Snyder School Pupil Dies As Bus Overturns

Winter's first icy thrust brought tragedy to the Snyder area this morning when an elementary school pupil lost his life in a weather-related traffic accident.

Killed when a Snyder School bus overturned 9.8 miles west of town on U.S. Highway 180, was Teddy Lloyd Keith, 8, of Fluvanna. He was a third-grade pupil at North Elementary School, one of approximately 15 on the bus which was on its way to Snyder from the Fluvanna community.

Observers at the scene said the child apparently fell from the bus and was crushed beneath the vehicle which wound up on its side.

No other injuries to pupils were reported. However, the bus driver, Robert Adams, was taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital for treatment of bruises and shock. He was reported still in the hospital emergency room shortly before noon.

An unidentified truck driver picked up pupils at the scene and took them to the Chevron SACROC offices west of Snyder. They were taken to their respective schools later.

Apparently the other pupils on the bus were unaware immediately that one had been killed in the mishap.

The roads and streets were covered with "mushy" ice following a night of freezing rain and sleet over the area. It was not known immediately exactly how the school bus accident happened, but observers at the scene said it apparently went into a skid on the slippery road and finally turned over on its side.

"It was like losing one of our own children," said Jim Erwin, principal at North Elementary School. "He was a good student and everyone liked him."

The child was a pupil in

Senate Refuses To Kill Profits Tax Amendment

WASHINGTON (AP)—Following pleas from Democratic leaders and the White House, the Senate today refused to kill what probably is its last chance to stiffen the "windfall-profits" tax on the oil industry.

The vote to keep the amendment alive was 53-44. A vote on adopting the amendment could come later in the day.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale was on hand as president of the Senate to break a tie, if necessary; and Treasury Secretary William Miller and Energy Secretary Charles Duncan paid a rare visit to the galleries to watch the vote.

Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd, pleading for colleagues to keep his amendment alive, rejected arguments that the oil industry would be weakened by the tax.

Sen. Harrison Schmitt, R-N.M., opposing the amendment, said it would "eliminate a large portion of high-risk oil from ever being produced."

Byrd's amendment would add $30.8 billion to the "windfall" tax over the decade, raising the Senate version to about $185-billion.

President Carter prefers the $277 billion tax passed by the House, but his spokesman, Jody Powell, said Carter spent a considerable amount of time Tuesday seeking support for today's vote on the Byrd amendment.

Both supporters and opponents of the measure were predicting a close vote, but the issue might not be settled immediately. The vote was on whether to table -- or kill -- the amendment. Even if Carter and his supporters won that test, further debate could delay a final vote on the amendment.

Also on tap today was a vote on an effort to speed up passage of the oil tax bill by limiting debate and barring consideration of unrelated amendments.

Carter OKs Defense Hike

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Carter has approved a defense budget proposing 3.5 percent "real growth" in military spending next year to reassure Senate critics of the SALT II treaty, administration officials say.

Carter Leading Kennedy

CHICAGO (AP)-President Carter has moved ahead of Sen. Edward Kennedy as the Democratic voters' choice nationally for the 1980 presidential nomination, the latest Gallup Poll reports.

The survey, completed Dec. 9, shows a dramatic jump in Carter's popularity as he became the choice of 48 percent of the Democrats, compared to Kennedy's 40 percent.

The SDN Column

While efforts were being made to give the vote to 18-year-olds, there were expressions of concern that older citizens would lose some of their influence at the polls. The youngsters would wield decisive power in politics, they said, especially in some of the most controversial social issues, such as wet-dry elections.

It didn't happen, of course, In the first place, there was no rush to the registration offices by potential voters under 21 years of age. And those who did register seemed to have little interest in going to the polls.

Reports this week indicate that this situation continues. State-wide statistics show that few younger voters are registering these days. There can be various reasons for this. Some may view it as futile after taking a look at today's politics and the problems of the day. Many probably just don't want to become involved.

Others probably do not feel that they have time for it, and therein lies one of the arguments against attempts to rush youngsters into adulthood. Some feel that they are not allowed to be children long enough these days. The cares of the world will weigh on their shoulders soon enough without speeding it up. With the ever-increasing complexities of our education system and a multitude of other "planned activities," kids can't be kids for very long, but are forced to participate in a highly structured society almost from infancy.

And, another factor may dilute the impact of the younger voters more and more. We will know more about that when the 1980 census figures are in. Forecasts are that the new head count will show a decline of more than 7½ percent in those 19 years old and under. On the other end of the span, those 65 and above are expected to increase by nearly 25 percent.

There is a lesson here also for those who are inclined to degrade our efforts in the health and safety field. You don't increase the life-span this much in 10 years without someone doing something right, regardless of the critics.

