MONTREAL (AP) — The Quebec government opened negotiations during the night with the kidnapers of British diplomat and a provincial cabinet minister as hundreds of armed combat troops joined police in guarding politicians, diplomats and other prominent persons in Ottawa.

Robert Lemieux, a long-haired lawyer awaiting trial on a charge of obstructing justice, was representing the Quebec Liberation Front — the FLQ — which kidnaped British Trade Commissioner James Richard Cross Oct. 5 and abducted Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte Saturday.

Another Montreal lawyer, Robert Demers, was appointed as the provincial government's contact man.

STILL BEING HELD

The two men met in the downtown police station where Lemieux had been held since Sunday in connection with the investigation into the kidnappings. After midnight Justice Minister Jerome Choquette announced that Lemieux was being paroled, apparently to expedite the negotiations for the release of Cross and Laporte, but several hours later the FLQ representative was still being held.

Lemieux is an advocate of Quebec's separation from Canada and has frequently defended terrorist members of the FLQ in court. The FLQ's aim is separation of the French-speaking province from the rest of Canada and its establishment as an independent state.

Equal Rights And The Draft

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate modified today a proposed constitutional amendment on equal rights. The change would make it clear that women would be exempt from the draft.

Backers of the proposed amendment who had sought to prevent any change in it at all, predicted the unexpected 36 to 33 vote would kill the whole proposal.

"It is never going to see the light of day," declared Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., chief sponsor of what is frequently referred to as the "women's lib" amendment.

"In my opinion, any amendment would kill it," Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania said before the session began.

Approved was an amendment by Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., spokesman for a group of opponents that included Southerners, Republicans and such liberal Democrats as Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts.

The Ervin amendment actually makes two other important changes in the five-line proposal passed by the House overwhelmingly last summer.

It also would make the amendment effective two years after ratification by three-fourths of the states and would nullify it altogether if such ratification was not completed within seven years.

Wave Of Political Kidnapings Feared

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — The No. 2 FBI man says the radical Weathermen and other "anarchistic groups" may soon stage a wave of political kidnappings in a campaign to overthrow the United States' government.

William C. Sullivan, assistant to FBI director J. Edgar Hoover, said the kidnappings could involve U.S. officials making campaign swings for the fall election or foreign heads of state attending the 25th anniversary of the United Nations in New York City later this month.

Sullivan's remarks were contained in the prepared text of a speech he gave at the 1970 United Press International editors and publishers conference. He omitted the portion about the alleged kidnap plot in his delivery Monday. No reason was given.

Map Plans For 40,000 Troop Cut

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command began mapping plans today for a new 40,000-man troop cutback announced by President Nixon despite reports of a North Vietnamese buildup in Laos.

The U.S. Strategic Air Command sent its entire active Pacific fleet of B52 bombers over Laos for the fifth consecutive day in efforts to check a North Vietnamese supply push down the Ho Chi Minh trail to Cambodia and South Vietnam.

Nixon announced Monday in Hartford, Conn., that the authorized American troop level in Vietnam would be reduced to 344,000 by Dec. 31. Under plans previously announced, this is to drop another 60,000 men to 284,000 by next May 1.

NEXT TO LEAVE

Peak American strength in Vietnam was 543,400 in April, 1969, and the total is now less than 384,000. Nixon's withdrawal program began in June, 1969.

Sources in Saigon said some American units are already positioned for withdrawal from the battlefield. The next units to leave Vietnam are expected to include the 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment, the 25th Infantry Division and the 1st and 5th Regiments of the 1st Marine Division. The 7th Marine Regiment of the 1st Division already has been withdrawn.

In the war, about 30 of the giant B52 bombers pounded the Ho Chi Minh trail. There have been no B52 raids flown in South Vietnam since last Saturday and none in Cambodia since last Thursday.

'DRY-SEASON' PUSH

U.S. Defense Secretary Melvin Laird told a news conference in Washington Monday that there is some evidence the North Vietnamese are attempting to resupply their positions in the Laotian border area.

Sources in Saigon have said Hanoi has begun its yearly "dry-season" push of war materials down the trail to fuel offensives in both Cambodia and South Vietnam.

The U.S. Command reported that 38 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were killed in two engagements in Quang Ngai Province, in the coastal lowlands. U.S. casualties were three killed and seven wounded.

A delayed report from South Vietnamese headquarters said four civilians were killed and one wounded in a Viet Cong rocket attack on Da Nang air base early Monday.

WAR LULL

In Cambodia, the war slipped into one of its periodic lulls. A Cambodian communiqué reported only one harassing attack during the past 24 hours.

NOT PUFFIN' FOR POLICE

LIGHTHOUSE POINT, Fla. (AP) —

Two police cars, sirens whining and lights flashing, arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Plude. The officers jumped out, ran to the door and told the startled couple: "We're looking for the man with the heart attack."

The Pludes said no one was ill. But the officers said a department store clerk had called the home a few moments before, and the call was answered by a man who could not talk — only pant.

Equally baffled, Mrs. Plude went exploring. She found the family's 10-month-old English sheepdog, Puffin', asleep beside the bedroom phone.

Neighborhood Schools Fuss

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice Hugo L. Black, long a foe of racial discrimination, lashed out, angrily Tuesday at a civil rights lawyer and accused him of "trying to rearrange the whole country" to achieve school integration.

"From the first case," Black told a hushed Supreme Court hearing room, "I have been interested in plain discrimination on account of race. We should correct that. But it disturbs me to hear we should try to change the whole lives of people around the country."

RACIAL BASIS

The target of the 84-year-old Alabamian's blast was James M. Nabrit III, an attorney for the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund, who was arguing against a North Carolina state law that forbids compulsory assignment of school children on a racial basis to achieve desegregation.

"You want to haul people miles and miles to give them equal percentages in the schools," Black told Nabrit.

"I think there is something to the concept of the neighborhood schools," Black said. He called the practice of neighborhood schools good, and said he did not like "this trying to condemn it."

FACT OR FICTION?

The outburst followed an assertion by Nabrit that "this neighborhood school concept is really a fiction." The Negro attorney said U.S. District Judge James B. McMillan of Charlotte had found that the government and the state were by administrative action fostering segregation of neighborhoods and therefore the segregation of schools.

Earlier in the day's hearing, the court was urged by North Carolina to uphold the neighborhood school concept, and to forbid government-ordered racial assignment of children to distant schools.

"We contend the only realistic plan that will work for the North and the South, the only real approach, is to allow a child to attend the school nearest his home," said Asst. Atty. Gen. Andrew A. Vanore Jr., of North Carolina.

He defended a state law that prohibits assignment of children to schools on a racial basis and prohibits the compulsory busing of them to achieve racial balance. The law has been declared unconstitutional by a three-judge federal court in Charlotte.

ANTI-BUSING

Vanore told the justices at the second day of school desegregation hearings that "this is not an anti-busing law but an anti-discrimination law. It prevents the assignment or exclusion of students to and from schools on a basis of race."

The government, through Solicitor General Erwin N. Griswold, told the court Monday the Constitution does not forbid the busing of children to accomplish segregation.

"It becomes a question only with the amount and the distance," said Griswold at the opening hearing into desegregation cases involving Charlotte-Mecklenburg County, N.C., Mobile County, Ala., Clarke County, Ga., and the North Carolina antibusing statute.

Campaign Spending Limit Measure Vetoed By Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has vetoed a bill to limit campaign spending on radio and television, calling it "worse than no answer to the problem" of soaring political costs.

Democratic sponsors of the measure pledged an effort to override the veto, immediately or after the Nov. 3 election recess. But one of them, Sen. Philip A. Hart of Michigan, said it will be "very tough" to muster the necessary two-thirds vote. Hart was one of the bill's original sponsors.

Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., the assistant GOP leader, said flatly the veto will be sustained.

"The bill deserved to be vetoed," Griffin said.

But Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., and another prime sponsor of the legislation, said Nixon had blocked "a major effort to stem the spiraling cost of campaigning for public office via the electronic media."

"The American people will be the losers unless Congress overrides the veto," he said.

The bill would limit spending on campaign broadcasting to seven cents for each vote cast for the office involved in the previous election, or $20,000, whichever was higher.

Its terms would cover candidates for president, vice president, senator, representative, governor and lieutenant governor.

PLUGS HOLE

Nixon's veto message, issued Monday while the President was appearing in Stamford and Hartford, Conn., on a barely disguised campaign mission, said the bill fell short of its laudable goals and "threatens to make matters worse."

"The problem with campaign spending is not radio and television; the problem is spending," Nixon said. "This bill plugs only one hole in a sieve."

"Until we take this step, we'll never know how to tighten up the loopholes," Hart countered.

Nixon said the bill actually would force more campaign spending, by leading candidates to switch from radio and television campaigning to more expensive techniques of reaching the voter.

PERSONALIZED VIEW OF HOOSIER

The Blighted Corn Farmer

By JOE MCGOWAN JR.
Associated Press Writer

CLINTON COUNTY, Ind. (AP) — Martin Silverthorn pulled an ear of corn from the stalk, peeled back a husk covered with a grey, moldy powder, and then crushed the kernels and corncob in his hand without effort.

"That is what the blight has done to us," the Hoosier farmer said.

He was showing the harm done this year to corn fields from the Gulf of Mexico to the northern Great Lakes by a black fungus known as the Southern Corn Leaf blight.

The U.S. Agriculture Department announced Monday that the nation's blight-damaged crop improved slightly during the final week of September and now is estimated at 4,188,281,000 bushels.

But the new estimate, as of field conditions on Oct. 1, represented a 13 per cent decline from the record crop of more than 4.8 billion bushels expected in July.

Martin Silverthorn—he prefers to be called Martin—showed how the fungus, whose spores are carried by the wind, first attacks the lower leaves of a corn stalk, producing egg-shaped lesions. Later, the fungus moves up the plant and penetrates through the husks into the corn kernels.

"As soon as it hits the leaves, the plant slows down its growth. The ears of corn won't go ahead and fill out," Martin said. This accounts for drops in production of as much as 50 per cent reported by many farmers.

RICH AREA

"One reason you have to harvest as quickly as possible," Martin explained, "is that the blight weakens the stalk. If the plant falls over, then the shelling machine won't pick it up."

Another reason is to harvest before more damage is done, he said.

Martin and his wife, Alice, farm 500 acres—mostly in corn—in this rich farming area about 50 miles northwest of Indianapolis.

This spring the crops were just getting a good start when a hailstorm ripped across the area, devastating a number of acres of corn and some 10 acres of cucumbers.

SILENT INVADER

Then Martin nursed the corn crop through a two-month drought, only to see his ears of corn turn black with the silent, powdery invader.

Agriculture experts are uncertain whether the blight will survive the winter and make more devastating attacks next spring, nor do they know whether the black fungus "dust" is dangerous to farmers working on the harvest.

Purdue University's agricultural extension service warned farmers in Indiana that while the fungus is not known to be infectious to man, it could produce allergic reaction and result in chronic respiratory condition after repeated exposure.

An agricultural bulletin has advised all farmers working in the blighted fields to purchase breathing masks.

Meanwhile, Martin and his neighbors are waiting for completion of tests at Purdue attempting to determine whether blighted corn can safely be fed to hogs and beef cattle.

Asked what he will plant next year, Martin shrugged his shoulders and said, "There aren't going to be enough supplies of resistant varieties of seed. One outfit flew its equipment to Hawaii to start producing seed corn there for the coming season."

Growing of blight-resistant seed corn has also been stepped up in Mexico and South America this winter. Nonetheless, a Purdue bulletin said those varieties will draw "premium prices" next season.

Hospital Is Allotted Construction Grant

The Medical Center Memorial Hospital has been allotted a $50,000 grant by the Moody Foundation of Galveston to assist with construction of a new general care medical facility in Big Spring.

