Census Reaction Mixed

By Pat Blair

Preliminary reports on the 1980 census have drawn mixed reaction from officials in Aransas County.

City officials are "very irate," according to Rockport Mayor Walter S. Falk Jr.

But County Judge John Wendell said figures for Aransas County overall were "not too far from what I guessed. I think it's in the ballpark."

The preliminary figure released by the Census Bureau for Aransas County credits the county with a 1980 population of 12,258 -- an increase of 37.7 percent in the last decade. The 1970 census showed the county with a population of 8,902.

The 1980 census also shows the county as having a 74.9 percent increase in housing units during the past 10 years.

Rockport officials, however, are unhappy -- and with reason. The preliminary figures released by the Census Bureau show Rockport with a 1980 population of "about 3700 -- 200 short of what we were 10 years ago," Falk said.

"According to the number of sewer and phone connections," Falk continued, "we (Rockport) have a population of between 6000 and 6500. Based on income tax returns, we have a population of 6000-plus."

Says City Secretary Herman Johnson, "They (the Census Bureau) credit us with less housing than we had in 1970, less population than in 1970."

Johnson added that the 1980 preliminary census figures showed Rockport with about 100 fewer homes in 1980 than in 1970.

Census officials have since started rechecking their original figures, the City Secretary continued, "and I understand they picked up 79 houses just in one enumeration district that had been left off the

City Voters Go To Poll Saturday

Rockport voters will go to the polls Saturday, August 9, to elect a new city council representative from Ward 1.

Only voters of Ward 1 are eligible to cast ballots in the election to fill the unexpired term of Alderman Dan Ward.

Candidates, in the order that their names will appear on the ballot, are Peter Lazidis, Alderman Ward's opponent in last April's election, and Betty Jean Ward, the late alderman's widow.

Polls will open at 7 a.m. Saturday and remain open until 7 p.m. at Rockport's

City Hall. Rachel Garcia is presiding judge and Barbara Armstrong alternate presiding judge over the election.

Ward 1 is that part of Rockport inside city limits and south of Laurel Street.

Alderman Ward was elected to his third term on the city council in this year's April 5 city elections. He died June 8 in a Corpus Christi hospital.

Returns from Saturday's election are expected to be canvassed in the next Monday's, August 11, regular council session, according to Rockport Mayor Walter S. Falk Jr. The winner of Saturday's election may be seated at that time.

The winner of the election will complete Alderman Ward's unexpired term from August until April, 1982.

City To Consider Revenue Sharing Expenditures Monday

Rockport residents will have a chance to express their views on how the city should spend almost $36,000 in revenue sharing funds during a public hearing Monday, August

The hearing will be held during the regular city council session that will begin at 7:30 p.m. at City Hall.

City Secretary Herman Johnson said the city usually spends the money on capital improvements projects. Revenue sharing money has in the past been used to purchase a police car and a garbage truck. Johnson said the city once saved two years worth of revenue sharing money to pay for a new fire truck.

These are needed items, he said, and by purchasing them with revenue sharing funds, tax money is saved.

"There are volumes of (federal) guidelines" on how the revenue sharing money can and cannot be spent, Johnson continued, "but we (the city) don't get too involved."

He said the city avoids using revenue sharing funds to create new city positions and pay salaries, because this could cause problems if -- or when -- the revenue sharing program is cut off.

Earlier this year, there was talk in Washington of stopping the revenue sharing program. Later, this was revised into the idea of cutting off the flow of revenue sharing funds to state governments but con-

Large Crowd Attends Hurricane Meeting

Some 180-185 Aransas County residents crowded the VFW Hall in Rockport to find out where and when to go in event of a hurricane during a "Hurricane Preparedness Meeting" Monday night, August 4.

Bill Hare with the National Weather Service in Corpus Christi, Rockport Mayor

Walter S. Falk Jr. and Red Cross representative Elmer Redden were among speakers during the meeting that began at 7:30 p.m. The evening included a film, "A Lady Named Camille," and a question-and-answer session. Those at the meeting were told that an emergency operating station will be set up, probably at the jail or juvenile office. Shelters will be designated later by the mayor or by County Judge John Wendell, if and when threat from a hurricane seems imminent.

Chief Paramedic Bill Aston said Tuesday morning that

ABC Has Building, Needs Funds

By Pat Blair

Not too long ago, ABC Learning Center had a nice school building with fenced-in playground over on Church Street.

But then Sacred Heart Catholic Church, which owns the building, needed it for other purposes -- which meant ABC Learning Center had to move.

Finally the association that operates the Learning Center found another building, the old Prophet Home at 409 Magnolia Street.

But that didn't solve ABC's problems -- it only made them worse, at least $10,000 worse.

That -- $10,000 -- is the minimum amount of money ABC Learning Center needs to meet minimum state and local requirements for a preschool.

"We're seeking donations," says the Rev. Wayne Pafk, pastor of Peace Lutheran Church, one of the members of the association that keeps ABC going.

As a non-profit organization, ABC depends on donations for a certain amount of its operating

Johnson Trial Delayed

Trial of Chester Johnson, charged with voting irregularities in Rockport's April 5 city elections, has been delayed with no date set for the next court appearance.

