Holloway Urged To Remove Entire Personnel Of Pauls Valley Reformatory

PROBE COMES AFTER DEATH OF BOY INMATE

State Commissioner Concludes Investigation of Prison School

LAWMAKER NAMED

Alleged Fatal Beating Of Youth May Result In Big Changes

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 23. (UP)—Removal of the entire personnel of the Pauls Valley reformatory for boys will be recommended in a report to be submitted to Gov. W. J. Holloway tomorrow by Mrs. Mabel Bassett, state commissioner of charities and corrections.

Governor Holloway, returning from a vacation, is expected to make a thorough investigation of the institution as the result of the recent death of an inmate, following a beating at the hands of a guard.

Legislator Mentioned

Mrs. Bassett, at the end of four days' investigation, declared she would recommend the removal of Supt. Clyde Goodner and all other officials, as well as about 20 guards.

The name of Homer Paul, a state legislator, was brought into the investigation today when Mrs. Bassett declared that classes at the school had been dismissed for three weeks while inmates were used to clear land owned by Representative Paul. The land was then planted with corn, under an agreement that the school would receive part of the crop.

Gus Woollard, member of the state board of affairs, upheld Goodner's administration, saying he favors the "strapping which Goodner permits at the school." "And as for those boys working in 104 degree temperatures, that won't hurt the little devils."

Boy Beaten, Is Charge

The investigation was started after charges had been brought against R. E. Davis, a guard, in connection with the death of Stanley Kelley, 16, an inmate. Kelley had been working in a peanut field with the temperature 104 degrees when he was beaten, it was alleged, by Davis.

Acting Governor James Nance sent the governor's investigator and J. Berry King of the attorney-general's office to Pauls Valley late today to conclude the investigation for the state. Davis' preliminary hearing will be held Thursday at 10 a. m. State Senator Mac Q. Williamson, as chief defense counsel, said the defense would offer no testimony at the hearing.

JURY IN LEAHY CASE SELECTED

Condemned Man Clings to Air of Indifference

GEORGETOWN, Texas, July 23. (AP)—The jury to sit in the insanity trial of Harry J. Leahy, condemned slayer of Dr. J. A. Ramsey, aged Mathis, Texas, physician, was completed late today in district court here.

The court's entire afternoon session was consumed in the selection of four jurors to sit with eight already chosen. Submission of testimony will begin tomorrow.

Leahy, scion of an old southwest Texas family, sat throughout the day with his customary apparent indifference to the proceedings, which were of routine nature.

The cattleman was granted the sanity hearing only a few hours before he was to have been electrocuted at Huntsville.

In his two murder trials, Leahy was accused by the prosecution of having slain the physician for financial gain. The body was recovered from a shallow grave. Leahy first was convicted at George West but the 50 year verdict was set aside on appeal. His second conviction, here, brought down on him the death penalty.

Alienists to testify for state and defense already have examined the alleged slayer.

Traffic Violator Gives New Excuse But Gets Fined

KANSAS CITY, July 23. (UP)—R. A. O'Neil earned the distinction of offering a brand new excuse in traffic court today, but his effort was unappreciated. When asked by Judge Gardner why he parked his car in a safety zone, O'Neil explained that he noticed several motorists speeding through the zone and across the intersection and thought that if he parked his car there, he would slow them down.

"No doubt you did slow them up," replied the judge. "The fine is $3.50."

O'Neil left the courtroom, mumbling something about an unappreciative police department.

POPE PIUS XI TO BE SEEN BY FULLY 100,000

Head of Catholic Church to Leave Vatican Walls On Thursday

DAY OF DEVOTION

Stirring Celebration Will Mark First Emergence Since 1870

By PRINCE PIGNATELLI

ROME, July 23. (US)—As the rays of Thursday's setting sun die slowly in the west, a pope, for the first time since Sept. 20, 1870, will leave the voluntary bondage of the vatican and appear outside the boundaries of his state.

Pope Pius XI at sunset will be carried to the altar erected in front of St. Peter's cathedral, and from his place on the Sedia Gestatoria, will make the sign of the cross with his raised right hand and bless all the peoples of the world, fully 100,000 persons are expected to witness the ceremony.

Day of Devotion

Thursday will be a day of devout religious procedure from sunrise on. Mass is to be celebrated in St. Peter's at 7:30 in the morning, at which the pope, all the cardinals of the papal court, dignitaries of the vatican and diplomatic representatives will be present.

The idea of holding a procession around the square has been abandoned, principally because most of Italy's troops are at present engaged in maneuvers of summer encampments, and 12,000 men would be required to surround the square. For the same reason the visit of the pope to the cathedral of St. John Lateran was abandoned, since it would take 60,000 troops to guard the road to the Lateran Basilica.

Chimes to Ring

Half an hour before the emergence of the pope, the chimes and the big bell of St. Peter's will be set ringing. The Palatine guards' band will be grouped on the terrace wall of the Bernini colonnade,

BORDER PATROL AVENGES LOSS

Two Rum Runners Killed, 3 Wounded, 8 Taken

EL PASO, Texas, July 23. (AP)—Answering with bullets the challenge of Mexican smugglers in the rum war along the Rio Grande, Uncle Sam's border guards today listed two dead, three wounded and eight captured from the enemies' ranks in a smashing blow at a desperate rum running ring in which several El Paso business men are declared to be implicated.

The death of a brother officer, Ivan E. Scotten, who was slain in an ambush laid by the smugglers last Saturday, was avenged by four border patrolmen of the immigration service last night when they surprised a score of rum runners and in a pitched battle killed two men and wounded three others.

Five of the smugglers were captured, the officers seizing a truck loaded with liquor and three expensive motor cars.

Following up their victory, the border guards today captured another truck load of liquor, destined for Denver, and arrested three Mexicans.

H. C. Horsley, chief of the border patrol, announced that evidence had been obtained implicating several El Paso business men in the operations of the rum ring. He said arrests probably would be made soon.

With blazing guns, the four border patrolmen fought off the band of smugglers who dared a crossing of the river last night and forced them to retreat into Mexico with their dead and wounded.

Taking a position behind a high fence near the river bank, the officers exchanged lead with their attackers for half an hour.

An ambulance from Juarez, the Mexican city opposite here, made three trips to the scene of the battle on the Mexican side. At Liberty hospital in Juarez it was reported, however, that none of the wounded had been treated there.

At the hottest part of the fight, 11 members of the gang in Juarez rushed to the aid of the 20 smugglers who first engaged the patrolmen, authorties were told by the three Mexicans arrested today.

PROGRAM DRAFTED

Three-Year Development Of Dairy Industry Planned Here

John L. Misell, graduate and former instructor of agricultural economics at A. & M. college, during the past two years secretary of the chamber of commerce at Yoakum, Texas, was appointed dairy expert and assistant county agent for Wichita county in a special meeting of the commissioners court held Tuesday afternoon.

Salary Fixed at $3,600

Mr. Misell will begin the work of fostering the development of the dairy industry in the county on Aug. 1, at a salary fixed at $3,600 a year. He will share the office of G. C. The employment of the expert was authorized in a bill passed during the last session of the legislature, permitting counties having a population as great or greater than Wichita county to appropriate $7,000 a year for such a purpose. Immediately upon the passage of the bill, the County Bankers association appointed a committee of bankers and dairymen, headed by Luke McCrory as chairman, to further the program. The name of Mr. Misell was among those recommended for appointment by the committee.

The group of men supporting the movement also worked out a tentative outline for a three year program of development which was enthusiastically approved by Mr. Misell during the conference Tuesday afternoon.

Survey of Work

"Naturally I haven't had an opportunity to study the special problems of the county yet," the expert explained, "but my first job will be a survey of the field. I'll try to see just what the county has and what it needs in dairy stock. I understand that the marketing

LADY ASTOR IN HEATED CLASH

American-Born Parliament Member Assailed

LONDON, July 23. (AP) — Lady Astor, Virginia-born member of parliament tonight was told by the presiding officer in the house of commons that he would be glad "if the honorable lady would kindly keep quiet."

In discussion of the question of the removal of extravagant boards of guardians Lady Astor had mentioned the word "corruption" in connection with West Ham guardians. Three members immediately pressed her to name a single instance and, on receiving only a general answer, asked her to withdraw the allegation. She declined to do so and Jack Jones said it was perhaps because she came from a country where they knew something about corruption that Lady Astor was so glib about it.

In the heat of the excitement Mr. Jones went so far as to call his feminine opponent a "dirty liar." On the urgings of fellow members he withdrew these words, although with the remark "but they are quite Biblical."

Deputy speaker Dunnico attempted to make peace whereupon Mr. Jones rejoined, "I have had so many insults from this lady that I am resenting them every time."

Meanwhile, Lady Astor was arguing with another labor member whereupon the speaker said he would be glad if she kept quiet.

She sprang to her feet and said, "I really very much resent that remark."

The speaker replied, "the honorable lady has interrupted again and again and must keep quite during debate."

The recriminations continued and Jack Jones again interjected, "I tell her straight to her cheek that I am a better man drunk than she is sober."

Encountering the usual sand at 1156 feet, the well drilled through a series of sands to a depth of 1466 feet when oil rose rapidly in the hole. The swab was run twice and the well began its record flow.

The Kewanee's official report shows the first hour's production was 170 barrels; the second hour the well produced 200 barrels and a later report said the production gradually increased to a peak of 280 barrels in an hour. The oil is 40 gravity.

JUST THE

Baer Facts

By Bugs Baer

HOLLY, Calif., July 23, (US)—One feature about motoring we have never understood is the happy dialogue between chauffeurs passing each other at the rate of 60 miles an opposite direction.

Let's say you are driving your own car with the help of the citizens of the back seat. You are spinning along getting about 10 evaporated gallons to the mile.

Your crown fenders are spread proudly over the right-of-way. You are holding her down to 50. Along comes another car going the other way for no reason at all.

As you pass each other with all the dignity of laughing freight trains, you lean out and yell at him:

"Get over you big bum."

That's the clubby spirit that has made us the nation we are today.

Gratified by the reciprocal proceedings, the other chauffeur leans out at the same time and howls a terrific mumble at you.

You can't hear what he said, which is probably all for the best.

He hasn't heard what you said, either. But he knows that it wasn't any congratulations on his golden wedding anniversary.

Then you turn around to the folks on the rear shelf and say:

"Well, I told that purple beezark what I thought of him."

And he is doing the same thing in his car. He is remarking to a friend of his brother-in-law who happened to be along because he couldn't be insulted:

"That's the way to talk to them road hogs. I'll bet that guy's ears are so hot that they is curling his hair."

As a matter of fact, not one word of this boulevard conversation has been preserved for the archives. It's just as much wasted energy as trying to sell pajamas to a night watchman.

Another form of highway elocution is forward instead of sideways. This is the driver who is always cussing the car ahead.

Nobody ever wastes recrimination and bitter sarcasm on the car behind. But the boat in front gets plenty of scalding rhetoric.

Here's just a few testimonials from the diary of a touring valedictorian:

"Why, you big rat, you eat cheese. Why don't you trade that tin can in for a bath tub? They ought to lock them Sunday drivers in the cellar on Saturday night and then bust the water pipes."

"Hey, why don't you stick out your mitt, you double-barreled bum. That's what I thought. It's a woman driving. Well, the best thing about the last war was it kept the women on the back porch knitting sweaters."

While you are berating the driver ahead, the driver in the rear is broiling your back to a white blister. Which just about makes it an endless chain of loud-mouthed links.

Fortunately, not a word is ever heard. And these high-powered debates serve a purpose. They certainly increase the children's vocabulary.

FULLY 100,000 WILL SEE POPE

Church Head to Appear Outside of Vatican

where will be seated the diplomatic representatives of the holy see and the quirinal, the first time the pope's and king's delegates are officially to meet.

The procession from the massive bronze doors of the vatican will be led by the Swiss guards. They will be followed by the papal footmen, in the costume designed many years ago by Michelangelo. Monks and members of various religious orders will precede the Palatine guards, in the midst of whom will be the papal standard bearer.

Standard Bearer Aged

The standard bearer is the Parquis Patrizi Montuori, last lineal descendant of the house which holds this hereditary office. He will bear the standard only at the beginning of the procession, since he is old and very weak, passing the colors to a more powerful man beside him. After the standard will come the Capella Sistina, the Julian choir and the Schola cantorum, including many American students of plain chant, singing hymns.

The members of the sacred college of cardinals will be next in order, appearing in their magnificent purple robes, each accompanied by his own private court, with a chamberlain and a nobleman-in-waiting. The cardinals will be trailed by groups of noble guards.

Ostrich Fans

Muted notes of four silver trumpets will proclaim the emergence of Pope Pius in the Sedia Gestatoria, followed by the two fan-bearers who always attend his holiness on state occasions. They will carry the famous ostrich feather fans presented by Sultan Mahomet IV to a predecessor of the present pope.

Walking near the sovereign pontiff will be Prince Aldobrandini, chief of the noble guards, and Prince Domenico Orsini, assistant to the holy see. Eight Swiss guards, bearwalk near the Sedia Gestatoria. The pope will wear a gold and silver embroidered cape, bearing the triple papal mitre studded with gems.

The procession will be closed by representatives of the knightly orders: Malta, Teutonic, Calatrava, Campostella and Columbus. As the pope is carried to the altar before St. Peter's, the thousands will stand or kneel as he pronounces his blessing. Should the light of the sun grow dim, two great reflectors will be turned on the scene, and as the procession turns about to enter the vatican, the facade of St. Peter's will be lighted by innumerable bulbs, in the papal colors of gold and white.

The ceremony, symbolizing the freedom of the sovereign of a now recognized world state, will be the most stirring celebration of a religious nature the world has seen for nearly 60 years, and will testify to the complete and final ending of the Italo-Vatican differences, sealed by the recent signing and adoption of the Lateran treaty.

An indication that his holiness is looking forward to the ceremony was evinced today, when from the window of his own apartment, he smiled upon and blessed 5,000 world saminarians as they sang a special intonation for the pope during their procession through St. Peter's square shortly after 8 o'clock this morning.

Cameramen will be barred from filming the ceremony on Thursday.

St. Louis Robin Attains Record

Louis in the aeronautical world since Colonel Lindbergh, in the "Spirit of St. Louis," made his epochal transatlantic flight in May, 1927.

General Celebration

The Robin tied the Angeleno's mark at 32 seconds past 2 p. m. Under the rules of the National Aeronautical association, the new record became official one hour later.

After breaking the endurance mark, the fliers gave no sign of recognition that they attained their goal but continued lazily to circle Lambert-St. Louis field at a height of 4,000 feet.

However, 5,000 watchers at the field and thousands of persons in the city began a general celebration as soon as shrieking sirens informed the public that Jackson and O'Brine had captured the endurance flight record for St. Louis.

HOUSTON PLANE CIRCLES FIELD

HOUSTON, July 23. (UP)—"The Billion Dollar City," racing against an ever-changing record, continued to circle over Houston and the gulf tonight, with its pilots, Joe Glass and G. L. Loomis, determined to set a new refueling endurance mark.

The last note dropped by the Houston pilots from their Stinson-Detroiter monoplane asked two questions:

"What happened to the Shreveport plane? Is St Louis Robin still going?"

Glass and Loomis sent their regrets to the Shreveport pair, Van Leary and Curry Sanders, who were forced down Monday night.

They were told that Dale Jackson and Forrest O'Brine in St. Louis, had set a new record and were adding to it hourly, but had no comment to make other than a request for more gas.

At 4:49:54 p. m., today, the Houston pilots passed their 147th hour in the air.

Court Approves Pajama Attire

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C. July 23. (UP)—The inherent right of citizens to dress comfortably was upheld in municipal court here when Mayor Jerome B. Flora released W. O. Sanders, newspaper editor, brought before him for appearing on the streets attired in pajamas.

"Every citizen or inhabitant of this city and every visitor may dress as he pleases and go and come as he pleases, as long as there is no indecent exposure of his person," declared the mayor, adding that he wished he "had nerve enough" to adopt the pajama costume himself.

Sanders' costume, which occasioned a furor in civic circles, consisted of a gaudy pair of silk pajamas, necktie, sandals and straw hat.

He was treated by a physician at Spring Town, and then was taken to the Clinic hospital at Wichita Falls by an Owens ambulance.

COOKE GUSHER SETS RECORD

Bulcher Field Scores Biggest Well

county's oil history but is outclassed only by a few of the mammoth Pecos county wells in point of shallow production. Not more than a half dozen deep wells in North Texas have equalled its performance and the only one in recent years to approach this record was Panhandle Refining company's gusher on the Stovall land in south Young county and E. C. Stovall's big well, both of which produce from the lime below 3,500 feet.

Other Tests Start

The No B-6 Hyman is located 1600 feet south and 150 feet east of the northwest corner of the T. J. Hutchinson survey, abstract 484. It is on the southern end of a string of nice producers on this lease.

With the hope of really big production finally realized in Cooke county, attention has suddenly been turned to a number of other tests just starting or already under way in that territory.

With the bringing in of the well Thornton and Taubert made location for their No. 2 Poteet a distance of 900 feet west and 600 feet west of the Humble production. The rig has been moved 560 feet south of No. 1 completed some time ago in the 1150 sand.

One half mile north of the Kewanee lease the Texas company made location for its No. 2 J. C. Embry to be drilled 450 north and 150 feet west of the southeast corner of R. Rogers survey, abstract 859.

To the east of the pool, approximately one mile, the Kewanee Oil and Gas company is putting down a wildcat on the M. L. Milburn farm in the Elliott survey, abstract 361, and is drilling at 600 feet.

