Estes Loses Again

Grain Is Taken From Elevators

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department announced today that it will withdraw about 42 million bushels of government-owned grain from storage elevators once controlled by Texas financier Billie Sol Estes.

George Barnes, an assistant to Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman, said the grain would be moved during a period of about 18 months. He said the decision was made by Freeman.

Body Is Exhumed In Jury Probe

FRANKLIN, Tex. (UPI) — A team of medical experts performed an autopsy today upon the exhumed body of a farm official said by Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman to have taken secrets of the crumbled Billie Sol Estes empire to the grave with him.

The purpose of the autopsy is to help a grand jury determine whether the official, Henry H. Marshall, 52, was killed or killed himself. The body of Marshall was found last June 3 and the cause of death officially was listed as suicide.

months. He said the decision was made by Freeman.

Barnes made the announcement at the first of a series of news briefings the department plans to hold on the Estes case.

He said the briefings at first will be held on a two-day basis but may dwindle to one a day or to none, as events develop in various investigations being held at the state and federal level into Estes' now-collapsed financial empire.

Barnes also said that a federal court in Texas had approved a $10 million bond for Harry Moore of El Paso, who has been appointed receiver for Estes' affairs. Barnes said the bond, provided by an insurance company, would protect the government's interest in the case.

The official said the government grain—worth roughly about $50 million—would be withdrawn from the Estes elevators in an orderly manner, possibly over an 18 month period. He said a crash program in loading out the grain would cost about $2 million.

"The grain will not be moved just for the sake of moving it out—it will be done in an orderly manner," Barnes said. "It will be a normal loading out procedure."

32 Votes Cast In Absentee Balloting Here

Absentee voting in the June 2 Democratic and Republican Run-off Elections ends next Tuesday, according to County Clerk Charlie Thut.

Thut said 32 ballots had been cast by Democrats since absentee voting started, May 15. Republican ballots, according to GOP County Chairman Clayton Husted, will be available for voters Friday.

Both Democrat and Republican voters cast their absentee ballots in the County Clerk's office.

Only one race is on the Republican ballot, that of the party's nominee for County Commissioner in Precinct Two. Candidates are W. C. Epperson and Bill Tidwell. Only voters residing in Precinct Two are effected. Husted said, as all state-wide GOP races were determined without runoffs in the May 5th Primary.

Democrats have six races for their attention.

The races are between Don Yarborough and John Connally for Governor; James A. (Jimmy) Turman and Preston Smith for Lieutenant Governor; Governor Carr and Tom Reavley for Attorney General; Joe Pool and Woodrow Wilson Bean for Congressman-at-Large; Clyde L. Carruth and William J. (Bill) Craig for County Judge; and G. L. (Nat) Lunford and Clyde Organ for County Commissioner, Precinct to other warehouses. No time was set for beginning the loading out process.

Barnes said the action was taken in the interest of public policy after looking at all considerations involved. He said Freeman felt the action would serve the best interests of the department.

Barnes emphasized that up to now, the government has not lost a nickel in grain storage operations in the Estes elevators.

A House government operations subcommittee was to meet later today behind closed doors to chart its investigation of Estes' dealings with the grain storage program.

Lie Tests Given In Crooked-Hole Oil Investigation

AUSTIN (UPI)—A number of Railroad Commission engineers and field men in the Kilgore district have been given lie detector tests in connection with an investigation of possible crooked-hole oil well drilling in the East Texas field.

United Press International learned of the tests Monday and Railroad Commission chairman William J. Murray confirmed it.

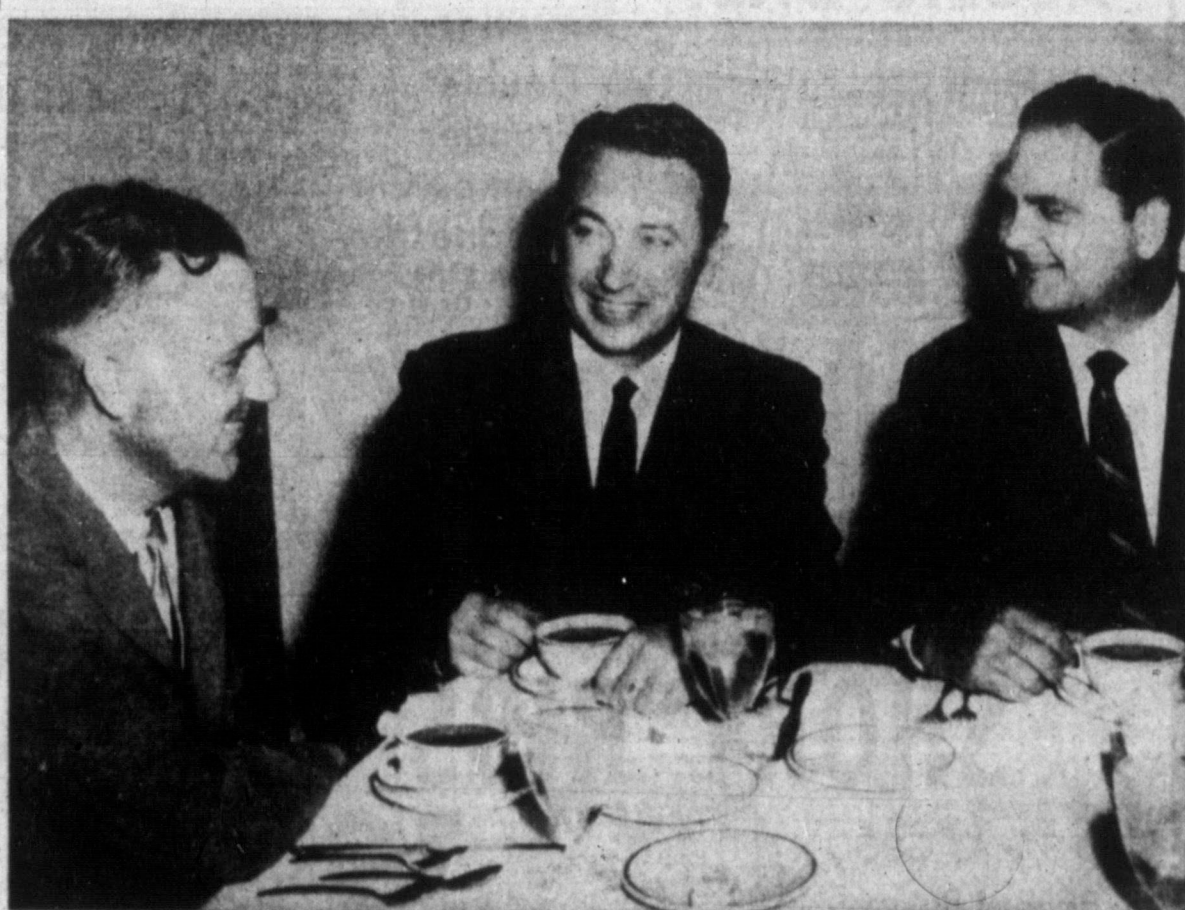

"Some seven to nine employees have taken polygraph tests," Murray said.

Murray said the tests were administered to determine "if any of our men were violating commission rules for friendship, gifts or any other reason."

The Department of Public Safety conducted the tests. Murray said "we don't have all of the reports in yet from the DPS."

Murray confirmed last Friday that two commission employees in East Texas have been fired and several others have resigned. He would not say if the firings had anything to do with the Kilgore area investigation. Field man Nelson Decker and district engineer L. D. Murphy were fired.

Navy Transport Crashes In Germany; 26 Persons Aboard Are Known Dead

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — A U. S. Navy reconnaissance plane carrying 26 persons and secret radar detection devices, tore apart in flight about two miles above the earth and crashed "like a grenade" six miles east of Munich today.

An Army official said, "there are 26 known dead." He said 20 bodies have been found and a search was continuing for the others.

An Air Force spokesman said the four-engine Super Constellation carried five Navy officers, 17 Navy enlisted men and four Army enlisted men.

A U. S. Air Force spokesman said the plane was a four-engine Constellation assigned to the American base at Rota, Spain.

A Pan American World Airways pilot reported he saw the Constellation explode and airline officials said the plane crashed beside a highway.

Fourteen Munich fire crews and a number of police and U. S. Army rescue workers doused the flames 65 minutes after the crash. Helicopters sped troops to the scene to keep spectators away.

The Air Force said the Navy WV2 Super-Constellation carried five Navy officers, 17 Navy enlisted men and four Army enlisted men.

It was to have returned to Rhine-Main after completing its training mission over the Munich area.

The Air Force said the plane was called a "Warning Star" by the Navy because of a huge bulge atop the body containing radar equipment.

Such planes are used in air defense work for reconnaissance and weather forecasting.

A spokesman said the crew arrived at Frankfurt Sunday on a navigational training mission.

At Rota, Spain, a Navy spokesman said the families of the men attached to the plane were at Rota and were being notified of the accident.

Five Soldiers Die In Fiery Tank Accident

FORT HOOD, Tex. (UPI)—Five soldiers died Monday when their tank tumbled down a 30-foot embankment into a shallow creek, landed on its top and burst into flame.

Within seconds the M48 medium tank, sometimes called a "steel coffin" by the infantry, glowed red hot. The escape hatch was jammed shut. The turret was buried in mud. There was no way for the soldiers to get out.

The victims included 2nd Lt. David C. Thayer, 23, whose wife lives in Kilgore, Tex., and whose mother lives in Columbus, Ga.; Sgt. Roger D. Swanson, 25, of Broomfield, Minn.; Pvt. David H. Miles, 23, of Dayton, Ohio, and Spec. 4 Robert D. Graham, 21, of Philadelphia.

The name of the fifth man was withheld because it has not been possible so far to notify his wife of his death.

The accident was the second in five months at Fort Hood involving a tank. Last January a tank collided with a truck loaded with soldiers. A gas tank exploded and eight soldiers were fatally burned, several others injured.

An Army board of investigation set out today to try to find out what caused Monday's accident.

"I can't understand it," said Lt. Col. E. H. Kyle, public information officer.

"The tank was on a routine training mission. It was one of five operating as a platoon in a field tactical problem. The tanks were operating on familiar ground."

The training maneuver called for the tank, No. 215, to be under simulated artillery fire. So it had "buttoned down"—closed its hatch. The tank driver is able to look out of the tank through a small slit or a periscope.

City Is Also Planning Aids To News Media

Pampa's colored population of some 1,100 persons soon will go under a form of self-government with supervision by the City Manager and City Commission.

The plan was authorized at today's meeting of the commission in City Hall. The commissioners acted on a suggestion by Commissioner L. P. Fort.

It will entail the naming of a four- or five-man Community Service Committee or Advisory Board consisting of leaders in the colored community. These men from the Colored Chamber of Commerce will in turn name four women from the Pampa Improvement Club, a colored organization, to serve on the board with them.

This group will be given authority to make surveys and studies of conditions in their area regarding needed improvements, sanitation, street conditions, building inspections and overall recommendations.

"There are many fine citizens in the area," Commissioner Fort said, "who will be willing to take on this responsibility to bring about improvements in their section of the city."

Commissioner Fort and City Manager Harold Schmitzer were authorized to pick appointees for the Advisory Board and to set forth their duties. Finalization of the plans are scheduled to be made at next week's commission meeting.

