Wichitans Fight Rail Change As Severe Handicap To Many Towns In Area

C.-C. OPPOSES VALLEY'S PLEA FOR DAY TRAIN

Mail, Freight and Express Made Day Late by Proposal

ABILENE BACKS PLAN

Wichita Falls, Seymour, Haskell and Others Face Handicap

Hearings conducted at the Kemp hotel here Monday before Lon A. Smith of the state railroad commission developed a spirited oral discussion in the afternoon session relative to the application of the Fort Worth and Denver railway for permission to substitute day trains on the Wichita Valley between Wichita Falls and Abilene for those now run at night.

Joe H. Barwise, general counsel for the F. W. & D. railroad, represented the petitioning concern at the hearing while the two remaining elements in a three-party debate were composed of delegations representing Wichita Falls as opposed to the proposed change of schedule, and representing Abilene, Anson, Stamford and Hawley as supporting the railroad's application.

High Costs Claimed

The petition asks permission to substitute a train leaving Wichita Falls at 2:30 p. m., and arriving in Abilene about 9:30 p. m., for the present service which provides departure from this city at 2 a. m., and arrival in Abilene at 8:55 a. m. It proposes also to establish service from Abilene to Wichita Falls leaving the former point at 5:45 a. m., and arriving here at noon, in place of a train which now leaves Abilene at 6:10 p. m., and arrives here at 12:35 a. m.

The applicant's petition was based upon claims of excessive operating costs to maintain Pullman service on the night train; to provide station help at intermediate points for handling of baggage, express, mail, etc., and upon the be-

'Signs Right' For Ikes To Usher In Wichita Falls Fishing Season

13 Prizes Posted Unlucky for Fish, Says Vet Angler

Unless the experts are all wet on their fishing prognostications, the finest opening day's sport in many seasons awaits anglers of the Wichita Falls area on May 1 and thereabouts.

Whether you fish by experience, fishing calendars, or signs of the moon, the omens all point to a great day Thursday for the disciples of Izaak Walton. Of course the predictions may be in error, for anglers are notoriously optimistic before they go out, but even discounting the known inaccuracy of "fish stories," it looks like a pretty good time will be had by all but the fish.

Crappie Near Shore

Several veteran anglers who have been scouting the three lakes during the last week reported to The Record News Monday that the fish, especially crappie, are unusually close to shore this year. Great schools of crappie are to be found within a few feet of the banks at Lake Wichita especially, they said. Bass are also apparently plentiful around the ledges and in the weeds and rushes.

Rains Monday and Monday night will only improve the water for the opening day's sport, according to most opinions given The Record News. General belief was that the lakes can stand at least a six-inch rise without hurting the fishing, and perhaps improving it. Continual rains until opening day, with the lakes pushing out into the weeds and bushes would make the sport on Thursday poorer, it was said.

Three Big Days

Fishing calendars, for those who believe in them, list May 1, 2, and 3 as "big days" of the month for anglers. Whatever the results of the first of the season drive against bass and crappie, those who land the largest fish before 6 o'clock May 4 will draw down substantial prizes posted by The Record News and Daily Times and sporting goods dealers of the city. The awards are the second annual prizes posted by the Wichita Falls papers and merchants for the champion anglers on opening day, the event having been inaugurated in 1929.

Thirteen prizes are up for distribution among the 13 anglers who

Out around the edges of the pools, in the lily pads and rushes and around the old snags and sunken ledges the bass, crappie and blue gill bream are waiting for opening of the 1930 fishing season in the Wichita Falls area. And if you think the Wichita area hasn't any fishing water aside from the three big lakes, note the picture at the extreme left above. It's a favorite lurking place for bass down in Jack county. At the right above is a nice string of crappie taken from Lake Wichita—sixteen of 'em, as near the same size as you could wish in a day's angling. Weigh about three-quarter pounds each. At the left, below, the gentleman who posed this big bass claimed he wasn't pushing down on the scales, which registered five and a half pounds. Even knocking off a half pound, that's a pretty good fish. In the center is a view of the main ditch near Diversion lake. Many fishermen will open the season in this and other irrigation ditches of the area. At the right, two prize brood fish from the Diversion lake hatchery. Game Warden Harper held them out of the water long enough for the picture. If the experts have their information on a sound basis, the opening of the fishing season this year will be one of the best in many years. Live bait anglers, pluggers and fly casters will find sport waiting them Thursday which can be equalled in few sections of Texas. Careful observance of the extra 30 days of closed season here is expected to show striking results in fishing this season.

JOHN DOSSETT SHOT TO DEATH NEAR LAWTON

Body of Colorful Early Day Law Enforcer Found At His Home

JURY VERDICT 'OPEN'

Bullet Victim Settled in Territory Long Before 'Run' of 1894

Special to the Record News.

LAWTON, Okla., April 28.—The body of John Dossett, 70, veteran United States marshal in territorial days and an Oklahoma peace officer most of his life, was found in bed with a bullet wound through the head at 7:30 o'clock Monday morning. A coroner's jury held that Dossett met death at the hands of an unknown assailant. A .32 calibre pistol was found on the bed near the left side of the body.

Comanche county officers, working with an operative from the state bureau of investigation and identification are conducting inquiries into circumstances surrounding the shooting. Finger prints are to be taken from the pistol Tuesday morning.

Bullet Removed

The body was discovered early Monday morning when J. A. Harrold, owner of the cottage in which Dossett made his home alone, entered the house with a cup of coffee for the aged man. No signs of a struggle were found and the body lay in a natural position across the bed. The bullet had entered the head back of the right ear and there were distinct powder marks. The bullet, of the same calibre as the pistol which lay on the bed, was removed in the course of an autopsy which followed.

Colorful Figure

Dossett, a colorful figure in the last half century of Oklahoma history, was widely known throughout Texas, Oklahoma, and Kansas. He came to the territory before the run into the Cherokee strip in 1894 and was a United States deputy marshal through a long period before the territory became a state. Since that time he has served as a Lawton peace officer under several administrations. During the last two years he has been working intermittently as a laborer for the city.

Two brothers, Will Dossett, of Udall, Kan., and "Doc" Dossett, of Caw City, Okla., are on their way to Lawton.

SCIENTISTS SEE SUN-MOON ACT

Correspondent in Center of Lunar Shadow

By GOBIND BEHARI LAL

HEADQUARTERS OF LICK OBservatory, Camptonville, Calif., April 28.—It was a total eclipse of the sun, except for fringes of light peering through the valleys of the moon, that was enacted for a brief moment under the most dramatic natural settings on earth and in the skies here today.

Some 200 astronomers and amateur scientists witnessed the second at which the sun was totally shadowed by the moon, almost punctually at three minutes and 32 seconds after 11 a. m.

Until almost the very last instant there was grave doubt whether the sun and moon would reveal their unique play in the sky. Rain clouds, dark and sinister, hung all over the path of the sun and throughout the preceding phase of the eclipse the sun's crescent appeared through the thick cloudy veils only momentarily.

The eclipse first began here and was observed by everybody present through darkened glasses at 9:41:32 a. m. That was the time when the sky was covered with deep sepia and magenta clouds, but 10 o'clock several astronomers heaved a sigh of relief for the sun had begun to come into clearing spaces.

When only 15 minutes remained

CITY MANAGER

Move for Vote on Form Of Government Is Quashed

Recent efforts to bring about an election on the city-manager question were definitely quashed Monday night when the city council voted unanimously to turn down a petition bearing the signatures of 307 citizens, of which 210 were found to be qualified voters. The petition was refused on the basis of the statute providing that any request for an election on a change in a city charter must bear the signatures of 10 per cent of the total number of qualified voters of a city. With more than 8,000 qualified voters in Wichita Falls, more than 800 names would be required on such a petition, according to the opinion given by City Attorney Thelbert Martin.

CITY ORDERS ANNUAL AUDIT

Council Votes to Restrict Award to Home Firms

Unanimously voting to award the contract for auditing of the city's finances to the lowest bidder among Wichita Falls concerns, the city council at its regular meeting Monday night accepted the bid of $925 submitted by Allred, Lambert & Nichols, local accountants.

Company Protests

The bid was selected from eight submitted. Others were E. P. Walsh and company, $1,000; Ferguson, Colaw and company, $890; W. E. Wallace, $1,847; Rankin & McAlpine, $1,285; Schoolar, Bird & McCullough, per diem, no amount specified; J. E. Hutchison Jr., $25 per day, maximum $2,400; and Shapard, Crouch and company, $2,800.

A representative of Ferguson, Colaw and company, a Texarkana concern, protested when the motion was made to award the contract to a local concern, pointing out that adoption of such a policy when foreign concerns offered lower bids would tend to prevent companies in other cities from submitting bids in the future and thus leave the field open for exploitation by local accountants. The aldermen "granted that point" but maintained the contract should be given to a Wichita Falls company since the conduct

Shreveport Goes Over 76,000 For 1930 Population

Two large cities reported their populations Monday.

Shreveport, La., just east of the Texas line and a part of Texas as far as baseball is concerned, now contains 76,207 persons, a gain of 74 per cent over figures of 10 years ago. The 1920 population of Shreveport was 43,874, and in 1910, 28,015. The report Monday does not include the count of Bossier City, a suburb, which is expected to show approximately 4,000 population.

Soaking Rains Renewed As Wichita Valley Line To Spur Sustains Damages

Parched grain fields and ranges of Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma continued Monday to soak up slow drenching rains which fell at intervals throughout the day over the entire territory, adding to Sunday's scattered showers and preparing wide acreages for the plantings of row crops.

The precipitation in Wichita Falls had reached more than three-quarters of an inch Monday night, the first rain of a material benefit for almost three months. Heavy clouds with occasional electrical disturbances lay over the section Monday night, promising that the belated drouth-breaking showers might continue.

The hardest rains were reported along the Wichita Valley Spur line, where some damages to tracks and roads were reported. Electrical disturbances were announced at Iowa Park, where 1.67-inch rain fell within a short time. No damage was reported there.

ABILENE, Texas, April 28. (AP)—An eight-inch rain in 24 hours at Aspermont, Stonewall county, caused the city water supply lake of 250 acres to break a dam across a small canyon late today after 200 men worked all day to save it. There was no material damage from the water flow, and it was not possible to estimate how much of the city water was retained.

The downpour extended to sections not heretofore reached by the scattered showers of the past week, leaving few remaining gaps in the territory suffering for lack of moisture.

G. C. McGown, Wichita county farm agent, said the showers in the immediate territory came too late to be of much benefit to wheat but that they left the soil in perfect condition for the late planting of row crops throughout the section.

Graham, Olney, Newcastle, Seymour, Pecos, Haskell, Rochester, Lockney, Stamford, Munday, Crowell, Throckmorton and Paducah, Texas; Altus, Walters and Frederick, Okla., and communities along the Denver from Memphis through Wichita Falls reported heavy showers.

CHAOS REIGNS IN OHIO PRISON

Real Leaders of Riot Elude Eviction by Guard

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 28. (AP)—Thirty-one national guardsmen with loaded rifles and tear gas bombs were sent into Ohio penitentiary tonight to quell disorders among prisoners in a tunnel leading from a cell block to the prison power house.

Seven of the soldiers went into the prison court while 24 men stationed themselves in the guard room with fixed bayonets.

A "shoot to kill" order was issued by Warden Thomas.

By ORVILLE DWYER

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 28. (US)—Chaos still reigned in the charred old Ohio penitentiary tonight.

The authorities admitted that the 4,300-odd prisoners still have control of the institution—that not a single man has gone back to his accustomed prison task.

This was the situation despite the threats of the authorities that they would "shoot to kill" if the prisoners did not go back to work today—despite the warnings to the convicts that the order this morning would be "go back to work or come out feet first."

Leaders Removed

Earlier in the day 300 policemen, carrying machine guns, tear gas bombs and riot clubs, had marched into the institution, lined up the convicts and dragged their ringleaders from the ranks.

