WOMAN MAKES SUGGESTION FOR A NEW LEAGUE

NOTHING OFFICIAL ABOUT IT ACCORDING TO SENATOR FRANCE OF MARYLAND

SAME AS THE PROPOSAL MADE TO SENATOR HARDING

Senator Promises to Make Public Contents of Letter on His Return to Maryland.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—The letters from France received by Senator Joseph I. France of Maryland proposing a change in the organization of the present League of Nations were from a woman and not a man, the senator said today. The proposal death chiefly with desirability of calling "an international convention of friends of peace," he said.

Senator France, however, said the offer was very much the same as that made to Senator Harding an that although said she believed she was expressing the views of the French people, the senator said that the government of France was in no way connected with the affair.

"There was nothing official about it," Senator France declared, referring to the overtures made him on the probability of America joining with France and other countries in forming an association of nations to prevent war.

Distinguished Writer.

"A distinguished woman writer of France made the offer to me," he said. "She is a member of an organization which is working quietly among the thinkers of her nation in order to form a body, in connection with the United States, which will give subject nations a definite chance for self-government as soon as they have proved themselves capable of it.

"It does not seem to be generally known in this country that the labor party of Great Britain and the workers of France are strongly opposed to the League of Nations as at present constituted. Similar bodies in other European nations endeavored to have inserted a clause in the Versailles treaty which would give subject nations a position in relation to the great power to which it belonged analogous to that existing between the Philippine Islands and the United States.

Want New Covenant.

"The imperialistic officials who formed the great council that drew up the League of Nations refused to permit the change in that clause. Its proponents of those days are now working quietly to secure a new League. I have letters from the Lawyer's Association of Calcutta, many persons in Ireland and other centers of subject nations indicating that the movement is growing for a new covenant that will really govern the world."

Senator France said he did not have copies of the letter with him, but that when he returned to Maryland he would give them out for publication. He said he did not wish to make known the name of the woman writer as it might make trouble for her with her own government.

PARIS HAS NOT SOLVED MYSTERY OF SUGGESTION

By HENRY WOOD
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

PARIS, Oct. 20.—Paris has not solved the mystery of who informed Senator Warren G. Harding that France is interested in a new association of nations. The general impression here was that the senator's statement was based on the declaration of some well informed Frenchman.

If the senators' informant was Maurice De Kobra, corespondent of La Liberte, as suggested by Governor Cox, no one on the paper knows of it. Editor in Chief Bard shrugged his shoulders when the question was put to him.

"Whatever De Kobra would have said would be only his personal opinion as a newspaper man," Bard said.

Campaign Incident.

Press comment generally regarded the controversy as nothing more than a campaign incident without importance outside the United States. The Echo De Paris alone commented on the situation, saying:

"It is quite evident that in France, as well as England, it is not desired that the League of Nations, founded principally for the purpose of assuring us of the co-operation of America, should, despite the grave inconveniences which it presents, prevent by reason of its constitution, this co-operation. In other words the society itself is of no little help to us in its present form that we have no reason for opposing a change."

DE KOBRA DENIES THAT HE HAS SEEN HARDING

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Maurice De Kobra, whom Governor Cox intimated was the man who told Senator Harding the French people would like America to lead a movement for a new association of nations, today denied he had ever seen Harding.

De Kobra is correspondent for a Paris newspaper.

"I tried to interview Senator Harding but he refused to see me," De Kobra said. "I even sent word to him and asked him to explain his stand on the League of Nations, particularly for the French people who are extremely interested in the present campaign.

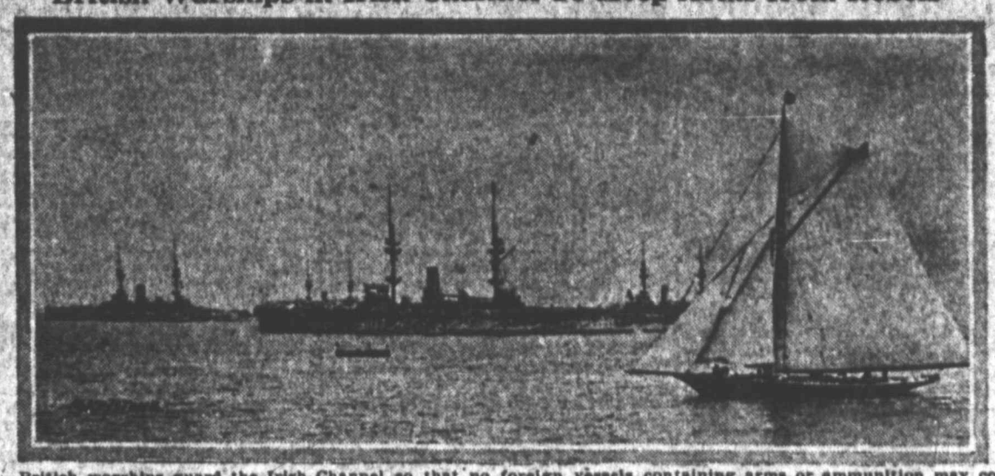

"I recently talked to Governor Cox. I gave him the attitude of the French people as far as I knew it and he explained his stand."

CONFESSES TO ATTEMPT TO POISON HIS FATHER

SALINA, KAN., Oct. 20.—Harlan Hawk, 18 year old son of M. Hawk, last night confessed that he attempted to poison his father and that he was the party who threw iodine into his own eyes. The confession reveals the fact that he is either unbalanced or a "maniac." He told the officers that he has been trying to get his father to put in electric lights for three years.

The father refused. He seemed to think poisoning the family would rush the installation of lights. He also had been studying chemistry at school, and there are those who believed he was experimenting. When arrested he had a loaded revolver in his pocket.

NINE PERSONS ARE KILLED IN A WRECK ON N. Y. CENTRAL

ERIE, PA., Oct. 20.—Nine persons are known to have been killed and at least 17 injured in a wreck on the New York Central railroad, near the union station here today. Some of the injured are so badly hurt that hospital physicians said they expected the list of casualties to be increased.

The body of a baby was recovered from the wrecked car, bringing the total known deaths to seven, and a few minutes later word was sent out from St. Vincent's hospital that two of the injured had died. This made a total of nine deaths, according to the authorities.

Six bodies previously had been removed from the wreckage.

Early reports to railroad men were that a party of signal repairmen working near the station had become confused when they saw the two passenger trains coming from opposite directions and one of them was throwing a switch when the train from Buffalo rushed by. The next instant the crash came. One of the dead was believed to be a signal man.

Four Persons Killed.

ROANOKE, VA., Oct. 20.—Norfolk & Western offices report four persons killed and an unknown number injured in a wreck at Rural Retreat this morning soon after 4 o'clock.

FORMER SECRETARY TEXAS REPUBLICANS WILL VOTE FOR COX

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 20.—Otto Patterson, a local lawyer, formerly secretary of the republican state committee of Texas, today announced he would vote for Governor Cox, democratic presidential candidate, because of the "impossible" stand taken on the League of Nations by Senator Harding, republican candidate. Hull, candidate for the republican nomination for governor of Illinois in 1916, four times republican representative of the Fifth district in the Illinois assembly, and no republican delegate to the Illinois constitutional convention, today announced his support of Governor Cox in the presidential campaign.

Mr. Hull stated that he was forced to the support of the democratic national ticket by what he termed "a confession of moral and intellectual bankruptcy" by Senator Harding on the League of Nations issue.

MEXICAN CLAIM TO RECOGNITION BEING WEIGHED

MATTER IS RECEIVING PERSONAL CONSIDERATION AT HANDS OF THE PRESIDENT.

KEEPS HIMSELF INFORMED ON RECENT DEVELOPMENT

Greatest Secrecy is Maintained by the Department Officials at Washington.

By A. L. BRADFORD
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—President Wilson personally is weighing the claims of Mexico for American recognition, it was learned authoritatively today.

The president is keeping himself informed on every important development in the southern republic.

Reports of the latest turn in Mexican events and reports detailing the general situation from time to time are frequently rushed to the White House from the state department. The American embassy in Mexico City keeps the wires and cables busy so that the president may be fully informed on the Mexican situation. Some time ago American recognition was in effect, formally refused the De La Huerta government of Mexico, it was learned. When High Commissioner Iglesias Calderon first came to Washington, he tried to present to the state department an official letter, addressed to the president of the United States and signed by Provisional President De La Huerta. It announced the election of the latter and indicated a wish of Mexico to resume relations with the United States. The government refused to accept the missive.

Outside of the Japanese negotiations there is no question facing this government which is held more secret than the Mexican situation. State department heads have confined themselves to denying intermittant erroneous reports on the question of Mexican recognition. They deny any knowledge of George Creel, former head of the committee on public information, representing the president in Mexico.

GOV. COX FACES A BUSY DAY IN CAMPAIGN EAST

DEMANDS THAT SENATOR HARDING REVEAL IDENTITY OF THE "FRENCHMAN."

BELIEVES THE PEOPLE HAVE RIGHT TO KNOW

Nine Speeches Scheduled in Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Connecticut.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Governor Cox, democratic presidential nominee, in a telegram from Boston made public at democratic national headquarters today, declared that "we have the enemy on the run and it now looks like a sweeping victory."

By HERBERT WALKER
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 20.—Governor Cox declared today that he will demand that Senator Harding reveal the identity of the persons who gave him the impression that France would look with favor on the republican candidate's proposal for a new association of nations.

Cox attacked the "French spokesman" issue as vigorously as he went after the "slush fund" issue early in the campaign.

Cox read the statement made at Marion in behalf of Harding by Judson C. Welliver, republican publicity director, who charged Cox had deliberately sent Maurice De Kobra, a French humorist, to Marion with the intention of having him see Harding and represent himself as speaking for France. Welliver charged De Kobra never saw Harding and the democratic candidate's "trap" was a failure. Cox ridiculed this statement.

"I believe the American people and the French government are entitled to know who is consulting with Senator Harding informally regarding our international relations'," the governor said.

Cox faced a busy day of speaking in Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Connecticut. He had nine speeches scheduled.

GOVERNOR COX RECEIVES ENTHUSIASTIC RECEPTION

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 20.—Governor Cox this morning received an enthusiastic reception when he addressed several thousand people at the public square here this morning.

Holding what he called a "town meeting" the democratic candidate was plied with questions upon the league, liquor and Irish questions.

A woman asked the governor his views regarding maintenance of the Volstead act. He asked whether she had put the same question to Senator Harding, his republican opponent, and then reiterated that the senator had voted "32 times wet and two times dry," and owned brewery stock.

Prohibition Record.

Declaring again that he opposed any prohibition legislation "in conflict with the constitution as interpreted by the supreme court of the United States," and that he had closed Ohio saloons on Sundays, the governor said he had been elected governor three times, adding: "And the liquor interests never contributed a nickel to my compaigns then or now."

His statement that he favored presentation of the Irish question to the league was cheered and when he declared "for self-determination," a man asked: "Does that apply to Ulster?"

"Ulster is a part of Ireland," was the governor's quick response.

Attacks Harding's Position.

Attacking Senator Harding's position upon the Irish question, the governor added: "During the last two weeks, republican speakers have been urged not to mention his name."

Charges that Senator Harding had taken numerous positions upon the league were reiterated by Governor Cox.

"Would you accept the Lodge reservations?" was another question.

"They were never seriously suggested," the candidate replied. "If they had been Senator Lodge would have declared for them in the republican platform."

Hitchcock Reservations.

The governor added that he was "most interested" in the Hitchcock reservations.

Before the league became a political question, Governor Cox said, Senator Lodge of Massachusetts had "endorsed it unreservedly."

Repeating his charge that Senator Lodge later "formed the basest and most infamous conspiracy" against the league, the governor declared that the republican leader was "the most despised man in America" and loud hisses from the audience followed.

DEMANDS INQUIRY INTO REPRISALS FROM POLICE

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The eagerly awaited debate on the Irish situation was precipitated in the house of commons today by Arthur Henderson, former labor member of the cabinet, who offered a motion demanding an inquiry into reprisals from the police and soldiers in Ireland.

While admitting that the armed forces of the crown had suffered provocation, Mr. Henderson declared the character of the reprisals they had taken were "quite in keeping with the aggressive policy which has been consistently pursued by the government."

The government's policy, Mr. Henderson asserted, seemed to him to aim at stamping out nationalist opinion and breaking the spirit of the Irish people.

SEVERE FIGHTING ALONG THE NORTHWESTERN FRONT

SEBASTOPOL, CRIMEA, Oct. 19.—Severe fighting continues along the Dnieper and northeastern front in the vicinity of Nipkopol. Leon Trotsky, Russian bolshevik minister of war, is reported to be bringing up ten divisions of communist forces which will not surrender as easily as the ordinary troops heretofore used on this line.

It is asserted numbers of former German officers in the Baltic provinces are offering their services to General Baron Wrangel, head of the anti-bolshevik south Russian government.

RELATIONS BETWEEN POLAND AND LITHUANIA MORE ACUTE

WARSAW, Oct. 19.—Relations between Poland and Lithuania are becoming more acute, according to advices from M. Kamenieski, Polish minister to Letvia, who has been attending the conference of Baltic states at Riga. On the eve of the return to Paris of the League of Nations commission, which has been attempting to reach a solution of questions arising between Poland and Lithuania, threats have been made by the latter nation to intern all Poles as a reprisal for the occupation of Vilna by General Zeligouski's army. As a consequence, many Poles are reported ot be leaving their native country.

Lithuania, according to M. Kamenieski, is determined to oppose Poland in every way possible. A Lithuanian army, says a dispatch from Grodno, is being mobilized, men up to the age of 45 being called to the colors. German officers are acting as instructors, it is said.

BEGIN INVESTIGATION OF CHICAGO BOARD OF TRADE

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—The federal trade commission today began an investigation of the operations of the Chicago board of trade in an endeavor to determine the cause of the recent depression in wheat prices.

The hearings follow complaints of Governor Henry Allen of Kansas that the slump was caused by speculators. He declared that speculators forced the price down six cents a bushel in one day and later attempted to begin a "farmers' boycott" on selling.

The principal witness at today's hearing was President F. L. Gates of the Chicago board of trade.

Francis Walker, chief examiner for the federal trade commission, is conducting the hearing.

TRADING ON THE SQUARE SAYS PRESIDENT OF BOARD

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Trading in grain on the Chicago board of trade is on the square, F. L. Gates, president of the board, told George P. Watkins, statistician for the federal trade commission here today.

Watkins is investigating charges made by Senator Capper and Governor Allen, both of Kansas, that grain prices are manipulated by the board and that gambling in grain is conducted on an extensive scale.

"There is no manipulation of prices or gambling on the board of trade," Gates said. The statement was made in a private interview between Watkins and the board of trade president. Watkins will not conduct open hearings but will interview officials of various boards of trade in cities where they exist.

"The recent drop of 6 cents in the price of wheat was due to the large amount of Canadian grain coming into the country," Gates continued. "The price of wheat did not go below the figure guaranteed by the government during the war except on two days, until October, when a large amount of Canadian grain started to go on the markets of this country."

