Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko Thursday leaves the U.S. Mission to the United Nations.

Discussions to continue at White House

By R. GREGORY NOKES
AP Diplomatic Writer

UNITED NATIONS — Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, having exchanged views for improving U.S.-Soviet relations, went separate ways today — Shultz to brief President Reagan and Gromyko to address the United Nations.

Shultz and Gromyko met for three hours here Wednesday, and both said their discussions on U.S.-Soviet relations would continue when Gromyko meets Reagan at the White House Friday.

Gromyko was in a good mood after the meeting, and a senior U.S. official said the "discussions were a good start" toward improving relations between the superpowers after a long period of deep chill.

"We hope the Soviet Union is prepared to move the relationship forward," said the official, who briefed reporters on the condition he not be identified. "We hope they are as prepared as we are," he added.

Shultz, who also seemed satisfied after the meeting, gave Reagan a 15-minute telephone report on his talks with Gromyko. He planned to go to Washington today to provide Reagan with an in-depth briefing.

Gromyko also was busy today. He was delivering an address to the United Nations General Assembly here and then meeting with Walter F. Mondale, the Democratic presidential hopeful.

U.S. analysts were closely scrutinizing Gromyko's speech for clues on Moscow's response to Reagan's proposals, unveiled in a U.N. speech Monday, for "a better working relationship" between the superpowers.

Publicly, Moscow has been skeptical and even insulting, accusing Reagan of using his speech as "camouflage" to hide his real aggressive intentions.

But U.S. officials said the Soviets are privately signaling they may be interested.

Reagan will find out for sure on Friday, officials believe. But these officials, who insist on anonymity, also caution against expecting any significant breakthroughs in U.S.-Soviet relations to emerge from the meetings here and in Washington.

Gromyko's meeting with Mondale was being held at the Soviet U.N. Mission. Gromyko apparently agreed to the meeting to show he wasn't taking sides in the U.S. presidential race.

For his part, Mondale, told reporters he would press Gromyko to agree to arms control talks with the United States. Mondale said he wasn't negotiating for the United States — that is the president's job, and he will support him, he said Wednesday.

But he expressed skepticism that Reagan's commitment may be a political ploy to win over voters worried about Reagan's past anti-Soviet rhetoric.

Mondale said, "I hope the conversion is permanent."

Mondale said Reagan had the bleakest record on arms control in modern history.

The official who briefed reporters after Wednesday's Shultz-Gromyko meeting indicated decisions for improving relations weren't made, but he said the atmosphere was "calm and thoughtful" and that both sides had "a good give and take."

Gromyko was smiling when he left the meeting site at the U.S. Mission to the United Nations, joking that while he couldn't answer any questions, but that reporters could ask him "a thousand questions" after his meeting with Reagan.

He said he and Shultz discussed a wide range of topics but that "the discussions were not concluded, not full" and would be continued in Washington.

The senior U.S. official indicated that Shultz had raised Reagan's proposals for improved relations with Moscow, including regular Cabinet-level meetings.

He declined to characterize Gromyko's response, but said that in the talks there were "obviously differences" on some issues.

"There always are differences in any discussion of U.S.-Soviet issues," he said. "What is important is that we discuss them and how we discuss them."

He said a considerable amount of time was devoted to arms control issues. The administration is hoping that the talks here and in Washington will eventually lead to a resumption of arms control talks.

In addition to arms control, the official said the two leaders also discussed security matters, regional problems, bilateral relations, human rights and terrorism.

Presidential campaigns focus on foreign policy

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

Walter F. Mondale is meeting with the Soviet foreign minister as President Reagan says a "near destruction" of U.S. intelligence in the Mideast during the Carter administration is being felt in Lebanon, and Vice President George Bush moves to end questions about his income taxes.

The Democratic presidential candidate was in New York today for his meeting with Andrei A. Gromyko, while Reagan was back in the White House after a one-day campaign swing to the Midwest. Reagan was preparing for his own session with the top Soviet diplomat on Friday and meeting with Secretary of State Shultz.

Bush, dogged by renewed questioning over his taxes, sought to avoid having the issue explode into the kind of controversy that Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro faced a month ago until she released family tax returns.

"We would like to get on with the campaign and not answer questions about taxes every day," his press secretary Peter Teeley said Wednesday.

Campaigning in Indianapolis, Bush issued a statement saying he will release "essential information" about his taxes for 1981, 1982 and 1983. Until now, Bush had maintained that the information couldn't be released because his personal holdings had been placed in a blind trust and that his tax returns weren't known even to himself.

Midland ball club to become California Angels affiliate

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

Perhaps they'll call it "This Haloed Grounds." What else?

The baseball stadium in Hogan Park will no longer be Cubs Stadium.

Speculation as to Midland's major league affiliation for the 1985 Texas League season ended with the announcement today that the California Angels will replace the Chicago Cubs in Midland.

Angels' Vice-President and Chief Administrative Officer Mike Port and Angels' Farm Director Bill Bavasi were on hand when Midland co-owner Bernard Lankford announced the signing of a two-year working agreement with the American League club.

Lankford said a change in major league affiliation was first considered seriously when the Cubs collapsed in the second half race this year, "Chicago was aware we might make a change, but negotiations did not begin until after the season."

CALIFORNIA was one of several organizations that expressed an interest in coming to Midland, "but we did not go shopping," Lankford, who also will be the Midland general manager next season, emphasized.

"We were looking for someone with more dedication to their farm system and an organization that would field, if not necessarily a winning team, a competitive team."

By the same token, Port said the Angels were looking for a farm club in which the owners were more concerned with the operation of the franchise. In Waterbury, Conn., the Eastern League home of the Angels last season, that was not the case.

In addition, Port said, "We've been anxious to return to the Texas League ever since we left El Paso for the Eastern League in 1980."

California spent two years in Holyoke, Mass., one in Nashua, N.H., and last year in Waterbury during its four-year EL stay.

"Moose Stubing kept us close to what was going on in the Texas League," said Bavasi. Stubing is manager of the California Angels AAA club at Edmonton in the Pacific Coast League and managed for several seasons at El Paso.

Board's decision on fate of Lancaster House due Friday

By GEORGIA TEMPLE
Entertainment Writer

The Museum of the Southwest board of trustees announced Wednesday that a decision on the fate of the Lancaster House would be made public at a 3:30 p.m. press conference Friday at the museum.

"There are a few other things that the board wants to look into that we're going to have to contact some outside sources on," said board president Terry Wilkinson.

Mrs. Wilkinson made the announcement about 45 minutes after Save the Lancaster House Committee representatives Jody Gilles and Harris Kerr made their presentation to the full board.

She refused to comment on what type of information the board needs to acquire, saying, that those who are interested in finding out where the gaps are may do so Friday.

One "gap" discussed during the presentation was the estimated cost of making the Lancaster House a usable facility. The figures the museum board has released range from $325,000 to restore the main house to its original condition to $750,000 to make it workable as a museum facility.

The Lancaster Committee, which has raised about $62,000, has two figures which range from $140,000 to $230,000.

"The more expensive figure includes completely renovating the kitchen, making it a catering kitchen, and upgrading the electrical and plumbing so this could be used as a catering facility, as a meeting facility, an outdoor wedding facility," Kerr said. "The lower figure, on the other hand, presupposes doing a little electrical work, a little plumbing work and whatever major work is needed to get the facility up to the point where it can be used, say, for the Midland County Historical Museum."

Three-inch rain too late to save Abilene area cotton crop

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — The nearly three inches of rain that finally soaked this drought-parched community will assist the growth of wheat and other small grains, but came too late to save the cotton crop, officials said.

The rains Tuesday and Wednesday were the heaviest in almost three years. But thousands of acres of cotton have already been plowed under since the drought began more than a year ago, and most farmers and ranchers have collected the insurance benefits, officials said.

The National Weather Service reported that 2.6 inches of rain fell in just over 24 hours starting at 11 a.m. Tuesday when a strong cold front pushed through the area.

Lake Fort Phantom, the city's primary water source, gained 0.10 inches, its first rise since the drought began.

"This is super," said Buzz Jones, a nursery manager. "This is exactly what we needed. We were just getting to the point where serious damage would have been done to grasses."

On July 24, Abilene city officials restricted lawn watering to once every five days. That slowed the decrease of the Phantom reservoir, but not enough to avoid even stricter measures. On Sept. 13, after the reservoir dropped to 20 feet below the spillway, all lawn watering was banned and other water conservation measures were enacted.

"The rainfall has been good to water the grass and help saturate the ground," said Dwaine Hargesheimer of the Abilene water administration office. "With slow rain there is not much run-off. Run-off is needed to raise the lake level. An additional two to three inches might catch three feet in the lake."

Control of Golden Temple returned to Sikh high priests

AMRITSAR, India (AP) — Indian President Zail Singh today returned control of the Golden Temple, the holiest Sikh shrine, to the sect's high priests after nearly four months of army occupation, the United News of India reported.

The priests, meanwhile, called off plans to mount a major protest march to "liberate" the temple, UNI reported.

A bloody June battle to drive armed Sikh extremists out of the complex and continued army occupation of the temple since then had kept a crisis festering in Punjab, the only Indian state where Sikhs are a majority.

Singh, who is a Sikh, made his unscheduled trip a day after the five Sikh high priests reversed their finding that he was guilty of anti-Sikh activity for cooperating with Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's program to end the violence of extremist Sikhs who were seeking a separate, autonomous state.

WORLD

The exoneration of the president was apparently prompted by Mrs. Gandhi's announcement in a nationwide broadcast Tuesday night that the damage done to Amritsar's historic Golden Temple by the army assault had been repaired and a military presence was no longer needed.

Officials said the decision to pull the few remaining soldiers out of the 17th Century shrine was aimed at calming India's 13 million Sikhs, who were angered by the temple raid.

As part of the rapprochement with Sikh groups, authorities indicated they planned to release jailed militant Sikh leaders, including Akali Dal party President Harchand Singh Longowal and the president of the Sikh temple management committee, Gurcharan Singh Tohra. The detainees were expected to be freed today or Friday.

Buta Singh, a Sikh member of Mrs. Gandhi's Cabinet, was also found guilty of anti-Sikh activity by the high priests on Sept. 2. He faced the threat of excommunication, but the priests did not indicate whether they would exonerate him as they did Zail Singh.

China's pledge to Hong Kong may have implications to Taiwan

PEKING (AP) — China's pledge to protect Hong Kong's free-enterprise system after the 1997 takeover from Britain commits the Communists to a policy with far-reaching implications for Taiwan, another capitalist enclave Peking wants to re-incorporate.

Diplomats say the Chinese-British pact to return Hong Kong to China when Britain's lease expires in 13 years is part of Peking's strategy to dispel Taiwanese doubts about its "one country, two systems" idea and gives China a propaganda advantage.

"This is a concrete example of the soft-line approach they have been pedaling since 1978," said a Western diplomat. "It's a milestone along the way."

The sources, from Western and Asian countries, spoke on the condition that they not be identified.

The pact, initialed Wednesday in Peking, guarantees that post-colonial Hong Kong's economic and social systems will remain unchanged for at least 50 years and specifies that Hong Kong's 5.5 million people will enjoy a large degree of autonomy.

"Chinese newspaper commentaries are going to make the point that China is taking a very enlightened approach. This is meant for Taiwan as well as Hong Kong," the Western diplomat said.

An Asian colleague said China wants the pact to "act as a magnet to Taiwan, where people still haror suspicions about China's intentions."

The Communists, who once proclaimed "we will liberate Taiwan," dropped that line six years ago and said they wanted peaceful reunification with the island, ruled by the rival Nationalists since they fled mainland China in 1949 during the Communist takeover.

Peking now says it would let Taiwan's 19 million people keep their present government, economic structure and defense force if they "rejoin the motherland." The Nationalists have rejected all Communist overtures as lies.

In Taipei, the government expressed "grave condemnation" of the Hong Kong pact, reflecting the view that the Nationalists are China's rightful rulers.

Taiwan reacted to the pact by offering homeowner loans and easy travel conditions to Hong Kong's Chinese residents who want to settle on Taiwan.

Taiwan's prime minister, Yu Kuo-hwa, said children of Hong Kong residents would receive priority to study at Taiwan's schools.

"China is hoping that over a period of time, the Taiwanese people will see what's happening in Hong Kong and realize that the same could be applied to them."
— Diplomat in Peking

Businessmen in Taiwan have predicted a gloomy future for Hong Kong under Peking. But they also say Taiwan could suffer economically and lose Hong Kong as a trading partner because the Nationalist government forbids its citizens to trade with China. Hong Kong is Taiwan's fourth-largest trading partner. Taiwanese businessmen use dummy corporations in Hong Kong to trade with China.

Diplomats in Peking speculated that the Nationalist denunciation of the pact signals fear that the Communists will honor the agreement and vindicate the "one country, two systems" idea.

"The Nationalists are nervous that maybe this kind of approach will also appeal to people on Taiwan," one diplomat said.

"China is hoping that over a period of time, the Taiwanese people will see what's happening in Hong Kong and realize that the same could be applied to them," said another.

The Nationalists have frequently ridiculed the "one country, two systems" idea as a ploy to appease Hong Kong people.

"Most observers believe Hong Kong will die a slow economic death between now and the end of the century," Taipei radio said in a recent commentary. "The Communists have promised 50 years of unchanged economy. That is impossible."

China's aging leaders regard recovery of Taiwan as a sacred goal, reflected in propaganda ranging from interviews with Taiwanese visitors to recipes for Taiwan food. Weather forecasts on television include temperatures in Taipei.

"If it cannot be reunified in 100 years, then it will be reunited in 1,000 years," Deng Xiaoping, 80-year-old chairman of the Communist Party Central Advisory Commission, said in June.

Protesters plague NATO maneuvers

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — Police fired tear gas to disperse 200 demonstrators who cut through the fence of a munitions depot and made close to 100 arrests nationwide as violent protests continued to plague NATO's fall maneuvers.

Government and military officials say the protests have included an increasingly violent series of attacks on soldiers, as well as costly vandalism and acts of sabotage.

On Wednesday, hundreds of demonstrators tried to break into munitions depots, damage military equipment and blockade bases to protest the Autumn Forge exercises, which involve about 250,000 troops from seven NATO countries.

At least 96 arrests were made during the day in scattered incidents in the strategic Fulda Gap region near the East German border. No serious injuries were reported.

Leaders of the West German peace movement have disassociated themselves from the violence against soldiers, and Carl-Dieter Spranger, an Interior Ministry official, said members of West Germany's "terrorist fringe" were to blame for most of the trouble.

Spranger provided sketchy details of about half a dozen "life-threatening actions against exercising troops." He said unknown assailants had thrown incendiary devices at military vehicles, sabotaged railroad tracks, planted spikes in roads used by convoys and slashed tires.

In the worst incident Wednesday, police fired tear gas to disperse about 200 protesters who had cut through a fence at a munitions depot in Grebenhain, 30 miles northeast of Frankfurt. Fulda police said 55 protesters were arrested during the hour-long clash at the site, where the demonstrators claim chemical weapons are stored.

Walter Nebgen, spokesman for the Frankfurt-based U.S. Army 5th Corps, told The Associated Press by telephone that demonstrators have damaged property and equipment "almost daily" at bases in Wildflecken, Hanau and Fulda.

The 5th Corps is not participating in the Autumn Forge maneuvers, but 42 demonstrations have been staged at its base since last weekend and 21 "involved criminal destruction of property," according to Lt. Col. Arnold Laidig, chief corps spokesman.

"These wrongful acts include numerous incidents of painting signs and military equipment, cutting holes in fences, damaging other property and equipment, and wrongful entry into restricted areas," he said in a statement.

"These incidents, directed mainly against the U.S. military, have caused significant damage to equipment and property," Laidig said. "There have been no disruptions to normal activities."

Demonstrators cut through fences Wednesday at a U.S. Army barracks, two American and one NATO munitions depots, according to a Fulda police spokesman who, in keeping with West German custom, asked not to be identified.

Protests rage over Bangladesh martial law

DHAKA, Bangladesh (AP) — Three people were reported killed, including an opposition leader, and scores injured in clashes between pro- and anti-government demonstrators today during a nationwide general strike against martial law.

No deaths were reported in Dhaka, the capital, but police and paramilitary troops patrolled the city's streets amid scattered street fighting.

Reliable sources said dozens of opposition activists were arrested Wednesday night, and the Bangladesh Observer newspaper reported that 1,000 political workers and "street urchins" were rounded up in Dhaka this week.

Security forces sealed off government offices in Dhaka before scheduled opposition rallies later today. Political leaders said they had not decided whether to go ahead with the demonstrations and risk a confrontation.

Opposition leaders said the dawn-to-dusk strike had shut down the entire country of 96 million people. The strike was called by two alliances comprising 22 parties to demand lifting of martial law and formation of a neutral caretaker government to oversee national elections scheduled for Dec. 8.

President Lt. Gen. Hussain Mohammed Ershad, who took power in a bloodless coup in March 1982, has said he will not lift martial law until after the elections.

Moiz Uddin Ahmed, a leader of the Awami League opposition party and a former member of Parliament, was stabbed to death by government supporters during a procession in Kaligong, about 20 miles northeast of Dhaka, opposition leaders said.

A worker of the government-backed Janadal party was fatally stabbed in a clash with opposition protesters in the town of Cin Chadina, 43 miles southeast of Dhaka, according to Dhaka police headquarters.

A schoolboy was killed in fighting between rival political groups in Natrokona, 93 miles northeast of Dhaka, according to the reports.

Police fired in the air to disperse demonstrators trying to burn Jandal offices in Faridpur, 60 miles west of Dhaka. Twenty-five people, including a senior police official, were reported injured in the clashes.

Protesters stoned government offices in Hatiya, 185 miles south of the capital and damaged government vehicles, the reports said.

Twenty people were reported injured in clashes in the tea-producing area of Srinangal, 155 miles to the northeast.

Police used bamboo staves to disperse groups of milling, brick-throwing youths at several key intersections.

At one volatile crossing, several truckloads of police and paramilitary border guards were used to clear a street blocked by burning tires and garbage cans.

A gang of about 30 supporters of the martial law regime roamed the city this morning with three motorcycles, a van and a truck. Armed with iron rods, field hockey sticks and rocks, they chased and attacked supporters and activists of opposition parties.

Police did not intervene, but officers chased away rock-hurling anti-government protesters in at least three areas.

Poland's bishops OK aid program

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — A church-sponsored program to channel Western aid to Poland's private farmers has been endorsed by this Communist nation's Roman Catholic bishops, and government approval could come Saturday, church sources report.

A formal announcement from the 84 bishops was expected in a communique to be issued after their meeting in Warsaw ends today. Church-state negotiators gave tentative approval to the fund's structure last week, pending final approval from the episcopate and government officials.

Polish leader Wojciech Jaruzelski and Roman Catholic Cardinal Jozef Glemp will meet Saturday for the first time since January. At that time Jaruzelski could give the final go-ahead to the program, which would be unique in the Communist world, church sources reported Wednesday on condition they not be identified.

The money would be used to set up dairy processing plants and cooperatives for repairing farm machinery, for the import of pesticides and farm equipment, and the development of roads and rural schools.

Unlike other Eastern European countries, agriculture in Poland is predominantly private. The 3.3 million private farmers till more than 75 percent of the land, but lack modern machinery and other equipment needed to increase efficiency.

The church hopes the fund will provide up to $1.8 billion over five years.

Andrzej Stemachowski, head of the private foundation that will supervise the agricultural fund, said the Polish church hopes to raise $28 million from Western governments and Roman Catholic episcopates to launch pilot programs during the first year of operation.

President Reagan last month asked Congress to approve a $10 million contribution. Stemachowski said the U.S. Roman Catholic episcopate has pledged $3 million and the Canadian episcopate $1 million.

Stemachowski said the European Common Market indicated it would contribute $10 million once statutes for the program are approved. Roman Catholic episcopates in Europe said they would contribute $4 million, he said.

Stemachowski said the remaining issue to be approved by the government involves the tax-exempt status of the foundation. "We wish to be completely tax-free," he said.

Church and state officials who have been negotiating the plan since the church proposed it two years ago have scheduled an Oct. 6 meeting. The fund could be registered within weeks after approval is given, officials said.

French ships return home from Gulf of Suez

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — French navy mine-hunters have completed their search mission in the Gulf of Suez and are set to leave for home, a French Embassy source said today.

British and Italian units are continuing operations in the gulf and will remain until next month, according to sources from the two countries' embassy.

"Our mission is finished, and our ships plan to leave for home on Friday barring any unexpected developments," said the French source, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

During their search, which began on Aug. 28, the French found and detonated 12 Soviet-made mines dating from the 1973 Arab-Israeli war.

The mines were left over from a field laid by the Egyptians, the source said, and were not linked to a string of recent explosions in the gulf and other sectors of the Red Sea that damaged at least 18 ships since July 9 that prompted the current multinational search.

The French contingent consists of two mine-hunting vessels and two support vessels. They are docked at the Red Sea port of Hurgada, 220 miles south of Suez City, which lies at the northern tip of the gulf.

A British diplomatic source told The Associated Press that the instruments removed from a mine which the British navy found more than two weeks ago are in Britain being examined.

The source said an Egyptian naval officer accompanied the instruments, shipped earlier this week, to assist in the examination.

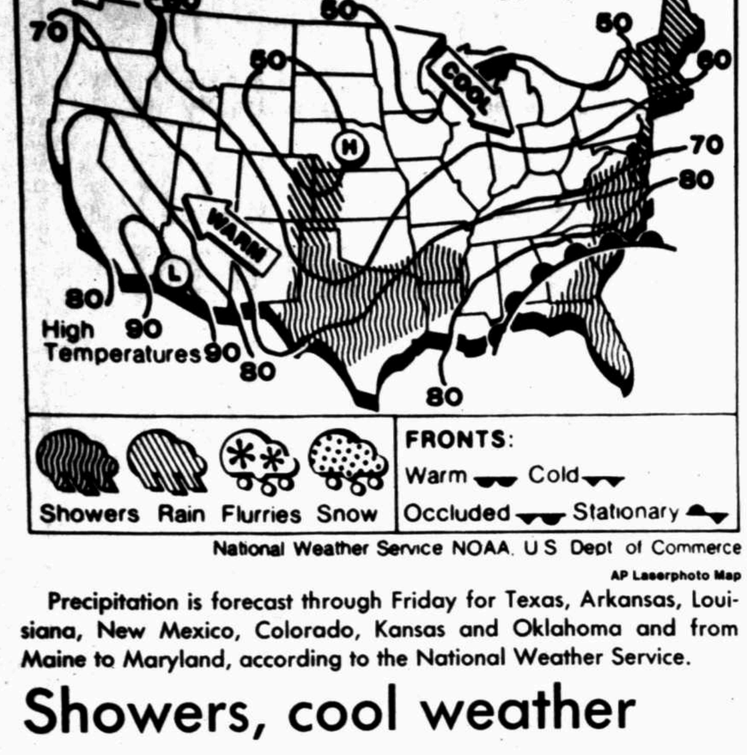
WEATHER SUMMARY



National Weather Service NOAA. U.S. Dept. of Commerce

AP Laserphoto Map

Precipitation is forecast through Friday for Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, New Mexico, Colorado, Kansas and Oklahoma and from Maine to Maryland, according to the National Weather Service.

Showers, cool weather predicted for Midland

Thunderstorms are predicted to add to the 1.64 inches of rain received this month to date, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Conditions are expected to be cloudy with a 30 percent chance of thunderstorms tonight and Friday. Tonight should not be as cool with lows near 50. The mercury should rise to the low 60s Friday. Winds tonight will be from the east to northeast at 10 to 15 mph increasing Friday to 10 to 20 mph.

The hot 105-degree record in 1977 was 54 degrees above Wednesday's high of 51. The overnight low of 47 was five degrees warmer than the record set in 1942.

For the year to date, Midland has received 11.07 inches of rain with 0.47 of an inch falling on Wednesday.