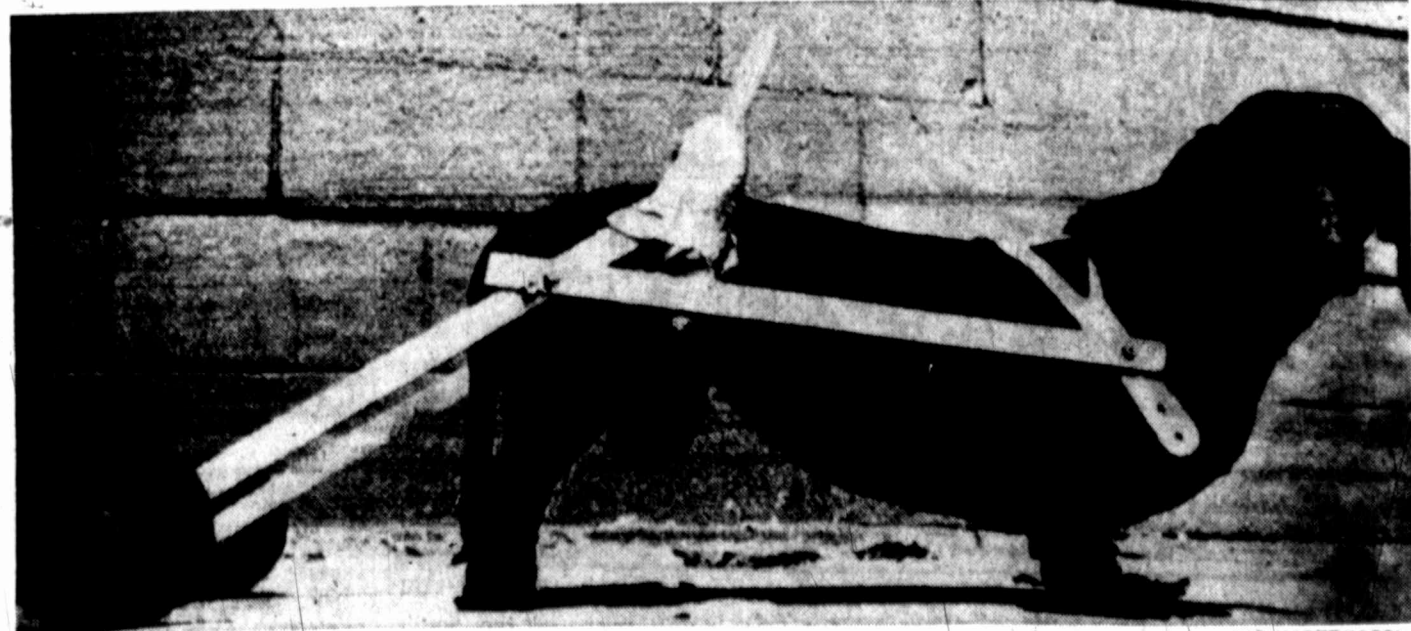

The grant will be used in the construction of a major new medical facility proposed by the Howard County Hospital Authority, which now has an application pending for a Hill-Burton allocation for hospital construction.

If this is forthcoming, then the present assets of the Medical Center Memorial Hospital will be conveyed to the Authority, which has a commitment to borrow remaining funds for a building effort.

Announcement of the foundation gift was made by Edward L. Protz, grand coordinator, and it was the only one in the West Texas area. The Moody

She Breaks Sex Barrier

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — After 73 years the lunch time sex barrier at Schroeder's Cafe has fallen.

Faced by a civil rights suit from the American Civil Liberties Union, owner Max Knesche, 82, said Monday the luncheon period from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. would no longer be for men only.

The law suit was filed on behalf of Carol Weintraub, director of the Civil Liberties Union's Northern California chapter, who commented:

"I'm not doing this because of women's liberation. I'm doing this because I feel people should be judged individually and for themselves. It so happens I like German food—which Schroeder's is noted for."

Corrected ballots arrived this morning in time for the start of absentee balloting Wednesday. When the first ballots arrived Friday, County Clerk Pauline Petty discovered that the printers had left off one candidate's name and used another's twice on the ballot. The incorrect ballots were voided and burned.

On the ballot, there are only two contested county races. Two candidates are seeking the post of County Commissioner Precinct 2, and two are seeking the post of 118th District Clerk.

Garner McAdams and Jack Buchanan are vying for the office of county commissioner. McAdams currently holds a post on the city commission. Incumbent District Clerk M. Fern Cox is seeking re-election against George MacConnell.

Unopposed in their bids for county offices are A. G. Mitchell, candidate for county clerk; Frances Glenn, county treasurer; R. W. Baker, county surveyor; Jess Slaughter, Justice of the Peace, Precinct 1, place 2; Lee E. Young, constable, Precinct 1; Lulu Adams, Justice of the Peace, Precinct 2; and C. J. Lamb, Justice of the Peace, Precinct 3.

Nixon, Agnew Voice Kind Words For Conservative

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, heading back to the campaign trail in earnest, has joined Vice President Spiro T. Agnew in voicing kind words for the Conservative who hopes to unseat New York's Republican Sen. Charles E. Goodell.

Nixon, however, stopped short of endorsing the Conservative party candidate, James L. Buckley.

When greeted by nearly 1,000 Buckley partisans during a brief stop late Monday at the Westchester County, N.Y., Airport, Nixon was asked, "Are you for Mr. Buckley?"

"I appreciate the fact he's for me," Nixon replied.

Pressed to elaborate, the President said, "I'll leave it at that right now."

In Washington, meanwhile, the Senate's top Republican leaders turned out at a fundraising cocktail bash for Goodell.

Goodell, whom Agnew has called a "radical-liberal" and a party renegade, puffed happily at his pipe as he greeted GOP Senate Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, Republican Senate Whip Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, Senate Party Policy Chairman Gordon Allott of Colorado, six liberal GOP senators and several other well-wishers.

The affair was at New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's opulent Washington home.

Rockefeller, who has said he will do all he can to help Goodell's fight against Democratic Rep. Richard L. Ottinger and Buckley, did not attend.

"I think Charlie's a great Republican," said Sen. Edward W. Brooke of Massachusetts. "We're going to do everything we can for him."

Others at the affair were Sens. Mark Hatfield of Oregon, Jacob K. Javits of New York, William B. Saxbe of Ohio, Ted Stevens of Alaska and Marlow W. Cook of Kentucky, and Undersecretary of Health, Education and Welfare Jon G. Venum.

Scott said he didn't care to speculate whether Agnew's attacks on Goodell were aimed at intimidating Republican liberals. But he added, "I'm a hard man to intimidate. A lot of people have tried."

NOT PLANNED

The gathering was not planned as a response to Agnew's criticisms of Goodell. "I think the party was in the planning stage before the era of dubious dialogue," Scott said.

He said he thought the size of the gathering indicated that "Republicans are starting to act like Republicans."

Nixon returned to the White House via the Westchester Airport after spending a day of "nonpolitical" appearances in Hartford and Stamford, Conn., for GOP candidates for governor, senator and the House.

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon will make an avowedly political 15-hour campaign journey Saturday in Vermont, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin.

Between now and the Nov. 3 balloting the chief executive is expected to visit half a dozen or more states.

At Stamford, Nixon made a Columbus Day pitch for the goodwill of Italian-Americans, dedicating an Italian center and invoking the names of such great Americans of Italian extraction as physicist Enrico Fermi and professional football coach Vince Lombardi.

SATISFACTION

While he was at it, the President pointed with satisfaction to the mixed ancestries of top GOP candidates in Connecticut—and of his own family.

In a somewhat similar vein, Nixon set up a White House appointment today with representatives of the Polish-American Congress and another session to discuss foreign affairs with AFL-CIO President George Meany and labor federation aides Jay Lovestone and Irving Brown.

In late afternoon he had meetings with Secretary of the Treasury David Kennedy, chairman Paul McCracken of the Council of Economic Advisers, and director George P. Shultz of the Office of Management and Budget.

Presbyterians Host Meeting

St. Paul Presbyterian Church is the host church for a meeting of the Presbytery of the Southwest this afternoon and Wednesday.

Ministers and ruling elders from 50 churches are expected to attend the conference, scheduled to begin at 2 p.m. today.

This meeting of the Presbytery is the first to be hosted by St. Paul Presbyterian Church in the church's 27-year history. Prior to completion of a $100,000 building program the church did not have the facilities to accommodate the conference.

Precancelled Stamps Test

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston will be one of 69 cities that will participate in a massive test using precancelled six-cent stamps during the Christmas season, the Post Office here said Monday.

Owen Young of the Houston Post Office said the precancelled stamps will be printed to look like a stamp with a cancelled mark on them. Christmas cards bearing the stamp will bypass the postal cancelling machines, he said, saving time.

Tune Is Changed By Westmoreland

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. William C. Westmoreland, who has been cool to the Nixon administration's plan for an all-volunteer Army, today pledged to expend every effort to achieve such a force.

But the Army Chief of Staff warned the American people that "even money will not do the job" of switching from a draft-based Army to an all-volunteer force unless the country rallies in full support and critics stop downgrading the Army.

"We cannot attract the kind of soldier we need into an organization denigrated by some, directly attacked by others, and half-heartedly supported by many," Westmoreland said.

'ALL-OUT' EFFORT

"This country cannot have it both ways."

The Army's top general chose the convention of the Association of the United States Army to voice his commitment to an "all-out effort in working toward a zero draft—a volunteer force."

This "all-out" phrase was used Monday by Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird in disclosing he had ordered the Armed Services to take immediate steps in preparation for ending reliance on the draft by mid-1973.

In a prepared speech for the Army Association, Westmoreland outlined a number of steps already taken to make Army life more attractive to young men, including orders aimed at eliminating "make work" practices in training.

ZERO DRAFT

"We are reviewing all our policies and administrative procedures. Nothing is considered sacrosanct except where military order and discipline are jeopardized. In this, we cannot and will not yield."

However, the former U.S. commander in Vietnam acknowledged that young men who are or will become soldiers and junior officers have attitudes differing from older officers and non-commissioned officers.

"Their values and attitudes need not necessarily be endorsed by Army leadership, yet we must recognize that they do exist."

The Army chief stressed that "we are still fighting a war" and that "for the near future we will continue to depend on the draft for most of our replacements."

Diphtheria List

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Three girls and a woman were added to the diphtheria list Monday, raising the epidemic total to 122, plus 36 unconfirmed cases.

"And ... even though we reach a zero draft, selective service legislation should remain in force as national insurance."

Discussing the Army's problems in moving toward an all-volunteer force, Westmoreland said, "We must double or triple our enlistments and re-enlistments."

Suit Attacks Devotionals

HOUSTON (AP) — The Unitarian parents of two pupils filed suit Monday in federal court asking that the Houston School District be ordered to stop morning devotionals in two schools.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Guild also asked that Gideon International not be permitted to distribute religious books, including the New Testament, in the schools.

Their daughter attends Hartman Junior High and their son goes to Cornelius Elementary. The Guilds charged that both schools have morning devotionals, and they said such prayers are banned by the U.S. Constitution.

They said they did not object "to silent personal recitation of prayers of their choice by individual students at will."

George Garver, superintendent of the district, said he would welcome clarification of the issue.

"I don't know if the allegations have any substance, but if they do, our obligation is to abide with the letter of the law," he said.

Tennessee Plans To 'Play' In Asia

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — American dramatist Tennessee Williams says he plans to stay in Asia "until I have a play in production."

Williams, who arrived last Friday, said he would live in an apartment or house in Bangkok, Hong Kong or Singapore.

Commenting on reports that he is seriously ill, Williams pointed to the left side of his chest and said "I have a swelling here," but declared: "I've never felt better in my life."

Defense Removes Senior Officer

FT. HOOD, Tex. (AP) — The defense used its one peremptory challenge today to remove the senior officer on the jury panel for My Lai defendant S. Sgt. David Mitchell.

The challenge forced the court to resume jury selection because it reduced the number of officers on the court to four, one below the minimum required for a general court-martial.

The four remaining officers are two captains and two first lieutenants.

WEST POINT GRAD

Rejected was Col. Richard G. Trefry, 46, a West Point graduate with extensive experience on courts-martial.

