Cancer Crusade

Of all the appeals made each year for financial support of medical research, there is none in which all Americans should feel a more direct, personal interest than the April crusade of the American Cancer Society.

Cancer continues to be a leading cause of death in this country. A person dies of it every two minutes. Although great progress has been made in treating and curing cancer, saving many lives, there is a steady rise in the national cancer death rate.

If present rates continue, one out of every four persons now living in Hall County can expect to develop cancer eventually. Over the years, cancer probably will strike in approximately two of three American families. It can strike at any age.

It is not a single disease but a whole family of diseases which have one thing in common, the uncontrolled and irregular growth of cells. The only hope for conquering this killer is in public education aimed at prevention and early detection and continuing research on a vast scale that is tremendously costly.

This year, an all out effort will be made to contact residents all over the county to try and meet the $1,000 quota. Literature is being distributed and citizens are urged to read the seven cancer danger signals so that early detection can be made and medical aid sought before the critical period is reached.

Knowledge is the key to conquest of cancer. The quest of this knowledge must be pursued on an infinite number of fronts, and the facts learned then pieced together into a great mosaic. Every possibility as to cause, prevention, treatment and cure must be explored and checked out.

It will take a great deal of time, money and talent to learn even the essential facts about cancer, but because of the heavy toll the diseases are taking, any delay is fatal for large numbers of people.

A most important phase of the American Cancer Society's program is dissemination of the knowledge that has been gained, so that cancer can be recognized and treated early. Today the lives of one out of every three cancer patients is being saved, but with early diagnosis, it could be one out of every two. You owe it to yourself to support the society's program, but if you are not able to help financially, you still benefit from the life-saving knowledge that the organization is seeking to make available to as many residents of the country as possible. That, too, will help to conquer cancer.

70-Mile Speed Laws Can Help Reduce Accidents

The present outlook for a general 70-mile-per-hour highway speed limit in Texas reflects recommendations made through columns of the Brand for a period of more than 10 years. Some of the other proposals, however, merit careful consideration.

As we have noted in the past, numerous highways and sections of Texas will find 70 miles an hour to be practical and realistic. On the other hand, there are specific areas and roads where the limit should be curtailed drastically below the present 60-miles-per-hour. These reservations, as we understand the proposal, will be part of the new bill, leaving speed designations to the Department of Public Safety.

In addition, we feel that it would be a mistake to tie the hands of our enforcement department with elimination of radar and other present systems of enforcement. While we would be among the first to agree that the "cop" who hides behind a sign board is a "heel", we must recognize the fact that the speed violator is the one who is breaking the law. We face the fact that speeding is the one single factor which claims around 50 percent of lives lost in Texas highway accidents.