Of the supposed ring leaders, 38 tonight have been seized, first thrown into solitary and then transferred to the London prison farm, 20 miles from Columbus. But no sooner was the seizing and the tumult over than the Rev. Father O'Brien, emerging from the inside, said flatly that he still feared bloodshed. The Catholic chaplain said:

"The real ring leaders are still inside—they didn't get the real ones."

The Rev. Father O'Brien was asked:

"How are conditions inside?"

He replied:

"The worst they have been since the fire itself. I hope it is settled without bloodshed—but I'm afraid it won't be."

William Wendt, state representative, member of the house finance committee and chairman of the state board of control, after a series of conferences lasting all day long, said:

"It is a semi-proposition. The authorities are not in control of the prison but I would say they are 'semi' in control. I think everything will work itself out O. K."

He added:

"I know this: Governor Cooper has determined to settle this prison situation in Ohio once and for all now. We are going into the prison tomorrow with two architects and start planning the rebuilding of AUBURN, N. Y., April 28. (AP)—Two inmates of the women's prison at Auburn state prison assaulted a matron with an iron bar last night in a determined attempt to escape, but were recaptured in the prison yard. They were placed in punishment cells. The prison was reported quiet.

C.-C. OPPOSES TRAIN CHANGE

Wichitans Fight Plea of Valley; Abilene Gives Aid

lief that more patronage could be obtained between this city and Abilene on day trains than on those run at night.

The Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce vigorously protested granting of the petition, its evidence before the commission being submitted by Dudley B. Foy, traffic manager, who called J. C. Mytinger and James H. Allison as witnesses. Their testimony revealed that the traffic committee of the local chamber of commerce, after exhaustive investigation, believes that the night trains best serve the interests of this community, both as to travel and to express, mail, etc., and that the proposed change in trains would impose great delays upon residents of the cities located on the Wichita Valley railroads southwest of Wichita Falls obtaining mail and express shipments from this city.

Handicap to Many Towns

The Wichita Falls representative based their pleas on the fact that the area which would be seriously hampered by the service is much larger than the area which would receive some small benefit. Business men in these towns would be delayed one day in receipt of shipments which come through or originate in Wichita Falls, while residents of the towns would also be delayed a day in the receipt of mail, express and daily newspapers. Among the towns which would be handicapped by the change, in addition to Wichita Falls, are Holliday, Jean, Loving, Megargel, Dundee, Mankins, Seymour, Weinert, Munday, Haskell, Goree, Bomarton and others, the Wichita Falls representatives said.

It was pointed out by Mr. Mytinger and Mr. Allison that shipments would have to be assembled for the train by noon of each day in order to be ready for departure at 2:30 p. m., and that delivery could not be made until the following morning. Under the present schedule, the entire day is available for preparing merchandise, mail, express, etc., for shipment, they said, and it provides almost continuous motion in delivery, arriving in cities of destination shortly before deliveries of the day begin.

Connections Broken

It was further emphasized that connections with M-K-T trains west from Stamford and Anson, and east from Seymour on the G. T. & W. line, would be broken by the proposed change in schedule, imposing upon communities served by those railroads considerable delay in receiving mail and express shipments from southbound trains.

T. N. Cargill, manager of the chamber of commerce at Abilene, represented that organization and also Anson and Hawley in supporting the petition. Testimony in favor of granting the application also was given by George McDaniel, circulation manager of the Abilene Reporter and News.

Hearing on the application of the Tarry Motor Freight lines for permission to operate a line from Fort Worth to Stamford via Wichita Falls was postponed to a date not later than May 15.

No protests were filed in connection with the application of the Wichita Falls and Southern railway to discontinue passenger service between Wichita Falls and Breckenridge Monday morning.

At present one train a day is operated over the line during the day.

It was understood that protests from business men were withdrawn shortly before the opening of the hearing on the petition. Reports that passengers rarely used the train between the points touched and that truck line mail service had been established were presented by the railroad company.

land the largest bass and crappie. The prize list received one addition Monday, F. B. Massey of the Lone Star Minnow Hatchery on the Seymour road, offering five dozen minnows for the crappie division. Mr. Massey said he thought 13 might prove an unlucky number for the fish.

Other Prizes

Other prizes include a No. 1000 South Bend reel for the bass, given by the Noble-Little Hardware company; an Air-Fed Minnow bucket, large size, for the crappie, given by the Bailey-Moline Hardware company and a 14-inch water proof tackle box for the bass by the same company; $5 in cash for the bass and $5 in cash for the crappie, given by The Record News and Daily Times; $5 in fishing merchandise for the bass, given by Montgomery Ward and company; $5 in fishing merchandise for the crappie by Sears-Roebuck and company; a 24-pound Test Wexford Shakespeare silk casting line, by the Wichita Hardware company for the bass and a 4 or 4½-foot (winner's choice) steel casting rod for the crappie, by the same company; any three artificial baits (winner's choice) value not to exceed $5, by the Monroe Street Hardware company, for the bass; and a certificate for a fishing picture, by the S. & S. Studio, for both the bass and the crappie which place first.

The rules of the contest provide that all fish entered must be weighed in on the special scales in the lobby of the Times Publishing company by 6 o'clock on May 2. One person may enter one bass and one crappie, but not two of either. In response to a number of inquiries, The Record News wishes to state that the prizes will go NOT to ONE person, but to a dozen persons. First, second, third, and other prizes will be determined according to the weight of the fish, the person with the largest fish being entitled to first choice of the prizes listed, the person with the second largest fish to the second choice of the prizes, and so on. By this system, each winner may select the prize that best suits his equipment or taste. There will be seven prizes awarded for the six largest bass and six prizes awarded for the five largest crappie, the two picture awards going to the winners of first places.

Texas Prison Manager Has Story of Ohio Fire Shown to State Convicts

HOUSTON, April 28. "In distributing the papers," Simmons explained, "I pointed out that all major prison disasters and fatal breaks have been caused by a few disgruntled men and that in every instance the prisoners themselves are the losers. I appealed to the saner elements among inmates at Huntsville that their own interests are best served by helping us control these malcontents, who constitute a small but dangerous element within the walls."

of the city government should benefit the citizens it represents.

Country Club Deputy

The aldermen voted in favor of an appropriation of $325 to be used as the city's contribution toward paying the salary of a special officer to patrol the Country Club Estates area, in view of the distance of the residents there from police headquarters and the fact that they have in the past paid the entire salary of the present officer, who has maintained a perfect record with no crimes of any type reported. City Attorney Thelbert Martin was instructed to draw up an ordinance providing for the appropriation. The city's contribution will begin May 1 and continue for 11 months.

The period of office for members of the city equalization board having drawn to a close, the aldermen voted unanimously to reappoint the present board, made up of J. M. Baber, J. T. Young and Roscoe Staton.

Bill Authorizes Huge Bridge Expenditures

WASHINGTON, April 28. (AP)—The secretary of agriculture would be authorized to expend $35,000,000 a year for 10 years to acquire toll bridges deemed advantageous to the interests of interstate and foreign commerce under a bill introduced today by Representative Ruth Bryan Owen, Democrat, Florida.

Rehabilitation Bill Approved by House

WASHINGTON, April 28. (AP)—The Reed bill to authorize expenditure of $1,000,000 annually for the next three years to promote vocational rehabilitation to restore disabled persons to industry was passed today by the house and sent to the senate.

Only wealthy people can afford cheap oil, says lubrication expert

One kind of oil is as good as another in the container. It's actual service that makes the difference.

Cheap oil is never worth the price you pay. For it leads you into thinking you are getting proper lubrication for your sewing machine, lawn mower, washer, electric fan, vacuum cleaner and other expensive equipment—when you are not.

If you want to get the best possible service from your household equipment, 3-in-One is the oil to use. This recognized leader is a scientific blend of high grade animal, mineral and vegetable oils and contains properties not possessed by ordinary oil. It cleans and protects as well as lubricates. Don't take a chance. Insist on the old reliable 3-in-One. At good stores everywhere, in 15c and 30c sizes. For your protection, look for the trade mark "3-in-One" printed in Red on every package.—Adv.

UNEMPLOYMENT BILLS PASSED

Parker Vote in Doubt; Hoover Asks Enforcement Laws

WASHINGTON, April 28. (US)—After the administration was flayed as "unsympathetic," the senate today passed two bills laying the groundwork for federal relief of unemployment.

The bills, sponsored by Senator Wagner, Democrat, of New York, provide for gathering unemployment statistics and authorize $150,000,000 to be used as a reserve fund for construction of public works in times of stress.

Over the protest of administration senators, Wagner then succeeded in having his third bill, providing for establishment of federal employment agencies in cooperation with the states, made the unfinished business of the senate.

VOTE ON PARKER AGAIN "DOUBTFUL"

WASHINGTON, April 28. (US)—The political pendulum swung back to "doubt" again today, as the senate began consideration of the nomination of John J. Parker, of North Carolina, for justice of the U. S. supreme court.

Political pressure from the White House over the week-end turned the fight over Parker from certain rejection to uncertain confirmation, with both sides claiming victory.

Several southern Democrats who have previously indicated that they would support Parker are wavering as a result of the issue injected into the case by Ralph Hayes, New York banker, who was secretary to Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, during the world war.

This charge concerns Parker's connection with the so-called "war fraud" cases instituted by Attorney General Daugherty in an effort to besmirch the Wilson war administration.

PRESIDENT URGES ENFORCEMENT BILLS

WASHINGTON, April 28. (AP)—Adopting the unusual course of writing to congress urging completion of his legislative law enforcement program, President Hoover today found a senate so busy with other matters that it even waived the formality of having the executive message read. It was referred to the judiciary committee without a word of discussion.

The five points were transfer of prohibition enforcement functions from the treasury to the justice department, methods to relieve congested court dockets, extension of federal prison facilities, consolidation of border patrol agencies to more effectively prevent illegal entry of aliens and goods, and an "adequate" dry enforcement law for the national capital.

Total Eclipse Of Sun Viewed

of the scheduled time of the totality phase, the entire assembly on the Bishop ranch which was the stage for the greatest show of nature, turned their gaze towards the thin crescent of the sun and astronomer observers began to call out the time as each minute passed.

Finally the moment came when the sun's crescent disappeared and the most weird spectacle was presented before the human vision.

The sentinel pine and cedar trees seemed like an army of ghosts in dark green liveries.

The cows on the ranches started bellowing, turkeys and chickens on the meadow cackled and birds burst into doleful chants.

A great chill passed over the valley and many men regretted that they had left their overcoats in their cars, dew seemed to fill the already moist air.

A unanimous cry arose announcing the total blotting out of the sun's golden disc. It was but a mere second and it was qualified by an extremely faint dot or two of sunlight peering on the circumference through the valleyed edges of the moon. There was no dispute that the eclipse was total, and that we were precisely or within 100 feet of the center line of the shadow path.

Hen-Pecked, Wingless Bird Rests on Bill and Growls at Times

WASHINGTON, April 28. (US)—A bird without wings, that growls when annoyed, sleeps all day and uses its bill as a prop for its head when tired—such is the kiwi.

Presentation of a silver model of the Kiwi to Admiral Byrd in New Zealand prompted the National Georgraphical society today to describe this freak of nature.

The kiwi lays an egg one-fourth of its own weight, and the male kiwi hatches it.

CHURCH CLUB HEARS BISHOP

Harry T. Moore Speaks at Episcopal Meeting

A resume of important developments taking place today in the Episcopal church was given by Bishop Harry T. Moore of Dallas in his address Monday night before members of the Episcopal Men's club assembled in the parish house for the club's regular monthly meeting.

Bishop Moore dwelled particularly on the efforts towards church development of Bishop Perry of Rhode Island, new leader of the denomination, under whose guidance Bishop Moore predicted Episcopal congregations the nation over would be drawn into one harmonious whole. Especially will the new leader create a greater interest in missions, with his policy of carrying messages of friendliness, education, sanitation and fine living to foreign peoples, instead of burdening them with religious theory, Bishop Moore said.

