Court approved plan to add $5 license tag fee

Members of the county commissioner's court — by a 4-1 split vote — Monday opted to enter into a newly offered state program which will equal an extra $5 fee on local motor vehicle registration charges.

Hassie Sneed, Pct. 2, made the motion to notify the state that Scurry County will participate in the program allowing the additional fee.

Voting against the measure was Commissioner Ted Billingsley, Pct: 4. Those "for" it included Sneed, County Judge Preston Wilson and Commissioners Eldon Perry, Pct. 1, and Bernhard Bartels (Pct. 3).

During discussion, Bartels noted he was for the plan as an alternate to increasing taxes on personal property.

With an estimated 21,000 motor vehicles in the county, it is expected the extra $5 assessment for new tags will equal an almost $100,000 source of income to the county annually.

The extra fee will go into effect Jan. 1, 1985.

Under state law, the funds received by the county can only be used for the repair and upgrading of county roads and bridges.

The county retains $4.85 of each $5 assessment. The remaining 15 cents is retained by the state.

The decision came during the regular Monday meeting of the court. During the morning session, the court also discussed new election judge nominations for the 16 Scurry County voting precincts.

In regard to this, Roy Baze, county chairman for the Republican Party here, brought four names before the court for consideration.

Two of these currently serve as election judges, Stanley Noah, voting precinct 8; and Mrs. Jimmie Bruyere, voting precinct 19. Other suggested election judges from the Republican Party official were W.A. (Bill) Jones, precinct 5, and Mike Reed, precinct 18. He suggested also as an alternate to precinct 19 Mrs. David Strelecki.

The court indicated they would likely stay with all election judges currently serving — including those in both precincts 5 and 18 — if they were willing to serve again.

EPA rules leaded gas reductions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency today proposed rules reducing lead in gasoline 91 percent by Jan. 1, 1986, and cut short its normal period for public comment on the rules.

"The evidence is overwhelming that lead, from all sources, is a threat to human health," EPA Administrator William D. Ruckelshaus said in announcing the proposal.

Leaded gasoline accounts for about 45 percent of production.

Normally, such regulations would not take effect until a six-month comment period expires. But the agency, speeding up its time to make the proposal final, said it will allow only 30 days for responses. The EPA scheduled a public hearing on the proposal Aug. 30 and 31.

Ruckelshaus said the action "will greatly reduce that threat, especially for pregnant women and young children."

He estimated the standard would reduce the number of children with potentially damaging levels of lead in their blood from 97,000 to 47,000 by 1988.

EPA officials also said they are considering a total ban on leaded gas by 1995.

Beginning in 1986, refiners would have to limit the concentration of lead in gasoline to one-tenth (0.1) of a gram per gallon. That is 11 times more stringent than the current standard.

Surveys have shown that up to 17 percent of American motorists whose cars are equipped with catalytic converters use leaded gasoline in violation of air pollution laws.

The 11-fold reduction in lead content could be stretched out to 1988 under an option that EPA officials said is still under consideration.

Ruckelshaus said new evidence shows that adverse health affects from lead exposure may occur at much lower levels than those considered safe heretofor.

"Leaded gasoline is responsible for about 80 percent of all lead emissions to the air," he said, "and we know that there is a direct relationship between lead in gasoline and the amount of lead in human blood."

Ruckelshaus said that the agency intends to allow a small amount of lead to remain in gasoline because the owners of cars made before 1971 need leaded gas to protect their engines. But he said there will be little need for lead as a fuel additive by the mid-1990s.