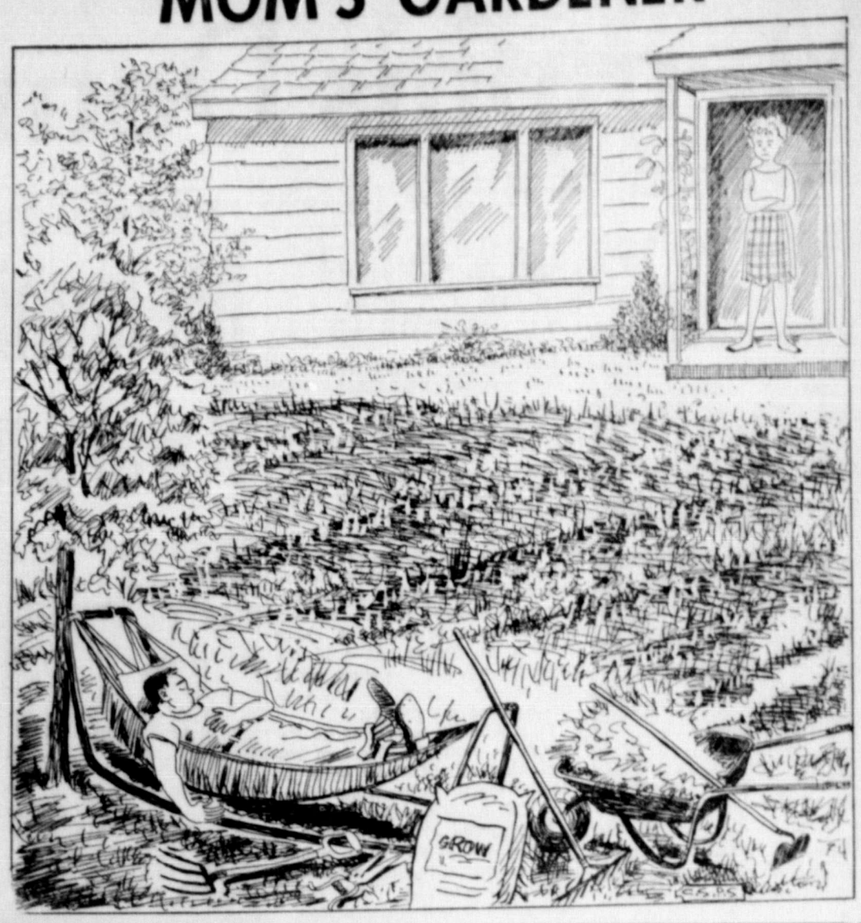

When, and if, we do get realistic and practical speed limits, enforcement of these new and higher maximum speeds will be more important than ever before. In truth, it appears that we should release our Highway Patrol in unmarked cars—complete with radar—in an effort to keep enforcement regulations in effect at all times. With new, realistic speed rates adapted to specific areas in behalf of public safety, the driver who preciously considered our old regulations obsolete will no longer have a resonable excuse for exceeding state limits.

The ideal situation, in fact, would be for all drivers to adopt a new outlook on highway safety — even to the point of copying down the license numbers of speed violators and mailing them in to the department in Austin. If we ever arrive at this point, we will most certainly find a huge down trend in highway accidents and annual death tolls.

Because our old 60-mile regulations were not practical, many of us have adopted the same outlook on speeding which the public adopted during prohibition. Speeding, to many people, is a game they play with the Highway Patrol; if they are apprehended they classify it as "bad luck", but when they escape detection they go about their business without a single qualm of conscience. So long as this general attitude exists we can look forward only to continued slaughter.

Meanwhile, the joint effort of the legislature and safety officials to establish a realistic speed limit is definitely the first step in the right direction. With a little patience and rigid enforcement policy it can most easily solve Texas' No. 1 problem. All we need now is support of the people, and this will come only with an extensive period of education through which we must sell ourselves on the fact that traffic regulations are established for our protection, and not as a dictatorial edict, long ago made obsolete through modern progress.

What Other Editors Say

"Not A Newspaper!"

The missus and I today cancelled our subscription to a good-sized daily newspaper which we have been reading for several months, even though sometimes me had to hold our noses while reading it.

The reason for cancelling our subscription was this: The daily mentioned has "managed news." It's "managed" the way the publisher wants it managed.

Now I have no objection to the newspaper's views so long as those views are confined to the editorial page or to personal columns, but managing the NEWS itself is an entirely different matter. The thing that really decided for us that it was time to cancel our subscription to that particular paper was when we read an alarming story blared on the front page of this alarmist newspaper today.

Later we read the same story in another Texas daily which long has been noted for its fair play in presenting the news. The two stories, although carrying the same news service credit line, were as different as night and day, except in spots. The "managed" paper had carefully edited out everything which conflicted with the bigoted views of the publisher; the other daily had left both sides of the story intact. It reminded me of a movie I saw not long ago. A crook, by cleverly splicing together bits of tape recordings, made people appear to say things which they didn't say, and he was using the tape for blackmail purposes.

The story I just described had been "spliced together" to slant the news the way the publisher's own policies were slanted. Shades of Pravda!

The publisher of a paper for which I worked was a member of a political party which was then in power. Yet when the opposition candidate came to town and made a scathing speech, even to the abuses heeped against the publisher himself, the newspaper carried the full account of the speech, even to the abuses heeped against the published. That's the sort of journalism under which I grew up. I believe in freedom of the press, one of the great rights which Americans can enjoy and one of the things that makes me proud to be an American. But with the right also come responsibilities.

