

Japanese manufacturers are relying more on robots, purchasing 26,000 of them last year at a cost of $770 million, the association's director, Kanji Yonemoto, said in an interview. He said it represented a 21 percent increase over 1982.

A university of industrial medicine on Japan's "Silicon island" of Kyushu recently held a three-day session on the effects of robots and computers on workers.

Professor Kageyu Noro said Friday in an interview in Tokyo that most of the 500 participants were corporate managers seeking to reduce worker "anxieties" caused by factory or office automation.

"Robots will reduce the burdens on workers, but their mental stress will increase," Noro said.

The General Council of Trade Unions of Japan, with 4.5 million members, is conducting its own survey on the effects of automation. An official said Friday he could not comment on the survey yet, but said, "We are concerned about the effects of robots on employment."

Yonemoto maintained that robots are often welcomed on shop floors

because Japan has experienced a blue-collar labor shortage since the mid-1960s as more young Japanese pursue white-collar jobs.

Citing Charlie Chaplin's 1936 film, "Modern Times," Yonemoto said robots help "eliminate the dehumanization of workers being made slaves of the conveyor system."

He maintained that the robots don't eliminate jobs, but create new ones. As robots are introduced, factory workers from small firms are sent for training sessions at schools run by the robot makers, while the larger firms have their own training centers, he said.

In 1983, the electronics industry overtook the auto industry as the top purchaser of robots, which have evolved from simple painting and welding chores to handling delicate assembly insertions, Yonemoto said.

Assembly robots, often used in computer-coordinated manufacturing systems, will account for about 40 percent of the robot production in 1984, he said.

Because robots can be re-programmed, they are more suitable for factories seeking to change their product lines quickly, and are increasingly replacing regular machines, he said.

About 15 percent of Japan's robots are exported, but exports are limited because robots must be programmed and thus are usually purchased from suppliers close at hand.

By the association's count, Japan has about 60 percent of the world's robots, with about 20 percent in the United States and 20 percent in Europe.

However, about one-third of Japan's robots would not qualify as robots in other industrialized countries, which require that a robot be able to be reprogrammed to perform a variety of tasks. Japan includes arm-like machines designed to perform a fixed function.

Yonemoto said about 10 percent of the robots made last year were "intelligent" robots, which are equipped with sensors and can change their responses according to what they "see."

Vatican helped Nazis flee after WWII, report shows

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department on Friday made public a formerly top secret report alleging that Vatican officials helped Nazis escape from Europe after World War II.

The report, which was dated in 1947, said the Vatican's motives apparently were "the propagation of the faith" and that church officials asked few questions of those they helped.

"It is the Vatican's desire to assist any person, regardless of nationality or political beliefs, as long as that person can prove himself to be a Catholic," it said.

The report was prepared by a former U.S. diplomat in Rome, Vincent La Vista. It was recently declassified by the State Department and given Friday to reporters who requested it.

Officials, who insisted on anonymity, said they didn't know what, if any, follow-up action was taken as a result of the report. La Vista left the U.S. foreign service in 1949, according to State Department records.

The report said the Vatican was "the largest single organization involved in the illegal movement of emigrants" after World War II, assisting a wide variety of persons, including German Nazis and Italian fascists.

Among those who were helped by the Vatican, La Vista wrote, was a person he described as "the notorious Dr. Nix," identified elsewhere in the report as Willy Nix, head of the Free German Committee in Rome and well-known as a Nazi smuggler.

La Vista said that after a secret investigation the Italian government had ordered the arrest of Dr. Nix in 1947, a few weeks before his report was written. But he said "only a matter of minutes before Dr. Nix's actual apprehension, he was able to learn of his imminent arrest, and fled to the Vatican where he is now residing."

"It has always been suspected that Dr. Nix was operating under the benevolent protection of the Vatican," La Vista wrote. "His flight and present sanctuary in Vatican City is positive proof of this fact."

It said German Nazis and Italian fascists were received in such Latin American countries as Argentina, Mexico and Cuba, and that the Vatican was instrumental in convincing the countries to admit them.

It said that "in those Latin American countries where the church is a controlling, or dominating factor, the Vatican has brought pressure to bear which has resulted in the foreign missions of those countries taking an attitude almost favoring the entry into their country of former Nazi and former fascists or other political groups, so long as they are anti-Communist.

"That, in fact, is the practice in effect in the Latin American consulates and missions in Rome at the present time," it added.

It said Vatican officials were among those who helped "in providing jobs for (some) escapees in South America."

Ironically, La Vista said, it appeared certain that 10 per cent of all illegal emigrants passing through Italy were Russian agents. And it said Nix may also have been receiving funds as well as visitors from Communist sources.

The report also said the International Red Cross in Italy included many pro-Germans among its workers and may have been involved in illegal smuggling of wanted persons.

"Hundreds of cases of individuals not properly identified have been handled by the IRC," it said. "Spot checks of local refugee camps showed that at least one in every five persons possessed an IRC passport. In many cases the passports were found to be made out in names different from the actual name of the bearer."

"It is most clear that the IRC has been saturated with these Germans who are hiding behind the passports issued by IRC," it said.

The report detailed several cases in which priests allegedly helped to arrange escapes.

In one case not mentioned by La Vista, The New York Times reported in Thursday's editions that one wanted Nazi, Walter Rauff, told from his sanctuary in Chile in 1962 of having been given refuge in Vatican City convents after the war.

Rauff, 77, is a former SS colonel wanted for the mass gassing of Jews in mobile death vans, which he is said to have invented. Israel made a formal request to Chile this week for Rauff's extradition.

The Times said Nazi hunter Serge Klarsfeld released in Paris last week a text of a statement Rauff was said to have made to the Chilean Supreme Court in 1962. Rauff is quoted as saying he was arrested by American troops in Milan in 1945 but escaped the following year to Naples.

It quoted him as further saying, "There, I was helped by a Catholic priest to go to Rome where I stayed more or less 18 months, always in convents of the Holy See." He later went to Syria and then to South America, he said.

Chile's Supreme Court, citing a 15-year statute of limitations, rejected a West German bid to extradite Rauff in 1963.

But Israeli Justice Minister Moshe Nissim said in a statement Wednesday, "The basic principles of justice demand that Rauff not be allowed to walk free like an innocent man."

Bobbies trying for better image

LONDON (AP) — Constable Nick Jupp is working a new beat, fighting vandals, muggers and car thieves in a tough housing project. He's helping London's Metropolitan Police repair an image battered by climbing crime rates and allegations of police misconduct.

And when you say Metropolitan Police, you're talking about Scotland Yard, with its history of star detectives and genial, incorruptible, big London bobbies who are ever ready to help.

But it's an image that has been tarnished in the past few years.

Last November, independent researchers, commissioned by the Yard itself, said police got drunk on duty, accepted bribes, bullied suspects and were habitually racist toward blacks.

Investigations following the 1981 riots in south London, which at first looked like race riots, blamed heavy-handed policing for a surge of anti-police violence by both black and white youths.

In fact, Scotland Yard says, it already knew something was wrong — crime rates were rising, and it was hard to get non-whites to join the force. Changes were being considered even before Sir Kenneth Newman became London's new police commissioner in October 1982 and embarked on reform.

Intensified neighborhood police work by better-trained officers was a major element of the new strategy. Jupp's experimental beat in the Stockwell Park housing project in south London was one way of getting constables out of cars and among the people.

"People sometimes think policing is jumping into cars, racing around and arresting people, but it's mostly talking to people. And most crime is petty — arguments, vandalism, kids making a nuisance," the 28-year-old constable said recently before leading a tour of his beat.

Jupp walks through Brixton, one of London's poorest districts, with a strong memory of the 1981 riots and a population roughly half non-white. The Stockwell Park project has 4,000 residents in 1,000 apartments. One-third of the families have just one parent, 85 percent are non-white, 30 percent are low-income pensioners.

Jupp calls it a high-crime area, a graffiti-daubed maze of two-and three-story buildings that look battered even though they are only 10 years old. The supermarket has steel mesh over its windows, many walkway lights have been smashed — "The muggers do that so they won't be seen," Jupp said — and vandalized hulks of eight stolen cars are hidden in dark corners.

Jupp's job is to be in Stockwell Park almost all his working day, being a "police clinic" for residents' complaints.

"The police presence discourages crime, and I get to know the people better so when there's an incident, I may know the face. I know the villains, and I know the nice people," said the Royal Navy veteran.

At New Scotland Yard, London's police headquarters, Commander John Newing said more housing projects are to get their own personal policemen like Jupp, more constables will be on foot patrol, and a 20-week police training course will be lengthened to put a more professional crime-stopper on the street.

The training already includes human awareness classes, Newing said, "to give people self-awareness so they can deal better with others ... to make them realize that if they have prejudices it makes it difficult to be a good police officer."

The force has only 235 non-whites among 26,500 policemen, but that's double the number of a year ago. Until 1967, the force had no blacks.

The number of non-white applicants increased after the 1981 riots, Newing said. "The black community feels it must have more black police officers," he said.

That feeling was expressed again and again at a meeting between Brixton district police commanders and about 15 representatives of the area's West Indian, Asian and white communities.

Lloyd Leon, a 45-year-old Jamaican-born black and elected member of the borough council, urged Commander Alex Marnoch, a 44-year-old Scotsman, to try to get more minority members onto the force.

"But when they apply, they're told there are no jobs," Leon said in his lilting West Indian accent. Marnoch's Scottish burr came back: "We have taken on men who were two or three years unemployed. We look at each case individually."

The meeting itself is one of the new steps Scotland Yard is taking following the Brixton riots. It was held by the community-police consultative committee, set up in February 1982 to help police and the neighborhood understand each other better.

Behind 21, MHS rallies for victory

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

ODESSA — It's only a myth that the dinosaur is dead. Midland High's survival prone Bulldogs are living proof.

MHS may have been an endangered species when they trailed Odessa Permian here Friday night by 21 points in the third quarter, but not extinct. Those 21 points disappeared in thin air as the Bulldogs pulled out a heart wrenching 65-62 win over the Panthers, who went into the game at the top of the District 45A basketball heap with Abilene High.

Now Permian is 6-2 in the league war while MHS jumped back into the race with a 5-3 mark. But this game would stand on its own without any league standings to lean on. It may have been the biggest comeback-from-behind victory in Bulldog basketball history. How many times have you seen a team erase a 21-point deficit against a league leader and win?

THE PANTHERS seemed to have this one locked up at the half with a 19-point lead. With the score tied at 12, Permian rolled off 17 unanswered points for a 29-12 lead.

The Bulldogs were simply horrible in the first half. They hit only eight of 32 shots from the field and made only one of six free throws. In addition, they committed 22 turnovers.

"I told Doc Dodson at the half that I had never seen anything like it in my coaching career. We were awful in the first half. We are a good shooting team, but we were hitting around 20 percent and turning the ball over like we had never seen one," said MHS coach Jack Stephenson.

Midland High scoring leader Chris Rooker, who ended the night with a game high 19 points, said, "I've never been so ashamed and down like I was after that first half. We came in here (lockerroom) and decided to put it together."

The turnaround was awesome, but Stephenson didn't have much hope. "I thought we could close to around 10 points, but I didn't think we could come back that far. These kids showed me something tonight."

In the third period, MHS produced a 15-point run to close within 38-32 as Darrell Davis canned 10 of his 12 points. Davis was awful in the first half, hitting only one of nine shots. But he started it.

WITH THE opening of the fourth quarter, MHS cut the Permian lead to 41-40 on a Kenneth Johnson basket.

Greenwood wins two over Grady in 11-A

GRADY—Belinda Duke scored 26 points as Greenwood's girls defeated Grady, 67-21, Friday night to boost their season's record to 19-3 and up their District 11-A mark to 5-0.

Troy Wallace scored 17 points in the Greenwood boys' 58-40 win over Grady. The Rangers are now 17-5 and 5-0.

John Gilliam scored 12 points while Keith Dove and Will Willman had 10 each for the Rangers.

Greenwood returns home Tuesday to play Borden County as play begins in the second round of district play. The girls tip off at 6:30 p.m. and the boys at 8 p.m.

GIRLS
Greenwood (67): Belinda Duke, 11-4-26;

ket. Johnson had 16 points on the night, including six in the fourth period. But that lead vanished again as Permian pushed the lead back to 13 points, 53-40, with only 5:59 left in the game. Had the rally run out?

The Bulldogs then outscored Permian by a 25-9 margin in those last six minutes as Todd Shiplet hit a couple of crucial bombs and Fred Franklin, who has been having trouble at the free throw line, canned eight straight from the charity line. Two Franklin's tosses came at the 30 second mark to give the Bulldogs a 61-60 lead, one they never lost.