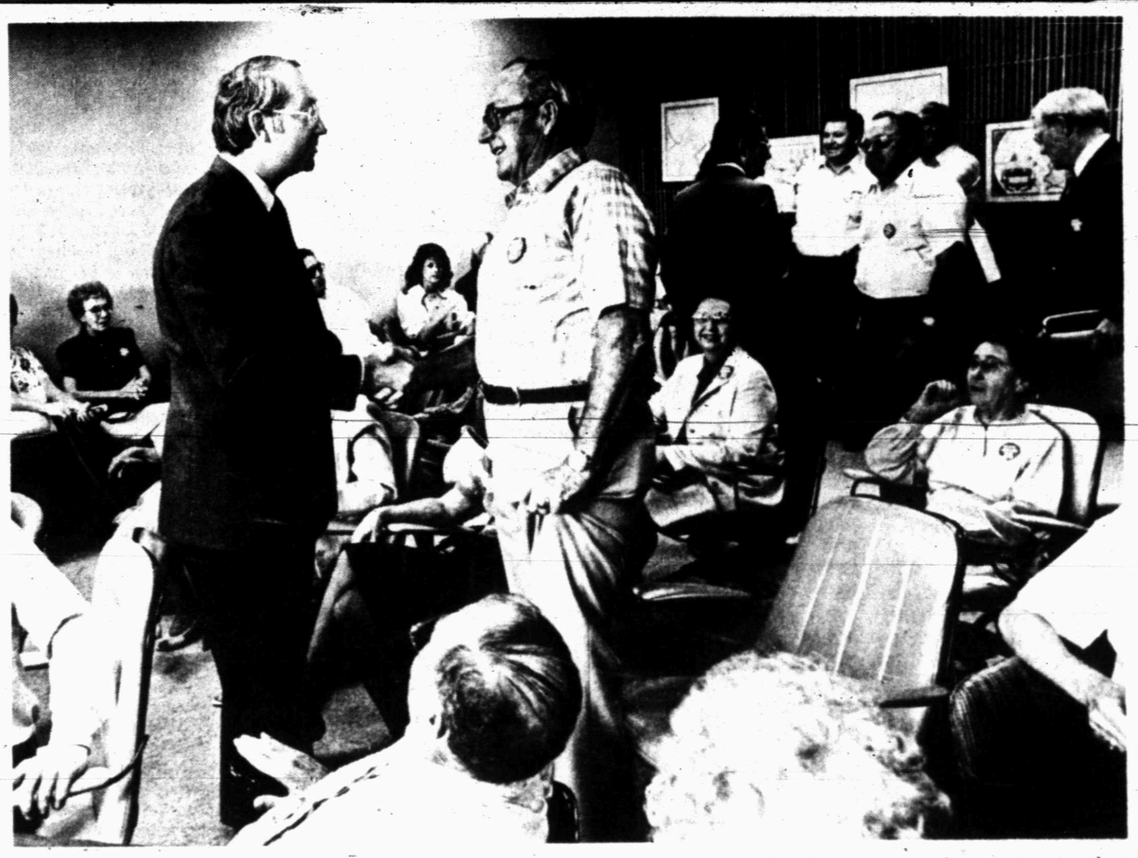

He expressed dismay that leaded gasoline is still so much in use today.

"Unfortunately, lead used today is significantly higher than projections made in 1982, when the current 1.1 grams per gallon standard was set," Ruckelshaus said. "We then predicted that lead usage in 1988 would be 21.4 billion grams, but today's estimates for that year are 35.7 billion grams — 69 percent more than anticipated."

He estimated it would cost refiners about $575 million to meet the new standards.

Lead is a poison, and tests in recent years have shown that concentrations in the blood of inner-city children closely track the amount of leaded gasoline sold in the area.

In sufficient concentrations in children, lead causes mental retardation.

French youth visits locally

Herve Causse, 15, of Chenneviere, France has been staying with the Bill Robbins family in Snyder this month. He returned to France Saturday.

Causse's visit to America was arranged through Nacel Cultural Exchanges of Fargo, N.D., an organization which sponsors an exchange yearly of 200 American and 200 French students. The local family became associated with the organization through daughter Lisa, a 1984 Snyder graduate who last year served as vice-president of the SHS French Club.

Lisa also visited France a couple of summers ago as part of a three-week school-related European tour.

While here, Causse has visitied such sites as Carlsbad Caverns, the Living Zoo at Carlsbad, Six Flags, Dallas/Fort Worth Zoo, White Water and the horse races at Ruidoso, N.M.

Causse speaks very little English and Lisa said she speaks even less French, but together the two have managed to communicate anyway.

Causse came to America to learn about baseball and Terrell is named...

Court appoints county attorney

Gary Terrell was officially appointed county attorney Monday morning by Scurry County Commissioners — a post he will be unopposed for this Nov. 6 on the General Election ballot.