In my book, the newspaper that withholds news which is contrary to the paper's political thinking or a paper, or radio of TV, that slants the news to fit that same thinking, it itself violating this great American principle, freedom of speech, freedom of the press. That's why mama and I have cancelled our subscription to that particular newspaper. News in that paper is only that news which coincides with the thinking of the publisher. And that, big boy, ain't news.

Telephone Numbers!

Telephone companies ought to know by now that people can't keep their numbers straight. Now they've come up with these area code numbers to speed the downtime in long distance calling, the question is does it really speed things up. In a couple of recent instances with us it's slowed them down.

For example, we were dialing a paper house in Lubbock the other day. We've been asked countless times before if we knew Lubbock's area code number, so this time we were prepared. We gave the operator Area Code 816 and the name and numbr of our party. But the phone rang and rang without results. "Maybe you ought to check and be sure you dialed the right number," I told the operator. "What town is this up in Missouri?" she asked in reply. "It's not Missouri," I fired back. "This is a Lubbock call." To which the operator explained sweetly that "the Lubbock area code number is 806 not 816."

A couple of days before that, I was calling an envelope company in Dallas on a number and area code number given to me by a paper wholesaler, in search of a special size envelope for a printing job. After the phone again rang for some time without answer, I explained to the operator that the number had to answer as this was a big Dallas firm and it was only early afternoon. I'll try Dallas then," she replied. "The area code you gave me was for some town in Utah."

One local business man who has resented the constant questions about knowing the Lubbock area code number pulled a "Dagwood" the other day and rattled off about a 28 digit number to the operator in response to that question. There was a long pause. Finally the chief operator came on to explain that "your operator is now in the lounge crying."

But to wind this up on area code numbers and conversion to long distance, one telephone technician employed in Lubbock was telling me out at the "branding" Sunday that "If we ever get all the equipment installed and everybody taught how to use it our goal will be that any telephone user can dial anyplace in the U. S. after 9 p.m. for only a dollar." That stopped me. If I can someday make cross country calls for a buck I promise to settle down and learn the darn area code numbers.

Cancer Crusade Continues This Week Over County

The drive to raise $1,000, Hall County's quota, in the annual Cancer Crusade continues this week, Mrs. Herschel Combs, chairman, announced this week.

To date, $441.24 has been donated toward the quota with only the business section and part of the volunteer workers in the house-to-house canvass in Memphis reporting.

Members of the Federated clubs of Memphis and the Business & Professional Women's Club conducted the drive.

Citizens at Turkey, Lakeview and Estelline will conduct drives in the near future.

At Turkey, Mrs. Nadine Baisden, editor of The Turkey News, is serving as general chairman. Assisting with the drive will be members of the two Federated clubs, the Sorosis Club and the Nuevo Club. Last year the clubs raised $211.17.

The Ophelia Club of Estelline will again have charge of the drive in that area. Last year the club raised $324.00.

Mrs. R. C. Clements is heading the drive in the Lakeview area. This is the first year the Lakeview community has participated in the program. Assisting Mrs. Clements will be Mrs. Jack Moreman, Mrs. Mac Cofer and Mrs. L. M. Robertson.

An effort is being made to contact as many residents as possible, leaving literature which lists the seven danger signals of cancer. However, it will be impossible to contact everyone, Mrs. Combs said.

"Those who are not contacted and would like to have material or give a donation may leave or mail checks to Ben Parks, First National Bank, who is president of the Hall County chapter; or Mrs. Combs at The Memphis Democrat.

"We have literature which we will gladly give to anyone at The Democrat office," Mrs. Combs added.

cKown Explains Export egulations On Wheat

ors Note: Third in a on the upcoming national referendum..)
Lynn L. McKown
unty ASCS Office Mgr.
o-called European Comket is not easy to underand it seems, to the averl County farmer, to be g far away and for other is new European setup ffects the American far- influence on this nation's wheat program particularly.