Results of the present investigation may supplement the report of the probe made by a commission made three and a half years ago on order of President Wilson. This report has never been made public."

FOUR BILLION IS EXPENSE FACING THE GOVERNMENT

ESTIMATE IS MADE BY SECRETARY HOUSTON IN AN ADDRESS.

SPEAKS TO AMERICAN BANKERS ASSOCIATION

Secretary Outlines the Treasury's Program for Handling the War Debt.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Government expenditures of $4,000,000,000 during the next fiscal year were forecast by Secretary Houston of the treasury department today in an address before the convention of the American Bankers' association, in which he covered a wide range of financial and economic problems of the nation.

The secretary outlined the treasury's program for handling the war debt, liquidation of which, he said, must go on steadily in order that final redemption be accomplished without disturbances of national life. He appealed for "the strictest economy not only in our expenditures —federal, state, county and municipal—but also thrift on the part of our people," adding that the program necessitated the maintenance of taxation "after this fiscal year on a level of not less" than $4,000,000,000 annually.

Falling Off in Receipts.

Mr. Houston said there were indications of falling receipts because there was no means of predicting the course of business or incomes and profits. The receipts for the present fiscal year, he reported, would be materially lower than the record of $5,500,000,000 last year, expressing the belief that the receipts would not greatly exceed the required $4,000,000,000 under the present levy.

"We cannot afford to operate on a tax basis which would give up revenues below those anticipated," the speaker continued, "and in plans for revision this should be definitely borne in mind.

"Let me make this point clear: In saying that the aggregate receipts of the government should be maintained at a high level for the purpose indicated, I am by no means committing myself to existing schedules or to specific taxes. Much of the war legislation was of necessity hastily devised. I think it of urgent importance that there be prompt resurvey of the situation with a view to a reform of the taxes, to the wiping out of inequities and inequalities and the assurance of sufficient revenue which may not be realized if the present system remains intact."

Program Disarranged.

The treasury's program had been disarranged, the secretary said, "by the heavy burdens imposed by the transportation act." He estimated that total amount which the government will pay the roads at $1,000,000,000, about one-fourth of which already has been turned over to them. The remainder will be paid, the secretary thought, by early spring.

Mr. Houston predicted rapid reduction in the gross debt through the coming year, particularly the $2,350,000,000 short term certificates outstanding. The treasury program, he added, would result in reducing this below $2,000,000,000, and perhaps to $1,500,000,000.

By the end of the fiscal year 1922, Mr. Houston declared, the treasury should have redeemed its entire "floating debt" or the short term certificates, when the Victory notes maturing the next year would become practically the "floating debt" and probably be accepted in payment of federal taxes.

Turning to the demands of agricultural interests for government help, Mr. Houston said that "scarcely had a reduction in the cost of living manifested itself when every producer manifested resistance."

Much Human Nature.

"Every producer is willing for the products of every other producer to decline, but protests the decline in his own," he continued. "There is much human nature in this, but not much reasonableness.

"The situation is the result mainly of war and in no small measure the failure of this nation, and nations everywhere, to date, to devise better arrangements for storage and marketing of farm products. For these things, no one in particular is now to blame.

"In the circumstances it seems to some farmers that they are in the way of being hit first if not exclusively. They are naturally disturbed and distressed and are seeking relief measures, some of which are not practical and some of which are suicidal.

"The first impulse of many who are searching for the way out is to turn to the government and especially to the treasury as the sole instrumentality for full economic salvation. * * *

"If there is a fault, and I think there is, the blame rests largely with the public which remains quiescent while interested groups are clamorous. When the people realize this fact there will be a remedy, and not until then."

HARDING TERMS DEMOCRATIC WAY PHRASE-MAKING

COMPARES IT WITH WHAT HE CALLS REPUBLICAN "PERFORMANCE"

IS USED IN LAUDING THE PROTECTIVE TARIFF

Gives Particular Attention to the Iron and Steel Industry in Address Today.

JACKSON, OHIO, Oct. 20.—Democratic "phrase-making" and republican "performance" were contrasted by Senator Harding in a speech here today lauding the protective tariff policy as an example of republican accomplishment.

"The truth is," he said, "that with all the progressive tongues and all the literary idealism of our opponents, it is still the republican party, not only as to tariff protection, but as to every other kind of protection which stands as the safeguard of America. It is a simple matter to make phrases; it is much more difficult to perform, but it is on their respective records as phrase-makers and as performers that the democratic forces of this campaign and the republican party oppose each other."

Political Barbecue.

The republican nominee, making an afternoon speech at a political barbecue, gave particular attention to the iron and steel industry as it has developed in this section of Ohio. This industry throughout the country, he said, had given an illustration of "the success which attends the combination of the hands and brains of workers whose interests are so bound together in a common cause that upon the part of all there will be profound realization of the need for mutual consideration."

"As an illustration of the common interests which binds those engaged in that industry in a public policy," he continued, "I wish to cite the truth that the growth and opportunity for investment of capital and the labor of men in the iron and steel industry has rested upon a political policy. You know that it is a fact that the republican policy of tariff protection, given to our home industries has been the safeguard and stimulus of our American steel production.

Impulse to Labor.

"With all the natural resources and the good fortune of geographical position, the growth and perhaps the prosperous existence of the six hundred or more companies which are making iron and steel in the United States is based upon the impulse given men to labor. This impulse to labor, I trust, will always be made up in part of the love of men to expand their energies in creative production; but of necessity men labor for a living. I would like to see the standards of living among foreign nations raised up to our standard of living, but I do not intend to see our prosperity and our standards of living lowered to meet the competition of foreign countries in our markets.

"Sympathetic as I may be with our brothers in foreign nations, we stand for a proper policy of American protection, flexible, subject to readjustments, fair to our and yet protecting American investments and the interests and standards of living of those American laborers who do their part by giving us one hundred per cent efficiency in their productive effort."

TWELVE YEAR OLD BOY IS MASTER OF 12 LANGUAGES

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Master of twelve languages, keenly interested in batting averages, but more devoted to the game of marbles when playing for "Keeps," 12-year-old Edward Rochie Hardy, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rochie Hardy of this city, today qualified as the youngest freshman that ever entered Columbia university.

The youthful prodigy, is 5 feet 2 inches in height, weighs 143 pounds and, his mother says, is perfectly normal in appetite, habits and recreations. He spends a great deal of time in the university swimming pool when not engaged in reading Babylonian tablets, investigating the fourth dimension or delving into other erudite subjects.

Edward started to school at the age of 3 and bounded over three classes a year, graduating from high school at 11. His popularity and modesty were proved by the fact that he was elected editor of his school newspaper and was a leader in school social activities.

DR. R. L. MILLER DIES EARLY WEDNESDAY MORNING OF PULMANORY TROUBLES

Dr. R. L. Miller, for many years a leading physician of Wichita Falls, died at his home at 1410 Eleventh street early Wednesday morning after an illness with pulmonary troubles. The funeral service will be held at the residence at 10 o'clock Thursday morning. Rev. O. L. Powers, pastor of the First Baptist church, will officiate in the absence of Rev. Keevil, pastor of the First Christian church, of which Dr. Miller was a member.

Dr. Miller was born in Miller county, Arkansas, Sept. 27, 1858, and moved with his parents, Capt. Will A. Miller, Sr. and wife, to Decatur, Texas, in 1875. He studied medicine at Decatur and completed his medical education at Tulane university, returning to Decatur to enter the practice of that profession. He practiced there for several years and in 1893 moved to Wichita Falls, where he continued in the practice until three years ago when he retired. At one time he conducted a drug store in addition to the practice of his profession. This store still bears the name of the Miller drug store.

In 1904, Dr. Miller was married to Miss Alma Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Young, who with three daughters, Virginia, Emma Elizabeth and Mildred, are left to mourn the death of a loving and indulgent husband and father. Other immediate relatives are Capt. and Mrs. Will A. Miller Sr., father and mother of Dr. Miller; Col. Will A. Miller, Jr., and Stuart Miller, brothers, and Mrs. J. B. Beard and Mrs. R. M. Walker, sisters, all of Amarillo.

Dr. Miller was a member of the Knights of Pythias and Elk lodges.

Pallbearers announced for the funeral are as follows: J. E. Marlow, R. M. Webb, J. M. Hopper, Rhea Howard, N. M. Clifford, W. S. Robertson.

YOU NEVER CAN TELL ABOUT THE ELECTION TILL IT'S ALL OVER

THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN ELECTION DAY MORNING AND THE MORNING AFTER

SOME NOTABLE EXAMPLES IN PREVIOUS CONTESTS

Straw Vote Facilities and Unexpected Factors That Turn the Tide of Battle

By ERNEST HARVIER
(New York Times)

There are only three things more uncertain than elections—cards, lotteries and horse races. It is for this reason, perhaps, that it is the tyro who speaks of a "sure thing" in politics. The seasoned campaigner never does; he knows better. There is no "sure thing" in American politics. There never was. Mark Twain said that it was difference of opinion which made horse races interesting. It is the uncertainty of results which makes elections exciting. This year's may be no exception when the two parties get what is called their "stride."

Same Examples.

On election night four years ago the betting odds on president were two to one in favor of Justice Hughes. With New York and the whole of the east (except New Hampshire) in his favor, and Indiana Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa and West Virginia securely in the republican column, he was supposed to have won. At the Waldorf-Astoria a theatrical manager betting on Mr. Wilson's success at long odds cleared more in an evening than any of his plays were earning in a month. At the other hotels it was the same. Two days later Mr. Wilson was known definitely to have been re-elected.

In the state election of two years ago, Governor Whitman was a two to one favorite for re-election. The Malbone street accident occurred in Brooklyn, partly chargeable, some claimed, to the neglect of the public service commission then in office, and Mr. Smith, then president of the board of aldermen, carried Kings county $2,000 and was elected.

Every one familiar with politics (and who is not, when those who talk outnumber so largely those who think?) has heard how James G. Blaine, a sure winner of the presidency, came east from Columbus to Augusta, his home, and stopping over in New York had his chances ruined by theh "Rum, Romanism and Rebellion" episode, which cost him the state, and by losing New York, the nation.

There are probably some, too, who have heard how one election night Samuel J. Tilden sat in his home on Gramercy Park receiving congratulations on his success as the democratic nominee for the presidency. These congratulations, though sincere, were premature, for his republican adversary, not he, became president through unexpected complications in three southern states, which turned an actual democratic majority on the popular vote into a republican lead of one vote in the electoral college.

Carl Schurz, in his biography of Henry Clay, describes the practical certainty of success for Clay in his third and last race for the presidency. His partisans felt sure of success. His opponents were greatly discouraged. New York's proverbial uncertainty turned the scale for Polk by a small, but sufficient, majority. When the result was known, Mr. Schurz tells how the Whigs in their disappointment wept and the democrats were so stunned by their victory that they were silent.

A much more recent instance which has not become, as yet, historical, occurred in this city last year. On Oct. 27, a few days before the November election, President Wilson vetoed the Volstead prohibition bill. The "dry" forces in congress sought to override his veto. When the matter came up in the house of representatives there were enough Tammany congressmen, supposedly "wet" absent to have sustained the president. To override a veto it needs a two-thirds' vote. The resentment of the saloon men (there were then 10,000 saloons in the Greater City) sufficed to account for the defeat of Candidate Moran by the slender majority of 1,100. This change elected Major LaGuardia president of the board of aldermen and Judge Current Borough president, which may prove for him a stepping stone to higher political honors.

Maine.

The results of the Maine state election on Sept. 13 have been very satisfying to the political predictor. "It's all over but the shouting," he says, "all that is now necessary is to count the votes." It would certainly seem so—but for a few important details which the sanguine predictor does not take into account. What are they?

In the days of "early elections" or by-elections, as they are called in Europe, the September or October states were Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Iowa, Maine, West Virginia, Nebraska, Georgia and Vermont. The results in these states, in advance of the presidential campaign, if not determining, were at least suggestive of the general trend of popular feeling.

Maine is not and has never been typical of other American commonwealths. Geographically it is in the extreme northeastern corner of the United States. Politically it is detached from the rest of the country, as there are few natives of other states in Maine. To a New York city leather merchant, prominent in his day, is credited the saying: "Maine is the best state in the union—to emigrate from." Many Maine men think so. They are found in every other state from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

New York and Maine.

Compare the voting population of the two states of New York and Maine: New York has a large Irish and Irish-American voting population which dominates some of its large cities. Maine has not.

New York has a large and growing Jewish voting population. Maine has not.

New York has in Queens, the Bronx, in Rochester, Buffalo, and Syracuse a big German-American vote. Maine has none to speak of.

New York has a large Italian-American voting population which in New York City gave last year a demonstration of its power in the election of Major LaGuardia. Maine very little "Italian vote."

New York has a considerable Polish vote especially in Buffalo, Utica and Brooklyn. Maine has none.

On the other hand, Maine has a very large French-Canadian population; New York has very little. Maine has a large number of voters born, or descended from those born, in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia or Newfoundland. New York has none. The lumbermen of Maine, the fishermen of Maine, the hunters, trappers and guides constitute an important element in its voting population. New York restricts wholesale lumbering and fishermen of the whole state could not, collectively, influence the choice of a superior, alderman or road commissioner.

The result of a September election in Maine, whatever it may be, is never a safe guide for the political preference of other states. Maine's motto is "Dirigo." (I take the lead). It may be so in some things—it certainly is as to venison and lobsters—but it is not so in politics, and for the reasons above stated.

The Straw Vote.

No one knows exactly who invented the straw vote. No one knows who it was who first pretended to be able to forecast an election by pestering busy individuals to learn their presidential preference. It is said that a number of commuters marooned by a "hot-box," on a morning train for New York City, having tired of cards, of newspaper reading, of cigars and of criticism of the railroad, determined to pass the waiting time by taking a presidential poll.

This is not entirely authentic, for it is also said that in institutions for the feeble-minded this form of relaxation has been popular for more years than mark the rise of the New York City commuter as an important factor in the American social, financial and literary world.

Whoever devised the plan of finding how a state would go, politically, by distributing little slips of paper, was a stranger to politics and immune from all the lessons of experience and all the teachings of wisdom. He must have been a blood-brother of the man who tested the temperature of the ocean by jumping overboard from a ship, or the literary man who tested the value of a new book with a pair of scales.

The deep currents of political sentiment, party fervor and patriotic enthusiasm are not to be gauged by pieces of paper and percentages based upon them. But the "straw vote" man is tenacious of his theory. It was said by Sydney Smith that the threat of an obituary to be written by a man of his acquaintance added a new terror to death. In the same way, the pernicious activities of the "straw poll" man has added a further burden to those already imposed upon business and social life by a presidential election.