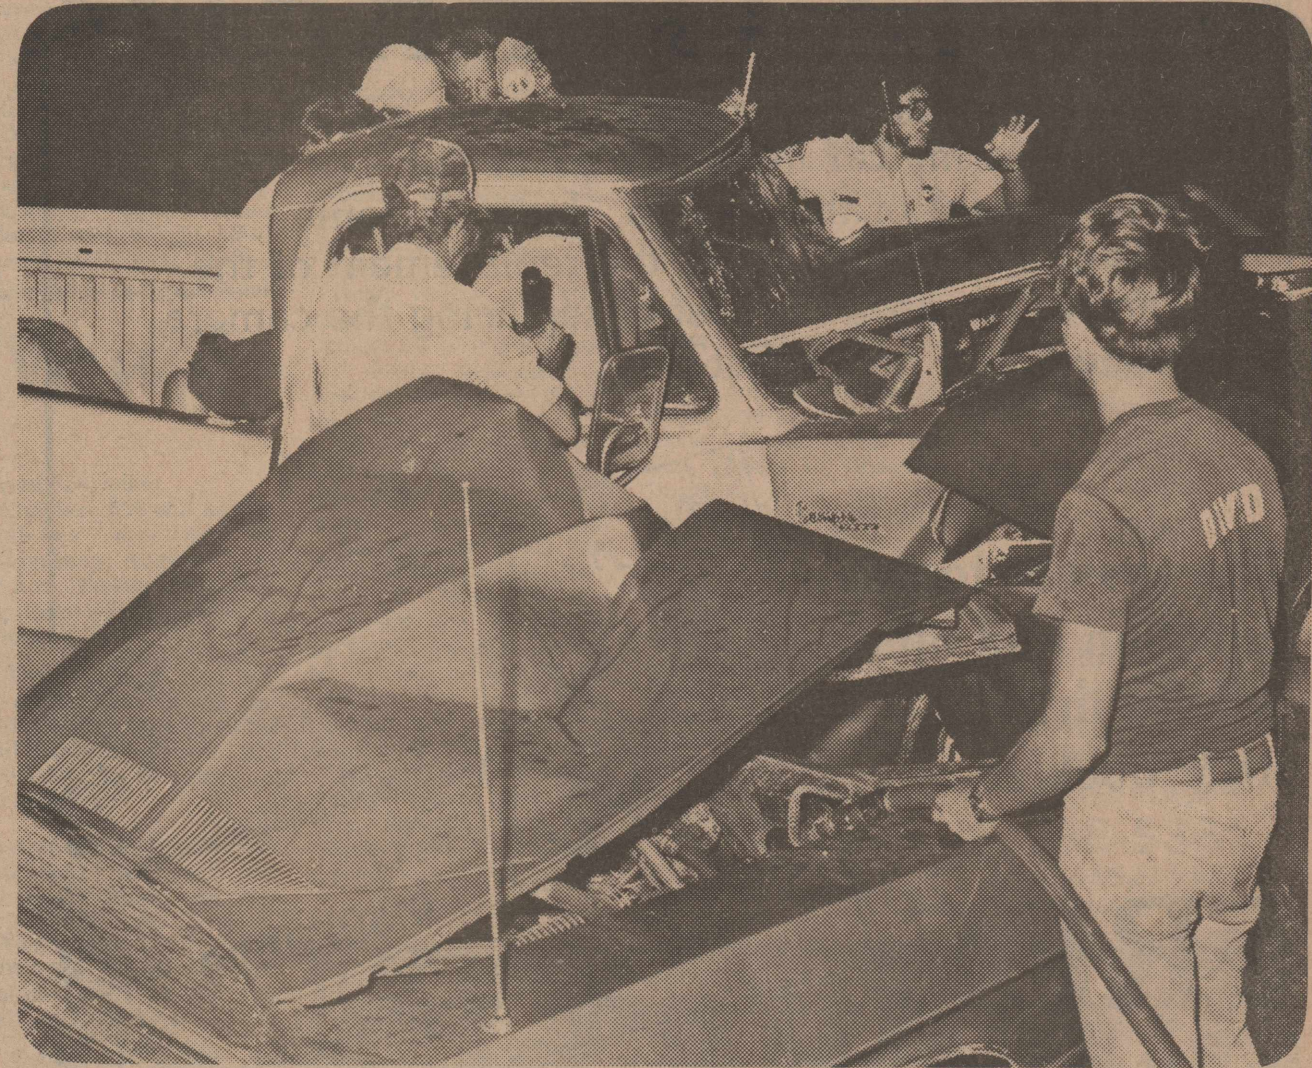

Johnson was scheduled to go to trial on the charge of knowingly violating election laws at 9:30 a.m. Monday, August 4.

However, the case was passed over following a motion filed by the Rockport man's attorney. Date for a new trial is expected to be set later.

A former mayor of Rockport, Johnson is charged with voting in both Ward 1 and Ward 2 in the April 5 city elections. This is a third-degree felony subject to fine or prison sentence of two to 10 years or both.

Charges were filed against Johnson on May 23 and he was arraigned on June 6. He failed to appear at his pretrial hearing on July 11 but sent a letter to the court explaining his absence.

ROCKPORT FATALITY

Rockport firemen, police and Aransas County paramedics survey the wreckage that left one man dead and another facing involuntary manslaughter charges Friday night, August 1, on the Harbor Oaks Bridge. Raymond Bruce Hall, 59, of 1004 South Church was pronounced dead about 10:15 p.m. Friday after being taken by ambulance to Enterprise Medical Clinic. James Heyward Jr., 21, of Aransas Pass has been charged with involuntary manslaughter -- with $10,000 bond -- and driving while intoxicated -- $500 bond -- following the three-car accident that occurred about 8:49 p.m. Police said the events leading to the fatal accident began when Heyward reportedly struck a vehicle from behind at the Cove Drive

In on Highway 35 South then fled the scene. He was being pursued "at a high rate of speed" by Sheriff's Deputy Wagner, traveling north on the Fulton Beach Road, when his pickup collided head-on with Hall's pickup. A third vehicle, behind Hall's truck and driven by Pauline Hudson Pierce, 41, struck Hall's vehicle, then Heyward's. Heyward was taken to Lyman-Roberts Hospital with reported minor injuries. A passenger in his truck, two-year-old Jimmy Heyward was taken to Aransas Hospital also with reported minor injuries. Ms. Pierce was reported uninjured in the accident.