This is just another reason why we must have a sound grain program. American farmers have been selling approximately 50 million bushels of wheat to members of this new market alliance. How much we can sell in the future is anybody's guess at the present time.

The proposed 1964 wheat program takes these factors into consideration.

American farmers are prone to believe that they alone suffer from government production controls. Yet 38 of the 42 wheat-producing countries of the world have some kind of price support program.

This includes member countries of the European Common Market.

In France, and to a lesser extent in other Common Market countries, production of wheat will be influenced greatly by the level at which prices are set under the Common Market agricultural policy. If the Common Market price levels are set near the German level of nearly $3 per bushel, France is expected to increase wheat production significantly.

The Common Market then would reduce imports and increase exports of wheat for feed. This would adversely affect American markets.

It is easy to see, then, how this new Common Market setup will influence the American grain program, and why Hall County farmers must recognize that fact.

They also should know the effects of a "no" vote on the International Wheat Agreement which has been in effect since 1949. The effects could be disastrous for the world markets. The same applies to all exports.

Hall County farmers must try to understand this complex problem, because it affects the prices they receive for the grain they produce.

Total U. S. exports, for instance in 1961 amounted to 716 million bushels, the largest amount ever exported in one year by this country. Such exports are costly, due partly to the export subsidy that must be paid for such wheat, and due also to the inherent costs of shipping grain overseas.

The new program will cut down on surpluses, a higher percentage of wheat can be marketed at home, obviating the extra costs of shipping large amounts of wheat abroad.

That does not mean we want to reduce exports. We simply want to export more wheat without an export subsidy and reduce our need for sales under Public Law 480 in exchange for foreign currencies.

Net results would be more sales for dollars.

Hall County, and other counties in Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma, produce hard red winter wheat almost exclusively. This particular wheat type constitutes 88 per cent of the U. S. carryover of wheat. For export, it is the most heavily subsidized of any other type, with 79 per cent requiring government financed programs, and only 21 per cent representing dollar sales.

We, therefore, are affected more by the export program than are areas producing other classes of wheat.

Now, if all this seems remote to the average Hall County Wheat producer, it, nevertheless, has an important bearing on the profits he obtains from the production of wheat.

That is why he should understand these factors and their relations to the proposed 1964 wheat program.

Harmony Club Members Enjoy Easter Program

The Harmony Club met in the home of Mrs. D. L. C. Kinard on Wednesday, April 10, at 4 p. m. with Mrs. George Ferris sharing hostess duties.

The president, Mrs. Clifford Farmer, conducted a brief business session during which plans were made for a guest day program to be presented early in May.

An original poem, written by Esta McElrath, reminded those present that the wonderful Easter season was at hand, bringing new hope and rejoicing for those who believed in the stunning reality of the resurrection.

The program was made up of selected religious music and consisted of the following numbers: an Easter meditation; vocal solo, "Easter Morn" by Inez Howell rendered by Mrs. Gordon Gilliam; organ-piano duets, Mmes. D. L. C. Kinard and Carl Smith, "Have Thine Own Way, Lord," Lorenz, and "My Task" by Rob Roy Piery.

A vocal solo, "He Was Despised," from The Messiah by Mrs. Bob Fowler, accompanied by Mrs. T. L. Rouse; organ solo, "Spirit of God" by Demarest, Mrs. T. L. Rouse.

A vocal sextet, "Were You There" arranged by Burleigh concluded the program. Singing were Mmes. Richard Avery, Clyde Milam, Gordon Gilliam, Carl Smith, R. S. Greene and Miss McElrath, accompanied by Mrs. Dick Fowler.

Following the program, a social hour was enjoyed. The hostess served delicious refreshments to Mmes. Richard Avery, L. G. DeBerry, Bray Cook, Clifford Farmer, Bob Fowler, Dick Fowler, Gordon Gilliam, R. S. Greene, T. L. Rouse, Clyde Milam, Robert Sexauer, Carl Smith, Conley Ward and Miss Esta McElrath and guests, Mrs. Don Reeves and little daughter, Kathleene, of Hereford.