"Everytime I went to the line I felt like I had to redeem myself. I missed free throws against Abilene High that could have won that game and I didn't want it to happen again. In the first four district games, I hit two of 17 free throws. I've been in the gym every day working on it," said Franklin, who had nine points — all on free throws.

The elated Stephenson tossed his coat high in the air as time ran out. He told his team afterwards, "I've been coaching at Midland High five years and this is only the second time we have won in this gym. This is a tough place to win in, but you guys made some believers out of people out there tonight."

Rocky Hendrix led Permian with 13 points while Orlando Ontiveroz and Eugene Bell each had 12. Ontiveroz scored eight points in the fourth period in an effort to keep MHS at bay, but the Bulldogs scored 27 points in the period, 25 coming in the final six minutes. Rooker had seven, Johnson six, Franklin eight and Shiplet with five that helped cut into that 13-point margin.

After 22 turnovers in the first half, the Bulldogs settled down to a mere five in the second half. They also hit 18 of 33 from the field in the second half and hit 12 of 19 at the free throw line.

It was one for the history books. The dinosaur isn't dead.

The MHS Bulldogs weren't as fortunate as Permian's JVs rolled to an 84-52 win. Permian's Greg Robinson had 14 points, Jeff Mitchell 11 and both Royce Carrigan and Danny Surveillance 10. MHS had no one in double figures.

Rice Owls stun No. 16 Arkansas

HOUSTON (AP) — Mike Cunningham scored 19 points to lead the Rice Owls to a 65-62 victory over the 16th-ranked Arkansas Razorbacks in a Southwest Conference basketball game Friday night.

Arkansas led 39-31 with 17:05 left in the game before the Owls reeled off 12 unanswered points. With 9:02 left, Cunningham hit four shots to give the Owls a 51-43 lead.

The Razorbacks pulled within two points at 53-51 with 5:35 left. But Tyrone Washington hit two shots and Ivan Pettit pumped in four free throws to secure the Owls' first victory in the last 19 games against Arkansas.

Rice shot 59.6 percent from the field and 50 percent at the throw line, while Arkansas hit 53.5 from the field and 80 at the line.

Washington and Tony Barnett each had 14 points for the Owls, 7-10 overall and 3-4 in conference play.

Arkansas' Joe Kleine scored 24 points. Alvin Robertson had 15 and Ricky North 14. The Razorbacks are 15-3 overall and 6-1 in SWC play.

Broncos spill Rebs

Terry's 25 points set pace

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

Odessa High's Joe Terry started his 25-point rampage in the first 15 seconds of the ball game with a three-point play that put the Midland Lee Rebels in a come-from-behind role the rest of the way Friday night as the Broncos went on to post only their second District 45A boys' basketball victory of the season, 56-49 at Chaparral Center.

Terry moved inside the Rebel defense nearly at will, scoring all 10 of his field goals from within the five-foot range. His 25-point performance negated Alvin Henry's 26 points from long range for Lee.

"You have to give Odessa High a lot of credit," said Lee head coach Paul Stueckler. "They hit it from outside to make us come out over our defense and then slipped through our press inside. They didn't miss many free throws down the stretch. Joe Terry did an outstanding job for them and so did Bill Davis and Boyd Cowan."

SIX TIMES in the first half the Rebels kept the Broncos from pulling away by cutting the score to a one-point margin, including a 26-25 OHS advantage at half time. OHS managed to hold a five-point lead at the end of three quarters after leading by as many as seven and then held the Rebels at bay in the fourth to claim the victory.

Trailing by five, 43-38 with 2:48 left in the ball game, Lee started picking up fouls. Broncho Sammy Lopez went to the line to pick up two of Odessa's final seven free throws. The Broncos only missed three charity tosses down the stretch, one of which was on Terry's second three-point play attempt of the game. He ended up with his third attempt, which he completed, with 1:05 left to ice the game.

HENRY, WHO was the only Rebel in double figures, took part of the blame for his team's loss on his own shoulders, saying, "If I'd just helped Anthony (Dickens) out more on the post defense we would have had a better chance. We need to work harder on our press, especially me."

Henry also talked about the one thing that's seemed to plague Lee all year, an inability to keep a winning streak, which had reached three games, going.

"We just can't seem to put enough games back-to-back," said the 6-foot-1 senior. "We'll win two or three in a row and then have a let down and not play up to our potential. We can't get that streak going and then keep it going."

The loss knocked Lee into a three-way tie with Abilene Cooper and San Angelo for fourth place at 4-4. The Rebels' overall record is 14-11. OHS improved to 2-6, 14-13 on the year.

IN JUNIOR varsity action, Lee used a 17-9 fourth quarter to set the pace for a come-from-behind victory over OHS, 47-45. Jack Young with 12 and Paul Edridge with 11 led the Rebels.

Odessa High, trailing by four points in the sophomore game, 70-66, with 30 seconds left to play, pulled its team off the court and opted not to return in protest to the game's officiating.

Roger Cowboys' all-time favorite

DALLAS (AP) — According to a poll by readers, Roger Staubach is the favorite Dallas Cowboys player in the 25-year history of the franchise, the Dallas Morning News said.

The former quarterback, who took the Cowboys to four Super Bowls while he was at the helm from 1969-79, was a landslide winner with 1,558 votes to 1,079 for defensive tackle Bob Lilly, who made the all-pro team seven times and was selected for 11 Pro Bowl games.

No one else was even close. Don Meredith, Staubach's predecessor and now an analyst for ABC's Monday Night Game, was third with 205.

Midlanders in finals

ABILENE—The Midland Christian Boys and Girls basketball teams moved into the consolation finals of the Abilene tournament today. The Girls face Abilene at 9 a.m. and the Boys meet Houston Northland for third place at 10:30 a.m. Lubbock Christian and Abilene meet in the title game.

Cary Wallace scored 29 points to pace MC to a 59-50 win over Houston Westbury, but then Abilene double teamed Wallace to beat the Mustangs, 54-47, Friday.

Midland Christian beat Westbury Christian of Houston, 35-32, in the girls opener, but then lost to Lubbock Christian, 54-40, as Laura Woolard scored 16 for MC.

Midland Lee's Anthony Dickens puts up a shot over the defense of Odessa High's Joe Terry (53) Friday night at Chaparral Center. The Broncos posted a 56-49 victory.

Two records fall in meet

By BRUCE CASTLEBERRY
Sports Writer

It's going to be a long weekend at the City of Midland Swim Team's Winter Invitational, but if Paul Bridgers' COM team picks up the pace a little, the hours could be well invested.

The fifth Winter Invitational has a smaller field, only 281, than previous Invitionals. Nevertheless, as the first 10 of 122 scheduled events took place Friday night, two swimmers posted pool records at COM's Mabee Center.

Twelve-year old Jeffrey McPherson of the Odessa Aquatic Club erased a pool record by over 10 seconds in the 500 freestyle with a 5:16:93 clocking. McPherson obliterated the second place finisher, Bruce Husman of the El Paso Aqua Posse (EPAP), by almost a minute.

The opening night competition featured only swimmers in age classifications 13-14 and seniors, aged 15 and over. Today and Sunday's races include ten and under and eight and under divisions. Consequently, Friday's ten events were the distance runs.

In the senior 400 individual medley, the distance was covered in a short period of time.

Wayne Gleason of the Water Ranch of El Paso zipped to a pool record time of 4:15:43, but Robert Fulton of the Amarillo Aquatic Club (AAC) shadowed Gleason stroke for stroke. Fulton was edged ever so slightly, turning in a fine time of 4:15:73. The interesting thing is that Gleason 18, was pushed so closely by Fulton. Robert Fulton is only 14.

Swimming

"Fulton's tougher than nails," said Bridgers. "What a way to start the meet."

There was no topping Gleason's win, but the 400 I.M. was an excellent race. After Fulton's time, three COM swimmers with good times were left in bridesmaid's roles.

Mike Seay nabbed third place with a 4:39:67, and Sam Perry garnered fourth at 4:43:56. David Hartman, who had a personal best last week at the Midland High Invitational, finished fifth.

Hartman is tuning up for the District 45A meet Feb. 17-18. This weekend should test him well. Today Hartman races in the 50 freestyle, the 200 breaststroke, the 100 butterfly and the 100 freestyle. Sunday Hartman will swim the 200 free, the 100 breast, the 200 fly, and the 200 I.M. In all, Hartman will try and work off a touch of flu by force, competing in ten events.

"We stack up very good against everybody with our older kids," Bridgers said. "A lot depends on how our younger swimmers. The way they've been training, I'm very optimistic."

COM has 59 swimmers entered, tops among the 15 groups competing. After 10 events, COM's team standings were good for third place with 49 points. AAC led with 87 points, and EPAP held second with 70 points. COM is trailed directly by the Odessa Aquatic Club (OAC) with 44 points.

COM won last year's Winter Invitational, but ever so slightly, edging AAC by "about 15 points," according to Bridgers, "and we were both well over 1,000 total."

Among the 13 and 14 year old girls, Sunny Smiley of EPAP won the 400 I.M. with a 5:08:23, and Jara Fatout of OAC won the 1650 freestyle with a 19:20:15. COM's Tracey Delany finished third to Fatout with a respectable 20:55:43.

Senior Sheri Paradee, a big splash at the MHS Invitational, won her division for AAC with a 5:09:56 in the 400 I.M. Dottie Lanier, 12, won another event for AAC with a 5:53:00 in the 500 freestyle.

In the girls senior 1650 free, Paradee and COM's Becky Simpson suffered the single unfortunate circumstance of the first round. Both were disqualified, paving the way for a 19:45:78 time and win for Leslie Moore of the Swim Club Abilene (SCAT).

In the 13-14 boys competition, Tony Capwell of AAC nabbed two wins, in the 400 I.M. and the 1650 free. In the 1650, Capwell held off COM's Ryan Bell, who finished second by just over 24 seconds to Capwell's 17:05:53.

Fulton finished the night with a win after the narrow loss in the 400 I.M. Fulton posted a 16:36:16 to best second-place Hartman by nearly two minutes. Fulton's time set another COM pool record, the night's third, and in the process broke a mark that had stood for over ten years.

Not bad for a 14-year old. The scariest part is that today, the younger kids, one only five, get their chance to best the old guard teens.

Five share top spot in LPGA Mazda Classic

From Wire Reports
DEERFIELD BEACH, Fla. — Five players — JoAnne Carner, Sally Little, Jo Ann Washam, Silvia Bertolaccini and Jerilyn Britz — shared the lead with 4-under-par 140s in the $200,000 Mazda Classic.

One stroke back at 141 were defending champion Pat Bradley and Patti Rizzo, the first round leader, with 74s.

Bertolaccini shot a 67, including eagles on the second and 13th holes.

She reached the second green in two and sank a 15-foot putt. But Bertolaccini hit a trap on her second shot at the 13th and holed out.

"You were fighting the wind all day," said Carner, the LPGA career money winner with $1.64 million. "It would switch when you were in the middle of your backswing."

Carner, playing with a sore back, came up with bogeys at the fifth and seventh holes and posted 70 for the round.

Little had a 7-under lead with two holes left on her 72 round. She double-bogeyed the par-4 17th when her tee shot fell among trees, her pitch reached a bunker and her shot out went over the green.

Miller, a first-time winner last year in the West Virginia Classic, was noted as the LPGA's Most Improved Professional.

Judge dismisses murder charges

From wire reports
FOOTBALL—Murder charges against a Patricia Latourette, 35, accused of killing Chuck Latourette, former St. Louis Cardinals defensive back, were thrown out by a Houston judge for lack of sufficient evidence. Latourette died Dec. 22, 1982, shortly after he was shot in the eye with a .25-caliber pistol while with his wife in the bedroom of their Houston-area condominium. Prosecutors tried to show that the couple, married 11 months, argued frequently and often fought, with Mrs. Latourette the aggressor. The only evidence, however, was a tape recording made two months before the shooting in which she threatened to kill her husband, accusing him of having sex with other women.

Willie Jeffries signed as Wichita State coach to become coach at Howard University, replacing Joe Taylor, fired after a 1-9 season. Howard University is an NCAA I-AA predominantly black school in Washington, D.C. Jeffries was the first black coach at Wichita and compiled a 21-32-2 record.

Richard "Ace" Trujillo is new coach at Albuquerque's West Mesa High, succeeding Bill Steadman, who was fired.

A bill that would provide $3.8 million during the 1985 fiscal year for renovation of the University of New Mexico's football stadium by removing the track and building a facility on the South Campus. The football field would be lowered and 10 rows of seats would be added along each sideline.