"Many people do not know that it is unethical to start preaching religion to foreign peoples, when the right thing to do is first to improve their living conditions and make friends of them. The result is a happier people. And the effect on us is the feeling of having helped someone else. The reflex on us is as great as the good that is done."

Bishop Moore also commented on evangelism within the church, stating that he did not believe the charge is true that the Episcopal church is the poorest along evangelical lines. He stressed the importance of personal evangelism, "with each member of the church dedicating himself to doing his part in God's kingdom."

Approximately 60 members of the club were present at the meeting. The dinner was served by the Emma B. Childers guild. The entertainment program included a vocal solo by Ed Reeder and a vocal solo and dance by Miss Mickey Ferguson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Ferguson. Both were accompanied at the piano by Miss Thelma Adams. Merrill Blair, president of the club, presided.

what was burned and the fireproofing of what is still inflammable."

Warden Pessimistic

Warden Thomas was not so optimistic.

"Of the total prisoners inside, 3,100 are quite orderly. There are 1,300 others who are more or less quiet. Some of these last are more or less belligerent."

A quiet chaos—but chaos just the same.

The warden would not say so, but he indicated he has relinquished all his ideas of forcing the men to go back to their tasks even if it comes to prodding bayonets or shooting by national guardsmen.

He continued:

"We will resort to bloodshed only if everything else fails."

But Governor Cooper and H. H. Griswold, director of public welfare, released what apparently is the general plan for handling the situation provided the convicts do not again break out in rioting—provided it does not come to the bloodshed.

To Scatter Rioters

These two men said that at least 1,000 prisoners will be moved out of the old local prison as fast as it is possible to move them. Some 200 will be taken to the state reformatory at Mansfield—200 of the regular inmates there were said to have been moved during the day to the Grafton penal farm in Lorraine county to make room.

The federal government, the governor and director of welfare said, has offered room for 250 more in the federal prison at Chillicothe, Ohio. In addition to the 28 "bad actors" who were moved to the London farm today, numbers of others will be moved there and numbers more will be transferred to jails in the surrounding counties.

Hilburn was shot to death on the streets of Wichita Falls last fall. Attorneys for Grundy entered an insanity plea in the original trial.

VERNON, Texas, April 28.—Plans for the 47th annual Doans May day picnic have been completed and everything is in readiness for the occasion Saturday to be held in the Watts grove, 20 miles north of Vernon on the banks of Red river.

Ed Gossett, Vernon attorney, will be master of ceremonies for the political program and will introduce each candidate. The program will be opened by C. C. Small of Wellington, candidate for governor of Texas.

Thousands of both Texas and Oklahoma citizens attend the picnic each year in a day of good will and celebration.

Other speakers for the morning hour will include Cecil Storey of Vernon, candidate for state attorney general, and B. D. Following these addresses all other district and county candidates who are present will be given an opportunity to speak.

Lubbock Housewife Testifies

I've Suffered Fifteen Years; Since Taking One Bottle of Argotane Feel Fine

"I've had a long, hard struggle with ill health but by the help of Argotane I have found relief at last," said Mrs. J. C. Harper of 506 Ave. K, Lubbock, Texas, while talking with the Argotane representative.

"I've had stomach trouble so bad for 15 years that my life was miserable," she continued, "but I'm a lot better since I began taking Argotane. I was in such a run-down condition I couldn't eat anything I wanted and was losing weight and got weaker every day. After eating the smallest meals I would bloat up and my heart would beat so fast I was afraid something serious would result. I would have severe headaches and was weak and nervous and sometimes thought I would be compelled to stay in bed.

"I read so much about Argotane I decided to try it. It may be hard to believe, but it's the truth, I feel better than I have in 15 years, and I've just taken one bottle of Argotane. I am no longer bothered with my awful headaches, my appetite is splendid and I can eat anything I want, without it hurting me in the least. My heart doesn't bother me as it did and I feel better in every way, my nerves are quiet now and I sleep fine every night."

Genuine Argotane may be bought in Wichita Falls at the Allison Drug store, 716 Indiana avenue.—Adv.

Scientists Liken Memories to Electrical Deposits on Brain

Savants Gathered at Philadelphia Hear Explanation of New Theory of Thought Recording in Human Brain

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

PHILADELPHIA, April 28.—Discoveries that the images of memory probably are electrical deposits in the brain were reported to the American Philosophical society here.

They were described by Dr. G. W. Crile of Cleveland, who told of seeing the deposits being made.

They are produced by the tiniest of electrical currents passing along the nerves and engraving in the brain permanent patterns—memories—which are never lost. The connections may become obstructed and ability of recall impaired.

He cited experiments showing that nerves carry electro-chemical impulses as wires conduct electricity. He pictured the nervous system with an infinite number of "receptors" receiving stations, transforming sense impressions into electrical impulses, and sending them into the "innumerable microscopically visible fibers of white matter" of the brain.

New "Electric Eye"

Many observers, he said, have found that light falling upon the eye causes electric energy to travel over the optic nerve. This he compared to the new "electric eye," the photoelectric cell, in which potassium may be used to obtain the photoelectric effect. This same potassium is abundant he said in certain of the eye nerves, and could operate somewhat the same.

"We know what material the mechanism that holds the memory image must be," he went on, "for the brain consists of water, various compounds of potassium, sodium, phosphorous, calcium, magnesium and a group of highly specialized fats. In other words, the brain consists of conductors and insulators.

"All the billions of brain cells are in existence at birth, for no new brain cells are added after birth. But few of the fibers exist at birth, and there is then little memory."

Chemicals Explained

He explained the chemicals of these fibers which are potassium and other substances, and the electrical impulses coming into the brain would tend to loose potassium and working with phosphorous and other substances would create a brain fiber.

"Thus," he said, "we postulate that the nerve cells secrete nerve fiber. When another like impact upon the same sense organ occurs the same fibers (neurofibrillae) would be stimulated and the pathway intensified, thus recreating the original image—creating memory.

"These infinite pathways thus created intercommunicate, allowing infinite number of associations, thus making possible the processes of thought and reasoning.

"In experiments upon rats we have been able to produce facilitated pathways both in freshly removed brains and in living brains by the passage of an electric current, this facilitation being manifested by increased conductivity along the path of the stimulating current and diminished activity across it."

BACK IN 1839 THEY DID FUME

Public 'Letters' of Estranged Pair Published

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., April 28. (UP)—Way back in 1839, when husbands advertised their unwillingness to pay debts contracted by a wife, they wrote long and bitterly personal tirades against their mates and the wives replied in similar or harsher language.

In illustrating methods of advertised family squabbles the Sentinel and Herald quoted two "notices" from the Jeffersonville, Iowa, Journal of Oct. 10, 1839:

"My wife, Nancy Flood, has left me without cause or provocation. I am determined to pay no debts of her contracting. She is a trifling, good-for-nothing, any way you can fix it. I warn all darkies against harboring, feeding or running away with her under penalty of having their peepers blackened and their noses mashed until they are as flat as pancakes."

Mrs. Flood replied in part:

"Jessie M. Flood, a fellow who calls me his wife, has unkindly showed be the bottom of his foot and not satisfied with running away between supper and breakfast, the slab-sided, lantern-jawed rascal has advertised me as a jad. What he says about me is as false as he is trifling. He has cleaned the kitchen, leaving me with his children to feed without a cent of money. I made him a good wife, but he is a sour, ill natured, reel-footed and bandy-legged scamp. He can't transmopolate a particle of sylligotistical science nor can he jusmulticate the least fenso cosnostiveness, from the bulgarnatorial mind of an idiositicated wife.

"I caution all trans-fulmantorial girls from having anything to do with him as he has a white liver. Hoping he will continue to measure dirt and never show his face in these parts again, I remain, Nancy Flood."

None of the strange words Mrs. Flood used could be found in a regulation 1928 desk dictionary.

Rights of Way Purchased for New Road Between Olustee and Quanah

Special to The Record News

ALTUS, Okla., April 28.—Ten of the 18 tracts of land necessary for routing a proposed highway from Olustee through Eldorado to the Red river have been purchased and plans are under way for securing the remainder of these tracts. This highway when completed between Olustee and Quanah, Texas, will connect with state highway number seven at a point about five miles west of Altus.

County commissioners express belief that this land will soon be secured and they will be able to award a contract.

According to the plans which are mapped out at present, the highway will cross Red river west of the Frisco railroad bridge following the railroad to Sandy creek, where it will branch off a little to the north, crossing Sandy creeek just north of the present road bridge. It will return to the railroad through the J. O. Render farm near Eldorado and connect with Lloyd street, following this street to Main where it will pass directly through Eldorado and on on through Olustee and to Altus.

This road following along the side of the railroad track will prevent all railroad crossings from Olustee to Quanah. Four crossings which must be made at the present time will be eliminated and the route will be shortened by four or five miles.

Other requirements for this route are two new bridges, one across Red river and one across Sandy creek.

It is expected that the contract for the construction of this highway will be awarded before June as the commissioners are anxious that work begin on it before the meeting of the federal highway board on June 20 in Chicago.

Second: Opposition to the formation of any more appointive boards or commissions and these with some now existing should be abolished.

Third: Opposition to waste of the people's money in the multiplication of services.

Stop Rheumatic Pains With Rx A-2851

Local druggists who are dispensing Prescription A-2851 are all loud in their praise of what it will do. It doesn't seem to matter whether the condition is of long standing and the pain constant, or whether only occasional twinges are felt—Prescription A-2851 seems to go right to the seat of the trouble and knock out the pain.

While this particular prescription was compounded especially for rheumatic conditions—it has also proven successful in many forms of gout, neuritis and sciatic nerve pain.

Tear out this announcement and hand it to your druggist, or be sure to to remember the name—Prescription A-2851. In liquid or pill form. There is nothing else as good to drive out rheumatism.

Husband Learns To Love His Wife After Marriage

What are the 10 greatest mistakes women make in marriage? First, marrying too young. This is the greatest mistake a woman can possibly make in marriage, because no young girl has the intelligence, the experience and the knowledge of men that would enable her to make a wise choice of a mate. She is just as incapable of picking out a husband who will make her happy as she is of picking out an investment in the stock market that will make her rich.

We would be horrified at the idea of letting a flapper take her whole fortune and speculate with it on Wall street without even a tip from her elders, yet we permit 16 and 17-year-old girly girlies to gamble away their whole future lives in marriage. Which is one reason why there are so many divorces.

Nor does any young girl know what kind of husband she is going to want when she is a grown-up woman. Her tastes are immature and in a state of flux. At 18 she craved chocolate creams and gooey ice-cream sodas. At 28 her sophisticated appetite demands caviar and French bonbons. It is the same way with husbands, and generally the man a girl picked out in her teens bores her to extinction by the time she is 30.

Likewise the girl who marries when she is very young misses her playtime and she spends the balance of her life regretting it, and trying to make up for it. If you will observe, you will see that the contented married women, who think that wifehood and motherhood are a great career, and who prefer to spend their evenings by their own firesides, are almost invariably the women who married late in life, whereas the discontented, fretful women who complain about the hardships of having to keep house, and who regard their children as brats and nuisances, are invariably the women who married too young. Also the flirtatious married women are those who married before they had their quota of beaux and dates and moonlight and lovemaking.

The second mistake that women make is in marrying when they are not really in love. So many women marry just to be a-marrying, or because they don't want to be old maids, or because all the girls in their set have got married, or because they are tired of office work and want some man to support them. They have only a lukewarm affection for the man they marry. This gives out under the inevitable strain of domestic life and they are miserable themselves and make their husbands still more miserable. If a woman loves her husband enough, nothing else matters. She makes a happy wife and she makes a happy husband because she is always on her tiptoes trying to please him.

The third mistake that women make in marriage is in marrying on the grab-bag principle. No woman buys a new hat without shopping around for it and being sure that she is getting her money's worth and that it is her color and suits her lines and brings out her best points. But she will marry a man almost sight unseen, or because he looks good to her at a casual glance and without ever taking the trouble to find out about his antecedents, or his previous record, or whether he has a single taste or idea in common with her.