A final meeting of the club will be a salad luncheon in the Bob Fowler home May 11 at 1 p. m.

WSCS Meets Monday, April 22

The Woman's Society of Christian Service met Monday, April 22, at 3 p. m. in the Methodist Church Annex.

The group sang the theme hymn of the annual meeting and the district meeting, "The Voice of God Is Calling."

Mrs. M. G. Tarver gave a meditation based on the "Story of the Search for Someone Else" which she gave at the Childress District meeting. The soul-searching thought was, "if every Someone Else became willing to do some one thing, how the Kingdom of God would grow." She also included an old legend which pointed up responsibilities to continue the work of Christ.

Mrs. Ed Hutcherson, as program leader, announced the subject as being "Reports from Lands of Decision," stating that there are four for this quadrennium of 1960-64. She discussed Argentina and Southern Rhodesia, giving an interesting account of the problems and possibilities of each.

The reports were written by a bishop and a missionery.

Mrs. F. W. Foxhall told of the report of a missionary nurse at United Christian Hospital and how the nursing profession in Pakistan was being elevated. She also talked about the Chinese in dispersion in Sarawak and Hong Kong.

The presentation of World Banks was held and the members were able to burn a candle for one minute with an offering of $23.40 which enabled them to support the world-wide work of the Woman's Division for that long. This is a love offering "over and above" the regular pledges.

After the business meeting, the group was dismissed with a prayer by Mrs. J. B. Thompson.

Those attending the Childress District meeting April 18 were: Mmes. M. G. Tarver, J. B. Thompson, L. G. DeBerry, John Fowler and F. W. Foxhall, it was announced. At this meeting, Mrs. L. G. DeBerry was elected vice president of the District.

Those present, other than the above named, were: Mmes. Ben Parks, R. S. Greene, J. W. Oliver, W. J. McMaster, Myrtis Phelan, Guy Cox, Lee Brown, J. J. McDaniel, W. F. McElreath, J. W. Coppedge and L. G. DeBerry.

Gertrude Rasco To Present Boys' Group In Recital

A group of boys from Gertrude Rasco's piano class will be presented in recital Sunday afternoon, April 28, at 3:30 o'clock in the Methodist Church Annex.

The following students will perform: Mike Chappell, Edward Neal Foxhall, Mark Gentry, Tommy Greene, Mike Hull, Johnny Vallance, Bill Smithee, Mark Stevenson and Billy Cosby, who will also play an oboe solo.

Raymond Ballew arrived home this week after spending nearly two weeks at Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., for medical treatment.

Mrs. W. W. Martin, accompanied by her granddaughter, Paddy Reames, will leave Saturday for Dallas and Wills Point. They will first go to Dallas and Jacky Gilbert will accompany them to Wills Point, where they will visit relatives including Mrs. Martin's mother and sisters.

The city of Elsa, Texas, is dusted regularly by airplanes with DDT to maintain a high standard of health conditions.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to publicly thank the staff of the Goodall Hospital, especially Dr. Stevenson and the nursing staff—for their kindness to Charlie while he was in the hospital. To all our friends and neighbors, my brothers and sisters in Christ, we thank you, for your help, prayers, visits, cards, flowers and the many things all of you did to help us during following his accident and during his illness.

Mrs. John Clark Gives Review Of 'The Wisteria Trees' Tues.

The Delphian Club entertained members of the Federated Clubs of Memphis with a delightful seated tea on Tuesday afternoon at 4 p. m. in the Methodist Church Annex when the club presented Mrs. John Clark of Richardson in a review of "The Wisteria Trees" by Johsua Logan.

Guests were greeted by Mrs. Clyde Smith, club president, Mrs. Henry Hays and Mrs. Clark and ushered into the beautifully decorated room to the strains of music played by Miss Marcene Stephens, high school senior whom the club claims as its own.

Mrs. Smith welcomed guests and then presented Mrs. Hays who introduced her daughter, Mrs. Clark.