BOXING—Welterweight Steve Darden, hospitalized in La Mesa, Calif., after a rim injury in a fight with Stee Acosta in Santee, spoke in single syllables and short phrases Thursday for the first time since the injury. Darden, 13-1, collapsed in the 10th round and subsequently underwent three hours of surgery to reduce bleeding and swelling in his brain.

Sugar Ray Leonard will fight Kevin Howard Feb. 25 in Worcester, Mass., in his return to the ring, commenting he's looking forward to meeting Marvin Hagler for the middleweight championship "two or three years down the road. I am not going to rush myself."

TRACK—Jarmila Kratochvilova, Czechoslovakia, and Carl Lewis, U.S., were named 983 athletes of the year in the so-called "Bratislava Poll" in which 286 sports experts from 34 countries took part, the Czech news agency CTK reported. Kratochvilova is world champion in the 400 and 800 meters, while Lewis is the 100-meter and long jump champion.

AUTO RACING—West German Walter Rohrl, leading the Audi Quattro team to a triumphant sweep of the 52nd Monte Carlo rally Friday, won a third straight and fourth overall victory in the event. It was his first competition in the four-wheel drive cars, after switching from Lancia, and when he started, he said, "I didn't know how to go round corners."

Curry optimistic over ring chances

BEAUMONT (AP) — Bruce Curry, the World Boxing Council super lightweight champion, was optimistic about his chances in his title bout Sunday against undefeated challenger Billy Costello.

"I'm champion of the world. I worked hard to get here, and I'm going to keep working hard to stay where I'm at," Curry said.

"His style is made for me. He comes forward, and that's what I like. I don't have to look for him," said Curry, who has won his past eight fights for an overall record of 34-7 with 17 knockouts.

Curry, 27, of Fort Worth, Texas won the championship from LeRoy Haley last May 18 in a unanimous decision at Las Vegas, Nev.

Sunday fight, which will be nationally televised by CBS starting at 3:30 p.m. CST, will be Curry's third defense of his 140-pound title. The 12-round bout will be fought at the Beaumont Civic Center.

Payne Stewart leads after 65

From Wire Reports
SAN DIEGO — Payne Stewart, wearing his trademark knickerbockers, charged past Ray Floyd with a 7-under-65 to take the second round lead in the $400,000 Isuzu-Andy Williams San Diego Open.

Stewart made his move with a back-nine of 31 on the Torrey Pines South course to finish with a 133, 11 under after 36 holes.

"I feel very confident with the way I'm hitting the ball," Stewart said. "I've made only one bogey in 36 holes and hit 32 greens in two rounds. I feel like I have an awful lot of control of my game right now."

Johnny Miller withdrew with a foot injury and Tom Watson struggled to a 74 at the South course to miss the cut with a 142.

"I just didn't hit it very well at all. And when I had to make a putt, I missed it," Watson said.

Floyd, the first round leader with a 64, had a 70 on the easy North course.

"I feel I should have gotten a little more out of the round. I feel like I wasted a lot of shots out there. But, after making a double bogey right off the bat, I guess it wasn't a bad round."

He was tied at 134 with Don Pooley, Brad Bryant and Chip Beck. Pooley and Beck each had a 68 on the South and Bryant 69.

Stewart, '83 Walt Disney winner late last season, holed 15 and 25 foot putts on the front side, then fired his 5-under-par 31 on the final nine.

"I played the par-5s one under," he noted. "I know tomorrow probably will be a better day on the par-5s."

Sitzberger death probe continues

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — Former Olympic diving champion Kenneth Sitzberger received a head injury during one of two scuffles in his house the night before he died, say Coronado police, who have turned their findings over to the district attorney's office for review.

"We're looking at the possibility that injury occurred during some kind of altercation in his home and, if it did, was it criminal?" Cmdr. Robert Hutton said.

"It appears at this time that he was injured during an altercation in the house. The case is now with the D.A.'s office, not necessarily for any kind of criminal complaint, but to see if there was any criminality," said Hutton.

Sitzberger had worked in real estate and as a swimming and diving commentator for ABC-TV sports since he won the gold medal for springboard diving in the 1964 Olympics. He died Jan. 2 at Coronado Community Hospital after his wife, Jeanne, who won a silver medal for swimming in the 1964 Tokyo Olympics, called paramedics. She said her husband had slept late and that the second time she checked on him, she found he had stopped breathing.

NFL's Pete Rozelle longs for those good old days

HONOLULU (AP) — Pete Rozelle, whose promotion talents and business acumen helped build the National Football League into one of America's great sports empires, in some ways longs for the good old days.

"The challenges certainly aren't as much fun as in the earlier days, which were mainly football — trying to promote the game and do all we could to make it better," the NFL commissioner said Friday at Aloha Stadium, site of Sunday's Pro Bowl.

"The new type of problems we have are obviously more distasteful. With courts and strikes and agents and matters of that sort, it's different from the old days when the big issue at the league meetings was whether to have a 33-or 36-player limit. That sort of thing used to be the focal point."

Among the "distasteful" items the league has to deal with presently is the ongoing legal battle with the Raiders, with the antitrust suit now before a court of appeal; the United States Football League's bidding up players' salaries; and the drug problems that have surfaced in almost all pro sports in recent years.

The legal wrangling with the Raiders, who successfully sued the league and won the right to move from Oakland to Los Angeles, is keeping the NFL from expanding.

Rozelle said he does not foresee any serious discussion of expansion taking place before decisions in the appeal of the antitrust suit, and the city of Oakland's eminent domain suit against the Raiders.

Of the USFL's driving up players' prices, the commissioner said he estimated that "more than a few" NFL franchises could lose money in the next few years if salaries continue to rise.

Regarding the league's stance on drugs, which has resulted in some suspensions, he said: "They (the players) should get the message. We're going to continue to do the same three-pronged program — education, rehabilitation and, when necessary, discipline. "It's a tough thing for some of the players to understand that they can't have the same so-called rights of other people," Rozelle said. "But as I told them, the public and the media treat them differently

Lewis shatters long jump mark

NEW YORK (AP) — Carl Lewis, in the unaccustomed position of having to come from behind, shattered his world indoor best in the men's long jump by 9 1/4 inches and equaled his best leap outdoors, soaring 28 feet, 10 1/4 inches Friday in the Millrose Games at Madison Square Garden.

The 22-year-old from Willingboro, N.J., considered the most consistent long jumper in history and the 1983 world champion, surprisingly was in second place, behind veteran Larry Myricks, entering the final round of the long jump.

Then, in round six, Myricks got off his best jump of the night, 27-6. It also equaled Myricks' best ever indoors.

Now, the pressure was on Lewis, the last jumper in the competition.

And like a world champion, the world's top-ranked long jumper

Monday Green-Gold Night at Chap Center

It will be Green and Gold Night when the Midland College Chaparrals challenge Odessa College Monday night at the Langford Chaparral Center.

MC Athletic Director said that all fans who come to the game wearing green and gold will be admitted for $1.

"We hope to have the stands filled with green and gold clad spectators, all showing their support for the Chaparrals," Poss said.

OC is coming off a 71-67 win over Howard College, previously unbeaten in WJCC play. MC beat Frank Phillips Thursday, but lost to Howard, 78-62, Monday at Big Spring.

Mood light for NBA Old-Timers contest

DENVER (AP) — The mood was light and the jokes were flying on the eve of the National Basketball Association's first old-timers game, but Red Auerbach issued a warning.

"A game like this, when we first started talking about it, it was just a fun thing," said the architect of the Boston Celtics' dynasty.

"But now it's all based on pride. I think these fellas are going to surprise a lot of people with the way they get down the floor."

Auerbach and Alex Hannum, who coached NBA championship teams in St. Louis and Philadelphia, will coach the squads of former basketball greats in two 20-minute halves of running time Saturday.

The old-timers game, featuring such Hall-of-Famers as Oscar Robertson, Elgin Baylor, Jerry West and Connie Hawkins, will follow a slam-dunk contest Saturday in advance of the 34th annual NBA All-Star Game Sunday.

Auerbach and Hannum both predicted that the old-timers game would be a bunch of old, out-of-shape geezers cutting up for a few minutes on the court.

"If these guys thought they were going to get out there and make fools of themselves, they wouldn't do it," Auerbach said at a news conference Friday with most of the old-timers looking on.