Or she will marry him with the general idea in the back of her head that if she doesn't like him she will take him apart and make him over when she gets him home, or dye him a new color, or something. It never seems to occur to her that this can't be done and that by the time a man has reached a marriagable age he is set and fixed in his ways and habits, and that a mere wife can no more alter him mentally and morally than she could change the shape of his nose.

Every day we see girls marrying philanderers thinking they are going to change them into home-staying Darbys; marrying drunkards thinking they are going to reform them; marrying lazy, shiftless ne'er-do-wells thinking they are going to speed them up into go-getters. And every day we see the mournful procession of neglected wives and drunkards' wives and poor wives whose husbands wouldn't support them and the children on the way to the divorce court.

The fourth mistake that women make in mariage is in being more mother than wife. With the advent of the first baby in only too many families, the husband's nose is put permanently out of joint and thereafter he exists, so far as his wife is concerned, merely for the purpose of toiling to provide for her offspring.

She never sees him as a man again. Only as a father. She never thinks it worth while to dress up for him, or to make herself attractive to him, or to consider his taste, or his pleasure, or his convenience.

Everything is for the children. All her time, all her thought, all her money is given to them. Nothing is left for poor husband. And it is hardly to be wondered at that, unless he is an especially well-domesticated animal, he wanders off in search of some lady who will hold his hand while his wife is holding the baby's, and who will jolly him along while wife is telling the children bedtime stories.

The fifth mistake that women make in marriage is in thinking of marriage as a romance instead of a job. A girl goes into marriage believing it is going to be a lovey-dovey affair, a sort of perpetual petting party in which she will have nothing to do but to doll herself up and look pretty and listen to her husband tell her how beautiful and wonderful she is. Hence when she finds out that she has got a life sentence at hard labor and is tied up with just an ordinary human man instead of a fairy prince, she weeps her eyes out in disappointment and only too often throws up her hands and quits.

If women only brought into marriage the qualities they take into business, there would be very few matrimonial bankruptcies. For the woman who goes into business qualifies herself for her job before she undertakes it. She puts all of her intelligence into trying to do it well, and she sticks to it through times of discouragement and she uses all of her tact and finesse in trying to get along with her boss, instead of answering him back when he critiicizes her and having a fight over every subject on which they disagree.

If women can ever be brought to realize that their marriages are what they make them instead of a matter of luck, there will be more marriages that are going concerns, and fewer failures.

MAKE THIS MODEL AT HOME
Pattern 1887

By ANNE ADAMS

With the woman of more ample proportions in mind, the designer of this frock added tucks at the shoulders and back neck for just that extra bit of freedom so necessary. The graceful rever and the pointed hip section are slenderizing details. The sleeves may be cut long or short.

Design 1887 is charming fashioned of flat crepe, georgette or Elizabeth crepe in plain color or printed with very thin colorful designs. Dots and small flowers on dark grounds are most attractive and will not accentuate the figure.

This pattern may be ordered only sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 4¾ yards of 39-inch material.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given.

Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins carefully wrapped, or stamps, for each pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, style number and size wanted.

Our pattern book of new spring and summer styles is fifteen cents, but only ten cents when ordered with a pattern. Address all mail and orders to Record News Pattern Department, 243 West 17th street, New York City.

VERY NERVOUS AND IN PAIN
Mississippi Lady Says She Felt Stronger, Better After Taking Cardui

Greenwood, Miss.—Mrs. W. D. Taylor, of 1313 Carrollton avenue, this city, has written of her use of Cardui as follows:

"About five years ago, I was in ill health. I suffered a great deal of pain in my sides and in the lower part of my body. I was weak and nervous, and at the least noise I felt like I must scream.

"At times I would have to go to bed. My head would ache. It would take me three or four days to get over these spells.

"A friend told me to take Cardui, which I did. After my first bottle, I saw some improvement. When I had taken three bottles, I felt stronger and better than I had in some time. I did not have any more of these bad spells.

"I certainly recommend Cardui." Thousands of other women recommend Cardui, after having found it of valuable assistance to them in building up their health.

Cardui is extracted from medicinal herbs, and contains nothing harmful. Try it in your case.

Sprains

The joints of the body have degrees of movement varying from the non-movable joints of the skull to the freely moving ball and socket joint of the shoulder. If you twist your arm and shoulder around, you will find that it moves in several different directions. The elbow is a little different, being a hinge joint, and in your jaw you not only have a hinge joint which allows you to open and shut your mouth, but you have a gliding joint which enables you to push your teeth from side to side or in front of the upper teeth.

Movable joints are reinforced and joined together by strong ligaments. A sprain means that some of these ligaments have been torn or stretched by a movement which is not in the normal range of the joint. The lubricating membranes between the joints are also usually damaged, and sometimes the blood vessels of that region may become ruptured and fill the joint cavity with fluid.

A sprain makes itself known by a sharp and severe pain, rapid swelling of the part, local heat, and sometimes a shiny appearance of the skin. These symptoms occur in the immediate area of the joint. The patient avoids movement or weight upon the part.

Immediately following a sprain care should be taken to avoid movement. If the foot or knee is hurt the limb should be raised to relieve the congestion of blood. No walking should be done with a sprained ankle. The part should be bandaged tightly and cold applications used. Some prefer adhesive tape and others a tight bandage. The use of cold packs or running water tends to prevent an excessive congestion of blood.

While rest is important in the beginning, at least for a few days, it should not be continued for too long a time, or the prolonged inaction may allow the joint to heal up locked in one position. If you wish to keep the power of movement in the joints you should begin to move them as soon as the acute period of inflammation and swelling has subsided. Stiff joints may result from resting too long a time.

During the inflammation, lymph will be exuded and the joint may become bound around with material of a fibrous nature leading to adhesions. Skilled manipulation will in most cases cause the joint to return to a condition of free movement.

Where one has once sprained an ankle or dislocated a joint there is a weakness remaining for some time and the part may be very easily injured again. If there is any distortion of the part the doctor should be called immediately, as the sprain might be accompanied by a dislocation or even a fracture. Sometimes the vertebrae in the back are injured by sprains or slight displacements. These can usually be corrected by treatment from an osteopath or chiropractor who should be able to restore the part to its normal position. In people who have a rheumatic tendency sprains are sometimes the beginning of chronic synovitis or arthritis as the rheumatic toxins tend to settle in the injured area. In these cases one should immediately begin an orange or grapefruit fast to be continued until all the pain has subsided.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Laxatives

Question: L. L. asks—"I would like to know if any injection of a laxative into the lower bowels through the rectum would be as beneficial to a person subject to constipation as taking it through the mouth? If not, why not?"

Answer—Purgatives and laxatives produce their best effect through being taken by mouth. They produce a more copious flow of digestive and lubricating juice and therefore produce a liquefying effect upon the intestines. When injected through an enema their effect is only upon a small portion of the intestines An enema with plain water will usually accomplish as good results.

Elderberry Jelly

Question: T. Y. writes—"This morning I had a fried egg for breakfast. There was some elderberry jelly on my plate and it touched the egg and instantly turned the egg pure green. Is there any danger of poisoning, as I have several glasses more of the jelly, and I know many people who have this same kind of jelly."

Answer—There is no poison produced by the combination of elderberry or grape jelly with eggs. The green coloring you observed is simply due to chemical changes which are not injurious.

Skin Welts

Question: G. T. writes—"I have a skin condition which I believe due to either my nerves or my blood. At times, usually in the morning or when I become warm or excited small welts appear on my hands and small irritations on my arms, and my hands and feet take spells of burning and itching. What can I do to remedy this?"

Answer—Your trouble is caused from a lowered blood alkalinity and will disappear if you will live on a well balanced diet. Be sure to include plenty of both cooked and raw non-starchy vegetables; also, eliminate starches and sweets for a few weeks.

Tulsa Legislator Must Serve Term

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 28. (UP)—O. O. Owens, Tulsa legislator, and millionaire oil operator, must complete his one-year sentence in the Oklahoma county jail and pay a $5,000 fine, unless pardoned by Gov. W. J. Holloway.

His last legal recourse to escape the sentence invoked by the Oklahoma supreme court was blocked today when the U. S. supreme court denied to review his habeas corpus suit contesting the conviction.

Owens was held in contempt by the supreme court in April, 1927, and was sent to jail where he served 73 days.

He was ordered released on a writ of habeas corpus by the criminal court of appeals.

Q.—What city in South America is installing elevators to carry people down a hill?—C. S.

A.—Bahia, in northern Brazil, has installed an elevator tower containing two elevators to bring people from the plateau to the level of the bay. The city is built on the two levels and each elevator has a capacity of 27 passengers and speed of 700 feet a minute; which means that nearly 4,000 passengers an hour can be carried the distance of 125 feet which separates the two parts of the city.

Q.—Will Ottawa and Toronto, Canada, have daylight saving this summer?—M. G.

A.—Both cities will observe daylight saving time from April 27 to Sept. 28, 1930.

Q.—Is the space between the earth and sun dark or light?—F. A. A.

A.—Space is perpetual night. If "space" happened to be in the orbit of a heavenly body, when it occupied that particular spot, there would be light, since the atmosphere surrounding planets and planetoids causes them to reflect the light of the sun.

Q.—How old is Graham McNamee is he married, and what is his salary?—S. M.

Although a business slump may account for John D. Rockefeller giving away nickels instead of dimes, a more likely reason is that the five-cent pieces are coming shinier now.

They are referring to the better business drive in Chicago as a "boom," but many will think it would sound better as a "bang."

A War That Didn't Pay

TWENTY-ONE years ago a young Englishman named Norman Angell wrote a book called "The Great Illusion." The book gave him a certain amount of fame; it also drew down on his head a good deal of very severe criticism.

The thesis of the book was that war does not pay. You will remember that 21 years ago modern Europe was moving rapidly toward war, and every student of international politics knew it. Germany and England were having a feverish naval race. France and Germany were having a similar race in land armaments. All over Europe people were getting ready to fight.

Angell, sizing up the situation, declared bluntly that they were all wasting their efforts. Never again, he asserted, would it be possible for a victory in war to bring prosperity or security to the nation that won it.

This, then, was his "great illusion"—the theory that any nation stood to gain anything of lasting value by going to war.

Angell was bitterly criticized, branded an impractical pacifist and an idealist. A few years later the war that he foresaw came, and all the world took a hand.

The other day he celebrated the 21st anniversary of his book—and found high British government officials ready to congratulate him and tell him that he had been right all along. The country that had condemned him two decades ago was ready to admit that there might be something to his argument.

For the world war, after all, did teach us something. It compelled us to learn that modern war is a profitless business all around.

Germany, beaten in the war, has gone through an uncomfortable 10 years. It has experienced nearly every form of hardship that can come to a nation. The war that was to win Germany a "place in the sun" was most assuredly a losing venture.

But the conquered always fare porly. How about the victors?

There is England; England, which has had a colossal unemployment problem ever since the armistice, which has a tax rate so staggering as to be almost incomprehensible to Americans, which has seen her trade and financial supremacy more violently shaken since 1918 than ever before, which has had to grant another nation joint rulership of the seas, which skated closer to a revolution, in the 1926 general strike, than any Englishman likes to think, and which has a Socialist prime minister.

That is what England got out of the war.

You could go on down the line with the contesting nations and get a similar result in nearly every case. Angell's thesis has come close to being proven. If the world war "paid" any one it is hard to figure out just how.

Our Own Responsibility

EVERYBODY has his own ideas about the movies, of course. And it is quite certain that most people realize that much of Hollywood's product is cheaply suggestive rather than wholesome and uplifting.

But the movie producers, perhaps, don't deserve quite all the blame.

The office of Will Hays recently issued a clip-sheet containing comments from a number of small-town editors and ministers regarding the movies. These men, having talked with their local theater managers, without exception reported that a clean, unsensational film fails to draw, but that a flambouyant, suggestive picture full of scantily-clad chorus girls will get a packed house.

