Weidenbaum leaving administration post

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Murray Weidenbaum's resignation as President Reagan's top economic adviser is not the result of any policy dispute, according to White House aides who say Reagan is considering "four or five" other people for the job.

Weidenbaum's decision to leave his post as chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers and return to academic life was disclosed Thursday night while the president was in St. Louis to address a U.S. Olympic Committee fund-raising dinner.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes, stressing that there was nothing "untoward" about Weidenbaum's departure, said: "I defy you to read into this a policy dispute of any kind. It just does not exist."

Asked if Weidenbaum's departure would have any effect on the administration's future economic policy, Speakes said, "I don't think it will have any impact."

Weidenbaum, 55, told the president in his resignation letter that "the overall condition of the economy underscores both the difficulty of carrying out fundamental changes as well as the continuing need to move ahead on each of the four key aspects of economic policy in order to achieve your basic goal of restoring the economic strength of our country."

Speakes, who made public Weidenbaum's letter, said the four areas to which the economist referred were reducing taxes, slowing the growth of government spending, reforming government regulatory machinery and moderating the growth of the money supply.

In Washington, some administration officials close to Weidenbaum said he has decided to resign in part because he was frustrated by his inability to influence the administration's policy.

"The president is very much in charge of economic policy," said one Weidenbaum associate who did not want his name used. "This president feels that he has a great deal of interest in economics and is not open to a change in course from his senior economic advisers."

One official noted that the economist has been unhappy for some time that the president refused to go along with budget changes to reduce the record deficits the government now faces for 1983 and beyond.

Speakes said no successor had been chosen, but another well-placed White House official, who asked that he not be identified by name, said that "four or five" people were under consideration for the job.

Before Weidenbaum's resignation was revealed, the president said, "I think we have bottomed out of the economic recession."

"For the first time in several months, we are showing an increase, small though it may be, in the gross national product. Now I am not going to jump up and down and say that, well, there is going to be a boom just around the corner. It won't get cured that way."

The president made his remarks in an interview with KMOX-TV. After the interview was over, he also mentioned that Weidenbaum, who taught at Washington University in St. Louis, would be returning to the campus.

Senate approves tax hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate early today approved legislation containing the largest tax increase in history — $99 billion over the next three years to help lift the nation out of the worst recession since World War II.

The bill would boost taxes on cigarettes, telephone service and families with large medical expenses; impose a 10-percent withholding tax on interest and dividends; and take back more than one-third of the record tax cut that Congress voted for business last year.

Approved by a 50-47 vote at the end of a 20-hour session, the measure also would cut about $17.5 billion over the next three years from federal spending for Medicaid, Medicare and aid to the needy.

Forty-nine Republicans and independent Harry Byrd of Virginia voted for the bill. Forty-four Democrats and Republicans Paula Hawkins of Florida, Robert Kasten of Wisconsin and Mack Mattingly of Georgia opposed it.

The tax increase, which carries President Reagan's endorsement, is making its way through Congress less than one year after the lawmakers and the administration agreed on the largest tax cut in history.

The Senate-passed bill keeps intact Reagan's three-year, across-the-board personal tax cut, although it takes back a big part of the 1981 business reduction. The administration and its backers say this year's tax increase and spending cuts will bolster the sagging economy by reducing the government's borrowing and squeezing down interest rates.

The House Ways and Means Committee expects to write its version of a tax increase next week, and early indications are that the panel will accept much of what is in the Senate bill. But leaders said there is no assurance the Democratic-run House will pass any tax increase in this election year.

The Senate bill would raise the eight-cent federal cigarette tax to 16 cents a pack for three years; set the 1-percent tax on telephone service at 2 percent in 1983, 3 percent in 1984 and 2 percent in 1985 and later; allow deduction of medical expenses only to the extent they exceed 7 percent of income (the threshold now is 3 percent); permit deduction of only $100 (rather than the current $150) of medical-insurance costs without regard to the threshold; and restrict the deduction for uninsured casualty losses only to those exceeding 10 percent of income.

High-income professionals would lose part of the tax advantage they now enjoy from large tax-deferred retirement plans. Upper-bracket investors would face a toughened minimum tax, designed to assure that they pay some tax despite big deductions. Some tax-exempt bonds, a favorite investment of the wealthy, would be taxed for the first time.

Corporations would have to expedite their tax payments; the "leasing" law that encourages unprofitable firms to sell their tax breaks would be phased out; and big increases in depreciation deductions due in 1986 and 1987 would be repealed.