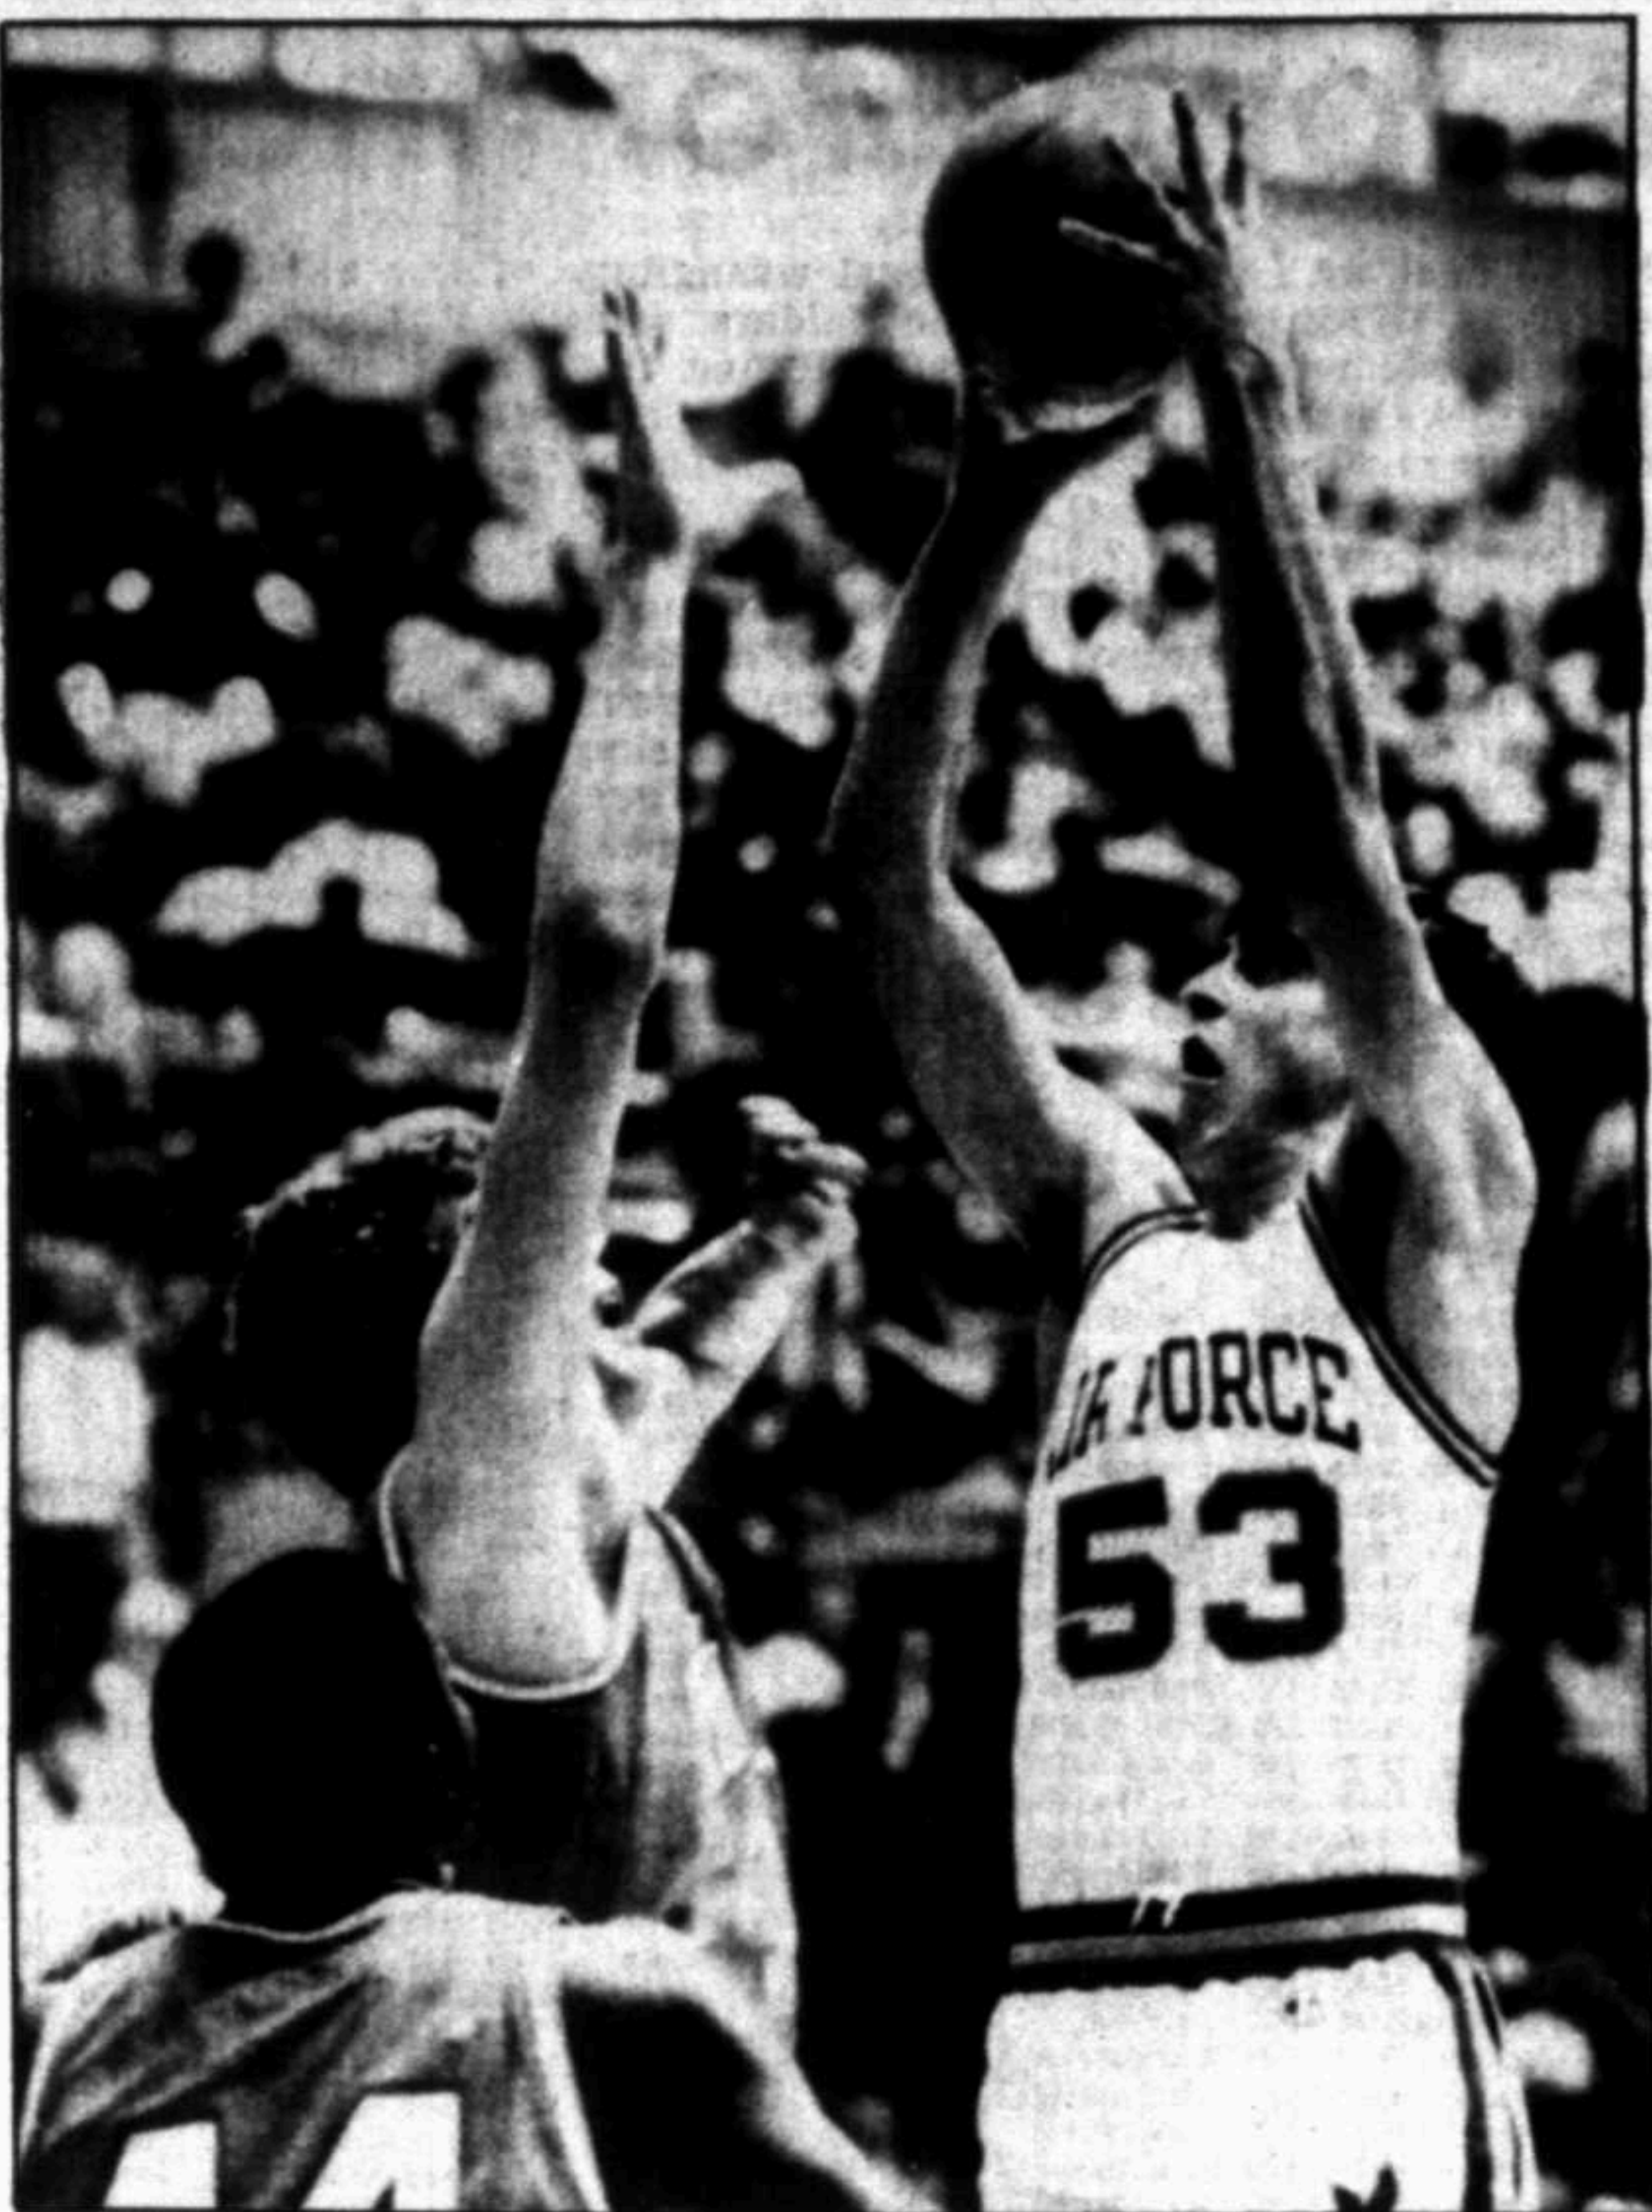

Hannum agreed.

"You're going to be surprised at the quality of play, and at how much fun we all have," he said. "I've got some backcourt men on my team that are really in shape and ready to run, like Dave Bing."

Dick McGuire and Bill Sharman, guards from the era of the 50s, are the oldest of the old-timers at 57. Checking in at 55 was Dolph Schayes.

Hannum's West squad includes Rick Barry, 39; Baylor, 49; Bing, 40; Hawkins, 41; Lou Hudson, 39; John Kerr, 51; Earl Monroe, 39; Bob Pettit, 50; Schayes and Jerry West, 45.

Dale Grupe of Air Force Academy goes high to launch a shot in Western Athletic Conference action.

Auburn beats LSU

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Chuck Person hit a field goal and four consecutive free throws in the final 40 seconds as Auburn trimmed No. 10 Louisiana State 80-78 to take a half-game lead in the Southeastern Conference race.

Auburn, 12-5 and 6-2, overcame a 64-58 deficit in the final 7½ minutes behind the dominating play of Charles Barkley and then blew a five-point lead of its own before Person broke a 74-74 deadlock with 39 seconds remaining by hitting a 17-footer from the top of the key.

The victory gave Auburn a half-game lead over idle, third-ranked Kentucky, which entertains No. 18 Georgia on today. LSU, which had won 12 of its previous 14 meetings with Auburn, fell to 12-4 overall and 5-3 in the SEC.

Barkley, who had a school-record eight blocked shots in the game, started Auburn's rally with a pair of dunks, the second of which he turned into a three-point play after stealing the ball under his basket and dribbling the length of the court before hammering it home.

Auburn led 74-69 with three minutes to play, but a series of turnovers opened the door for LSU, which gained a tie on two free throws by John Tudor and three by Leonard Mitchell.

Oilers tempted Landry

DALLAS (AP) — Tom Landry disclosed Friday that he almost became head coach of the Houston Oilers in the late 1950s.

Landry, who has been coaching the Dallas Cowboys 25 years, spoke briefly during a kickoff of the NFL team's "Silver Season."

He said, "This is a special day. It's hard to believe it has been 25 years."

"I can remember (Houston owner) Bud Adams wanting to bring me to the Houston Oilers. 'I think I made the best choice. I would have been one of 50 (coaches) there.'"

Landry said he was determined to get the Cowboys back to the Super Bowl for the sixth time.

"A lot of people say we are through," Landry said. "We'll find out who our players are now. We'll find out who has character."

Landry said he was "excited" about the upcoming season.

"We are coming off a dismal loss in the playoffs," he said. "The chase to the top makes it exciting."

Landry said he hoped the Cowboys were around "another 25 years," but added "I don't think I will be."

Attending the Texas Stadium party was owner Clint Murchison, who is trying to sell the team through Club President Tex Schramm.

Schramm, who has been dickering with Dallas businessmen W. O. Bankston and Vance Miller, said there was nothing new on the impending sale.

Schramm told the gathering "This is a very important time for the Cowboys. We've had down periods before but we're not going to let the tradition and heritage die. You're not going to be riding a dead horse."

Staubach said the training camp challenge between quarterbacks Danny White and Gary Hogeboom was going to be "fierce."

Three Rivers Stadium sinking

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The city's Stadium Authority, subsidized by tax revenues, says it may be forced to pay some of the cost of repairing the sinking surface of Three Rivers Stadium.

Authority Chairman George Whitmer said the city's specifications for material used to support the playing field may have been inadequate.

The stadium's new $1.5 million surface was installed in 1983.

City officials originally maintained that the contractors would pay for any repairs.

"Even if the AstroTurf has to be replaced, there won't be any expense to the taxpayers," said David Matter, executive secretary to the mayor, at the time.

When the field was replaced, contractors were instructed to remove concrete curbing along the base paths and around the pitcher's mound, Whitmer said. The channels were back-filled with a material specified by the city.

The sagging has occurred only in the areas where the curbing was removed, according to Whitmer.

Meanwhile, a $153,500 rubber track installed at the stadium last year that has curled around the edges, forming air bubbles on the surface, will be replaced with a stronger material.

Eagleson fingers '80 'culprit'

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — New York Islanders defenseman Ken Morrow, identified by Canadian hockey official Alan Eagleson as one of two U.S. hockey players who signed a pro contract before the 1980 Olympics, said he has no intention of giving back his gold medal.

"I haven't seen any proof that backs up his claims," Morrow said. "I think right now it's just a war of words. He's grabbing at straws and it's going to come back to haunt him."

Eagleson, Canada's chief international hockey negotiator and the counsel for the NHL player's union, charged that Morrow and 1980 Olympic team captain Mike Eruzione were under pro contracts when they played for the gold medal-winning team at Lake Placid.

The charge was the latest in a continuing battle over player eligibility for the upcoming Olympics in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia, between Canada and the United States Olympic Committee.

Eagleson said in Toronto that he didn't expect to have the American players return their medals. "The last thing we want to do is have players give back medals which they richly deserved to win."

But he did not rule out the possibility that Canada would press the matter of the eligibility of these two players if the Americans continue to attempt to block Canadian plans to use three players who have signed pro contracts at the Winter Olympics.

American Olympic officials are objecting to the presence on the Canadian roster of goaltender Mario Gosselin and forwards Mark Morrison and Dan Wood. Of the trio, only Morrison has seen NHL action, having played in nine games with the New York Rangers two seasons ago.