AM I COVERED?

"Last week I had a camera stolen out of my car. Does my car insurance cover the replacement of the camera, does my home owner's insurance cover the replacement of the camera, or does the cost of replacing the camera come out of my pocket?"

Barritt, Collins Capture Award

GALVESTON, TEXAS — Bill Collins of Galveston and Jimmy Barritt of Port Isabel each will receive $500 for returning shrimp tagged and released in Texas waters in the second shrimp drawing for 1980.

Collins and Barritt are among 16 shrimpers to receive awards in the continuation of the "contest" along the Texas Gulf Coast. A dual set of winners has been announced by officials at the National Marine Fisheries Service Laboratory at Galveston to accommodate additional shrimp tagging studies being conducted in conjunction with the Bryan Mound Salt Dome research project in the Freeport area.

Second prize $100 checks go to Mariano Martinez of Port Isabel and Doby Linwood of Brownsville.

Fred Rendon of Freeport; Julian Ladesma and Ricky Ragusin of Port O'Connor; Miguel Cruz of Los Fresnos; L.H. Torrez of Aransas Pass; Bobby Lupe of Brownsville; and Santiago Lopez of Cd. Carmen, Campeche, Mexico.

Richardo Serrato of Harlingen also will receive a $50 check for returning a tagged shrimp released in Mexican waters.

The shrimp tagging and retrieval program, which began in May, 1978, has been a cooperative effort of the National Marine Fisheries Service, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, the Texas A&M Sea Grant College Program, the Texas A&M Research Foundation and Mexico's Instituto Nacional de Pesca.

The cash awards have been incentives for shrimpers to return any tagged specimens found in their daily catch.

Prize-winning numbers are randomly selected by computer on a priority basis with consideration given to those tagged shrimp which have been at large for the longest period of time.

A Certificate of Recognition also is given to any fisherman who returns 10 or more shrimp.

Entry cutoff date for the next awards program will be September 5, 1980.

Wendell Is First National Artist Of Month

of her portraits on display in the bank's lobby.

A charter member of the Rockport Art Association, Jan has been "into photography since 1972 as a hobby but has been freelancing as a portraitist only during the past year.

Her interest in photography goes back to 1971 when she was chairman of the first big Art Festival, held in Harbor Oaks that year.

"I had kind of a Mickey Mouse Kodak 35 millimeter and there was a semi-pro taking slides," she says. "Between us, we got zero."

Soon after that, a very determined Jan Wendell went to a camera shop in Corpus Christi "and asked for a camera that any idiot could use. I came home with about $1000 in equipment."

The next step, in 1972, came when Jan built her own darkroom - which has now become "just adequate" for her work. She's thinking about building a new, larger darkroom.

In 1975, Jan started using color film "on a perfunctory basis" and in the last couple of years, she has really "got into color." This year, she attended a Creative Color Workshop in Connecticut, and her portraits are all in color.

She got into portraits through a natural interest in people. "I like people," she says. "I'm a gregarious person, fascinated by the many facets of a person's face and personality."

She also feels that "everybody needs a statement at least one time in their life: 'This is when I was 16,' or 'This is when I became a member of the board of directors' or 'This is me and my dog'..."

And a portraiture, she added, is made to last, not like a snapshot that will fade in a few years.

Jan has some very definite preferences about the portraits she does, one of them being that she prefers outdoor photographs to those done in the studio.

"I do some studio pictures, but I don't like it," she says. "You don't get the velvety background you get in nature."

She also prefers to shoot in the early morning or "fairly late in the afternoon" or most anytime on a cloudy day. She finds teenagers and very young children the easiest subjects -- in that order -- and adults the hardest.

"They (adults) already have a preconceived idea of how they think they look," she explained.

In setting up a shot, the subject's coloring first, then their clothing, dictates the background Jan will use. "The background shouldn't detract," she added; "it should always add to."

As an example, for her portrait of Mary Albert, one of those on display in the bank, she chose to have Mary framed by a tree.

"Mary Albert is a handsome woman," Jan said, "a strong woman. I used the tree as a symbol of that strength."

"I try to find that one glow that will make a person stand out," she continued, "the glow that flatters and delineates."

Besides portraitures, Jan is also interested in illustrative photography and would like to broaden into that field.

Rockport's Party Line

By Betty Paul

Joanne and Forest Haskell have returned from a trip to New Orleans and Ann Arbor, Michigan. Their son Guy went to Ann Arbor ahead of them, then they all came back to Rockport together.

Gertrude Bryant, Esther Conquist and Louise Scallings returned from a "long mileage" vacation to Overland Park, Kansas, where they visited Margaret Hall (a former resident of this area), then on to Annadale, Minnesota to a "beautiful spot" and Lake Superior. They came back through the Ozarks and Fayetteville, Arkansas, before returning home.

Benedict Fathers and Nuns will come on Saturdays and Sundays to help take his place, and associate pastor Bob Cantwell will be there to help fill in the obligations of the church while Father Deane is away. He will return September 3.

Dorothy and Carl Simmons, usually winter people from Winchester, Indiana, like Rockport so much that they came to stay for the entire summer. They are "at home" at the Trav-Trail-R-Inn.