Northwest of Marysville

Northwest of the town of Marysville two miles John Hooser, pioneer operator and discoverer of the Cooke county pools, has made location and spudded in on his No. 1 Deering, located 1470 feet south and 150 feet east of the northwest corner of the R. H. Deering farm in Hamilton survey, abstract 443.

Southwest of the big well the Sinclair Oil and Gas company No. 1 J. C. Embry, 150 feet north and west of the southeast corner of the Embry 79 acres out of the Embry farm in E. T. R. R. survey, is drilling at 1000 feet.

Many other wells are drilling, both the productive pools and wildcat or outlying sections receiving their share of development, and with this extensive campaign of drilling under way stretching from southeast of Gainesville through Muenster and on to the Montague county line, indications point that one or more interesting happenings may be looked forward to at any time.

While the Kewanee gusher is the largest producer up to date to be brought in, this field, from its inception a few years ago, has completed many wells with an average daily output ranging from 150 to the Texas company's H. L. Dennis 900 barrel producer, these being completed in the various pay horizons from 1000, 1200, 1350, 1450, and 1500 feet.

About the same time the Kewanee wells came in the Humble Oil and Refining company's No. 3 Poteet in the Stephens survey, an offset to the west was completed and in the first 24 hours swabbed and flowed 425 barrels. The sand in this well being from 1139 to 1468 feet.

Cigar factories of Tampa, Fla., produced 506,331,219 cigars in the fiscal year 1929.

39 Hollywood directors say,

"No real beauty without lovely skin . . ."

SALLY EILERS, Sennett-Pathé star, says: "I am most particular about my skin. Lux Toilet Soap gives my skin that same velvety smoothness the finest French soaps do."

LAURA LA PLANTE, lovely Universal star, says: "I've used the famous French soaps and know that Lux Toilet Soap is made by the same method—it gives my skin the same marvelous smoothness."

SUECAROL, popular star, says: "Only a marvelous skin carries over to the audience—the close-up shows every trace of make-up. Lux Toilet Soap leaves my skin gloriously smooth."

9 out of 10 screen stars keep their skin lovely this way . . .

"THERE'S amazing allure in beautiful smooth skin," declares Carl Laemmle, Jr., director for Universal—and sums up what 39 foremost Hollywood directors have found from their experience with the movies.

"Lovely skin is the one charm every star must have," Laemmle goes on to say. "Make-up is no help in the close-up. The skin must be exquisite."

Because smooth flawless skin is absolutely necessary for success in motion pictures, 442 of the 451 important Hollywood actresses, including all stars, are devoted to Lux Toilet Soap. And all the great film studios have made it the official soap in their dressing rooms.

Especially for the close-up, when the huge new incandescent "sun-spot" lights pour their terrific brilliance down on a star, the screen actress's skin must be smooth as satin.

Nine out of ten screen stars use Lux Toilet Soap—they have found that this daintily fragrant white soap keeps their skin at its loveliest—as smooth as a flower petal.

PREMIER MACDONALD ABANDONS PLAN TO VISIT AMERICA

AMITY MEETING IS CALLED OFF

Labor Leader's Speech May Announce Decision

By ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE
(Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service)

LONDON, July 23. — Premier Ramsay MacDonald has abandoned his proposed visit to Washington.

The premier's mission to further Anglo-American amity and looking toward the two great English speaking nations taking a world lead in the reduction of naval armaments, has been indefinitely postponed.

Address Today

On top of this sensational news, which was learned today from the highest authority, I am also able to announce exclusively that Premier MacDonald will deliver a speech in parliament tomorrow in which he will reveal the total of his activities so far as he has engaged in any conversations with ambassadors Dawes and Gibson in the matter of preliminary effort to reach a working agreement with America in the matter of naval disarmament.

Whether or not that speech will reveal that MacDonald's decision that his American visit at present is impractical I am not allowed by the nature of my confidential information to say.

There is every probability that the premier will intimate that it is impossible to make the trip this year because of the pressing exigencies of the two most important items on the agenda of his foreign program.

These two matters are the reparations conference on the Young plan which is due on Aug. 5 or 6 and now likely to be postponed because of French obstructionists, and the League of Nations meeting at Geneva in September.

Diplomatic Gesture

If the premier advances this excuse it will be a diplomatic gesture covering the real reason. His political enemies can take it or leave it—and according to Westminister lobby whispers—they will take it with their tongues in their cheeks.

When MacDonald advises parliament tomorrow of the progress of the Anglo-American accord he will window dress his argument in the best possible way, but I am credibly informed that an analysis of his statement will show the whole sum of progress made to pitifully fall short of popular expectations.

In short, whatever "progress" MacDonald may report will be progress measured by the old diplomatic yardstick and not as people on both sides of the Atlantic have been led to hope for, by the spectacular get-together of Dawes and MacDonald immediately after the new American ambassador's arrival in Britain.

There is increasing danger that if MacDonald cannot make the supremely important trip to Washington this year, he will never do so because clouds are gathering for the labor government in the shape of demands by coal miners, and a threatened lockout for the spinners, either or both of which may force a crisis in parliament and the fall of the labor government.

It is learned from an authentic parliamentary source that secret British politics have a heavy bearing on MacDonald's decision to delay his visit to Washington.

Water Aids Capital Society to Cheat Heat

By SUE McNAMARA

WASHINGTON, July 23. (AP)—With President and Mrs. Hoover remaining in Washington this summer, capital society bouyantly rallies to the heat with ingenious ways of keeping cool.

A few of the cabinet officers, members of congress and diplomats remain here for conferences with the president. Their families, or at least some member of the family usually remain with them.

So bridge parties in bathing pools, dances beside rippling waters and dinner on the shore of some shaded pool atones to that portion of the smart set which must remain for the absence of mountains and seashores.

The Annapolis club of Chesapeake bay lures many. There they can get a whiff of salt air. Others have their big country estates not for from Washington where the end of a hot day finds them in their private swimming pools.

The Plage Deauville at one of the exclusive hotels, where a number of diplomats and cabinet officers reside, is a popular resort for tea, dinner, dancing and swimming. With its cool green pool, its gay red, green and yellow tables, its smooth dancing floor, it is patterned after the famous European resort.

Sitting at one of the tables during tea or dinner hour it is not hard to imagine oneself in Paris or Buenos Aires. Your neighbor at the next table may be conversing in French, Spanish, German or even Turkish.

Ahmed Mouhtar Bey, the Turkish ambassador, often dines at the pool's edge. Don Juan Barberis, first secretary of the Ecuador legation, enjoys swimming and then dining, as does George Cretziano, minister from Rumania.

Secretary Henry L. Stimson also enjoys dining under one of the gay colored umbrellas beside the water when he is not at his beautiful home, Woodley. He has a suite at the hotel while Mr. Stimson is away.

Before going abroad to join his wife and Miss Margaret Wilson, William G. McAdoo often dined beside the pool.

Dancing at various country clubs claims its devotees even in warmest weather. Nights are never too sultry for Mirza Davoud Khan Mefth, the Persian minister, to enjoy a good waltz. He is an excellent dancer.

FORD OPPOSES AUTO TARIFF

Motor King Wants Cars on Free List

WASHINGTON, July 23. (UP)—Henry Ford favors the placing of automobiles and trucks on the free list in the new tariff bill, according to a letter made public by the senate finance committee today from R. O. Roberge, assistant sales manager of the Ford Motor company.

The present duty is 25 per cent ad valorem which was not changed in the bill as passed by the house.

Supplementing his recent testimony before the committee, Roberge wrote:

"The Messrs. Ford (including Edsel Ford, tractor manufacturer) are in favor of automobiles and trucks being placed on the free list insofar as the Ford industry is concerned. This attitude, of course, eliminates any question of countervailing duty."

The committee had requested Roberge to ascertain Ford's position not only in reference to the tariff but as to the possibility of foreign nations enforcing countervailing duties in retaliation for American rates. Roberge argued before the committee recently that foreign competition was not sufficiently strong to warrant retention of the present duties.

Game to the End, Farm Boy Pulls Hayfork From Stomach, Then Dies

DODGEVILLE, Wis., July 23. (UP)—Laverne Peterson, 15, who unassisted drew the heavy prong of a harpoon hayfork from his abdomen, kept his nerve to the end.

The youth was impaled as he slid from a haymow with the broken fork in his arms. Fellow workers were terror stricken and unable to go to his aid. But Peterson calmly grasped the lever which prevented the harpoon from spreading and withdrew the shaft. Then he walked unaided to the house. Later he refused help in leaving the automobile that took him to a hospital. He lived 24 hours.

"Game to the last," the doctor said.

Mexican Informs President Gil He Is Unsung Hero

MEXICO CITY, July 23. (AP)—Francisco Laguna, railroad brakeman, believes that heroes should be rewarded while they are alive and can enjoy the fruits of their bravery.

In persuance of this idea, Laguna, who asserts that he is author of a heroic deed which has passed unnoticed, sent a telegram to President Portes Gil, reading in part: "Inasmuch as to date my heroic deed has passed unnoticed, I beg you to give it your attention."

Laguna claims that during the recent rebellion he saved the lives of over 200 passengers on a mixed passenger and freight train between Torreon and Canitas.

A car loaded with shells and bombs, attached to the train, caught fire, and with the aid of a few soldiers, he disconnected it from the passenger coaches and pushed it far enough away to save the passengers from the effects of the explosion which tore up a hundred yards of track, Laguna says, adding that he and the soldiers escaped from the vicinity of the car just in time to avoid being blown up with it.

PIRATE-SHIP

If I were a pirate
You know what I'd do?
I'd scrape up a ruffian
And tuffianly crew.

I'd say "I'm the captain
I'm bad and I'm bold,
And everyone present
Must do as he's told!"

We'd capture some treasure
And pieces of eight
And say to the people
"The plank is your fate!"

We'd look very vicious
And talk very gruff,
'Cause when you're a pirate
You have to be rough.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

About the most cynical thing we have seen of late is quoted from the London Opinion. "Bigamy is having one wife too many. Monogamy, in some instances, is the same thing."

◇ ◇ ◇

In Julius Klein's "Frontiers of Trade," he tells of the hundred per cent mummy "Pharoah" that was passed through the customs as dried codfish. There was at that time no rate on mummies and the treasure was about to be shipped back to Egypt when a bright inspector thought of rating it as dried codfish.

◇ ◇ ◇

If that mummy was once a "Pharoah," how hath the mighty fallen!

◇ ◇ ◇

We looked last night at a picture of the Chinese vice consul recently arrested at San Francisco for smuggling opium and remembered Bret Harte. The ways of the Chinese are indeed peculiar.

◇ ◇ ◇

We wonder if the Spartans were ever more inscrutable than the people of this nation in hiding emotion.

◇ ◇ ◇

"My sister's had her hair bobbed," said a bright girl, whose name we will not mention. "She started to cut it once before, but I dissuaded her." "But it's so much cooler," we urged; (we'd just had our hair bobbed.) She glanced casually at our head and said, "Oh but she had such pretty hair."

◇ ◇ ◇

We have a mannerly president. When 11 solemn faced churchmen, after making six small speeches for a Sunday closing law in Washington, filed out, he said, "Thank you for calling." However he made no move toward closing things and when some of them came back, he was too busy to see them, but still sent the message, "Thank you for calling."

◇ ◇ ◇

Someone phoned us today that she had a private mocking bird, all her own. She has been ill and the mocking bird has nested outside her window, and sings to her.

◇ ◇ ◇

We have mocking birds, too. And their song in the night is a little bit of heaven. But it has come to where we cannot hear them early in the evening for a loud speaker.

◇ ◇ ◇

One of the late United States employes is named Frank Xavier Alexander Eble and they call him "Alphabet."

◇ ◇ ◇

We passed the Municipal auditorium the other day and saw a picture of perfect rest. A negro was sitting on the low steps, leaning against the wall and sound asleep.

◇ ◇ ◇

And someone told us of a negro lying in an alley sound asleep with all his body in the broiling sun except the head. He had originally gone to sleep in the shade, but what was the sun compared to rest?

D. Dix Tells Why Some Husbands Are "Henpecked"

Maybe When a Big Man Lets a Little, Narrow-Minded Woman Boss Him It Is Because He Really Likes It—Or Perhaps It Is Just Because He Hates Scenes and Wants Peace at Any Price.

Why are men afraid of their wives? Why do men stand for being henpecked? A man asks these questions. A bachelor, of course, because no married man will admit that he is afraid of his wife or that he is henpecked, although probably 50 per cent of the husbands in the class of society above that in which wife-beating is a common indoor sport live in terror of their masters' voices and wipe their feet on the doormats before they enter their wives' houses.

Of course, men will deny this, but if they are not afraid of their wives why do they use such elaborate subterfuges to explain why they have to stay downtown of an evening occasionally? Why do they have to have wife's OK on all their comings and goings? Why do they not dare to ask an old friend to make them a visit without consulting wife, as she asks people to visit her without consulting husband? Why do they live where wife says instead of where husband wants to? Why, when there is a difference of opinion on any subject, do they compromise by doing wife's way?

As a matter of truth far more men are afraid of their wives than wives are afraid of their husbands. Far more men are bossed by their wives than wives are bossed by their husbands, and the queer part about it is that these subjugated men who meekly do their wives' bidding are not poor, pusillanimous weaklings without the courage to put up a fair fight or the backbone to stand up for their rights, as one might suppose them to be.

On the contrary, away from home they are as brave as lions and rulers of those about them. They are men who command armies. Men who rule over thousands of employes in big enterprises. Men who maintain an iron discipline on ships. Men who dare death in the air every day. Men who have led forlorn hopes on battlefields. Men who have had the moral strength to stand up and fight for unpopular principles. Men who don't know what it is to be afraid of anything on earth but the little two-by-four woman to whom they are married.

It is easy to understand why a woman endures being tyrannized over and nagged by her husband and never permitted to have a particle of personal liberty or even to say that her soul is her own. It is because she is financially dependent on him. She has to put up with the sort of treatment he accords her because he is her meal ticket and shopping account and she has no way of supporting herself, and she concludes that it is better to be bossed than it is to be starved.

But the henpecked man has no such reason for enduring the domestic persecutions to which he is subjected. He can make a living anywhere. He can get up and leave on any of the 47 trains that pull out from the station every day, and so why he stays and suffers is one of the insoluble problems of matrimony.

Sometimes when I see a big, gentle, kind, broad-minded man putting up with the exactions of a little, petty, narrow-gauged woman I think that the reason he endures it is because he really likes it. It is sort of a hangover of the mother complex, somehow. The little boy spirit in him that has never died and that wants some woman to boss him and tell him about what to eat and changing his shoes when he gets his feet wet and warning him not to get run over by automobiles when he crosses the street.

He doesn't resent having his wife pick out his clothes for him and buy his neckties and walk before him and say: "Henry, sit there"; or, "Henry, come up here," because he is accustomed to obeying a woman. Probably if we had the background of henpecked husbands we would find that most of them had dominant mothers. Anyway, it is significant that nearly every man who is bossed by his wife calls her "mama."

Another reason that men submit to being henpecked is that they have a holy terror of scenes, and they will suffer anything rather than go through with one. Which is a fact that the tyrannical wife soon discovers and upon which she acts. She knows that she has only to stage a spell of hysterics or to turn on the waterworks in order to get what she wants and reduce her husband to a mere sodden pulp of acquiescence.

And the man knows this also. He knows that he cannot argue with a maniacal creature who is shrieking abuse at him and that the quickest way to shut up a crybaby is to give it what it wants. Therefore, he just gives in to every unreasonable demand rather than go through scenes that leave him sore and bruised in soul and bleeding from a hundred wounds the cruel and selfish creature he is married to has dealt him.

Undoubtedly, though, the main reason that men endure being henpecked is because they want peace at any price at home. All day long in their work in the outside world they are waging a never-ending fight for money, for position, for success. They are struggling with might and main to hold their own, to protect their interests, to maintain their position, and the end of the day finds them exhausted in mind and body, with no more scrap left in them.

They long only for rest and surcease of the battle, and when they go home they cannot fight again with a wife who is determined to have her own way about everything and to rule her household with a rod of iron. So the poor, exhausted husband runs up the white flag of surrender and takes refuge under its folds.

It is one of the little ironies of life that the stronger, the wiser, the nobler a man is the more sure he is to be henpecked if he marries a bossy woman. Such a man is so filled with pity for the smallness, the selfishness, the lack of heart and soul and understanding of the woman who can find pleasure in bending his neck to her yoke that he cannot fight back at her. He feels it would be like a giant striking a child, and so he submits to her petty tyrannies and hides what he thinks of her in his heart.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, July 23. (US)—About 500 years B. C. women used to curl their long hair by rolling it over hot stones. They heated them in the sun.

And a little later, the women who knew of no other way to be different, and didn't like straight, stringy hair, would cut out little patches of hair about as big as a quarter. These were distributed like polka dots over the scalp. When the hair grew in, it gave the appearance of a wave. At least it broke the monotony of straight unattractive hair. The men did likewise. In fact, the men thought of it first.

In England there are rigid divorce laws, about which a reform body is trying to do something.

There are now 2,000,000 women living apart from their husbands and the number is increasing at the rate of 30,000 annually.

You would think that lawyers with a lively sense of favors to come would lend a willing hand.

Paris is painting pictures in lipstick.

It's better that way than on linen. The laundries don't try to wash lipstick out of linen, they lose the linen.

A girl sued a man and the papers called the $45,000 she got, "nuisance money."

Now someone will open a school to teach girls how to become nuisances—maybe she will.

A Chicago man sued for divorce because his wife bet kisses when she played cards, and paid her debts promptly. She had no trouble getting up a bridge game.

But she may have a little, getting another husband.

Movie stars in London have food foibles and a London paper says that Monty Banks, comedian, "is an enthusiast for bubble-and-squeak, and sometimes persuades restaurant owners to let him cook it."