The Senate stripped one part of the package, which would have produced an estimated $2 billion by strengthening collection of taxes on tipped employees. To pick up $2.8 billion, Republicans joined with liberal Democrats to reduce by one-half the deduction allowed for meals when a businessman is not traveling away from home. Out-of-town meals would remain fully deductible.

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., who floor-managed the tax bill, was uncertain of victory until early Thursday night when the Senate rejected, 50-47, an effort to cut from the bill the provision imposing tax withholding on interest and dividends. Without the $12 billion that withholding would produce over three years, Dole said, the entire bill would fall apart.

'Dallas Phantom' uses Reunion perch to promote ideas, self

By JOE STROOP

DALLAS (AP) — A stock clerk who perched on a 560-foot tower for four hours, then was arrested for criminal trespass after climbing down, said the stunt was a plea for people to help charitable causes.

Russell Reimer, calling himself "The Dallas Phantom," launched paper airplanes to hundreds of people gathered below as he sat on a metal pipe Thursday underneath the observation deck of Reunion Tower in downtown Dallas. The paper missiles carried messages urging people to be more charitable to crippled children and the poor.

"I don't like to do routine things or boring things. I like to live a life that's exciting," said Reimer, 26, after lowering himself on a green rope into the arms of waiting policemen at about 1:45 p.m.

He was booked on a misdemeanor charge of criminal trespass, arraigned before Municipal Judge R.L. Middleton Jr. and released on $200 bond.

"I have a few other things I plan to do to bring attention to myself and the ideas I have," said Reimer. "But I won't step on the other side of the law again."

Reimer wore a white jump suit with climbing harness, a black motorcycle helmet with a dark visor, black velvet cape, black gloves and tall, black boots.

Reimer told The Associated Press that he had only 50 cents of the $1.50 elevator fare to the observation deck, but got $1 from an employee of United Press International. Reimer said he told the news agency he was going to climb down the tower and that a UPI reporter and photographer rode with him to the observation deck.

The Dallas Morning News quoted UPI's Dallas bureau manager, Frank Cook, as saying his photo department got a tip Wednesday night that the stunt would take place Thursday.

"UPI loaned the guy a dollar to go to the top, and I'm embarrassed about that," Cook told the newspaper. "It does put us in a bad light."

Cook declined to discuss the incident with the AP, but told the Morning News that UPI did not finance Reimer's climb beyond giving him the dollar.

Reimer said he hopes to get city approval for a stunt to dramatize support for mass transit by jumping his customized 1969 Dodge Charger across Central Expressway, one of Dallas' busiest freeways.

The TV program "Dukes of Hazzard" inspired the car jump idea, and the "Dallas Phantom" was born when Reimer saw "Hero at Large," a film about an out-of-work actor who earned money by appearing in a superhero costume at various publicity events.

Reimer told the AP that he first contacted UPI three weeks ago and said he intended to climb a major Dallas building.

He said Cook told him, "Do not tell me your name. He didn't want to know any of the details or have any appearance of involvement."

Reimer said he called UPI on Thursday and announced he was going to climb down the tower instead of up "because I might be recognized."

"They said they would meet me there. They said they were going to send me a photographer because they wanted to get a shot on top."

Two killed, two hurt in two-car collision

A two-car collision east of Midland about 6:25 p.m. Thursday has claimed the lives of two persons and left two others hospitalized.

Pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Charlie Sprayberry was 17-year-old Eddie Pounds of Arlington. Also killed was 25-year-old Donnie Pounds of Midland. He died at 9:45 p.m. in Midland Memorial Hospital.

Listed in serious condition this morning was James Pannell, 13, of Route 1, Midland. He suffered a concussion and broken leg in the crash, which occurred just east of County Road 1105-South on FM-307.

His mother, 48-year-old Rita Pannell, was in good condition with a broken wrist and cuts and abrasions.

According to the Department of Public Safety, she was westbound on 307 when her 1982 Buick and an eastbound 1979 Chevrolet station wagon driven by Eddie Pounds collided head-on. It is not known what caused the crash.

Both bodies were taken to the Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home, where services are pending.

Two people were killed in this two-car, head-on collision east of Midland about 6:25 p.m. Thursday. Eddie Pounds, 17, of Arlington and Donnie Pounds, 25, of Midland were killed in the mishap and two others were injured.

Group threatens suit unless arthritis drug taken off shelves

WASHINGTON (AP) — A consumer group says it will sue the government unless a new arthritis drug, which has been associated with 45 deaths in Great Britain and one in the United States, is withdrawn from the American market.

Public Citizen's Health Research Group renewed on Thursday its appeal to Health and Human Services Secretary Richard S. Schweiker to ban the drug Oraflex.

The drug, which also is known by the generic name benoxaprofen, is made by Eli Lilly and Co. of Indianapolis.

