Road Bond Issue Is Carried With Sweeping Majority

By United Work in Education and Discussion Opposition Is Reduced to Mere Minimum. Ballot Results in 154 to 31.

County Bond Issue Now Being Favorably Considered.

As we have previously remarked on varied and sundry occasions Junction is alright. She isn't as large as some towns we know—but she's going to be And she's better now than some larger towns we know. Donned in the spirit of progressiveness Junction has taken another step forward in the march of advancement.

The $35,000 road bond issue voted on last Saturday in this Precinct No. 1 carried with the overwhelming majority of 154 to 31. This we consider one of the greatest steps of advancement that has ever been made by our town, and we are proud to realize that our citizens have so nobly acted in this matter.

The original main purposes of this issue as often and thoroughly explained and advocated through these columns, were to make first, good concrete crossings on these rivers near this city, then the remainder on the roads of Precinct No. 1 and the streets of Junction. But after further study of the matter, and discussion with a number of the voters of our county, what was first a ventured suggestion is now growing into a strong demand for a slight change in the plans, as follows: Follow up this precinct issue with a county issue of the same nature for sufficient amount to combine with the $25,000 just voted, to build on our river crossings here instead of concrete crossings, large substantial steel bridges, and do other road improvements and street work as can be done. This may at first impression seem to be too great an undertaking, but when further considered will be found not so difficult. A small county issue could be very easily and readily met and work no hardship whatever on anyone, and by this means the really needed improvements could be made.

The Junction Chamber of Commerce wherein originated the precinct issue is now considering the advisability of this proposed county issue and will have more to report soon concerning it.

BASEBALL CLUB ORGANIZED HERE

Junction and Sonora to Match Game June 12 and 13

The Junction boys came together this week and organized a baseball club and are preparing to show these people some real sport this season in America's greatest pastime. W. A. Quisenberry was unanimously elected manager and has been busy the past few days securing subscriptions from the business men and interested citizens to help make possible the plans of this organization. Already about $300 has been subscribed, and the boys are getting busy with practice and preparations, determined to make this a banner season in Junction's sporting history.

It will be remembered that our boys sadly walloped everything that came their way last season that looked like a baseball team. We have not forgotten. Teams from several of our neighboring towns have not forgotten the perfectly good victory-expectant spirit that was deplorably battered up last season by the "boys in the forks of the creek." And the nice little bundles of defeat that the Junction team wrapped up in cordial "glad u-kum" hospitality and handed to would be baseball champions with our compliments We have just as good, yes, better material for the team this season and they every one declare that they are in fine trim and just anxious to "start something."

Just as a little start-off and work-up practice our boys have decided to play Sonora first this season. That team has indicated its willingness to come here and play and the dates for the game set for June 12th and 13. Paste that date in your hat, band, Jasper; don't let the fun all go to waste and you not get any of it,

AMERICA.

The National Anthem of the United States.

This patriotic ode, which up to the present time remains the national anthem of the United States, was written by Samuel Francis Smith, born in Boston, at the then aristocratic North End, within sound of the Sabbath chimes of Christ Church, October 21, 1808.

After graduating from the Boston Latin School, he entered Harvard College in 1825, in the same class with Oliver Wendell Holmes, James Freeman Clark and other eminent men, and during his course had as fellow students Charles Sumner and Wendell Phillips. Later he studied for the ministry at the Andover Theological Seminary, and was ordained in 1834. He preached in the Baptist Church and taught in Waterville, Me., until 1842, when he removed to Newton Center, Mass., became the editor of the Christian Review, which he managed until 1849, and also preached continuously from 1842 to 1854. Most of his publications were of a religious character, and have left no very striking impression of the literature of his times. The simple but impressive ode by which he will be best remembered was written in 1832, while studying for the ministry at Andover, Mass.

There does not appear to have been a very special public event or popular enthusiasm which inspired the young student, who at that time was trying to edit certain poems for a friend, but of the genius and spirit which inspired it there can be no question. From the first it was sung to an air which in 1815 was not only the national air of Great Britain, but of Prussia and Russia, and is said to have been composed by Henry Cary, an Englishman, who lived between the years 1695 and 1743, who was also the composer of the popular song "Sally in Our Alley." This song is found in "Heart Songs," on page 157.

America is only one of the many patriotic odes and songs which appear in "Heart Songs," the unrivaled song collection now being distributed among its readers by this paper. The coupon with music border in today's issue explains the terms.

$39,000 DAMAGES WAS ASKED.

Oklahoma City, Okla., May 22.—Suit was filed in the District Court here today by R. J. Allison against Govvernor Cruce, Adjt. Gen. Canton and Major Winfield Scott for a total of $39,000 damakes. The plaintiff held a lease to the Tulsa Fair Grounds yast month, when horse races were stopped by the State militia under General Canton and Major Scott by order of Governor Cruce. Of the sum asked, $10,000 is alleged to be for exemplary damages and $19,000 for actual damages. This suit was expected.

TWO DIE IN DUEL.

Lexington, Ky., May 22.—Word reached here today that Hubbard Miniard, aged 17, and Joseph Hensley, had killed each other in a pistol duel in Leslie County. According to the report, Miniard was escorting Mrs. Daisy Adams to a social function when the couple met Hensley, a quarrel ensued, both men drew pistols and the firing ended with the death of both. One of the bullets is said to have wounded Mrs. Adams slightly.

BECKER VERDICT IN WEEK.

New York, May 22.—A recess today in the trial of Charles Becker, former police lieutenant and head of the strong-arm squad in charge of the suppression of gambling, accused as the instigator of the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, whose revelations, it is alleged, he feared might stamp him as the recipient of graft in return for police protection, halted until Monday the famous tragedy of the underworld.

District Attorney Charles S. Whotman expects to finish the presentation of the State's case Monday, and the defense probably will complete its rebuttal by the moddle of the week. From this a verdict may be expected by a week from today.

DANCING AFTER A CROOK.

The chief was berating a patrolman.

"Why did you let that crook get away from you?" he demanded. "You saw him enter the house?"

"Yes, chief."

"And you saw him come out?"

"Yes, chief."

"Then why didn't you dance right after him?"

"I did dance after him," protested the patrolman, "but you see he was doing the tango and I was using the hesitation."—Judge.

THE TOLL BILL TO LOSE?

OPPOSITION SENATORS SAY THE VOTE WILL BE A SURPRISE.

But Senator Kern, the Administration Leader, Is Confident That President Wilson Will Be Sustained by Repeal.

Washington, May 22.—Although many senators are yet to speak on the bill to repeal the exemption clause of the Panama Canal Act, Senator Kern, the majority leader, was hopeful tonight that debate would close in another week and that a vote might be taken May 24. Advocates of repeal say thaey expect to pass the bill by a safe majority, but those opposed are confident they will surprise administration leaders.

Many Amendments Proposed.

Before the bill is votel upon, the many amendments which will be offered will have to be disposed of. It is generally believed the bill cannot be passed exactly as it came from the House. Senators who have led the repeal fight are expected to concentrate their efforts on the amendment offered by Senator Simmons and adopted by the Interoceanic Canals Committee, which says the United States, in repealing the exemption clause, waives no rights over the canal.

Senator Walsh today closed the debate for the week with a speech against repeal. The senator was secretary of the sub-committee at the Baltimore convention which framed the Democratic platform. He repudiated as unfounded any suggestion that the tolls plank was inserted surreptiously and said Secretary Bryan, a co-worker on the platform, had full knowledge of this plank. He said it was significant Attorney General McReynolds had expressed no opinion regarding the question of tolls. Mr. Walsh was the eighth senator to speak on tolls during the week.