Quadrennially there are three things to be taken account of in the United States. A presidential election, leap year, and the emergence from his obscurity of the "straw poll man." On a crowded train, in the "exchange" of a hotel, in the railway waiting room, in a restaurant, club room, or on the sidewalk, the "straw poll man" with his pad and his pencil circulates about, taking, or claiming to take, a record of the presidential preference of each person.

There is a legend—it is no more than that—that politicians are greatly influenced by those volunteer straw votes which are supposed to reflect public sentiment "at its source," to quote the phrase used by the Internal Revenue Department when the income tax was imposed a few years ago.

The fact that while the "straw poll man" takes himself and his straw polls very seriously, political leaders pay small heed to them for the reason that nearly every poll carries its own confutation. For instance, in a crowded car of well-to-do commuters on their way to business in New York the ubiquitous "straw poll man" takes a poll and declares the result somewhat as follows: Debs 136, Cox 17, Harding 4.

On the pier of a coastwise steamer, where longshoremen are engaged in loading a cargo for early departure, the "straw poll man," circulating among the freight-handlers, gets the following result: Harding 614, Cox 2, Debs 1.

At a meeting of the Luiquor Dealers' association of Hoboken, the "straw poll man" makes such a report as the following: Watkins(prohibition) 517, Harding 22, Cox 21, Debs 19.

The incogruity of these declared results, which does not disturb the "straw poll man" in the slightest, entirely discredits them in the judgment of political leaders. But the "straw poll man" who does nothing by halves, goes further with his favorite polls and in the effort to re-enforce their accuracy furnishes an additional reason for their being descredited. He asks each person of whom he makes inquiry to give not only his present preference for president but also his political affiliations.

Thus the "straw poll man" shows that of 100 persons in a railway car who declared a preference for Senator Harding, 89 were democrats four years ago and only 11 republicans. Another poll shows 94 for Governor Cox and 6 for Harding. Of the 94, 80 were former republicans and of the 6 five were former republicans.

"The shallows murmur, but the deeps are dumb." The men and women who decide elections in the United States do not stand on street corners telling strangers how they expect to vote. About 90 per cent of the voters in every American locality are fixed and firm in their political beliefs, convictions and fellowship. They vote pretty solidly in the same way at each successive election—when they vote. Texas is always democratic; Vermont is always republican. In the doubtful states, of which there are not usually more than a dozen in the total of 48, it is the unattached, non-committal, independent "10 per cent," which decides the election.

Many of these voters are slow to make up their minds. Some of them delay a determination until election day itself. Others sway in their preference from one side to the other as a presidential campaign progresses, reading the arguments on the two sides and hearing the main issues discussed. In the days when the chief party organizations made what was called a preliminary "poll," it was this 10 per cent which was uniformly put down as "doubtful."

On Margin.

So it was. So it is. And these voters by their final action determine the result in every close contest. How close is the margin by which an American presidential election is won seems incredible until you study it.

In 1916 there were 18,400,000 votes cast. President Wilson had 277 electoral votes; Justice Hughes 254. The Wilson majority was 23. California had 13 electoral votes. Had they been cast for Justice Hughes they would have elected him. President Wilson carried the state by 2,773. A change of 1,900 votes would have given the state to the republicans. The whole vote of California was within a fraction of 200,000 (198,781). Less than one per cent of the vote of California decided the presidential election—1,900 votes in a total of 18,000,000.

One hundred thousand votes in a total of 14,000,000 distributed in the needed states would have elected William J. Bryan over William McKinley in 1896. A change of 600 votes in the state of New York in 1884 would have elected James G. Blaine and defeated Grover Cleveland.

And not to multiply the evidences of uncertainty, 5,000,000 women, who have never voted before, will take part in this year's presidential election and he must be a sanguine superman indeed who can tell six weeks in advance how these women and girls will vote in November. If such a man exists in the United States he should not be figuring on the presidency but should be chosen president himself and by a unanimous vote.

SAYS TANLAC BUILT UP TO 135 POUNDS

Little Rock Woman Could Not Regain Her Strength After Operation Until She Takes Course of Tanlac.

"I have taken six bottles of Tanlac since January, and my wonderful improvement is pretty good proof that it was the right medicine for me," said Mrs. Eulalia McAdams, of 260 Maple street, Little Rock, Ark.

"For a long time I had stomach trouble and suffered beyond words to tell. For months I was in perfect agony and ate so little I was simply starving. I fell off till I weighed only 85 pounds, and suffered such awful pains from the gas on my stomach that my nerves were shattered and my strength all left me. I was advised to have an operation but felt too weak and nervous to stand it.

"I began taking Tanlac in January, 1919, and in a short time the gas stopped forming and I could eat my meals with more comfort, for I could digest my food with less trouble. I picked up several pounds in weight, my nerves improved and I felt much stronger.

"Then I had the operation performed, but for several months afterwards I was still very weak. Again I began taking Tanlac and it has actually built me up till I now weigh 138 pounds. I am now eating just anything I want without the least trouble afterwards, my nerves are in perfect condition, I sleep soundly every night and have strength to do my work without getting tired."

Tanlac is sold in Wichita Falls by Miller Drug Co., and in Electra by Tarleton rug Co. adv.

GOOD VAUDEVILLE BILL PROMISED THIS WEEK

This week's vaudeville program will open at the Wichita theatre Wednesday afternoon with five acts and the usual line of comedy pictures and new reels. No advance announcements of the acts are available, due to the absence from the city of publicity manager Baker, who has gone to Norfolk, N. J., for the purpose of taking unto himself a wife, but fragmentary details which have come to light regarding the acts indicate that all are of a high degree of merit.

"Robin Hood," the Dunbar production which featured Monday's showing, played to another capacity house last night, every seat in the theatre being taken while many were turned away from the doors. The concluding show was fully as entertaining as the opening one Monday and delighted the large crowd who assembled to witness it.

SIXTY MILLION DOLLARS AND GOOD LOOKING GIRL

Sixty million dollars and a good looking girl play the leading roles in "Held in Trust," the picture now being offered as the main attraction at the Olympic. The film features May Allison, the blond Metro beauty who has made a phenominal rise to fame in the cinema world. The story deals with the life of a shop girl, played by Miss Allison, who becomes involved with the tremendous sum of sixty millions through a dizzy whirl of fate. She is lifted from the drudgery of the store career to luxury and plentifulness, all unmindful of the fact that her fortune is merely an imaginary one and that sooner or later she will inevitably return to her former position. The picture is full of surprises as well as unusual situations and Miss Allison makes ample opportunity to display her charms in the many lavish scenes.

"THE POOR SIMP" IS BILL AT THE MAJESTIC THEATER

The poor simp bought a bunch of orchids and a Pomeranian pup for his girl, and then forgot to give them to her. He went to propose, and then forgot what he went for, he started to commit suicide, and then couldn't remember why he wished to do so. At $5 per pluck he plucked the petals from a bunch of orchids to the tune of "she loves me, she loves me not." He had oceans of money, plenty of good looks, and a lovely finances, in fact he had everything, but he was the poor simp, so it didn't do him any good. All of this is a characterization of Owen Moore in his latest comedy "The Poor Simp" which is being shown at the Majestic theatre today and Thursday. Some of the predicaments which Moor finds himself in in the picture do not speak well for his intelligence, but they furnish amusement for the audience.

"BULLET PROOF" IS SHOWING AT THE PLAZA THEATER

Harry Carey and Kathleen O'Conner are co-starred in the rapid fire film "Bullet Proof," which is being shown at the Plaza theatre today. The story tells of a young priest who swears to avenge the murder of his father and of the chase which he has in finding the slayer. A mountain land slide, which nearly causes the death of the priest and the girl who has been hiding him from a band of outlaws is the means whereby the avenger fulfills his vow and also wins his wife.

BRYANT WASHBURN IS THE ATTRACTION AT EMPRESS

Bryant Washburn, the debonair comedian famed for his characterizations of the idle rich, is being offered by the Empress today only in his latest film production "A Full House." Washburn has the role in this picture of a brand new husband who gets in bad with his wife the day after they are married. Letters which his bride, played by Lois Wilson, find in his coat pocket indicate that he is a notorious thief, a nefarious crook, a sordid bootlegger and an utterly despisable villian. With a pedigree like this tacked onto him it is no wonder that domestic difficulties ensue, but the adroit manner in whic hthe star slides out of one charge, into another, and then out of that one furnishes a series of comic scenes that would do credit to a cage of monkeys, that comparison being no reflection on Mr. Washburn.

LESS MEAT IF BACK AND KIDNEYS HURT

Take a Glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers You—Drink Lots of Water.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralise the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

Mrs. J. E. Stephens, 413 Travis street, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are the only remedy I could find to do me any good. About two years ago, my back and kidneys caused me much misery. I could hardly do my housework. When I got up in the morning, my back was lame and stiff and it was difficult for me to straighten up. On stooping over, I thought my back would surely break in two and I would get so dizzy I would have to sit down for awhile and rest until that weakness, which I got at such times passed over. Woman's Exchange Open for Membership at Y. W. C. A.; Christmas Sale Next Month

Needlework experts of Wichita Falls are invited to join the Woman's Exchange of the Y. W. C. A., according to an announcement made Wednesday morning by Miss Margaret Du Bose, general secretary of the local organization.

The announcement is the forerunner of the big Y. W. C. A. Christmas sale of hand-made articles and it is stated that the Woman's exchange will be strictly a business organization, organized as a medium through which those who have such articles for sale may dispose of them. Members of the Y. W. staff, with volunteer workers from among the membership, will be in charge of the Christmas sale, which will open Monday, November 14, and continue two weeks. Articles placed on sale will be priced marked by their owners and a charge of 15 per cent made on each sale for exhibit and disposal. No entry charge for articles will be made and the 15 per cent retained only when articles are sold. A membership fee of $1 to the Needleworkers Exchange will settle the matter of dues for the entire 12 months, and entitle the member to enter handwork in all Y. W. C. A. exhibits and sales for that period. As other sales are planned for the year, this arrangement will probably be particularly satisfactory to those who are regularly employed with handwork and wish to turn the employment to financial benefit.

Articles Suggested.

Articles suggested for entry in the Christmas sale includes every variety of hand work. Baby clothes, single pieces or in sets; napery, including luncheon sets, buffet runners and sets, table linens, napkin sets, luncheon cloths, silver containers, etc.; household furnishings, including towels, guest towels, bed linens, single or in sets; dressing table, library table and bureau scarfs, pin cushion and dressing table sets; floor and chair cushion covers, table runners, etc.; lingerie and bedroom furnishings.

Bedroom and boudoir furnishings would suggest an almost infinite variety of "pretties," which may be simple and useful and adaptable to Christmas giving.

The single suggestion made in the matter of articles or pared for sale is that simplicity predominate. For instance, colored touches are not being used this year in luncheon sets and other dining room and buffet appointments, and while such might sell they are not recommended for entry. Napery should be white and the handwork simple and effective. The simplicity is recommended particularly because of the fact that such articles may be made quickly and find a readier sale than others of more elaborate design which must be more expensively priced.

In the matter of little dresses, both fine linens and batiste, and little ginghams in play dresses and rompers, simplicity of design and handwork is also recommended. Little slip-on children's dresses for babies up to 3 years, with tiny touch of handwork to give the "gift" touch for Christmas, are expected to find a ready sale this year, as they can be made in homes at a small part of the cost of purchase in the stores, and even with a very fair profit added, at reasonable prices.

Scarfs and runners for tables, dressing tables, dressers, etc., usually sell readily. These made with a very simple edge and a touch of embroidery or other inset handwork at the ends or corners, are recommended for entry. Very few housekeepers have the time to make such articles and those with prices within the reach of the average purchaser are not always desirable. Towels and guest towels also find ready sale and the simplest touches of handwork are suggested for these.

The lingerie department may "go as far as it likes." Combination suits, teddies, camisoles, brassieres, marguerites, pettibockers, petticoats and any article of underwear may be entered, either in silk, linen, batiste or cotton. Neatly made pettibockers of sateen, with or without a bit of handwork, would probably find ready sale should be well-made and of good, but and pretty, simple teddies and camisoles are certain to. These articles not too expensive material. Buyers will be from all classes, but there are always those who are anxious to buy neat, pretty undies without too much trimming and too little service attached. The silk sales now opening at several of the downtown stores should furnish material for dozens of these necessary and salable articles for the Christmas sale. A pretty teddy that is very popular, for instance, is fashioned of a yard square of material—batiste or silk mixture preferable, or a very soft, fine cotton. A straight cut is made about 18 iches wide put in by hand, straight around the cut. The two points thus falling over the hips may have insets of handwork or lace, or be embroidered, and any edge desired put on around the "four-yard course." Straps of ribbon may be fixed on the yoke, and a touch of handwork added in front. There are a number of other designs of teddies which are easily made and very effective and which find a much quicker sale than more elaborate ones whose design and handwork add to the price.

The suggested articles do not limit entries, however. Anything that comes within the category of household or personal possessions which may be made by hand and used for Christmas gifts will be acceptable. And an urgent invitation is extended all needleworkers in the city to put their membership in the exchange immediately. Names may be entered by telephone, by calling the Y. W. C. A., and a check or dollar bill may be mailed, sent, or brought in person to the Y. The Christmas sale is expected to be the biggest sale of its kind in the city, and those who enter articles for disposal will not only be giving themselves the squarest sort of a deal in a business way, but will be materially aiding the Y.W.C.A.

The Criminal.

(A 22-year-old husband in White Falls, N. H., shot and killed his 19-year-old wife of two months, Saturday. Jealously was given as the cause):

I am not sorry for the girl
Of sunny years bereft
By his crazed hand. Not sorry for
The grieved ones that she left
Behind; not sorry for the young
Bright life that sped away
Unbidden: loving life, perhaps
In each glad hour of day.
I could not grieve because of her
Whose grief was short. She knew
One moment's pain. But I am sad
For what the boy went through
That made a murderer of him.
For that strange, bitter pain
That stung and fed upon his heart,
And searched and numbed his brain.
And I could grieve for him—for what
Black anguish his mind keyed
To death; for what was in his heart
That made him do the deed.

"The Seattle Post-Intelligencer asserts editorially that in his speechs from his Marion front porch Senator Harding has gone along from one important topic to another. We'll say he has! Had he lingered longer upon any one of them he might have had a better idea of what he is really for."—Beaumont Enterprise.

The Enterprise man thinks about as highly of Senator Harding as the green country student thought of the Noah Webster, when instructed to familiarize himself with that gentleman's greatest literary production. "What are you reading?" his roommate asked him, according to the story most everybody knows. "Dick Shnary" responded the other. "But I can't give him much. He changes the subject too often."

"Pretty soon it will be found cheaper to wear shoes than to go barefooted."—Galveston Tribune.

The devotees of the "Shank's mare" method of transportation found out the past two winters that walking is more expensive than riding the street cars, with shoes at $15 and half soles at $1.25 a quarter per sole—not to speak of heels and other repairs.