Sidney Wolfe, director of the group, said that unless the drug is pulled from the American market by the end of the month, his group will ask the courts to bar sales.

When the consumer group first sought a ban on Oraflex last month, it cited 12 deaths in Great Britain that had been reported in the medical literature.

Despite new reports of deaths associated with the drug, Lilly contends Oraflex is "a safe and effective medication when taken in compliance with prescribing information."

"The incidence of serious adverse reactions with this drug is comparable to that of other drugs in this class, including aspirin," company spokesman Ron Culp said.

But Wolfe disagreed. He said its benefits — it is a once-a-day dose preparation — don't compensate for its problems.

Roger Miller, spokesman for the Food and Drug Administration, said patients taking Oraflex should seek their doctors' advice about whether to use the drug. A review that the FDA began when reports of Oraflex-associated deaths first were received is continuing, he said.

The company — at the FDA's urging — mailed physicians a notice last month suggesting that they reduce the dosage level of the drug for elderly patients from about 600 milligrams to about 300 milligrams. Most of the initial reports of death linked with Oraflex in Great Britain involved elderly persons.

The American woman who died was a 47-year-old resident of Las Vegas, Nev. Her physician, Dr. Michael Rask, said in a telephone interview that she died at her home July 8 of liver failure after taking 600 milligrams of the drug daily.

"She was perfectly well otherwise except for rheumatoid arthritis. The only medicine she was taking was Oraflex. She went into liver failure after taking Oraflex a little over three weeks," he said.

"It is fraught with a great deal of other side effects. The chances of its helping a patient are less than its side effects," he said.

Rask said he has discontinued prescribing Oraflex for his other patients and is now unwilling to try any new arthritis preparation until it has been on the market for at least a year.

Oraflex was approved for sale in the United States on April 19 as a treatment for inflammation, pain and fever associated with arthritis. Its sales got off to a quick start, and 64,000 prescriptions were filled in its first three weeks on the market.

Oraflex has been sold in Great Britain for two years as Opren.

Nineteen of the 45 deaths recorded by the British government as being linked with Oraflex were from gastrointestinal hemorrhage or perforated ulcer, and 19 others were from liver or kidney damage.

Mrs. Kincheloe died Wednesday in an Odessa hospital.

She was born June 17, 1911, in Aspermont. She was a homemaker.

Other survivors include another son, two sisters, a brother and nine grandchildren.

Jazz saxophonist dies in Washington hospital

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jazz saxophonist Edward "Sonny" Stitt, a prolific recording artist and solo performer whose style resembled that of the late Charlie Parker, is dead at the age of 58.

Stitt died at Washington Hospital Center Thursday evening, according to Sue Thomas of the hospital's nursing office. Miss Thomas said Stitt had been admitted Monday, but would not discuss the cause of death.

Stitt replaced the legendary "Bird" Parker in trumpeter Dizzy Gillespie's combo in 1946, and he won the New Star award in the Esquire jazz poll the following year.

A week before Parker died in 1955, Parker told Stitt, "Man, I'm handing you the keys to the kingdom."

Stitt became an internationally respected soloist in the 1950s. He was featured on concert tours with Jazz at the Philharmonic and toured Great Britain in 1958.

In one of his numerous appearances at the Newport Jazz Festival, he performed in a leading role in a presentation billed as "The Musical Life of Charlie Parker." He performed memorably at a tribute to Duke Ellington in New Haven, Conn., in 1973.

He made dozens of albums, some with himself as leader and others with Gillespie, Roy Eldridge, Bud Powell and Gene Ammons. He was also featured in "Jazz on a Summer's Day," a 1958 film made at the Newport Festival.

Stitt is survived by his wife, Pam, a daughter and a son. No funeral arrangements were announced.

Dish detergent's lemon smell 'too successful,' some say

PITTSBURGH (AP) — When Lever Brothers set out to make a dishwashing liquid that smelled like freshly sliced lemons, it succeeded all too well.

The National Poison Center reports that about 2,500 people across the country have mistakenly dribbled the new liquid into iced tea and over their salads and fish.

"People are using it for what you usually use lemon juice for," said Dr. Richard Moriarty, director of the National Poison Center Network in Pittsburgh.

"You won't die of it, that's true. You'd have to drown in it first. But people are reporting nausea, vomiting and some diarrhea up to a couple of hours afterward," he said.

For the past several months, Lever Brothers Co. of New York was distributing free samples of Sunlight, a new dishwashing liquid in a bright yellow plastic bottle with lemons on the label. The company, hoping to squeeze out its competitors, added lemon juice to the product.