STATE

Light rain and scattered showers blanketed most of the Texas Panhandle today while a low pressure system over eastern New Mexico and Colorado moved south into western portions of the Lone Star state.

Cloudy skies were the rule across the state but clear conditions were prevalent in the coastal bend and portions of southern Texas.

The cold front that passed through Texas Wednesday left a wave of cool air hanging over most of the state. The trough became almost stationary over the southern top of the state from near Corpus Christi to south of Del Rio.

Winds over the eastern half of Texas were northerly at 5 to 10 miles an hour. In West Texas, winds were southerly at 5 to 10 miles per hour.

Temperatures at 4 a.m. hovered in the 70s south of the cold front, but over the remainder of the state, readings were cooler, mostly in the 40s and 50s. The low extreme was 41 degrees at Amarillo and the high was 76 at Brownsville.

The forecast called for mostly cloudy skies and cooler readings statewide with scattered showers and thunderstorms over northwest sections of Texas.

Gale warnings were posted from Cape Canaveral to Key West today as tropical storm Isidore threatened the Florida coast between Miami and West Palm Beach with rains up to 10 inches, sustained 50 mph winds and above-normal waves.

Also, rain was scattered over the upper and middle Mississippi Valley and the Plains, while light snow lingered over parts of Wyoming and Montana, where 4 inches had settled by early today at Stanford, Mont., and 3 inches at Great Falls and Butte, Mont.

Unseasonably cold air prevailed from the Rockies to the Northeast with the mercury expected to dip below freezing, perhaps ending one of the worse hay fever seasons in years.

A flash flood watch was in effect today for south and southwest regions of West Texas.

Nearly 3 inches of rain has fallen on west central Texas, delighting area farmers and ranchers saddled with a 13-month drought.

The rains Tuesday and Wednesday were the most since the Columbus Day floods of 1981 and produced the first measureable runoff in almost a year into Lake Fort Phantom, the primary water source for Abilene.

Today's forecast called for scattered showers from the southwestern states, through the southern Plains, the middle Mississippi Valley, into the Ohio Valley.

Lows over the northern states were to be in the 30s and 40s, warming during the day to the 40s and 50s; readings in the 70s and 80s were expected over the southern half of the country.

Anti-apartheid group claims bombing

Associated Press

TARRYTOWN, N.Y. — An explosion that shattered 100 windows at a research laboratory has been claimed by an anti-apartheid terrorist group linked to 12 other bombings in the past 22 months, including a blast at a South African consulate just 21 hours earlier.

The 25 to 50 pounds of dynamite detonated outside Union Carbide's four-story Silicones Building research lab Wednesday night punched a 20-by-20 foot in an exterior wall, but caused no injuries, officials said.

The United Freedom Front claimed responsibility for the blast in calls to police and two newspapers, said Greenburgh police Sgt. Robert Rohs.

The FBI earlier had linked the group to the bombing of the South African Consulate on Park Avenue in New York City early Wednesday morning.

The organization is suspected in 12 bombings over the past 22 months in the New York metropolitan area and Washington, D.C., including a November 1983 bomb explosion in the U.S. Capitol, authorities said.

The latest bombing occurred at Union Carbide's campus-like laboratory for research in chemistry and plastics in Tarrytown, 20 miles north of New York City, a spokesman said.

An anonymous caller phoned a bomb threat to police around 8:50 p.m., said Rohs. Warnings were also received by the New York Daily News and Gannett Westchester Rockland Newspapers, he said.

"They said it was the United Freedom Front," Rohs said of the call to police. "The caller said, 'There was a bomb set to go off at 9:10 p.m., 100 pounds of dynamite.'"

As Rohs was discussing the call with The Associated Press around 9:30 p.m., he paused briefly, then said, "We just heard a rumble ... it just went off."

"All we know now is that the bomb was not inside the building, but was placed on the ground alongside it in the back," Union Carbide spokesman Ed Van Den Ameele said today from corporate headquarters in Danbury, Conn. "Police tell us it looked like anywhere from 25 to 50 pounds of dynamite."

FBI agents and New York City bomb squad inspectors remained on the scene today, examining the damage and looking for clues, authorities said.

The blast knocked out 100 windows and blew a 20-by-20 foot hole in the wall, Van Den Ameele said. The handful of workers inside were safely evacuated before the explosion, he said.

A switchboard operator at Gannett Westchester Rockland Newspapers took a call at about 8:40 p.m. from a man claiming responsibility for the blast for the United Freedom Front. The Daily News, which received a similar call, said the man also said, "Down with apartheid. Down with U.S. imperialism."

Union Carbide spokesman Tom Failla said the industrial conglomerate has operated in South Africa since 1929 and owns or has a share in five South African companies. Those firms mine, process and sell vanadium and vanadium oxides, chrome alloys, and graphite electrodes.

Union Carbide has signed the Sullivan Principles, a voluntary agreement which commits many U.S. corporations to treating their black employees in South Africa on a par with whites, Failla said.

Following the blast at the consular offices, FBI deputy assistant director Kenneth Walton said there was a "definite link" between that attack, claimed by someone who said he was from "Guerrilla Resistance," and 11 other area bombings claimed by "Red Guerrilla Resistance" and the United Freedom Front since December 1982.

FBI special agent Matt Williams said late Wednesday it was still "too early" to tell whether there was a clear connection between the consulate and Union Carbide bombings.

The United Freedom Front has claimed responsibility for nine other bombings beginning on Dec. 17, 1982. The FBI has also linked three bombings in the District of Columbia, for which the Armed Resistance Unit claimed responsibility, to the New York blasts.

Cruise passengers pulled from water

Associated Press

BROOKSVILLE, Maine — A pleasure cruise off the Maine coast became a journey into the "Twilight Zone" when a gust of wind flipped a schooner a mile from shore, sending 23 people scrambling for anything that would float in chilly seas.

Helicopters and a flotilla of government and private boats, alerted by witnesses on shore, rushed to the rescue Wednesday, and all 19 passengers and the four crew members were saved.

Five people were hospitalized for exposure and two were held overnight, authorities said.

"They're lucky, lucky people," said one of the rescue workers who helped pluck the shipgoers from the waters of Eggemoggin Reach.

"I'm just glad to be here," said Becky Burkey of Texas, a passenger on the commercial cruise. "Glad that everybody got back."

Burkey said that she was on deck when the 64-foot Isaac H. Evans, a 98-year-old schooner, turned over at about 11:30 a.m.

"It seemed like the wind and the water had died down," she said. "They (the crew) were changing the canvas. The schooner began tilting and then, all of a sudden we were in the water."

Coast Guard Lt. Joseph Saboe said "anything that would float, they were holding onto. Some had lifejackets on, some didn't."

"It was a "Twilight Zone" situation," said Ms. Burkey, referring to the 1960s television show that put ordinary people in extraordinary situations. "Grabbing on to floating objects and trying to follow the skippers' orders to get away from the schooner."

She said that the waves were high, but the terrified passengers could see people on their porches on shore.

"We knew that they could see us and that we would be OK if we could hang on," she said.

The vessel was on its last scheduled cruise of the season when a powerful gust evidently caught the sail and pulled the ship up and over, the Coast Guard said.

Richard Tucker, a spokesman at the North End shipyard in Rockland, where the Evans and several other windjammers dock, said the ship originally was built in 1886 and was rebuilt in 1973.

The Evans was sailing up the Maine coast two days out of Rockland when the accident happened. It sank in a channel about four miles wide between Grays Point and Little Deer Isle, southeast of Castine on Penobscot Bay.

"The boat actually turned over on its side and eventually sank," said Saboe, assigned to the Coast Guard marine safety detachment in Bangor.

Crew member Anne Wynn was handling the jib when the schooner went over.

"There was a little water coming over the side," she said, pointing out that that was fairly normal. "But the wind hit us and all of a sudden there was too much water."

Repeated efforts to reach Douglas Lee of Rockland, the owner of the vessel, by telephone were unsuccessful.

Coast Guard Petty Officer Stephen Oliver said the schooner tipped over about one mile from land.

A tide change at the time of the sinking "scattered the survivors," with some reaching Grays Point and others landing on Little Deer Isle, said Oliver.

Five victims were taken to Blue Hill Hospital in Brookville, but by Wednesday evening all but two had been released, said Richard Osborne, an emergency worker in Brookville.

The passengers and crew members were to return to Rockland by bus Friday night, he said.

"Right now they're waiting for their clothes to dry out," Osborne said.

HOUSE

Kerr pointed out that both figures include $30,000 for a new roof. "Our architects tell us that it doesn't need a new roof now, but that over a period of seven to 10 years it will so we built those figures in. These figures of $140,000 or $230,000 is money that's going to have to be spent in total over seven to 10 years."

When asked if those amounts would make the building structurally sound to use, for example, for a children's library, Kerr replied, "Our architects tell us that the building right now is structurally sound, for example, for the county historical museum," Kerr said.

"We have not done the detailed foundation studies that would have to be done to see if we could move extensive library materials. Those are fairly expensive studies. If the board thinks that this is the avenue we want to follow, then we'll go spend the money to have those studies done. And we're fairly confident that it can be done."

At that point in the meeting, Mrs. Wilkinson told Gilles and Kerr that the executive committee has reconsidered the options it had previously looked at and discarded. Such uses include a tea room, reception area and meeting facility. Mrs. Wilkinson said she went to HBF and asked the company to reconsider its figures.

"They said to make the building compatiable with any other area in town for reception area, tea room, ect., meaning church locations not to mention the private clubs, you'd have to put in totally new air conditioning and heating to handle the load of people in there, totally new plumbing and totally new electrical work. When you go into electrical in that building you're taking out walls, you're totally stripping out and redoing the plumbing.

"They said with their estimate to make it one of those uses which ya'll suggested, they believe that the estimate of $325,000, $400,000 is within the lower end of the ballpark and it could easily cost more than that.

"That's not even going into to fixing it up where it's a relatively attractive place, where people would want to have their reception or party function," Mrs. Wilkinson said.

"Our architects used to be with HBF and our architects have addressed those same questions," Kerr said, indicating the difference in amounts.

Gilles then pointed out that since the Lancaster House is not a new structure, it does not necessarily fall under building codes for new construction, but "somewhat in the category of the buildings that you have seen along Texas, Missouri and Illinois that have gone from residential use to office use." The City of Midland, Gilles said, has indicated there may be a way around certain building code requirements for new structures and "still have a house safe for occupancy, safe for use."

Mrs. Wilkinson indicated when she announced Friday's press conference that "We're working on a compromise, and we hope it will be worked out."

Isidore heads for coast

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical storm Isidore headed toward the southeast Florida coast early today with heavy rains and winds of near 50 mph, bringing with it a threat of flooding and a warning for residents to be ready for quick action.

Gale warnings were in effect from Cape Canaveral on the state's central east coast to Key West in the south.

The storm was about 40 miles east of Ft. Lauderdale and moving toward the west-northwest at about 10 mph at 6 a.m. today, according to a National Weather Service bulletin. The storm's center was located near latitude 26.0 north and longitude 79.5 west, the bulletin said.

"We're very thankful tonight that we continue to see this westward motion," Dr. Neil Frank, head of the National Hurricane Center, said Wednesday. "That means that the probability of some strengthening is reduced and if we continue to push this storm west tonight across the coastline, then that will be very good news for us."

ANGELS

Judging by the Angels' record at AA and A levels, the prospects are good that Midland will have a competitive team next year. Waterbury, managed by Winston Llenas, lost to the Vermont Reds in the Eastern League playoff finals this year.

The A clubs that will feed Midland are Redwood, California League, and Peoria, moved from Quad City for 1985, in the Midwest League. Redwood, after winning the playoffs in 1983, posted the best won-lost record in the California League, 40 games above .500, but lost the post season playoff this season.

"We won it with defense, pitching and aggressiveness," said Bavasi. "According to a mid-season vote of the managers by Baseball America, we had the best third baseman, shortstop, second baseman and centerfielder in the league as well as the pitcher of the year. That vote was taken in July when we were seven games behind."

PROSPECTS of the promising young players being seen in Midland are good, according to Port. "We try not to be too smart by jumping players to higher leagues too rapidly. We try to build on success. We would rather advance a player logically, step by step, although there have been a few occasions when a player has gone from AA to the majors in one leap. Since we had a strong team at Waterbury, chances are not too many would be jumped from A to AAA."

Although the Angels have indulged heavily in the free agent market in recent years, surrendering draft choices for immediate help, "It was necessary to be competitive with that club to the north (Los Angeles). Ideally, we'd rather have a Daryl Sconiers waiting in the wings when a Rod Carew retires."

PALM SPRINGS, Calif., has been the spring training base for the Angels with the minor league clubs training at Holtville, Calif., between Yuma and San Diego, but that is being changed.

"We have a three-diamond Gene Autry complex in Mesa, Ariz., where our Instructional League team is currently playing," explains Port. "It's about three miles from the Chicago Cubs' Mesa complex.

"Next spring, the parent club will report to Mesa for workouts Feb. 25. It is more suitable for preliminary work than Palm Springs, which has only one diamond. It will play its exhibition schedule in the Phoenix area until March 20 before going to Palm Springs. March 20 is when the minor leagues report and instead of going to Holtville, they will train at the Mesa complex."

Prior to the completion of the Autry complex, the Angels had been doing their preliminary training at Francisco Grande in Casa Grande.

IRONICALLY, Chicago's departure from Midland comes at the moment of the major league club's celebration of winning the National League East, the first time the club has won anything since 1945. However, to accomplish the miracle, GM Dallas Green had to gut the farm system of its talent and prospects for a competitive team in AA ball in the near future were not good. Both Class A clubs suffered through seasons as disasterous as those suffered by Midland.

The Cubs were in Midland from 1972 through 1984, producing one Texas League co-champion in 1975.

RACE

Reagan spent Wednesday in Ohio and Wisconsin in what is his only campaign trip this week.

In Ohio, Reagan was met by an enthusiastic crowd of 5,000 people in a gymnasium at Bowling Green State University and was asked by a student about security in the wake of the latest terrorist bombing of the U.S. Embassy annex last week in Beirut.

Reagan, who accepted responsibility when 241 U.S. servicemen died in a similar suicide truck bombing in Beirut last October, suggested that intelligence actions "before we came here" were in part to blame.

"... We're feeling the effects today of the near destruction of our intelligence capability in recent years — before we came here, the effort that somehow to say, well, spying is somehow dishonest and let's get rid of our intelligence agents, and we did that to a large extent," Reagan said.

Reagan said his administration is "trying to rebuild our intelligence to where you'll find out and know in advance what the target might be and be prepared for it."

His comments touched off a storm in Congress.

Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., vice chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, said: "I believe an apology is in order. If none is forthcoming, a motion of censure is in order."

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., a member of the Intelligence Committee, called Reagan's comment "outrageous and beneath the dignity of the office of president of the United States ... It is a slur on our intelligence officers and a slur on those who died."

Last week's bombing, where two Americans died, was the third of its kind in 17 months. In April 1983 the U.S. Embassy in Beirut was attacked, killing 17 Americans.

Mondale's speech interrupted by shouts of 'We Want Fritz!'

CLEVELAND (AP) — Walter F. Mondale, who has had his share of difficulties with hecklers on the campaign trail, had trouble of another sort when he addressed the United Steelworkers' convention here.

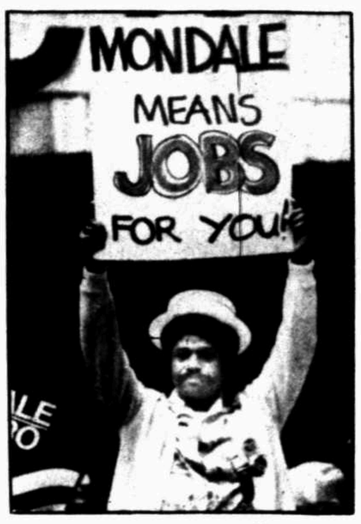
The 3,000 boisterous steelworkers, who blame President Reagan for a sharp rise in steel imports and a sharp drop in their union's ranks over the past three years, repeatedly interrupted the Democratic candidate's speech Tuesday with cheers and chants of "We Want Fritz!"

At one point a bemused Mondale counseled restraint, saying, "Now, we got to get this speech over with. I've got to see Gromyko (the Soviet foreign minister) tomorrow, and I have to have a little time to work on it."

Mondale also got rollicking receptions from student audiences at Texas Southern University, a black institution in Houston, on Monday, and at George Washington University, a few blocks from the White House, on Tuesday.

In sharp contrast to his outdoor appearance at the University of Southern California on Sept. 18, where a large contingent of students booed and chanted Reagan slogans, not a contrary word or sign could be heard or seen at these indoor rallies.

Jim Henry, chairman of the George Washington Young Republicans, complained that his group was unable to get any tickets to the event inside the 1,800-seat Lisner Auditorium. Outside, several dozen pro-Reagan students carried signs with such slogans as "Wake Me Up When Fritz-zzz Is Gone." Some wore the now-familiar Fritzbusters T-shirts first sported by a college Republican troupe at the GOP convention in Dallas.



AP Laserphoto

James Janrfett, a steelworker from Los Angeles, holds up his sign during Democratic presidential contender Walter Mondale's speech at the United Steelworkers convention in Cleveland Wednesday.

But the pro-Reagan students were outnumbered by hundreds of others outside the hall who were excited about the candidate's visit. The demonstrators' chants of "Four More Years" were drowned out by their classmates' cry of "Six More Weeks."

The event was a major success for the Mondale advance team that had brought Mondale in past weeks to a Labor Day parade in New York that virtually no one attended and to a factory gate in Green Bay, Wis., after the workers were inside.

It may have been an even greater triumph of planning than first met the eye, if a poll of George Washington's students is to be believed. The campus newspaper recently reported that 62 percent of the students are for Reagan.

This light campaign week — kept short in part by Mondale's decision not to campaign during Rosh Hashana, the Jewish New Year — seemed to get off on the wrong foot in Texarkana on Monday when that parched town on the Texas-Arkansas border got its first rain in a month just about the time Mondale's chartered jet arrived.

But the precipitation never got worse than an intermittent drizzle, and Mondale's outdoor rally before 1,500 people on Stateline Boulevard, which straddles the border, went off without a hitch.

The crowd cheered when Mondale told how one of Reagan's anecdotes about quiet American heroes had boomeranged on the president.

Reagan recently regaled a dinner of Italian-Americans with the story of a milkman whose son, Dr. Joseph Giordano, grew up to help save Reagan's life after the March 1981 assassination attempt.

The surgeon, a lifelong Democrat, promptly wrote a newspaper column saying he and his family did not do it all on their own — he had a low-interest federal loan to help pay for medical school, and his parents rely on Social Security.

Giordano is now a fixture in Mondale's stump speeches.

Mondale's arrivals lack presidential flair

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) — One by one, four U.S. Marine helicopters roared out of the sky and settled down on a playing field at Bowling Green State University. The president of the United States was on the campaign trail.

His Democratic challenger Walter F. Mondale campaigns without Marine helicopters, and Mondale's arrivals don't have that presidential flair.

The chopper gap is only one of the stylistic differences between the Reagan and Mondale campaigns.

The trappings of the presidency become particularly apparent during a campaign in the contrast between the traveling style of the incumbent and his challenger.

Security for the president was tighter, even though Mondale also receives Secret Service protection. But at no time on Wednesday was Reagan confronted close up by protesters. For Mondale, demonstrators in the audience are a daily occurrence.

There were anti-Reagan demonstrators and signs at each stop the president made in Ohio and Wisconsin on Wednesday, but they were far from the places where he spoke.

At Bowling Green, they were tucked in an area a couple of buildings removed from the gymnasium where the president addressed a crowd of about 5,000 people. White House spokesman Larry Speakes denied any effort was made to keep pro-Mondale students from the audience.

Bush ready to disclose 'essential information' about tax returns

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Vice President George Bush, trying to avoid prolonged questioning about his finances such as Geraldine Ferraro faced, is preparing to disclose "essential information" of his tax returns for the past three years.

In an abrupt reversal after steadfastly refusing to release his taxes, Bush directed his attorney Wednesday to begin preparing the information for release — probably sometime next week.

Bush, who puts his net worth at $2.1 million, is the only major candidate for president or vice president who has not released his taxes.

Ms. Ferraro, the Democratic candidate for vice president, released her tax returns and those of her husband after weeks of controversy about their finances engulfed her campaign.

Bush, on a campaign trip to the Midwest, said he decided to look into releasing his tax information "just to end the questioning."

His press secretary, Peter Teeley, said, "We would like to get on with the campaign and not answer questions about taxes every day."

Teeley said the "essential information" likely would include Bush's income, tax deductions and the amount of taxes paid.

It will not include details on the sources of Bush's income and assets, which are supposed to be kept secret from the vice president under terms of a blind trust he established when taking office to guard against conflict of interest, Teeley said.

He said Bush's attorney would begin gathering the material Friday and that it might be ready by the beginning of next week "at the earliest."

For weeks, Bush has maintained he could not release his taxes because his trust is so strict that he does not prepare his own taxes, doesn't sign them, and even isn't allowed to ask about them.

Anti-abortion protests locally organized

NEW YORK (AP) — The anti-abortion protesters dogging Geraldine Ferraro's steps have been called to action by national anti-abortion publications and a network of well-organized local groups, participants say.

Chanting, "Life Yes, Ferraro No," the sign-waving ralliers have been a fixture — and increasingly, a source of controversy — at almost every Ferraro campaign stop since she became the Democratic vice-presidential nominee in July.

In recent weeks, the anti-abortion protesters have been joined by Reagan-Bush supporters and their chants of "Four more years" and "Reagan, Reagan, Reagan" in concerted efforts to disrupt her speeches.

Amid indications that some of the protests appeared to be orchestrated, Ms. Ferraro said last weekend that if the Reagan-Bush campaign was behind them, "Why don't they come out and fight like men?"

Republican campaign officials have denied any role in the demonstrations, and national anti-abortion groups this week also claimed no direct involvement. One said it was working with the Reagan campaign on other matters.

The pickets are "locally inspired," said Dr. John C. Willke, president of the National Right-to-Life Committee. "We don't go to Altoona and say, 'Someone's coming tomorrow, we want 50 people on the sidewalk.'"

Willke denied in a telephone interview that his group's newspaper has urged the anti-abortion pickets. "I certainly approve of it," he said from his medical office in Cincinnati. "But we didn't tell anybody to do it."

However, an article in the newspaper's Sept. 13 issue describes an anti-abortion demonstration against Ms. Ferraro in Hartford, Conn., and says, "It is vital that the Mondale-Ferrraro ticket always be met by pro-lifers."

If the names Lee Trevino, Tom Kite, Dr. Gil Morgan, Mark O'Meara and Bob Gilder attract your interest, make plans to be in Midland next Monday for the Green Tree Country Club 1984 Charity Pro-Am golf tournament.

Those big names in professional golf and a number of others will be on hand to compete for a purse of $50,000. In fact, tournament officials say 30 pros will be present for the tournament along with 120 amateurs.

What's more, even if golf isn't really your thing but doing a good deed is, make plans to attend because the Monday Pro-Am will benefit the Midland Association for Retarded Citizens, a worthy local organization. Part of the proceeds from this year's tournament will go to MARC and some of the proceeds will stay in a fund for next year's tournament, officials indicate.

But there's a catch: The tournament's success depends to a large extent on the attendance at this year's event. The more people who are present next Monday, the more successful the tournament will be and the more MARC will benefit.

While tournament officials aren't certain how many will be in attendance Monday at Green Tree, they note that last year's tournament drew a crowd of 2,500 to 3,000 and they're optimistic that this year's spectacular will bring in 5,000 to 10,000 people — or more!

The Pro-Am really is the only opportunity for area residents to see the golf professionals in action first-hand without traveling a long distance. The nearest comparable event is the LaJet Golf Classic in Abilene, which has enjoyed considerable success in recent years.

What better way to spend a Monday. The tournament will run from 8:30 a.m. until 1:30 p.m., so pick your time, get a ticket and head out to Green Tree. Or go for the entire event if you can.