Sounds like eating something that isn't quite dead yet.

Maybe it's food for talkie actors.

Peace Sometimes Bad as War, Says Betty Brainerd

By BETTY BRAINERD

A young lady of the gay young set with a feline flair for flattery addressed an attractive (but, unfortunately, bright and knowing) young man with the air of one about to pay a great and impressive compliment, and said, "You Sultan, you!"

It is now a matter of record in her set that the young man was more than equal to the situation.

"You stop in-Sultan' me," he answered with devastating gentleness.

War undeniably is what Sherman said it was but when one reflects upon the corruption in government, the selfishness, narrowness and cruel stupidity and slimy thinking which enters into the lives of many people, and the general misery of the world about, there is some justification for the suspicion that peace sometimes is just about as bad as war.

Hot Weather Ruins Texas Fish Trade

ORANGE, Texas, July 23. (AP)—Extremely hot weather this summer has caused discontinuance of fish shipments from here to the New York market.

Elmer Bowman, pioneer fisherman who has a crew of men and boats and a regular New York market for buffalo fish from the Sabine river said in discontinuing the shipments that the hot weather made icing cost so high that the profits were too small.

Hazel Hale of Wheeler Mill, Ky., has ridden a pony to school every day for four years. She estimates she has traveled 8,000 miles on horseback.

WICKERSHAM IS KEEPING SMILE

Prohibition Storm Fails To Perturb Attorney

WASHINGTON, July 23. (US)—While the latest prohibition storm rages tempestuously over his head, George W. Wickersham, chairman of the national law enforcement commission, remains imperturbably calm.

He appears to be enjoying hugely the controversy that has been aroused by his now famous prohibition letter to Governor Roosevelt of New York.

His office has been besieged with callers and his mail has been laden with requests seeking a clarification or amplification of his views. These he has either ignored or answered jovially, as he did today with a merry twinkle in his eye:

"I have nothing to say."

Assistants Nervous

But whereas Wickersham is pleasantly unmovable, some of his office workers have had a case of jumpy nerves ever since the publication of the letter. Whenever Wickersham appears they hedge about him cautiously, endeavoring evidently to sidetrack any discussion with interviewers. The other members of the commission are as complacent as Wickershaw, replying to all requests about the letter with the admonition to "see the chairman."

It is obvious that the commission has discussed the letter, but in a jocular vein and not in a way that indicates any alarm or antagonism whatever.

While Wickersham is undisturbed, his friends say he doesn't quite understand why such a hullabaloo has been raised, as there was nothing in the letter which was not perfectly obvious to an impartial mind—that prohibition under present conditions has not been "reasonably enforceable." They pointed out he hadn't advocated any definite modification but rather indicated a problem which requires studious attention, that is, the joint responsibility of the federal government and the states in enforcing the law.

Not so the organized boys. They make no bones about disapproving Wickersham's use of the word "modification," and to the reams of statements that have emanated from dry headquarters others are to be added periodically in the concerted effort to "smoke out Wickersham."

The commission plans to wind up its organization work shortly and then recess for a month while special investigators prepare statistics on crime.

A crowd of about 200 spectators witnessed the inter-park track meet held at Scotland park Tuesday morning when teams from Bellevue park, Sixth street park, Carrigan school ground, Northside community house and Scotland park entered in several athletic events. Bellevue park was second with 87 points, Sixth street park third with 49, Northside community fourth with 32 and Carrigan school ground fifth with 8. Coping saws with several assorted blades were given as individual prizes to 10 of the contestants, the tools being given because of the handicraft work which the children are doing during the supervised recreational work of the park department. These prizes, donated by local hardware stores, were presented to Dorothy Ward of Bellevue, Douglas McCausland of Northside, Vera Sparkman of Bellevue and Ellsworth Fleming of Scotland for first places in the dashes; to Wade York of Scotland, Charles Jordan of Scotland, Dewey Neel of Scotland, and Edward Neal of Bellevue for first places in the boys' field events; and to Gay Nell Williams and Stella Gaynor both of Scotland, for first places in the girls' field events.

Following the meet, the supervisors served ice cream to all the spectators, the Lehrack, Pure and Ferguson companies having furnished the ice cream. AID FOR SMALL BANKER URGED

Texas Association to Talk Regional Clearing Houses

GALVESTON, Texas, July 23. (AP)—Establishment of regional clearing houses as a means of strengthening the position of rural banks will be one of the objectives for this year of the Texas Bankers association, A. A. Horne, recently elected president, announced today.

The small banker is doomed to disappear unless he adopts improved banking practices, Mr. Horne, who believes regional clearing houses would result in this improvement, said.

Progressive bankers in centrally located cities would undertake the organization of clearing houses to serve five or more counties, and an examiner would be assigned to the district, under Mr. Horne's plan, which has received the support of James Shaw, state commissioner of banking.

Berlin Freed Of U. S. 'Squawkies' By Court Order

BERLIN, July 23. (US)—German talkie patent groups, successful in barring American talkies from being shown in Germany on Western Electric apparatus, are planning a world-wide offensive against the American reproducing system.

Tobis Film and Klang Film, subsidiary of the German Electric Trust, having won a great victory in securing a permanent injunction against Western Electric, intend to carry the fight to England, France and Austria.

Whether the fight will extend to the United States immediately is not known, but Bristol Phone of New York, allied with the Tobis interests, may sue Western Electric there over the alleged violations of the German basic patents.

The Kammergericht, highest Prussian court, today confirmed in writing the decision handed down Saturday granting a permanent injuction against Western Electric. As a result, even "The Singing Fool," which continued to show Saturday and Sunday, was withdrawn tonight, and Berlin is again a town without talkies.

No American talkies will be shown in Germany hereafter if American producers insist on reproduction with Western Electric apparatus. So far, American producers' representatives here are opposed to use of the German system because they are not satisfied with its performance.

WASHINGTON, July 23. (US)—Withdrawal of the U. S. marines from Nicaragua continues, President Hoover announced today that 1,200 marines were being brought back to the United States, leaving but a skeleton force of some 2,300 men in the republic.

TABLES TURNED AFTER 15 YEARS

"Sargon turned the tables for me after I had tried for 15 years to get well of stomach trouble. Now I am gaining every day. I went from 119 to 130 pounds, a gain of 11 pounds in three weeks on just three bottles. That's pretty good for a man 62 years old.

"I suffered day and night for almost 15 years and spent many hard earned dollars for medicines but none of them reached my case until I got Sargon. I felt weak and sick from morning until night. I would just drag myself around and now I feel years younger and can keep going all day. I eat anything I want and have no trace of stomach trouble, headaches or dizzy spells any more.

"The Sargon Soft Mass Pills straightened out my liver and I no longer suffer from biliousness and constipation. It sure is great to be feeling like my old self again and I will always praise the Sargon treatment. There never was any medicine equal to it."

Family to Follow Tacoma-Tokyo Hop

TACOMA, Wash., July. 24. (AP)—Courageous in her optimism that her husband's daring attempt to fly from Tacoma to Tokyo in a single hop will be successful, Mrs. Harold Bromley will watch the fortunes of the flight from the home of a sister in Clinton, Iowa.

With her in front of the radio by which they hope to have frequent word of Lieutentant Bromley's transpacific progress will be a third member of the family, Donald, age 6, the most supremely confident of the trio.

Mrs. Bromley plans to bid her husband goodby in advance of the takeoff and then fly to Iowa.

"It is less of a strain on all of us to part early rather than just before the flight begins," she says.

Whatever doubts may have entered the mind of the plucky Canadian flier and his attractive young wife, they are not shared by the youngest member of the family.

During the weeks of preparation at factory and proving grounds Donald's irrepressible delight in things aeronautical and his unbounded faith in his father's flying ability won him a following among pilots and mechanics alike as a candidate for the title of "America's most enthusiastic aviation enthusiast."

An ther whose faith in the outcome of the flight has been constant is Lieut. P. V. Weems, United States navy, who is the inventor of the bubble sextant through which Bromley expects to determine his position day or night and thereby be able to send back word by radio at regular intervals as to the progress he is making.

"I believe no one is more capable to attempt to achieve this great aviation feat than Bromley," he said. "I believe he will succeed."

Lieutenant Bromley enlisted at the age of 16 in the Canadian infantry and went through some of the heaviest fighting in the world war, including Ypres and the Somme. When the armistice came, he had transferred to the royal air force and had just graduated from the school of aeronautics at Oxford, England.

Following the feast a series of athletic events were held, the boys participating in various games and contests. Several members of the Rotary committee were present and helped to arrange the events, Mr. Ward said.

MILITARY FUND TO BE SLICED

Hoover Lays Plans to Cut Army Expenses

WASHINGTON, July 23. (AP)—With American expenditures for purely military purposes exceeding those of any nation in the world, President Hoover today announced a general program for curtailing these outlays to the lowest point that will produce an adequate national defense.

As an important result, the chief executive hopes a reduction in taxes can be effected. The estimated militray disbursements of the next four years he regards as the greatest obstacle in the way of a cut in the federal tax schedules.

Through a new international agreement on naval arms, Mr. Hoover hopes to reduce the cost of maintaining American sea forces, and as a means of slashing army costs he plans to establish a commission of leading army officers within the general staff to determine where savings can be made.

Mr. Hoover regards the present time as particularly propitious for a move of this character. The Kellogg treaty, which becomes effective tomorrow, he believes has had an important bearing upon American foreign relations. The present, he said, holds less threat of war than any time in more than half a century.

The president's views were made public today in extensive comment upon the situation made in reply to the questions of newspaper correspondents at the semi-weekly press conference.

Jury Refuses $2,000 Compensation Claim

Two hours after the opening of the trial in the 78th district court Tuesday afternoon, a jury returned a verdict denying $2,020 compensation to A. H. Erickson in his suit against the Zurich General Accident and Liability company, Ltd.

The verdict found that injuries suffered by Erickson when his right hand was caught in a drilling line on an oil lease in September, 1927, were not permanent, so that he was not entitled to the compensation under his pleadings.

Immediately after the verdict was returned and before judgment was entered, the defendant renewed previous offers to settle with Erickson for $500 but the proposal was refused. Judge Montgomery agreed to wait until Wednesday morning to enter the judbment.

Russo-Chinese 'War' Dwindles Down To Legal Dispute Over Railroad

(By The Associated Press)

The dispute between Russia and China over seizure of the Chinese Eastern railway, after threatening a conflagration in the far east, appears to have subsided into an international legal dispute for possession of the railway.

Invocation of the Kellogg renunciation of war pact brought swift changes in the aspect of eastern affairs.

Nationalist circles in Nanking were reported looking for amicable settlement of the dispute by negotiations.

Russia maintained its position that the railway must be restored to the "status quo" before discussions could begin, but was not expressly opposed to negotiation.

Japan threw additional cold water on the war specter by refusing to allow transportation of Chinese troops and munitions on the South Manchubia railway.

A slight misunderstanding seemed to have developed between Washington and Tokyo, Japanese officials maintaining they had received no official notification of Secretary Stimson's moves for settlement of the dispute.

County Employs Special Clerk To Aid in Delinquent Tax Suits

Employment of an additional clerk in the office of the county attorney to compile material for delinquent tax suits on oil and gas lands of the county was authorized by the commissioners court in a special meeting Tuesday afternoon. The employment is to be on a month to month basis, subject to change by the court at any time. Work is to begin on Aug. 1.

Wayne Somerville, county attorney, said late Tuesday that he would offer the position Wednesday to Miss Sudie Hall, a member of the tax collector's staff who has had much previous experience in working up material for the suits.

The attorney declared that he expected the materials to be ready for the filing of suits on Jan. 1 of next year and that he hoped to collect around $100,000 from the campaign to clean up the delinquent tax rolls. Both Guy C. Raley, collector, and Mr. Somerville have been urging such an appointment during the past several weeks.

PIRATE-SHIP

If I were a pirate
You know what I'd do?
I'd scrape up a ruffian
And tuffianly crew.

I'd say "I'm the captain
I'm bad and I'm bold,
And everyone present
Must do as he's told!"

We'd capture some treasure
And pieces of eight
And say to the people
"The plank is your fate!"

We'd look very vicious
And talk very gruff,
'Cause when you're a pirate
You have to be rough.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

About the most cynical thing we have seen of late is quoted from the London Opinion. "Bigamy is having one wife too many. Monogamy, in some instances, is the same thing."

◇ ◇ ◇

In Julius Klein's "Frontiers of Trade," he tells of the hundred per cent mummy "Pharoah" that was passed through the customs as dried codfish. There was at that time no rate on mummies and the treasure was about to be shipped back to Egypt when a bright inspector thought of rating it as dried codfish.

◇ ◇ ◇

If that mummy was once a "Pharoah," how hath the mighty fallen!

We looked last night at a picture of the Chinese vice consul recently arrested at San Francisco for smuggling opium and remembered Bret Harte. The ways of the Chinese are indeed peculiar.

We wonder if the Spartans were ever more inscrutable than the people of this nation in hiding emotion.

◇ ◇ ◇

"My sister's had her hair bobbed," said a bright girl, whose name we will not mention. "She started to cut it once before, but I dissuaded her." "But it's so much cooler," we urged; (we'd just had our hair bobbed.) She glanced casually at our head and said, "Oh but she had such pretty hair."

◇ ◇ ◇

We have a mannerly president. When 11 solemn faced churchmen, after making six small speeches for a Sunday closing law in Washington, filed out, he said, "Thank you for calling." However he made no move toward closing things and when some of them came back, he was too busy to see them, but still sent the message, "Thank you for calling."

◇ ◇ ◇

Someone phoned us today that she had a private mocking bird, all her own. She has been ill and the mocking bird has nested outside her window, and sings to her.

◇ ◇ ◇

We have mocking birds, too. And their song in the night is a little bit of heaven. But it has come to where we cannot hear them early in the evening for a loud speaker.

We passed the Municipal auditorium the other day and saw a picture of perfect rest. A negro was sitting on the low steps, leaning against the wall and sound asleep.

And someone told us of a negro lying in an alley sound asleep with all his body in the broiling sun except the head. He had originally gone to sleep in the shade, but what was the sun compared to rest?

D. Dix Tells Why Some Husbands Are "Henpecked"

Maybe When a Big Man Lets a Little, Narrow-Minded Woman Boss Him It Is Because He Really Likes It—Or Perhaps It Is Just Because He Hates Scenes and Wants Peace at Any Price.

Why are men afraid of their wives? Why do men stand for being henpecked? A man asks these questions. A bachelor, of course, because no married man will admit that he is afraid of his wife or that he is henpecked, although probably 50 per cent of the husbands in the class of society above that in which wife-beating is a common indoor sport live in terror of their masters' voices and wipe their feet on the doormats before they ente. their wives' houses.

Of course, men will deny this, but if they are not afraid of their wives why do they use such elaborate subterfuges to explain why they have to stay downtown of an evening occasionally? Why do they have to have wife's OK on all their comings and goings? Why do they not dare to ask an old friend to make them a visit without consulting wife, as she asks people to visit her without consulting husband? Why do they live where wife says instead of where husband wants to? Why, when there is a difference of opinion on any subject, do they compromise by doing wife's way?

As a matter of truth far more men are afraid of their wives than wives are afraid of their husbands. Far more men are bossed by their wives than wives are bossed by their husbands, and the queer part about it is that these subjugated men who meekly do their wives' bidding are not poor, pusillanimous weaklings without the courage to put up a fair fight or the backbone to stand up for their rights, as one might suppose them to be.

On the contrary, away from home they are as brave as lions and rulers of those about them. They are men who command armies. Men who rule over thousands of employes in big enterprises. Men who maintain an iron discipline on ships. Men who dare death in the air every day. Men who have led forlorn hopes on battlefields. Men who have had the moral strength to stand up and fight for unpopular principles. Men who don't know what it is to be afraid of anything on earth but the little two-by-four woman to whom they are married.

It is easy to understand why a woman endures being tyrannized over and nagged by her husband and never permitted to have a particle of personal liberty or even to say that her soul is her own. It is because she is financially dependent on him. She has to put up with the sort of treatment he accords her because he is her meal ticket and shopping account and she has no way of supporting herself, and she concludes that it is better to be bossed than it is to be starved.

But the henpecked man has no such reason for enduring the domestic persecutions to which he is subjected. He can make a living anywhere. He can get up and leave on any of the 47 trains that pull out from the station every day, and so why he stays and suffers is one of the insoluble problems of matrimony.

Sometimes when I see a big, gentle, kind, broad-minded man putting up with the exactions of a little, petty, narrow-gauged woman I think that the reason he endures it is because he really likes it. It is sort of a hangover of the mother complex, somehow. The little boy spirit in him that has never died and that wants some woman to boss him and tell him about what to eat and changing his shoes when he gets his feet wet and warning him not to get run over by automobiles when he crosses the street.

He doesn't resent having his wife pick out his clothes for him and buy his neckties and walk before him and say: "Henry, sit there"; or, "Henry, come up here," because he is accustomed to obeying a woman. Probably if we had the background of henpecked husbands we would find that most of them had dominant mothers. Anyway, it is significant that nearly every man who is bossed by his wife calls her "mama."

Another reason that men submit to being henpecked is that they have a holy terror of scenes, and they will suffer anything rather than go through with one. Which is a fact that the tyrannical wife soon discovers and upon which she acts. She knows that she has only to stage a spell of hysterics or to turn on the waterworks in order to get what she wants and reduce her husband to a mere sodden pulp of acquiescence.

