"OUGHT TO CANCEL SERIES"-BAN

EULALIA FULLER, CHAMP REDHEAD OF THE T-O FAIR

She Leads the Jockeys' Ball With the Waggoner Stakes Winner

MISS CONDOR SECOND

Then There Was Little Miss Emily Taylor Who Captured "Shep"

The jockey king and the red headed queen marched together last night.

It didn't matter that only three prospective queens showed up and that the jockey hero of the track had to be tied and almost carried to the plaza; the crowd had a big time; it lent encouragement to the blushing "king" whose gills got almost as red as her partner's hair; it vociferously approved the selection, and after the preliminaries were over it jumped in and shook some wicked insteps to the rythmetic strains of Doc Ross' jass orchestra.

Climax of The Day

It all went over at the jockey's ball, climax of yesterday's Texas-Oklahoma fair which swung through the fifth day of its third annual season. The idea was that the girl with the reddest hair should be crowned queen and the most popular jockey of all those riding at the fair be designated king.

Some twenty or more entries were sent into the fair association offices and most of them were on the sidelines when the fun started. With a thousand pairs of curious eyes to face, however, only three titian topped aspirants to royal titles had nerve enough to come out. No amount of exhorting on the part of R. E. Shepherd and Hank Yelvington could induce others to forsake the shadows of the densely packed outer circle.

Pick The Champion

Finally, the jury cast an appraising eye about and selected Miss Eulalia Fuller, 2110 Eighth street, as first place winner. She was given her choice of two handsome side combs. The other went to Miss Myrtle Conder, 202 Travis, and third place honors were accorded little Miss Emily Taylor, 1902 Lamar, whose unshorn locks of not more than six years growth were probably the reddest on the fair grounds. "Shep" gave her a dollar bill and then walked solemnly around the plaza with her as the orchestra struck up.

Miss Fuller in the meantime had been introduced to Jockey E. Short of the Jenkins stables who piloted Newport under the wire, a winner in the Waggoner stakes Wednesday and who came back Thursday to ride Orrismine in ahead in the consolation. Miss Condor and Lloyd Moore, another leader on the track, joined hands and thus the ball swung into action, not to stop until the "all out" order came two hours later.

Sands Called Off

A weather man which has dealt kindly with the fair thus far caused more or less of a hitch yesterday when a high wind forced a cancellation of all stunts planned by the Gates Flying Circus. The breeze was too stiff to permit even "Loop King" Brooks to do his stuff on the edge of the clouds. It would have been suicidal for "Dimple" Girton to try his wing walking acrobatics.

Aside from this however, everything went off as per schedule. The running races in the afternoon were equal in all respects to those of the previous days and the other attractions, of course, was uniformly high class. Most of the judging in the various departments was finished up yesterday and only a few exhibits now remain to be inspected.

Friday brings one of the big features of the entire fair week—the football battle between Southwestern State Teachers College and the Wichita Falls junior college eleven. The invaders from Weatherford, Okla., are in town with a husky and formidable looking aggregation, but E. J. Mosly's worthies, after a final work out yesterday, announced themselves as ready for hostilities. The game starts at 3:30 this afternoon in front of the grandstand.

"All college and football day today."

Robison Who Urged Teapot Be Given Fall's Charge Promoted

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD
Record News Staff

Albert B. Fall retired from the cabinet to escape expulsion.

Charles Denby retired from the cabinet under pressure.

Edward L. Doheny and Harry F. Sinlcair jumped under the spotlight after they had grabbed the naval oil reserve. Fall and the two oil multimillionaires are under indictment while there are others who greased their boots in the oil pool while the greasing was good.

Now the naval selection board has promoted Captain John K. Robinson to be rear admiral ahead of others on the list of eligibles. Now just who is Captain John K. Robinson? He is the gentleman who has been under fire for having a part in the recommendations that naval oil reserves be leased to the Sinclair and Doheny interests.

It will be recalled that the naval oil reserves were transferred from the naval department to the department of the interior and that Charles Denby recommended the transfer. It will also be recalled that Albert B. Fall had urged the transfer shortly after he became a member of the cabinet of Warren G. Harding.

There were naval officers who opposed the transfer. They gave their reasons why. These reasons were placed in writing. Charles Denby did not heed the protest. Neither did the chief executive heed the protest.

Capt. John K. Robison.

Fall won. The naval oil reserves were turned over to the gentlemen from Three Rivers, New Mexico. He leased the reserves to Doheny and Sinclair. Doheny loaned Fall $100,000 in paper money. This money was stuffed into a suitcase and carried to Fall by a member of the Doheny organization.

Denby was driven from the cabinet. Public opinion did it.

Fall retired and went abroad as an emmissary of Sinclair. On his return to America, accompanied by his suitcase, he journeyed to Three Rivers where he has baronial possessions and a palace for a home.

Captain John K. Robison, a head of the bureau of steam engineering of the American navy, recommended the transfer from the naval department to the department of the interior and now he has been recommended to be promoted to rear admiral ahead of others on the list of eligibles.

Petroleum is to be the issue in the New York campaign. John W. Davis has introduced it; Governor Smith has introduced it. many of the New York papers have introduced it. There are valid reasons why.

Theodore Roosevelt was Charles Denby's right hand man. Another Roosevelt was a $15,000 a year man for Harry F. Sinclair.

It is said that all is fair in love, war and politics. Now the democratic politicians and the democratic newspapers of New York as well as the democratic nominees for office from president down, are making the most of the Teapot Dome scandal, the California naval oil reserve scandal and are asking why Captain John K. Robison is to be made a rear admiral in the American navy.

It is said the president will approve the action taken by the naval selection board and Secretary Wilbur and forward the recommendation to the United States senate in December where confirmation will be necessary before the promotion of Captain Robison will be effective.

This is a merry old world where some are indicted some are driven to private life and some few promoted. Let the people rule. Poor people.

1250 BARRELS 24-HOUR GUAGE OF VERNON WELL

Uninterrupted Flow of Oil Continues from Wednesday Gusher

BEST IN MONTHS

Rush Appears Precipitated By Gas from a New Sand

After thirty-six hours of constant steady flowing at a rate of between 50 and 60 barrels an hour the Wells-Guiberson No. 1, A. B. Wharton, 10 miles south of Vernon, Wilbarger county, late last night was showing no signs of a let-up and was filling tanks and existing storage faster than the oil could be taken away from the lease by a fleet of trucks which were plying between it and a loading rack at Vernon.

24-Hour Guage

The first twenty-four hour's guage from the time the well was brought under control to about noon yesterday showed around 1,250 barrels of oil. There has been no let up in the flow since the additional sand was taken yesterday, interruptions of not more than one or two minutes coming only at long intervals. Seven trucks, twenty barrel capacity, making one round trip every three hours, day and night, carrying a total of 1120 barrels a day were allowing production to steadily gain on them yesterday, and an attempt was being made to secure more trucks.

Five 250-barrel tanks have been erected on the lease, and another will go up this morning. In addition a line is being laid to the South Vernon storage to the southeast, where one or two 1,000 barrel tanks will be placed at Miss Wells' disposal.

Unusual Well

The well stood out yesterday as one of the best completions in months, with only a few producers of the old Burkburnett, northwest extension, Electra, and almost solitary examples of Archer county wells ever its equal.

The flow is being precipitated by a gas from a seemingly new sand, loose and fine, encountered below less than a foot of lime shell between 2,014-15 feet. This sand, according to drillers, has been penetrated less than a foot. The total depth of the hole is given as 2,014 feet, top of the sand 1994 feet.

New Deal Closed

The well has caused some excitement in Vernon; crowds visited the lease all day yesterday, a large number of Wichita Falls people going over. There was a great deal of trading, notable among these deals being a transaction whereby Staley and Wynn obtained 20 acres just west of the northeast 40 out of section 100 for a reported consideration of $500 cash and an overriding royalty of one-eighth to Bond et al.

Bellevue's 12 Yr. Court Record Goes

Special to The Record News.

HENRIETTA, Texas, Oct. 2.—Bellevue, in south Clay county, holds what is believed to be the record for obedience to law. It has been incorporated as a city for more than 12 years and not until this week has a person ever been tried in the municipal court for the violation of a city ordinance, although it has had complete ordinances ever since its incorporation.

Case number one on the criminal docket was tried this week, a party being charged with drunkenness on the public streets. The case resulted in a conviction. Perhaps no other city in the state can boast of such a good record as Bellevue for such a small number of law violations.

Trace Origin Of Texas Foot And Mouth Outbreak

Disease Starts in Shipment Of Brahama Cattle Denied Admittance at N. O.

EXPERTS RUN IT DOWN

Head of Agricultural Bureau Advised Of Late Discovery

By The Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 2.—Origin of the outbreak of foot and mouth disease in Harris county, Texas, has been traced to a shipment of Brahama cattle refused admittance at New Orleans, La., last fall, by Dr. A. A. Staub, head of the agricultural bureau of animal industry here, Dr. Staub was advised today.

The cattle were aboard the Brazilian steamship and were destined for Vera Cruz, Mexico, but were brought by that port because of a longshoremen's strike there. Upon arrival here Dr. Staub refused to permit the cattle to be landed, nor would he allow any member of the crew of the vessel to come ashore. This action was taken because the cattle had come from territory known to be infected. The cattle were returned to Vera Cruz, landed there, and taken into the interior of Mexico. Some of the herd later were taken into Texas.

Tols From Landis

This was the declaration of K. M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball. It was made after a hectic day during which fresh charges were flung by O'Connell, who has been banished for all time from the game together with Cozy Dolan, Giant coach, accused of instigating the bribery plot and during which prominent baseball officials including President Ban Johnson of the American league and President Barney Dreyfuss of the Pittsburgh club, asserted the series should be called off as a result of the scandal.

Unmoved apparently by the day's developments and declining to amplify the statement he issued late last night in New York disclosing the plot and debarring Dolan and O'Connell, the commissioner declared he saw no prospect of developments that would prevent the start of the championship battle Saturday between Washington's first pennant winning club and the Giants.

No New Evidence

Furthermore the commissioner intimated he had no new evidence cultivated to widen the scope of the attempted bribery deal, a possibility brought to the fore today by O'Connell's re-iteration that the Giants "were all in it" and the specific mention of three veterans, George Kelly, Frank Frisch and Ross Young.

"So far as I am concerned, no clouds now hang over any member of the Giants eligible to play in the world's series," the commissioner declared. "They will go into the world series with the Senators on Saturday."

