How's that? YMCA

Q. When was the old YMCA building built?

A. The Texas and Pacific Railroad bankrolled the building, which originally was set to be dedicated in July 24-26, 1902. Ironically, the building's dedication was delayed because of flooding on the first floor, according to Joe Pickle's history of Howard County, "Gettin' Started."

Industry lists county in top 20

Howard County last year ranked 17th among all Texas counties in the amount of manufacturing deliveries and in the dollar value of medical services, according to data published by a New York research firm.

Howard County had $1,117,400,000 in manufacturing deliveries in 1983, according to a report in the April 23 edition of "Sales and Marketing Management," a Bill Communications, Inc., publication published in New York City.

The magazine figures showed all the deliveries were made from 26 manufacturing plants in the county, including six with more than 100 employees.

Some of the companies that make up Howard County's industrial base are Cosden Oil and Chemical Co., a refinery and petroleum chemicals plant; Fibertex, which produces oil field-related equipment; Western Container, which produces bottles for soft drinks; Cameo Energy Homes, a manufactured housing homebuilding site; Sid Richardson Carbon Co., which manufactures carbon black materials; Fraser Industries, which produces pallets; and Roundup Tank and Fiber Glass Systems.

Oilfield Industrial Lines, Inc., which closed down in 1983, may have also been included in the survey.

Ross Westbrook of Cosden, when contacted about 1983 manufacturing figures for the company, said manufacturing delivery figures are compiled from petroleum chemicals and gasoline and motor fuel. When asked for a 1983 figure, Westbrook explained that "it would be real hard to come up with a figure" at this time.

Counties ranking higher than Howard included Harris, $30,228,900,000; Jefferson, $21,194,600,000; Dallas, $13,579,000,000; Tarrant, $9,710,200,000; and Galveston, $7,768,400,000.

Also Brazoria, $5,239,000,000;

Nueces, $4,364,800,000; Bexar, $4,143,000,000; El Paso, $3,921,100,000; Smith, $1,721,200,000; and Travis, $1,710,900,000.

Others ranking above Howard included Potter, $1,609,300,000; McLennan, $1,349,900,000; Orange, $1,314,500,000; Gregg, $1,230,400,000; and Cameron, $1,229,600.

Lubbock, Ector and Midland counties all ranked below Howard County in manufacturing deliveries. A breakdown of those counties shows Lubbock with $1,047,700,000; Ector with $813,400,000; and Midland with $273,500,000.

Howard County also ranked 17th in the state in the value of general and medical surgical hospital services. A "Sales and Marketing Management" representative in New York said hospitals which offer general medical and surgical services were included in the survey, thus excluding the Big Spring State Hospital.

According to the magazine, the county had $76,700,000 in medical and surgical hospital services rendered in 1983.

Harris County again led in this category with $1,549,900,000 in services rendered. Other high ranking counties in medical services included Dallas, $941,300,000; Bexar, $919,900,000; Tarrant, $433,600,000; See County page 2-A

One good deed

Deserves thanks for honesty

When Jay Cunningham, owner of Jay's Farm and Ranch Service Center, lost his store's petty cash recently, he thought he would never see the money again.

So he was surprised when he received a call from the police department about 9:15 a.m. the same morning, telling him a high school student had reported finding the money.

"I never expected to see it again," said Millie Cunningham, Joe's wife. "We do have some honest people in Big Spring. It restores your faith in humanity."

According to the police department, Becky Hicks of 1006 Bluebonnet, a Big Spring High School senior, had found the money in the road at the intersection of Birdwell and Third streets.

Mrs. Hicks said she and her husband spotted the First National Bank bag in the street while they were at a gas station.

"I was late taking my husband to work, so I waited until I dropped him off before I took the bag home to my mother, who called the police," Mrs. Hicks said. Her mother hadn't turned the money in by the time of the call because she was finishing a cake, Mrs. Hicks said.

Cunningham called losing the money "the dumbest thing I ever did in my life."

He said he had placed the bag containing the petty cash on his pickup truck bumper while he was watering his plants at home Saturday morning, and drove off to work without remembering to put the bag inside the car.

"I went to look and see if the plants were wet, and I put the money on the truck bumper. I thought at the time I ought to put it inside the truck, but I said, 'I'll remember,' Cunningham said. "That was the dumbest thing I've ever done in my life," Cunningham told his wife.

When he arrived at the store and realized the money was gone, he started to drive back home, looking for the money on the way back.

"He was thinking that maybe if he lost it between our house and Allendale Road, a neighbor would have found it. If it was lost past Birdwell, he thought we probably won't find it," Millie Cunningham, Jay's wife, said.

Mrs. Cunningham said she was "very surprised" when they received the call from the police department.

"I was surprised she didn't even open the bag and look in it," Mrs. Cunningham said. She said she was told Mrs. Hicks spotted the license plate number of Cunningham's truck, and the police traced the number.

Mrs. Hicks said she didn't even think about keeping the money. "It was their money, not ours. It would have put them in a bind," she said.

Mrs. Cunningham cited Mrs. Hicks as an example of a young person working hard to make something of herself.

Mrs. Hicks, who has an infant son, is attending high school, beauty school and working at McDonald's at nights. She and her husband also are fixing up an old house in their spare time, she said.

'The right people' at HC graduation

By CAROL BALDWIN

A number of parents and friends gathered in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum Friday night to watch 127 Howard College and SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf graduates receive their diplomas.

Dr. Charles Hays, president of the Howard County Junior College District, greeted the audience and introduced the speakers.

Two Howard College students, Mary Margaret Sinclair and Russell Williams, and SWCID student Mary Byndum, gave speeches during the ceremony.

Williams, who was named outstanding HC student and is president of the Student Government Association, told the crowd, "We worked for knowledge, and that is what we are leaving here with tonight."

Williams cited "friendly" instructors and administrators at the college and said the school had "all the right people" to someday achieve university status.

Mrs. Sinclair maintained a 4.0 at Howard College. She told the crowd, "I'm not the oldest student here, but I'm not the youngest either."

She said Howard College is "particularly attractive to older students" because of its size, the friendly attitude of instructors and the location.

Mrs. Sinclair said she was leading a busy life with her children and husband but, "I wanted to do something just for myself."

Although she found "the majority of students were 20 years younger than me," she said everyone on campus "was warm and courteous."

"I will remember Howard College and be thankful it was here," she said.

Mary Byndum, an honor roll student from SWCID, is a member of Who's Who and recently was named outstanding business student.

Miss Byndum said, "We the graduates meet a challenge triumphantly" and are now going out to meet new challenges.