Chief defense lawyer Ossie Brown of Baton Rouge, La., attempted to get Trefry removed "for cause," citing his nomination by the staff judge advocate to the division commander for service on the court-martial panel.

Brown successfully challenged another colonel on the same grounds last week.

But Trefry told the court today: "In my wildest dreams I cannot imagine that any officer up to and including the President of the United States would try to influence my vote. And if they did, I would have no alternative but to turn in my suit."

Col. George R. Robinson, the military judge, denied the challenge for cause "in view of the witness' testimony."

'PHOENIX PROGRAM'

The judge also denied a defense request that subpoenas be issued for Richard Helms, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, and Evan J. Parker of the same agency.

Brown said he intended to prove through those witnesses that in 1967 and 1968 "a systematic program of assassination-elimination of Viet Cong or suspected Viet Cong sympathizers" was official U.S. government policy under the so-called "Phoenix program."

The prosecution argued there was no showing of a connection between the Phoenix program and this trial.

Once the jury is selected, the next item of business will be for the judge to rule on several defense motions, including one on pre-trial publicity and command influence.

Testimony in the trial will begin after the ruling on motions—probably Thursday.

Businessmen To Tour Viet

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Two San Antonio businessmen are en route to a 10-day tour of Vietnam to visit with troops of the Army's 1st Cavalry Division.

Their mission: To let the men know that "not all of the people of the United States are burning the flag, their draft cards, or ROTC buildings."

Retired Col. Frank J. Culley and Reserve Col. Don H. Walton, who left for Vietnam over the weekend, said they hope to meet with as many of the division's 15,000 men as possible.

Both men are retired officers of the division and are longtime members of the 1st Cavalry Division Association, which sponsored their trip.

Walton, who served four years of active duty with the division and 24 years in the reserves, was recently named president of the cavalry association.

Culley is vice president of a local chapter of the association. He spent two years in Vietnam as part of the state department's U.S. aid program following his Army retirement in 1963.

This will be Walton's first trip to Vietnam. He served in the Far East during World War II.

The defense put on a bit of the old razzle-dazzle against South's three no trump contract which convinced the declarer at the conclusion of the deal that he had been made the victim of the hidden ball trick.

West opened the six of diamonds, the four was played from dummy and when East put up the queen, he was permitted to hold the trick. A diamond continuation was taken by the king and a heart was led from dummy. South played the queen from his hand and West promptly ducked.

Altho West's play was highly unorthodox and — at best — a calculated risk, he felt that it was imperative to retain his entry card as the only means of regaining the lead, once the diamonds were established.

Declarer led a small spade next and put up the queen from dummy. East inaugurated his own campaign of deception by playing the deuce. The closed hand was reentered with the queen of clubs and another spade was led. When West followed with the nine, South was confronted with a guess. If he felt that West held the jack of spades, then the proper play from dummy is the ten. If he decides that West has the ace, then he should put up North's king.

It appeared to declarer from the initial play in hearts, that East held the ace of that suit. He accordingly decided to play West for the ace of spades. He put up the king of spades from dummy — and his whole campaign collapsed.

East covered the king of spades with the ace and returned a diamond to clear that suit. Declarer led a heart, West put up the ace, cashed his good diamonds and the jack of spades to register a two trick defeat.

"It isn't how much you give that counts, it's the spirit."

Too many people make a token contribution to the United Way Campaign, and sit back and figure they've done all they should.

They haven't. A token contribution isn't enough. Our community doesn't have token problems. If you really care, if you really want to help solve our problems, you'll give more than a token. You'll give your Fair Share.

There's only one good way to find out how much you really care: look into the problems that plague our community. Then see what's being done about them. Visit one or two of our United Way agencies and discover what they are doing to help solve these growing problems. You'll realize why the need for new money is growing too.

You'll realize why the spirit of giving just isn't enough anymore. And you'll probably give more yourself this year because you'll know, and care about, how much there is to do.

If you don't do it, it won't get done.

Forsan To Take Respite Friday

FORSAN — The Buffaloes take a well-earned and much-needed rest this weekend, Coach Don Stevens is hopeful that his battered charges will be back in good shape by the time of their next test Oct. 23.

Riddled with injuries all season, the Buffs came out of their 7-6 loss to Robert Lee in fairly good shape. Billy McDonald, center, had a knee sprain that required a cast to immobilize it, but it is possible he will be ready two weeks hence. Stevens was encouraged by the brand of defense the Buffs played at Robert Lee. All season, the defense has been giving away too many points for the offense to overcome, and Stevens is hopeful that they have turned the corner.

O's Ride 16-Game Streak In Series

BALTIMORE (AP) — The streaking Orioles at Cincinnati, sent rugged right-hander Tony Cloninger to the dike in the nationally televised (NBC-TV) third game of the best-of-7 set.

But the Orioles, riding a 16-game winning streak which has carried over from the regular season, were 5-1 favorites to capture the Series prize denied them last October by the New York Mets.

FAVORED AGAIN
And the oddsmakers made them a 2-3 pick to win today behind left-hander Dave McNally, whose 24 victories tops Baltimore's trio of 20-game winners.

No team ever has won the Series after losing the first two games at home.

Jim Palmer, who won 20 during the season and another in the Orioles' American League playoff sweep over Minnesota, checked the Reds on five hits in the Series opener last Saturday and beat them with last-out relief help from Pete Richter.

But Mike Cuellar, a 24-game winner, was a quick knockout victim Sunday before the Orioles came from behind for the second time.

And the vaunted power of the Big Red Machine failed to ignite in either game after building early leads of 3-0 and 4-0.

Instead, the first two contests showcased the Orioles' unheralded bullpen corps and their matchless third baseman, Brooks Robinson.

Richert saved Palmer's victory with one pitch, stranding the living run on first base. Then Tom Phoebus, Moe Drabowsky, Marcelino Lopez and Dick Hall combined Sunday to still the Cincinnati thunder for the final 6-2-3 innings.

"Whoever said their relief pitching wasn't very good was reading the wrong scouting report," said the Reds' Pete Rose.

Orioles Manager Earl Weaver's relief crew had been singled out as the one possible weak link on a marvelously balanced club which swept to 108 victories in regular season play, the last 11 of them in succession.

On paper, the Baltimore firemen appeared overmatched by their counterparts on the Reds. The Orioles recorded 31 saves during the season, 13 of them by Richert.

OVERMATCHED
Cincinnati's Wayne Granger had 35 himself; teammate Clay Carroll added 16 and youngsters Don Gullett and Milt Wilcox were compared favorably with the Orioles' veterans despite their inexperience.

But Wilcox was hit hard during a decisive five-run Baltimore burst in the fifth inning of Sunday's game. And Granger hadn't thrown a pitch going into today's game.

SANDS
A 142-pound junior quarterback named PAUL HOPPER is Sands' Back of the Week. He completed 16 of 25 tackles in Sands' fine effort against O'Donnell. His job of running the Sands team drew praise from coach James Blake.

Finishing just behind Hopper was halfback Eddie Newcomer, a 150-pound senior halfback, who had 46 yards rushing against a tough O'Donnell line.

Lineman of the Week is tackle Gavino Rodriguez, a 189-pounder. Rodriguez made 13 tackles and consistently opened holes in the O'Donnell line through which Sands backs made yardage.

STANTON
The Stanton Buffaloes did not name a back and lineman of the week. This wasn't because they were on the short end of a 54-0 score in their game with Seagraves, but despite the fact that seven starters were out with injuries, the staff felt that none of the others quite rose to the occasion.

BORDEN COUNTY
KEN DON JONES, a linebacker on defense, was the standout lineman for the Borden Coyotes in their 50-20 conquest of Sterling City last Friday. He earned the Lineman of the Week award in piling up nine defensive points, which meant that he was in on numerous tackles. In addition, the 150-pound junior stacked up several other plays.

It was a close call on the Back of the Week, but the nod went to CHARLES BILLECK, a 145-pound junior halfback. Charles rambed approximately

Packers Led By Veterans In 22-20 Win

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Green Bay's Packers still must go with the old pros in their bid for resurgence into National Football League prominence.

As they won their third straight at the expense of a plucky but winless San Diego Charger club Monday night, 22-20, the Packers could thank 33-year-old Willie Wood and 36-year-old Bart Starr.

"The way I feel now, I could play another 20 years," declared Wood after intercepting a pass from young Marty Domres at the Chargers' 24 and running it back to the 13.

3rd 3-POINTERS
That defensive gem set up a 14-yard field goal by Dale Livingston, his third three-pointer of the night, and the one that provided the victory.

After a 6-6 first half that saw four field goals, the Packers surged back in the third quarter, scoring on Starr passes of four yards to Jack Clancy and two yards to John Hilton.

With a 19-6 lead, Coach Phil Bengston took Starr out, explaining later, "His shoulder was bothering him."

Don Horn took over at quarterback only to run into quick trouble. Pete Barnes intercepted his pass at the Charger 22 and returned to the 38.

With Domres, the second-year pro from Columbia, taking over at quarterback from starter John Hadl, the Chargers charged. Domres shot a short, swinging pass to rookie Dave Smith on a play gaining 42 to the 22. Jeff Queen lost two and then Domres pitched out to tight end Willie Frazier on a reverse. Frazier raced for the touchdown. Virtually the same play had set up an earlier field goal.

Two minutes and 15 seconds later, Queen scored from the one following a Horn fumble at the 10.

About that time Bengston was asking Starr if he could throw. "When he said he could, I put him back in," explained the coach.

CONTROVERSY
Controversy had centered on the Charger quarterback situation before the game. With Hadl in General Manager Sid Gillman's doohouse, it wasn't decided until late whether he or Domres would start.

John worked three quarters and later commented on reports he might be peddled to another NFL club. "I don't know if this trade talk has any effect on the team. It's not as easy to concentrate with this hanging over your head."

Livingston's other field goals were from 16 and 27 yards in the first half that ended 6-6 as Mike Mercer was accurate from 16 and 29.

What provided the Chargers' their short-lived one-point advantage was a Livingston point-after-touchdown try blocked by Tom Williams.

Defensive end Lionel Aldridge added to Hadl's woes. He sacked the quarterback four of the six times he was thrown behind the line.

WARD'S OFFERING Football Manual
All-star football players aren't born, they're developed, says Dave Lammers, manager of the Montgomery Ward sporting goods department.

"This is the message that's explained in the handy football how-to-do-it booklet we are distributing free to boys who drop by the store," he added. "It was written by George Allen, head coach of the Los Angeles Rams. It's called 'Football Skills.'"

PERMIAN TICKETS To Go On Sale
Season ticket holders have first crack at the 605 reserve seat tickets for the Big Spring-Permian football game Friday.

The duets go on sale at the School Business Office at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday.

In addition, 500 student tickets were sent here and will be made available in the local schools.

The paid crowd at last Friday's game here between Midland High and Big Spring was 4,290. The total income from the contest was $5,288.50.

Including bands and pep squads, the total attendance amounted to 4,890.

HAYDEN FRY, SMU football coach:

"Each year, the Southwest Conference gets a little more unpredictable. It's awfully hard to figure out who'll finish third behind Texas and Arkansas."

EARL MORRALL, Baltimore quarterback, discussing the duties of an extra point holder:

"First I make sure we have 11 players on the field. Then I measure seven and a half yards off from the scrimmage line to the point where the kicker hits the ball. My next step is to make sure the kicker is ready before I call the cadence. If I can't try to spot the ball with the strings forward. I also have the option to check off to a pass or a run play after I set up."

VINCE GIBSON, Kansas State coach, after his team had lost to Arizona State:

"Naturally I was disappointed but Arizona State is an outstanding football team — the best offensive team I have seen since I have been coaching. They're so quick and they can hurt you in so many ways."