Mrs. Clark, or Patsy Sue, as she is known to friends here, is a Memphis girl who has moved away and returns occasionally and delights her friends with her many accomplishments. She is a graduate of Memphis High School and holds a degree from Baylor University where she majored in music and drama. She is married to John Clark, son of Mrs. R. E. Clark and the late Dr. Clark.

For the beginning of the program, Mrs. Clark sang "Trees" by Joyce Kilmer, accompanied by Miss Marcene Stephens at the piano.

Mrs. Clark, in introducing the play, "The Wisteria Trees," said that "largely because of the influence of some play writers, when one thinks of the decadent post-bellum South, one thinks of the degenerate post-bellum South. For that reason, I was so pleased to find Joshua Logan's play "The Wisteria Trees.'

Mr. Logan deals with the problem so sympathically. The Andree family of Wisteria Plantation are people who have been so sheltered that when they are confronted by reality they do not even recognize it and have no means with which to cope with it.

"The play was first presented on Broadway in 1950 with Helen Hays as 'Miss Lucy,' the owner of the plantation. The chief characters are Miss Lucy, whose grandparents had planted the thousands of wisteria trees which she described as being 'twined around her heart.' Garvin, whose chief accomplishment was to conjugate Greek verbs; and Yancey, who had grown up on the wrong side of the tracks but who became very wealthy and influential.

"When the improvished Andrew family found themselves faced with an auction of the plantation, the practical Yancey advised that they lease it out for truck farms. It meant nothing to him that the beautiful wisteria trees would have to be cut down. But Miss Lucy and Garvin refused to do anything 'so tacky' just to make a living. An appeal to a rich relative brought $15,000 in cash and the power of attorney to bid any amount to save the plantation. Garvin was to do the bidding, but Miss Lucy worried because he had always been taught that it was rude 'to point.'

"When the first bid was $30,000 Garvin looked at his $15,000 and not realizing that he had the power to bid more did not say a word.

"When Yancey realized this, he bid against the others and, though he did not want the place, bought it for $65,000.

"Then he offered it to Miss Lucy for always if she would marry him. He had loved her ever since she washed the blood from his face and comforted him when he was just a boy, saying, 'now, now, little poor one, you are going to live.'

"But in Paris, Miss Lucy had met a man whom she described as a 'stone' around her neck but whom she could not live without.

"The play closes with Miss Lucy bidding farewell to her beloved home with the sound of axes cutting down the wisteria trees."

Delicious refreshments were served from an attractively laid tea table at the conclusion of the program.

The Thresher Tragedy

The loss of the 129 men of the submarine Thresher has saddened all America. It is a tragedy that reminds us again of the stark cost of maintaining our freedom — a cost that dollars alone can't meet. As President Kennedy said, "These brave men have joined their comrades, 1,500 of whom were lost in submarines in the fight for freedom in World War II. The future of our country will always be sure when there are men such as these to give their lives in preserving it."

Now we must do our best to determine why the Thresher disaster occurred. Twenty-two more submarines of the Thresher type are scheduled for construction. More brave American seamen will be assigned to man them. It is a responsibility of the government to see to it that they have the safest, most technically-perfect craft it is possible for our experts to devise. And it is vital that American industry and American workmen accept the responsibility to see to it that materials and workmanship are of the highest quality.

It is expected to be some time —if ever—before we know the exact cause of the Thresher tragedy. The submarine and its crew are in a grave 8,400 feet deep about 220 miles east of Cape Cod. The Thresher lies too deep to be salvaged. The determination of the cause of the disaster can be achieved only by photographing the wreckage from the Navy's deep-diving bathyscaph Trieste, to be brought from the West Coast to the scene. Meanwhile, a number of theories are being advanced about possible causes for the submarine's plunge into water so deep that intense pressure would collapse its hull like an eggshell, dooming its crew to a sudden death. A Naval Court of Inquiry has been convened at Portsmouth, N. H. the home port of the Thrsher, to hear evidence accumulated so far. Part of the court's job will be to consider the nature of work done on the Thresher during a recent overhaul in the Portsmouth Naval Yard when cuts a yard wide were made in her hull so as to install new equipment. The rut-out section was welded back in place and the weld then examined by X-ray for flaws. "To the best of our knowledge and belief there were no defects in the work," said Admiral George W. Anderson, Chief of Naval Operations. "Whether or not there were defects remains to be seen."