And the man knows this also. He knows that he cannot argue with a maniacal creature who is shrieking abuse at him and that the quickest way to shut up a crybaby is to give it what it wants. Therefore, he just gives in to every unreasonable demand rather than go through scenes that leave him sore and bruised in soul and bleeding from a hundred wounds the cruel and selfish creature he is married to has dealt him.

Undoubtedly, though, the main reason that men endure being henpecked is because they want peace at any price at home. All day long in their work in the outside world they are waging a never-ending fight for money, for position, for success. They are struggling with might and main to hold their own, to protect their interests, to maintain their position, and the end of the day finds them exhausted in mind and body, with no more scrap left in them.

They long only for rest and surcease of the battle, and when they go home they cannot fight again with a wife who is determined to have her own way about everything and to rule her household with a rod of iron. So the poor, exhausted husband runs up the white flag of surrender and takes refuge under its folds.

It is one of the little ironies of life that the stronger, the wiser, the nobler a man is the more sure he is to be henpecked if he marries a bossy woman. Such a man is so filled with pity for the smallness, the selfishness, the lack of heart and soul and understanding of the woman who can find pleasure in bending his neck to her yoke that he cannot fight back at her. He feels it would be like a giant striking a child, and so he submits to her petty tyrannies and hides what he thinks of her in his heart.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, July 23. (US)—About 500 years B. C. women used to curl their long hair by rolling it over hot stones. They heated them in the sun.

And a little later, the women who knew of no other way to be different, and didn't like straight, stringy hair, would cut out little patches of hair about as big as a quarter. These were distributed like polka dots over the scalp. When the hair grew in, it gave the appearance of a wave. At least it broke the monotony of straight unattractive hair. The men did likewise. In fact, the men thought of it first.

In England there are rigid divorce laws, about which a reform body is trying to do something.

There are now 2,000,000 women living apart from their husbands and the number is increasing at the rate of 30,000 annually.

You would think that lawyers with a lively sense of favors to come would lend a willing hand.

A girl sued a man and the papers called the $45,000 she got, "nuisance money."

Now someone will open a school to teach girls how to become nuisances—maybe she will.

A Chicago man sued for divorce because his wife bet kisses when she played cards, and paid her debts promptly. She had no trouble getting up a bridge game.

But she may have a little, getting another husband.

Movie stars in London have food foibles and a London paper says that Monty Banks, comedian, "is an enthusiast for bubble-and-squeak, and sometimes persuades restaurant owners to let him cook it."

Sounds like eating something that isn't quite dead yet.

Maybe it's food for talkie actors.

Peace Sometimes Bad as War, Says Betty Brainerd

By BETTY BRAINERD

A young lady of the gay young set with a feline flair for flattery addressed an attractive (but, unfortunately, bright and knowing) young man with the air of one about to pay a great and impressive compliment, and said, "You Sultan, you!"

It is now a matter of record in her set that the young man was more than equal to the situation.

"You stop in-Sultan' me," he answered with devastating gentleness.

War undeniably is what Sherman said it was but when one reflects upon the corruption in government, the selfishness, narrowness and cruel stupidity and slimy thinking which enters into the lives of many people, and the general misery of the world about, there is some justification for the suspicion that peace sometimes is just about as bad as war.

Hot Weather Ruins Texas Fish Trade

ORANGE, Texas, July 23. (AP)—Extremely hot weather this summer has caused discontinuance of fish shipments from here to the New York market.

Elmer Bowman, pioneer fisherman who has a crew of men and boats and a regular New York market for buffalo fish from the Sabine river said in discontinuing the shipments that the hot weather made icing cost so high that the profits were too small.

Hazel Hale of Wheeler Mill, Ky., has ridden a pony to school every day for four years. She estimates she has traveled 8,000 miles on horseback.

WICKERSHAM IS KEEPING SMILE

Prohibition Storm Fails To Perturb Attorney

WASHINGTON, July 23. (US)—While the latest prohibition storm rages tempestuously over his head, George W. Wickersham, chairman of the national law enforcement commission, remains imperturbably calm.

He appears to be enjoying hugely the controversy that has been aroused by his now famous prohibition letter to Governor Roosevelt of New York.

His office has been besieged with callers and his mail has been laden with requests seeking a clarification or amplification of his views. These he has either ignored or answered jovially, as he did today with a merry twinkle in his eye:

"I have nothing to say."

Assistants Nervous

But whereas Wickersham is pleasantly unmovable, some of his office workers have had a case of jumpy nerves ever since the publication of the letter. Whenever Wickersham appears they hedge about him cautiously, endeavoring evidently to sidetrack any discussion with interviewers. The other members of the commission are as complacent as Wickershaw, replying to all requests about the letter with the admonition to "see the chairman."

It is obvious that the commission has discussed the letter, but in a jocular vein and not in a way that indicates any alarm or antagonism whatever.

While Wickersham is undisturbed, his friends say he doesn't quite understand why such a hullabaloo has been raised, as there was nothing in the letter which was not perfectly obvious to an impartial mind—that prohibition under present conditions has not been "reasonably enforceable." They pointed out he hadn't advocated any definite modification but rather indicated a problem which requires studious attention, that is, the joint responsibility of the federal government and the states in enforcing the law.

The White House, like Wickersham and the commission, is keeping out of the row.

Not so the organized boys. They make no bones about disapproving Wickersham's use of the word "modification," and to the reams of statements that have emanated from dry headquarters others are to be added periodically in the concerted effort to "smoke out Wickersham."

The commission plans to wind up its organization work shortly and then recess for a month while special investigators prepare statistics on crime.

AID FOR SMALL BANKER URGED

Texas Association to Talk Regional Clearing Houses

GALVESTON, Texas, July 23. (AP)—Establishment of regional clearing houses as a means of strengthening the position of rural banks will be one of the objectives for this year of the Texas Bankers association, A. A. Horne, recently elected president, announced today.

The small banker is doomed to disappear unless he adopts improved banking practices, Mr. Horne, who believes regional clearing houses would result in this improvement, said.

Progressive bankers in centrally located cities would undertake the organization of clearing houses to serve five or more counties, and an examiner would be assigned to the district, under Mr. Horne's plan, which has received the support of James Shaw, state commissioner of banking.

Berlin Freed Of U. S. 'Squawkies' By Court Order

BERLIN, July 23. (US)—German talkie patent groups, successful in barring American talkies from being shown in Germany on Western Electric apparatus, are planning a world-wide offensive against the American reproducing system.

Tobis Film and Klang Film, subsidiary of the German Electric Trust, having won a great victory in securing a permanent injunction against Western Electric, intend to carry the fight to England, France and Austria.

Whether the fight will extend to the United States immediately is not known, but Bristol Phone of New York, allied with the Tobis interests, may sue Western Electric there over the alleged violations of the German basic patents.

The Kammergericht, highest Prussia court, today confirmed in writing the decision handed down Saturday granting a permanent injuction against Western Electric. As a result, even "The Singing Fool," which continued to show Saturday and Sunday, was withdrawn tonight, and Berlin is again a town without talkies.

No American talkies will be shown in Germany hereafter if American producers insist on reproduction with Western Electric apparatus. So far, American producers' representatives here are opposed to use of the German system because they are not satisfied with its performance.

More U. S. Marines Leave Nicaragua

WASHINGTON, July 23. (US)—Withdrawal of the U. S. marines from Nicaragua continues. President Hoover announced today that 1,200 marines were being brought back to the United States, leaving but a skeleton force of some 2,300 men in the republic.

Orders for the return of the American troops were begun last autumn following the successful intervention of Brig. Gen. Frank R. McCoy in bringing about the pacification of the Central American state.

Conditions have since then so improved that further withdrawals have been steadily continuing.

TABLES TURNED AFTER 15 YEARS

"Sargon turned the tables for me after I had tried for 15 years to get well of stomach trouble. Now I am gaining every day. I went from 119 to 130 pounds, a gain of 11 pounds in three weeks on just three bottles. That's pretty good for a man 62 years old.

"I suffered day and night for almost 15 years and spent many hard earned dollars for medicines but none of them reached my case until I got Sargon. I felt weak and sick from morning until night. I would just drag myself around and now I feel years younger and can keep going all day. I eat anything I want and have no trace of stomach trouble, aheadaches or dizzy spells any more.

"The Sargon Soft Mass Pills straightened out my liver and I no longer suffer from biliousness and constipation. It sure is great to be feeling like my old self again and I will always praise the Sargon treatment. There never was any medicine equal to it."

Family to Follow Tacoma-Tokyo Hop

TACOMA, Wash., July. 24. (AP)—Courageous in her optimism that her husband's daring attempt to fly from Tacoma to Tokyo in a single hop will be successful, Mrs. Harold Bromley will watch the fortunes of the flight from the home of a sister in Clinton, Iowa.

With her in front of the radio by which they hope to have frequent word of Lieutentant Bromley's transpacific progress will be a third member of the family, Donald, age 6, the most supremely confident of the trio.

Mrs. Bromley plans to bid her husband goodby in advance of the takeoff and then fly to Iowa.

"It is less of a strain on all of us to part early rather than just before the flight begins," she says.

Whatever doubts may have entered the mind of the plucky Canadian flier and his attractive young wife, they are not shared by the youngest member of the family.

During the weeks of preparation at factory and proving grounds Donald's irrepressible delight in things aeronautical and his unbounded faith in his father's flying ability won him a following among pilots and mechanics alike as a candidate for the title of "America's most enthusiastic aviation enthusiest."

An ther whose faith in the outcome of the flight has been constant is Lieut. P. V. Weems, United States navy, who is the inventor of the bubble sextant through which Bromley expects to determine his position day or night and thereby be able to send back word by radio at regular intervals as to the progress he is making.

"I believe no one is more capable to attempt to achieve this great aviation feat than Bromley," he said. "I believe he will succeed."

Lieutenant Bromley enlisted at the age of 16 in the Canadian infantry and went through some of the heaviest fighting in the world war, including Ypres and the Somme. When the armistice came, he had transferred to the royal air force and had just graduated from the school of aeronautics at Oxford, England.

Following the feast a series of athletic events were held, the boys participating in various games and contests. Several members of the Rotary committee were present and helped to arrange the events, Mr. Ward said.

Dr. N. H. MILITARY FUND TO BE SLICED

Hoover Lays Plans to Cut Army Expenses

WASHINGTON, July 23. (AP)—With American expenditures for purely military purposes exceeding those of any nation in the world, President Hoover today announced a general program for curtailing these outlays to the lowest point that will produce an adequate national defense.

As an important result, the chief executive hopes a reduction in taxes can be effected. The estimated militray disbursements of the next four years he regards as the greatest obstacle in the way of a cut in the federal tax schedules.

Through a new international agreement on naval arms, Mr. Hoover hopes to reduce the cost of maintaining American sea forces, and as a means of slashing army costs he plans to establish a commission of leading army officers within the general staff to determine where savings can be made.

Mr. Hoover regards the present time as particularly propitious for a move of this character. The Kellogg treaty, which becomes effective tomorrow, he believes has had an important bearing upon American foreign relations. The present, he said, holds less threat of war than any time in more than half a century.

The president's views were made public today in extensive comment upon the situation made in reply to the questions of newspaper correspondents at the semi-weekly press conference.

Jury Refuses $2,000 Compensation Claim

Two hours after the opening of the trial in the 78th district court Tuesday afternoon, a jury returned a verdict denying $2,020 compensation to A. H. Erickson in his suit against the Zurich General Accident and Liability company, Ltd.

The verdict found that injuries suffered by Erickson when his right hand was caught in a drilling line on an oil lease in September, 1927, were not permanent, so that he was not entitled to the compensation under his pleadings.

Immediately after the verdict was returned and before judgment was entered, the defendant renewed previous offers to settle with Erickson for $500 but the proposal was refused. Judge Montgomery agreed to wait until Wednesday morning to enter the judbment.

Russo-Chinese 'War' Dwindles Down To Legal Dispute Over Railroad

(By The Associated Press)

The dispute between Russia and China over seizure of the Chinese Eastern railway, after threatening a conflagration in the far east, appears to have subsided into an international legal dispute for possession of the railway.

Invocation of the Kellogg renunciation of war pact brought swift changes in the aspect of eastern affairs.

Nationalist circles in Nanking were reported looking for amicable settlement of the dispute by negotiations.

Russia maintained its position that the railway must be restored to the "status quo" before discussions could begin, but was not expressly opposed to negotiation.

Japan threw additional cold water on the war specter by refusing to allow transportation of Chinese troops and munitions on the South Manchubla railway.

A slight misunderstanding seemed to have developed between Washington and Tokyo, Japanese officials maintaining they had received no official notification of Secretary Stimson's moves for settlement of the dispute.

County Employs Special Clerk To Aid in Delinquent Tax Suits

Employment of an additional clerk in the office of the county attorney to compile material for delinquent tax suits on oil and gas lands of the county was authorized by the commissioners court in a special meeting Tuesday afternoon. The position is to be worked out on a commission basis, the clerk to receive 10 per cent of the county taxes collected, not to exceed $175 a month. The employment is to be on a month to month basis, subject to change by the court at any time. Work is to begin on Aug. 1.

Wayne Somerville, county attorney, said late Tuesday that he would offer the position Wednesday to Miss Sudie Hall, a member of the tax collector's staff who has had much previous experience in working up material for the suits.

The attorney declared that he expected the materials to be ready for the filing of suits on Jan. 1 of next year and that he hoped to collect around $100,000 from the campaign to clean up the delinquent tax rolls. Both Guy C. Raley, collector, and Mr. Somerville have been urging such an appointment during the past several weeks.

DAVID BRANCH'S DAILY FILOSOFY

"He who takes life too seriously shortens his days."

Good wholesome fun is the greatest tonic in the world and a good laugh a day helps keep the doctor away. A person without a sense of humor is like an automobile without shock-absorbers.

"Laid Off at Forty"

"LAID OFF AT FORTY" is a phrase that you will probably hear repeated a good many times in the next few years. It represents one of the biggest problems raised by modern industrial methods—a problem that this generation must solve if we are to come even close to justifying our belief that America is the best of countries in which to live.

For to be "laid off at forty" is the fate of constantly increasing numbers of American workers.

Business and industry, having taken to machinery, mass production and high pressure tactics generally, are hitting an ever higher pace. This pace requires young men. Middle age, in the eyes of many employers, is not the period of greatest usefulness, but the period of declining powers. In addition, machines are continually displacing workmen from their jobs; and this, likewise, means that young men get the call and that the middle aged man is not wanted.

Stuart Chase, who has proven himself as clear eyed an observer of modern industrial trends as any man in the country, declares in the July Harper's Magazine that we seem to be headed for an even greater technical efficiency at an even greater human cost, and adds that "a more truly damnable apportionment of the human costs of industry it is difficult to imagine."

Conditions will grow steadily worse, he warns, unless the nation as a whole sets itself to remedy matters. And—strangely enough—he declares that President Hoover, supported by public opinion and a willing congress, could go far to remedy matters.

According to Mr. Chase, unemployment could be materially checked, if not altogether eliminated, by the following steps:

1.—The collection and maintenance of dependable unemployment statistics to state the problem.

2.—A reliable system of labor exchanges.

3.—An intelligent program for the construction of public works to absorb at least a part of the human surplus.

4.—A system of unemployment insurance.

5.—The gradual reduction of hours of labor to equalize technical improvements.

These are not radical moves. They are relatively simple. A nation that has always prided itself on its equality and prosperity ought to be ready to adopt them without much urging. Something, obviously, needs to be done; for Mr. Chase is not far from right when he concludes:

"A machine age without adequate protection for the workers scrapped by the machine is tearing down its social fabric as fast as it builds up its shell of concrete and steel. It is indeed sunk in barbarism."

A Puzzling Proposal

MR. WICKERSHAM'S suggestion that the federal government and the states divide responsibility for prohibition enforcement seems to be slightly puzzling to some of the people most interested in prohibition.

Clarence True Wilson, secretary of the Methodist Church Board of Prohibition, declares that "Dr. Wickersham has been generally regarded as a wet by dry elements in the United States," and indicates that the proposal is highly unsound, from the standpoint of a prohibitionist.

On the same day Mrs. Anna Marden Deyo, corresponding secretary of the National Women's Christian Temperance union, hailed Wickersham's proposals as "those of a true prohibitionist," and asserted that in making them he had the "interests of the nation at heart."

Evidently the matter will take a bit of studying.

A Lop-Sided Argument

YOU HEAR some weird and confusing arguments made in a criminal court. But here's one, given recently in New York, that pretty nearly takes the palm.

A man was on trial for murder, accused of killing a rather notorious gangster. His attorney admitted that the defendant had done the killing, but argued that he had really done society a service, since he had removed a highly undesirable citizen. Hence, he said, he should escape punishment.

How heavily this weighed with the jury we don't know; but at any rate the defendant got off with a manslaughter verdict instead of the murder verdict the prosecutor had asked.

The killing of a gangster is no loss to society, to be sure. But if we are to let private citizens take upon themselves the performance of such jobs we might as well discard our courts and police entirely.

Throwing Autos Away

THE FACETIOUS QUESTION, "What on earth becomes of all the old autos?" has been current ever since our automobile age began. The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, looking into the matter, has the answer; they get tossed on to the scrap heap.

Every year the United States scraps 2,450,000 automobiles—one-tenth of the entire number in the country. Indeed, the American people are throwing away, annually, one-third as many autos as there are in use in all the rest of the world.

The chamber of commerce points out, incidentally, that the average life of an automobile in this country is about six years and nine months. Which, when you consider the automobile's cheap price, isn't a bad record at all.

Quotations Worth Noting

"While the modern woman has been forging ahead, the man has remained stationary. Indeed, he has been so snugly complacent about his superiority, both physically and mentally, that he hasn't realized he has been gradually losing it. If he doesn't take himself in hand, we will undoubtedly have, within the next 50 years, women as the stronger and superior sex."—Gertrude Atherton.