The pale yellow liquid oozes from the bottle like other dishwashing liquids, but it has the sharp scent of freshly cut lemons.

"Because you're just dribbling a couple of drops, a lot of people probably think it's just a new kind of concentrated juice — a little bit goes a long way," Moriarty said.

Young Meese dies in auto accident

McLEAN, Va. (AP) — Scott Robert Meese, 19-year-old son of White House counselor Edwin Meese III, was fatally injured late Thursday when his car ran off a road and struck a tree in this Washington suburb. U.S. Park Police said today.

"There were no signs of life" when police reached the scene, Nawrot said, adding that police pulled Meese from the vehicle just before the engine burst into flames.

Nawrot said the car "failed to negotiate a turn," left the roadway, skidded for 330 feet and slammed into a tree.

When learning of the death, President Reagan issued a statement saying, "Nancy and I are shocked and deeply saddened. Our hearts go out to Ed and Ursula who, with their family, are close and dear friends of ours."

Officer John Nawrot said the youth, who had been alone in a compact car, was pronounced dead on arrival at Fairfax Hospital shortly after the 11:50 p.m. EDT wreck along George Washington Parkway.

Teaching 'facts of life'

By WILLARD ABRAHAM, Ph.D.
Copley News Service

Q. I am the father of a 12-year-old daughter who has begun developing physically. I am afraid that she will start to menstruate one of these days, and without knowledge of that process, it could be a worrisome thing to happen to her.

A. My wife is not willing to discuss the situation with her because she is uncomfortable doing so. I'm not eager to handle it myself, but I feel capable of talking it through with our daughter. I believe I can do it accurately and with sensitivity so that she will be fully informed and not offended in any way.

Although my wife is a little bit reluctant about my going ahead with this plan (merely because I am a man), we agree to go along with your recommendation. What do you think about all of this?

A. If the facts are really the way you presented them (relating to your "accuracy," "sensitivity," and "no offensiveness,") there seems little danger involved in your fulfilling a parental role in this situation.

Frankly, I have never understood why some people feel it is essential that only fathers deal with growing-up issues related to their sons and mothers do the same with their daughters. If parents give serious thought to this matter, they generally will agree that whichever one has the most accurate information and the best rapport with the child involved, and feels the most comfortable handling the situation, ought to take over.

Obviously all parents won't agree with my approach to this subject.

Q. I haven't been able to handle a situation with my college-age son based on comments like these from him: "All the kids do it." ... "You have plenty of money." ... "I don't have time to get a job."

A. It all relates to the way in which he handles the money I give him each month. He squanders it on nonsensical purchases, seems to have no concept of price, has constantly overrun his checking account because he refuses to keep the check stubs accurately or to balance it, and also refuses to get a part-time job even though his academic load isn't heavy (and his grades leave a lot to be desired too).

Q. My wife isn't very helpful, because frankly she is just about as irresponsible about money as he is — and a lot older!

A. So please give me an idea or two of what to do.

A. His lack of responsibility probably began a long time ago, but that doesn't help you now. Your choices are limited, but rather obvious. You can restrict his allowance so that it covers only his essential expenses. You might consider working out a deal with him based on his holding a part-time job or summer job to help support himself.

The tough part may be in sticking with either of those decisions. It's not easy, especially when his habit of irresponsibility appears to be so strongly entrenched.

There's an old psychological term referred to as "Grandma's Law." It says, "You do this, and I'll do that. If you don't, I won't."

Any creative ideas from readers on how they may have handled similar problems will be shared with this reader and others who may be facing it.

Q. This may sound foolish to you, but in our family we've had an enjoyable time talking about what is the most important time of the day within the family structure. Of course, we get off on tangents — as with our jock college son — but we keep telling him that what he's thinking of isn't within the "family structure!" What's your opinion?

A. It all depends on which family is involved, of course, and whether both parents are working or other factors.

Most thoughts I have close in on that first few minutes after everyone gets home after work or school. That's when the accumulated frustrations, achievements and all the rest can either spill out or be repressed. That is also when parents, with each other as well as with their children, can develop the habit of communicating.

The first five or 10 minutes can be more important than an hour or two later in the evening when the edge has been blunted regarding the day's events.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Renewal for bath mats

DEAR HELOISE:

I have several bathroom rugs with rubberized undersides to keep them in place on the floor. But, after several washings, these rugs no longer stay in place and have become something of a hazard.

Is there anything I can do to make these perfectly good rugs usable again? — F.C. Simons

Try sewing a small piece of rubber, such as a square cut from an old hot water bottle or a rubber canning jar ring, to the underside at each corner of the rugs.