Told of Platform Framing.

Senator Walsh detailed the history of the tolls plank in the Baltimore platform. After relating how it was considered by a sub-committee headed by W. J. Bryan and then by another sub-committee over the first sub-committee, and finally the entire platform committee, Senator Walsh related two incidents "indicating that the plank in question had the particular attention of the committee." These were an amendment suggested by Mr. Bryan adding the railroad-owned ship clause and another substituting the word "exemption from tolls" for "free tolls."

He declared tolls exemption was not a subsidy in the offensive sense.

"While I remain convinced that no treaty restrains our action," he said, "I am under no temptation to escape from the trammels of the platform under the puerile suggestion that the plank in question is contradicted by another that declares against subsidies, requiring a choice as between the two."

MAKE RUBBER SHOES TO LAST.

Ohio Factories Will Employ Process Used With Motor Car Tires.

Taking its cue from the motor car tire industry, the process of making rubber boots and shoes is to undergo a radical change at the hands of one of the large manufacturers. Up to the present the process of making rubber boots and shoes has been to lay the rubber upon the fabric by hand and vulcanize without pressure. Tire manufacturers have long felt that if they could make a lumberman's shoe, like motor car tires, fitted to withstand many thousand miles of travel over the surfaces of rough roads, a bit of footgear would be produced far beyond the best at present known in point of durability.

A way to do this has been devised by one of the largest rubber companies, which has its factories in Ohio, and it will make its rubber footwear hereafter by the unit-construction, high-pressure process. In this the rubber and the fabric are welded together under tremendous pressure and vulcanized into a single unit, so that each actually becomes a part of the other, and leaks, cracks and peeling are minimized almost to the vanishing point. Shoes made in this way will have much of the toughness and durability of the motor car tire, it is believed.

JUST ASKED THE HOTEL.

Woman Planning a Visit Just Wrote Fifteen Letters.

A hotel manager whose face usually wears a genial smile, was looking downcast when bearded in his den the other day. On the desk before him lay what was evidently a bunch of correspondence.

"Look at that!" he exclaimed. "That pile contains thirty letters and replies. Would you believe that all that correspondence was necessary to rent a double room and bath at $4 a day for ten days? If the public only realized some of the things a hotel man had to undergo in order to get people to his establishment and make them satisfied, it would set him down as a martyr.

"It was away back in December that this woman, who lives in a town in the MiddleWest, made up her mind that she and a woman friend of hers would pay their annual visit to New York the latter part of February. The first letter I received made inquiries as to the roms and prices. It also asked various questions regarding seats at the theaters, and various other matters. I made a prompt reply. A few days later came a letter which was a brief repetition of the first. To that I replied promptly.

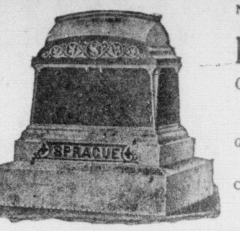

"Two days later came a third inquiry about charges for meals served in rooms. About January 1 a fourth letter said the writer would take $5 quarters, and wanted to know about railroad fares and time-tables. Also it contained full and explicit directions as to the seats for the theaters and their locations. The fifth letter gave up the short railroad trip out of New York that had been planned, but wanted a list of attractions in New York. The sixth said the $4 room had been decided upon. The seventh wanted an estimate on what board in the hotel might cost. The eighth specified more theater seats that were desired. The ninth referred to the same. The tenth made changes in seats already specified. The eleventh the same. So did the twelfth. So did the thirteenth. The fourteenth warned me that they were coming, and made still more changes in the theater program. The fifteenth was just like the fourteenth. Each of these letters I had to answer, and I had to buy exchange, or return about forty theater tickets, and pay postage on ever so many time tables and theater lists. If you consider the amount of personal labor I put on the thing, I don't seen where I profited. But you can see from this quantity of correspondence that this is a life of detail.

"About the queerest request I have had in a long time came the other day from a North Carolina lawyer. I did not know him, but he evidently spent more money in New York than he had intended. He sent me a letter telling me that he had lost a pawn ticket, and asked me to find the Canal street pawbroker that had executed a loan for him on a certain date. He did not remember his name, but the ticket called for a diamond ring. He believed that the pawnbroker's establishment was the first one on Canal street. If there was more than one pawn shop on Canal street, he said, he was willing to pay my man for his extra trouble. Strange to say, we did succeed in locating the place where the lawyer had hocked his ring.—New York Times.

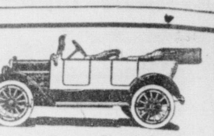

A PAUPER IN A KING'S LINE.

The Claim Made by an Inmate of a London Almshouse.

London, May 22.—A pauper of 60, Augustus West by name, who became an inmate of Wandsworth Infirmary the other day, says he is a direct descendant of George II. He says his grandmother was "Princess Lavina" of Cumberland, who died in 1871 after unsuccessfully appealing to Queen Victoria for recognition of her claim to be of royal blood. The Cumberland claim was made first in 1817, when a Mrs. Olive Sorros alleged that she was the daughter of Henry, Duke of Cumberland, brother of George III, and grandson of George II. The question was raised in the House of Commons, but her claim was rejected and she died in 1834. Her daughter, Lavania's subsequent efforts to establish her royal lineage were supported by many famous men.

RADIUM MAY CURE CANCER.

London, May 22.—Dr. Walter S. Lazarus-Barlow, who has recently had success in the treatment of cancer by radium, says radium in the human body may also be the cause of cancer.

At a recent meeting of physicians and surgeons he told of experiments he performed upon animal cells and explained that while cancer might be divided into various classes it was nothing more or less than risordered cell growth. "It is reasonable to suppose," he said, "that there is one cause, and I would suggest to you that in the radium and radiation we have the probable cause."

Radium, he continued, was widely distributed in nature in quantities which had been shown to produce the stimulation of cell growth and later to develop some deleterious effects which culminated in death.

Cancer was very closely associated with inflammation, to such an extent, he said, that chronic irritation was the only cause which was universally accepted, but chronic irritation was so closely bound up with bacteria that there arose the question whether radium stimulated an animal cell.

Dr. Barlow said experiments of his had demonstrated that bacteria actually pulled radium out of a solution and attracted it to themselves. If radium, therefore, were circulating in the blood while bacteria were present, the latter would attract and locally deposit the radium, forming a focus of that substance, producing stimulation of the celss in the neighborhood. He said radium was present at times in normal human tissues, and it was found in greater quantities in cancerous tissues.

Disposing of the theory that cancer was necessarily caused by irritation, the doctor pointed out that it would naturally be assumed that cancer of the gall bladder would be relatively common, whereas it was rare.

RAYBURN BILL FAVORED.

Report Urges Personal Punishment for Trust Magnates.

Washington, May 22.—The Rayburn bill for Federal control of railroad stock and bond issues, one of the trio of anti-trust measures that constitute the legislative program for the remainder of the session of Congress, was reported favorably to the House today by the Interstate Commerce Committee.

The report, prepared by Chairman Adamson, analyzed the purposes of the bill, told of the reforms it would accomplish, declared the personal punishment provided was the only way to deal with malefactors and struck boldly at what the report called "the cupidity or incompetency of the railroad directorates or avarice or exploitation of speculators who use the power of their position to wreck the carriers and make large gains."

IS THERE A THIRD SEX?

SIR WILLIAM BELL SO CLASSIFIES A TYPE OF MODERN WOMEN.

"These Business Spinsters Live Useful Lives Without Desire for Marriage and No Thought of Love or Passion," Says the Baronet.