LARRY WILSON, free safety for the St. Louis Cardinals, when asked to name the receiver and quarterback that he respects most after ten seasons in the NFL:

"Paul Warfield is the top receiver in my book. For speed, for quickness, for desire, I have never seen his match. Among quarterbacks, I have a couple of favorites, Bart Starr and Sonny Jurgensen. To me, Starr is the epitome of a quarterback. He directed the Packers' great running game and when that went away he became more of a passing quarterback. Jurgensen is a hard guy to play against. He feels things and, boy, he whips that ball! Under coach Lombardi last year, Sonny was a lot better than he had been in a long time."

DICK BUTKUS, star linebacker for the Chicago Bears:

"What I love most about football is the contact."

WES PARKER, Los Angeles Dodger, a .240 hitter who wound up hitting .319 this year:

"At Vero Beach in the spring, I made up my mind I was going to be married to baseball this year, and I have been. I didn't have more than a dozen dates during the season. The fact that I produced so many runs with so few homers was especially pleasing to me. It meant I was getting the clutch hits."

DAN ABRAMOWICZ, wide receiver for the New Orleans Saints:

"When I'm running a pattern, I pretend there is no one else on the field but myself and the quarterback. I don't hear footsteps. I block everything else out of my mind. It's like I'm out there working out. That's the only way you can do it, because if you start thinking, you're going to have nightmares. If I start thinking, 'I'm going to get hit,' I will lose my concentration. The most important thing you have to do is concentrate on that ball all the way. I don't love to get hit, but I know it's part of the game. I realize no matter if I catch the ball or drop it, I'm going to get hit. So I'd rather have a completion and get banged good than drop the ball and get my head knocked off."

EARL WEAVER, manager of the pennant-winning Baltimore Orioles:

"It always looks easy when it's over. But when you're playing each game it isn't easy. We had a 34-15 record in one-run games. Looking back, it would seem we didn't have any trouble at all."

Steers, Irish Close In On Ohio Staters

By The Associated Press
Thanks to record scoring spears against long-time rivals, Texas and Notre Dame are closing in on Ohio State in the latest Associated Press college football poll announced today.

The top-ranked Buckeyes, who led a week ago by 103 points, received 20 first-place votes and 731 points from a panel of 40 sports writers and broadcasters following a 29-0 victory over Michigan State.

But Texas pulled down 13 first-place votes and 712 points in the wake of a 41-9 rout of Oklahoma and Notre Dame received four No. 1 votes—its first of the season—after battering Purdue 29-0.

Army 51-10. The 41 and 51 points were the most ever scored by Texas and Notre Dame in the respective series.

While the Buckeyes, Longhorns and Irish held on to their 1-2-3 spots, there was a shake-up elsewhere in the Top Ten. Southern California dropped from fourth to 11th after losing to Stanford 24-14 and the Trojans were replaced by Mississippi, which beat Georgia 31-21 and climbed one position. Nebraska and Michigan each moved up one spot to fifth and sixth, respectively. The Cornhuskers defeating Missouri 21-7 and the Wolverines blanking of the season—after battering Purdue 29-0.

Sandy Soil Research Center Proposition Is Studied Here

By HOWARD SIMMS

A new effort to get the U.S. Soil Experiment Field Station here funded for expansion as a regional center for sandy soil research may result from a discussion Monday evening at the Chamber of Commerce office.

Alton Marwitz and Tom Eastland were appointed as a subcommittee to decide the best means of getting support for the sandy land research idea and the location of the research at the Big Spring, with the option of including anyone else they need in the subcommittee.

It was the consensus of the more than a score of men attending that there is an urgent need for basic research for the sandy lands of the Great Plains, and that local efforts should be pressed to increase the laboratory staff and facilities here for that purpose.

EFFORTS TRACED

Dale King, field representative for Cong. Omar Burleson, and Dr. Rex Johnston of the U.S. Agricultural Research Service, south plains branch, traced efforts since 1966 of the U.S. Department of Agriculture to phase out some small research centers and expand others into regional centers.

The USDA plan was concentrate basic research into a few centers that would receive about $500,000 a year instead of many small stations where research would be limited by lack of facilities.

Johnston recalled that in 1966 or 1967 the Big Spring station was put on a list of stations to be closed, but when the list became public a congressional inquiry prompted a USDA study on the feasibility of keeping the station open with expanded sandy land research for the south plains region.

FAVORABLE POINTS

The feasibility study, he said, turned up several points in favor of the Big Spring station as the site of sandy land research center: including the potential erosion and pollution control value of sandy land crop and forage research and the fact that an interim expansion could be made without building new labs or offices.

King added that Sen. Ralph Yarborough went to bat for the station this year by trying to inject a $250,000 line appropriation into the agricultural appropriations bill, which would have been enough to bring five to six more researchers and their research centers and expand staffs to the station or between others into regional centers.

The attempt failed King said. A previously Rep. Burleson and

Rep. George Mahon had made efforts in the House, but some members of the House subcommittee on agricultural appropriations told Burleson, that "Research isn't paying off."

HISTORY OUTLINED

Bill Fryrear, director of the field station, joined Dr. Johnston in outlining the history of the Big Spring station and others that were considered for closure. About 23 were set up between 1905 and 1915 — some like Big Spring now having five or six researchers, others having only one or two.

The Big Spring station was up for closure in the early 50's, but when a major drought hit in the far part of the decade the USDA decided to hold on to the location and shift the research emphasis here to water and soil conservation, they said.

As a result of lightning destroying a barn, the IS 20 right-of-way taking other old buildings, and a couple of land exchanges, newer research buildings were gradually added, upgrading the facilities.

In 1959 the station was one of those scheduled to receive a budget increase of $30,000 a year, but 24 other USDA projects were higher on the priority list and the increase never came.

PRO AND CON

The discussion then turned to the advantages to West Texas and other sandy land areas of an expanded sandy land research program.

The possibility that irrigation is using up the available supply of ground water faster than agriculture is adapting to dry land techniques entered the picture, as well as the idea that dust storms here carry erosion fallout to Eastern cities along with pesticide pollution.

Discussion of the political problems of getting Congress to approve expanded sandy land research boiled down to three issues: the station will eventually be either expanded to a $500,000 regional center or be closed; there is no reason to expect the Secretary of Agriculture to include the project in any foreseeable Presidential budget, because "expenditures will be cut where people don't scream;" and there are things that can be done to enlist the support of legislators, researchers, and farming organizations in the area.

Volunteers Lunch

The Herald incorrectly reported that the annual awards luncheon for volunteers at the Big Spring State Hospital was scheduled for Wednesday. The luncheon will be held Thursday, a spokesman of the volunteer office said.

MEXICAN WRECK Jail Conditions Are 'Horrible'

PASADENA, Tex. (AP) — A Pasadena man is home now, after spending 10 weeks in a Mexican jail, the victim of his failure to pay Mexican auto insurance.

Narciso Hernandez arrived home to his wife and five children, after what all started as a family vacation.

Ended was a 10-week imprisonment that cost his family about $4,000. Also ended was an international ordeal that involved state Sen. Chet Brooks of Pasadena and ultimately Gov. Preston Smith and the State of Texas.

At home, the 28-year-old cement worker talked about those 20 weeks.

TOLD TO PAY

He was held in Aguascalientes jail in connection with a head-on auto crash on July 26 in which the driver of the other car died. Hernandez was not held responsible for the death, but was told he would have to pay $1,600 to cover the damages.

He didn't have that much money, nor did he have Mexican auto insurance, and under Mexican law he was imprisoned until the payment was made.

The evening of July 26 he was placed in the Aguascalientes city jail. He described the conditions there as "horrible" with no bathroom. "Only a barrel."

His wife, Martha, 27, returned to Pasadena to try and raise the $1,600. She started selling home-made tamales and was aided by contributions from interested individuals and business concerns in Pasadena and nearby Houston.

Hernandez was transferred several days later to a state prison, after paying officials 100 pesos, he said.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter, Jane, has fallen in love with the son of friends of ours. Steve is a fine young man and we are very fond of him. He has finished school and has a good job with a sound future and could easily support Jane now. Not in luxury, but with all the necessities. They have asked for our permission to marry — but they want to marry right now! Jane has another year of observation, I have discovered school and we want her to graduate first. In fact, her father insists upon it. Jane says if we give her our blessings to marry now, she promises to finish school after she's married. She has always been an obedient and sensible girl, the notion that a man who but she says if we don't give her permission to marry, they will elope.

So far I am on my husband's side. Steve's parents are with other wise good trousers, I the kids and so are many of decided that maybe a coin being unreasonable. They say we are purse wouldn't be such a bad idea, so I bought one, and he you think?

JANE'S MOTHER: You don't say how old "the kids" are. I: the "school" Steve finished college, and Jane has one more year before she, too, is a college graduate. I think you're being unreasonable.

If it's "high school," I think you're being blackmailed.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please settle something? If a person wants to visit you, and she knows that her dog doesn't get along with your dog, shouldn't she leave her dog home?

Frisky (my dog) and Gertrude (my friend's dog) nearly had a bloody battle once at my place because they hate the sight of each other, so my friend called up and said she was bringing Gertrude over so I should look up Frisky.

Fresh Cold Front Takes Aim At Texas

By The Associated Press

Skies cleared over all but extreme Southeast and East Texas today as a new cold front took aim on the state.

Thunderstorms soaked portions of Central Texas and showers fell over eastern sections Monday. A severe thunderstorm warning was in effect for a time in Travis, Caldwell, Bastrop, Lee and Fayette counties.

But by early today, most skies were clear with temperatures ranging from the 40s over the Panhandle to the 60s along the Gulf Coast and eastern sections of the state.

A weak high pressure ridge centered over the eastern portion of the state early today accompanied by widespread fog that cut visibility to less than one mile in many areas from Wichita Falls to Cotulla line eastward.

The severe weather Monday night dumped generous portions of rain in some areas. College Station received 1.72 inches of rain during a 24-hour period ending Monday evening. Other precipitation measurements included 1.80 at Lufkin, .89 at Tyler, .77 at Houston and .67 at Victoria.

The top temperature reading Monday was 86 degrees at Brownsville down to 64 at Dallas and 65 at Texarkana.

Agnew To Bid Texans Bye Following Campaign Swing

By The Associated Press

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew highlighted the Texas political scene today with words of praise at Dallas for Republican gubernatorial nominee Paul Eggers.

Agnew made stops at Amarillo and Lubbock Monday and scheduled a round of meetings with GOP officials in Dallas today before returning to Washington.

And wherever the vice president traveled, he got reactions.

Flying into Lubbock, Gov. Preston Smith's home town, Agnew tried to link Democratic U. S. Senate candidate Lloyd Bentsen, a conservative, to the "radical liberals" and Sen. William Fulbright, D-Ark.

WARNING ISSUED

Smith issued a statement while Agnew was speaking in Lubbock, giving the vice president a tepid welcome, but warning Texans not to take whatever he might say too seriously.

"The No. 1 Republican headhunter is here to promote his party. He has a right to do this, and he should be given a courteous hearing wherever he chooses to go. At the same time we should keep in mind that when he goes back to Washington, Texas will be left with the right to make their own choices among the candidates," Smith said.

Agnew told a Lubbock Airport reception — and got loud applause for his remark — that Bentsen, if elected, would "vote down the line with the radical liberals" to give Fulbright another two years as chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee when the Senate is organized in January.

ABOUT SAME

Election of U. S. Rep. George Bush, R-Tex., would improve the chances of Republican control of the Senate, Agnew said.

Bentsen issued a statement in Houston saying that "even if the Republicans took control of the Senate, the man who would replace Sen. Fulbright as chairman of foreign relations is Sen.

George Aiken of Vermont.

"On Vietnam and on other issues, there is not one iota's difference between Fulbright and Aiken... George Bush and Spiro Agnew know this. So why the propaganda?"

Eggers campaigned in Borger Monday where he told a breakfast meeting of GOP supporters he advocated strong measures against what he termed "hippies with a broomstick."

FREE SPEECH

Speaking of violence by young persons, Eggers said he would not let a broomstick-toting hippie deny him his right of free speech.

"We've given in to them too long," Eggers said, "and I'm not going to let a bunch of kids like that scare me. We have to get tough with them. It's exactly what they want."

