Work ongoing at new feedyard north of Dawn

By SHELLY SCHILLING
Staff Writer

At first glance you would never know that progress is being made north of Dawn, with pipes and gravel strewn around a quarter section of land, but that is exactly what is happening.

Guy Walker, President and General Manager, and 14 other stockholders in The Dawn Custom Cattle Feeders, Inc., are anxiously awaiting the final construction phase and the arrival of the first load of cattle to be processed at their new facility.

The first phase of construction, which can accommodate 9,000 head of cattle, is almost complete and the next phase will soon follow. The completed yard will hold 18,000 head.

Walker is very optimistic about the new operation. "Hereford has been good to us. Everyone I have spoken to from area feedlots has been very nice and helpful," he said.

"We have 15 stockholders involved in the Custom Cattle Feeders. All but two are from Deaf Smith or Randall counties," he said.

Walker and his wife Carol are overseeing the construction and will continue to manage the enterprise when it is in full swing.

"Working together is not new to us," Carol said. "We worked together on the 101 Ranch South East of Hereford for years." He and his family have owned and operated the ranch for many years.

When asked what type of planning was involved, Carol said, "We originally came up with the idea on the ride back from the San Antonio Stock Show last year. Then we tossed the idea around for a while."

"After we decided we wanted to do it, the actual planning period took six to nine months," Walker said.

Consultation for the project was a big endeavor. The Walkers talked with everyone they knew who had any ties with a feeding operation.

"We talked to everyone," Walker said with a laugh. "We contacted anyone who knew anything."

The biggest and maybe the most important part of the process is the building of the saucer shaped lagoon which holds the run off water.

There have been many changes that the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) is requiring of feedlots and one of them is lining water holding areas.

"We had to build a lagoon that is completely lined to ensure that proper evaporation can take place," he said.

Unique to the Dawn feedlot is a trench type ditch that runs along the edge of the lagoon. The water first flows into the ditch and the sediment settles to the bottom. The overflow then goes into the big lagoon.

The trench is then cleaned out with a front end loader. This helps cut down on the build up of solids that would otherwise go into the lagoon.

Another change will be in the documentation submitted on the feedmill. "We will be required to keep up with the air emissions from the mill," Walker said.

The construction currently employs about 35 people and after the business is up and running it will employ about 15 to 20 people which will include management.

Feed rations for the operation will consist of silage and corn. They also have the capability to feed milo.

"If milo becomes comparable to corn we could be feeding milo," Walker said. He also said that they will purchase most of their feed from area farmers.

"This area will be able to accommodate the business," he said.

"We have the proper climate and natural assets to have a good operation."

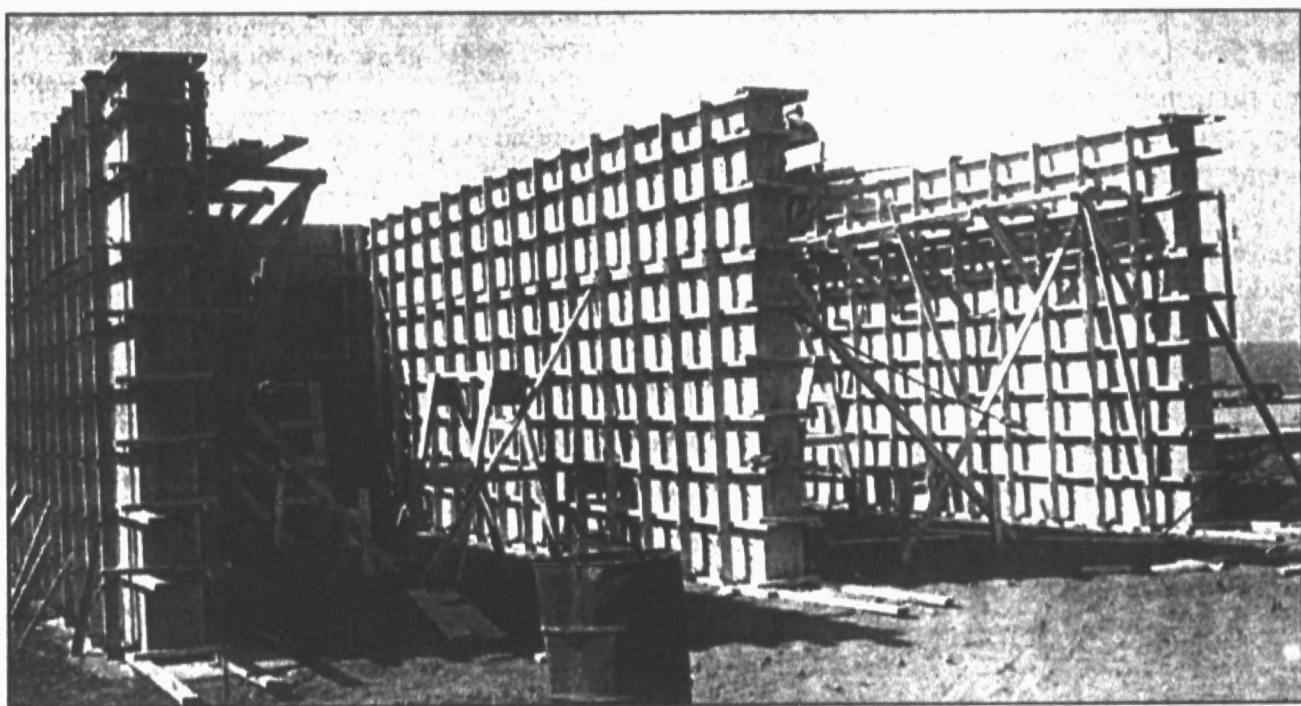

The current cattle market is slightly up but is nothing compared to what it has been, but Walker is very sure the market will strengthen.

"We expected the dip in the market but we are looking down the road. We expect it will start coming back. We are here for the long haul," he said.

"The lack of moisture this winter has hurt the cattle feeding industry, but we are optimistic that things are going to get better," he said when asked about this year's winter weather.

Walker and his wife are very enthusiastic about the new venture and are ready to begin the operation in a permanent setting. The couple are now running the operation from a temporary office located at Panhandle Milling.

Building forms for the new feed mill

Workers are busy building forms for a new feed mill which will be part of Dawn Custom Cattle Feeders, Inc. The new feeding operation is currently under construction and is located north of Dawn. It will soon be completed and ready to receive cattle. The facility will accommodate 18,000 animals.

DSEC to hold annual meet

Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative members will receive capital credit refunds from 1980, 1981 and a portion of 1982 totaling $1.5 million at the corporation's annual meeting and dinner, set for Tuesday, March 14.

The meeting will begin at 5 p.m. in the Bull Barn.

A fish, chicken and beef dinner will be served and the Florida Boys will provide entertainment.

A short business meeting will also be held to elect two directors. Incumbent Jerry Roberts and nominee Morris Blankenship are candidates for Position 1, while incumbent Wendol Christian and nominee Leon Ware are running for Position 2.

HJH's Tan Nguyen claims bee victory

By BECKY CAMP
Lifestyle Editor

Tan Nguyen, a 13-year-old seventh grader at Hereford Junior High, captured the Deaf Smith County Spelling Bee title Friday for the second year in a row.

Tan, the son of Day and Sang Nguyen, will advance to the Regional Bee April 8 on the West Texas A&M University campus. He placed second at region last year.

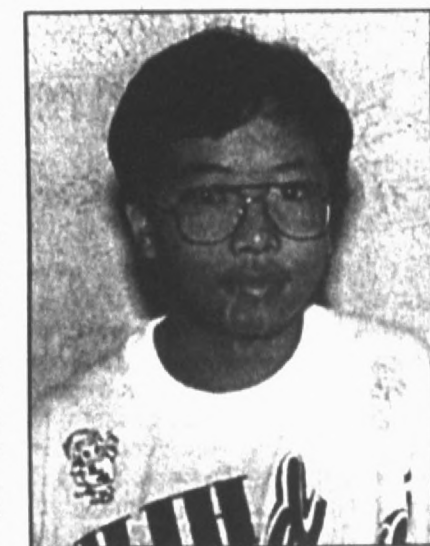

Tan won the county bee in competition against 17 other Senior Bee spellers, from the sixth through the eighth grades, and the Junior Bee winner from Thursday, Lacie Young, a fourth grader at Nazarene Christian Academy.

Tan defeated Erin Louder in the 13th round by correctly spelling "rhubarb" after Erin failed to do so, then he correctly spelled "candelabra."

For winning the championship, Tan received two $50 bonds, one from First National Bank and one from Deaf Smith Rural Electric Coop.

Erin, daughter of Steve and Pam Louder, was declared the second place finisher. Third place went to Eddie Trotter, son of Johnny and Dee Anne Trotter, who spelled successfully until the tenth round. Five spellers started the 10th round.

Erin, a sixth grader at Community Christian School, was awarded a $50 bond from West Texas Rural Telephone for finishing as runner up.

TAN NGUYEN

As third place finisher Eddie, who is a sixth grader at Nazarene Christian Academy, received a $25 share account at Hereford Texas Federal Credit Union.

Moses Perez from Shirley finished fourth in the competition Friday and Brigham Brown from West Central finished fifth.

The county bee is sponsored by The Hereford Brand and publisher Speedy Nieman serves as bee director.

The regional bee will be sponsored by the Amarillo Globe-News and WTA&M. That winner will advance to the National Spelling Bee in Washington, D.C.

House approves property rights measure on final vote of 277-148

By H. JOSEF HEBERT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The deregulation-minded House wants to compensate people when environmental restrictions devalue their property, but the sentiment is not as clear in the Senate.

The property rights bill, which the House approved 277-148 on Friday, is aimed at providing relief for landowners whose property values are reduced because of wetlands or endangered species-protection regulations.

"Americans feel they are being bombarded by dumb regulations," said Republican Whip Tom DeLay of Texas. He said he is optimistic some form of property rights legislation would also emerge from the Senate.

The Private Property Protection

Act would require a federal agency to compensate landowners if an action to preserve wetlands or endangered species reduces the land's value by at least 20 percent.

The measure would broaden the traditional definition courts have given to a "regulatory taking" of property. Courts generally have ruled there is no government "taking" unless all value of the property is lost.

The legislation's prospects in the Senate aren't clear. Senators have introduced several property-rights proposals more modest than the House version, but none has been examined closely.

Environmentalists predicted that if the House bill - part of the GOP's "Contract With America" agenda - survives in the Senate it could amount to destroying wetlands and endangered species protection programs. They reason that agencies would be reluctant to press enforcement, fearing compensation claims they could not afford to pay.

The bill limits the compensation requirement to wetlands and endangered species protection regulations as well as federal actions involving distribution of water rights - an issue especially important in the West.

A property owner could seek compensation for land targeted by the regulations on endangered species or wetlands, or where a rancher is deprived of water rights as long as the loss is at least 20 percent of the property's market value.

In two days of debate, supporters of the bill produced a litany of "horror stories" in which small landowners were deprived of maximum use of their land by federal agencies because the land was declared a wetland or habitat for an endangered species.

"People believe government no longer is their servant - it's their master," said Rep. Billy Tauzin, D-La.

While the bill's supporters argued the issue was one of constitutional rights to hold and maintain property, critics said the aim was to gut species and wetland protection laws.

"Stop the environmental laws ... that's what this is really all about," Rep. Bruce Vento, D-Minn., declared.

Democrats also argued that claims could cost the government billions of dollars and force agencies to cut back needed programs since payments must come out of their budgets.

"It's a blank check," said Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich.

Colorado senator changes parties

WASHINGTON (AP) - Colorado Sen. Ben Nighthorse Campbell on Friday defected to the Republican Party, saying the successful Democratic effort to kill the balanced budget amendment convinced him he no longer fit in with the Democrats.

"The decision is not being done out of vindictiveness or impulsiveness or anything of the sort," Campbell told a news conference in Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole's office.

Campbell said he had been mulling a switch for about a month. The defeat of the budget amendment, which Campbell has long supported, convinced the colorful moderate "I can no longer represent the agenda of the party, although I certainly agree with many of the things that Democrats stand for."

For example, he said he would aggressively support school lunch programs "because that was sometime the only meal I got when I was a kid." Some Republicans want to turn authority for the program over to the states. And Campbell said he would remain an advocate of abortion rights.

"I've always been considered a moderate to the consternation of the left wing of the Democratic Party," he said. "I imagine my continued moderation will be now to the consternation to the right wing of the Republican Party."

Campbell said he knew the "usual accusations" of "traitor and sellout" would be hurled at him, but he said he extracted no promises from Dole. For Senate Republicans, the announcement offered a moment of celebration the morning after a bitter setback on perhaps the party's top legislative issue.

Just before Campbell's announcement, the Republican National Committee began running radio ads against six Democratic senators who voted for the balanced budget amendment last year but helped kill it Thursday.

Mayor Josserand files for re-election

Hereford Mayor Bob Josserand confirmed his announced intention to seek re-election when he filed last week for a place on the May 6 municipal election ballot.

Josserand is the second incumbent to file for re-election to the City Commission.

Place 1 Commissioner Silvana Juarez previously turned in her filing documents.

Another seat on the commission will be filed in the May election. A commissioner for Place 3, held by Dennis Hicks until his resignation, also will be elected.

Scott Hall was appointed by the commission to complete the unexpired term. He will take the oath of office at the regular City Commission meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m.

Hereford Independent School District voters will elect trustees for two places on the board on May 6.

Cherry Holt McWhorter has filed for the District 5 seat held by Steve Wright. He has filed for re-election.

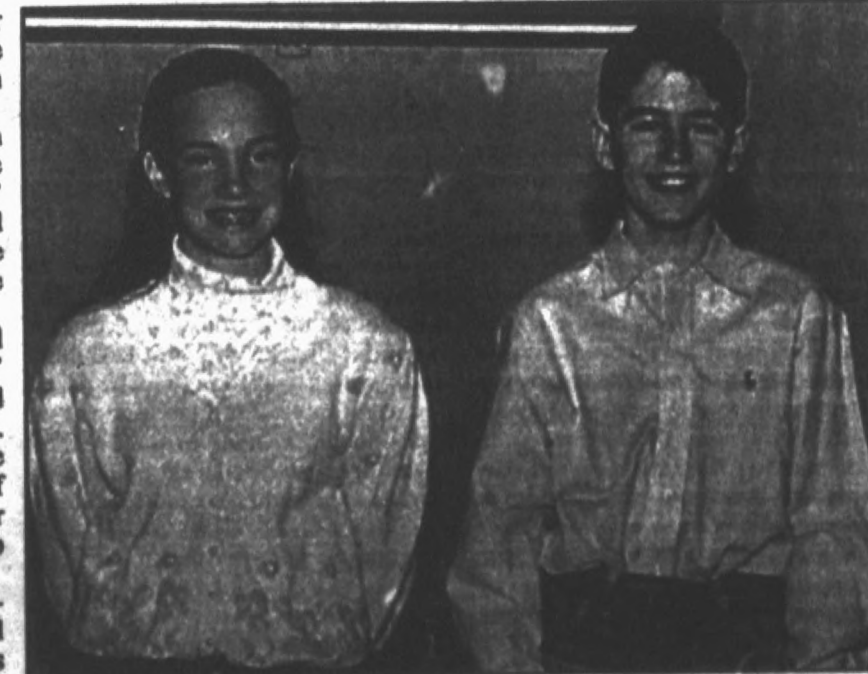

District 4 is represented by Mike Veazey, who has said he will not be a candidate for re-election.

Last day for filing for either city or school election is March 22.

An election will be held on May 6, also by the Deaf Smith County Hospital District.

Incumbent Mel Manchec has filed papers for re-election to the board. Incumbents Jo Beth Shackelford and Scott Keeling have taken documents but had not returned them Friday afternoon.

City candidates will file in the office of the city secretary. HISD candidates file in the office of the superintendent. DSCHD filing is in the administrative offices of Hereford Regional Medical Center.

Local Roundup

City posts agenda

A new city commissioner, Scott Hall, will take the oath of office at the beginning of the Hereford City Commission meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m. Other agenda items for the meeting include a public hearing on designation of a Hereford enterprise zone and consideration of a resolution related to Panhandle-Plains Higher Education Authority. The commission also will consider an ordinance calling for closing Veteran's Park from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. daily.

Special county meeting Tuesday

The Deaf Smith County Commissioners Court will meet in special session at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the county courthouse. There are two items on the agenda for the session -- to receive public input concerning designation of an Enterprise Zone and an Reinvestment Zone, and to consider an order adopting the two zones. The session is open to the public.

Child board to meet

The Deaf Smith County Child Welfare Board will meet in regular session on Tuesday in the courthouse. The session will be at 1:30 p.m. and is open to the public. On the agenda is a discussion of child abuse awareness.

Juvenile board meeting set

The Deaf Smith County Juvenile Board will hold its regular monthly meeting at 10:30 a.m. Thursday, March 9, in the county courthouse. It is open to the public. On the agenda is action to certify the Deaf Smith County Youth Home for 1995, plus office reports.

TAAS testing this week

The exit level Texas Assessment of Academic Skills will be administered this week. The writing test will be on Tuesday, with mathematics on Wednesday and reading on Thursday. It is important that all 10th grade students and any student re-taking the TAAS be present these days. Students in grades 4 and 8 also will take the writing test on Tuesday. Parents are encouraged to help their children prepare for the test with plenty of rest the night before, a good healthy breakfast before school and encouraging words. The tests are not timed.

JSEC seminar scheduled

The Job Service Employer Committee, an advisory group to the Texas Employment Commission, will host a lunch-time seminar to be held from noon to 1 p.m. on Tuesday in the game room on the west end of the Community Center. The program will be given by Cliff Golden, vocational placement coordinator for the Hereford Independent School District, who will speak on School-to-Work programming. Participants should bring a sack lunch. Coffee will be provided. There is no charge, but reservations must be made by calling Isabel or Suzanne at 364-8600.

Dr. Haysom announces plans to leave Hereford

Dr. Howard Haysom this week announced that he will leave Hereford at the end of June to complete his residency in family practice at the University of Texas at Galveston.

Haysom announced that his practice will be continued by Dr. Stephen Lawlis, beginning July 1, 1995. Dr. Lawlis will complete his residency in internal medicine at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and will be board certified.

"It is with heartfelt anguish that I leave Hereford," said Dr. Haysom. "I believe God has given me a mission that requires me to go back into training and complete my residency."

"Nancy and I have made so many fine friends. We have enjoyed the Caprock Canyons, pheasant hunting, and family trips to the New Mexico mountains, but it is the over-riding friendship of the people of Hereford that we remember most."

Dr. Haysom said Dr. Lawlis' credentials were impressive. "I have known him for about one year. He graduated in the top five percent of his class at Texas Tech Medical School. He had earned a master's degree in civil engineering at the University of Texas before going to medical school."

"I hope my patients and all of Hereford will welcome Dr. Lawlis and his family. It is without hesitation that I recommend him to Hereford," concluded Dr. Haysom.

Endeavour aims repaired telescopes at star clusters

By MIKE DRAGO

Associated Press Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) - Endeavour's ultraviolet telescopes spied on distant star clusters and supernovas today after ground controllers worked out kinks in pointing the instruments.

Two astronaut-astronomers aboard Endeavour had trouble Friday aiming the telescopes, which were supposed to lock onto their targets via computer but wound up drifting instead.

So Ronald Parise and Samuel Durrance resorted to manually pointing one of the three telescopes, just as they did during the telescopes' trouble-plagued maiden voyage in 1990.

Mission scientists said the situation this time didn't seem as severe, and NASA engineer Dave Jacobson said changes in operating procedures should clear up the drifting problem. Ground controllers were also working on ways to fine-tune the pointing.

There appeared to be little trouble early today as the telescopes zeroed in on remnants of a supernova to help astronomers better understand the nuclear reactions that cause some stars up to 100 times more massive than our sun end their lives in spectacular explosions.

The $200 million package of telescopes also focused on a rare type of star with powerful, eroding stellar winds. The winds, much stronger than those of the sun, are believed to make such stars less luminous and less massive.

Astronomers missed some observations because of the pointing problems on Friday, but NASA scientist Charles Meegan said there will be plenty of time to go back and focus on the lost targets. Endeavour isn't due home until March 17 after the longest shuttle flight planned by NASA.

Four of Endeavour's seven astronauts are operating the telescopes, working in two shifts around the clock.

Commander Stephen Oswald and pilot William Gregory spent part of the morning working with a secondary experiment that resembles a large assembly of Tinker Toys.

Science fair winners

Nazarene Christian Academy on Friday held its annual science fair for fourth, fifth and sixth graders. Fourth-graders did a group project on invertebrates, while older students did individual projects in four areas -- experiment, model, demonstration and collection. Winners were selected by Dr. Ronnie Wade of West Texas A&M University. Those winners were: back, from left, Tyler Keeling, sixth grade, experiment; Jacob Power, sixth, collection; and Eddie Trotter, sixth, demonstration; middle, from left, Kevin Winget, fifth, demonstration; and Landon Parham, sixth, model, with his entry on flight; and front, from left, Dustin White, fifth, model; and Sabra Brownlow, fifth, experiment.

Clinton says budget cuts will hurt kids, help rich

By NANCY BENAC

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Leveling more criticism at the Republicans' proposed budget cuts, President Clinton today said GOP reductions could "sacrifice our children's safety and our ability to learn in a secure environment."

"The Republican contract says we should cut just about everything to pay for big tax cuts that go mostly to upper-income people," Clinton said in his weekly radio address.

He singled out a proposal to eliminate the administration's program to fight drugs and violence in schools as an example of unwise reductions.

"I am concerned that the Republicans are willing to sacrifice our children's safety and our ability to learn in a secure environment to pay for these tax cuts for upper-income Americans," Clinton said. "That's not a good deal for America's children, for America's future. It's not a good deal for upper-income Americans."

In the GOP response to Clinton's address, Sen. Paul Coverdell of Georgia criticized Clinton's opposition to a proposed balanced budget amendment to the Constitution and accused Clinton of being a roadblock to change.

"It is precisely this thinking that has led our federal government to spend every dime we have, $5 trillion we don't have, and rob the future of our children and grandchildren," Coverdell said.

Clinton's criticisms came one day after he lamented that the 1996 presidential campaign was taking off too soon, inflaming partisan tensions.

"We can't have everybody all torn up and upset about playing politics here for the next six, seven months; we've got a lot of work to do," Clinton said at a news conference Friday. "And I think we should relax and do it."

But the president was not above partisanship himself in his first full news conference of the year, criticizing Republicans for views that he said reflect "in many cases an outright hostility to government action."

He denounced proposed GOP cutbacks in education, nutrition and anti-drug programs whose proceeds he said would be used to help finance tax cuts for the rich.

Invited to identify by name Republicans he has accused of isolationist tendencies in foreign policy, Clinton demurred, saying, "I think we're getting into too much name-calling in Washington and I don't want to exacerbate that."

"I want everybody to relax, take a deep breath and go back to work," he said. "We'll have plenty of time for the politics."

Three Republicans already have declared their candidacy, and Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole soon will join the field.

Salinas ends brief hunger strike

Former Mexican president accused of blocking probe

By JUAN ZAMORANO

Associated Press Writer
MEXICO CITY (AP) - Former President Carlos Salinas suspended a hunger strike and returned to Mexico City, but not before the allegations that he had covered up an assassination plot deepened the nation's financial crisis.

After a turbulent day that saw the peso close at an all-time low - about 6.4 to the dollar - the attorney general issued a statement Friday night that seemed to clear Salinas of trying to block the murder investigation.

Currency traders had attributed Friday's slide to a growing political dispute that erupted after Salinas' brother was arrested in 1994's other big assassination: that of the ruling party's No. 2 man, Jose Francisco Ruiz Massieu.

The peso has skidded more than 40 percent against the dollar since December. The last record low close of the peso was 6.3 to the dollar on Jan. 30, shortly before President Clinton moved to calm nervous markets by announcing a $50 billion rescue package for Mexico.

Also Friday, the government seized control of a troubled bank. The Mexican Treasury Department said it was taking over the private consortium Grupo Financiero Asenex-Banpais due to unspecified irregularities. The consortium is Mexico's ninth-largest bank and its two insurance companies.

Salinas, who ruled Mexico for the last six years, abruptly abandoned on Friday a fast he had begun the night before to uphold his honor against claims he had covered up a probe into the March 1994 shooting death of the ruling party's presidential candidate, Luis Donaldo Colosio.

The short-lived fast - a few skipped meals, really - was among the stranger events in Mexico's recent history. For decades, presidents have almost vanished from view after leaving office, ignoring criticism heaped upon them.

Gramm claims S.C. straw pole victory

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) - Texas Sen. Phil Gramm has won a straw poll of South Carolina Republican donors, capping nearly two years of organizing his presidential campaign has done in the state.

Gramm's victory at Friday night's $120-per-plate dinner was not a surprise. He has dedicated some of his early campaigning toward straw poll victories in this and other states.

Gramm picked up 416 votes to 314 for former Tennessee Gov. Lamar Alexander and 254 for Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole. A total of 1,190 votes were cast.

Alexander and Gramm, along with commentator Pat Buchanan, California Rep. Bob Dornan and former State Department official Alan Keyes each spoke to the crowd of about 2,500.

Dole, who did not attend, had a strong lead in the only public poll of South Carolina and also appears to be picking up steam in recruiting top-name help in the state.

A Mason-Dixon poll of 400 Republicans released last week showed 35 percent preferred Dole to 27 percent for former Joint Chiefs of Staff Chairman Colin Powell, who is not a candidate. Gramm was picked by 18 percent in the poll, which had a margin of error of about 5 percentage points.

Focus on Your City

By MAYOR BOB JOSSERAND
City of Hereford

I really appreciate the citizens of Hereford who have taken time to return our surveys to City Hall, but I would encourage all of you to make a difference and send in your survey before March 10.

We really would like to have your input. As I have gone through the first 100 surveys returned, I have noted some interesting items. Let me first give you an overview of the survey and then I want to deal with a couple of specific items from the returned questionnaires.

To the question of whether present city priorities are the same as yours, 57 percent answered, "Yes the city is on the right track with regard to its priorities." That leaves 43 percent of the responses saying, "No you're not on the right set of priorities."

Interestingly, as we asked you to rate the city's performance on a scale of one through five (with five being the top and one the poorest), 74 percent of the survey respondents said we're doing a good job, five percent said we're not doing worth a darn and 21 percent indicated general acceptance.