The fact is, despite air pollution, saccharin, tobacco and all other modern hindrances, Americans are growing bigger, healthier and living longer than ever before and more so than any other nation on earth.

Sharp Quake Hits Colombia

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP)-A violent earthquake rocked the Colombia-Ecuador border area before dawn today, killing at least 71 persons, injuring 350 and sending thousands rushing from their beds in panic, officials reported.

The quake, felt at 3 a.m. in three major shockwaves, swayed tall buildings in the major cities, destroyed 100 houses in Charco, a town of 4,000 built on stilts on the Pacific coast near Colombia's border with Ecuador, and killed a woman in the nearby town of Escuade, they said.

Twenty-one other towns in the area were rocked, leaving eight more dead, officials said. The quake also churned up six-foot waves that devastated a pier on a prison island, officials said.

Pupil Lunch Prices Hiked...

School Ponders Survey Of Cost-Effectiveness

Four Snyder School trustees who attended the board's regular meeting Tuesday night expressed interest in a cost-effectiveness survey of non-academic (support services) operations in the school system and aksed for more information on the proposal.

Dr. Paul R. Willis of Exertia, Inc., discussed the service offered by his company. The firm offers a program in two phases -- an analysis of operations and recommendations for improvement in Phase I, and actual supervision of implementation of the program in Phase II. He said the firm would guarantee that savings would amount to as much or more than the company's fee the first year. The school also would have the option of contracting for Phase I only and implementing the program itself.

Supt. Bill J. Hood was instructed to contact officials of some school districts who already use the service and report back at the January board meeting.

The board also approved a 10-cent increase in prices for school lunches. This will hike the price of lunches for pupils from kindergarten through the sixth grade from 55 cents to 65 cents, and those from the seventh through 12th grades from 65 cents to 75 cents. School personnel had been increased twice since there had been an increase for pupil meals.

Bill Eiland, board president, Lillie Sullivan and Bill Voss reported that they had received complaints about food service at the junior high school on both quality and quantity of food served. E.D. Flynn, assistant superintendent-business, said the complaint would be relayed to the contractor. Flynn said there had been no food service complaints reaching the administration building during November.

Under the new price system, some adjustments are promised in portions of food for sixth grades through high school. Larger servings are promised for potatoes, bread, beans, cookies, etc.

Following a study of local cost figures and practices by some other school districts, the board approved a flat fee for use of the high school football stadium for playoff games. The charge will be $200 per game when it is necessary to restripe the field, and $150 per game when striping is not required.

Actual cost figures were recorded for two playoff games this year. The Slaton-Stamford game cost the school $579 and the Haskell-Seagraves game cost $356.75. Hood said he felt that the school should participate in bringing playoff games here, but that in view of current financial conditions, it should not bear all of the expense for these community activities.

The school district's five-year plan for special education services to the handicapped, as required by the Texas Education Agency, was approved, and a second group of policy revisions, along with a revised index, were approved.

Hood reported that soaring interest rates have made it impossible for car dealers to provide driver education cars free of charge. The school will be required to take care of about $1,000 in costs for the remainder of this year and if current trends continue, the cost for next year could run as high as $1,800, the superintendent said.

This situation may cause the school district to initiate a fee for the driving portion of the driver education course. Although no fee is permitted for the classroom portion of the course, most school districts already charge a fee for the driving portion, it was noted.

Hood also reported that the school district's at-

it's time to toughen up

Should public school testing procedures and graduation requirements be tougher?

Some voices, both from the adult and student level, are suggesting that they should.

Perhaps this is a good sign.

A black syndicated columnist, William Raspberry of The Washington Post, spoke recently in Austin to the Austin Area Urban League's second annual equal opportunity dinner.

He didn't sound a plea for a better opportunity for minorities or a quota system that would promote them in jobs or admit them to medical or other professional schools above better qualified students of other categories.

The columnist suggested, instead, that schools can save themselves only by restoring public confidence, and that they will have to "begin being a lot tougher than they are with the question of standards."

He said, "They've seemed to be more concerned with keeping people in school and haven't devoted the same amount of interest to improving achievement," adding that "the public isn't blindly buying that persons with diplomas are necessarily educated."

He suggested that the only way Americans will return to trusting and respecting those "pieces of paper" will be for schools to insist that "either you learn or you won't be given pieces of paper saying you've learned."

State Sen. Walter Mengden during the last session of the Texas Legislature, introduced a S.B. 26 to prohibit social promotions and to require all students to pass local competency tests for promotion or graduation.

The bill never got out of committee, but S.B. 350, did. It provides for mandatory testing in reading, writing and mathematics of fifth and ninth grade students, with third grade students to be added later. Vernon Schools are making plans to implement the requirements.