She told the crowd that she decided to return to college after working in a bank in Chicago for 11 years. "I was determined to re-enter college."

She said, "When I arrived, I found myself unprepared. The first year was not a bed of roses."

But she told herself, "If I was to give up, I would be a total failure for the rest of my life."

Because of that attitude, Miss Byndum remained at SWCID and noted several changes she has seen.

"We are delighted with the women's dorm," she told the See Grads page 2-A

The Swisher County warrant was issued in connection with a "bad check" Ginnetti wrote to a Tulia car dealer for the purchase of a Corvette, according to an investigator for District Attorney Ron Felty's office, whose district includes Swisher County.

Howard Wright, owner of Howard Wright Motor Co. of Tulia, delivered the car to Ginnetti April 8, "and was given a bad check for about $24,000," DA investigator Tommy Quisenberry said Friday.

According to a Swisher County sheriff's deputy, the car was taken out of state. But the sheriff's office, Brune and Quisenberry would not comment on where the car was taken or where or if it was found.

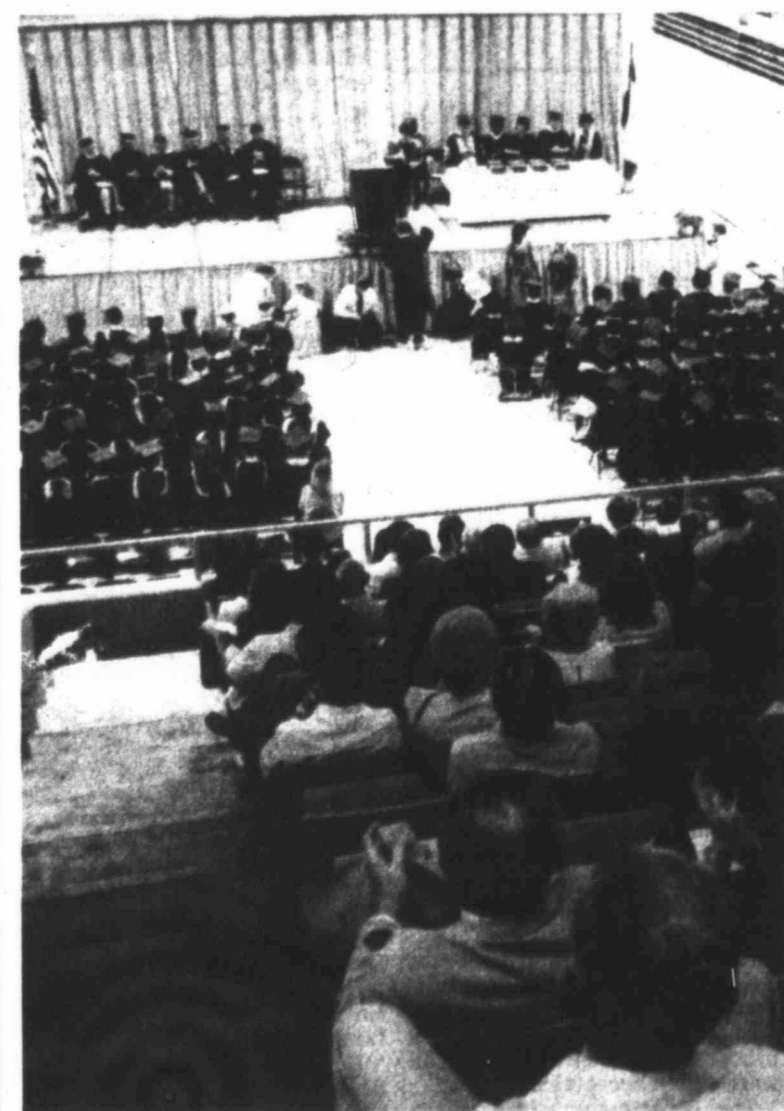

Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard said his deputies are continuing to search for Ginnetti and "are tracking down some leads."

"We are trying to get word to Ginnetti through his associates that he might minimize the situation by surrendering," Standard said.

Both Howard County warrants were issued in connection with an alleged scheme by Ginnetti to defraud the Coahoma State Bank by using "bad titles" to automobiles as collateral for loans, according to a statement made by bank vice president John Ezell that formed the basis of the complaint for the arrest warrant.

According to Ezell's statement, filed in Howard County Justice of the Peace Lewis Hefflin's office, the "potential fraud and loss" to the bank is about $250,000.

Bank officials and state Banking Department general counsel Archie Clayton said the bank's financial loss "would not close the bank."

Weather

Balmy temperatures reign

Clear blue skies and balmy spring-like temperatures covered most of the Lone Star state Friday, but a weak weather trough drifted slowly across West Texas, producing some cloudy patches across parts of north central and northeast Texas.

Friday afternoon temperatures hovered mainly in the 80s across the state, except for some soaring 90-degree readings over the Big Bend area.

Winds over the eastern two-thirds of the state were southerly from 10 to 20 mph. West of the trough, northerly winds of 10 to 20 mph were reported.

The National Weather Service predicts the forecast for Saturday will bring increasing morning cloudiness over the eastern third of state, finally giving way to partly cloudy skies in the afternoon.

In the remainder of the state, Texans should enjoy mostly fair weather and slightly warmer temperatures. The weather service predicted Saturday's highs will be in the 80s and lower 90s statewide, except for temperatures in the lower 100s over the Big Bend area.

Sandbags and earthen barriers went up in flood-plagued Utah and Colorado on Friday, with heavy rains along the West Coast and clouds and showers from the nation's midsection to the Northeast.

High temperatures worked to melt a near-record snowpack in the Rocky Mountains, as spring runoff inundated a city park in Oak Creek, Colo., and threatened homes along Salina Creek in Utah.