Perhaps the movie men should rise above monetary considerations and give us the former kind of pictures regardless. But, since they are only human, that is a bit too much to expect. The responsibility, in the last analysis, rests on us. If we support the right kind of films properly the producers will give us more of them. If we don't, they won't. In the long run, we get just about the kind of movies we want.

A Tree-Planting Program

IN 1932 the nation will celebrate the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington. Naturally, the celebration will take a lot of forms; one of the best that we have heard of thus far is the proposal of the American Tree association, which hopes to see 10,000,000 memorial trees planted in the United States between now and Feb. 22, 1932.

The American Tree association has fought valiantly, for many years, to get the American public to understand the importance of reforestation measures. The bi-centennial program it has just announced should give this cause a great impetus. Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the association, has this to say of it:

"George Washington was a woodsman and a tree planter. His diary contains repeated references to the value of trees and their care. Great programs are being put under way by the bi-centennial committee. The tree planting is a thing the individual can do. Thus he can have a very real part in the celebration."

Lost: 1,500,000 Years

IT TAKES cold figures to make one realize the importance of cutting down America's annual toll of accidents.

Figures issued by the Travelers Insurance company show that American adults last year lost just one and one-half million years because of accidents.

These years were lost as a result of occupational accidents, on the one hand, and traffic and home accidents on the other. The traffic accidents alone represented a monetary loss of $3,000,000,000, and the other accidents would prove fully as expensive.

Those figures hardly seem reasonable; yet insurance company statisticians have a way of being accurate. They emphasize anew the great importance of finding some way of conducting our lives in greater safety.

Quotations Worth Noting

"In all sports there is the element of hazard, but in none of them does it enter to the same extent as in the sporting side of aviation."—Brig. Gen. William Mitchell, former commander of the United States air forces.

"Democracy is based upon the conviction that there are extraordinary possibilities in ordinary people."—Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick.

Petition

Well then, goodbye since we are now but strangers,
Why should we watch a flame
go strangely dead?
There are new lures to trail and dancing dangers,
Rapture and romance may lie
just ahead.

Not long ago our touch would have wrought magic,
Now we are cool as roses in the dawn;
Laugh and be off—for youth must not be tragic,
Only, when I am gone—when I am gone—

Stop, on a summer night, if sweetly haunting
Comes an old tune we danced to long ago,
Even though joy is yours with nothing wanting,
Stop and remember—when I loved you so—

Try and recall those glowing vows
of ours,
Vows that are vanished—dead as last year's flowers.
—LITTLE BOY BLUE.

Origin

The expression, "the four hundred," as applied to society, was coined by Ward McAllister in 1889, to hear Cholly Knickerbocker, the ace of the society scriveners, tell it. McAllister, the society monarch of Manhattan, was regarded by Mrs. William Astor and the smott set as an authority on fashionable matters, so he was urged to prepare a list inviting people who "could not be overlooked" to attend a ball hurled by Mrs. Astor. McAllister disliked reporters, and when they asked him for the list he refused to give it out for publication.

"Well, then," said a scribe, "how many people are invited?"

"Exactly four hundred!" growled McAllister, and the expression was coined.

McAllister, by the way, once said that there were not more than 400 persons in New York who could walk across a ballroom gracefully.

He probably meant—when they came in.

In Fewer Words

The walls of a certain speakeasy are decorated with signs all offering sound counsel. The best is this: "Motherhood will glorify girls quicker than Ziegfeld."

A Swifty

Lee Shubert, the theatrical impresario, was ankling along the Canyon the other sundown and ran into Freeman Bernstein, a Main Stem character.

"What are you doing?" queried Mr. Shubert.

"Oh, I'm just trying to pick up a fast dime," said Bernstein.

"What's a fast dime?"

"A fast dime," was the reply, "is better than a slow quarter, any time!"

I Could Happen

Lou Irwin, the booking agent, says he overheard it on Broadway near 47th St., where the idle actors linger all day.

An excited song-and-dance man came out of a theatrical building and slapped a chum on the back. "Am I happy?" he ejaculated. "I just got 30 weeks of bookings!"

"Shh, not s'loud," whispered the chum, "those lay-offs'll take you for a ride."

Confession

Marcelle Miller, one of the better lookers in the "Sons o' Guns" show once startled Broadway by walking out of George LeMaire's "Affairs" revusical for the most unusual reason. It appears that Miss Miller quit her job because she was cast as an angel.

"Is that a reason to quit?" some one asked her.

"Yes," she snapped. "I'm no hypocrite!"

System

Broadway can boast of one "stage" mother who doesn't get in your hair. Her 16-year-old daughter joined a cafe revue and her hours were from 11:30 till 5 a. m. The mother, who works in the daytime cannot call for her child or wait around until she is ready to go home and she was concerned about her morals. Instead of cautioning the kid on what not to do, the mother arranged a party in her daughter's honor and told the lass that it was time she learned how to smoke. The girl almost choked learning. Later the mother insisted that she learn how to drink liquor. The kid tried and became violently ill, remaining in bed two days.

When admonished by neighbors the mother replied: "I made up my mind to find out for myself. I don't know what she does when I'm not with her. If she liked the stuff I was ready to reconcile myself to the fact that she would drink and smoke no matter how much I warned her. Now I'm sure she can't stand it, and I'll sleep better."

Quiteso, Quiteso

It happened at a party over on Sutton Pl. and the hostess, a hero worshipper, had gathered her flock to meet a few celebrities, as they are laughingly called. After giving a number of the panting people his autograph a fatigued journalist of note escaped to another room to enjoy a little privacy. A young lady followed him and after a long sigh she cooed: "Tell me, please. You are so clever. What is it that inspirps you?"

"Sometimes the landlord," was the reply, "but more often hunger."

Add Fast Thinkers

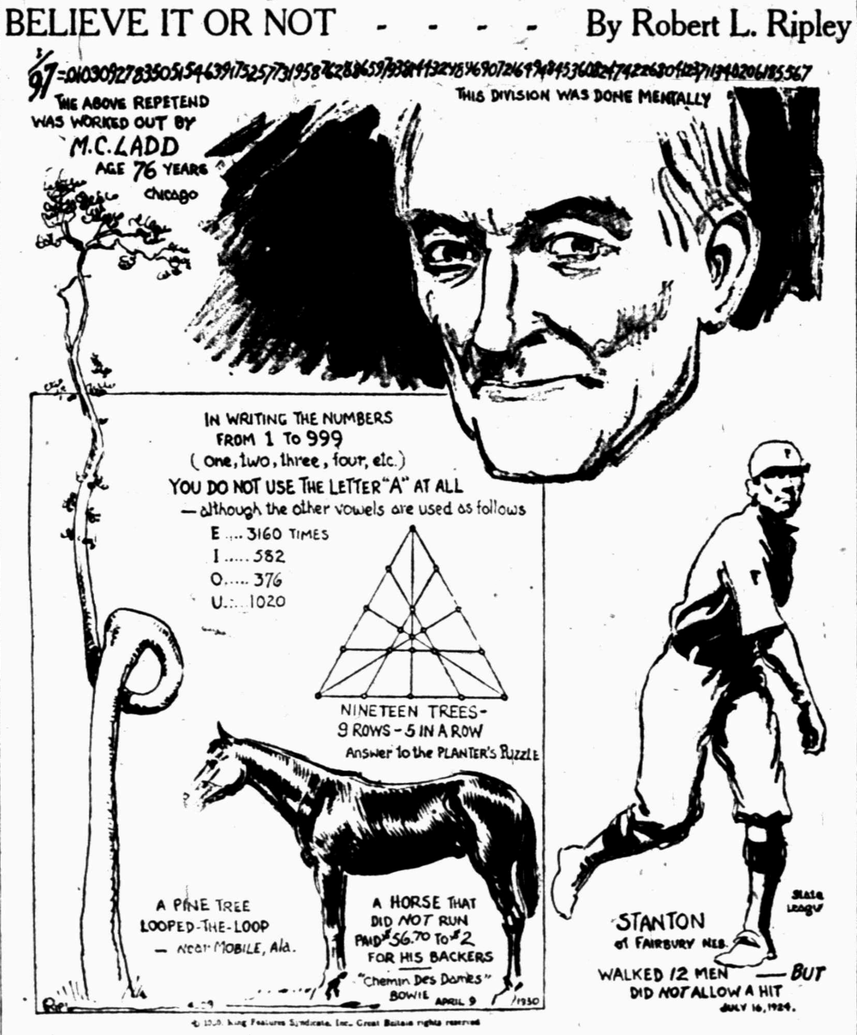

Margie, of Childs Times Square branch, has been waiting on tables in that restaurant for many seasons. She has one of the largest followings a waitress ever had, and she is a redhead. Recently the press agent for Childs decided to attract newspaper attention by having only redheaded waitresses in a new branch, and the redheads were recruited from all the Childs restaurants in New York and suburbs.

It was a swell stunt for the press agent, of course, but little cared he if Margie, of the Times Square branch lost all her steady customers who left such good tips.

So the day before they gathered all the redheads, Margie dyed hers black.

CARESSE ⚜ A Complete Novel By RUTH TAYLOR

At the roadhouse she was the gayest of the gay as they danced.

SYNOPSIS

Caresse O'Neill, daughter of the owner of Shady Lawn Inn in the village of Riverton, is jilted by her sweetheart, Ted Branard, son of the town's wealthy banker, on the day of the wedding. Caresse insists on continuing the party which had been arranged in her honor, and telephones Billy, a New York friend, to come down and bring two other friends as escorts for Miriam Nowell and Bess Parker, her best friends. They later go to a nearby roadhouse.

A few weeks later Caresse and friends are riding on a lonely road when the car gives out of gas near the old Motion place, which they believe abandoned. They go to the house, find a lighted lamp and a grand piano, and start dancing. Suddenly the door opens and the owner, Lee Deering, enters, to confront them.

Caresse's friends slip out of the house while she tries to explain their presence to Deering, and Caresse accepts his invitation to muffins and coffee before she returns home.

(Chapter Three Continued)

Caresse wandered over to the table and picked up a volume or so. Like other women, she thought she could put a man in his proper niche by seeing what books he read. She was not so easily to catalog Lee Deering. For the only books she had an opportunity of examining before her host came back were two or three musical histories, and a volume on counterpoint.

"Was I long?" asked the composer, as he came in with his arms and hands full.

He did not wait for an answer. He went on talking and put the articles he held on a small coffee table which he shoved up near the fire. With practiced hands he filled the percolator and lighted the alcohol lamp under it.

"That's one of the things I'm used to out here in the wilds," he commented. "Thought I was a boss coffee-maker, but it's taken a bit to get the hang of this alcohol thing, after being used to electricity! Ah! Here we are!"

He placed the cream jug and cups in place and produced from a small cabinet beside the fireplace a long toasting fork.

"Muffins," he declared. "English muffins. Toasted. With butter. What could be finer? You like 'em?"

"Love 'em," said Caresse. "But you—you mustn't go to so much trouble."

"Trouble?" he laughed. "And me with my first guest? Did you ever toast muffins over an open fire?"

"I'd like to. Let me help," offered Caresse.

"Want to?"

He moved over on the rug before the fire onto which he had dropped cross-legged, to make room for her.

"You'll find another fork at that thing-um-a-jig there. Mind if I don't get up? It's quite a job to get myself folded and unfolded."

Caresse, her last bit of embarrassment gone, laughed eagerly. She got the fork and dropped lightly down on the floor beside him.

"It's hot," she commented, shielding her face from the flame as she held a split muffin to the fire.

"It's fire," nodded Deering.

"But it's fun," said Caresse. "I've often wondered how people ever got any cooking done when they had to cook over an open fire."