Sen. Mengden cites surveys which indicate 80 percent of adults want competency tests in schools and 65 percent of students (13 to 18 years old) surveyed feel that high school students should pass a standard nationwide examination to obtain a high school diploma.

Sen. Mengden also cites a Texas A&M study in which an A&M professor, information published by this newspaper last August, tested 736 students and found that about half lacked the reasoning ability necessary to answer questions expected in standard college courses.

Sen. Mengden indicates he will be back with his S.B. 26 during the next session of the legislature. It will be interesting to see whether his measure fares better in the next session, and whether the Legislature reflects a growing question in the public mind as to whether everybody deserves a high school diploma, or only those who can do work generally considered acceptable for a high school graduate.

at wits end

We got to talking the other day about optimism and it occurred to me that the only ones in the world who are actively practicing optimism today are dogs.

In fact, I'll go one step farther and suggest that dogs probably invented optimism.

We have a small Yorkshire terrier (who should be owned by a good trial lawyer) who has sat by my chair at the dinner table every night for nine years waiting for something to drop.

He knows we have a family history of never feeding a dog at the table.

He knows we have children who have the agility to grab for a cookie in mid-air and catch it in their teeth a good three seconds before it hits the floor.

He knows I've never been decorated for cooking.

Yet, meal after meal, Murray keeps his vigil ... his body rigid and poised to spring ... his eyes shiny and darting ... his every muscle quivering.

The dog lives on hope. Take the case of Murray and my mother. She has never made a secret of how she feels about dogs. To her dogs are mobile germ machines with rapier toenails used to shred nylons who cannot keep their uncivil tongues in their heads. ("You never know where that tongue has been!")

For eight years my mother has knocked on the door, then yelled, "Put that beast in the utility room or I'm not coming in." Yet for eight years Murray has greeted her happily at the door like she was covered with chicken fat.

Personally, I don't know how Murray does it.

He runs to the door with an enthusiasm reserved only for a victory at the polls at least 30 times a day. There's never anyone at the door for him.

When you put him in the car to take him for a ride, he goes crazy with anticipation. Yet he has never gone anywhere but to the vet for shots.

I have watched him in the yard chasing lizards. For nine years he has stalked and pounced until dehydration and exhaustion set in. Yet he has never admitted that the last time a dog caught a lizard, the lizard was on a leash.

Last night a sad thing happened. I dropped one of my cheese biscuits to the floor. Murray had been waiting all of his life for such a moment. He pounced on it, sniffed it, and then walked away from it.

My husband said, "Welcome to the real world, Murray."

worst of timing

Well, first there was the pet rock, then the hermit crab and now we have the miniature oil well as the gift novelty of the year.

Or the would-be novelty of the year.

One Scott Triolo of La Habra, Calif., according to a wire report, was certain he had the year's Christmas best-seller in his 6-inch plastic derricks filled with real crude oil and priced right at $5.

What was wrong was the timing and the labeling. Marketed just before the seizure of the U.S. embassy in Tehran, each derrick was stamped: Iran Land and Oil Co - "Own Your Own Iranian Oil Well."

Triolo now has warehouses full of derricks and a new appreciation of his position in the free enterprise system:

my turn

by jo ann nunley

Did you ever see time pass so fast as when the media start Dec. 1 with their daily reminders that there are only so many shopping days till Christmas.

The traditional Christmas trees are going up in each home with decorations of the families' choice being hung on its branches. As each special ornament is hung it seems to take away a little of the frustrations and self-inflicted stress of worrying about being ready for the big day.

The Christmas tree did not come into general use as a focal point for the observance of Christmas until the 18th century.

When other items of a household lose their usefullness and are discarded or put in the family garage sale, Christmas decorations seem more difficult to part with.

It would be interesting to know if there are collectors items in the tree-trimming category in local homes.

During the 19th century, glassblowers produced all sorts of fanciful glass ornaments for Christmas trees with the most popular of these being the "witch balls" that were hand blown glass primarily intended to use atop various bases such as a vase.

Another early ornament was the vigil light, made both in England and in this country and used to hold small candles for burning on Christmas.

The glass bulbs like the ones used today as tree ornaments are by no means recent. They were blown in various colors during the last century.

Popular in the 19th century were lithographed ornaments in shapes of angels, cherubs, cats and Santa Clauses. Others in similar shapes included such materials as papier-mache, wax, pottery, porcelain and wood.

Christmas cards in early days play a big part in the decorating our tree in a more contemporary design, the vote finalizes the decision each year in favor of the traditional old-fashioned natural tree trimmed with the sentimental ornaments.

Whatever the tree is trimmed with, be it traditional family heirlooms or mismatched ornaments including home-made decorations, it can be a family affair filled with nostalgia for the older group and the making of pleasant memories for the young.