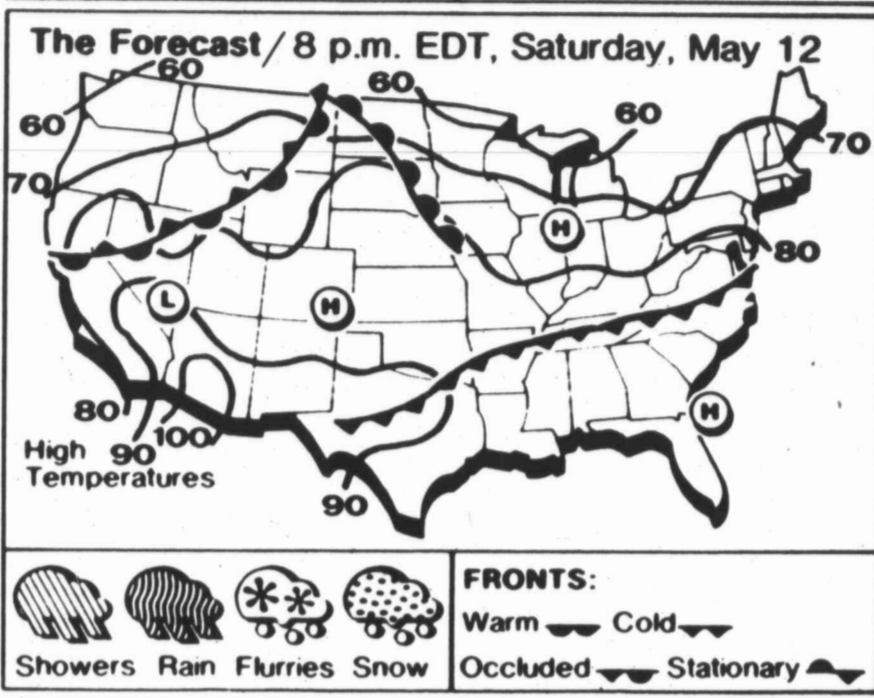

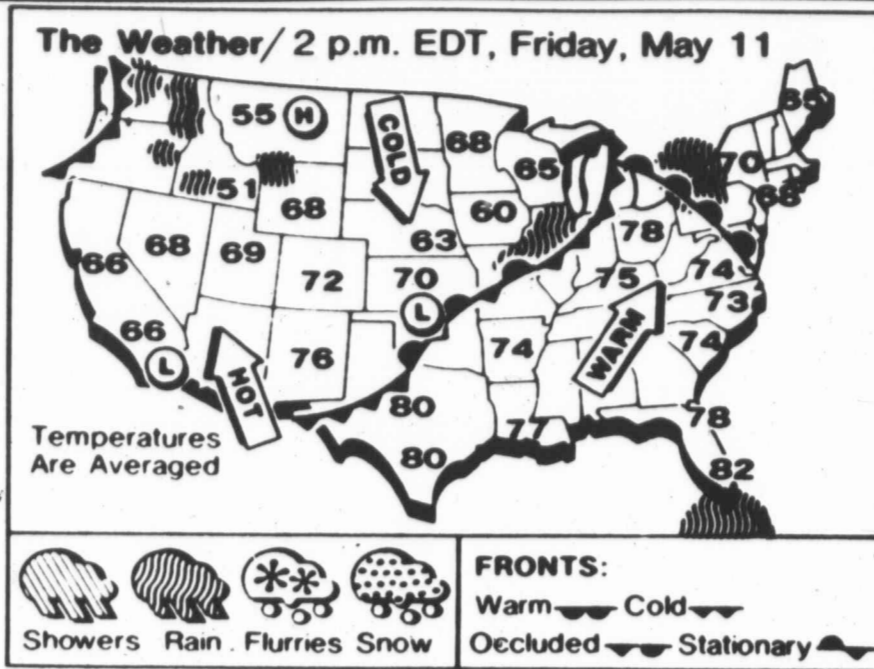

Several homes and the sewer system in the town of Salina, Utah, were threatened Friday as Salina Creek overflowed its banks and temperatures soared into the 80s, and workers were hefting sandbags into place to hold back the stream, sheriff's deputies said.

In Colorado, earthen barricades went up in downtown Oak Creek to keep the creek from flowing in the streets. The city park was already under water.

Elsewhere, cloudy skies and scattered showers prevailed from the northern Rockies to the northern and central Pacific Coast, with locally heavy rain showers along the coast of Washington, Oregon and northern California.

Cloudy skies also extended from the middle Mississippi Valley to the Great Lakes and the middle and northern Atlantic Coast states. Rain showers were mainly over Pennsylvania and New York State, with showers and thunderstorms over northern Missouri and the northern half of Illinois.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 p.m. EDT ranged from 45 degrees at International Falls, Minn., to 95 degrees at Palm Springs, Calif., and Phoenix, Ariz.

Cable TV channel disrupted

Television reception by Big Spring cable channel 13 has been interrupted after an Odessa channel lost its microwave service as the result of a lawsuit.

KWAB TV of Big Spring receives local and network programming from KTPX TV of Odessa, which now is without microwave transmission after Lee Optical Trust withheld service pending litigation.

KTPX said it has purchased its own microwave equipment, which should be installed by the last part of May.

The station said it is attempting to establish a temporary broadcasting link with the Big Spring receiver.

The Odessa station broadcasts NBC network programming and commercial advertising by Big Spring merchants.

The station said it will compensate advertisers for the loss of transmission.

Indicted woman arrested

Kay Jimenez, 22, one of four persons indicted Tuesday by an Abilene federal grand jury on cocaine-related charges, remained in custody in Denver, Colo., today in lieu of $25,000 bond.

Miss Jimenez was arrested Wednesday by FBI authorities in Greeley, Colo., in connection with a federal warrant, FBI agent Guy Lisotto said yesterday.

According to Denver U.S. Marshal Les Weisenhorn, Miss Jimenez is scheduled for transfer to Abilene authorities within the next 10 days for arraignment.

Miss Jimenez was charged by the Abilene federal grand jury with two counts of distribution of cocaine — one-fourth ounce on April 4, 1983 and one-fourth ounce on April 11, 1983.

Stormie ready to go home

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The 6-year-old Texas girl who made medical history when she had the world's first simultaneous heart-liver transplant is ready to go home.

Stormie Jones will return to Cumby, Texas, on Monday in time to celebrate her seventh birthday on May 31, said Jean Morgan, a spokeswoman at Children's Hospital.

"We see no point ... in keeping her here," said Dr. Basil Zitelli, her pediatrician at Children's Hospital. "Her heart and liver are functioning normally. Her activities are normal also. She plays. She goes to the zoo."

The blonde, brown-eyed girl has been living with her mother in an apartment near the hospital since she was discharged March 14.

Cameraman tricked

LONDON — Julie Walters, the effervescent star of the movie "Educating Rita," tricked a cameraman into stripping naked to film her in the nude.

Her elaborate practical joke, reported in the London press, was confirmed by her agent Friday.

Ms. Walters was to play a nude scene in the movie "She'll Be Wearing Pink Pyjamas." But to the surprise of everyone on the set, she refused to strip unless the crew did, saying those were the rules set down by Equity, the British actors' union.

She then gave the incredulous crew the telephone number of what she said was an Equity representative, who confirmed the nudity rule.

The cameraman took all his clothes off, the other men stripped down to their jockey shorts and even producer Adrian Hughes disrobed to the waist.