His appointment some five months before he is expected to begin his first term of office was prompted by the death July 6 of longtime County Attorney George Killam. Killam was to retire at the end of his term Dec. 31.

Terrell had indicated July 9 he would be willing to accept the appointment, but asked the court to delay it until Aug. 1 to allow him to wind down business involved with his private law practice.

He is expected to be sworn-in for the office Wednesday. He won the Democratic nomination for the post May 5 from a field of two candidates. No Republican candidates announced for the position and Terrell's name will be the only one on the ballot in November.

He will begin his first four-year term Jan. 1, 1985.

He is a partner in the firm Rosser, Armstrong and Terrell here, joining it in 1979 after moving back to Snyder from San Angelo.

He is a 1970 graduate of Snyder High School and a 1974 graduate of Angelo State University, where he obtained an undergraduate degree in English and government.

He completed law school in 1977, graduating from the Texas Tech School of Law in Lubbock. He then returned to Angelo State for two years where he served as general counsel and assistant to the college president in addition to teaching business law in the School of Business Administration.

He is a past president of the Snyder Rotary Club and serves as president of the Scurry County Bar Association. He is also an elder with the First Presbyterian Church.

He and his wife Empress have a three-year-old daughter, Audrey, and expect their second child this fall.

Terrell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Marlin Terrell of Snyder.

Mondale garners support

AUSTIN (AP) — Seven prominent Texas Democrats, including six statewide elected officials, today announced their support for Walter Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro and predicted the national Democratic ticket would carry Texas in November.

Railroad Commissioner Buddy Temple described Texas as "the battleground" in the presidential election, and said, "We're going to win Texas, and I think we're going to win big."

State Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower said the voters would send President Reagan "back to fantasy land."

Temple said Dwayne Holman, appointments secretary for Gov. Mark White, would take a leave of absence to run the Mondale-Ferraro campaign in Texas. He handled the same job in the May primary election.

Joining Temple and Hightower at a news conference in support of the Democratic ticket were Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Attorney General Jim Mattox, State Treasurer Ann Richards, Land Commissioner Garry Mauro and Bob Armstrong, former land commissioner and chairman of the Travis County Democratic Party.

Last Marine unit leaving Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The last U.S. Marine combat unit in Lebanon began its pullout at dawn today, preparing to join 2,000 members of their amphibious unit who have been waiting in warships offshore since February.

The Marines, who started the pullout by floating three armed amphibious vehicles out to the flotilla, belong to a combat unit of 90 to 100 men stationed in west Beirut to guard the seaside U.S. Embassy.

The entire unit is expected to transferred to the five offshore ships by Tuesday, according to Western sources who asked not to be identified, and their guard duties at the embassy will be assumed by a Marine security detachment which reports to the U.S. State Department.

Simultaneously, U.S. Embassy personnel will finish moving from the seaside building to a heavily guarded and blockaded smaller compound 500 yards away in west Beirut and to an annex in east Beirut where most embassy personnel will live.

In addition to the 15-Marine security detachment which all U.S. embassies have, the new diplomatic quarters will be guarded by a Lebanese unit recruited from among local militiamen — Druse and Shiite Moslems in the west and Christians in the east.

The British Embassy, which shared the seaside compound with the United States, moved to another building in west Beirut last week.

Bentsen sees uphill race

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen says the Democratic ticket of Walter Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro face a difficult race in the South and would lose Texas if the presidential election were held today.

Bentsen said the fact that Mondale is from Minnesota and Ms. Ferraro is a New Yorker would not hurt them in the South because voters put qualifications first.

But he said his party's nominees for president and vice president have the opportunity to catch up and could win perhaps six Southern states — Texas, Georgia, Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana.

"It's going to be tough," Bentsen said on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press" program. "And it's important that the Democratic ticket win part of the South or I don't believe that they'll win the general election."

He said the presence of Ms. Ferraro, the first woman to be nominated for vice president by a major party, "adds a new dimension to this campaign. ... I think the situation in Texas will be one where they'll be quite interested in her.

The Democrats are not assured of winning any Southern states, he said.

Dear Abby

Impotents Anonymous Offers Network of Help and Hope

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I'm 44, married, have two great kids and keep myself in good physical condition. My wife is loyal, patient and understanding. She's a saint, considering what she's had to put up with for the last six years.