Statistics in a study published by the International Labor Organization indicates that today there are at least 52 million workers under the age of 15. Of these, more than 50 million are in the developing countries, especially in Asia.

WASHINGTON (NEA)— When Alexander Pope observed more than two centuries ago that "fools rush in where angels fear to tread," he undoubtedly envisioned what latter-day politicians would do to capture votes in an election.

The most recent evidence of that phenomenon is President Carter's foolhardy decision to meddle in the fierce, decades-long economic struggle between traditional downtown business districts and newer suburban shopping centers.

Intervening in any competition between the cities and their suburbs is a dicey undertaking at best and a no-win political gamble at worst, because those disparate constituences represent the nation's two largest concentrations of voters. Satisfying one invariably means antagonizing the other.

But the Carter administration, anxious to attract the political support of both mayors and minority groups, struggled for more than a year to fashion a policy statement on the complex issue.

As recently as last summer, the draft was identified as the White House's "Regional Shopping Center Policy," and emphasized the dangers of siphoning jobs, tax revenues and business opportunities from already distressed downtown areas into the suburbs.

But critics of that approach, including the International Council of Shopping Centers and the National Retail Merchants Association, began an intensive behind-the-scenes lobbying effort.

A new draft appeared on Sept. 21, carrying a vague title, "An Urban Conservation Policy," but still sympathetic to downtown stores and critical of suburban shopping centers. A primary objective of the new policy, according to that revision, was to discourage any major federal actions that might "lead to the construction of large commercial developments in distressed communities, or promote unnecessary urban sprawl."

But the shopping center trade association warned that such a "divisive" policy which "puts the blame on suburban shopping centers for the deterioration of downtown retailing" would serve only to "set cities against suburbs."

The final version of the policy statement, carrying the vapid title of "Community Conservation Guidance," was unveiled with considerable fanfare on Nov. 26, at the annual convention of the National League of Cities in Las Vegas, Nev.

After months of compromising, that last draft included concessions for all of the interest groups involved but was pitifully weak as a statemnent of national policy.

In a private memo to the federal officials who had worked on the project, Jack H. Watson Jr., a senior member of the White House staff, sought to emphasize that "these guidelines are not against shopping malls or commercial developments."

Watson noted that "the term 'shopping centers' never even appears in these guidelines," in addition, all earlier references to "central business districts" and "downtown" areas were replaced by the euphemistic phrase, "older commercial areas."

Similarly, the White House scrapped an earlier proposal to establish a new "National Downtown Revitalization Advisory Committee" designed to "help strengthen existing central business districts."

On the other hand, the policy statement retained some harsh language aimed at suburban malls: "Unplanned sprawl can often be wasteful of our nation's resources. It requires heavy expenditures of scarce public resources ... it consumes valuable land and it leads to the wasteful use of limited energy resources."

Some suburban shopping centers, the statement said, "have drained economic vitality from existing business districts ... This can create environmental problems as well as contribute to a reduction of jobs and services available to center-city populations."

Anxious to placate everybody, Carter has satisfied nobody. The White House now has a statement that may serve the short-term needs of the 1980 presidential campaign, but the nation still lacks a coherent policy on the issue.

Dolphins seem to be able to sleep with one eye open and with half the brain still awake, according to National Geographic. They need only about as much sleep as a cow — perhaps 2 or 3 hours a day. Before leaving the land to return to the sea some 50 million years ago, dolphins may have been related to forerunners of today's cows, goats and sheep. Like these animals, dolphins have several stomachs.

Here is a hand bid really well by Oswald Jacoby and his son Jim back in the Sixties. It illustrates several fine points of bidding.

Oswald, sitting North, responded two clubs instead of one spade. There is a fallacious theory here that one spade keeps the bidding low. Actually, two clubs is far more likely to keep the bidding low. Thus, Oswald's second bid of two spades left the bidding at the two level with all four suits shown. Jim could now bid three clubs and Oswald three diamonds.

Jim's four-diamond bid was a force. By this time the partnership was on its way to game or higher. Oswald could find no better bid than five diamonds.

When Oswald went to five diamonds, Jim knew that he was showing four-card diamond support and also was now marked with not more than one heart. Maybe there ws a grand slam. Jim's five notrump was their form of grand slam force to ask how good his father's diamonds were. Six clubs said they were bad.

Jim won the club lead and cashed his ace-king of diamonds. He needed to have the diamonds break 3-2. Then he spread his hand. As long as he did not lead a third trump, the only trick he could lose would be West's high trump.