Eagleson said information surrounding Morrow's case is contained in the recently-released book entitled Goal One, written by Morrow's agent, Arthur Kaminsky of New York.

Lloyds try separation

NEW YORK (AP) — Tennis stars Chris Evert Lloyd and her husband, John Lloyd, said Friday they have begun a trial separation.

"There's still very much a chance that we will get back together," Chris said. "At the present time we need time to be by ourselves."

The Lloyds were married April 17, 1979, in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., her hometown, where a member of the crowd held up a sign saying, "Love Match: Chris Evert and John Lloyd, A Perfect Set."

A spokesman for International Management Group (IMG), which manages both players, said the "purpose of this announcement in going public with the facts is to dispel any innuendoes and rumors that may surface regarding the state of their marriage. Neither individual chooses to make any further comment on the situation."

Less than a month after her marriage, Chris led the U.S. to its fourth consecutive Federation Cup title and then won the French Open singles a third time.

SHE finished 1979 ranked second in the world for the second straight year, but regained the No. 1 ranking in 1980 and 1981.

But while her game reached new heights, John's tennis fortunes tumbled.

A member of Britain's Davis Cup team, John Lloyd was ranked in the top 30 in the world in 1977. But he fell to 356th on the Atari-Association of Tennis Professionals computer in 1980.

Then, playing with a new midsize racket given to him by his wife, Lloyd won his first Grand Slam title in 1983, teaming with Australia's Wendy Turnbull to capture the French Open mixed doubles.

Region V cage fix

A Region V Junior College Basketball Tournament ticket package is being offered to the general public starting Wednesday at the Chaparral Center ticket office, according to Midland College Athletic Director Delnor Poss.

This year, Midland will host both the women's and men's Region V playoff tournament March 6 through March 10. The winners here will earn advancement to the national junior college playoff tournament.

Poss said that a ticket package that will include tickets for all 14 playoff games may be purchased for $20 per person. "We think that is a good buy for those who are interested in junior college basketball," said Poss.

The women's tournament begins on March 6 with four games scheduled from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. On March 7, women's teams will play semifinal games at 6 and 8 p.m.

On March 8, the women's championship game will be sandwiched in the middle of first round action of the Region V men's tournament at 7 p.m. Region V games that day are scheduled for noon, 2, 5 and 9 p.m.

On March 9, the men's semifinal contests will be held at 7 and 9 p.m. and the championship finals will be held at 7 p.m. on March 10.

Auburn, Miami clash

From Wire Reports

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — National champion Miami and third-ranked Auburn will open in the second Kickoff Classic Aug. 27 at Giants Stadium.

The formal announcement will be made Wednesday.

The Hurricanes were named the top-ranked team by AP after defeating previously unbeaten and No. 1-ranked Nebraska 31-30 in the Orange Bowl.

Auburn defeated eighth-ranked Michigan 9-7 in the Sugar Bowl.

Nebraska, which beat 1982 national champion Penn State 44-6 in the inaugural Kickoff Classic last August, is ineligible to compete again for five years.

The Cornhuskers finished No. 2.

Officials at the New Jersey Sports and Exposition Authority, which promotes the game, refused to confirm the Miami-Auburn matchup.

Sports Authority spokesman Les Unger said whatever two teams are invited each will receive a guaranteed minimum of $550,000.

Miami officials also declined to confirm the matchup, but university spokesman Ron Steiner said: "You'd have to be naive to think we didn't have an interest."

Garrison upset victim

MARCO ISLAND, Fla. (AP) — Unseeded Camille Benjamin upset top-seeded Zina Garrison in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4, during a windy, 80-minute match Friday at the Avon Cup tournament.

Bonnie Gadusek defeated Pam Casale 6-2, 6-0 to reach the semis.

Kathy Horvath and seventh-seeded Virginia Ruzici also advanced. Horvath beat Ivanna Madruga-Osses of Argentina 6-3, 6-4, while Ruzici defeated Laura Arraya, 6-2, 6-1.

Sims

explains signing

DETROIT (AP) — Running back Billy Sims testified Friday that he signed a contract with the USFL Houston Gamblers because he believed that negotiations with his present team, the Detroit Lions, had broken off.

Sims also said he would not have allowed his former agent, Jerry Argovitz, to negotiate contracts for him had he known that Argovitz had gotten a $3,800 finder's fee for investing Sims' money. Argovitz is now co-owner and president of the Gamblers.

Sims said he signed the Gamblers contract last July because he was not aware until mid-November that the NFL Lions had made an offer. "At the time I signed I was under the impression that the Lions didn't want me. The negotiations had come to a halt."

Sims signed with the Lions in late December after Argovitz sold the Houston contract to another agent and because "I didn't feel the Gamblers contract was valid," he said. "I felt I was misled about the proposals that the Lions made when I signed (with Houston)."

Sims' contracts with the Gamblers and the Lions are the subject of a U.S. District Court trial. The running back filed suit against Argovitz, claiming the Gamblers contract should be voided because Argovitz misrepresented him.

Michigan insures its winning ways

DETROIT (AP) — Michigan USFL's Panthers GM Vince Lombardi says signing Coach Jim Stanley to a new multi-year contract will help insure the team's winning ways.

Stanley, who guided the Panthers to the USFL title last season, said he signed the new multi-year contract with the team on Thursday.

"I think it's a very workable contract," he said. "Anytime you have a contract, it's got to be a good deal for both sides, or it's not very good. But we have a good working relationship."

Dallas makes power play for art world respectability

DALLAS (AP) — The name has been chiseled by hand above the doorway and the final touches are complete on Dallas' $50 million power play for respectability in the art world and cultural excellence at home.

On Sunday, after numerous gala parties for the wealthy and the generous, Dallas will open its new Museum of Art to the public.

The museum, a limestone and steel giant on the northern end of downtown, represents more to Dallas, city's leaders say, than a place to display art.

"There is a recognition here that an art museum is an integral part of a great city, and the city had gotten ahead of the museum and other cultural activities," said Irvin Levy, president of the museum's trustees and president of Irving-based NCH Corp.

"For the future of the city, it is important to have a first-quality art museum," Levy said.

Dallasites, who do very few things in a small way, combined a $24.8 million bond issue — the largest sum ever raised by public referendum for a cultural project in the country — with more than $27.6 million in private contributions for its 210,000 square-foot showcase.

Now the museum wants more money.

While Dallas now has one of the finest museums in the country, it lags far behind older, better-endowed institutions that have acquired stronger collections.

"This puts us on the art map, but we need to significantly increase our endowment," says museum director Harry S. Parker III.

"We're still in the gathering stage...When we find something we want now, we have to match it with a donor willing to buy it for us."

"That's the bad news," Parker said. "The good news is that in Dallas, you can find the people with the kind of money you need."

Steven Nash, chief curator, has the task of buying Dallas' culture.

"It's a very complicated project. People underestimate what we are trying to accomplish," Nash said. "Without fine works, all you have is a hollow shell. And it's very difficult to just go out and buy a collection."

Whenever a superior painting becomes available, for example, "there are many museums waiting and many have more money," Nash said.

Dallas' museum has already benefited from the private collections of local citizens, acquiring works from 26 different artists in the Algor H. Meadows collection — Monet, Pissarro, Modigliani and Henry Moore — and works from better known Dallas businessmen like Stanley Marcus and Nelson Bunker Hunt.

The major strengths of the museum are pre-Columbian, African and post World War II American art, with what museum officials call "emerging strengths" in 19th century and early modern European paintings and 18th and 19th century American paintings.

The museum was rejected by voters in 1978 but approved overwhelming 17 months later after the project was redesigned and christened with the slogan, "A great city needs a great museum."

WHAT'S YOUR DEFINITION OF LIFE?

One of Shakespeare's characters said, "It is a tale told by an idiot, full of sound and fury, signifying nothing." We believe life can be full and meaningful for everyone. Let us help you discover how your life can be that way. Worship with us.

religion in brief

Rev. Shirley Guthrie guest minister at First Presbyterian

The Rev. Shirley Guthrie of Big Spring will be the guest minister at First Presbyterian Church, 800 W. Texas Ave., Sunday at 11 a.m. He will speak on "The Touch of Jesus."

Guthrie has had a distinguished ministry throughout Texas, having served as moderator of the former Synod of Texas and moderator of Presbytery in West Texas. His pastorates have included Navasota, Graham and Kilgore. He has preached in Midland churches on several occasions.

Guthrie's children are continuing his prominence in the ministry. Shirley Guthrie Jr. is head of the theological department at Columbia Seminary, Atlanta, Ga., and Allen Guthrie is pastor of the Presbyterian Church, Sweetwater, and has served on the General Assembly Mission Board of the denomination. His daughter is an elder in her home church.

Former wrestler guest speaker

Evangelist Tommy Phelps will be guest speaker at Greenwood Baptist Church, Cloverdale and F.M. 1379, Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Before entering evangelism, Phelps was a professional wrestler for 17½ years. He wrestled as "Nature Boy." His hair was bleached blond and he wore fancy robes and capes.

Phelps attended Southwest Baptist Seminary, graduating in 1966 with a diploma in theology. He has served as pastor of Inspiration Point Baptist Church, Fort Worth, and Temple Baptist Church, Hereford.

Gospel singer tours Germany

Betsy Brown, a contemporary gospel singer from Midland, is touring Germany for her fourth time. She is on an extended performing tour of American military bases and will present 40 concerts between Jan. 11 and Feb. 22 when she returns to the United States.

She will be interviewed on the Armed Forces Network radio before returning to this country.

Her tour is made possible through HeartSong Ministries, Inc., a non-profit support organization for Betsy Brown's concert ministries, established over a year ago to provide funds and guidance. For more information on Miss Brown or HeartSong, write HeartSong Ministries, Inc., P.O. Box 80156, Midland, Texas 79706, or call, 682-1257.

First Christian Church, 1301 W. Louisiana Ave., will offer the fifth semester of the ten semester Trinity Bible Studies Series beginning Feb. 14 and ending April 17.

The class is offered at two different times — Tuesdays from 10 to 11 a.m. and 7 to 8 p.m. The focus for this study is Joshua through II Chronicles. The leader will be the Rev. Steve Edwards, senior minister at First Christian.

Registration fee is $10 for new students and $8 for returning students. Last day for registration is Feb. 7.

For more information or to register call the church office, 682-2541.

Old Fashioned Revival going on

The Apostolic Christian Tabernacle is conducting an Old Fashioned Revival through Feb. 5.

The revival began Wednesday. Service time nightly is 7:30 p.m. except Monday. The Apostolic Christian Tabernacle is located six miles north of Air Terminal on Highway 1788. For more information call the church, 563-5096.

Elder J.A. Cunningham, the church's pastor, invites the public to attend.

Anglicans meet in Ellis Chapel

St. Paul's Anglican Church will have Sunday service at 10 a.m. Newline W. Ellis Chapel, 801 Andrews Highway.

Rector of the church is the Rev. Kenneth Weaver. The Anglican Church uses the 1928 edition of the Book of Common Prayer. The bishop of the diocese is H. Edwin Caudill.

St. Ann's society held meeting

St. Ann's Altar and Rosary Society held its meeting in January at the home of Mrs. William Munn.

Guest speaker was Sister Mary Jean Audette who spoke on "Women Need to Know the Law." Refreshments were served.

Jews want Vatican recognition

NEW YORK (AP) — With the United States and the Vatican restoring diplomatic relations after a 116-year break, a Jewish leader says Jews "have a right now to expect another breakthrough" — Vatican diplomatic recognition of Israel.

Rabbi Mark Tanenbaum, international affairs director of the American Jewish Committee, says Jews see benefits in the new U.S.-Vatican links, since Pope John Paul II has become a "major moral force" against the spread of communism.

Idealistic clergy hit the hardest

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

The bigger the expectations, the worse the letdown. That's how experts see the effects on clergy who are shattered by built-up stress. The most idealistic are hit the hardest.

Whatever the cause, whether it's increased modern challenges to church life or the temper of the times, the bruising toll of pressures on many clergy has become a widely cited problem.

Sometimes it's called "burnout," a kind of disillusioned point of despair resulting from accumulated tensions which often hits those with the highest aims, who care most and try hardest.

The Rev. Roy Oswald of the Alban Institute, a congressional research center in Washington, D.C., calls the problem a "disease of the helping professions" to which clergy are particularly vulnerable.

It is characterized by physical and emotional exhaustion, cynicism, ineffectiveness and a loss of a sense of worth, he says, resulting eventually from the steady drain on pastors of sharing other people's troubles.