"Want to ride home in the pouring rain?"

READ THIS FIRST

Charlotte Chatterton, whose nickname is Chatty, is a born gossip and busy body. She loses her job in Mrs. Mayberry's hat store because she talks too much about Mrs. Mayberry's business. Pud, Chatty's young brother, finds out why she was fired, and teases her about it.

Her mother, Mrs. Harriett Chatterton, earns her living by doing plain sewing. Through her old friend and customer, Mrs. Van Nuys, Chatty gets a position in the filing department of the bond house of which Mr. Van Nuys is president. There Chatty meets a handsome, red-headed bond salesman, David Jordan, whom she once saw buying flowers in a shop across from Mrs. Mayberry's shop, and became instantly attracted to.

Billie Langenau, head of the filing department, tells Chatty that the only girl in the office whom Jordan ever pays any attention to is Mr. "Van's" secretary, Agnes Herford, a tall, plain girl.

But Jordan does notice Chatty—at least to the extent of telling her that she looks better without makeup than with it, and that he thought she was "a nice kid" the first day she came to the office minus powder, lipstick or a wave in her hair. Chatty promptly stops using even powder.

Billie, who goes around with a salesman named George Mayhew, comes to live in the flat across the hall from the Chattertons, with her older sister, Sara. It is from Sara that Chatty learns that Billie has been married before, and that her married name was "Brewster." Some of her beautiful silver and her linens are marked with a "B." Chatty thinks George Mayhew ought to know about the marriage if he already doesn't. But she makes up her mind not to tell him, for she wants to keep Billie for a friend. Billie has promised her that sometimes they will have little Sunday night suppers in the flat for "the boys from the office," and to Chatty that means entertaining Jordan!

One day Agnes Herford has a luncheon date with a man. Chatty thinks it is with Jordan, but Winnie Talcott, a stenographer for Mr. Van, tells her it is with Mr. Van, himself! Chatty thinks Mrs. Van Nuys ought to know about it, but resolves never to mention it.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER VII

Chatty "set a watch" upon her lips—as it says in the Bible.

She did not breathe a single word to anyone in the office about Agnes Herford's lunch "date" with Mr. Van.

She did not drop a single hint about Billie Langenau and her marriage to a man named Brewster, who might be dead or else divorced from her.

The only person with whom she talked these things over was her mother. And that was just as safe as not talking about them at all.

"Billie's husband must have had just pecks of money!" she said to her. "Because all that solid silver and hand-carved furniture cost real money, and plenty of it! And she must be separated from him, because she's using her maiden name. If she were a regular widow she'd be Mrs. Brewster, wouldn't she? And you know, I don't believe George Mayhew knows a thing about it! Nobody at the office seems to!"

"Well, if she wanted them to know it she'd tell it herself!" Mrs. Chatterton answered, sensibly, her voice rising above the buzzing of her sewing machine. "And don't you speak of it, Chatty, either, to her or to anyone else. The least said, the soonest mended,' you know."

She said much the same thing on the night when Chatty came home with the startling news that Mr. "Van" was running around with his private secretary, Agnes Herford.

"There's bound to be a good bit of talk about it in the office, Chatty," she said. "And you keep out of it. You owe Mr. Van Nuys a great deal of thanks for giving you a position in his office, and the less you have to say about him the better off you'll be! Now, promise me you will not talk about this affair of his—if it is an affair! It may not be. He may just have taken the girl to lunch as he'd have asked a man to go to lunch with him."

Chatty laughed at that. But she promised not to mention the thing to a living soul, and she even crossed her heart.

As the days went by she almost forgot Mr. Van and his lunch engagement with Agnes Herford.

She worked hour after hour beside Billie without even once thinking about the small mystery that was gathered around her like a cloud.

She did not care one way or the other about these things—for a while, at least.

For something bigger, deeper and far more important had come into her life.

She was in love with David Jordan.

She was in love with him just as every girl falls in love once in her life . . . Every time she thought about him she sighed. When he came into the office it seemed to her that her heart skipped a beat.

At night she would lie awake, her arms crossed under her head, staring up at the ceiling of her room, and seeing Jordan's face—his engaging and friendly grin, his red hair, his deep eyes under straight brows—on the darkness.

She lost her healthy young appetite and three or four pounds along with it. She no longer had the patience to read love stories in the magazines . . . She was too wrapped up in the one that she was living in, herself.

One night, towards the end of April, when she had been working for the Van Nuys company for almost a month, she started away from the Kinney building in a pouring rain.

She had gone almost a block when someone hailed her, and before she had time to turn around to see who it was, David Jordan came up behind her and caught her elbow in his bare hand.

"Want to ride home in the pouring rain?" he asked. "My little bus is parked behind the Kinney building. It hasn't any top, but it goes like sixty! I can get you home before you know you're started!"

Chatty would have gone with him in a wheelbarrow—anywhere! "And I've seen your little open-faced car!" she told him, as they dashed into the alley behind the building. "I saw it a long time ago!"

And then, as they got into the snub-nosed roadster, and turned east toward Lipton street, she began to tell him all about the morning she had seen him going into Tallmen's flower shop with a girl—and how she had seen him again that same day, going into Mr. Van Nuys' big house on Wuthering hill.

"And so when I saw you down in the office I felt as if we were friends, almost!" she finished, and she couldn't keep her happiness out of her voice or out of the look she gave him. "That's probably why I wasn't peeved when you told me not to wear make-up on my face . . . But it wasn't make-up, really. It was nothing but some pink face powder. I stopped using it, though. See?"

She turned up her face that was all wet and bright colored from the chill brisk wind and the rain. Tiny drops were gathered like beads on the ends of the long black lashes that fringed her eyes and on the bright wisps of hair that were blown back from her hat brim.

"I don't care so much for these hard-boiled beauties," Dave Jordan said, simply. "I like—well, you look natural and—sweet."

"Sweet," said Chatty to herself, when she had left him at her door and was climbing the stairs to the flat . . . If a man thought that a girl was sweet, that mean that he liked her pretty well, didn't it? . . . Sweet. It was a lovely word.

Instead of turning into her own hallway, she crossed the second floor landing and knocked on the door of the Langenau's flat.

Billie, still in her damp street clothes, opened the door.

"Hello! How did you get home so soon?" she wanted to know. She always came home, herself, with George Mayhew.

Two or three times she had asked Chatty to ride with them. But Chatty had always refused, hoping every night that, by some miracle, Dave Jordan would bring her home.

And now the miracle had happened!

"Dave Jordan drove me home!" Her tone was somewhere between a sigh and a groan of happiness, and the whole story of her feeling for him was written on her face.

Billie gave her a long and thoughtful look.

"Chat," she said, "I told you not to do it, and you've done it anyway. You've fallen for Dave Jordan, haven't you?"

Some girls never tell any other girl or woman how much they may happen to care for a man. They keep all their love folded in their hearts.

But Chatty was not made that way. It was a relief to her to tell Billie all about it.

"I'm crazy about him," she said. "And why shouldn't I be? Why should you tell me no to be, Billie? You're crazy about George Mayhew—"

"Yes, but that's different," Billie answered quietly.

"How is it different?"

Billie walked over to the door that led out on to the landing, and closed it. She kicked off the heelless rubbers she wore, and dropped them into the old-fashioned China umbrella stand that stood in the little hall.

"Sara isn't coming home for dinner. This is the night she takes her swimming lessons," she said. "Tell your mother you're going to eat in here with me, Chat. We'll have some cinnamon toast and stuffed tomatoes and tea—and we'll take her in a tray so she won't have to get her own dinner."

When Chatty came back she had put on a frilly house dress of faded blue cotton which was more becoming to her than any of her smart-looking office dresses and she was setting the table in the dining room.

"I'm going to tell you something, but I want you to promise never to tell it to anyone!" she said, when she had taken a tray of food across the hall to Mrs. Chatterton, and was pouring the tea for herself and Chatty. "Sara told you part of it when she told you I'd been married."

Chatty's eyes opened wide, and her lips parted . . . This was going to be very, very interesting! . . . She leaned forward in her chair.

"I'm still married!" Billie startled her by saying, suddenly. "Now, what do you think of that?"

Chatty didn't know what to think. She sat back and looked at Billie with narrowed eyes.

What was Billie doing—running around with George Mayhew when she had a husband with whom she did not live? And why didn't she live with him? . . . And why was she working to make her own living? . . . With a husband who could buy her solid silver and baby grand pianos, surely Billie did not have to work.

"Where's your husband?"

"In New York," Billie answered frankly. "I left him and thought he'd divorce me, perhaps—but he doesn't. And I haven't a thing in the world against him except that I don't love him."

She dropped a lump of sugar into her cup.

"I told you this because you told me I was in love with George Mayhew," she said slowly. "But I'm not . . . and it wouldn't do me any good if I were. And George trots around with me because he thinks I'm good company, and Sara is always here when he comes to see me. That's why he's not here tonight—because it's her swimming night."

"Why did you tell me all this? What has it to do with me and Dave Jordan?" asked Chatty.

"Because you're expecting to fall in love and get married, like most girls," Billie told her, in her grave, matter-of-fact way. "You're not like me. A man to you is some one you might marry later on—and Dave Jordan won't get married for a long time, any more than George Mayhew will—unless he marries a girl with a lot of money of her own."

"Why not?"

"Because he can't afford to. Silly! It takes a bond salesman years and years to build up enough business to make a good salary! And they all have to be well dressed, because the only people they meet are well-to-do, well-dressed business men. And they have to belong to a decent club, where they can take men to lunch, and meet other rich men—"

Her voice went on. But Chatty was only half listening to her . . . Her eyes were fixed on the darkness outside the rain-spotted windows. And beyond that darkness she was seeing Dave Jordan and the girl he had bought all those flowers for on Easter Saturday . . . Perhaps she was a girl who had lots of money, the kind of girl he would have to marry—unless he waited for years and years.

"Of course, some bond salesmen make scads of money," Billie was saying. "But those kids have only been out of college for three or four years—Dave Jordan and George. They make just about enough to keep themselves going."

Chatty nodded at her. She felt sick to her very marrow bones.

"That's why I feel all right about going places with George," Billie's voice ran on. "I know he'll never ask me to marry him in a dozen years—he doesn't even imagine he's in love with me any more than I do with him. We're such good pals. And some other girl might try to make him fall in love with her."

"Doesn't he go around with anyone but you?"

Billie shrugged her shoulders. "I don't know . . . but I don't think so. Sara says she wishes he never would come here. She thinks it's terrible for him to like me, at all. But I can't stay home all the time, can I? And if George ever gets silly over me I'll tell him all about myself. Bare my purple past to him—" She broke off with a nervous little laugh.

"She's crazy about him. She can't fool me!" thought Chatty.

The next night was Saturday, and at half past seven Mrs. Chatterton and Chatty set out for what they called their "weekly spree."

There was a man just ahead of Chatty when she stepped into line before the ticket window of the Stella Maris theater on West River street at half past eight. With him was a girl—a small, blonde girl, who clung to his arm and never took her eyes from his while Chatty watched her.

When he picked up his change and turned to leave the window Chatty saw who he was.

He saw her, too, and he gave a start of surprise. But he did not speak, although he knew her.

"Well, I won't let him get away with that!" thought Chatty.

"How are you tonight?" she asked him, and she looked straight into his eyes when she spoke.

"That's Billie's man—George Mayhew," she said to Mrs. Chatterton, when she joined her. "Out with a blonde!"

The Day Book of a New Yorker

Broadway Chatter by Grant Dixon

NEW YORK, July 23.—Late Sunday afternoon is the best time to visit what is loosely known as the financial district. Then, just at sunset, one can enjoy the beauty of these great canyons without running the risk of being trampled to death by human hordes. It might be a good idea to start the tour at the corner of Broadway and Park Place, to take a look at the Woolworth building, city hall and the towering municipal building beyond. Somehow the Woolworth tower still fascinates me more than any of the newer skyscrapers—and so it does to all New Yorkers. But we don't show it often. We leave it to the motorists from New Jersey, who drive up to the base of the building on Sunday afternoons and stick their heads out of their sedan windows. After a good look, one can circle the old postoffice, cross Park Row, and stroll peacefully down Nassau street which, on week-days, is the narrowest, most turbulent gorge in this city of human floods. Nassau street is the odds-and-ends quarter of lower Manhattan. The stores display sheet music, radios, sporting goods and cut-rate lingerie, for the most part. The street, barely wide enough for two cars, is torn up for a new subway tunnel and huge water pipes are laid along the curb. On Sunday all this may be negotiated with safety, for the place is deserted. It is a picturesque alley to Wall street and beyond, and its old buildings are an appropriate contrast with the beauty and newness of the great structures that lie at the other end.

Recognising the "Profesh"

The wife of a well known novelist, who lives in New York, has been visiting Coney Island pretty regularly with her husband, who has been gathering material for a book on the resort. She stopped at a stand and bought a bag of peanuts, for which she was charged the stated and regular price of 10 cents. But the youthful proprietor of the stand came bustling up and handed her back a nickel, with an engaging grin.

"Half price for the press," he said.

A Go-Getter

There must be something to the well established tradition that Americans, unlike Europeans, pine away if they haven't work to do. Can you imagine, for example, a European business man publishing an advertisement like this one, which I saw the other day: "My income is $17,000 a year. My last salaried position was $20,000 a year as sales and publicity executive. A handful of employes can now handle the routine, and the business does not need me. But I am happier when organizing, hiring men, developing new plans, analyzing, advertising, doing things! So I ask, 'Have you a job open?' The job must be intriguing. Compensation will adjust itself. Ready right now!" I cannot say P. S., he got the job, because I don't know. But I wonder if he did get a job, and how much it pays him.

The Blinker Works

A five-cent ferry ride to St. George, Staten Island, will take you to the nerve center of the U. S. lighthouse service, New York area. Here they make and repair the winking lights that point thir way to safety along the sea coast and in the navigable rivers, and here is the headquaters of the men that set them up and keep them going. Automatic clinkers are fast supplanting the old-style lights, and the profession of lighthouse keeping is fast disappearing. But the service takes care of its old keepers of the light. When an inexpensive little gadget throws a man out of his job, another position in the service is found for him. These lights are as nearly automatic as machines can be. They run for six months or a year or more without attention—and some of them are afloat far at sea, where waves and spray keep up a constant attack. In the buildings on the Staten Island ground these lights are assembled. They are the familiar T-shaped burners one finds in acetylene bicycle lamps. If the candlepower is needed, five or more burners are clustered in a circle. Beneath them is a leather lung. Tanks of compressed acetylene gas are attached to this lung, and one small pipe runs directly from the tanks to the fork of the T. That is the pilot light, which always burns faintly. The main gas pressure causes this lung to breathe, and each exhalation causes a flow of gas to the burner—and abright flare of the winking lights at sea. The only attention the modern lighthouses need is a new set of gas tanks every six months or so. Some of the lamps are great steel cylinders 50 or more feet long, with great, bulging middles. The barrel-like center section keeps them afloat, half in and half out of the water. The upper end houses the light. The submerged end contains a bell, which rings with the motion of the waves, but cannot be heard above the water. In heavy fog, when the light is obscured, ships are warned by the ringing of the bell, which is felt, rather than heard, on the vessels' hulls.

Blair Road Work To Start Sept. 1

Special to The Record News.

ALTUS, Okla., July 23.—Work on the remaining portion of the Blair-Warren highway will be begun on or about Sept. 1.

Since the completion several days ago of the four miles of graveled highway leading east from Blair to the previously surfaced road to warren, considerable difficulties have arisen over the terms of the contract.

A committee of eight representing Blair and Warren conferred with the board of county commissioners this week and filed a protest, alleging that the remaining four miles of old graveled road were to have been re-surfaced upon completion of the four miles of newly graveled road.

Misunderstanding of the terms of the contract is the reason given by the commissioners for not having continued the project. The remaining part of the road will be regraveled as soon as work is completed on the Eldorado-Duke highway.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

Wall Street Goes Athletic

International sports carnivals between the bankers and brokers of London and New York are proposed by Wall street. A competitive meet every two years open to all financial leaders with waistline up to 44 inches, is already in the works.

◇ ◇ ◇

Golf, track events, tennis, baseball and crew races are suggested in order that international friendliness may be cemented with a mashie-niblick, mutual distrust dissipated with a racquet and a better understanding all around created through running shoes, a spit-ball and good oarsmanship.

◇ ◇ ◇

Outdoor sports, particularly golf, are already encroaching so heavily on big business that any conference can be broken up by an invitation to play 18 holes for 25 cents a hole. Many a business convention is opened with a graphic description of a difficult mashie shot on the eleventh green, and closed with a suggestion by the chairman that he putt anybody in the room for a dollar.

◇ ◇ ◇

Promotions to vice presidencies of big corporations are made on a basis of 300-yard drives, and a youth who can play around in par or better is assured of a big voice in the company's affairs.

◇ ◇ ◇

England is said to be receptive to the sports meet idea, and next season may see an Olympic game of which a high light may oe a boat race, with J. P. Morgan stroking the American shell and one of the Rothschilds driving the British boat.

◇ ◇ ◇

Possible Program

1.—Tossing the 100-pound extra dividend.

2.—100-yard dash for heads of companies voting more than two stock split-ups in a season.

3.—Pole-vault for successful pool operators.

4.—Throwing the quarterly report.

5.—Hurdles (for bankers who have participated in four or more international debt parleys and still feel jumpy.)

6.—Sack race. (Open to anybody who held General Electric from the beginning.)

7.—Baseball game between happily married bankers and those who have made great financial bulls and bears.

8.—Hurling the 100-pound federal reserve statement.