The Clothing Care Center has a new owner - Mrs. George Miller has assumed the responsibilities. Ruby Munser will still be there during the day to help anyone who needs assistance.

Mrs. Pat Barnett has as her guests for several weeks Mr. and Mrs. Edward Barnett and their children Jay, Julie and Jennifer from Hutchinson, Kansas.

Reba and Jack Rast were here for the weekend to see their Rockport friends.

Phyllis Fair went to Seattle, Washington, to visit her younger sister and son, then to West Yellowstone to visit her husband and fly fish.

Jan Wendell and daughter Jill are in La Jolla, California, for a vacation. Jan's son Wayne is touring Europe right now but will join them in California. They will all come back to Rockport together in three weeks.

The Frank Baileys have as their guests for several weeks Frances Bailey and son Tad from Arnold, California.

The final match in the division went to Mussel and Slusher, 6-2, 6-4 on Sunday, August 3 at the Key Allegro Tennis Club.

Palm Harbor Marina-the full moon has made a difference in catches; some pretty good strings of trout and red have been brought in by the few people out fishing.

Rinche, Zelsman Win 7th Mixed Doubles Tourney

Willie Rinche of Rockport and Kay Zelsman of Austin were winners of the seventh annual Fred Whittle Memorial Mixed Doubles Summer Fun Tennis Tournament on the afternoon of Sunday, August 3, at the Key Allegro Tennis Club.

The pair defeated Judy Cline of Beeville and Carl Prewit of Portland, 5-7, 6-3, 6-2 in the final match of the two-day tournament, which attracted a total of 64 players from nine cities including Rockport.

The winners and runners-up in the championship division were awarded silver serving trays.

In addition to receiving these prizes, the winners will be honored by having their names inscribed on the permanent Whittle trophy.

Winners of Division B were A.C. Blunt and Allison Teague, who took the final match in the division from Ronnie Tynes and Janet Langham 7-5, 6-1.

All of the Division B winners were local players who were also presented with silver serving trays.

The title in Division C went to Ron Mussel of Portland and Nan Slusher of Rockport, who defeated De De Dean of Portland and Doyle Hamilton, 6-2, 6-4.

Their trophies were silver goblets.

The tournament was sponsored by the Rockport Tennis Association, whose purpose is to encourage tennis activity in this area, with special emphasis being placed on encouraging young beginning players to further their skills.

Earlier this year, the association staged a tennis clinic which attracted some 60 youthful players. The beginners used a tennis ball machine which has been bought by the association for such purposes. In addition, the organization provided equipment for some of the youngsters.

Leon Bateman, a director of the club, was tournament director for the event. He was responsible for the planning and administration of the tournament, with assistance from other officers and directors of the association.

Since its inception seven years ago, the tournament has honored the memory of the late Col. Fred Whittle, a retired Air Force officer who devoted the last years of his life to promoting tennis in the Rockport area.

He was responsible for interesting and coaching many local young people in tennis and is credited by many with some of the success the Rockport-Fulton High School tennis team has enjoyed in recent years.

Willie Rinche, who is considered by many to be the outstanding player in this area and who at one time was tennis professional at the Key Allegro Club says he got his start with Col. Whittle, who instilled in him a love for the game.

Unofficial guest of honor at the tournament was Dewey Lingo of Dallas, who played in the tournament with his wife, Betty.

Lingo, who had been a close friend and associate of Col. Whittle, conceived and planned the tennis tournament in memory of the tennis lover.

For several years prior to his moving to Dallas, Lingo handled the program as tournament director.

He recalls that the first Whittle tournament in 1973 was the first public benefit affair for the emergency ambulance fund, which has evolved into the Aransas County Medical Services with its two modules and two-doctor clinic.

In addition to the winners and runners-up in the three divisions already listed, the following players participated in the tournament:

Mary Floeck, Betty Lingo, T. McCarty, Marcia Foster, Barbara Rozzell, Polly Bracht, Mary John Lynch, Evelyn Livingston, Eunice Hansen, T. Domaschk, Margaret Montague, Ann Green, Mary Margaret Werkentin,

Also Pat Moran, Bob Zelsman, Robert Richter, Al Barnes, Randy Ramey, Gordon Dancer, Dan Floeck, Ike Salinas, Bill Green, Ike Boling, Bob Livingston, Bill Hansen, Reese Rozzell, Glen Foster, Bill Wadsworth, John Washburn, Frank Werkentin, Bob Kirsley, J.P. Lynch, Jack Russell and Johnny Jackson.

Out-of-town players represented Dallas, Corpus Christi, Austin, San Antonio, Houston, Aransas Pass, Beeville and Portland.

A tennis pro for the Key

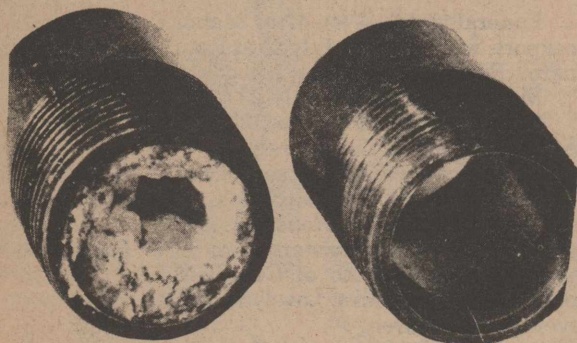

Allegro Tennis Club, where the final matches were played, Jimmy Aleman was considered host professional for the tournament.

A total of 16 courts were used, including Key Allegro, Rockport Racquet Club, Little Bay Club, Key Allegro North and Bay House Club.