Let me deal now with a couple of items which received a lot of focus, and I'm not sure if everyone understands how things have operated in the past or operate now. The items which has received the most comment was that one entitled "Streets" which 69 percent indicated needed to be a priority item.

I guess my concern from reading some of the comments was a lack of understanding of at least how the city has operated in the past. Previously, if a neighborhood wanted a street paved, it was up to the landowners along both sides of the street to agree to pay for the paving. This meant that the city's responsibility was to arrange for the specifications, with regard to gutters, paving, etc., and to see that a reputable contractor would do the construction.

But, I think the thing I want to emphasize here is that the cost was borne by the property owners adjacent to the street being paved. At times, this was the sub-developers' cost, and in old established areas, it simply was the expense of those owning homes there.

In the surveys, several of you said, "Pave the city streets," and I think there is not a soul working for the city, whether an elected commissioner or employee, who would not like to have all the city streets paved. However, we have somewhat more than 11 miles of unpaved city streets. If the city decided to pave those streets we would look at an expense between $2 million and $3 million.

An expenditure of this size would require a bond issue and approval by the citizens. I don't have a problem with this, if citizens want it. I simply want to make sure that everyone understands how we have operated in the past and what it would take to comply with requests of some citizens.

While I'm on the issue of streets, we received several comments about dips, brick streets and existing pavement. In our discussions going forward about city infrastructure, streets definitely will be considered. We know that existing pavement and brick streets have not received adequate attention for a number of years.

The second item I want to address deals with the utilities area but is very specific about why we are not burning our trash as we have done in the past.

For those of us who would like to burn our trash -- I happen to be one of them -- I think the overriding reason for not burning garbage is the cost.

It has been estimated that it would cost the City of Hereford somewhere between $3 million and $4 million to construct an approved burning facility. By "approved," I mean meeting EPA and state regulatory requirements. Folks, we just can't afford that much money to burn our trash.

At the same time, several asked why we aren't using our own garbage disposal dump. The same thing applies: It would take $1 million to $2 million to locate a new dump and equip it as required by state and federal regulations. That's just too high a cost for us to bear right now.

"I'll try to give you more input from citizens' responses on the surveys in the next few weeks. It early has helped me to focus on what's important to our citizens. So, please, please: If you haven't returned a survey, do so right away."

Some areas will be gone in 10-20-30 years

California beaches slowly vanishing

By ERNEST SANDER
Associated Press Writer

SAN DIEGO (AP) - In various spots along the Southern California coastline the beach is slowly vanishing. Waves and man-made intrusions are interrupting the yin and yang of sand movement and eroding the depth and length of beaches.

In Oceanside, 50 miles north of San Diego, one man remembers being able to walk on the sand toward the ocean for 300 feet before getting wet. Now, he says, at high tide, he can't even walk on the beach.

At the Seacoast Inn in Imperial Beach, 15 miles south of San Diego, steps that several weeks ago led directly onto the beach now hang five feet above the sand.

Gazing down the contour of San Diego's beaches, toward the graceful, towering bluffs of La Jolla and the glassy tidal pools of Del Mar, a visitor might believe the sand is a permanent part of the picture.

"We have areas, where in 10, 20, 30 years the beaches are going to be gone," said Steve Sachs, a senior planner at the San Diego Association of Governments.

Beaches and sand are as crucial to California's postcard image as palm trees. They are part of the pitch that beckons tourists and settlers from far-flung places.

In 1990, the last year figures were compiled, visitors to San Diego beaches spent more than $200 million, according to Sachs.

One reason why Del Mar became Del Mar, with its elegant race track and cocktail party set, is because of its expansive, lush beaches.

On many California beaches these days, expansive and lush are bygone terms. Every year, Sachs says, San Diego beaches lose an average of one foot to five feet in width.

Frank McDonald, who once owned property by the water in Oceanside, says beach erosion has thinned the usual parade of sunbathers, strollers, swimmers, surfers and snorkelers.

Along what locals call Restaurant Row near the Del Mar racetrack, diners once looked out picture windows onto a broad carpet of sparkling sand. These days, boulders are piled under the windows to form a buffer against the encroaching waves. During the winter, waves pound the glass as patrons dine on calamari and shrimp cocktail.

Beaches may seem simple to those who come to build sand castles or bask in the sun, but in fact they are complex. They extend into the ground about 30 feet and out into the water hundreds of feet, before dropping into underwater canyons.

Healthy beaches have an inherent balance; whatever sand is lost generally is replaced over time. Waves push sand out into the ocean so far that it can't return to shore, but those same waves lash sea cliffs, chipping away at their core and sprinkling the beaches with new sand.

As wind scatters sand over land, rivers and streams reclaim some of it and dump it back onto the shore.

Urbanization, says Sachs, has upset this cycle.

The city of Cleveland, Ohio is named for its surveyor, Moses Cleveland.

Dams built on the rivers have slowed the water's force, preventing them from carrying sand to the lowlands, and sea walls protecting real estate keep the waves from lapping at the cliffs.

McDonald, 68, lives near Camp Pendleton Marine Corps base, where soon after World War II the Army Corps of Engineers built a harbor with jetties so Marines could practice amphibious maneuvers.

He says the jetties have blocked the sand from migrating southward along the beach and abetted beach erosion for some 20 miles of coast down to Del Mar. He writes angry letters to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers asking that some action be taken.

"We don't have a beach anymore," he said. "We have a sea floor that is uncovered at low tide."

When sand becomes depleted, there are two options - wait and hope that nature reverses itself, or reconstruct the beaches by barging sand offshore or pumping it onto the beach itself.

The Navy is offering to give away 11 million cubic yards of sand for beach rehabilitation from proposed dredging projects in San Diego.

Local cities are interested, though some environmentalists contend that dumping sand could harm marine life. City planners worry that adding to the beach may further strain coastal streets and parking lots.

UNDERSTANDING THE BUYERS PERSPECTIVE

Buyers who make low offers on property can have a number of reasons. Perhaps the property in question requires a substantial investment to make needed repairs. The low offer would permit the buyer to make the repairs from retained funds. Or, the low offer is all the buyer can afford. It is not unusual for people to fall in love with a property out of their price range. When the real estate market is slow, the buyer may be testing sellers to see who are willing to accept a lower price. If the property has been for sale for a long time, the buyer may feel the property is overpriced compared with the selling price of similar homes in the area. Buyers making low offers should understand the seller may be insulted and further negotiations on the property may be turned down even if the counter offer is more in line with the asking price. You can count on us, we are professionals and can negotiate through the personal situations.

By Speedy Nieman

That teller on Tierra Blanca Creek when someone says he has a clear conscience, it often means he or she just has a bad memory.

If it's such a small world, why does it take so much of our money to run it?

We were recently visiting with several friends and were trying to remember the name of a person we all had known well over the years. One guy finally said, "We don't have Alzheimer's, but we've got old-timers' disease!"

While that happens as you get older, trying to remember things is not limited to seniors--it affects folks of all ages at times.

During the past week, I was reminded of the active and outgoing personalities of some oldtimers in the community. By their daily routines, their actions and volunteer work speak loudly for the need to remain active and involved. Had they decided to quit serving others when they retired, we would have missed out on their good works and the inspiration they provide.

A friend showed us a scratch pad which had the words, "If you're going out to pasture, be careful where you step." It might be better to stay out of the pasture as long as you can!

We've sometimes been accused of being too quick to record lawyer jokes in this column. But we're a rank amateur in poking fun at attorneys compared to a federal judge in Dallas.

Federal District Judge Jerry Buchmeyer was a lunchtime speaker at the mid-winter convention of the Texas Press Association recently in Dallas and had the audience laughing for a full 30 minutes.

With deadpan delivery, the judge simply repeated testimony from his own court and mixed in some jurisprudence from other courts.

"Lawyers, from time to time, ask some incredibly stupid questions. And witnesses just as frequently come up with some incredible twilight zone answers," said the judge. Here are some examples:

Lawyers' stupid questions
Q. State your name.
A. June Bates.
Q. Miss Bates, where do you live?
A. Mexia, Texas.
Q. Have you lived in Mexia all your life?
A. Not yet.
Q. Where do you live?

A. 2442 Otawatonay Street.
Q. (Court reporter) How do you spell that street?
A. S-T-R-E-E-T.

Q. What's your length of residence?
A. About 48 feet, seven inches.
Q. Are you married?
A. No, I'm divorced.

Q. What'd your husband do before you divorced him?
A. A lot of things I didn't know about.

Hall of shame questions
*Were you alone, or by yourself?
*Were you present this morning when you were sworn in?

*Was that the same note you wrote to the child?
*And you are how old a woman, sir?

*Do you have any children or anything of the kind?
*Doctor, how many autopsies have you performed on dead people?

*Did he kill you?
Reasonable retorts
Faced with such questions, Buchmeyer said, witnesses sometimes respond in a like manner.

Q. Was the marriage consummated?
A. Not while I was there.
Q. Have you ever had any other accidents?

A. No, but I had a baby once.
Q. Did he have a Ford Fairlane.
A. No, he had an Oldsmobile.

Q. Did something unusual happen on Nov. 29, ma'am?
A. Not really, except my husband got shot.

Q. What did the debtor give you?
A. A Mercedes-Benz.
Q. Was it free and clear?

A. No, it was green and white.
Testing credibility
Q. Do you know the defendant's reputation in the community for truth, honesty and veracity?

A. Yes, but I like her anyway.
Obedient child witness
Q. Now, Gary, all of your responses must be oral, okay? How old are you?

A. Oral.
Q. Where do you live?
A. Oral.

Perjure herself? Not!
Q. Are you married?
A. No.

Q. What is your status?
A. I guess I'm single.
Q. Where do you live?

A. I moved.
Q. Is that a permanent address?
A. No, it's a house.
Q. Were you paid by the hour?

A. No, just on Saturdays.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

How ironic that Herefordites may now dance on Sunday. Imagine that! As a 1936 graduate of Hereford High School, I recall that about 1933 my all-girl gym class, taught by an all-girl teacher, was forbidden to square dance in class!

We girls had one class lesson, then at the beginning of the second period class, our practice was halted and the edict came down: "No dancing."

It was so long ago that we didn't even suit up for gym class, except to tuck our skirts under our bloomers legs!

I recently sent a "letter to the editor" requesting any of your readers to send me an address of a former classmate, Saretta Thompson Heard. Luckily, a reader has kept in touch with a daughter of Saretta's and sent me her address.

I now have heard from her and have the information I need to issue this classmate an invitation to our class reunion in the summer. Thanks to your paper for printing my letter.

Dear Editor:

The ceremony on Sunday, Feb. 26, for the naming of Langley Park and the Nita Lea Camp Fire Lodge was an occasion which our family will never forget, and we are deeply grateful to Mayor Bob Josseland, the Hereford City Commission, and The Hereford Brand for all that was done to publicize the event.

Earnest would have been so appreciative of the honor and recognition given to us. We, as his family, receive with gratitude the special messages of appreciation and expressions of goodwill in the naming of the park in our honors.

Speaking for the three of us--Earnest and Helen Langley and Nita Lea--I cannot adequately express what an honor it is to be permanently remembered in the history of Hereford.

When Nita and I worked together in the Hereford Camp Fire program, our main purpose was to bring experiences to young people to help them live life to the fullest with emphasis on Work, Health and Love, the WoHeLo tradition established by the founders of Camp Fire in 1910.

At the same time, Nita and I were striving to make Camp Fire strong, so many other adults--including the leaders, the Lions Club, the Rotary and other service organizations--were working also. My appreciation goes to the many volunteers and contributors who also made the Camp Fire experience so wonderful.

Earnest cared so very much about this town and was always thinking of ways to cause industry and other new businesses to make Hereford their home. He thought Hereford was the best town anywhere, and we often called him the "walking Chamber of Commerce" as he went about telling others how great his home town was. My sincerest "Thank You" from the Langley family for this very outstanding honor which has been bestowed upon us. We will continue to carry the Hereford banner in Earnest's memory as we will always appreciate this great community as he did.

Sincerely yours,
Helen Langley

Digging into the 'Column Fodder' pile

Out of the Blue

By Garry Wesner

Hang onto your hats folks, here's one you're not going to believe.

While scanning the AP wire the other night, I came across a story datelined Miami, Fla., about a beach and the handicapped.

Seems there is a "clothing-optional beach" in Dade County.

Seems there were a bunch of handicapped people who wanted to let it all hang out, but were unable to get to the beach.

So, Dade County in its infinite wisdom spent $18,500 for a 150-foot ramp that stretches over the dunes to the beach.

Now, no longer will uninhibited handicapped people have to rely on the kindness and generosity of their similarly-unclad peers to carry them to the beach, or on park employees wheel them (in all their glory?) to the beach.

But that's not all. Seems the county is also planning to spend another $30,000 for closer parking for disabled nudists.

You see, all this came about after Congress passed the Americans with Disabilities Act, which requires that public accommodations be accessible to the handicapped.

(By the way, the project was also overseen by four -- count 'em, four -- government agencies because of the "delicate plant life" along the beach).

Just another example, folks, of your tax dollars at work for you.

Speaking of the ADA and its implications to construction and public facilities, those regulations just may come home to roost right here in Hereford.

This past week, HISD trustees heard a report on progress on the Shirley School renovation, which includes a new roof, air conditioning units and exterior doors.

It is those doors that are the catch, however. Thanks to ADA, those doors have to be made handicapped-accessible, and ramps leading to those doors have been examined and one needs work because the slope exceeds ADA guidelines.

Then, to add expense to the job, ADA requires that the district, if it replaces the outside doors, it must also make interior doors handicapped-accessible.

Finally, there is a question about the bathrooms at Shirley.

What, you ask, do bathrooms have to do with a roofing project?

Well, seems there is a possibility the school might have to remodel its bathrooms to meet ADA guidelines as well.

This hasn't been resolved yet -- representatives of the construction management firm said they have been told the bathrooms will be exempt.

from this type project, but the district wants that in writing.

So, if they are not exempt, the district's plan to replace a leaky roof and add a few air conditioners will be complicated by the need to make bathrooms there handicapped-accessible.

Of course, then once you start messing with restroom construction, you run smack into the state's "Potty Parity" law, which says you must have twice as many girl bathrooms as you have boy bathrooms.

Now I'm not against helping the handicapped get to services (especially bathrooms) and I certainly support the notion of having enough potties, but it seems like this is just another example of the government sticking its Pinocchio-like long nose into something it shouldn't be concerned with.

Speaking of government interference, how about this.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (used to be just control, now they're trying to prevent too!) want every pregnant woman in America (about 4 million a year) to be tested for AIDS.

The CDC says they need to convince people it will be cost effective to do so, even though they spend $25 a pop for HIV tests (which, of course, is the virus which causes AIDS).

Now I may just be cynical, but it seems to me like that is a colossal waste of money (I'm sure the government will subsidize it for poor people!).

You see, the CDC estimates 2,000 babies a year are born with AIDS. Now multiply the number of AIDS cases in newborns by the total number of pregnancies and see what you come up with!

Is this something we really need? ('Sides, if sex would remain in the monogamous marital relationship God intended it to be in, we wouldn't be in this mess, but that's another story!)

Now, just to show you that all government work is not stupid, here's something that came about a month ago.

State Sen. Jim Turner of Crockett and State Rep. Allen Hightower of Huntville have introduced legislation that would restrict prison inmates' access to personal information about prison employees.

You see, inmates are able to use the Open Records Act to get home addresses and phone numbers of prison guards, then call them at home and harass them.

James A. Collins, executive director of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice, said Open Records requests by inmates has skyrocketed in recent years; with many asking for personal information on several guards.

Cockleburrs and Devil's Claws

By Georgia Tyler

Millions of dollars and many moons have passed since the State of Texas embarked on a campaign to make the State Capitol a structure of beauty instead of an eyesore.

During a recent visit to Austin, I took time to inspect the results of this Capitol improvement project. And, for anyone interested in my opinion, let me say that the wait and money spent were worth it.

Growing up several hundred miles from Austin, I was one of those people who had been to several other state capitols before ever I laid eyes on Austin.

As a matter of fact, I was grown, already graduated from college, when I was persuaded to make the trip. To be absolutely honest, I had been farther south than Fort Worth on only one or two other occasions.

What sheltered lives we led in those days.

The Texas Capitol has a special reference with the Panhandle. The state traded millions of acres of ranchland for enough money to build the Capitol. The XIT Ranch became famous, then faded rather quickly, but the legend of the XIT has survived.

The beautiful pink granite exterior that the world first sees of the Capitol sparkles these days. The interior is slicked up (how much more than it was, I have no idea) and the addition, built underground instead of above ground, preserved an open space around the building.

There was indeed an aura of history as I stepped into the rotunda. Gazing upward to the dome, I was reminded that the Capitol of Texas is higher than the U.S. Capitol.

On the rotunda floor is a circle of the seals of the countries that flew flags over Texas, with the Texas seal in the center. Again, a sense of history pervades the atmosphere. Spain, France, Mexico, Confederacy and the United States all contributed some history to the state.

The two-story underground addition to the Capitol features a floor adorned with the designs of the reverse sides of those seals.

While wandering through the Capitol, a stop in the gallery of the Texas Senate evoked a smile. Some

You know, maybe I'm just dumb, but it seems to me that prison inmates should be restricted from just about any public information. I mean, they're there for punishment and they spend incredible amounts of time making state employees (whose salaries we pay) waste time digging up information they should have no right to have.

The Open Records Act is great to protect the average citizen from government abuse and fraud, but inmates should have no such rights.

Well, I've sure had my say this week, haven't I!

That's it for this week. Have a good week and remember, if you see injustice, take a stand. It sometimes takes just one voice to start an avalanche.

Guest editorial

Austin Reform--Stateman on lawsuit reform:

When "reform" is in the legislative air, the first thing to check is who is demanding it. In the case of consumer-protection and other tort laws, reform is usually pushed by special interests, for special interests, and the public interest is lost in the shuffle.

That is the danger in the current attempts in Washington and in Austin to weaken the tort laws.

Which consumer protections will be lost and which merely compromised is unclear at this juncture.

But after this "reform" spate is over, citizens shouldn't be surprised if, when they want to use the civil court system to right a wrong, they discover a sign on the courthouse door: "We don't do that anymore."

My city editor pounced like a panther, telling me that couldn't be so. To the best of his recollection, he said, Ben Milam never married. I asked him where he got that information, if it was from a personal interview, or something.

He ignored my smart mouth but later in the day, he stopped at my desk with a copy of The Texas Almanac and instructed me to read all the history I could find. I almost feared he would give me a test over the material.

Ever since, I've read and studied Texas history. But, I've never found the information the city editor claimed.

After all this time, I'm not sure it matters.

Texas Siftings' compiles rich history, vivid humor of Texas

"Like most passionate nations, Texas has its own history based on, but not limited by, facts." - John Steinbeck, Travels With Charley, 1962.

"Goodbye, God. This will be the last chance I get to talk to you. We're moving to Texas." - Child's prayer in Arkansas, as quoted by author Jerry Flemmons, 1995.

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Zane Gray called it a world in itself. "A dark abode of barbarism and vice," grumbled H.S. Foot in "Texas and Texans."

Rather endearingly, Carl Sandburg saw it as a blend of valor and swagger.

"A valley of rascals," complained a Whig campaign paper, and Kentuckian James Pettie and newspaper publisher Horace Greeley agreed.

"An Elysium of rogues," sniffed Pettie.

"A den of thieves," snorted Greeley.

We're talking Texas here, as assembled with a rich and vivid sense of humor, history and horse manure by author-journalist Jerry Flemmons, travel editor of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Published by Texas Christian University Press, "Texas Siftings" is, as Flemmons writes, his little smidgens of Texas history and lore that grew into columns that appeared in the Star-Telegram.

It is also, as the subtitle suggests, "A bold and uncommon celebration of the Lone Star State," mattering not a bit whether one adores, abhors or ignores Texas and Texans.

Take your pick:
"Outsiders never understand that Texas talk is not a lie. It is the expression of the larger truth." - Paul Crume, "A Texan at Bay," 1961.

"If I owned Texas and all Hell, I would rent out Texas and live in hell." - General Philip Sheridan, 1866.

"We have often heard of Nowhere, and supposed it somewhere in Texas." - Galveston Texas Times, 1842.

"The Texan turned out to be good-natured, generous and likable. In three days nobody could stand him." - Joseph Heller, "Catch-22," 1961.

"For all purposes of human habitation - except it might be for a penal colony - these wilds are totally unfit." - W.B. Parker, "Expedition Through Unexplored Texas," 1856.

"In one Texas town, there is more color of legend and history than can be found in the whole state of Iowa."

- J. Frank Dobie, Austin American-Statesman, 1926.

Not unlike Texas itself, "Texas Siftings" as a whole exceeds the sum of its parts.

The title comes from an eight-page Austin magazine founded in 1881 by Alexander Edwin Sweet. Flemmons says it became America's most successful humor publication because of Sweet's sardonic writing style and because Texas always interested outsiders.

Of his own book, Flemmons says in an introduction he thought "Texas Siftings" was not so much organized as only a collection of interrelated excerpts from old writings.

"But after reading through the assembled manuscript," he says, "I can see a pure plot line of renewal and survival and hope in a rough, often unforgiving country, a story told with humor and bravado and bombast."

And so it is.

Larry L. King, who penned "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas," grew up in West Texas and now lives in Washington, D.C. Says he: "Texas is my mind's country, that place I most want to understand and record and preserve."

But he conceded in a 1975 Atlantic article that his homeland often vexes and disappoints him and is not always easy to love.

"It is now the third most urbanized state (behind New York and California) with all the tangles, stench, random violence, architectural rape, historical pillage, neon blight, pollution, and ecological imbalance the term implies." Still, he observed, "I miss the damned place."

"Texas Siftings" bubbles and oozes with all things Texan, not the least of which is a poignant account of a Texas Ranger's letter to his mother as he awaits hanging in Mexico.

Or a woman recounting her freedom from slavery. Or the story of a Comanche brave who rescued a girl from a raging prairie fire.

"He watched over her through a long, cold night," the author wrote of the heroic but anonymous Indian.

"Then putting his hand on her head he looked in her eyes a long moment, whirled his coal black steed, and went like the wind back across the burned prairie, leaving only a trail of dust the way he disappeared."

Flemmons' collection recounts the lives and deaths of such infamous outlaws as Bonnie and Clyde, Bill Longley, Sam Bass and John Wesley Hardin.

It reveals how Texas Rangers tamed Kilgore's oil fields with "chains of steel, and a little lead," and recalls the last, reluctant ride of legendary cowboy Booger Red.

"Next year he died at the age of 68," the San Angelo Morning Times reported in 1933.

There is the traditional chauvinistic boasting:

"Texas occupies all of the North American continent except the small part set aside for Canada, Mexico and the 47 less fortunate states."

"If all the steers in Texas were made into one steer, he could stand with his front feet in the Gulf of Mexico, one hind leg in Lake Michigan, the other in Hudson's Bay, and with his tail brush the Northern Lights out of the Alaskan sky."

"Out at Odessa, a drive-in theater was showing a Western picture and the wind was blowing so strong, it blew Gene Autry out of the saddle." - Boyce House, "Texas Laughs," 1950.

And Texana:

"If you want to gain distinction in this country, kill somebody." - a Fort Belknap soldier, 1867.

"Brandy, Whiskey, and Accommodation for Man and Beast." - Sign above entry door of a Galveston saloon, 1832.

"What do you mean buying groceries, when there's not a drop of whiskey in the house?" - A remark attributed to Hill Country rancher.

"Go get your man. Get him alive if you can; dead if you must, but don't come back until you get him." - A traditional slogan of the Texas Rangers.

And, finally, Texahese:

Hub hell: Uh-oh, trouble's comin'.

Blue whistler: A fired bullet.

Brush popper: A cowboy with a wild and dangerous streak.

Bellywash: A weak, nonalcoholic drink.

An empty wagon: Someone dumb as a stump.

Owl-headed: Someone with demonstrated common sense.

Whipout: a roll of cash.

Throckmorton Firewood: Basic cow patty used for cooking or heating fuel. (Also called prairie coal.)

Action star promotes getting body in shape

WASHINGTON (AP) - Arnold Schwarzenegger realizes that only the elite will put in the 4- to 6-hour gym days it takes to become a champion bodybuilder.

Ordinary people still can learn from the champions' examples, Schwarzenegger declares. Besides promoting his bodybuilding competitions, the action hero star and former champion bodybuilder promotes getting Americans into shape.

Any exercise that a bodybuilder does to prepare for competition can also be done just to become stronger and healthier, said Schwarzenegger, who chaired the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports during the Bush administration.

"Bodybuilders do it with more weight and more sets," Schwarzenegger said. "They're training faster, trying to shock the muscle, compared to the average guy firming up and losing fat and being more equipped to do the sports they love to do."

Schwarzenegger promotes weight training at his annual competition in Columbus, Ohio. Arnold Schwarzenegger Fitness Weekend 1995 awards $300,000 in prizes divided among professional male and female bodybuilders and a beauty and aerobics competition.

For amateurs, wannabes and lookers-on, organizers of the March 3-4 weekend set up a fitness fair of equipment, clothes and food supplements.

Exercise facilities have shed jocks-only gym images, and modern health clubs want everybody, Schwarzenegger noted. "Clubs have opened so much to the general public that you see the gym guys doing 600-pound squats and the little delicate lady is doing 30-pound squats," he said.

The weekend focus is on the benefits of weights, which have been very, very good to Schwarzenegger since he discovered them at age 15, watching a competition in his home town of Graz, Austria. "I said to myself, 'That is what I want to do,'" he recalled.

"The medical profession and coaches of different sports have done enough research to convince themselves that weight resistance training is something for everybody," Schwarzenegger said. "These findings will continue."

Although weight training looks tough when a bodybuilder does it, "the idea is to let the general public know here is an easy and safe way to get in shape," Schwarzenegger said. "You always get what you want," Schwarzenegger said. "If you don't have the need to be the top champion in the world, and you want to lose 5 inches around the waist, then you will get that and with much less training."

"You have to feel each rep that you do will get you one step closer," Schwarzenegger said. "If you do 'Oh, my God, I have to do another rep,' I think you cannot do it."