My problem is impotence. I mentioned it casually to my doctor about five years ago and was told not to worry, it was "all in my head," and I'd get over it eventually. Well, I'm still not over it, but I'm learning to live with it. I feel sorry for my wife. She's only 42.

Last week, at the gym where I work out regularly, I overheard some men joking about an organization called "Impotents Anonymous."

Is there really such an organization? Please check it out, and if there is one and it's legitimate, please tell me how to get in touch with it.

LIVING WITH IMPOTENCE

DEAR LIVING: There is such an organization and its headquarters are in Chevy Chase, Md. I spoke at length with the national medical director, Dr. Myron Murdock, an urologist, and learned the following:

Impotents Anonymous was founded three years ago. It's now in 10 states and is growing rapidly.

Despite the progress made in the field of sexual dysfunction, impotence is still a "closet disorder." Although an estimated 10 million American men suffer from chronic impotence, few are willing to admit any sexual inadequacy—even to their doctors.

Meanwhile, new tests have been developed to help determine whether an individual's impotence is psychological, physical or a combination of both. Four of the most common physical factors in chronic impotence are diabetes, vascular disease, neurological disorders, and the result of operative procedures to cure pelvic cancer. Medication prescribed for high blood pressure or a number of other ailments can cause impotence.

Many, if not most men experience temporary impotence at some time in their lives. It can be brought on by stress, tension, anxiety, fatigue, depression, or by cigarettes, alcohol and drug abuse.

Impotents Anonymous is a self-help organization, offering a strong support network of people who care and understand. It puts new members in touch with men with similar problems, as well as those who have had their impotence corrected. (Sometimes just knowing that millions of men have the same problem helps to restore self-confidence.)

The bottom line is this: There is help available today. Impotence can be reversed in most instances. IA keeps an up-to-date referral list of physicians and therapists who specialize in impotence and are trained to assist in its treatment.

Impotents Anonymous is a non-profit organization, open to every person on every economic level. It charges no dues and collects no fees.

All correspondence comes in unmarked envelopes and is strictly confidential. Interested parties may write to: Impotents Anonymous, 5119 Bradley Blvd., Chevy Chase, Md. 20815.

Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20 cents) envelope for a reply.

Keeping warm

IONA ISLAND, Scotland (AP) — Iona Abbey is being warmed by a system that draws heat from the Gulf Stream to protect the internal stonework and intricate carvings from dampness and condensation.

The 7th-century abbey, the oldest Christian burial place in Scotland, is the final resting place of more than 50 European monarchs.

The building, on Iona Island, has a heat pump system that uses water warmed by the Gulf Stream that flows in the Sound of Iona to insure a constant supply of warm water, according to the Scottish Development Agency.

At the most prestigious privately sponsored bridge event — the invitational pairs at the Cavendish Club in New York — this year's winners were Marty Bergen and Larry Cohen. They formed their partnership only a little more than a year ago, but it must have been a good idea. Since that time they have won the Blue Ribbon Pairs, the Life Masters Men's Pairs, the Spring National Men's Team-of-Four, and now the Cavendish Invitational.

Their style is to generate unusual results through aggressive competitive bidding. In today's deal, Bergen was North. After an original pass, his one no-trump overcall showed the unbid suits (diamonds and hearts). East bid two hearts anyway, and now Cohen felt that his favorable club holding over the opening bidder justified competing with three diamonds. East doubled for penalties, falling in love with his aces and kings.

The jack of hearts held the first trick. West now played the club seven, jack by North, king by East, ace by declarer. Now declarer played dummy's A-K of diamonds, followed by the club eight, covered by the nine and won by declarer's queen. The club six was now led, and West could trump in with the queen of diamonds and lead a spade to set the contract. Unfortunately poor West was playing in a dark corner of the room and failed to realize that the club six was a winner. He discarded a spade, as did dummy, and now South could play the good 10 of clubs also, throwing a second spade from dummy and making it impossible for the defenders to take more than four tricks.

HONORED WITH SHOWER—Lisa Guzman Winsor, bride of Scott Winsor, was honored with a bridal shower July 15 in the fellowship hall of Bethel Assembly of God. Pictured are Connie Romero, sister of the bride; Cnelo Guzman, her mother; the honoree; Viviana Ubando, her grandmother; and Vera Ubando, her aunt. The couple were married on July 17 at the home of her sister.