In New York O'Connell, former "$75,000 beauty" and center of the storm that has shaken the game as nothing since the White Sox scandal of 1919, reiterated the charges he had made before Commissioner Landis implicating others of his team-mates besides Dolan and asserting he was being made "the goat."

O'Connell Names Others

O'Connell not only insisted that Dolan was the instigator of the scheme of approaching Sand, but that Frank Frisch, George Kelly and Ross Young, veteran regulars, made it plain to him that they were "in" on the deal.

"They were all in it," O'Connell said, adding he was told that the Giants were "all going to chip in and make up the purse of $500," which was the sum offered Sand.

FEDERAL PROBE URGED TO RID GAME OF FILTH

Declares Washington Must Meet a Champion Team "Tainted in All Things"

BASEBALL SHAKEN

O'Connell Reiterates Charges That Others Were In On It; Pleads "Goat"

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—Federal investigation to rid baseball of its alleged crookedness will be demanded by President Ban Johnson, of the American league, as a result of the scandal involving Jonny O'Connell, of the New York Giants, expelled from the game after confessing he had offered a $500 bribe to Heine Sand, Philadelphia infield, to throw last Saturday's game. Cozy Dolan, Giant coach, also was expelled as a result of the Giant outfielder's confession.

President Johnson declaring that baseball is the national game, said tonight that it must be protected by the government and that the present situation may represent a point of "covering up" which he said the American people would not condone or accept.

"I will insist upon an investigation by the federal judiciary so that we may know all the facts and bring to the surface the individuals who have been guilty of this great misconduct and are a positive menace to the integrity of baseball," President Johnson said.

The American league executive declared that in view of published statements, the world series between the Giants and Washington Senators should have been immediately declared off. He said that from all accounts it would "appear that the American league had been handed a championship club to compete with which is tainted in all things that it represents."

SERIES WILL BE PLAYED

Edict Comes from High Commissioner Landis After Hectic Day.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—The 1924 world series will go, notwithstanding that baseball was shaken to its foundation today by a whirlwind succession of developments growing out of the attempt of Jimmy O'Connell, the young New York outfielder to bribe Heinie Sand, Philadelphia shortstop in the game that decided the National league pennant race for the Giants.

Head of Agricultural Bureau Advised Of Late Discovery

By The Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 2.—Origin of the outbreak of foot and mouth disease in Harris county, Texas, has been traced to a shipment of Brahama cattle refused admittance at New Orleans, La., last fall, by Dr. A. A. Staub, head of the agricultural bureau of animal industry here, Dr. Staub was advised today.

The cattle were aboard the Brazilian steamship and were destined for Vera Cruz, Mexico, but were brought by that port because of a longshoremen's strike there. Upon arrival here Dr. Staub refused to permit the cattle to be landed, nor would he allow any member of the crew of the vessel to come ashore. This action was taken because the cattle had come from territory known to be infected. The cattle were returned to Vera Cruz, landed there, and taken into the interior of Mexico. Some of the herd later were taken into Texas.

BATTLE FOR MECCA VITAL TO 222,000,000 MOHAMMEDANS

At top: A view of the forbidden city of Mecca, holy city of 222,000,000 people, and (right) Ibn Saud, ruler of the Wahabis. Below: King Hussein of the Hedjaz and a map of the trouble area.

Hussein's Glory In Mecca Control About to Vanish

King of the Hedjaz Closely Pressed by Others Ambitious

ARABS IN TURMOIL

Mohammedans' Basic Institutions Involved In Wahabi Fight

LONDON, Oct. 2. — Two hundred and twenty-two millions of people are vitally interested in the outcome of the present struggle for possession of Mecca. They are the Mohammedans of the world, Mecca is their holy city.

The cause of the trouble is the consuming ambition of Hussein, member of a princely Arab family. Hussein succeeded in making himself king of the Hedjaz when that new nation was created out of the ruins of the Turkish empire wrought by the World War.

Believe Death An Honor

Recently, when the government of new Turkey abolished the caliphate and sent the calif flying to Switzerland, Hussein proclaimed himself calif of the Islamic faith and spiritual ruler of the 222,000,000 Mohammedan rulers also sought the title and power. Hussein's claim caused agitation.

Now Ibn Soud, shrewd and intelligent ruler of Nejd, which covers the barren center of Arabia, is endeavoring to capture Mecca from Hussein and put an end to his ambitious disturbances. Back of Ibn Soud is a horde of desert warriors of the Wahabi tribe who firmly believe that meeting death while fighting for the faith assures immediate entry into the Mohammedan heaven.

To European nations that are members of the League of Nations, especially Great Britain, which is chiefly concerned in that portion of Arabia, this war is an unpleasant climax to the program of political control of the Arab world, which has been developing since the signing of the Treaty of Versailles.

Ominous Situation

In the past British assistance has been needed to save Hussein as well as his sons, Prince Abdullah in Trans-Jordania and King Feisal in Mesopotamia, from being driven from their thrones by the Wahabis.

Those were merely local fights for temporal power, but the present contest is a broader issue. Other sects are expected to take sides and the Mohammedan millions in India and other parts of the world will raise their voices.

FILE FERGUSON APPEAL

Dickson Submits Four Assignments Of Error in Case.

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Oct. 2. — Four assignments of error excepting to the court's ruling in the Ferguson injunction suit were filed in district court here today by Charles M. Dickson of San Antonio preparatory to perfecting his appeal to the third court of civil appeals.

The assignments cover the main points in Mr. Dickson's original application for a temporary injunction to prevent Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson's name from going on the election ballot as democratic nominee for governor. He declares the court erred in not holding that Mrs. Ferguson is ineligible because she is a woman and there is no law enabling women to hold office in Texas. The other assignments of error are based on the contentions regarding ineligibility of married women to hold office on the charge that Mr. Ferguson will be the real governor and that he is disqualified from being governor.

Charges Coalition Of Demos-Pinks In Western States

Republican Chairman Declares They Would Force Vote to Congress

PROMPTLY DENIED

Dixon, Western Democratic Manager, Says Nothing To It

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—A coalition between democratic and LaFollette forces, particularly in western states, with the evident purpose to force the election of a president into congress was charged here today by William M. Butler, chairman of the republican national committee.

The logical outcome in the event the election were thrown into congress Mr. Butler added, would be the election of a president by the senate. For this reason, he said, he considered Charles W. Bryan, democratic candidate for vice-president, perhaps the most important opponent of President Coolidge.

At the same time the chairman predicted the decisive election of the republican ticket on November 4.

Pink Champion Manager Says Butler's Charges Untrue.

WOMEN GOOD FINANCIERS

Chicago Business Woman Lauds Their Work as Bankers

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—Women's role as a financier was acclaimed, and her reputed role as a peace maker questioned by Mrs. Mabel T. Reinecke, Chicago, United States Collector of Internal Revenue in address here to the National Association of Bank Women meeting in connection with the American Bank Association.

After a day in which the American bankers had heard LaFollette assailed as "arch demagogue" and "the nation's worst liability," heard programs known to have been advocated by him to the medicine man's "stew of dead toads," the women listened to an address by Miss Jane Addams, Chicago. Miss Addams is one of the candidates from Illinois for president electors, pledged to LaFollette. She was invited to address the women's association in May, before she entered the campaign.

Following the address in which "government in business" in general and LaFollette in particular was assailed the association adopted without dissent the resolutions submitted by the committee on resolutions, denouncing government ownership of railroads and limitation of the supreme court, "confiscatory taxation," and urging business men to heed the "challenge" of the present political campaign.

"REDUCE WASTE," HOOVER

Secretary Advocates Co-Operative Marketing in Address To Dairymen.

By The Associated Press.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 2.—The future of marketing agricultural products lies in the larger development of cooperative programs with the principal purpose of eliminating waste, Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce declared in an address here before an American Dairy Federation banquet given in connection with the national dairy show.

The secretary proposed a plan for the creation of a federal marketing board to aid farm producers in such waste elimination. This board, if created, he said, should be composed of several cabinet members, a majority membership from among cooperatives and a minority from the ranks of terminal market associations to be organized under the plan. It would have power, he added, to establish standards in cooperation with the department in applying instruction and certification to the end that all interstate goods could be shipped on standards certified to by federal authority. It would give information that would lessen chaos in shipments, he said.

Butte Says Jim Will Get 150,000 Votes November

75,000 Fergusonites And 75,000 "Blind Partisanship," His Analysis

HE REACHES DALLAS

Tom Love Who Heard Him At Sherman Says He "Put it Over"

By S. RAYMOND BROOKS, Record-News Staff

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 2—Dr. George C. Butte, republican nominee for governor, today issued a statement declaring he was gratified and encouraged at the interest shown in his opening campaign speech at Sherman Wednesday night.

"It indicates," he said, "the people are keenly alive to the situation in which the state finds itself under the prospect of confiding their power of the governors office upon a man without imposing its accountability."

Butte this afternoon addressed the Dallas County Butte for Governor Democratic club. Thomas B. Love of Dallas, who heard Buttes' Sherman address, declared "He put his message over."

Butte shook off his title of "Doctor" and was called "George" by his old home town friends where he launched his campaign. He today predicted the Ferguson ticket will get 150,000 votes in November; "75,000 of the Ferguson following which subscribes to anything J. E. Ferguson may want to do and 75,000 otherwise who will follow in blind partisanship."

Dr. Butte, after consulting with Campaign Manager W. E. Talbot, declined an invitation to speak at Kaufman tonight. His itinerary includes Gainesville tomorrow and Amarillo Saturday.

A number of campaign contributions, ranging from $25 down, from Texas democrats were in the candidates mail when he reached Dallas today.

300 LEAVE THE HALL

When Speaker Endorses Jack Walton Opposition Is Shown

By The Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 2—Approximately 300 persons, one-third of the audience which heard Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas deliver the opening speech of the democratic campaign in Oklahoma City last night, arose in a body and left the auditorium when the speaker advocated the election of J. C. Walton, deposed governor and democratic nominee for the United States senate.

"The nominees of the party, both state and national, should be supported," the speaker said, "and that goes for Jack Walton, too."

Mingled with the applause the statement brought was a roar of "no, no". Suddenly an elderly man in one of the front seats arose and started for the door and others from all parts of the hall followed his lead, still shouting "no".

The speaker seemed non-plussed for a moment and then made an unsuccessful effort to make himself heard above the din.