"When the widow of General Longstreet criticized the League of Nations, President Wilson and Governor Cox, in a Methodist college in Greensboro, S. C., the girl students left the room in a body, and in the hall cheered all three of the objects of criticism. 'Rah for the girls!'"—Missing Links, by Links.

A man yesterday in our community pine-box-and-picture-poster sanctum, several times afore mentioned, said of a woman speaker in the city recently that she didn't come to the point and discuss any real issues; that she just "made a typical woman's talk." We don't know exactly what would constitute a "typical woman's talk," but we would like to refer him to the Greensboro girl students for typical woman's action! Can you beat it for coming to the point?

BEN G. O'NEAL HOME; MRS. O'NEAL DOING NICELY IN JOHNS HOPKINS

Ben G. O'Neal returned home Monday afternoon from Baltimore, Md., where he left Mrs. O'Neal recovering from an operation for appendicitis. A telegram from the attending physician in Johns Hopkins hospital Tuesday morning stated that Mrs. O'Neal was doing nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Neal left Wichita Falls the middle of August on a northern trip, during which they visited Mackinaw Island, the Soo, the Highlands of Ontario, Montreal, St. Johns, Halifax, and other Canadian points, and started to return home by way of New York. In New York Mrs. O'Neal suffered an attack of appendicitis and was taken to Baltimore to Johns Hopkins, where the operation was performed several days ago. As she was in excellent health overwise, the operation was perfectly successful and she was out of all danger Friday when Mr. O'Neal left.

TRANSPORT AND RAIL WORKERS MARK TIME

George expected a substantial vote of confidence to result.

Lloyd-George last night in the house of commons asked that the nation trust the government to handle the coal strike. He based this on his offer to confer with the miners at any time if they were ready to talk of an impartial tribunal to settle their wage demands, or if they were ready to negotiate on the basis of increased production.

Lloyd-George's firmness in insisting upon a production basis for any increase was a disappointment to the miners.

Press Optimistic.

The press, commenting on parliament's handling of the strike, continued optimistic today but warned that the break in the deadlock caused by the offer of "a way out" by William Brace, labor member, was only superficial. Brace called for the immediate grant of two shillings per day increase. This was to be followed by conferences between miners and owners for a permanent settlement and an agreement on production.

The problem was made more complex by the threat of 150,000 transport workers to strike Saturday if wage increases are not granted at once.

SAYS ARMIES WILL BE POWERLESS AGAINST MOBS

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Armies and navies will be powerless against hungry mobs which will rise up if Great Britain's labor troubles are not settled shortly, George Lansbury, radical editor, said in an interview today.

Lansbury, former member of parliament and now editor of the Herald, was one of the leaders of the unemployed demonstration which developed into a riot in Whitehall and Downing street Monday.

"God knows what will happen," Lansbury said. "The Lloyd George cabinet with its back to the wall, is determined to fight labor.

"The cabinet does not seem to realize the tremendous social upheaval likely to result from aggravation of the present precarious situation in England where a coal strike has been piled on top of the idleness of the thousands of workers.

"Millions will be jobless soon and armies and navies will be unavailing against hungry mobs. Monday's riot was a mild sample of what will come if the situation is not relieved.

"The premier is playing with fire. He doesn't seem to realize the nation is suffering the bitterest disillusionment. The better days promised us before the armistice have not materialized."

CHARGE GENERAL OIL CO. MONEY USED BY COX IN TWO AIRPLANE VENTURES

HOUSTON, Oct. 28.—M. McDonald, appointed receiver for the two General Oil companies with a combined capitalization of $21,000,000, expects to qualify today by filing his bond for $50,000. Under the court's order he will take charge and operate the properties of the companies of which S. E. J. Cox is president.

Mr. Cox is returning to Houston from Paris, France, where he had entered two airplanes in the James Gordon Bennett race.

It is alleged in the pleadings in the receivership that $119,000 was forwarded to Mr. and Mrs. Cox from the treasury of the S. E. J. Cox company to finance the entry of his airplanes in the international races.

It is also claimed in the petition that nearly $1,000,000 has been transferred from the General Oil assets to cover expenses of companies controlled by S. E. J. Cox, such as the S. E. J. Cox company, the Prudential Securities company, the Cox Realization company and the General Mines company.

GOV. COOLIDGE EMPHASIZES TARIFF ISSUE IN SPEECH

KNOXVILLE, TENN., Oct. 20.—The tariff issue was emphasized by Governor Coolidge, republican candidate for vice-president, in two addresses here today.

"Manufacturing is becoming an important element in the development and prosperity of the south," he said. "Under our national policy of protection, which opens equal opportunities to all sections of the country you have challenged the textile supremacy of the north, and the great steel and iron industry of Pennsylvania."

The governor predicted that many democrats in both Kentucky and Tennessee would vote the republican ticket in November because of their desire for a change in administration and their belief in the soundness of republican policies.

Addresses also were made by Governors Lowden of Illinois and Morrow of Kentucky.

REPORTS BEING SEIZED AND SEVERELY WHIPPED

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20.—Declaring he had been seized and whipped by members of the "Ku Klux Klan" near Trenton, S. C., Monday night, Peter McMahon, Yonkers, N. Y., 55, arrived here today seeking medical treatment. His wrists were lacerated by ropes and his back bore marks of whipping, according to police.

McMahon said his life was threatened when he had attempted to aid Miss Florence Powell, 20 years old, Aiken, O., in a settlement which involved disposition of her father's property.

SEEK TO ENCOURAGE MORE IMMIGRANTS TO THE FARMS

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 20.—A council of representatives of agricultural states to co-operate with the departments of agriculture and labor in getting immigrants to the farms, was urged by H. M. Wallis of Racine, Wis., in an address before the National Implement & Vehicle Association convention today.

Wallis declared proper classification and distribution of immigration would help solve the farm labor problem and tend to obviate congestion in cities.

"Every immigrant before taking ship should be interviewed by representatives of our consular service to determine his adaptibility and his classification for quick self support," Wallis said. "Get the artisans into the factories and the farmers into the fields."

COUNTRY BARBECUE STAGED FOR HARDING SPEECH AT JACKSON

By RAYMOND CLAPPER,
United Press Staff Correspondent.

JACKSON, OHIO, Oct. 20.—A country barbecue here with trenches to accommodate 50 roasting steers and countless kettles of burgoo, supplanted the front porch for Warren G. Harding today.

The republican nominee left Marion on a special train early today. From here he goes east to Rochester for an afternoon speech tomorrow and Buffalo tomorrow night, returning to Marion Friday morning.

The barbecue here provided a picturesque setting for the candidate' speech to be delivered after the noon day feast.

Dozens of huge camp kettles were collected to make the burgoo in. Senator Harding says burgoo is a concoction of meats and vegetables cooked in boilers, resembling Mulligan stew.

Senator Harding's headquarters denied he discussed international affairs with Maurice De Kobra, French journalist, suggested by Governor Cox as one of the spokesmen of France that Harding referred to in his Greencastle speech and charged Cox had set a trap for Harding and fallen for it himself.

PETROLEUM PRODUCTION MEXICO WILL INCREASE THREE FOLD THIS YEAR

Special to The Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Petroleum production in Mexico will increase three fold this year as compared with last, Charles H. Cunningham, former trade commissioner to that country from the United States, declared today when he reported to the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce on trade conditions in that country.

"There has been great development in oil in Tehauntipes and there is a great amount of territory in lower California that has to be developed," Cunningham declared. "I find no discrimination against Americans in the granting of development privileges. The new territory must be developed and that takes money.

"American bankers and business men forfeit their great opportunity in Mexico by becoming frightened at every sign of repopulation. Concerns controlled by other countries sit tight and come out of it more solidly than ever before. American firms conceal contracts and demand cash before shipment and in trouble in Mexico. They cannot come to understand the small effect a revolution there has on business."

Mr. Cunningham denied stories out from Mexico recently that the supply of petroleum was getting low in that country. The great demand calls for additional production and this individuals and concerns operating there are striving to meet, he declared.

PRIEST AT HENRIETTA FINED $1,000; CHARGE NEGLIGENT HOMICIDE

HENRIETT, TEXAS, Oct. 20.—A jury in county court brought in a verdict Thursday night fixing a fine of $1,000 against Rev. Lodi Parachinnie, a Catholic priest, on a charge of negligent homicide.

The case grew out of the death of a man named Milton on the Bill road last spring in an automobile accident. Father Parachinnie was driving the car and besides Mr. Milton there was another man riding, who was injured but not seriously. Mr. Milton was instantly killed.

It was alleged that the car, which was a large powerful one, was running at a high rate of speed on a public road in violation of the law. At the time of the accident, it was stated, that Father Parachinnie, in attempting to give a part of the road to meet another car, struck a small embankment with a front wheel and the car tuened over. Father Parachinnie lives in Montague county.

ARRESTED AT DALLAS ON A BIGAMY CHARGE

DALLAS, TEXAS, Oct. 20.—Benjamin A. Stephens, 22, alleged to have another wife in Elgin, Illinois, was charged with bigamy in a complaint filed here today by Violet A. Sheaner who claims she married Stephens October 11.

"I was under the impression my first wife had gotten a divorce," Stephens said at the jail here. "Gosh, I'd never gotten into this trouble if I had not thought so. I firmly believe she got the divorce."

Stephens' first wife's name was given in the complaint as Gussie Stephens.

CITY COUNCIL HAS MUCH BUSINESS FOR THURSDAY EVENING

The weekly meeting tomorrow night of the city council promises to send Mayor Cline and his battling aldermen home to bed late again. A number of matters of more than ordinary importance are on City Clerk Thorburn's docket for disposal.

If no unexpected hitch occurs, it is probable that the question of the ownership of the water plant will be settled. City Attorney Mann; F. E. Rogers, manager of the Wichita Falls Water company, and C. E. Calder, Dallas representative of the company, are expected in Wichita Falls Thursday morning with the $500,000 in bonds voted for the purchase of the plant by the city, and it is possible that the entire transaction will be closed at the council meeting.

It will be necessary tomorrow night also to pass an emergency ordinance authorizing the issuance of the $700,000 of bonds for the new sanitary sewer system. These bonds were voted in the municipal election of October 12 and have already been sold by the city at 97 cents on the dollar.

A report is expected from Aldermen W. N. Bonner and W. S. Curlee regarding the working out of the new city statue limiting parking on Eighth street to one hour. These is a possibility also that representatives of the Welfare council will appear before the council to ask the passage of an anti-beggar ordinance.

WORK IS STARTING ON DOWNTOWN WHITE WAY

Work has been started on the laying of the cables for the new electric lighting system in the downtown business section and present indications are that this part of the task will be completed within a few weeks. Workmen were busy in front of the city hall Wednesday morning cutting grooves in the sidewalks which will carry the lamps feed wires. Electrically operated chisels are being used in tearing through the three inches or more of solid concrete that must be broken away to furnish a bed for the cables.

Shipments of material that had been missing for some time have arrived in the city and is being made ready for installation as fast as possible. The Martin Wright company of Dallas, which is installing the new lighting system, has sent several workmen to this city for the purpose of pushing operations as fast as possible.

COMPARE ESTIMATE OF ELECTORAL VOTES

Democratic Chairman Calls Attention to Forecast Early in Last Campaign.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Before leaving for New York for the final drive of the campaign, George White, chairman of the democratic national committee, today issued a statement discussing the recent claim of Will H. Hays, republican national chairman, that Senator Harding would have 395 electoral votes.

"This is just ten electoral votes under the claims of the republican managers for Charles E. Hughes in 1916," said Mr. White. "I congratulate Mr. Hays on his conservatism. As a reward, he will not have as far to fall into the depths of false prophecy as his predecessors in 1916.

"In that year the republican managers claimed 405 votes for Mr. Hughes. He actually received 254 and President Wilson was re-elected. Using the same simple arithmetic, Senator Harding will have no more than 244 electoral votes this year, which about coincides with the real estimates at republican headquarters."

INVESTIGATING MURDER OF DARTMOUTH STUDENT

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20.—Authorities here investigating the murder of Elmer C. Drewes, Dartmouth student, were centering their search today on the writer of a letter to Drewes, dated October 9 and dealing with the purchase of an automobile.

Detectives believed the writer of the note will be able to explain Drewes' plans prior to his disappearance from Philadelphia Sunday evening. Drewes told his father he was leaving for Reading to buy an automobile from a Pennsylvania student named Samuel Magee.

Authorities said they believed Drewes and other students went automobile riding in celebration of Dartmouth's victory Sunday and a revolver was accidentally discharged. Through fear, it is believed, the students hauled the body to the lonely spot where it was found early Sunday.

BASS PETROLEUM CO. BRECKENRIDGE WELL IS MAKING 10,000

The Walker-Perkins well of the Bass Petroleum company which was drilled in in the Breckenridge field last June at 3,150 feet, making 5,000 barrels steadily was agitated last week and the production increased steadily until it was reported today that the well was making approximately 10,000 barrels.

The well is the most sensational producer since the completion of the K. Stoker well of the Gulf company six months ago. When the well settled to 1,500 barrels, it and the 40-acre contract on which it is located, were sold to the Bass company for $90,000.

The Montrose well in the same field on the Allentract near the Walker-Perkins well, is doing better than 2,000 barrels, according to a late report, though it was previously reported as making 1,000.

THREE MEN AND BOY AND THREE WHISKEY STILLS IN CUSTODY

ARE TAKEN IN RAID ON OIL FIELD BY RANGERS AND LOCAL OFFICERS.

LEADERS MAKE ESCAPE ACCORDING TO REPORT

Youth Attempts to Make Getaway With a Quantity of Liquid Evidence.

Three men, a boy and three whiskey stills were taken in the drag net thrown out Tuesday afternoon and night by Texas rangers, special deputies, county and city officials.

The band, heavily armed started out from the city hall Tuesday noon with the intentions of a widespread cleanup drive through the northwest oil fields. They fulfilled their intentions but the big prey that they had set out to capture had fled and crossed the Red river boundary before they could be located.

Those who were arrested by the officials were, J. W. Jackson, owner and proprietor of a soft drink stand in Newtown; M. E. Botkin and George H. L. Burbank, and a youth 14 years of age who, acting under orders did a 100-yard dash in record time in an effort to get away with a bag full of evidence; said evidence was a consignment of "Choc" beer.

The party that went out into the fields, anticipating, perhaps, a pitched battle, consisted of Captain Aldrich of the Texas rangers, Chief of Police Lee Huff; U. S. Marshal Jim Allen; Deputy Constables Belcher and Lay; Pat Garret of the Katy lines; G. W. Jackson, H. P. Brady and M. T. Gonzaullas.

Information Obtained.

Information has been gleaned by the investigating Texas rangers regarding a band of men who were operating several stills and possessed three large automobiles. It was also reported to them from authentic sources that each of the cars were armed with high-powered rifles. The party armed themselves accordingly and went out in search of this band of alleged outlaws.

The rendezvous was found and the stills confiscated. But the men undoubtedly having heard of the approaching cloud in the form of the law, did not deem it wise to remain and defend their property. They went speedily on their way to Oklahoma.