"SOME NEW PEOPLE ARE MOVIN' IN AROUND THE CORNER AN' SO FAR WE'RE STILL GOOD FRIENDS!"

In Texas...

Shark danger said exaggerated

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND, Texas (AP) — Marine biologists say the press blew a shark incident way out of proportion last week after two teenage girls were bitten while swimming in chest-deep water.

Robert Edwards, a marine biologist at Pan American University in Edinburg, said sharks have always been the Gulf, but that they are small and fairly harmless.

"Frankly, this whole thing has been blown out of proportion by the media," Edward said, adding that the attack was the first confirmed in Texas waters since 1961.

"It's their home, and they'll come right up to the shore to feed. But the odds are very remote you'll even see one," Edwards told The Dallas Morning News. "The shark is actually more frightened of humans. Humans kill more sharks than sharks kill people."

Last week a shark savaged the right leg of Carmen Castro Gaytan, 18, of Mexico City in the waters off South Padre Island.

Two hours later, three miles up the beach a 13-year-old Bryan girl required treatment after she was bitten as she swam.

Surgeons took five hours to sew Miss Castro Gaytan's right calf and foot back together.

"What happened in the Gaytan case can't really be called a shark attack. It's more likely a shark accident. The shark probably was frightened or confused by all the activity in the surf," Edwards added.

On Thursday, only minutes after he had confirmed the shark bit of Miss Castro Gaytan, he said, he took his wife and 1-year-old daughter swimming at the beach.

Lee Green, a biologist with the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department at Rockport, agreed that the Texas variety of sharks poses little threat to humans.

"The species common to Texas waters aren't very aggressive," he said. "Their numbers really pick up in the summer months when warm currents increase the fish yields. But although the shark is a predator, they're not out for humans."

The great white shark — immortalized in the book and movie "Jaws" — is a virtual stranger to Texas, Edwards and Green said.

"Mostly we get hammerheads, Atlantic sharpnoses and bull sharks," Green said. "The great white would be a rarity in Gulf waters."

A couple of veteran fishermen, Robert Bannert and Dickie Ostos, agreed with Edwards and Green that sand and hammerhead sharks often mingle among the tourists who frolic in the surf throughout the year. They also agreed that the danger is vastly overblown.

Bannert said he has never been bitten, although several of the sharks have passed uncomfortably close to him on occasion.

Ostos does not let the sharks bother him too much either, he said. He has used the end of his fishing rod to bop an approaching shark on the head, he said.

Fears of South Padre city officials and merchants that the shark attack would jeopardize their $25 million tourist industry at the height of the summer season proved groundless. About 10,000 people a day jammed South Padre's white sand beaches following Tuesday's incidents.

Cecilia Forbes said the incident helped her sales at the bait stand she operates on the south tip of this booming island resort.

She said she had given up hope of ever selling the six 5-inch, stainless steel hooks that were hanging on the back wall of her stand.

Stroke claims Fred Waring

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Fred Waring, the bandleader whose creativity extended to the kitchen and the invention of the Waring blender, was mourned as an innovator who sought "the ultimate in perfection" as he mixed chorus music with the Big Band sound.

Waring died Sunday at age 84 after giving his last performance Friday night — leading a concert of 200 teen-agers at Penn State University to cap a two-week series of music workshops.

A one-time engineering student at Penn State University with an inventive streak, he left his mark on America's kitchens when he patented the Waring blender in 1937.

Town's residents spray pesky mosquitos on cue

RICEVILLE, Iowa (AP) — Hundreds of townspeople itching to get even with a certain needle-nosed nuisance stepped into their backyards and, on cue, aimed a haze of insecticide at the mosquitoes making their summer miserable.

A tornado-warning siren wailing Sunday night was the signal that spelled doom for the blood-sucking pests that leave behind an itchy bump in a usually impossible-to-reach spot.

The "Mosquito Shoot-out" was organized by M.E. Messersmith, editor of the Riceville Recorder newspaper, who said that in addition to letting off a lot of insecticide the event was a chance for people to let off a little steam.