Eggers added that it's "too bad we don't have a whipping post out front of the courthouse." He said he would take "a bunch of them out there and tan their hides good and straighten them out."

Eggers referred to an incident at the University of Houston last week when Smith left without making a scheduled speech after a group demonstrated in the auditorium.

OIL DEPLETION

Smith said in Lamesa that Eggers should have fought reduction of the oil depletion allowance while he was general counsel for the U.S. Treasury Department.

"It would seem that if the Republican candidate for governor wanted to be attentive to the interests of Texans and Texas he would have used his voice and influenced decisions on tax matters which would have helped, rather than harmed, this state," Smith said.

In the race for lieutenant governor, incumbent Ben Barnes told the 10th International Congress of Audiology that communication is "the most effective weapon" against those who "are shouting for revolution and violence and destruction."

His Republican opponent, Byron Fullerton, said in New Braunfels that "Barnes pattern of campaigning is to tell people he is talking to whatever he thinks they want to hear and just hope the rest of the state is not listening."

Big Ballot Battle Appears Defeated

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—A Mexican-American third party bid for the Nov. 3 ballot appeared defeated today after a law firm carried its fight to state and federal courts said it is withdrawing from the case.

The Raza Unida Party had until noon today to file a petition in federal court here to keep the case alive in its attempt to get on the ballot in three Southwest Texas counties.

San Antonio lawyer Jesse Gamez said he would discuss the matter with the newly organized party's founder, Jose Angel Gutierrez of Crystal City, to determine the next step.

The Raza Unida Party fielded a total of 16 candidates for local offices such as county judge and peace justice in Zavala, Dimmit and La Salle counties. All in Southwest Texas and all largely Mexican-American.

A long, complex court battle began when officials of the counties refused to place the party on the Nov. 3 ballot. Orders to print the ballots without the Raza Unida candidates were issued several days ago in each of the three counties.

Middle School System Not Foreseen Locally

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This last part of a series explores the possibility of a middle school plan in Big Spring. The first and second parts of this series dealt with the philosophy and teaching methods of the middle school plan and the use of the middle school program in Lamesa.)

By STEPHEN R. VORHIS

The Big Spring Independent School District, unlike the Lamesa School District, is not faced with a classroom shortage. It is unlikely that the school district will have to adopt the middle school plan to accommodate additional students.

Lynn C. Hise, assistant superintendent for instruction, said that the local school district has enough available space for students for the next several years.

"We may need more space for students about 1977, when the kindergarten program is completely phased into the elementary schools. Until then, however, we are in good shape when it comes to finding space for students," Hise said.

Supt. S. M. Anderson said the school district is guided by facilities available, and not always by choice. He said he would not be opposed to a plan that would place first to fourth grades in the elementary school; fifth to eighth grades in the middle school; and ninth to 12th grades in the high school.

"The problem is that to begin a middle school system we would have to build a new building or expand both of the junior high schools to take care of the increased number of students," Anderson said.

"Currently we have grades one to six in an elementary school; grades seven and eight in the junior high schools; and grades nine to 12 in the senior high school."

Hise said that the high school was expanded two years ago to allow ninth graders to move to the senior high school. He noted, however, that the move to a four-year high school was not made as the first step in a middle school plan but merely to relieve the overcrowding of the junior high schools.

"In 1977 we may be faced with a choice again," Hise said. Then we may give more careful attention to a middle school plan, because our elementary schools will hold seven grades instead of the current six.

"Even then the middle school plan isn't the only solution. We could, for example, expand the elementary schools or the junior high schools to handle more students. Or, if we had to we could establish separate campuses, although this would not be in line with our plan for neighborhood schools."

Hise also said that Big Spring may not be ready for a middle school system.

"I'm not sure how the parents would react if we decided to cut out most of the competitive activities for junior high school children — but I feel they wouldn't want us to change it if it meant their kids couldn't play sports or join the band until the eighth grade."

So far, Hise said, the school district has only made itself aware of the middle school concept. School administration officials have not examined the plan in detail, but they will do so in the next several years if the facilities available currently become unworkable, they said.

Smith Chides Opponent On Washington Record

LAMESA — Gov. Preston Smith today reflected upon his opponent's record as tax attorney for the U.S. Treasury Department and expressed the hope that he has plans to do more for Texas as governor than he did when he was in Washington.

"My Republican opponent takes great pride in his campaign literature of his service as chief counsel for the treasury department. Yet the record shows that while he was in this position of influence the oil depletion allowance was reduced and the oil import program was almost scrapped. Mr. Eggers was conspicuously quiet when both measures were being considered, even though Texas stood to lose millions of dollars. In fact, he was a member of the Treasury "team" that advocated enactment of both proposals.

Also Gov. Smith said the strongest support for the tariff on oil imports rather than the oil import quota program which would have cost 50 to 70 cents a barrel, came from the treasury department.

"I did not hear Mr. Eggers' voice raised against the treasury's position."

"This state cannot afford to have a man in a responsible position in our state government who does not have the interests of Texas in his heart. As your governor, I made trips to Washington to fight to protect Texas interests in the so-called tax reform bill that contained the depletion change, and also to oppose changing from the quota system to a tariff on oil.

Chemicals Might Wipe Out Generations Yet Unborn?

HOUSTON (AP) — Generations yet unborn could be wiped out by the uncontrolled use of chemicals in today's environment, a geneticist said in an interview here.

Dr. Margery Shaw, a medical scientist studying genetics at M.D. Anderson Hospital here, said it is theoretically possible for a chemical to be introduced into the environment which could so severely injure human chromosomes that future generations would be doomed.

"One single chemical may do us in," said Dr. Shaw. "It may be the one that gets into our cells and does an extreme amount of genetic damage without producing any illness or fatality in the individual. This is a theoretical possibility."

Dr. Shaw said scientists already know of about 500 chemicals which cause chromosome breakage.

The long term effect of this damage, however, is not now understood.

been exposed to more new chemicals, more new synthetics, plastics, pesticides and industrial chemicals than any other generation in the history of mankind," she said. "There are hundreds of new ones every month from the chemical industry and we have no idea what the impact is on our future generations."

Chromosomes are the basic genetic legacy through which the characteristics of one generation are passed on to the next. Chromosomes can be damaged in a variety of ways that could cause mutations to arise in new generations.

RESEARCH NEEDED

Dr. Shaw said a vast amount of basic research is needed to develop safeguards against chemicals and pollutants which might harm the present genetic pool.

Mutations caused by genetic injury are almost always harmful, says Dr. Shaw.

"The great majority of mutations are deleterious. They're bad," said Dr. Shaw. "A number of them are lethal. A number of them produce disease, defects, congenital abnormalities or mental retardation. It's very, very rare to find an advantageous one."

Even man's advances into space may cause the human species to pay a price, she said.

Dr. Shaw is continuing a study begun by Dr. Michael Ender on the effects of space flight on human chromosomes. She said studies indicate that Gemini and Apollo astronauts who have flown into space show a statistically significant increase in chromosome breakage not found in their non-flying colleagues. The chromosome damage, she said, was not serious enough to affect the health of the astronauts.

Dr. Shaw said the research at this point shows only a trend, but it uncovers a possibility that a long term flight—such as a three-year voyage to Mars—could "be a great risk" to the chromosome health of astronauts.

Team Approach Might Give Answers

The National Science Foundation is testing an approach which could refocus basic scientific research, aiming at national, social and human concerns.

During and since World War II, much basic research has been funded and conducted in the name of national defense. This has resulted in atom bombs, hydrogen bombs, intercontinental missiles and many other sophisticated weapons systems.

While there has been heavy technological "fallout" for civilians, the quality of living was not noticeably improved by the gadgets. America was able to put men on the moon but it hasn't been able to clean its air.

Dr. William D. McElroy, head of the NSF, has begun to use teams of scientists from varied disciplines to tackle problems such as the energy shortage, regional water needs and to assess the genetic effects of chemical additives.

With the federal government cutting the defense budget and trimming research grants, much of the scientific community has been shaken up. The Apollo flights to the moon showed what a concentrated scientific effort can do. A whole new technique of manned space travel was created in a short time. It took a goal, a deadline and a lot of money.

The new approach, as Dr. McElroy said, will require goals, leadership, cooperation and participation. Scientists should welcome a chance to find basic answers to air and water pollution, the population explosion, more and better foods and other pressing problems.

It Takes A Will To Do It

Gov. Preston Smith has endorsed the "philosophy of merit increases" in pay for public employees.

"Employees who perform better than average at their jobs should be rewarded and department heads should have the means at their disposal to reward outstanding employees," Smith told delegates to the 25th annual meeting of the Texas Public Employees Association.

The subject of merit pay, particularly in the teaching profession, has been debated fervently through the years. But not too much has been done about it.

In business, bosses seldom have any difficulty recognizing superior ability, talent and application to duties. Those who possess these qualities are rewarded by promotion and better pay.

But the same procedure is not always employed where public employees, especially those with tenure, are concerned. Among teachers, for instance, merit pay is endorsed in principle, but the paralyzing question always arises: Who is going to decide who should get merit pay? It arises from the fear that administrators will show favoritism, giving merit pay increases to those they like, not those that really deserve it.

The issue has never been resolved. But it should be. Superior employees in the public sector should be rewarded, just as they usually are in business and industry. What is required is a will to adopt standards and apply them.

An Addendum To The Campus Report

WASHINGTON — Perhaps it is an intolerable intrusion on the clients' time to say one last word about the tragedy at Kent State University which cost the lives of four students. But it seems to me the President's Commission on Campus Unrest left that word unsaid.

IN ASSESSING virtually equal responsibility to the Ohio National Guard and the students involved, the commission was guilty of discrimination. It failed even to suggest that maybe it is time for college administrators and faculties to doff their short pants and become big boys — not only at Kent State but almost everywhere in the academic community.

At last, in the commission report, we have an objective and relatively dispassionate account of the violent provocations which preceded the fatal gunfire. But the report did not answer the obvious question of what Kent State's administrators and teachers were doing with their precious selves during the preliminary bouts. Nor does it utter a syllable of criticism of the policies of permissiveness that encouraged violence at Kent State and elsewhere.

ON THE FIRST weekend in May — shortly after President Nixon ordered troops into Cambodia — unprecedented disorder erupted at Kent State.

Stores in downtown Kent were vandalized by youths, causing $10,000 damage. The city administration asked for help from the National Guard. The next night, as the Guard was preparing to move onto the Kent campus, the Reserve Officers Training Camp (ROTC) building was set afire at a loss of $86,000.

The report of one faculty member who witnessed this bit of horseplay is revealing: "I have never in my 17 years of teaching seen a group of students as threatening or as arrogant or as bent on destruction . . ."

FINALLY, a larger group of students gathered on the common and "disobeyed numerous orders to disperse." Tear gas canisters thrown by the guardsmen were thrown back at them. Gen. Robert H. Caninebury ordered his men to withdraw "into what he hoped the students would recognize as a clearly defensive posture." It didn't work. The students pursued the soldiers and pelted them with rocks and obscenities. Then came the shots, and sudden death.