"I am a democrat who, when licked, takes it like a man," he shouted as the hubbub quieted. Those who had remained applauded.

Senator Robinson's speech was devoted largely to denunciation of the republican platform and administration.

LOOKING FORWARD AND BACKWARD.

William Gibbs McAdoo is home from Europe. After his crushing defeat in the city of New York in July, he sailed for the other side of the Atlantic. He returned strong for the League of Nations. He has announced that he will take the stump for John W. Davis. Where? In the west and the far west, where he is said to be the most popular.

His conviction is that the United States ought to become a member of the league and join whole-heartedly in the effort to prevent wars and to secure general disarmament. However, he does not tie the issue to the chariot wheels of democracy. He has another conviction—the question of membership in the league by the United States should be decided by the people at a special referendum as the democratic platform proposes.

This, according to the California sage, would divorce the issue from all partisan political questions and candidacies for public office. Four years ago the democratic platform declared for the league and James M. Cox carried the flag. He was overwhelmed by a popular majority of seven millions. This is looking backward. Now for a forward glance.

Germany, republican Germany, where the kaiser once reigned, has decided to apply for membership in the League of Nations. And Germany, republican Germany, a government made by the people, will be admitted to fellowship in the League of Nations. Four years ago a most powerful bloc of voters, of German origin, threw its support to Harding and Coolidge and these millions of voters of Teutonic origin helped to create the seven million majority for the republican nominee.

Another powerful bloc of voters of Celtic origin bolted the democratic nominees on account of the issue of the League of Nations and assisted in swelling the seven million majority. Then came the Irish Free state, a self governing nation. Now what did the Irish in Ireland do after they had their government functioning properly? The Irish Free state was admitted to membership and the occasion was duly celebrated by the representatives of all the nations of the earth with the sole exception of the United States, Turkey, Mexico and Timbuctoo—nations which never applied for admission to the league. Of course the republic of Germany did not participate in the celebration as the other civilized nations with the exception of the four herein mentioned looked upon Germany as an outlaw.

Four years ago a large bloc of citizens of Italian origin bolted the democratic nominees on account of the Fiume incident and helped to swell the seven million majority. Now Italy is a powerful member of the league, Fiume is a self governing entity with Italy as a dominant factor, Dictator Mussolini is strong for the League of Nations and these American citizens of Italian origin who bolted four years ago are back in the democratic ranks again.

La Follette has ever been a wet. La Follette has ever been friendly to Germany. La Follette has ever been friendly to Italy and the Italians. Now where are the blocs going this year? They are not in the republican party. Ireland is a leaguer; Germany is going to be a leaguer in the near future; Mussolini is the most powerful advocate of the league on the continent of Europe.

These blocs gave Warren G. Harding his seven million majority. These blocs are without an issue this year. Now where are they going?

GREATER AMERICA.

According to a leading magazine, the United States has added to its population at the rate of seven million in four years and the author of the article reminds the reader that seven million is the population of greater London; that it is larger than the total population of Australia; that it is nearly equal to that of the whole of Canada.

America has a home market greater than any of the two leading nations of the world beyond the American borderline.

An addition of seven millions to the population in four years increases the home consumption of all the products of the field and the factory.

There is no reason why the American farmer should not receive the same fair returns on his product that the American manufacturer receives on the finished output of mine and factory.

This is what John W. Davis pledges himself to work out if the Americans elevate him to the highest office in their gift.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

By MARY BLAKE.

LIBRA.

Today's planetary aspects are adverse, and indicate loss, lack of achievement, and general dissatisfaction with existing conditions. Poise and equilibrium must be maintained at all costs, and it is essential to exercise self-restraint over both speech and action, in order that you may not say things that you will regret, or do things for which you will be sorry. In business only routine work should receive your attention, and anything that savors either of speculation or risk should be studiously avoided.

A child born today will, although delicate, be a ray of sunshine, as by its sweetness of disposition, it will attract and please. Proper care and outdoor air will enable this child to develop into a vigorously healthy maturity, although infantile ailments may cause misgivings and fear. It should be guided along the lines that it will undoubtedly show, so far as character is concerned. Its disposition will require little, or no correction, as while always bright and cheerful, it will reveal a consideration for others which will conquer prejudice and disarm any unkindly feeling. Its mentality will be good and clean cut.

If today is your birthday, you are too prone to jump to hasty conclusions and form snap judgments which do others an injustice, and bring discredit on yourself. It avails you very little that, when you realize your mistake, you are ready and willing to acknowledge it and make all amends possible; in most instances you have learned that it is generally the first impression that counts, and any effort made to eradicate an erroneous snap judgment is belated and nearly always futile.

You overlook the fact that there are two sides to everything—a prosecution and a defense—and that no verdict should be given until the evidence is all in. In your judgment of persons and their motives you are, quite often, wrong—a man is generally slower to judge by appearance than a woman and the latter is frequently proud of what she is pleased to call her intuition.

Woman's intuition is sometimes right, and then chiefly by accident, and not by design. It is more frequently wrong, as it is not based on either reason or common sense. It is not sufficient, nor is it fair, to distrust a person "just because you do;" it is only sufficient when undisputed testimony is adduced that your alleged intuitive insight was based on reliable grounds.

Intuition and snap judgments are synonymous terms, and are both equally unreliable.

Girls?. You Can do Me a Favor

Sometimes when I start to write my little articles, I wonder what you girls would like most to hear about.

If I could say to you, as I do to the little boy who lives next door when he asks me to tell him a story—"Will you hear about the Brownies, the Giant or the old Witch today?—I would be most happy for then I could write exactly what you wanted to hear.

I say to myself—"Shall I write of single men, or married men, love affairs, or some of the interesting things I have seen in New York—I wonder which will interest the girls the most."

Won't you girls help he out and let me know what you care to hear about the most.

Just drop a line in care this news paper.

More Truth Than Poetry

ANOTHER FALLACY

It has been found that 90 per cent of eloping wives and husbands have blue eyes.

Since my earliest youth, I've been led to believe by some hundreds of writers of song that a pair of blue optics could never deceive and their owners could never do wrong. In ballads and ditties, and even in jazz I've been told how unswervingly true and noble and grand is the lover who has two eyes of this trustworthy hue. And I never once thought, being young at the time, that songs possessed rather less reason than rhyme.

For lately I've learned that full 90 per cent of the ladies who wander from home and marry successively gent after gent, as through different countries they roam, are all of them orbed with the indigo shade which I thought were the mark of the wife and the unfailing badge of the widow or maid who was sure to be faithful for life. One is bound to admit, though the thought may appal, that a pair of blue eyes mean just nothing at all.

And the husband, whose steely cerulean glance infuses his wife with the hope that though sirens may vamp him there isn't a chance that her hero will ever elope, no matter how liquidly azure his eyes in spite of all popular song, the lady who's careful and cautious and wise will keep hers on him right along, which shows that though music had power to charm it sometimes can do quite considerable harm.

Nouveau Riche.

The other day a man told me a good story.

A woman kept a boarding house at a resort in the country.

She did no advertising but nevertheless carried on a very good business for she was a good cook and one customer recommended her to another. Consequently her house was rather full all of the time during the season.

On one occasion a gentleman whom we will call Nouveau Riche happened along. He was dressed in a nice new top coat and hat. He looked like a million dollars and probably was.

He had the air of one who spoke with authority. As he entered the place he handed his hat and coat to the boy and asked the way to the dining room. There he ordered the head waiter to give him a seat but was informed that all the seats were taken and he would have to wait for a little while.

"I am not in the habit of waiting for anybody," said the visitor.

"Then excuse me a moment, I will see the madame," said the head waiter.

Presently he returned and said that dinner would be served the gentleman in a private room if he must eat right away.

After partaking of an excellent dinner in the private room the gentleman called for his bill.

"There is no bill," said the waiter.

"What do you mean, no bill," said the gentleman. "I pay for everything I get and if you do not give me a bill I won't come again."

"That is what the madame thought, sir," said the waiter politely.

This fable teaches us that it is sometimes very expensive to get something for nothing.

Another fable is of similar import.

A lady found that she owed $200 after an afternoon spent at a friend's house, in order to pay her bridge debts. She did not gamble and did not know that they were playing for money until it was too late.

"But never mind," said the hostess, "your husband can send me a check."

When the husband sent the check he made it out for $205. This included the bridge game and the lunch.

It is needless to say they were not bothered with that lady's attentions any further.

GLEANINGS FROM THE BOOK OF LIFE

BY CLARK KINNAIRD

ABOUT PEACE AND FREEDOM

Peace, when it comes, will be the result of education, and not of diplomacy, in effect this has been said many times. As Thomas Huxley put it:

"Education promotes peace by teaching men the realities of life and the obligations which are involved in the very existence of society.

"It promotes the intellectual development, not only by training the individual intellect, but by sifting out of the masses of ordinary or inferior capacities, those who are competent to increase the general welfare by occupying higher positions;

"Lastly, it promotes morality and refinement, by teaching men to discipline themselves, and by leading them to see and to hunger after, as it is the only permanent, content is to be attained, not by grovelling in the rank and steaming valleys of sense but by continual striving to reach those high peaks where, resting in eternal calm, reason discerns the undefiled but bright ideal of the highest good."

Huxley took it that the good of mankind means the attainment, of every man, of all the happiness he can enjoy without diminishing the happiness of his fellowmen.

"The higher the state of civilization," he observes, "the more completely do the actions of one member of the social body influence all the rest, and the less possible it is for any one man to do a wrong thing without interfering, more or less, with the freedom of all his fellow-citizens."

"The very existence of society depends, he holds, on the fact that every member of it tacitly admits that he is not the exclusive possessor of himself, and that he admits the claim of the polity of which he forms a part, to act, to some extent, as his master.

"Surely there is a time to submit to guidance and a time to take one's way at all hazards," he wrote.

"Individualism, logically, is anarchy, in the family, is ill-founded theoretically and as mischievous practically as it is in the state; while extreme regimentation is a certain means of either destroying self-reliance or of maddening to rebellion."

"The only freedom Huxley cared about was the freedom to do right. "The freedom to do wrong I am willing to part with on the cheapest terms to anyone who will take it of me."

UNCOMMON SENSE

The Mountain Trail

Thirty miles from the little town where I have been spending my vacation is a chain of mountains.

From where I stood in front of the hotel to look at them they appeared to be an unscaleable wall—a blue mass against the horizon.