This will help prevent them from slipping out from under your feet. But caution should still be observed when walking on these rugs. — Heloise

CELERY SAVINGS

Dear Heloise: Don't let any of that precious celery go to waste.

I cut off the lower part of the stalk and outer ribs that aren't too nice and parboil those pieces immediately, then freeze them in small plastic bags or containers.

These are now ready for stews, soups, meat loaves, etc. The celery that is left is what I'd have, had I bought the more expensive celery hearts. — Edith Long

HINTS FROM HIM

Dear Heloise: Mix everything for biscuits exactly as the recipe directs, but instead of flouring a board and rolling the dough out with a rolling pin, then cutting as usual, just drop small pieces of it into a greased muffin tin.

Bake in a hot oven until lightly browned. You'll have a real breakfast or dinner treat that can be prepared in a very few minutes. — Bud Ridley

BUTTON REMOVAL

Dear Heloise: I've always found buttons very difficult to get off the cards when they are attached with metal loops.

I've discovered that my seam ripper is the perfect tool for the job. It fits right under those hard-to-get-at wires and lifts them right off without harming the button at all!

Use the back side of the ripper — not the cutting edge — to prevent dulling it. — Alicia Greenwald

MICROWAVE 'MAGIC'

Dear Heloise: Microwaves are wonderful for reheating things, right? I just found a nifty way to reheat a two-day-old pizza and have it taste like it's fresh out of the oven.

Stock market loses

By CHET CURRIER AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market closed mixed for the second straight session Thursday despite near declines in open-market interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down about 3 points in early trading and up 4 late in the afternoon, finished with a .19 loss at 832.00.

But gainers led a 65 edge on losers in the daily tally on the New York Stock Exchange.

In the credit markets, rates on short-term Treasury bills showed declines of 10 to 40 basis points, or hundredths of a percentage point. Prices of long-term government bonds, which move in the opposite direction from interest rates, chucked up gains ranging to more than $10 for every $1,000 in face value.

Some individual stocks responded to that development — among them forest products issues, which have attracted buyers in recent days on the reasoning that lower rates would eventually help the ailing housing industry.

Georgia-Pacific rose 1/4 to 17. Weyerhaeuser gained 3/4 to 25 1/4, and Louisiana-Pacific was up 1/4 to 17 1/4 even though it reported a $4.26 million loss for the second quarter.

But some of the blue-chip issues that have paced the market's advance over the past couple of weeks ran into selling. International Business Machines, for example, dropped 1/4 to 66 1/4; General Motors lost 1/4 to 45 1/4, and Procter & Gamble was down 1/4 to 86.

Many other stocks went their own disparate ways as they responded to corporate earnings reports.

In the pulp column, Schumacher gained 1/4 to 37 1/4. The company reported second-quarter earnings of $1.21 a share, up from $1.03 in the like period a year ago.

Sperry Corp. dropped 1/4 to 22 and Ingersoll Rand 1/4 to 42 1/4 on lower quarterly earnings.

In the continuing run of dismal economic statistics for last month, the Commerce Department reported that factory orders for durable goods dropped 1.6 percent.

Earlier data showed declines in retail sales, industrial production and the percentage of production capacity in use.

Some brokerage-house issues gained ground, apparently on a revival of the merger speculation that has cropped up periodically since several Wall Street firms were acquired last year.

Investor's Guide

Investment trust not money fund

By BILL DOYLE

Q. In a recent column, you wrote, "As this goes through the typewriter, the average yield on tax-free money market mutual funds is about 7.7 percent, while the average yield on taxable money funds is approximately 13.8 percent." I recently invested in a municipal income trust, which has a tax-free yield of 11.85 percent. Since my tax-free yield is much higher than you stated, I would like your comments. What do you say?

A. You have not invested in a money market mutual fund. You put your money in a unit investment trust, which is quite a different thing.

Your unit investment trust holds a portfolio of municipal bonds issued by states and political subdivisions of states. The trust will continue to hold those bonds, until they mature or are called for early redemption, which might be 20 or 30 years from now. The trust's holdings are long-term investments.

A money market mutual fund, on the other hand, makes short-term investments. A tax-free money fund buys short-term debt municipal obligations, also issued by states and their political subdivisions.

The interest from all municipal debt securities — whether long-term bonds or short-term investments — is not subject to federal income tax. So both tax-free unit trusts and tax-free money market funds pass it along to investors.

A rough rule of thumb is that short-term investments produce lower yields than long-term investments. So, money market funds have lower yields than unit investment trusts.

But because they make short-term investments money market funds can keep the value of their shares constant — usually at $1 a share. There's virtually no risk in money funds.