The names under which the men were known in the oil field districts were learned by the officials and included such cognomens as Joe the Brewer; Bob the Wildcat; Tom Skee, Louie, Gyp and similar names which reminded authorities of a band of gunmen hailing from the police districts of New York City.

As the party approached the soft drink stand of Jackson, the boy taken into custody, was seen running from the back door of the place of business. The officers entered and found a quantity of "Choc" beer, all of which with the exception of sufficient evidence, was destroyed.

Carried to Burkburnett.

Jackson and the boy were taken to Burkburnett where Captain Aldrich and Y. P. Garret remained with them and returned to this city Wednesday morning with the two men.

Further investigation was begun and soon Botkin and Burbank were also in the hands of the law. Botkin stated to the officers that the shack across the road from his place had been rented out to a man whom he believed was sleeping there.

In the shack officials found Burbank and a well-equipped still and a large consignment of ingredients used in the manufacturing of corn liquor.

The entire party then swept onward to the Red river bottom. Another man was caught in the sweep-up. He was found carrying a weapon. The big prey sought for, however, had escaped.

PROPOSE TO ORGANIZE A $100,000,000 CORPORATION TO FINANCE FOREIGN TRADE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—A proposal for the organization of a $100,000,000 corporation for foreign trade financing, under the auspices of the American Bankers' association, was put before the annual convention of that body today by its committee on commerce and marine. By co-operating with merchants, manufacturers, exporters and producers, the report said, and taking advantage of the Edge law, the corporation could issue a billion dollars of debenture bonds for sale in the United States and the extension of credits abroad.

John McHugh, chairman of the committee, presented the report, which recommended steps to put the corporation into business soperation by January 1 and solicitation of subscriptions to its capital stock from the public.

The report said the economic future of the United States was "bound up in the future of our trade relations with other peoples." Under existing conditions, it added, manufacturers "unable to grant foreign customers credit necessary to continuing foreign purchase, have been forced to restrict their activities in the foreign fields."

"Under the Edge law, such a corporation as contemplated would be permitted to issue debentures against foreign securities carefully purchased by it to the amount of ten times its capital so that it would have a maximum ability financially of about a billion dollars," the report said.

REPORT TILLICUM TEST ON SAND AT 1324 FEET

The Tillicum Oil association's No. 3 test on the Mattie Parker ranch, about nine miles southwest of the city, was on the sand at a depth of 1,324 feet yesterday and according to reports there was 700 feet of fluid in the hole. This is the second well to be brought in in this territory, more than three miles from the closest production, and may prove the existence of a valuable shallow field in that territory. The No. 1 test was brought in several months ago around the 1,300-foot mark.

J. A. KEMP SPEAKS ON POSSIBILITIES OF IRRIGATION PLAN

A friendly little talk by J. A. Kemp on the future possibilities of Wichita Falls featured the weekly luncheon today of the Wichita Club. Kemp is an optimist, a booster and a believer in the city of his adoption, and his words made a strong impression on the club members and their guests.

"During the past year," he began, "the chamber of commerce, realizing the congested conditions here, has seen fit to limit the outside advertising of Wichita Falls. But I believe the time is now ripe to let the outside world know some of the splendid possibilities of our city, and to educate our own home folks also to a better knowledge of what the future holds.

"In this plan for a great irrigation project we have an opportunity here to do something no other city in Texas can do. The possibilities of our city and county under irrigation are unlimited. It is entirely possible for us to have a productive territory unsurpassed in the Southwest; a garden spot, with Wichita Falls as the center of a thriving, prosperous rural community.

"We will go through with this irrigation project. The bonds will be sold, and the work will be completed. And in the meantime we must all be optimists; must show new pep and new life, and must attract new blood to our city. I know, I feel sure, we can draw a great deal of surplus capital from other sections of the country into what I firmly believe will be one of the largest, most prosperous and most beautiful cities in the South."

Additional to Kemp's speech the only matter of particular interest that came before the club was a brief report by B. F. Johnson, on the plans for the entertainment of the Civic League members at a Hallowe'en party to be given in the club on the evening of October 29th. Mrs. T. B. Smock, president o fthe Civic League, has been added temporarily to the Wichita club entertainment committee, and will assist in planning the party.

TUBERCULOSIS IS MORE PREVALENT IN GREECE THAN ANY OTHER NATION

ATHENS, Oct. 20.—Tuberculosis is more prevalent in Greece than in any other country for which reliable figures are available with the possible exception of Serbia. There is no governmental or private program for the control of the disease. The number of physicians in proportion to the population is one to every 1300.

In the city of Athens the death rate from tuberculosis of the lungs is 294 per 100,000 of population which is about twice as high as the rate in the United States. The other forms of the disease also are present making the total tuberculosis death rate 365 per 100,000 of population. One death in every six is due to tuberculosis.

T odeal with the disease the existThere is little or no hospital provision for the care of the bulk of the populating agencies are very inadequattion of 5,000,000. There are less than a score of general hospitals in the country.

Much Typhoid Fever.

There is also an alarming prevalence of typhoid fever, which at times rises to the proportion of an epidemic. Even in the larger cities such as Athens the typhoid death rate is strikingly high. In the last three-year period for which statistics are available the rate was 59 per 100,000 of population, about five times as high as the rate in the United States.

The prevalence of this disease is due largely to the absence of sewers and of adequate and safe water supply. No improvements in the water supply or sewerage systems have been made since 1908. The rudimentary sewage system, where any exists, affords little or no protection against surface or underground contamination of water supply and no safeguard against conveyance of infection.

In Athens plans have been drawn by the national government to provide the city with adequate and modern water and sewer systems. But the execution of these plans has been delayed by the war. The water supply in Athens is at present brought in through an aqueduct built by the Emperor Hadrian nearly two thousand years ago. In the summer months the water is insufficient to carry off the sewage.

CLEVELAND PLANS FOR BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 20.—Cleveland is airing the mothball fumes out of the municipal tinsel, flags, pennants and banners and scrubbing up in preparation for the celebration of its 125th anniversary. Mayor W. S. Fitzgerald ordered an early start for the event and selected a committee of 50 representative citizens to supervise the work. The 125th birthday falls on July 22, 1921.

It is hoped to dedicate on that day the great auditorium, now under construction. The auditorium will be the largest in the country, the architects said. It will have seating room for 15,000 people. The cost will be $4,000,000.

The architects said it will seat three times as many persons as the New York Hippodrome and be much larger than Madison Square Garden. An immense stage is included in the plans. Part of it will be constructed on an elevator so that it may be raised or lowered in connection with the use of a swimming tank and ice skating rink. The basement will be large enough to accommodate a three-ring circus. Conventions requiring up to 100,000 square feet of space can be accommodated, the builders say. An organ to cost $100,000 has been contracted for.

KILLED BY A WOMAN HE REFUSED TO MARRY

LOS ANGELES, CAL., Oct. 20.—Jacob Charles Denton, wealthy mining promoter, was killed by a woman he refused to marry, and a man she called to her aid after Denton shot the woman in the shoulder at breakfast near dawn of June 2, last, Mrs. R. C. Peete of Denver told deputy district attorneys here today. Mrs. Peete was at that time in the Denton home, it was said.

ERZBERGER SAYS THAT FORMER EMPEROR FULLY EXPECTED TO WIN WAR

BERLIN, Oct. 20.—The former German Emperor William confidently expected to emerge victoriously from the world war and then marshal his continental armies against England in what he termed "the second Punic war," says Mathias Erzberber, in his volume of war recollections just published at Stuttgart. The emperor evidentally used the term "Punic war" in the sense of a conflict for world supremacy between two great nations.

Erzberger, who was formerly minister of finance, but now has temporarily retired from public political activities, set forth in detail the meeting between the then Emperor William and the reichstag leaders, after the fall of Chancellor Bethmann Hollweg, and following the adoption of the peace resolution in July, 1917.

He says the emperor became enthusiastic over the phrase "peace or compromise," which he assumed was what the reichstag majority demanded. "Excellent words 'compromise,'" William stated. "It means," he said, "that we take the money, raw products, cotton, oil and ores out of the pockets of our enemies and transfer them to our own."

The parliamentary leaders, Herr Erzberger says, were astonished by this unexpected display of imperial mentality and felt that they were being made the victims of his mockery. The emperor's further remarks were in the same channel, he declares.

William asserted that the United States and England had entered into an alliance for the purpose of reckoning with Japan after the war. He was also reliably informed that Russia would join Japan in warding off the Anglo-Saxon blow. He admitted that England would not emerge from the war defeated, but said the final accounting would come when he led his continental armies against her in "the second Punic war."

The amazement of the parliamentarians grew as the kaiser, continued Erzberger reports. The monarch asserted that a "complete understanding would be reached with France when the war was over."

Referring to a battle in Galacia, which occurred only a few days previous, the kaiser claimed that the Prussian guard under the command of his son, Fritz, had "brushed the democratic dust off the vests of the Russians."

"Whenever the guards appear there is no longer any democracy left," he exclaimed.

The Rumanians got their just deserts, the war lord told Erzberger, when the latter suggested that the poor Rumanians had probably lost everything but their shirts.

Erzberger adds that the whole meeting between the kaiser and the parliamentary leaders was not only a grave misfortune but it proved "the deepest cut with the spade that ultimately resulted in the overthrow of the prevailing regime."

He concludes the chapter with the statement that the reichstag veterans, who up to that time were opposed to the parliamentary system, that every night openly avowed that the old system would inevitably plunge Germany into disaster.

POLICE ARE SEARCHING FOR ALLEGED SWINDLER

DES MOINES, IOWA, Oct. 20.—Police today instituted search for Clifford Skirven, Wichita, Kan., who is alleged to have been a member of a trio which attempted to swindle H. M. Morrain, Leroy, Minn., out of $23,000 through a fake land deal.

The attempted swindle was frustrated through the efforts of detectives.

Skirven is wanted in Chicago in connection with the sale of $175,000 worth of valueless oil stock, local police say.

EPIDEMIC OF SPIDER-BITES IS REPORTED AT NEWTOWN

NEWTOWN, TEXAS, Oct. 20.—Local physicians say that there is an epidemic of spider-bites here. They seem to come with the rains. The victims suffer accute pain all over their bodies and are somewhat disturbed mentally while the effect of the bites last. Another phemonenon is that the patients are not susceptible to the action of opiates to the degree that ordinarily obtains. The spider that does the mischief is said to be a small dark insect with a yellow spot on his back.

SEARCH FOR LIEUTENANT WHO DISSAPPEARED SUNDAY

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Federal officers today instituted a search for Lieut. Frank De Clarke of the naval training station. Funds of the station's athletic association amounting to $2,500 which was in Lieut. De Clarke's custody have also disappeared.

BODY IS FOUND HANGING FROM TREE

FORT WORTH, TEXAS, Oct. 20.—The body of F. N. Farris, cattleman, was found hanging from a tree near Lubbock this morning. He was a prosperous stockman.

J. M. MARRIOTT TO BUILD $38,000 HOME IN ELECTRA

A $38,000 home in Electra will be built by J. H. Marriott, at present a resident of this city, from plans prepared by Herbert Voelcker, Wichita Falls architect. Marriott, who bought the former home of Roy Jones at 1212 Tenth street a year ago, has extensive business interests in Electra and will move to that city as soon as his new home is completed.

F. A. Smith, a local contractor, who built the Freear home on Tenth street, was the successful bidder on the Marriott house. The house, Dutch Colonial in type, will be one of the most beautiful homes in Electra.

REPORTS BRECKINRIDGE PRODUCTION IS 90,000

Pipe line facilities are unable to handle the enormous production in the Breckenridge oil fields, according to C. P. Hancock, well known Dallas operator. As a result there has been a curtailment of drilling and the overproduction is said to be about 5,000 barrels.

Mr. Hancock claims that the present production is 90,000 barrels daily, while at least 30 wells are on the sand and 150 are approaching oil. Present pipe line facilities are capable of handling only 85,000 barrels.

SHRINE PATROL TO MEET TO ARANGE CEREMONIAL

The Shrine patrol of Maskat temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., will meet in the Masonic temple building Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock to arrange preparations for the temple ceremonial on November 17th.

All of the "stunts" in which the patrol will participate will be worked out at this meeting. Every member of the patrol must be present in order to guarantee the success of the work.

GORDON CASE FROM EASTLAND COUNTY IS AFFIRMED BY COURT

AUSTIN, TEXAS, Oct. 20.—Judgments of lower courts in the cases of L. C. Gordon of Eastland county, given a 25-year penitentiary sentence for the murder of Rowe Pollard and Joe Henderson of Gregg county, under a 99-year sentence for the murder of Robert Killingsworth, were both affirmed by the court of criminal appeals today.

The judgment against G. I. Rasberry of Rusk county, sentenced in the lower court to 99 years imprisonment for the murder of Ethel Pool, was reversed and remanded because of a defective charge to the jury. The judgment against Tom Dunn, sentenced to 25 years for murder in Coryell county, was reversed and remanded because only eleven jurors were used, one being excused before the trial was completed.

CARL WANDERER TESTIFIES; REPUDIATES A CONFESSION

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Carl Wanderer, charged with the murder of his wife and a tramp, testifying in his own behalf, today repudiated an alleged confession of the double murder.

Wanderer declared he was "browbeaten" into the statement that the slaying of his wife was "framed" with the tramp and that he killed the man to avoid detection. Wanderer repeated his first story that he and his wife were held up and he shot the tramp in a scuffle after the man killed Mrs. Wanderer.

KING ALEXANDER IS SLIGHTLY IMPROVED

ATHENS, Oct. 20.—King Alexander passed a better night and a slight improvement was noted. It was announced here today. The condition of lung congestion remained stationary. The wound caused by the bite of the money is improving, but an examination of liquid extracted from his lungs showed the presence of pneumonia germs.

NOTED FRENCH SURGEON TO OPERATE ON KING

PARIS, Oct. 20.—Prof. Debolt of the Academy of Medicine, one of the most skillful surgeons in France, was en route to Athens on a special train today to operate upon King Alexander of Greece, who is suffering from the effects of a monkey bite.

The Greek legation here had no confirmation of an intercepted wireless reporting Alexander's death. The legation said the king was alive at 2 p. m. yesterday.

NO CONFIRMATION OF RUMOR KING ALEXANDER IS DEAD

PARIS, Oct. 20.—Confirmation of rumors of the death of King Alexander had not been received at the Greek legation here this morning.

The Mitli printed today under a Rome date line a dispatch saying the Greek steamer Atremites, anchored at Brindisi, had received from Athens a wireless dispatch announcing the death of the king, adding the Greek government was awaiting a reply from Prince Paul, brother of the king, who is reported to have been offered the throne, before publishing the news.

MAKE TENTATIVE PLANS FOR AN ADVERTISING CLUB

Tentative plans for an advertising club in Wichita Falls are being formulated by a number of business men of this city, who are interested in protecting business here from the financial inroads of various fraudulent advertising schemes.