You'll get to see a lot of pro golfers in action — live! — and you'll be helping to ensure MARC's continued financial stability.

Learn some manners!

College students ought to be interested in politics. Some of them also ought to learn better manners.

Student hecklers at the University of Southern California made it almost impossible Tuesday for Vice President Walter Mondale to speak there. The same thing happened to his running mate, Geraldine Ferraro, when she appeared yesterday (Thursday) at a rally on the Arlington campus of the University of Texas.

The loudmouthed students in both cases were shouting their support of President Reagan, but they're doing their candidate no good with that kind of behavior.

Even though we don't frequently agree with the political philosophy Mondale and Ferraro are representing, we'll stand 100 percent behind their right to offer that alternative to the American people. The students should remember that Mondale and Ferraro may not espouse a philosophy with which the students agree, but they are still major political figures in this country and deserving of our respect.

One reason that campus demonstrations kept getting out of hand in the 1960s is that college and university officials stood and watched under the mistaken impression that students should be allowed to do their own thing, even at the expense of free speech. We hope they don't make the same mistake twice.

Another View:

Exporting danger

It is outrageous that Congress is even considering a bill to allow the sale abroad of drugs not yet approved as safe for Americans. That such legislation is being given serious thought reflects both callousness and shortsightedness.

The federal government since 1938 has sensibly forbidden the commercial export of U.S.-made drugs (except for antibiotics) that have not yet won Food and Drug Administration approval for domestic use. But a bill before the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee would repeal the ban under certain conditions.

For example, if a drug had been approved for sale by another nation having what is deemed acceptable drug-review procedures, the U.S. version could be sold in that country — and in undesignated countries as well. An unapproved U.S. drug could also be exported if it were undergoing FDA testing.

Proponents, led by the pharmaceutical manufacturers and even the respected World Health Organization, claim that the benefits of unapproved U.S. drugs to developing nations may outweigh the risks. But that is an arrogant argument. It glosses over the serious (and sometimes fatal) side effects that can flow from unproved drugs. Many of these might never win the FDA's imprimatur and yet, under the proposed legislation, they could still be exported in the meantime.

Drug firms claim that the export ban hurts the U.S. economy and the competitive position of domestic companies. But one might ask how our economy will be improved by the export of possible health hazards that tarnish the reputation of American products.

The present loophole allowing the export of unproved antibiotics already may have contributed to the overuse of some drugs — and thus to the development of drug-resistant strains of typhoid and other diseases, according to health researchers at the University of California in San Francisco. If anything, the export ban should be strengthened to include antibiotics — not diluted in ways that put the health of the drug industry before that of other nations.

JACK ANDERSON

Terrorists leave diplomats edgy

WASHINGTON — Terrorist attacks have left a miasma of fear hanging over our Paris embassy, which used to be American diplomats' favorite post.

Jack Anderson

The danger for U.S. personnel in Paris is much higher than the public has been told. I sent my associate Lucette Lagnado to check out reports that had filtered back to Washington. Here's what she found:

After a three-year pattern of random attacks, embassy personnel are edgy. The elegant embassy building on the Place de la Concorde has become a fortress reminiscent of U.S. embassies in Saigon or Beirut. Concrete barriers are strategically positioned around the building; parking is strictly forbidden near the embassy and passing vehicles are closely scrutinized.

A heavy presence of French gendarmes and uniformed guards are in evidence around the embassy building, in addition to the Marines stationed at the entrances. Visitors are carefully screened and their belongings examined.

What has turned this Foreign Service plum sour? A mysterious group that styles itself as the "Lebanese Armed Revolutionary Faction."

Since 1981, its members have struck repeatedly at U.S. diplomats in Paris. Then, in a change of pace and place, they began gunning for Americans in neighboring countries.

Other incidents that have cast a chill over the Paris embassy include:

— November 1981: Chris Chapman, the embassy charge d'affaires, was shot at and missed by an unknown assailant as he left his home on the way to work. The gunman was never caught.

— Jan. 18, 1982: Lt. Col. Charles Ray, the military attache, was shot and killed as he left his house to go to the embassy. The Lebanese faction claimed credit; French investigators turned up no suspect.

— April 3, 1982: Yacov Barsimontov, an Israeli diplomat, was killed by what police ballistics tests proved to be the same gun that killed Ray.

— August 1982: A bomb placed under commercial attache Roderick Grant's car fell off as he drove toward the embassy. A French policeman was killed and another badly wounded as they tried to defuse the bomb, which evidently was meant to go off within the embassy grounds.

— March 1983: The same terrorists tried to assassinate Robert Onan Homme, the American consul-general in Strasbourg. He survived and remains at his post.

— February 1984: Leamon Hunt, a retired Foreign Service officer assigned to head the Sinai Peace Keeping Forces, was gunned down in Rome. Again, the Lebanese Armed Revolutionary Faction claimed responsibility for his brutal murder, and authorities established a link with the incidents in France.

As for the Lebanese Armed Revolutionary Faction, U.S. intelligence sources are pretty well convinced that it is no ragtag group of fanatics, but an organization orchestrated and controlled by a national government: Syria.

Their reasoning is that only a government would have the resources for the planning and manpower that clearly went into the attacks on American personnel. In each case, it was obvious that the targeted diplomat had been under surveillance for an extended period — long enough to know the smallest details of his working and commuting routines.

Diplomats interviewed confessed that a feeling of anxiety has seriously diluted the heady pleasure they once felt over their assignment in the French capital. Instead of enjoying the lovely city along the lines of the lyrics to "April in Paris,"

BOONDOGGLE OF THE WEEK: You've read recently about microchips that don't work, but would you believe a darkroom that isn't dark?

Believe it or not, the Department of Energy has spent more than $500,000 on a photography-graphics complex that includes darkrooms that aren't light-tight. As any camera buff can attest, this is a serious flaw.

It's not that the architects weren't told the right way to build a darkroom. As a staff member's complaint to the inspector general noted: "Photography had asked for pocket doors, which are automatically light-tight."

But the drawing-board geniuses knew better. "Sliding doors were installed to our complete surprise," the staffer wrote. "They are not light-tight and will require much additional work to make them so."

A DOE spokesman tried to minimize the blunder. The darkroom designers, he said, "inadvertently missed the light-tight seal." That's like forgetting to put wings on an airplane.

Actually, the undark darkrooms are only the most graphic illustration of the outrageous extravagance of the entire construction project. The DOE office for which it was built has only one photographer — but five darkrooms were built. The four others are being used for storage. And while accommodations for 30 graphic artists were included, only eight artists work there.

What makes the boondoggle particularly exasperating is that the design errors and excesses were duly pointed out by the IG a year ago. The empire builders went ahead anyway.

Now the IG has dutifully provided an update, pointing out that the warnings have come true and noting some additional flaws in the costly project: faulty sinks, paint and lighting in the darkrooms; drains in the photo lab that don't work, and malfunctioning electrical, air-conditioning and fire alarm systems.

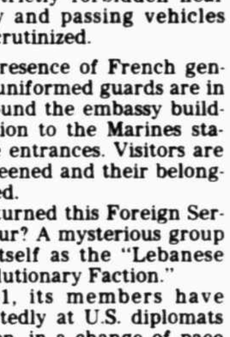
GEORGE F. WILL

Reagan needs an 'honors' list

WASHINGTON — Humor me. Consider a naive theory and a utopian proposal. The theory is: There is so much failure in government because there are insufficient penalties for failure. The proposal is: When there is serious failure, someone serious should resign.



George F. Will

These heresies are provoked by the third truck bombing in Beirut, and by statements of U.S. officials who seem to relish making irrelevant remarks. The Secretary of State, for example, has said: Well, embassies must be open, transacting business so....

So what? So there can not be perfect safety? True, but with due respect, Mr. Secretary, quit changing the subject, which is trucks. The subject is not whether embassies should be open, but whether they should be approachable by trucks loaded with enough explosives to level the buildings. There are more interesting subjects, but this one keeps coming up, so let's stick with it.

You, too, Secretary of Defense, no more of this: "People can acquire and have acquired helicopters and you can get a couple of people that can learn to fly one just far enough to get there and kill themselves, then all your barriers and tank traps are not going to prevent that."

What does Caspar Weinberger want to be, the Mary Lou Retton of irrelevancy — the Olympic record setter? He is changing the subject, which is not helicopters, but trucks.

It is, of course, un-American to cross on foot any distance that a vehicle can carry you across, but it is not unreasonable to say that moving vehicles shall not approach within 200 yards of certain U.S. facilities. War is hell, and Beirut is a war zone, so some people are going to have to walk. And even if that is unthinkable, it is not beyond the wit of the Pentagon, which we entrust with interesting sums of money, to swiftly devise and erect barriers that at least would have forced the last truck, which evidently carried 3,000 pounds of explosives, to move so slowly that gunfire would have stopped it sooner.

Weinberger's thoughts on helicopters are intensely uninteresting, other than as an example of how misplaced loyalties can cause an intelligent man to be at once vigorous and vapid. Weinberger is protecting subordinates, colleagues and himself, whereas what needs looking after is the national interest. That certainly is not served by statements about the foreordained futility of any attempts to defeat persons bent on suicide. The Secret Service does not accept that premise when planning protection of the President.

Speaking of the President, consider his contribution to the discussion of why proper security provisions (we are not talking about high technology, we are talking about steel and concrete) were not completed. "Anyone that's ever had their kitchen done over knows that it never gets done as soon as you wish it would."

"Wish"? My admittedly imperfect understanding of our system is that if you carry 44 states you get to be President for four years, there will be things you can only wish for, but some things you can demand, and you can raise hell and spread misery among subordinates who do not deliver.

The President's laconic, complacent comparison to home improvements misses a few points, two of which are: The Commander in Chief has more leverage over his forces than the rest of us have over carpenters. And if carpenters are dilatory, the kitchen is inconvenient; if the Commander in Chief's employees are dilatory, people die.

What Walter Mondale is working himself up to say, in his murky way, is that the President does not have the energy level or interest to monitor even the important details of government. That is not true, and saying it will not appreciably help Mondale, but the following is true:

The administration's sloth (Jerry Falwell, call the Oval Office and report that sloth is one of the deadly sins) regarding security in Beirut is evidence of the President's failure to perform his first duty. That duty is to instill a healthy level of fear — fear of him — among his subordinates.

Herbert Hoover reportedly once mused that a President ought to be allowed to hang two persons a year without giving any reason or explanation. When Hoover was asked if two would suffice, he said perhaps not, but a President could spread the word to 20 or 30 others that they were being considered for the honor. Reagan needs such an honors list. He has an enchanting smile, but also needs an energizing scowl.

ART BUCHWALD

News waits for Michael Jackson!

Michael Jackson was in Washington last week for his concert, but it was really no big deal unless you turned on a television set or picked up a newspaper.

Art Buchwald

This is how all the local TV news programs seemed to play it.

"Good evening, ladies and gentlemen. Here is the news. Michael Jackson has just returned to his hotel room, after a visit to a record store in Northwest Washington. For a live report we take you to Brent Studebaker at the Regent Hotel where the singer is staying.

"Brent, do you have any information as to what Michael is doing right now?"

"Grady, our latest information is Michael is in his suite taking a nap before his concert tonight. We're going to get you a shot of the window of Jackson's suite on the fifth floor. There it is, Grady."

"Good work, Brent, we'll get back to you later in the program. And now for other news. Five thousand people were drowned in a tidal wave in Atlantic City, New Jersey, this morning. But before we give you further details on that story, Brent Studebaker has a bulletin from the Regent Hotel."

"Grady, I've received information from an impeccable source that Jackson has awakened from his nap and is taking a shower."

"Thanks, Brent, stay with it, and let us know what he does when he comes out of the shower. In other news, Fidel Castro arrived in Miami today and asked for political asylum. The dictator escaped from Havana after cadets from the military school took over the government. We have a special report from Miami — no, delay that, we're going back to Brent Studebaker at the Regent Hotel. How does the situation look now?"

"Grady, it's quite calm here for the moment. Thousands of people have gathered in front of the hotel to get a glimpse of anyone from the Jackson family. Here is a T-shirt I just bought from a vendor and a Michael Jackson button."

"Thanks, Brent. Now this just in from Capitol Hill. A crazed gunman has taken over the floor of the U.S. Senate and is holding all 100 senators hostage until they meet his demands that they pass a bill outlawing seat belts on commercial airplanes. If we have time we'll try to get more information on the story. In the meantime, let's go back to Brent Studebaker who informs us that Michael Jackson is eating dinner."

"Grady, I've been in touch with room service, and Jackson ordered a grilled cheese sandwich, a glass of milk and apple pie a la mode. He gave the waiter a $5 tip."

"Did he sign the check himself, Brent?"

"We're trying to find that out now."

"And knowing you, Brent, I'm sure you will. Now this from the United Nations in New York. Taft Huebner is standing live with Andrei Gromyko who has just announced the Soviets will come back to the Geneva arms talks under certain conditions. Come in, Taft."

"Mr. Gromyko, what exactly do you expect to tell the president when you see him?"

"I plan to tell him that ..."

"Taft, Mr. Gromyko, forgive me for interrupting, but we have just received word that Michael Jackson is now leaving the hotel to go to RFK stadium. We'll try to get back to you if we can ... Brent, is it true Michael is about to depart?"

"Here he comes now. Michael Jackson is in the second limousine exiting from the garage and should be at the stadium in 15 minutes."

"I can't see too well here, but did Jackson actually wave to the crowd?"

"Yes, Grady. He waved with his sequined glove. I think our camera crew was the only who had it."

"Thanks, Brent, once again you've done a fantastic job. We'd like to advise our listeners that President Reagan's press conference, in which he plans to announce a shaking up of his Cabinet, will not be seen tonight so we can bring you Michael Jackson's arrival live from RFK stadium."

NATION IN BRIEF

Inmate may face charges in attack against Manson

VACAVILLE, Calif. (AP) — A prison inmate could face assault charges for dousing convicted mass murderer Charles Manson with paint thinner and setting him afire, officials say.

Manson, convicted in 1971 of masterminding the murders of actress Sharon Tate and eight others, was hospitalized in serious but stable condition Wednesday, said officials at the California Medical Facility.

No decision had been made on whether to prosecute Jan Holmstrom, 36, accused of attacking Manson on Tuesday, but a charge probably would be an "assault-type charge," with attempted murder a possibility, said Mike Smith, chief deputy district attorney for Solano County.

Victims think sentence light

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Elderly investors who lost their money say a man sentenced to four years in prison for swindling them received too light a sentence.

Stephen Lochmiller, 31, who prosecutors estimated bilked 1,600 investors of $5 million while he presided over the Lochmiller Mortgage Co. of Vista, was sentenced in a plea bargain Wednesday.

"It didn't do anything," said Edythe Mitchell, who said she lost $46,000 through Lochmiller.

But Deputy State Attorney General Sanford Feldman called the sentence fair, saying "The most he could have gotten was six years for the (24) counts he pleaded to."

Wildflowers get reprieve

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A man fined $50 a day until he mows his yard says he's very pleased at a ruling that he need not pay the penalty or clip his lawn until his appeal is heard.

Stephen Kenney was convicted last week of violating codes in suburban Kenmore by growing wildflowers in his front yard and refusing to cut it.

Erie County Judge Penny Wolfgang, saying Kenney's "was not a frivolous appeal," ruled Wednesday he could leave the yard alone while the appeal, expected to take about six weeks, runs its course.

McDonald's demolished

SAN YSIDRO, Calif. (AP) — The McDonald's restaurant where 21 people were killed by a gunman was razed with little fanfare, leaving the site clear for a possible memorial for the victims.

Construction workers Wednesday demolished the restaurant where James Oliver Huberty went on his rampage July 18 which also left 19 people wounded until he was slain by a police bullet. There were few onlookers to the early-morning razing.

Judge to rule on dress

CROWN POINT, Ind. (AP) — A dispute over courtroom couture has left a judge and a female prosecutor at odds over who should wear the pants.

Lake Superior Court Judge James L. Clement says he'll decide by Friday whether to order Deputy Prosecutor Marleen Langfield to wear skirts or dresses, rather than pantsuits, in his courtroom.

Ms. Langfield says her wardrobe of pantsuits is businesslike and hasn't offended other judges.

House, Senate deadlocked on proposed immigration bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first revision of U.S. immigration law in 30 years is hanging by a thread with House and Senate negotiators deadlocked over the issue of job discrimination.

The conferees broke up Wednesday night after Sen. Alan K. Simpson, R-Wyo., the Senate sponsor of the bill, refused to accept House language barring job discrimination on the basis of national origin or alien status.

The argument has frozen final action on the bill for days. It is the last item blocking agreement between the chambers on the complex legislation designed to stem the flow of illegal aliens and the first revamping of immigration law since 1952.

But few would say the bill was dead for the remainder of the session. Some members, joking that the bill is said to have more lives than a cat, said a compromise still might be worked out Monday.

This would still leave time, but just barely, for the House and Senate to take final votes on the measure before leaving town Oct. 4.

The impasse was caused by language in the House bill proposed by Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., which prevents employers from discriminating against U.S. citizens, or noncitizens who are legal residents, on the basis of their national origin or status as aliens.

Simpson insists the provision, adopted by the House, gives aliens rights not enjoyed by U.S. citizens. He argues that an employer who hired an American rather than an equally qualified alien could be sued on grounds of discriminating against a non-citizen.

"We have reached a standoff, a true sticking point," said Simpson. "We have come far afield from our intent of protecting U.S. citizens from discrimination...Now we want to give this protection to a person who is not a citizen of the U.S., but who doesn't even have the right to vote."

Gramm: Doggett will dodge questions

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Democrat Lloyd Doggett will try to avoid talking about his record when he squares off against Republican Phil Gramm in a debate Friday night, Gramm predicts.

"He's going to try to create a lot of issues that don't make any sense," the College Station congressman said Wednesday on a campaign swing through Beaumont.

The two are scheduled to meet for the first of two televised debates in College Station Friday night.

Gramm and Doggett, a state senator from Austin, crossed paths Wednesday in San Antonio, Houston and Beaumont.

Doggett, who has likened the election to the Old Testament battle between David and Goliath, revealed the third of his "smooth stones," charging that Gramm supports the "powerful and privileged."

The race is a "contest between a Texas senator with a record of putting the Davids of Texas first, of fighting for the ordinary, hard-working, taxpaying families of this state, and a politician with a record of putting the Goliaths first, fighting for the powerful and privileged while turning a deaf ear to the needs and concerns of ordinary Texans," Doggett said in San Antonio, where he spoke in front of the Alamo.

But Gramm, at a San Antonio hotel, said Doggett's "stones" are ludicrous.

"He's got to appeal to these absurdities because he knows he can't win on his own record. He's running around throwing rocks based on no fact at all," he said.

Gramm said Doggett is a millionaire and contributed $500,000 to his own campaign.

"It's an absurdity to say that I'm a Goliath in this race," he said.

Doggett charged that Gramm received more contributions than any other congressman from the chemical and nuclear industries.

Gramm said he could not verify Doggett's figures on his own contributions from those industries, but he said that because the petrochemical industry is the largest in Texas, "I hope I've received support from them."

Doggett criticized Gramm in Beaumont for opposing the federal Superfund, which helps clean up chemical dumps. Gramm responded that he supports efforts to protect the environment but does not favor the Superfund because it taxes all chemical industries rather than just those that produce dangerous chemicals.

Gramm also said Doggett had contributions from gay rights groups and organizations against a strong national defense.

"We are talking about two different visions, two different agendas for the American dream," he said.

"Lloyd Doggett wants to tax those dreams so he can pay off all the pro-spending special interest groups. I'm being supported by Texans and the traditional values of Texans," Gramm said.

Both candidates also said they hoped Friday night's scheduled statewide televised debate in College Station will highlight their differences.

"This race becomes a question of who will fight for the small businessman and ordinary taxpayers of this state," Doggett said in Houston.

Gramm said he had no special plans to ready himself for the debate, but Doggett said he would spend most of the day Friday working with media advisers to prepare.

Black lawyer to defend man in cross burning

HOUSTON (AP) — A state district judge has appointed a black lawyer to defend a white man accused of burning a cross outside a black family's residence and hurling Molotov cocktails that burned a teen-ager.

But Judge Michael McSpadden, who learned of the accusations against Baron Lee Boyington after he appointed Steven Greenlee to defend him, said Wednesday he foresees no racial problems.

Boyington and Ted Creamer are accused of burning a cross in the grass of the black family's yard and throwing two Molotov cocktails into their residence Aug. 12.

A teen-ager who had gone to the window to see what was burning suffered second- and third-degree burns on his legs and his mother was also burned, Greenlee said.

Arson investigators later recovered the remains of a white hood and the Molotov cocktails.

He said there allegedly was a dispute between one defendant's girlfriend and some black neighbors of the family that was attacked.

McSpadden said he knew nothing of the facts until Greenlee talked to his client and then went to the judge's office.

"He poked his head in and smiled," McSpadden said.

Greenlee said Boyington seems pleased to have him as an attorney.

"He likes me a lot," Greenlee said. "I asked him if he had any problem with black people, and he said 'No'. I asked him if he had any problem with me, and he said 'No'."

McSpadden said he sent his court coordinator to the court holdover cell to ask how many defendants were indigent and needed attorneys appointed to represent them, and the coordinator told him a arson defendant needed an attorney.

McSpadden said he doubts that a jury would be prejudiced in favor of a white defendant with a black attorney.

Greenlee said he is "used to getting appointed to weird cases, so this is not unusual."

But, he added, "As I looked through the case, it dawned on me that it was more than a simple arson."

Greenlee said he does not expect any difficulty representing a person accused of such a crime.

"Obviously as a black person, I'm torn," he said. "But I'm an attorney. My duty is to represent him. My personal feelings will be set aside."

Dealers emply 700,000

Of the 24,000 auto and truck dealers in the United States, about 13,100 represent only American manufacturers, and 3,950 sell only imported vehicles. Some 7,000 sell both. Combined, these dealers employ 700,000 people.

Bobcats vs. Rebels: No. 1 game in state

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

SAN ANGELO — District 4-5A opens its football gates Friday night on four fronts, but the biggest bang will be heard when the score comes rolling in from here after No. 6 state ranked San Angelo meets No. 9 Midland Lee.

The Eyes of Texas will be on this one since this has been proclaimed far and wide as the state's top high school meeting of the week. And it should be a war.

The Bobcats of coach Jimmie Keeling have not given up a point in three non-conference outings. The Rebels of new boss Jack Tayrien have given up a mere 14 points, none against its first team defense. So, with that logged in the computer, expect a low scoring, head busting, who can score first kind of affair.

BOTH TEAMS should have an angry attitude entering this one since the district opener incentive is there along with what happened last year. San Angelo won a 14-9 decision over Lee in 1983, but it was the Rebels who ended up with the eventual playoff berth and a chance to play for a state championship. So both teams have a motivational outlook entering the "Game of the Week."

Predictions have been coming in that the game may draw anywhere from 15,000 to 20,000 fans. It has captured the fancy of West Texas.

"This is a game that I would love to see just as a fan," said Bobcat coach Keeling. "If this one doesn't excite you, I don't know what would. But I would rather be in the stands watching this one than coaching in this one. It could be a great game."

Tayrien also sees this outing as a quick test for his grow-up-in-a-hurry Rebels, who enter the contest without 55 seniors from last year's team against a team that has more returning starters than any team in 4-5A.

Kent Porter Reporter-Telegram

Midland Lee defensive coach Earl Miller doesn't like it when his Rebels give up points. Lee has given up only 14 points this season and can't afford to give up anymore Friday when they face San Angelo, a team that hasn't been scored on this year.

"A victory here would certianly be sweet," said Tayrien. "It's a big game, but we have to remember that this isn't the season, win or lose. You just have to look back to last year to see that San Angelo beat us, but we got in the playoffs. One game doesn't make a season, but it would be a nice one to have."

Keeling has great respect for the Rebels as does Tayrien for the Bobcats. Both have been awesome in pre-district games.