I knew that they were nothing of the kind, for continually people were coming back to the hotel announcing proudly that they had climbed the highest peaks.

Every reader who has lived near mountains knows how slopes and valleys appear as he approaches them, and how gradually what seem to be vertical cliffs reach out toward one, and present declivities which can be climbed with seemingly little trouble.

But before reflecting that these mountains are like life, and that seemingly impossible ascents become easy on closer approach, try to climb one of them.

Then you will find that the mountains are life life in another respect. respect.

They are harder to climb as you get toward the top, and the highest ones, which command the best views, are the hardest to climb of all.

I set out one day to ascend the peak that was counted as the most difficult in the range.

I cheered up greatly when I found trails leading up what had appeared from a little distance to be straight granite walls.

"Get these mountains close to you" I said, "and they're easy. After this I am going to let nothing that looks big and terrible scare me till I get alongside of it and find out what it really is."

In that frame of mind I climbed beyond the timber line. Then I found that mountain climbing was not as simple as it looked.

Sometimes I would get to the top of the wrong peak and find I had to climb painfully down again to reach the slope of the real summit.

Again I would be stopped by a crevasse and have to retrace my steps and go around for two miles or more to find a crossing.

I got to the top at last, but in five hours more than I counted on.

In trying to make progress in either, life or mountain climbing, one must not be frightened at difficulties seen from afar, neither must he forget that if he is going to get to any spot worth reaching, he will find hard work and tough climbing, and only patience and determination will get him anywhere near the top.

AIRPLANES QUARANTINED

Machines Must Keep On Ground in Infected Area

By The Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Texas, Oct. 2.—No airplans will be permitted to rise from or land in any of the territory included in the quarantine against the foot and mouth disease in Texas, according to a bulletin issued by state and government officials fighting the plague. Airplanes, they say, are a dangerous means of spreading the disease germ. The territory affected by this order embraces all of Harris and Galveston counties and Fort Bend and Brazoria counties east of the Brazos river.

HOW IT STARTED

"TWO BITS"

Every so often we come across the term "two bits." We know it means a quarter, or 25 cents. But that is all.

The expression is a survival of the days of '49 in California, the reference being to the old Spanish coin, the "real," worth 12 1-2 cents, which circulated there and passed for American money, as Canadian coins pass now in border sections of our country. In the vernacular of the gold country a real was a "bit," and "two bits," of course, was a quarter.

There is romance in the legend that a dime was known as a "short bit" and 15 cents as a "long bit." If a customer asked for a bit's worth of tobacco and gave the man a quarter he would be given a dime in change. If he had a dime the "short bit" was acceptable.

Robert Louis Stevenson told of beating the bit game by taking all his quarters to the post office and exchanging them for five cents worth of stamps and two short bits. These went as far as two bits and netted him a nickel on each transaction!

How the Plain Girl Can Make Herself As Attractive As the One Whom Nature Has Favored.

A young girl writes to me:

"I am an ugly duckling. My good fairy was off gadding somewhere when the good looks were given out, and I didn't get my share. Nor did I get a consolation prize in being endowed with an extra supply of brains. In fact, I am just an ordinary, homely, common-place girl, who is foredoomed by nature to paper the wall at parties and hang on with her teeth to the skirts of popular girls.

"I am not willing to meekly accept this fate. Is there any way to avoid it? Is there any way a plain girl can take the curse off her plainness and make herself personna grata with the crowd of young people who do things and have a good time?"

Surely my dear. It is not to be denied that beauty is a girl's trump card but there are other cards in the deck that, skillfully played, will take the trick and win out. It is much to have been dealt a good hand, but it is more to learn how to make the best of the hand you have got.

Do not mourn as one without hope because nature neglected to hand you out a peaches-and-cream skin, and Mary Pickford curls, and a willowy figure. We snap our fingers in Mother Nature's face in these days when handmade complexions put the real article to the blush, and there's a permanent-wave shop on every other corner, and any girl can have a straight-front figure who is willing to cut out chocolate creams and take plenty of exercise.

Of course, every girl wants to look like a living picture, but did you ever stop to consider that the thing that first catches our eye about a picture is the frame? Now the frame of a living picture is made of frills, and furbelows, and fripperies, and these are obtainable by the homely girl as well as the pretty girl.

When we speak of a woman as being good looking we mean that she gives us an impression of beauty, and not one person in a hundred ever dissociates her face from her clothes. She has merely registered in our minds as something that was easy to look at, a delight of harmony, of color and line, and we couldn't tell to save our lives whether she had a Greek nose and a Cupid's bow mouth or almond eyes or not.

Therefore, if you are homely, make a cult of clothes. Wear such beautiful and stunning things that your glad raiment will so focus the attention of the beholders that they will never notice your face. Plenty of women have the reputation of beauties who have only good dressmakers and milliners. You can camouflage homeliness with an imported frock with men every time. More than that, hostesses like to have well dressed women at their affairs. It gives eclat to the occasion.

Your first play is to dress well, and thereby appear 50 per cent better looking than you are, instead of going dowdy and looking 75 per cent homelier than you are, as most plain women do. Your next play is to learn how to do things.

Especially learn how to dance. Spend time and money and energy in cultivating your heels. In these jazzy days it is better for a girl to have a pair of nimble feet than to have the beauty of a Venus or the wit of a Sappho.

The girl who can float over a ballroom floor like a thistledown and who can adapt her step to any partner's will never lack for attention, no matter how plain she is. She will have men breaking in on her every dance, while pretty girls who step on their partners' toes or who have to be lugged about like sacks of meal are left lamenting on the sidelines.

Also learn to play a good game of bridge, and of tennis, and of golf. It is skill and not beauty that counts in sport, and no girl looks good to a partner whose ace she trumps or who gets him beaten at his favorite game.

And if you have the slightest musical talent, learn to play the piano, at least enough to play accompaniments for sing-songs and a little jazz for others to dance by. The accommodating girl who helps to make a party go is never left out of things. Just remember that if your face isn't a card of admission you can make your hands be one.

Your third play is to make yourself charming. Most homely women lose their lack of pulchritude make them disgruntled, and obvious and selfish. They are always saying little spiteful things and clawing back to they bring the blood at every opportunity, until they are about as comfortable to be with as a fretful porcupine.

This is a fatal mistake. The woman who has no beauty with which to attract must draw people to her by her personality, and she cannot do this unless she is pleasant and agreeable.

Nobody can, of course, give you a recipe for making the big medicine that we call charm, but mainly it consists of sympathy and interest in the affairs of those about you.

The one burning tonic of interest to every individual alive is himself or herself. If you can listen with a wrapt expression while a man spends hours telling you the story of his life, and all the retails of his business, and all the minutiae of his golf game, and if you can enthuse over his dog and his guns, and his automobile, he will go away believing you to be one of the most gifted conversationalists on earth and a woman possessed of the most profound intellect, although you may not have opened your mouth to say anything except to exclaim, "How great and wonderful you are!"

Charm also consists of being vital. In being interested, in being enthusiastic, in being adaptable, in being able to enter into everything and put pep and ginger into it. Therefore, keep yourself alive. Keep yourself keyed up. Read. Have something interesting to talk about. Even the beauty cannot afford to be dull and a bore. For a homely girl to be tedious is suicidal.

No ugly duckling need despair. She can turn herself into a swan—or a synthetic swan—that is just as good as the real article if she has the grit and the wit to do it.

A Runner-Up for Providence

BY MICHAEL J. PHILLIPS

"I'm a cheat," she told herself, as she hung up the receiver. "I'm cheating Garrick. If he knew who I am, he'd have nothing to do with me. I'm cheating Mother and Dad. They don't know I'm meeting him. It must stop. I'll—I'll stay away altogether and tense them to go home, or on to Coronado." She quite believed that her resolution was genuine. But the next morning, which was Sunday, she hurried again to the cove by the pier.

Garrick and Peggy were before her. "Where were you yesterday morning?" reproached the youth. "Gee, I thought you were sick, or something."

"I didn't feel very well."

"That's too bad. Better now."

"Yes, thanks, Garrick" she turned away to test the water cautiously with her toes.

"And when I called up," he went on, "I made an awful hit with the telephone girl at the Bel-Air. You see, I didn't know your name, and I asked for 'Bennie' in the Balwin Brown apartments.' She giggled, but she got you all right. Guess she knew who you are."

"Yes, she knows, said Berenice wading out.

"Lets dive," suggested Peggy, as they sat on the float half-hour later. "I feel like doing a few stunts today." She turned to Berenice. "Why don't you ever dive, Bennie?"

"I'm afraid," returned the other girl, simply.

Peggy laughed shrilly. "Why so, kiddo, there's nothing to be afraid of. You can't get hurt. But of course if you haven't the nerve it's better not to try it."

To Berenice the whole situation had suddenly grown preposterous and impossible. She felt that events through the past week had been marching up to present themselves in inescapable formation this morning, this hour. It was worse than taking a book into the ballroom, worse than being alone and unsought, this daily ordeal of being baited by a frizzly-haired stenographer and all but ignored by a thick-headed electrician.

"I can dive!" Berenice heard herself replying breathlessly to this intolerable challenge. "I'll show you a real one. I don't have to hang on to someone else, either." She ran to the end of the pier.

"Here, what are you doing?" demanded Garrick roughly, turning his hea. "Don't be a fool, Bennie."

As Berenice climbed the railing she noted with a thrill how quickly and masterfully he moved. As he valuted the rail and ran back toward her Berenice stood upright, hung for a moment over the blackened teeth of the sawed-off timbers, and sprang.

Doctor Richmond, enjoying another of her Sabbatical Sunday at the Bel-Air, was up early. She was on the varandah, gazing at a panorama she loved—the sea and the purple and pearl-gray isles of mystery in front; the Coast range skirting the ocean and hunning off to infinity along the sky to the east; the friendly, green-clad Mesa towering in close proximity on the west. In the foreground groups of noble palms filled into the last satisfying detail the exotic picture.

Exclamations and confused bublings attracted her attention. Diagonally across the lawn came an irregular procession of bathers at an agitated pace, half-trot, half-run. In the van, staggering as he came, was a youth with rough, short black hair, who carried a young woman over his shoulder. A pretty girl in a crimson bathing-suit shrieked startlingly as, alternately, she wrung her hands and clung to the youth's free arm, impeding his progress.