The matter will be discussed in detail Friday evening at a dinner in the Wichita club to which a limited number of representative men have been invited. It is hoped, if present plans mature successfully, to establish a club here that will be affiliated with the national association of advertising clubs, branches of which are common in all the larger cities.

The movement is being fostered by R. E. T. Bohart of the Midwest Printing company and Sydney Gaines of the Gaines Motor company.

DECIDE ARTICLE DID NOT SLANDER DR. OSBORNE

HAMPTON, IOWA, Oct. 20.—A jury in district court here today decided Dr. A. J. Hobson did not slander Dr. C. F. Osborne in an interview with a St. Paul newspaper reporter in which he was alleged to have said that a Hampton hospital was conducted as a private harem for Dr. Osborne and that illegal operations were performed in the institution.

Dr. Osborne asked $75,000. Mr. Hobson denied making th statement.

HOW TO SAVE FIVE CENTS!
(AND LOSE HALF A DOLLAR)
During these times of high prices, it is natural to turn toward anything that looks cheap.
But Cheapness doesn't mean economy. Take a dairyman's business, for instance.
Suppose Purina Cow Chow is $10.00 a ton higher than some other feed.
That's 50c a bag or ½c a pound. A cow eats eight to ten pounds of grain a day. That means it costs you four or five cents less every day you feed your cow on the cheaper (?) feed.
Suppose the cow falls off one quart a milking; those two quarts a day would bring 50c.
Those who have fed cow chow know that it usually makes from one to three quarts extra milk each milking.
And it keeps your herd in fine condition, and always on feed.

COTTON MARKET.

New York Cotton.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Covering was renewed at the opening today, first prices being 80 points higher on October and from 35 to 54 points higher on later deliveries. Firm Liverpool cables, reports that London was still hopeful of an early settlement of the strike, Liverpool buying and unsettled weather in the southwest, were features which promoted covering by local shorts. Spot houses and some of the southern wire houses sold on the advance, however, and fluctuations after the call were irregular, December easing off from 19.28 to 19.05 and then rallying to 19.15, compared with 18.90 at the close yesterday.

Trading became less active later and fluctuations were irregular. The absence of hedge selling on anything like the recent scale had a sustaining influence, however, and prices worked back to about the early high point, at 35 to 97 points net higher, but the weekly report of the weather bureau was more favorable than expected and there were reactions of several points early in the noon hour.

New Orleans Cotton.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 20.—Much better cables than due and too much rain in the belt west of the Mississippi river put the prices of cotton strongly higher today. In the first hour of business, the active months rose 55 to 60 points, December advancing to 18.92 and May to 18.58. Reports from the interior that little spot cotton was for sale gave the market a good undertone.

Realizing by recent buyers was not well received and the market fell off until October was a point under yesterday's close and the gains on other months were reduced to 2 to 3 points. Late in the morning the tone was steadier and prices recovered to net advances of 7 to 15 points.

Reports from England that negotiations were under way that might end the coal strike before the week was over and the statement in the weekly crop reports from the government that picking was completed over a good portion of the southern and central sections of the belt sent the market up again in the late trading. Toward he close, prices were at net gains of 46 to 48 points.

Cotton closed steady, 35 to 48 points net higher.

STOCK MARKET.

New York Stocks.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Relatively steady conditions prevailed at the dull opening of today's stock market. Only a few issues of the speculative variety and obscure specialties, notably International Paper and Union Bag, were materially lower. Mexican Petroleum soon advanced 1½ points and several of the investment rails rose from fractions to a point with steels, equipments, sugars, leathers and tobaccos.

The market became very quiet and featureless at midday save for conflicting movements in the speculative groups. American Woolen and Bethlehem Steel were strongest of the prominent industrials, while United Fruit and International Paper developed reactionary tendencies.

The closing was firm.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Wheat prices took a decided upward swing today, helped by prospective settlement of the British coal strike. The beginning of a federal inquiry here as to wheat market conditions appeared also to be regarded in some quarters as a bullish factor. Opening prices, which ranged from ¼ to 2c higher, with December $2.06 to $2.07 and March $1.96 to $1.97, were followed by material further gains.

Corn advanced with wheat. After opening ¼ to 1c higher, including December at 82¾ to 83c, the market continued to ascend.

Oats were steadied by the firmness of other grain, starting ¼ to ½c off to ½c up, December 54¾ to 54¾, and keeping close to initial figures.

Subsequently, the market declined sharply as a result of selling ascribed to a bearish construction of Secretary Houston's speech before the bankers' convention at Washington. The close was unsettled, at the same as yesterday's finish to 1½c lower, with December $2.03 to $2.03¾ and March $1.95 to $1.95¾.

Houses with Eastern connections were active on the selling side later, and the corn market sagged. Prices closed nervous, 1½c net lower to 1c advance, with December 81½c to 81½c.

REPRESENTATIVES OF MEXICO TO BE HERE

Will Be Guests of Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association Next Saturday.

Representatives of the government of Old Mexico will be the guests of the Mid-Continent Oil & Gas association, Texas-Louisiana division, at the annual membership meeting of that organization in Wichita Falls next Saturday.

General Jacinto Trevino, personal representative of President Huerta, has appointed several members of his staff to represent the Mexican government at the big gathering of Texas and Louisiana oil men. Howard Bennettee, secretary of the Mid-Continent association, who arrived in this city today from Dallas to perfect a number of details incidental to the forthcoming meeting, is authority for the statement:

"The oil industry is in some respects, at least, the one industry that is more or less in disfavor in Mexico today," Bennettee said. "General Trevino and his staff represent the governing power in Mexico, and we will go far toward establishing a friendly relationship if we treat these men with the courtesy due, and show them clearly that American oil men, at least, are not disposed to follow any policy harmful to Mexico's interests.

"The impression our Mexican visitors obtain here and carry back with them will have a tremendous effect on shaping Mexico's policy toward American oil men doing business in that republic."

Judge John J. Shea of Tulsa, Okla., the best informed man in the United States on income tax matters as they affect the oil industry, has accepted an invitation to attend the Mid-Continent meeting. Invitations also have been accepted by Louis J. Wortham of Fort Worth and Porter A. Whaley, general manager of the West Texas chamber of commerce. Earlier engagements have forced John S. Bonner of Houston and Tom Flinty, Jr., of Dallas to send "regrets."

"I regret exceedingly that imperative business engagements make it impossible to accept your cordial invitation to attend the annual gathering of the Mid-Continental Oil & Gas association," Flinty wired Mayor W. D. Cline, president of the Texas-Louisiana division, this morning. "I cherish pleasant memories of our visit to Goodnight and Amarillo last year and trust present meeting may be joyous. Best wishes to all. We shall have a representative present."

One of the features of the dinner to be given Saturday evening at the Wichita club will be a showing of the motion picture, "The Story of Petroleum," which was filmed under the direction of the United States bureau of mines. The film is not for sale and has been loaned by the government for this occasion.

"Arrangements are being made to obtain the friendly service of a number of scouts from the big oil companies to act as drivers of automobiles that will take the visiting oil men over a tour of the local oil fields. Such an arrangement will enable the visitors not only to see the fields but to obtain reliable information regarding the various wells and the general progress being made.

The business session of the association will be held at the county court house at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, and the dinner at 7:30 in the evening.

NEWS FROM THE COURTS

SELF DEFENSE WILL BE PLEA OF NEGRO ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

Self-defense will be the plea by defending counsels in the case against Ernest Stafford, negro, charged with murder in the trial begun Wednesday morning in the 30th district court. This was gleaned from the method employed in the examination of jurors.

Evidence was given in the examination of jurors by the prosecution that the death penalty would be asked for in this case. This suspicion was substantiated by the attorneys for the state.

Jurors who were opposed to a death penalty or who harbored conscientious scruples against capital punishment were excused by the court upon being challenged for cause by the state. All jurors who did not believe in the law of self-defense were challenged for cause by the defense.

Only three out of the first seventeen jurors to be examined were accepted. Three were challenged by the defense and one by the state while ten were excused by the court for cause.

Of the ten excused for cause, eight did not believe in capital punishment while one of the other two stated that he was prejudiced against the negro as a race. The other one of the latter classification said that he would not be able to give the accused a fair trial because the defendant had killed his own wife.

The crime for which the defendant stands accused is alleged to have been committed on July 24, 1920.

The defendant was in the court room during the examination of jurors and at no time did he exhibit any feeling of fear or nervousness. He seemed to enjoy the remarks of some of the men under examination and at times a smile would appear on his countenance.

The confinement in the county jail seemed to have made no apparent effect on his physical or mental condition.

Late Wednesday afternoon the examination of jurors was still in progress and only four had been accepted. A special venire of 50 talesmen were ordered by the court as the first special venire had almost been exhausted.

County Attorney John Davenport and Assistant District Attorney Sam Holliday were prosecuting the case while the defendants were represented by Attorneys Heyser, Cooper and Beauchamp.

FORFEITS BOND IN THE COUNTY COURT AT LAW

Judge Guy Rogers of the county court of law Wednesday morning ordered bonds forfeited in the cases against Batrum Mead and Ted Mickey, both having failed to make appearance. The cases were appeal cases from the city court.

Dick Trebble, charged with speeding, was found not guilty by a jury in the county court of law. He explained to the jury that he was in a hurry as he was endeavoring to catch a train for a man passenger he had.

TWO MORE ARRESTS IN CONNECTION WITH RAID IN OIL FIELD

Two of the alleged outlaws who were sought Tuesday in the sweep-up campaign conducted by the Texas Rangers and officials were placed under arrest shortly after noon Wednesday by Ranger Gonsaullas near Newtown, according to telephonic communication received by Captain Aldrich at that time.

The two men who were captured are known commonly as "Chick" and "Toughey," and it was reported to Captain Aldrich that they had made the statement that no one would ever catch them.

It was stated by officials that they had received information Tuesday while on the raid in the oil districts that these two men as well as several others had heard of the coming of the law and had escaped to Oklahoma.

It is surmised by officials that, under the cover of darkness, they returned across the Red river and accidentally fell into the hands of the Rangers who had been ordered to be on a strict lookout.

CAPTAIN ALDRICH TO RETURN TO HIS DUTIES AT AUSTIN

Duties as paymaster in the adjutant general's department at Austin made it necessary for Captain Aldrich, who has been in charge of the Texas Rangers in this county, to ask that he be permitted to return to the state capital.

The request was granted and Captain Aldrich stated that H. P. Brady, one of the Rangers who has been here constantly, would be in charge after his leave.

It is believed that Captain Aldrich will return to Austin Wednesday night as he stated that he had some urgent duties to perform immediately.

He expressed his hesitancy in asking for leave, but emphasized the fact that he was positive that Mr. Brady would be able to handle the situation here as efficiently as himself.

The remaining six Texas Rangers are still on duty in the fields and will be there as long as the county and district officials believe that their services are necessary.

VERDICT OF GUILTY AND SENTENCE OF 15 YEARS

"We, the jury, find the defendant, Roy King, guilty of robbery with firearms and affix his punishment at 15 years at hard labor."

This was the verdict and sentence imposed by the jury in the 30th district court at 5:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon after they had deliberated only an hour.

The defendant was not present when the verdict was returned. He had waived being present at the conclusion of the trial and returned to the county jail. He had tired under the stress of the strain of the trial which had been in progress for two days. His gray-haired mother, heavy hearted, left the court room with her son and then wended her way homeward.

Roy King, who was found guilty of the charge, was indicted together with Roy Woods and James Oldham for holding up a crap game near Burkburnett on the night of August 7. The three were placed under arrest the following morning when Woods and King had brought Oldham to the Wichita General hospital. Oldham had been injured, having sustained a bullet wound in the front of his right leg.

The defendant's counsels were not present when the verdict was returned. Just what further action, if any, will be taken by them was not made known and they had not expressed themselves before the court late Wednesday morning. It was rumored, however, that they would give notice of appeal and ask the court to set super sedas bonds.

TRAFFIC VIOLATIONS ARE AGAIN FEATURING DAILY SESSIONS POLICE COURT

Morning sessions of the local police court have recently returned to their favorite practice of dealing mainly with traffic violators. The ordinance prohibiting the parking of cars on Eighth street for over one hour has flooded the court with offenders charged with violating this ordinance and the $5 fines collected each morning from these violators are the chief source of revenue for the city at the present time.

The "wrong parking" laws which have been in force for some time apparently are not sufficiently familiar to a number of autoists to keep them out of the clutches of the law. Why a motor car driver will park his car with its nose flat against the curb and the rest of the machine at an angle of 45 degrees is more than the police officials can understand, but this thing is done frequently and the offender invariably pays $5 for the privilege of being original.

The ordinance which prevents automobiles from passing street cars that are loading or discharging passengers is being enforced with more severity now than it has been in the past. Violations of this ordinance became so flagrant that little leniency is being shown those who are convicted of breaking this law. Sergeant Hunter arrested a man Tuesday for driving his car without a muffler and while taking the offender to the city hall he ran past a street car with utter disregard for the safety of descending passengers. A block farther he attempted the same stunt and was only saved from accomplishing it by the intervention of the officer. As it was, he was booked on two charges, one for the muffler offense and the other for passing the car. Judge Ogle assessed him two separate fines.

The street car company has at last been aroused from its lethargy and indifferent attitude in regard to the street car violations and with the help of the company the police officials now propose to wage war on those who persist in violating the street car feature of the ordinance.

OHIO AT SEVENTH

USE UNAUTHORIZED EDITORIAL IN EFFORT TO DISCREDIT COX

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Governor James M. Cox believes that it is the traveling salesmen "who have made the present development of the American markets possible."

He made this statement six years ago during his first administration as governor of Ohio in a telegram addressed to the managing editor of the Dayton News, demanding the immediate retraction of an editorial published without his knowledge in the News in which statements derogatory to traveling salesmen were made.

The fact of the publication of the editorial six years ago in the newspaper owned by Governor Cox has been resurrected by the republican national committee, which is circulating pamphlets reprinting the offending editorial, with the caption, "What Cox Says." Prompt action by Governor Cox's friends among the traveling salesmen has brought disproof as prompt.

"The article not only was not what Governor Cox said, but it did not in any way represent his sentiments, was not written by him or with his knowledge, and was promptly repudiated by him and a retraction ordered by him to be printed in the Dayton News. The retraction was published in the News and the connection of the writer of the editorial with the newspaper terminated.

The offending editorial was published in the Dayton News on August 14, 1914, at a time when Mr. Cox was serving as governor of Ohio and was giving no attention to the affairs of his newspaper, which was entirely in charge of the managing editor, D. E. Kumler.

Cox Orders Retraction.

Immediately after he learned of the publication of the editorial Governor Cox telegraphed the managing editor of the News under date of August 24, 1914, as follows:

"My attention has been called to an editorial which appeared in the Daily News in criticism of commercial travelers. This is an insult so gratuitous and uncalled for, an affront to an organization of men who have made the present development of the American market possible, and is so radically in conflict with the policy of the newspaper which I own and control that I request you to insist at once upon the editorial writer responsible for it, publishing an apology addressed to the commercial travelers over his signature without unnecessary delay."