London, May 22.—"A new sex is growing up, a third sex—women who deliberately abandon all feminine attributes and honestly do not care for love or passion."

That, according to Sir William Bell, member of Parliament for Hammersmith, in an article inthe Academy, is the real reason for the growth of the woman suffrage movement.

"The young women of half a century ago who did wool work also wasted thousands of hours of valuable time in practicing on the piano," said Sir William. "In nine cases out of ten she had no taste or inclination for music, and is now as defunct as her grandmother, who swooned in graceful attitudes on every occasion. Women nowadays are taking up a more aggressive position in the world; they travel unchaperoned; they ride alone in taxis, and live like bachelors by themselves in flats, if they think fit, without scandal.

"They want to live their own lives; they do not want to get married or expect it. They imitate men as far as they can in their attire. They smoke cigarettes, and lead useful lives as clerks, typists, telegraphers, actuaries, doctors and take up a hundred other occupations which were formerly for men only. They do not want men; they are learning to be independent of them.

"I do not pretend that all women who follow these occupations are of this class, but I maintain that there is a large and growing proportion of what is practically a third sex. Inasmuch as the proportion of men over women is increasing, I see no harm in it but good. Spinsterhood is no longer the reproach it once was, and women lead far more interesting and brighter lives than they ever did before."

COUNT OKUMA'S WOODEN LEG.

Japan's new prime minister, Count Okuma, possesses one distinction which makes him notable among statesmen. This is his wooden leg. It was manufactured in America, and it replaces a limb which was blown off by the bomb of a political assassin.

In connection with that incident a story is told which goes far to support the claim that is made for Okuma that he is the best mannered man in Japan.

After the explosion, which had killed his servants and horses besides shattering his leg, he was lying in his office in an agony of pain, yet he was able to say smilingly to a foreign statesman who was taking leave of him, "Excuse me, sir, for my impoliteness in not seeing you to the door."

FATHER WAS NOT IN FORM.

The young man of persistence had been kicked out of the parlor of his best girl for the thirteenth time by the same identical irate parental foot.

As he picked himself up from the pavement, he said to the aforementioned I. P., who stood in the doorway exuding threats from every pore:

"Father-to-be, far be it from me to say anything discouraging, but you are losing form. That trip from the parlor to the front steps is usually made in four kicks. This time you took five. I should at least try to make it in bogey, if I were you."

Ad the young man went indignantly away into the night.

KAISER OPPOSES "MONEY MARRIAGES."

Berlin, May 22.—German officers applying to matrimonial agents for richly dowered wives will, in the future, be dismissed summarily, says a secret cabinet order issued to the officers of the navy. The Kaiser has been angered and mortified at the details recently given at the trials of titled matrimonial agents, such as the Countess Trouberg.

The Emperor is determined that his officers in the future shall not apply to discredited persons for marriages that will enable them to restore their shattered fortunes.

A matrimonial shop making a specialty of showing publicly photographs of rich would-be brides was opened recently in Berlin, but the place was closed promptly by the police. The imperial order names several agents against whom officers are specially warned.

SECOND UTAH.

Switzerland Is Having Her Troubles In Ousting Mormons.

Geneva, May 22.—Switzerland is having trouble in ousting the Mormons, who have been expelled from nearly every country in Europe and are now making Zurich their headquarters.

By spending large sums and employing clever lawyers, this American religious sect has obtained official footing. Several Mormons were arrested in 1910 and sentenced to imprisonment. They appealed and won in the highest court on a technical point concerning polygamy, which the Mormons take good care never to preach openly.

Since then Switzerland has become a second Utah,, for, owing to the heavy costs involved, no canton will attack the Mormons again. When these latter were expelled by law from Germany three years ago, they quietly crossed the frontier. Twenty-one Utah missionaries settled at Vevey on Lake Geneva in a beautiful villa which they had purchased. Some of them are still residing there. A Geneva pastor, who, after several years of a crusade, obtained the restitution of a woman relative from Utah, is one of the leaders of the expulsion movement. The young woman's experience are unfit for publication.

So powerful are the Mormons that it is a reasonable estimate to claim that their missionaries in Europe, exclusive of England, send across the Atlantic to Utah between 800 and 900 young girls annually. The Swiss girls alone amount to 100-120 yearly.

The danger of the Mormons is recognized by law in France, Germany, Spain, Italy and Austria and will be very shortly in this country.

DENVER HAD DANDELION DAY.

The dandelions met their foe recently and were conquered. It was "Dandelion Day" by proclamation of the mayor of Denver, and every man, woman and child who could spare the time went out to annihilate every dandelion plant to be found in the city. The war that was waged was a ruthless one and few dandelions escaped the terrible slaughter.

Mayor Perkins was commander-in-chief of the attacking forces and rubbed his hands in glee when the day's work was done and the number of the slain was reckoned.

It is said all the dandelions in the mayor's neighborhood died of fright when they saw him leaving his home prepared for action. They just laid down and died when they saw him coming.

REFLECTIONS.

The spender's creditors may be said to be the ones who put the prod in the prodigal.

And we presume it was the fellow who is too swell to make garden who put the dig-nit in dignity.

Some strong-minded women seem able to subdue everything about them but their voices.

The mule is no coward, even if it does like to show its heels to the enemy.

Speaking of the mule, it wouldn't be so bad if more of us were like mules. Then people would get out of the habit of saying things behind our backs they wouldn't say to our faces.

And, speaking of him again, you'll observe Mr. Mule always gets his share of the honors of war—but it's all because of his pull.

Old stuff and nonsense, eh? See beauty hint.

Beauty hint: Grin, anyway. You look better smiling.

A PIN STORY.

"Johnny Jones, what are you fumbling with there?"

Johnny hung his head and was silent, but the tell-tale of the class spoke up:

"It's a pin he's got, ma'am."

"Well, take it from him," said the teacher, "and bring it here to me."

This was done, and then, in a mollified voice, the teacher said:

"Now, Johnny Jones, get up and recite your history lesson."

But Johnny did not obey. He blushed, hung his head and sat still.

"Johnny," said the teacher, "rise. I tell you."

Then the little fellow blurted out distressfully:

"I can't ma'am. That there pin you took is what holds me trousers up!"

GIPSY MOTH INVADES NEW YORK.

War of Extermination Is Declared on the Insect Pest.

The gypsy moth has invaded New York. The Department of Agriculture which has had cause in the past to realize the destructiveness of this pest, is marshalling its forces for a war of extermination.

The insects are preying on trees and shrubbery on a large country place four and a half miles southeast of Mount Kisco.

New York has heretofore been free from this pest, but when it made its appearance in various parts of New England several years ago the fear was entertained that it would soon descend upon the state.

The gypsy moth was found in Long Island about two weeks ago, and a campaign was at once started. According to inspectors the moth was brought into this state either in trees shipped from New England nurseries or else in motor cars. A characteristic of this moth is its love for travel. The insects attach themselves to vehicles and take long trips.

COLORED WIGS DEAD.

White Wigs, However, Are More the Fashion Than Ever.

Paris, May 22.—Fashions come and fashions go in Paris with remarkable rapidity. Now I am informed by a Rue Royale fashion expert that colored wigs are at last dead, and even the hair dressers have removed from their windows the grining faces crowned by masses of green and blue hair.

White wigs are, however, more the fashion than ever, for they are very becoming, and have a softening effect on the face. The really fashionable coiffure in Paris at present is hair piled up egg-shape fashion in a wavy cone.

Apropos of fashions the recent visit of King George has popularized the "Entante Cordiale" suit and the mode Anglais is the correct thing in male attire. Which reminds me that all the tailors in the fashionable boulevards—those who have any respect for their sararodial art—have painted in big letters on their shops the legend "high life tailor."