"YOU'RE CONSTANTLY translating meaning into ministry to others," he told a group of Lutheran chaplains. "Similarly, you are constantly praying for others at meetings and mealtimes and in crisis."

He says clergy should develop habits for replenishing their own spiritual resources, such as candid friendships, retreats and taking regular periods for relaxing.

A Gallup survey indicates 29 percent of clergy in the country have "often" or "occasionally" considered quitting the ministry because of frustrations or disappointments in it.

Also, 68 percent of Americans say there's a high degree of stress on clergy.

A study committee for the U.S. Roman Catholic bishops concluded in 1982 that stress has become a growing problem for priests because of various factors, including:

A heavier workload, multiple role expectations that priests find hard to fill, polarized views and changes in the church, and difficulties priests have in finding time to nurture their own emotional and spiritual health.

To a conference of Catholic deacons some time ago, psychologist David Balk of Tucson, Ariz., gave this definition of burnout:

"A STATE OF PHYSICAL, emotional and mental exhaus-

McMurry College minister to speak at St. Luke's

Members of St. Luke's United Methodist Church will have an opportunity to hear the Rev. Johnnie J. Kahl Jr. during both worship services Sunday.

Kahl is campus minister at McMurry College, Abilene. Sunday is being observed as McMurry Day at St. Luke's.

Born in El Paso, Kahl graduated from Ysleta High School. He attended North Texas State University, Denton, and The University of Texas at El Paso. He graduated from McMurry College with a bachelor of arts degree with a major in history and a minor in philosophy. He received his master of divinity degree from Perkins School of Theology, Southern Methodist University, Dallas. Kahl is an elder in the United Methodist Church, New Mexico Conference.

Kahl and his wife, Janice, are the parents of two children, Brian and Julie. They have served pastorates at Clint, Anthony and Aztec-Bloomfield in the New Mexico Conference. Kahl was the United Methodist campus minister at Sul Ross State University, Alpine, from 1968-1973. He is in his sixth year as minister to McMurry College.

Hunger report criticized

NEW YORK (AP) — Several Protestant leaders have criticized the report of President Reagan's Task Force on Food. Claire Randall, general secretary of the National Council of Churches, noted that increasing numbers of people are coming to church feeding programs.

She added, "Churches won't be able to continue to meet that increasing problem indefinitely. The church can handle some emergencies, but it is not a permanent answer to the problem."

She and other council officials commended some aspects of the task force's recommendations, such as raising asset limits for food stamp eligibility.

The Rev. David Crean, head of the council's ecumenical review board that screens financial requests for denominational hunger funds from community groups, said "The churches are being stretched to the limit to provide food assistance."

He says that "for the government to turn over the feeding of the hungry to the religious community constitutes, in effect, double taxation" of church members who pay for the programs.

tion, marked by physical depletion and chronic fatigue, feelings of helplessness, unhappiness and by development of a negative self-concept and attitudes toward work, life and other people."

He says the condition hits those who have been "very dedicated" to their work over a long period and when their high commitment fails to produce the expected results, leaving them "frustrated, overwhelmed, trapped" and blaming themselves.

The likely victims, he says, are the idealistic who set rigid standards for themselves, trying to please everyone, and also the high achievers who care greatly and are determined to help others and make the world a better place.

The Rev. James Landes, a professor of religion at Baylor University, says the stress level is higher among Southern Baptists than in most denominations.

"Our completely autonomous church government structure means all the weight falls on the preacher to keep the churches running."

He says studies indicate "nearly all our ministers have suffered some kind of stress or personal crisis by age 40."

CITING THE IDEALISM young ministers bring to their first pastorates, he says they need to be prepared for a "lifetime of stress. They need to know how to function when the water hits the wheel."

Minnesota Bishop Herbert W. Chilstrom of the Lutheran Church in America told a theological conference he has noted a series of crises that occur frequently for clergymen, including:

Early uncertainty about their call to the ministry, marital and family stress, problems caused by more clergy wives working, strife among staff personnel, inability to deal with the strife and poor administration.

Charles V. Gerkin of the Candler School of Theology in Atlanta, says "burnout" is an increasing occupational hazard for ministers, many of whom don't find results achieved measuring up to expectations.

"Initial enthusiasm, even when accompanied by deep personal commitment to serve God and his people, can carry one only so far," he says, adding that clergy must come to terms with the intractable stubborn nature of human problems and resistance to change.

Bishop says 'life is real issue'

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Roman Catholic Bishop Bernard F. Law, the new archbishop-designate of Boston, says the "value of human life" is the consistent basis of various church stands — against abortion, capital punishment and the nuclear arms race.

He says "life is the real issue" in all those cases. Writing in the weekly newspaper of the Springfield-Cape Girardeau, Mo., Diocese, which he has headed since 1973, he says the church should not be seen as simply "against" certain things, but as upholding life.

"We witness for life and we need to approach the weighty moral issues of our time in the positive sense of what the gospel offers the world," he says.

Noting a recent talk by Chicago's Cardinal Joseph Bernardin linking the various church stands as a "consistent ethic of life," he says "our Catholic witness is positive action" to replace "negative factors which destroy society."

Europeans fond of 'spooning'

In many European countries' rural areas a popular love token was a carved wooden spoon. One of the men in Pieter Bruegel's famous Flemish painting, "Peasant Dance," wears a carved love spoon in his bonnet. And in many nations "spooning" means courting even to this day.

SMU theology professor to lead church class

The Rev. Ruth Tiffany Barnhouse will lead an adult education class Sunday at the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity, 1412 W. Illinois Ave. Sessions will be at 10 a.m. and from 7-8:30 p.m.

Dr. Barnhouse is professor of psychiatry and pastoral care at Perkins School of Theology, Southern Methodist University, Dallas. She frequently gives lectures, workshops and radio-television interviews across the country for psychiatric societies, mental health centers, pastor's schools, clergy and lay retreats and civic groups.

Mrs. Barnhouse was ordained a priest of the Episcopal Church in June of 1980. She had a private psychiatry practice since 1956. Her major areas of expertise include interfacing between psychiatry and religion, spiritual development and direction and human sexuality, including marriage and family.

Born in France, Mrs. Barnhouse attended schools in France and Germany before World War II. She speaks French and German well enough for social and informal conversation and understands professional papers in both languages. Mrs. Barnhouse is the mother of seven children.

The author of two books, "Male and Female: Christian Approaches to Sexuality," 1976, and "Homosexuality: A Symbolic Confusion," 1977, she was guest editor for the Special Issue of Anglican Theological Review on Science and Religion, October 1981.

In describing what she plans to discuss at the Holy Trinity sessions, Mrs. Barnhouse said, "Many people think prayer is like asking the boss for a favor and go on to think they're more likely to get promoted if they manage alone. So they don't pray except on formal occasions or in a real emergency. You wouldn't think of treating a friend like that, and God is really our very best friend. Come and learn how to enjoy that relationship through real prayer."

The public is invited to the sessions.

Couple to speak at Calvary Assembly of God

The Rev. Glenn D. Stafford will be guest speaker at Calvary Assembly of God Church, 908 S. Johnston St., Sunday at 7 p.m.

Stafford and his wife, Kathleen, who have been missionaries since 1957, have twice been evacuated from countries because of government decree.

They left Burma in 1966 after pioneering and establishing the Assemblies of God Evangelistic Center, Ragoon, when the government decreed evacuation of all missionaries. In 1973, the Staffords were among six Assemblies of God missionaries assigned to missions work in South Vietnam. After establishing a Bible school in Vung Tau, they were forced to leave the country in 1975.

The Staffords have also served as missionaries in Malaysia and Indonesia. Their next four-year assignment is in Singapore where they will continue the theological education of Asian church leaders at the Bible Institute.

Stafford is the principal of the Institute and chairman of the Singapore missionary field fellowship and Mrs. Stafford serves as librarian, choir director and teacher at the Institute.

Prior to missionary service, the Staffords pastored churches in Amarillo and Lubbock.

Stafford, a graduate of Southwestern Assemblies of God College, Waxahatchie, has done post graduate work at West Texas State University, Canyon, and at Texas Tech University, Lubbock.

He holds a master's in missions science from the Assemblies of God Graduate School, Springfield, Mo.

The Rev. Gayle Reeves, pastor of Calvary Assembly of God, invites the public to attend.

John Garlock

Dallas professor comes to city

John Garlock will be speaking at Midland Christian Fellowship, 2301 W. Indiana Ave., Feb. 4 at 7 p.m. and Feb. 5 at 10 and 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Garlock teaches homiletics, world missions and other subjects at Christ for the Nations Institute, Dallas, as well as traveling and teaching extensively elsewhere.

His parents, the H.B. Garlocks, were among the earliest missionaries to areas of West Africa and part of his boyhood was spent in Ghana. This early exposure to missions has been followed by 16 years as a missionary himself.

For 10 years, Garlock was director of South African Bible Institute near Johannesburg and he served, for four years, as academic dean of Continental Bible College, Brussels, Belgium.

Most of his ministry has focused on Bible teaching in arenas ranging from college classrooms to short-term leadership seminars for small groups in private homes. He has been retreat speaker for the U.S. Coast Guard Academy, for conferences of Bible college teachers, Full Gospel Businessmen's conventions and Camps Farthest Out.

His educational background includes study at the University of Oklahoma, a bachelor of arts degree from Florida Southern College and a master of arts degree from the graduate seminary of Phillips University. He has served as instructor or administrator at several colleges in the United States.

Garlock is the author of the book "Teaching as Jesus Taught" as well as numerous magazine articles.

The Swiss used to shoot mistletoe out of trees with arrows, being careful always to catch it with the left hand. And they followed the ancient tradition that mistletoe should never be cut with any base metal.

More Bahai's jailed in Iran

WILMETTE, Ill. (AP) — U.S. Baha'i leaders say that more than 250 Iranian Baha'is, including many of the faith's elected leaders, have been imprisoned in the last 10 weeks, bringing the total number in jail in Iran to more than 650.

Citing the increasing persecution, Firuz Kazemzadeh, leader of American Baha'is, says, "There can no longer be any doubt that this is genocide."

Family finds home in school

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Nemaat Mahmoud, her eight children and the families of her husband's three brothers share three dingy rooms in an old schoolhouse and hope for the day when they can again have homes of their own.

"At nights when I can't sleep, I think of our situation, how we are forced to live," says Mrs. Mahmoud, 47. "I think of my children, who should be in school, and that they ask me for money but I don't have any to give."

The Mahmoud family is among an estimated 250,000 Christian, Moslem and Druse people driven from their neighborhoods and villages by more than eight years of sectarian fighting in Lebanon.

Sunni Moslems, the Mahmouds have a place to live with 14 other families in the abandoned two-story school in the heart of west Beirut thanks to action by the Grand Mufti of Lebanon, Sheik Hassan Khaled, the nation's highest-ranking Sunni religious leader.

They are better off than some other families, living in bomb-damaged or abandoned buildings in Beirut, in that they have electricity and running water.

But the few toilets in the building are over-taxed, and the rooms are damp from lack of heating.

Mrs. Mahmoud complains that problems like these have caused illnesses, like asthma, to break out in the family.

Her family's miseries began in 1975, when the outbreak of full-scale civil war in Lebanon drove them from their homes in the Karantina neighborhood of east Beirut.

After several years of moving to and from the homes and apartments of friends and relatives, the Mahmouds settled in Khalde, six miles south of Beirut, and the brothers built several small concrete-block houses.

Mrs. Mahmoud said her family was forced to abandon their house after it was damaged by shellfire during the Israeli army invasion of Lebanon in 1982. Last year, despite militia fighting in the Khalde area, the family tried to return to their house, only to find that it and neighboring homes had been bulldozed.

"We stayed in a mosque for a while, but then came to Beirut," Mrs. Mahmoud said in an interview.

The family pays no rent for the schoolhouse. Men and boys who are able to work take odd jobs, such as driving taxis, to bring in money that allows the 30 family members to buy food.

Meals — often only bread and vegetables — are cooked on kerosene stoves in the center of each of the three rooms they've been assigned. Mats scattered around the tile floor serve as chairs by day and beds by night.

Two of Mrs. Mahmoud's nieces — Tharwat, 15, and Najah, 20 — say the war has cost them more than homes.

Mrs. Mahmoud's 8-year-old daughter Sabine says she misses her friends. "The kids here are too young for me to play with," she said. Still, she understands why the family cannot yet return to Khalde.

Does drug addiction equal legal insanity?

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The claim that the defendant on trial was insane and therefore cannot be held accountable for his crime often infuriates the non-legal mind.