"Lee has the best rushing attack in America," says Keeling. "They are better than the Dallas Cowboys. Everyone knows about their great running backs of Tyrone Thurman and Walter Jones, but their quarterback (Dirk Bergoon) is the one who impresses me. He's a great operator and runs the option so much better than they were able to do last year."

Tayrien says of San Angelo, "The whole team looks like it came out of the same mold. They're all 6-3 and 6-4. They have great experience. We're playing the same team we did last year. And to win this time, we can't beat ourselves like we did last year.

"I also know that San Angelo hasn't given up a point this year and it's hard to win if you don't score."

LEE'S JONES and Thurman are producing like one would expect. Jones is the second leading rusher in the league with 320 yards, averaging 8.4 yards per carry. Thurman has 245 yards, ranking fifth, but has scored 30 points, ranking second. Thurman is averaging 6.4 yards per carry.

San Angelo's leading rusher is C.L. Bowman, who doesn't even start. He had a big 100-plus game against Fort Worth Dunbar last week and has 224 yards in three games.

Neither team throws much. Between Lee's Bergoon and San Angelo quarterback Mario Martinez only 27 passes have been thrown between them for a mere 200 yards.

However, it's on defense where these two powers have excelled. San Angelo has given up a mere 300 yards offense in three games while Lee has given up only 450.

This is a big way to start the loop campaign for both teams. It is the first year that the two have opened the district season against each other.

New Charger sensation Jackson avoids spotlight

By Chris Jenkins
Copley News Service

SAN DIEGO — They watched at home in Texas, his mother in Rosenberg, his old high school coach in San Angelo.

"Popeye" was on television.

"His grandma gave him that nickname when he was a baby," said Earnest Jackson's mother, Elnora. "He had these big eyes. It's like they just popped out of his head."

Elnora's phone has been ringing off the hook since Monday Night, capital N, as in Monday Night Football. All her friends and neighbors called to say they saw Earnest and how he ran for all those yards and that touchdown against the Los Angeles Raiders and wasn't it just the most wonderful thing. Yes, Elnora says proudly, my heavens yes, it was wonderful. It mattered not to her or anybody in Rosenberg that Earnest Jackson played for the losing team, the San Diego Chargers, beaten 33-30 by the Raiders.

But it mattered to Earnest. Two days after the fact, Jackson still says his 155 yards and 1-yard score were insignificant in defeat. And that's about all he's saying. About anything.

"Little quiet, isn't he?" said Jim Keeling, Jackson's coach at Lamar Consolidated High in Rosenberg, Texas, 30 miles southwest of Houston. Keeling's smile could be heard through the telephone. "That's him. That's always been him."

Earnest Jackson Jr. eludes attention the way he eluded Lyle Alzado and Matt Millen the other night, and with similar success. He spent much of Wednesday ducking interview requests. The New York Times left its number. So did his hometown paper, the Richmond-Rosenberg Herald-Coaster. A local television crew approached Jackson as he stepped onto the practice field and he declined. "Not my thing," he muttered.

His first start came against the Houston Oilers, the NFL team closest to Rosenberg. Jackson scored three touchdowns. Elnora thought that was really something. So did Jackson. The Chargers won. And even if San Diego didn't win the other night, Rosenberg did.

"Wasn't it exciting?" Elnora Jackson asked. "I couldn't sleep afterwards."

"It made me proud," Keeling said. "He was sensational."

But you didn't hear it from Popeye.

MC golfers push for WJCAC title

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

Midland College finished fourth in last week's segment of the Western Junior College Athletic Conference golf play, but the Chaparrals still retained a hunk of first place, and according to Coach Delnor Poss, "That's not a bad place to be at this point."

"Every team in the conference is real good this year," Poss expands. "New Mexico Military Institute and New Mexico Junior College are both strong and Odessa College has everyone back from last year's team, the team that won the championship."

Midland College is tied for first with NMMI, which carded a 285 to win the tournament Friday at Snyder and hosted by Western Texas College. MC's 302 was good for fourth behind 289s by OC and WTC, but the Chaps are tied for first place in the overall standings with nine points.

AFTER WINNING the opening tournament at South Plains College in Levelland the week before, last week's performance was a disappointment, "but it's a difficult little course. If you are not going good and the is wind blowing, it makes a big difference," Poss said.

One reason Poss isn't too disturbed is that the next and final segment of the fall WJCAC schedule will be a "home" tournament at Green Tree Country Club next Friday.

After that the teams recess until the three spring tournaments with the fall point accummulation carrying over to the spring tournaments.

There will be a couple of non-conference tournaments this fall, however.

POSS RECRUITED well during the off season and it is paying off. Randy Winn led the team to its record round of 274 at South Plains with a medal 66. He was low amateur in the Wyoming Open and won the Hale Irwin Invitational at Boulder before coming to MC. Winn is one of several freshmen who have made substantial contributions this fall.

John Sundberg, who shot a 68 at SPC, is from Longmont, Colo., and fared well in Colorado area tournaments.

Poss has two South African freshmen on the team in Steve Venter, from Gerniston, and Leon Van Rensberg from Orkney. Venter won the Transvaal Junior amateur for golfers 23 years of age and younger. "He is an excellent player and will do well when he becomes acclimatized to West Texas. Van Rensberg was runnerup in the Western Transvaal Amateur. He's a good prospect, a lefthander who is long off the tees.

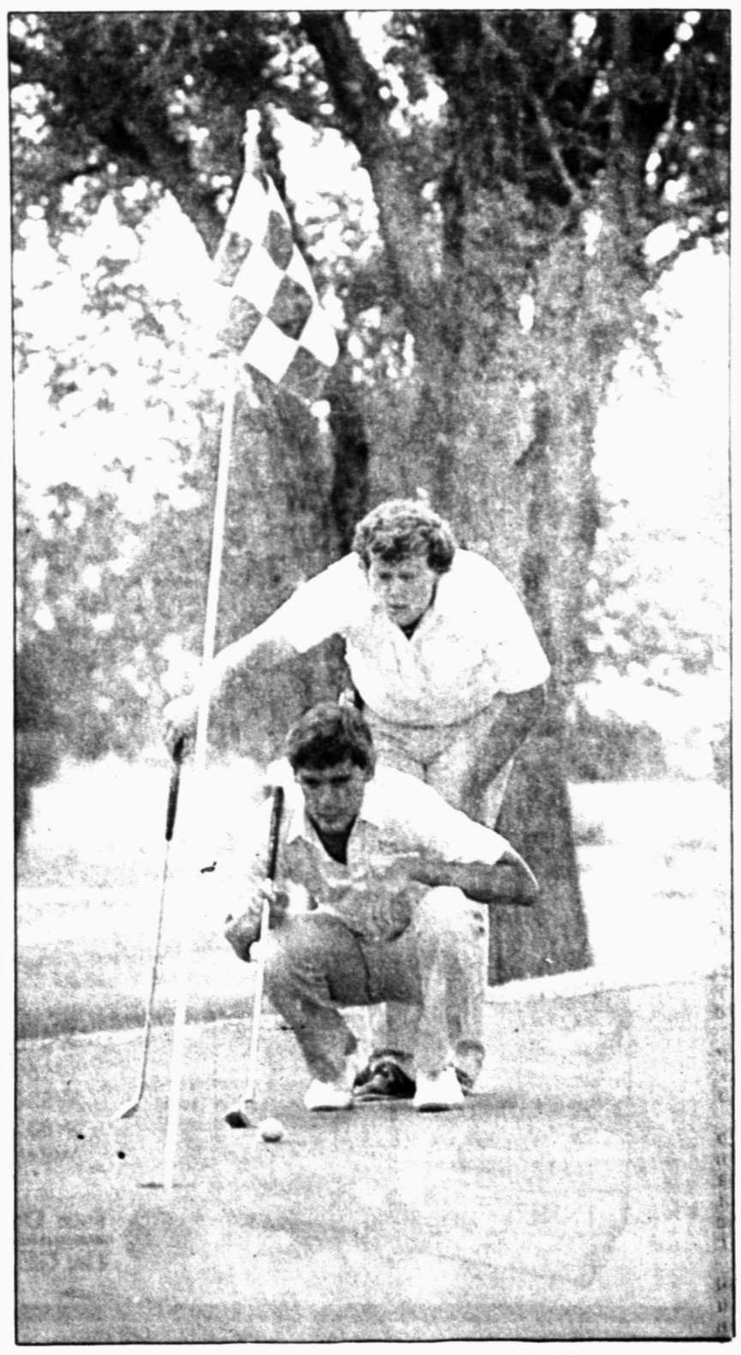
One of the steadiest of the MC freshman crop is David Pritchett, son of Ranchland Hills pro Bob Pritchett. "He was all-district at Midland High last year and placed third in the city tournament. Consistency is his game. He has been around 73 all year...and he's a lefty, too."

Chris Gomez, scholarship material in basketball and baseball as a high schooler in Kansas, heads the sophomores. Gomez played on an undefeated AAA basketball team in Kansas and was the team's second leading scorer. He also was the state medalist in AAA.

"He had a 69 at South Plains," says Poss, "and the week before was medalist in the New Mexico College Invitational at Hobbs with a 70-76-73—219 in very high winds."

JIM VOLLMER, San Antonio Churchill, Raymond Cole, San Antonio Lee, are the other MC sophomores. Cole turned in rounds of 72 and 77 in the first two WJCAC tournaments.

Also strong additions to this year's team were Jeff Fontanilla, Clovis, N.M., city champion, and Eddie Valdes, Del Rio freshman.



Ron Jaap Reporter-Telegram

Midland College golfers Chris Gomez, lining up the putt, and Randy Winn, looking over his shoulder, are a couple of good reasons the Chaparrals are tied for first place in the Western Junior College Athletic Conference golf standings.

1923 — Lou Gehrig of the New York Yankees hit his first home run in the major leagues. It came off Bill Piercy of the Boston Red Sox. On the same date 15 years later, hit hit his 493rd and last homer. It came off Dutch Leonard of the Washington Senators.

1935 — The Chicago Cubs won their 21st consecutive game without a loss or tie (the 1916 New York Giants won 26 with one tie) and clinched the National League pennant.

1936 — Walter Alston played his only major-league game as a late-inning substitute at first base for Johnny Mize of the St. Louis Cardinals. He made one error in two chances and was struck out by Lon Warneke of the Chicago Cubs in his only time at bat.

District 8-AA produces three unbeaten teams

By BRUCE CASTLEBERRY
Sports Writer

All three remaining unbeaten football teams in the area hail from one district, and two of those squads hit the road this week.

District 8-AA is producing power left and right. A year ago, Wall won the district and McCamey rolled to an 11-4 year as the runnerup.

Wall is having problems, but the McCamey Badgers are 3-0 and are on a roll. McCamey stopped Alpine 25-0 last week. The Badgers have given up only six points in three games.

Yet they don't lead the district in scoring defense. That honor currently is Greenwood's. The upstart Rangers weren't supposed to be ready to play in class AA, but they've dispelled those doubts. To date, Greenwood is unbeaten and unscored upon. The Rangers' latest victim was Presidio, 33-0.

McCamey visits Van Horn Friday and the Badgers are expected to go 4-0. Greenwood also has somewhat of a breather with a home date against Grandfalls.

The other fresh face atop District 8-AA is Reagan County. The Owls only won twice in 1983, but new coach Ronnie Reeger is establishing credibility fast as the Owl boss.

Last week the Owls beat their second of four class AAA teams in Ozona, 14-7. RC is 3-0, thanks to a ground game that has produced lots of yardage and the leadership of quarterback Bubba Havis. Havis was penciled in as the number two man behind junior Bobby Gunnels. Gunnels was hurt in the pre-season, though, and the Owls had to turn to Havis.

Penn State given edge over Texasless Longhorns

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Texas will be wearing its burnt orange uniforms when it meets Penn State on Saturday, but Giants Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J., will be anything but home sweet home for the Longhorns.

Yes, Texas will be the "home" team for this second meeting between two of college football's traditional powers, even though the Longhorns have sold 9,500 tickets to Penn State's 28,000.

Penn State will visit Texas in 1989 and the Longhorns return the favor in 1990. This contest was tacked onto the series as a "neutral site" showcase game. And even though Texas won a coin flip to be the "home" team, Coach Fred Akers says he's "not sure how neutral it is considering its location. "I would have preferred Amarillo."

The second-ranked Longhorns are a 2½-point favorite over the fourth-rated Nittany Lions, who are 3-0 and have improved each week. Texas has played only once, beating Auburn 35-27, and, says Akers, "I wonder where we are." The pick...Penn State 20-17.

Maxwell rejects Celtic cage offer

BOSTON (AP) — Cedric Maxwell, a free agent forward, has rejected a contract offer from the Boston Celtics and will not be at the National Basketball Association team's training camp when it opens Friday.

"We made our offer, they chose not to accept it," said Jan Volk, general manager of the Celtics. "As of right now, there are no further talks scheduled."

Maxwell's agent, Ron Grinker, and Red Auerbach, Celtics president, have discussed a contract for months.

"This morning I got the news that what Red offered (Tuesday) would be his final offer, and there would be no more coming," Grinker said Wednesday. "I had a two-hour conversation with Max about it, and we agreed that those figures are not acceptable."

Grinker said he hoped it was not the final offer, but "the next time I'll be available, because of the Jewish holiday, will be Friday night after sundown, so Cedric will definitely not be in camp Friday."

Under league rules, unsigned players cannot attend training camps. Gerald Henderson, a guard and also a free agent, also may be missing from the defending NBA champions' camp. He, too, is unsigned.

Grinker declined to give details of what Maxwell wants or the Celtics offered, but Maxwell reportedly is looking for a five-year contract at about $800,000 a year.

"I believe Red Auerbach has made an offer he believes is fair," Grinker said. "It just isn't acceptable. Considering Cedric's performance over the last seven years, considering the contract he's been under the last four years, which may not have been in keeping with what he should have been paid, the offer isn't acceptable," he said.

Auerbach said, "We made him a good offer, and I'm very surprised. What I can't stand is the way they always compare their players to other guys who make more money.

"There are a lot of other comparable players who make less, you know. Hey, don't talk to me about what other teams are doing. If they're all stupid and don't know what they're doing, why should we be stupid, too?"

Colorado player still comatose

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Critically injured University of Colorado football player Ed Reinhardt has had to undergo a second operation to reduce swelling in his brain and he remains comatose in a Eugene hospital.

Tom Lawry, a spokesman for Sacred Heart General Hospital, said that doctors made the decision to operate after there was evidence of new swelling during a 48 hour period.

He said Reinhardt underwent surgery late Tuesday and the increased swelling was confirmed by doctors. A monitor was installed during surgery to detect increased pressure in Reinhardt's skull.

"This does represent a setback in his recovery," Lawry said, "although he is stable and remains in critical condition."

A hospital nursing supervisor said that Reinhardt's condition was unchanged early today.

Reinhardt, a 19-year-old sophomore who was a standout tight end on the Colorado team, was injured when he was tackled by two University of Oregon football players in the fourth quarter of a game here Sept. 15.

He walked to the sidelines but collapsed and has been in a coma since. Doctors have said Reinhardt probably would not have survived had it not been for an injection he received at the stadium to reduce brain swelling.

Two Braves take free-fall ride

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Braves catcher Larry Owen said nobody panicked when he, catcher Bruce Benedict and others rode a free-falling hotel elevator down 10 floors.

Owen said he hit the emergency stop button and the elevator stopped. It eventually restarted and took them to their floors.

"It buckled our knees, and the next thing we knew we were shooting down," Owen said in an interview with The Atlanta Constitution. The fall came after Tuesday night's game in Cincinnati.

Hope still tops list of comics

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Bob Hope is still America's favorite funnyman after decades of entertaining troops overseas and presidents at home, according to a soon-to-be-released Louis Harris poll.

Richard Pryor, Eddie Murphy, Bill Cosby and Red Skelton rounded out the top five in the poll, which was conducted for a new syndicated television series called "America's Choice," Wylleen May, the series' producer, said Wednesday.

Hope, 81, is preparing to launch his 35th year on TV on Sept. 28, when NBC is scheduled to air "Bob Hope Presents the Hilarious Unrehearsed Antics of the Stars."

Some of the stars, who will appear with Hope live and on tape, are Bing Crosby, Lee Marvin, Dean Martin, John Wayne and Tom Selleck.

Anka

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Paul Anka sang a special version of "My Way" before more than 500 fans and onlookers as he was given a star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame.

Anka, who has written more than 400 songs, received the 1,788th star handed out by the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce at a ceremony Wednesday on Hollywood Boulevard near Mann's Chinese Theater.

Vice President George Bush and Gov. George Deukmejian sent telegrams and comedian Rich Little sent a congratulatory tape to the ceremony, attended by Mayor Tom Bradley, said Anka spokesman Michael Levine.

At the same time, Anka, 43, was awarded a citation from the American Federation of Police for helping subdue a mugger on a New York City street in May.

Anka's hits include "You Are My Destiny," "Puppy Love," "Lonely Boy" and "Put Your Head on My Shoulder."

In 1968, he bought the rights to a French ballad, "My Way," which Frank Sinatra made into a top-selling hit in 1969. Anka performed a version Wednesday written for the occasion.

Jolson

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Al Jolson Jr., the adopted son of late jazz singer Al Jolson, says cash demands from his music business make him unable to pay $5,100 a month in support payments his estranged wife is seeking.

Victoria Robertson Jolson, 37, and Jolson, disabled in a 1969 car accident, were the only witnesses at a hearing Wednesday on Mrs. Jolson's request for payments for her and the couple's infant daughter.

Mrs. Jolson's lawyer, Marvin Mitchelson, cited the $125,000 yearly income Jolson, 36, receives from a trust fund set up by his father, who died in 1950. Mitchelson also cited a $1 million stock portfolio and royalties from Al Jolson Sr.'s songs.

Jolson said he must infuse Al Jolson Jr. Enterprises — a recording studio, cassette copying and song publishing business — with $7,000 a month to keep it afloat and has costly, ongoing medical expenses.

Circuit Judge Muriel Robinson took the case under advisement.

Jackson

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After sifting through the requests that poured in after he promised to donate his "Victory Tour" proceeds to charity, Michael Jackson has settled on three groups to get gifts.

An unspecified but "very substantial" sum will be split among the United Negro College Fund, the T.J. Martell Foundation for Leukemia and Cancer Research and Camp Good Times, a Malibu summer resort for children suffering from cancer, said Jackson's manager, Frank Dileo.

"We were besieged with countless requests from worthwhile causes," Dileo said Wednesday. "Because so many merited consideration, Michael chose to endow three."

News reports have estimated that the 25-year-old Jackson and his brothers will make at least $40 million collectively from the 13-city tour, which ends in Los Angeles in December.

• • •

Taylor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Because of their work with charities, movie star Elizabeth Taylor and Sarah Brady, wife of White House press secretary James Brady, have won the "Women of the Year" award of the United Service Organizations.

"I remember going to hospitals when I was a child and talking with the wounded boys and watching the glamorous (USO) entertainers" during World War II, Miss Taylor said Wednesday at an award luncheon.

"I learned a lot about life, death from my visits," she said.

The actress was cited for her aid to the Israeli War Victims Fund and to Variety Clubs International.

She shared the award with Mrs. Brady, whose husband is recuperating from head wounds suffered during the assassination attempt against President Reagan in March 1981.

• • •

PERU, Ind. (AP) — Willi Wilno, who made his living as a human cannonball with the circus, died Tuesday at the age of 80.

Wilno toured the United States with the old Peru-based Hagenbeck Wallace Circus and made one of his greatest flights in 1939 at the World's Fair in New York. He retired in 1958 and began training performers for the local Peru circus.

• • •

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Ayatollah Hajj Seyyed Abdollah Shirazi, one of Iran's top religious leaders, died today at the age of 95, the official Iranian news agency reported.

Tehran Radio, monitored in London, said he died of a heart attack.

Iranian patriarch Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini described Shirazi's death as "a great loss to Iran," said the Islamic Republic News Agency report, monitored in Nicosia.

• • •

Facenda

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — John Facenda, 72, the dramatic voice of the National Football League highlight films and whose career in radio and television spanned more than 50 years, died Wednesday of cancer.

Facenda began his broadcasting career as a substitute sports announcer at WHAT and WCAU. He worked at the Ticker News Service in New York for two years before returning to Philadelphia as a radio annoucner at WIP. Facenda was best known in the Philadelphia area as anchorman for 25 years at WCAU-TV.

Manne

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Shelly Manne, a jazz drummer and composer who helped reshape modern music during a 45-year career, died Wednesday at age 64.

Manne started playing with such big bands as Bobby Byrne, Jo Marsala, Les Brown, Stan Kenton, Charlie Ventura and Woody Herman. He was a technical adviser to the movie "Man with a Golden Arm" and appeared in the films "The Gene Krupa Story," "I Want to Live," and "The Five Pennies." Manne also composed scores for the TV series "Daktari" and the films "Trial of the Catonsville Nine" and "Trader Horn."

Nobel winner recovering from brain surgery

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Alva Myrdal, a Nobel Peace Prize winner and former disarmament negotiator, was recovering today after a brain tumor operation, doctors said.

"Her condition is quite satisfactory," said professor Lars Granholm of the neurosurgical clinic at Karolinska Hospital north of Stockholm, where Mrs. Myrdal's brain tumor was removed.

The operation took place early this week but was kept secret until today.

"It won't be long until she can leave the hospital," Granholm added.

Mrs. Myrdal, 82, stood up to the operation surprisingly well in view of her age, said her husband, Gunnar Myrdal, a winner of the Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Science.

Alva Myrdal was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1982 for her lifelong work in the field of international disarmament.

Her husband's prize is not one of the five established under the terms of the will of Alfred Nobel. The economics prize was established as a memorial to him in 1968 by the Central Bank of Sweden.

'Cosby Show' highest-rated show of week

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bill Cosby's return to NBC after an eight-year absence from television was the highest-rated show of the week, but the network failed to win the weekly Nielsen ratings despite taking five of the first six spots.

ABC was first for the week ending Sept. 23, and NBC was second. CBS sank to third place in the last ratings week before the official start of the season, although the networks have been "sneaking" shows on early.

In all, NBC placed the premieres of three new shows in the top five. "Highway to Heaven" was third and "Hunter" fourth. The season premiere of "The A-Team" was fifth.

"The Cosby Show" is the comedian's first venture into television since his short-lived variety series in 1976. He first gained fame in "I Spy" in the 1960s, then starred in "The Bill Cosby Show" in 1969-71.

In his new show, he plays a doctor with an attorney wife and four children.

Two new ABC series, "Paper Dolls" and "Jessie," made their debuts in the Top 10: "Paper Dolls" seventh and "Jessie" 10th.

ABC was first in the A.C. Nielsen Co. survey with a network average of 15.3. NBC was second with 14.8 and CBS was third with 14.2. The networks say this means that in an average prime-time minute, 15.3 percent of the TV homes were tuned to ABC.

Here is the complete Top 10: "The Cosby Show," NBC, first; "60 Minutes," CBS, second; "Highway to Heaven," NBC, third; "Hunter," NBC, fourth; "The A-Team," NBC, fifth; "The Enforcer," NBC movie, sixth; "Paper Dolls," ABC, seventh; "AfterMASH," CBS, eighth; "Three's Company," ninth; ABC; "Jessie," ABC, tenth.

CBS' coverage of the 36th annual Emmy Awards, up against ABC's "Paper Dolls," was in 13th place.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♡.

What sets the expert apart from the average player is his ability to combine more than one line of play to achieve the optimum result. How many lines can you spot on this deal?

North-South have reached an excellent contract, and are strong favorites even though the opening lead has knocked out the only entry to dummy's clubs. You win the ace of hearts, cash the king of clubs and cross to the queen as West shows out. The 4-1 club break has put your contract in jeopardy.

You cash the ace of clubs and try the spade finesse. West wins the king of spades and forces out your remaining heart stopper, and you end up with only eight tricks.

You have had abominable luck in the black suits. By combining the possibility of running the clubs with the spade finesse, you have given yourself an almost 90 percent chance to make the contract. But you could have done even better. Have you spotted the additional chance?