Was this work defective? Did some other vital piece of equipment give away? How can a similar accident be prevented in the future? Let us all hope that the answer can be found.

Vice Admiral Hyman G. Rickover, the caustically outspoken Naval officer who, more than any other single American, is responsible for our great strides in nuclear-powered seafaring, made a speech last fall that received little notice at the time. The Admiral laid it on the line for the National Metal Congress, meeting in New York. The troubles if the Navy in the construction of nuclear-powered submarines, he said, can be laid to two main causes: (1) Poor workmanship and poor quality control, and (2) Incomplete understanding of basic manufacturing and inspection processes.

Admiral Rickover was careful, in the wake of disaster, not to relate any of his criticisms to the Thresher, "It would be improper for me to make any comment on that speech at this time," he said after the Thresher was lost.

However, some of the points he stressed last fall should be studied carefully by all Americans who have a part in our weapons production program—not only in the manufacture of nuclear submarines but in making aircraft and missles and the countless other items in which our servicemen must put their trust as they man the lines against our Cold War opponents. These contractors participating in our Defense program and the men and women who work for them must be certain that their own efforts are worthy of the men who will utilize the equipment.

Unfortunately, high standards have not always been met. Among several examples cited by Admiral Rickover as he ticked off his criticisms was this one: "Some of the types of difficulties we constantly encounter have to do with faulty welding, faulty radiography and defective castings. That is, with deficiencies in basic conventional processes of present-day technology. The press frequently reports malfunctions of advanced components or systems caused by failure of a weld, improper use of a routine process, or use of defective materials. Industry apparently considers such failures to be inevitable, since not enough is being done to correct the abuse."

All of us play some part in the nation's defense. Let us be faithful to the sacrifice of the men of the Thresher by doing our best to meet our own responsibilities as Americans.

March Accidents Total Three For Hall County

The Highway Patrol investigated three rural accidents in Hall County during the month of March according to Sergeant D. R. Dowdy, Patrol Supervisor of this area.

These wrecks accounted for two persons injured and an estimated property damage of $2,225.00.

The rural accident summary for Hall County from January through March of 1963 shows a total 5 crashes resulting in no persons killed, 2 persons injured and an estimated property damage of $2,665.00.

Each year with the coming of April, it seems natural for motorists to want to get back out on the highway and enjoy the invigorating atmosphere and colorful country side. Many of these motorists are apt to forget that increased violations of traffic laws play a vital role in the annual traffic accident toll.

The motorist should realize that highway travel multiplies by leaps and bounds in April. The Sergeant stated, "What better time than April to remind motorists, pedestrians, and all street and highway users about the importance of knowing and obeying the laws."

This year about 815,000 Americans will be under medical care for cancer. Many of them will be saved because their cancers are detected and treated in time. The American Cancer Society urges an annual health checkup as the best safeguard against dread cancer.

Payroll

When the Bonham Cotton Mill announced it would close its doors finally in early 1962, that North Texas city stood to lose a 61-year old industry with a $14,000 weekly payroll.

Aggressive citizens of the 7357 population community arose to the emergency. Today, little more than a year later, Red River Textile Mill, Inc., is not only continuing the operation of its predecessor, but is talking plans for an eventual major expansion.

Bonham's vigorous enterprise in the face of crisis is another reason we say big things are happening in General Telephone towns.

Girl Scouts Hold Camp Outing Sat. In City Park

A preliminary camp outing was held in the City Park Saturday, April 20, for Intermediate and Senior Girl Scouts. Mrs. Brode Hoover, neighborhood chairman, was assisted by Mrs. W. R. Scott, Mary Hubbard and Mrs. Elmont Branigan, all troop leaders.

Mrs. Hoover explained the manner in which the Day Camp program is carried out for hikes, cooking, first aid and appropriate clothing.

Each girl brought a sack lunch and the drinks were furnished.