According to the fancy of the Parisian, these words are pronounced either as "ig-leaf tailleur" or "Isheleaf tailleur." Moreover, it is to the tailor's shop, especially in the Grands Boulevard, that the Parisian goes for the biting cartoon of the day.

Big lurid lampoons adorn the intels of the "a le mode tailleur" and most of them are splenetic in character, for the Frenchman does not mince matters in his cartoons. The favorite figure for the dyspeptic artist is the kaiser. Indeed, the only way to understand French politics is to watch the tailors.

WAGON NOISE SAVES FOUR.

Rouses Man In Time to Prevent Esphyxiation of Family.

Sew York, May 22.—But for the noise made by a milk wagon, Benjamin Yaskey, his wife and their two children would have doubtless been smothered to death by coal gas which escaped from a furnace in their home at No. 204 Wood street. Yaskey had frequently complained that milk wagons caused him to awaken at unreasonable hours, but hereafter he will probably listen to their rumbling with patience.

Upon awakening early Yaskey, as usual, heard a wagon leave a house on the opposite side of the street, and he was about to say something about the nuisance to his wife, when he discovered that something was wrong with her. He tried to arouse her, but was unsuccessful. Then he jumped out of bed and found that he was himself so weak that he could scarcely make his way to a window. He could smell gas. Finally he managed to get the window open, and then he tried to revive his wife, but again failed. Next he turned his attention to his two sons, eight-year-old Nathan and four-year-old Hyman, but they were also unconscious.

The father then rushed from the house and summoned a policemtn, and the entire family was removed to the Hahnemann Hospital in the patrol of the Seventh District.

TO PREVENT THEFT OF ELECTRIC LAMPS

New Metal Filament Incandescent Lamps Are Valuable Enough to Tempt Thieves—Ways and Means of Locking the Lamps in the Socket.

A few years ago incandescent lamps were too cheap to tempt even an ordinary junk thief. The central lighting companies furnished the lamps free and renewed them when desirable without cost. These lamps really cost but little, where large quantities were purchased at a time, and once used they could not be given away.

The invention of the new metal filament lamps changed all this. These new lamps are made from the rare metal tugsten which is one of the hardest of all the metals. It is harder than steel, although not as hard as the diamond. The pure metal, which has recently been obtained with the aid of electric furnace, is a bright steel gray in color. For a long time it was thought too hard to be drawn into fine wire. Finally a process was perfected whereby the new metal could be drawn into the fine wire necessary for the lamp filament.

The fact that metal filamentlamps cost more to manufacture, and are worth more to the user, is not the only reason why they are filched whenever an opportunity offers. The new lamps are far more efficient than the old carbon lamps. They will give three times as much light, and of a better quality, as the old carbon lamps. The metal filament lamps cost so much to manufacture that the central station cannot give them away to their customers.

For a long time it was common practice of light-fingered gentry to remove the metal filament lamps from waiting rooms, telephone booths, corridors and even from the street cars. These lamps were either taken nome for use or sold to the saloons and dives for a small part of their original value. In many instances they were exchanged for drinks and cigars.

It is quite impossible to watch the lamps all the while. To prevent these numerous thefts a lock socket was devised. In this type of socket the lamps are firmly locked in place and it is quite impossible to remove them without a key.

When the Brooklyn Rapid Transit road installed the new incandescents in all its cars it suffered the loss of thousands of lamps. Even their own employes were not adverse to unscrewing a lamp or two when they could do so without being detected. To stop this loss the railway ordered ten thousand new lock-sockets and installed them wherever the new lamps are used. Since this installation the loss of lamps has been very slight. It is impossible to remove a lamp from the socket without destroying it. It cannot be unscrewed of pulled out. This new lamp socket will be installed on all the surface and "L" cars.

A number of public buildings have also equipped with lock sockets for the new lamp and they are being placed in hotels, school houses, halls, theaters and all other places where the lamps are apt to be stolen.

HOW TO MAKE COFFEE.

The following directions for making coffee have been sent out by the Morrison Coffee Company, whose Wesco Coffee is obtaining wide fame. The directions say:

"A grain of roasted coffee consists of minute cells, which are broken up more or less in the coffee mill. The finer it is pulverized the more aroma and color each grain yields, coarser and grind the less aroma and strength is obtained.

Boiling and percolating develops cafetanic acid, from 2½ to 3 grains to the cup.

Filtered coffee is practically free of cafetanic acid extracting all the aroma and strength.

The following recipe is simple, requiring no expensive percolater, with its unsanitary pipes and tubes. Fill a kettle with fresh cold water and put it on to boil.

Use a china tea or coffee pot kept for coffee only as all metal is injurious.

Warm the pot by pouring in hot water. Empty this water and cover the pot with a clean old wet napkin ir piece of unbleached muslin, letting it sag in the center.

When the water in the kettle is boiling furiously put into the napkin four rounding tablespoonfuls finely pulverized Wesco coffee and pour slowly four cups boiling water over the pulverized Wesco coffee. Cover and serve at once.

Wash the cloth and keep in a jar of cold water in the ice box, changing water daily.

Keeping the cloth sweet is essential, as souring will spoil your coffee.

Follow these directions and be sure to get pulverized Wesco coffee and the water boiling and you will have better cofee than by any other method.

In Memoriam

Died Thursday, June 2, at his home near this city, Mr. Stroud Buck, son of Mr. and Mrs. W W. Buck.

Mr. Buck was born December 28, 1884 in Hillsboro, Texas. For some time he has been in failing health and came here with his parents a few years ago with the hope of recovering in our healthful climate. He seemed to be getting along fairly when seized by his last illness after which he lived but a short time. His death has brought the bitter cup of sorrow to friends and relatives. In short Mr. Buck was not only an honorable gentleman, but he was a model christian in highest sense that the term implies. To man woman or child he always extended a cordial greeting that lent a ray of light to brighten their pathway in the journey of life. He commanded the respect of all sects and classes of people as the attendance at the funeral fully verified. Could all live the life of the just and upright life Stroud Buck lived, and die in his trusting faith, death could no longer be called the "King of Terrors" for he inspired no terror there. His passing to the life beyond was beautiful; realizing that the end was at hand he calmly closed his eyes and murmered as his last words on earth, "It is sweet to go to sleep in Jesus. Jesus knows it all."

The deceased was placed to rest in the Junction Cemetery Wednesday afternoon, witnessed by many sorrowing friends. Rev. R. T. Deel conducted funeral services, paying a beautiful tribute to the memory of the departed one.

To the bereaved we extend deepest sympathy, and remind them that death is after all but a slipping off of the outer body, and the human link snapped asunder on earth is forged anew in heaven, where broken families may be reunited.

DIED.

A. J. Ivy sr. who was brought here from London community several days ago for medical treatment, died shortly after 12 o'clock Tuesday night, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Ivy. Relatives left with the body Wednesday for Lampasas County where burial will take place in the Center Cemetery there. Mr. Ivy lived in Lampasas County a number of years before coming to Kimble a few years ago.

Mr. Ivy was a man of generous impulses and never forgot the ways of the pioneer. He delighted in all kind and neighborly offices, and had filled the various relations of life as son, husband, father, brother, friend, and filled them well. Who can do more?

But he is gone! and the sorrowing bereaved are left to attest how sadly they will miss him. It must be so; these human ties cannot be severed without a pang. Yet in such death what benefit from great grief. Deceased had passed his seventy seventh milestone on life's path way and had journeyed well. When the stern reaper found him full of years, and ripe for harvest and took him away the grief felt over the close of his days was widespread and sincere.