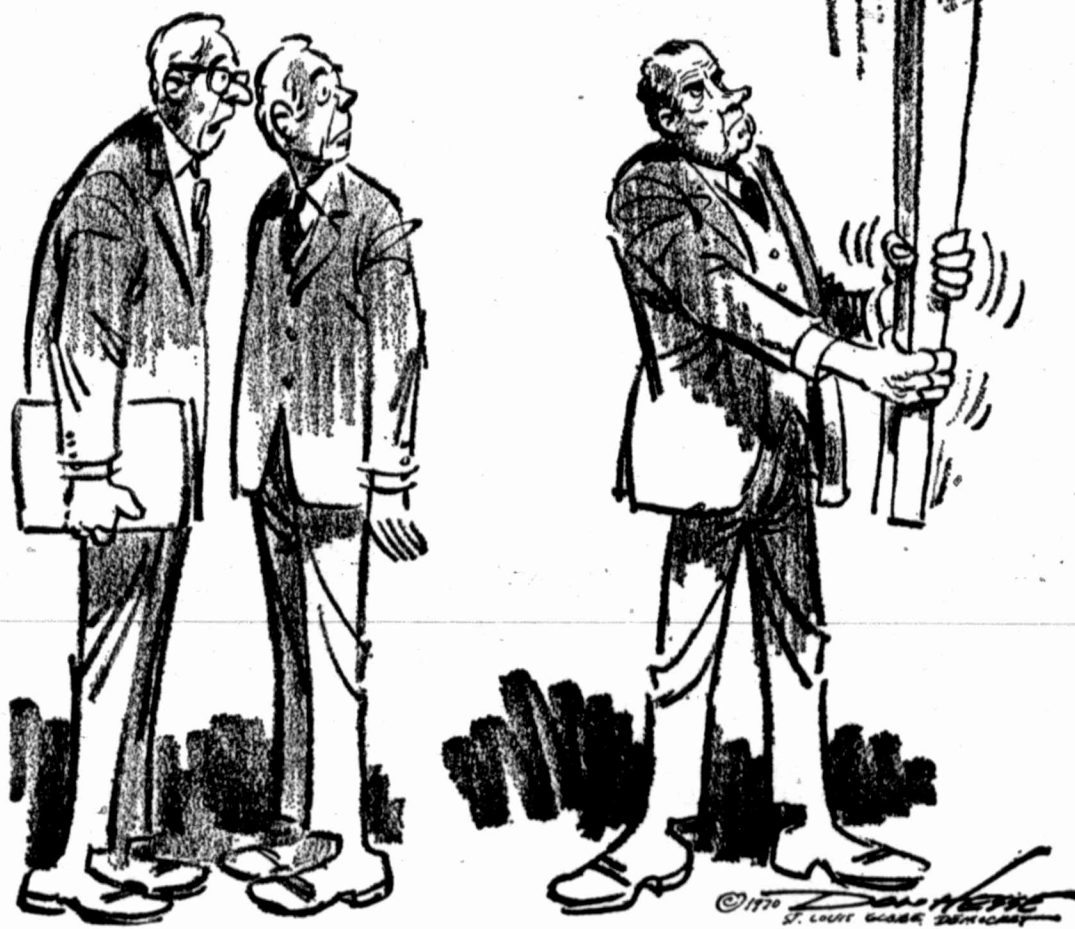

To that point, the commission's report is an admirable example of investigative work. But it also was the commission's duty to recommend, and it abandoned that duty after proposing that the military be prohibited from issuing loaded rifles to troops confronting student demonstrators.

IT SEEMS incredible that the commission did not at least wonder how such terrorism could come to pass in the civilized atmosphere of academe. The real troublemakers are not idealistic kids, but vicious louts of the Weathermen and Black Panther stripe. They are of a piece with the Yippies' Jerry Rubin who keeps telling children to kill their parents.

Unless their innocence is of a magnitude that passeth understanding, college officials and faculties have known the score for several chaotic years. And for the most part, they have simply ignored this new fact of college life in the hope it would go away. They have surrendered to students armed to the teeth, as at Cornell, and they have kept law enforcement forces at arm's length while the kids had their brutal fun.

It is not enough to charge such academics with cowardice, although that charge hereby is filed. What is worse, they have encouraged the hoodlums with dangerous twaddle — sometimes naive and sometimes calculated — about free speech, double-standard style.

Mutual Funds Activity

NEW YORK (AP) — The record-breaking surge in stock market volume during the past few weeks reflects a marked change in the attitudes of some mutual funds, which account for a growing percentage of activity.

During the final full week of September, volume reached a record high of 83,422,450 shares on the New York Stock Exchange. That record survived just two weeks before it was broken on volume of 84.1 million shares.

There is little question that institutional traders provided much of the action, as revealed by big block statistics.

Included in the old, one-week record were about 470 blocks of 10,000 shares or more, and last week's new high included about the same number. Big blocks accounted for 13,342,900 shares last week, which once was a fair week's activity from all sources of trading.

Accompanying this rise is a steady reduction in the cash position of mutual funds, indicating that much of the surge in volume is coming from that source.

Earlier this year the funds maintained record amounts of cash as they, too, shied away from a market that was proving costly to all investors.

Moreover, they expected a rash of redemptions because of their poor performance, and needed cash with which to honor requests. Their average cash position, therefore, rose to 12 per cent or more of assets.

The rush to redeem has not developed as anticipated—which isn't to say that it never will. Through August, at any rate, redemptions were falling, which is a departure from precedent.

Mutual fund officials note that in previous years when a market recovery was under way, many customers cashed in their funds, the enticement being the rising per share value and the sense of relief on being able to dispose of holdings at prices higher than a few weeks or a few months earlier.

That the same pattern appears to be delayed this year has given encouragement to portfolio managers. Maybe, they are saying, those big reserves of cash aren't necessary. Market analysts now believe that the cash position of mutual funds will continue to dip during the autumn as more and more funds decide they can put their money into stocks instead of in more liquid assets.

Cash reserves were more than 1 per cent in August, but some industry officials wouldn't be at all surprised to find during the next week or so that September's reserves fell to around 10 per cent.

Another reason for the activity appears to be portfolio cleaning up by new managers of performance-minded funds, trusts, insurance companies and the like.

Honeymoon Data

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

Women are five times as likely to steal hotel towels on their first honeymoon as on any later one.

There are more ladies who can make a meringue than there are men who can spell it correctly.

You are more likely to be struck by lightning if you stand under an oak tree during a storm than if you take shelter under an elm.

If, when you reach for the key to your front door, you invariably find it in the same pocket, you are in a worse rut than you realize and need some kind of change to pep up your life.

A young husband who divorces a wayward wife is more likely to be forgiven by his mother-in-law than by his father-in-law. Few papas can face up to the realization that the little darling who used to climb into their laps has turned out to be a tramp.

No matter how much they charge for a nickel cup of coffee, it still tastes like 4 cents.

You can usually tell a man's age pretty well by the number of medicines he keeps in the drawer of his office desk. If they take up more than one drawer, he is either a hypochondriac or overdue for retirement.

What is the sure way for a man to determine how he stands with a girl? Perhaps by the number of times she uses his first name. Whenever a girl is indifferent toward a fellow, she addresses him impersonally. But when she has an affectionate feeling for him—whether she quite realizes it herself or not—she cannot keep his name from her tongue. The sound of it is like a bell in her mouth that rings an echo in her heart.

Nothing makes a guy feel more superior than winning a poker game. He is supercilious then that he has heaven on his side.

No matter how much a man has been around there are always limits to his experience. For example, twice in my life I have shaken hands with guys who had tapeworms but, so far as I know, I have never met anyone who has seen Timbuktu, ridden on a dog sled, or watched an elephant being born.

Men who have hangovers regularly rarely shave with either an electric or an old-fashioned straight-edged razor.

The conversation of people who habitually talk to themselves is usually so dull they can't even catch their own attention.

Halloween still comes only once a year. The problem is how to keep from feeling like you're living it every one of the other 364 days.

Around The Rim

A Guide To Good Eating

When Gary Don Newsom went to the U.N. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., he wrote home inquiring about good restaurants in New York City. Miss Marie Hall, a friend of his mother's, came up with the following list, along with her personal comments, which she won't mind my sharing. Here are Marie's observations as she prepared them for Gary:

GINO'S — Excellent Italian food, moderately expensive. Small and always crowded. I suggest Chicken a la Gino with a side order of spaghetti, finished with expresso. If you want a different experience and are in a daring mood, order the tripe. Tripe is not always on the menu so inquire if they are serving it that day and if it is fresh, fresh, fresh!

BRASSERIE — Open 24 hours a day. Great sandwiches and French food. Moderate in price. The filet mignon will cost $7, but is the best I have been able to find in New York City, considering that you can cut it with your fork. Famous for the onion soup au gratin. A bowl of this and a salad and one of the impressively constructed desserts (which, by the way, taste as good as they look because they are baked fresh throughout the day) will fill you. Or, just drop by for dessert and sit at the counter so you can see all of them.

SEA FARE — Fresh sea food, and fairly expensive. Eating here will forever spoil your taste buds. You will not be happy with canned tuna after a dinner here. I suggest broiled fillet of sole (which comes with salad and wither potatoes or rice) and toasted coconut chiffon pie. The bar here is excellent, one of the best in the city.

LARRE'S — Always crowded. For about $5 average per person, you get hors d'oeuvres, soup, salad, main course with vegetables, dessert and beverage. This is inexpensive dining for the quantity and quality. This is my favorite eating place.

MAYFAIR — A chain of short order places all over the city that I have found always to be clean with fresh food. As inexpensive as eating can be expected in New York. The bagel with salmon, slab of cream cheese and a slice of onion and a Coke will fortify you amply. (However, cab drivers tell me I should not eat bagels because they lie heavy in the stomach.)

DOVER'S — Build your own sandwiches here in the delicatessen. There is one that has turkey, Swiss cheese, corn beef, slaw and is slathered with your choice of dressing (I prefer Russian) on your choice of bread (I prefer black). This is another favorite place. Get it to go and wait until you sink your teeth into the fresh fruit salad. Most of the sandwiches are triple deckers, and you will be glad to know about this place. Check the directory, for there is more than one.

RUMPLEMEYER'S — For sodas, malts, and great ice cream desserts, I recommend this spot. The chicken sandwiches (unless they have changed) are made with the real sliced chicken, not pressed rubbery chicken. Eating a full-fledged meal here is expensive, and the food is good. For late afternoon, I suggest cinnamon toast. At lunch, I suggest cinnamon toast. In fact, that is what I usually order here any time of the day.

Movement For Bank Birth Control

WASHINGTON — Every time an old building is torn down in this country, and a new building goes up, the ground floor becomes a bank.

THE REASON for this is that banks are the only ones who can afford the rent for the ground floor of the new buildings going up. Besides, when a bank loans someone money to build a new building, it usually takes an option for the street-floor facilities.

Most people don't think there is anything wrong with this and they accept it as part of the American free enterprise system. But there is a small group of people in this country who are fighting for Bank Birth Control.

"WHENEVER YOU see an old building torn down," Hubbard said, "you usually see a candy store, a dry cleaner, a delicatessen and possibly a florist torn down with it. These shops are all replaced in the new building with a beautiful glass, aluminum, wall-to-wall carpeted money-factory."

"Now from an esthetic viewpoint, a bank looks better than a dry cleaner, a candy store, a delicatessen and a florist. But from a practical point of view, it's a sheer disaster. If you want a newspaper, a candy bar or a chocolate milk shake, you can't get it at a bank. Nor can you run out to a bank for a pound of Swiss cheese and a six-pack of beer when you have guests coming over."

"A BANK IS GREAT if you want to buy a car, but it's useless if you want to have your dress cleaned.

"And while a bank might buy flowers to give itself a human image, it doesn't sell any when you want to make up with your wife."

"What you're saying then, Mr. Hubbard, is that every time a bank goes up, something in all of us dies."

"EXACTLY. One of the reasons kids are getting in so much trouble these days is that there are no candy stores to hang around any more. When they tear down a delicatessen, the tangy smells of potato salad, salamis, corned beef and dill pickles are lost forever. Unless you're trying to make a loan, no one ever salivates in a bank."

"It's true," I said. "The situation is more crucial than anyone thinks," Hubbard said. "At the rate they're tearing down consumer stores and replacing them with banks, we estimate that in 10 years it will be impossible to buy a loaf of bread in the country. What good is it to get 7 per cent on your money, if you starve to death?"

"WHAT'S THE solution?" "A government decree that a bank has to supply the same services of the stores it's torn down on the same property. If it's a bakery, they have to sell cake; if it's a photography shop, they have to develop film; and if it's a dry-goods store, they have to sell a warm underwear. If they provide the services of the stores they tear down, then we'll let them do a little money lending on the side."

Terror Of Bombing Goes On, Too

WASHINGTON — In offering a cease-fire without preconditions President Nixon said it should cause all kinds of warfare to end, including bombing. This places in pawn those who have suffered most in the war and whose suffering has been callously ignored.