Duncanville girls earn chance at another title

By The Associated Press
AUSTIN (AP) - Julie Lake scored 18 as perennial powerhouse Duncanville remained unbeaten and earned a shot at a record-tying fifth state title by beating Arlington Sam Houston 54-44 in the Class 5A semifinals of the girls' state basketball tournament.

Flawless ball handling, precision passing and sheer hustle helped Duncanville overcome a size mismatch and reach its seventh state final.

Duncanville (37-0), which has four state titles, including a three-peat in 1988, 1989 and 1990, will play in Saturday's championship game against Austin Westlake.

Sam Houston finished the season 29-7 after making its first appearance in the state tournament.

Sam Houston went to frontcourt stars 6-foot-3 Shaka Massey and 6-foot-1 Lynn Pride early as the two combined to score seven of the team's 10 first-quarter points. But Duncanville, which never had a player over 5-10 on the floor, was undaunted.

Lake, a Texas Tech signee, consistently dribbled through traffic and dished off to wide open twin sister teammates Andee Sheiron, who finished with 15 points, and Amy Sheiron, who added nine.

Duncanville could become the first school ever to win three state titles with an unbeaten record. Duncanville (1989, 1990) and Class A Nazareth (1984, 1985) have each done it twice.

If the Pantherettes were to win Saturday, they would tie Victoria High's Class 5A record of five state titles.

In the other semifinal, Sarah Howden scored 19 points and Austin Westlake applied relentless defensive pressure in knocking off high-powered Houston Madison, 61-56.

Westlake (35-4) won the 1993 Class 4A state title before moving up to 5A this year.

The Chaparrals took a 20-point lead early in the fourth quarter and then held off a furious comeback down the stretch by Madison (33-2), which had been averaging 83 points.

A 3-pointer by Madison star Anitra Davis culminated a 17-2 run that pulled the Lady Marlins within 53-48 with 3:36 to play.

But Howden hit two free throws with 3:12 to go and Krista Watson, who finished with 15 points, hit another two with 2:57 left to bump Westlake's lead to 57-48. Madison couldn't get any closer than five the rest of the way as Howden hit a baseline jumper with 37 seconds left and Watson scored on a drive with 18 ticks to go.

Class 2A Semifinals
Cooper 46, Gunter 45
Ozona 65, Poth 42

Stacy Little hit both ends of a one-and-one free throw attempt with 6.1 seconds left to help Cooper hold off Gunter in a wild finish.

Cooper (31-3), a three-time titlist, will face Ozona (33-2) Saturday in the championship game.

Gunter, led by Amy Sutton with 20 points, finished the year 32-3 after making its first tournament appearance.

Cooper appeared to be coasting to victory after taking a 43-31 lead with 4:05 left, but Gunter stepped up its defensive pressure and got a key 3-pointer by Jill Sutton and two pressure-packed free throws by Heather Spencer and another by Sarah Schaack to pull within 44-42 with 10.4 seconds left.

After a full-court inbound pass by Cooper slipped through the hands of Jill Sutton, Gunter fouled Little with 6.1 seconds left. Both free throws swished through, making meaningless a 3-pointer by Amy Sutton as time expired.

In the other semifinal, Amber Tarr scored 22 and grabbed 11 rebounds as Ozona, making its first appearance in the state tournament, turned a close game into a rout in the third quarter.

Poth, led by 12 points each from Leslie Kopecki and Jacqueline Jansky, finished the year 27-10 after making its second state tourney showing.

After trailing 28-27 at halftime, Ozona's Lady Lions went wild in the third quarter, outscoring Poth 21-2 in the period.

Rodman's putback puts Spurs on top

By The Associated Press
Shaquille O'Neal's third stop on what he's dubbed the "Legends Tour" was a bigger success for him than it was for the Magic.

O'Neal had 36 points against San Antonio's David Robinson, the third big-time center O'Neal has faced this week following meetings with New York's Patrick Ewing and Houston's Hakeem Olajuwon. But Robinson, who had 24 points, and the Spurs beat the Magic 112-111 Friday night on Dennis Rodman's putback with 3.7 seconds left.

"It was a good game and we almost won it," O'Neal said. "We just couldn't get the calls at the end. They're good, but we could have beaten them."

While O'Neal, the NBA's top scorer, and Robinson, who's No. 3, were battling it out in San Antonio, Olajuwon and the Rockets lost their third in a row, falling to Minnesota 108-105.

Looking to extend their six-game winning streak, the Spurs wanted the last shot for to Robinson. But Horace Grant and O'Neal covered him as he got the ball, forcing the Spurs to improvise.

Rodman was alone under the basket to catch Doc Rivers' airball and make the winning layup. It gave the Spurs, who led by 15 earlier in the fourth quarter, their seventh straight victory.

Timberwolves 108, Rockets 105

Houston lost for the second time this season at the Target Center as Tom Gugliotta scored 12 of his 21 points in the fourth quarter for Minnesota.

Gugliotta added seven rebounds and six assists, and the Wolves placed six players in double figures.

Olajuwon had 28 points and Clyde Drexler 23 for Houston.

Christian Laettner had 18 points and eight rebounds for Minnesota, which has won three of four.

Celtics 103, Bucks 91
Dino Radja had 24 points and 11 rebounds as Boston broke a three-game losing streak.

Sherman Douglas scored a season-high 23 points and had nine assists, and Eric Montross added 15 points and 12 rebounds.

Todd Day's 23 points led the visiting Bucks. Vin Baker scored 20 and Glenn Robinson 19.

76ers 102, Nets 98
Dana Barros had 24 points, and his 20-footer with 15 seconds left secured Philadelphia's victory over New Jersey.

Clarence Weatherspoon added 21 points, and he and Barros scored the 76ers' last 10 points.

The visiting Sixers got 17 points from Jeff Grayer, 14 from Sharonne Wright and 12 points and 15 rebounds from Shawn Bradley.

Derrick Coleman and Chris Morris each had 20 points for the Nets.

Panhandle offers hoop tourney

Panhandle High School will host a basketball tournament for fifth and sixth grade boys and girls March 17-19.

The name of the tournament is the Eighth Annual Jim Brinkley

Bullets 111, Pacers 106

Don MacLean scored 11 of his 19 points in the fourth quarter as Washington defeated Indiana for its third victory in four games.

Juwan Howard added 20 points and Chris Webber 16 points and 12 rebounds for the Bullets.

The Pacers dropped their second in a row, both on the road, after a seven-game winning streak. Reggie Miller had 17 of his 21 points in the second half.

Hawks 94, Pistons 78

Stacey Augmon scored 19 points and tied his career best with 12 rebounds as Atlanta held De'roit scoreless for six minutes of the final period.

Andrew Lang finished with 18 points, while Mookie Blaylock had 18 points and 10 assists. Atlanta, which has won four of five, pulled into fourth place in the Central Division, a half-game ahead of the idle Chicago Bulls.

Suns 122, Sonics 118, OT

Elliott Perry sent Phoenix ahead with a pair of free throws in overtime, and A.C. Green hit a 3-pointer with 1:02 left as the Suns outlasted Seattle in overtime.

The Sonics made just one of their first six shots in the extra period, while the Suns went ahead 121-116 on Green's shot.

Charles Barkley had 33 points and 12 rebounds, Kevin Johnson 25 points and 14 assists and Dan Majerle and Wayman Tisdale 16 points each for the Suns.

Detlef Schrempf scored 31 points and Gary Payton 30 for visiting Seattle, which fell 4 1/2 games behind the Suns in the Pacific Division.

Nuggets 100, Heat 98

Mahmoud Abdul-Rauf's 20-footer with less than two seconds left lifted Denver over Miami.

Glen Rice, who had 24 points for the visiting Heat, tied the game by hitting one of two free throws with 16 seconds left. After Abdul-Rauf put the Nuggets ahead, Miami had a chance to tie, but Reggie Williams blocked Rice's shot as time expired.

Hornets 116, Warriors 86

Alonzo Mourning scored most of his 22 points on dunks and layups as Charlotte overwhelmed Golden State.

Dell Curry added 21 points and Hersey Hawkins had 17. Curry drained four 3-pointers and Hawkins had three for the Hornets.

Lakers 109, Kings 104, 2 OT

Vlade Divac tied a season high with 27 points and had 19 rebounds, while Anthony Miller scored five of his career-high 18 points in the second overtime.

Baseball owners, players make small breakthrough

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

For at least one day in this odd spring, a few things about baseball looked familiar.

Oil Can Boyd was pitching, Pete Rose - Pete Jr., that is - was hitting and George Steinbrenner was steaming.

There also was a strange sight Friday: Owners and players actually getting along, once again leading to speculation that they might be able to settle the strike before the regular season starts in less than a month with replacements.

"I'm encouraged that maybe we're starting to get the wheels turning again," said Colorado Rockies chairman Jerry McMorris, now the owners' head negotiator.

The union accepted the owners' revenue-sharing agreement of January 1994, and also made a new proposal on a luxury tax.

"It's a hopeful sign," union chief Donald Fehr said. "I don't want to suggest so far that the gulf has been bridged."

Steinbrenner, meanwhile, wants to know what's the deal with these replacement players. In particular, what's wrong with his bunch.

He's one of the few owners who ever put any emphasis on winning exhibition games, is upset that the New York Yankees are 0-2 and have been outscored 19-5. No surprise, six

Oates relishes chance to manage for Rangers

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

PORT CHARLOTTE, Fla. - Johnny Oates knew it was all over for him as a major league catcher when he bounced a throw to second base and Danny Ainge stole home.

"Danny Ainge got to third base about as much as I did," Oates said. "I knew it was time to move on."

But when Oates was fired as manager of the Baltimore Orioles last year, there was a different feeling. Oates had unfinished business as a manager and the Texas Rangers are giving him a chance to prove it.

There was an interim period of soul-searching before general manager Doug Melvin, a former Orioles assistant general manager, tabbed Oates to manage at Texas.

Oates' conclusion? "I'm not as bad as a lot of people thought," Oates said. "I stepped back and looked and I'd started doubting myself (in Baltimore). We did okay, not because of me but because of the players. But my coaching staff put those players together."

"But now I feel much better able to handle adversity. The more you handle adversity and handle and live through, the better you feel about facing it in the future."

Oates had to overcome being fired from his first major league managing assignment after leading the Orioles to winning records in each of his final three seasons.

The Orioles were in second place when the players strike ended play last Aug. 12. It was Baltimore's best finish in 11 years and the Orioles' best winning percentage since 1983.

It was also the end of Oates' tenure in Baltimore.

"I'm thankful for the opportunity I had in Baltimore, it was a good learning experience," Oates said. "I'm a better manager than when I took over the Orioles. Now I'm thankful for the chance to continue managing."

Oates isn't excited about facing the season with replacement players. But he is excited about managing and finds it a positive that he's getting good looks at minor league prospects.

"Wonderful day isn't it?" a fan noted as Oates walked from one practice field to another.

"Everyday's a wonderful day," he said cheerily.

Standing, arms folded across his chest, Oates seems oblivious to the fact he could start the regular season with replacement players. "It's a great positive that the major league staff is getting good looks at these kids," Oates said. "It could have been two years before I saw some of these guys. I've been reading stats all winter. It's nice to put a face with the stats."

Oates won't use the strike as an excuse for not being familiar with the major leaguers once they report.

"That would be an alibi because my job is to know my personnel," Oates said. "When I sat down for the interview, I already knew the personnel because that's my job."

Melvin also left the Orioles organization to join the Rangers and found Oates a comfortable solution as manager.

"He's all baseball," Melvin said admiringly. "He's got the same kind of seriousness about him as a Tony LaRussa when he gets out of the car in the parking lot."

"Johnny loosens up and he can be funny too but when you get in that clubhouse he wants to make sure you're coming to work. That's important for the direction we're heading."

Oates knows he can't throw out runners anymore but he knows even better that he can still manage.

"There's always another challenge," he said. "Even if you win the World Series. You still have to come back the next year and start all over again."

New AD faces challenge at SMU

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) - Forrest Gregg brought Southern Methodist University respectability. Jim Copeland must bring it athletic success and financial stability.

The Mustangs were face down on the ground after the NCAA death penalty in the late 1980s, which almost killed the private school's athletic program.

Gregg was perfect for the job. He went to SMU and played at Green Bay where he was not only an All-Pro but made it to the Professional Football Hall of Fame. The late Vince Lombardi called Gregg the best player he ever saw.

Gregg gave SMU instant credibility again, particularly after he physically threatened anyone around the campus who would break NCAA rules. He said he would snap the neck of any wrongdoer. He meant it. Everyone behaved.

But Gregg didn't bring many victories, although the SMU basketball program did win a Southwest Conference title two years ago.

Gregg left to coach in the Canadian Football League and the Mustangs reached out to the University of Virginia, which has high academic standards but produced a solid athletic program, to find Copeland.

Copeland, who managed a staff of 127 persons in 23 intercollegiate sports at Virginia, brings impressive credentials, none of the least being the ability to raise money.

He increased the athletic endowment at Virginia from $3 million to $7 million and raised athletic donations from $3 million to $4.5 million. Facilities were upgraded and Virginia teams succeeded on the fields and courts.

Virginia's athletic department was in the financial black for seven straight years. SMU has been in the red - how deeply and how long only the board of regents knows for sure.

The Cavalier football team played in six bowl games, the basketball teams get into the NCAA Tournament, and won two national titles in minor sports such as women's lacrosse.

No lacrosse expertise is needed in Dallas County but solid teams in football and basketball are a must.

Pro football and basketball are being played here, not to mention pro hockey. The sports dollar is being hustled in a way Copeland hasn't yet seen.

Copeland, who played eight years with the Cleveland Browns as an offensive lineman, is undeterred by the challenge. In fact, he left Virginia because of it.

"I saw something I could do that nobody has ever done," said Copeland, mindful of SMU's troubles with the NCAA. "If I could bring SMU back, I think it would play well. I had reached the point at Virginia where I was just recycling things. This gives me a challenge. I consider myself a builder."

"I think we have a niche in Dallas. It's a different kind of entertainment. We need to get the community and corporations involved. I think we can do that."

Don't try to sell Copeland the excuse that SMU is too tough academically to be competitive in sports.

"We can win with the academic situation the way we have it," he said. "I believe the perception of SMU is better from the outside than the inside. I think we can keep the academic standards we have and win. I think we can get to the position where we are in the hunt for a bowl game every year and in some unusual year rank in the top 10 or the top 20."

"In basketball, we should get to the point where we are in the hunt for the NCAA Tournament every year."

He's not afraid of the word "win."

Copeland is holding staff meetings starting at 5:30 in the morning as he comes up with a game plan for the Mustangs, who are moving back to the Cotton Bowl from Ownby Stadium and to the Western Athletic Conference in 1996.

"I'm a morning person," laughs the affable Copeland. "I like to get rolling early."

Currently, he's figuring out how to raise money, assessing the performances of the coaches in various sports, checking future schedules, meeting the alumni, etc.

SMU staffers are impressed.

"With Jim aboard, you know that SMU is really committed all the way to athletics," said sports information director Ed Wisneski. "His forte is fund raising but you can see he will be a tremendous leader. We're already working on a game plan for years down the road. It's nice to find someone who doesn't say you can't do something. He just finds a way to do it."

Copeland, who played on the Browns special teams, likes to tell the story of how he had bullet Bob Hayes in his sights once on a punt return and ended up grabbing grass.

Copeland has just taken on a job seemingly more difficult than tackling Hayes in an open field.

"Tackling Hayes was impossible," Copeland said. "We can get SMU going again."

Baylor radio's Fallon retires after 42 years

WACO, Texas (AP) - A familiar voice leaves the air Saturday as Frank Fallon ends his 42-year career as the voice of the Baylor Bears.

Fallon, 64, has brought Baylor football and basketball into Texas homes since 1953.

"The games have been exciting, but what I'll miss most is all the associations with people I've developed throughout the years," Fallon said.

"I'll be 65 in June and I want to travel with my wife. I've been away as much as I've been at home all these years."

Fallon had always planned to retire by his 65th birthday. But he told the Waco Tribune-Herald for Saturday's editions that Parkinson's disease cinched the decision.

Fallon was diagnosed with the disease in mid-January, although he said his condition has steadily improved with the use of medication. "I've been very happy with my last few broadcasts," Fallon said. "With the medication, I've been feeling much better. It's a very treatable disease."

During the 1994 football season, Fallon noticed something was wrong. He said he couldn't get the timbre of his voice to the right level and had trouble finishing sentences.

"I really noticed that things weren't right during the middle of the last football season," Fallon said. "When we played TCU, I felt so listless. I knew something was wrong, but I thought it was allergies."

Fallon got his first break in the business after Alamo Heights High School speech teacher Gladys Kurtz encouraged him to audition at San Antonio radio station KITE in 1948. He got the job and broadcasted San Antonio Missions minor league baseball and Trinity University football before he was drafted into the Army in 1951.

After his discharge, Fallon wanted a college degree and looked around for a radio station in a college town. KWTX in Waco offered him a job as a night announcer before he began attending Baylor.

Fallon also was the Houston Oilers' first broadcaster and also announced the SWC basketball game of the week telecasts in the late 1960s.

Fallon will continue teaching at Baylor and broadcasting baseball games with his students. He will also continue as public address announcer at the NCAA Final Four.

BASEBALL

replacement players were sent packing after Friday's 8-2 loss to Atlanta.

Before the game, he charged that other general managers conspired to put together strong clubs, and contended that his staff didn't do such a good job, saying his front office was "asleep at the switch."

"I've been told some teams got a leg up on others," Steinbrenner said. "If that happened, it really gets me upset. If some teams loaded up because they knew this was going to happen, I'll raise hell. I won't have general managers running this thing. The owners are running it."

Most teams played Friday, and crowds were bigger than a day earlier, including 3,377 in Tucson, Ariz., to see Colorado rout Milwaukee 24-2. That score already has its place in replacement history, by the way - in 1912, when the Detroit Tigers went on a sympathy strike to support suspended Ty Cobb, the Philadelphia Athletics routed the replacement Tigers by the same 24-2.

A few fans even turned out at Jack Russell Stadium in Clearwater, Fla., to see the Baltimore Orioles play Philadelphia. The game was canceled earlier this week because Baltimore refuses to use replacements or play against them.

While the Orioles played an intrasquad game in St. Petersburg, the Phillies worked out 20 miles north.

Gervin deserves Hall of Fame enshrinement

By TOM ORSBORN

SAN ANTONIO EXPRESS-News
SAN ANTONIO - If Wayne Patterson has his way, George Gervin soon will be a member of more than one hall of fame.

The Iceman recently was inducted into the San Antonio Sports Hall of Fame, joining Bob Coleman, Tommy Nobis and Kyle Rote Sr. in the inaugural class.

Patterson is research director of the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield, Mass., and he believes Gervin belongs there as much as the peach basket Dr. James Naismith hung up in 1891 or one of Red Auerbach's victory cigars.

According to the hall's rules for induction, Gervin becomes eligible for induction in 1996. The rules state players must be retired for five years, and Gervin's last season of professional basketball was for the Continental Basketball Association's Quad City Thunder in 1989-90.

"We are all waiting for George. George is the man," Patterson said via telephone from Springfield. "Every kid growing up when I did had the poster of him sitting on the block of ice. I know I did."

The poster Patterson referred to was distributed by Nike in the early 1980s. It featured Gervin flashing a wide smile and holding two basketballs while sitting on a throne of ice.

Nike no longer distributes the poster and it has become a collector's item. Not even the Spurs have a copy.

"I think he should go in based on his poster alone," Patterson joked. "It was one of the first of its type and now there are hundreds of them."

Patterson said he believes the Iceman now deserves a new throne, one in Springfield next to the game's other great scoring guards.

If Gervin is inducted into the hall, he would become the first Spurs player so honored. Spurs assistant coach Dave Cowens was elected in 1990 for his achievements as a center for the Boston Celtics. Former Spurs center Artis Gilmore has been nominated but has not made a list of finalists.

"Gervin should go in on the first ballot. He should be in the class of '96. That's my personal opinion," Patterson said. "He rates on his statistics alone."

"He's got the four scoring championships, and his teams were fairly successful. He was named to the All-NBA first team five times (1978-82) and that's more important to the voters than the number of All-Star game appearances."

Patterson isn't the only person pushing for a first-ballot selection for Gervin. Los Angeles Lakers executive vice president Jerry West, Utah Jazz president Frank Layden, Spurs center Moses Malone and Atlanta Hawks coach Lenny Wilkens all believe Gervin should be a 1996 inductee.

"He made the game look easy," said Wilkens, who was elected to the hall in 1988. "Absolutely, he should be in the hall of fame."

"If he's not a first-ballot guy, I certainly would be surprised," said West, who was elected in 1979. "If this guy doesn't get in something's wrong. I think he's a good guy, too. I like him personally, and he belongs in the hall of fame."

Layden coached Gervin in the 1984 NBA All-Star Game. Malone played against him in both the American Basketball Association and the NBA.

"Absolutely," Layden said when asked if Gervin is worthy of a first-ballot selection. "How can you keep him out? The finger rolls, the giant steps. The kids today imitate him."

Gervin did not get the publicity he deserved during his playing career, Layden said.

"He played in San Antonio and that was the same as playing in Utah," Layden said. "He didn't get the big press. If he had played in New York or Los Angeles, they would have waived the five-year eligibility rule and they would have a statue of him in front of the hall."

"George is a superstar among all players. The league was at its peak when he was playing, and he was one of the five best players."

"He'll make it on the first ballot, no problem," Malone said. "He's got my vote. He's one of the greatest guards ever. He had the finger roll and those soft bank shots."

While Layden and Malone see a first-ballot induction for Gervin, Cowens believes the Iceman may have to wait.

"I got in on the third ballot," Cowens said. "It's kind of a popularity contest. I think it will depend on who is up for induction with him and who they want in there to help to continue to raise funds."

Gervin's biggest advocate, former Spurs vice president of basketball operations Bob Bass, strongly believes the Iceman is a first-ballot hall of famer.

"There have been several players that have gone in lately that haven't accomplished what he has," said Bass, whose coaching decision to move Gervin from forward to guard helped propel the Iceman to stardom. "He is just a one-of-a-kind player. A franchise has a player like that only once in 30 or 40 years. Of course, this franchise has been blessed with two with George and David Robinson."

Bass believes Gervin's consistency should help persuade voters to make him a first-ballot inductee.

"When you think about Ice, you remember sitting next to him on the bench and knowing you could write him in for 30 points every night and that he would provide enough attention from the defense so everyone else could live off him," Bass said.

Gervin, who played for the Spurs from 1974-85, averaged 21.9 points a game during his four-year ABA career. He won four scoring titles and averaged 28.2 points per contest in a 10-year NBA career, playing all but his last season with the Spurs.

Gervin is eighth on the combined NBA-ABA scoring list with 26,595 points. He played in 1,060 games, averaging 25.1 points, 5.3 rebounds and 2.6 steals per game. He also hit 50 percent of his shots from the field.

"I've got to believe he has a pretty good chance of getting in on the first ballot," Patterson said. "But you never know about the voters. I don't think (Indiana Coach) Bobby Knight got in on his first ballot."

"But we have inducted a lot of NBA players the past couple of years. I think George Gervin is one of the most eligible out there."

"He's also got the longevity to back it. We aren't talking about a one-year wonder."

Joe O'Brien, director of the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame, agreed with Patterson.

"George Gervin obviously has hall-of-fame credentials and it is now just a matter of going through the process," O'Brien said. "More than one person has nominated George, and the people that have nominated him are both from his collegiate days and his days with the Spurs."

The Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame began in 1959 and has been in Springfield since 1968. Its members are players, coaches, contributors and referees from both the college and professional ranks. There are 209 members in the hall: 103 players, 52 coaches, 42 contributors and 12 referees. Ten members are women.

Set for installment on May 15 are Los Angeles Lakers center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, women's stars Anne Donovan and Cheryl Miller, longtime Soviet Union coach Aleksandr Gomelsky, former NBA referee Earl Strom and a Minneapolis Lakers combination of Coach John Kundla and forward Vern Mikkelsen.

O'Brien said a list of nominees eligible for induction in 1996 will go to a screening committee in the fall and the hall's honors committee in December. An announcement of the 1996 inductees will be made in February of 1996, he said.

The honors committee is made up of 24 members, and 18 votes are needed for induction, O'Brien said. There are usually only five inductees per year, although seven made it this year.

The honors committee includes hall of famers, sportswriters, broadcasters, officials and administrators from both the professional and college ranks. O'Brien would not release the names of the voters.

"The makeup of the honors committee is pretty much anyone we feel can bring something to the table," Patterson said.

Gervin transferred from Long Beach State to Eastern Michigan in 1969. He played two seasons at Eastern Michigan and averaged 29.5 points in his final season (1971-72) at the school.

"George's file is complete; he has support and now it's just a process," O'Brien said. "We don't think the process is perfect. But it is pure and non-political and is based on merits as a basketball contributor."

Although Gervin's statistics are worthy of first-ballot induction, the Iceman's well-chronicled problems with drug abuse might trouble some voters.

If Gervin is inducted into the hall, he'll join Connie Hawkins and Abdul-Jabbar as members who have admitted to drug problems.

Working in Gervin's favor will be his recovery. He has been sober for several years and is a community relations representative for the Spurs.

"We can't eliminate that (Gervin's drug problems) from the individual minds of the voters," O'Brien said. "But that is not a subject of discussion among the group, nor is it an ultimate concern of the voters."

"The nominees' basketball credentials are the ultimate concern. Now if it was a high moral problem that a nominee had, something that hurt the game and this institution, then the board of trustees of the hall of fame have the right to take it (the nomination) away."

"That (Gervin's drug problems) was a personal problem that people look at from the human side, and I think people are happy to see that he has been able to handle the problem."

Patterson believes Gervin's addiction problems won't work against him.

"He's straightened himself out," Patterson said. "He's become a great ambassador of the game."

Midnite Basketball League provides San Antonio youths something to do

By KELLEY SHANNON

Associated Press Writer
SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Late one weekend night, after the San Antonio Spurs had finished off another opponent in the Alamodome, young men and women began showing up at the Davis-Scott YMCA.

Athletic bags in hand, they'd come from surrounding eastside neighborhoods, past dark street corners and graffiti-scarred buildings, to reach this nighttime haven where comradery and serious basketball awaited.