A national uproar came after the 1982 insanity verdict for John Hinckley, who pulled a pistol and wounded President Reagan, his press secretary, a Washington policeman and a Secret Service agent.

What the Defense Function Committee of the American Bar Association calls the "public hysteria" over the Hinckley case may yet result in widespread change in state insanity laws and in the federal law.

Now a case hinged on the claim of insanity is before the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which encompasses Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi.

It centers on a claim that drug addiction is a form of insanity and therefore a claim of innocent by reason of insanity can be raised as a defense.

All 13 judges of the court, instead of the usual three-judge panel, heard arguments last Sept. 12 — then asked for help in the form of friend-of-the-court opinions from interested organizations.

An opinion has yet to come.

Addiction-insanity poses a lot of legal complications.

U.S. Attorney John Volz argues that if addiction is a defense to crimes committed by an addict to obtain drugs, than the same defense could be raised by those who rob banks or steal to get money for drugs.

"The policy reasons are obvious for not allowing this defense to prevail," said Volz, in a brief filed for the United States.

"A ruling of this nature would undermine the work of both Congress and the judiciary in their efforts to control the sale and use of narcotics," said former assistant U.S. attorney Patrick Fanning.

Yet a three-judge panel of the 5th circuit made a ruling of that nature last April 22 when it ordered a new trial for Robert Lyons, 35, of Bogalusa, La., saying he should have been allowed to use the insanity defense.

This panel decision was appealed to the en banc, or full, 5th circuit court.

Lyons, the sheriff of Washington Parish (county), resigned five days after he was convicted on June 5, 1982, on 12 counts of using fraud to obtain drugs and was sentenced to a year in prison and five years probation.

At his trial, the U.S.

District Court judge had refused to allow Lyons to use addiction as an insanity defense.

Lyons said he had become involuntarily addicted while under treatment for various ailments and injuries.

The original test for insanity was simple — could the defendant tell right from wrong?

But psychiatrists and defense lawyers champion a more liberal approach. So Lyons based his plea on this broad insanity test, adopted by the 5th circuit for courts under its jurisdiction in 1969.

It makes you feel good about American moviemaking. Entertainment means style, energy, talent working at full incandescence. By these criteria "SILKWOOD" is not only a powerful film, it's a compelling entertainment in both senses of the word. A movie that shouldn't be missed.

Thatcher, Italian premier: Troops will stay in Beirut

By The Associated Press

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher of Britain and Premier Bettino Craxi of Italy on Friday reaffirmed their nations' resolve to stay in the multinational peacekeeping force in Beirut, but they also suggested a greater U.N. role in Lebanon.

A top Lebanese official, meanwhile, said his government would not throw out its troop withdrawal agreement with Israel unless Syria first promises to pull its estimated 30,000 troops from Lebanon.

"Syria has not committed itself to withdraw even if the May 17 agreement is abrogated," the official said, "and unless we know what Syria's position will be without the May 17 agreement, we're not going to abrogate it."

The government official briefed Western reporters on condition his name not be used.

ACTION IN THE civil war was frozen by a heavy snowstorm in the Beirut area Friday. Army troops left battle stations to help rescue 111 travelers who were stranded overnight on a mountain highway near Beirut.

Craxi is hosting Mrs. Thatcher during a two-day summit conference in Rome.

"Both of us see the possibility of an expanded U.N. role in Lebanon," Mrs. Thatcher told a news conference. "But in the meantime we are there and do not intend to pull out and leave a vacuum in that country."

"We believe that we must all act together in any action that is taken there," she added.

Italy, Britain, the United States and France have troops in the multinational force, which was intended to promote a cease-fire among the warring factions. Italy on Friday finished reducing the size of its contingent in Beirut from 2,100 men to about 1,400 troops.

THE UNITED NATIONS has a small force in southern Lebanon.

Despite considerable pressure to bring the troops home, Craxi said the countries would not take such action on their own.

"Now is the time to step up political and diplomatic efforts to clarify the positions of all those involved," Craxi said. He also suggested a greater U.N. role.

In Beirut, the senior official of President Amin Gemayel's administration said Friday that Syria had not made clear what it would do if the Lebanese government cancels the U.S.-brokered troop withdrawal pact with Israel.

The accord provides for Israel to withdraw its 20,000 troops from Lebanon in exchange for arrangements preventing a return of Palestinian guerrillas to threaten Israel's northern border. Israel made its withdrawal from southern Lebanon contingent on a corresponding Syrian pullout.

Israel invaded Lebanon in 1982 to smash the Palestine Liberation Organization.

ASKED WHAT THE consequences would be if the May 17 accord was scrapped now — without a Syrian pullback — the official said, "Our understanding is we will not see the south (of Lebanon) again."

The official said the Gemayel government had repeatedly asked the Syrians to state their terms so that negotiations could be started.

"But the Syrians stuck to their basic ideological position, saying 'Go cancel the May 17 accord and then we'll see," the official said. "There can be no progress on the troop withdrawal issue until the Syrians start talking politics, not ideology."

The Syrians, who sent troops into Lebanon to end the 1975-76 civil war, occupy northern, eastern and parts of central Lebanon while Israel holds the south.

The Gemayel government's authority is confined to Beirut and its suburbs, where the multinational force helps Lebanon's 37,000-man army. It is trying to extend its control to greater portions of the countryside.

THE OFFICIAL SAID the government was uncertain whether its decision Thursday to reinstate 500 to 800 inactive Druse officers in the army — a concession to dissident Druse leaders — would remove the obstacles to a security plan which would disengage the civil war antagonists.

"We were told by all, the Americans and the Saudis, that this is the last issue and that once it's resolved, everything will start rolling," said the official.

He said the Druse leadership had not responded to the action. The officers left the Lebanese army during last September's fighting.

Various spokesmen for Druse leader Walid Jumblatt's Progressive Socialist Party have given various responses to the government move. But Jumblatt himself has not yet spoken.

The Druse, a secretive sect whose beliefs are based upon Islam, have demanded a greater role in the government.

THE SECURITY plan calls for "disengagement" zones around the Shiite Moslem southern suburbs of Beirut and a withdrawal of all Christian militiamen from the Druse-inhabited Chouf Mountains and all other areas between Beirut and the Israeli army front line along the Awali River.

Pope would like to visit U.S.S.R.

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II indicated on Friday he might like to visit the Soviet Union.

The pope, who will make his third visit to the United States next May, was asked by American journalists whether he intended to visit the Soviet Union in the interests of impartiality.

"Wait and see, wait and see," the pontiff told his questioners at the end of a special audience for the press marking the Holy Year of Redemption. "Impartiality must be bilateral," he added, indicating he had not received a formal invitation from Moscow.

Japan Air Lines world's largest

TOKYO (AP) — Japan Air Lines replaced Pan American World Airways as the world's largest airline in terms of international passenger and cargo loads in 1983, a JAL spokesman said Friday.

Spokesman Geoffrey Tudor said JAL carried 4.528 billion ton-kilometers of paying passengers, cargo and mail on regular international routes last year compared to Pan Am's 4.120 billion ton-kilometers. Ton-kilometers are calculated by multiplying paid transported weights of passengers and cargo by distances.

According to International Air Transport Association statistics, JAL ranked second to Pan Am in the international field in 1982. JAL said it estimated that United Airlines was the world's largest airliner, considering combined international and domestic passenger, freight and mail traffic in 1983.

Nuclear power plant activated

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The first nuclear plant designed in India began commercial production of electricity Friday.

The first of two 235-megawatt reactors at the nuclear plant in Kalpakkam, which is 50 miles south of Madras, was "declared commercial" Friday, said project Director M. Hari Prasad. Electricity generated by the reactor is part of the power supply for the southern Tamil Nadu state, he said.

Prasad said commercial operation of the plant was five months behind schedule, in part because a coolant water tunnel was choked by jellyfish.

Guerrilla gets three life terms

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A judge on Friday sentenced a Protestant guerrilla to serve three life terms in prison for 41 terrorist crimes, including three killings.

Samuel Murphy, 33, self-styled brigadier of the outlawed Ulster Defense Association, had pleaded guilty to the charges.

Lord Justice Turlough O'Donnell told Murphy he would have to serve a minimum of 20 years before being eligible for parole. The judge said Murphy was responsible for three murders, an attempted murder, bombings, burnings, robberies, hijackings and knee-cappings.

Soviet minister to visit France

PARIS (AP) — Ivan V. Arkhipov, first deputy premier of the Soviet Union, is expected in Paris on Sunday for a six-day visit that marks a thawing of French-Soviet relations.

Arkhipov, 76, is a specialist in industrial affairs. He will spend much of his time visiting factories in the provinces and talking with business leaders.

France's relations with Moscow have been cool since the Soviets sent troops into Afghanistan in 1979.

Gunmen murder Salvador deputy

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Gunmen pumped 12 bullets into the back of a conservative deputy of the Constituent Assembly after halting his car in the capital Friday, police said.

The slain deputy was identified as Ricardo Arnoldo Pohl, 35, of the ultraconservative Republican Nationalist Alliance. He was the third deputy from his party to be assassinated since April 1982.

No group immediately claimed responsibility for the slaying.

Witnesses said Pohl was driving along a street on the northwest side of the capital at about 9:30 a.m. when a vehicle stopped his car by pulling in front of it.

They said the people inside the other car opened fire on Pohl as he tried to run.

"He tried to flee. He got out (of the car) running looking for shelter in some buildings. Two guys got out of the other car and let go another volley," a laborer who witnessed the killing said.

The witnesses refused to be identified by name for fear of reprisals.

Pohl represented the eastern province of Usulután, 60 miles east of the capital, for his party, known by its Spanish initials as ARENA.

ARENA deputy-elect David Joaquín Quinteros from Cabanas province was killed in April 1982, shortly before the assembly was installed. No group claimed responsibility for his killing.

Members of the Popular Liberation Forces, one of five guerrilla groups fighting to overthrow the U.S.-supported government, claimed responsibility for the slaying last June of ARENA deputy Rene Barrios Amaya from San Salvador province.

There have been no other slayings in the assembly, which has alternates ready to fill vacancies.

Although the anti-government guerrillas have claimed responsibility for only one of the three killings, they regard ARENA as their arch-enemy because of its anti-Communist stance and its refusal to accept any political solution or talks to end the four-year-old war.

ARENA, led by cashiered army major Roberto d'Aubuisson, holds 19 of the assembly's 60 seats.

Planning deductions

This is the first in a series of "tax tips" articles provided by the Permian Basin Chapter of the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants.

Q. I think I'd be better off if I income averaged my taxes this year. But I did it last year. When can I do it again?

A. You can use income averaging every year. However, you should note that this method only works to your advantage when your income increases, not when it decreases. If your income has gone up or down from year to year, averaging may not benefit you.

Most types of income are eligible for income averaging. Computation of the tax is somewhat complicated. Current-year income is compared to 120 percent of the average taxable income for the preceding four years. These earlier years are called the "base years." Carefully follow the instructions for completing Schedule G (Form 1040) to arrive at the current tax figures.

Income averaging is available only to individuals. Trusts, estates and corporations are not eligible. The individual also must be a citizen or a resident of the United States.

There is one major restriction on using income averaging. To be eligible, the taxpayer must have provided 50 percent or more of his own support during the four base years. There are some exceptions to the rule. If you have an unusual situation, talk with your tax advisor.

There are also very specific rules on how to compute taxable income for the base years if you have changed your marital or filing status. These rules make the base years' taxable income consistent with the current year.

Income averaging is the taxpayer's choice. The Internal Revenue Service will not tell you when averaging will save you taxes. Therefore you should make the computation each year to see if it will save you money. If you determine that income averaging would have saved taxes in prior years, it is possible to amend those returns if the statute of limitations has not expired.

These and other tax questions will be answered during the Taxpayers Education Program to be held Saturday, Feb. 11 at 9 a.m. at Midland College in the Allison Fine Arts Building. Members of the Permian Basin Chapter of the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants will help individuals who plan to complete their own tax return for 1983. Program content will concentrate on questions relating to the 1040 and 1040A tax returns. To register for the course, send $1 with your name and address to The Permian Basin Taxpayer Education, %Donald S. Johnson & Co., Inc. Midland, Tex. 79701. Pre-registration is encouraged, but walk-in registration will be accepted.

Lawyers say crash caused by 'fireball'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lawyers for filmmakers who worked on the "Twilight Zone" movie say the helicopter crash that killed three actors was caused by an unforeseen fireball from a special effects explosion, not by flying debris as prosecutors claim.