The value of your investment in a unit trust, however, can rise or fall depending on bond market conditions. If interest rates go up bond prices will come down and so will the value of your investment. If interest rates drop bond prices will go up, taking your investment value higher.

This shouldn't bother you assuming you hold your unit trust investment until all the bonds in the trust are redeemed. Then you'll get all your money back. But if you have to sell out during a period of higher interest rates and lower bond prices, you'll take a loss.

Q. My wife and I want to invest for high income return with liquidity and insured safety. Bank savings certificates lack liquidity. Money market mutual funds lack insurance.

Savings institutions in Maryland are promoting accounts with yields competitive with money funds, from which withdrawals can be made at any time and which are insured up to $100,000 by the Maryland Savings Share Insurance Corp. (MSSIC). Is this the answer to our investment search?

A. It might be. By some measurements, MSSIC provides stronger insurance than the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. (FDIC) and the Federal Savings & Loan Insurance Corp. (FSLIC).

Even though MSSIC has yet to be tested by the failure of any of its members, it's considered sound. Of course, no one has ever lost time number one in any account covered by FDIC or FSLIC. And there's been only one case in which money market fund investors lost anything and that was seven cents on the dollar.

Q. I am 82 and have assets of about $200,000, some of which I have placed in a trust with my bank. The bank has put all that money in a money market mutual fund investing only in U.S. Treasury securities. I consider this putting it all "in one basket." Would it not be better to have it split up some?

A. An investment in what is called a "government only" money market fund has to be counted as very safe. Don't worry on that score.

It could be the bank is just "parking" your money in it safe haven until it decides what other investments to make for you. Meanwhile your money is earning a good yield, without risk. I'd call that a good move.

Environmentalists sue Watt

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Seven environmental groups and the states of Alaska and California have gone to federal court in an effort to halt Interior Secretary James Watt's five-year coastal oil and gas leasing program.

The suit, filed Thursday in the U.S. Court of Appeals, charges that Watt's program fails to properly balance the potential for finding oil and gas with the possible environmental dangers.

"Never before has such a massive turnover of federal lands to private interests been proposed. No area of the outer continental shelf is excluded from the leasing schedule for environmental reasons," said Sarah Chasis, an attorney for the Natural Resources Defense Council, one of the groups bringing suit.

The environmental groups said they were worried about the potential for catastrophic oil spills. They said this danger was even greater in the waters off Alaska, where ice and heavy seas would make cleanup harder.

The groups claimed that Watt's leasing program would offer for lease areas containing "some of the world's greatest fisheries, seabird colonies and marine mammal habitat."

Watt, in adopting the leasing program Wednesday, said it would be carried out under "rigorous environmental controls." The program calls for making 1 billion acres, an area equal to half the land mass of the United States, available for leasing in 41 sales beginning next month.

Not that much land would actually be leased, but Watt said he hopes to lease up to 12 million acres annually. The most offshore acreage ever leased before was 2.2 million acres last year.

In addition to the law suit, resolutions seeking to overturn the leasing program were introduced in the Senate and House Wednesday. The congressional challenge, however, faces the prospect of a presidential veto if it clears Congress.

Environmental groups joining the NRDC in the suit were the Sierra Club, Friends of the Earth, National Audubon Society, National Wildlife Federation, Conservation Law Foundation of New England and Trustees for Alaska.

In addition to the states of Alaska and California, others filing suit were the North Slope Borough, representing Alaskans living on the North Slope, and another group representing Alaskans living around Norton Sound.

The appeals court last October upheld a similar suit filed against a five-year leasing plan approved by the Carter administration and directed Watt to rewrite that effort.

Ms. Chasis said Watt's program "poses new and even more troubling violations" of the offshore leasing law.

Oil companies report lower profits

By ROBERT BURNS
AP Business Writer

Many of the nation's major oil companies are reporting sharply lower second-quarter profits, and the most common reason cited is weak consumer demand for oil products and depressed economic activity worldwide.

Exxon Corp., the world's biggest oil company and the largest industrial concern in the United States, said Thursday its profit in the quarter plunged 51.5 percent to $885 million from $1.83 billion a year earlier.

Texaco Inc., the third-ranking U.S. oil company, reported a 45.1 percent decline for the April-June period, to $305 million from $556 million.

Smaller oil concerns showed mixed results, with Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) reporting a 30.9 percent decline and Ashland Oil Inc. posting a five-fold gain.

Standard Oil Co. (Ohio) said its earnings slipped 1.2 percent, while Amerada Hess Corp. earned $61.1 million compared with a loss a year ago.

The companies heavily dependent on imported oil were hit hardest by the relatively high prices charged by producing countries while consumer demand was weak.