9.—Golf tournament and wooden tee hunt. (This event is open to all bankers and brokers whose technical position is okay. Par for the course will be 80, with warrants attached and other valuable convertible privileges.) All handicaps will be issued on a basis of 15 bid and 40 asked. Score-cards, when filled in by contestants, must bear the notation, "While the above figures have been obtained from what we consider reliable sources they are not guaranteed by us."

GRAND JURY TO RETURN TODAY

Brief Meeting Expected To End Term's Work

The 30th district grand jury will reconvene here at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning to complete the work of the July term. Hardly more than a dozen routine complaints will be presented for their consideration, county officials said Tuesday, but a number of special matters of investigation are still pending.

The jury is expected to complete its work late Wednesday or by noon Thursday and to be finally discharged by Judge Allan D. Montgomery. A written report, which may say the final word in connection with a jail break here two months ago, will probably be prepared. The grand jury was specifically asked to investigate the part played by each of the prisoners involved in the attempted escape, which cost the life of Raymond Sellers, youthful prisoner, and resulted in injuries to two other inmates of the jail.

Judge Names Grand Jury Commission

Judge Allan D. Montgomery Tuesday appointed J. M. George of Iowa Park, Owen L. Clark of Burkburnett, and L. E. McConnell of Wichita Falls members of the grand jury commission for the October term of the 30th district court. Citations issued from the office of the sheriff Tuesday afternoon ordered the commission to meet on Saturday, July 27, to name 16 men in the county to comprise the October grand jury. The names will be placed in the care of Miss Eunice Jackson, district clerk, to be announced within two weeks of the opening of the term.

The car is held in the police garage as an exhibit and sale probably can not be completed until Snook's murder trial is over.

But it is a bargain, for it has been driven only about a thousand miles. The buyer would have to get new upholstery, however, for detectives slashed great pieces out of the cushions wherever they found blood stains.

CROQUET BOYS RENEW MARCH

Rule, Texas, Men Ready to Begin 'Socking'

DALLAS, July 23. (UP)—With plenty of money in their jeans and an advance ballyhooer who they claim will foster "croquet mindedness" along their route, two croquet cronies were ready tonight to renew their quest for fame via the "socking" method.

L. R. Rose, tailor, and C. G. Hart, barber, the Rule, Texas, "cronies," tomorrow will be en route to Bryan, Texas, where lack of food forced them to abandon for a time their attempt to sock croquet balls from Galveston to Gotham.

But this time, the cronies declare there will be no worrying over where the next mouthful is coming from. They have provided themselves with an advance manager, J. H. "Chizzler" Place Jr., who will travel ahead of the "meandering maulers" and make arrangements for hilarious receptions and exhibition games.

The buddies do not plan to leave Bryan until early Thursday morning, as they want to give their advance man plenty of time to "get things lined up" so that they will be well received. But they claim that nothing can stop them this time, once they get started, and when croquet balls start rolling there will be many a main street between Texas and New York garbed in holiday attire.

Carlsbad Road Maps Distributed

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, July 23.—One hundred thousand maps of the famous Carlsbad Cavern highway have been received from the printer and are being distributed by the various towns along this highway. Ten thousand maps are being distributed from the offices of the Carlsbad Cavern Highway association in Quanah. Carl Guin, secretary of Quanah Chamber of Commerce, is president of the association.

The map is an attractive folder with various scenes from the caverns, and birdseye views of El Paso and Oklahoma City on the back, with the reverse side covered with very complete map of the country through which the highway passes and the route of the highway plainly shown. A large portion of the route is already either paved or designated as state highways, and efforts are being made to have federal designation to connect with other federal roads north and east from Oklahoma City. Prediction is made that these efforts will be successful as the government is rapidly developing the Carlsbad Caverns as a national attraction, and this highway also shortens the distance between eastern and northern points to El Paso and California by several hundred miles.

The third quarterly meeting of the highway association was held in Altus, Okla., July 22, with representatives from practically every town along the entire route.

"Value Cannot Be Overestimated"

Wichita Falls Man Had Suffered With Constipation for Fifty Years —Troubles Overcome With Orgatone

"I can't praise Orgatone too highly for all it has done for me," said F. H. Denison, a well known retired Wichitan, and residing at the Grand hotel, Wichita Falls, Texas, recently.

"For about 50 years," continued Mr. Denison, "I suffered all the tortures and ills of habitual constipation and often times this would put me in a very much weakened and run down condition—mostly down—in fact, I did not feel able to do any work to speak of. I tried treatment upon treatment, mineral oils and purgatives and laxatives but kept getting weaker and found they were only temporary relief. I would sometimes get so nervous I couldn't sleep to do any good and during the night I would roll and toss. Owing to my constipated condition, what I managed to eat didn't give me the proper nourishment or strength and I felt that I was losing ground all the time.

"I heard of so many people recommending Orgatone, so I went and got me a bottle. Why, in just two or three days I began to feel stronger and in less than a week I could notice the great difference in myself. I have about finished my third bottle now and my constipation is not only a thing of the past but I have gained in strength and feel good and strong. In fact, I am feeling so much different I am going to take a long, motor trip vacation. I can eat just anything set before me now, and I always relish my meals and feel refreshed and stronger afterwards.

"Orgatone has done all this for me and it is the only thing, that ever reached my case. I don't think the value of Orgatone can be overestimated and I am glad to make this statement which I hope will be of benefit to others."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called secret or patent remedy but a new scientific bile preparation and is sold in Wichita Falls, exclusively by the Allison's Drug Store, under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative.—Adv.

Best Club Girl

Marian Dewey has been named as the best all-round club girl in the county, with her production work the best project and most successful financially. Maurice Surratt is winner in the county in the afternoon dress contest. Both of these girls will attend the short course.

The poultry judging team is composed of Ave Theone Garroute and Dahlia Cordell.

Mrs. D. F. Henegar, who won first place in the county and second in the district in the living room contest, and Mrs. John McGarr who was winner of first place in the second class in the living room contest will also make the trip. Hale county led the state in number of entries in the living room contest.

Funds Secured

Mrs. M. S. Hudson, the only woman director on the Texas Farm Bureau federation, who is an outstanding community leader in this county and has to her credit some splendid work by the 4-H club of Stoneback, will make the trip.

The several clubs in the county have been at work since last summer to raise funds to send delegates to the short course, and the banks of Plainview and the Plainview Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture have been most generous in helping make it possible for the large number to attend.

ALTUS BEGINS HIGHWAY WORK

County's Most Extensive Grading Program Starts

Special to The Record News.

ALTUS, Okla., July 23.—A survey party from the office of the Jackson county engineer is making locations and placing corner stones on county highways this week preparing for one of the most extensive grading programs in the history of the county highway department.

At the present time there are approximately 200 miles of county highways in Jackson county. Of this amount 63½ miles will be hard-surfaced with the completion of the Duke-Eldorado project. It is the plan of the county commissioners to grade the remaining portion of the highways in the same manner as they are prepared for graveling.

Although work will begin on the grading within a few days, it will probably not be possible to complete the program during this year.

Childress Water Line Surveyed

Special to The Record News.

CHILDRESS, Texas, July 23.—City Engineer McFadden announces the completion of the survey for a pipe line to be run from the new well location to the settling basins of the present water system of the city. The distance is four and one-half miles and the water will flow by gravity from the wells to the settling basins.

The city has not contracted for the pipe, but the officials are awaiting the securing of more land and further investigation of the supply. The one well produced close to 400,000 gallons per day, and it is belived that with another well of like capacity the city would secure all the water needed.

The water is found on private lands and at this time the city officials are negotiating with the owners for the water right, and if that is secured development work will be carried on and within a short time Childress will be using this water, which is fresh and pure.

C-C MOTORCADE IS ALL OVER

'But Goodwill Lingers On,' Says Whiteker

Special to The Record News.

STAMFORD, Texas, July 23.—"The motorcade is ended but the good will lingers on," was the statement of B. M. Whiteker of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce as he returned to the Stamford headquarters office this morning after his 10 days absence.

"Our motorcade, which lasted from July 10 to 20 received one of the greatest receptions ever accorded any group of tourists in every one of the more than 35 towns visited along the route. The invitation was to come back and come oftener, and cordiality was evinced at every turn."

Visit Scenic Spots

More than 100 scenic spots of more than local repute were visited by the 30 West Texans who left Ballinger early in the afternoon of the 10th after a luncheon at the Central hotel given by the Rotary club.

The party headed for Rowena as the first stop where a group of citizens and business men greeted them, and talks and entertainment followed.

At Miles where approximately 50 business men represented the city, A. M. Bourland, president-manager, made a short talk on the aims and purposes of the organization before the party went on to San Angelo. Here the newspaper men took over the entertainment of the party, taking them to Christoval where a barbeue dinner was served.

The next morning, the members of the motorcade were served breakfast with the board of city development at the San Angelo hotel before leaving for Sherwood, Mertzon, Barnhart and other towns where receptions were held.

See Deepest Well

When Big Lake was reached the party was conducted to the world's deepest oil well and from there on to Rankin to be entertained with food and music.

From here President Sam Beaty of the McCamey Chamber of Commerce, escorted the party to his home town where the Llons club sponsored a luncheon.

Grady Webster, secretary at Fort Stockton, with his committee of 12 escorted the visitors to the Big Spring bathing pool, then to the Country club where a fish fry awaited them.

Col. John Perkins welcomed the visitors to Alpine where Bourland's talk was followed by others, and the members of the party were introduced at the luncheon served by the chamber of commerce.

Marfa had roped off the streets for a dance to celebrate the new white way and counted the motorcadists in on the ceremony.

On July 13, the Big Bend district convention was held in Van Horn, and barbecue served to more than 500 before the tourists left for a picturesque view of the Guadalupe mountains on the way to Carlsbad where breakfast was served them in the dining room of La Caverna hotel.

Sunday, July 14, was spent in the Carlsbad cavern, the objective of the trip and Sunday night was spent as guests of the Artesia Chamber of Commerce.

One hundred people from the little town of Hope made one hour of the trip very enjoyable with their entertainment under the direction of Noel L. Johnson.

Then up the meandering Penasco river to Mayhill where a sumptuous basket luncheon was served, after which the tour was continued to Cloudcroft where golf was one of the main diversions.

Two hundred and fifty people at Ruidosa gave a unique welcome as the cars and band inaugurated the program of music, spoaking and introductions at the Ruidosa Lodge and the Najaho Lodge.

The band traveled down the junction of the Ruidosa and Bonita, down the Hondo for 35 miles across the flats into Roswell.

At Roswell the Pecos valley intermountain district meet was held after which the irrigated valley was visited, dinner at the Country club served, and another opportunity given to play golf before a dance on the roof of the White building honored the guests.

Luncheon at Clovis

The Kiwanis club served luncheon at Clovis from whence the party went from Kenna and Elida. Judge Hamlin of Farwell entertained at his ranch and Bovina, Friona and Hereford were visited. As guests of West Texas State Teachers college at Canyon a dinner was enjoyed. Dr. Wallace R. Clark acting as official host.

Palo Duro canyon, the Devils Kitchen, Panhandle, Whitedeer, Miami, Pampa, Canadian, Wheeler, Shamrock, Wellington, Childress, and Quanah were visited before the party disbanded at Vernon Saturday, unusual entertainments being features of the last part of the itinerary.

White Deer Nears End of Harvest

Special to The Record News

WHITE DEER, Texas, July 23.—Carson county's wheat, barley and oat crops will be entirely harvested in about two more weeks, in the opinion of the farmers and grain dealers, unless unfavorable weather prevents. It is expected that about 700 cars will be the total number cars shipped or more than 1,000,000 bushels. Of this amount about 650 cars have already gone. It is believed that this season's shipments will prove to be the largest in history from White Deer, despite the fact that there were more than 100,000 bushels destroyed by hail as it began to ripen.

Trade conditions in White Deer were never better during harvest times. Bank deposits soar around $1,000,000.

Farmers are developing dairying and poultry raising as sources of everyday income and bankers state this is aiding very materially in keeping the farmer from being in debt, before harvesting his crops. This is one large feature in holding bank deposits to the steady level of today.

Additional Courses To Be Given at Spur

SPUR, Texas, July 23. (Spl.)—The school here will offer several new vocational courses next term, according to Superintendent R. N. Cluck. The new courses are as follows: Vocational home economics for girls; advanced work in vocational agriculture for boys; commercial course including both typewriting, commercial law and bookkeeping; chemistry for members of the junior and senior classes; general science for the eighth grade; community civics for the seventh grade; thrift taught throughout the whole school once each week, together with fire prevention in all grades.

The increase in courses does not entail a great deal of additional expense as the state and federal government will pay the greater portion of the salaries of vocational teachers. The additional courses will enable the school to secure two or three more affiliated credits with the state board.

Land owners and citizens who have resided two years within the territory need not suffer, as Texas will protect their property rights and their rights as citizens."

The Memory Not Always Reliable

There is a belief held by many people that something once learned is never forgotten, but remains as long as life lasts, stored in the recesses of the brain. However, there is no evidence that this is true. Our memory pictures are recorded in some way upon the protoplasm of the brain cells and because there are continual metabolistic changes going on in these cells, the pictures are not fixed, but are subject to gradual alterations.

It is very easy to understand how a destructive disease affecting the memory cells will greatly disturb or destroy the stored memories. Forgetting is a normal process. Everyone has a poor memory. It is only when the normal limits of forgetfulness have been exceeded or when the imagination takes the place of memory that the physician becomes interested.

Many people recall lots of things that aren't true. One suffering from senile dementia recalls vividly the events of childhood and youth, although unable to recall the events of the previous week. Frequently, however, the memories of childhood and youth, which seem to be recalled with such startling vividness, have been so greatly touched by the imagination as to be quite untrue as to actual happening. An old man may imagine he was in such a war, met certain celebrities, or traveled through various countries, and he may give all the details and believe them, himself, when he actually was nowhere in the vicinity.

The mind misrepresents facts. Sometimes, they are exaggerated, diminished, or curiously twisted. Judges soon come to realize that witnesses frequently make false statements and false identifications, not because of desiring to falsify their statements, but because the witness' perception of memory is faulty.

Patients will often quite sincerely describe wholly fictitious diseases of childhood which never occurred, although they may seem quite true to the affected person. The mind is so susceptible to suggestions that it has been said that if one hears a lie or a story frequently enough, one will come to believe it to be a fact. In endeavoring to recall elusive facts from out of the maze of memory, one instinctively fills in the missing links with the fabric of imagination.

One's memory may be good in most respects, but only weak in a special manner. For example, one may forget the memories associated with hearing or the memories connected with sight. In some diseases, the patient can only think of sad symptoms, and in others, there are troublesome obsessions. Epileptics sometimes live in a twilight conscious state for periods which they cannot afterwards consciously recall. Sometimes the first symptoms of serious mental diseases are indicated by extreme forgetfulness or twisted recollections.

It is difficult to judge whether forgetfulness is a blessing or a misfortune. It would not be good if our minds were cluttered up with endless varieties of unimportant details or made melancholy by stored up sad recollections. On the other hand, it would be well for us if we could recall the useful facts of life and the pleasanter events.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Neuritis

Question—Mrs. H. K. L. writes: "I have been bothered with neuritis for two years. Have been to several doctors, but have not had much relief. Am very nervous and anemic. What can I do to gain my health?"

Answer—There are two principal causes of neuritis; one is a toxic condition of the blood, similar to rheumatism, and the other cause is from pinched nerves somewhere between the painful part and the spinal cord. An osteopath or chiropractor can usually remove this latter cause, and the toxic condition is cured by dieting, exercising, and living according to good hygienic rules.

Milk

Question—Ann D. writes: "I read in your column that milk should not be taken with sandwiches. When should milk be used?"

Answer—Never use milk with sandwiches or with regular meals. Milk should be taken by itself, or combined with one kind of fruit, or with only non-starchy vegetables.

Irritation From False Teeth

Question—Mrs. J. L. writes: "I have an upper set of false teeth. The plate cracked a few months ago, and caused a slight cut in my tongue. It smarts quite a bit, especially at night. Do you think there is any danger of cancer?"

Answer—Any irritated spot in the body may be the seat of the growth of a cancer and therefore all such irritation should be avoided. If your saliva is normally alkaline, it furnishes an excellent antiseptic for your mouth, but at this time it might be well for you to treat the spot on your tongue with silver nitrate, mercurochrome, or some astringent.

I. C. C. Asked to Delay Changes In Joint Rates

KANSAS CITY, July 23. (AP)—Judge Albert L. Reeves of the federal district court, today asked the Interstate Commerce commission to delay putting into effect until Oct. 1, its order changing the basis of division of joint freight rates between the Southwestern and Western trunk line railroads.

The order, made June 10 by the commission, was to be effective Aug. 1. A petition for an injunction to prevent the order from going into effect was filed yesterday in the federal court here by railroads in the southwestern division.

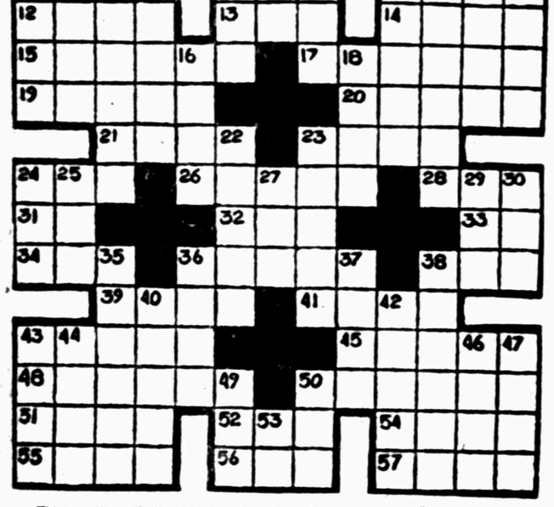

The petition alleged the new basis of dividing freight revenues on joint hauls would give western trunk line division railroads an advantage of more than $2,000,000 a year over the southwestern railroads.