At the suggestion of City Manager Schmitzer, plans were announced today for improvement in the method of making information public through press and radio. Newsmen in the future are to be given copies of ordinances and resolutions and furnished with the same material that is given to city commissioners each week. Schmitzer also announced that the agenda for each Tuesday's meeting will be closed at 3 p.m. on the preceding Friday in order to furnish news media with copies of what business is to be discussed at the regular meetings.

Commissioners plan to immediately get down to work on a paving policy for the city, something which it was pointed out today, had been needed for years. Several property owners who want to have streets paved appeared this morning and were assured that a plan would be worked out whereby paving projects can be carried out with some sort of organized planning in the future.

The city also declared war today on candidates for office who are posting campaign cards and literature on telephone poles and public buildings throughout the city. Those posted during the primary campaign will be taken down and City Manager Schmitzer said a city ordinance prohibiting the defacing of property in such a manner will be enforced in the future.

The city manager also was called upon today to make a thorough study of the city's tax situation with respect to property valuations and to determine if there are any inequities existing in (See NEGROES, Page 3)

Foreign Students Will Visit Pampa June 21-22-23

Pampa will host 36 foreign exchange students and two chaperones on June 21-22-23 as they travel across the United States en route to Washington, D. C., for orientation before leaving for their respective homes around the world, after a year's study in America.

The foreign exchange student program is sponsored by the American Field Service with headquarters in New York City.

Arrangements are being made for the reception and entertainment of the group in Pampa by a committee of local city leaders, headed by Mrs. Thomas C. Braly. Plans have been completed for lodging of the group in Pampa homes and entertainment will include informal receptions Thursday night, lunch with the Pampa Kiwanis on Friday noon, and a western barbecue Friday night. The group is scheduled to leave Pampa Saturday morning.

For the past several years the local chapter of the American Field Service, Mrs. Tom Braly, chapter chairman, and the Pampa High School Student Council have sponsored two foreign exchange students.

Sales Clinic Is Underway Here

The Sales Clinic, sponsored by the Merchants Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, opened last night at Lovett Memorial Library with 61 sales people enrolled.

Francis Flynn, instructor, lost no time in putting the sales people to work through small group participation.

The course, entitled "The Dynamics of Selling," will run through Thursday night and tonight will be the last chance to get in on the course since certificates will be presented on a minimum of 3 nights' participation. Flynn said that even though the class is ideal in size, that room could be made for a few more people who would like to participate.

Problem May Be Too Big For Solution

EDITOR'S NOTE—What can the free world do to help refugees from Red China? Where can they go? Thousands already have fled through Hong Kong and thousands more want to follow, but the overcrowded British crown colony has sealed its border. This dispatch reports on some proposed remedies and the apparent hopelessness of the situation.

By DONALD MAY

United Press International WASHINGTON (UPI)—U.S. diplomats said today the problem of providing haven for refugees from Red China "may be too enormous for solution."

Several hundred thousand mainland Chinese are reported ready to flee to the free world.

"But the hard fact is," one administration official said, "there may be no place in the free world for them to go."

The Nationalist government on Formosa offered Monday to take in and try to resettle all mainland Chinese fleeing through Hong Kong.

But Formosa already has its own acute land shortage and one of the biggest population explosions in the world—greater than India. Officials do not believe it could accept large numbers of new refugees.

In recent weeks Communist guards have suddenly stopped enforcing travel controls along Red China's 22-mile border with Hong Kong. Since May 1, 30,000 to 40,000 Chinese have flooded into the British crown colony, already jammed with three million people in 388 square miles.

Because the colony could absorb no more, British officials have sealed the border with barbed wire and have been sending refugees back.

U.S. officials up to President Kennedy himself have been urgently studying whether this country and possibly others could act on humanitarian grounds to help the refugees or somehow turn the situation to political advantage.

One idea has been to increase surplus food aid which the U.S. already supplies through private relief organizations in Hong Kong at a rate of $5 million a year.

"But if you feed 20,000 more Chinese, you may just bring 50,000 more to the door," one official said. "And then you would just have to cut it off someplace. There are a half-million Chinese within walking distance of Hong Kong."

No one knows how many Chinese might want to come out, but refugees in Hong Kong have spoken of hundreds of thousands ready to follow them.

As to making arrangements to resettle refugees to permit the flow through Hong Kong to be increased, the problem is where?

Most free countries in Asia already are overcrowded and many such as Thailand have strong anti-Chinese feeling. Australia has available land, but also has restrictions against Chinese immigration.

The U.S. immigration quota for China is 105 a year. A bill is pending to increase this to 1,000. There is no U.S. refugee law to permit Chinese immigration above the quota, but the President does have power to parole refugees into the country.

Rep. Francis E. Walter, D-Pa., said Monday the Chinese Nationalists could deal "an almost mortal blow" to the Red regime by taking substantial numbers of the refugees. Walter said this could demonstrate the failure of communism.

Walter, chairman of the House immigration subcommittee, said in a House speech this country could help by providing food from surplus U.S. stockpiles. But he said the United States could not take in any appreciable number of refugees.

A British poll of other countries was reported to have shown that only a few nations would be willing to take "token" numbers of Chinese.

The difficulty of resettling Chinese, particularly unskilled ones, is judged by the fact that of the million which have entered Hong Kong since 1949 all but about 25,000 are still there.

COO SPEAKER — Bob Brummal, manager of the Southwestern Public Service Company in Borger, will deliver the main address at the May Membership Luncheon of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce Monday in the Coronado Inn. Brummal will speak on the topic, "Who Profits From Profits?" Reservations for the luncheon are now being taken at the Chamber office in City Hall.

Mrs. Jess Beard, 1022 E. Francis, today was named to act as presiding judge in Ward 2 for the City Commissioner election to be held there one week from today on Tuesday, May 29.

Authorization was given to pay Atty. Clayton Heare of Amarillo $1,164.01 for legal fees in connection with City's defense of the recall election suit brought recently in 31st District Court.

The fee covers expenses of legal defense up to the recent filing of an appeal in the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals in Amarillo. The appeal seeks a reversal of the decision handed down by District Judge Lewis M. Goodrich ordering a recall election on City Commissioners Lloyd Simpson, Leon Holmes and L. P. Fort. The appellate court has not yet set a date for the hearing.

Commissioners received four bids for seal-coating city streets and the city manager and city engineer were advised to study them and report their findings for a final letting of the bid next week.

The city manager and commissioners also took under study a request from Herschel Wilks, manager of the Celanese Corp. plant, for the company to install a two-way radio on the same frequency with the Pampa police department. Wilks, in a letter to the commission, said his company is formulating a comprehensive disaster and defense plan in all its plants and stated that communications was one of the big problems. Wilks said it would be the plan of Celanese to use the radio only in extreme emergency. City commissioners were told there may be a conflict with Federal Communications Commission regulations.

A request of Jess Hatcher to install several entertainment rides on property just south of the Coca Cola plant on N. Hobart St. was turned down by the commission.

An application to operate a taxi-cab service in Pampa, filed by Riley Whittington, was set for a public hearing at 10 a.m. next Tuesday in the City Commission Room at City Hall.

Two ordinances were passed on final reading. One was a zoning ordinance changing to A-Residential zoning the 1100 and 1200 blocks of Charles St. in the Cook-Adams Addition. This provides for single-dwelling units only. The other ordinance changed from one-hour to two-hour parking the north side of E. Browning St. between Ballard and Cuyler.

The commission authorized the payment of $415.99 to Merriman and Barber, consulting engineers, as a final payment in the total bill of $4,671.42 for their work in surveying south and west portions of the city for sewerage and drainage.

Members of the commission and city officials met last night for

Victims Of Wreck Are Identified

McLEAN (Spl) — Positive identification was made yesterday afternoon of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Perry Hazard of San Luis Obispo, Calif. by their son, Bill Hazard of Golita, Calif.

Young Hazard identified the body of the man as his father, Oliver Perry Hazard, 65, and the body of the woman as his stepmother, Ethel Mae Hazard, 58. The senior Hazard operated The Mission Trailer Park in San Luis Obispo and his wife was a registered nurse.

The couple was killed in an accident Sunday at 2:45 p.m. on US Highway 66, eight miles west of McLean, when their pickup truck, with a camper bolted on the truckbed, hit a slick spot on the highway in a downpour of rain and turned over. A Greyhound Bus hit the truck and caused an explosion from the butane tank attached to the camper, resulting in the couple being burned beyond recognition.

Dear Abby.... It's Not End Of The World... Yet!!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have been married nearly 38 years. Our children are married and happy. We are moderately well-off and can take it easy and enjoy life now. My wife has taken up with a small, radical, religious group who thinks the "end" is near. She can't bake a cake without reading the Bible. She spends hours copying verses from it. She'll go no place except to religious meetings. She tries to convert all our friends who are already non-drinking, church-going people. She is out on cloud nine and she's an entirely different person. I think she needs to see a doctor. She says she feels fine. Can you help me?

DEAR CONCERNED: You are concerned with good reason. Your wife most certainly needs to see a doctor. Get her there, and don't delay.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has trouble with his back. He has to sleep on a special mattress which is as hard as a rock. Ever since childhood I have slept on a soft mattress and I can't get any sleep on a hard mattress. He says a hard mattress is good for everybody. What do I do now?

DEAR NO: Buy twin beds. Let him sleep on his hard mattress and you sleep on a soft one. A hard mattress is good for you only if you can sleep on it.

DEAR ABBY: I am in a mess.

I thought I was in love and went too far. We thought we had to get married so we sent out the announcements and started with the plans. Then I found out I didn't love him enough to marry him but he said that I "belong" to him now and I have to go through with it. Besides, he bought the rings and still owes on them. Should I go ahead and marry him and pay for my mistake?

DEAR SORRY: You would be better off to pay for the rings. Don't marry him. And I hope you learned your lesson.

DEAR ABBY: Apropos old maids who give gifts all their lives and never have the occasion to get any: I am an old maid school teacher and over the years I have had literally hundreds of my students marry and have babies. Naturally I receive invitations and announcements for everything, and that means a gift. Oh, well, I can't take it with me and I haven't anybody to leave it to!

MISS MARTHA: How's the world treating you? For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, care of this paper.

New Gadgets Banish Bathroom Irritation

Each child's towels are patterned and color-coded for identification on this pole-type towel holder. Girls have eyelet-patterned set and a Victorian rose set in pink, green and white. Boy's towels are solid green. Cabinet sink gives extra, needed, storage space.

By KAY SHERWOOD

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

With what ease and innocence children select from our child-guidance lectures those elements which suit their purposes, not necessarily ours.

Take that child-guidance staple—sharing. For 10 years I've been working up variations on the theme of the joy and virtue of sharing and the sin of selfishness.

In the obvious areas of sharing toys, bikes, candy and playmates, the message has had remarkably little impact on our three youngsters.

Recent signs prove part of the message was absorbed. Merri, for example, is quite willing to share my cosmetics (notably lipstick). Tyler is gracious about sharing my new expensive gift box of bath powder.

Stepping in for my morning shower I find my towel in a soggy heap on the floor where Charlie has hung it. When I protest, his explanation is simple and direct: (a) my towel was closest and (b) since when am I against sharing?