The bereaved and his many friends may find some solace in gathering up the elements of the life of the departed one and weaving of them a picture for the walls of memory.

Each death is a link that binds us to the beyond, so let us live and do that when our time comes we will be found a good link in the endless chain of Nature.

"Not dead! Dust sleeping.
Night can be releasing them

When a hand from out of darkness
Touched them and they

"GONE HOME"

Mrs. Czarina Gephart departed this life for the better world April 11th, 1914 in London Kimble County Texas, after an illness of several years. Mrs. Gephart was the wife of Dan Gephart Sr. She was born in Polk County Arkansas September 30, 1842. At the age of three she moved with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lewis to Texas. At the age of fourteen she professed faith in christ and united with the Baptist Church. She was married to Dan Gephart June 11th 1861, and after her marriage she united with the Cumberlin Presbyterian Church of which she was a member the remainder of her life.

She had many trials and troubles during the Civil War, as "Uncle Dan" was a soldier.

She has been a great sufferer for 42 years, though she bore her afflictions bravely. She was confined to her bed most of the time for the past 5 years, and was confined to her bed for ten months before she died. Died at the age of 71 years, 6 months, 11 days.

Mrs. Mary Summers, Miss Henrietta Gephart, and Dan Gephart Jr., children of deceased, were present when Mrs. Gephart passed away.

After death had laid his icy hands upon this dearly beloved wife and mother, and released her of all suffering and pain, she was taken to London cemetery where amid a large crowd of weeping loved ones and friends she was laid away in the silent grave to rest through eternity. Funeral services were conducted by N. H. Skaggs, fifth Sunday in May.

Her loving husband and children did everything that could be done to save her life but all in vain and with broken hearts had to say, "Farewell precious mother; no more will our gatherings be brightened by your smiling face, but we will try to follow your loving example and meet you over on the other shore where we shall know each other and part no more."

Many are the hearts that are sad for the loved one whose soul has returned unto God. May the God of all peace comfort and console the bereaved family in helping them to say, "Not our will but thine be done."

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.
God in his wisdom has recalled
The boon his love had given,
And though the body slumbers here,
The soul is safe in heaven.

A Friend.

Concrete river crossings as made possible by the precinct issue just voted will be a great improvement over the present condition. But such crossings have their disadvantages and at best can only serve as temporary affairs until bridges can be built instead, and when this is done the concrete crossings will be worth nothing. By voting a county bond issue of some $50,000 and using it together with the precinct issue just carried we can do the job right while we are about it by putting big steel bridges on the rivers here and then have money left for roads and streets. With such bridges the people need have no fear of being waterbound in or out of Junction. In levying such county issue the increase of taxes would be so slight as to hardly noticeable and the returns on the investment would indeed be manifold. Think about it.

For too many people regard the place they live in as a "house," instead of a "home." "Up to our house" they say. A house, indeed, a slave pen for a wife, a place to fill the stomach, dark, dismal and dingy. Small wonder that they sneak off to bed as soon as they have had their fill. Bring "sunshine" into that "house" and it is "a home"—a place worth striving for—a place worth living in—the dearest spot on earth—when properly lighted.

KERRVILLE ADVANCE.

Rev. A. P. Robb and family and Rev. J. H. Jackson left yesterday for Junction to attend the Fifth Sunday Meeting of the Medina River Baptist Association. Bro. Jackson tells us he will begin a protracted meeting at Segovia the First Sunday in June.

The rains have continued almost incessantly since last Thursday. The Gaudalupe was on a big rise Thursday and Friday, at some points getting beyond all previous records for many years. At Kerrville it was about 25 feet. Farther up the river above Ingram the South Fork was about 40 feet and much damage was done to crops and fences. Mr. W. H. Page, down from Hunt, says the people will hardly get over the damages in the next year.

BROKE A SPEED RECORD

JOE DAWSON COVERED THE INDIANAPOLIS COURSE IN 1:36:4.

Forty Drivers Have Entered for the Biggest Event In the Motor Racing World May 30.—The Elim-nation Contest May 27.

One weeks from today—Decoration Day—the greatest motor speedway in the world will be opened again for the fifth annual race meet. Indianapolis will be crowded again with more than a hundred thousand visitors and thousands of new motor cars will again fill the streets.

It has become the big event in the calendar for the Hoosier town. Special trains pour into the city from all parts of the country, and trains run from Chicago to Indianapolis as often as trolley cars in the city. The Indiana capital thinks so much of its "big day" that it started a movement to build a 60-foot boulevard from Chicago to the race course. The trip can be made in nine hours by motor.

A Test of Endurance.

The number of entrants for this year's race indicates that it will be the most interesting since the opening of the track. The recent developments in the designs of racing cars make the affair a test of the endurance of the drivers rather than a test of the quality of the cars.

F. E. Moskovics, commercial agent of the Nordyke & Marmon Company of Indianapolis, who was in the city yesterday, believes there is little danger of discontinuing the annual race meet in as much as it has made Indianapolis. The track probably has grown more factories and built up the city in the last three or four years more than any other factor.

Only One "6" In the Race.

Forty-fou cars are entered for this year's contest. Only thirty cars can start in the big race. The elimination contest is to be on Wednesday preceding the event. Every entrant is allowed on the track for a trial and the thirty fastest cars are chosen to start. Mr. Moskovics predicts that the world's record for speed will be broken at the tests as no driver will hold his engine down for fear of being eliminated.

There is only one six-cylinder car entered this year, an English car named the Sunbeam. The rule of the American Automobile Association that only engines of the 450-cubic inch displacement class can enter makes the four-cylinder cars with lighter frames and more efficiency, capable of more power and speed. The Marmon "Wasp," driven by Joe Dawson, is the only six-cylinder car that ever won a 500-mile race at Indianapolis.

Broke Record In a Trial.

A telegram from the track yesterday states that Dawson, in a practice run, made one lap on the 2½-mile course in 1 minute 36 2-5 seconds. His average speed was better than 93 miles an hour and part of the time he drove faster than 100 miles an hour. The record for the track is 1 minute and 37 seconds. The car is not entered by the Marmon Company, but by a private owner, who has engaged Dawson to drive.

The same car has been in one 500-mile race, two Grand Prize meets, one Santa Monica race and one Elgin race.

AS WILSON SEES PATRIOTISM.

Love of Country Must Be a Principle as Well as a Sentiment.

Washington, May 22.—In speaking at the unveiling of the statue of Commodore John Barry, the Irish naval hero of the Revolution, President Wilson, drawing inferences from the life of Barry, gave his views on what constitutes real patriotism.

"Patriotism," he said, "is a principle, not a mere sentiment. No man can be a true patriot who does not feel himself shot through and through with deep ardor for what his country stands for, what its existence means, what its purpose is declared to be in its history and its policy.

"John Barry fought, like every other man in the Revolution, in order that America might be free to make its own life without interruption or disturbance from any other quarter. ou can sum the whole thing up in that, that America had a right to her own self-determined life.

"There are just several things stirring now that concern the existence of the Nation as there were stirring in the time of the Revolution and every man who worthily stands in this presence should examine himself and see whether he has the full conception of what it means that America shall live her own life."

The President said there was no need for America to form alliances with other nations.

EMBASSY IN MEXICO USELESS.

Representative Wingo of Arkansas Says He Is for Peace, but Sees Only War.