D. A. R. Loses Fight to Bar Woman Pacifist

WASHINGTON, July 23. (UP)—The state department today denied the request of H. R. Burton, an attorney for the Daughters of the American Revolution, for revocation of the passport issued to Dorothy Detzer, Pacifist. No formal law requires American citizens to take an oath of allegiance to obtain a passport, and the modified oath, affirming to support but not to "defend" the constitution is legal and supported by precedent. Burton was informed in a letter from assistant secretary of state Carr.

STEENGRAFE HURLS 8-4 SERIES SWEEP AND SPUDS KEEP LEAD

PETE TURGEON CLOUTS HOMER

Benton and Bennett Other Leaders of Attack

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANTONIO, July 23.—Milt Steengrafe held the Inidans in check today and the Spudders retained the Texas league lead by sweeping the two-game series with an 8 to 4 victory.

The Spudders emerged from a batting slump to hammer Leon Baker and Tiny Jim Chaplin for 16 hits. Pete Turgeon clouted a home run with a comrade on the base line and also pounded two singles. Benton and Bennett got three hits each, Rabbitt smacking a brace of doubles and Red one two-base wallop. Fitzgerald, Hermann and Stapleton got two hits each.

Big Milt in Form

Steengrafe kept the Inidans' 12 hits well scattered and after the Spudders established a 5-2 lead in the seventh it was just a breeze for the big righthander.

Riley and Kott were leaders of the Tribe attack with three blows apiece.

Fielding was consistent and at times brilliant, and was marked by particularly glittering work of the Spudder infield and Fitzgerald.

Indians Score in First

The Spudders tied the count in the third. Benton doubled to center but was out at third on Turgeon's grounder to Flippen. Fitzgerald singled to right advancing Turgeon to third. Bennett filed to Brozovitch, scoring Turgeon.

Wichita Falls counted two in the fifth when Benton hit his second double and ambled home ahead of Turgeon on Pete's circuit smash over the left field wall.

The Indians scored one in their half. Ballew beat out an infield hit after two were out. Benton fumbled Casey's bounder. Riley hit to right, scoring Ballew.

Spudders Score Moore

The Spudders added two more in the seventh. Turgeon, Fitzgerald and Bennett singled to fill the bases. Sullivan forced Bennett at second, Turgeon scoring. Hermann singled past third, scoring Fitzgerald.

Three more runs cinched the game for Galloway's gallopers in the eighth. Ballew threw wild on Crouch's grounder, Jack going to second. Steengrafe hit past second sending Crouch to third. Steengrafe stole second. Benton singled to center, scoring Crouch and Steengrafe, and took second on the throw-in. Turgeon singled, scoring Benton.

Pat Newnam's athletes scored in their eighth. Kott and Flippen singled. Meyers batted for Arzatti and walked, filling the bases. Schuman, batting for Baker, struck out. Tate hoisted to Fitzgerald, scoring Kott.

The Tribe added their last run in the ninth.

Hal Wiltse probably will hurl the opener tomorrow of a three-day series at Waco.

Statue Planned For Man o' War

Bronze Cast Will Honor Greatest Race Horse

FRANKFORT, Ky., July 23. (AP)—Citizens of Lexington, Ky., are angling for the bronze to be cast of Man o War, famous race horse.

Plans to immortalize the thoroughbred were announced recently, by Governor Sampson, following an exchange of letters with F. C. Reilly of New York, who conceived the idea.

The memorial would be life-size. It originally was Reilly's proposal to have the bronze erected at Churchhill Downs, Louisville, over which the Kentucky Derby is run annually, but Lexington citizens have asked that the statue be placed in Man o War's home town. The thoroughbred is enjoying the life of a prince on a farm near Lexington.

Reilly was a member of the governor's party on a tour of the Kentucky Bluegrass region following the derby this year. When he saw Man o War at Faraway farm at Lexington, he became an enthusiastic admirer of the horse and began formulating plans for the statue.

F. G. R. Roth, New York sculptor, was commissioned to execute the statute.

Texan's 68, 3 Under Par, Tops Qualifying Play

SHREVEPORT, La., July 23. (AP)—Ralph Goodell of Dallas, medalist in the last Texas state tournament, today served notice on a large field of Texas, Louisiana and Arkansas golfers, that he is going to be a distinct menace to his rivals in play for the Southwestern Golf championship.

Playing the Country club course in 68, 3 under par, the Texan topped the field of 85 golfers in today's qualifying play and played the same brilliant game that carried him through to medalist honors in the Texas tournament. Goodell played the first nine 34 and came back in the same figures.

Three strokes behind Goodell were Edwin McClure of Shreveport, state champion and Joe Ballard of Fort Worth, who played the course in 71, equaling par. Jack Speer of Houston, present Southwestern champion, shot a 73. His figure was equaled by Ross McDade of Shreveport, who likewise had 73.

The Possibilities

It will be interesting to see whether Campolo turns out to be another eminent ring possibility, with every chance for success, who fails to grab the opportunity.

He has size, strength, power, speed, some skill and something better than a fair punch. All the ingredients are there if he can take a little and is not too easily discouraged. He is one of the fastest big men the ring has seen in a long time. A lot depends upon his ambition and his capacity for work. These were two of Tunney's leading qualities and the ex-champion had nothing like the physical qualifications that Campolo carries into action. But Tunney was willing to work and learn, to improve his boxing and his punch from the best instruction he could get, added to almost endless practice.

Campolo can step around as lively as a middleweight. He has weight and height without any appearance of bulk. His muscular makeup should give him a world of punching power if he learns how to use it in full. He belongs to the type of material that can be easily improved and with a little more improvement he will deal out a carload of trouble to any one he meets.

It has been said that any height above six feet and any weight above 200 pounds is useless in the ring. There is no reason why this should be so if the excess height and weight can be properly trained. Most of this surplus stuff is all waste and in the way. Campolo, in his brief tryout the other night, gave evidence that he could use it.

He still has to prove that he can take a tagging without dropping or losing heart interest in the proceedings. And this happens to be a big part of the entire enterprise. He has a fair left hand, but with his reach he could develop a much better one, sufficiently useful to give him a good chance against any heavyweight he meets. At least he has the chance to get this far if he will only get all he can from the raw material at hand.

It Can Happen

"Didn't you get Hack Wilson and Bing Miller mixed up in a recent article?" asks L. D. Not mixed up so much as interchanged. One of those flops where you mean to write Miller and for some fuzzy reason write Wilson, both being hard-hitting outfielders. It can happen around midnight with the thermometer still above 88.

It shouldn't, but it can.

More Psychology

Walter Hagen used to figure that if any one could pick up four strokes on him in the first 18 holes there was no reason why he couldn't pick up five strokes on the same fellow in the next 18.

The Yankees have been figuring that if the Athletics could pick up nine or 10 games on them in the first half of the race there is no reason why they shouldn't pick up 10 games on the Athletics in the last half. Sometimes it works out that way and sometimes it doesn't. More than a little depends on the other fellow. He may stick to the habit and pick up more ground in place of losing what he has.

Psychology is one thing. Putting it across is something else again.

One of the Old Slogans

Bill Roper sang his slogan, "The team that won't be beaten can't be beaten," into his Princeton teams. The average was quite high and that is all one can ask. But every now and then the other team felt the same way about being beaten and that always complicated matters.

"The will to win" usually is a great idea, but there has to be something more. The other fellow may have the same will to win and more stuff to carry it through.

Luck works out the same way. The winner more often than not also is lucky. At least he has better than an even share of the breaks. But he has to have something on the side to make the luck count. And often this includes a temperament or a disposition that will stand up against the tough breaks until the good ones come. Many an entry has wilted under hard-luck where by hanging on he had enough good luck coming to carry him through.

Tough Shots

The toughest shot in golf for me
Is any shot from green to tee.
—F. L. H.
But in most golf games I have seen
The order runs from tee to green.

There is a rumor around to the effect that the Davis cup still is just as well satisfied with French wine as it is with synthetic American gin or Scotch.

The genial duffer always is ready to try the impossible in golf. As for example, throwing his right side around and still keeping the club head traveling on the correct line of flight. A contortionist can do this with much practice, but while many golfers look like contortionists at times, they are not. The right should come more under than around. When the right side whirls around in one of those dizzy half-circles anything can happen—except good results.

Sock Salesman 'Sold' On Navy by Customer

SAN ANTONIO, July 23. (AP)—And the best salesman won!

Hereafter local salesmanagers will beware of sending their salesmen into the office of Chief Robert Drewry of the naval training station.

It was a case of one good salesman outselling another.

Daily Dope

By LARRY DAILEY

EVIDENCE against the "Jack Rabbit" ball is piling up and it is apparent that the day of the lively pellet is rapidly nearing an end. The United Press, making a poll of leading major and minor league baseball men, finds overwhelming sentiment in favor of the adoption of a slower ball, to curtail the epidemic of home run hitting now prevailing.

Jim Galloway, skipper of the Spudders, is extensively quoted by UP, and the words of the Wichita Falls manager are both interesting and illuminating. It is particularly noteworthy that Jim expresses the opinion that the ball should be made less lively and that the restrictions against freak deliveries by pitchers should NOT be lifted.

"MY OPINION is that the ball used today is much faster than in other days," Galloway said. "The manufacturer is overlooking the quality in obtaining his effect, as we use many more balls per game than formerly on account of the balls being so easily scuffed.

"I figure it would help the game to make the balls slower in order to aid the pitchers, rather than turn the pitchers loose in using freak deliveries with the live ball."

SUPPORTING Galloway in his stand is Derrill Pratt, manager of the Waco Cubs, who expressed the same view. "Lively balls are causing too many home runs and are ruining the game in the Texas league," Pratt said. And Dale Gear, president of the Western league, yesterday made the announcement that that circuit would adopt a ball with less "carry" than the sphere it now employs.

It is reiterated that baseball will be a better and more interesting game when this joke home run stuff is eliminated and the pastime reverts back to the era of a decade ago, when sacrificing, base running and other sharp practises made it a speedy and scientific contest.

Players Umpire When A. A. Arbiter Is Injured

MINNEAPOLIS, July 23. (AP)—Two regulars, one from each team, stepped into the breach here yesterday at the Minneapolis-Indianapolis American association tilt to pinch hit for Umpire George Johnson who was unable to report because of a sprained ankle.

Jimmie Middleton, Minneapolis pitcher, and Carl Boone, member of the visiting club, both took opportunity to call their own teammates "out" as they subbed as base arbiters. Johnson was hurt Sunday when struck by a pop bottle hurled by a spectator.

STEENGRAFE HURLS 8-4 SERIES SWEEP AND SPUDS KEEP LEAD

PETE TURGEON CLOUTS HOMER

Benton and Bennett Other Leaders of Attack

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANTONIO, July 23.—Milt Steengrafe held the Inidans in check today and the Spudders retained the Texas league lead by sweeping the two-game series with an 8 to 4 victory.

The Spudders emerged from a batting slump to hammer Leon Baker and Tiny Jim Chaplin for 16 hits. Pete Turgeon clouted a home run with a comrade on the base line and also pounded two singles. Benton and Bennett got three hits each. Rabbitt smacking a brace of doubles and Red one two-base wallop. Fitzgerald, Hermann and Stapleton got two hits each.

Big Milt in Form

Steengrafe kept the Inidans' 12 hits well scattered and after the Spudders established a 5-2 lead in the seventh it was just a breeze for the big righthander.

Riley and Kott were leaders of the Tribe attack with three blows apiece.

Fielding was consistent and at times brilliant, and was marked by particularly glittering work of the Spudder infield and Fitzgerald.

Indians Score in First

The Spudders tied the count in the third. Benton doubled to center but was out at third on Turgeon's grounder to Flippen. Fitzgerald singled to right, advancing Turgeon to third. Bennett filed to Prozovitch, scoring Turgeon.

Wichita Falls counted two in the fifth when Benton hit his second double and ambled home ahead of Turgeon on Pete's circuit smash over the left field wall.

The Indians scored one in their half. Ballew beat out an infield hit after two were out. Benton fumbled Casey's bounder. Riley hit to right, scoring Ballew.

Spudders Score Moore

The Spudders added two more in the seventh. Turgeon, Fitzgerald and Bennett singled to fill the bases. Sullivan forced Bennett at second, Turgeon scoring. Hermann singled past third, scoring Fitzgerald.

Three more runs cinched the game for Galloway's gallopers in the eighth. Ballew threw wild on Crouch's grounder, Jack going to second. Steengrafe hit past second sending Crouch to third. Steengrafe stole second. Benton singled to center, scoring Crouch and Steengrafe, and took second on the throw-in. Turgeon singled, scoring Benton.

Pat Newnam's athletes scored in their eighth. Kott and Flippen singled. Meyers batted for Arzatti and walked, filling the bases. Schuman, batting for Baker, struck out. Tate hoisted to Fitzgerald, scoring Kott.

The Tribe added their last run in the ninth.

Hal Wiltse probably will hurl the opener tomorrow of a three-day series at Waco.

Statue Planned For Man o' War

Bronze Cast Will Honor Greatest Race Horse

FRANKFORT, Ky., July 23. (AP)—Citizens of Lexington, Ky., are angling for the bronze to be cast of Man o War, famous race horse.

Plans to immortalize the thoroughbred were announced recently, by Governor Sampson, following an exchange of letters with F. C. Reilly of New York, who conceived the idea.

The memorial would be life-size. It originally was Reilly's proposal to have the bronze erected at Churchhill Downs, Louisville, over which the Kentucky Derby is run annually, but Lexington citizens have asked that the statue be placed in Man o War's home town. The thoroughbred is enjoying the life of a prince on a farm near Lexington.

Reilly was a member of the governor's party on a tour of the Kentucky Bluegrass region following the derby this year. When he saw Man o War at Faraway farm at Lexington, he became an enthusiastic admirer of the horse and began formulating plans for the statue.

F. G. R. Roth, New York sculptor, was commissioned to execute the statute.

SHREVEPORT, La., July 23. (AP)—Ralph Goodell of Dallas, medalist in the last Texas state tournament, today served notice on a large field of Texas, Louisiana and Arkansas golfers, that he is going to be a distinct menace to his rivals in play for the Southwestern Golf championship.

Three strokes behind Goodell were Edwin McClure of Shreveport, state champion and Joe Ballard of Fort Worth, who played the course in 71, equaling par. Jack Speer of Houston, present Southwestern champion, shot a 73. His figure was equaled by Ross McDade of Shreveport, who likewise had 73.

The Possibilities

It will be interesting to see whether Campolo turns out to be another eminent ring possibility, with every chance for success, who fails to grab the opportunity.

He has size, strength, power, speed, some skill and something better than a fair punch. All the ingredients are there if he can take a little and is not too easily discouraged. He is one of the fastest big men the ring has seen in a long time. A lot depends upon his ambition and his capacity for work. These were two of Tunney's leading qualities and the ex-champion had nothing like the physical qualifications that Campolo carries into action. But Tunney was willing to work and learn, to improve his boxing and his punch from the best instruction he could get, added to almost endless practice.

Campolo can step around as lively as a middleweight. He has weight and height without any appearance of bulk. His muscular makeup should give him a world of punching power if he learns how to use it in full. He belongs to the type of material that can be easily improved and with a little more improvement he will deal out a carload of trouble to any one he meets.

It has been said that any height above six feet and any weight above 200 pounds is useless in the ring. There is no reason why this should be so if the excess height and weight can be properly trained. Most of this surplus stuff is all waste and in the way. Campolo, in his brief tryout the other night, gave evidence that he could use it.

He still has to prove that he can take a tagging without dropping or losing heart interest in the proceedings. And this happens to be a big part of the entire enterprise. He has a fair left hand, but with his reach he could develop a much better one, sufficiently useful to give him a good chance against any heavyweight he meets. At least he has the chance to get this far if he will only get all he can from the raw material at hand.

It Can Happen

"Didn't you get Hack Wilson and Bing Miller mixed up in a recent article?" asks L. D. Not mixed up so much as interchanged. One of those flops where you mean to write Miller and for some fuzzy reason write Wilson, both being hard-hitting outfielders. It can happen around midnight with the thermometer still above 88.

It shouldn't, but it can.

More Psychology

Walter Hagen used to figure that if any one could pick up four strokes on him in the first 18 holes there was no reason why he couldn't pick up five strokes on the same fellow in the next 18.

The Yankees have been figuring that if the Athletics could pick up nine or 10 games on them in the first half of the race there is no reason why they shouldn't pick up 10 games on the Athletics in the last half. Sometimes it works out that way and sometimes it doesn't. More than a little depends on the other fellow. He may stick to the habit and pick up more ground in place of losing what he has.

Psychology is one thing. Putting it across is something else again.

One of the Old Slogans

Bill Roper sang his slogan, "The team that won't be beaten can't be beaten," into his Princeton teams. The average was quite high and that is all one can ask. But every now and then the other team felt the same way about being beaten and that always complicated matters.

"The will to win" usually is a great idea, but there has to be something more. The other fellow may have the same will to win and more stuff to carry it through.

Luck works out the same way. The winner more often than not also is lucky. At least he has better than an even share of the breaks. But he has to have something on the side to make the luck count. And often this includes a temperament or a disposition that will stand up against the tough breaks until the good ones come. Many an entry has wilted under hard-luck where by hanging on he had enough good luck coming to carry him through.

Tough Shots

The toughest shot in golf for me
Is any shot from green to tee.
—F. L. H.