Only after the scene was shot did Ms. Walters let on that there was no such Equity rule and that the Equity man was an actor friend playing a part in the hoax.

No quitting for this lady

NEW YORK — Martha Graham turned 90 Friday saying she has no intention of retiring from her career in which she has revolutionized modern dance and choreography.

With her contraction-release technique and her sensuous and erotic movements, Miss Graham has been turning the ballet world on its ears almost since the day she began.

Miss Graham choreographed her 173rd ballet, "The Rite of Spring," this year and won standing ovations at the New York State Theater during her winter's season.

When asked about her age and vitality Thursday on public TV's "MacNeil-Lehrer Newshour," Miss Graham replied: "I forget about age. I've never made any — I don't like the idea. It's a nuisance; it's a nuisance in the sense that you can't do what you used to do, but as far as being a — a threat, no, I don't think so, not — not if you have the necessity to go on."

Irving Berlin turns 96

NEW YORK — Irving Berlin, the dean of American songwriters, turned 96 on Friday and marked the day without fanfare, as has been his custom for years.

"He's been feeling pretty good. We all should do as well," said an official at Berlin's publishing house, Irving Berlin Music Co.

Duarte wins El Salvador election; fraud claimed

SAN SALVADOR (AP) — Moderate Jose Napoleon Duarte emerged Friday as the winner of El Salvador's presidential election, defeating ultraconservative Roberto d'Aubuisson. The loser's party called the balloting a "farce" and said it would not accept the results.

Duarte in turn accused d'Aubuisson's Republican Nationalist Alliance, known as ARENA, of "destabilizing the country."

"I call on the people to help me destabilize that machinery they have in place which is based on the death squads and in destabilizing institutions," Duarte said in a telephone interview.

Duarte charged that ARENA's attitude "is helping the guerrillas cause trouble. First they said we were communists and now they say we're from the CIA."

With votes from 12 of El Salvador's 14 provinces counted, official results showed Duarte had received 691,529 votes, or 54.3 percent. D'Aubuisson of the Republican Nationalist Alliance, or ARENA, had 581,222 votes, or 45.7 percent. About 1.5 million people voted.

The last two provinces to be counted, La Union and Usulután, include less than 10 percent of the vote and were not expected to significantly alter the percentages. Duarte, a Christian Democrat, had declared himself the winner Monday.

"We have a free conscience that we won the elections cleanly without dirty tricks," said Ines Duare de Navas, Duarte's daughter and private secretary. "With God's help, my father can bring peace to the country."

D'Aubuisson's running-mate, Hugo Barrera, said, "The elections have no credibility and the results are a farce. In no way do we accept Duarte's victory."

D'Aubuisson was not available for comment. He had said earlier in the week that his party's tabulation showed him to be the winner and claimed election fraud.

Barrera also accused the United States of having a role in determining the election outcome — an allegation that U.S. Embassy officials in San Salvador have denied repeatedly.

"We cannot incorporate ourselves into an illegal government. The one who won here are the CIA and (U.S. Ambassador Thomas R.) Pickering," Barrera said.

He also charged "the Central Election Council and the Christian Democratic Party are traitors who sold out the country for $2.5 million," but did not elaborate.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., has accused the Reagan administration of influencing the election results to favor Duarte.

The Sunday runoff election between Duarte and d'Aubuisson was held because none of eight candidates in a March 25 election received a majority of the votes. Duarte, who won 43.4 percent, and d'Aubuisson, who had 29.7 percent, were the top two finishers.

Leftists boycotted the election, dismissing it as a farce and saying that the only way to hold a fair election in El Salvador is to negotiate a share of power first. The leftists have been fighting a 4½-year civil war to topple the U.S.-backed government.

DUARTE WINS — Moderate Jose Napoleon Duarte claimed victory today in the elections in El Salvador. The win was disputed by Roberto d'Aubuisson who said the balloting was a "farce."

Meanwhile, Col. Adolfo Blandon, army chief-of-staff, urged d'Aubuisson to respect the election results.

Blandon said in an interview that he doubted d'Aubuisson supporters would attempt any "disorders," but warned that if it happened, the army would crack down on ARENA.

Although Duarte won a clear majority, early results showed he fared poorly overall in the countryside.

His margin of victory was entirely dependent on the 125,000-vote margin he won in San Salvador province, where his support has always been strongest and where about 30 percent of the nation's 1.8 million eligible voters live. D'Aubuisson defeated Duarte in eight of the provinces counted so far.

Duarte, who was among founders of the Christian Democratic Party 23 years ago, has struggled for years to reach the presidency by election. He was generally credited with winning the 1972 election, but the military stopped the vote count and his rival was declared the winner.

His 1972 running mate, Guillermo Ungo, went on to become president of the leftist guerrillas' political ally, the Democratic Revolutionary Front.

Duarte was arrested, tortured and exiled shortly afterward following a coup attempt by his supporters. He lived in Venezuela until 1979.

News in brief

Mattox says he'll appeal

AUSTIN — Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox, ordered to stand trial on charges of commercial bribery, said Friday he will take his appeal to higher courts.

"It's all politics," the former U.S. congressman from Dallas said.

State District Judge Mace Thurman refused Friday to dismiss the indictment that accuses Mattox of threatening the bond business of a prominent Houston law firm and scheduled Mattox's trial for Sept. 17.

Roy Minton, Mattox's chief attorney, said an Austin district court would be asked next week to release Mattox from the charges.

He said Mattox would ask a writ of habeas corpus contending that he is being illegally held by a defective indictment.

"If we lose in the district court we will take it to the 3rd Court of Appeals," Minton said.

Body found at blast site

PEABODY, Mass. — The body of a worker was found Friday by cranes sifting through the smoldering rubble of an explosion and fire that leveled a leather company building.

Gerard Raymond Jr., 21, of Haverhill, was repairing the roof of Henry Leather Co. when the building exploded and burst into flames Thursday morning, sending heavy black smoke laced with toxic chemicals into the air.

The body was found about 11 a.m. Friday when two cranes began removing debris at the century-old, six-story wooden building, said Peabody fireman Theodore Thrasivoulas.

Five other roofers were treated for injuries after the blast, and two remained in the burn unit at Massachusetts General Hospital.

More than 150 persons were treated at six hospitals for injuries including burns and inhalation of toxic fumes.

Candidates head west

The political landscape tilted toward the West on Friday as Walter F. Mondale, Gary Hart and the Rev. Jesse Jackson steered their Democratic presidential campaigns through Nebraska and Oregon, site of primary skirmishes next week, en route to California and the biggest delegate prize of all.