"It's just one of those cases where the whole town united to get something done and had fun with it," Messersmith said. "I think everyone was looking forward to hearing that siren blow."

When the call to arms came at precisely 7 p.m., men, women and children wielding 16-ounce cans of spray lined the streets and scurried around shrubbery, filling the air with a deadly mist they hoped would take the bite out of the annual mosquito problem.

Cans of Raid Yard Guard were distributed free by Boy Scouts last week to each household and residents were asked to hold their fire until the siren blew, so as to better catch the insects by surprise.

Half of the 31 cases of the insecticide were donated by the manufacturer. The City Council and Community Club provided $300 to purchase the remainder so that each of the town's 365 households would have a can.

The excess money was used to supply food and beverage at a picnic for all townspeople just before the siren blew.

Messersmith estimated that as many as 600 of this northeastern Iowa town's 919 residents attended the picnic.

"I know that we planned enough food for 700," he said, "and we almost ran out."

DR. LAMB

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Medicine helps to control gout

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am afflicted with a rheumatic knee. It swells quite a bit and is very uncomfortable. My doctor said it is gout. I have this in my left arm, too, and it is very painful.

I have acid in the blood. Can you help me get well, rather than get just temporary relief? My doctor has prescribed Disalacid.

DEAR READER — It is important to establish what you have. It is true that gout can affect any number of joints, including the knees and the arms. It is not just inflammation of the great toe.

Disalacid is a non-steroidal anti-inflammatory agent similar to aspirin, but is not the same thing as aspirin. It is used to relieve pain and inflammation in a number of conditions, including rheumatoid arthritis.

If you really have gout and if by acid in your blood you mean you have a high uric acid level, you might need to take some other medications.

Gout is usually caused by an elevated uric acid level. When the level is high enough, uric acid crystals may form in a joint space. The crystals react with the body's immune system, releasing chemicals that cause severe irritation. It was once believed that the diet was the chief source of elevated uric acid, but it now well established that the body produces excess uric acid as part of fundamental cell functions. The most effective way of controlling the uric acid level is to take medicines that prevent the cells from producing uric acid. Zyloprim is the main medicine used for that purpose.

But Zyloprim will not relieve an acute attack or relieve your pain. Other medicines are used for that purpose.

A high uric acid level can cause deposits or urate salts in the joints causing severe deformities. This is called gouty arthritis. It can be prevented by controlling the uric acid levels.

I have discussed the various medicines and diet in the management of gout in The Health Letter 16-10, Gout, the Uric Acid Disease, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I went on a seven-day cruise and wore the tranaderm-Scop patches behind my ear. I did not get sick while on the ship, but the morning after I got home, I took the patch off and the next day started to get sick. I got worse the next two days. My head was bouncing up and down and I was dizzy, nauseated, very weak and tired.

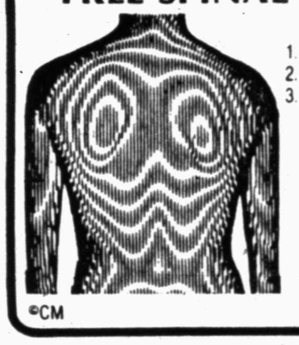

My doctor saw me and said my blood pressure was OK and I didn't have a virus. Could this have been a delayed reaction to motion sickness?

DEAR READER — You had sea legs. There are two parts to prolonged motion sickness such as occurs from a cruise. When you first start the cruise, you have motion sickness until your balance system adjusts to the motion of the ship. Then, when you get off the ship and the motion stops, you get motion sickness because the stimulation to your balance system has changed again. This recurrence of the problem after you get off the boat is called "sea legs."

Yes, if you had continued with your medicine for several days after you got off the boat and would have been less likely to have had this problem.

United States wins six golds in early events

LOS ANGELES (AP) - And the Games began.

In glorious sunshine, with no major smog, traffic or security problems, American cyclists and swimmers ruled the road and the water as competition opened among 140 nations at the 1984 Summer Olympics.

A sharpshooter from China, participating in its first Summer Olympics since 1952, claimed the first gold medal of the Los Angeles Games and that nation's first medal ever. A sturdy little Chinese weightlifter added another gold medal later Sunday, the first of 15 days of competition among more than 7,000 athletes.