Now I don't expect a grubby 10-year-old boy to take serious interest in soap, water and whose towel he uses. All this sharing results in a collision of interests in the family bathroom and puts me in a mood to look for possible improvement.

When towel rack space is limited or inconveniently placed, as it is in our old house, a pole towel holder within easy reach of the basin could be reserved for the children. These pole holders, anchored between floor and ceiling, have bars and rings which can be adjusted to suit an individual child's height. Holders for plastic cups and toothbrushes are other accessories to attach to the pole.

Instead of striving for matched bathroom sets, we might color-code towels to a child as a means of reminding him to use his own. Within any towel color scheme—rose, green and white, blue, green and white, or the orange-yellow family, to mention three in top flavor—there are a variety of compatible but unlike patterns, stripes and solids. Florals or eyelet patterns, as an example, might be selected for girls and stripes or solids for boys. I think I'll color-code Charlie to an appropriate mud brown.

If more extensive changes in a bathroom are needed to accommodate a growing family, consider adding a pole shelf unit which is easily installed and could hold a variety of things from bath toys to extra towels. Cabinet sinks or cabinets placed under sinks add storage space. A mirrored wall cabinet placed next to the basin might be reserved for the children's toilet articles—nothing else.

When teen-age daughters add their hand-laundered lingerie and drip-dry blouses to the bathroom laundry schedule, you'll appreciate the convenience of an over-the-tub drying rack or hooks for clothesline at each end of the tub enclosure.

Carolyn Silkwood Feted At Shower

WHITE DEER (Sp) — Miss Carolyn Silkwood was complimented with a bridal shower recently in the home of Mrs. Don Vance. Miss Silkwood is the bride-elect of Don Hoskins of Skellytown.

Assisting hostesses were Mmes. Richard Barnes, Darrell Dupy, Clyde Herridge and George Bryan of Pampa.

Corsages were presented to the honoree, her mother, Mrs. G. O.

Ruth Millett Rude Shoppers Earn Their Just Due

Ever since I wrote a column saying that many salespeople today don't seem to be interested in selling, I have been swamped with letters from salespeople, mostly saleswomen, saying, "It just isn't so."

Since all of these letters have pointed out that shoppers have plenty of faults, themselves, it seems only fair to sum up what those faults are as seen from the eyes of the person on the other side of the counter.

To begin with, women shoppers are the ones who seem to be inconsiderate and hard to handle. (Not a single salesperson who wrote in said anything against men as shoppers.)

So, here then, women shoppers, are some of the things you do to make the life of salespeople miserable:

Some of you regard a "shopping trip" as a means of killing time. Without the slightest intention of buying anything, you will let a weary saleswoman trot out everything in her department for your inspection and then say airily that she hasn't shown you anything you want.

Some of you are rude enough to make slighting remarks about the merchandise shown you—even such arrogant comments as "I wouldn't have that if they gave it to me."

The honoree's chosen colors of blue and white were used in decorating the gift display table and the refreshment table. The serving table was laid in white lace, centered with an arrangement of white net heart, wedding bells and orange blossoms.

The decorated cake and punch was served by Mrs. Dupy and Mrs. Barnes. Miss Patsy Silkwood registered the guests. Approximately 70 attended or sent gifts.

Friends Honored At Farewell Fete

Mrs. H. V. Gorman and Mrs. James Combs were honored in a Farewell Coffee given by a group of their friends on Friday in the home of Mrs. Combs, 218 Canadian.

Hostesses for the Come and Go affair were Mrs. Hazel Boykin and Mrs. Polly Reams. The honorees were presented with gifts of friendship.

The Gorman family will make their new home in Perryton; the Combs' family are moving to Amarillo at the end of the school year.

Friends attending were Mmes. Hattie Wright, Alice Stewart, Helen Thompson, Marie Cloud, Billie Ferguson, Lula Mae Engles, Mavis Green, Adilee Branscum, Florence Mounce and Dona Cowles. Invited but unable to attend were Mmes. Maxine Bennett, Dorothy Fulton and Jane Hom.

Program Started On Relation Of Smoking, Health

AUSTIN (UPI) — A program to educate Junior high and high school students on the relation of smoking to health has been started by the State Department of Health.

The Division of Cancer and Heart Disease of the department is conducting the program to alert youngsters of health statistics that point to higher incidence among smokers of cancer, heart disease, bronchitis, pleurisy, emphysema, ulcers and cirrhosis of the liver.

One survey, the department said, shows a sharp statistical association between lung cancer and cigarette smoking, and the U.S. public Health Service reports deaths from coronary heart disease are 63 per cent higher among regular cigarette smokers.

The department said 26,000 Texans died from coronary artery disease last year, another disease which seems to correlate to the amount of cigarettes smoked.

The Lighter Side On Ignoring Directions

The Lighter Side
BY DICK WEST

United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Among the newer developments in the exterior-decorating field is a quick-drying latex house paint that enables the user to wash his brushes with soap and water.

This is a big improvement and I can understand why the companies that make this type of paint are proud of their product and want it to be used in a manner that will provide the best results.

But one of the companies has taken what I regard as a rather dictatorial attitude about this. On the lid of the can it has printed in large red letters the following edict:

"Use this unusual new paint as directed or please don't use it at all."

Now in all of this fair land I doubt that you can find anyone more tractable than I am. I believe in obeying the rules and regulations. I still try to live up to the terms of my scout oath.

But when I read that high-handed decree the paint company has imposed on its customers, something came over me.

After making certain I wasn't being watched, I went out and began using the paint not as directed.

In thinking that I could get away with it, I underestimated the curiosity of Harvey Tweedle, my next door neighbor who pads around in rubber sole shoes. I had barely gotten started on my illicit enterprise when I became aware that he had managed to sneak up behind me.

"What's that you're doing?" he said in an accusatory voice.

"Oh, just painting, Harv," I replied, feigning innocence. "Giving the old fence a little touching up. Nothing wrong with that is there?"

"It depends," he said sternly. "What kind of paint are you using?"

"It's one of those new latex outdoor paints," I said.

"Don't the directions say to scrape off the old paint and apply an undercoat before you use it?" he persisted.

He knew he had me, and I knew it.

"You're not going to squeal on me are you, Harv?" I said.

"As a good citizen, it's my duty to report this to the paint company," he replied. "Any action they might take is up to them."

I haven't heard from the company yet, but I'm hoping I can settle out of court. If not, I'll please temporary insanity.

Smoking Is Again Tied To Cause Of Lung Cancer

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — A

leading pathologist said today that a lung condition which may be a forerunner of cancer is more prevalent in men than women because the men start smoking earlier and inhale deeper.

Dr. Oscar Auerbach, pathologist and senior medical investigation at a Veterans Administration hospital in East Orange, N.J., made the observation in a paper prepared for delivery at the National Tuberculosis Association's annual convention here today.

Auerbach said in tests run on 75 matched pairs of regular cigarette smokers, more lesions of every kind were found in specimens from men than women. These lesions are often the forerunners of cancer, he said. Among smokers, cigarette smokers had more of the lesions than cigar and pipe smokers, he said, and all smokers had more than non-smokers.

The association awarded the Harry L. Hopkins Medal to Robert G. Paterson of Tryon, N.C., for his contributions to public health and to tuberculosis control.

Paterson, formerly of Columbus, Ohio, was chief executive of the Ohio Tuberculosis and Health Association for 35 years prior to his retirement in 1952.

Dr. Thomas Parran, former U.S. surgeon general, said in the keynote address Sunday that the association should take a leading role in global eradication of tuberculosis, which he called "the major infectious disease of the human race."

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
United Press International

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — It must be frustrating for Vincent (Ben Casey) Edwards to be the heavy favorite in tonight's NBC-TV Emmy Awards show, yet know that his boss can live without him.

Ordinarily, a show business star as hot as Edwards can call his shots in a knock-down contract battle, such as the one he's in especially with a host of Emmy nominations to aid his argument. But Edwards' boss is Bing Crosby, who needs another success about as much as he needs another dollar — and who is inclined to shelve projects which give him headaches that interfere with his fishing.

It's hardly likely "Ben Casey" will be shelved, of course. But there is no doubt who has the upper hand. Edwards is under contract to Crosby. And, should Edwards ever decide to hold out, he could simply be substituted for. When people talk to Crosby about "stars" and ratings, he just shrugs and smiles. He couldn't care less.

So a fellow could almost feel sorry for Edwards Monday night, watching him slave away over a hot hospital on ABC-TV, full of dedication as he tried to save a depressed chemist (James Franciscus).

Whether or not you're a fan, and I am not, there is no question "Casey" is the smash commercial television hit of the season. When Edwards began his contract demands, he was earning $1,750 a week — a tremendous sum to an ordinary working man, but a good deal less than other television stars he now outshadows.

What irked Crosby Productions was the immense financial package Edwards asked for: $7,500 a week in salary, 25 per cent of the show and a $300,000 revolving fund for test films made by his own firm.

Crosby offered Edwards a hefty raise, but nowhere near what the actor wanted. Edwards turned it down. Crosby then withdrew his offer and told Edwards he would now have to be satisfied with the ordinary percentage raise provided for in the original contract.

The maneuvering continues. A few days ago, Columbia Pictures announced Edwards had signed to star opposite Sophia Loren in the movie "The Victors." Since no complaints have been heard from Crosby Productions, it is assumed Edwards was thrown a bone in exchange for his obedience. He has said he will be back next season, and, in fact, is starting a nationwide tour for "Casey" later this week.

This is only good business sense because, according to sources at ABC, Crosby's contract technically could stop Edwards from working for anyone else if he refused to do "Casey." Of course he could go ahead, work elsewhere and say "Sue me." But those things get messy.

In fact, when Edwards first made his demands, it was reported Ben Gazzara was being sought to replace him. But this was the old show business trick of using another actor to keep a star in line. Ironically, a producer once used Edwards to keep Burt Lancaster in tow.

As of now, the most that Crosby and Edwards have in common is a love for race horses. Crosby likes to bet on them. If Edwards is betting on Crosby's nags, he'll need a raise.

The Channel Swim: ABC-TV rejected at least four top movies in the bundle it bought from United Artists for airing next season: "The Defiant Ones," "I Want To Live," "The Sweet Smell of Success" and "The Fugitive Kind." MGM set television's Soupy Sales in a family Christmas movie, "Ho-ho-ho." Sales' hosting of NBC-TV's "Tonight" show the week of June 4 may lead to bigger things for the pie-throwing comic if successful.

Lee Marvin stars June 17 in "The Richest Man In Bogota," an NBC-TV adaptation of H.G. Wells' science-fiction story, "The World Of The Blind." Margaret Leighton and Ralph Bellamy will be joined by Nancy Wickwire, Patrick O'Neal, Mildred Dunnock and Kevin McCarthy June 20 in the CBS-TV drama, "The First Day."

NEW YORK — President Kennedy, predicting passage of the administration's medical care for the aged legislation, at a rally in Madison Square Garden:

"I believe that inevitably, this year or the next, when the tide comes in, this bill is going to pass."