Contributions were made by First National Bank, Live Oak State Bank, Marshall Funeral Home, Johnson's Drug Store, Glass, Sorenson and McDavid, U.S. Life and Title Co., Super D Foods, Joe's Exxon, Security Real Estate and P.K.T. Real Estate to help defray the expenses of the tournament.

A Yamaha racquet was contributed by George Falk of Net Result Sport Shop and won by Evelyn Livingston.

NEMATODE CONTROL
Now is the time to reduce your nematode population through non-chemical means.

We hear a great deal about using marigolds and sugar for the control of root knot nematodes in the garden; both of these methods are of questionable value.

There is a practice which is both scientifically sound and acceptable to gardeners, called drying. Nematodes are water loving animals and must have a water film in the soil in which they can move.

Soils have this film present, in the form of a moisture layer around the soil particles. As the soil dries out, this layer becomes smaller and smaller until it is completely gone. When this occurs, most nematodes will be killed.

Nematode eggs and those nematodes inside root tissue will be protected and will survive the drying.

It is important that the roots be broken up as much as possible and that they be exposed to direct sunlight so that a high percentage of the nematodes found in those roots will be killed.

Although drying does not kill 100 percent of the eggs, the exposure to direct sunlight will result in an increased egg mortality.

In Texas, this practice is especially valuable at this time due to the high temperature and low rainfall. Most gardens are beginning to go into a declining state due to high temperatures and plant age.

By going ahead and removing the plants and other weeds, the garden can be tilled and allowed to dry for the next 45-60 days. The area should be tilled again during this time to increase the kill.

By late summer, the garden will be ready to replant. This schedule will vary some depending upon the area of Texas in which you are located.

This treatment will reduce the population during the fall garden period, or if no garden is planted in the fall, it can have a significant effect on the spring nematode population.

Steps in Nematode Control:

1. Select the two hottest and driest months of the year.
2. Remove all plants from your garden. Make sure you get as many roots as possible.
3. Till or spade the soil.

4. Allow area to stand for 60 days. Make sure no weeds or vegetable plant are left alive in the area.

5. If rain occurs during this drying, till again when soil dries.

6. If no rain occurs, retill in 30 days after the first tilling.

7. Plant after 60 days. Soil will need to be watered prior to planting.

If these steps are followed closely, the existing nematode population will be reduced, and the next garden can be grown with only minor nematode damage.

By Steve E. Labuda, Jr.
Aransas National Wildlife Refuge Biologist

By Lloyd Mullins, Biologist, and Connie Themis
Living on the Gulf Coast is an advantage not only for the climate and beaches, but also for the opportunity to observe the abundance of marsh birds that reside in this area.

Perhaps the most widely recognized of these birds is a majestic and dignified bird known as the "Great Blue Heron." This lean bird, often called "Blue Crane," stands four feet tall and is the largest heron found in Texas.

The breeding season for the Great Blue Heron begins early in the year. At this time the birds are in their full beauty. The males walk about with an air of great dignity bidding defiance to their rivals, while the females croak to draw attention to themselves.

As the females utter their cooing notes the males battle over the right to mate with a particular female.

The battle is conducted by the participants rushing at their foe with open bill and outspread wings. Blows are exchanged with powerful thrusts of their bills.

One would think that a single well-aimed thrust might suffice to inflict death, but the strokes are parried with as much art as an expert swordsman.

Eventually one male submits to the other. Then the victor and the female leave together to begin nest site selection.

Great Blue Herons normally nest together and may at times associate with other nesting long-legged waterbirds. Although individual pairs may locally be found nesting on channel marker pilings or in oil well platforms, the majority of herons nesting in the coastal region do so in colonies averaging from 30 to 100 pairs.

Inland colonies, usually located near large impoundments normally contain 10 to 30 pairs. Herons prefer nesting in tall trees, but often nest in bushes and even on the ground.

The nest will contain anywhere from three to six large blue eggs. The eggs are incubated by both parents for about 28 days.

Young herons are far from attractive, either in appearance or behavior. At first they are feeble and helpless. As they grow they become awkward and develop a quarrelsome nature.

In the nest they are fed by both parents, first on soft regurgitated food, then on whole fresh fish.

The young are usually fed in rotation, but often the most aggressive youngster gets more than his share.

In shallow water the heron is an excellent fisher. Standing as a graven image, it waits patiently until a meal comes within reach. Usually the fish is seized crosswise between the bill.

If it is a small one, it is tossed in the air and swallowed head first, so that it will slip down easily. If the fish is a large one, the heron may walk ashore with it and beat it on the ground until dead.

The Great Blue Heron population has remained relatively stable during the past decade. Unlike the Brown Pelican, Reddish Egret and Least Tern, which also frequent our area, the Great Blue Heron is still considered to be abundant (a total of approximately 4,100 pairs were counted during the 1979 Texas Colonial Waterbird Census. However, due to the inadequate number of surveys, many inland colonies were not counted).

Hopefully this encouraging trend will continue so that future generations will also be able to enjoy observing this magnificent product of God's creativity.

Rockport Cable Holds Formal Open House

City, county and Chamber of Commerce officials joined Rockport Cable President Oliver J. Hensler in officially celebrating the cable company's opening Saturday, August 2.

With 18 channels of service available now to subscribers -- and more in the planning stages -- Rockport Cable TV offers the Rockport, Fulton and Key Allegro areas one of the most advanced cable television systems available today. Service to Rockport customers began the first of this year, with service to the Fulton area being turned on early this spring. At present, the company boasts approximately 400 customers.