Eight gold medals were at stake today, five in swimming and one each in cycling, shooting and weightlifting, while preliminary rounds continued in gymnastics, boxing, equestrian events and team sports such as basketball, soccer and volleyball.

Two American cyclists from Colorado won tight finishes to long races and four U.S. swimmers collected gold medals in three events - including an unprecedented two golds after a dead heat in one swimming final Sunday.

Two roommates on the U.S. swim team, Nancy Hogshead, 22, from Gainesville, Fla., and Carrie Steinsiefer, 16, of Saratoga, Calif., touched the pool wall simultaneously at the end of the 100-meter women's freestyle.

They shared a splashy hug, smacked high-fives and climbed out of the water and onto the victory stand at the swim complex on the University of Southern California campus. Their twin golds hanging around their necks, the two friends, side by side, blinked back tears as "The Star Spangled Banner" was played.

Tracy Caulkins, 21, of Nashville, Tenn., who has won more national titles and set more records than any American swimmer ever, broke her own U.S. mark to win the 200-meter individual medley. Her gold medal, her first, was four years overdue, because of the American boycott of the Moscow Olympics.

In the first women's cycling road race ever in the Olympics, Connie Carpenter-Phinney, 27, captured the first American gold medal of the Games by winning the 79-kilometer (49-mile) road race. It was the first U.S. medal in cycling since 1912.

Ms. Carpenter-Phinney, who was a speedskater when she was growing up in Madison, Wis., but switched to biking and moved to Boulder, Colo., narrowly edged her teammate, Rebecca Twigg, 21, of Colorado Springs, Colo.

Later, Ms. Carpenter-Phinney rooted her husband Davis Phinney, 25, to a fifth place finish in the men's 190-kilometer (118-mile) cycling road race. That race was won by yet another Coloradoan, Alexi Grewal, 23, of Aspen. He nudged Canadian Steve Bauer by the length of a spoke after a frantic sprint at the end of five hours of riding in 90-degree temperatures.

Wu Haifeng of China won the men's free pistol shooting and received the first gold awarded in Los Angeles. Guoqiang Zeng then won the gold in the 114-pound class weightlifting, and the Chinese men's gymnastics team rolled up six perfect scores.

However, the upstart American men gymnasts, despite only two perfect scores, held a narrow lead over the heavily favored Chinese after the first day of compulsory exercises.

In an opening boxing bout, highly touted Mark Breland of New York survived a standinxg eight-count to score a unanimous decision over scrappy Wayne Gordon of Canada.

Officials said Saturday night's exhilarating opening ceremony was apparently responsible for a jump in ticket sales, but authorities said there were only "moderate" traffic problems Sunday.

Odessa teams dominate UGSA tourney finals

Midland and Odessa met in finals play here Saturday and Odessa teams dominated, winning three of the four divisions in the United Girls Softball Association West Texas State Tournament.

Odessa Purple came from the loser's bracket in Division I to sweep away Midland Blue 14-7 while Odessa Black won Division III with a 10-3 victory over Midland Blue. Odessa also won Division IV, taking Midland 19-4 in the finals.

Midland Blue won the only other division, Division II, by defeating Odessa Maroon 18-7.

Division winners advance to this weekend's UGSA National Tournament which begins Wednesday in Abilene.

Snyder's Division I and II teams had been eliminated Friday. Its Division III team fell to Midland Blue 14-4 Saturday morning. Snyder did not enter a Division IV squad.

Division III was the only division which did not encounter a second championship game in the double-elimination action.

In Division I, Odessa Purple came up from the consolation ranks to beat Midland 8-5, forcing an extra championship game, which they also won. In Division II, Odessa Maroon first defeated Midland Blue 6-5 to push an extra game before losing in the finals. And in Division IV, Midland nipped Odessa 1-0 to force a third game, which Odessa won handily.

Snyder's Division III team won the Sportsmanship Award for that division. Other Sportsmanship Awards went to Odessa Black in Division I, Odessa Lavender in Division II and Midland in Division IV.

Snyder also placed four girls on the various All-Star teams. Cinnamon White was selected from Division I, Yolanda Anderson and Jill Roemisch from Division II and Sandra Morin from Division III.

Average Payment can help smooth out high summer electric bills.