The July 23, 1982, accident occurred during filming of a Vietnam war sequence 40 miles north of Los Angeles. A preliminary hearing is being held in Superior Court to determine if director John Landis and four others should stand trial on charges of involuntary manslaughter.

The hearing was recessed Friday, but the defense on Thursday unveiled its theory that the fatal crash was caused by misfiring special effects which created a huge fireball — something neither the helicopter pilot nor filmmakers had any reason to expect.

The defense said heat from the blast peeled away the metal skin of the tail rotor of the helicopter, causing it to crash on top of Vic Morrow, 53, Myca Le, 7 and Renee Chen, 6.

"The key man here is the helicopter pilot," said Harland Braun, attorney for Landis. "He knows there's debris out there, but if nobody ever warned him that he had a heat-sensitive tail rotor, and if no one in the military ever warned their helicopter pilots...there's no way of foreseeing it."

The mortar that exploded was supposed to have ignited on the ground. But instead, gas in the mortar hurled it upward, exploding in the air and creating a fireball that caused the metal skin of the tail rotor to "delaminate," Braun said.

The prosecution argues, however, that flying debris caused the accident.

Dr. Arun Kumar, a metallurgist, testified Thursday that tests indicated the rotor appeared to have been dented by debris from the special effects explosions.

"In my opinion, after the dent was made, the fracture took place by the vibration of the blades," Kumar testified.

Kumar said residue on the fractured tail rotor resembled paint used on buildings that blew up beneath the helicopter.

If the defense can show the helicopter crashed due to unforeseen effects, it would be harder to prove the filmmakers were negligent.

Braun contended Landis was not responsible for the crash because he was relying on special effects experts and the helicopter pilot to make sure the scene was safe.

"You could not recreate this accident if you tried," Braun said.

However, Deputy District Attorney Gary Kesselman said Braun was "splitting hairs" and called the fireball theory "consistent" with the prosecution's flying debris theory.

Culture minister cancels license to show film

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Egypt's cultural ministry has canceled the license enabling Columbia Pictures to distribute films in the country in a continuing dispute over "Sadat," a television miniseries produced by the American studio, two leading Cairo papers reported Friday.

Al Akhbar, said the decree from Mohammed Radwan, the minister of culture, "prohibits the licensing for exhibition in Egypt of any movie produced or distributed by the said company, and the withdrawal of current licenses."

Al Gomhouriya quoted Radwan as saying the decree took effect Thursday.

The newspaper reports were not independently confirmed, and a spokesman for Columbia Pictures Television in New York, Brian McGrath, said he was unaware of any such directive, and would have no comment.

Ten days ago, one of Al Akhbar's editors charged that "evil Zionist powers" were behind production of the miniseries on the life of late Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. Egyptian critics had denounced the miniseries as a "cheap insult."

In a front-page editorial, Moussa Sabry applauded a call by the Egyptian Union of Movie Professions for a boycott of Columbia.

"I do not doubt for one moment that evil Zionist powers were behind this deliberate crime," he said. "The Zionist powers do not want history to remember that peace was made by Anwar Sadat, supported by millions of Egyptians. They want to distort this truth."

The series, starring the American actor Louis Gossett Jr. as Sadat, has not been shown on Egyptian television or in Egyptian theaters, but many Egyptians have seen it on video cassette.

McGrath said Columbia had not tried to distribute the miniseries in Egypt, either for television or theatrical showing.

Egyptians said to have seen the miniseries have been quoted as saying it contained many errors in fact and misrepresented parts of Sadat's life.

Some Egyptians reportedly took offense at what they considered an unfair portrayal of the 1952 revolution against the monarchy, in which Sadat played a part, and of the characterization of Sadat's predecessor, Gamal Abdel Nasser.

"The July 1952 revolution was (depicted as) weak," said Anis Mansour, a close friend of Sadat and editor of October magazine, founded by the late president. "It's leader, Gamal Abdel Nasser, was pictured as a crazy man. As for Sadat's life, it was a quick fabrication."

Onassis to edit Jackson book

NEW YORK (AP) — A book by pop music phenomenon Michael Jackson, combining autobiography, how-to and pictures, will be edited by Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, the publisher said Friday.

Doubleday & Co. Inc. said the book is to be published in the spring of 1985.

Its spokeswoman, who asked that her name not be used, confirmed that Mrs. Onassis, who works at Doubleday, would edit the book but would not comment on reports that Jackson, 25, had specifically asked that she be his editor.

The spokeswoman also would not confirm that Mrs. Onassis has twice gone to California to see Jackson about the book.

The writing will be done by Jackson, the spokeswoman said. She said it would be autobiographical and would include detail on how he develops his dance steps. More than 100 color photos will be included.

Instead of human shoulders for perching, this young female calico cat has found a tree as a substitute. Named Fancy Pants, this feline loves to perch on shoulders and is not a lap cat. She and other animals may be adopted for a fee at the Animal Control Center, 1601 Orchard Lane. The center is open from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. weekdays except on Thursdays when it's open until 6 p.m. Saturday hours are noon to 2 p.m.

Actress doesn't mind sudden attention

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Actress Lori Singer, being touted as a sure bet for stardom after the movie "Footloose" appears next month, says she doesn't mind the attention as long as it gets her good roles.

"It just means there are going to be great opportunities for work," she said in an interview where, where she is filming "The Falcon and the Snowman" with Oscar winner Timothy Hutton. "The whole excitement for me is the work."

The 22-year-old actress left the television series "Fame" six months ago to film "Footloose," a drama with music that is being compared to last year's surprise hit "Flashdance."

"If 'Footloose' does great, that's fantastic, but I'm always looking ahead," she said.

Her role in "The Falcon and the Snowman" is a smaller one, the girlfriend of convicted spy Christopher Boyce.

"When I read the script, I flipped out. It's a fantastic story," she said. "It's an exciting script. It's power packed, and it's true."

BOSTON (AP) — Boston's new Roman Catholic archbishop, Bernard F. Law, says the city is his "final home."

"After Boston, there is only heaven," Law said when he arrived Friday.

Law, who succeeds the late Cardinal Humberto Medeiros to lead the archdiocese's two million Catholics, was greeted by state and city political leaders — including Gov. Michael Dukakis and Mayor Raymond Flynn — members of the Roman Catholic clergy, Protestant and Jewish leaders, and representatives of the city's minority community.

Law, 52, is scheduled to be named archbishop at a Mass at the South End's Holy Cross Cathedral March 23, becoming Boston's eighth bishop and fifth archbishop. He has been bishop of the diocese of Springfield-Cape Girardeau, Mo.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Swedish actress Bibi Andersson says the threat of nuclear war is a danger affecting everyone, the official Cuban news agency Prensa Latina reports.

The dispatch, received here, said Ms. Andersson — star of Ingmar Bergman film "Persona" — is in Havana for an international theater festival and will head its gala for peace Saturday.

"Artists must make use of their possibilities to communicate to create an awareness that the world is waiting for an efficient and positive response to the arms race," she was quoted as saying.

Prensa Latina also quoted her as saying that the U.S.-led invasion of the island nation of Grenada was a tragic event.

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — He's never been outspoken before on national issues but Pete Crivaro, 71-year-old mayor of Iowa's largest city, has taken a sudden interest in the anti-war movement.

"I've done a lot of talking, but I've never gotten involved," he said in a recent interview. But now he feels: "I've lived my life, but my grandkids and my great-grandkids haven't lived theirs."

He's run into opposition and apathy, for which he has a theory: "You know what our problem is?" he asked. "We've never had the hell bombed out of us."

Twenty young West Texas artists will be awarded

The accomplishments of 20 young West Texas artists will be recognized today at Midland Park Mall at the 2 p.m. awards presentation for the Museum of Color's art contest.

First, second, third and honorable mention awards for five different age categories will be presented for art works that most creatively used color in relating to the Museum of the Southwest. The public is invited.

The idea for the contest was conceived by the Museum staff to encourage young artists to express themselves creatively while focusing upon the diversity of the Museum's exhibitions and programs.

"When the Junior League of Midland gave us the financial support to bring the 'Aspects of Color' exhibit to Midland, we tried to get all of West Texas involved," said Anne Sherburn, development and public relations officer for the Museum.

The 'Aspects of Color' exhibition, which is traveling across the country under the auspices of SITES, is a rare opportunity to see original work by such artists as Jack Pollack, Maurice Prendergast, Milton Avery and John Singer Sargent, and we wanted to highlight its stop in Midland. These artists were pioneers in the development of contemporary art, and we wanted to encourage upcoming artists to innovatively and freely use color."

Today's awards ceremony will begin with a welcoming address and salute to the contest winners by Jerry C. Porter, the Museum's director. He will be followed by Ruth Bell of the Junior League, who will give a brief outline of the Junior League's involvement with the community.

Cristi Branum, Mary Rasmussen and Jane Lunson will present awards to winners in the five competition categories: pre-school and kindergarten; grades 1-3; grades 4-6; grades 7-9; and grades 10-12. Models, featuring the newest fashions from various merchants in the Mall, will show off the award winning art work.

Judges were Ms. Branum, representing Gallery 1114; Jean Posey, president of the Midland Arts Assembly; and Ms. Lunson and Warren Taylor, faculty members at Midland College.

Selected entries will be on display at the Mall through Feb. 12.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR CHARTER AND MERGER

Notice is hereby given that application has been made to the Savings and Loan Commissioner of the State of Texas for the approval of a charter for New Petrol Savings Association with principal office to be located at 1004 North Big Springs in the City of Midland, Midland County, Texas.

Notice is hereby given that application has been made to the Savings and Loan Commissioner of Texas by the proposed New Petrol Savings Association for approval to merge and reorganize pursuant to Section 10.03 of the Texas Savings and Loan Act, Article 852a, TEX. REV. CIV. STAT. A Plan of Reorganization and related documents have been filed with the Commissioner.

Notice is further given that hearing on the application will be held at 9:00 a.m. on the 15th day of March, 1984, in the offices of the Texas Savings and Loan Department, 1004 Lovato, Austin, Texas, pursuant to authority and jurisdiction granted by Art. 852a, TEX. REV. CIV. STAT. ANN. the Texas Savings and Loan Act.

The nature and purpose of the hearing is to accumulate a record of pertinent information and data for the application, from which record and information the Commissioner shall determine whether to grant or deny the charter application and approve or deny the merger and reorganization.

The particular sections of Art. 852a involved are 2.01 through 2.09, 2.13, 10.03 and 11.11. The particular sections involved are 51.1 through 51.13 and 59.1 through 59.7. Such rules are on file with the Secretary of State, Texas Register Division, or may be seen at the Department's offices, 1004 Lovato, Austin, Texas.

The applicants assert that 1) the prerequisites, where applicable, set forth in Sections 2.02 through 2.06 of the Texas Savings and Loan Act, have been met; 2) the character, responsibility and general fitness of the persons named in the Articles of Incorporation are such as to command confidence and respect; and 3) the business of the proposed association will be honestly and efficiently conducted and that the proposed association will have adequate full-time management.

There is a public need for the proposed association and the value of the business is such as to indicate a profitable operation. 4) The operation of the proposed association will not unduly harm any existing association. 5) The Plan of Reorganization is equitable

"It's good to have a place where you really like to live."

Debbie Allen talks about living at The Clusters:

"There's a lot of activity around here. Like this aerobics class."

"I can swim, play tennis, aerobics, jog. I can stay in good physical shape just living at my own house."

"I've lived here 8 months and I've been an apartment dweller for several years. I looked at several other complexes, but they were all the same...just four walls, a bathroom and a kitchen. This one is quite different. It has all the other luxuries."

No other Midland apartment community combines a multitude of activities with truly luxurious living. Featuring your choice of decorator wall coverings, side-by-side icemaker refrigerators, built-in micro-waves, ceiling fans, dishwashers, washers and dryers, trash compactors, mini-blinds and French doors to patios/balconies.

Come and visit and you'll see why Debbie Allen says, "I would really hate to move from here...I love it."

The Clusters. Midland's finest adult community. Special pricing now available.

"WE WANTED A QUALITY LIFESTYLE, NOT GIMMICKS AND GIVEAWAYS..."

"...That's why, when John and I were transferred to Midland, we chose to live at Oakridge Apartments. Sure, we passed up a few gimmicks and giveaways offered by the other communities. But what we got instead is an apartment community superior to anything else we saw. New on the market this year, Oakridge Apartments are bright and beautiful with sparkling new amenities and lots of extras. But more than that, Oakridge is a real quality neighborhood. The people out here are just great, and the management team is the best we've ever had."

1-, 2- and 2-bedroom studio apartment homes are available now. Take Loop 250 to N. Holiday Hill Road and look for the giant American flag.