ALREADY IT IS BEING said that while the Communist side will not formally "reject" the cease-fire, they will never agree to it. The people not alone of South Vietnam but Cambodia and Laos will thus continue to be subjected to the hell of bombing that day after day shatters the lives of men, women and children, destroys villages and farms and drives ever new thousands of refugees into the cities and pitifully inadequate refugee camps.

This is a terrible responsibility to take. Since those directing the war in Indochina put such stress on bombing, no one can doubt that without a cease-fire the thousands of tons of bombs dropped daily will continue to rain down. The increased number of bombing sorties over Cambodia — the exact number a secret — is evidence of the solid conviction of the effectiveness of bombing.

TO BE BLIND to the suffering of the people of Indochina is to deliberately ignore one of the most urgent, desperate even, reasons for an end to the shooting. Almost the only agency that has tried to bring this vast and increasing pool of misery to public attention is the Senate subcommittee on refugees of which Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts is chairman.

The committee's latest report, prepared by staff members after on-the-spot inspection in Indochina and largely ignored, shows an official figure for civilian war casualties admitted to hospitals of 59,480. But that figure ignores other casualties treated elsewhere or not treated at all, which would bring the total to 150,000 for the year ending in June, 1970, including 35,000 deaths. That makes the cumulative total since early 1965 more than 1,000,000, with 300,000 deaths.

THE GREAT INCREASE in the bombing of Laos, not only the Ho Chi Minh trail but in the Plain of Jars and other areas, accounts for much of the increase. The report notes that while the U.S. aid mission in Laos was asking for only a few millions for refugees the military was spending upwards of $4,680,000 a day on sorties over Laos. From Udorn Air Base in Thailand each sortie, according to the Defense Department, costs $7,400. At the peak in the dry season up to 800 sorties a day were being flown.

DESPITE REPORTS of progress in pacification, the report states that a vast segment of South Vietnam's 18,000,000 people are not convinced that their villages are secure and they remain as refugees. An additional 500,000 have been added to the official rolls in the first six months of 1970 alone.

Confronted with the statistics of civilian death, misery and fear, those directing the war point to Viet Cong terrorism as a root cause. Terrorism is more pervasive as the strategy of frontal attack recedes. The official figures through September of this year show 9,000 incidents of Viet Cong terrorism, with 4,800 killed and 10,000 wounded. That undoubtedly contributes to the refugee flow, yet it is small when compared with the results of the bombing armadas.

EFFORTS HAVE BEEN made by polling to show that the peasants blame the Communists for bomb attacks. They want to be left alone, it is said, and if the Viet Cong were not present the bombs would not be dropped. Yet when the bombers and the fire ships roar across the rice paddies peasants and soldiers alike brandish clenched fists in helpless rage at the intruders.

Want To Join 'Cookie' Club?

A Big Spring woman whose oldest son will soon be in Vietnam is taking a few extra steps to make sure he and others from this area do not feel forgotten while serving that year away from home.

Mrs. H. W. (Fern) Lewis, 1219 E. 17th, is trying to organize a cooking campaign which will guarantee servicemen in Vietnam at least one shipment a month of candy and cookies.

"My sister in Odessa belongs to a group called 'Mothers and Wives of Vietnam Servicemen,' and each month these women spend one day baking cookies and making candy which they send to about 160 boys over there," Mrs. Lewis said. "I don't see why some of us can't get together and do that here. The group is not limited to women with relatives in Vietnam."

The main obstacle, of course, is the cost. The Odessa club mails 159 individual packages every month, and 10 packages each go to one chaplain in each branch of the service to distribute as he sees fit. Each package costs approximately $1.80 to mail, not counting the expense of the ingredients.

Mrs. C. B. King, 1617 Castle Road, Odessa, an officer in the club, says her group works strictly on donation basis. An Odessa storekeeper each month donates the ingredients to the club, and the women gather the last Monday of every month in the Ector County Sheriff's Posse barn to make the cookies and candy.

"We put 1½ pounds of candy in a one-pound coffee can and fill the rest with cookies," she said. The women also put in gum and powdered drink mixes which are donated by Odessa school children. Even the firemen get into the act by serving as collection agents for persons who wish to donate empty coffee cans. Donations from Odessa citizens finance the mailing.

The club, in addition to the cooking, also meets each month for programs usually presented by recruiters from various branches of the service.

Members pay annual dues of $3 each. This money is put into a separate fund to be used for flowers when a local servicemen dies in Vietnam. One member of the club is also always on hand when the body is returned from Vietnam, Mrs. King said.

The group also has a happier way of spending the dues. A huge sign has been installed at Terminal between Midland and Odessa. Each time a local serviceman returns from Vietnam he finds his name lit up under the words "Welcome Home."

Mrs. Lewis' oldest son, Charlie Ray Lewis, 20, enlisted in the Marines Jan. 7, 1970, and is due to be shipped to Vietnam at any moment. "But it's not just for him, it's for all of them," she said.

Persons wishing to organize such a group can call Mrs. Lewis 267-8080; Mrs. R. T. Merrell or Mrs. Robert Carlile, 263-3756; Mrs. C. E. Gressett, 263-2639; or Mrs. Harvey Hooser 263-6148.

Chaparral Club Sees Drug Film

Officer Claude Morris of Big Spring Police Department was guest speaker at the Chaparral Club meeting Monday in the home of Mrs. John Gary, 2516 E. 24th. Mrs. Jimmy Taylor was cohostess.

Morris showed the film, "Pit of Despair," telling of the dangers of falling into the use of drugs. Following the film, members discussed what they could do as parents to help their children through a difficult age and prevent the use of drugs. A contribution was made to the Westside Community Center and plans made to make monthly donations of supplies. The next meeting will be Nov. 2 in the home of Mrs. Tommy Gage, Allendale.

Exemplars Try Brain Teasers

Brain teasers, quizzes and IQ tests were tried by members at Xi Mu Exemplar Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, Monday. Mrs. Don Statham, 2101 Alabama, was the hostess with Mrs. Don Bailey cohostess. Miss Beverly Jones presided and conducted the quizzes. Mrs. Lamar Green was chosen as the chapter sweetheart for the Valentine ball. The next meeting will be Oct. 26 with Mrs. Billy McDonald as hostess.

Nasser's Successor Under House Arrest?

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — President Gamal Abdel Nasser named his successor shortly before he died, but his nominee is under house arrest because he is unacceptable to the Soviet Union, reliable diplomatic informants reported today.

The sources said Nasser's deathbed choice to lead Egypt was Zakaria Mohieddin, a relatively liberal former prime minister who at times embarrassed his chief by opposing the growing Soviet penetration of Egypt. Nasser reportedly expressed his last wish to Information Minister Mohammed Hassanein Heikal, one of his closest friends, who was at his bedside when the president died of heart failure Sept. 28. The information reached the foreign diplomats from some of Heikal's associates.

The Arab Socialist Union, Egypt's only political party, nominated Vice President Anwar Sadat to succeed Nasser, and he will be elected Thursday in a nationwide referendum in which he is the only candidate. But there are indications a power struggle is continuing behind the scenes, with Heikal's own position threatened because he insisted that Nasser's preference for Mohieddin be honored.

The diplomats said Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin, when he came to Cairo for Nasser's funeral, told the Egyptian leaders the Soviet government would have no confidence in a government headed by Mohieddin.

The Russians are believed to favor Air Marshal Ali Sabry, a prominent figure in the reported power struggle and an old rival of Mohieddin. They both served as prime minister and also as vice president.

Mohieddin was in the inner circle of Nasser's 1952 revolution against King Farouk. Nasser publicly designated him to succeed to the presidency when he announced his resignation in the first hours of defeat in June, 1967. Nasser later withdrew his resignation under popular pressure, and Mohieddin faded into the background.

Heikal, long-time editor of the semi-official newspaper Al-Ahram and Nasser's mouthpiece for many years, tried to convince the other Egyptian leaders to honor Nasser's last wish despite the Soviet veto of Mohieddin, the informants said.

Rain, Snow Pops Rockies

By The Associated Press

Chilly rain and some snow pushed into the northern Rocky Mountains today and showers continued to fall from the Central Gulf Coast, across the Ohio Valley and into northern New England.

The remainder of the nation had fair and warm weather, although some areas in the middle Mississippi Valley reported heavy fog during the night.

An inch of snow fell at Casper, Wyo., and snow was reported in the higher mountain levels of the northern Rockies. A locally heavy snow watch was in effect in the Colorado mountains.

Canada-China To Open Diplomatic Relations

OTTAWA (AP) — Reports persisted today that Canada and Communist China have agreed to open diplomatic relations, ending successfully a 22-month initiative by the government of Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

Informed sources in Ottawa reported Monday night that the two governments have reached accord and will proclaim recognition soon, but the government refused official confirmation. Nationalist China's ambassador to Canada, Yu-chi Hsueh, reportedly was preparing to fly home today.

SINCE 1950s

Canada had been considering whether to seek relations with mainland China since the 1950s, but no action was taken until bilateral talks began in Stockholm in February, 1969, a month after Foreign Minister Mitchell Sharp announced the Canadian intentions.

Nationalist China's acting foreign minister, James Shen, told his parliament in Taipei an announcement of agreement between Ottawa and Peking was imminent. He said Chiang Kai-shek's regime would break relations with Canada within 24 hours of the announcement.

resolution in the U.N. General Assembly was not reached easily. Ottawa balked at the Communists' insistence that Canada recognize Red China's claim to Formosa, the home of the Nationalist government. Appointments To City Boards Up For Study

In their first regular meeting of the new fiscal year at 5:15 p.m. today city commissioners will discuss appointments to board positions that opened up Oct. 1.

Board members whose terms are listed as expiring Sept. 30 are Dewey Martin and Jim Bill Little, planning and zoning; Don Newsom and Jim Baum, parks and recreation; Friend Talbot, Bill Mims, Don Bailey, Bill Coleman and John Gary, adjustment and appeals board; Maj. Vaughn Martin, and Louis McKnight, traffic; and Daryle Hohertz and Wesley Deats, zoning board of adjustment.

An additional appointive post available for the first time will be a seat on the Police Reserve Officers Compensation Board.

Other agenda items include action on:

—A mobile home park ordinance being drafted by city officials;
—The final reading of the Harrol Jones annexation ordinance;

—An ordinance increasing retirement benefits for city employees by giving additional service credit for previous years' service; and —A clarification of the city's policy of granting public dance permits for dances at places licensed under the city dance hall ordinance.

Roping Champs In Competition

DENVER, Colo. — Three world champion cowboys will be among the top 15 ropers at the National Steer Roping Finals in Pecos, Saturday and Sunday, the Rodeo Cowboys Association said here today.

Seven-times world champion Don McLaughlin, 42, of Fort Collins, Colo., leads the entry list for the finals with winnings in the event of $5,594. McLaughlin was steer roping champion in 1960 and 1963, and calf roping champion from 1951 through 1954, and again in 1957.

The reigning steer roping champion, Walter Arnold, 32, Silverton, Tex., is 13th in the standings this year with $1,482. The third champion, Troy Fort, 52, Lovington, N. M., is ninth in steer roping with $1,877. He was calf roping champion in 1948 and 1949.

Enrollment Up Over Last Year

Enrollment in Big Spring school increased by 14 during the past week to reach 7,363. This is 41 more than the same date a year ago, but 105 of this year's total is in the new kindergarten program.

The elementary total was 3,810, up 14, thanks to gains of 13 each at Airport and Cedar Crest schools. Washington, Bauer and Marcy each lost four. Galad gained two, and Rannels junior and the senior high lost four each to show 3,349, a net loss of six. Offsetting this was a gain of six in special education, making 204.

Longview Bombing Testimony Shapes

TYLER, Tex. (AP)—What was expected to be a week-long testimony began today in the federal court trial of two Longview men charged with the July 4 bombing of that East Texas city's school bus fleet.