Small Gain For GOP Seen As Result Of The Recent Congressional Redistricting

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Two years ago Uncle Sam conducted his regular 10-year nose count. As a result 25 states gained or lost seats in Congress, confronting them with the agonizing task of overhauling their congressional districts. The following dispatch describes the outcome and how it may figure in next November's battle for control of Congress.)

By RAYMOND LAHR
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — State legislatures have finished the agonizing job of congressional redistricting along lines which indicate a small gain for the Republicans in this November's congressional elections.

Redistricting alone cannot give the GOP control of the national House of Representatives next year. They still will need a strong favorable tide to gain the 44 seats they must have to muster the necessary majority of 218 House members.

Reports from UPI bureaus and national party officials indicate the Democrats probably will lose 17 seats they now hold and gain 11 as a result of redistricting. This would be a net loss of six.

For the GOP, there is an indicated loss of four and a gain of six — for a net gain of two.

In 13 other districts both parties claim an edge, or the outcome is considered too close to call.

These findings are based largely on historic voting patterns. They could be changed as issues or strong candidates develop.

Twenty-five states gained or lost House seats as a result of population shifts shown by the 1960 census. The legislatures in 20 of these states have redistricted.

In each of five states which gained one House seat, each one additional congressman will be elected from the state at large. These are Maryland, Ohio, Michigan, Texas and Hawaii.

The Maryland Legislature passed a redistricting law, but it can become effective only if approved in a referendum next November. Therefore it can have no meaning before 1964.

There is still a remote possibility of reapportionment in Michigan, where Gov. John Swainson vetoed one plan. But further action is considered very unlikely.

Prolonged political struggles preceded the adoption of reapportionment laws in a number of states which lost seats — notably Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Minnesota. Any state losing one or more seats had to redistrict to avoid electing its entire delegation from the state at large.

The House will revert to 435 members next year from its present 437. Two temporary seats were created, pending the 1960 census, when Hawaii and Alaska were granted statehood.

Only in New York and California would substantial changes in the party lineup of state delegations result from new reapportionment laws.

In New York, where the delegation is being cut from 43 to 41 members, the Republican-controlled legislature adopted a plan which appears to eliminate six Democratic seats and create four new GOP seats.

California's delegation is being increased from 30 to 38 seats. The Democratic legislature redistricted to give the Democrats at least six and possibly eight more seats. Here are assessments of the political effects of reapportionment laws in other states:

Alabama: Loses one seat in a nine-member Democratic delegation. A deadlocked legislature finally approved a plan to nominate candidates in the existing nine districts with eight to be chosen from a statewide runoff.

Arkansas: Loses two seats from its delegation of six Democrats.

Arizona: Increases its delegation from two to three members. The new third district is listed as a toss-up; it is composed of Democratic counties which produced a GOP majority in a special congressional election last year.

Florida: Its delegation is enlarged from 8 to 12 seats. The GOP is conceded one of the new seats and given a longshot chance to pick up another, but a probable Democratic gain of three seats is indicated.

Hawaii: Gains one seat for a total of two, both to be filled at large. The new seat is counted a toss-up.

Illinois: Loses one seat for a new total of 24. The Democrats are expected to lose one and possibly three seats from redistricting.

Iowa: One Democratic seat eliminated in cutting the delegation from eight to seven.

Kansas: In reducing the seats from six to five, the legislature merged the districts of Democratic Rep. I. Floyd Breeding and GOP Rep. Robert Dole, who are rated about even.

Kentucky: One Democratic seat eliminated in cutting delegation from eight members to seven.

Maine: Loses one seat in three-member Republican delegation.

Maryland: Delegation is increased from seven members to eight. The new seat to be filled at large is expected to be influenced greatly by the outcome of the governorship race.

Massachusetts: Each party is expected to lose one seat in reapportionment which cut the delegation from 14 to 12 members.

Michigan: Its delegation is increased from 18 to 19, with the new member to be elected at large. The new seat is likely to go to the party winning the governorship.

Minnesota: Loses one seat in a delegation of nine. The legislature merged Democratic Rep. Fred Marshall's district with that of Republican Rep. H. Carl Anderson in what appeared to be a Democratic strength was added to the district from which GOP Rep. Walter H. Judd is retiring. The outlook in both districts is uncertain.

Mississippi: Loses one seat in six-member Democratic delegation.

Missouri: One Democratic seat eliminated in cutting delegation for 11 members to 10.

Nebraska: Loses one of four Republican seats.

New Jersey: A probable Democratic gain of one seat in expanding the state from 14 to 15 districts.

North Carolina: Remapping 12 districts into 11, the legislature put Democratic Rep. A. Paul Kitchin and GOP Rep. Charles R. Jonas into one district, which both parties now claim.

Ohio: Adds one seat for a total of 24. The new congressman at large is viewed as a probable Republican gain.

Pennsylvania: Loses three seats for a new total of 27. Each party expects to lose one seat and another district is listed as a toss-up.

Texas: Gains one seat for a total of 23. The new seat will be elected from the state at large, meaning it probably will be Democratic.

West Virginia: Delegation reduced from six members to five with one Democratic loss indicated.

New Uses For Electronic Radiation Are Being Sought For The Future

NEW YORK (UPI)—Since man first put fire to work he has been finding new jobs for it. In the comparatively brief time since he discovered electronic radiation, he has been working similarly to develop its uses.

But the things that he will be able to do with radiation are almost beyond imagination, says Dr. Kennard Morgenstern, head of a Westbury, N. Y. firm, specializing in production of radiation equipment and its uses in industry and science.

Morgenstern discussed some of the applications of radiation and its equipment here shortly before leaving for Vienna where a conference on its uses, particularly in the preservation of food, was scheduled to open this week.

He said one of the topics to be taken up there would be the use of radiation in the preservation of grain, through its use to retard the bacterial growths which hasten spoilage of stored grain.

Use of radiation treatments to help preserve food is far from new; the Quartermasters Department of the Army has for years conducted test programs. Morgenstern said it was seeking approval for the use of food so treated.

The type of radiation used in treatment of food, Morgenstern said, is very much like X-ray voltage; there is no induced radioactivity. It does not preserve food indefinitely, but retards its spoilage.

"Food probably is the biggest field for the future," he said. "But it may be the slowest to develop. The nations which need it the most, are the poorest equipped to adopt techniques of this kind."

DIRECT DISTANCE DIALING

is coming to Pampa

JULY 23!

Long Distance Users Here
Will Dial Their Calls
Direct to Other Cities

DIRECT Distance Dialing will be introduced to telephone users in Pampa on July 23.

At that time, you will be able to dial your calls to other cities direct, through the magic of Direct Distance Dialing, known as "DDD."

Fast — Convenient — Easy

DDD is fast, convenient, easy to use. To make a DDD call, just dial "1," then a 3-figure area code number for the city you are calling, then the telephone number... that's all.

For example, suppose you want to call Capitol 7-3744 in Houston. You'll find Houston listed in the front of your telephone directory with the area code number 713. So you'll dial:

1...7-1-3...C-A-7-3-7-4-4

...and you will then hear the Houston telephone ring, almost instantly!

For technical reasons, DDD will be available only to customers here with one and two-party telephones.

PAMPA will be one of the first cities in West Texas to get DDD, and we are glad to bring this new service here. It is an important step in our continuing program to make your telephone service faster, more efficient, and more enjoyable than ever.

GEORGE NEWBERRY,
Manager

An Important Date for Pampa

DDD will mark a milestone of telephone progress in Pampa when it makes its debut here on July 23.

Starting on that date, you will be able to dial your calls to some 7.5 million telephones in about 6,500 cities throughout the U. S. and Canada.

Beasley Is Old Pro Of Net Game

NEW YORK (UPI) — Take it from Mercer Beasley, the Amos Alonzo Stagg and Casey Stengel of tennis who will be 60 in July. If you're an "Alibi Ike" you'll never be a real champion in any sport.

"The real champion doesn't have to make excuses," says Beasley, who still is going strong as a court strategist and teacher. "He knows he doesn't need them, and that's part of being a champion."

Beasley knows his champions, too. For this thin, active man with the mischievous eyes has turned out a horde of them. His proteges include such as Ellsworth Vines, Wilmer Allison, Pancho Segura, Gardnar Mulloy, Frank Parker, Doris Hart and a dozen others who have hit the top.

Formerly tennis coach at Princeton, Tulane and the University of Miami, Beasley in 60 years in the racket has tutored a wide variety of students.

There was one who disgusted him with inept footwork. His patience finally exhausted, Beasley lectured:

"Look, get up on your toes. Sort of like a prize fighter."

Later he was advised that the pupil was lightweight champion Benny Leonard, playing incognito because he didn't want the "boys" to know he was dabbling in a "sissy" game. Leonard eventually became a good player under Beasley's tutelage. But "Beas" had his failures, too.

Such as the time he told one student that he'd have to keep the ball within the confines of the court.

"Thell with this game," roared the student, swatting one last ball clear over a row of nearby houses. "I don't want nuthin' to do with no game where you have to keep it inside the park."

Fellow named Babe Ruth. But Beasley, now giving his 30th year of clinics for A. G. Spalding, hammers constantly at his students on the necessity of "not being an Alibi Ike." He has compiled a long list of them and, whether you're a Little Leaguer or a big leaguer, they're valuable to contemplate. How many times have you heard these excuses for defeat?

Ate too much or didn't eat enough; drank too much water; it was too hot or it was too cold; couldn't sleep last night; the officials were blind, or prejudiced; the sun was bad; played too late or too early.

Or: The gallery was unsportsmanlike; had a cramp in arm, leg or shoulder; ankle or back hurt; had a headache or pulled a tendon; blister on hand or foot; too keyed up; people talked and moved too much; made nervous by family; mental worries, or was over-confident.

"Then there's the one where they say 'I just can't understand it,'" says Beasley. "That seems to be the most popular of them all."

They can't understand it, he holds, because they don't think and act like real champions.

Tilting with these championship windmills is indicative of how Beasley still attacks every phase of tennis. And when he's not working, you'll usually find him in some tennis gallery or other. Like even when he can't find a "baby sitter" for his Siamese cat.

Beasley took the cat with him into the grandstand at austere Forest Hills one night a couple of years back when Pancho Gonzales was playing Lew Hoad. Then, suddenly, the tense silence of a tough point was broken by a loud blast of caterwauling.

"I had to take him out," Beasley said. "But it was the only match I've seen in 60 years that could really claim to be the cat's meow."

AFL Loses Suit With NFL Loop

NEW YORK (UPI) — National Football League club owners gather today to take up some business matters and to celebrate their legal victory which leaves the young American League to thrive or fail strictly on its own competitive merits.

Lamar Hunt of Dallas, founder of the AFL, is considering an appeal from Monday's decision by Baltimore Judge Roszel Thomsen. That decision rejected the AFL's anti-monopoly suit asking for $10 million in damages from the NFL.

In the absence of any help of the courts, however, it appeared that the American League would have to stake its success on its public appeal, which has not been overwhelming during the first two years of its existence.

Judge Thomsen's decision conceivably might have ordered the NFL to abandon Dallas to the AFL exclusively, as well as pay damages. Such a decision might have beefed up the American League's coffers, given them the entire Dallas market and greatly raised their prestige in the eyes of the public.