"I'm beginning to find out," said Deering. "I'm not much of a pot wrestler, and I do most of my cooking as we are doing it now. It's quite a trick not to let the bacon crisp too much in some places and stay raw in others. I'm getting rather to like the taste of uncooked bacon, though. Still, I can't say I wouldn't like a regular meal once in a while. I haven't been able to inveigle any able-bodied kitchen mechanic up here on the hill since I've been here. And bacon and muffins and shredded wheat and roast potatoes do get a bit tiresome after a while."

Caresse had an idea.

"How would you like a chicken pie?" she asked.

"Don't tease. I'm nervous."

"But I mean it. My mother's famous for them. You just come down to the inn tomorrow night, and we'll have one for you, and green corn, and cocoanut cake and—"

"Hold! Where do you live?" Deering laughed and pulled his muffin from the fire. "There! That's done. Think the coffee's perked enough?"

"It smells wonderful," declared Caresse. "And I guess I am hungry."

Still seated on the floor, they ate the muffins and drank the coffee, much like two old friends, instead of two who had met so unceremoniously, and recently. Embarrassment was forgotten in the fact that they had met.

Caresse forgot, too, her friends who waited at the foot of the hill. Or if she did recall them, it was to hope they were having the uncomfortable wait she believed they deserved.

It was astonishing how many things she and the man from New York discovered they had in common, besides a love for music. Long before the muffins had gone, Caresse learned that Deering hoped to write a symphony that would make his name in the music world. Though, from unconscious words he dropped, she gathered that name at present was no inconsiderable one.

He said little about his home in the city, or his activities there. She could tell, though, with a woman's intuition, that there was something of which he did not care to speak—something which was, perhaps, as much the reason for his isolating himself in the hills as his desire to have leisure and quiet for composing his symphony. She wondered what it could be. A woman, was her first and natural thought. But she asked no questions.

She told him something of her own life in the village. But she did not mention Teddy. Her brow clouded as she thought of Ted. She hoped this man would not gather a story from any of the neighbors about the wedding that did not occur which would be detrimental to her.

At last they rose. Deering unfolded his long, lean body and got up first. He reached down and gave Caresse a hand.

"It's been great, hasn't it?" he enthused. "It takes a few weeks alone for a fellow to realize he doesn't want to be quite as much alone as he thought he did."

"Why be alone?" asked Caresse. "At least you won't be tomorrow night. Remember, we're looking for you—or, anyhow, I am, and mother will be when I tell her. She'll be delighted, and all fussed up tomorrow morning to make sure the cake doesn't fall."

She saw his eyebrows lift slightly, and divined what he thought.

"Of course I'll tell her," she answered his unspoken query. "I tell mother everything."

For a long minute Deering looked at her approvingly.

"That," he commented, "is what I might have guessed. Good for you!"

Caresse fluffed out her hair and smoothed her dress. She laughed.

"Wonder if the gang down in the car think you've eaten me?" she asked. "Won't they be surprised when they find out I'm the one who's been doing the eating? And jealous! It was pretty mean of them, though, to run away—and they as much to blame as I was. Well they've had time to think it over."

"Can't find my flashlight," fussed Deering, turning over his books and papers, hunting. "Just a minute and I'll light the old lantern. That path's pretty dark at night. Don't see how you found it."

"We didn't. We came 'cross country."

"Some climb," he remarked. "Well, if we want to walk instead of roll down to the road, I think we'd best find the path."

Caresse admitted it was much easier walking down the pebbly path than climbing down through roots and over boulders. At the foot of the path, she paused and peered into the darkness that was the road.

"The car should be right here somewhere. I don't hear them, do you? They're trying to play a trick—or maybe they hear you, too, and are afraid to see you. Maybe they think you'll have them arrested. Yoo-hoo she called. "Miriam! Where are you?"

There was no sound except the rustle of the leaves of the roadside trees as the wind stirred them.

"They can't be far off," insisted Caresse. "There was no gas."

"If their car is anything like mine," laughed Deering, "those two able-bodied young chaps could pick it up and carry it."

Together they walked up and down the road, as far in either direction as it would have been possible for the car to have been left. Suddenly Caresse stopped.

"Well," she said, "that settles it. They've gone—how, I don't know—and taken the car with them. I don't see— Do you suppose somebody came by while we were talking and—"

Deering was examining the ruts in a place on the road.

"No," he said. "Nor they haven't exactly carried off the car. But they've pushed it. See these tracks in this dirt road? And it's downhill. You notice? No, Miss O'Neill, your good and true friends have merely shoved their way downhill to freedom—and a little gas from the nearest station. They may be back, but—I'd love nothing better than to have you wait, of course, but—"

"Oh, I must get home!" exclaimed Caresse. "It's late, and mother—"

"Exactly. What I was thinking. So, if you don't mind waiting here a few minutes . . . Take this lantern. It'll be company."

"But I can walk. I can't let you—" began Caresse, and found she was talking to herself. Lee Deering, with his long strides, was already half way up the hill.

Caresse tried to look about her, but could see nothing. This, she considered, as she saw only the flickering shadows of the trees cast by the eerie yellow light of the lantern, was the oddest adventure she had ever had. But it was pleasant.

She had time for little thought, for in a few minutes her newfound friend was back in the small car of which he had spoken. Caresse, snuggled in it beside him, thought he had spoken of it correctly. It was more of a car built for one than for two, but it was snugly; and comfortable.

Strangest of all, she felt such comfort being beside the man she had known for such a short time. She felt she had all the right in the world to be cuddled up beside him in his toy car, riding through the night with him, with the wind in her face and her hair flying wildly.

She showed him the way to the inn. When they stopped before the gate she wanted him to come into the house with her.

"Not tonight," he demurred. "It's late. But tomorrow night— Say, tomorrow, will be a long day."

"Then good night," said Caresse. "And thank you, oh, so much for everything. For the muffins and the coffee, for not being mad at me—and for the buggy ride."

"Good night, little good girl," said Deering. "And tell mother she'd better have two chicken pies. If anybody else is going to have any."

Long after his small car had rattled out of hearing down the road, Caresse stood on the porch and stared out into the darkness. She was thinking of him. She wondered about him—so much.

She could not imagine what made her so interested in a strange man, a chance acquaintance. She had been so sure she would never, never have the slightest flicker of interest for any man since Teddy Branard had treated her so badly. For the first time she began to wonder about herself and Teddy.

Had she really loved him as she thought she had? A big doubt was beginning to plant itself in her mind. Strange—when she had been so sure she cared more for Ted than for anything on earth. Strange that her hurt could be eased in so short a time.

For now she felt, somehow, without analyzing a reason for it, that much of the bitterness she had felt on the day of the wedding that failed to be, had been allayed. The bitterness, perhaps, but not the resentment. If the chance ever came for her to—

"Just let me get one chance to get even with Ted Branard," she whispered, as she opened the door and crept softly in. "That's all I ask. And as for Miriam and the others, I don't know just yet whether I'll give them the calling down they deserve, or give them a vote of thanks."

City Votes $75,000 for New Buildings

Special to The Record News

PADUCAH, Texas, April 28.—Paducah was assured of ample school facilities by a 295-180 vote at an election here for a $75,000 bond issue. The old four-room frame building which was built about 25 years ago will be razed and a 12-room brick, primary building erected on the site which was dedicated to school purposes when the town was organized.

In addition to this the school already has a 22-room high school and a 12-room grammar school building. The move was made necessary by an increase in scholastics to 1,024, and a probable faculty of 35 teachers for next year.

RAIN HALTS CONTEST AS SPUDDERS HOLD FOUR-RUN LEAD

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED D. THOMPSON

A baseball game that offered one of the most unusual feats encountered in the pastime was played at St. Louis Sunday, when the Chicago White Sox defeated the Browns, 2 to 1. The freak element was provided by the fact that the Chicago first baseman, one Mr. Clancy, got not a single put out or assist during the game.

According to well-informed experts, this kind of ball game is encountered once in a blue moon. In a case of that nature it is interesting to note who made the put-outs and assists.

The box score of the game showed Cissell at second got four put-outs and one assist. The put-outs likely were divided between infield pops and force outs. Reynolds in center field got five put-outs, all of them no doubt either line drives or flies. Kamm, the third baseman, got three put-outs, Moore in left field got two, Smith, the shortstop, got four and one assist, Autry, the catcher, got eight put-outs and one assist, and Thomas, the pitcher, got one put-out.

Leaving the first baseman to take life easy. Not a ball was knocked his direction for him to field. A play by play account of that game would prove very interesting.

If you were to ask us who the happiest man on the Exporters' squad is right now we would answer with the name of one Bud Stapleton, who was the Spudders' stellar first baseman here last year.

Bud was glad to get back to Wichita Falls, even if his duties required that he make the utmost endeavors to give his former buddies a sound licking.

And the ovation Bud received in the opening game of the present series showed that the hundreds and hundreds of fans who swore by him last year have not forgotten the days of yore when the words "Stapleton, first base," were printed in the Wichita Falls lineup.

"They're the most wonderful people in the world," quoth Bud as his eye swept o'er the crowd at Sunday's game. "They were wonderful to me when I was here last year, and I'll never forget them. I never did hate to leave a place as bad as I hated to leave this town. This is a real baseball town."

Bud is the first initial sacker to play on opposing teams here this year to receive cheers for making a put-out against the Spudders. In other games when the runner was out at first, the Spudder fans moaned and hoped for better luck next time. But when Bud got into action it was like old times, and when he caught the first Spudder runner out, what should the Spudder boosters do but cheer!

Of course, it was Bud they were cheering, not the fact that a Spudder runner had been thrown out.

It appears as if our pinch hitters need a bottle of eye wash. The two sluggers usually called upon to perform when the game is the hottest, namely, Allday and Orr, have so far connected for not a single hit in the pinches they were supposed to relieve.

Orr has had the most chances, being called upon twice in home games and twice in games out of town. In the home games, he popped to short in the Shreveport imbroglio of April 20, and didn't accomplish his purpose. In Sunday's game he went in for Vincent in the seventh and struck out.

Spider Levey, than whom there isn't a better shortstop, probably is the fastest baserunner the Spudders possess. He has a way of getting off to first that makes you think he once was a track star. A development in his proclivities has been noticed, recently. He can slide into a base with greater dexterity than has been seen in these parts in some time.

The McElreath Motor company amateur baseball team of Wichita Falls journeyed to Byers Sunday and won out in a fast pitcher's duel, 4 to 3.

The report of this game brought the news that Eull Moore, the rampant Indian from Oklahoma who was in the Spudders' training camp, and who was at Abilene part of last season, pitched part of the game for Byers.

Moore was regarded as a promising prospect in the Spudder camp this spring, but illness of his mother called him away. And while gone others arrived to take his place, leaving him not much of a chance when he returned.

The other pitcher for Byers in Sunday's game was H. Moore, whom the Indian relieved. Harrison was the catcher. Batteries for the Wichitans were Meryle and O'Neal.

Efforts are going forward to match the Wichita Falls polo team with the Fort Reno and Fort Worth teams, according to officials of the team, but so far no definite arrangements have been made.

Meanwhile the team here is keeping in the best of shape by playing practice games. A new stimulus was given the players Sunday when the squad, divided into two teams, the Blues and the Whites, played for a set of silver trophies offered by Ernest Fain and Hubert Stringer. The Blues defeated the Whites by the close score of 9 to 8, and each member of the winning team was presented a silver loving cup. Cecil Wilfong led the scoring for the winners with five goals, while Charles Featherston starred for the losers with four goals.

TEAMS CLASH AGAIN TODAY

Bettencourt's Freak Homer Scores Three Runs

Their march toward victory halted in the second inning by rain yesterday, shortly after Bettencourt had hit a home run with two on to account for three of the Spudders' four runs in the first inning, Carl Williams' nine today will meet the Beaumont Exporters in the final game of the series here.