Charged in two-count indictments are Fred Loyd Hayes, 43, a Longview caterer, and his employee-salesman, Kenneth R. McMaster, 42.

The pair are charged with conspiracy to violate the civil rights of Negro pupils in the Longview public schools and in the second count to violate the federal court order to integrate that city's schools.

$25,000 BONDS
Both men are free on bonds of $25,000, reduced from the originally $125,000 each.

Hayes and McMaster were arrested several days after at least two intruders entered the Longview Independent School District's parking lot and set off explosives under the fleet of yellow buses.

At least 33 of the 36 buses on the lot were damaged, some heavily, by what a Longview policeman said were plastic explosives planted under at least 26 of the vehicles.

The buses, most of them repaired by the state of school in late August, were damaged to the extent of about $100,000, the Justice Department said. However, Longview school authorities said the damage was around $23,000.

Soon after the bombing occurred, Longview police officers, school authorities and civic leaders said they had no reason to believe the bombings were racially inspired. The Justice Department, however, stepped into the case and made quick arrests.

WIFE NAMED
Named in the indictment with Hayes and McMaster as co-conspirators were Hayes' wife, Clara, and three other persons. The other three were Robert I. Sparks Jr., Howard H. Smith and Glenn D. Parker, all of the Longview area.

There were strong indications Monday as jury selection was in progress, that the co-conspirators would be called as witnesses as the trial progressed.

The defense attorney at one point, indicated that at least some of the co-conspirators would be—as he put it—"hostile witnesses."

Jurors chosen to hear the case were asked by U.S. Dist. Judge William Wayne Justice if they were personally acquainted with the co-conspirators. None answered in the affirmative.

None of the co-conspirators as listed by the Justice Department are defendants in the trial. Gordon Shanklin, agent-in-charge of the FBI office in Dallas, said there were no plans to arrest them.

GOOD GRIEF
Sitting at the government's table during selection of the jury members Monday, was Charlie Brown, FBI agent stationed in Tyler, who is credited by government authorities as the man who worked up the evidence on which the indictments against Hayes and McMaster were based.

The jury agreed upon by attorneys contained seven women and five men, all white. The panel includes three public school teachers, an auto mechanic, a truck driver, an industrial supervisor, and housewives from this East Texas area.

GROUND SWELL
The ground swell developed in the wake of a tradition-shattering action Monday admitting women as deputies to the convention itself, the church's top legislative body. They had been excluded since the church was organized 185 years ago in 1785, as a national branch of the worldwide Anglican community, which includes 18 national churches stemming from the Church of England.

Several women deputies, 28 of whom had been elected by home dioceses in anticipation of the change, promptly spoke out in favor of removing barriers to the priesthood as well.

It's the "next step," said Sister Nancy McCleery, of Ithaca, N.Y., an Episcopal nun of the order of St. Helena.

Bishop Robert F. Gibson of Richmond, Va., observed that: "I think we'll get there sooner than Rome, but I have every expectation that Rome will arrive at some point." He noted Roman Catholicism has a commission studying the subject.

GROWING URGENCY
The Rev. Henry H. Rightor of Alexandria, Va., member of an Episcopal commission of the ministry, said it had found a "wide and growing urgency" about opening the way for women to become priests or bishops.

Excluding them, he added, is to continue a "cast system appropriate to patriarchal times but not now." At a jam-packed hearing Monday night a string of speakers — bishops, theologians, laymen and women took the podium to support the committee-proposed change to drop the sex bar to ordination.

To retain it "is a continuous signal from the church that all persons in the category of women are intrinsically inferior creatures," declared the commission, headed by Bishop Dean T. Stevenson of Harrisburg, Pa.

Proposals from the Diocese of Maryland and southern Ohio also urged the change.

EQUALITY DRAGS
Two bishops, the Right Rev. Ned Cole of Syracuse, N.Y., and Robert DeWitt of Philadelphia disclosed that both had accepted women postulants for the priesthood in their dioceses, contingent on a change in the rules. A noted Episcopalian theologian, the Rev. Dr. Albert T. Mollegen of Virginia Theological Seminary, said there is "no theological reason" against ordaining women and "every theological reason" for it.

"Equality is crawling through the Anglican community very slowly, sometimes backward, kicking and screaming," he added. Bishop Gibson said Anglican churches in 15 areas of the world are involved in negotiation for union with denominations accepting women clergy, including the Episcopal Church's current unification talks with eight other U. S. denominations.

CRUDE PRICES
While crude oil prices have scarcely moved, he asserted, prices of oilfield machinery and casing have soared and wages have skyrocketed more than 35 per cent.

"It is very distressing to read that public officials in the Eastern seaboard complain about being gouged on fuel oil prices," he said. "Is there some way to make it clear that the Texas producer is still selling his oil at the same price?"

Despite the many problems, he said, the situation is not entirely grim.

"There is no indication of a decrease in demand for our product," he said, noting that it is the "finest energy product that has ever been devised by man and, at this point, there is no substitute in our society for oil and gas."

For this reason alone, he said, "and in spite of the many adverse things that have happened to us I do have a feeling of optimism."

Herbert D. Clay, president of the National Fuel Gas Co. and Iroquois Gas Corp. of New York, told the Texas oilmen in his prepared remarks that it is "obvious" that producers must receive substantially higher prices for natural gas.

And, he warned, "we do not have time for extended litigations, political maneuvering or initiation of extensive studies to analyze our situation."

TAXES UP
"Our taxes went up with the cut in depletion rates," he said. "We produced more oil, refined more products, set sales records, and saw profits go down. Exploratory drilling is off and our reserves of oil and gas are dwindling."

While Texas oil is selling in record quantities, primary reserves have dipped to their lowest points since 1949, he said. Gas reserves, he added, are now the lowest since 1956.

Surgery Prof Says Aspirin Health Hazard

CHICAGO (AP) — A surgeon-researcher says aspirin is a health hazard and should be sold only by prescription along with all other potent drugs.

Dr. Rene Menguy, professor of surgery at the University of Chicago, said Monday it has long been known that aspirin can cause internal bleeding and sometimes death, yet it continues to be sold over the counter.

Menguy told a press conference at the clinical congress of the American College of Surgeons there are no statistics on aspirin-related fatalities, but that he would guess there are 1,000 a year.

About 20 million pounds of the drug are used each year in the United States.

Menguy and a colleague, Dr. Adele Mae Gottschalk, reported results of a study they made on the effects of aspirin on the stomachs of rats.

They said aspirin reduces the protective mucous secretion in the stomach which allows acid to penetrate its walls.

Menguy, who has been studying the effects of aspirin for 10 years, said physicians and the public do not always realize that aspirin can cause massive, sometimes lethal, internal bleeding.

He estimated that one out of every seven or eight patients who report to hospitals complaining of internal bleeding have the problem as a result of taking aspirin, although tens of thousands of people take the drug with no trouble.

Menguy said the person who takes aspirin only occasionally, as he does himself, is less likely to develop serious bleeding problems than the chronic user who takes four to six tablets a day over a long period.

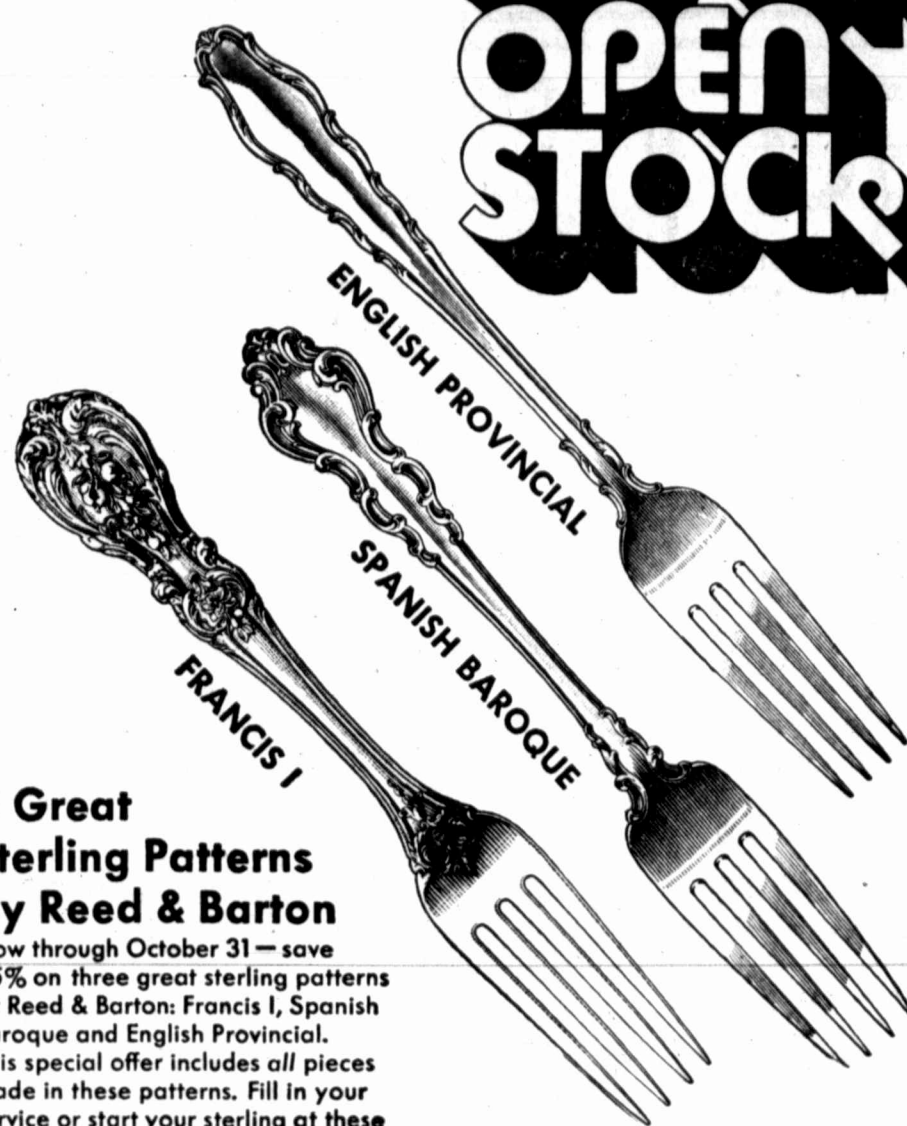

Aspirin users, particularly women, may develop gastric ulcers, he said.

Soil, Water District Split Is Approved

Landowners in the Martin-Howard-Midland Soil and Water Conservation District Monday night approved a resolution to split the district by county, to allow for more participation by all landowners.

The district's board of directors wanted to hear opinions on the proposed split before asking the state soil and water conservation board to approve it.

No landowners presented opposition to the change, and the resolution will be sent to Austin. The state board is expected to hold hearings on the proposed split sometime in December.

Timothy Eysen Named To Post
Timothy D. Eysen, Wichita Falls, brother of Howard County Attorney W. H. Eysen Jr., has been elected president of Texas District and County Attorneys Association.

A former assistant district attorney, Timothy Eysen is serving a second term as county attorney of Wichita County. He is a graduate of Abilene High School, Texas Tech and Southern Methodist University Law School and a member of the Texas State Bar Association, the Wichita County Bar Association and immediate past president of the Texas Shrine Motor Patrol.

Nixon Swings Ax At OEO Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has ordered the Office of Economic Opportunity to reduce its poverty-fighting budget by half next fiscal year, according to the Washington Post.

OEO Director Donald Rumsfeld responded by warning that cutting the fiscal 1972 budget to $1.05 billion, from the present $2.08 billion, would drastically restrict programs for preschoolers, migrant workers, American Indians and community action organizations, the Post said in Tuesday editions.

An unnamed administration spokesman was quoted as saying the President will recommend transfer of some antipov-erty programs to other Federal agencies, reducing OEO's budget needs. But Rumsfeld, the Post said, apparently took the transfers into consideration in his response.

Rumsfeld has proposed several moves to save money and transform OEO into a research agency. Among his ideas are merging VISTA, the Peace Corps and Teacher Corps into a new federal volunteer agency.