Washington, May 22.—The diplomatic agd consular appropriation bill, aggregating $5,000,000, was pased by the House today. It provides for the acquisition of embassy sites and buildings in Tokio at $150,000; in Berne, Switzerland, at $140,000, and in the City of Mexico at $150,000. In the debate on the City of Mexico embassy, Representative Wingo of Arkansas protested it would be a waste of money.

"Is there any man here who believes we are going to need a building in the City of Mexico for many years?" he asked "We may patch up peace now, but the history of Mexico shows what? Mexico's history for four hundred years has been one of strife, revolution, anarchy and despotism. I do not want war. I hope it can be averted, but I am not cherishing any illusions that we may have permanent peace in Mexico until we take possession of that country. I hope for peace, but I expect ultimately we will have war."

Mrs. Smith was engaging a new servant, and sat facing the latest applicant.

"I hope," said she, "that you had no angry words with your last mistress before leaving."

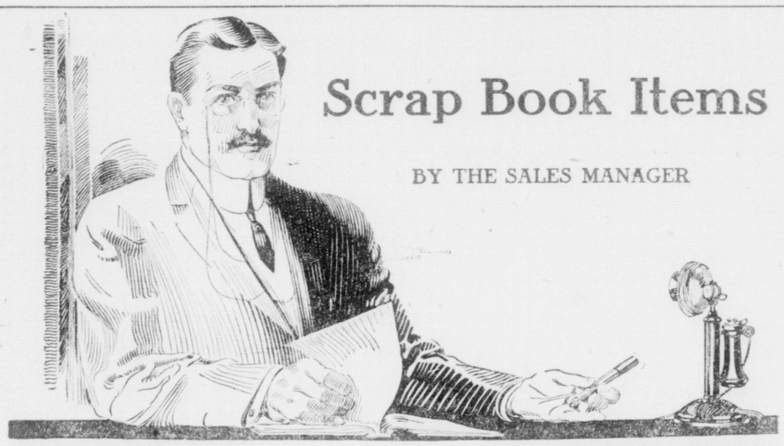

"Oh, dear, no, mum; none whatever," the prospective maid replied, with a toss of her head. While she was having her bath I just locked the bathroom door, took all my things and went away as quietly as possible."

A PITTSBURGH firm discovered an error in a new price list which had been issued, after quite a number had been mailed to customers. Immediately nineteen long distance Bell Telephone calls were filed at Pittsburgh to points in Ohio, and two to places in Pennsylvania. All the twenty-one calls were completed within one hour and ten minutes, averaging three and three-fourths minutes to each call. None were delayed or cancelled.

A salesman for a Boston bond house, while in Springfield, sold $92,000 worth of bonds over the Bell long distance lines. The toll charges were $4.20.

A Kansas City commission merchant received a letter of complaint from a client at Austin, Texas, threatening to withdraw his business. A brief talk over the Bell long distance telephone satisfied the client and held the business, saving the commission merchant from serious loss.

A Baltimore real estate broker had an offer for a piece of city property at a price lower than that at which it was being held. The offer was to be held open for twenty-four hours. The property was owned by three heirs, one living in Reading, Pa., one in New York City, and another in Boston. By the long distance Bell Telephor e the heirs were each communicated with and their consent obtained. In less than three hours after the offer was made, the broker called his client by telephone and closed the deal.

The salesman for a New York dry goo is commission house found one of his customers in Atlanta short on a certain line of staple goods. He could close a large order, if he could guarantee shipment within ten days. He called up the New York office on the Bell long distance telephone, found that the goods were in stock and received assurance of delivery which enabled him to secure the order.

A New Haven commission merchant recently telephoned the order for a carload of butter to Minneapolis, Minn., fifteen hundred miles. The message was received by the dealer in Minneapolis at one o'clock and by nine o'clock that evening the loaded car was on its way East.

A salesman for a commission house in Tennessee called at the Bell Telephone Exchange at Huntsville, Ala., and put in calls for fifteen customers in different cities and towns, including Chattanooga, Gadsden, Anniston, Decatur and Florence, and within less than an hour sold twenty-one hundred barrels of flour, at a cost of less than six dollars for telephone charges.

A quick deal in real estate was recently made by a Chicago operator, in which the long distance telephone played an important part. A New York broker sold the property in Chicago by long distance telephone to the Chicago operator, who in less than two hours turned over the property to other purchasers, at a profit of $2,000.—American Telephone & Telegraph Company.

GETS YEAR FOR STEALING DIME.

Postoffice Clerk Who Opened Letter Sentenced by Judge Landis.

Chicago, May 22.—Edward Du Bois, twenty-three years old, a clerk in the postoffice, was sentenced to a year in the house of correction by Judge Landis, after he pleaded guilty to an indictment charging the theft of a dime from a letter.

In sentencing Du Bois Judge Landis said: "There is an uncertain proportion of clerks in the postoffice who are thieves, just as there is an uncertain proportion of men at the bar, in the pulpit or elsewhere who are thieves. In disposing of this case the court must consider what would be the effect on the rest of the clerks if the court should take the suggestion of the young man's attorney and let him go free. In about teu days the aforesaid uncertain proportion of clerks would carry off the whole postoffice. No, I can't let him go. The order of this court is that the defendant serve one year in the house of correction."

IT HAPPENED IN KANSAS.

Observation of a new geological phenomenon is reported from Girard, Kan. The water of the wells of the town rose to the temperature of 120 degrees Fahrenheit. C. A. Haskins, the State engineer, has examined them, but is not able to offer any explanation. The mystery remains unsolved. Not even has it yet been ascribed to radium. According to press dispatches, Girard officials have received hundreds of letters from all parts of the United States asking about the water. One letter concluded: "Kansas people are awful liars." This may be as good an explanation as any.

DROWNS IN WELL.

Young Man Plunges to His Death When Well Cover Breaks.

Conway, Ark., May 22.—J. C. Pledger, a young farmer 20 years of age, living east of this city near Holland, accidentally fell into an open well esterday afternoon and was drowned. His body was not recovered until three hours later. There were no witnesses to the tragedy, and it is not known exactly how it occurred.

Mrs. Pledger states that her husband, after eating dinner, went to the well to draw a bucket of water. It is supposed that the wooden board across the top of the well broke under his weight, plunging him into the water. A large gash was cut across the side of his head by the fall and it is supposed that the blow rendered him insensible. A coroner's jury impaneled last night by J. A. Pence found that Pledger met his death accidentally, as no evidence of foul play or suicide could be found. Pledger moved to this county last October from Texas.

TREATING SCRATCHES IN HORSES

A disagreeable malady of horses, very prevalent when the roads are muddy in spring, is scratches, sometimes known as grease heel or mud fever. This disorder usually appears on the fetlocks. The hind feet are more often affected than the front ones.

The sypmtoms are well known to everyhorseman. Small, watery blisters, which later become hard and lumpy, appear on the skin, and can be readily felt by passing the hand over the region. The fetlock becomes feverish and sometimes swells. As the trouble advances large cracks form from which a bloody serum oozes. This is the stage commonly called "grease." The animal exhibits uneasiness, constantly moving the affected foot. Lameness may result.

The treatment consists in removing the exciting causes. Currying dry mud off the long hair with an excessive amount of muscular energy sometimes irritates the skin, starting an eczematous rash which later becomes scratches. Continual work in mud, alkali dust, stone dust, poor shoes and lack of attention are all contributing factors. When the system is out of order the blood must be built up before successful local treatment is attempted.

In severe cases the services of a veterinarian will be found economical. In light attacks of the trouble the hair should be clipped from the affected area. Then wash with a quart of lukewarm water, containing a teaspoonful of carbolic acid and castile soad. Dry thoroughly and rub in zinc oxide ointment. Cover with a generous quantity of cotton or oakum and bind with a cloth bandage.