He headed straight for the doctor, mounted the steps and laid the unconscious figure in a long wicker settee nearby. The open mouthed, staring-eyed bathers formed a fan on the broad steps below.

"For God's sake take care of her, Doc!" gasped the youth. There was a bloody froth about his lips. His breath came with a faint, queer bubbling as he swayed before her.

"Who is she?" asked the doctor crisply, turning to look at the crimsoned, disfigured face.

"Mrs. Baldwin Brown's maid," replied the youth, turning his head from side to side slowly, as if to facilitate the passage of air to his lungs through his open mouth. His swaying became a slump. The bubbling sound in his throat grew louder.

"It's Mrs. Baldwin Brown's daughter Berenice," announced the astonished Doctor Richmond, after another swift look. "Catch him quick," for Garrick's slump had become complete unconsciousness.

The telephone call caught Doctor Nulty just as he finished shaving in his rooms uptown. When he reached the Bel-Air with his instrument case Berenice, still unconscious, had been placed in an improvised operating-table in one of the sample-rooms. Her battered face had been sponged. Doctor Richmond gently herded the members of the Baldwin Brown family, their faces plaster-gray, into the hall and shut the door.

"She dived off the end of the pleasure-pier," she explained, "and struck on one of those horrid piles. The forehead received most of the shock, although her face is quite badly cut and the ends of her front teeth are broken off. This young chap they called Garrick jumped in after her as she was sinking and smashed his side. They've taken him to the hospital.

"I think she has a slight concussion but of the two he's probably hurt the worst. We'll go out and see him after awhile. Slade's looking after him. Now, Rod, there's one thing I want done right away. Fix her nose."

Doctor Nulty turned from an examination of the patient. "Why, her nose is all right. I don't know how it happened, but it escaped being broken."

Doctor Richmond stamped her foot. "Her nose isn't all right! This accident is just providential. And we're the agents of Providence. Don't you see? The dentist will rebuild her teeth so they don't project. You can straighten out her nose so it won't be a caricature any more. They'll think it's due to the accident."

"I haven't seen any commission making you the runner-up to Providence, Marjorie," returned Doctor Nulty, with a sort of dry doubtfulness, "or me her agent, so far as that goes. I'm not sure but what you're asking is unethical. What's your idea as to straightening it?"

Marjorie Richmond, though not a surgeon, was a doctor, and she could have told him the technique of the operation which he, of course, knew very well. It consisted in the removal of a bit of cartilage from the under side of the partition between the nostrils; the closing of the gap by drawing the tip of the nose downward and inward; and the sewing of the shortened partition in place.

But, being a woman first and a physician afterwards, she scorned the simple professional explanation for one which could well have come from the most untutored daughter of Eve. It was coupled with one of the most elemental—and effective—of threats.

"Rod Nulty, fix that nose so some nice boy will love her. And if you—care anything about me, you'd better stop objecting and do it right now!"

One of the net results of that desperate leap from the pier was a spoiled Berenice Brown. Doctor Nulty and San Ilsario's best dentist worked their magic. When the alchemy was completed and the bandages removed, Berenice called for a mirror and looked long and earnestly.

The face which confronted her had not been permanently scarred by coming into contact with a timber. The complexion was clear and soft. The nose was straight, delicate and patrician. The red lips closed pensively over perfect teeth. The dark-blue eyes had taken an added brilliance and beauty.

She heaved a sigh of ineffable content and laid the mirror down, within easy reach of her hand. "That's something like," she declared, and established a merciless rule over her family. Maude forgot her indolence in fetching and carrying for the newly-discovered beauty. Mrs. Brown was humble in contemplation of the miracle. She had never petted her daughter a great deal in babyhood. But now, that the ugly duckling had after all become a swan, the tenderness withheld from an unattractive child was lavished on an attractive daughter.

There had always been sympathy and understanding between Berenice and her father. He became her prime minister, so steadily on duty that there was barely time for a round of golf daily.

"Dad, ho'ws Garrick?" she demanded on the day she had been promoted from bed to chaise longue and was queening it in the most frivolously beautiful of negligees.

"They let him go home from the hospital yesterday."

"It's about time."

"Oh, I don't know, Bennie. Don't forget that boy had three broken ribs and that one of them pierced his lung. He's lucky to be alive at all."

"What does he say about me?"

Her father took considerable time in lighting his cigarette. "Oh, nothing particular," he said, at last.

"That isn't true, you know, Dad. You don't prevaricate very successfully. You've been going to see him every day. You had to talk about something. What did he say?"

"Well, Ben. he just didn't like the way you—the way he said you deceived him. He's a nice kid, independent as anything. I don't know that I blame him. If he'd known you weren't your own maid; that is, if he'd known you were a Brown instead of a Smith, say, he wouldn't have had anything to do with you."

"Indeed! Aren't men righteous?" was her flippant comment. She tapped her lips with a contemplative forefinger. "You go and fetch him," she commanded.

"Hum. Go and fetch him, she says. Just like that. Suppose he won't come? And if he does, what then? What are your plans, youngster?"

Berenice dropped her head to give close attention to a new discovered task, the straightening and smoothing of the fringe on the gay rug across her knees. "I thought I'd marry him," she said, not very loud. "It's the least you can do for a boy that's saved your life."

"Oh, you did! And what would you live on? He's only an electrician, you know."

"'Only' is good, Dad, from you," she retorted. spiritedly. "When you were his age you were wheeling pig-iron in a steel-mill. He's earning more money than you were when you married mother. Who are you to be so high and mighty, I'd like to know?

"Don't forget he'll have a rich father-in-law, and you hadn't. You'll buy him an interest in his business. And build us a house.

Baldwin Brown tried to look concerned. "But how do you know—really, Ben, he seems quite put out with you. Talks all the time about what you did. I'm not sure—"

She interrupted him impatiently. "Dad, dear, you're not, but I am. Would I be sending for him if I weren't? Talks about what I did to him, does he? Old silly, don't you see that's just an excuse to talk about me? Goodbye!"

"Cliff Gaspary will be here tomorrow," he reminded her, as he arose. "Oh, Climm.' She raised one graceful shoulder. "That's nothing to get excited over. Are you going?"

"Yes, I'm going. But what will your mother say?"

Berenice laughed. "I know that was your trouble, Dad. Mother will not say a word. She is a changed woman." Her father grinned a conspirator's grin as he closed the door.

Will the Water Wells on The Irrigation Project be Salty?

Our Wednesday's article in which we speak of the possibility of getting water wells in places now dry after irrigation has been practiced caused several people to ask for more information.

One man says that it might be true that irrigation will fill up the deeper strata of the soil so that water can be found where it is dry now. He maintains, however, that all these wells will be salty and that even the wells that now have good water will become salty in time.

This man's opinion is based on the fact that salt water is often struck at comparatively shallow depths in drilling for oil in this section.

He may be right, but it would be against the experience that has been had along this same line on other irrigation projects.

The water from the canals and farms will be the water that finds its way into the depths. This water will come from the surface. The salt it will get, if any, will be the salt that exists in the soil.

The soil here does not contain nearly the percentage of salt or alkali that is found in the soils of many western irrigation projects. Wells which are dug on these projects are generally good, and their true source of supply is percolating irrigation water the same as it would be here.

Of course, it is not possible to tell exactly, until after irrigation has been practiced here for a considerable period and wells have been actually dug. But, based on the experience on other irrigation projects, the chances are that most of the wells will be sweet instead of salty.

DANCE OF THE NYMPHS

Unusual Interest by Children is Manifested in Unique Display.

Children visitors to the art building of the Texas-Oklahoma fair are finding much to admire in the "Dance of the Water Nymphs," an impressionistic picture by Frank Horst. The picture is one of great mythology when the nymphs told the children that they would dance for them if they would come unaccompanied by grown-ups to watch them. The liquid, transparent glow in the moonlight arouses the imagination of the children.

Frank Horst was born in Denmark, but he has been in the states for six years, making Texas his home for the past year.

PENS POEM ON THE FAIR

Mrs. J. S. Pitman Writes on Throngs At the Exposition.

Mrs. J. S. Pitman, well-known to Wichitans as an artist in singing and reciting has written the following poem on the Texas-Oklahoma fair which is now in its third session:

COME ON LETS GO TO THE FAIR

Now please don't forget your cap Joe
Jack boy your shoe is untied
You girlies sit back this time
Hurry now all get inside

Daddy I've forgotten the tickets
O, dear, we must go clear back
Jack you run in and get them
And baby's crackers I left in a sack.

Now we are off a laughing
At mother's confusion and haste
"Daddy please speed up a little
We haven't a moment to waste."

"I see the Fair grounds (in chorus)
"Oh, Mother, look at the crowd."
And "see the airoplane daddy?"
And gaily we all laugh aloud.

Now through the gate we're passing
"Daddy, carry me, do."
Waite for us little children
Take our hands while the crowds we pass through."

The merry go round is the first treat
Hearts beat in time with the tune
That the organ grinds over and over
The ride tho' is over too soon.

The elephants now have a birthday cake
The children all greedily eat
O, but my feet are so tired
Let's look for a comfortable seat.

"Hamburgers Plate Lunch" they are calling
"Daddy we're hungry as bears."
"O candy apples let's have one
"Um, um, things taste good at the fair."

O, there's a thrill in the bustle
And crowding and laughter of folks
A thrill in seeing the dignified ones
Laughing and telling their jokes

There's a thrill in seeing the daddies
Left little ones up in the air
And say "look, son, at the fire works."
Gee daddy, it's pretty up there.

And mother's with little ones hanging
Hard on each tired hand
Forget for a while their worries
And learn to understand.

How to romp and laugh and frolic,
Out in the noisy air
Just play we are all little children
Come folks, let's go to the Fair.

Panthers Bunch Blows in Eighth For 3-2 Victory

Hits by Edington, Tavener And Bischoff Decide Outcome

PATE WINNING HURLER

Fielding Miscues Figure In Scoring of Four Runs

MEMPHIS, Oct. 2. — The Fort Worth Panthers, five times winners of the Texas league pennant, tonight stood unchallenged baseball champions of the south.

The Panthers won the title by defeating the Memphis Chickasaws, Southern association champions 3 to 2 today in the deciding game of the 1924 post-season Dixie series for southern baseball supremacy — the fourth time within five years that the Texas league standard bearers under the leadership of Jake Atz, veteran Panther pilot, have bested Southern Association challengers in the diamond classic.