A few days later Howard Bratton, who wrote the editorial, printed the following apology:

"Upon returning to the city my attention has been directed to an editorial published during my absence, which has given offense to traveling men. The spirit of the editorial has been altogether misunderstood. The commercial traveler is a wholly necessary factor in distribution and works along perfectly honorable and on legitimate lines. I sincerely regret the interpretation that has been placed upon this editorial and to any who have taken umbrage, gladly apologize for having expressed myself clumsily. Nothing was farther from my intention than saying anything which could be construed as an attack on traveling salesmen engaged in legitimate promotion of industry."

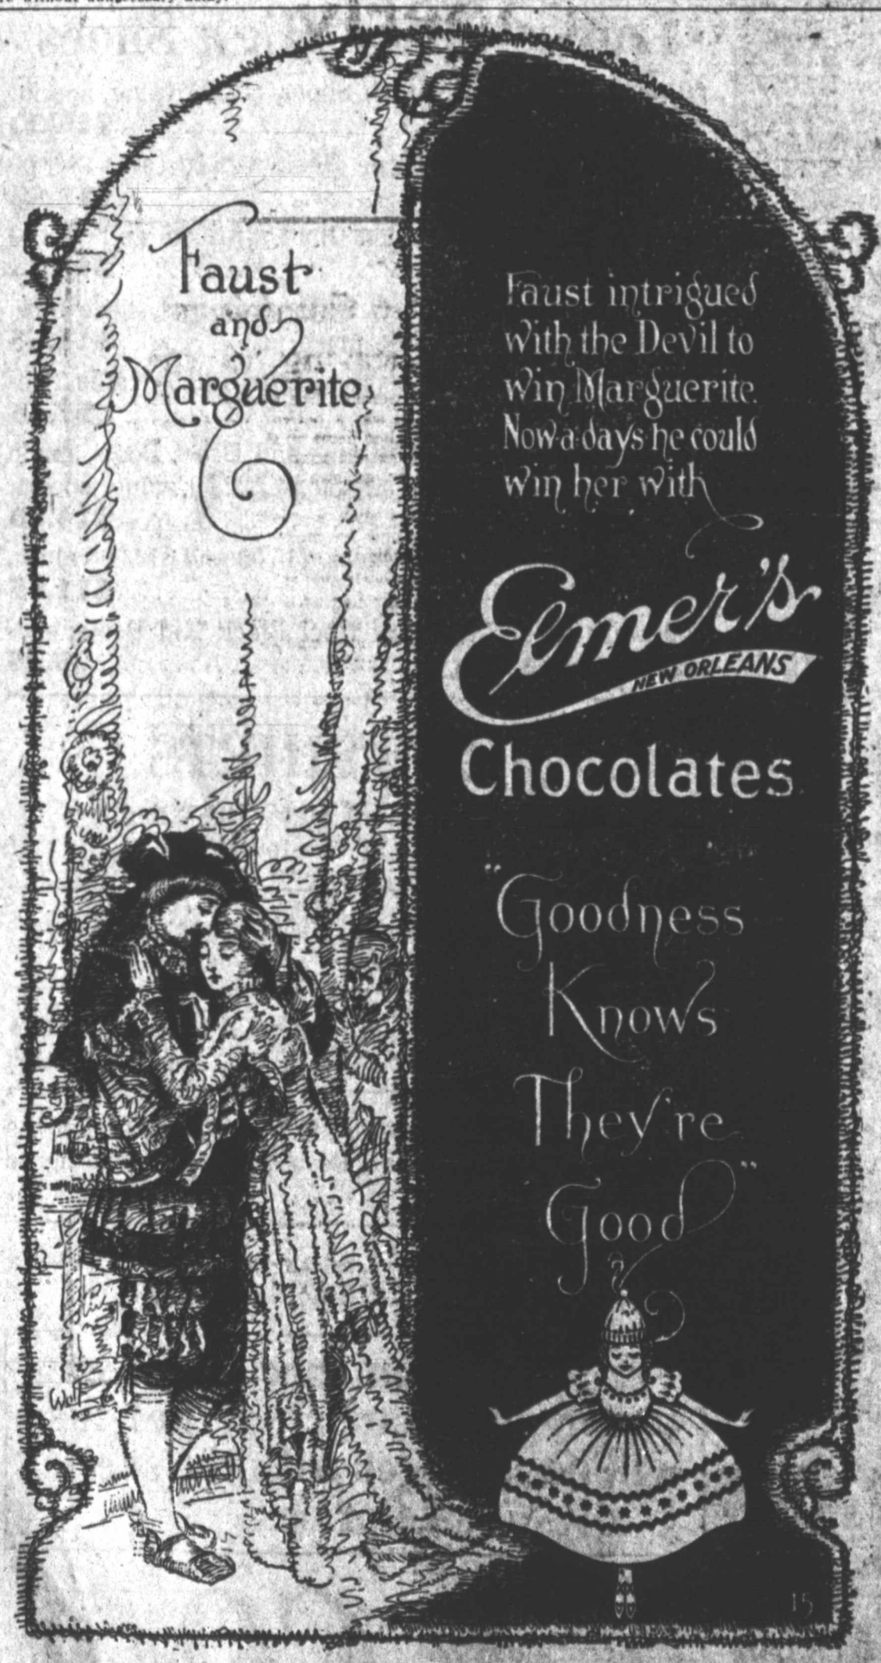

The appearance of the pamphlets issued by the republican national committee in which the derogatory editorial was reprinted with the caption designed to make it appear as the utterance of Governor Cox aroused many traveling salesmen who were not slow to bring to the notice of the governor the attempt to misrepresent him to the traveling salesmen of the country.

In a letter answering one of these friends of the governor the acting secretary to the governor on September 4, 1920, after setting forth the facts of the unauthorized editorial and the demand by Governor Cox for its immediate retraction, added:

"This editorial was in no way an expression of the sentiments of Governor Cox. The governor numbers among his very warmest friends some of the leaders of the United Commercial Travelers and has at various times done much toward supporting the things idealized by that organization.

"I know, too, that the governor at the present time has some very definite ideas on legislation intended for the good of the traveling class, and that if he is elected to the office of president, he will continue in the future as he has in the past, to take into counsel men who represent the traveling industry. I know the governor feels that his experience with traveling men has taught him that they are the best source from which to obtain the real trend of public opinion, and public opinion in the end is a thing that must rule in America."

"Chris, who is that girl?"

What had the old servant told her mistress?

Who was she?

Why did the proud old family eagerly accept the pretty salesgirl?

How a "flapper" looks to a woman of ninety

A woman of ninety, who has seen four generations of flappers, encounters the irrepressible young woman of 1920!

In Mrs. Harland's youth, the properly brought up young woman blushed—today it would take a hardy blush to penetrate the "complexion" that is so universally worn. Then it was genteel to faint—now it is sporting to face anything with a nonchalance of a receiving teller.

Off they rush in their too short skirts and their too low waists dabbing on their complexions as they go. "Self-expression" leads them to strange extremes but this young woman of ninety finds it in her heart to love and understand them.

She tells why in the November Pictorial Review.

A group of unusual short stories

Here are six real stories—six stories! Every one of them vivid, unusual—the type of short story you have come to expect in Pictorial Review.

A story of suppressed desires. Read "Lucy Moon" by Hugh Walpole.

A story of the circus. Read "The Simp" by Courtney Ryley Cooper.

A sparkling tale of adventure. Read "A King of Paris" by H. Collinson Owen.

A story of overwhelming passions. Read "Second Hand" by G. Ranger Wormser.

A rollicking yarn of the sea. Read "A Whale of a Story" by Richard Matthews Hallet.

The story of a striker's wife. Read "Paying the Piper" by Charles Caldwell Dobie.

A mystery story of New York society by Kathleen Norris

SOBBING, broken, the grand old lady begged her children not to question her—just to accept the girl.

Accept this pretty little nobody from a book store counter—they, one of the proudest, one of the wealthiest of all New York's old families!

Take her from the shop, from the obscure apartment where she lived with their old servant—into the envied citadel of their exquisitely formal lives!

What would people say? What would they think?

Was that hushed family scandal lifting its head again? Unbelievable, intolerable—its price had been paid years ago!

Kathleen Norris takes you into the life of New York's Four Hundred. Brilliant, intimate, powerfully written, it is a revealing portrait of the young society girl of today—the sober world of work—and through it all that baffling entangling question—to whom did the girl belong?

Two women knew—and would not speak. Two men rushed blindly on, loving her—the cultured sensitive gentlemen and the earnest young mechanic. Where could she find happiness, this girl with the conflicting blood of two worlds in her veins?

"THE BELOVED WOMAN"

by Kathleen Norris

Begins in this issue

Was John Cummings justified in leaving his wife?

She was a good woman. She was kind to her children. And she was a perfect housekeeper. Even had handstitched hems on all her curtains. Kept her home spick and span. And yet John went. Why did he go away with that other woman? Just what made him desert his wife? John said she was such a good housekeeper she didn't know how to make a home. He wanted companionship.

But he had to go out to get it.

Now before you get mad with John read what Montanye Perry says about him. Mrs. Perry has been keeping tabs on the neighbors in her own town, and she isn't quite sure that John wasn't halfway right.

There's an awful jolt for a lot of "good" wives in her article in Pictorial Review for November entitled "When is a wife not a wife?"

Do you know where the waist-line will be this winter?

Do you know the proper width for skirts?

The November Pictorial Review contains the forecast of Winter fashions. The newest and most charming styles are shown, with descriptions of the favored fabrics and valuable little hints concerning trimming and accessories.

This is to be a season of straight lines and gay embroideries. The moyen-age dress, with its simple lines and long waist-line promises to hold the first place in the popular favor.

One of the most noticeable features of the new styles is the lavish use of vivid, "peasant" embroideries, charming designs that enliven the simplest frock.

There is a Pictorial Review pattern to reproduce exactly all the styles you like best.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1920.

"We hope to see the time—and may it come soon—when the farmer will be able to place a price on his products and get it," notes the Terrell Transcript, adding that he is about the only member of the body politic that is not now able to do this. "The newspaper man gets his out of his newspaper, fixes a price therefor, and gets it. The merchant buys his merchandise, places a price thereon that will bring him a reasonable profit, and gets it. The lawyer appraises his own fee and gets it. The doctor performs his ministry of mercy at so much per, and gets it. And so on all along the line. The farmer is alone among all classes of industry in not being able to demand a living price for the product of his brain and brawn. He raises the stuff that the world is hungry for and has to have, and yet he has to take whatever is offered for it." That is true of the farmer, but, also, it is true of every other real producer of every raw material. The oil man, the miner, the cattleman, the sheepman all let the purchaser set the price. Here and there, where nature has given a comparatively small area complete control of a product, organization has made it otherwise. The owners of the Kimbery mines make production conform to demand and set their own price on diamonds. Within limitations California citrus fruit producers, Washington and Idaho apple growers, and Yucatan sisal growers have fixed the prices of their products and forced the world to pay them. Organization by the cotton growers, for the south has the world domination of that staple, could get the same result if they were able to effect one that could overcome the numerous and natural obstacles in the way. Organization in other lines of raw material producers, if they were possible, might achieve the same results. But they have never been deemed possible up to now, and they may not be possible now; but there is a strong effort under way in several different parts of the country to that end, with the principal purpose of putting on the market only such proportion of the products as the existing demand will consume, to reduce production through reduced acreage, and to finance the holding movements that are designed merely to get the producer a fair profit on his investment in land, equipment and labor. Rather than bring further discouragement to the producers of farm products and to bring about reduced production through the disastrous method of driving the farmers off the farms, we think it well that every other business interest in the country, their own eventual well-being indissolubly wrapped up in the prosperity of the producer, should help to solve the problem which confronts him directly and all the others of us indirectly.

It is not always easy or even possible to distinguish news from propaganda emanating from the Far East. There are so many interests at stake, so many factors concerned, that every dispatch is not to be taken for its full face value. "It is well established," notes a Manila dispatch, "that Japan is considering the possibility of war with the United States for the domination of the Pacific. "According to the best belief, she hopes to defer that clash until she is firmly entrenched in China and Siberia and until, by clever maneuvering, she can make it appear to her people that she is acting entirely on the defensive." The dispatch proceeds to outline purported Japanese strategy; that she believes America is opposed to war, that war with Japan over Pacific domination would be unpopular in America; that within five or 10 years the millions of war-trained American soldiers would be too old or gone stale; and that congress will never give appropriations necessary to maintain an army on a scale of meeting possible war contingencies. On the other hand, we have Japanese publicists asseverating there isn't a remote chance of war between the two countries; that not even the present feeling over the California Japanese land-owning act will die down on both sides. Manila—American outpost—probably is not the best point from which to obtain a true perspective of Japanese conditions, for it probably would be the first to meet attack and its people are apt to transform apprehension into beliefs. And there exist the potentialities of more than a mere antagonistic feeling in the present situation. A middle course between war-anticipation and peaceful settlement of existing or pending disputes were probably the safer way until the League of Nations—preventive of war, backed by the civilized nations of the world—has come into real being.

Every growing city is finding a faster-growing problem in the solution of the transportation question. Streets that were laid out under conditions that had no visualization whatever of future situations and that would have sufficed probably for all time to come but for the motor-propelled vehicle are quite inadequate in the larger cities to handle traffic at congested centers, and those congested centers continue to increase in both number and in difficulty of individual solution as automobiles and trucks grow steadily more numerous. One-way streets have been adopted in some cities as a temporary and unsatisfactory expedient; in others thoroughfares have been widened at costs mounting far into the millions by condemnation of valuable property, and even in these cities the problem is almost as acute as in the beginning. But quick transportation is essential if a city is to continue to grow; otherwise immensely valuable property is bound to deteriorate in attractiveness and in rentals, and municipal thought is being brought more and more to bear on some satisfactory plan that offers some permanence. And that the initial cost of the installation of the plan is of virtually no consequence is shown by the beginning the other day of a vehicular tunnel that New York and New Jersey have joined to construct under the Hudson river at an estimated minimum cost of $28,000,000. The tunnel, despite its tremendous cost, is not even expected to solve the problem of inter-city transportation, merely to ameliorate conditions that have grievously interrupted business between New York city and Jersey City.

The French foreign office admits that some Frenchman may have "conversed" with Senator Harding on the subject of the "United States taking the lead for a world fraternity," but if so that he was not a spokesman or even remotely a representative of the French government. The "informal speech" to which the republican nominee referred in his Greencastle, Ind., speech evidently must have been extremely "informal," and it is upon that flimsy pretext that Senator Harding would have his hearers believe that his suggestion of an "association of nations" has been seriously taken by some of the 43 governments now signatory to the League of Nations covenant.