At trick two you should cash the ace-king of diamonds and lead a diamond toward the nine. If the suit breaks 3-3, or if East started with two honors doubleton as is the case here, you have set up the nine of diamonds in dummy. If the diamonds don't behave, you have given up nothing. You can still go after the clubs and if they don't break, try the spade finesse. But as the cards lie, you will get home with one spade trick, two hearts and three tricks in each minor suit.

You have given yourself about a 4 percent additional chance for your contract. That does not sound like much, but bear in mind that casinos make millions every year with less of an edge.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Friday, September 28, 1984

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Brigitte Bardot, actor Marcello Mastroianni, comedian Jerry Clower, sportscaster Tom Harmon and CBS patriarch William S. Paley share your birthday. Also born on this date: the late great actor Peter Finch and Ed Sullivan. A change of residence sounds very alluring. Weddings that take place in October or May will enjoy special blessings. Writing projects could put you in a higher income bracket. Jot down unusual ideas for future use. A legal matter will be settled in your favor. Consult mate before agreeing to spend a lot of time on a special project. A young person needs more attention and guidance.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Someone in your immediate surroundings could be moody this morning. Diplomacy will help you avert a spat with a close friend or relative. Concentrating on your work will pay off handsomely.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Regular exercise will give you new vitality. Much to your relief, an intense relationship begins to cool off. Put your intellectual powers to better use. Romance lives up to your expectations.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Help will be easier to obtain when you act less anxious. Entrepreneurs have especially good luck now. A loan comes through faster than anticipated. A reconciliation proves long lasting.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Direct your anger at those who are deliberately causing problems, not at those trying to help. Romance begins to play a larger role in your financial planning. Mate is strongly supportive.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Playing games with loved one's affections will only get you into hot water. Meet payment deadlines even if some sacrifices are necessary. Authority figure is lenient with someone who admits a mistake.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Use your wit to settle a dispute. Travel enjoys highly favorable influences. Give an educational matter top priority. Romance becomes more exciting. Pursue your old goals while deciding on some new ones.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your work load increases, but so do profits. Marital stress should not be ignored. See if partner is willing to seek counseling. If single, you find yourself attracted to a business associate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Clear up any confusion regarding a personal relationship. The financial outlook is much brighter now thanks to the help of someone influential. Stick to a recent decision about romance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Teamwork makes a big difference where profits are concerned. Seeing yourself through someone else's eyes gives you new insights. A lucky investment brings peace of mind. Count your blessings!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A Gemini begins to influence your plans. Define work goals so that your associates know exactly where they should be headed. A home loan comes through. Celebrate quietly with loved ones.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Artists come into their own today. Take your time when making a major decision. A Scorpio or Aries brings you good luck. Avoid all forms of gambling. Consult a lawyer before signing contracts.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Surround yourself with positive people. Your financial fears are unfounded. A lively romantic adventure could give you second thoughts about settling down. Be sure you know what you want before making commitments.

Bass tournament

The Lite Beer from Miller Open Bass Tournament, sponsored by the Brownwood Chamber of Commerce, comes to Lake Brownwood, Oct. 6-7, with $9,000 in prize money and $1,500 guaranteed for first place.

Entry fee is $0 per person and contestants will weigh in only black bass. Registration at Sandy Beach Park will open Friday, Oct. 5, from 3 p.m. to midnight and on Saturday from 5 a.m. until 6:30 a.m. Fishing hours this year are 6:30 a.m. until 4 p.m. Saturday and 6:30 a.m. until 3 p.m. Sunday.

For further information, contact Terry Wilson in Brownwood at 646-9535.

Andy Bean LaJet's man to beat

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Despite the presence of Tom Watson, a last-minute entry, and PGA champion Lee Trevino, Andy Bean could be the man to beat in the LaJet Golf Classic.

"I'm playing about as good as I can play," Bean said Wednesday as he prepared for today's first round of the $350,000 event at the Fairway Oaks Golf Club.

"If I'd putted just a little bit last week (in the tour's richest event, the $1,122,500 Panasonic Las Vegas Invitational), it wouldn't have even been close," Bean said. "For the week, for 90 holes, the longest putt I made was eight feet.

"There's nothing you can do about it. It comes and goes. All you can do is keep trying. But it does get pretty frustrating."

Even with his problems on the greens, Bean was tied for the lead through 89 holes of the five-day, four-course tournament but could not match Denis Watson's winning birdie on the 90th hole and had to settle for his third runner-up finish of the season.

Bean, a winner at Greensboro in the spring, took some consolation in the $97,200 check for second place and boosted his earnings for the season to a career-high $404,760, third behind the Watsons — Tom Watson, who leads the money standings with $471,185, and Denis Watson.

Tom Watson, a three-time winner this season, made a last-minute decision to enter this tournament when Denis Watson's victory last week thrust him into a challenging position for Player of the Year honors.

Tom Watson, seeking a record sixth Player of the Year honor, leads the complicated point standings with 60. Denis Watson, who is skipping this tournament due to a history of allergy problems in Texas, is second with 58 with the season winding down to a close. Only five more official events remain on the schedule.

"I really want to win it (Player of the Year) again," Tom Watson said. "If I can win one more tournament this year, that just about ought to do it."

The other major contenders in the 153-man field chasing a $63,000 first prize include defending title-holder Rex Caldwell, Hale Irwin, Lanny Wadkins, Fred Couples and Mark O'Meara.

Pros blast Suntory's match play byes format

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) — Greg Norman wants it reduced to the world's best eight players. Nick Faldo, on the other hand, thinks it should be increased to 16.

But on one point both golfers agree: Byes are definitely unfair in the $183,000 Suntory World Match Play Championship that was scheduled to begin today.

Norman beat Faldo 3 and 2 in last year's final and while last year's runner-up was to be playing Craig Stadler in the first round, Norman was given an extra day to rest and prepare to play the winner of the match between Gary Player and Tommy Nakajima in Friday's second round.

"A field of 12, with four guys getting byes, is unfair," Faldo said on the eve of the world's premier head-to-head golf tournament. "It could easily be increased to 16."

That is exactly what happened last year when four additional players were placed in the draw to mark the 20th anniversary of the tournament. The experiment worked but was not repeated and this year, the event reverts to its previous format.

"I agree byes are unfair," Norman said. "Everyone should play the same number of rounds. I might get to play 135 shots less than someone who is not seeded. But I say let's reduce the tournament to eight players. That's the perfect number, it would mean three instead of four rounds of 36 holes and would involve the cream of the sport."

Norman, one of four seeded players, would meet British Open champion Seve Ballesteros of Spain in Sunday's final, worth $54,000 to the winner, if the seedings hold up.

Ballesteros, who arrived here late Tuesday, planned to play his first practice round today while others are in their first-round matches. Like Norman, he has won here twice and on Friday plays the winner of the first-round contest between Faldo and Stadler.

"I love match play golf," Ballesteros said. "It is very exciting yet there is less pressure. You don't have to worry if you hit a double-bogey like you do in stroke play."

Winless since this year's British Open at St. Andrews, Ballesteros has had a number of second- and third-place finishes. "Frankly, I would be happy to win the (British) Open for the next 10 years if I won nothing else," he said.

The other seeded players are Masters Champion Ben Crenshaw and West Germany's Bernhard Langer, who is at the top of the European money-winnings list and finished in a tie for second in the British Open. They also have byes into Friday's second round.

The veteran in the 12-man field is Player, the gritty South African who is one month short of his 49th birthday.

Player, who has won this tournament a record five times, has failed to appear only once since its inception in 1963.

He qualified this year as the leading South African player after tying for second in the PGA.

"That got me back in but I dread to think what I will have to do next year," he said.

FSL bypass women's bid

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The Florida State League bypassed a bid by an Atlanta group to bring a minor-league women's team into the league by awarding franchises to two other groups, the league announced Wednesday.

The Philadelphia Phillies received the new Clearwater franchise and the existing Daytona Beach franchise went to a group of Tennessee businessmen headed by Larry Schmittou, president of the Nashville Sounds of the Southern League.

Four investor groups had sought the two slots, which increased FSL membership to 12 teams. The two that lost out were the Baltimore Orioles and the Florida Sun Sox, the proposed women's team.

Bob Hope, a former Atlanta Braves vice president now associated with the Sun Sox, called the decision a "vote for tradition."

"I was not in the league meetings but I think it's folly to say women weren't an issue," said Hope, describing the action as "disappointing."

His group held tryouts for women at Georgia Tech and 55 showed up over a two-day session. Hope said his group met the financial obligations, proved women were interested and were willing to play in any city.

George MacDonald Jr., president of the FSL, said that "equal and due consideration" was given to bids by the Sun Sox and the Orioles. He said however, that Schmittou's group had the structure, organization, finances, and had been associated with baseball for 13 years.

Asked if there were pressure from team officials to exclude the women, MacDonald said there was "none whatsoever."

Uecker honored

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Former major-league catcher Bob Uecker was honored in a pre-game ceremony Wednesday night for his contributions to baseball as a remarkable player, announcer, entertainer and local hero.

Uecker was unaware of the presentation made by the Miller Brewing Co. and the Milwaukee Brewers. He was presented with his very own stadium seat, which was a replica of the seat in the upper grandstand in section 29, row 20, seat 9. Uecker's special stadium seat was dedicated with with his name engraved.

Known as "Mr. Baseball," Uecker is in his 13th season as a broadcaster for the Brewers.

Uecker played with the Milwaukee Braves, St. Louis Cardinals and Philadelphia Phillies and has gained fame for his beer commercials including one where he placed in the cheapest seats in a ballpark.

Now, Gunnels is healthy and itching to play, but Havis may be tough to dislodge. It's a pleasant problem.

Big Lake hits the road again for a test against District 7-AAA's Coahoma team. Thus far the Owls have already knocked off Crane and Ozona, two of the five teams within that 3A district.

Crane scored for the first time last week, and that was enough to sustain a 7-0 win against Stanton.

The 1-2 Cranes face winless Alpine, who got a rude 25-0 dusting from McCamey last week. Crane lost its' other home tilt by a 6-0 count two weeks ago against Reagan County. The raw, inexperienced Cranes are slowly coming of age and could be meaner at home now.

Rankin, 1-2, gets a chance for another win after coming from a 12-0 deficit to edge Water Valley last week, 15-12. The Red Devils go to Forsan Friday.

Lamesa and Andrews have the week off as District 2-4A begins next Friday.

Official brings 'energy' for GOP volunteers

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

Steam drifted above the coffee cups clutched in the hands of the workers as they gathered around Robert Odle.

The job of the assistant secretary of energy on this 47-degree morning was to serve as a traildriver, pushing the local Reagan/Bush volunteers onto an enthusiastic path toward a victory party.

Coming from a breakfast earlier this week with other Republican leaders in Washington, D.C., Odle said, "The enthusiasm around this country for where we are is unbelieveable. We are on the edge of an unbelieveable historic event."

The local campaign headquarters chairman later pointed out it took three days to fill their volunteer slots instead of the 10-day recruiting blitz.

Odle had come to Midland to speak before a group of petroleum engineers Tuesday evening and stopped by the Reagan/Bush '84 headquarters the next morning on his way to the airport. He is responsible for coordinating the DOE's legislative programs and public and consumer affairs programs.

He had chatted with each volunteer before they gathered around for a brief pep talk.

If the enthusiasm continues across the country until election day, Odle said, Republicans could make strong inroads into getting closer in control of the House of Representatives. Not since 1950-51 have the Republicans been in the majority in the House, he said.

"You can get very complacent when you're this far ahead," Odle said, "and you lose it. The opposite is happening. Everyone realizes we're on the verge of this great opportunity.

"Come here every day if you can. Get those margins up. Don't let this be your last day to show up."

Odle said the Republicans are looking not only for a presidential victory, but a sweep that will cover all 50 states.

Deaf, hearing impaired still suffering from limitations

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

Despite increases in employment possibilities during the past few years, the nation's deaf and hearing impaired still suffer from limitations.

"Other disabilities separate people from things," said Mike Collier, Texas Rehabilitation Commission counselor in Midland. "But deafness separates people from people."

There are an estimated 300-400 people of working age who are hearing impaired in the Permian Basin area, said Collier. His primary role as a counselor in Midland and Odessa is helping the hearing impaired obtain jobs or vocational training. In Big Spring, he carries a general disability caseload.

Although jobs in white collar areas, such as printing, accounting, and clerking are opening for the deaf, a few doors still remain closed.

"The biggest problem I've seen is the inability to communicate with employers and co-workers," he said. "Communication, sometimes, is knowing what's going on but what most people know is through the grapevine or whatnot; deaf people don't have a means for that type of information."

Using the telephone, interviewing for a job and "selling yourself, trying to explain to an employer that they ought to hire you" are difficulties that only the deaf and hearing-impaired can understand, he said.

And he should know.

A graduate of Texas Tech University with a bachelor's degree in social work, Collier lost his hearing in an accident at the age of 18.

He then found a new interest, earning his master's degree in rehabilitation.

The estimated 1 million deaf and hearing impaired Texas residents are among those honored this week, designated as National Deaf Awareness Week. According to Collier, the large numbers of those who fall into this category make it one of the largest disability groups the Texas Rehabiliation Center serves.

Mike Collier

There have been improvements in services to the deaf and hearing impaired, Collier said. With telecommunication machines that are hooked up to phones, methods of communication have increased.

"But you're still limited in contacting other individuals unless they have a TTD/TTY," Collier said. The telecommunication devices have decreased in cost, however, from about $600 to $200, making them more financially accessible for individuals.

But not enough people or businesses have invested in the machines, Collier said.

A challenge facing the community is educating them about the different services that are available.

Referral systems, in which a person with a TTY/TTD acts as a go-between for a deaf or hearing impaired person and a hearing person have helped as have interpreter services. These services, sponsored by the Texas Commission for the Deaf, allow the deaf or hearing impaired to have someone with them during job interviews, new training, or shopping, depending on the circumstances.

"But you still are dependent upon your interpreter," he said.

Many of the hearing impaired can receive assistance from the Texas Rehabilitation Commission at no cost if they meet certain eligibility requirements. Counseling for the disabled is free, Collier said.

Other organizations providing assistance to the deaf include the Southwest Collegiate Institution for the Deaf in Big Spring, which is under the auspices of Howard County Junior College. The institute has an enrollment of 100-plus.

The Regional School for the Deaf in Odessa provides education for the hearing impaired from birth through high school graduation. And a local social club for the deaf provides activities and support for those who are hearing impaired.

Common misconceptions also have blocked communication between the deaf and hearing, Collier said.

— Hearing aids. "People think hearing aids make them hear and that's just not so. It amplifies sound but this does not mean a person is able to process sound."

— Speech. "A deaf person's speech has been thought of as a measure of a person's intelligence and this is still true today."

Collier said methods of improving communication include verifying the hearing impaired person understands what is happening around him before one begins trying to talk to him.

To start a conversation, face the person and speak slowly, he said. Write a message if needed. If the subject of the conversation is changing, let the person know. Remove cigarettes or gum when talking to the hearing impaired.

Most of all, he said, "Be patient. And that works both ways."

Firm seeks removal from 'list'

By LAWRENCE BUDD
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Lawyers for Herb Graham & Associates Inc., owners of the Stardust clubs in Midland and Odessa, are working to have the Odessa company removed from the "blacklist" of the American Federation of Musicians.

A temporary restraining order has been issued calling for the AFM and its Wichita Falls local affiliate to remove Graham & Associates, who own about 30 nightclubs in Texas, Oklahoma, Arizona and New Mexico, to remove the company from its International Defaulter's List.

The Odessa entertainment firm, which also owns Graham Central Station rock clubs and the Cheers nightclub in Odessa, claims it has lost money through cancellation of several planned concert dates as a result of the AFM listing.

The suit claims the Wichita Falls local "threatened musicians with fine or expulsion from Union membership in the event they enter into any contract of employment" with Graham & Associates.

The publication in the AFM's magazine of the dispute over musician's salaries allegedly owed by its Wichita Falls Stardust Club "has interfered with business and contractual relationships between (Graham & Assoc.) and all musicians holding membership," according to the suit.

The AFM lists about 275,000 members in 800 locals in the U.S. and Canada.

The blacklisting apparently is the result of a disagreement over wages owed to the band, "Texas Best," for performances at the Wichita Falls club in June 1983. The suit alleges the contract was altered by a band member, after it had been signed, extending the band's stay at the club.

"Texas Best" violated the terms of its contract "involving themselves in the possession of narcotic drugs, and further violated their agreements to abide by the rules of (Graham & Assoc.) with respect to the use of alcoholic beverages and use of tobacco products upon the stage area," according to the suit.

A letter from the supervisor of the Wichita Falls club to a member of the band indicates the contract ended July 10 and explains that "Texas Best" was not rehired because band members had illegal drugs in the club on June 5, took drinks without paying for them and smoked and drank on stage after being advised not to by the club's management.

In August 1983 the AFM accepted the local union's claim made by the band for $7,750 in wages. In two letters sent to the Wichita Falls club, the AFM notified its supervisor that Graham & Assoc. would be placed on the International Defaulter's List if the claim was not settled.

Inmate files $1 million lawsuit

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Donald Charles Walter, a 29-year-old Midland County Jail inmate who is complaining of inadequate medical attention, has filed a $1 million federal lawsuit against Midland County, the county physician, Dr. Patrick Y. Leung, and Jail Lt. Luis Romero.

Walter, who said he suffered from seizures, migraine headaches and loss of vision, complained of delayed treatment and of Leung's alleged failure promptly to send him to a neurologist.

"That is frivolous and without merit," Mark H. Dettman, first assistant county attorney, said of Walter's grievances. "We have provided him with an abundance of medical attention."

Walter is being held in jail under several charges, including burglary, forgery, unauthorized use of a motor vehicle and theft.

The inmate, who was booked into County Jail on Aug. 1, claimed that Leung prescribed him Dilantin (phenytoin sodium) medicine for epileptics "which I have never been one."

He said he has suffered seizura disorder, migraine headaches and vision loss and has had several blackouts.

$737,018 pledged to United Way

From Staff Reports

A total of $737,018 has been pledged so far for the United Way of Midland's fall fund-raising campaign, it was announced today by George Irish, vice chairman of the fall campaign. The figure represents 38 percent of the campaign goal of $1.95 million.

Division totals include: Special Gifts — $78,000; Pacesetters — $8,795; Education — $5; Residential — $9,225; Small Business — $3,550; Wildcat (including the area west of Midland Drive up to the county line) — $6,100; Independent Oil — $1,500; Professional — $7,880; Trailblazers (small oil companies, service and drilling companies) — $42,444; Government/Services — $33,721; Major Oil — $214,901; Intermediate Oil — $58,382; and Major Firms — $272,515.

Today's report meeting, the first of four to be held during the campaign, was attended by over 200 volunteers who have been working on this year's campaign. The report was emceed by KCRS radio personalities JoAnn Bagwell and Ed Clements with the assistance of several members of Midland Community Theatre's production of "Annie."

The next report luncheon is scheduled for 11:45 a.m. on Oct. 4 at the Yucca Theatre.

Credit cards...they're buggers of temptation

Just like attitudes, credit cards are free for the asking.

I've had far more of them than I have today. Blessed relief.

They're buggers of temptation.

Years ago, in another personal era and place, I did some wheeling — no dealing — with credit cards.

Ah, it was a great feeling, for example, to stroll into a fine clothiers, get the attention of a valet from the salesman, and act really particular and discerning as he dresses you up in expensive wears.

Then, it was great feeling of affluence to smugly pull from the wallet one of those "prestigious" plastic credit cards, sign your name without a care of paying (right away) and walking out smartly.

That's about as close as I've ever been to being an unencumbered millionaire.

And the credit-card ploy was (and could be today) an effective way of getting those desirable wants, such as the camel-hair jacket, cashmere sweater, wool pants and fine shoes.

To be dressed in the likeness of a country gentlemen without financial concerns was for me a grand feeling...for awhile.

Simply, it "feels good" to be dressed up for "the occasion" in fine clothing.

All the while, I was driving my beloved Scout, the four-wheel drive motorcar, which had been up hills and minor mountains, up dams, into pastures and ponds and later was to go into fences and into limbo. But I, an odd fellow at times, am disposed toward incongruities. I am not adverse to mixing plaids, solids and stripes.

But one particular credit-card company no doubt thought — incorrectly and improperly, of course — that I was an incorrigible thief.

This — at first — sweet-voiced bill collector called by telephone from afar. I dutifully listened and, of course, promised, to pay, which, of course, I did...eventually.

I wasn't the epitome of promptness.

The company wanted payment now.

Well, I was insistence in paying off the bill at my own convenience. I told the "sweet thing" so.

She turned somewhat terse and caustic.

"Go to the bank and borrow the money to pay us," she suggested.

"Why do that?" I asked. "I'll just pay you as if I were paying off an installment loan."

That wasn't in her programming.

"No," she said. "That won't do...Pay us before the end of the month or else."

She was indignant and so was I. My guilt became defensive.

"What are you going to do?" I asked. "Send out some tough thugs to beat me up?"

"I just might."

I paid — not as promptly as she would have liked. But I paid the price of using a credit card somewhat beyond my means.

The morale: Don't if you can't.

MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

The City of Midland has gone to court to force Lawrence H. Hahn to clean up a solid waste disposal dump on his property near Interstate 20 and Cottonflat Road.

But Hahn claims he's not operating a dump — that people are dumping their waste on his land without permission, and that the city is among the worst offenders.

The waste is being dumped in an old caliche pit that was dug during the construction of Interstate 20 years ago.

According to court records, Hahn claims he and his sister Joyce A. Hahn of Medina County, who co-owns the property, "have been victimized by third parties."

Hahn claims people started dumping on his land because dumping is allowed on nearby city land. He further claims that the city and the State of Texas, which through the Department of Health is joining the city's suit against him, are among those dumping illegally on the property.

"We will be filing a cross-claim against both the city and the state," said Hahn's attorney, Cygne L. Nemir, who is also his daughter.

The city is seeking a temporary injunction from Judge Pat Baskin of the 142nd District Court to force Hahn to put up a fence with a locked gate and signs prohibiting dumping, and to order him to cover the dump site with two feet of compacted earth within 30 days.

The same injunction is requested against S.E. Etheredge and the C and C Coating Co., of Odessa, the owners of an adjoining site which is also being used as a dump.

The landowners were cited in August by the Department of Health for 14 violations of the Solid Waste Disposal Act, but the Hahns claim they aren't using proper procedures for the simple reason that they aren't operating a dump at all.

"But that's irrelevant," said Assistant City Attorney David Reagan. "They're allowing solid waste disposal on their land," which is illegal because the act holds property owners responsible for unlawful dumping whether they encourage it or not.

Reagan said he didn't know of the city dumping any solid waste on the sites or on any city land nearby.

"The city years ago apparently dumped some dirt out there, but no solid waste," he said.

According to Reagan, the city is taking legal action because the sites are a public nuisance and a potential health hazard.

"The material they're putting in there can degrade and rot, and when we have rain and runoff, it carries it down into the water table," he said. "Plus, the odor is offending the neighbors."

Baskin has already issued a temporary injunction against the owner of another unlicensed dump site a few miles down the Interstate from the Hahns' property.

The injunction orders Jess Laubinger to close his dump near the Midkiff underpass of Interstate 20, and put out the fires which have been burning intermittently for months.

Laubinger is in the process of applying for a permit to operate his dump, according to Robert Evans, his attorney.

"He's locked gates, put up an fence and done everything he can" to prevent fires from starting, Evans said.

Evans said a fire which started in mid-September has been put out, but according to Linda Wyatt, a regional engineer for the Department of Health in Lubbock, "It's been burning since Sept. 14."

Burglary probe leads to arrest

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — Four weeks of investigation into a series of East Odessa burglaries resulted in Wednesday's arrest of three suspects and the recovery of about $10,000 in merchandise linked to possibly 10 of the burglaries, according to police reports.