Without a court victory, the AFL must continue to buck the established NFL at the box office, on television and in the market for college talent.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle called the decision "a complete vindication of the NFL."

American League officials expressed some disappointment, but said the league would continue and would thrive.

"This case was just one of the steps forward in the progress of the American Football League," said AFL Commissioner Joe Foss in Sioux Falls, S.D. "We're looking forward to our greatest season in 1962."

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — A housewife from Ft. Worth, Tex., shared the spotlight with defending champion Polly Riley here today as the 47th annual Women's Southern Golf Tournament opened its first round of match play.

Mrs. W. K. Stripling of Ft. Worth pieced together a par 72 Monday to lead 138 golfers through the qualifying or medalist round of the tournament.

Miss Riley, also from Ft. Worth, was heavily favored to win her sixth Southern. Both she and Mrs. Scott Probasco Jr., former national intercollegiate champion from Chattanooga, Tenn., tied for second in medal play with 75s.

Dodgers Down Giants, 8-1 As Koufax Gains Fifth Victory

By JOE SARGIS

UPI Sports Writer

Manager Walt Alston of the Los Angeles Dodgers keeps insisting Sandy Koufax could be the best pitcher in the major leagues, and the Brooklyn-born strikeout king couldn't have picked a better time to make his boss look good.

Koufax, who led the majors with 269 strikeouts last season, fanned 10 San Francisco batters Monday night to run his 1962 total to 82 while pitching the Dodgers to an 8-1 victory over the Giants.

It marked the 33rd time in the 27-year-old left-hander's career that he had fanned at least 10 batters in a game. Koufax permitted the National League-leading Giants just five hits in picking up his fifth victory of the season against only two losses.

The victory snapped a three-game Los Angeles losing streak and kept the Dodgers 14 percentage points behind the Cardinals, with whom they are virtually tied for second place. The Cards beat the Philadelphia Phillies, 4-1, and now are 3½ games behind the Giants — the same margin by which the Dodgers trail San Francisco.

Orlando Cepeda spoiled Koufax' shutout when he hit his 12th home run of the season in the seventh inning for San Francisco's only run. Tommy Davis provided Sandy with all the batting help he needed with a two-run homer in the fourth and later hit two doubles. Billy O'Dell, the first of three Giants pitchers, was the loser.

The Houston Colts nipped the New York Mets, 3-2, and the Pittsburgh Pirates whipped the Chicago Cubs, 8-4, in other NL games. The Cincinnati at Milwaukee game was postponed because of rain.

In the American League, the red-hot Cleveland Indians hit three more home runs to set a major league record of 28 in nine games while beating the Baltimore Orioles, 10-7, to take over the league lead; the Kansas City Athletics downed the Boston Red Sox, 10-3; the Minnesota Twins defeated the Washington Senators, 5-3, and the Detroit Tigers beat the Chicago White Sox, 7-3. The Yankees and Los Angeles Angels were idle.

Bill White and Curt Flood drove in two runs each in pacing the Cardinals to their fifth straight victory. The Cards scored twice in the second and sixth innings off Phillies starter Dennis Bennett, who suffered his first major league defeat. Ray Washburn, who took over in the second when starter Ernie Broglio suffered a pulled groin muscle, picked up his third victory without a loss.

Pinch-hitter Jim Pendleton's triple and Ramon Mejias' sacrifice fly in the eighth inning produced the Colts' winning run. The victory moved Houston past New York into eighth place. Jim Golden went all the way for the Colts to register his second victory — both over the Mets. Vinegar Bend Mizell, who took over for starter Dave Hillman in the third, was the loser.

Dick Groat and Bill Virdon each had four hits in Pittsburgh's 13-hit attack. Tom Sturdivant, who took over for Earl Francis in the third inning when the Cubs scored a run to tie the game at 1-1, was the winner. Sturdivant scattered five hits the rest of the way to even his record at 2-2. Dick Ellisworth, who gave up nine hits and six runs, took his fifth loss against three victories.

John Romano's three-run ninth inning homer with two out was the margin of difference in the Cleveland victory. Don Dillard and Woody Held homered earlier in helping the Indians build up a 7-0 lead. That gave Cleveland 28 homers over a nine-game stretch — one more than the old record set by the New York Giants in 1954. The victory boosted the Indians into the AL lead by a half-game over the Yankees. Chuck Essegian had three hits in four at-bats to boost his AL-leading batting average to .402.

The Twins, in third place, also a half-game out of first place, beat the Senators on the pitching and batting of Camilo Pascual. The Cuban right-hander singled home what proved to be the winning run in the seventh and duplicated the feat in the eighth to help himself to his sixth victory against two losses. Rookie Dave Stenhouse, unbeaten in three previous games, took his first loss.

Home runs by pitcher Jerry Walker and catcher Joe Arcue plus the clutch batting of Jerry Lumpe proved too much for the Red Sox as the A's gained their third win in the last four games. Walker went all the way to post his fifth victory while Gene Conley, the first of four Boston pitchers, took his fourth loss. Manny Jimenez, the AL's second leading hitter, had a double and single to boost his average to .371.

The Tigers battered Early Wynn, seeking the 29th victory of his career, for five runs in the first inning and went on from there behind Paul Foytack and Ron Nischwitz to score an easy victory. Nischwitz came on in the eighth, when Foytack walked two batters to fill the bases with two outs, and got Nellie Fox to end the threat.

Kist, B&B, Radcliff Win Kids Contests

Kist won a battle of runs over First National bank in Pony League play last Friday with a 21-19 victory.

Buddy Hammons carded the win for Kist while R. Maynard was the loser.

Matney had a home run for the winners with one on base while Maynard connected with a grand slam home run for First National.

Kist slammed out 12 hits while the Bank had nine hits. The game was a wild one, with Kist jumping off to an early 4-1 lead in the first inning. Kist held the lead until the fourth when the Bank rallied with nine big runs while Kist could only manage 1 run.

The score at the end of the fourth inning was 19-18 in favor of the Bank.

In the top of the fifth, Kist scored three runs while the Bank was held scoreless in their half to give the visitors the victory.

In a Northern Little League game at Western park, B&B Pharmacy won another battle of the score board, winning 16-10.

Mike Hughes was the winning pitcher with Jim Benton the loser. Tommy McDonald and Mike Hughes paced the winners with the timber. McDonald batted in five runs with two home runs and a triple while Hughes batted out a pair of doubles.

Mark Thomas, Jim Campbell, John Garren and David Irwin each chipped in with a double to share most honors for B & B.

For Milliron, Langwell had a double and Carl Lera and Gray each smashed out three singles.

Representatives Blame Congress In Hearing Delay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Reps. Robert F. Ellsworth and Garner E. Chriver, Kansas Republicans, said Congress must take part of the blame for the "40 days cover-up" in the Billie Sol Estes case.

The congressmen, participating in a series of speeches on the Estes case, said Congress should have launched an investigation as soon as the case came to light.

"Just the shipment of grain from Kansas to Estes' storage facilities in Texas has cost taxpayers a fortune," Ellsworth said. "This fact alone makes a shambles of Secretary Freeman's statement that the Estes scandal had not cost the taxpayers one cent."

Ellsworth said President Kennedy should fire Freeman.

"The loss of public confidence in the department demands a sweeping investigation of the Estes case by this body," Ellsworth said.

Tracts Will Be Offered

DENVER — Twenty-two small tracts of public land, located about 20 miles east of Meeker on the White River, will be offered by the Bureau of Land Management at a public auction in Room 70, Gas and Electric Building, Denver, at 9 a.m. on Thursday, June 7, according to Lowell M. Puckett, state BLM director.

Successful bidders for individual lots will receive title to the tracts, the appraised fair market value of which varies from $700 to $1,300. The tracts of land vary in size from 2.48 to 5.03 acres. All minerals are reserved to the United States.

Vegetation consists of evergreens, aspen, and a variety of mountain shrubs. Access is from State Highway 132 and a county-maintained road, and electricity is available from a power line in the area. River frontage in this area has been reserved for use by the small tract occupants and by the public for park and recreational purposes.

Further information and material, including plats showing locations of the tracts, are available from the Land-Office Manager, Bureau of Land Management, Gas and Electric Building, Denver. Personal inquiries may be made in Room 700, Gas and Electric Building, between 7:45 a.m. and 4:15 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Weekly Report To Texans

By SEN. JOHN TOWER

This week, as we discuss the oil imports problems, that have progressively worsened in this Administration, following their reluctant introduction in the Eisenhower era, I am glad to record brightening prospects for efforts to protect our domestic oil industry by adding National Security provisions to the foreign trade bill, presently before the Congress.

This legislation would constitute a Congressional finding that petroleum imports threaten to impair the national security.

It would require the President to adjust imports by means of quantitative limitations on imports of oil and its derivatives, with due regard to (a) the elimination of competitive inequities (b) the maintenance of a competitive domestic industry (c) the prevention of monopolistic practices, and (d) the encouragement of small business.

This legislation has been offered in the House of Representatives as an amendment to the Administration's new Foreign Trade Bill, and its sponsors there have growing confidence that they have the support to approve it in the Ways and Means Committee.

If it is not adopted in the House, and if it is not written into the bill, in the Senate Finance Committee, I will offer it as an amendment to the Trade Bill in the Senate.

In review, it is astonishing to note that in 1961, oil imports averaged almost 2 million barrels a day. Total value exceeded $1.6 billion.

Petroleum is now the largest item in our import trade, while at home we have 30 per cent of our producing capacity shut-in for lack of markets. This is like sending coffee to Brazil or coals to Newcastle.

While our domestic production is stagnated, Canadian production is up 30 per cent; Venezuela, up 20 per cent; other Western Hemisphere nations, up 60 per cent; the Middle East, up 60 per cent; the Soviet Union, up 100 per cent.

Only two major nations of the world are capable of producing their own oil needs. These are the U.S. and the Soviet Union. While we are purposely stunting our growth in oil production, the Soviet Union is purposely expanding hers.

Between 1950 and 1960, the U. S. production increased 30 per cent; the Soviet Union production quadrupled.

In 1945, Russian production was 9 per cent of U. S. production. In 1961, it was 46 per cent.

In view of Russia's increasing oil production, the United States must have the assurance of adequate domestic supplies.

Domestic producers must be given the opportunity to participate in future growth of the home market. This is in the interest of national security and to assure adequate reserves.

There has been a continuing decline in activity. In 1956, the domestic industry drilled 5,160 wells. Last year, only 46,962 were drilled, which is a decline of 20 per cent in just five years.

Prorated wells in Texas are limited to only eight producing days per month. This is no incentive to add new wells.

While total well completions have declined 30 per cent, from 1956 to 1961, it is even more revealing to note that exploratory wells drilled declined 30 per cent during the same period.

The average number of active wells in 1952 was 734; in 1957, it was 580; in 1960, it was 434. This represents a decline of 330 wells, or about 40 per cent decline.

We are facing disaster, I think, unless something is done about oil imports. If something is not done about oil imports, our industry is going to be destroyed. All of you who live in Texas know how sick our oil industry is, and how much we need relief. There are a lot of people who think that the best way to conserve oil is not to produce it in this country. What they don't understand is that in a time of emergency, when we need to increase production, we find that people who know how to get oil out of the ground, who know how to produce oil, have gone into other fields, and we have a shortage of skilled technicians. We have a shortage of material needed to do the job.