The Spurs-Pizza Hut Midnite Basketball League was under way.

"I like what they want to do with it, the purpose behind it - getting the kids off the streets," said 23-year-old Glen Lucas.

"I love basketball," he added.

San Antonio's Midnite Basketball League, like similar leagues in Texas and the nation, is concentrated in low-income areas. It's designed to give players ages 17-25 and spectators a positive late-night activity on weekends, when many could otherwise end up in trouble.

New to the league this year is a women's division, which gradually is gaining in popularity as word of it spreads. El Paso's midnite basketball league also recently added a women's division after small but vocal protests decrying the exclusion of women.

"This is really good for women, for sports. There are not a lot of places women can play basketball," said Maria Kuykendall, 20, a St. Philip's College student who plays in the San Antonio league.

Dana Burton, her coach, agrees. "It's kind of like our time has come," said Burton, 34, who participated in basketball, volleyball and track in high school and played volleyball for the Army and San Antonio College.

Odessa Tippins, 26, another coach and longtime basketball player and fan, said she kept urging league organizers to start a women's division.

"(Women) need an outlet, too, and basketball can give them something to do," she said.

All players in the league, which also is sponsored by Foot Locker, are issued NBA-style uniforms and play mostly by NBA rules for nine weeks in February and March. Games take place between 10 p.m. and 2 a.m.

The local Police Athletic League oversees the program. Officer Troy Smith, Midnite Basketball League commissioner and PAL president, said the program helps the players and police get to know each other.

"Just like they have an impression of us, we have an impression of them," Smith said. "Both sides benefit from it."

The Kids Sports Network, the city parks department and the Spurs Foundation also organize the league. Former Spurs star George Gervin, who does community relations work for the NBA team, is honorary commissioner.

"It's nothing but trouble when you're out real late and don't have a prospective job to go to or a program like this," Gervin said. "This is an opportunity to give them something to do."

For youngsters ages 9-16, the Spurs sponsor the Drug-Free Youth Basketball League, which targets low-income, inner-city neighborhoods and requires players to pledge to remain drug- and alcohol-free.

In the midnite league, which often has waiting lists, 48 women and 286 men are signed up.

Besides basketball, the league offers workshops on self-discipline and such skills as filling out job or college entrance applications.

"If we can get them in here, we can work on improving their outlook on life. A lot of them don't think they can go to college or do other things. The way we get them here is with the basketball," Smith said.

Uniformed police officers stand watch outside the gyms while games are played. Inside, officers in street clothes or police warm-up suits tend to blend in with the crowd.

Young people greet Smith, 34, by lightly "pounding" their fist to his, today's version of the old "high-five."

It wasn't always this way.

"At first they thought we were doing this to catch them for (arrest) warrants," said Smith, who had to explain to the players that wasn't the league's purpose. But he is quick to add, "I've told them, if you have a murder warrant or something, all bets are off."

Now, some of the players call Smith when they need advice about trouble they've gotten into.

"Be a man and own up to what you've done" is Smith's familiar refrain.

Smith proudly points out the basketball league's successes, like the more than two dozen people he personally knows of who have gone on full-time jobs or college.

"You spend long hours out here," Smith said. "If you see some results it makes it all worthwhile."

Junior Music Festival will be held Monday

The Annual Junior Music Festival, sponsored by the National Federation of Music Clubs, will be held from 8 a.m. until 12:30 p.m. Monday at the First Baptist Church.

There will be approximately 100 students in the festival representing Hereford, Friona, and Vega.

Piano and voice teachers participating locally are Susan Shaw, Evelyn Hacker, Cheryl Betzen, Barbara Manning and Francis Parker. Johnnie Walters of Friona will also be participating.

This year's event will be judged by Patricia Harris, Jana Johnson, Mildred Busch, Mary Lou Stockdale, all of Amarillo, and Janice Bowen, from Canyon.

Jana Johnson is a graduate of West Texas State University with a degree in music performance. She is a member of Amarillo Music Teachers Assn., Texas Music Teachers Assn. and Music Teachers National Assn. In 1984, she appeared with classical guitarist, Hansford Johnson, at Carnegie Hall. She is an organist at Westminster Presbyterian Church and she is an independent studio teacher in Amarillo, teaching both private and group lessons.

Mildred Busch holds a bachelor of music degree in piano performance, a bachelor of arts degree in music theory and a master of arts degree in composition, music theory and educational psychology. She held a teaching fellowship at Baylor University. She has also studied extensively in New York City, as well as music centers in Austria, France, Hawaii and elsewhere. She is well known for her love of children and her wide range of experience in giving students a lifelong love of music through enjoyable music study. She currently maintains a private studio in Amarillo.

Janice Bowen is a graduate of Hardin-Simmons University with a major in piano performance. She received her master of music degree from Texas Tech with an organ major. She has studied in workshops annually with a number of piano pedagogy specialists. In addition to piano classes, she has taught Kindermusik classes for preschoolers through the Continuing Education Department of West Texas A&M University, since 1985. She is presently a pianist for the First Baptist Church in Canyon. She has had experience in directing children's choirs and has been an accompanist both at church and WTAMU. She is active in the Amarillo Music Teacher's Assn., the Texas Music Teachers Assn. and the Music

MILDRED BUSCH

Teachers National Assn. She is also active in the National Guild of Piano Teachers, Kindermusik Teachers' Assn. and Canyon Fine Arts Club. She currently maintains a private piano studio in Canyon.

Patricia Harris moved to Amarillo in 1988 from Odessa where she taught piano at the University of Texas, Permian Basin and Odessa College in both the college and preparatory departments. In Amarillo, she maintains a large music teaching students from age three through adult at all levels. She teaches a variety of keyboard instruments including piano, organ, harpsichord and synthesizer. She is currently a church organist and music director. She received her music education degree from the University of Texas. She is a member of the Amarillo Music Teachers' Assn. and the National Federation of Music Clubs.

Mary Lou Stockdale has been a private piano teacher in Amarillo since 1958. She graduated from the Friends University in Wichita, Kansas. She was elected Music Teacher of the Year in 1987 by the AMTA. She has been a member of TFMC since 1954. She is a past president of Amarillo Music Teachers Assn. She has been an adjudicator for festivals in Dallas, Borger, Hereford, and Goodwell, Okla. She has been a church organist for over 25 years. She is currently a private piano teacher in Amarillo.

Memorial service is held by Pioneer Study Club

The Pioneer Study Club met in the Conference Room of King's Manor for the regular February meeting on the 28th.

Rosemary Thomas gave the invocation and Nell Culpepper led the pledges to the flags of the United States and Texas.

The Federation Report was given by Thomas. She advised that the president of the General Federation asked each member to write to President Clinton concerning the reinstatement of the Status of Women.

A memorial service for Billee Johnson was led by Rosemary Thomas with members responding. Mrs. Johnson was a member of the Pioneer Study Club for more than sixty years. She was also a life member of the Top of Texas District, TFWC.

Members were reminded that old telephone books and newspapers should be taken to the Catholic School on the first Saturday of each month for recycling. Clear glass and metal cans are also accepted.

"My Turn" was the program for the meeting. Each member participated by sharing with a topic of her choice. Of special interest was a photograph album of recent snapshots of Billee Johnson compiled by Maria Escamilla.

The meeting adjourned with the Collect for Clubwomen in unison.

Luncheon was served in the Lamar Room to Mary Jane Burrus, Escamilla, Catherine Gripp, Olea Hoffman, Mary Panciera and the hostesses Culpepper and Thomas.

ing, more diminishing than being in prison. They treat you like garbage," the former chief judge of New York's highest court told graduates of a deferred sentencing program Friday.

Wachtler, 64, was released from a halfway house last year after serving a year in prison for harassing his ex-lover, Joy Silverman. He was the state's top judge in 1992 when he admitted terrorizing the New York socialite after she broke off their affair, at one point threatening to kidnap her daughter.

As part of his mandated 500 hours of community service, Wachtler, who now teaches at Pace Law School, is counseling nonviolent offenders and promoting deferred sentencing programs.

By A.J. HOSTETLER
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA (AP) - More than 1.25 million Americans will learn they have cancer this year, the American Cancer Society predicts.

The Atlanta-based group predicts that there will be 547,000 cancer deaths in 1995 - nearly 1,500 a day. The top four cancer killers are lung, colorectal, breast and prostate.

Growing use of a test for prostate cancer is expected to boost the number who discover they have that disease, but lung cancer is still seen as the deadliest diagnosis.

Death rates for most cancers continue to drop as people heed advice about healthier lifestyles and warnings to seek help when they suspect a problem, according to Joann Schellenback, a spokeswoman for the society.

"We're getting some messages across. The most important thing about cancer is early detection and very prompt treatment. Prevention will play the most important role in the long run, but detection and treatment are helping us make headway," she said.

Lung cancer will strike 169,900 people, mostly smokers, and kill 157,400.

"The frustrating thing about that is that much of it is preventable," said Phyllis Wingo, the society's director for surveillance. The society estimates that 170,000 lives will be lost to diseases like lung, throat and mouth cancers this year because of tobacco.

Although prostate cancer cases are increasing, from about 200,000 cases last year to an estimated 244,000 cases this year, it's not becoming a bigger health threat.

More men are being diagnosed with the disease largely because more doctors are using the prostate specific antigen, or PSA, screening test and because of the growing number of older men, who are most likely to develop the disease, Wingo said. Prostate cancer, which will kill about 40,400 men this year, is the second leading cause of cancer deaths in men.

The society was pleased that the numbers of women discovering they have breast cancer and those dying from the disease isn't growing.

Wingo said. The figures for 1995 among women are close to those of a year ago - 182,000 new cases and 46,000 deaths.

"When you see the curve turn and start to level off, that's pretty exciting," Wingo said. She attributed that improvement to better screening and treatment, particularly among white women, whose death rate from breast cancer has fallen 5 percent, according to recent statistics from the National Cancer Institute.

Better screening has also continued to the drop in deaths from colorectal cancer, which will strike 138,200 people and kill 55,300 this year. The death rate has dropped by a third for women and by about 7 percent for men over the last 30 years.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

Any success you have in life belongs to not just you, but to the people who believed in you.--Mark Chesnut

And, eighth graders, we believe in you and wish you well as you take the writing portion of TAAS on Tuesday.

Thursday night is Open House for next year's seventh graders. This will give the students and parents an opportunity to visit school, learn about all the classes and programs and meet teachers. If you have a child who will be entering junior high next fall, do plan now to attend this special event.

The Build the Capitol group began "raising the walls" of the Capitol on Wednesday. Jerry Baird and Seth Pietsek stayed until about five o'clock and really made a difference. Students came in on Thursday and Friday, early and late, to work on the project. They must have it ready to take to Southwest Airlines in Amarillo on March 23, where it will be judged.

Congratulations to Carey Lyles, Matt Irish, Jenny Artho and Emily Curtis for their WIN at the area history fair activities in Canyon. Carey and Matt not only won a first for their project, but were recognized for recorded history, as well. They will be entered in both categories at the state meet in Austin in May. Each of the students will continue to improve their work before the fair in May.

Seventh and eighth graders will continue TAAS practice during advisory time until the actual TAAS test time. This gives the students an opportunity to concentrate on the type of work that they will see on the tests.

School will be dismissed at noon on Friday for students and those teachers who have earned "comp" time, and this will begin the annual Spring Break.

Many of our students are involved in track activities. Others, who are in athletics, are doing off-season activities and trying to stay in shape for sports. Many of them plan to be active in summer sports, as well as. We feel that any of the sports activities are valuable and should receive support throughout junior high.

People who will always seem young are those who never reveal their age! To handle yourself, use your heart; to handle others, use your heart!

Area resident will participate in Mrs. Texas "America" pageant

Glenda Duggan has been selected to represent the Hereford area in the Mrs. Texas America pageant which will be held in Dallas on May 26, 27 and 28 at the Grand Hotel.

Duggan is a 1977 graduate of Tascosa High School in Amarillo. She received an associate of applied science degree in secretarial proficiency from Amarillo College in 1978.

An employee of Walcott Independent School District, Duggan is also a distributor with a health and nutrition company.

She and her husband Willis have three sons—Brady, 11; James, 8; and Seth, 6. Her hobbies include reading, crafts, walking for exercise, collecting magnets for the refrigerator and memorizing telephone numbers.

The Mrs. Texas America pageant is a preliminary to the nationally televised Mrs. America Pageant which is now in its 18th year. Mrs. America represents the United States in the Mrs. World pageant.

The competition is divided into three categories—personal interview, swimsuit and evening gown.

The fees to enter the pageant total $695 and will cover a half-page ad in the program book, and a contestant's hotel and meal expenses while at the pageant.

In addition, each contestant must provide her own competition evening gown, swimsuit, interview dress and a cocktail dress. Contestants are allowed to have sponsors to help defray these expenses. Sponsors can be mentioned in the program booklet.

Duggan said, "I am very excited to represent Hereford in the pageant and I want to let others know about our community and what a blessing it is to live here."

"I will be calling on local businesses and hope they can help sponsor me so I can represent Hereford to the best of my ability," said Duggan.

This year's Mrs. Texas, Wendy Lewis, went on to win the Mrs. America title, the first Mrs. Texas to do so in 12 years.

FCE Council discusses upcoming 'Sweet Bee'

The Deaf Smith County Family Community Education Council met Feb. 27 after the appreciation luncheon. Jo Lee, Wyche FCE Club, was named "Woman of the Year". The award was presented by The Hereford Brand.

Jo Lee, FCE chairman, called the meeting to order. The executive committee was hostess. Maudette Smith read a poem, "Mother's Bread".

There were seven clubs represented and five clubs had 100 percent attendance.

Welcomed visitors were Marilyn Smith, Lori and Kristi Homfeld.

During the business meeting the Sweet Bee was discussed. The cookbooks plus the meal will be $7.

It will be held March 23 at the Hereford Community Center. There will be a cultural arts display and a quilt will be given away. The proceeds will go toward a 4-H scholarship.

There will be a program given March 29 at 1:30 p.m. at the Senior Ballroom called "Eating Right and Eating Light" by Jill Sheaffer and Dimple Cooksey.

Delegates for District 1 spring meeting are Maudette Smith, Coreen Odum and Tonia Vaughn. Alternate is Edna Marnell.

Club members donated 1,050 volunteer hours of community work during 1994.

Red Cross Update

A workshop for volunteers doing after hours emergency assistance for military personnel and their families and for volunteer office staff will be held Saturday, March 11 at the Red Cross office. The workshop will begin at 1 p.m. and finish about 5 p.m. Call the office for further information.

A CPR class will begin Tuesday at 7 p.m. at the office. Call the office to register.

March is National Red Cross month. As part of the month's activities, disaster preparedness classes will be offered. The first class, introduction to disaster services, will be offered Tuesday at 7 p.m. at the Red Cross office.

The March membership drive is under way. Membership cards are available at the office. Come by or call for your card.

The Red Cross office is located at 224 South Main Street. The mailing address is P.O. Box 1371 and the phone is 364-3761.

The Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross is a United Way Agency.

The aging process affects vision, health, mobility and other factors, which may leave elder Texans unable physically to drive to the grocery store, shop for food, cook and feed themselves. With these physical barriers, it is no surprise that these elders or their family members may find them undernourished and unable to maintain their normal weight.

Help is available for those who want to help their parents remain healthy and independent as long as possible. Older adults can start taking advantage of the local community services such as congregate meals at the senior citizens feeding sites, local services providing meals on wheels or other available services for the elderly. These programs for which many may be eligible are designed to give you the boost individuals need to stay independent and living on their own as long as possible.

Some helpful eating hints for seniors, which also should be encouraged by family members who may be assisting their loved ones, are listed below:

*Eat a healthful diet chosen from a wide variety of foods such as those recommended by the USDA Food Guide Pyramid.

*Know and maintain a normal weight.

*Eat plenty of complex carbohydrates found in fruit, vegetable and whole grain products.

*Eat less fried foods, gravy and other foods higher in fat, saturated fatty acids and cholesterol.

Bayview Club holds meeting

The Bayview Study Club met March 2 in the home of Mrs. Ernest Langley.

Plans were made for an anniversary tea at the E.B. Black House on March 16 celebrating 85 years as an active club.

Mrs. Cal Mitts introduced the program presented by Terry Sparks on flower arranging.

He demonstrated different styles of arrangements including wreaths.

Members attending were Mesdames Charles Bell, J.A. Burran, G.D. Caison, Wes Fisher, D.N. Garner, Bob Josseland, Earnest Langley, A.T. Mims, Cal Mitts, C.F. Newsom, Abel Ruga, W.J. Gilliland and Bob Sims.

Jones directorial debut airing Sunday on TNT

By SCOTT WILLIAMS
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Tommy Lee Jones, one of this generation's finest actors, finally has met his equal among film directors.

Jones makes a spectacular directorial debut in "The Good Old Boys," airing Sunday on cable's TNT. It just might be the best TV movie you're likely to see this year.

"I'm very happy doing both jobs. One informs the other," the director-star said in publicity interviews. "And I have a direct line to the lead actor: He does exactly as I tell him."

Superbly, too, as does the extravagantly talented cast who flocked to Jones' project for the chance to work with him: Sissy Spacek, Sam Shepard, Wilford Brimley, Frances McDormand, Park Overall and Terry Kinney.

Set in 1906's West Texas, "Good Old Boys" is about the end of an era, but avoids the obvious, sentimental treatment the theme frequently receives.

Jones creates a remarkably vivid, detailed portrait of a time, a place and a people at a historic moment, when the Old West was beginning to fade and the automobile was still something that scared the horses.

Jones plays Hewey Calloway, a bit of a rounder and a fair hand, who loves the cowboy life. Hewey talks to his chestnut mare, Biscuit, and holds her reins up high and loose.

He is headed to the hardscrabble West Texas homestead of his brother Walter (Kinney) and sister-in-law (McDormand) when he's forced to cold-cock the troublemaking town marshal.

Hewey's an uncomplicated soul, who's vaguely troubled by his eldest nephew's attraction to things mechanical. When young Cotton (Matt Damon) scolds him as a relic destined to be bypassed by the changing West, Hewey tells him, "Well, I hope you like it when you get it finished."

Director Jones also gets considerable help from his screenwriters, namely one Tommy Lee Jones and J.T. Allen, who wrote TNT's much-praised "Geronimo."

Their dialogue is dry and rusty as old barbed wire. Hewey, on the state of his finances: "I reckon if it took $100 to get to heaven, I might get to Fort Worth."

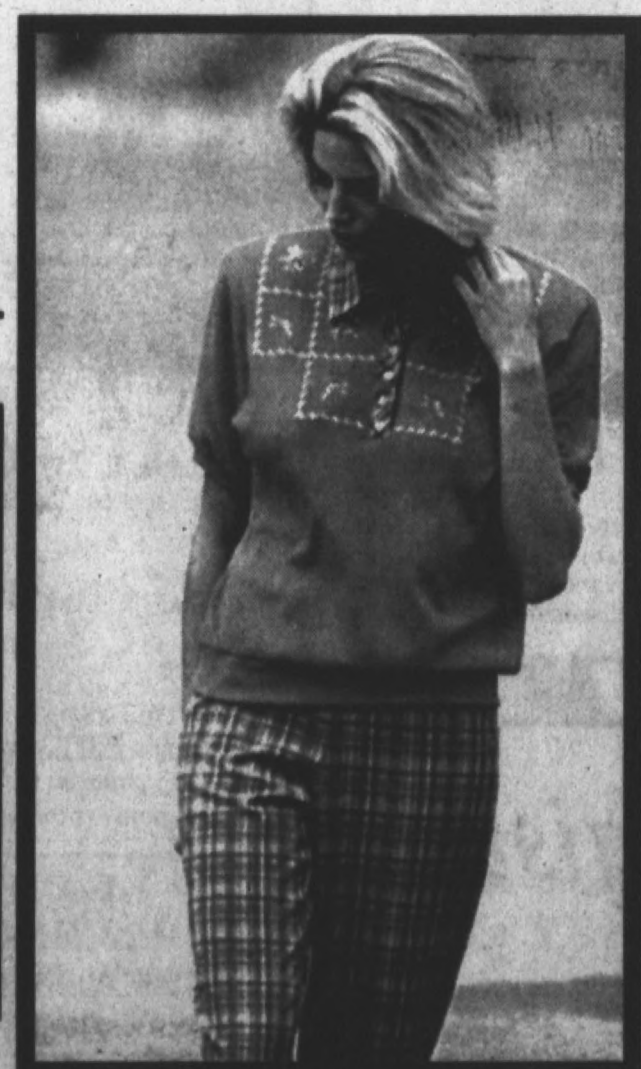

Jones, an eighth-generation Texan, strives to re-create the look of his native state.

The movie's visual beauty would almost be enough, too, but Jones wants you to understand settling a section in 1906, when the Homestead Act said you could have the land if you could build a house, run a well and get in a crop.

Cantu is the son of Antonio D. and Maria T. Cantu of Hereford.

He is a 1993 graduate of Hereford High School.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When our daughter won a scholarship to a very fine university in the East last year, we were thrilled and proud of her.

"Mary" does not drink or smoke and has high moral standards. We were not the least bit uneasy about her moving so far from home to go to school, and we didn't worry about peer pressure. She has always been a leader not a follower.

Mary's letters, however, are depressing. She says so many people who live in her dorm (it's mixed, both men and women) get drunk at least four nights a week and they make so much noise she can't study. She also has spent several nights taking care of sick, hung-over friends. Her roommate, she says, often stays out until 3:00 or 4:00 in the morning, comes in drunk and throws up. Mary resents having to clean up after her, but she has no choice.

We did not anticipate this sort of thing when we sent our daughter away to college. We asked Mary if she would consider changing schools next year (we would be willing to forgo the scholarship and pay her tuition). She said, "No, an Ivy League school has always been my dream, and these problems exist all over."

We find this shocking as well as depressing. What on earth is going on? Can you tell us?—Parents in Davenport, Iowa

DEAR PARENTS: You ask, "What's going on?" You just described it, according to the information I receive regularly from the National Clearinghouse for Alcohol and Drug Information. College students spend $5.5 billion

Meeting planned for class of '70

The Hereford High School class of 1970 will have a class reunion planning meeting on March 13 at 7:30 p.m. at Sirlain Stockade.

Plans will be made for the 25th class reunion to be held in August.

a year on alcohol. Harvard School of Public Health researchers have reported that excessive use of alcohol on college campuses may be hazardous not only to the health of drinkers, but to non-drinkers as well. They suffer from loss of sleep and study time, vandalism, physical assault, unwanted sexual advances and rape.

Dr. Henry Wechsler, Director of College Alcohol Studies at the Harvard School of Public Health, was the lead author of a report that studied the drinking habits of 17,592 students from 140 colleges. The study found that alcohol on college campuses poses a serious hazard to the physical health and emotional well-being of students. One student said she was fed up with people urinating in the elevators, vomiting in the halls, wrecking the bathroom and pounding holes in the walls.

Dr. Wechsler's research revealed that nearly half the college students are binge drinkers who cause most of the trouble by depriving others of study time and sleep and physically attacking classmates. College security officers and administrators report that alcohol is involved in the majority of rapes and almost all violent incidents on campus.

Wechsler urges students who do not drink to speak up and demand their rights. Time magazine quoted Wechsler as saying, "If your roommate gets drunk every night, either insist on a new roommate or demand that you be moved." He urges people who are bothered by excessive drinking to complain. He said, "I want students to complain. I want parents to complain. That's the only way we will get change."

Although Wechsler does not beat the drum for total abstinence (he says it is not "realistic"), I disagree. If you don't drink at all, you will never have to worry about how much is too much.

DEAR READERS: Here's another reminder of how times have changed: Johnny, age 6, was eavesdropping on an adult conversation. He heard the adults discussing how someone had found a condom on the patio. After the guests left, Johnny turned to his mother and asked, "Mom, what's a patio?"

When planning a wedding, who pays for what? Who stands where? "The Ann Landers Guide for Brides" has all the answers. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.75 (this includes postage and handling) to: Brides, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada, send $4.55.)

Between the Covers

By JOE WEAVER

I have lived in the country, I have lived in town, and I have lived in the city, and while the city has a few things to recommend itself, the advantages of rural living far outweigh the disadvantages. One difference that is not pointed out too often is the number of people you know and feel close to. At last Sunday's dedication of Langley Park, I was impressed by the devotion accorded Nita Lea and the Langleys, both in the naming of the building and park, and in the number of people who came to show their appreciation. You do not find that on such a scale in a city.

The down side of knowing a lot of people though, is that you get to go to a lot of funerals, and Hereford has had its share these past few weeks. The Deaf Smith County Library lost a friend in Otto Pugliese. Sharing my interest in history, Otto frequently brought me some item he had found in a newspaper or magazine. I learned a lot from him, and I hope he did from me. When he passed away, Otto had been helping out at the Library, cleaning and straightening up some things we just couldn't get around to. I would say "we will miss you", buddy, but we already have.

And while we're on that subject. A number of year ago (has it really been almost 20?), a beautiful young lady gave me two paperback books for my birthday. The covers noted them as best sellers, but I generally prefer to select my own reading material, and I was not familiar with the author. However, because of my affection for the young lady, and because I was in need of some good reading material, I started the first book. Immediately captivated, I raced through it so rapidly that I forced myself to ration the second book. I came to James Herriot late, but I was not disappointed. After reading All Creatures Great and Small and All Things Bright and Beautiful I eagerly anticipated his next volume. (In paperback, of course. I don't shell out for anybody's hardbacks!)

James Herriot is one of the very few authors whose books I have read more than once and plan to read again. The young lady and I (neither of us so young any more) have shared his books on vacations. In the middle of an insufferable Fort Worth summer, we would take out James Herriot's Yorkshire and lose ourselves in the beautiful color photographs of the villages and dales. (I have the hardback of that one, but I think it was given to me.) And now we are introducing our children to Jim and Helen and Sigfried and Tristan and all of the people and animals of Mr. Herriot's practice. Mr. Herriot (James Alfred Wight in real life) died on February 24 at his home—Skeldale House—in the Yorkshire Dales where he worked as a veterinarian for half a century.