Detectives with the Odessa Police Department obtained a search warrant for the house at 1503 N. Adams St. early Wednesday morning. Upon serving the warrant about 8:15 a.m., police found property valued at $8,000 to $10,000.

In city jail this morning after being taken into custody at the North Adams Street address Wednesday were William Herman Moore, 21, and Randy Scott Moore, 27, who listed another eastside address as their residence, and Linda Margaret Gray, 25, who listed the North Adams address as her residence.

William Henry Moore was arrested on a burglary of a habitation warrant, while the other two were taken into custody at the scene and are awaiting arraignment on felony theft charges.

Investigators had worked all night Tuesday, with the final break coming when an informant told police where the merchandise was located, said Lt. Rusty Baker. The method of operation used in the burglaries was similar, leading detectives to believe the incidents were linked.

Seized in the search were three television sets, a microwave oven, dining room furniture, frozen meats, jewelry, stereo equipment, ceramic statues of a panther and cobra, wall pictures and drug paraphernalia.

The merchandise apparently was taken in 10 burglaries of eastside residences over the past several months, said Baker.

"I know you're standing there saying, 'Reagan was supposed to abolish the Department of Energy.' So what am I doing here," he asked rhetorically. Odle contended that Reagan had eliminated essentially one of two functions of the DOE — that of regulation. And the battle to deregulate natural gas will start again next year.

The department has taken a back seat in the administration, losing its visibility. Instead of the DOE setting limits on gasoline and watching the prices go up, few people even know who the name of the Energy Secretary. "We think that's terrific," Odle said.

Energy, he admitted, isn't a major campaign issue. But Reagan still wants to abolish the remaining regulatory aspects of the DOE and turn the rest of the department over to the Interior Department.

Bettye Calvert, headquarters chairman, said there was little problem in finding volunteers for the Midland office. With nine phones set up, the volunteers work in shifts starting at 9 a.m. from Monday through Saturday.

"We're calling to identify Reagan and Phil Gramm voters and then to find out if those people are registered to vote," said Mrs. Calvert.

"We've had no problem getting volunteers this year. I was afraid people would be complacent."

After Odle finished his talk, the volunteers drifted to different tables, pulling out sheets of names, addresses and phone numbers and picking up the phones. After hearing he had called a cab to be taken to the airport, they volunteered their services.

"No," he said. "You should be on those phones right now and not driving me to the airport. Get busy."

BLACKLIST

The lawsuit alleges the AFM violated the law by accepting the claim and "threatened" Graham & Assoc. with placement on the list in these letters.

"The proper forum for for the collection of wage claims by the organization known as 'Texas Best' should be in the courts of the State of Texas," charges the suit in opposition to the blacklisting.

As recently as August and September 1984, the AFM has used threats against its members to keep them from signing contracts with the Wichita Falls Stardust Club, according to the suit.

Graham & Assoc.'s attorney, Royal Caswell, declined comment on whether the blacklisting had affected the hiring of musical acts at any of the Midland/Odessa clubs owned by Graham & Assoc., but noted the AFM publication, "International Musician," is distributed to all members in the U.S. and Canada. W.G. Peeler, the Wichita Falls local's agent, also declined comment on this case. She said the local could designate in its filing whether or not the blacklist should be extended to other clubs owned by the same company.

A letter from the AFM's central office in New York City to the local's president advises him that "Graham and Associates, DBA Stardust Club, 3013 Garnett St., Wichita Fall, TX, 76308" would be placed on the list for the default in wage claim. It also notes that the notice would contain the notice.

"The (notice) is for the guidance of your members and travelling members who may be booked to appear for the above," explains the letter.

Ector County District Judge Joe Connally issued the temporary restraining order Sept. 19, with a meeting set for 10 days after service of notice of the orders to the union and local.

The suit asks that a temporary injunction be filed after this meeting, keeping the AFM from continuing the blacklisting and the AFM or local from threatening entertainers considering signing contracts with Graham & Assoc.

Finally, it asks for a permanent injunction against both defendants and payment of damages incurred by Graham & Assoc.

"I never once was seen by a doctor while I was in or out of a seizure," Walter said in his complaint to U.S. District Judge Lucius D. Bunton.

He said he refused the medicine prescribed by the county physician.

Walter, who complained that his "mind is not functioning up to par," was tested on the electroencephalograph (EEG) at Midland Memorial Hospital upon Leung's order Aug. 7 and that the testing did not show signs of seizural disorder but "that I had a nerve disorder of some type."

Later, he said, Dr. John Howlett treated him and prescribed him "some" anti-depression medicine, "talked to me about my state," and said that he did need to see a neurologist. But Walter said the jail staff procrastinated in taking him to a neurologist.

Educator vows to fight payment of bond forfeiture

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Dr. Ruby Morris, owner of M&M Bailbonding Service, said Wednesday she will "fight" to keep from paying a $10,000 bond forfeiture ordered by 238th State District Court Judge Vann Culp.

The judge ordered the forfeiture after her client, 32-year-old Alton Joe O'Neal, failed to return to court for sentencing after he was convicted of burglary on Aug. 28.

Dr. Morris said she is blameless and lived up to her responsibility: O'Neal appeared in court. He was convicted of burglary and then, along with the jury, was sent out to lunch before punishment was determined. But she said "somebody" in the courtroom was "naive" to think O'Neal, an ex-convict, would return from lunch for a possible life sentence.

"He showed up for trial, and they let him walk off," said Dr. Morris, a Midland educator who has been in the bailbonding business for about a year. "My responsibility was for him to show up for trial, which he did, so that's not my fault. I'm going to fight it (the forfeiture), because I fulfilled my responsibility."

"He was there; they (jurors) turned around and found him guilty," she said.

O'Neal was still on bond when the judge recessed court for lunch. And the bond was to guarantee his reappearance.

The jury, unaware that O'Neal had not returned from luneh, handed him a 20-year sentence. Due to his prior convictions, O'Neal could have been sentenced up to 99 years or life in prison.

The judge is in a judicial conference in Galveston this week.

On May 11, Dr. Morris "wrote" the bond on O'Neal upon the request of his mother, an acquaintance of hers. Ordinarily, she said, her son, R.J. "Bubba" Morris Jr., writes the bonds. Dr. Morris' signature got O'Neal out of jail, where he and a cohort had been placed after Midland police caught them fleeing a church which they had burglarized on May 7.

O'Neal had twice failed to make timely courtroom appearances. His first no-show was on July 25 when he did not appear for his pre-trial hearing in Culp's court. That day, the judge issued a judgment nisi — a bond forfeiture — against Dr. Morris' M&M Bailbonding Service, but O'Neal was arrested the next day and appeared for the hearing. That forfeiture is to be dismissed, said Janet Copeland, assistant district attorney who prosecuted O'Neal.

O'Neal is still at large, noted Ms. Copeland.

At the time of his first forfeiture on July 25, Ms. Copeland said defense attorney Ed Shelby remarked, "'I wish they would keep him up in jail,' but they didn't." The judge continued O'Neal on bond after he appeared in court the next day.

Ms. Copeland said if Dr. Morris doesn't file a response by the end of the week — a month after the second forfeiture order — to show good cause why O'Neal did not appear in court, then the state could file a lien on her unencumbered property which she uses to back up her bonds. That would suspend her bailbonding business until the state got the $10,000 or until the matter was otherwise satisfied.

Two Odessa burglary suspects remain jailed

An Analysis

Two Odessa burglary suspects remained in Midland City Jail this morning on two counts each of burglary of a habitation. Bond for each count was set Wednesday at $100,000 by Justice of the Peace Bob Pine.

The men, arrested following a high speed chase Tuesday, are suspects in at least two residential burglaries in which jewelry totaling about $13,000 was taken. The jewelry was identified and returned to the burglary victims, police said.

In jail are Manuel Lujan, 33, and Paul Curtis Gipson, 29.

Police apprehended the men after obtaining a description of their vehicle from construction workers near a residence burglarized Tuesday afternoon.

Shots were fired at the vehicle in the chase by Midland police detectives. According to emergency medical services reports, Gipson was transferred to Midland Memorial Hospital's emergency room to receive treatment for a lower back injury, suffered when he was hit by a car during the chase.

An 18-year-old Midland woman reported she was assaulted early this morning by a white male at a gas station. According to reports, the woman said she had stopped around 3 a.m. at the Exxon station at 4400 W. Illinois to see if it was open. The man, who she said she didn't know, called her a name and she approached him to see "what the problem was," reports said.

The man allegedly hit the woman in the eye with his fist, knocking her to the ground where he began kicking her in the back and arms. She said she was able to get up and run to a convenience store across the street for help. The police were notified of the assault from the emergency room at MMH at 4 a.m.

The victim gave an address in the 3100 block of Delano.

Almost $5,000 worth of guns were reported taken in a burglary Wednesday of the Herald Brockman residence, 4201 Thornberry. According to reports, four shotguns, two pistols, a rifle and a rifle scope were taken sometime between 7:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. Total loss was placed at $4,875.

Equipment and tools worth $8,500 were reported stolen from a pickup owned by the FDIC and parked in a lot at 303 Air Park. According to reports, the burglary took place between 7 p.m. July 23 and 10 a.m. Wednesday.

Mary Helen Batie, of 2109 Butternut, reported the burglary of her home between 10 a.m. and 9 p.m. Wednesday. A television set, home computer, cash and assorted rings valued at a total of $1,284, were missing.

Four radial tires valued at $325 each were reported stolen from a 1983 Toyota parked in the southside lot of Sub Suburu Co., 3200 N. Big Spring. The theft apparently took place between 9 p.m. Tuesday and 8 a.m. Wednesday.

Linda Beal of 2901 Racquet Club Drive said a mobile home, parked in the alley behind her residence, was burglarized between Monday night and Wednesday morning. Taken were items worth $1,055. Jay Carlton Beal Jr. of the same address reported Tuesday the loss of $1,655 worth of items taken from his locked vehicle, parked in the driveway.

About $900 in cash was reported missing from The Sunglass, 4511 N. Midkiff. An employee of the store told police the money was taken sometime between Aug. 4-23, reports stated.

A $350 pair of diamond earrings and a $50 gold chain necklace were reported missing from the apartment of Barbara Whitead, 5100 N. A St. The burglary apparently took place between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. last Thursday. There were no signs of forced entry.

Almost $300 in cash was taken along with candy bars and coins from a candy box at Starline Printing, 504 E. Cowden. According to an employee, the burglary, similar to one that happened Friday, took place between 5 p.m. Tuesday and 7:30 a.m. Wednesday. Police believe juveniles are responsible for the burglaries because candy wrappers were found and calculators, typewriters and radios weren't taken. Entry apparently was gained by breaking a $140 window, and then breaking through sheet rock to climb into the room through the ceiling.

Music workshop to be held

Midland and Odessa music teachers associations will sponsor a music workshop and lectures presented by composer and piano teacher Carolyn Jones Campbell of Dallas.

The workshop will be from 9 a.m. 3 p.m. Saturday in the Allison Fine Arts Building at Midland College.

The workshop is open to all interested persons. Fees are $15, $5 for students.

THE TRUTH ABOUT TURNOVER

Friends of Dallas Smith want you to know the truth . . .

In the primary campaign, Gary Painter said, "He (Smith) FAILED to decrease the turnover rate as he promised in 1976 & 1980."

When Dallas Smith took office as sheriff, officer turnover rate was 69%.

Now, for the last full year (1983) the officer turnover rate was 27%. To date, for 1984, officer turnover rate is 24%.

Note: Rate does not include clerical and dispatchers.

Gary Painter worked as an officer for the Midland County Sheriff's Office. He should know that as a result of Dallas Smith's management, better qualified officers were hired as salaries increased and working conditions improved.

The officer turnover rate was greatly reduced due to Dallas Smith's leadership.

Utilities to hike rates

AUSTIN (AP) — West Texas Utilities, which had sought a $30.8 million rate hike, on Wednesday agreed to a $12.4 million increase that would be offset by refunds due customers because of overcharges for fuel, a Public Utility Commission spokesman says.

Rick Hainline, PUC information officer, said the proposed settlement includes $838,000 in refunds to the company's 170,000 customers in 52 counties.

The agreement faces review from a commission hearing examiner and the three-member commission. The proposal was recommended by the PUC staff.

After the refunds are distributed, West Texas Utilities customers probably will wind up with slightly lower rates than they now pay, according to Hainline.

The refunds result from overcharges on the fuel portion of the company's monthly bills.

Sakowitz offers gifts

HOUSTON (AP) — For a mere $5.3 million, this year's Christmas catalog from Sakowitz offers you and 100 friends a chance to take a slow boat to China aboard a private cruise yacht.

It also offers you 22 ounces of "ultra pine, odorless, smokeless" lamp oil for $4.50.

The two gifts are the most expensive and the cheapest offered by the Houston-based specialty store in its 16th annual catalog for the season. The theme for 10 "ultimate gifts" is romance.

The discriminating and wealthy don't have to settle for the cruise. For $2.25 million, Sakowitz will sell you a life-size replica of Rome's Trevi fountain, but be forewarned. The price does not include delivery or installation.

Still too pricey? Maybe Sakowitz can interest you in a miniature gold castle containing 170 diamonds and more than 600 rubies, sapphires, emeralds and pearls for $1 million — again, the price does not include delivery.

But for the indigent among its customers, Sakowitz offers a "romantic compatability forecast" based on numerological calculations of Ellin Dodge Young. The catalog promises a 30-minute cassette for only $71.

Doctor ends boycott

HOUSTON (AP) — An anonymous physician has agreed to care for a teen-ager left in a vegetative state during an operation, ending what her parents say was a boycott by local doctors frightened by a malpractice award.

The parents of Jill Newsome said Tuesday a Houston physician who read news stories about doctors refusing to take the case agreed to treat the child free. He asked that his name not be released, the Newsomes said.

"The actions of this individual have restored some of my faith in mankind," said Earl Newsome, the girl's father.

He and Gail Newsome, the 15-year-old's mother, had said doctors told them no one in the medical community would care for their child because of an $11 million award they won in a malpractice suit.

The Newsomes say they have been unable to collect the money from Dr. Gerald Johnson, whose assets are tied up in bankruptcy court. The family won the judgment against the doctor, in 1982.

Office won't prosecute

HOUSTON (AP) — Randall County prosecutors say they will not seek indictments against two Houston attorneys accused of leaking grand jury testimony to a reporter.

John Davis, assistant district attorney in the Panhandle office, said his office decided not to prosecute the case against Terry Gaiser or James Stafford.

The Houston attorneys were assigned as special prosecutors to a case against Potter County Judge Benjamin Bynum, who was indicted on charges of misusing public funds and perjury.

Store's ad draws objections

AUSTIN (AP) — State Sen. Bob Vale says he saw "blatant" politics when he came across a newspaper ad featuring his opponent modeling a skirt and blouse for a San Antonio department store.

But candidate Cyndi Taylor Krier's campaign manager says Vale is "uninformed" and that Ms. Krier wouldn't object to Vale doing department-store modeling.

"It was not a political ad," June Deason said. "Joske's chose five women they considered to be outstanding women achievers. Ms. Krier was one of them. It had nothing to do with politics on our part or on Joske's part."

She added with a laugh that "if (Vale) wishes to model a pair of slacks, or a dress for that matter, we have no problems with that."

Vale, D-San Antonio, is not laughing. He said Wednesday he will show the Tuesday newspaper advertisement to state election officials.

"I was very surprised to see it," he said of the almost full-page ad. "It looks like nothing else but a blatant violation of election campaign laws."

The ad was part of Joske's "Achievers" series, a collection of ads honoring San Antonio women. Robert Mettler, store president, says no politics was intended.

The copy next to the large picture of Ms. Krier said, "We commend Cyndi Taylor Krier, attorney at law. Excellence is Cyndi Krier's trademark."

That is followed by about 30 lines recounting Ms. Krier's career. There is no mention of her candidacy for the state Senate. Nevertheless, Vale contends it's a political ad that should have been labeled as such.

The last lines about Ms. Krier said, "Because looking professional is an important part of the job, Ms. Krier wears separates by Chaus for Petites. Shown here, black and red stadium plaid skirt, $45. Mandarin collar blouse in black, $45."

"Just looking at it, I have very little doubt it is a political ad," Vale said, adding that Ms. Krier may have violated the law by allowing the ad to run without the disclaimer required on political advertising.

Ms. Krier was selected as an "achiever" before she became a senatorial candidate, Mettler said, and the selection was made by polling former "achievers."

Single punch kills prison inmate

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A state prison inmate ended an argument with another prisoner with a single deadly punch, a prison spokesman says, bringing this year's death toll in violence-plagued Texas prisons to 14.

Clifford R. Shropshire, 31, was declared dead at the Darrington Unit shortly after 4 p.m. Wednesday, chief prison spokesman Phil Guthrie said.

Guthrie said that after an argument, the assailant killed Shropshire instantly by slugging Shropshire's head once with his fist.

"It was not a fight," Guthrie said. "It was just one blow."

Prison spokesman Charles Brown said Brazoria County Peace Justice Walter Matthews has ordered an autopsy on Shropshire, the 14th Texas prison inmate killed by another prisoner this year.

The 13 others were stabbed to death, many with home-made knives.

Shropshire was serving a 15-year term at the unit about 40 miles south of Houston after being convicted of involuntary manslaughter and failing to stop and render aid in Denton County. He was admitted to the prison in December 1981.

Guthrie said prison officials were questioning a 22-year-old prisoner serving a five-year sentence for burglary of a habitation in Hunt County.

Also Wednesday, another inmate, 24-year-old Richard Bobadillo, was stabbed in an exercise yard at the Darrington Unit, Guthrie said.

He said Bobadillo, who was stabbed eight times with a home-made knife during a basketball game, was treated at the unit and taken to Angleton-Danbury Hospital.

Guthrie said there was "no reasonable explanation" for the attack.

Mattox pushes child support

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — It's time to stop making heroes out of absent parents who fail to make child support payments, Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox says.

"For far too long, the figure of the father behind on his support payments has been a comical, sometimes even heroic character in American popular culture," Mattox said in a speech Wednesday.

He spoke at a conference for child support enforcement workers from Louisiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas.

"Country and western songs like Jerry Reed's 'She Got the Goldmine; I Got the Shaft' and Roger Miller's 'Dang Me (They Ought to Take a Rope and Hang Me)' have glorified irresponsible fathers and contributed greatly to the present problematic public attitude," Mattox said.

"We have got to make it socially unacceptable for absent parents to abandon their children," he said.

Mattox, himself the product of a "broken home," called the failure of parents to pay child support a "national disgrace." He predicted that in the next 10 years, at least one-third of the children in America will be on welfare before they are 18 if present child-support payment trends continue.

"That's 21 million children," Mattox said. "It is immoral for American fathers to shirk their duty and leave 21 million children to be supported by American taxpayers."

The attorney general said he grew up "in what used to be called a broken home," but he added, "I was one of the lucky ones. My father always paid his child suppport.

"Depriving children of nourishment, of clothing, of medical attention and of educational opportunities is just as abusive as physical abuse and just as much a crime," Mattox said.

He noted that 53 percent of all children owed court-ordered child support do not receive the full amount and more than half of those receive nothing.

"American parents, mostly fathers, are cheating their children out of $4 billion each and every year," he said.

Mattox said since his office took over child support enforcement in Texas in September 1983, collections have increased by 40.59 percent, up from $18 million to $25.3 million.

"If we don't at the very least provide for our children, we will lose their souls and the soul of the nation," he said.

Officers can't work at clinics

DALLAS (AP) — City Police Chief Billy Prince has ordered officers not to work off-duty jobs at abortion clinics in an effort to "maintain political and moral neutrality," officers say.

"In the same breath, I'm saying we would not allow them to work for anti-abortion forces, either," Prince said Wednesday. "Abortion is a sensitive moral, political issue and we shouldn't be seen even in an implied way to be taking a side."

Charlotte Taft, director of the Routh Street Women's Clinic, said that abortion rights supporters in Dallas are already concerned about "our vulnerability," and that she was disappointed by the decision.

"The way the city turns its head is a serious concern," she said. "It is not right for people who are here to provide medical care to be afraid."

Prince has suggested that the clinics hire private security officers.

Ms. Taft called private security "less than the best" and said that as a tax-paying business, the clinic and others like it should be allowed to hire police officers.

Prince issued the order in July, after a patrol officer asked permission to work off-duty at an abortion clinic and was turned down by Assistant Chief Leslie R. Sweet. On an appeal, Prince upheld Sweet's decision.

The clinics will still be protected in case "an incident develops," Prince said.

Hiker unhurt

SALIDA, Colo. (AP) — A Fort Worth, Texas, man who had been reported missing by his wife after failing to return from a day hike on Mount Shavano walked out unhurt on Wednesday, the Chaffee County sheriff's office reported.

Dan Childers, 37, had been camping with his wife, Diane, at a National Forest Service campground in the area on Tuesday.

Energy loan officer innocent in failure of Penn Square Bank

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The energy loan officer of the defunct Penn Square Bank broke into tears as innocent verdicts were returned on 23 federal charges stemming from a string of bad loans that led to the bank's closure more than two years ago.

The jury was to resume deliberations today on two remaining counts against William G. Patterson.

The innocent verdicts on 23 counts of wire fraud, misapplication of bank funds and making false entries were returned Wednesday after the defense and prosecution agreed to accept a partial verdict when the jury said it was deadlocked on two wire fraud counts.

U.S. District Judge Lee West told the jurors to resume deliberations today after 10 of the 12 panel members said they thought they could reach a verdict.

Patterson, 34, wept as the verdict was read, then broke into sobs again a few minutes later when he embraced his wife, Eve.

Federal prosecutors declined comment on the partial verdict as they left the packed courtroom.

Patterson's attorney, Burck Bailey, said he was not surprised at the verdict so far but said that he and Patterson would reserve comment until a decision was returned on the final two charges.

The jury found Patterson innocent on four counts of wire fraud, 17 counts of misapplication of funds and two accusations of false entries.

They were divided on two additional wire fraud counts.

The prosecution accused Patterson of being the man behind a series of bad energy loans that played a part in the bank being closed by the federal government on July 5, 1982.

The defense argued that Patterson was being made a scapegoat for the bank's failure.

United Auto Workers president Owen Bieber, right, along with vice president Don Ephlin discuss some of the concerns expressed by members of the General Motors council meeting in St. Louis. The council, made up of union officials from across the country, voted to accept the contract between General Motors and the union. The agreement must now be voted upon by the membership.

TI pledges investigation cooperation

DALLAS — Texas Instruments said Wednesday it is cooperating fully with the Inspector General in the Department of Defense in its investigation of military semiconductor testing procedures since TI brought the matter to the attention of the U.S. government earlier this month.

TI Corporate Relations Vice President Norman Neureiter said the Office of the Inspector General is investigating the entire matter and will determine what action if any, is appropriate.

"TI is continuing to cooperate with the Inspector General's Office and we are confident that our cooperation will be duly noted as evidence of our responsiveness as a leading government contractor," Neureiter said.

After discovering the problem in a self-audit, TI in a series of meetings Sept. 4-6 informed the Defense Department that certain military semi-conductor devices may not have been fully tested in compliance with customers' specifications. In a previous news release, TI had also emphasized that it is a technical issue of circuit testing procedures and not a question of performance or reliability of defense systems in which the microcircuits are used.

Union head predicts auto contract okay

ST. LOUIS (AP) — United Auto Workers President Owen Bieber predicted the rank and file will overwhelmingly approve a contract with General Motors Corp., endorsed by a council of local leaders despite some grumbling that it doesn't do enough to protect jobs.

The union's 300-member GM council, representing 149 locals in 27 states, endorsed the tentative pact by a wide margin with a show of hands Wednesday and sent it on to 350,000 UAW members for ratification.

Workers begin receiving details of the complex settlement this week. Voting will follow, and all ballots must be in by Oct. 14, said chief UAW bargainer Donald Ephlin.

Despite dissenters who said the three-year contract would not do enough to protect jobs — the union's primary goal in bargaining with GM — Bieber said he was "confident the rank and file will approve it overwhelmingly."