Exxon's earnings were its lowest for any quarter since the second quarter of 1979, when it reported net income of $830 million. For Texaco it was the lowest since the first quarter of 1979, when it earned $309.9 million. Oil company profits soared in the second half of 1979 as a result of an oil-price spike sparked by the Iranian revolution.

Although the latest quarter's profits for both Exxon and Texaco were slightly higher than in early 1979, those gains were far outstripped by U.S. inflation. Prices, as measured by the government's Consumer Price Index, have increased about 33 percent since mid-1979.

Exxon said its net income for the first six months of 1982 totaled $2.13 billion, or $2.45 a share. That was a drop of 37.9 percent from $3.43 billion, or $3.96 a share, earned in the first half of 1981. Revenue dropped 9.4 percent, to $52.37 billion from $57.79 billion.

Texaco's income for the first six months fell 44.6 percent to $672 million, or $2.58 a share, from $1.21 billion, or $4.54 a share a year ago. Its revenue was off 19.1 percent to $24.5 billion from $30.3 billion.

Other oil companies not as dependent as Exxon and Texaco on crude production in the Middle East reported generally less drastic drops.

Standard of Indiana, the nation's fifth-largest oil concern and the biggest U.S. marketer of gasoline, said its second-quarter profit fell 30.9 percent to $382 million.

Standard of Ohio, which ranks as the No. 14 oil concern, said its earnings in the second quarter fell 1.2 percent to $473.2 million.

Amerada Hess said it earned $61.1 million in the second quarter compared with a net loss of $53.7 million a year ago.

Ashland Oil, the nation's biggest independent refiner, said its second-quarter earnings jumped more than five-fold, to $69.1 million.

Economists arguing recession's end

By Lorraine Cichowski
AP Business Writer

Economists disagreed over when the recession might end, but most business executives were in accord that the outlook for profits, inventories and employee rosters remains bleak for the next few months.

They made their comments on the day the resignation of Murray Weidenbaum, chairman of President Reagan's Council of Economic Advisers, was announced.

Weidenbaum, who will return to teaching at Washington University in St. Louis, said he believed the president's economic recovery program was working, but noted in his letter to Reagan on Thursday that "From the outset, we have said yours is a long-term program, unlike the quick fixes of the past."

Meanwhile, the Bureau of Labor Statistics was to announce today the monthly Consumer Price Index, which is a measurement of changes in the retail prices of a constant marketbasket of goods and services.

Wall Street economist Henry Kaufman, chief economist of Salomon Brothers Inc., slightly amended his earlier forecasts Thursday to predict short-term interest rates would fall soon because of the Federal Reserve Board's decision to relax control over money growth.

But he repeated his previous prediction that long-term rates would rebound to their record highs by early 1983. He had said previously that short-term rates would move irregularly higher but fall short of their record highs.

"Most of the additional decline in short-term interest rates will likely occur relatively soon," Kaufman said.

One administration official, Manuel Johnson, acting assistant Treasury secretary for economic policy, said, "I still think we'll get a healthy recovery. I think it's already under way."

His comments came despite a Commerce Department report that new factory orders for durable goods fell a seasonally adjusted 1.6 percent in June from the preceding month to $74.9 billion. New orders for non-defense capital goods, which are considered a barometer of future plant and equipment spending, fell 5.5 percent.

But Otto Eckstein, chairman of Data Resources Inc., a leading economic forecasting firm, said, "The best we can hope for now is a mild recovery stretching into 1983. But there are a lot of risks there will not be a recovery."

A survey by Dun & Bradstreet, the research unit of Dun & Bradstreet

Corp., said corporate executives are growing less optimistic about the outlook for profits, inventories and payrolls for the third quarter. However, more executives are growing optimistic about a sales increase.

At the same time, Standard & Poor's Corp. said profit margins for U.S. corporations fell in the first quarter to the lowest level since 1975. Its index of 400 industrial corporations averaged 4.45 percent in the first three months of the year, the lowest since a 4.43 percent average return for the S&P 400s in the final quarter of 1975.

In other economic news: The major automakers said the number of U.S. autoworkers on indefinite layoff fell 1,656 to 213,502, largely because of callbacks at American Motors Corp. Meanwhile, an industry trade journal predicted that this year's auto production in the United States will be nearly 15 percent behind last year's already depressed level of 6.25 million.

Reagan signed legislation guaranteeing small businesses a share of the money the federal government spends on research and development projects. The legislation requires nine agencies to set aside for small businesses a fraction of the money they spend for outside research.