Channels available now include the "basic 15" plus three premium, no commercial channels: Showtime, The Movie Channel and Drive in Theater.

And -- like they say on TV -- there's more to come. The company's new Cableguard system should be operational this month. This additional service provides subscribers with total protection in event of fire, intruder or in medical emergency.

Future plans for the cable system, Hensler said, "could include utility meter reading by way of cable hookup and 'energy management control' to control the electric circuits in the subscriber's home while he or she is away on vacation."

Hensler's son, Jerry, is chief technician for the cable television company. Mike Forrest is an installer and David Smith recently joined the company as an installer trainee.

Office personnel include Penny McKeown, Donna Nugent -- sales representa-

B&PW Votes To Assist ABC Learning Center

The Rockport Business and Professional Women's Club met Monday, July 28, in the Safari Campground Recreation room.

Johnette Brown, first vice president, presided over the meeting, with Jean Tesno and Lois Davis serving as hostesses.

Since the B&PW is dedicated to helping women, the membership voted to give financial aid to the ABC Learning Center in an attempt to assist working mothers in the community. Secret pals were revealed and gifts were exchanged as the ladies discovered who had fooled them all year.

A wedding shower was given for Laura Ogle, bride-elect of Paul Harris, as part of the program after the business meeting.

Members present at the meeting included Mrs. Brown; Mrs. Tesno; Mrs. Davis; Melanie Stephens; Carolyn Bernardy; Fay Henderson; Ruby Hart; Gayna Harrell; Marianne Gould; Loyce, Kerry and Christy Ogle; Penny Baldwin; Ruth Appleton; Barbara Lassiter; and Donna Nugent.

Gurley, Thornton Hold Reunion

A combination Gurley-Thornton Reunion was held July 20, at the Ronald Nesbitt residence in Meadowbrook subdivision, Mooresville, North Carolina.

The occasion of the reunion was the golden wedding anniversary celebration of Mrs. Nesbitt's parents, Harry and Viola Gurley.

Harry Gurley and Viola Thornton were married on October 24, 1930 in Rockport and another celebration is planned for October 24 of this year.

This early celebration was held so all the relatives with school-age children could attend.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gurley; their son, J.C. Gurley, his wife Lois and son Darren, of Rockport; and their daughter, Elizabeth Nesbitt, her husband Ronnie and their children Cody and Rhonda of Mooresville, North Carolina.

Also attending were Mrs. Gurley's sisters: Mrs. Lillian Parr, Rockport; and Mrs. Minnie White, Dallas; Mrs. Gurley's brothers: J.M. Thornton, Jean, Dennis and

Many people think the tuitions paid by the parents cover our operating expenses," Rev. Pafk said. "They don't."

The tuitions paid by parents, together with the scholarships provided to many of the students, amount to 73 percent of the school's operating expenses -- which leaves an additional 27 percent which must be met by donations to the school, ABC's money-raising booths at the Art Festival and Sea Fair and miscellaneous fund-raising projects.

And the $10,000 that the school needs now is in addition to its normal operating expenses -- money to pay for repairs that must be made before normal operations can begin.

Pafk said, the building must be repainted with a special fireproof paint before the city fire marshal will allow the structure to be opened to small children. The paint costs $30 per gallon.

It will cost the Learning Center $500 to repair and replace existing plumbing in the building.

Another $1526 is needed to bring the wiring in the building to acceptable, safe city standards.

Porch railings have to be replaced. . . a set of steps must be replaced. . . doors and other repair work is needed -- for a cost of some $1500.

Some $200 worth of chain link fencing must be purchased.

And the list goes on. . .

As to what ABC Learning Center is and does, Rev. Pafk continued, it's a pre-school for children age three through five years of age whose purpose is to help prepare the youngsters for regular school.

"Learning to like school" -- to like learning -- is an important part of the ABC curriculum, as is development of motor skills and "socialization" -- learning to get along with others.

The letters stand for "All children Beginning learning in a Christian environment," but the school is not operated by any "one" church.

It is, instead, operated by an association of six churches -- Catholic, Presbyterian, Methodist, Baptist, Lutheran and Episcopalian -- and volunteers from these six churches comprise the board of directors.

"ABC presently has no home," Rev. Pafk said. "The old Prophet home is our only option and we need to improve it in order to operate."

Without the money for repairs and necessary renovations, there just might not be an ABC Learning Center next fall.

MEETING

Enterprise Medical Center will not be designated a shelter. The purpose of the Center, he said, is to take tinuing the program at the local level.

FUNDS

So far, revenue sharing funds have not been terminated at any levels, "but it's a year-to-year program," Johnson said.

Rockport's actual projected share of the revenue sharing monies is some $1939 for the 1980-81 fiscal year. The money is sent to the city on a quarterly basis.

Monday's public hearing will be followed by another public hearing on Monday, September 8, to consider the entire 1980-81 budget for the City of Rockport.

CENSUS

original count." He added, though, that when the preliminary census figures were released, "the census people said the figures weren't supposed to be given out."

The figures were simply the cities and counties review.

A major reason for Rockport's concern -- and for the concern of a number of other area cities and counties not satisfied with the preliminary count -- is that the census is more than just numbers.

The population figures in the 1980 census influence how much a city -- or county -- receives in revenue sharing funds. . . can influence decisions on grant applications. . . and will, of course, influence redistricting.

"There are lots of things based on the census," said Johnson who complained, care of the sick and injured. "We aren't equipped to provide for persons who are healthy and just need someplace to go," he said. "That interferes with our primary purpose."

Some 15 local CB'ers volunteered to set up their equipment at the emergency operating station in event of a hurricane, so the area will not lose touch with "the outside world."