Today's game and with it the title, was won in the eighth inning when Joe Bischoff, catcher, following the lead of two of his team mates, Edington and Tavener, toppled the ball over shortstop for a single which brought Edington across the plate and decided the issue after a pitching duel supreme between Joe Pate and Cy Warmouth, left-handed hurling aces of the two clubs.

Pate Almost Invincible

Pate held the hard-hitting Chicks to five hits, allowing never more than one in an inning. Warmouth allowed only six hits and added to his fame by striking out nine Panthers, but three of the six hits came in one inning, which Fort Worth coined into the deciding tally.

With the exception of the eighth inning, fielding miscues figured in all the runs. Fort worth started with a one run lead in the opening innings, Sears scoring when LaMotte let Palmer's grounder go through his legs. Memphis scored two in the second, Carlyle crossing the plate with the first run when Tavener threw too high to first to catch Gleason who had sent a grounder to short and Gleason scored on Anderson's fly to the field which fell between Calvo and Edington and went for a double.

Memphis held the lead until the sixth when Carlyle misjudged Edington's fly, allowing Palmer, who had walked, to reach third and Edington scored. Palmer scored on LaMotte's throw to first on Tavener's grounder.

In the eighth with two out, Edington, Tavener, and Bischoff singled in succession and the game was over, so far as scoring was concerned, with Fort Worth victors.

Edington Mauls Agate

Edington, Fort Worth outfielder, slammed out three of the Panther hits in four trips to the plate, Phelan, Tavener and Bischoff were the only others to solve Warmouth's slants, while Anderson held batting honors for the Chicks—two safe drives in three times at bat, Barber, Yaryan and Gleason being the only others with hits to their credit.

Today's game was the eighth of the series, the first game ending in a 3 to 3 tie. Each of three Memphis victories were by one run margins and all on home grounds while Fort Worth won by one sided scores in each of the three games played in Fort Worth.

As a result of today's victory, the Fort Worth players will divide the long end—60 per cent of the players' share of the receipts of the first games of the series, and Memphis the short end with a portion of the revenue going to Atlanta and New Orleans, runners-up and third place team in the Southern pennant chase.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The New York Giants have the edge on their world's series rivals the Washington Senators, when it comes to offensive and defensive ability as to the respective infields, a comparison of the two clubs, based on the latest averages, reveals.

These figures are based on the first-line troops of the Giants, where several major casualties have occurred in the closing stages of the campaign, but they are conclusive.

They show that the Kelly-Frisch-Jackson-Groh combination of the National league champions has a combined fielding average of .97275, as compared with .96925 for the Judge-Harris-Peckinpaugh - Bluege quartet. At the bat the Giants four have an even more decisive margin, showing .300 to .287 for the Senators.

Kelly and Judge are nearly on a par, although the former is a harder hitter: Frisch excels Harris both at bat and afield; Peckinpaugh has the edge on Jackson in experience only while Groh is much abler than Bluege.

Calculations, however, may be upset by the inability of the Giants to put their full infield strength on the field. Frisch seems certain to play but Groh is on the doubtful list. In addition, McGraw has indicated he may shift Kelly, who has filled in at the keystone bag, to centerfield and play Terry at first. Lindstrom, 18 years old, schoolboy, is first string substitute for Groh. Thus, with Terry at first, Kelly or Frisch at second, Jackson at short and Lindstrom on third, the Giants would not look so formidable.

As in previous years the managerial manipulations of John McGraw have been greatly responsible for the success of the New York Giants in their battle for their fourth consecutive National league pennant. McGraw has a good batting attack, and his fielding is of high quality, but his pitching has not been consistent, and of late some of his hitters have fallen off. But with the peculiar genius that seems to be his alone, the little Napoleon has made shifts that have kept his team right in the race.

The Giants have lefty hitters in Young, Frisch, Kelly, Meusel and Snyder, with a number of others just under the .300 mark. They are a team that is likely to launch a heavy barrage of hitting at any moment, and send the best of pitchers from the box. The club also has speed on Frisch, Young, Jackson and Southworth.

CUBS AT DECATUR TODAY

Indians Hook Up With Baylor Frosh In Grid Tilt.

DECATUR, Oct. 2.—Decatur and surrounding towns are going to witness one of the fastest games of football to be played in this section of the state Friday between Decatur college Indians and the Baylor Cubs.

Several former Waco high stars are on the Cub squad including Booty Johnson, the lad who almost alone copped the championship from Abilene in '22.

The Indians are a fighting bunch of youngsters who expect to welcome their visitors on the "Reservation" to a real battle.

Anderson and Strickland who are coaching the Cubs, and Dickson and Fullingim who are coaching the Indians were all Baylor Bears together in 1922.

Capital City Bubbles Over With Series Preparation

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—The thermometer of excitement in Washington bubbled only a few degrees below the bursting point tonight. The unexpected charges of attempted bribery by two members of the New York Giants added more kindling to an already excited city and the national capital was prepared for almost anything after passing through a day in which rumors ran rife.

However, despite the hubbub, arrangements were carried forward for the opening here Saturday of the world series between the Senators and the Giants.

To the news of the expulsion from the National league of the two men was coupled a statement from President Dreyfuss of the Pittsburgh Pirates that they were only the go-betweens in the scandal, and another statement from President Ban Johnson of the American league that it might be advisable to call off the series.

Thousands Storm Stadium.

With this taking place, thousands of Washingtonians stormed in front of the gates at Griffith Stadium clamoring for seats and the internal revenue bureau got busy to suppress an epidemic of ticket scalping that was alleged to have broken out in the downtown section of the city.

In all the city apparently only two men retained their composure—Clark Griffith, president, and "Bucky" Harris, manager of the Senators. At the ball park this pair were as calm as if pennants were won every day. Both expressed regret that any bribery again had developed among players in major league baseball and declared that Judge Landis should be complimented for the "fearless" manner in which he tackled the matter.

Giants' Arrive.

Throughout the day baseball fans from all parts of the country began to pour into the city. With Judge Landis and President Heydler already here, other officials of the game were enroute to the city and hotels were beginning to feel the pressure of the incoming crowd.

The Giants arrived tonight and added all that was needed to make Washington the center of the baseball world. They were hurried to the Wardman Park hotel which will be the team's headquarters.

Judge Landis today inspected the grounds of Griffith Stadium and placed his stamp of approval on the arrangements that have been made for the series.

Playing Field Ready.

Clark Griffith made another inspection of the park later in the day to speed workmen who are putting the finishing touches to the construction work that will give the stadium a seating capacity of 37,000. He said that despite the addition of the temporary seats, the actual playing field would be the largest on which a world's championship was ever fought.

The Washington club took a snappy workout in the afternoon. Manager Harris announced that he had ordered his team in uniform for a morning workout tomorrow so that the field could be turned over to the Giants in the afternoon.

Harris pronounced his team to be in first class condition for the series. He said that the players were confident of victory but realized that it would be the toughest fight they were ever up against.

Both Harris and Griffith pronounced the playing field to be in the pink of condition and said that as far as they knew everything was in shape for the series.

Conference Grid Teams Get Down To Real Business

Rice Owls, Dark Horses Of Southwest, Begin Play Saturday

TEXAS AND PHILLIPS

Aggies Battle Pirates And Hogs Meet Springfield This Afternoon

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 2. — Every Southwestern conference eleven will go into action either Friday or Saturday of this week, opening in earnest the pigskin season in the southwest. The games will be the first for two conference combinations, the Rice Owls and the Oklahoma Aggies.

Following is the Southwestern grid schedule for Friday:

Texas Aggies vs. Southwestern Pirates at College Station; Arkansas Razorbacks vs. Springfield Normal at Fayettville, Ark. Saturday's schedule is much more attractive, calling for the following contests: SMU Mustangs vs. Trinity Tigers at Dallas; Texas Longhorns vs. Phillips University Haymakers of Enid, Okla., at Austin; Rice Owls vs. Sam Houston Normal at Houston; TCU Horned Toads vs. Daniel Baker at Fort Worth; Baylor Bears vs. North Texas Teachers of Denton at Waco; and Oklahoma Aggies vs. Kansas University Jayhawkers at Lawrence, Kan.

In every gridiron battle scheduled with exception of the Oklahoma A. and M-Kansas University go, the Southwestern conference team is scheduled to win with comparative ease over its rival. Coach Johnny Maulbetsch has a capable team at Oklahoma A. and M., but the Aggies have drawn a tough assignment in the Kansas University outfit.

Dana Has It Easy

If Coach Dana Bible's Texas Aggies show anything approaching the form they exhibited in trouncing the Trinity Tigers 33-0 last Friday, the Aggies should have little trouble with the Southwestern Corsairs who were humbled 27-0 last Saturday by the Tigers Longhorns. Coach Bible is devoting most of his time to strengthening his offense. In the other games of Friday Coach F. L. Schmidt's Arkansas Hogs should experience no difficulty in trouncing the Springfield Normal eleven. Although but 26 men came out for the Arkansas eleven, the Razorbacks have their strongest team of years.

Recovering from the lethargy they showed in last Saturday's 7-3 win over the North Texas Teachers, the SMU Mustangs are figured to win over Trinity University by at least four touchdowns.

Texas Not Sure

Texas University supporters have not forgotten the unheralded Phillips Haymakers eleven of 1919 which slipped into Austin and slipped out with a 10-0 win, made possible greatly by the great play of John Levi, big Indian who was later mentioned for All-American when playing with Haskell University. Because of the 1919 loss, Coach "Doc" Stewart will prime his team a bit to receive the Haymakers. The same lineup which started Saturday against Southwestern will likely open against the Haymakers. This lineup will be as follows: Ends, Allen and Slover; tackles, Newell and Sprague; guards, Berry and Dayvault; center, Pfannkuche; quarterback, Foster; halves, Shearer and Wright; fullback, Captain Marley.

Bears Should Win

Rice Institute fans Saturday will be given the first opportunity of watching in action the charges of Coach John Heisman. Rice, coached by one of the greatest gridiron mentors of the country, is regarded as the "dark horse" of the conference, and is expected to show impressively against the Sam Houston eleven.

Coach Matty Bell's TCU Horned Toads, who won their first game of the season by the impressive margin of 45-0 over the East Texas Teachers, are expected to triumph over the Daniel Baker team.