In the summer, intense Texas heat can make your air conditioner work longer and drive your electric bill up in a hurry.

Our Average Payment Plan can help by "averaging out" your payments. You still pay for all the electricity you use, and your payments will still vary from month to month. However, in high-use months you pay for more.

Average Payment can help smooth out high summer electric bills. It's available to both residential customers and churches. If you'd like to know more, give us a call.

To get yours mail $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're a bright thinker today, but there is a possibility that you may spend more time talking about what you intend to do than actually doing it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be equally generous today to one who treats you kindly. If he or she knows you are appreciative, this person will be more willing to do for you again.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It's wisest today not to seek help from friends in commercial situations. Keep pals on one side of the fence and business contacts on the other.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Strive to be productive today but do not push yourself beyond your endurance. When you begin to tire, your work will reflect it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Guard against tendencies today to be envious of others. If something nice happens for a friend, be glad rather than jealous.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you have something important to do today, don't invite anyone into the act who doesn't belong. Outsiders may confuse the issue.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Take time to enjoy yourself today but try to do so without neglecting your responsibilities. Ignored duties may cause headaches later.

Robbery 'copter is investigated

GAINESVILLE, Texas (AP) — Witnesses may have seen five men walk away from a helicopter that was abandoned in Colorado and later proved to have been used in the July 20 robbery of the Valley View National Bank, Cooke County Sheriff Dan Tiller said.

Tiller said Sunday that his chief deputy, John Aston, and a county investigator, Jim Westfall, flew to Colorado Sunday to study the helicopter and to check reports that someone saw the five holdup suspects at the spot where the craft was found near Colorado City, Colo., 26 miles south of Pueblo.

The helicopter, belonging to Louisiana-based Air Logistics, was stolen in Galveston the night before the holdup.

Five men landed the stolen helicopter next to the bank, 10 miles south of here. One man kept the helicopter's engines running while four others robbed the bank of an undisclosed amount of cash.

The 1980 Bell 206-L Jet Ranger helicopter later was seen by a farmer near Leon, Okla., where empty cash boxes from the bank were found. Officials believe the helicopter was refueled later in the day near the Texas Panhandle town of Canadian.

"The officer we talked to in Colorado indicated that witnesses may have seen five men leaving the helicopter, but that has not been confirmed. We really just went out there to see what they have," Tiller told the Dallas Morning News.

Aston and Westfall took with them a bank videotape of the robbery and composite drawings of the five suspects.

The aircraft was spotted Saturday by Daniel Terrill, 10, and his father, Terry Terrill, of Rye, Colo., during their "penny-a-pound" plane ride during an air show. They reported the sighting to authorities when they returned from their flight.

Tiller said there also was "some speculation" that a sixth person might have been working with the suspects and might have arranged to meet them in Colorado. The helicopter landed in heavy brush, atop a bluff and less than a mile from Interstate 25, Colorado's principal north-south freeway.

"We don't know whether they planned to land it there, or whether they just decided to sit it down and walk away," Tiller said.

Colorado State Patrol investigator W.L. Wheeler said, "The chopper was not damaged. It was deliberately landed where it was found, properly tied down and, as near as we can tell, it's been there anywhere from three to five days."

An FBI agent, Pueblo County sheriff's deputies and Colorado State Patrol officers searched the area and the craft and dusted for fingerprints. All they found inside were partial fingerprints and gum wrappers, Wheeler said.

Miracle statue in Alamo City

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — As many as 100,000 people are expected to enter a Catholic church in the center of San Antonio over the next 10 days to pray before a 2½-foot statue that is called upon by Roman Catholics in Mexico and the United States to save marriages, heal cancer and reform alcoholics.

The statue, known as "la milagrosa," or "the miracle worker," arrived here Sunday on Mexicana Airlines Flight 718 on the lap of her caretaker, Maria Martinez, and escorted by two Mexican priests.

The Virgen de San Juan de los Lagos, a small image of the Virgin Mary, was met at the airport by the hot lights of television cameras, officers of the Knights of Columbus, and an entire choir.

For the next week and a half, the statue — made of sugar cane fiber and wood paste — will be enshrined at the church of Nuestra Senora de San Juan de los Lagos in a working class neighborhood.