In Omaha, Hart criticized President Reagan for proposing inconsistent economic policies, saying "he can do that because actors are trained to say the most shameless things with a straight face."

As Hart left for Oregon, Mondale arrived in Nebraska to condemn Hart's lack of leadership and his position on arms control.

"He has now taken over the past two years seven basic inconsistent positions on the issue of our time. It took him nearly a year to endorse the freeze and then he co-sponsored the so-called build-down proposal, which is at war with the freeze," Mondale said.

Austin, San Antonio unable to call long-distance

HOUSTON (AP) — Telephone customers in the 512 area code, which includes San Antonio and Austin, were unable to make long distance calls Friday because of a computer problem at the AT&T switching center in Austin, AT&T officials said.

"Anybody from anywhere trying to call Austin is not likely to get through," AT&T spokesman Randy Shields said in Houston.

Shields said he had no idea how many customers were affected. "Our people are on the scene attempting to diagnose the problem," he said. "It's a computer problem of some sort. At this point, we don't know when conditions will return to normal but hopefully it will be very quickly."

The problem was first detected about 11 a.m., he said. Customers in the 512 area code would be unable to make long distance calls and callers from outside that area code would be unable to call to there, he said.

It was not certain immediately if calls made within the 512 area were affected, he said.

R for gardens

by Don Richardson

Try these for summer garden color

With the heat of summer, the gardener and many plants tend to go on summer vacation, often leaving the garden unattended and void of care and color. There are some outstanding, colorful summer annuals and perennials which are truly children of the sun and will reward the hot days of summer with color and beauty with a minimum of care.

Vinca or Periwinkle thrives where many flowers would perish. This robust summer annual demands little attention, yet is sure to provide an abundant mass of cheerful color all summer long. A choice of varieties will give the gardener a pale lavender or white. The All-American variety 'Polka-Dot' will serve as a summer ground cover with its low mass of bloom over sunny ground areas. For variety try 'Little Linda', a deep lavender, or 'Delicate', a pink with red center.

Zinnias have a sure summer heat tolerance and ability to grow in adverse conditions. The summer garden is not complete without a colorful mass of this old favorite. Even though Zinnias have been around for many summers, there are many new and improved varieties of vivid colors and durability. Zinnia blooms now range in size from tiny border hybrids to giant Dahlia-flowered types. Gloriosa Daisy is a summer perennial, returning each summer to provide its typical summer daisy blooms of rich orange, yellow, pink and mahogany. The large, graceful heads of blooms of Gloriosa Daisy are supported on strong stems which are excellent for cutting. This popular and colorful perennial demands little attention other than a sunny and prominent location in the summer garden. Developed from the native wildflower called Rudbeckia or Coneflower.

Portulaca is unsurpassed as a summer border or rock garden plant. Often called Moss Rose, this summer annual prefers the sun and will tolerate dry, hot conditions to produce warm, vivid blankets of gay colors. Sow Portulaca seed at 6-week intervals during the summer for continual summer production.

Salvia is a persistent summer annual, producing bright scarlet or blue spikes of bloom throughout the hot summer until cut down by frost. The rich red varieties are most showy when displayed against a background of green or white. The faded blooms of this persistent annual should be cut often to encourage more and abundant color.

Summer or Late Cosmos produces rich yellow or orange blooms in midsummer up until late fall. Its success often spreads to abandoned gardens and sometimes escapes cultivation, demanding little or no care.

'Sunset' and 'Goldcrest' varieties produce brilliant colored blooms which will brighten any garden bed until winter. May require staking in windy areas.

Marigolds may be planted from early spring well into summer. The numerous and improved varieties provide a wide range in size of plants and blooms, as well as color. No other summer annual will provide the rich, clear, vivid yellows and oranges of the French or large Marigold. Few plants will out-produce this carefree summer annual. Plant marigolds continually throughout the summer for a continual and extended bloom into fall. The two-spotted spider mite can be troublesome.

Deciduous trees, including ash, Chinese elm, blackberry, and honey locust grew more than twice as fast with the rubber mulch than these same species without the mulch. Conifers, including Colorado blue spruce, Rocky Mountain juniper, and Ponderosa pine, showed a 6% growth advantage with the mulch. Shrubs, including plum, sand cherry, and cotoneaster, grew 9% faster with the rubber mulch.

Dear Abby

Lingerie-loving nephew is jailbird

DEAR ABBY: My sister's son is the problem I'm writing about. There must be something wrong with him. He steals ladies' underwear. When he was a little boy, he used to steal ladies' underwear from the neighbor's clothesline, but now that's his older, he steals ladies' underwear from stores. He has been in and out of jail for this reason.

My sister took him to two doctors, and they told her there is nothing wrong with him, but they must be mistaken because that's all he ever steals.

Right now, he's sitting in jail again for this very same reason. Now you can't tell me that kid isn't sick in the head.

I'll be looking for your answer.

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Stealing

anything is a crime, but when a male steals ladies' underwear, the act takes on a special meaning.

Your nephew is not necessarily "sick in the head," he's just hung up on ladies' underwear. A psychologist or psychiatrist should explain this to your sister and her son. With treatment, he may no longer be hung up on what's hung up on clotheslines.

Dr. Donohue

Heart pacemaker

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have an artificial heart pacemaker. I have had it for years. It so happens I also have rheumatoid arthritis. Now I am wondering about use of the new TENS unit as a way of alleviating the pain. Can a person use such a device with the pacemaker? — T.P.

No; it can interfere with operation of the pacer. Nor, incidentally, should the unit be used in the larynx area, where it may cause dangerous muscle spasms. TENS is an acronym for transcutaneous electrical neural stimulation. It interferes with the local pain-receiving stimuli. Such units are being used for control of chronic pain.

Focus on the family

Food freshness is the question

Fresh produce is wonderful, but not necessarily better than frozen fruits and vegetables.

For some reason, many people have the idea that frozen food is nutritionally inferior to fresh produce.

It's true that some vitamins and minerals will be lost in processing, but they are also lost by storing fresh food too long and poor cooking methods.

All "fresh" foods, for example, are not equally fresh. If you picked a fresh vegetable from your garden, brought it directly to your kitchen and served it immediately without cooking, it would probably be higher in vitamins than its frozen counterpart.

But the "fresh" vegetable that traveled by truck across the county, sat at room temperature in the grocery store for several days, spent more days in your refrigerator and then was overcooked, probably would not measure up to a frozen product.

Among all methods of food preservation, freezing is one of the least destructive to nutrients.

However, some vitamins can be lost in the processing that occurs before freezing, such as washing, slicing and blanching.