The vagaries of yesterday's weather lived up to West Texas tradition and surprised no one at all. Rain in the morning had dampened the field at Athletic park, but not enough to harm anything. By 4 o'clock the sun was out and smiling. The game started, and forthwith clouds began to appear. Soon it was raining. As Steengrafe was batting in the last half of the second the players were sent to the clubhouse for the required 30 minutes in which the umps might decide whether or no the game would continue. At the end of the period the skies looked innocent of ever having poured rain on this section of Texas, but the field was a mud puddle by then and wet grounds prevented the finish of the contest.

The Spudders might well feel cheated of a victory. Stapleton, Mullen and Eckhardt of the Exporters were retired in order after they had bingled infield clouts. Levey, first up for the Spudders, popped out to third. Storti singled to right. Fitzgerald struck out and Storti was safe at second when Schuble, the shortstop, dropped Baker's peg from behind the plate. Kloza slammed a Texas leaguer behind third, scoring Storti. Burns singled to center, advancing Kloza to second. Then Bettencourt came forth with a freak home run that missed being a foul by a centimeter, scoring Kloza and Burns ahead of himself. The ball sailed over the left field boards near the intersection of the fence and the grandstand, barely managing to stay within the fair limits. Euller flied out to right to close the inning.

The Exporters were cheated of a run in the second when Wade, who had doubled to left started around the bases when Holley singled, but slipped between third and the plate, being forced back to third. Meanwhile Easterling had struck out. Schuble hit into a double play, Euller to Storti to Burns, ending the period.

It was raining by this time, and Steengrafe came to the plate but never finished his batting.

Abe the Newsboy-Pugilist Writes His Memoirs First, Then Seeks Marriage

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright 1930 by Universal Service, Inc)

NEW YORK, April 28.—A few authors possess the rare good judgment of Mr. Abraham Hollandersky, whose latest book is to hand.

I find toward the end of this enthralling tome, a page given over to two illustrations, one of the author, Mr. Hollandersky, himself, posed with his arms folded across his manly chest, in true authoresque style, and the other of a pleasant looking young lady.

This, as I gather from the cutlines, is Freda Weinberg, fiance of Mr. Hollandersky, "who is patiently waiting for Abe's book to be published and supply them with the means to begin their married lives together."

How many of our authors marry first, and write their books afterwards, not waiting to see if their royalties will supply them with the means to begin their married lives? How many, I repeat? Well, too many, according to my operatives who have been around interviewing the wives of authors.

So I contend Mr. Hollandersky is an author of rare sagacity. I bow, too, to Freda Weinberg, the lady who is patiently waiting. I hope and trust that Mr. Hollandersky's book, "The Life Story of Abe and the Newsboy" meets with immediate, and great success. I haven't got far into it as yet, but you can see it is a deserving tome.

Mr. Hollandersky, by the by, is none other than Abe the newsboy himself. I was greatly surprised to learn this. I have known Abe the newsboy for many years, but I always thought his name was Abe the newsboy. But there it is Hollandersky. It shows you how little we know of our fellow citizens after all. I think I prefer Abe the newsboy.

He bounced in on me the other day to favor me with a copy of his book. Abe the newsboy is a short, chunky built little man, of swarthy complexion, with two mangled ears, and a slight mumble to his speech, the aftermath, no doubt, of 1,093 ring battle, of which according to the book, Abe was the hero.

"I had to get my book printed at my own expense," Abe explained to me, as he handed me my presentation copy. "It cost me $12,000, but what's the difference—it gives me a life job selling it."

It is solid looking, well bound volume, this "Life Story of Abe the Newsboy," and from a casual perusal of the text, I am inclined to think Abe had some expert assistance on it. But he supplied all the illustrations, beginning with a full length photo of himself carrying a traveling bag covered with labels from all over the world.

The book contains photos of both the Theodore Roosevelts, of Calvin Coolidge, and Herbert Hoover, all autographed to Abe. There are photos of distinguished officers of the navy, and of scores of celebrities in other fields, also autographed to Abe. These pictures bespeak for my friend both a wide acquaintance and considerable crust. A sprinkling of violet wouldn't tackle Al Smith, for example, for an autographed photo, would it? But here's Al beaming right at you from a page of Abe's book.

Now don't think Abe's 1,039 battle the bunk. He had 'em. In all parts of the world. He also had 387 wrestling matches, once wrestling a bloke in Panama 5 hours, 22 minutes, which is really longer than I would care to sit through a wrestling bout. The 22 minutes would suffice.

He once licked Jack Ortega, who weighed 220 pounds, for the heavyweight championship of Panama and South America, although Abe the Newsboy never hefted much above the welterweight mark. The bout was scheduled for 45 rounds, and Abe won in the 19th. Along came Willie Ward, of Baltimo', otherwise Kid Norfolk, otherwise "the Little Black Thunderbolt," to relieve Abe of the title in 25 tough heats.

So you see my friend Abe was no geezer in the manly art. Kid Norfolk was afterwards quite a distinguished fistic figure. In 1907 in Panama, Abe grappeld with a guy for 4 hours 18 minutes to win the welterweight wrestling championship of the world. Anyway, Abe claims it was of the world. If it was only of the nearest cantina, it was good enough.

For a man who has held the world's welterweight wrestling championship, the heavyweight boxing championship of Panama and South America, and the welterweight boxing championship of Panama and South America, Abe the Newsboy is somewhat reduced in titles as he moves into the 42nd year of his life. In fact, the only title he now claims is "world's champion newsboy." He probably is all of that.

I never saw Abe the Newsboy when he wasn't hustling and I never knew him to ask anyone for anything except perhaps an autographed photo, and now that I am apprised of the waiting Freda Weinberg, I hope and trust that publisher Abraham Hollandersky will commence paying liberal royalties to author Abe the Newsboy forthwith, if not sooner.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, April 28. (AP)—An early advance in cotton on covering by near month shorts and some buying on relatively steady cables, was followed by reactions under realizing and some selling of new crop months on reports of further rains in Southwest. After advance from 15.95 to 16.13, May closed at 16.02 or 4 points net higher while new October sold off from 14.93 to 14.70 in the late trading, or 4 points higher to 8 points lower.

Opening was barely steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 4 points. Market turned upward during middle of morning. July advanced to 16.27 and new December contract to 15.06, making net advances of about 12 to 21 points on most active months. Demand then tapered and market eased under renewed liquidation which seemed to be combined with some southwestern and local selling in the new crop positions. General market closed steady with old crop months showing net advances of 4 points while new crop was 1 to 8 points net lower. Closing quotation for May was 8 points under July and 132 points above the new October. It is reported that the notices issued here last Friday, represented 96,700 bales of cotton in New York, 57,100 in New Orleans, 35,100 in Houston, 11,700 in Galveston, 5,300 in Norfolk and 1,300 in Charleston, making a total of 227,200 bales.

Port receipts today 14,652 sales.

U. S. port stock 1,671,058. Exports today 6,147, making 6,237,475 so far this season.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, April 28. (AP)—Cotton was comparatively quiet in today's trading.

Although Liverpool cables were better than due prices opened 3 to 7 points down owing to reports of rains in West Texas over the week-end.

Twenty to 23 points were gained but when weather reports showed good rain in both Texas and Oklahoma the market eased. The greater part of the gain was lost and new crop months lost more than the old crop positions, closing a few points net lower while May and July closed slightly net higher.

July after trading at 15.68, down 3 points advanced to 15.90, up 22 points and closed at 15.75, or 4 points net higher for the day. The general market closed steady 4 points net higher to 3 net lower.

October closed at 14.75 down 3 points net. Trading at no time during the day reached any degree of marked activity.

Port receipts 13,032, for week 17,377, for season, 8,171,392, last season 9,175,346. Exports 6,223, for week 7,232, for season 6,001,496, last season 7,045,425. Nervous Market Reacts to Bearish Drive and Poor Quarterly Reports

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, April 28. (US)—Poor showing in the first quarter reports, general nervousness in the speculative community and continued pressure from bearish professionals caused further reaction in the stock market today. Supporting orders were in evidence in the pivotal issues but they were on a scale down. A few Specialties and Oils remained strong as a result of special developments.

Steel lost 3 points, Bethlehem dropped 1⅝, Radio 4¼, Anaconda 1¾, General Electric 3, Montgomery Ward 2¼, American Can 4¼, American Telephone 4½, Westinghouse 9⅛, Vanadium 8½, Standard of New Jersey 1⅛, United Aircraft 2, Consolidated Gas 5⅜, Electric Power 4, Public Service 5¼, Atchison 6, Canadian Pacific 2, Johns Manville 8¾, Woolworth 2, Briggs 1⅜ and Commercial Solvents 1⅝. Call money held at 4 per cent throughout. Turnover held just under the 5,000,000 share level.

The market holds to its "watchful waiting" mood and while it waits professionals continue their effort to depress prices of the standard industrials in hope of covering big short lines in such weak sisters as Simmons, Anaconda, etc. There are different opinions as to what the market is waiting on. Those who believe it waits for business to catch up a little have good reasons but there is even stronger developments to warrant the thought that it waits on the reparations financing. Stock trading was increasing so rapidly a fortnight ago that it halted the improvement in the bond market. Immediately the bankers withdrew from the stock market to a goodly extent. As a result the premier banking stocks, Steel, etc., started to slump. Their technical position is such that the banking sponsors could bring outstanding rally at any time. If they were to do so it would bring immediate increase in public participation in dealings and the bankers evidently don't desire such development at this time.

While there is a fairly substantial short interest in several stocks it is made up of contracts from practically one group of professionals. Most brokers and the average traders feels that no sharp reaction will be experienced but that rallies may be expected at any time Therefore, they fear to sell short but prefer to try for trading profits on the long side in those few stocks which the tape says are effected by the activity of powerful banking and professional trading groups, such as Radio, Radio Keith. Many of the Utilities are in practically the same category.

There is an interesting situation in the local traction picture. Long pull, absorption of Interborough and Brooklyn Manhattan is reported by those who maintain that unification will be put through whether the legislation at Albany is defeated or not. Special analysis of Eastman Kodak prepared by a leading firm emphasizes the bullish features outlined in this column for several weeks. There was rumor or splitup being considered and such action is believed to be sure ultimately. Activity in Shubert was added to by report that business for the first three months showed a pronounced improvement over that of the preceding quarter. Group work in Neisner was reported to be planned on the basis of expectation of increased earnings in the near future.

The Oils continued to stand out as enjoying the best buying as a group. The Copper people might well go to the industry for a lesson as to how to bring about stabilization. Of course there are many people who doubt that the stabilization is going to last but even they admit that the leaders of the industry appear to have the situation well in hand at the moment. Further price advances in both crude oil and gasoline appear certain and these will bring larger earnings and continued good market that will encourage merger developments and other happenings.

Sterling slid quietly further in a generally unsettled foreign exchange market. Cotton rallied on covering induced by more bullish weather advices while wheat and other grains benefited by similar influences.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 28. (AP)—Despite sharp setbacks at times on account of persistent liquidating sales of the May delivery, wheat prices today finished at decided gains. The May liquidation was more general than has been the rule of late, but quick rallies were witnessed in the final transactions. Among the chief bullish factors was 3,404,000 bushels decrease of the United States wheat visible supply, together with export purchasing of 1,000,000 bushels of North American wheat today in addition to 3,000,000 bushels on Saturday.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at 1½@2¼c a bushel net advance as compared with Saturday's finish. Corn closed 1½@2¼c up, oats ⅛@1c off, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 7c.

World shipments of wheat for the last week, 6,440,000 bushels were the smallest seen for years. The amount of wheat on ocean passage now is only 35,104,000 bushels compared with 58,696,000 bushels a year ago.

Corn after being sluggish all day advanced rapidly at the last with wheat. Sudden broadening out of commission house buying disclosed that the corn market as well as the wheat pit had become oversold. Oats changes in price were narrow throughout the day.

Provisions declined owing to scattered selling notwithstanding firmness of hog values.

Closing indemnities: Wheat, May $1.02⅞@1.03, $1.06¼; July $1.05½@⅝, $1.08⅝@¾; Sept. $1.08⅞, $1.12¼; Dec. $1.13⅝, $1.16⅝. Corn, May 80¾c, 83c; July 83¼c, 84⅞@¾c; Sept. 84¼@¾c, 86⅝c, Dec. offers, 79⅝c.