Hare told those at the meeting that anyone living at 20 feet below sealevel will be asked to evacuate in case of hurricane. City Secretary Herman Johnson said Tuesday morning that "there are very few points over 20 feet in Aransas County."

Persons unable to leave because of health problems or lack of transportation should notify the sheriff's office, courthouse, Red Cross or some related agency, the audience was told.

"I don't know what is going on. I haven't found anybody yet that's in charge of this area."

Fulton city officials haven't even seen the preliminary census figures yet. "I don't believe they've been released," was the comment of Mayor L.E. Casterline.

This was confirmed by City Secretary Cynthia Tilden who said, "We haven't gotten a word on it. Maybe they've forgotten us."

Census people are now at work revising the preliminary count, officials said, working out of the Aransas County Courthouse.

"It's gonna take 'em some time" to complete the census work, Judge Wendell said.

And Mayor Falk voiced what may prove to be the majority opinion, at least in South Texas: "It's a colossal mess."

Hermanns Launch Membership Campaign

SAN ANTONIO — A campaign to expand the membership of the 77,300-member Order of the Sons of Hermann in the State of Texas will be conducted August 1 - October 31 in all 159 lodges of the fraternal order, Louis B. Engelke, grand president, has announced.

The lodges are located in 138 cities and towns across the state.

Earlier this month 880 lodge leaders from across

Texas met in San Antonio, home office site of the fraternal society, in a rally for the campaign. This rally followed a seminar attended by 116 local lodge membership representatives.

Hermann Sons in Texas dates back to 1860 when Harmonia Lodge No. 1 was being organized in San Antonio. The lodge was officially chartered in 1861.

Originally part of a national society founded in New York in 1840, Hermann Sons in Texas became autonomous in 1921. Headquarters are located in San Antonio where the Grand Lodge was established in 1890.

The Hermann Sons order is listed in Fraternal Monitor magazine as 25th in size among 111 fraternal benefit societies in the nation reporting statistics and first among those operating in only one state.

The order in Texas operates a youth camp and a retirement home for aged members near Comfort and sponsors 19 dancing schools for junior members.

Local lodges sponsor both social and benevolent activities.

As required by law, the fraternal benefit society provides life insurance for the benefit of adult and junior members.

Lodge membership representative in the Rockport area are: Charles Keller and Harold Stapper of Rockport and Dan Barth of San Antonio, Rockport Lodge No. 79.

Don't let the dog days of summer contribute to your feeling like a dog — and a sick one at that.

This is the time of year when people traditionally spend more time out-of-doors during vacations, picnics, camping trips, swimming, skiing — the entire range of hot weather activities.

Summer is the time when food poisoning flourishes, reports the Texas Department of Health (TDH).

The culprits in most food poisonings are bacteria, and a sneeze, cough or a cut or sore on the hands or fingers introduce bacteria into the foods. Bacteria is present in many foods but are killed by proper cooking, followed by rapid refrigeration or keeping the foods hot until eaten.

Cross contamination is possible. In poultry, for example, salmonella present in a chicken or turkey will contaminate a cutting board. If the same board is used for cutting the fowl without first thoroughly washing the board with hot, soapy water, the cooked chicken may be contaminated from the residue left on the cutting board.

Most common contaminating agents are staphylococcus (Staph) and the organism of Salmonella (Salm). Quite often, large outbreaks can be traced to a bacteria named Shigella (Shiggy), which is transmitted through fecal-oral transmission from an infected person.

Staph, Salm and Shiggy are no friends of man.

You can get the upper hand on these guys by following some basic rules of food sanitation.

The first basic is to keep hot foods hot — about 140 degrees Fahrenheit — and cold foods cold — below 40 degrees Fahrenheit, says the State Health Department.

But there are other important steps to take and a few more things you should know, suggests TDH.

While the offending bacteria may be present in foods which you eat, proper preparation and handling afford protection. Almost without exception in poisoning cases, the food was contaminated after having been cooked and was allowed to stand at temperatures which encourage bacterial growth. These bacteria thrive at temperatures ranging between 50 and 130 degrees.

Time, temperature, bacteria and a good medium in which to grow are the primary factors in bacterial contamination of foods.

Some foods you are most likely to take on picnics are the high protein, moist foods in which these culprits thrive, such as milk, milk products, eggs, meat, poultry, fish, shellfish and such favorites as cream pies, custards and potato salad.

h training camp in San Diego, California, were the victims of food poisoning. The offending food was leftover canned meat which was improperly handled.

The bacteria, which was introduced into food, had time, temperature and a proper medium in which to grow. Although the meat dish reportedly was heated, it didn't reach the temperature necessary to kill the bacteria.

In such delightful picnic food as potato salad, it usually is made up and stored in a large, deep dish.

If the ingredients are warm when the potato salad is mixed, it takes a long time for the mixture to chill thoroughly. Often it never reaches the 40-degree safety factor. The result may be bacterial growth in the center of the mass. Then, when the potato salad is taken off refrigeration, more bacteria grows. The result can be food poisoning. It is recommended that potato salad be stored in shallow containers so that it becomes chilled throughout the mixture.

Any leftover picnic food should be eyed with skepticism. A major source of food poisoning is picnic leftovers which have been exposed to warm temperatures for too long a time. Return potentially hazardous food to the ice chest immediately after the meal and keep it cool. If hot foods are cooked early, it is best to refrigerate and then reheat them immediately before serving unless they are placed in heavily insulated containers and kept above 140 degrees.