Texas Lawmen Losing Organized Crime War

AUSTIN (AP) — Racketeers apparently are winning their war with Texas lawmen, who have been told they will never have enough men or money to effectively combat organized crime or its $5 billion a year drain on the state's economy.

The Texas Organized Crime Prevention Council received a staff report Tuesday that outlined the volume of narcotics trafficking, detailed the rise in illegal gambling operations and included for the first time information on "white collar crime."

"Trafficking of narcotics and dangerous drugs into and through Texas is by far the most prevalent form of organized criminal activity," the staff said in its report.

Last year there were 75,500 heroin addicts in Texas and 406 drug overdose deaths were reported.

The Mexican Mafia is one of the most significant family crime operations," said G.K. Manelius, council program director.

Mexican drug smuggling peaked in 1976, the report said, but an excellent marijuana crop is now reaching staging areas near the border in multi-ton quantities approaching those available in 1976-77.

Authorities seized illegal drugs with a street value of well over $100 million last year. But the report said that narcotics trafficking was responsible for a $1.5 billion drain on the Texas economy in 1978.

White collar crime was included, the report stated, "because of its rapid growth in the state and because of its suspected links to organized criminals."

In 1977, an estimated 2.3 billion was lost as a result of this type of crime, the report said.

Gambling also remains a major organized criminal activity in Texas, the report said. Six of every 10 Texans wager to some extent, betting an estimated $1 billion per year. Over $50 million was wagered in the Dallas area alone on Super Bowl XII weekend, an illegal casino-type gambling has "notably increased" in Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth, Amarillo and Lubbock.

The Grand Canyon — the largest gorge in the world — could hold more water than 20 Lake Eries.

Chevron To Test Gasohol Market

DENVER — Chevron U.S.A. has announced that it will begin a trial market of Gasohol in the State of Washington to customers in selected service stations in the Bellevue area, near Seattle, during January, 1980. The product, to be known as Chevron Unleaded Gasohol, will be a blend of 90 percent unleaded motor gasoline and 10 percent Ethyl-alcohol (Ethanol).

About 30 Chevron dealers are expected to participate in Chevron's trial Gasohol Marketing Program in the Northwest.

"Gasohol is receiving a great deal of attention as a supplemental fuel because of the worldwide shortage of crude oil," said Chevron's Marketing Vice President D.L. Mulit in San Francisco. "But we don't see Gasohol as the answer to all motorists' gasoline needs."

Mulit pointed out that the trial program will give Chevron a chance to evaluate consumer acceptance and product performance, as well as increase our research knowledge of the product. "We recognize there are many areas of uncertainty regarding Gasohol and this leads to our interest in the conduct of such a trial. We don't know at this point whether this alternate fuel will be in demand in greater quantities during the next five years," Mulit continued. "It may serve regional needs well, but fall short of nationwide requirements."

The Ethanol to be used in Chevron's Gasohol is anhydrous alcohol produced in a fermentation process from renewable resources. It is thought to offer better performance qualities than Methanol, an alcohol made from materials such as coal, or waste materials.

Dear Abby

Giving Thought To To Gift-Giving

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Last year you devoted an entire column to what and what not to give for Christmas gifts. I thought it was one of the most helpful columns you ever wrote. Please run it again.

OVER 80 IN OKMULGEE, OKLA.

DEAR OVER 80: That column was so well received I've updated it. And here it is:

DEAR READERS: Can you believe it's time to prepare for the holidays again? Well, it is, so do yourselves a favor and do your Christmas (or Hanukkah) shopping early.

If you're wondering what to give Aunt Bessie or Grandpa, who don't get out much, let me tell you what NOT to give them:

No dusting powder, after-shave or cologne. (They probably have several unopened boxes gathering dust on their closet shelves.)

Grandpa doesn't need another necktie, and Aunt Bessie doesn't really want any more brooches, necklaces or bracelets.

With the price of groceries so high, folks who live alone on a fixed income probably would be delighted to receive a basket of goodies. Include small cans of salmon, chicken, ham, tuna, vegetables, fruit, instant coffee, tea bags, crackers, cookies and instant soup mixes.

Older people who live in confined quarters do not need more "things" that are ornamental only. Don't send music boxes, statuettes, or other bric a brac.

Another thoughtful gift is lined stationery with envelopes and a generous supply of postage stamps. (Enclose some felt-tip pens, too.)

Shut-ins would appreciate a box of greeting cards for all occasions so that they, too, can send birthday, anniversary, graduation, get-well and condolence cards to others. (Be a sport! Stamp some envelopes.)

Don't give anyone a gift of clothing unless you're absolutely sure the size is right. That goes for the color and style, too.

If you're tempted to pass along a scarf, purse, wallet or some other useless little doodad you received for Christmas three years ago, please don't. It's a pretty fair bet the recipient will find it just as useless as you did. (Besides, YOU might get it back the year after next.)