WHAT'S HER LINE?—Seeing Mrs. Marian Davis of Manitowish, Mich., when she's not in her work clothes you'd never know she's a truck driver. She's five-foot-three, and a grandmother, but still wheels a multi-ton truck precisely under the scoop of a digging crane. She has done the work since 1949 when she started helping her husband who was in a subcontracting business, stayed with a big road building company. Her pet idea: when she retires, to take her grandchildren on a tour of the roads grandma helped build. SWALLOWS BOLT

NEW YORK (UPI) — Singer Jane Morgan, who accidentally swallowed a half-inch metal bolt, was under observation at a hospital today to determine if she must undergo surgery.

Miss Morgan said she did not remember swallowing the bolt, which was discovered by an X-ray, but speculated it might have been in a clam she used in making chowder at her Kennebunkport, Maine, home about two weeks ago.

Impatient Man Shoots Woman For Long Call

MIAMI (UPI) — Police held a man today they said shot a woman because she talked too long on a pay telephone.

Officers said Inez Davis, 41, dropped a dime in a pay phone at a service station and proceeded to talk for an hour.

Police said attendant Robert Demps, 35, pleaded with her to hang up because he received business calls on the phone, but she kept talking.

Finally Demps reached over and hung up the receiver himself, police said.

They said when the woman reached for a directory to look up another number, Demps pulled a gun and shot her. She was taken to Jackson Memorial Hospital in serious condition. No charges were filed immediately against Demps.

Severe Drought

COLIMA, Mexico (UPI) — This West Coast state with 45,000 inhabitants recently has experienced its worst drought in history, sources in this state capital said Monday.

They said the Colima River, the area's principal water supply, is totally dry.

The same sources said the city government failed in promises made early this year to provide better water supply.

They said an estimated $600,000 (U. S.) would be needed to provide an adequate city-wide public water system.

SEES BILL'S DEFEAT

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., predicted Monday that Congress will reject President Kennedy's medical care for the aged bill during its current session.

But Smathers said such legislation will be passed within two years unless insurance companies provide some plan of inexpensive health insurance for the aged.

British 'Westerners' Explode Old Legend

By ROBERT MUSE

United Press International LONDON (UPI) — Wild Bill Hickok cocked his Colts and got ready to ram a couple of 45 slugs down the throat of John Wesley Hardin.

And then, so runs the lore of the old West, Hardin faced with an impossible situation that dusty morning in the streets of Abilene, Kan., performed the impossible. He had his own guns out before Wild Bill could fire. And Hickok backed down.

Sadly today Joseph Rosa punctured another legend of the old West as portrayed on television and in highly-colored books of the gunslings and rustlers of the American plains.

Rosa is vice-chairman of the English Westerners Society which believes that, because it is detached from all sorts of local influences in the United States, it can make more accurate assessments of the heroes and villains of the cowboy era.

"That story about Hardin and Hickok is simply not true," Rosa said. "Hardin used to tell it before he was murdered in 1893. But by then Hickok had been dead 20 years — shot in the back of the head in a saloon in Deadwood, S. D. — and naturally could not deny it."

Rosa belongs to the serious wing of a society some of whose members around the English countryside with an annual corral in which they dress up in Western or Indian costumes and give themselves names like Pony in the Smoke.

"Most of us go in for serious historical study of people like Custer, Jesse James, Billy the Kid, Wyatt Earp and Bat Masterson," said Rosa. "One of our members, Joe Balmer of Zurich, has even learned to speak and write the Sioux Indian language to help his researches."

Rosa said one of his reasons for doubting the famous Hickok-Hardin showdown is a quotation he has found from Wild Bill, made shortly before his death:

"I never took any mean advantage of an enemy. Yet understand, I never allow a man to get the drop on me."

Rosa said he has written a definitive book on Hickok which will reduce his killings from more than 100 to 12 — "five definite and seven probable."

He said members of the society have come to the conclusion Masterson killed only two or three people, that General Custer was too obstinate, that Billy the Kid had an inflated reputation and that the Earp family wasn't nice to know.

"In fact," said Rosa, a 29-year-old telegrapher, "it's amazing how many of the legendary figures were gamblers, brothel keepers or simply selling protection just like gangsters in the Capone times in Chicago."

Stink Bomb Hits Cuban Embassy In Mexico City

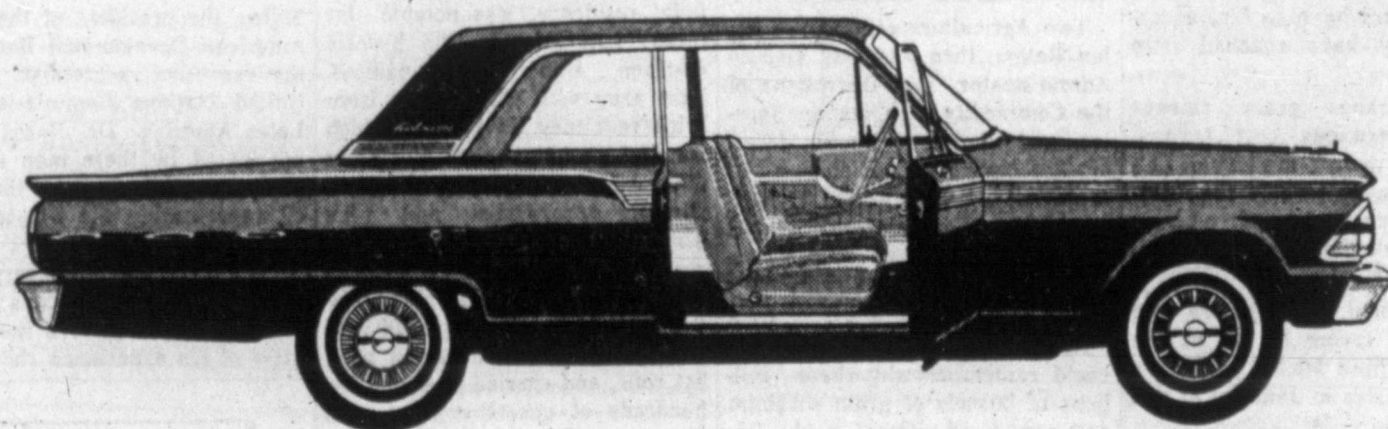

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — A stink bomb thrown into the garden of the Cuban embassy Monday night failed to upset a reception given by ambassador Carlos Lechuga on the 60th anniversary of the formation of the Cuban republic.

The bomb caused a momentary flurry in the vicinity where it landed inside the embassy wall but was quickly removed.

Foreign Minister Manuel Tello made an appearance at the reception which included several hundred diplomats, journalists, government and civic leaders.

The Miracle Of Progress

The miracle of man's rise from savagery is found in his willingness to put aside violence and to rely on voluntary actions. While it is always true that primitive minds are filled with terror at the thought of a world in which compulsion would play no part, nonetheless they yearn for that kind of a world, since even the most simple of our forebears resented and rebelled against coercion.

This is the dilemma, not only for savages but for all of us who live in an age we could characterize as being principally post-barbaric. We do not wish to be forced. But at the same time we anticipate a necessity for forcing others.

If we examine the nature of the miracle which has moved men from caves to penthouses, from shivering before a meagre fire to lolling at ease with thermal control automatic, from periodic starvation to Metracal for obesity, we find that miracle demonstrated again and again by the market place, that agency of human endeavor which relies wholly upon voluntary choices.

Man's progress, in short, has been man's adventure in the market place. Yet we are still so primitive that many fail to recognize the source of our attainment.

What do we mean when we refer to the market place?

Actually, although the term is somewhat misleading, we have no reference to a particular location or site for business transactions. The market place is any place at all where men meet voluntarily to exchange their energies or the products of their energies. Definitely, the character of the market place relies wholly upon freedom of choice.

A man has energy, his skills or his willingness to employ his brains or muscles toward a given end. But before he will expend his energy he makes a bargain. That is, he enters into a contract, verbal or otherwise, that in exchange for his energies, he is to receive something of benefit to him. Lacking this assurance, he would not volunteer to expend his energies.

But this is the point. Prior to the discovery that men would willingly expend their energies in search of gain, it was assumed that men would NOT expend their energies at all unless forced by other men.

This is the principal reason for the emergence and the reliance on government. It was deemed long ago that men were too stupid even to act in their own self-interest. Thus, a man who felt the urging to accomplish a given objective which might require more than his own brains or muscles, was inclined to call upon some agency of force and violence so that help could be provided.

The savage chieftain who wished to organize a hunt was prone to acquire his beaters and his trackers and his weapon carriers by threatening them with extinction if they refused to cooperate. It did not at first occur to him that a reward of some kind would bring these same men into his service gladly. He assumed that they would be negative. So he sought to invoke positive force to offset this lack.

Later, a second thought occurred. This was that if the proceeds of the hunt were to be divided evenly (socialism), this would eliminate the necessity of force. Thus, the idea of reward was introduced but the idea had its limitations.

The presumption which limited development here was that reward would come ONLY if the hunt were successful. The failure of the hunt would simply mean that failure would be universally and equally shared, just as success if it occurred would be universally and equally shared.

But somewhere along the line, and no one knows its antiquity, the idea emerged that the originator of the hunt could, assuming he was able to make savings in advance, offer his help a reward even if the hunt were unsuccessful. But this would necessitate an unequal sharing if the hunt were successful.

The organizer, the entrepreneur, ran the bulk of the risks and if success crowned his efforts, he would acquire the bulk of the benefits. One way or another, however, his helpers would be paid.

This is capitalism. It is a natural development which narrows risks to those who wish to run them, but which rewards the risk takers proportionately as success is attained. Meanwhile, a type of steady employment was found for the non-risk takers.

The evidence establishes that capitalism provides superior results to efforts which rely on equal sharing. It also establishes that man will accomplish great things when he is not forced to accomplish them.

But the major gain is found in the fact that capitalism rests upon the premise of private ownership of all kinds and types of property. The miracle of man's rise from savagery is directly related to the private property voluntaristic belief. There is no other satisfactory explanation.

A World At Stake

The women "peace marchers" in Britain and the United States argue that the West has "no right" to test nuclear weapons.

They say this is a decision affecting not only the possessors of these weapons, but the hundreds of millions of people whose health and safety are involved, who yet have no voice.

The effects of nuclear shots are highly variable. It is not at all clear to what extent any particular blast, or series of tests, will endanger the health of Asians, Africans and others. Nor is it plainly evident that such tests heighten the military menace to these noninvolved peoples.

It could be just the other way around. The biggest threat to their independence would be a decisive Soviet nuclear breakthrough that would allow Russia to bully the world.

The United States — with its bombs, and its tests — is the only power on earth with a hope of standing off that threat.