The Associated Press reports that his 15 books have sold some 50 million copies in 20 countries, and here's an odd thing we discovered: his books are published under different titles in England. As a matter of fact, some of the large print books of his that we have published in England, so, while the titles are unfamiliar, the stories are the same that you would find in All Creatures Great and Small and the others. We have all of his "Bright and Beautiful" series (some in large print), and most of this children's stories that were drawn from those books. There are also the Yorkshire book and an edited compilation of the others. Some of his stories are on audio cassette, and the feature movie All Creatures Great and Small (from which came the PBS series) is awaiting processing, and will be available for checkout soon. Thanks, Jim, for leaving us so much richer.

One more thought relating to Herriot. His books came chiefly from a journal which he started as a young man. If he could take time from a busy practice to put down his thoughts, and organize them into book form...what stories could most of us tell, if only to our own children?

Let's see, this is the first column in March, so what's going on?... The Family Film on the 16th will be Springtime in the Rockies, with Gene Autry. Gene spends so much time singing that his ranch is going to pot, and now he must deal with bad guys and a gal from the East who wants to introduce sheep to the area.

Now we all know that we don't watch B westerns for highly developed plots or complicated intrigue. This is just plain, old, simple Saturday Matinee-type stuff, but you know there will be good singing and the good guys will win. On the tail end of March (the 30th) is our Library Open House. Plan now to attend to see who is recognized as the Library Family of the Year, and to hear columnist (not communist) Bob Wylie.

Lot's of good books going out this week, but only time to mention a couple. Fans of Lilian Jackson Braun will be glad to see The Cat Who Blew the Whistle. Not by the Sword, by Kathryn Watterson is the true story of "how the love of a Jewish cantor and his family transformed a Klansman." See you at the library!

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: You get so much mail that I wouldn't blame you if you just tossed this out, as I'm just asking my question out of curiosity. A 50-year-old relative just had a heart bypass operation. They took veins from his legs. My late husband had phlebitis in the leg veins. Since veins from legs are subject to clotting problems to begin with, isn't there some other place to take bypass veins from? I hear only of leg veins. — B.N.

ANSWER: Bypass surgeons like to use leg veins as replacements because they are so accessible and quite expendable. We get along quite well without them.

It is true that leg veins are prone to clotting, but that has more to do with their gravitational environment. When you stand, blood pools in leg veins. However, those same veins implanted nearer the heart do not behave that way.

When called upon, other vessels can serve well as bypass channels. For example, internal mammary arteries, located high in the chest, can be utilized.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a 37-year-old woman who has never been sexually involved with anyone. I was horrified when my doctor diagnosed my genital rash as herpes. I'm still in shock. He must assume that I have a sex life. What is the best course of action to take now? — B.K.D.

ANSWER: Other rashes do look like herpes. Explain your situation to your doctor. If the diagnosis was made only by a look at the rash, the doctor may well want to change the herpes diagnosis.

If the doctor still insists it is herpes, additional tests can be done. For example, herpes-infected skin cells can be viewed with a microscope, to look for changes typical of that infection.

Finally, if the herpes diagnosis holds up, let me give you one possible way you could have gotten it without sexual exposure. Cold sores are really herpes infections. You can contaminate your fingers with the herpes oral virus and spread it to other parts of the body. That might have happened to you.

Putting first things first, have the diagnosis confirmed. For a full discussion, see the herpes report I'm sending you. Readers can order it by writing: Dr. Donohue — No. 17, Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have been diagnosed as having Crohn's disease. I need some information on it. I am a 73-year-old woman. — R.W.

ANSWER: Crohn's disease is one of the difficult bowel-inflammation diseases. Why the digestive tract becomes the target of such inflammation has never been adequately explained.

The inflammation area is usually in the small intestine, more specifically in the ileum, its final section, where it joins the large intestine. In fact, another name for Crohn's disease is "regional ileitis."

Any part of the digestive tract from the mouth downward can be affected.

Crampy, achy abdominal pains become a hallmark of such inflammation. Diarrhea can follow. And in

Lifestyles Policies

The Hereford Brand welcomes news articles of interest from local readers, clubs and organizations. Because this is a daily newspaper, we must have guidelines on timely submission of news items.

*General news items for the Lifestyles section must be submitted by 1 p.m. the day before publication and by 9 a.m. Friday for the Sunday edition. Club reports should be submitted the day following the meeting, and no later than three days. Late contributions are subject to considerable editing.

*Listings for club meetings and special events in the "Calendar of Events" should be submitted by Wednesday of each week.

*Photos of new club officers, donation presentations, etc., can be made by appointment at The Brand office Monday through Friday after 2 p.m. We do not take photos for engagements, weddings, anniversaries or showers; however, loaner cameras are available and should be reserved 24 hours in advance. The Brand has forms available, upon request, for preparing engagement announcements, wedding stories and bridal showers. These are usually too lengthy to take over the phone.

*Engagements should be announced at least a month before the wedding, if both an engagement and wedding photo are desired. Photos should be in black and white; some color photos may be approved if contrast is suitable for reproduction. Wedding and anniversary writeups should be submitted at least five days before publication.

*The Brand will take on-location photos for special events. Call at least two days before the event to see if arrangements can be made.

*Notices of birthday celebrations will be written for Hereford residents 80 years of age and up. The Brand advertising department will quote prices and prepare all other birthday greetings or announcements, including Quinceaneras.

*Notices of new arrivals are obtained from Hereford Regional Medical Center. Information on local babies born elsewhere, or with grandparents in Hereford, should be reported to The Brand within two weeks. Brief items of interest about college students, or former residents, are welcome concerning degrees, academic honors, career promotions, etc. Please submit as soon as possible to ensure timeliness.

To submit an article or obtain more information, call Becky Camp or Shelly Schilling at 364-2030 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. After 5 p.m., information may be placed in the night drop at our front door.

—YOUR EYES—

LOW VISION: THERE'S HELP AVAILABLE

Millions of Americans suffer some form of serious visual impairment, or low vision. Indeed, about 1.5 million don't see well enough to read a newspaper with ordinary glasses or contact lenses. But help is available to enable most to maintain an independent lifestyle.

Many people with low vision are elderly and suffer from cataracts, glaucoma and retinal disease. Your optometrist, a low-vision specialist, aims to maximize the remaining vision with carefully selected lenses for distance and reading. Optical magnification systems such as strong reading glasses, hand-held magnifiers, stand magnifiers and video print enlargers can be prescribed to enable the patient to read again. There are telescopes—some mounted on glasses—that can facilitate watching TV, theater or sporting events.

Sight loss usually is first noticed when reading becomes difficult. Seeing an optometrist promptly for professional evaluation can help the individual hold onto the vision remaining and make the most of it.

Hereford wins pork plant

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

Premium Standard Farms of Princeton, Mo., has optioned property near Hereford for the planned construction of a new pork processing facility. It was to be announced at a 2 p.m. press conference and public meeting today in the HSD administration building.

Engineering and design is underway and construction is planned to begin in late 1995 following successful completion of the option agreements and related infrastructure issues with the City of Hereford and Deaf Smith County. Hogs for the new facility will be grown by PSF at the expanding production facilities around Dalhart.

This world-class facility will bring 500 quality jobs and a multi-million dollar investment to the community," said Hereford Mayor Bob Josseland.

"It's a wonderful Christmas gift for Hereford and Deaf Smith County."

development efforts just took one giant step forward."

PSF and the planned processing operation reflect the future of Texas agriculture, according to Commissioner of Agriculture Rick Perry.

"Value-added processing is one key component in the future of agriculture," said Perry. "By taking a raw commodity, which in this case is high quality pork, and processing it, Premium Standard Farms not only sends a more valuable product into the channels of trade, but creates jobs for the people of the Panhandle."

Commission votes to adopt park development program

A park development program, with parks to be developed in areas in which the commission will be implementing the commission's new park program.

The commission also approved a call for a special election on Aug. 13 for city residents to decide whether to adopt the neighborhood park program.

The commission is "ready to help" the city, county, schools, chamber of commerce and other groups, those who are interested in the park program.

Without the cooperation of the city, county, schools, chamber of commerce and other groups, those who are interested in the park program would not have been able to develop the park program.

City Commission Expresses Goals for 1995

Mayor Bob Josseland and the City Commission selected goals that the commission would like to see accomplished in '95. The Mayor said that his priority for '95 is the "development and adoption of a definite, measurable short and long range plan for the City."

Commissioner Nancy Griego cited three goals for the 1995 Year; first, continue development of the Parks and recreation Department; second, complete and organize the use of the Aquatic Facility and, third, determine what our youth will utilize as quality entertainment.

Commissioner Wayne Winget expressed goals ranging from the completion of the water development project to expanding the Youth Detention Facility, establishing a Teen Court and finally proceeding with the Park and Recreation Department.

Commissioners Carey Black and Roger Eades hope for the continued emphasis on Economic Development in Hereford.

Commissioner Silvana Juarez calls development of the city's park program her number one goal for 1995. She is looking forward to the opening of the new aquatic center and hopes for continued efforts in economic development.

Citizen Feedback

The City Commission embarked on a plan of establishing goals for the City in both long and short terms in June of 1993. The Staff has been busy accomplishing those goals that were established. The Commission is now asking the Citizens of Hereford for their input in how well we the City are doing in carrying out the obligations of the office they hold. On the opposite page, you can fill out and send to the City at P.O. Box 2277 or bring by and deposit it at the drive-in window. There will also be voice mail available by calling 364-2123 after 5:00 P.M. It is not necessary to leave your name or sign the form if you so choose. All the information collected will be used to help us determine the course of the City for the years to come.

Boll weevil eradication to be topic of meeting

Information on the High Plains Boll Weevil Eradication Referendum will be provided on Tuesday at the Hereford Community Center Banquet Room.

Hereford is a sponsor of this educational meeting along with 29 other High Plains and adjacent Rolling Plains counties in the proposed eradication zone. The two-hour boll weevil meeting will be conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and will begin at 10 a.m.

The program has been accredited by the Texas Department of Agriculture for two continuing units (CEUs) toward re-certification requirements for private pesticide applicators.

Brant A. Baugh, Extension Entomologist from Palmer County will present information on the present boll weevil situation and the proposed referendum so that cotton producers can make an informed decision when they have the opportunity to vote in April.

A representative from Plains Cotton Growers will make a presentation to emphasize further the critical nature of the present boll weevil situation and provide details about the proposed referendum and program operation.

The Plains Cotton Growers Boll Weevil suppression Program has operated for 31 years and has successfully kept the boll weevil from becoming an established economic pest in the High Plains area, the biggest cotton patch in the world.

"Area producers have enjoyed a competitive edge compared to other regions of the cotton belt where insect control often means spraying up to 15 times a season," said Dr. James Leser, Extension Entomologist at Lubbock. "Many of these pesticide applications can be directly attributed to the presence of boll weevils."

The PCG program uses a fall diapause control program, applying malathion within its operational boundaries that, with the help of cold winter weather, reduce the number of boll weevils able to successfully survive as overwintering adults until a new cotton crop is up and squaring in the early summer. Malathion is a proven and safe insecticide which has been used by the diapause program for 41 years. It was also used for the California Medfly program and is widely used for mosquito control in towns across the area. The program control zone, roughly along the edge of the Caprock Escarpment, creates a buffer to the east and south of the High Plains acreage, separating weevil infested areas of the Rolling Plains and the uninfested areas of the High Plains.

Leser explains that the boll weevil has recently outflanked the PCG control program as has moved into previously uninfested areas at an alarming pace that last two years. Infestations are widespread as far north as Lubbock, Lynn, Dawson, Terry, Gaines and Yoakum counties. He notes that scattered infestations have been detected in Hale, Crosby, Floyd, Briscoe, Hockley, and Lamb counties. Leser warns that if left unchecked, the boll weevil could easily cost area producers over $160 million in yield losses, fiber quality reductions and increases insecticide costs. "The worst case scenario is that the weevil could put us out of the cotton business."

The boll weevil has taken advantage of four consecutive mild winters, resulting in unprecedented numbers of weevils surviving to infest cotton in the early summer, Leser explains. The 1994-1995 winter appears to be the mildest one of them all. Cotton producers in the southern High Plains area can expect an expensive battle with these past this year, says Leser.

Shoppers squeeze foreign fruit

The tomatoes that are squeezed at the corner grocery store may come from a farm in Mexico, the peaches from Chile and the broccoli from Canada. Winter season produce found in Texas markets may have been grown in the state or on other U.S. farms, or imported from other countries. Fruits and vegetables from Texas include sweet potatoes, winter squash, beets, spinach, green peppers, mushrooms, broccoli, turnips, cabbage, carrots, oranges and grapefruit. The origin of other produce includes:

EPA will allow states to ask for pesticide use

Grain sorghum growers who need granular carbofuran to control sorghum insect pests are elated over the Environmental Protection Agency's decision to permit states to apply for registration of the product. EPA has agreed to allow states with a specific sorghum insect pest problem to apply for a registration under FIFRA Section 24(c).

Producers in Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, Oklahoma, and Texas have used the product for many years to effectively control several insect pests that can seriously damage sorghum. However, EPA pesticide officials had wanted to ban its use on sorghum. Without granular carbofuran, growers were facing severe crop losses from insect pests such as the chinch bug.

National Grain Sorghum Producers, the membership association for sorghum growers, has fought to retain the use of the product. Key legislators from sorghum-producing areas joined NGSP and the nation's sorghum growers in the battle with EPA over the use of granular carbofuran on sorghum. During a recent meeting in Senator Bob Kerrey's office, convened at the request of NGSP, legislators and EPA officials hammered out the agreement to allow the Section 24(c) requests.

"We commend the EPA for making the right decision," said Gary Bright, NGSP president. "We're glad that common sense prevailed, allowing us to use a product that has proven to be so effective in preventing devastating crop losses. We are cautiously optimistic that EPA grant the state registrations so that farmers will have the product to use on this year's crop."

Bright said that EPA decided to ban granular carbofuran based solely on its toxicity to individual birds rather than on its possible effect on bird populations as a whole. Several environmental groups threatened to sue EPA if they did not remove the product from the market. The NGSP board of directors unanimously voted to file their own lawsuit against EPA.

"We were ready to fight this out in court, since it just didn't make sense to us that EPA would penalize farmers so severely just because of the possibility of bird kills," he said.

"Especially since there have been few documented bird deaths caused by granular carbofuran. In fact, there are no recorded bird deaths from use of the product on sorghum."

Bright said that securing the agreement for EPA to allow state registrations of granular carbofuran was an enormous team effort. "Winning this battle was a team effort," he said.

Agrichemical effects are issue of water quality, safety, health

Few issues are as important -- or complex -- for American consumers as water quality and the use of pesticides, herbicides and fertilizers in agricultural production.

It is an issue that defies easy solution. We want the plentiful food American agriculture has been able to produce year after year with the use of chemicals. Simultaneously, we worry -- sometimes irrationally, sometimes justifiably -- about what effects these agricultural chemicals may have on the environment and our long-term health.

Setting aside the factional divisions that often occupy the debate over agrichemicals, everyone agrees on the need for a safe, affordable food supply and an environmentally benign food production system. Finding the answer is not impossible. The key lies in agricultural research.

In Texas, this research is being led by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station of the Texas A&M University System Agriculture Program. In collaboration with state and federal agencies, we have dedicated the necessary manpower and resources to find alternatives to chemical weed and pest control. We have also brought those findings to practical benefit on farms and ranches in Texas and across the country.

Some of our most effective contributions have been through the concept of Integrated Pest Management (IPM). Originated in agricultural research, IPM is an environmentally safe, holistic approach to reducing pests and pesticides. Using a variety of techniques -- crop rotation, cultivation of predator insects, pest resistance, biodegradable pesticides, and genetic engineering, among others -- IPM has drastically reduced pesticide use across the country. Research conducted in Texas alone has had significant impact. For example:

* A collaboration between the Experiment Station, Gerber foods and the Campbell Soup Company implemented IPM techniques on carrot crops destined for baby foods and soup. The result was a 66 percent reduction of pesticide usage.

* Along the Sulphur River, a Texas Agricultural Extension Service entomologist reported a nearly 100 percent success rate in controlling black fly populations using a new biological compound non-toxic to humans and wildlife. With this compound, he managed to control an insect population that can cause millions of dollars in losses for livestock producers.

* Experiment Station scientists are researching a genetically engineered cotton that produces its own insecticidal proteins against predatory insects. With yields identical to traditional cotton, this cotton will reduce insecticide use by nearly 75 percent.

Of course, our grandest scientific breakthroughs mean nothing unless they are applied in practice, that is why extension agents in every Texas county of the state have actively been promoting these advances to farmers and landowners. Two projects stand out in both their scope and results: the Seco Creek demonstration Project and the Agricultural Complex for Advanced Research and Extension Systems (AG-CARES).

Stretching from the intersection of Bandera, Uvalde and Medina counties south into Frio County, the Seco Creek watershed feeds much of its water into Edwards Aquifer, then into the homes of San Antonio's 1.3 million people. Texas A&M researchers and extension agents teamed up with state and federal agencies to create the Seco Creek Water quality Demonstration Project in 1990. After seeing the benefits of new irrigation, pest and waste management strategies demonstrated by the project, several producers and landowners voluntarily implemented the practices on their own property. As a consequence, pesticide use was cut in half, fertilizer usage was reduced by 160,000 pounds, while use of assorted other chemicals declined by 40,000 pounds. At the same time, the landowners reported a ten percent increase in irrigation efficiency on their lands.

Similarly impressive results were posted by AG-CARES, a 160-acre demonstration project in Lamesa that targets a 20-county region in the Texas High Plains. Since 1990, AG-CARES has demonstrated the benefits of integrated technologies in commercial agriculture and encouraged their adoption by producers across the region. In one county, more than 40 farmers reported a 25 percent increase in profitability -- and an impressive reduction of chemical usage after instituting the methods demonstrated at AG-CARES.

Success stories like these from across the country have prompted the U.S. Department of Agriculture to set a goal for 75 percent of all farms to begin utilizing IPM strategies by the year 2000.

THOUGHTS OF A 5-YEAR OLD

I'm often accused of acting like a 5-year-old child. I'm not offended, because I hope I'll always have the exuberance, vitality and curiosity that a healthy child exhibits. This is especially appropriate today as I celebrate my fifth birthday as a newspaper columnist. It has been five very quick, very rewarding and very enjoyable years.

As I travel in the communities where the columns run, I am asked a lot of questions. In this column, I will share answers and give you an inside look at a little bit of my personal life.

How it started

I'm most frequently asked why I decided to write the column in the first place. Actually, I didn't decide to write it, I was invited to try. Since I'm not a trained journalist, I didn't have a lot of confidence. However, I'm a believer in the theory that says, "If there is a little to lose by trying, and much to gain if successful, by all means try." So I tried, and you've been reading the results ever since.

Another common query is, "How old are you?" Well, if you must know, I'm in the metallic age of life. That is when you have silver in your hair, gold in your teeth and lead where you sit.

"Where do you come up with the topics you write about week after week?" is a frequent question. Here are a few of my sources: Your letters, my own experiences, my client's problems and successes, comments and suggestions from those of you I meet on the street. I also get ideas from questions that are asked in workshops and seminars I present, from other writers and from my family.

Another regular inquiry is, "How long does it take to write a column?" About eight hours of research, writing and editing on the average. I hand write every column. I've had two talented co-workers in the five years who have turned my scratching into computer code. JoAnn Ross was the first, and Ann Stanford is the current. They make me look pretty good.

I'm often asked, "Is it easy?" No. Occasionally, a nearly finished column just flows right out. However, I usually have to develop the idea, research the facts and struggle like the dickens to get the words and thoughts to make any sense at all.

It hasn't gotten any easier, but it's still a labor of love.

Column Trivia

The average column is 625 words in length. To date, I have penned more than 162,00 words in 260 columns.

I now have about 60 newspapers carrying the column. It also runs in two monthly trade publications and several private newsletters. In all, the column reaches more than a million readers every week.

I still read every letter you send. I now get too much mail to answer them all. I hope you understand.

I've written columns at elevations as high as 37,000 feet (on airplanes) and as low as sea level (on the beaches of both oceans.) I've scribbled thoughts in fancy hotels in big cities and cheap ones in small towns. I've recorded paragraphs on Broadway and in the woods in the Ozarks. The majority are written in my office at home.

I'm still married to my first wife, Sue. We've been happily married for 17 years. We'll be celebrating our 25th anniversary in May. (Hey, 17 out of 25 isn't too bad!) We have an 18-year-old daughter, Christi, a cat and a dog.

Thank you for your continuing interest in the column. By reading all the way to the end, you just helped me celebrate my fifth birthday.

Don Taylor is the coauthor of "Up Against the Wal-Marts." You may write to him in care of "Minding Your Own Business," Box 67, Amarillo, Texas 79105.

Ancient etchings threatened by proposed Albuquerque highway

By TIM KORTE
Associated Press Writer
ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) -
On the west side of Albuquerque, an irresistible force has encountered an immovable object.

The force is progress, in the form of a proposed six-lane highway that would open the way for this booming city to expand further west.

The steadfast object is the 17-mile-long Petroglyph National Monument - some 17,000 religious etchings on volcanic rock, created by Indians through the centuries.

Authorities want to cut a 300-foot-wide, quarter-mile-long band through the monument's lava rock, destroying between two and 10 petroglyphs to build the extension of the Paseo del Norte roadway.

"In the Anglo world, a busy road can bump into a golf course and it will stop," says Bill Weahkee, executive director of Five Sandoval Indian Pueblos Inc., a coalition of tribes from neighboring Sandoval County.

"We don't understand why this road can't stop at the petroglyphs.
Being here is like going to church.
There is a very solemn feeling. Why destroy a place like this just to take 15 minutes off the trip around?"

"This is not Indian land, this is public land. There is a big distinction there," Mayor Martin Chavez said.

"They say it's a 17-mile-long church. Well, the Vatican has a road going through it. I respect their concerns, probably more than any other group. But again, nobody ever envisioned it as a 17-mile barrier to Albuquerque's orderly growth."

The 7,200-acre monument encompasses five ancient volcanoes and their lava flows. Forming a rugged black escarpment at the end of the flows are volcanic stones inscribed with the petroglyphs.

Many of the petroglyphs are estimated by anthropologists at 300 to 600 years old. Weahkee says most tribes believe some of the drawings are at least 3,000 to 5,000 years old, linking today's Indians to their ancient ancestors.

While secrecy prohibits Pueblo Indians from disclosing details of their religion, Weahkee concedes the area still is used by tribes from around the state for ancient ceremonies. Indian leaders worry factors such as traffic noise could adversely impact their traditions.

"The ceremonies, they can't be changed," Weahkee said.

Albuquerque, with a population more than double the 200,000 residents in 1960, has grown to a point where it is landlocked except to the west. To the city's east are the Sandia Mountains, to the north is the Sandia Indian reservation and to the south is Kirtland Air Force Base.

City officials maintain the road is needed to reach empty land to the west. At $12 million, a 1.6-mile extension including 1,300 feet through the petroglyphs is favored by City Hall over an Interior Department alternative estimated to cost between $39 million and $47.6 million.

Chavez puts the cost of the 5.3-mile alternative north of the monument between $80 million and $100 million. And city planners recently approved a subdivision on land where that route would have gone.

"The city ... had the ability to decide which route to pick," said Stephen Whitesell, the monument's superintendent. "They made their choices. Now, there may not be any alternative except to go through the monument, and that might not be an alternative."

Chavez began meetings in January
1994 with Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt. Both men said they hoped to resolve the matter within one year.

Tom Collier, Babbitt's chief of staff, said last month the department's position remained that a road through the park "is an unacceptable option, and our position has not changed."

Jesko, Cloud claim top honors in editorial writing competition

Nazarene Christian Academy sixth-grader Laura Jesko and Hereford High School sophomore Stephen Cloud have won top honors in the 1995 Newspapers in Education Week Write An Editorial contest.

The contest is sponsored annually by The Hereford Brand.

This year for the first time, a prize of $10 in Hereford Bucks was offered to the top editorial among students in grades 6 through 8 and for the top editorial in high school.

In addition, the annual Design An Ad contest held in conjunction with the editorial contest offered $10 in Hereford Bucks to divisional winners in grades 4-6, 7-8 and 9-12.

Libby Brockman, a sixth-grader at St. Anthony's Catholic School, claimed top honors in the elementary division; Christy Schumacher, an eighth-grader at Nazarene Christian Academy, won first place in the junior high division; and Armando Zambrano, a Hereford High School junior, won the high school ad competition.

Altogether more than 200 students from public and private intermediate, junior high and high schools in Hereford entered the advertising contest. Local businesses purchased ad space in the section and students were asked to design ads that best represented those companies and their products or services.

Scores more entered editorials, which were written on one of three subjects of importance to young people -- the curfew, dress code and important things to learn at school.

The contests are held annually at the start of Newspapers in Education Week, which highlights the contributions newspapers made each day to the education of America's young people.

Editor's Note

HOW THE JUDGING WAS DONE

The Advertising Contest

An executive for a prominent Fortune 500 company once remarked, "Half of the money I spend on advertising is wasted. I'm just not sure which half it is." And there lies the quandary faced by both advertisers and the advertising sales representatives who, working together, aim their efforts toward the same objective -- informing the everyday consumer about a company's attributes, image and product.

The success of their mutual business efforts is judged by increases in either consumer traffic, or sales receipts for the promotion period versus the investment made in creating awareness for the event.

In the ad design portion of this Newspapers in Education section, we have given participating schools and their students an opportunity to experience one facet of this process for print media -- to lay out an ad for one of their hometown merchants. The same skills and thought processes they have utilized in this exercise are fundamental in providing a unique perspective for each advertiser in the marketplace.

To select a winner, members of the Hereford Brand advertising staff judged all ads for a given company against each other. After the best ads were selected for each firm, the entries were separated by age division and judged against each other to determine the top ads by grade level.

I think that school today should teach the basics, such as math, history, English, reading and science. But one other subject that schools should teach is how to survive in the real world.

It we can't change it, we must live in it. The Serenity Prayer is an example. Even though we cannot change everything, we can accept it and find the courage within ourselves to know the difference.

We all must be prepared for the choices and decisions we have to make in the world. Every child today is the future for tomorrow. Therefore, influences of crime and drugs and gangs can be ignored with the proper knowledge of the consequences.

Schools should also teach children to keep the morals that their parents have instilled in them and to stand up for what they believe in. These standards could be the key to be more successful, prepared and self-confident in our ever-changing world.