If someone on your gift list is living on a pension, a check for ANY amount would be much more appreciated than a frivolous little trinket. Or give someone who's counting his pennies a year's subscription to a newspaper or magazine you know he'll enjoy.

Please, don't ever send a gift in a box bearing the name of a store unless you bought it there. Should the recipient want to exchange it, he will be embarrassed, the store clerks will look bewildered, and it won't make YOU look too good.

If you buy a gift on sale, be sure it's appropriate since if the recipient tries to take it back he will be told, "Sorry, Sale merchandise is not returnable."

Don't give a pet to anyone unless you're absolutely sure it's wanted and will be properly cared for. And if you want to delight someone who considers his pet a "member of the family," include a tin of cat or dog food for the pet.

Don't give gifts of wine or liquor unless you're sure the recipients imbibe. Candy, nuts and fruitcake make wonderful gifts for those who aren't counting their calories, but please have compassion for those who are, and lead them not into temptation.

Resist giving toddlers stuffed animals and dolls that are bigger than THEY are. And parents will thank you for not sending their children horns, drums, sirens or whistles. If you give a child a game or book, be sure it's in the appropriate age range.

Instead of giving someone a gift with permission to "take it back and exchange it if it's not what you want," why not save yourself (and them) much time and effort by giving them a gift certificate in the first place?

Holiday time can be very depressing for people who are alone, so if you know someone who might be alone and lonely, give him (or her) the best gift of all—an invitation to spend the holiday with you and your family. The ultimate poverty is loneliness.

Love,
ABBY

Early glaucoma detection

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My nephew who is a traveling salesman told me that his eye specialist said he had glaucoma. My nephew says he will go blind and he is very much discouraged. I knew a woman in my office who has had glaucoma for 12 years and she's under the care of a specialist. She uses drops in her eyes every day. Her doctor told her to keep working and she could live her lifespan and not go blind.

I looked in my dictionary and it said that glaucoma was a disease of the eye affecting vision and probably leads to blindness. Everyone in the family is deeply concerned. What can the rest of us do to prevent this disease of the eyes, for example, in terms of diet?

DEAR READER — The common form of glaucoma is an increase in pressure inside of the eye. Your eyeball is filled with a semi-solid, jelly-like substance. Fluid is constantly secreted into the eye and also drains out of the eye. Glaucoma is associated with a defect in drainage of fluid from the eyes and so the fluid accumulates inside the eyeball and increases the pressure inside the eye. As the pressure increases, it can result in eye damage which, in its ultimate form, can produce blindness.

The fact that blindness can occur does not mean that properly treated ordinary glaucoma will always cause blindness. In fact, modern treatment begun early enough can usually control the pressure inside the eye and prevent blindness.

I certainly think your nephew should see an eye specialist who puts him on regular treatment and examines him periodically. The case you describe of the lady in your office is relatively typical. Eye drops are commonly used to help control the increased pressure in the eye. Finally, if the pressure can't be controlled with medicines, there are some surgical procedures that can be used to help relieve the pressure.

There are some other forms of glaucoma. A mature cataract may create pressure on part of the drainage mechanism inside the eyeball and cause glaucoma.

Frequently, people do not have any symptoms of glaucoma until the disease is far advanced and starting to cause significant damage to the eye. The common form usually doesn't occur until after 50 and an ordinary eye examination won't reveal its presence until it's far advanced.

That's why it's necessary for the eye specialist to measure the pressure inside the eye. After age 50 individuals should have an eye examination at least every two years and perhaps every year which includes a measurement of pressure inside the eye. Ordinary visual acuity may be perfectly normal while the pressure is starting to increase inside the eye itself. There's nothing which you can do in terms of diet or various aspects of your lifestyle that will prevent glaucoma. The best approach is early diagnosis. This will enable early treatment to control the pressure and prevent the damage that could lead to blindness.

TO GIVE YOU some additional information about eyes, I am sending you The Health Letter number 13-6, Your Cataracts Are Coming. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Gifts Made To Project Of Jaycees

Snyder Jaycees have announced several contributions to their Humble-Smith School Remodeling Project.

Included are the Snyder Chapter of the American Petroleum Institute, Gray A. Parks, Martha Huddleston, Charlie Teague, Scurry County Association for Retarded Citizens, Wayne Key, Triple S. Tire, Methodist Crusader's Bible Class and Snyder Well Service.

A total of $5,457.20 has been received to date, said Steve Gault, Jaycee project chairman. Approximately $10,000 is still needed to pay off the loan for the project, Gault said. Anyone wishing to make a donation should go by the West Texas State Bank or Snyder National Bank, or call 573-0153.