RECLAIMING OUR SWAMPS.

Problem Now as Important as Irrigating Our Deserts.

"The Nation must seek its additional domestic supply of foodstuffs by reclaiming its waste areas and by cultivating omre extensively all its agricultural land," said Nathan C. Grover, chief hydraulic engineer of the United States Geological Survey, recently. He pointed that out of equal importance with expansion by irrigating the desert lands is the question of adding to the agricultural areas by the drainage of our swampp lands.

"The drainage of swamps will be as effective as irrigation of deserts in increasing the area of arable land," he continued. "The failure of some of the private or State irrigation projects for which public lands have been segregated is full of pathos, and the final record of some of the failures has been filled with tragedy for the thousands who have suffered financial ruin. In starting the new form of National activity which is now proposed—the drainage of swamp lands—a serious attempt should be made to put the work on a solid basis and to avoid as far as possible the mistakes made in irrigation. Irrigation and drainage have much in comomn, and are liable to practically the same dangers; in fact, in many localities, not only in the West, but in the East, drainage must be accompanied by irrigation.

"General methods for financing and managing drainage projects having been devised, the data necessary for designing the drainage system may generally be collected in such a field survey as can be made within a period of a few months, except as regards the quality of water for which reanals must be designed.

"This last determination, however, involves the collection of records extending over long periods. No such determination have been made, so far as I am informed, for large swamp areas in the Southeastern States. Designs for drainage construction have had no other basis than general records of precipitation and evaporation, and the result has been that drainage systems have been designed and partly constructed with insufficient capacity to accomplish the desired results.

"The measurement of run-off need not and should not wait until arrangements have been made for financing and managing drainage works, but because of the log time required should be begun at once."

Mrs. Doyle—That may be, but they wouldn't be allowed to land today.—Washington Star.

HOW TO COOK ASPARAGUS.

The very best method of boiling asparagus is first to wash, scrape and tie into a bundle and then plunge the stalks into a vessel of boiling water, allowing the tips to come above the water. The steam will be sufficient to cook these tender parts. Serve on toast or with melted butter. In Europe a little butter is placed on the edge of the plate and the hot head of asparagus dipped into it before eating, but in this country a white sauce usually accompanies this dish.

An economical way, and when there are children a more convenient way also is to cut the tender parts into short lengths and cook in the least quantity of salted water possible. It should be done in about 20 minutes, when it is taken from the liquor and the latter thickened with a little flour, butter and cream. The asparagus is laid upon toasted bread and the sauce poured over. In this way one gets the full benefit of every bit of the vegetable, while the tougher portions can be made into a nice asparagus soup.

To make this cook the stalks in salted water until tender and press through a sieve. Put two cups of milk over the fire or milk and a white stock mixed. When it boils stir in two tablespoonfuls each of flour and butter thoroughly rubbed together, by pouring the scalding milk over gradually. Put over the fire, and if found too thick when brought to a boil thin with hot milk. Add the asparagus pulp. Season with salt and pepper, then strain into the soup tureen.

Asparagus omelet makes a delicious dish for either luncheon or breakfast, and is a good way of using up cold asparagus that is insufficient for making into a salad.

Make a plain omelet with three eggs, three tablespoonfuls of hot water and salt and pepper to taste. Beat whites and yolk separately. Add the water and the seasoning to the yolks and beat in the whites at the last. Pour into a hot buttered frying pan and cook slowly. To test whether an omelet is cooked sufficiently press with the finger. If it comes away clean the omelet is ready to serve. Turn into a hot platter and have ready the asparagus heated in a little cream of thickened milk. Fold over and serve garnished with parsley.

To make asparagus salad.—Cold asparagus can be cut into lengths, laid upon lettuce leaves and covered with a simple French dressing. Put away to chill. This salad will be very tempting upon a hot day.

In serving cold asparagus the housekeeper should see that it is always well drained from water, and also be absolutely cold. If one has a little mayonnaise on hand this may be used over cold asparagus. A dash of mustard added to a French dressing is an improvement when the vegetable it covers has no very pronounced taste. It gives a zest.—Kansas City Star.

THE DYING EARTH.

Now comes another scientist with the assurance that we have but another two millions of years to live on this green earth and fair. We, of course, means mankind, so the actual dissolution of the planet really concerns only a generation to appear many centuries hence. This M. Verronet, a French mathematician, in a communication to the French Academy of Science, does some interesting figuring. If he is correct, in two million years life of all description will have ceased, being killed by the intense cold brought about by the reduction of the power of the sun's rays.

The idea, of course, that life on the earth will cease as the result of the gradual cooling of the sun is no new one, but it is the first time that a savant has given the earth such a short period of future life as two million years. M. Verronet supposes, according to the theory of Helmholz, that the sun is contracting and cooling, and is constantly losing its heat energy. The present solar temperature is calculated to be about 11,192 degrees Fahrenheit, and by making certain hypotheses on the condensation of the sun M. Verronet finds, mathematically, that the mean temperature of the earth's surface is about 52 degrees Fahrenheit, with 92 degrees at the equator. And these figures resulting from calculations based on the sun correspond very nearly to actually.

Workink backward from this M. Verronet calculates that two million years ago the range of the sun's rays was one and a half times as powerful as it is now, and the quantity of heat shed on the earth was proportionately greater. In the neighborhood of the poles, at 80 degrees latitude, the temperature of the surface of the earth must have been somewhere about 194 degrees Fahrenheit. Life, then, did not appear on the earth, according to M. Veronet, until after this time, and then began at the poles, the coolest parts of the globe.

Similarly M. Verronet calculates that in two million years from now the quantity of heat shed on the earth will be so diminished that the planet will be completely frozen over, the mean temperature at the surface being about zero. Life will then be impossible on the earth. It will mean the death of everything, preceded, in his opinion, by a term during which man will have returned to barbarism.

WHY WE DANCE

In spite of the many hard things that have ben said against the present day dances, it cannot be denied that dancing has never been so generally popular as it is today.

But is it, after all so difficult to find a satisfactory explanation? What makes us have the desire to dance? Isn't it music? Is it possible that in "music" we will find the solution of this problem? For dancing purposes the phonograph has a great advantage over the piano in that it does not require a player, who would thus be unavailable for dancing. But most important of all is the music itself.

We all know that there have been certain "tunes" that we could not head without having a desire to "shake our feet." This has ben particularly true of the old time "coon" songs. It was not, however, until these "coon' songs had developed into our present ragtime melodies that we had music with the "swing" and "go" that makes you dance.

We have had a great deal of this kind of music within the past few years and, because of its great popularity, music publishers have realized that the sales possibilities for this class of music were very great, provided the price was made so low that the public would buy freely. We now find that the great distributors for this popular music are the 5 and 1c stores.

Because we have so much good dance music, people sometimes find it difficult to know just what selections to get. The list given below, will, perhaps, be helpful to those who want to add to their piano music or their phonograph records.

FORKS DISMAY THE TURKS.

A Big Job Teaching the Army the Civilized Way of Eating.

Constantinople, May 22.—Not since its supposedly invincible battalions were rolled back by the Bulgarian advance at Lule Burgas has the Turkish army experienced a greater shock than the order issued by the new secretary of war, Enver Bey, that hereafter all Turkish soldiers must eat with a knife and fork.

The enlisted men are not only alarmed at the prospect of handling the strange implements, but are hurt by the intimation that faithful hands which have always served the primary purpose of conveying food to their mouths, should be deemed no longer fit for that useful service. The Turkish private is not proving an apt pupil. When his superiors are absent he squats upon the floor and devours his food in his god old-fashioned way, but at the approach of an officer he scrambles to a seat at the table and fails to wielding his new weapons wit all the skill he can command.