Junior College Opens Football Season Today

Oklahoma Eleven Invades Texas-Oklahoma Fair Gridiron

CONTEST CALLED 2:30

Visiting Aggregation Doped To Stop Untried Locals

Today's grid card at the Texas-Oklahoma fair will bring together an unknown eleven, Coach Mosley's Wichita Falls Junior college gridsters, and Boyles Southwestern State Teachers' of Weatherford, Okla., one of the most powerful little machine in the Sooner commonwealth.

Mosley and his men have for three weeks been pointing for this contest, but it is admitted that the Wichita Falls athletes are a green crew, and may find the going of the toughest. Odds are two to one in favor of the visitors walking off with the contest. But the Junior collegians have sworn separately and collectively to tear in and scrap their touted opponents to a frazzle. Today's tilt possibly will present the picture of a plucky little machine fighting with its back to the wall against a heftier and more experienced opponent, but a machine though in defeat which refuses to give up.

The game starts at 2:30. Probable lineups as announced by the coaches are:

Wichita Falls		Southwestern
Smith		Peace
	Left End.
Beatty		Holland
	Left Tackle.
Coburn		Pipkin
	Left Guard.
Hershi		[illegible]
	Center.
Morton		Smith
	Right Guard.
Whitelow		Gassoway
	Right Tackle.
Keevil		Cooke
	Right End.
Thurman		Shaun
	Quarter Back
Timmons		Simmons
	Left Half.
Caskey		Shockley
	Fullback
West (c)		Craddock

The Teachers beyond a doubt are a better defensive club than the home team, Mosley's backs will have a hard time piercing the forward defense of the visitors. On paper the Oklahomans rate more powerful in offense, so the junior squad seems just naturally up against it.

There is a slim chance that overconfidence imbedded in the brains of the stronger eleven may cause just enough carelessness for the scrapping Wichita team to nose out victorious. That stands to be seen.

BILLY WHISKERS

BY FRANCES TREGO MONTGOMERY

Billy was getting acquainted with the other animals of the motion picture studio.

There was Ben, a black bear, and Polly, a green parrot, and Big Ears, a baby elephant and last but not least a big white goosie gander.

They all expressed themselves as being happy to meet Billy and hoped he would enjoy performing with them.

After the introductions were over Toodles and Billy walked over to one corner of the stable and ate their own dinners. And this is where Nick found them when he came to get them for a new performance they were to put on in the studio.

"Now, Billy, our troubles are about to begin," said Toodles, "for we are all to go into the studio and rehearse our parts before they take our pictures for the film production. I just hate rehearsals for some of the animals are slow, or they get stubborn and won't go through their parts, and it is very tiresome for those who have to wait."

"What do you suppose we will have to do this morning," asked Billy.

"I heard it is to rehearse a circus performance where the two baby elephants are to be dressed up, one in a woman's clothes and the other in a man's. The one who represents a woman is to carry a big doll dressed as a baby in long clothes, while the other is to carry a satchel. When dressed they are to stand on their hind legs and walk in the grand opening parade. Every person and animal in the parade has to do some stunt if they can be taught one. If not, they are to walk around in line anyway."

"Do you mean to tell me that this film company owns a whole circus—animals, bareback riders, clowns, and all?" asked Billy.

"By no means! I see you know nothing about the production of moving-pictures, so I will explain to you that when the movie people want a circus, house, mountain or anything else in their picture, they go to the mountains, circus, or whatever it is they require for their picture and take the whole troup of animals, people and so forth to the place where their back-ground is. They save a lot of money in this way. They pay so much to the owner for the privilege of photographing it and using it in their picture. We will all be taugh our parts here and then taken to the circus for a last rehearsel. When the director thinks the actors have their parts well learned, the camera man shoots it."

"Shoots it?" said Billy. "And why does he shoot it, I should like to know?"

Color Cut-Out

"I gotta have dress-up clothes like you, if I'm gonna play Robinson Crusoe," announced Sammy Jackson, who was Freddy's Man Friday.

Freddy looked at him doubtfully. "We haven't any more fur robes, but I guess my mother could fix you up something out of granny sacking in a jiffy. She said she'd help me if I wanted to play Crusoe. Come on, let's go home and tell her."

The two boys went on back to Freddy's house, and there his mother fixed Sammy a suit that made a good imitation of the suits Robinson Crusoe made on his desert island. Then the boys went back to the pond, where they set to work fixing up a hut, such as the one Crusoe built. Next they set to work on a raft.

Sammy's Robinson Crusoe suit is all brown.

FREIGHTER ON ROCKS

Unidentified Vessel Seen in Wreck By Breakers off Santa Cruz.

By The Associated Press.

SANTA CRUZ, Calif., Oct. 2.—An unidentified vessel about 150 feet long, believed to be a freighter, went on the rocks off Moore's Beach about four miles north of Santa Cruz last night. Residents of the vicinity, attracted by the blowing of the boats whistle, were unable to give aid. The vessel later turned over on its side and was badly lashed by the breakers.

Several persons reported seeing men clinging to the sides of the vessel. The roar of the breakers made it impossible to understand shouts from the boat.

Keeping Up Their Record

One Mother Says:

Instead of ragging at my children I have invented a personal efficiency game for them which they work themselves. I make 10 points count as a nickel, and rewards are made at the end of the week. The points are somewhat as follows: 10 for prompt rising in the morning; 10 points for teeth brushed; ten points for hands and nails kept clean; 10 points for promptness at breakfast, etc. I do not have to keep reminding them of these points to be attended to daily, and they are learning efficient habits.

Distribution Of Goods Is Factor Now In Success

Task of Getting Rid of Products Now Most Formidable in U. S.

IS BIGGEST PROBLEM

Manufacturing Developed to Point Far Ahead of Sales Agencies, Babson Says.

BABSON PARK, Mass., Oct. 2.—The development of our next period of prosperity is almost entirely in the hands of those who control our distribution, according to Roger W. Babson, the statistician, who today discussed what he counts as the greatest problem facing American business.

"During the last forty years great progress has been made in production," says Mr. Babson. "The keenest minds have gone into manufacturing, men who naturally desired to create and produce have preferred the making of goods to jobbing or retailing. The result has been that with a few exceptions the least agressive men have gone into the distribution end of business. This is especially true of the smaller retail trade where we find as a general thing individuals who are not very ambitious and progressive. The result of all this has been the reduction of the cost of producing. We make practically everything today for less than it cost to make it twenty years ago. We do this in spite of higher wages. The cost of distribution meantime has climbed steadily until it has more than offset our savings on the production end of the business, and the retail price of practically all articles today is above what it was twenty years ago.

Distribution "Inventions"

"The manufacturing capacity of our country is now highly developed and is far ahead of our ability to distribute effectively and economically. The problem of American business, then, is the problem of distribution and I venture to say that during the next forty years the keenest minds in our business world will be working on it. The great 'inventions' will be in connection with the new methods of distribution rather than with new methods of manufacturing.

"Progress is, of course, already being made. The rapid development of the chain store is one of the first evidences of improved distribution methods. The store on a motor truck is another for it has the cash trade advantage of the chain store and at the same time provides an economical delivery system. I am told that one of these enterprising motor truck store retailers here in New England is not only saving rent on his store but by displaying advertisements on the sides of his truck is practically paying his running expenses. These various forms of self-help stores are fore-runners of other plans which are sure to come and which will help to transfer goods from maker to user on a more economical basis. The rapid increase in the use of advertising is helping to get the volume that brings distribution costs down. Direct mail merchandising and new house to house canvassing plans are other efforts in this same attempt to reduce the high cost of selling. I believe that the chain store has come to stay and that newspaper advertising especially will be used more and more as an economical and effective sales agent. It is probable that our great universities and technical schools will consider distribution an important subject and will give much time and thought to it from now on. The recent Baker gift of $3,000,000 to the Harvard school of business rather than to any classical or technical school is indicative of this trend.

Chain Stocks High.

"Stocks of the good chain stores are high at the present time, from an investment point of view, and certain other chains are being promoted largely for their sale of stock rather than from legitimate business purposes. Investors should therefore be very careful in buying chain store securities. On the other hand the chain store industry is sound and is bound to prosper. 'If we are to improve the system of distribution and reduce the spread between the manufacture's price and the retailer's price it is vital that many people change their ways and begin to take a real interest in this complicated problem. The cost of distribution, for instance, begins the moment the article leaves the factory. Every railroad employee is a factor and can increase or reduce this cost depending upon whether he hinders or helps in the transportation of these goods. Few railroad men recognize this fact. It is also true that few railroad officials have done anything to help them appreciate the importance of speeding up transportation so that everyone can save money. The truck driver, the advertising agent, the president, the newsboy are all factors in this great system of distribution. They can help or hinder as they will. In fact it has become far more than a mechanical or economic problem. It is rapidly becoming a social—almost a spiritual problem—which can only be solved when everyone involved in it realizes his position and his responsibility and undertakes a veritable crusade to cut sales costs and reduce selling expense.

Challenge to Youth.

"The situation presents a challenge to the hundred thousand young men who now have the opportunity of choosing a vocation. Some of them are in colleges or in universities undecided as to what they shall choose as a life work. Of course, they are not all fitted to serve in this particular field but to those young men who have the qualifications necessary for distribution work, and who have a desire to be of the largest public service rather than to make the largest amount of money, I heartily commend the problem of more effective and economical distribution as a real job.

"The high cost of selling is responsible in a large part for the dullness of business experienced this year. Statistics now available clearly show that 1924 is running far below 1923. Those who forecast poor conditions for this year have been more than justified in their position. The immediate trend, however, is for the better and the speed of recovery will depend very largely upon our ability to solve this problem of more economical distribution. The readjustment is far more advanced than it was a year ago. People have learned needed lessons as to the necessity of honest industry and thrift. The foundation is ready for a solid and substantial advance. During the next few months the Babsonchart barometer of business which now stands at 8 per cent below normal will register our progress toward getting goods from the maker to the user more quickly and more cheaply."

MONEY AT WORK

Brief but important lessons in finance, markets, stocks, bonds and investments.

Margin is the difference between the "Cost of Goods Sold" and "Sales."

Suppose you were the owner of a retail store and you bought an article for seventy-five cents and sold it for a dollar. Your margin on that sale is the difference between the two prices or twenty-five cents. Margin is computed for all transactions and in this case is the difference between the "Cost of Goods Sold" and "Sales." It is usually expressed as a percentage of "Sales."