Bieber, at a news conference following the seven-hour council meeting, said the agreement wouldn't explicitly stop GM from "outsourcing" — moving jobs overseas and to non-union shops.

But he said an array of programs designed to help displaced workers would make GM think twice about the practice.

The pact includes provisions for a $1 billion fund to pay and retrain workers who lose their jobs to subcontracting and automation, and a "golden handshake" under which non-retirees can be bought out for $10,000 if they have less than two years' seniority to $55,000 for those with 25 years' seniority.

"It makes it awfully costly to outsource, though, doesn't it?" Bieber said.

The settlement — far more complex than previous UAW auto contracts — was reached Friday after the UAW staged six days of spot strikes that crippled the nation's largest automaker.

Dollar down; Bullion drops

LONDON (AP) — A drop in some U.S. interest rates and fears of intervention by West Germany's central bank pushed the dollar lower in Europe early today. Gold bullion prices also fell.

After opening lower, the dollar rebounded to regain some ground lost in volatile New York late Wednesday. By midmorning, however, the dollar remained below its previous day levels in Europe.

Frankfurt dealers said there was no evidence of dollar-selling by West Germany's Bundesbank on the open market. But investors remained wary of possible intervention by the central bank to keep the dollar from rising, they said.

-3.0310 West German marks, down from 3.0880.

-2.5045 Swiss francs, down from 2.5275.

-9.3015 French francs, down from 9.4625.

Local oilman to meet with creditors

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Midland rancher, oil operator and polo enthusiast William B. "Willie B" Wilson is to meet with his creditors Oct. 10 in Lubbock in federal bankruptcy proceedings on his Wilson Ranches.

Wilson has filed a petition for bankruptcy under the U.S. Bankruptcy Act's Chapter 11 for reorganization of his business.

The 1:30 p.m. Oct. 10 meeting of creditors in the U.S. Federal Building is to set times for determining the dischargeability of certain debts of the ranches.

"He must have made a tremendous amount of money in his life," Wilson's attorney, Thomas J. Griffith of Lubbock, said Wednesday. "There's some huge debts involved." However, Griffith declined to disclose the amount of debts against the ranches.

Eventually, he said, settlements with the creditors should "make everybody happy."

U.S. Bankruptcy Court judge is Bill H. Brister of Lubbock.

Wilson, 70, filed for bankruptcy last June in the Lubbock Division of the federal court system's North District of Texas.

Wilson, who grew up on a Sutton County ranch south of San Angelo, earned a degree in law at The University of Texas, delved into Aberdeen-Angus cattle breeding, expanded his ranches, and became deeply involved in the oil and gas industry.

Wilson had started eight companies, which two years ago employed about 1,000 people, according to a Reporter-Telegram article on Wilson.

In 1982, when Midland was experiencing an oil boom, Wilson said it's been his practice "to start small and not make any costly mistakes...It's improper to call me cautious, but on the other hand, I'm willing to take chances. ... I don't take chances beyond what I can recover from."

August budget deficit nation's second largest

The Reagan administration is sticking to its earlier budget deficit projection for the fiscal year that ends Sunday despite a $33.5 billion August shortfall, the second biggest installment of red ink for any month.

The August deficit put the shortage for the first 11 months of the fiscal year at $192.1 billion, well above the $174.3 billion imbalance the Reagan administration forecast for the full fiscal year.

But in the wake of Wednesday's report by the Treasury Department, officials said that an expected $18 billion surplus in September, the last month of the fiscal year, would bring the deficit in line with the administration's prediction.

The August deficit of $33.5 billion was second only to the $33.9 billion monthly record of last May. The government said spending totaled $88.7 billion in August, while revenue was $55.2 billion.

The Treasury blamed the size of the August deficit on the government's need to mail September Social Security and other benefit checks early because the first of the month fell on a Saturday.

This accounted for $17.5 billion of the extra deficit in August, officials said. But this money will not have to be paid in September and will account for most of the surplus this month, said James Chambers, an official in the department's Bureau of Government Financial Operations.

As a result, the administration stood by its deficit forecast for fiscal 1984, which ends Sunday. The record yearly deficit was $195.4 billion in 1983.

In other economic developments Wednesday:

—Contracts for new construction fell 1 percent in August from July adjusted for seasonal variations, the F.W. Dodge division of McGraw-Hill Information Systems Co. said. For the first eight months of the year, contracts were up 10 percent to $144.7 billion, the report said.

—Agriculture Secretary John Block said beleaguered farmers can expect little relief in the form of higher crop prices next year, but that he has no plans to increase federal subsidies.

—Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan urged Congress to delay passing punitive legislation to force more countries to allow U.S. banks inside their borders.

Rolm sale to broaden IBM's base

NEW YORK (AP) — International Business Machines Corp.'s proposed acquisition of Rolm Corp. would broaden IBM's presence in the office-automation market and help it in the drive to combine the transmission of voice and data into a single system, analysts said.

The companies announced Wednesday that IBM intends to purchase Rolm, a leading maker of telephone switching equipment, in an exchange of $1.25 billion in securities.

The deal is subject to clearance by federal antitrust authorities and approval of a majority of Rolm shareholders.

Justice Department spokesman Mark T. Sheehan said no decision had been made by Wednesday evening on whether the deal would be reviewed by the department's antitrust division or by the Federal Trade Commission.

IBM already owns 23 percent of Rolm, which competes in the $3 billion U.S. market for advanced telephone-switching equipment, called PBXs or private branch exchanges.

Analysts said it would help IBM challenge American Telephone & Telegraph Co., a leading PBX supplier that recently jumped into the commercial computer industry.

Michael Geran, telecommunications analyst for E.F. Hutton Group, said IBM may have regarded acquiring Rolm as an alternative to beefing up its own research and development spending in the areas in which Rolm is proficient. "Rolm is giving IBM a foundation, and IBM can now accelerate the rate of progress being made on the upper floors," he said.

Harry Rosenthal, a limited partner at the investment firm Bear Stearns & Co., said he suspects IBM decided to buy Rolm to show foreign customers and regulators that it was in full support of the relatively small company's products.

IBM said that under terms of an agreement between directors of both companies, it would exchange $70 in bonds for each share of Rolm stock. IBM already owns about 5.4 million of Rolm's 23.3 million shares, so the cost of acquiring the remaining 17.9 million shares is about $1.25 billion.

Texas Railroad Commission to offer computer service

AUSTIN (AP) — A fill-in-the-blank computer program developed by the Texas Railroad Commission will better prepare cities to negotiate natural gas rates, commissioner James Nugent says.

"In the past, the cities have come to the bargaining table at a disadvantage in terms of data and the expertise to interpret the data," Nugent said. "This program is one more step to help them come to the table better prepared."

Nugent displayed the computer program at a news conference Wednesday, and said it should remove "complications and mystery" from the setting of gas utility rates.

Texas law requires city councils to decide gas rates, but appeals come to the Railroad Commission, which has the authority to provide assistance to cities in rate cases.

Nugent said the computer program "is written so cities can take the information provided by the gas company and simply fill in the blanks in the various parts of the program. From that point, the program will give the city council a bottom line cost per thousand cubic feet of gas."

He added that "we can make any one of a number of adjustments to the company's numbers and know immediately what effect those adjustments will have on the company's profit picture and the consumer's pocketbook."

Demonstrating how the program works was Ben Boyd, a revenue analyst in the commission's Gas Utilities Division and also mayor of Pflugerville, a small city the program might help.

Nugent said the program is designed for small computers that already are available to most Texas cities with more than 5,000 residents.

"It is our intention to have these programs in the Railroad Commission Gas Utility Division Library," Nugent said. "Any city that wants to avail themselves of it can come to the Railroad Commission and check the program out."

OIL & GAS DIGEST

Tipperary completes well for 1,680 bopd

Tipperary Corporation through its wholly-owned subsisiary, Titan Exploration Inc., completed a 1,680 barrel of oil per day well at its No. 1 H&H Unit, twelve miles southeast of Quanah in Hardeman County, Texas. Titan Exploration Inc. is the operator and owns a 27.5 percent interest in the well and the 685 acres surrounding the well. The company is scheduled to drill 12 additional prospects in the Hardeman Basin during the coming year. Other interest owners include Ben J. Fortson, Enstar Petroleum Co., Robert S. Folsoml and Paulaura Exploration Company.

The well was tested at a daily at a rate of 1,680 barrels of oil and 184,000 cubic feet on a 18/64 inch choke with 1,074 pounds of flowing tubing pressure from open hole between 8,465 feet to 8,474 feet in the Mississippian Chappel formation.

DOE encourages energy-related inventions

An energy-saving pumping system and a process for producing low-sulfur coal are among the 25 inventions the Commerce Department's National Bureau of Standards (NBS) has recommended so far this year to the Department of Energy (DOE) for assistance.

Through the Energy-Related Inventions Program, conducted jointly by NBS and DOE, inventors can receive help in getting their ideas from the workshop to the marketplace. NBS provides, at no cost to the inventor, evaluations of energy-related inventions and recommends those it considers promising to DOE. In turn, DOE provides financial support and/or help in marketing a inventor's idea.

One of the recently recommended inventions is a pumping system developed by Kai-Chih Chang of Richland, Washington, the first woman wth an invention to be recommended to DOE by the bureau. A common problem with centrifugal pumps is that they need to be protected from overheating when they are operating at low capacity since the fluid being pumped and the pump itself can become very hot. To prevent overheating and damage to the pump, most industrial systems continuously recirculate the fluid being pumped. This system automatically recirculates only when cooling is needed. It potentialy could reduce the energy used by conventional centrifugal pumps by .8 to 12 percent. With more than a million of these pumps being used in the U.S., the energy savings could be substantial.

New Mexico Oil & Gas Association to meet

SANTA FE—Goverment officials will welcome delegates to the annual meeting of the New Mexico Oil & Gas Association which convenes Sunday, Sept. 30, and runs through Tuesday at noon at the Santa Fe La Fonda Hotel. According to Association president G. Dee Williamson of Roswell, more than 1,200 persons are expected from throughout New Mexico, Texas, Colorado, Oklahoma and Wyoming.

This marks the 56th annual meeting of the Association, a voluntary organization made up of more than 400 individuals and companies operating in every segment of the oil and gas industry in New Mexico. Members of the Association account for more than 90 percent of all the oil and gas produced in New Mexico, and a similar high percentage of oil and gas taxes, royalties and employment.

The principal luncheon speaker will be Pat Paulsen, perennial presidential candidate from Los Angeles. Paulsen is best known as the man who raised the art of political campaigning to a new high, and the art of comedy to a new low.

Steelworkers keep union post

CLEVELAND (AP) — In the most divisive debate of the United Steelworkers convention, delegates rejected a proposal to eliminate one of two $65,000-a-year vice presidential posts.

The decision Wednesday to retain five top officers handed President Lynn Williams a victory over Vice President Joseph Odorcich, one of Williams' chief rivals for influence in the 740,000-member union.

Odorcich, who backed Treasurer Frank McKee's unsuccessful campaign last March against Williams, told 3,200 delegates meeting in the Cleveland Convention Center there was not enough work and too little money in the union's general fund to keep two vice presidents.

Largely because of massive steel industry layoffs, USW dues-paying membership has plunged by about 400,000 people since 1980. The union's general fund was halved to about $20 million over the last year.

"There is enough work in this union for more than five officers if they want to work," Vice President Leon Lynch said.

Williams' backers won an open vote on the issue, and rejected a demand by Odorcich's supporters for a roll call.

Nationalities and personal backgrounds are also reflected in the split. Williams is the college-educated son of a Springfield, Ontario, minister. Odorcich began mining coal at age 15, and his family was literally thrown out of a company house in southwestern Pennsylvania shortly after his father died in a mine accident.

In his campaign, McKee told union members no Canadian should run the U.S.-based union. Williams won by 192,767 votes to 136,264 votes overall thanks largely to a heavy turnout among USW members in Canada. McKee claimed he won in the United States.

A bitter exchange developed between Williams and Odorcich on the same day that Democrat Walter Mondale, the union's choice for president, brought cheering delegates to their feet during a pro-labor speech. With steelworkers chanting in unison "We want Fritz," Mondale labeled President Reagan a union-buster and pledged to impose mandatory ceilings on surging steel imports.

Later Odorcich, who plans to retire in March 1986, claimed Williams had "demoted and degraded" four international staff members because they had opposed the president.

Continental approves buyout of energy firm

Los Angeles Times,
Washington Post News Service

STAMFORD, Conn. — Continental Group Inc. stockholders voted overwhelmingly Wednesday to approve a $2.75 billion buyout of the conglomerate by Kiewit-Murdock Investment Corp.

Better than 77 percent of the combined voting power of the common and Series A, B and C preference shares — or 35,546,298 votes — approved the merger, the largest private takeover ever. Less than 1 percent opposed the purchase, which needed a two-thirds majority for approval.

S. Bruce Smart Jr., chairman of Stamford-based Continental, who chaired the meeting at the company's headquarters, said the merger still needs approval from the insurance commissions of New York and Georgia. A hearing before the Georgia commission has been scheduled for Oct. 9.

Smart said in a prepared statement that while he expects the approvals in the near future, "we are unable to predict a precise date for the closing."

Wednesday's meeting took less than half an hour, with few questions asked from the floor.

Smart said he would wait until after the merger before deciding whether to accept an offer from Kiewit-Murdock to remain as chairman, a post that earned him $690,000 last year. The terms of the job are still too uncertain, he said.

The board of directors voted earlier this year to give Smart and 12 other top officials generous severance packages, sometimes called "golden parachutes," which often pay millions of dollars to an official if he is fired or resigns after a change of control. Such pacts have been assailed as a waste of corporate assets.

Smart, however, is not covered by such a contract. According to company filings with federal regulators, the chairman "has informed Continental Group that he does not intend to have such an employment agreement."

Smart said Wednesday afternoon that his reasons for refusing the pact were largely personal. He declined to elaborate, saying he did not want to pass judgment on what anyone else decided to do.

Kiewit-Murdock is a joint venture of Peter Kiewit Sons Inc. and Murdock Investment Corp. formed solely for the takeover. Kiewit, an employee-owned mining and construction company based in Omaha, Neb., owns 80 percent of the venture. Murdock Investment Corp is owned by David H. Murdock, a Los Angeles financier with major holdings in Occidental Petroleum and Flexi-Van.

Muse announces new flights to California

DALLAS (SWN)–Muse Air will provide its first-class style of service and the first smoke-free flights ever to San Jose, Calif. from five major markets in Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana, effective October 28, it has been announced by John Mumaugh, vice president-sales and advertising.

Dallas-based Muse Air, the regional airline that pioneered totally no-smoking flights in July 1981, will offer two daily departures to Las Vegas and will feature the only direct service to Houston and Austin, TX from San Jose. Muse Air's schedule will also offer continuing service to New Orleans. Connections to Midland/Odessa, TX and Tulsa, OK will also be available.

The airline will offer two convenient eastbound departures at 7:00 a.m. and 1:45 p.m. from San Jose to Las Vegas, Austin, Houston and New Orleans. A third non-stop flight will depart at 10:00 a.m. on Saturdays for Las Vegas.

Westbound flights to San Jose are conveniently scheduled, with departures from Houston at 10:00 a.m. and 7:00 p.m. and from Las Vegas at 12:10 p.m. and 8:30 p.m., and 8:15 a.m. on Saturdays.

Muse Air's mileage-based fares on all flights will be the lowest available on both Business Class and Leisure Class flights. The San Jose-Houston fares, for example, will be $119 and $159 one way, and bookings will be accepted beginning Monday, October 1. EXPANSION OF LAS VEGAS HUB

Las Vegas will emerge as a new Western hub for the airline with the new October 28 schedule.

In additon to the newly introduced non-stop San Jose service, direct service to New Orleans will be tripled, and the airline's first non-stop service will be added to Los Angeles International, Austin and Midland/Odessa from Las Vegas.

"Las Vegas has succeeded well beyond Muse Air's initial projections," said Mumaugh. "Since we started service in late AApril to Las Vegas with one daily round-trip flight to Houston, Muse Air has increased frequencies more than 600 percent. Load factors on this route quickly surpassed 60 percent levels, and they've stayed consistently high ever since."

Mail: Dash of information adds spice to life

By LINDA ANDERSON

From spice charts to Irish heritage and scholarships, a wealth of free information comes in the mail:

— McCormick & Company Inc. (sometimes known as Schilling) is offering a chart in a brochure designed to assist people who want to know more about herbs and spices and at the same time watch their salt intake. "Low Sodium Spice & Herb Chart" also contains several recipes and can be displayed in the kitchen for easy reference. To receive the free chart (single copy) write McCormick/Schilling's Low Sodium Spice & Herb Chart, McCormick & Company Inc., Dept. LOW, 11350 McCormick Road, Hunt Valley, Md. 21031.

— Ortho Information Services has three new softcover books available for those interested in plants and gardening. The new book "Gardening Techniques," ($9.95) is a "fully illustrated encyclopedia (which) describes over 65 techniques for gardening indoors as well as outdoors," according to Ortho. The book titled "All About Evergreens," ($5.95) contains "all the information and inspiration needed to select, plant and care for evergreen trees and shrubs," according to the book's publishers. The third book, "Landscaping with Wildflowers & Native Plants," ($5.95) is described as offering "a wealth of tips for designing and incorporating these beautiful and adaptable plants into the garden." These books, along with several others from Ortho Information Services, can be found at book chains, home centers, garden centers and other retail outlets selling Ortho products.

— People with Irish names are in luck. Aer Lingus and Shannon Castle Tours are offering (until March, 1985) an Irish vacation package with a heritage theme. According to the sponsors, the program "has almost 1,000 different family name histories on file in Ireland." This vacation package features a personal greeting from heritage representative Katriona Flanagan on arrival at Shannon Airport. Ms. Flanagan presents all heritage travel documents including a family name history (with the story and origins the traveler's clan and where it ruled); a heritage map marking counties and monuments associated with the traveler's family name; "Ireland's Heritage," a book detailing Irish houses, castles and other places of interest; and "A Guide To Heritage Tracing," a do-it-yourself guide on tracing direct ancestors in Ireland.

Accommodation choices are from small family-run hotels to luxurious castles. A "self-drive car," complete with unlimited mileage, is included. From October, cost for this seven-night package, including airfare to Shannon, is $650 per person to stay at Irish farmhouses and $724 per person with hotel accommodations.

For more information write Richard Becker, Irish Heritage, Aer Lingus, 122 East 42nd Street, New York, N.Y. 10168.

— Scholarship program for women in health professions is now available for women 25 or older who need financial assistance with their studies in health-care fields. The program, announced by Business and Professional Women's Foundation, "will be funded with an annual grant of $50,000 in each of the next three years by the New York Life Foundation." Qualified applicants must be 25 or older and must be enrolled in "vocational or academic programs of study which will enable them to improve their chances for advancement, train for a new career or enter/re-enter the job market in the health care field." Scholarships are $250-$1,000, and can be used for such expenses as tuition, books and/or education-related expenses including child care. For more information write New York Life Foundation Scholarship, Business and Professional Women's Foundation, 2012 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

BETTER BUSINESS

Tenant safeguard measures outlined

By LINDA TRUITT

"I moved out of the Prairie Dog Apartments last October and my security deposit hasn't been returned. What can I do?"

It is common for landlords to require a security deposit to be paid before the tenant is allowed to move into the new residence. Because landlords in the past made a practice of refusing to return security deposits, the Texas Legislature passed a law designed to help tenants recover security deposits that should be returned.

As the name implies, a security deposit is a specific sum of money given to a landlord guaranteeing him the tenant will pay the rent before moving and protecting him against any damage the tenant may purposely or accidentally cause to his property. Since it is not considered rent, when the tenant leaves the security deposit may only be retained by the landlord under certain conditions. To insure the security deposit will be returned the law specifies the tenant must:

— Give advance notice of termination if so specified in bold, underlined print in the written rental agreement;

— Fulfill all rental agreement obligation such as staying the full term as defined in the lease and meeting all rent payment deadlines;

— Provide the landlord with a written notice of termination and a forwarding address;

— Follow the cleaning instructions outlined in the written lease agreement or, if the agreement is oral, leave the premises clean.

If the tenant has followed those procedures the landlord is required to return the security deposit within 30 days or provide a written description and itemized list of all deductions. The following may be deducted from the security deposit:

— Any charge specified in the lease or any charge resulting from the tenant breaching the rental agreement;

— Charges for damage or wear and tear resulting from negligence, carelessness, accident or abuse (he cannot deduct for normal wear and tear);

— Unpaid rent and other unpaid charges listed in the rental agreement such as late payment charges, unreturned keys, etc.;

— Reasonable cost of cleaning if the tenant failed to properly clean or to follow the written cleaning instruction before moving.

If the secruity deposit is not returned within 30 days, the tenant has the right to sue for three times the amount of the security deposit, attorney fees and $100. The landlord must prove he did not act in "bad faith" by retaining the deposit.

If the landlord withholds money for damages but, in bad faith, fails to provide the required written, itemized list of charges, the tenant can sue for the entire security deposit plus attorney fees.

A tenant should protect himself by checking the apartment's condition with the landlord or manager before he moves in and after he moves out. Each time, the tenant should itemize all damages and if necessary take pictures. Tenants who have problems collecting security deposits may contact the Better Businss Bureau, 563-1881.

No free rides on family trip

FALLS CHURCH, Va. (AP) — A family of two adults and two children budgeting for a road trip this year should plan on spending roughly 3 percent more than a year earlier.

One travel association estimates a cost of $160 a day for 300 miles of daily travel. This allowance includes $72 for meals, $63 for lodging, and $8 per 100 miles for gas and oil for a car averaging 20 miles to the gallon. The remaining dollars provide a small cushion.

DEAR ABBY

Casual affection might lead to child abuse

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I witnessed something last evening that distressed me greatly. My aunt and uncle were trying to bribe their 2-year-old daughter with candy to hug and kiss some relatives the child had never seen before. The child was obviously shy and didn't want to put on a phony show of affection to people who were virtually strangers to her.

With all the horror stories about children being sexually abused these days, parents should not encourage their children to hug and kiss people they have never seen before — even if they are relatives. It makes that child all the more vulnerable to sexual abuse should a relative (or a stranger) try to take improper liberties in the future.

All children should be taught that it's OK for them to say no if they don't want to be touched, hugged or kissed. — A CONCERNED NIECE

DEAR CONCERNED: You are concerned with good reason. We've all seen well-intentioned grown-ups encourage reluctant youngsters to "go kiss Uncle So-and-So" without realizing the incipient danger you point out.

DEAR ABBY: We received a wedding invitation from a casual acquaintance. What are our obligations? We have never socialized with these people. Must we send a gift even if we decline the invitation? My wife says yes. I disagree. My wife received an invitation to a shower. She declined the invitation. Is it necessary to send a gift anyway? Again, she's not a close friend of the bride or the hostess.

My wife insists that everyone who receives a shower invitation is expected to send a gift whether she attends the shower or not. I submit that no gift is required unless the invitation is accepted.

I realize that this is not exactly an earthshaking problem, but if you say I'm right, my wife will have to buy me a lobster dinner. — PHILIP C. IN WEST HARTFORD

DEAR PHILIP: Tell Mrs. C. she owes you a lobster dinner.

DEAR ABBY: I am 79, soon to be 80. A friend told me that you once printed something funny about the joys of turning 80. Will you please run it again? — LEO THE LION

DEAR LEO: With pleasure:

DEAR ABBY: We oldsters sure do get away with a lot just because we've managed to keep breathing longer than most folks. I have just celebrated my 80th birthday and I've got it made.

If you forget someone's name or an appointment or what you said yesterday, just explain that you are 80, and you will be forgiven. If you spill soup on your tie, or forget to shave half your face, or take another man's hat by mistake, or promise to mail a letter and carry it around in your pocket for two weeks, just say, "I'm 80, you know," and nobody will say a thing.

You have a perfect alibi for everything when you're 80. If you act silly, you're in your "second childhood."