Keeping the nutrients in frozen foods is largely a matter of making sure the temperature is cold enough. Supermarket freezers are designed to maintain temperatures below 0 degrees F. You should keep your home freezer equally cold.

At this temperature, vitamin C in foods will remain virtually the same for a year or longer.

Vitamins are actually lost far more rapidly at temperatures above freezing, she says. The fresh broccoli and leafy green vegetables you keep in the refrigerator will lose half of their vitamin C in five days. At a room temperature of 68 degrees, fresh spinach will lose half of its vitamin C in two days.

Frozen orange juice concentrate is very stable and has only about one percent less vitamin C than fresh orange juice. But one study of refrigerated orange juice sold in cartons found they contained 30 to 64 percent less vitamin C than fresh.

Overcooking food will also cause high nutrient loss. In most cases, the greatest loss occurs during the cooking at home, rather than the storage or commercial processing.

To minimize the loss of vitamin C, folic acid and other heat-sensitive vitamins, don't cook vegetables any longer than absolutely necessary.

It's also best to cook in very little water or steam foods to reduce the loss of nutrients that dissolve in water. If you must cook directly in water, use the cooking water or canning liquid to prepare other foods such as soup or gravy, rather than throwing it away.

Freezing leads to some minimal nutrient loss, but it also provides us with year-round supplies of foods that are close to fresh and sometimes even more nutritious.

How do processed foods compare with fresh in terms of nutrient content?

To find out, the National Food Processors Association Research Laboratories has been testing the nutrient content of canned, fresh and frozen foods prepared for the dinner plate. This research shows that differences in nutrient contents of fruits and vegetables are small regardless of processing or preparation methods.

In a few instances, certain nutrients are present at higher levels in cooked fresh vegetables.

Area students hear enterprise speech 30 students attend Rotary

Free enterprise was the topic of Greater Big Spring Rotary Club luncheon Friday in the Cactus Room at Howard College.

Thirty area high school students were special guests at the meeting which featured speaker Delbert Downing of Snyder.

Among students attending the event were 20 Big Spring High School students, five Forsan and five Coahoma students. All were members of government or free enterprise classes.

Downing was born on a farm and his speeches include remembrances of a one room school, a small high school and his day at Rice University.

Miss Corwin wins essay contest

Melinda Corwin, a Big Spring High School senior, wrote the winning essay in a Private Property Week contest sponsored by the Big Spring Board of Realtors.

Janell Davis, board president, made the announcement recently. The essay topic was a quotation attributed to Abraham Lincoln which reads, "The strength of a nation lies in the homes of its people."

Students were asked to interpret this quotation as it related to their future. The contest was held as part of the Big Spring board's observance of Private Property Week April 8-14.

Miss Corwin is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Corwin of 1200 E. 17th. She is ranked third in her graduating class and is president of the National Honor Society.

She is also president of the band, treasurer of the choir, vice-president of the Spanish Club, and treasurer of the senior class.

During high school she was active in speech, all-region band, all-region orchestra, all-region choir, Key Club and the handbell choir at her church.

She plans to attend Texas Tech University in Lubbock, majoring in speech pathology.

Miss Corwin will represent Big Spring in a statewide contest sponsored by the Texas Association of Realtors. State winners advance to national competition. National winners receive a trophy, a $1,000 savings bond and an expense-paid trip to the Association's convention this November in Honolulu.

Bonus gap eyed

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. Chairman Philip Caldwell has promised his middle-level employees the automaker will do something about the gap between their lack of bonuses for 1983 and the $1.4 million he was paid, but he isn't saying what.

"We are mindful of the issues you're talking about," Caldwell said at Ford's 29th annual stockholders meeting Thursday.

The chairman would not promise extra pay for the employees, nor would he say what plans Ford had in mind. "There will be some changes," he said.

Caldwell had been told that Ford's directors voted more than $80 million in bonuses last year to the company's top 6,035 employees, but the money did not reach down far enough to white-collar employees who gave up raises from 1980-1982 when Ford was struggling through the auto sales slump and lost $3.2 billion.

New computer maker

NEW YORK (AP) — Hewlett-Packard Co. has joined the list of major computer makers introducing portable computers, a market expected to balloon to 10 times its current size by 1986.

Hewlett-Packard's machine, simply called the Portable, carries a suggested retail price of $2,995 — the high end of the price range for portable computers.

But the company asserted Thursday that its machine is the only one to have the performance and capability of a sophisticated desktop computer in a truly portable format that weighs less than nine pounds.

Hewlett-Packard said Lotus Development Corp.'s 1-2-3 — a best-selling financial-analysis program — already is built into its portable, as is a word-processing program.

Mobil earnings down

NEW YORK (AP) — Mobil Corp. says its earnings will be reduced by about $195 million in the second half of this year and by about $360 million in 1985, reflecting the expenses of its proposed $5.7 billion takeover of Superior Oil Co.

Mobil had a profit of $1.5 billion last year, on revenue of $54.6 billion.

Also Thursday, Moody's Investors Service Inc. reduced Mobil's bond rating, citing the increased debt burden the acquisition would impose on the company. Last month, Standard & Poor's Corp. took similar action.

Loans subject to same limits as contributions

By CHANGING TIMES
The Kiplinger Magazine

Q: I want to lend money to a candidate for federal office in this year's election. Is there a limit on the amount I am permitted to lend?

A: According to the Federal Election Campaign Act, loans are subject to the same limits as contributions. In fact, they are treated as contributions until repaid. An individual is permitted to contribute up to $1,000 to each federal candidate per election, up to $20,000 to a national party committee and up to $5,000 to any other political committee, per calendar year. The total yearly allowance for an individual's campaign-related contributions is $25,000.

If you have further questions about campaign contributions, you can call the Federal Election Commission toll free at 800 424-9530.

prosecution. Arizona, however, imposed penalties of 30 percent over the amount due.

Arizona, Idaho, Missouri and North Dakota programs were limited to undiscovered nonfilers. Alabama and Massachusetts extended amnesty to certain delinquent taxpayers as well as to those who had failed to file returns. In none of those states were payments of taxes and interest ever waived. To date, Massachusetts has collected more than $62 million in back taxes.

Most states have arrangements for exchanging tax information with the IRS.

The IRS and Congress are studying the possibility of a one-time tax-amnesty program for federal taxes.

Local funeral home honored by association

Nalley-Pickle and Welch Funeral Home in Big Spring was recently honored by the International Order of the Golden Rule for being a member of the association for 25 years.

A 25-year membership plaque was presented to Ernest and Mary Lynn Welch at the OGR International Conference in San Francisco, Calif., April 2.