TRUTH-FORUM

With Ed Delaney

The resignation of Gen. Lucius Clay from his post in Berlin as President Kennedy's personal representative was an indication of the "no-win" policy being concocted by Dean Rusk and the appeasers in the State Department, as concerns Berlin and the problem of Germany. Clay could not, apparently, reconcile himself to such concessions as Rusk and the Soviet sympathizers continually propose. It is known that Gen. Clay recommended firmness and no weakening, no abandonment of the highway lines into Berlin in 1948, when the Soviet imposed the blockade which necessitated the airlift, at the cost of billions of dollars for this country and the loss of several lives. It is also known that in the present impasse with the Soviet, Gen. Clay has urged that we demand adherence to past agreements with the Russians and that there be no whitening away of those rights, by what Willy Brandt calls salami tactics.

The fate of Berlin spells the fate of Europe. What happens in Western Europe is vital for us. Our State Department and some in Washington have the utterly absurd notion that we can check the westward drive of communism and also gain our objectives in Berlin by making genuflections to Khrushchev. Dean Rusk's activities as a member of the Institute of Pacific Relations and as a member of the Foreign Policy Assn. have been that of a conciliator in any contest with the Soviet, regardless of what arguments may be advanced to the contrary.

Apparently the concessions Rusk contemplated making to Khrushchev in the wholly erroneous idea that they would lessen the Berlin tension, have been exposed for what they are by West Germany. To consider giving even the slightest recognition to the puppet regime of East Germany, in the regulation of access into Berlin would be tantamount to de facto recognition of the regime. And to place any reliance on agreements entered into with the Soviet which would be at variance with the previous agreements to which they subscribed in the past, is asinine to say the very least.

There is a well organized campaign in this country, also in England, to fan distrust of West Germany and to further the communist design for perpetuating the present demarcation lines between East and West which were drawn up before the end of hostilities in Europe in World War II and were supposed to be adjusted at the final peace treaty. No peace treaty has been signed because the Soviet opposes it. But the real reason is that we and the Western allies have not demanded that it be entered into and put an end to the uncertainty of boundary lines through the heart of Europe.

A fantastic proposal advanced by the editor in chief of an American newspaper chain for solving the Berlin and German problem has received "consideration" by Sen. Mike Mansfield, a Montana Democrat. The suggestion is to make Berlin headquarters of the United Nations and put all of Germany, both the highly developed German Federal Republic and the bankrupt East German territory under the authority of the U.N. The main purpose of that would be to carry out the Soviet design for Europe. To neutralize Germany politically and economically and to get rid of what the publishing pundit calls "the hostile armed forces of East and West" that are now in Berlin and also in West Germany.

Some 20 divisions of Soviet troops are in their illegally held part of East Germany.

Such an arrangement would only aggravate instead of alleviate the problem. No one should give serious consideration to such a suggestion. It would be well for us to get the U.N. headquarters out of this country but it would be compounding political stupidity to put it in Berlin under the conditions proposed. On at least two occasions the Soviet accepted the Western Powers' suggestion that there be a plebiscite, general elections in all of Germany, to determine under what government the voters wish to live. That is the practical solution. Our mental marvels and statement advocate that for the natives in Africa, Asia, South American and elsewhere to establish free states.

Why cannot it be insisted upon for Germany?

Because the Soviet opposes it and our appeasers will never take an adamant stand against the Moscow hierarchy. Appeasement, concessions and conciliation have brought us where we are today. How much longer will our people tolerate such "no-win" policies?

Allen - Scott Report

Did Estes' $245,000 'Washington Project' Finance His Spectacular Grain Storage Rise?

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Congressional investigators digging into Billie Sol Estes' mysterious $245,000 "Washington Project" are uncovering significant clues indicating it may have financed his spectacular rise within a few years as a large-scale operator drawing millions of dollars from the government for storing surplus grain.

The free-wheeling young Texan zoomed from virtually scratch in 1959 in this highly profitable field to ninth largest grain storage operator in the country in 1961.

From evidence so far uncovered, it has been determined that during these few years millions of bushels of government-owned surplus grain were inexplicably shifted from wholly adequate storage facilities in the Midwest, chiefly in Nebraska, Iowa and Kansas, to Texas warehouses controlled by Estes.

'Details of the extent and cost of these singular transactions are still incomplete.

But a revealing illustration of Estes' remarkable success in this business is the following: In 1959, when he started storing grain, he received $776,810 from the government for warehousing grain shipped from Kansas to Texas.

In 1961, this relatively modest sum soared to $3,419,000 — and possibly a lot more.

On the basis of what congressional probes have so far ascertained, they have reached two conclusions:

These strange grain storage shifting operations cost taxpayers "many, many" millions of dollars; they were largely the key-stone of Estes' maze of other get-rich-quick financial machinations.

Congressional investigators are particularly trying to get at the bottom of three $40,000 checks drawn by Estes in January of this year.

All department and other agency heads now are under direct White House orders to make available immediately all information sought by Senator John McClellan, D-Ark., chairman of the rackets investigating committee, and Representative L. H. Fountain, D-N.C., head of the House Government Operations subcommittee which has long been probing Agriculture Department scandals.

Similarly, Attorney General Robert Kennedy has "advised" Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman and Labor Secretary Arthur Goldberg to "lay everything before" the McClellan committee. Kennedy was former general counsel of the committee.

The Fountain committee will probably hold the first public hearings on Estes. They are tentatively scheduled for next week.

OLD, OLD STORY — Shifting the storage of large quantities of surplus grain at heavy public expense is nothing new in the Agriculture Department.

Representative Fountain's investigating committee has a voluminous record of such transactions. One probe brought to light that the Agriculture Department spent more than $27 million to ship grain to the Pacific Coast for storage, although ample empty government bins were available in the Midwest where these surplus commodities were grown.

Following are details of this astonishing affair as recorded in the official files of the Fountain committee:

—More than half of these tens of millions of bushels of grain sorghum and corn, already stored in government-owned facilities in the Midwest at a cost of 5 cents a bushel, were shipped to California and Washington State to be stored at a charge of 16½ cents a bushel in private warehouses, such as skating rinks, old office buildings and other converted structures.

—Transporting this government-owned grain across half the country cost an average of 50 cents a bushel — approximately double what it would have cost to build new storage facilities in the Midwest. Further, the grain stored in California cost the Agriculture Department an additional 2 cents a bushel for the screening required by that state.

—Of some 18 million bushels of corn the Department shipped in 1955 to the West Coast for storage from Minnesota, Iowa, North and South Dakota, much of this grain spoiled and "had to be sold at a substantial discount."

Two Agriculture officials — Roman Ballou, then Assistant Deputy Administrator for Operations of the Commodity Stabilization Service, and Clarence Palmy, former Association Administrator of the agency — were grilled by Representative Fountain and James Naughton, committee counsel, regarding these extraordinary transactions.

Neither Palmy nor Ballou could remember why these millions of bushels of grain sorghum and corn were shipped to the Pacific Coast for storage, at a cost of $27 million, when ample government facilities were available in the Midwest. Both officials said they could not recall the reasons.

Senator McClellan is checking reports that a senator received some $50,000 in campaign contributions from Estes over a period of years.

CRISES COMMITTEE — President Kennedy is going to set up a high-level inter-governmental committee to anticipate and solve crises like the one in Laos before they occur.

The advance planning group will be headed by either Attorney General Robert Kennedy, the President's brother, or a high State Department official.

The committee will include representatives from all major government departments, including State, Justice and Defense, as well as the White House staff and the Central Intelligence Agency.

Recommended to the President by Dr. Walt Rostow, chairman of the State Department's Policy Planning Council, the "crises" committee will serve as an advisory group to the President.

The committee's two-fold job will be (1) to warn the President of crises in advance, and (2) to make recommendations for U.S. action to head off these crises.

Under the Rostow proposal, a national security policy planning staff also will be set up to help brief the committee on the world's trouble spots.

This staff would prepare "crises reports" based on the latest CIA estimates of anti-U.S. actions anticipated by both friendly and enemy governments.

Secretary of State Rusk, who approved the proposed committee, has recommended that Rostow be named to head up the advance planning group.

However, the President has told aides that he favors having his brother take charge of the "crises" committee in order to increase his knowledge of foreign policy.

Once the chairmanship is decided on, the President is expected to make a public announcement that the committee is being set up within his administration.

Recommendations that the committee include congressional "advisers" were turned down by the President.

SOCIAL WHIRL — Unusual feature of the White House's state dinner Tuesday for President and Mrs. Houphouet-Boigny, of the Ivory Coast, is a special performance of "Billy the Kid" by the American Ballet Theatre. The now world-renowned dance will be staged in the East Room. The American Ballet put on "Billy the Kid" in Moscow when it toured Russia, with great success.

The first-of-the-season garden party by Chief of Naval Operations and Mrs. George Anderson, in the Admirals' House, their official residence, was notable for three innovations: The historic mansion was newly painted, light gray with white trim from brick red; they Navy Band, which usually provides the music at these affairs was replaced with a strolling accordionist; and the usual buffet of small slices of roast pork dipped in soy sauce and sesame seeds, Maryland biscuits and ham, was replaced with shrimps, roast beef, corned beef, hot rolls, and curried peanuts. The hundreds of guests enjoyed the changes and had a grand time.

Special guest at the State Department's dinner for Norwegian Prime Minister and Mrs. Elmer Gerhardsen was Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, 85-year-old one-time Ambassador to Norway and long a social leader in the Capital. Mrs. Harriman now rarely attends public functions, but she made an exception for this occasion and was universally acclaimed.

Pilsner beer was the big attraction of the National Day party by Czech Ambassador and Madame Ruzek. The famed beer was imported to the U.S. especially for this occasion. To take care of the army of diplomatic and other guests, the Ruzeks provided two large buffet tables, two bars, and a "sweet" table that dispensed pastries, ices and other desserts.

Happiest party Washington has seen in a long time was that of former Interior Secretary and Mrs. Oscar Chapman for the Mexican delegation attending the Interparliamentary Conference. In addition to being very informal, an especially tasty buffet dinner was served to a large throng of official guests headed by Vice President and Mrs. Johnson and Mexican Ambassador and Senora Carrillo Flores.

Strange Economy

The Nation's Press

From Ft. Lauderdale (Fla.) News

Back on Feb. 18 this newspaper editorially questioned the appointment of a former high official in the Fidel Castro regime to a prominent post in the Alliance for Progress program and we informed our readers that with the assistance of Sen. George Smathers we were going to try to find out why somebody who apparently had no love for the U.S. was tendered a position where he could greatly influence the giving away of billions of American tax dollars.

The man in question is Dr. Felipe Pazos, who was head of Cuba's National Bank back in 1959 and who was the man responsible for "freezing" all savings and checking accounts and stealing all safety deposit boxes in Cuban banks at the time when Castro was seizing American property right and left without any compensation whatsoever.

Dr. Pazos remained with the Castro regime for quite some time and, according to information revealed by News columnist Dr. Fernando Penabaz, it wasn't until he was fired by Castro from the post of economic ambassador to Europe that his loyalty and his attachment to the Castro regime came to an end.

Dr. Pazos then went to Puerto Rico, where he obtained a lucrative public position from which spot he was tabbed by Theodore Moscoso, the director of the Alliance for Progress program, to be one of his top aides.

Ever since Feb. 18 Sen. Smathers and this newspaper have been attempting to get an explanation from Mr. Moscoso and other people connected with our foreign aid program as to why it was advisable or desirable to reach out and pluck a former pro-Castro official to be a top administrator in a program supported almost exclusively by American tax dollars.