The teen curfew, in existence since October, has become an issue of controversy because it is useless.

Having a curfew for juveniles only creates more complications in keeping the crime rate down. Juveniles will just find another time of day to commit crimes. They may even violate the curfew just to prove that the enforcement of the curfew does not work.

The curfew is an infringement on the juveniles' and also the parents' rights. It takes away the juveniles' right to make their own decisions and in turn restricts them from becoming responsible adults. It strips the parents of their right to raise their children as they see fit.

Not only is the curfew useless, but it is also thoughtless. Crime is going to happen even with a teen curfew. Innocent juveniles are being punishment for crimes that others committed. The juvenile curfew is an unfair solution to decrease the crime rate and a more effective solution should be considered.

Such a solution is to make the period of probation for juveniles longer. Other enforcement of the law should be considered to solve the problem with crime, so that crime will be reduced and such a two sided issue can be avoided.

curfew. There are many different opinions about this issue and I would like to share mine with you.

First of all, it is not about spoiling teenagers' fun or more rules. This curfew is not about being overprotective, but about solving a problem.

Submitting to authority is not something we always want to do, but it is something we all need. To be a responsible teenager requires boundaries, and these boundaries can be for our protection.

I think the Hereford curfew is fair. It is not too early, and it's not too late. I believe this curfew has reduced crime by disciplining those who refuse to discipline themselves. I feel safer and more secure knowing that my community cares enough to take a stand.

The school has every right to tell a student what he or she can or cannot wear to school.

The school is a place of education not a fashion show. Students should adhere to the rules set by their administrators so that they can make the most of their education.

If a student came to school with an item of clothing that is a very well known gang symbol, this can distract students from their schoolwork. People may feel it is a violation of their civil rights to be told what to wear, but the high school of today is not the idealistic place of education that most feel it is.

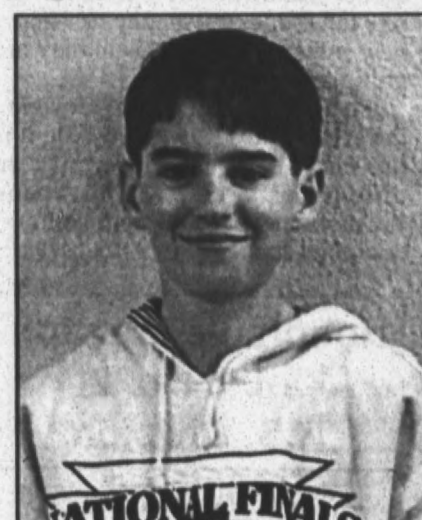

Times have changed since our fathers went to school here. Today a person can be beaten or even murdered simply because of the clothes that they wear. The school has the responsibility to the students to keep them safe while they are here. What a student wears outside of the school on the other hand is none of the school's business.

The school has the legal as well as the moral right to uphold a dress code. As long as the danger exists from wearing certain clothes, then the school must forbid them from wearing it.

Without a dress code in this day and age it would not be logical to invite the violence that surrounds us simply because of something as trivial as clothing.

Jesus Christ said the His disciples that the greatest commandment was to love the Lord with all of your heart, your soul, and mind. The second greatest commandments to love your neighbor as you love yourself. How simple things could be if we would just follow these rules!

Young people today are so busy competing in one thing or another, whether it be sports, popularity, or academics, that they sometimes lose perspective about where they've come from, or where they're going. In all the rush, we need to take the time to be nice to each other.

Each of us, as students, need to remember the rules we learned in preschool: to share, to say "thank you", and to be responsible for our own behavior.

If we've gotten away from these principles, may we all be fortunate enough to "re-learn" them in school. Blessed is the school teacher who teaches us these values, and reminds us that we should treat others as we would like to be treated! Morals and values will follow us to the end of our life. They are what really matter. Everything else is only here for the moment.

Good teachers will teach those things that can't be memorized for a test, but rather those things we can store in our hearts and carry with us forever.

As people graduate from school they think back to all of the things they learned about mathematics and science, but the most important thing to learn in school is how to communicate well. Communication skills are the most important thing students should learn in school. Without communication skills students will never reach their goals.

Communication is used in everything everyday. The world has grown and advanced because of communication. Communication is the basis of all major companies, businesses, jobs, and corporations. These places use communications for negotiating, sharing to learn from each other, and sales.

Everyday people will communicate with others in job interviews, financial settlements, and law arguments. Students have to know how to handle these things. Good communication skills will help them handle these problems more comfortably.

The foreign relations that some people have with other countries will soon need to be handled by everybody to help the world become better. Without good communication skills, students cannot be anything that is successful, but with good communication skills students can accomplish anything they wish.

Communication skills are the most important thing to learn in school. Without the skill of communication students coming out of school will never be successful in the real world, and if students come out of school with bad communication skills the education of the students is worthless.

These past few months I've noticed what's been going on in our town, Hereford, Texas. One of the problems I see is the Teen Curfew which is supposed to get kids off the street by 11:00. Most people still go about their business same as before just if the police catch them they are charged with a fine of about $75.00.

Thus which leads to another problem, the people don't pay because they don't have the money or they just don't care. The violence and graffiti was the main cause of the curfew and I haven't seen a change in either. Like the recent artist who came and put "Melissa" on the side of the YMCA.

Where were the cops when this was going on ... probably giving a fine to a nine year old who went down the street with his friend. You might say "well kids don't have a right to be out that late anyway" but since when does the city have a right to tell kids where to be when the clock strikes eleven or in some cases twelve (friday-saturday nights).

I know we are all not innocent but I think some of us should have a say in all of this.

After all most people I've talked to don't care about the curfew they just find an earlier time to do everything. I'm not sure if things will change in the future, but for now I doubt it!

The curfew set up last October does not seem to be working. It was set up to prevent minors from committing crimes and to make sure their parents knew what they were doing. Unfortunately, some parents don't care and some don't even know.

It is very hard to make teenagers do what they refuse to do. The juveniles of Hereford have and will find ways around the curfew. Just because stores and other public places are closed to them does not mean they cannot commit crimes.

Graffiti is a common problem in all towns. It can be placed anywhere at all; under bridges, the sides of closed buildings, and even on peoples houses. Graffiti can also be done during the daytime. The curfew neither halts nor restricts these acts.

The best suggestion that can be given is to remove this restriction. That way the police officers will know where they are. Most kids go to stores or fast food restaurants or arcades. If that is where they go, then the police will be able to keep track of them.

HOW THE JUDGING WAS DONE The Editorial Contest

Judging the Editorial Contest was very difficult this year, because of the quantity of entries, the quality of the submissions and the topics themselves -- subjects about which young people in Hereford have definite opinions.

Three diverse subjects were selected and students were asked to write their opinions about them. They were:

1. What is the most important thing you think young people should learn in school?
2. What do you think about the city's teen curfew? Has it reduced crime, or are young people just finding ways of getting around it and still causing trouble in the community?
3. What is your opinion about school dress codes; banning of certain types of clothing on campus; regulating hair styles and length at school; and similar measures? Are they things the school district should be involved in, or not? Why?

There were two divisions -- grades 6-8 and high school.

I separated all entries into grade and topic piles, then began reading. I read every editorial in each category, stacking the ones that required a second reading to one side. After reading some editorials four or five times, I reduced each topic pile to the top three or four entries.

After judging all the entries, I took the first place winners in each topic to select the overall winner, keeping the entries separated by grade division.

Upon selecting the overall first place winner, I took the second place entry from the same topic as the first place winner and judged it with the remaining two first place winners to determine second place overall. For third place, I did the same thing, then repeated it for honorable mention.

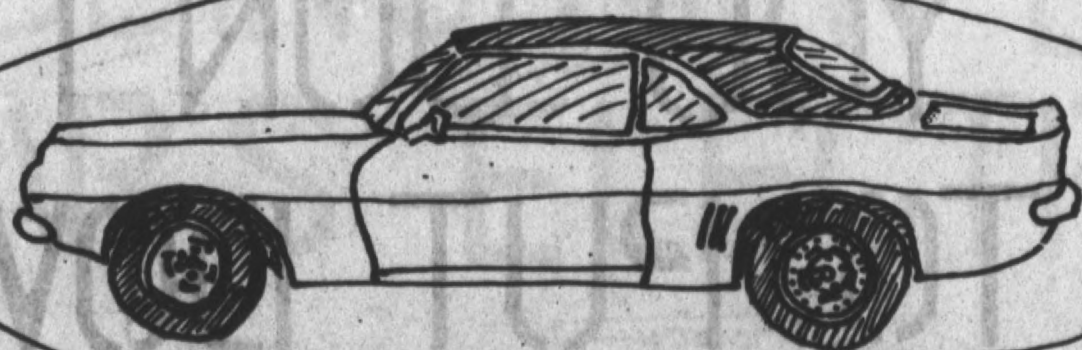

What I looked for in a winning editorial was: persuasiveness of argument; clarity of thought; conciseness of thought; adherence to proper grammar and spelling rules; and overall content.

I tried not to be swayed by my feelings on the subject, but looked at each entry from an editorial point of view.

I may not agree with the content of the editorials presented here, but I judged that they were the best of the ones submitted on each topic.

What you should learn in school. I think what you should learn in school is how to respect others, and to learn what you need to know. In school they teach what's good and what's bad for students. What you should learn in school is to get an education and finish school. Follow your dreams. Don't let others tell you what to do. Don't let other people take you through the wrong path. Stay in school and be smart. Learn what you should know and what's good and what's bad for you. Teachers in the school really know what to teach. Remember stay in school. Be smart stay in school.

Whatever happened to schools where children respected their teachers, where students all got along, and where there was a problem, it was settled with a bare bottom and a wooden paddle. And whatever happened to the teaching of morals to young kids. Children nowadays have no morals, and it seems that the ones that do have morals, are not sure in their beliefs. Don't believe it? Look at any town in the U.S. It is considered ok to kill an unborn baby, premarital sex is too common, God has been totally withdrawn from the schools, children do not honor their mother and father. If you are courteous and honest you are an outcast, guns and other weapons might as well be on the school supply list, and we can dance on Sundays!

All of this is wrong. Everyone doesn't have to agree, but my proof is taken from the best source ever written, the Bible, and if someone wants to argue, don't talk to me, talk to God and you argue with him.

Finally, two things need to happen so that the youth of tomorrow don't end up as screwed up as we are. Number one, God needs to be reinstituted into the school system. Number two, strong morals need to be the number one thing taught in school. If children learn strong morals when they are young children and teenagers, they will carry through for generations to come. But, one thing stands in the way, a person can hardly teach morals without teaching God, and a person can't teach God without teaching morals.

The most important thing to learn in school is responsibility. One must be responsible to learn a trade or to keep a job. By being responsible a student learns to depend on himself or herself instead of forever depending on others.

To learn a trade a person must be willing and able to work. To be irresponsible is by definition the opposite of these qualities. Someone who is irresponsible is not willing to work to learn a trade, or to study if it is a class in school. When he gets out of school, therefore, it will be hard for irresponsible students to get or to keep a job.

Of course, part of getting a good job is to do well in college. To do well in college one cannot afford to be irresponsible. It is almost impossible to graduate from college if a student does not behave responsibly.

Lastly, to be responsible is to learn how to depend on yourself. When one is self-dependent, it is easier when it comes time to go out on his own. This is better than calling up parents every so often. For sense of responsibility is the most important thing that can be taught in school. It helps throughout life, and without it one could not learn everything else needed.

The most important thing that should be taught in the Hereford school District is reading. In today's advanced society, reading is the tool for survival. Today many students graduate from High School and many do not know how to read. Many students refuse to read because they find books boring. A few students lack the motivation to read because there parents do not read or it is not the "cool" thing to do.

Today knowledge is required to get anywhere in society. A good high school and college education are required and in all that reading is needed to advance. Whether reading refers to romance, mystery, education or adventure, just the ability to read makes it all worthwhile. Some students lose that spark or ambition to read when a teacher or other student puts them down when they make a mistake. The school district must begin to teach children, when young, the advantages of learning how to read.

"Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body," in Joseph Addison's words, to keep the mind healthy, read. Dreams can be found and accomplished through reading. Advancements and changes can be reached by learning from mistakes of the past. Take the time to teach the future of America the key to her future.

English, math, science, and history have been in the school's curriculum since our grandparents were in school, but what about adding subjects like speech communications or even sex education? Every day teenagers are faced with the decision on whether or not to remain abstinent. With this choice being such a major threat to our community, sex education should be the most important thing taught by the school.

Most people agree that sex education is important, but where they disagree is what kind of sex ed should be taught. The only morally correct sex education is abstinence because it is the only true, 100 percent safe sex.

Making abstinence the most important thing taught by schools make students aware of the consequences of not remaining sexually pure. This brings something back to society, morality. Students learn some morals in school, unfortunately, not the most important one, abstinence.

It is true that English, math, science, and history is important to a student's education, but sex education is the most important because it make students aware of the consequence of not sustaining abstinence and it also places morality back into society. An abstinence sex education course should be taught in every school and students should not be allowed to graduate without it.

The teen curfew is unfair to those who are getting punished for nothing. Half the time the curfew is not followed thru. Kids under the age of seventeen stay out sometimes after curfew. To me they just put this curfew out, so that all the cops could seat and eat sounds and drink coffee.

This curfew is like saying that we can't grow up till we are seventeen. One of the parts of a teenagers life is going out with his/her friends until one, tow o'clock in the morning. What if somebody from out of town was out past curfew? This curfew is plainly unfair to everybody.

In regards too the new teen curfew, I think that the enforcers are being too lenient. There are still kids out on the streets drinking, smoking and doing who knows what. Even though I am a thirteen year old, I know what people may age do. I think the curfew should be put to ten-thirty on weekdays, and eleven forty-five on weekends. These times aren't too early for some active teens I know, so it should not be a problem for anyone else.

I have many reasons to say what I say, but I think that the major issue is to decrease the crime rate and try to have everyone in for supper instead of going to bail them out of jail or to visit them in the hospital.

In conclusion to my article I would like to add that I will follow the rules.

Teen curfews are ridiculous. Curfews do not even accomplish what they set out to do. The teen curfew in Hereford was set up back in October and so far all it has done is make kids think of new ways to cause mischief.

The teen curfew in Hereford was set up to lower the crime rate. However, vandalism and other crimes still plague the streets of Hereford. The teen curfew also just punishes innocent teenagers. Not all teenagers go out and vandalize at night. Yet all teenagers find that the curfew is just something else to rebel against and those are the teenagers the curfew was originally set up for in the first place. The kids that vandalize and cause other crimes are not intimidated by the curfew what so ever. It does not matter how many new rules adults give them they are going to break them.

So far the teen curfew has lowered the crime rate a little. However, it is not enough to make a significant difference. The curfew is just a pain. It causes more trouble and controversy than it is worth.

Honorable Mention Topic No. 2 H.S. Division

By LISA CHAVEZ

The Hereford Community recently enforce a teen curfew. Some people feel that the curfew has helped, but they are mistaken because the curfew is not working. The curfew is not working for these reasons: teens are not following it; they know it is easy to violate it; and the people who cause trouble are still doing it.

First, teens are not following the curfew. Most still get home after midnight on weekends. The reason they violate this curfew is because they know they can get away with it. Most teenagers will go to a party at someone's house and then arrive home after curfew. If they are stopped by the police, then they simply say they are on their way home. The curfew may be stopping people from riding around, but it is not stopping people from being at parties after curfew and this is where problems and trouble mainly occur. The most important reason the curfew is not working is because the teenagers who cause trouble are still doing it. These kids do not care if they get caught and are punished. They only care about causing trouble and will do it no matter what the consequences.

The Hereford Police Department should not bother with enforcing the curfew because it has not accomplished anything. It is not running efficiently and will continue to do so because kids do not take this curfew seriously.

In my opinin, all of the HISD guidelines about dress codes are designed to help promote a quality educational atmosphere. When considering the question of a school dress code, it is my opinion that benefits far outweigh the disadvantages. One of the greatest concerns would be the aspect of safety. Unfortunately, it is quite possible that certain symbols on clothing could provoke violent reactions when they divide people into groups or gangs. I think the regulations on length and style of hair helps to make Hereford students appear well groomed. The way that we present ourselves to each other and to our communities is a direct reflection of our school and town. The HISD School Board should remain involved in dress code regulations to ensure that high standards continue to be met.

Hi, my name is Jana Herrera and

I am writing a short paragraph about how I feel about the dress code.

Well, to start off, I really don't like the dress code. The reason I don't like the dress code is because we should have the freedom to wear what we want. Isn't America supposed to be a free country? Instead of worrying about what we are wearing these days, they should be thinking of something to do about all of the violence that's going on. They should put the bad people away not the money that are parents spent on all of the clothes that they want to put away. Well, there's my opinion.

clothes. Then it is his right. Someone may have a different opinion but he can't say it is wrong. Feelings and personal beliefs are shown in what people wear and how they act. The school doesn't have the right to refuse students expressing themselves. By the way it is up to oneself to justify whether or not to act one way. The school district can not classify others clothing apparel as inappropriate.

Students should be allowed to wear what it is that he/she prefers. The school board can not tell students they do not have rights. The constitution does go beyond the school doors, and gives students their rights. Students will wear what they please, because it is their right.

Third Place Topic No. 3 H.S. Division

By MATTHEW ARTHO
Hereford-High School

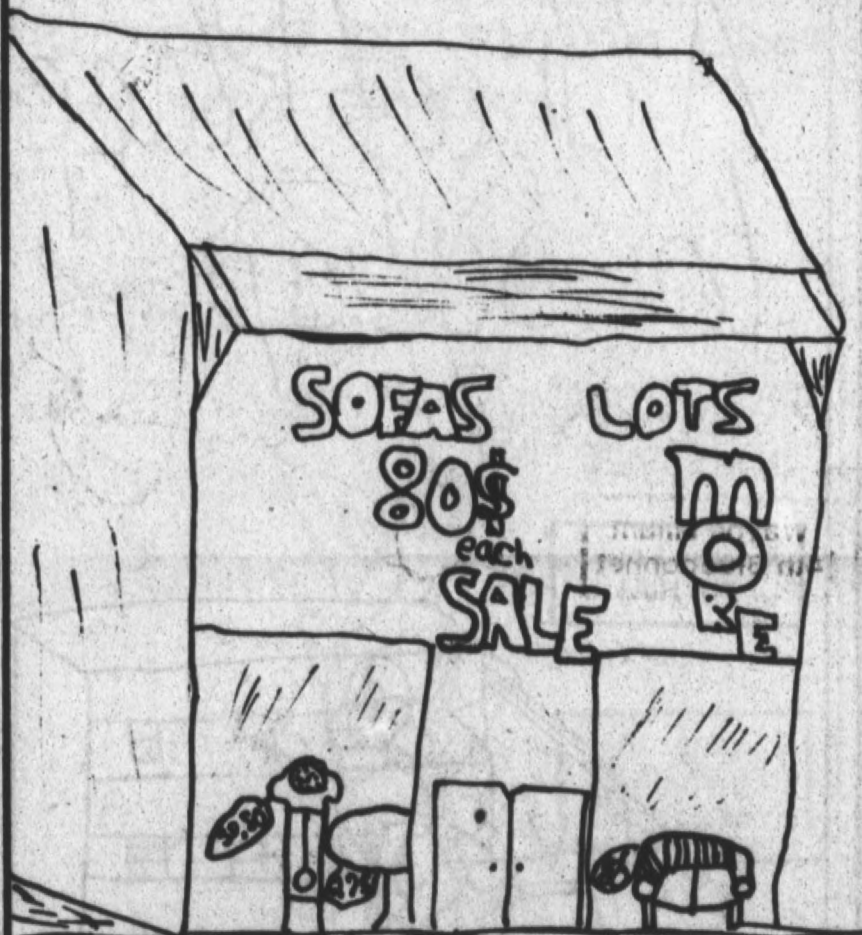

What is worn by people expresses their beliefs and attitudes. Through their clothing they try to make a statement of who they are and what they wish to represent. However, the statement made may be a destructive one. When this occurs, the school has not only the right, but the responsibility to decide whether or not certain clothes are to be worn. Through this choice lies the safety of the school.

If a gang represents itself through its clothing, a student may also represent himself without the knowledge of it ever being threatening. In the same instance, gang members may wear such clothing knowing it will cause trouble, and the same posing threat remains a concern. If the threat becomes an actual problem the school has the right to keep students from such harm, because it is the school's responsibility to prevent any danger that might occur. The school should be allowed to pass a dress code if it is needed to stop a gang-related fight, to a promotion of alcohol, tobacco, or any other drug, or to prevent any other threats among its students. The school building should be a safe place for education and higher learning, not a place that is feared because of recognizable gangs or drug abuse. Schools should be capable of keeping such a fear out and safety within.

Therefore, the school should have rights to decide what or what not a student is able to wear. Keeping the student body free from harm that may affect its educational purposes is the school's responsibility. If removing pieces of clothing allows the school to remain safe it is a choice well worth it.

Students write feelings about curfew, dress code

Honorable Mention

By MELISSA REYNA
7th Grade, NCA

It is my opinion that the teen curfew is a great thing for the Hereford area. Although the curfew still allows teenagers to be out a little late, to me it has reduced crime just a bit.

If the curfew were about one hour earlier, it might not be as easy for teens to get around it. It might even urge teens to upset the law by trying to get out past that time of night.

It is my opinion that the teen curfew is a good step towards doing something helpful about teens being out too late at night. I just hope our city gets better and not worse.

Honorable Mention

By CYNTHIA JIMENEZ
Hereford High School

A school is a place to receive an education and learn responsibility to be better prepared for the future. Most people who attend school are there to gain knowledge not to be critiqued on the way they dress. Each individual has his/her own likes and dislikes.

Students are given the freedom to choose their own style by their parents at a reasonable age. If the parents think it is suitable then there should not be a problem. Being comfortable makes learning much easier and few students find comfort with the school dress code. The appearance of a young adult varies only because of the fact that everyone is different. Noserings to shirt ties is what a person would normally see walking down the hall and it is not distracting anymore. Each piece of clothing or ornament should be chosen by the child not by the school. It is said that the way a person dresses tells a lot about that person. Most stores today are not selling the "appropriate length of shorts." If a store has only short shorts we have no other choice but to buy them.

Everyone must express themselves differently and most do it with their appearance. School administrators need to help students with educational problems not by helping them choose their wardrobe.

Honorable Mention

By RILEY HALL
7th Grade, NCA

I believe the most important thing

young people learn in school is respect. Some young people have little, if any, respect for authority, property, and other people. They just do as they please.

Also, obedience is important. Kids today rebel continuously. They need to do what they are asked to do and nothing else.

Last, but certainly not least, kids need to learn biblical principals. Young people today are being brainwashed by ideas opposite to our Christian American Heritage. Some don't even realize that there is an alternative. That alternative is Jesus Christ.

I believe if our government would put prayer back into our schools we would see an incredible change in our youth.

Honorable Mention

By RACHEL BEZNER
Hereford High School

The one thing students should learn in school is to try their hardest in school so that they can attend college and become whatever they have dreamed to become. If a student wants to become a doctor, a teacher, or even an engineer they have to have a college degree to do so. If this is told to students at a young age then they can set goals for themselves.

They can attend what college they would like to and get the degree that is best for them.

Teachers along with parents need to work together to get this to the children of the future so that they can be successful in their studies. If students are pushed to do their best in elementary school and through high school then they will push themselves to do their best in college by preparing themselves as needed.

School is fun and should be enjoyed by all, but it also needs to be taken very seriously. Learning that college should be in future plans can help students decide what school or occupation is best for them. With the help of teachers, students can develop interests in certain subjects to be learned in college and throughout their life.

Honorable Mention

By PHILIP MUNOZ
6th Grade, Bluebonnet

I think we should learn about the future.

I think we should know what the future holds for us. For example how to operate future computers or what kind of jobs are going to be in the future. So we can be prepared so we can know what college to go to.

If we learn about the future, we can have Drivers ED in a future car. So let's learn about the future cars and heavy machinery. May be we will have flying cars and under ground homes.

May be we'll even have robots that stop crimes and wars. I hope we have future coins and dollars.

The curfew which was placed on Hereford last October has had positive effects. Before the curfew was enacted the police department had little jurisdiction over minors. With the curfew the police department is now allowed to get young people off the streets. It has also given more authority to parents with unruly children. If the children ask why they are not allowed to go out the parent can give the reason that it is illegal.

The crime rate among minors has also dropped somewhat just because fewer of them are out at night. As time goes on and children grow up into the system, the curfew will be accepted more and more. If younger children see older brothers and sisters growing up in a positive atmosphere, they will feel that the curfew is for the best.

Finally, many more positive

Honorable Mention

By ANGELA GUAJARDO

The most important things young people should learn in school are reading and math. Reading is important because you will need it all your life. When you are on the road driving, you need to know what the signs on the road say and how to follow directions.

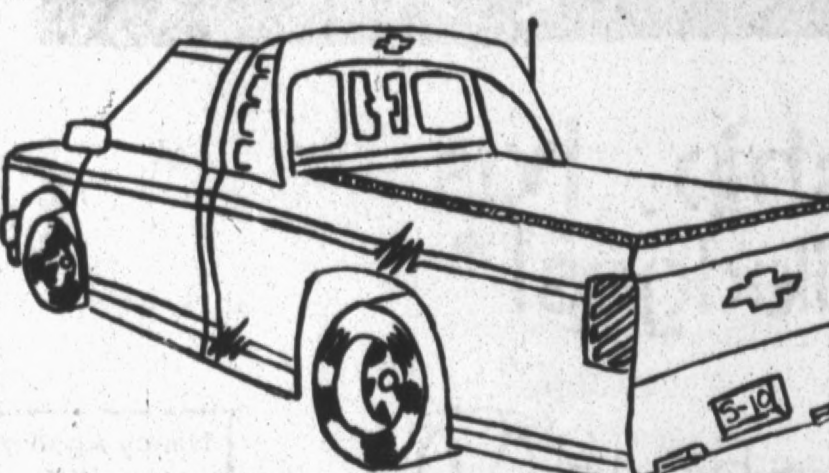

You will need to know how to read when looking for a job through the newspaper, and when you fill out a job application. All school work subjects have reading materials, so if you cannot read, you do not pass.