With the bulk of the summer ahead and millions of Texans planning outdoor excursions and backyard cookouts, care should be taken in food handling to avoid illness. One of the best pieces of advice to remember is: Keep it hot; keep it cold; or don't keep it at all.

FORD SIGNS BILL
On Aug. 24, 1974, President Ford signed a bill establishing the Council on Wage and Price Stability, which he promised would not be a preliminary step to introducing mandatory controls.

DROUTH-STRICKEN ORNAMENTALS
SUBJECT TO DISEASE
Homeowners may want to develop a priority system for determining which plants should receive water and other care first during present heat and drouth conditions, suggests a plant pathologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. When part of a root system -- or in some cases top growth -- dies for lack of moisture, the weakened tissue is vulnerable to attack by organisms that break down organic matter. First to be damaged are shrubs and trees that have poorly developed root systems.

Delinquent Taxpayers Penalties Are Listed

AUSTIN, TEXAS—Paying taxes has never been a popular pastime — but it's something that almost everyone does, usually through payroll withholding, estimated tax payments, or regular deposits in the case of employment taxes.

There are, however, some persons who do not pay their full tax liability, according to the Internal Revenue Service. These delinquent taxpayers usually hear from the IRS through its collection process.

Why do some people fail to pay their taxes? Delinquencies may result from a variety of factors, the IRS says. Perhaps there was not enough tax withheld from each paycheck, or an error was made in preparation of the tax return, or a self-employed individual failed to make the required quarterly estimated tax payments. In addition, an employer can become delinquent by neglecting to deposit the tax withheld from his or her employees or by failing to contribute their portion of the Social Security tax.

When an individual owes the IRS additional tax, a bill is sent advising that payment is due within ten days. If the taxpayer thinks that the bill is wrong, the best course is to notify the IRS immediately — in writing, by telephone, or in a personal visit to a local IRS office. Any records, such as cancelled checks or tax returns which support the claim, should be made available for the IRS to review. If the taxpayer is correct, an adjustment will be made to the individual's account. Any tax, with interest and penalty still due after the correction is made, must be paid.

If delinquent taxes are owed, several methods of collection are available to the IRS. For example, the IRS employees may request financial information to determine the best method for payment. Usually, if the taxpayer can repay all the outstanding taxes at once — by selling property, borrowing, or using savings — this is done and the debt paid immediately.

On the other hand, if the taxpayer cannot pay the delinquent amount immediately, the taxpayer may qualify for installment payments.

When a taxpayer can pay the tax due immediately or under an installment agreement, but chooses not to do so, the IRS can enforce collection. One method of enforced collection is by levy.

A levy is a taking of property to satisfy a tax debt. It can be against salaries, wages, bank accounts, or commissions, for example. Under the Internal Revenue Code a levy can be issued against a taxpayer neglecting or refusing to pay taxes owed within ten days after the first notice has been given. Usually, however, the taxpayer has received several notices and has failed to make satisfactory arrangements for payment before a levy is issued. In certain circumstances, only one notice may be sent to business taxpayers who fail to pay to the IRS income and social security taxes withheld from the wages of their employees.

Certain types of property are exempt from levy by law, according to the IRS. They include most wearing apparel, school books, fuel, provisions, furniture, personal benefits, workmen's compensation, salary, wages or other income subject to a prior judgement for court-ordered child support payments, certain annuity and pension payments, undelivered mail, deposits to the special Treasury fund made by members of the Armed Forces and Public Health Service employees on permanent duty assigned outside the United States or its possessions, and a minimum exemption for wages, salaries and other income of $50 per week plus an additional $15 for each dependent.

As a matter of policy there are also several types of property which the IRS does not levy on, except in flagrant and aggravated cases of refusal to pay. These types of property include social security benefits, medicare payments, welfare payments, death benefits and contributions to individual retirement accounts (IRA) and self-employed KEOUGH accounts. Also, as a matter of policy, a levy against the wages or salary of a taxpayer does not affect such deductions as taxes, hospitalization premiums or union dues.

The IRS may also levy upon or seize property which is not readily convertible to cash, such as vehicles, business assets, real estate, and personal property.

Property which is seized may be sold. Generally, the IRS will not sell property which is seized for non-payment of taxes without giving at least ten days notice to the taxpayer and the public about the proposed sale. An exception to this practice is perishable goods which may be sold immediately.

Taxpayers can redeem their property before sale by paying the tax due and the expenses of the seizure. Real estate may also be redeemed at any time within 120 days after the sale by paying the purchaser the purchase price plus interest at 20% annual rate for the amount of time the purchaser owned the property.

It is important to keep in mind that, in all collection-related activities, taxpayers have certain basic rights. They include:

1. Representation: Taxpayers may represent themselves, or choose to be represented by an attorney, certified public accountant, or an individual enrolled to practice before the IRS. Taxpayers may also bring witnesses to support their position.

2. Transfer of Tax Case to Another Geographical Area: When a tax problem can be handled more quickly and conveniently in another IRS district, the taxpayer may request transfer of the case there.

3. Receipts: Taxpayers receive a receipt for each cash payment and, on request, are given a receipt for any other type of payment. Taxpayers also have the right to receive copies of all contractual agreements, such as payment agreements made with the IRS.

4. Confidentiality of Tax Matters: The IRS has an obligation, by law, to protect the confidentiality of the information on a taxpayer's return. However, if a Notice of Federal Tax Lien is filed, or if there is a lawsuit, certain aspects of the taxpayer's case become a matter of public record.

5. Elimination of Penalty — Reasonable Cause: The IRS can excuse taxpayers from penalties if there is reasonable cause for late payment of the tax or late filing of the return.