Currently the Netherlands covers about 13,100 square miles, and it's still growing. The Dutch add about 12 square miles to their country each year as they keep reclaiming land from the sea.

To Appeal Deportation Decision

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Carter administration probably will appeal a federal judge's ruling that it cannot deport Iranian students illegally living in this country, a Justice Department official says.

U.S. District Judge Joyce Hens Green ruled Tuesday that the administration's program, launched after the seizure of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, violates the equal protection clause of the Constitution by singling out Iranians for deportation.

Within two hours, the Justice Department filed a notice of appeal with the U.S. Court of Appeals. That filing, said department spokesman Robert Stevenson, keeps the administration's options open while it considers the next move.

Stevenson said attorneys working on the case had indicated "they would recomment an appeal."

On Nov. 10, President Carter ordered the Immigration and Naturalization Service to begin checking the student visas of more than 50,500 Iranians allegedly studying in the United States.

So far, 50,437 have appeared for interviews with federal officials, who have determined that 6,042 are subject to deportation. At least 41,254 are complying with their visas, say officials, who have asked for additional information from more than 3,000 others.

The officials said 405 requests for asylum have been forwarded to the Justice Department. Of those subject to deportation, 778 have agreed to leave the country voluntarily and 47 have already left. Nine have been deported.

But any further deportations were blocked by Mrs. Green, who also relieved any other Iranian students from reporting.

Oil Companies Flocking To Collin County

MCKINNEY (AP)—They admit it's a crap shoot, but oil companies have started flocking to historically oil-poor Collin County in North Texas, with visions of a new Spindletop urging them on.

"It's just like rolling a seven in Las Vegas," said President Kenneth Couch of Derrick Petroleum, a Gainesville independent. "We're very hopeful."

Records on file with the Texas Railroad Commission show not a drop of oil has been pumped from Collins County since records were first kept in 1919. However, 264 oil leases have been filed in the county clerk's office this year.

Derrick alone filed 166 leases for options on 18,700 acres, and one test well is being drilled near Altoga.

Newsman Says Davis Verdict Big Surprise

Everyone involved, including the judge, attorneys on both sides and even the defendant himself, was surprised at the acquittal verdict in the last trial of Cullen Davis, said Mike Cochran, West Texas Correspondent for The Associated Press.

Cochran was guest speaker Tuesday at the regular luncheon meeting of the Snyder Lions Club. He covered three Davis trials -- one for murder in Amarillo, one on a charge of plotting the murder of the judge in his divorce case at Houston and its subsequent retrial in Fort Worth, following a mistrial in Houston.

Cochran said everyone had expected a hung jury at Fort Worth, and that when the jury reported to the court that it had reached a verdict, all assumed that it would be "guilty." However, when the jury was finally escorted into the courtroom and the verdict was handed to the judge, all were surprised.

Cochran was assigned to the Davis cases almost constantly from August of 1976 immediately following a shooting in the Davis mansion at Fort Worth in which a young girl and the lover of Davis' estranged wife were killed.

Cochran said that the Davis fortune helped make the trials spectacular in the eyes of the public. He estimated that Davis spent a minimum of $8 million on the trial because he was financially able to "get the best" for his defense.

What it would have been if he had $10 million at his disposal is a matter of speculation, Cochran said, but he said it certainly would not have attracted as much attention.

In response to questions, Cochran said that although the Davis trials confirm that wealth can be a significant factor in the operation of the judicial system, it would be difficult to conclude that there is a better system somewhere. He said that one of the prosecuting attorneys mentioned prior to the first Davis trial in Amarillo that it would set a precedent because it would be the first time in Texas judicial history that a defendant had more money for the trial than the state.

During the luncheon meeting, the Lions Club presented a $100 check to the Goodfellows. Accepting for the Goodfellows were Vernon Young and Billy Prince. Max von Roeder, Lions president, presided at the meeting, and Cochran was introduced by Roy McQueen.

Tank Fires Snuffed Out

Two tank battery fires were snuffed out Wednesday morning by Snyder firefighters.

Both occurred near Ira. The first was at 7:15 a.m., approximately seven miles west of Ira. The second was at 8:45 a.m., about four miles west of Ira.

Around 11 a.m., units of the Snyder Fire Department were dispatched to 3104 41st St. Reports indicate a downed power line set some tree limbs on fire.

Workers Comp Cut Advised

AUSTIN (AP)—Actuaries for the State Insurance Board today recommended an average statewide decrease of 0.5 percent in workers' compensation rates.

If enacted by the board, the new rates would save Texas industries and businesses $6.2 million a year in premiums.

Two Mishaps Reported Here

Two minor traffic accidents have been investigated by city police.