HINES-WOOD FURNITURE UPHOLSTERING

Give your fine old furniture a new lease on life with upholstery by Hines-Wood Upholstering Co., 1105 N. Midkiff, and for the month of July, save money with free labor on most furniture with purchase of fabric in stock.

Free labor during July

For the month of July, customers of Hines-Wood Upholstering Co. can save with free labor on most upholstery jobs. Denton Hines has many thousands of fabric samples from which to choose, and says he'll offer free labor on most furniture with the purchase of any fabric in stock. Exceptions are recliners, dining room chairs and antiques.

Hines says, however, if fabric has to be special ordered, a labor fee will be charged.

Hines brings 30 years of upholstery experience to his customers, and offers this sound advice to anyone considering replacing a worn piece of furniture with a new piece.

"It's a lot less expensive to re-cover good pieces of furniture than it is to replace them with similar new pieces," he says. "In fact, it costs about half as much. Also important is the fact that you can keep a chair or sofa you like and which fits into your decor, instead of shopping around trying to find something that may fit."

Once you have selected your fabric, give Hines a brief description of the item you wish to have redone, and you can have an estimate immediately.

If you choose a fabric in stock, Hines-Wood will arrange to pick up your furniture and the job will be completed within seven to ten days and returned to your home.

If the fabric has to be special ordered, the furniture will not be picked up until the work is to begin. Pickup and delivery is free anywhere within the Midland city limits.

Hines-Wood is located at 1105 N. Midkiff and is open Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. You may call 684-8891 for more information.

Family fun sweepstakes

Water Wonderland — bigger and better than ever — offers the complete recreational water park experience right here in the middle of the West Texas desert.

It's just minutes from either Odessa or Midland, and the $7.50 admission means you pay one price and ride everything...as often as you like...all day long!

And now — for the finest and most important people on earth — customers and friends — Water Wonderland is holding a Family Fun Sweepstakes.

Register at the park entrance for one of 13 grand prizes to be given away the last day of the season in September.

You may win a 1982 Cougar RX-7 or $7,500 in cash (your choice).

Second prize is a 1982 Moped, and third prize is $250 cash.

The first and second prizes of the car and moped are courtesy of Joe White Lincoln Mercury.

Ten fourth prize winners will be awarded a Season Pass to Water Wonderland good for every day of the 1983 season.

All you have to do is enter the front door at Water Wonderland and register. You don't need to go in — you don't have to purchase a ticket — just register for your prize.

The drawing will be held on the last day of the season and prizes will be awarded immediately. You need not be present to win and winners of the car or the Moped must be licensed operators.

Live it up on Monday evenings at Water Wonderland. From 4-9 p.m., you can have a ball at the bargain price of only $5 per person and, if you have one of the discount coupons from participating merchants, you can take part in Monday Happy Hours for only $4.

Since closing day last fall the park management team has added extensive landscaping, new rides, a new swimming and activity pool, concession stands, more shade areas, a souvenir shop — something for everyone.

The entire 18 acres of excitement, beauty and relaxation has been designed with attractions that will appeal to each member of the family and with an eye toward safety for the youngsters.

The thrilling new Dual Rampage roller coaster water ride features a one-person toboggan which travels down a roller coaster and skims across the water to a stop.

Now completed is a tremendous swimming and activity pool area featuring five water slides, diving area, cable ride, white sand beach area and country club sun deck.

A full day of group pleasure includes all the rides and activities plus their famous home-style Bar-B-Q catered to your specifications. They do the work and you have the fun.

Located 2½ miles west of Air Terminal on Highway 80, the park features Kiddieland and sandy Rockinghorse Playground, a supervised wading pool, Antique Car Ride, Remote Control Boats, Tubs of Fun and other rides especially great for little folks.

No alcoholic beverages or drugs are allowed in the park and supervisory personnel are plentiful to assure your family pleasure without problems.

Come out, bring the family and have a cool, wet, relaxing day.

For further information or to plan special events, call 563-3141 or write Water Wonderland, Route 1, Box 220-E, Odessa, Texas 79763.

★ NOT GOOD WITH ANY OTHER OFFER OR PROMOTION

YOUR BETTER HEALTH IS OUR CHIEF INTEREST
We are in close contact with physicians and maintain in our prescription laboratory ample stocks of every possible medicine we think they may prescribe. The leading pharmaceutical firms have our permission to send us any new discovery as soon as it is released for safe use.
So complete is our stock of medicines, that the odds are we can fill any prescription, even those prescribed by physicians located in distant cities. If we ever do not have an ingredient, if it is available we will get it quickly, or order it direct from the manufacturer.
YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a medicine. Pick up your prescription if shopping nearby, or we will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people entrust us with their prescriptions. May we compound and dispense yours?