The civilizing process is not to stop with teaching the Turkish soldier table amnners. The edict has also gone forth that he must learn to read and write.

DID HE KNOW?

"But I don't know you, madam," the bank cashier said to the woman who had presented a check.

The woman, however, instead of saying haughtily, "I do not wish your acquaintance, sir," merely replied, with an engaging smile.

"Oh, yes, you do, I think. I'm the red-headed old virago next door to you, whose scoundrelly little boys are always reaching through the fence and picking your flowers. When you started for town this morning your wife said: 'Now, Henry, if you wont a dinner fit to eat this evening you'll have to leave me a little money. I can't keep this house on plain water and sixpence a day.'"—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

HOW TO PREVENT TYPHOID FEVER

The following is an extract from a U. S. Government bulletin, and is pertaining to a matter that is demanding the attention of our people. Read it and see what such authority has to say about typhoid being caused by unsanitary conditions.

Typhoid fever is a communicable disease, more to be dreaded on the whole than smallpox, because at present in countries which practice vaccination small pox is a disease which occurs only occasionly and is soon stamped out, whereas typhoid fever prevails widely in all civilized countries, attacking by preference the young and middle aged, and causes not only many deaths every year, but great economic losses. Serious impairment of the heart and other organs may persist after recovery. In recent years the subject has been brought home to this department by numerous cases among its members, and it has been been thought desirable to put on record a plain and trustworthy account of the way in which the disease is usually contracted and what methods may be employed for its prevention.

The disease is not contageous in the ordinary sense of the word i. e., it not usually spread from person to person by touch, as in the case of scarlet fever or small pox. Careful nurses seldom contract the disease. Generally it is distributed indirectly, the person who contracts the disease having in some way swallowed some of the germs derived from a previous case.

The disease is now generally believed to be due to a schizomycete known as Bacillus typhosus. This germ causes ulcers on the intestinal walls and also multiplies in other organs of the body notably the spleen and kidneys. The virus of the disease, i. e., the germ, discharged from the body in great quantities through the bowels and also through the kidneys, and the discharges from these organs are the source of subsequent infections in other persons. The disease is usually contracted by drinking infected water, but may also be acquired through infected milk, salads, or other uncooked foods. Many wells, springs, and small streams are infected for longer or shorter periods, especially during the autumn and early winter. It is not safe to drink at such places without certain knowledge of the condition.

Some very severe epidemics of typhoid fever have been definitely traced to contaminated water supplies, both in this country and in a thousand cases of disease resulted in a small community from throwing out the bowel and kidney discharges of a patient upon frozen soil in the vicinity of a stream from which the town was furnished with water. A spring rain washed these discharges into the stream, and soon after the whole community was infected.

The danger from milk is not due to contamination from the cow, because cattle do not suffer with the disease. Milk is infected only when contaminated water is used dishonestly to dilute it, or when the pails and cans are washed inadvertantly with such water, or when the germs enter it from the hands or other parts of the body of persons who either expell them chronically or who have been associated with active cases of typhoid. One great danger about milk is that typhoid germs multiply actively in it without perceptibly changing its appearance. Some years ago at Harpers Ferry an outbreak of 15 or 20 cases of typhoid fever was traced to one milkman whose daughter was very ill of typhoid. This man nursed the daughter, milked the cows, washed the cans, and delivered the milk. Typhoid sprang up all along the milkman's track.

It is believed that the common house fly frequently carries on its body from filthy places the germs of typhoid fever and deposits them on food in the kitchens and on dining tables. Those who nurse the sick and are careless about disenfection frequently infect themselves by soiling food or drink with their dirty hands. The fingers should not be put into the mouth, the sick should not be kissed, and the utensils used in the sick room such as plates, spoons, etc., should be reserved for the sick and thoroughly scalded on removal from the room. The time between infection and the appearance of the disease is usually from 9 to 14 days.

The number of cases in the registration area of the United States every year amounts to about 130,000, and the deaths amount to 13,000, while in entire United States it is estimated that there are about three times this number.

In 20 years (1890-1909) in the English army in India there were 26,510 cases of typhoid fever and 6,494 deaths.

The proportion of deaths to cases varies from 10 per cent or less in light epidemics to 30 per cent or more in severe ones.

The best methods of avoiding the disease may be grouped under two heads: Personal hygiene and preventive inoculation.

When one is compelled to live in a house or in a neighborhood where typhoid fever prevails he should make it his infallible rule to eat and drink only such foods as have been recently heated to above scalding temperature. Salads should be avoided, and milk should always be scalded before use. Fruits should be pared. The typhoid-fever organism is very susceptable to heat and slight boiling or even a good strong scalding is sufficient to destroy it. So far as possible the housefly should be screened out of the house, while any that gain access should be diligently pursued and destroyed.

A SUBTERRANEAN CAVERN OF GOLD

It would take a mule train sixty miles long to carry in silver dollars the income from the Glenn Pool for the past six years Laid in a row, the same would reach from New York to San Francisco or they would make a pile 250 miles high.

The fabled wealth of Croesus fades into insignificance beside these cold blooded government figures; 122 million dollars in six years from a patch of ground about four miles square. Millionaires were made over night, so to speak.

A few miles from the heart of Glenn Pool, two wells have in the past few days set oil men on fire with the belief that a new extension of this wonderful pool has been discovered. Derricks are rising like magic and with fever ish haste men are pushing to see who will get the next big well.

With a large acreage lying between these two remarkable wells and surrounding one of them on three sides and with the crews straining every nerve to take a big prize by getting their well in first, the Great Western Petroleum Company stands to win.

Further, they are in a line between the wonderful Glenn Pool and the recently discovered Cussion Deep Sand Pool in the same county, which is the most electrifying fact in the American oil industry for years. Men thought they had exhausted the Cushing field but by chance they struck a deeper sand and behold, new gushers whose production has outdone the dreams of avarice.

Oklahoma produced 15 per cent of the world's oil in 1912. Only one foreign country produced more. Her increase in seven years was over 4000 per cent. She probably produced one-third of the world's "refining grade" (or high grade oil fit to refine) during the first three months of 1914.

But the Oklahoma Oil situation is beyond discription in these few lines. Those who are interested are invited to address Mr. R. J. Waugh, Sale Manager of the Great Western Petroleum Company, Box 357, Tulsa, Oklahoma, who will gladly furnish additional information along this and other lines connected with the wonderful opportunity in Oklahoma Oil.

CALOMEL A GREAT DANGER TO MANY

Has Bad Effect on Some—Dodson's Liver Tone Takes Its Place and is Perfectly Harmless

If you will inquire at J. A. Heyman's you will find that Dodson's Liver tone is guaranteed to be a safe, reliable remedy to take the place of calomel and a harmless, liver stimulant having no bad after effects. Indeed Mr Heyman will refund purchase price (50c.) without question if you are in any way dissatisfied with this vegetable liquid.

It is very unwise to take calomel, even dangerous, as many people suffer from the poison afterwards even though they may appear at first to be temporarily relieved. On the other hand, Dodson's Liver Tone works easily and naturally (really assisting nature) with no pain or gripe and correcting all billious conditions, and ills of constipation, clearing away the sick headache and the coated tongue, brightening up the dulled brain and strengthening the weakened body at the same that it removes collected waste from the over burdened system.

Those who have tried Dodson's Liver Tone have found that it made them healthier and happier. A test may prove of great benefit to you right now.