Math is also important, because when you cook at home you need it for measuring ingredients, to know how much and how many. You can also use math to figure out your home bills, income and income tax.

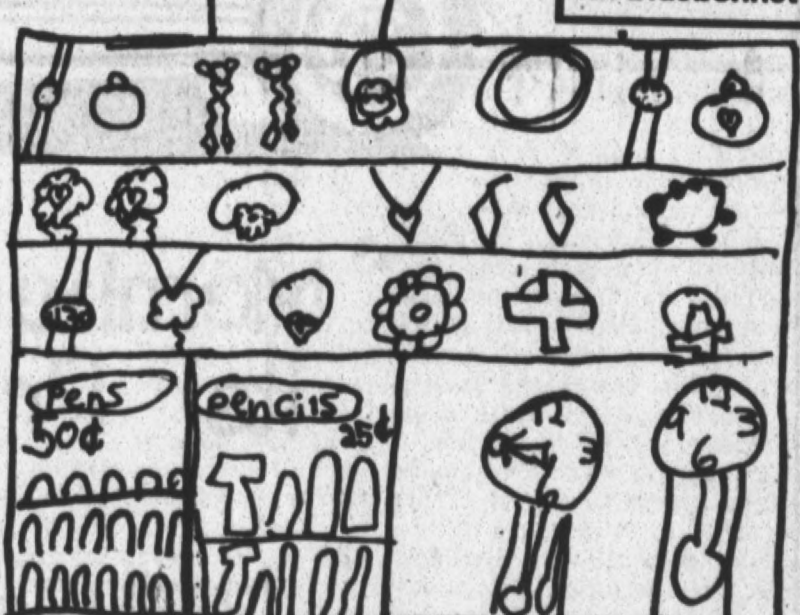

When you work outside the home, you need to know how to count your income. At all jobs, you need to count (See EDITORIALS, Page 7C)

Honorable Mention

By DANA BRISENDINE
Hereford High School

Since the beginning of time, mothers across this nation have been nagging their kids about how to dress. And now, the school has taken it upon themselves to decide how these kids should or shouldn't dress. Frankly, it's wrong and it isn't what the school should be concerned about.

Students tend to express themselves through what they wear. It gives them a chance to separate themselves from the crowd and allows them to be an individual. People worry about students being distracted by certain messages on T-shirts, but I am happy to report that students have better things to do than get worked up over a message on a classmate's shirt.

Another thing, has anyone ever walked into the mall and actually found a selection of shorts that were an "appropriate" length to obey the dress code. It is almost impossible because most shorts are exactly that, they are short. If the people who created this dress code would have walked into a clothing store first, things might be a little easier to live with. Our school districts should be worried about how much a student is learning and how much information is going into our head, instead of the length of hair we have on it. If they don't like it, they could make it a lot easier by simply turning their head.

Honorable Mention

By BYRON SHOWS
6th Grade, Bluebonnet

My name is Byron Shows. The subject I have chosen is on the teen curfew. My thoughts on the curfew are that it is the best thing that the City Commission has ever approved. It keeps Hereford free from vandalism and teenagers from loitering during school nights.

I think this came in effect because Hereford was becoming a gang related community. Many parents were not able to control their children from coming in home around midnight. The curfew has helped the parents because these children know that they are braking the law by being out after ten O'clock on school nights, and eleven o'clock p.m. on weekends.

Margie's Notes

By Margie Daniels, HSCA Executive Director

We apologize for The Scene being a week late. We thought we were going to have to change to a full-size page in the paper, but Speedy decided to go ahead with the same format at this time. We need more advertising in our paper. If you would like to publicize your business or need a personal ad, please call Speedy or Mauri Montgomery. We appreciate The Brand and the staff for all the work they do in making The Scene available to so many people. Thank you, Speedy and staff!

I have the itinerary ready for the Spring Garden Tour. We will visit Biltmore Mansion and Gardens, Magnolia Gardens, Middleton Place and Gardens, Boone Hall Plantation, boat tour to Ft. Sumpter, Callaway Gardens, the Bellingrath Gardens and the American Rose Center in Shreveport. We will tour historic Savannah, Christus Gardens in Gatlinburg, Stone Mountain in Atlanta and other interesting places. This will be a wonderful trip and you need to get your reservations in immediately. Call me at 364-5681 or at home, 364-0428.

The Braschler Music Show will be at the Center March 10th, 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. Come on out and eat with us. It is only $4 including dessert and drink!

Instead of a garage sale as one of our fundraisers this year, we are going to have an auction in June. If you have some items of value to donate, please call us and we will pick them up and store them until the sale. We think this will be a lot of fun and can make more than a garage sale.

We will be having open house on March 19th, celebrating the 20th anniversary of Hereford Senior Citizens Association. We will have a short program and refreshments from 2 to 4 p.m. So, come on out and celebrate and reminisce with us. We have so much to be thankful for.

Pray for rain! See you at the Center.

Spring Garden Tour planned

Plans for the Hereford Senior Citizens Spring Garden Tour have been completed, according to Margie Daniels, HSCA executive director.

The tour is scheduled April 17-29. Cost of the 13-day, 12-night tour is $900 double occupancy. Contact Mrs. Daniels to sign up or get additional information.

Following is the tour schedule:

Monday (April 17)--Leave Hereford Senior Center for Russellville, Ark., to spend first night.

Tuesday--Leave hotel for Nashville, Tenn., for dinner cruise and show on the General Jackson.

Wednesday--Leave hotel for Asheville, N.C., to see the Biltmore Mansion and Gardens. Will see the Christus Gardens in Gatlinburg, spend the night in Asheville.

Thursday--Leave for Charleston, S.C. for sightseeing in the old Historic Town. Some sights will include the Magnolia Gardens, Middleton Place Gardens, Boone Hall Plantation, and boat tour to Ft. Sumpter. Will be in Charleston for two nights.

Saturday--Leave hotel for a tour of historic Savannah on our way to Atlanta. In Atlanta, we will see Stone Mountain, cyclorama, and other sights as time allows.

Monday--Leave hotel for Callaway Gardens at Pine Mountain, Ga. After a day at the gardens, go to Montgomery, Ala., for the night and an early morning tour of Montgomery, capital of Alabama, home of the first White House of the Confederacy.

Tuesday--Leave hotel for Mobile, Ala., where we will be two nights and see Bellingrath Gardens and other sights as time allows.

Thursday--Leave Mobile and go through Biloxi, Baton Rouge, La., following a scenic route to Natches for a tour of some of the Antebellum Homes.

Friday--Leave hotel on scenic route through Vicksburg to Shreveport, La., for a tour of the American Rose Center and on to Dallas for a Farewell Banquet.

President's Corner

By Shirley Garrison HSCA President

Winter finally arrived at the end of February, but the spring-like weather earlier really got the trees and flowers mixed up. My peach tree had already bloomed before this last Arctic blast brought some welcome snow. Many of the bulbs have come up and bloomed. The fruit crop may be very short this year.

Many good things continue to take place at the Senior Center. The new van storage building is really looking good with new work benches, floors painted, and new storage racks--all done by volunteer help. Al Daniels is our lead volunteer on outside work.

At the Birthday Social, the Center elected Verdon and Billie Watts as the new Valentine King and Queen. They will serve for a year, after being crowned by last year's King Bert Brown and queen Cora Heidler. Verdon and Billie are very deserving of the honor. They both have volunteered on the food serving line since they sold out Hereford Glass a few years ago. I think they enjoy the volunteer work more than the glass business, because they are here Monday through Friday of each week unless illness or out-of-town commitments prevents their presence.

Bert Brown and Cora Heidler continue to serve every day. Bert has good advice for all of you who are tired of paying income taxes. If all your work is volunteer without pay, then you don't have to pay taxes. HSCA is thankful to all our volunteers. Many serve five days a week, delivering meals, serving coffee and tea, cleaning tables, quilting, working on ceramics for the Center, making china dolls for raffle sales, and doing upkeep work of the main buildings and grounds.

Without them, we could not have the best Senior Center in this part of Texas, maybe all of Texas! Until next time, please continue to pray for more moisture.

Invitation to our community

Braschler Music Show to be at Hereford SCC

Spelling bee for seniors to be in April

The Braschler Music Show from Branson, Mo., will be presented at Hereford Senior Citizen Center Friday, March 10. A few tickets are still available and should be purchased in advance.

There will be two shows--the Gospel Show starts at 6 p.m., and the Variety Show starts at 8:30. The shows are completely different. Tickets are $10 for one show, or $18 for both performances.

Sandwiches or beef stew and dessert will be served in the dining room of the Center from 5 to 9 p.m. for those attending either or both shows, or for other interested persons. Cost is $4 for all you can eat.

The Braschlers have been spotlighted on the Nashville Network's premiere show, "Nashville Now", and fast have become one of Branson's top attractions for family entertainment.

The Braschler Band backs up the vocals on drums, piano, guitar, fiddle, mandolin and banjo. On some numbers, the band also uses the saxophone, trumpet and harmonica.

Terry Sanders, known as "Homer Lee", is the group's resident comedian. He has appeared on television's "Hee Haw". Patriarch Cliff Braschler sings tenor and plays straight man for Homer Lee.

Others in the famous quartet include baritone Justin Bertoldie, who plays fiddle, mandolin and trumpet; lead singer Johnny Walters, who plays piano and sax; and Brad Bacon, who plays guitar and rounds out the quartet with his deep bass voice.

Also among the entertainers are Sherri Braschler Weiss, vocals; Susie Sims, keyboard and vocalist; Dee Schrock, who sings and plays keyboard and sax; Tim Brooks, lead guitar, bass and banjo; and drummer Gil Stockebrand.

The 8th annual Texas Senior Spelling Bee will be held Monday, Aug. 21, at the Senior Games which will be held on the campus of the University of Texas at Arlington.

Hereford Senior Citizen Center will have its own spelling bee April 13 at 2 p.m., and booklets are available at the Center.

This is an opportunity to promote mental challenges and to present a positive outlook on aging. We would like for anyone interested to please call us at 364-5681 or to come by the Center as soon as possible.

Comprehensive coverage of local news, social events, sports and happenings in Deaf Smith County is yours ONLY in The Hereford Brand. Good news and good advertising go together. Large ads or small ads pay off in The Brand!

Issue of nutrition topic of health care program

The issue of nutrition and its importance in health care will be the topic for a program to be held at Hereford Senior Citizen Center on Wednesday, March 29, at 1:30 p.m.

Dr. Dymple Cooksey, nutrition specialist with Texas Agriculture Extension Service, and Jill Shafer, Extension Association, health education, will be the featured speakers.

Dr. Cooksey's presentation will focus on practical hints and ideas for making nutrition and health a workable part of a person's everyday routine. She will emphasize that diet is an important part of maintaining optimal health.

Ms. Shafer will focus on issues that can help a person during cancer treatment better cope with the treatment side effects and will offer hints to protect one's health.

Exhibits will be on display beginning at 1 p.m. that will coordinate with the presentation by the specialists to begin at 1:30. Dr. Cooksey and Ms. Shafer will be available to visit with program participants after the program.

The presentation is planned as an educational event for citizens of Deaf Smith County and the area by the Family Living Committee of the Deaf Smith County Extension Service and is coordinated with Hereford Senior Citizens Association.

Introducing Beltone's new hidden hearing aid

Beltone has developed an exciting new hearing aid called Invisa (pronounced in-vee-za). Now all the joy of better hearing comes in the tiniest aid Beltone makes.

We call Invisa our "hidden hearing aid" because its incredibly small size allows it to hide deeply, yet comfortably inside your ear canal. Out of sight and out of mind.

Of course, the Invisa hearing aid is not appropriate for everyone. The benefits of hearing aids vary by type and degree of hearing loss, noise environment, accuracy of hearing evaluation and proper fit. That's why we feel that a personal evaluation is necessary to determine if the Invisa is right for you.

Program will address Medicare benefits

Perhaps you have never used your Medicare benefits. But what if you had to be admitted to a hospital today? Would you feel informed about important patient rights you have according to federal law? Would you have general knowledge of your medical coverage?

Now is the time for you to become an informed health care consumer, rather than waiting until you must actually use your medical benefits. Because when you receive medical treatment, you may be neither physically nor emotionally able to obtain information about important health care issues.

The Texas Medical Foundation and Hereford Senior Citizens invite you to attend an informative program that will address these issues. It will take place on March 28 at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center, 462 Ranger, from 1:15 to 2:45 p.m. Speakers from the Texas Medical Foundation, Medicare (Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Texas), and other public service agencies will discuss the safeguards assuring quality medical care for Medicare patients, Medicare coverage and claims, and other medical benefits assistance programs available to Medicare recipients. This meeting is open to the public.

For more information about the meeting, or to arrange interpreting services for persons who have sensory impairments, please call or write: Teresa Meyer, Texas Medical Foundation, 901 Mopac Expwy. S. Suite 200, Austin TX, 7876-5799

Also Clara Brown had Valerie Campbell of Lubbock; J.L. Marcum had Norman Daniel of Amarillo; Ella Oglesby had Margarette Ward of Floydada, Tx. and Liz Reynolds of Amarillo; Bill Crow had Louise Smith of Wellington, Tx.; Velma Warren had Thelma Withington of Nazareth, Tx.; Lucille Rockey had Imogen Bethel of Ft. ## Senator Teel Bivins Reports

AUSTIN - George Washington had the right idea. You get elected, do your duty and then go home. That's the way the system was designed but not the way it's turned out. Instead of citizen-legislators running things, many times we have politicians serving in the same office for their entire careers. That's got to change. I've introduced a constitutional amendment that would limit the terms of office for elected state officials to 12 years. That would include members of the Legislature as well as the governor, lieutenant governor, treasurer, comptroller, land commissioner, agriculture commissioner, attorney general, railroad commissioners and state Board of Education members.

More than a dozen term-limit proposals have been introduced in the Legislature. No doubt -- this will be the session for term limits.

Why should terms be limited? A majority of Texans believe government has become unresponsive to people, and a fundamental change in the way we elect politicians must occur. Government requires a constant influx of fresh faces and new ideas to work properly and remain close to the people.

Politicians are a funny lot. They get elected and immediately think about winning re-election. Decisions they make often are based on returning to office rather than doing what's best for the people.

Term-limit opponents tell me the Nov. 8 election upheaval proves that term limits are unneeded. The voters are doing a good job limiting terms, thank you. But what made that election unusual was so many politicians were kicked out of office. If the system worked as it should, elections like that would come around more often.

Politicians become entrenched by exercising the power of incumbency, stacking the deck against challengers. Politicians do mass mailings -- paid for by taxpayers -- and use their offices as bully pulpits to keep their names before the people. Opponents must spend a lot of money to get their names out there, and it's an uphill battle.

I've also been told that term limits wouldn't allow politicians enough time to develop expertise in certain areas needed to do their jobs well. Two points: First, I've been in the Legislature six years, and that's been enough time to develop an in-depth knowledge of issues. The 12-year limit in my proposal would allow any politician to gain experience and get things done. Second, based on decisions made by some long-time legislators, I'm not sure seniority always contributes to a good understanding of what's best for the people.

You'll notice my proposed amendment would not limit terms for state judges. I didn't include them because the way we select judges in Texas is being debated. Should they be elected or appointed? If appointed, should they be subjected to retention elections after a certain number of years? These questions are best dealt with in separate legislation and not in a broad term-limits bill.

Nor would my amendment limit terms for mayors, city council members, county judges and other local officials. It deals only with state officials. I'm of the mind that government works best when it operates at the level closest to the people. If the people of Amarillo or Midland or Pampa or Andrews want to limit their local terms, they should push it at city hall or at the county courthouse. Austin should not be part of the debate.

Additionally, this amendment doesn't limit terms for members of Congress. It'd be foolish for Texas to unilaterally reign in its congressmen while other states continue to send theirs back year after year. Seniority rules in Washington. Texas would always be on the bottom rung of that ladder if we limited the terms of our delegation but other states didn't. Congress should limit terms for all members at the same time.

Every public office belongs to the people -- not the occupants. Squatters' rights don't apply here. Term limits would put the power back with the owners of democracy. It's time to let the people of Texas vote on this fundamental issue.

Being brilliant is no great feat if you respect nothing.

Saving Money on Your Insurance

BY REBECCA LIGHTSEY
Texas Commissioner of Insurance

"Disabled Seniors Get 'Medigap' Opportunity"

IF YOU'RE A SENIOR CITIZEN who joined Medicare before you were 65, you might be able to get a better deal on Medicare supplement insurance, thanks to a new federal law.

The new law helps people who enrolled in Medicare Part B—the part that pays medical expenses other than hospital bills—before age 65 because of disability or end-stage kidney disease.

Disabled people and kidney patients who went on Medicare before age 65 have been at a disadvantage when it comes to Medicare supplement insurance, sometimes called "Medigap" because it fills some of the gaps in Medicare. Some insurance companies would not sell them a policy, provided only limited benefits or charged them more because of their medical problems.

Congress omitted these consumers from a 1990 law providing a six-month Medigap "open enrollment" period starting with the first day a person is both 65 years old or older and enrolled in Medicare Part B. (Open enrollment means an insurance company has to sell you a Medigap policy, regardless of your health.)

The new law corrects this omission.

People on Medicare because of disability or end-stage kidney disease now get the same six-month Medigap open enrollment period as everybody else after they reach 65.

Congress also reached back in time to give this opportunity to those who originally missed it because they already were on Medicare Part B due to disability or kidney problems.

If your 65th birthday fell between November 5, 1991, and January 1, 1995, and you missed out on open enrollment because you already were on Medicare Part B, you have a special window of opportunity. Until June 30, 1995, an insurance company must offer you any Medigap policy it sells, at the lowest price available to you, without regard to your health.

This special open enrollment is important if you could not get Medigap in the past, if you want a better policy or if you are paying a higher rate because of your disability.

Remember, you must act by June 30 or you will miss this chance to shop smart for Medicare supplement insurance.

The Texas Department of Insurance offers two free booklets to help you. The Texas Rate Guide for Medicare Supplement Insurance compares prices charged by all companies selling Medigap in Texas. Medicare Supplement Insurance: A Guide for Texas Consumers explains Medigap insurance and your rights as a consumer. ### SOCIAL SECURITY QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q: I'm going to move in February of this year. I have my Social Security checks deposited directly in my bank account. Does Social Security need to know my address even though I have direct deposit?

A: You should report a new address even if you have direct deposit because important letters from Social Security are sent to your mailing address. Your benefits could be stopped temporarily if Social Security cannot locate you because you have not reported a change of your address. Call Social Security at 376-2241 (the Amarillo office) or 1-800-772-1213 and tell them your old address, your new address including the zip code, your new telephone number, and your Social Security claim number.

Q: How do I file a Medicare Part B claim?

A: Service providers—doctors, hospitals, medical labs, etc.—are required by law to submit Medicare claims. You should notify your Medicare carrier if your doctor or other provider refuses to submit a Part B claim for you. In Texas, the Medicare Carrier is Blue Cross & Blue Shield; PO Box 660031; Dallas, Tx 7526-0031. Their phone number is 1-800-442-2620.

Q: I'm 67 years old and have Medicare hospital and medical insurance. How much will I have to pay medical expenses before Medicare will start paying?

A: In 1995, after you have met the Medicare hospital insurance (Part A) deductible of $716, Medicare will begin paying its portion of the approved hospital charges. You must meet this deductible for each benefit period; a benefit period begins when you enter the hospital and ends when you have been out of the hospital for a period of 60 consecutive days. The Part B deductible for 1995 is $100, and it is a yearly amount. That is, after you have paid the first $100 in covered charges in 1995, Medicare Part B will pay its part of your covered charges throughout the remainder of 1995.

Q: I'd like to distribute Social Security information to my church school adult class. Does Social Security have any free material?

A: Yes. Social Security produces a pamphlet called Understanding Social Security which gives a general overview of all Social Security programs. Other pamphlets and factsheets also are available covering the retirement, survivors, and disability programs, as well as information on Medicare and Supplemental Security Income (SSI). All publications are free of charge and may be ordered by calling Social Security's toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213 or the Amarillo office at 376-2241.

Q: Why is my neighbor's Social Security check more than mine?

A: Benefit computations are based on person's date of birth and complete work history, so differences are very likely. To protect each person's privacy we cannot give you information about another person's Social Security record.

Abilene oilman remembers bloody battle for Iwo Jima

By ROY A. JONES II

Abilene Reporter-News

ABILENE, Texas - The harder he tries to forget, the more Keith Wells remembers of the bloody battle for Iwo Jima.

Has it already been 50 years? It seems like only yesterday, the longtime Abilene oilman marvels, shaking his gray, balding head.

In a way Wells longs to forget leading young men to their deaths; in another way he clings tenaciously to the memory of their intense loyalty, their uncommon valor and their supreme sacrifice.

So he remembers the price they paid to raise the first American flag on Mount Suribachi - even though to do so often is more painful than the wounds he also suffered during the fierce combat.

"If some of your family or close friends are disemboweled and had their heads blown off in front of you, how long do you think it would take for that to become dim in your memory, especially if you were directly responsible for their actions and well being?" he asks somberly.

It is the vivid memory of his men's slaughter - not a callous hatred for an old enemy - that causes him to snarl smugly when he describes how his decimated platoon finally managed to use flame-throwers to flush Japanese machine gunners from thick concrete bunkers on Mount Suribachi.

"Three of them came out the back door on fire. The noise was so great you couldn't hear. The flame-thrower I had stationed near the back door gave me a look like 'what should I do?' With my eyes, I said, 'Hit 'em!' and he did. He curled 'em up like bacon!"

Japanese, who have deep respect for fellow warriors, hold no grudge for what happened in war. In fact, Wells was invited to Japan in 1983 and was accorded more honors than he had ever received from the United States up to that point.

Keith Wells will spend Sunday, the 50th anniversary of the Marine invasion of Iwo Jima, with longtime friends who understand his feelings: fellow Marines who also served at Iwo Jima.

"Folks probably think we sit around and tell war stories. That's not what we do," Wells said last week while autographing copies of his new book, "Iwo Jima."

He searched for words in trying to describe his thoughts about Iwo Jima and his brave young men.

"It's deeper than the crying stage; it's deeper than the friendship stage; it's deeper than the family stage, or at least the same as family in a little different way," he said.

"This wasn't an overnight thing. That's what makes it so different," he said. "We were in combat every single day from the 19th of February until the 16th of March. In fact I lost my last sergeant on the very last day."

The leadership of the 23-year-old first lieutenant - who dropped out of Texas A&M to go to war - inspired his men to become the most decorated platoon ever to come out of a single engagement in United States history.

The awards included a Medal of Honor, three Navy Crosses, a Silver Star and more than 100 percent Purple Hearts because many of the men - Wells included - were wounded more than once. One of the Navy Crosses also went to Wells.

Of the original 45 enlisted men in Wells' platoon that fought on Iwo Jima, 16 were killed and all but four were wounded one or more times. The dead included both of his sergeants and seven of his nine corporals.

On Feb. 23, while Wells is meeting quietly with his buddies at Wichita Falls, the largest Iwo Jima anniversary celebration will be near Arlington National Cemetery.

The Washington, D.C., observance will be at the beautiful Iwo Jima Memorial, which features a statue of what has become the symbol of the Marine Corps: Associated Press photographer Joe Rosenthal's Pulitzer Prize-winning photograph of six Marines raising the flag on Mount Suribachi.

A "Semper Paratus" loyalty to the Corps keeps Wells from speaking his mind, but one can sense an irritation, one that has probably festered for 50 years.

Because Rosenthal's photograph became so famous - rallying Americans to raise millions in bonds to finance the rest of World War II - the heroic achievements of Wells' men were lost in all the well-meaning but misinformed hoopla.

But the facts remain, documented by Marine Corps photographs not quite as "perfect" as Rosenthal's: After three days of fighting that had left more than half of Wells' platoon either killed or injured - and Wells evacuated against his will to a hospital ship for treatment of machine gun and shrapnel wounds - several of his men struggled to the top of Mount Suribachi.

At 10:20 a.m. they raised a small American flag on the only pole available, a piece of water pipe.

The sight of Old Glory flying over Japanese territory sparked what may remain the most spontaneous and resounding din of raw patriotism ever expressed by American servicemen.

Recognizing the publicity potential back home, commanders ordered the flag replaced with a larger one. The second flag-raising by another group of Marines came at about 3 p.m., and made Rosenthal famous.

The rest is history - except in the mind of Keith Wells. He left the Marines in 1946 and went on to earn a geology degree. When he retired from the Marine Reserve in 1959, he was made an honorary major.

The world ain't getting no worse; we've only got better facilities.

Nutrition Notes

BY CHARLOTTE R. CLARK
MS RD/LD

February is National Heart Month so let us discuss the topic of cholesterol and your heart. One runs a greater risk of having a heart attack, stroke, or any of several other medical emergencies when you have high blood serum levels of cholesterol.

W.R. Spence, M.D., a physician associated with HEALTH EDCO, a Division of the WRS Group, Inc., Waco, Texas, stated in 1991 that more than 500,000 Americans die of heart disease each year, and another 500,000 suffer strokes. High levels of cholesterol put you in the high-risk category of those likely to be affected by these and other medical conditions.

To reduce your risks of heart disease and other conditions that can shorten your life, control your cholesterol levels through diet, exercise and medical treatment. An elevated blood cholesterol level gives no early warning signs to alert you that your heart is in danger. It's up to you to take control by having your cholesterol measured regularly, and keeping it within safe levels.

Controlling cholesterol is an essential part of making healthy personal behavior choices such as exercising, maintaining ideal weight, not smoking, and developing skills to cope with stress. When you make such choices, you lower your risk of heart disease and improve your overall health.

Cholesterol is a member of the family of fats. It's a waxy substance that circulates through your body in the blood, and is present in all body cells. It's most concentrated in the brain, liver, spinal cord, adrenal glands, gallbladder and skin.

Your body needs cholesterol for many functions. It helps the skin produce Vitamin D and plays a major role in the body's development of adrenal and sex hormones. In the gallbladder, cholesterol helps form bile, which is needed to digestion of fats. Cholesterol insulates nerve tissue, particularly in the brain and spinal column, and helps maintain all cell membranes.

Your body actually produces its own supply of cholesterol, so the amount you acquire through the food you eat is not essential for bodily functions.