Margin is important because the difference between the margin and the expenses is the profit which the proprietor makes. The most secure retailers are usually those who are able to operate on a low margin, for that allows them to sell low and thus insures constant trade. Margin is also important as a guide to help in pricing.

Wichita Pipeline Co. Completes South Archer Line

First Oil is Run from Ragle Pool North Enroute To Wichita Falls

FOUR-INCH LINE

Line Gives Wichita Pipeline Co., Most Extensive Carrier System in Archer County

The Wichita Pipeline company has completed their four-inch pipeline to the Ragle district, south Archer county, and yesterday made all connections and ran the first oil from that lease. The oil thus obtained is carried to Swastika where the line joins the Wichita Pipeline company's four-inch line to the Holliday district, thence to refineries at Wichita Falls, in this case to the Panhandle Refining company's plant.

The line is about 10 miles long, and laid entirely of four-inch pipe. Construction since the initial survey was made has taken about three weeks, some difficulty having been experienced in getting pipe on the ground.

Its completion gives the Wichita Pipelihe company the most extensive system in the Wichita district, it being the only south Archer carrier which extends beyond Swastika.

NAVARO COUNTY LEADS

Chambers Field in Navaro County Only One to Produce Million.

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 2.—The pipe lines of the state gathered 10,009,187 barrels of crude oil from the several month of August. A report compiled by the comptroler shows the rich Navarro county fields produced 2,-334,897 barrels of this total. The only other counties producing more than 1,000,000 barrels were Wichita and Limestone.

Only one field in the state produced more than one million barrels. This was the rich Chambers Creek field in Navarro county. This field alone produced 1,437,508 barrels of oil during the month of August. The nearest approach to this figure was the Colonel field in Limestone county which produced 904,984 barels. The Holliday field in Wichita county produced 677,119 barells. Only one other field produced more than half a million barrels. That was the Burkburnett field which produced 563,277 barrels. This field is also in Wichita county.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 2.—The cotton market today scored a further advance, showing new high levels for the season and gains of practically 35 a bale on all active months from the low levels of the early morning and a net gain over the previous close of virtually $4 a bale.

At the start opening trades showed slight gains owing to Liverpool cables being higher than due but prices soon eased off on a generally fair weather map. December dropped to 24.75 and January to 24.82, or 61 to nine points let lower. From these low points the market later started upward on indications of an impending unfavorable change of weather in the west. This rally later assumed considerable proportions on a reported selling of the spot basis, the acceptance by the league of nations of the disarmament protocol and active buying by large operators. Prices were advanced $2 a bale points above the lows near noon, but eased off about 25 points on the report that some of the large buyers were liquidating. In the late trading prices rallied sharply on active general buying, December advancing to 25.79 and January to 25.81, or 99 to 104 points above the lows. Some of the advance was lost in the last moments of the session, the close showing net gains for the day of 74 to 77 points.

Stocks Lower

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Closing quotations on the stock exchange today were irregularly lower. The favorable interpretation placed by some professional leaders upon recent political developments also was a factor in the day's selling.

Extraordinary strength of the grain market and a rally of approximately one cent in cotton futures also served to divert speculative interest from the stock to the commodity markets. However, more than a score of issues attained new peak prices for the year. An opening gain of more than six points in Frisco preferred, which touched a new high at 73½ in reflection of the inauguration of dividends, was the outstanding feature in the railroad group. The stock eased later to 71½. The exception which touched a new top at 31, eased nearly a point from the high. Missouri Pacific preferred and Gulf, Mobile and Northern preferred also bettered their previous top prices.

American Can closed one point lower at 132, and most of the other standard industrials yielded fractionally.

Sales of Montgomery Ward, at the highest price in several years, reflected record breaking September sales. Equipment held firm on reports of large railroad orders. High earnings also accounted for the strength of United States Distributing common and preferred at 3½ and 128, respectively.

Call money held steady at 2½ per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged with business quiet.

Wheat Over $1.50

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO Oct 2.—For the first time since 1921 wheat today rose above $1.50 a bushel, the May deliveries here soaring to 1.51½. Urgent foreign demand for breadstuffs gave a big lift to all grain values, rye especially. Maximum jumps in price today were 8 cents for rye, and five cents for wheat. The wheat market closed strong, 3¼ cents to 4½ cents net higher. December 146¼ to 146⅝ and May 151¼ to 151⅝, with corn 2¼ to 4¼ cents up, oats showing 2⅜ to 2⅝ cents advance and provisions again of 25 to 50 cents.

Favorable weather today kept the corn market relatively easier. On the other hand, oats were in brisk demand, on the comparative cheapness and to prospective enlarged export call.

Decreasing stocks of lard and increasing cost of hogs sent provisions upward with grain.

The Following Taken From

THE TEXACO STAR

Published by The Texas Company, Port Arthur, Illustrating conservation, we send a photograph showing the type of steel gasoline tank in use on some of our leases in the North Texas District.

"The tank is so constructed that from one inch to three inches vacuum is maintained. Vacuum regulator is also shown. We have seven of these tanks in operation, from which we conserve 2,500 cubic feet of gas daily, not conserved previously, which is taken to the Electra gasoline plant.

"This tank and others of like construction pay us good dividends. On the present price of gasoline and residue gas sales, we figure that each three or four months these tanks have earned their investment. Also, they greatly reduce fire hazard on our producing properties."

The above tanks are manufactured by the Panhandle Refining Company's Boiler Shop department. For particulars call the following numbers: Day Phone 7125. Night, 2830 or 2223.

Kell To Address Business Council Of C. of C. Today

Will Speak on Advertising And Publicity Needed By Wichita Falls

HAS ADVANTAGES NOW

Declares City Possesses Features That World Should Know About

Frank Kell will be the principal speaker at the business council luncheon today at noon at the Kemp hotel, according to announcement from the chamber of commerce.

Mr. Kell has some important recommendations to make in regard to the activities of the local chamber for the coming year, including suggestions for a big advertising and publicity campaign for Wichita Falls, it is stated.

These and other matters were brought before the board of directors at their meeting Tuesday at which time members expressed themselves as being highly pleased with the work of P. A. Rogers committee on publicity, which has, in the past two years, been strictly limited in funds; sentiment was strong for a real campaign setting worth the great prosperity enjoyed by this section at this time.

Mr. Kell declared that Wichita Falls has more in the way of assets and advantages to advertise now than it has ever had before, mentioning especially the irrigation project, the industrial possibilities here, the educational advantages, and the continued development in oil.

THE STATE'S VIEW OF POLUTION DANGER

The above cut, supplied by Mr. V. M. Ehlers, state sanitary engineer, is illustrative of the polution caused by dumping sewage and other waste into the streams of Texas.

Julian Montgomery, former city engineer, has long advocated the construction of a disposal plant here to remedy just such a situation as is depicted above. It is estimated that a plant adequate for the present needs of the city can be constructed for about $200,000.00.

Fuzzy Heads, Pink Toes, Have a Place in Judging Better Babies

What is a "better baby"?

The answer is being rapidly determined by Red Cross officials who are conducting the Better Baby contest at the Texas-Oklahoma fair. Three babies are being examined every fifteen minutes by the squad of nurses and doctors in an effort to finish the scoring in time to announce the winners Saturday morning at ten o'clock.

Simple as it may seem, a "better baby", officials state is one that has a minimum of things the mater with it. And when a glance is given at the large and intricate score card with hundreds of detailed facts which must be determined about the youthful fame seeker, the observer realizes that very lucky indeed is the little chap who comes through the rigid physical examination and the mentality tests with a high score.

The baby is examined and graded from the fuzz on top of his head, its color, texture and quanity, to the soles of his little feet, and the elaborate percentage system with its vast amount of exacting detail makes an income tax blank look comprehensible.

How They Do It.

Wichita Falls babies grade high according to officials, for Wichita Falls mothers seem to understand the process of keeping babies healthy and well.

The most important qualification for a better baby, and one which gives immediate assurance that a baby is in good health is correct weight according to the baby's age. If the baby weighs what he should from month to month, the mother may be sure that he is getting the proper sleep, food, and exercise.

Plenty of sleep in the fresh air protected from drafts makes healthy babies, and officials say that babies should sleep alone from the first hour of their birth.

Baby should have plenty of cooled boiled water to drink especially in hot weather and should wear light clothing, wool where warmth is needed, with plenty of care to avoid troublesome pins and buttons.

A Bath a Day.

His bath should be given him every day of his life, and twice or three times in hot weather, followed by a talcum shower to prevent disagreeable prickly heat.

Quite the most important item of a baby's care is his food which should in all possible cases, be from the mother's breast. This automatically eliminates and corrects many baby disorders and of course saves a great amount of time and trouble as well as scientific skill which is required to formulate proper food for a successful bottle fed baby.

The throng of brighteyed youngsters who are pouring into the Red Cross clinic to keep their appointments for examination, are children who have been reared and cared for in this manner, and who will run a close race for the sixteen prizes to be awarded Saturday.

Salisbury Faces Trial October 13 In Clay County

Bond Is Set at $7,500 For Man Who Shot Wichita Falls Fireman

BEFORE DONALD

Venire of 75 Men Ordered To Report for Duty On Date of Hearing

Special to The Record News.

HENRIETTA Oct. 2.—L. C. Salisbury, under indictment for the murder of H. D. Abe, Wichita Falls fireman, will go to trial here before Judge Paul Donald of the 7th district court on Monday, October 13. Decision to this effect was reached here Thursday morning when, in a habeas corpus hearing held before Judge Donald, bond for the accused man was set at $7,500.

Jobe was shot and fatally wounded on the night of Septembe 26, last as Salisbury, claiming to be a deputy constable, attempted to arrest him and a woman companion when he found them on a country road not far from his home. Jobe resisted and in the struggle Salisbury's pistol was accidentally discharged. The bullet grazed Jobe's forehead and inflicted only a slight flesh wound, but in so doing it clipped off a splinter of bone from the inside of the skull, driving it into the brain. This caused death two days later.

A venire of 75 men was ordered drawn and ready for duty on the morning of the thirteenth.

500 Tax Notices Mailed Out Today To Delinquents

Five hundred notices that taxes are delinquent and payable and that court action will be brought immediately if the accounts are not settled will be mailed out today on behalf of the city by City Attorney W. E. George. The attorney has been preparing suits for some time and now has most of them in shape to file. The notices, however, will be mailed out in order to give the delinquents one more opportunity to save themselves legal troubles.