Being 80 is much better than being 70. At 70 people are mad at you for everything, but if you make it to 80, you can talk back, argue, disagree and insist on having your own way because everybody thinks you are getting a little soft in the head.

They say that life begins at 40. Not true. If you ask me, life begins at 80!

Spock wants child care 'double standard'

Hearst News Service

Dr. Benjamin Spock, the world-famous baby doctor, believes in a double standard in child care — day-care centers for women who want to work and help for mothers who prefer to stay home with their children.

Spock, in an interview in the October issue of Redbook, gave modified approval to new mothers returning to work, but advocated subsidies for needy mothers who preferred to stay home.

"If a mother would prefer to be at home," Spock said, "it's crazy for her to have to work and then pay somebody else to take care of her child. This society can certainly afford to subsidize mothers, and would subsidize them, if we had our priorities right."

Spock said ideally a mother should not return to work full-time until her child is in grade school, but at any rate should work only part-time until the child is two or three years old.

If the mother must return to work full-time before then, he suggested she and her husband might work different hours so the baby would be with one or the other parent most of the time.

He said "fathers have just as much responsibility as mothers for caring for their children or deciding who will care for them."

Spock approves of day-care for children — if it is "good quality care."

'Skates Alive' melts hearts of Ice Capades' audience

By GEORGIA TEMPLE

Georgia Temple

Ice Capades' musical revue "Skates Alive!" opened Tuesday at Ector County Coliseum for an audience that almost had to swim to get in.

One woman, who was standing at the entrance waiting for her escort to hike across the parking lot in the rain and wind, said, "I hope this is worth it."

From the size of the audience, the weather didn't keep many away. The kids who were there would certainly have told the fan who hoped it would be worth it that in fact it was. Once again, Ice Capades producers know how to please kids and parents alike.

Smurfs.

Back this year with a new chapter in their story, Smurfs prove to be a young crowd pleaser. This time a Smurf learns to fly.

For those sitting in the rinkside seats, the minute the Smurfs came on the ice, the audience's view changed. No longer were they watching the Ice Capades. They were looking at the backs of children massed around the side of the rink. Only the hardest hearted could have resisted melting at the looks in the kids' eyes when the Smurfs skated by.

Performance times are today through Saturday at 7:30 p.m., Saturday at 2 p.m. and Sunday at 2 and 6 p.m. Tickets, priced at $7, $8 and $9, may be purchased at Ector County Coliseum or Midland Park Mall.

Featured stars in this year's show include comedian Bob Mac & Company, world professional and Canadian champion Ron Shaver, 3-time U.S. Ice Dance Silver Medalists Carol Fox and Richard Dalley, funnyman Brad Doud, Karyl Kawaichi, new adagio artists Tricia Burton and Burt Lancon, and British-born comedian Terry Head and his wife, Gisela.

All of the soloists and adagio partners are top-notch skaters. If there were any mishaps Tuesday, they covered them so well no one knew. When Lancon twirled Miss Burton, her head alternately close to the ice and then in the air, audience members gasped almost in unison.

Tuesday's audience was a quiet one, perhaps because of the sudden change in weather, and seemed to respond more to the comedy routines than to the more serious selections.

Comedy highlights included "The Whatchamacallits;" "The Artist and the Alien," Terry Head and his wife Gisela; and "Off Guard!" with Bob Mac and his company, Julie Patterson and Bob Moskalyk. Mac's entry on the ice was well timed.

Also, Brad Doud and the Bodacious Beauties's first two falls were true attention-getters played with good staging. And Head in "A Roamin' Warrior: The Legend that Was Wrote," got the audience to respond more vocally than at any other time of the evening. His comedic skating was outstanding.

The show comtains some surprises, including a little magic. This act leaves those who see it wondering, "How did they do that?"

"Arial Mirage," the flying ballet, caused one male observer to say, the amazement evident in his voice, "That's beautiful."

The weak link in the show was the "Dingbats & Ice Blobs" routine. The first part of its name fit it well. It made no sense, had no grace and was not funny.

Otherwise, the Ice Capades is a sure bet for family fun. For more information on discount prices and how to purchase tickets call 561-8051 or 1-367-4388.

Group takes audience on world trip

"We're very pleased to bring to you a part of the world in vocal and instrumental music and dance," the spokesman for the AMAN Folk Ensemble said in opening Midland Community Concerts' first show of the season.

For the next 2½ hours MCC's audience members were carried through Western Europe, Eastern Europe, Central Asia, Mexico to the Appalachian Mountains in the United States.

All of the dancers and musicians were talented. The precision in their dancing and playing made it apparent they spent countless hours learning how to perform smoothly in a constantly changing ensemble setup.

In each of the 10 segments presented, the colorful, authentic-looking costumes were delightful. More often than not, they required complete changes not only in clothing but in hair styles for the women.

To keep the production running smoothly, AMAN had an emcee who talked about the history behind the respective folk dances being presented and the instruments used in each.

His approach was humorous, witty and informative. The program should have said who this talented person is but it did not.

A call to the New York office of Columbia Artists elicited the Los Angeles number for the group itself.

When contacted, Mitchell Allen, AMAN's executive director, said, "The arrangement was set up after the program was finalized."

The announcer for this tour is veteran AMAN member Barry Glass. Glass has been with AMAN almost continuously since 1968. He took three years off to be a registered nurse and this season represents his return. He served as dance director for 10 years and artistic director for three.

Celebrating its 20th year, AMAN was founded in Los Angeles for the purpose of preserving and presenting America's multicultural heritage of folkloric music, song and dance. AMAN honors this heritage.

However, shortening some of the dances would tighten the presentation and make it more effective.

The audience was attentive. No squirming in the seats could be heard.

It is always best to leave fans feeling they wanted more rather than they got enough. A fine line exists between too much, just right and too little. This show needs to be snugged in a touch.

Glass's closing statement summed up the feeling one gets from watching this group perform. He said, "This is not only our profession, this is our world. We are pleased and honored to have you join our world tonight."

Good portrait more than just good likeness

By LARRY CUNNINGHAM
New York Times News Service

Good Portraits, whether they are of a single person, couples or small groups, are much more than just a good likeness of the subjects.

A portrait must reveal a special quality of the person or persons involved. It is not enough to have a technically correct photo if the subject is not pleased. There is little chance that most people will be completely satisfied with their likeness. Even if they are, they will not admit it to their photographer.

At the beginning of any portrait sitting, there is, in most cases, built-in tension on the subject's part. It is your job to remove that tension and make the subject feel at ease. While this tension is easier to break when your subject is familiar to you, it still exists and must be dealt with. If possible, meet with your subject prior to the first setting and establish some common point that can be further explored at the sitting.

To put yourself in the most advantageous position, plan your sitting to the last detail. Camera and lighting adjustments at the beginning of a sitting only add to the tension that already exists. Talk to your subjects about something of mutual interest, and you will soon have them at ease. Once the tension is broken and a free flow of dialogue is established, you should be able to change position and moods with relative ease.

To this point, we have explored only formal portrait techniques. A formal setting is by no means the only way to achieve a good portrait. No matter how informal the setting, excellent portraits can be achieved once you have established communication with your subjects.

Small groups require close concentration on the photographer's part. The purpose of a group portrait is to portray everyone as attentive and alert at the same time.

Museum shows 'Campaign 84' memorabilia

ODESSA — Campaign memorabilia from the 1984 presidential campaign is on display in a temporary exhibit at the Presidential Museum, 7th and Lee streets.

"Campaign '84" shows this year's campaign through, among others, posters, bumper stickers, pennants and hats. Over 20 people have contributed objects for the exhibition which will continue through Nov. 10.

A public reception is planned for today from 5 to 7 p.m. All visitors viewing the exhibit will have a chance to participate in a mock election for president with the results announced after the actual election in November.

Organized by the Presidential Museum, the exhibit is funded by grants from Continental Products of Odessa and the Odessa Cultural Council. Museum hours are Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

There is no charge to view the exhibit.

Opera star shifts to silver screen

NEW YORK (AP) — After receiving critical praise for his film performance in Franco Zeffirelli's recent "La Traviata," and appearing in the just-released film version of Bizet's "Carmen," opera star Placido Domingo plans to broaden his movie career.

"I'm going to do 'La Boheme' with Woody Allen directing and a 'Tales of Hoffmann,' by Ingmar Bergman," Domingo said in an interview. "There's also a life of Puccini, in which I will play the composer and sing his music, too."

The superstar tenor opened the Metropolitan Opera's 101st season singing the title role of Wagner's "Lohengrin."

He'll have 33 performances at the Met this season, more than anyone else in Met history since the legendary Enrico Caruso.

Globe prepares to open 'Floodgate'

ENTERTAINMENT

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — "Floodgate," the story of the Booth America forgot, opens at the Globe Theatre at 8 p.m. Friday for a three performance run.

Written and directed by former Odessan James Buchanan, the one-man production stars equity actor Ken Risch as Edwin Booth, brother of John Wilkes Booth, the man who shot President Abraham Lincoln.

The title of the play is taken from a line in "Othello" where Brabantio, Desdemona's father, refers to his personal grief as being "...of so floodgate and o'erbearing nature that it engluts and swallows other sorrows..." The assassination of Lincoln and the death of John Wilkes was Edwin's "floodgate" of grief.

Born the second son of Junius Brutus Booth, patriarch of one of the most famous acting families of the last century, Edwin achieved acclaim as the most famous Hamlet.

While enjoying public success, his personal life was filled with tragedy and misfortune. His father died, his first wife died, and in 1865, when he was 32, his younger brother John Wilkes was shot.

The action of "Floodgate" takes place as Edwin, because of financial necessity, returns to the stage eight months after the assassination. The return becomes a time of rebirth, both personally and artistically.

Risch, who plays Edwin, is a classically trained actor. He most recently performed in the Oklahoma Shakespeare Festival where he played Othello in "Othello," Benedict in "Much Ado About Nothing" and Edwin Booth in the world premiere of "Floodgate." Following his Texas tour with "Floodgate," he will resume his duties as professor of acting and movement at the University of Alaska.

A native Odessan and former resident of Midland, Buchanan lives in Dallas. In addition to playwriting, he is also an actor and director. He has directed productions in Los Angeles, Greece, Austria, Great Britain, Midland and Odessa. He is working on a new play about the Italian painter Caravaggio.

"Floodgate" is being produced by Junius Productions in cooperation with the Globe Theatre with support from the Odessa Cultural Council.

Performance times are 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 2:30 p.m. Sunday. General admission is $10 for adults and $5 for students and senior citizens. Globe season and patron tickets will be honored at all performances.

For reservations and information call the Globe Theatre, Odessa.

Research, conservation programs earn zoo international acclaim

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Visitors to the Louisville Zoo are treated to the daily activities of 700 animals living in open-air compounds that resemble wilderness habitats, but there's more here than meets the eye.

Tucked neatly in the midst of the 60 exhibits and educational displays is a small hospital that is the center of the facility's conservation and research programs, which have earned the zoo international attention and acclaim.

This spring, for example, the zoo announced the birth of a Grant zebra — a colt later named Equuleus, after a small constellation — that had been transplanted as an embryo into the womb of a 26-year-old quarter horse mare. It was the first successful birth of a zebra to a surrogate mother, and the technique broke new ground in the area of possible methods through which threatened species may be saved from extinction.

Another program has been the zoo's ability to establish and sustain a breeding colony of captive woolly monkeys, an achievement unmatched anywhere else, said chief veterinarian William Foster.

Both projects will be open to the scrutiny of veterinarians and animal researchers in October, when the Louisville Zoo hosts an international conference.

The gestation period for a zebra is 11 months and by using surrogate mothers to allow for development of embyros, a zebra mare can be bred nine times in one season, Foster said.

Although he called the embryo transfer "probably the most fantastic thing" he has been involved in, Foster noted that while it is a "significant tool, it is not something that is going to save all endangered species."

Because Grant zebras do not face extinction, he explained, the zoo's experiment, similar to projects under way at other zoos, is more noteworthy as a "tool with which to build conservation techniques" for all animals, rather than just the single species.

Foster said his staff planned to spend another year working with Grant zebras before turning its attention to more exotic species of zebras.

The woolly monkey project is notable because zoos across the nation had been unable to keep woolly monkeys alive, much less breed them in captivity, he said.

Almost all of the South American monkeys in U.S. zoos were donated by people who had purchased them as infants from pet shops. But what had been cute and furry creatures when little grew in about three years to be heavy pets that exhibited what Foster called "unsuitable behavior" for homes where young children were growing up, too.

A second factor to overcome was death. Once the monkeys had been placed in zoos, the mortality rate at a young age was nearly 100 percent and autopsies showed that the animals suffered from colitis, which is usually a result of stress, Foster said.

Researchers theorized that the stress developed because the monkeys — which had literally been torn away from their real mothers in the Amazon — later felt abandoned by their human parents. The monkeys' anxiety was heightened when they were placed with other monkeys because they didn't know how to behave as animals, he said.

But under the care of keeper Mary Jo Stearns, the Louisville Zoo has gradually developed the only successful breeding colony for woolly monkeys.

The problem wasn't solved overnight, said Foster, "but through patient and loving care."

Ms. Stearns gradually introduced the former pets into the lifestyle of the monkey colony. This was done by reducing human contact with the animals while increasing the time they spent associating with their own kind.

Body may help solve 130-year-old mystery

The body of John Torrington, a petty officer who died on the ill-fated British Franklin Arctic expedition of 1845-46, lies exposed in his grave on Beechey Island in the Artic.

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — The body of a sailor, almost perfectly preserved in the permanently frozen soil of the Arctic for more than 130 years, might help solve the mystery of how an 1845 British expedition perished to the last man.

Owen Beattie, an anthropologist at the University of Alberta, and two colleagues, hope tissue samples taken from the body of Petty Officer John Torrington will indicate if the more than 100 men in the expedition died of sickness, food poisoning or scurvy.

"We know a fair amount of the peripheral information about the Franklin expedition...but what we wanted to do was to...look at the remains of the sailors," Beattie told a reporter on Wednesday.

"What we're looking for...is to find out what were the stresses, dietary, environmental or whatever stresses on the individual."

Beattie, pathologist Dr. Roger Amy and Eric Damkjar, an Arctic archeologist, spent three weeks last summer on Beechey Island, a rocky crag linked to King William Island in the central Arctic.

They exhumed the body of Torrington, 20, who died in the spring of 1846. The body was almost perfectly preserved in the permafrost, and the scientists took small tissue samples from it last summer.

Two other men who died at about the same time lie in nearby graves and, Beattie said, at least one of them is equally well preserved.

Beattie said tissue tests and information from skeletal remains found elsewhere will offer clues to explain the cause of death of the seamen and scientists on the data-gathering expedition led by Sir John Franklin. Possible causes include scurvy, which is caused by a lack of Vitamin C, other dietary deficiencies or food poisoning.

The Franklin expedition left Britain in 1845 to sail the Northwest Passage and collect scientific data. That winter their ships became locked in ice near Beechey. The ice cleared in the late summer of 1846 and they continued south of King William Island. There they became trapped by ice again that winter.

Franklin died in June 1847. In April 1848, the 105 survivors of the original 129-man crew abandoned their ships and began walking south.

In 1879, an American expedition under Lt. Frederick Schwatka found the skeletons of the Franklin crew who fell on the march across King William Island.

Inmate Daniel Gray is running for the U.S. Senate, but his 210-year sentence for armed robbery is keeping him from hitting the campaign trail. Gray is incarcerated in the Tennessee State Prison in Nashville.

Candidate barred from campaign trail

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Daniel Gray is running for the U.S. Senate, and he says his prison reform platform should interest all voters, not just his fellow inmates at Tennessee State Prison.

Gray, serving a 210-year sentence for armed robbery, is running as an independent candidate for the Senate seat being given up by Majority Leader Howard Baker.

Gary's Muslim name, Khalil-Ullah Al-Muhaymin, will appear on the November ballot.

He is spending much of his time inside the Nashville prison trying to register voters and convince other prisoners their ballots count.

"The only way you can really change anything in the Department of Correction or anywhere in the country is through the political process — the right to vote," said Gray, 37, who was once a Republican precinct worker in his hometown of Indianapolis.

Gray's candidacy for federal office as an imprisoned felon is not unheard of — Socialist Eugene V. Debs ran for president from the Atlanta federal prison in 1920 and received 919,799 votes.

But it is unusual, and Gray offers this explanation.

"Everybody in Tennessee should want prisoners to aspire to be congressmen. All this is saying is well, I agree with the process that a person should work and should be the best person he possibly can be, irregardless of where he's at."

Gray, who wears a white Muslim prayer cap, or kufi, was convicted of three armed robberies and assault with intent to commit murder 10 years ago in Memphis. He has no chance for parole until the year 2003. Authorities say he was arrested during a shootout with police and tried twice to escape while in the Shelby County jail.

Now he said he has become a "public servant" inside prison — a "go-between" for inmates with problems and prison officials.

Tennessee is one of many states where a hodgepodge of laws give voting rights to certain incarcerated felons.

At the main prison in Nashville, where Gray is housed, 960 of the prison's 1,188 inmates have registered to vote. Gray received about 250 write-in absentee votes from inmates there in the August primary, he said.

Gray filed a lawsuit to force state Election Coordinator David Collins to place his Muslim name on the Nov. 6 ballot along with Republican Victor Ashe, Democrat Albert Gore Jr., and independent Ed McAteer.

Collins had refused to certify a felon on the ballot, but a judge ruled that the U.S. Constitution requires only that Senate candidates be 30 years old, U.S. citizens for nine years and residents of the state.

Breast-feeding not reliable contraception method

Dear Dr. Solomon: I know that there is nothing certain but death and taxes, but to what extent can a woman rely on breast-feeding to provide protection against pregnancy? — Mrs. W.P., Bakersfield, Calif.

Dear Mrs. P.: Breast-feeding tends to delay the return of fertility, but its effectiveness depends on other factors, such as the frequencey of the nursing and whether the infant also receives supplementary foods. It stands to reason that breast-feeding will decrease if formula and other foods are intorduced, and this will result in an earlier return of fertility. On the other hand, the longer a woman continues to breast-feed, the longer the contraceptive effect.

Women who plan to use breast-feeding as a contraceptive measure, however, should realize that even when breast-feeding is the only source of an infant's nourishment, ovulation may occur. Moreover, from 20 to 50 percent of women are menstruating six months after they give birth, and at that time require an effective form of contraception just as much as if they were not breast-feeding.

The bottom line is that the use of breast-feeding as a form of contraception is not as certain as either death or taxes.

Dear Dr. Solomon: How do lesbians compare with male homosexuals in the transmission of sexual diseases? I assume the rates must be kind of high for both groups. — Anthony, Sante Fe, New Mexico

Dear Anthony: Your assumption is incorrect. Dr. Lilla Lyon, an epidemiologist with the Maryland State Departmeht of Health and Mental Hygiene, says that except for celibate people, lesbians have the lowest rate of sexually transmitted diseases of any group.

Neil Solomon, M.D., is a columnist for Los Angeles Times Syndicate. If you have a medical question, write Dr. Solomon at 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md 21208. Dr. Solomon will not give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.

Alleged sex-for-welfare scandal rocks small town

MONMOUTH, Ill. (AP) — A torrid sex scandal has topped crops and the Chicago Cubs as a topic of conversation in this town where 18 people face indictment, some for allegedly extorting welfare from a respected official who traded public aid for sex.

"People don't know what to think, especially if they know one" of those indicted, said Dora Shotwell, a waitress at the Park 'N' Eat Cafe, a block from Monmonth's picturesque downtown square. "And practically everybody in town knows at least one of them."

Monmouth Township Supervisor David Lemke, 40, was sentenced to three years in prison earlier this year for giving two women $450 in public rental assistance in return for sex. He said the women propositioned him.

Last week, 18 people were indicted, many on charges ranging from fraud to perjury and prostitution. Their alleged crimes turned Lemke into a victim of his own scheme by extorting public aid from him as "hush money" for not revealing the scam, said Warren County State's Attorney Warren McNeill.

"I was surprised as to how many people were involved, and I was surprised how they all kept silent for so long," McNeill said.

Pentagon found 17,000 cases of contractor abuses, chief investigator claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon, stung by suggestions it is indifferent to waste and fraud, says it has uncovered 17,000 cases of contractor abuses in 2½ years, but its chief investigator says he still finds more under "every rock I turn over."

"We know we're very vulnerable," Inspector General Joseph Sherick, who has been involved in Pentagon procurement for 34 years, told a news conference Wednesday at which he defended the Pentagon's own efforts to uncover abuses.

"We know that we have control problems," he said. "And we're doing a tremendous amount of work on improving our internal controls."

But at the same time, Sherick said, "I keep turning over rocks and every rock I turn over I find new things."

Sherick's appearance came a week after a Senate subcommittee heard about the $7,622 the Air Force paid for a 10-cup coffeemaker for the C5-A cargo plane and about arm rests for that airplane that cost $670.06 apiece.

The inspector general said he hadn't known about those cases before they came to light in the Senate hearing.

But he asserted that many contractor abuses that get in the newspapers are recycled horror stories uncovered by his own 1,500 investigators.

"Most of these people are living off our own audits," he said of the investigators in Congress and elsewhere who call attention to bloated prices paid by the Pentagon for everyday items.

Sherick said he could not say how much money is lost to fraud and waste in a defense establishment that buys weapons and equipment at the rate of $600 million a day.

He said overcharging the government is the exception, not the rule among the 160,000 contractors and subcontractors who supply the military.

The military has "a lot of good contractors and a lot of honest contractors," he said. "But, this is a big operation. You're not running a hot dog stand."

One problem, he said, is that the government cannot simply decide to stop dealing with some contractors.

"Who do you get to build aircraft carriers or submarines or whatever if they have that unique capability?" he asked.

Over the last 2½ years, he said, the Defense Department's criminal investigative units have referred about 17,000 cases for prosecution or administrative action and won more than 1,300 convictions.

In addition, he said, Defense Department audits have resulted in savings of $2.8 billion while audits by the General Accounting Office, an arm of Congress that looks into big defense contracts, have saved $3.6 billion.

One cause of abuses, he said, may be the Defense Department's willingness to take the contractors' word for it that what they manufacture is up to par.

Senator: Reagan policies sending blacks to Marxists

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Paul Tsongas is predicting an anti-American, pro-Marxist backlash among black South Africans because of their perception that the Reagan administration is "in bed" with that country's white supremacist leadership.

After hearing a defense of the U.S. policies Wednesday from Assistant Secretary of State for African affairs Chester Crocker, Tsongas exploded in anger, asserting that he has given up hope that the current approach will produce racial justice in South Africa.

"This is ridiculous," the Massachusetts Democrat said. "I'd be embarrassed to get up and give this testimony. We're in bed with them (the South African leaders).

"For all intents and purposes, we are doing nothing of any consequence. And what's going to happen is that the young blacks in South Africa are going to resort to violence. And that violence will eventually be Marxist. And they're going to do it because they don't believe you or the president...They don't believe this administration is committed to change."

At one point during the hearing of the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on African affairs, Tsongas pounded the table in apparent frustration over what he described as the meager results of the administration's "constructive engagement" policies.

Tsongas, who is giving up his seat in January because of illness, said he plans to work on his own for change in South Africa once he retires.

Crocker insisted the administration's approach had produced "substantial accomplishments."

NOTICE

Energas Company hereby gives notice of its intent to implement new rates for domestic and commercial type customer classes residing in the unincorporated areas of its West Texas System. It is anticipated that the new rates will result in approximately a two tenths of one percent (.2%) increase in Energas Company's gross revenues, which increase is not a "major change" as defined in Section 4(b) of Article 1446c, V.A.T.C.S.

A Statement of Intent to change said rates was filed with the Railroad Commission of Texas on or about September 21, 1984, and is available for inspection at the Company's Amarillo office, 301 S. Taylor Street. Further information may be obtained from the Railroad Commission of Texas, Gas Utilities Division, P.O. Drawer 12967, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711.

The proposed increase will not become effective until or except to the extent that the same rates are approved for service within the municipalities on the West Texas System.