For many weeks Sen. Smathers tried vainly to get some kind of an official answer to his queries about Dr. Pazos. Finally, last week, he got the following statement from Mr. Moscoso:

"Altho Dr. Pazos is not a member of the United States government nor responsible to it, we have nevertheless reviewed his record and his qualifications for the position he now holds with the Alliance for Progress. As a result, we believe Dr. Pazos is a highly competent economist and financial expert with a working knowledge of the problems of Latin America; that he is a firm believer in democracy and freedom as we in the United States use the terms; and that he is a dedicated anti-Communist who broke with the Castro regime when he realized that the 26th of July movement had been captured by the Communists and its original goals perverted.

"The Charter of Punta del Este which established the Alliance for Progress in August, 1961, calls for the appointment of a panel of nine high level experts of any nationality, on the basis of their experience, technical ability, and competence in the various aspects of social and economic development. This panel is appointed by the Inter-American Economic and Social Council, on the joint nomination of the secretary-general of the Organization of American States, the president of the Inter-American Development Bank, and the executive secretary of the United Nations Commission for Latin America. Dr. Pazos was nominated by these men and appointed to the panel by the council representing the 20 member nations.

"I am attaching a very brief list of some of Dr. Pazos' accomplishments. We believe that a review of his experience shows him to be highly qualified for this position. I think you will also be interested in seeing the attached copy of a letter which he sent to Mr. Herbert Matthews of the New York Times, criticizing Mr. Matthews' recent book and outlining some of his own views on Castro's Cuba."

Sen. Smathers, in commenting to the News on the information supplied him by Mr. Moscoso, said he still didn't have all the information he wanted to obtain but in view of the fact that Dr. Pazos was not an official of the U.S. government, it was somewhat difficult to get official information about him. He stated, however, that he was still endeavoring to get the additional data he wanted and would forward it when and if it was secured.

In reviewing Dr. Pazos' biographical and experience data, as supplied by Mr. Moscoso, it is evident the man does have some qualifications for the job he now holds. But it is also evident that many others could be found who are just as qualified as Dr. Pazos and who do not have his unsavory background with the Castro regime.

As Sen. Smathers has pointed out, the information supplied by the head of the Alliance for Progress program still leaves many questions unanswered about this entire deal. From what Mr. Moscoso has said, it appears that while the U.S. is financing the Alliance for Progress we have very little to say about who is appointed to oversee the giving away of our money. Even the United Nations is in on the act and if Americans question aspects of the program it takes forever and a day to get any answers and then they are informed that the people in charge of giving away our money aren't employed by our own government and aren't answerable to it.

To our way of thinking, that is a heck of a way to spend billions of our tax dollars and, as we said in our editorial of Feb. 18, it well illustrates why so many Americans are losing confidence in their government and in the ability of their elected and appointed leaders to restore any semblance of common sense to the administration of our whole foreign aid program.

IN GRAND OLD MANNER—This rebuilt antique automobile—1901 vintage—was the hit at the 50th anniversary celebration of the Republic of China on Formosa. The handicraft of a U.S. Navy civilian employee, it carries a drum major leading a mobile band. Chinese lettering is the commission of an anniversary congratulatory message.

The Scene Today in... Texas Politics

By United Press International
Don Yarborough Monday night accused John Connally of being anti-Democrat with ideas of raising the state sales tax to three or four per cent.

He pledged himself to support President Kennedy's renomination in 1964 if he wins the Democratic runoff for the gubernatorial nomination June 2, and criticized Connally for refusing to take a stand at this time.

While Yarborough continued his baby-kissing, hand-shaking tour of Central Texas today, Connally moved from the Gulf Coast to Lubbock and Amarillo.

The former Navy secretary said the "real issue in the race is who has the ability, the experience and the background" to lead Texas.

Connally said at El Paso recently that he did not want to pledge himself at this time if he should lead the Texas delegation to the 1964 national convention.

"While he's talking of unity in the Democratic party, his public pronouncement spells disunity and confusion for the Democratic party," Yarborough said at Texas.

"My opponent wants the people of Texas to believe he is a Democrat, but he is opposed to everything that the Democratic administration stands for. This is why he is afraid to meet a real Democrat in public debate."

Yarborough promised that if he is elected governor, he will repeal the general sales tax. He said Connally and the "general sales tax crowd" favor extending it to cover all purchases.

Yarborough planned today to visit Longview, Gladewater, Mineola, Tyler, Palestine, Rusk and Nacogdoches, then fly to Lufkin for an evening reception.

Connally campaigned Monday in Port Lavaca, Bay City, Rosenberg, Alvin and Lake Jackson.

At Bay City he described his services as a member of the lower Colorado River authority board in 1941 when the river's flood control program was being developed.

Sen. Preston Smith looked for votes in the lieutenant governor's race in Beaumont. He said legislation he originated while a member of the Texas house has solved major building problems at state colleges.

The program permits a transfer of an unused portion of the old confederate pension fund tax to be used. Some $82 million was budgeted for a 20-year period. "By this means and without placing any additional tax upon the people of Texas, the crucial building problems of our state-supported colleges have been handled adequately," he said.

Speaker James Turman campaigned for lieutenant governor in Victoria and Corpus Christi and made plans to go today into the Central Texas area carried by Jarrard Secrest in the first primary.

Attorney general candidate Tom Reavley, campaigning in Corpus Christi, said "to glaring untruths" are causing Waggoner Carr to slip in the runoff.

He said Carr slipped when he refused to take a lie detector test over Tom's James' charges that Carr attempted to smother a Beaumont vice investigation while speaker of the House. James took a test.

Reavley said Carr claimed he was a lobbyist for out-of-state loan companies but when he offered to withdraw from the race if Carr could prove his charge, he said, Carr became "as quiet as a burglar."

Carr announced the appointment of Joe Carroll as his campaign manager in Temple. He campaigned in Amarillo, Dumas, Borger and Pampa and said he would be in Odessa, Midland, San Angelo and Abilene Tuesday.

Woodrow Bean, candidate for congressman-at-large, pledged, if elected, to support a full, 88-mile national seashore on Padre Island. He said anything less than that would be a "sellout out special interests."

Bean was in Alice and made plans to go into the Rio Grande Valley.

FREE UPS AND DOWNS

The offer was made by the Welsh Snowdon Mountain Railway Company.

Largest Bell

Russia can claim the largest bell in the world. The "Tsar Kolokol" cast in '34, has never been rung because, in 1737, a fire destroyed its supports and, in failing, an 11-ton piece fell from its side.

He Offers New Video Literary Service To Stars

By DICK WEST
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the "Emmy" awards coming up on television tonight, this seems an appropriate time for me to announce the availability of a new video literary service.

No longer need members of the Actors' Guild get up before the cameras and grope around for something to say upon accepting a gold-statue.

If they are willing to part with some of the guild-gotten gains, they can send me a retainer and I will ghost-write their acceptance speeches on a contingency basis. If they don't get a chance to use the speech, 80 per cent of the fee will be refunded, and no questions asked.

The desperate need for a service of this sort must be painfully apparent to anyone who has ever watched either an "Emmy" or "Oscar" ceremony unfold on the magic tube.

The winners unflinching slip into the familiar "Who, little old me?" routine, thus subjecting the audience to two hours of unrelenting modesty.

Owners of some of the most monumental egos in show business mount the stage and profess to owe it all to the cameraman, the sound technician or the guy who empties the dressing room wastebasket.

A little humility never hurt anyone, but I think the award ceremonies would be vastly improved if we didn't have to spend the evening wallowing in it.

That is where my ghost-writing service can pep up the proceedings. It will provide prepared remarks to show how the winners really feel about being chosen.

Following are a few sample speeches to assist potential customers in making out their orders:

"For the best performance by an actor in an hour-long Western series sponsored by a cigarette company—

"This award comes as no surprise to me, and all I can say is that I deserve it."

"For the best performance by an actress in a single dramatic program with less than 12 commercial interruptions—

"I shall always treasure this award because I feel that I won it single-handedly. It proves that a good actress can overcome the handicaps of a weak script, a hammy co-star and a director who should go back to selling insurance."

"For the best performance by an actor in a situation comedy series without any talking animals—

"We all know that these awards are mainly a matter of network politics, but once in a while genuine talent is recognized. Selecting me as the winner of this category should help the industry regain some of its lost prestige."

STEEL OUTPUT DIPS

NEW YORK (UPI) — The nation's output of steel dropped another 5.8 per cent last week to the lowest level since April 1, 1961, the American Iron & Steel Institute reported Monday.

Production for the period slipped to 1,662,000 tons from 1,765,000 a week earlier.

POLARIS SUB RELOADS
CHARLESTON, S.C. (UPI)—The Ethan Allen, the first of six submarines sent to sea from this port armed with 16 Polaris missiles each, returned Monday for reloading.

The Ethan Allen has been identified as the vessel which launched the first nuclear-tipped Polaris missile during the current U.S. nuclear tests in the Pacific.

Foreign Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst
Back in 1948, disowned by the Kremlin and out of sheer economic necessity, Marshall Josip Broz Tito of Yugoslavia turned to the West for help.

This week, as he approached his 70th birthday on Friday Tito still was having economic troubles but his relations with the Kremlin were on the upswing on the word of no less an authority than Nikita Khrushchev.

Last month, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko visited Tito in Yugoslavia and the two later reported their conversations had been "constructive."

On May 1, new Soviet-built tanks appeared in the May Day parade.

In Soviet-Yugoslav relations both events were "firsts."

After a brief honeymoon following the death of Stalin, relations chilled as a result of Soviet handling of the Hungarian revolt and no top Russian had visited Yugoslavia since. No Russian military aid had been sent to Yugoslavia since the break with Stalin in 1948.

In the intervening years, Tito has attempted to have the best of both the Communist and Western worlds.

American aid, both military and economic, has totaled more than $2 billion and his trade with the West is twice that of Yugoslav trade with the Communist bloc. It is unlikely that he now seeks to endanger either the trade or the aid.

Tito is neither a member of the Soviet led Warsaw military pact nor is he invited to summit sessions of the Communist leadership.

These conditions probably will remain, if only because Tito will not surrender the independence which led to his original break with the Kremlin nor abandon his declared policy of neutrality which has paid off so well.

On the other hand, when Khrushchev said the two countries saw almost eye-to-eye on questions of foreign policy, he really was saying little new.

Tito always had made clear he is a Communist and dedicated to a Communist world.

He has supported the Soviet position on Berlin and on immediate and total disarmament. He openly sympathized with the Communist decision to break the voluntary test ban on nuclear weapons and his neutrality always has been on the side of the Soviets.

Introduced Tennis

Tennis was introduced into the United States by Miss May E. Outerbridge, who spent the winter of 1874 in Bermuda and saw the game played by British officers there.

OLD HANDS—These three men think they have found the secret to long life—good, clean, hard work. Frank Washburn, 76, left, Peter Rupinski, 74, center, and Laurence Dobbys, 75, fell and buck about 100 trees a day and bunch the 8-foot pulpwood logs for sale to a packaging mill in Filer City, Mich. The energetic gentlemen have a common goal of living to the age of 100, and maintain that they "prefer logging to loafing."