Cholesterol levels are expressed in milligrams (mg) per deciliter (dl) of blood. Most people have a blood cholesterol level of 150 to 300 mg/dl. A CHOLESTEROL LEVEL BELOW 200 MG IS BEST FOR YOUR HEART. Unfortunately, too many people have cholesterol levels above 200 mg/dl and don't even know it. As cholesterol levels above 200 mg/dl and don't even know it. As with high blood pressure, there are no symptoms of too high a level of cholesterol.

The good and the bad of cholesterol; it's not just the total blood cholesterol that is an indication of risks to your heart. The way cholesterol is packaged has as much to do with its dangerous effects as how much cholesterol is present. Since cholesterol is a fat, it can't be transported in blood without help. Like oil in vinegar, fat would just float on top of the blood and go nowhere, so cholesterol is wrapped in water-soluble "bubbles" called lipoprotein. Some lipoprotein and their cholesterol contents are "good" and some are "bad."

The Good --- HIGH-DENSITY LIPOPROTEINS (HDL) carry cholesterol from the liver and distribute it throughout the body. In this way, HDLs contribute to the production of plaque in the arteries. This, in turn, leads to hardening of the arteries (atherosclerosis). The greater the proportion of total blood cholesterol is converted to bile, released into the intestines, and passed on. The greater the proportion of total blood cholesterol packaged as HDL, the less likely you are to develop heart disease. Exercise can actually help increase these "good" cholesterol packages.

The Bad --- LOW-DENSITY LIPOPROTEINS (LDL) carry cholesterol from the liver and distribute it throughout the body. In this way, LDLs contribute to the production of plaque in the arteries. This, in turn, leads to hardening of the arteries (atherosclerosis). The more LDL cholesterol there is in your blood, the more rapidly atherosclerosis and heart disease progress.

Cholesterol is measured from the plasma of the blood. To have your cholesterol checked use the following guide for best results:

1. Need to fast for twelve hours before the test.
2. Blood sample taken and usually refrigerated for a specific time.
3. After sitting, the blood sample will have a creamy layer floating on top; cholesterol levels are measured from that layer.
4. Technicians check the triglyceride levels which are the non-cholesterol fats in your diet.
5. High triglyceride levels can also lead to heart disease.

These tests can evaluate your total blood cholesterol as well as your HDL and LDL ratio. The laboratories are trained and have latest techniques to properly check the cholesterol and triglyceride levels in your blood serum and determine data for you physician to evaluate your risks.

Ideally your total cholesterol blood plasma concentration should be less than 200 mg/dl.

Factors that increase your risk of heart disease; the more factors you have, the greater your risk. It is important that you take action to change the factors.

FACTORS are divided into two categories:

1. Factors you can not control: family history of heart disease, male sex, and age above 40.
2. Factors you can control: high blood cholesterol, smoking, high blood pressure, weight, stress management, sedentary lifestyle, and balanced diet.

Wisconsin has about 15,000 lakes.

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Should I be concerned that my exercising heart rate is 90 percent of my adjusted maximum? My age-adjusted maximum comes to 161 — 220 minus my age, 59. That is the formula you give as starters for proper aerobic heart rate. — D.D.

ANSWER: Can we talk about this matter of a safe exercise pulse? People are getting hung up on numbers.

The formula began as a universal method to guide the exerciser as to what rate would give a good workout within reasonably safe pulse ranges. The maximum pulse was based on the famous formula you state — 220 minus your age. A rate between 60 and 85 percent of that "max" is said to afford a good workout.

It is but a crude guide. Great personal variations exist. In fact, some people say that people might be better off simply exercising to a level where they feel they are putting out effort sufficient and safe for their needs and abilities.

Your question is always asked: Is it harmful to surpass one's high aerobic training pulse zone? The answer is usually no, not if the heart is healthy and the person has been examined and has been given no restrictions on rate and exercise intensity. By the same token, a leisurely stroll might provide sufficient pulse increases if it produces the rate a doctor has advised for an individual.

No one can sustain effort beyond the formula high ranges for long.

Even superbly trained athletes maintain a rate only 90 to 95 percent of their maximums, and for only brief periods. Less finely tuned athletes get fatigue signals that much sooner and at lesser rates.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have been informed that I have Dupuytren's contracture. What is this all about? I have been informed that an operation is needed to correct this. What causes it? What kind of operation are they talking about? I have it on my right hand, and it is starting on my left. — J.V.

ANSWER: Dupuytren's (doo-pwee-TRANS) contracture is pretty common, especially in white men older than 65. A nodule forms next to the finger tendons that run through the palms. The nodule sends out strands of scar tissue that trap the tendon and in time draw the finger itself down toward the palm.

The ring finger is the one most often affected. The problem can occur bilaterally — in both hands simultaneously.

I cannot tell you the cause.

A surgeon can remove the entrapping scar tissue. The surgery almost always produces gratifying results. In President Reagan's last year in office, he had the operation.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I had pneumonia last winter, and my doctor sent me to a pulmonary specialist, who said I had "rheumatoid lung." I have had rheumatoid arthritis for years. How can a joint problem affect the lungs? I was having terrible coughing. — Mrs. F.C.

ANSWER: Only a few patients ever experience lung difficulty as part of general rheumatoid arthritis.

Were you to do a man-in-the-street poll, not one in a hundred would be aware of rheumatoid arthritis manifesting itself any place other than in joints, much less in lungs. But it happens, and it suggests why we call rheumatoid arthritis a "systemic" — system-wide — illness.

When rheumatoid arthritis does affect a patient's lungs, the rheumatoid process usually affects the pleura, the lung coverings, with inflammation and sometimes fluid buildup. That's pleural effusion.

Less commonly, the rheumatoid lung produces nodules or sometimes a scarring that we refer to as "pulmonary fibrosis." From your coughing, I suspect you have that.

Treatment depends on just what kind of lung involvement is occurring. Your present treatment, which you detailed in an edited portion of your letter, seems to be aimed at pulmonary fibrosis.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Love your column. I do not recall you commenting on the practice of some people drinking no water whatever. I mean the people who substitute milk and colas. — A.R.

ANSWER: You suggest your own answer here — when you mention the substitutes for the water.

Plain water itself adds little or no harm to the nutritional equation. Not so the substitutes. Colas add a good deal of useless calories and harmful sugar. If you go overboard with milk as a fluid substitute, you have to accept not only its calories but also its fat and cholesterol, unless the product is skimmed.

When I mention water in this context, I am asked how much of it a person should drink a day. There is no rule beyond what common sense and comfort dictate. You need two to three quarts of total fluid daily, and given the negatives inherent in substitutes, a substantial amount ought to be as plain tap water.

Curiosity is one of the permanent characteristics of a vigorous mind.

—Samuel Johnson

| 1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper, or to taste                                | 1 28-ounce can no-salt-added tomatoes |
| 1/2 cup minced onion                                                                 | 1/2 cup white wine                    |
|                                                                                      | 1/2 teaspoon thyme                    |

Preheat oven to 350° F.

Rinse chicken and pat dry.

Heat oil in heavy skillet over medium-high heat. Add chicken pieces and brown them quickly. Remove chicken pieces to a casserole and add black pepper. Set aside.

In the same skillet, lightly brown onions, bell pepper and garlic. Add mixture to casserole, along with tomatoes, wine and herbs. Cover and bake 1 hour, or until chicken is tender. Remove bay leaves before serving.

Serves 4.

Let us show you a Texas you've never seen before.

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it.

This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 284,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing—county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.

ABC looking for a pinch-hit with A Whole New Ballgame

Corbin Bernsen (L.A. Law) stars as a striking professional baseball player who takes a job as the sportscaster at a Milwaukee television station and Julie Campbell (Blue Skies) plays the station's general manager and his boss in the comedy series A Whole New Ballgame.

BY PETE BUCCI

At first glance, ABC's new comedy series A Whole New Ballgame may seem merely like Cheers meets a rehased WKRP in Cincinnati.

While Ballgame borrows a lot from these two shows, among others, it does something else far more important — it actually entertains.

The show is a whole new ballgame for producers Judd Pillot, John Peaslee and Barry Kemp, who struck out with the ill-fated Blue Skies this past fall.

Kemp says Ballgame is a more suitable companion to their successful series Coach.

"Had we known last spring ... that Coach was going to be moved to Monday night at 8 (p.m.) and that we were going to be given the slot behind Coach, in all truthfulness, we probably would not have designed Blue Skies to go behind Coach, because we never thought those two shows were compatible," he says. "We were then given the opportunity to hold onto that time slot and to come up with a piece that was more compatible with Coach."

Corbin Bernsen stars as Brett Sooner, a striking major-league baseball player, in the twilight of his career; who takes a job as the sportscaster for a Milwaukee television station.

Arrogant and self-absorbed, Brett spends his spare time drinking and playing darts at his favorite bar, Spitters, and chasing women. He's sort of like Sam Malone with real hair.

Best known as attorney Arnie Becker on the long-running NBC series L.A. Law, Bernsen has played a professional baseball player in the feature film Major League and its sequel.

While both Arnie and Brett are womanizers, Bernsen says they are different in their approach.

"Arnie Becker was very calculated — if he ... moved a glass, it was for a certain effect," he says. "(Brett) just ... kicks the glass out of the way and doesn't think about it. It's his boyish kind of charm in that way that's appealing to women. Whereas Arnie Becker's was a calculated, very smart move to get women."

Brett's irreverence and jocular put him at odds with the station's staid general manager, Meg O'Donnell, played by Julie Campbell. Meg is Brett's Rebecca Howe (Cheers), the no-nonsense career woman he cannot romantically conquer.

Campbell, whose addition to Blue Skies couldn't save the series, is well-suited in this role. The Brett-Meg relationship has much potential, and she and Bernsen have a good chemistry between them.

"It's exciting for me to do this character because I'm usually not given characters with a lot of authority — because I've always played the ingenue," Campbell says.

Kari Coleman plays Meg's buxom assistant, Libby, and Richard Kind, another Blue Skies refugee, portrays Dwight Kling, the excitable sales manager. Completing the crew is Stephen Tobolowsky (yes, Blue Skies again) as nerdy weatherman Warner Blakefield (remember Les Nessman of WKRP?) and John O'Hurley as the digestively challenged anchor, Tad Thurman.

The producers say the real-life baseball situation will be reflected in the series, and Pillot says some notable sports figures may make guest appearances on the show.

"We've had some people show some interest," he says. "We plan to run a lot of people through Spitters. Brett is going to have a lot of real baseball friends."

Rosemary Clooney notes half-century of singing

EDITOR'S NOTE - Rosemary Clooney started singing professionally 50 years ago and she's still at it. She started her golden anniversary year by bringing out a CD of songs that are special to her. And during February she wowed them at a nightclub atop Rockefeller Center.

By MARY CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - In April 1945, Rosemary Clooney and her sister Betty began singing on radio in Cincinnati. They were 16 and 13 and knew harmony for only three songs.

This year Rosemary celebrates her 50th anniversary in show business with her 19th Concord Records CD titled "Demi-Centennial."

And during her seventh straight year at the skyscraper club Rainbow and Stars, one listener said, "Her voice is so warm. If you only go to one show a year, this is the one to hear."

"I never thought I would be singing for 50 years; the time has gone so quickly," Clooney says. "It feels kind of new to me still."

But nothing comes easy. She got bronchial pneumonia in December and had to cancel her Christmas tour.

On New Year's Day she quit smoking, after 49 years. And, she says, singing became easier right away.

When she reminisces, Clooney often pinpoints dates with the births of her children, Miguel, Maria, Gabriel, Monsita and Rafael, during her 14 years of marriage to actor Jose Ferrer.

For instance, she says, "Billie Holiday and I were friends. We spent a lot of time together when I was pregnant with my second child. Billie said, 'I think it's going to be a girl this time and I'll be godmother because it takes a bad woman to be a good godmother.' She is one of Maria's godparents."

An opportunity to record with the Duke Ellington Band came up during Clooney's fourth pregnancy, Monsita. Billy Strayhorn visited her in California and they chose songs. The band recorded in New York and she added her voice in California. "Doing that was brand-new," Clooney says. "I'd always recorded live."

Linda Ronstadt and Clooney became friends through mutual admiration for arranger Nelson Riddle.

"We did a benefit together in October," Clooney says. "She did Strayhorn's 'Lush Life.' She swung for the fence and got across it - out of the park. I did some easy Gershwin thing."

Clooney, sitting for an interview in her hotel suite, is wearing one of the velvet caftans she has made here. Family pictures in silver frames adorn two tables. One is of her children, their spouses and her eight grandchildren. Others are of close friends, Bob and Dolores Hope, and Ronstadt, with her adopted daughter Mary.

Rosemary and sister Betty left Cincinnati, where they sang on station WLW, to tour with Tony Pastor's band. Betty, who died of an aneurysm in 1972, tired of traveling and went home after two years. She married and had four children.

Rosemary stayed another year with Pastor's band, then went to New York to start a solo career. Columbia Records signed her, put Mitch Miller in charge, and he chose "Come on-a My House," which became the first of her many hits.

One hit, "This Old House" in 1955, was written by Stuart Hamblen as a religious song. Clooney sang it uptempo and Hamblen was upset at first. But, when it sold more than a million copies, she says, "He bought me the most beautiful bassinet for my baby, Miguel."

Her new record, with liner notes by her brother Nick, includes "I'm Confessin' that I Love You," which Tony Pastor always sang, and "Falling in Love Again," a Marlene Dietrich signature song. Rosemary and Marlene were close friends.

"When I started work at Paramount she wrote notes to the head of every department saying, 'Take care of my friend,'" Clooney says.

"One of my babies was premature and weighed 4 pounds. Marlene was doing 'Witness for the Prosecution.' She came every day after work. She'd look in the nursery and see how Gabriel was progressing and tell me. Nobody in the hospital would tell me anything."

When her children were growing up, Clooney says, she felt torn between them and her career.

"In the middle of my career," she says, "I was doing a lot of drugs. I was hospitalized and had difficulty getting jobs."

Clooney explains that doctors in the 1960s started prescribing sleeping pills and tranquilizers for her. "I run into women my age and the same thing happened to them," she says. "It's amazing but quite a few are still doing it. Now I take medication for high blood pressure and that's about it."

Soon, Clooney will have a knee replacement operation. Heading for a club date, she slipped on ice in Boston 25 years ago. Over time the cartilage has eroded.

"It's kind of bone-on-bone now," she says. "I'll be setting off alarms in airports the rest of my life."

With her children now grown and after eight years of psychotherapy, Clooney says, "I have the feeling of freedom I had when I first started. My enthusiasm is more the way I felt when I first started than like the successful years."

Clooney has no trouble remembering her most treasured compliment. "Bing Crosby said I was his favorite singer. You hang on to that."

HOROSCOPES

ARIES - March 21/April 20
Use the beginning of the week to catch up on household chores and ongoing projects. This way, you'll have the weekend free to do whatever you want. A gamble could reap rich returns for just a small outlay. Wednesday and Thursday are especially lucky days.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21
An announcement by a work associate will take you by surprise. You'll realize that change is inevitable. If you're looking to shed a few pounds, now's the time to start an exercise regimen. A positive attitude will take you a long way. It's a good time to catch up on personal correspondence.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21
A series of unforeseen delays will turn this week's plans upside down. Although adjustments to your schedule may seem inconvenient at first, there may be some benefit in the long run. If you're in search of new love, this could be your lucky week. Dress your best on Friday.

CANCER - June 22/July 22
After you overcome a major obstacle at work this week, you'll realize that your extra effort paid off. A weekend getaway will be just what you need to satisfy your desire for adventure. If money is an issue, look for creative ways to cut costs without cutting into a good time.

LEO - July 23/August 23
If you're a parent, this may be a trying - yet rewarding - time. Let your instincts be your guide when handling delicate situations, especially when family is involved. Don't be a pushover in financial dealings. Even for the giving Leo, generosity does have its limits.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22
If you shy away from a social situation this week, you'll regret it later on. Face your fears head on, and you'll feel good about yourself. A friend may call on you for emotional support later in the week. Lending a sympathetic ear will go a long way. Keep spending to a minimum.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23
Success is within easy reach. You'll have an opportunity to show off at work, and it could lead to advancement. Be confident in your abilities, and you're sure to be a hit. A weekend getaway is in store. Quality time with a loved one will make the weekend extra-special. Let your spontaneous side take the lead.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22
A falling-out with a close friend could be worked out if you're willing to put your pride to the side. Be stubborn, and a valued relationship could be permanently severed. It's totally up to you. Now's the time to splurge on a luxury item. Go ahead, and dip into that nest egg.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21
Expect the unexpected this week. If you happen to bump into an old friend, make an effort to reunite the friendship. It could be more rewarding than it ever was before. A family member may have some surprising news. There could be a new baby on the way!

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20
Don't let yourself get distracted from the project at hand. When you're under deadline pressure, it's important to give yourself as much time as possible. The results of a recent test are likely to put a smile on your face. Rely on intuition when making tough decisions.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18
Something that happens this week will make you feel grateful for what you have. You'll realize that life is too short to waste precious time on negative things. A loved one may come to you with a problem. Be thoughtful of any advice you give. A romantic weekend is in store.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20
Don't let insecurities get in the way of success this week. Believe in yourself, and others will, too. Mixing business with pleasure is not advisable, especially towards the end of the week. Watch what you say to others. Your tendency to stretch the truth could get you in trouble.

YOUR BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
The next 12 months:
You can get practically anything you desire this year, but there's one catch: You have to decide what you want! In areas of love and career, sitting on a fence will get you nowhere. Make a commitment, and forge ahead. You'll be surprised at how far you'll get. Travel will be abundant this year. Your desire for new stimuli could lead you to many exotic locales. You could be set back by a lack of finances, however. So, be sure to save when possible. Remember, frittering money away has only short-term satisfaction. A barrier that has been in your way for many years will finally be removed.

IN FOCUS

A jack-of-all-trades, Tommy Lee Jones makes his directorial debut with The Good Old Boys, premiering Sunday, March 5, on TNT.

Besides his direction, Jones also takes the billing as co-writer of the screenplay and star of the film.

Jones plays Hewey Calloway, a cowboy struggling to survive in the 1940s.

The shrinking American West causes him to take a good look at his life. Should he change his lifestyle or not?

Sissy Spacek and Sam Shepard also star.

Tim Daly (Wings) is flying high as the host of the 21st annual People's Choice Awards Sunday, March 5, on CBS.

Daly and co-host Annie Potts (Love & War) lead a night of hopes and crossed fingers as the favorites in television, movies and music are honored.

Top vote-getters in each category, determined by a public opinion poll conducted by The Gallup Organization, include names such as Tim Allen, Mandy Patinkin, Candice Bergen, Tom Hanks and the Eagles.

TV PIPELINE

BY TAYLOR MICHAELS

Q: Are Bob Einstein (Super Dave Osborne) and Albert Brooks brothers? -Dennis Garber, Gilbertville, Pa.

A: Yes - and Brooks' real name is, no kidding, Albert Einstein.

Q: We are avid watchers of Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman and were shocked to see that Erika Flores (Colleen) no longer is on the show. What happened? Her replacement is cute, but seems almost the age of the young son. -Helen V. Kightlinger, Lake Havasu City, Ariz.

A: A CBS publicist says Flores asked to be released from her contract. The show issued a statement that the producers agreed to honor her request, while regretting her departure. The role now is played by Jessica Bowman.

Q: I say when Kim Fields was on The Facts of Life, her character was named Tutti. My husband says Trudy. Who is right? -Charlene Kryski, Calgary, Alberta, Canada.

A: You're closer. The character was Tootie.

Q: I'm confused. A few weeks ago you reported that actor Christopher Lloyd is the executive producer of Frasier. I recall hearing or reading that the Frasier producer says he often gets mistaken for the actor who has the same name. -G. Mattos, San Leandro, Calif.

A: And I didn't make his life any easier by my goof, which another reader also pointed out. The actor and the producer are, indeed, two different people. And no, I'm afraid I don't have a current address for the actor. Apologies all around.

Q: There's a trip to Disneyland riding on this. I say that Bobby Brown starred in a TV sitcom. My son says I'm crazy. Who's right? -D.D., Portland, Ore.

Bob Einstein

A: According to every source I checked, your son is - at least about Bobby Brown.

Q: Are Rob and Chad Lowe related? -Kris J., Laurinburg, N.C.

A: They're brothers.

Q: Please help settle a bet. My father says Malcolm Jamal-Warner stars in Hangin' With Mr. Cooper. I say he's wrong, but what is the name of the man who does star in it? -Michele Poulitney, Paterson, N.J.

A: Mark Curry plays Mr. C.

Q: Is the little girl in the Shake 'n' Bake commercial Brett Butler? -The Hoehn family, Coleman, Fla.

A: No.

Q: Where can I write to the cast and producers of the show Muscle? I think it's the funniest show on TV. It reminds me of Soap. -Janice Plourde, Nantucket, Mass.

A: I agree completely. Write to them C/O the WB Network, 4000 Warner Blvd., Burbank, Calif. 91522.

HIGHLIGHTS

Remember When takes a nostalgic look at Howdy Doody and "Buffalo" Bob Smith, among other people and places. The program airs Thursday as part of PBS' pledge drive (check local listings).

PBS pledge weeks offer music to soothe savage critics

BY SUZANNE GILL

PBS is looking for a vote of confidence. Public broadcasting, which began with a Congressional fiat 25 years ago, is threatened now with "defunding" on Capitol Hill and an aging audience at home. Hence the slogan for its March pledge drive: "If PBS doesn't do it, who will?"

The commercial-free network hopes viewers will take a stand for culture, but it has learned a hard lesson about risk-taking in conservative times. Gone are the days of controversial offerings like Tales of the City last year. Instead, the pledge drive now has specials on Glenn Miller (Friday, March 10) and Lawrence Welk (Wednesday, March 15). Thursday, March 9, brings Remember When, a glance back at Howdy Doody and the Fuller Brush man. (Check local listings for all PBS programs.)

The month is filled with the conciliatory sounds of music. On Monday, March 6, American Masters presents "Placido Domingo: A Musical Life." It is followed by "The Wagner Gala," a Great Performances concert.

Some Enchanted Evening: Celebrating Oscar Hammerstein II, featuring Julie Andrews and Peabo Bryson, airs Tuesday, March 7. Monday, March 13, brings John Tesh Live at Red Rocks with the Colorado Symphony Orchestra. And two Austin City Limits specials, featuring Vince Gill and Tammy Wynette, air Saturday, March 18.

In the department of positive personhood, Dr. Lee Hausner offers tips on handling adolescents in Parenting for Today - Who's in Charge? Sunday, March 5. Thursday, A Conversation With Thomas Moore visits the best-selling author and his notions of "soul care."

A true highlight of the drive is Over America, an aerial survey of the continent airing Wednesday, March 8. Tom Skerritt narrates as a breathtaking landscape unfolds.

Finally, a note of lighthearted irreverence can be heard in Road Scholar, the 1993 film featuring wry immigrant professor Andrei Codrescu, cruising and commenting in a convertible. It airs Thursday, March 23.

Conagher *** (1991) Sam Elliott, Katharine Ross. Based on the novel by Louis L'Amour. An itinerant cowboy is caught up in the lives of a lonely widow and her children. 3:00. (C) March 8 9pm.

The Concorde - Airport '79 ** (1979) Alain Delon, Susan Blakely. A bizarre series of mishaps plagues a flight of the supersonic Concorde jet. 2:00. (C) March 10 2am.

Dead in the Water ** (1991) Bryan Brown, Veronica Cartwright. An attorney becomes a suspect in the wrong murder when his co-conspirator in a plot to kill his wife turns up dead. (In Stereo) (CC) 2:00. (C) March 9 2am.

Deadly Invasion: The Killer Bee Nightmare (1995) Robert Hays, Nancy Stafford. Premiere. A California family becomes trapped in their own home after a primary colony of vicious bees is disturbed. (In Stereo) (CC) 2:00. (C) March 7 7pm.

The Deadly Tower ** 1/2 (1975) Kurt Russell, John Forsythe. A college student kills 13 people and wounds 33 others when he goes on a rampage at the University of Texas in 1966. 2:00. (C) March 11 12am.

Death Moon ** (1978) Robert Foxworth, Barbara Trentham. An executive vacationing in Hawaii believes that he is the victim of a native curse placed on his family long ago. 2:00. (C) March 9 11:30pm.

Diamonds Are Forever *** (1971) Sean Connery, Jill St. John. James Bond matches wits with a villain who wants to use the world's diamond supply to build an orbiting space laser. 2:30. (C) March 5 6pm.

MONDAY

Monday on ABC, Rodney Dangerfield joins the list of names (that includes Carl Reiner and Neil Simon) as a recipient of the Creative Achievement Award in the ninth annual American Comedy Awards.

BY CANDACE HAVENS

It is almost that time of year, and some soap opera executives are doing their spring cleaning a little early.

Also, many popular actors are leaving their roles on daytime to pursue prime-time series and movie roles. These actors include Tom Eplin (Jake, Another World), John Hensley (Holden, As the World Turns), Melina Kanakaredes (Eleni, Guiding Light) and Tamara Tunie (Jessica, ATWT). Tunie and Kanakaredes have appeared on NYPD Blue.

All of which means viewers will have to get used to new faces. But this year it also looks like some of the spring cleaning was done to make room for a few faces from the past. One such popular mug is that of Kim Zimmer, who will reprise her role of Reva on GL.

Carol Burnett once asked, "How many people do you know who can make a lot of money by crossing their eyes and doing pratfalls?"

SOAP TALK

Soaps doing some spring cleaning

"We are delighted that Kim will be returning at such an exciting time for the show," says Jill Farren Phelps, executive producer of the serial. "Although specific details are not yet available, Reva will be a pivotal part of an important story for Josh Lewis. "Her presence will finally allow him to make peace with her loss and give him the courage to move on with his own life. It's a wonderful story, and we're all very excited."

Another familiar face is joining Loving. Darnell Williams recently left ATWT and will now reside in Corinth along with Debbi Morgan, who plays Angie. Williams and Morgan portrayed the popular soap opera couple Jesse and Angie on All My Children several years ago.

Dear Candace: My daughter is planning a wedding and would like to involve the guests in a project.

When Max and Luna were married on One Life to Live, they had each guest place a block on a quilt.

Could you please tell me where to write to get more information on how this was done? -Anna Simms, Idaho Falls, Idaho.