A two-vehicle collision was reported at 7:45 a.m. today at the Jiffy Conoco station. Involved in it were a 1977 International Scout driven by Phillip Burcham and a 1967 Ford driven by Jimmy Nix. It was worked by officer Kerry Fritz.

An accident was worked yesterday at 5:05 p.m. by Buddy Kinney in the 800 block of 27th St. It involved a 1974 Volkswagen driven by Erlina Ramirez Hinojos and a 1972 Oldsmobile driven by Charles Arthur Wells.

Also, a case worked up against a teenager arrested last week on a theft charge will be presented to juvenile authorities.

The case involved a juvenile female picked up at the J. C. Penney store for allegedly stealing $7 worth of merchandise.

Varsity To Enter Graham Tournament...

Lee Defeats Tiger Cage Threesome

MIDLAND LEE—Lee's Rebels executed a clean sweep here last night, exiting Snyder's sophomore, junior varsity and varsity bunch in order.

The Rebels, out-numbering Snyder's sophomores and junior varsity in the early games, posted respective wins of 71-54 and 82-47, before trimming the Tiger varsity in a close match, 66-62.

The loss leaves Snyder varsity at 7-3 on the season, headed into Graham Tournament play Thursday. The Tigers will be looking for their second consecutive tourney championship as they bout Stephenville 11:30 a.m. Thursday in the eight-team, three-day meet.

The Rebels and Tigers were locked up 10-10 after the first quarter, but Lee edged in front 31-27 by halftime. Snyder cut a point off the margin for a 44-40 third-quarter score and pulled within two points with 20 seconds to go in the game, 64-62. The Tigers then forced a foul in an attempt to get the ball back and Midland sank both charity shots to cement the win.

"We just didn't have a real good ballgame," said Snyder Coach George Byerly. "We turned the ball over 21 times against a team that wasn't pressing us and that's way too many turnovers. We did not have a good game really in any phase, but I have to give Lee some credit there. They came after us all the time."

Lee was led by Fisher's 28 points. Rabb added 13.

Brad Richardson scored 21 for Snyder while Barry Blackmon dropped in 11, Kyle Short added 10, Mark Preston and Eric Arnold hit for 6 each and Thomas Selmon and Kris Seale provided 4 apiece.

"Early in the game we were clicking well offensively, getting open, but we missed a lot of real good shots. Lee zoned us the whole game which was kind of strange for them, and we weren't expecting it. But we'll see that a lot this year. We're going to have to do a better job of shooting the ball and getting open against the zone," added Byerly.

In earlier games, Joe Garcia hit on 10 points and Nolan Richardson basketed 12 in a losing 71-54 effort to Lee JV.

Also, Randy Burrus notched 11 and Tommy Collum scored 8 as Snyder sophomores lost, 82-47.

Three-Point Shots Aid Indiana's Pacers In Win

By The Associated Press

Joey Hassett has become basketball's latest specialist - he's the Indiana Pacers' designated three-point goal shooter.

Hassett, nicknamed "Sonar" because of his long-range shooting talent, struck again Tuesday night. After sitting on the bench the entire second half, he entered the game with the New York Knicks leading 113-110 and two seconds showing on the clock.

Hassett raced free behind a screen, took an inbounds pass from Phil Chenier and lofted a three-pointer from the left side that went through at the buzzer, sending the game into overtime.

The Pacers squandered a seven-point lead in the five-minute extra period but came back to win 124-122 on Alex English's 13-foot jumper with 46 seconds left.

Nuggets 127, Spurs 121

George McGinnis scored 11 of his 35 points in the fourth quarter as Denver held off a San Antonio rally that cut a 34-point deficit to two in the closing minutes.

George Gervin, the two-time NBA scoring champion and the leader again this year, scored 41 points and teamed with Larry Kenon in the last period to bring the Spurs back. San Antonio had trailed 82-48 earlier and 97-74 entering the fourth quarter.

But the Spurs made 17 of their first 19 shots in the final period and closed to 123-121 before two free throws apiece by David Thompson and George Johnson in the last 10 seconds clinched it for Denver.

Suns 123, Bullets 99

Paul Westphal scored 18 of his 27 points in the first half as Phoenix shot 59 percent from the field in building a 65-45 lead. The Suns led by as many as 27 points in dealing the Bullets their fifth loss in the last seven home games.

Westphal shot 13-for-21, handed out seven assists, made three steals and blocked three shots in 30 minutes.

Bulls 104, Blazers 93

Reggie Theus scored 23 points and Mark Landsberger added 20 as Chicago won its third in a row and dealt the Blazers their ninth straight loss.

Sonics 103, Bucks 99

Guards Gus Williams and Dennis Johnson combined for 58 points as Seattle beat Milwaukee.