But in most golf games I have seen
The order runs from tee to green.

There is a rumor around to the effect that the Davis cup still is just as well satisfied with French wine as it is with synthetic American gin or Scotch.

The genial duffer always is ready to try the impossible in golf. As for example, throwing his right side around and still keeping the club head traveling on the correct line of flight. A contortionist can do this with much practice, but while many golfers look like contortionists at times, they are not. The right should come more under than around. When the right side whirls around in one of those dizzy half-circles anything can happen—except good results.

Sock Salesman 'Sold' On Navy by Customer

SAN ANTONIO, July 23. (AP)—And the best salesman won!

Hereafter local salesmanagers will beware of sending their salesmen into the office of Chief Robert Drewry of the naval training station.

It was a case of one good salesman outselling another.

Daily Dope

By LARRY DAILEY

EVIDENCE against the "Jack Rabbit" ball is piling up and it is apparent that the day of the lively pellet is rapidly nearing an end. The United Press, making a poll of leading major and minor league baseball men, finds overwhelming sentiment in favor of the adoption of a slower ball, to curtail the epidemic of home run hitting now prevailing.

Jim Galloway, skipper of the Spudders, is extensively quoted by UP, and the words of the Wichita Falls manager are both interesting and illuminating. It is particularly noteworthy that Jim expresses the opinion that the ball should be made less lively and that the restrictions against freak deliveries by pitchers should NOT be lifted.

"MY OPINION is that the ball used today is much faster than in other days," Galloway said. "The manufacturer is overlooking the quality in obtaining his effect, as we use many more balls per game than formerly on account of the balls being so easily scuffed.

"I figure it would help the game to make the balls slower in order to aid the pitchers, rather than turn the pitchers loose in using freak deliveries with the live ball."

SUPPORTING Galloway in his stand is Derrill Pratt, manager of the Waco Cubs, who expressed the same view. "Lively balls are causing too many home runs and are ruining the game in the Texas league," Pratt said. And Dale Gear, president of the Western league, yesterday made the announcement that that circuit would adopt a ball with less "carry" than the sphere it now employs.

It is reiterated that baseball will be a better and more interesting game when this joke home run stuff is eliminated and the pastime reverts back to the era of a decade ago, when sacrificing, base running and other sharp practises made it a speedy and scientific contest.

Players Umpire When A. A. Arbiter Is Injured

MINNEAPOLIS, July 23. (AP)—Two regulars, one from each team, stepped into the breach here yesterday at the Minneapolis-Indianapolis American association tilt to pinch hit for Umpire George Johnson who was unable to report because of a sprained ankle.

Jimmie Middleton, Minneapolis pitcher, and Carl Boone, member of the visiting club, both took opportunity to call their own teammates "out" as they subbed as base arbiters. Johnson was hurt Sunday when struck by a pop bottle hurled by a spectator.

"MAKE MONEY SAVE MONEY"

When You Consider Their Accomplishments—

The small cost of a Classified Ad is almost ridiculous. Very frequently a 60c ad sells a $1,000.00 automobile or a $30,000.00 home. And the increasingly universal use of this type of advertising means that these Ads do PRODUCE!

No wonder that Daily Times-Record News Classified Ads are called the "Twentieth Century Miracle Workers."

COTTON HANDS MOVE SOUTH

Crop in Wichita County Above Normal

The annual hegira of cotton-pickers from North Texas and Southern Oklahoma to the ripened fields near the gulf is now in full swing.

Hundreds of "hitch-hikers," many carrying bags well stocked with clothing for a four-months' working migration from Galveston to Amarillo, have been reported present on almost every main highway leading to South Texas, where the cotton harvest is now well under way. Constantly increasing numbers of vehicles ranging from wheezy flivvers to well-conditioned cars and trucks, many of them carrying entire families, are moving other workers to the southern fields, it was reported. This vast army of migratory gleaners will move slowly over the state during the coming five months, augmented slowly as it moves northward by additions from fields which have given up their yield.

Cotton in the Wichita Falls community is in unusually good condition, according to the chamber of commerce agricultural department. Destructive pests were reduced to a minimum by the prolonged hot weather of the past 30 days, it was stated, while the rains of last week have supplied moisture for rapid development of the crop. Prospects were said to indicate a better than normal yield.

Pastures on which dairy herds of the county graze have been materially improved also by recent rainfall, it was said. Grass which had become very short will be renewed sufficiently to offer good pasture for several more weeks according to reports received.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, July 23. (AP)—Cotton declined today under realizing on favorable weather news and expectations of a fairly favorable weekly report from the weather bureau tomorrow. October contracts sold off to 18.83 and closed at 18.85, with the general market closing steady at net declines of 22 to 27 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 7 to 10 points under selling. July was relatively weak, influenced by the circulation of notices representing about 5,000 bales of cotton according to estimates. This may have helped unsettle later months and slight rallies after the call were followed by renewed weakness. The prospect for showers in the southwest seemed to impress sentiment favorably and the opinion was expressed in some quarters that the crop was probably making fairly normal progress for the month of July. Buying developed as prices approached the 19-cent level for January contracts, but it was in no great volume and rallies were not fully maintained.

At the lowest active months showed net declines of 26 to 32 points with July selling at 18.36, December at 19.09 and January 15 19.01. Closing quotations were slightly up from the lowest on the new crop months on covering. A private report said the condition of the crop had declined during the past week and that the rate of deterioration was approximating that usual during July. Some buying was reported during the afternoon on reports of increasing weevil infestation and damage in Mississippi.

Private cables said there had been liquidation and Bombay selling in Liverpool on the reports of better weather in the south. Exports today 11,893 making 8,167,442 so far this season. Port receipts 2,642. U. S. port stocks, 591,007.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, July 23. (AP)—Cotton declined today on easier cables than due, favorable weather and liquidation by the New York bull pool. After opening 7 points down, the market gradually worked lower under persistent liquidation until at the lowest reached after mid-session, prices showed losses of 29 to 31 points. There was a slight rally of 4 points in the late trading. October which closed yesterday at 19.17 declined to 18.69, down 29 points, and closed at 18.73 or 24 points net lower for the day. The general market closed barely steady at net losses of 24 to 27 points.

Liverpool came in as due to 3 points worse and first trades here showed losses of 7 points. The market continued to ease. On favorable weather until October traded at 18.85 and December at 19.02 or 12 to 15 points below the previous close.

After a rally of 7 points on trade buying the market turned easier on a forecast for fair weather and the decline was hastened by reports that the bull pool was selling. October dropped to 18.69 and December to 18.86 or 29 to 31 points below the previous close.

There was a rally of 4 points in the late trading and October closed at 18.73 and December at 18.90 or 24 to 27 points net lower for the day.

Chrysler Earnings Reports Bears Major Influence of Healthier Trade

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, July 23. (US)—Short covering influenced a steady rally in the stock market today. It was influenced by the Chrysler earnings report for the second quarter, which showed larger net than expected, and was added to by expectation of easier money conditions over the next week. Chrysler gained 5¼. General Motors 3¼ and Packard climbed 3⅝. Steel enjoyed good demand throughout and closed near its record high price for gain of 3⅛ while Can and other Standard Industrials held to narrow price range. Utilities remained in favor with Public Service of New Jersey gaining 1⅛, United Gas a point and United Corporation about the same amount. Simmons featured the specialties with a 14 point gain while Pennsylvania, Central and Union Pacific led a firm railroad group. Oils were comparatively quiet but fairly steady. Call money remained in good supply throughout at seven per cent. Turnover again fell under the 4,000,000 share level.

While considerable attention has been attracted by the increased value of security holdings of numerous investment trusts there is little realization of the full benefit derived by American International Corporation in recent months. It is learned that the corporation recorded a new high record value in its security holdings each Monday of the last nine weeks. Earnings, including net return and unrealized profits, for the first half of the year were more than earned in the whole of 1928. It has been a "market in stocks" and not a stock market and promises to continue so for a while to come, it is maintained. Where commitments are in stocks, that are not moving, it is pointed out, it has been proven profitable to make a quick shift.

The Utility interests continue actively at work and there was further indication that important developments were pending in United Gas, United Corporation, Pacific Lighting, Electric Investors and others. United Corporation is said to have added to its holdings of both United Gas and Public Service through open market operations. Record breaking earnings reports of General Electric and Western Electric were no surprise to readers of this column. In the case of General Electric, there is no doubt that even larger return could be shown and the belief is strengthened that the stock will be split up again before long.

Leaders of the Steel industry are confident that continued good demand will be experienced in the third quarter. Bethlehem's earnings statement Thursday, it is forecast already, will be duplicated in the showing for the current period. Skelly and Asphalt are the two remaining Oil stocks receiving any attention at all from interested groups. Skelly was helped somewhat by opinion that cut in the Pennsylvania crude price would not necessarily force reduction in Mid-Continent. Radiator report of earnings, knowledge of which influenced recent selling, is expected to be issued within the near future. Pennsylvania and St. Paul remain the favorites of the speculative Rails. The $5 dividend for Penney, exclusively forecast here some weeks ago, appears very near. St. Paul buying appears to be accumulation based on hope for continuance of improvement in earnings.

One could hear almost any kind of a story about General Motors, "resignations," "fights," "important selling," etc. With a different lurid tale in every brokerage office. Even Durant's name was mentioned. Those who should know most of the corporation's affairs laughed at all the reports. Concentration of activities of the corporation is progressing steadily and there never was greater unanimity of action, it was claimed. Advance in the stock reflected the crowded short interest and expectation that the report to be issued after the close would not be bearish. Net reported of slightly over $2 a share for the three months was better than many expected. It was learned that Durant is back in town and feeling his way in some of his favorite stocks.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, July 23. (AP)—Enthusiasts for $2.00 a bushel wheat met with hard sledding today as reports that Argentine wheat is heavily underselling wheat from North America in Europe turned the market here downward as low as 5⅝c from the day's peak.

Wheat closed nervous, 1⅞c to 2⅝c below yesterday's finish. Corn closed unchanged to 1⅛c higher, oats ⅛c to ½c off, and provisions unchanged to 45c down.

At first wheat showed a notable fresh upward trend, but it soon grew apparent that the market was no longer able to command aggressive support.

Low barometer advices from Canada indicative of a possible break in drought conditions were an incentive for selling. Winnipeg dispatches from a leading Chicago crop expert however said the probable yield in the Canadian prairie provinces would be only 215,000,000 bushels and perhaps as little as 200,000,000 bushels. He said millions of acres would not pay to harvest. These reports led to a considerable recovery in prices toward the last, even in the face of apparent complete absence of export business from Canada or the United States.

Corn owed its strength to persistent reports of backwardness of corn growth. Oats mainly paralleled the action of wheat.

Breaks in hog values induced something of a drop in the provision market.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, July 23. (AP) (U. S. D. A.)—Cattle trade around the 11 market circuit was marked by the efforts of packers to hammer prices on most all killing classes. Highly finished steers and yearlings held around steady, but less desirable natives and western grassers were 25 to 50c lower. Chicago had a top of $16.50 on medium weights and heavy steers. Numerous loads of fleshy western steers at Kansas City one shipment of 1,360 lb. wintered Kansans realized $14.50. Aggregate receipts were estimated at 43,400, an increase of 5,300 over a week ago and 8,000 heavier than the corresponding day last year.

Hogs declined 15 to 35 cents. The day's extreme top of $12.15 was paid at Chicago and St. Louis. Total offerings 87,800 as compared with 92,857 last Tuesday and 59,082 a year ago.

The sheep supply approximated 41,900, an increase of 5,000 over a week ago, but 6,000 short of a year ago. Fat lambs were on a steady to 25c lower price basis. Choice range lambs in Chicago topped at $14.85.

The petition filed by the plaintiff alleges that Mrs. Maunders was thrown from her machine when it was struck by a car driven by Morgan and owned by the cement company on Jan. 22 of this year. The accident happened at the intersection of Grace and Holliday streets. Mrs. Maunders was seriously and permanently injured in the fall to the pavement, according to the allegations made in the papers.

Members of the county commissioners court will hold a second special meeting of the week Wednesday morning for the purpose of canvassing the returns of the recent constitutional amendment election. The court is also expected to fix upon a tax levy for the special drainage district east of Wichita Falls which was created several months ago for the drainage of farm land injured by seepage from irrigation ditches. The levy must meet the payments on a $35,000 bond issue requested by the property owners in the district, which forms a part of precinct No. 1.

Bill Habern, son of Grover Habern, who was overcome by smoke and heat while fighting the flames which destroyed the Lydick Roofing company plant last Friday night, was taken to Mineral Wells Tuesday morning in order to recuperate from the effects of the gases which entered his lungs, it was learned Tuesday afternoon. The young man was taken to the Wichita General hospital after he had been overcome and it was thought that his condition would improve when he had been taken away from the fire, as in the case of several other firemen. He failed to recover fully, however, and it was decided to send him to Mineral Wells for a rest.

MIZELL NAMED DAIRY EXPERT

Three-Year Program Here Gets Under Way

problem here is practically solved by creameries already in operation, and my work will be concentrated on rationing the cattle and trying to help the dairymen raise the feed they need right here in the county; in weeding out non-productive stock; organizing bull circles; and in helping meet the financial needs of the industry."

In his talk with members of the court Tuesday afternoon, the new employe explained that he had been reared in Waxahachie, Texas, and had begun his education in Trinity university, where he spent the years from 1914 to 1917. At the end of that period he enlisted in the aero squadron of the 197th division, getting his training in Love field. After his discharge from the army at the end of the world war, Mr. Mizell resumed his studies at A. & M. college where he was graduated, later completing two years of graduate work in agricultural economics at the University of Wisconsin. Following his studies there he worked for two years with the Farm Bureau Cotton association in Houston.

Four years ago, Mr. Mizell, told the court, he became instructor of agricultural economics at A. & M. relinquishing that position to accept the secretaryship of the Yoakum Chamber of Commerce in 1927. His work in the south Texas city has been concentrated in the development of the dairy industry where promising results have already been obtained, the specialist explained.

Program Outlined

Mr. Mizell left Wichita Falls late Tuesday for Yoakum where he will prepare for an immediate move. He expects to bring Mrs. Mizell and their 6 year old son back with him by Monday of next week.

The program outlined by the special committee and presented to the expert Tuesday is reproduced below. It begins with a schedule of his work with the banks. In that phase of the work the specialist is to serve as contact man between the county banks and the farmer; to inspect dairy cattle loans, and to help arrange financial backing for the purchase of dairy cattle, the schedule begins. He is is also to locate cattle needed, and help direct the purchasing and the distribution of the stock. His general activities include the organization of a cow testing association and of bull circles; the fostering of an educational program concerned with the feeding and management of cattle purchased as well as the stock already in the county; the encouragement and improvement of planted pasture crops, sweet clover and alfalfa.

The suggested three year program goes on as follows:

First Year

Make survey of dairy cattle in county.
Receive applications and make inspection dairy cattle loans.
Locate and purchase dairy cattle for farmers.
Give instruction in feeding and management of dairy cattle to farmers.
Organize bull circles.
Encourage all farmers milking cows to have them tested regularly.

Second Year

Same as first with following additions.
Culling campaign of non-profitable cows.
Encourage planting of sweet clover and alfalfa.
Encourage growing of more feed crops for dairy cattle feed.
Utilization of feeds grown for dairy cattle feed.

Third Year

Same as first and second with the following additions:
Closer culling campaign of non-profitable cows.
Pure bred bull campaign.
Pasture crop improvement campaign.

LOVE SPEAKS AT CLEBURNE

Anti-Tammany Slate In State Race Looms

CLEBURNE, Texas, July 23. (UP)—A threat that anti-Tammany Democrats would run, if necessary, as independent candidates in the next Texas state elections was made in an addresses here tonight by Thomas B. Love, announced candidate for governor of Texas.

Love, a militant Democratic Hoover campaigner in the last election and present state senator, said those who voted for Hoover would have to be admitted to the Democratic primaries because of Texas law providing "that no person shall ever be denied participation in a primary because of former political views or affiliations."

"But even if Democrats who voted against the Tammany electoral ticket are barred from Democratic primaries," he said, "even if a resort to the courts shall fail, the way would be open for them to run as independent candidates."

He predicted the anti-Tammany majority would carry the state.

Ad Club Hears Talk On Use of Pictures

"Without illustration, any advertisement is absolutely without individuality, and has practically no value," said Harry Olsen of the Southwestern Engraving company Tuesday noon in an address before the Ad club at the Kemp hotel.

H. J. Bruce and Porter Oakes were announced as the speakers ofr next week's meeting. In a business session held following the luncheon Tuesday, plans were laid for a campaign designed to increase the club membership.

Mr. Phillips is building a hangar on his 3,000 acre ranch at Bartlesville, Okla., to house the Woolaroc, the plane which Art Goebel flew from Oakland, Calif., to Honolulu on Aug. 17, 1927, to win the Dole $25,000 prize. The Woolaroc is shown above, and below the stone and steel hangar which will be its home.

Shumate Released On Bond of $3,000

Henry Shumate, state witness in the tiral of Ed Pryor on robbery accessory charges and himself under three indictments charging robbery with firearms, Tuesday was released from the Wichita county jail under a $3,000 bond. Shumate has admitted the robbery of the Jefferson hotel, the Grand theater, and a cigar stand in Electra last year, his testimony on the stand involving Pryor, former constable, and Tom Shook, former chief of police at Electra, now a fugitive after a jail break here in the late summer of 1928.

Pryor is still in jail pending the outcome of an appeal from an eight year sentence given him on charges of playing the part of an accessory to the robbery of the Jefferson hotel.

DANDRUFF

A Sure Way to End It

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely, and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy never fails.—Adv.