RAINS BENEFIT PRODUCE MEN

Production of Eggs, Milk, Vegetables Aided

Buyers of milk, poultry, eggs, and vegetable produce, and the producers of those various commodities joined Monday in a unanimous prophecy of tremendous improvement in business prospects for all concerned as a result of the heavy rains which well from Central to West Texas and from Pecos almost to the Kansas state line Sunday night and Monday morning.

Short pastures have curtailed milk production, stunted growth of vegetation has hampered the raising of marketable chickens, and prospects of poor feed crops had the effect of minimizing provisions of such feed rations both to poultry flocks and dairy herds. A healthy measure of relief and change was seen in the precipitation which came Sunday night, and which measured from one to three inches.

Indicative of the gradual development of poultry raising in this community, foundations for a flock of approximately 3,000 turkeys are being laid at the Randolph turkey ranch on the McKechney farm, west of the city. About 1,800 high grade birds were marketed from this ranch last fall, and the hatch now being taken from incubators indicates that the 1930 crop is planned to produce almost double that number. Eggs from about 120 hens are being used for brooding purposes, it was said.

Eggs took a 20 cent drop on quotations announced Monday by the local Armour creameries plant, the new price being $5.50 per case, including new cases in which the eggs are to be packed.

COUNTY JUNIOR COLLEGE SOLUTION OF PROBLEM, CLUB TOLD

DR. CANTWELL GIVES VIEWS

Kiwanis Club Told Need For Action

Definite conviction of local public school authorities that Wichita Falls Junior college must be converted into a county junior college, with a county tax for its support, or be discontinued within a short time was voiced by Dr. J. W. Cantwell, superintendent of city schools, in an address before the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis club at the Kemp hotel Monday noon.

The situation described by Dr. Cantwell, he said, arises from the legislature's recent declaration that the expenditure of public school funds for junior college work is illegal. Insufficient income from the present tuition of $90 to operate the college, and impossibility of increasing the school tax of $1 now in force here, make some change immediately necessary, the speaker said.

According to Dr. Cantwell, the problem of finances is not the only one. More than 1,800 students are now accommodated in a building planned to house only 1,500, he said, as a result of 298 Junior college students being handled in the same building as that in which the high school meets. A 10-cent tax on property listed for county taxation would maintain a college adequate for the care of 500 students, it was said. The importance of maintaining a college here was stressed by Dr. Cantwell with the statement that $150,000 annually, which otherwise would be spent elsewhere by college students whose homes are here, is retained in Wichita county.

Work of the Red Cross, P.-T. A. and other agencies here in connection with "Child Health Week" was discussed briefly by Dr. C. W. Stevenson, representative of the Wichita County Medical society.

An educational committee was appointed, consisting of J. L. Jackson Jr., Fred Lane, C. M. McMurray, Ed Peterson and G. E. Mahaffey. A reception committee, consisting of Pat Hardage, Pierce Langford and Ralph Roden, was also appointed.

William E. Young sang three numbers, "Come to the Fair," "Good Morning, Brother Sunshine," and "I Have a Dream." He was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. F. R. Collard.

The guests were introduced by Paul Pearson.

Commenting on the situation described by Dr. J. W. Cantwell in his talk to the Kiwanis club Monday noon relative to the local Junior college, Judge Rube Lofton of Henrietta, candidate for the state senate, Kiwanian who was present for the discussion, advocated a program whereby the state might appropriate funds for Junior colleges.

"The schools of the state get one-fourth of the taxes, such as the gasoline tax, etc., and all of it is going to the higher institutions. I would like to see a law passed giving the state authority to cooperate with the various cities in supporting Junior colleges.

"The legislature only recently lowered the age limit, allowing six-year-olds to enter school. That will mean younger graduates within a few years, and the universities and colleges will be more crowded than ever. I am strongly in favor of more Junior colleges, and therefore in favor of dividing the state funds for education so that the Junior colleges might receive some of it."

'Auto Salesmen Win Prizes in Contest

A main purpose of the Oakland Motor Car company has always been to make the selling of Oakland and Pontiac automobiles a most successful business, not only for their dealers, but also for the dealers' retail salesmen. Evidence of the success of this policy comes with the announcement that B. P. Williams and J. A. Allard, salesmen for the McElreath Motor company, Oakland-Pontiac dealer of this city, have won substantial prizes in the Golden Opportunity used car contest, a nation-wide program recently sponsored by Oakland Motor Car company.

"We take considerable pride in the achievement of our salesmen in this contest," Mr. McElreath stated. "The announcement of their standing so well near the top did not, however, come as a complete surprise to us. We knew from past experience that recognition would come for the amount of work they put in. It is sometimes overlooked that the capable automobile salesman today stands among the best paid members of any community. We have found that our Oakland and Pontiac salesmen who take their work seriously are able to keep themselves and families on a standard of living above the average. In addition, each has opportunity to qualify for the attractive inducements offered from time to time by the Oakland Motor Car company.

Competing with the local Oakland-Pontiac salesmen for zone honors were 319 retail salesmen employed by the 134 dealers in the Dallas zone under the direction of C. L. Voss, zone manager for Oakland Motor Car company.

"This campaign has proved," Mr. Voss asserted, "that the dealer with a live selling organization who offers the public clean, reconditioned used cars, as well as our Oakland and Pontiac new cars, has nothing to fear in 1930."

Today — At the Theaters

By W. L. UNDERWOOD

STRAND: Dick Barthelmess and Constance Bennett in "Son of the Gods." Lively entertainment during the first nine innings. "Silly Symphony" of "Autumn." Sound News.

MAJESTIC: Last day of "Honey," screened version of comedy "Come Out of the Kitchen." Mitzi Green, Skeets Gallagher, Lillian Roth supplying the entertainment, Nancy Carroll the face. Talking comedy. Sound news. Krazy Kat cartoon.

STATE: Rudy Vallee himself in "The Vagabond Lover." Enter quietly, lest he wake. Talking comedy. Sound news.

GEM: Sally O'Neill and Jean Herscholt in "The Girl on the Barge." "Storm King," western. "Race Riot," comedy.

In the midst of their lamentations over the loss of artistic prestige to America, will Parisians observe this glaring paradox: an American public which draws across the Atlantic for keeps the real stars of Paris' theatrical world also contains elements which support a talking-picture of the vapid and calfish Rudy Valee. Let Philo Vance solve that mystery for us.

One day left—Tuesday—to figure out just what the Majestic's "Honey" lacks to cohere as a pretty fair show. Emergence of most of us, recently or remotely, from the adolescent age has much to do with it. But there seems to have been one or two pieces turned around, or over, in putting together "Honey" from the dissected original comedy, "Come out of the Kitchen." This had to be remoulded to bring pretty Nancy Carroll's face into frequent prominence, for this is Nancy's contribution to this and all her other pictures. She might act very well if she ever were asked to, but that hasn't been necessary yet. And as for singing, her voice is a genuinely good voice, just like a thin dime is genuinely good money—and bright—but there isn't much of it. The story certainly was not improved in its revision for the screen. But there are other more pleasant substances in this "Honey."

Little Mitzi Green, whose muggish face and sauciness gave her the tom-boy role in "Our Gang" comedies for several years, is alarmingly capable in the part of a bad but bright little girl who retails romantic secrets to keep the plot moving along. Her revelation to Mrs. Falkner of just how Lillian Roth stormed the amicable butler, Skeets Gallagher, with cyclonic affection steals the show from all hands—at least temporarily. And while Mr. Gallagher and Miss Roth are at hand, it may be remarked safely that their performances give further notice that they are crowding very close to stellar assignments for future pictures. Stanley Smith, perhaps it is, who plays opposite Nancy. Now the difference between Mr. Smith and Charlie Chaplin is that Charlie makes faces like that with the avowed object of looking funny, but Mr. Smith evidently doesn't realize just what he's doing, or why.

Man Draws Heavy Fine For Selling Condemned Canned Goods

The alleged sale of canned turnip greens which had been condemned by the city health department as food fit only for hogs cost a man in county court Monday a fine of $25 and costs, amounting to $52, according to L. V. Abernathy, assistant county attorney.

More than 100 cases of the canned goods had been condemned and stored at a hog pen east of the city, where the greens were used as feed for the hogs, testimony showed. It was charged the man took eight cases of the greens and sold one case to a local grocer for $1. The grocer sold a portion of the case and himself ate one can, it was shown. Health officers testified the cans contained worms. The accused man pleaded not guilty but was found guilty by a jury.

C.-C. Division to Complete Plans Today for Industrial Exhibit

Reservations Made by 38 Firms for Space to Show Manufactures of Wichita Area

Final and complete plans for opening the manufacturers and jobbers exhibit in the old Martin Printing and Stationery building at 911 Eighth street will be formulated Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock when members of the manufacturers and jobbers division of the chamber of commerce will meet at that place with members of the industrial development committee of the Junior chamber, with Shadie F. Hale, as chairman, according to information given The Record News Monday afternoon.

Sponsored by the Junior chamber of commerce as a means of providing a central establishment in which all out of town buyers and other visitors may conveniently inspect the entire line of manufactured products available here, the central exhibit already has received city-wide support in the form of almost 40 reservations of display space on the first floor of the building.

Matters to come before the joint meeting Tuesday morning will be the selection of a name for the new enterprise, a definite date for its opening, formulation of a program for its formal opening, and determination of the spaces to be assigned to exhibitors.

Among the latest reservations of display booths reported Monday was that of A. W. Ayers, who has conducted a business in this city for about 20 years under the title of "The Glass Fruit Works." Mr. Ayers' principal output is a line of glass novelties made of spun and blown glass. His customers represent distribution not only in many of the largest cities in this country, but a considerable export trade, it was said. Artificial fruits, flowers, etc., bearing striking resemblance to the originals, were said to be one of the principal products. Mr. and Mrs. Ayers also feature such novelties as hatbands and doll dresses, made of spun glass and thoroughly flexible, full-rigged ships etc. They plan to use the booth in the new exhibit building not only for display, but for manufacture of their merchandise.

Space also has been taken by the Deep Oil Development company, it was said, bringing the total of local exhibitors to 38.

Among the responses received thus far from out-of-town chambers of commerce to the invitation extended them by letter recently to use the second floor space for exhibits representing their respective communities was one Monday from Henryetta, Okla. The plan undertaken here by the Junior chamber of commerce was highly commended as "an important contribution to the further upbuilding of the Southwest."

The next membership luncheon of the Junior chamber of commerce also will be held in the Martin building on Friday of this week at noon, it was announced.

You will not be bothered with collectors if you bring your want ads to The Times and Record News office and, paying cash besides, save 15 per cent of the regular want ad rate. Phone 4391 for rates.—Adv.

Reservations must be made by Wednesday noon in the cafeteria, according to Leo Davis, class treasurer.

Jury's Report Expected Today

The final report of the grand jury for the April term of the 30th district court will probably be handed to Judge Allan D. Montgomery late Tuesday morning, according to information given Monday by Mike Anglin, assistant district attorney, after a portion of the day had been spent in an investigation of the circumstances surrounding the fatal stabbing of R. D. Burnett during a dance near Iowa Park several days ago.

The grand jury reconvened Monday after a recess of about two weeks. Ed Hedgcoth, who has been charged with murder in connection with the stabbing of Burnett, is being held in the county jail without bond. The district attorney's department will submit about 12 more cases to the grand jury, Mr. Anglin said.

Alleged Ouster From Farm Brings $1,500 Suit

Claiming that he was dispossessed of a large amount of land in the valley subdivision, Iowa Park, and not allowed to retake his property, F. G. Ford Monday filed suit for $1,500 damages against D. E. Holt. Ford alleges in his petition that Holt dispossessed him in May, 1928, and still holds the land, refusing to allow him to take it over.