The International Order of the Golden Rule is an association of funeral homes with approximately 1200 members selected by invitation from communities throughout the world. Admission to membership is predicated upon a screening process.

OGR executive director Dale L. Rollings said, "We are proud to have Nalley-Pickle and Welch Funeral Home as a member of the association and congratulate the firm on its 25th year of membership."

Q: I recently canceled a policy with a small health insurance company. The policy was six months old, but I had paid for an entire year of coverage and expected some kind of refund. I was told by the company that it does not make refunds on cancellations. Is that standard practice? Do I have any recourse?

A: Although there doesn't seem to be a hard and fast rule among health insurers concerning refunds on cancellations, the Health Insurance Association of America says that normally, once a premium is paid, the premium is considered earned.

Some companies look at extenuating circumstances before refusing or granting a refund. One of the larger health insurance companies, Mutual of Omaha, will usually grant a refund to someone who wants to switch from an individual policy to a group policy but isn't likely to refund money when a policy is being canceled in favor of a competitor's policy.

If you have a complaint concerning a refund, first write to the head of the claims department. If the matter is not handled to your satisfaction, write to the insurance commissioner's office in your state capital, stating your complaint and what steps you have already taken.

Q: I've heard that various states have had tax-amnesty programs. If tax cheaters take advantage of those programs, does that mean they will be forgiven all the taxes they have failed to pay?

A: Six states — Alabama, Arizona, Idaho, Massachusetts, Missouri and North Dakota — have offered tax-amnesty programs to state taxpayers.

Although each program varied in size and scope, most gave residents a certain time period in which to pay delinquent taxes without being subject to civil fines or criminal

Reagan becomes focus of Olympic attack

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union on Friday made President Reagan the focus of its press campaign against the Los Angeles Olympics, accusing him of condoning terrorism and protecting "thugs" to drive Soviet athletes away from the Summer Games.

The list of Communist allies falling in line with the Kremlin boycott grew to include Vietnam, and there were signs that other Soviet-aligned nations might also refuse to attend the Olympics, July 28-Aug. 12.

The pro-Soviet government in Mozambique issued a statement that repeated Soviet complaints and charges about the Olympics preparations and said the Soviet decision to pull out was "well grounded and justified," the official news agency Tass reported.

Similar statements have been issued by Poland and Mongolia, but so far those nations have not moved to join East Germany and Bulgaria in supporting the Soviet boycott.

An Olympics official from Mexico flew into Moscow on Friday hoping to meet with Soviet Olympics chief Marat Gramov, who also is head of the government sports committee.

But a representative of the Soviet national Olympic committee declined to say when or if Mario Vasquez Rana, president of the Association of National Olympic Committees, might meet with Gramov.

The Soviet airline Aeroflot said Vasquez Rana arrived on a private plane. He could not be reached immediately at the hotel where he was scheduled to stay for a visit that had been arranged before the Soviets announced Tuesday that they were pulling out of the Olympics.

The Soviets said they were cancelling their participation because the United States allegedly failed to guarantee the security of their athletes and also charged U.S. officials were breaking the Olympic charter.

Gramov, meanwhile, scheduled a news conference for Soviet and foreign journalists Monday. But foreign ministry officials who telephoned with news of the press conference did not elaborate on what Gramov might say.

Although Olympics and sports committee officials have been reluctant to discuss the boycott decision with Western reporters, the Soviet press kept up a constant stream of angry commentary on the subject.

On Friday, Tass launched a personal attack on Reagan, placing most of the blame for the Soviet walkout on the president.

The official news agency called Reagan's regrets over the Soviet pullout "hypocritical" and said such statements are "a common gimmick in Washington. The Reagan administration resorts to it every time it tries to absolve itself of responsibility for another anti-Soviet provocation prepared with its back-stage participation."

Among such "provocations," Tass charged, were an explosion at the Aeroflot office in New York and a firebomb that was thrown over the fence at a Soviet U.N. Mission residence also in New York last year.

The agency claimed that "with the blessing of the administration," anti-Soviet protest groups "set themselves the task of creating 'unbearable conditions' for Soviet sportsmen."

"Instead of checking overweened terrorists, guaranteeing the security of all sportsmen, creating normal conditions for the Games, the U.S. administration actually assumed the protection of the thugs," Tass said.

The Communist youth paper "Komsomolskaya Pravda" accused the Reagan administration of "planning to turn the (Olympic) Games into a major anti-Soviet show" and the newspaper "Sovetskaya Rossiya" added:

"By frustrating the U.S.S.R.'s participation in the 23rd Olympic Games, the Reagan administration has thus punished the athletes."

"Many important provisions of the Olympic charter have been violated and the flywheel of anti-Soviet propaganda is being sped up," Tass quoted Alexander Novikov, chairman of the Soviet wrestling federation, as saying.

Despite double bogey

Barr retains lead in Nelson

DALLAS (AP) — Canadian Dave Barr, despite a double bogey on the 18th hole, retained a one-shot lead Friday in the windblown second round of the $400,000 Byron Nelson Classic that included a double eagle by Hal Sutton.

"You hate to ruin your day like that," the 32-year-old Barr said after his 2-over-par 73.

"You work so hard ... you're out there grinding on it ... and then you blow it on one hole. That leaves a bad taste in your mouth," Barr said.

Barr, whose only victory in a seven-year PGA Tour career came in the 1981 Quad Cities Open, finished 36 holes over the 7,002-yard Las Colinas Sports Club course in 140, 2-under-par.

A single stroke off the pace at the tournament's halfway point — and the only others able to break par for 36 holes in the difficult winds — were a pair of former Masters champions, Craig Stadler and George Archer, and longshot Mike Smith.

Stadler matched par 71 and Archer had a 69. Smith, who hasn't made expenses in a four-year Tour career, pitched in from 45 yards for a birdie on the 18th that finished off a 67, matching the best round of the tournament.

Lee Trevino, 44 and a non-winner for three long seasons, needed only a round of 70 to get himself in the title chase. Trevino, taking a break from his television activities, was at 142, even par and only two shots back with two rounds to go in the chase for a $72,000 first prize.

"The wind was very, very difficult," Trevino said. "It was hard work. Man, I'm tired. The only thing I got out of it was chapped lips."

He was tied with Frank Connor, Jay Haas and Australian newcomer Wayne Grady. Connor shot 69, Haas 72 and Grady 74.

PGA champion Sutton holed a 3-wood second shot for his double eagle — the first on the American Tour in two years — on the 532-yard seventh hole, finished with a 68 and was at 143.

Tom Watson, a four-time winner of this event and a five-time British Open champion, had a 72 and was at 145. Ben Crenshaw, the new Masters champion and defending titleholder here, had the same, 72-145.

Barr, who sandwiched a 10-foot birdie putt on the second hole between bogeys on the first and third, got back to even par with a 40-foot putt on the tough 14th hole.

He was cruising in with a three-shot lead until he drove into the trees on the right of the 18th fairway. His second shot, over the trees, flew the green and caught a bunker. He blasted out to about 18 feet, ran his first putt four feet beyond the hole and missed it coming back.

Reds roll to fifth straight, 4-3

CINCINNATI (AP) — Dave Parker extended his hitting streak to 12 games with an RBI single and Cesar Cedeno drilled a two-run homer Friday night to send the surging Cincinnati Reds to a 4-3 win in the St. Louis Cardinals for their fifth straight victory.

Jeff Russell, 2-3, scattered five hits over six innings, and reliever Bill Scherrer pitched out of a jam with no outs and runners in scoring position in the seventh to give the Reds their 12th victory in the last 13 games. John Franco pitched the ninth for his third save.

The Reds scored all four runs off starter Dave LaPoint, 4-4, who faltered in an attempt to post his fourth straight victory.

Eddie Milner reached on an infield single, stole second and scored on Parker's first-inning single to put Cincinnati ahead to stay.

Cedeno singled to start the Reds' second, took third on Nick Esasky's single and scored on LaPoint's balk.

Parker collected the second of his three singles leading off the fourth and scored as Cedeno followed with his second homer of the season, boosting the Reds' lead to 4-0.

In the St. Louis fifth, the Cardinals cut the Cincinnati lead to 4-2 as Ken Oberkfell walked and rookie catcher Tom Nieto, playing in only his second major league game, drilled his first major league homer. In the Cardinal sixth, George Hendrick walked, took third on Andy Van Slyke's double and scored on David Green's groundout to cut the gap to 4-3.

The Cardinals threatened to take the lead in the seventh when Nieto singled for his third hit of the game and took third on Steve Braun's pinch-hit double off reliever Ted Power with none out. But Scherrer retired the next three batters on a line-out, a pop up and a fly ball and went on to record his second save.

Oilers happy to break jinx

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — The Edmonton Oilers have put an end to the jinx. They've asserted themselves in a Stanley Cup final. And they've answered the detractors who say they can't win tight-checking games.

The Oilers did all of that in one night with their 1-0 victory over the New York Islanders in the first game of the Stanley Cup finals. Game 2 of the best-of-seven National Hockey League championship series between the four-time champion Islanders and the Oilers will be here Saturday night.

Edmonton hadn't beaten the Islanders since Dec. 13, 1981. New York had won 10 straight, including all four games of last year's Cup finals, in that span.

But the goaltending of Grant Fuhr, a surprisingly solid defense, fine two-way play by the forwards and Kevin McClelland's goal lifted the Oilers into the series lead.

"We're one game closer to our goal, the Stanley Cup," said McClelland, who joined the Oilers in midseason after being acquired from Pittsburgh. "One goal won this game and we showed we can play and win a 1-0 game. Maybe the next one will be a shootout and we'll need six goals to win."

Wayne Gretzky, who has not scored a goal in final-round competition, thinks the Oilers have displayed the kind of versatility a champion must have.

"We're criticized for being an offensive team," said Gretzky, the greatest offensive threat of them all. "But we try to keep the puck in the other team's zone all night.

Sprint record may possibly fall at State

AUSTIN (AP) — Roy Martin of Dallas Roosevelt, perhaps the most exciting Texas high school sprinter since Johnny "Lam" Jones, will fight in on the national 200-meter dash record at the state track and field meet Saturday.

Martin, a junior, was voted the outstanding athlete last month at the Texas Relays, which is primarily a college meet, and ran a personal season best of 20.36 seconds in the regional 200 last week.

The national high school record in the 200 is 20.5, set by Dwayne Evans of Phoenix, Ariz., in 1976. That was the same year Jones, just out of high school at Lampassas, won a gold medal as a member of the U.S. Olympic 400-meter relay team.

The 74th annual state track and field meet opened Friday with team champions to be determined in Class 3A and 4A. Finals are scheduled on Saturday in A, 2A and 5A.

The 200 on Saturday is set for 2:10 p.m. Martin also will anchor Roosevelt's 400- and 1,600-meter relay teams. The 400 relay is set for 12:40 p.m. and the 1,600 relay is the closing event at 3 p.m.

Sprinters Reginald Webb of Wilmer-Hutchins, 10.26, and Jason Leech of Odessa Permian, 10.27, had the best regional times in the 100 meters. The national record is 10.2.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The morning is a good time to investigate what others are expecting of you as well as uncovering what your hopes are to get from them. Devise a long-term plan of action.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) The morning is ideal to finish arrangements made with partners, and tonight you find there is delay in keeping promises.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Know what it is that a dynamic partner wants of you and handle the matter well. Later, assist mate with a problem.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Schedule your duties wisely in the morning and don't fret if a friend is a little delinquent in the afternoon.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Be sure to use tact at home in the morning and find better ways of enjoying yourself. Steer clear of extravagance.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Studying proven precepts in the morning can be beneficial to you. One who is restricted could make an unpleasant remark, but ignore.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Try to cut down on expenses in the morning, and then handle correspondence and other desk work. Communicate with friends.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Morning is fine for self-improvement; later, handle whatever is practical in a wise way. Solve that problem you have with a friend.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) Forget that private anxiety in the morning and then you can handle outside affairs well. Be kind at home.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be sure you study your personal desires well and then know how to gain them with real wisdom. Be happy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Plan how to make a better impression on others and then pursue your fondest wishes and gain them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Maintain the philosophy you profess in the morning. You find more respect in the outside world. Show that you are loyal.

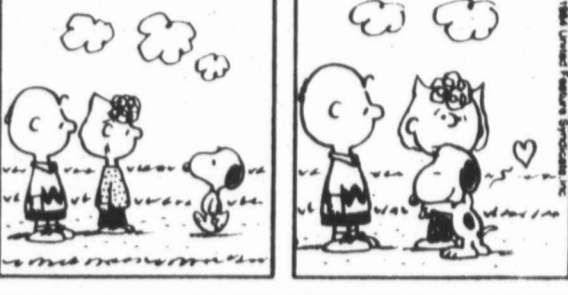

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Ideal morning for getting new ideas, but later you find it hard to go after some goal that appeals to you; perseverance wins out.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who will have the ability to comprehend the workings of the human mind. Upon reaching maturity your progeny will understand the importance of doing more for self and accomplishing a great deal. Teach to be kind.