The Southern Pacific railroad has undertaken to expedite the loading of cars by offering cash rewards to its employes, to be distributed monthly on a basis of comparison with the same months in last year. The railroads have full realization that they are on trial and that improvement in service over that their patrons were given under government operation is essential to continuance or permanence of that trial. And it is only justice to admit that not only are the roads striving to better their service, but that they are already succeeding in a measure and are sparing no investment in additional equipment within their means to make that success greater.

Is There No Honor in Politics.
(St. Louis Post-Dispatch.)

"It would be unkind of me to comment on poor Taft," sneers Hiram Johnson. "Taft can save his face, so long as he doesn't save his league."

Unfortunately for Mr. Taft, he himself opened the way for the insult. It is he who has made it possible for men like Johnson who are unqualifiedly opposed to the League of Nations to say that in his support of Harding he is only trying to save his face. That applies not merely to Mr. Taft, but to Mr. Hughes and Mr. Wickershaw and Mr. Hoover and all the republicans who have championed the League of Nations. Who can believe in their good faith when they attribute to Senator Harding opinions which the candidate himself public repudiates and when they ask the voters to believe that if Harding is elected he will do what he publicly avows he will not do?

There is an issue in this that is even more fundamental than the League of Nations—the issue of political integrity and political morality in the United States. Mr. Hoover, with zeal of a new convert to old-guard republicanism, has been talking about the supreme importance of party responsibility; but how can there be party responsibility when one-half of a party promises that if returned to power it will do one thing and the other half promises that it will do the other, while the candidate for president alternately agrees with one side and then the other?

Senator Harding is now with the Johnsons and the Borahs and in favor of outright rejection of the covenant of the league; but Mr. Taft insists that this means he is in favor of the league with the league reservations, which Mr. Taft himself opposed. There can be no political honesty, there can be no political integrity, there can be no party responsibility on such terms.

We do not ask Mr. Taft and Mr. Hughes and Mr. Wickersham and their associates to follow the courageous example of Herbert Parsons, who has repudiated Harding and declared himself in favor of Cox. That is more than can reasonably be expected of men who have held the highest places in the republican party. But we have a right to expect from them a little of the courage that bitter-enders like Senator Johnson and Senator Borah have shown. These men have driven Harding over to their side because he knew that they would make good their threats and get out of the campaign unless he yielded. Mr. Taft and the republican advocates of the league have obtained no guarantees, but continue to pledge the candidate to a policy that he himself has rejected.

How can there be any respect for political life in the United States on that basis? There is to be no party principle, so far as republicans are concerned, there is to be no party policy, there is to be no party conscience. Convictions are to be regarded as an embarrassment, and nothing is to count except power and patronage. This is the negation of party responsibility and the men who are engaged in it are in effect registering their opinion that nothing really matters in government except the offices. Everything can be settled later, when the country will be told by the high priests of the party what the election actually meant.

WHY?—

In the Crescent the Emblem of the Turk?
(Copyright, 1920, by Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.)

Popular belief to the contrary, the crescent originally had nothing to do with the Turks or their religion. It was the ancient symbol of the city of Byzantium, and Warburton, in "The Crescent and the Cross," says: "Phillip, the father of Alexander the Great, meeting with great difficulties in carrying on the seige of Byzantium, set his workmen one dark night to undermine the walls. Luckily for the besieged, the new moon suddenly appeared and revealed the design, which accordingly miscarried. In acknowledgment of this assistance, the Byzantines erected a statue to Dana and the crescent became the emblem of their city."

Constantinople, the ancient Byzantium, was captured by the Turks in 1453. Finding the crescent prominently displayed in public places, the invaders took it for granted that the emblem had some peculiar power and adopted it on their own standard, recalling that the same sign had been used as part of the badge of the Janisaries nearly a century before. Since that time, the crescent has become so allied with Turkish art, coinage and usage that it is accepted as being typically Moslem, in spite of the fact that it is not to be found in any early Saracenic work.

The Little Homes of Laughter.

The little homes of laughter can be found on many a street,
And it's there that men and women in the bonds of friendship meet;
Oh, the mansions on the highway may be handsomer to see,
And the rich man's lawn be lovely with the bloom of plant and tree,
But the glory of the nation and its strength from day to day
Are the little homes of laughter where the children romp and play.

There are millions of them smiling underneath the flag at morn—
The homes that know the bedroom where the little ones were born,
The homes without pretension, very clean and neat inside,
That know the scars of sorrow, and the room where one has died;
It's beneath these roofs of kindness and within these walls of love
Where abides the strength and courage that shall keep the flag above.

The little homes of laughter, homes the thousands know and keep,
Where the mothers croon at evening as they rock their babes to sleep
And the fathers in their shirt sleeves find some little task to do—
Oh, it's there you'll see the glory of the old red, white and blue;
In the little homes of laughter, standing north, south, east or west,
It is there you'll see the nation at its finest and its best.

RIPPLING RHYMES

Pots and Kettles.

There is no change on earth, alack! Old customs with us linger; the pot still calls the kettle black, and points a scornful finger. This metaphor of course is wrong, for pots can do no pointing; but let the purists come along, avaunting and arointing. But men can point, and point they do, with righteous indignation, at all the profiteering crew, of high or humble station. The grocer buys a Sunday suit, and when he's made the payment, he says the government should shoot the maker of that raiment. The tailor to the grocer wends, to buy a few molasses, and then his treasured beard he rends: "The price all reason passes!" The buther stands beside his block, and butches with a clever; he bought some capsules from the doc, to cure his chills and fever. And now he says, "It was a shame, the way that sawbones taxed me; he played a low down, sinful game; he soaked me and he waxed me." The doctor to the butcher goes, to buy a pound of mutton; and says, on leaving, "Heaven knows this meat man is a glutton! My father used to buy a sheep for what this fragment cost me; this butcher's charges, fierce and steep, confound me and exhaust me!" The pot about the kettles wail; the kettles get excited and say the pots would be in jail if public wrongs were righted.

THOUGHT HIS TIME HAD COME—DISAPPOINTED

"I never was more surprised in my life than when I took the first dose of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. My stomach trouble had been of eight years' standing, sometimes so bad as to cause convulsions, followed by hemorrhage. I thought my time in this world was short and believed it the last medicine I would ever take. It is now eight weeks since, and I am feeling better than for many years." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. Side Talks

By RUTH CAMERON

True Enough But—

Not long ago an unhappy wife came to me for counsel and help. It seemed that the husband had confessed to an infatuation with another woman, but had assured his wife that he really loved her and meant to give up the other woman.

The wife was a woman who had had her husband's undivided devotion up to that time and it was a terrible blow to her. She was physically sick from the shock. She did not feel as if she could go on living. But the husband was terribly remorseful; he assured her that the other feeling was nothing but an infatuation; the wife was deeply in love with him and would have been wretched apart from him, and besides, there were children—and so they agreed to patch up their lives and go on.

That all happened some months ago and it seemed as if they might gradually win back to happiness again. But this is the obstacle that has sprung up. The wife's trust has of course been shaken, and she is terribly jealous and suspicious. She wants to know where he is all the time, she questions him when he comes home at night, she is ready to be suspicious on the slightest provocation, and she is constantly asking him questions about the unhappy affair which he is trying to bury. The result is that he is in a state of exasperation and annoyance that bids fair to drive him back to the other woman.

"I know it's wicked," he said to me, "and I know I was to blame in the first place (though I think I had some justifications). But I am trying to do the best I can, and it doesn't seem to me I can stand this nagging. I feel sometimes as if I should go mad. I'm almost ready to let her have the children and leave her."

Later I talked to the wife and told her that if she kept it up she would lose him, and that the way to win him back and to make him forget the other woman was to be as loveable and not as unloveable as she could.

She was as mad as a hornet. "It's all very well to talk," she said, "but I guess you would feel just as I do if you had been through what I have."

Doubtless I would. There is no weakness I have a more unhappy understanding of than jealousy. But—and hereby hangs my tale—if I did yield to that feeling, I would end just where she will if she keeps up. If she wanted to give up the man, that would be one thing. But she didn't. She wants to keep him. And I know I told her the truth about the way to keep him.

I tell this tale not as an illustration of marital unhappiness, but as an illustration of the way people have of asking for counsel and then, when they are told harsh truths, of saying: "I guess you couldn't do any better than I," and so forth.

I know a woman who suffers from sleeplessness and who reacts to an offer of the truth about insomnia—that the best thing to do is to stop fretting and trying hard to sleep, since that only wears one out and drives sleep farther away—by saying: "I guess you couldn't like it any better than I do if you had awake three or four hours every night."

True, but it doesn't affect the value of the suggestion.

Because it is "easier to teach twenty what were good to be done than to be one of the twenty to follow your own teaching," is that any reason to reject good principles?

No one will ever grow and develop in character and intelligence who takes this attitude.

HOROSCOPE

The stars incline but do not compel
(Copyright, 1913, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Wednesday, October 20, 1920.

Astrologers read this as an unimportant day in planetary rule. Early in the morning the sun is adverse, but later Mars and Uranus are mildly helpful to the human race.

During this sway it is not wise to take any risks. Initiative of all sorts is likely to be ineffectual.

The planet that governs the tongue seems to indicate that oratory will be more prevalent than at any time in recent years.

This is not an auspicious day for any one who seeks office, for the sun is in malefic aspect and other planets indicate that criticism, misrepresentation and misunderstanding will be aroused in quarters where approval should be assured.

The eclipse of the moon on the 27th of this month is held to forecast diseases among cattle since it falls in the first decan of Taurus.

Earthquake shocks are denoted for about the one hundred and forty-fourth degree of east longitude.

Illness among prominent persons may become prevalent at this time and may affect a candidate at a critical time.

The fear of broken health will become widespread among public men, astrologers prophesy, and an unusual number of deaths will occur.

Education again benefits from the positing of the stars, if the seers interpret the signs correctly.

Soldiers again are subject to favorable conditions, since their service will be recognised according to new standards.

Troubles are foreshadowed for more than one city, owing to political conditions that require a Solomon and command only the passing interest of an office-seeker.

Persons whose birthdate it is should be especially careful about avoiding risks in business during the coming year.

Children born on this day are likely to be thoughtful and clever. They will probably possess fine talents that must be carefully directed since they do not easily succeed in business.

WISE MAN WAITETH UNTIL ALL RETURNS ARE IN BEFORE MAKING SURE OF VICTORY

By JOHN GOULD.

Those who hope for the success of the democratic party in next month's election have been indulging of late in their quadrennial indoor sport of kidding themselves that there is some chance for realization of that hope. Kidding yourself is never a very profitable pastime, and it may be regretfully admitted that just now it is difficult as well as unprofitable; but since such pastime is one of the few in which we may still lawfully indulge, it can do no harm to speculate somewhat, to premise somewhat, and continue to kid ourselves while the kidding is still good.

To say the worst, and get it over with, the election of Harding seems as much of a moral certainty as anybody's election ever did. But it doesn't seem a bit more certain than did the election of Hughes just four years ago, two weeks before election day. Something happened then to upset the dope-cart; something may happen to upset it in this year of grace, prohibition and income taxes, 1920.

The dope in 1916 was that Wilson couldn't possibly carry New York, Indiana or Illinois, and gamblers and folks with their eyes on postoffices figured that he couldn't win without these states because there was no precedent for it.

Certainly the democratic prospects today are no less hopeful than they were in 1916, two weeks before the fateful day. Everything that was conceded to Hughes then can be just as cheerfully conceded to Harding now, but no more; remembering always that politicians can concede and concede, but the wise man waiteth until all the California returns are in.

An interesting bit of political history is told by Mark Sullivan, well known political writer, in connection with those last two weeks in 1916.

"About the middle of October," writes Mr. Sullivan in Collier's, "these men (at democratic national headquarters) became aware, through that kind of sixth sense which is a true politician's birthright, that there was a smoldering sense of disappointment, of unfulfilled expectations, with the republican candidate. Seizing upon this situation, with an audacity that was not short of political genius, these leaders threw their strength into the West and Middle West. Without a cent in the treasury, they sent out telegraphic orders for advertising in the leading newspapers of the West which aggregated $600,000. They supplemented this drive with every device at their command, and they turned the election."

The "dope" was so thoroughly upset in 1916 that the usual election forecasts by political writers are less in evidence in 1920; most of them guessed wrong four years ago, and they realize that the job of prophet is still more difficult now. The usual straw votes are being taken, and they indicate a swing to Harding that is decisive enough to make a democrat go to the undertaker's and give up, unless he happens to remember what the straw votes of mid-October, 1916, were showing. On the face of those votes, Wilson had no chance.

Within the last few days there has been abundant evidence that Harding's popularity is "over the peak," and that democratic chances have improved perceptibly, if not materially. Within the two remaining weeks there may come the "psychological overturn" which Mr. Sullivan says is necessary for the democrats if they are to repeat. Just what form that overturn, that upset, can take is hard to conjecture; but if democratic leaders are as shrewd as they are credited with being, they know that the chief handicap for Cox is the animosity to Wilson. If something, anything, could happen to suddenly turn this animosity into friendship, to bring the American people as a whole to a realization of the virtues of the chief executive and to a better understanding of his statesmanship, the overturn will have been accomplished. There may be the wit and the acumen and the energy at democratic national headquarters to bring this about; maybe something outside of politics, coming just at the psychological moment, can encompass it.

Old measuring sticks won't do this year. Rules that were rigid in 1916 are junked in 1920. If anything besides the high cost of everything has been noticeable since the armistice, it has been the undercurrent of unrest, of indecision, in these United States; that feeling has manifested itself chiefly in labor's ranks, but it isn't confined to labor by any means. It would seem logical to figure that this unrest would be most likely to result in turning out the party in power, but that isn't an inevitable conclusion. The political dopester can no longer point to this group or class of men and say that because they have such and such a grievance, they will vote together a certain way. The old dope is off.

Whether any such "smoldering sense of disappointment" as existed with regard to Hughes, has developed or may develop, in Harding's case, is a matter of mere conjecture as yet. Hughes, it will be recalled, was urged upon the people by Roosevelt and others as a man who would cleanse America of the stains upon her national honor, as they phrased it, and yet it cannot be questioned that every pro-German element in the country was supporting the jurist because of a belief, well-founded or not, that he would be more considerate of Germany than Wilson had been. This, together with Hughes' lining up so thickly with the old guard, caused the ground-swell of dissatisfaction that resulted in a democratic victory.

There is no such burning issue this year as there was in 1916. If there were, we might properly wonder if Harding would "wiggle and wobble" over it as vigorously as he has on the League of Nations, which is trying hard to be the issue this year.

The league question isn't really an issue; a negligible percentage of voters will cast ballots for Cox or for Harding because of that question. It doesn't come close enough to the average voter for him to get worked up over it; there would be more hope for Cox if it were an issue, because unquestionably the democrats have played rings around the republicans on the league discussion. There really isn't any issue this year, in the sense that one recalls the burning questions involved in the Wilson and Hughes candidacies in 1916.

This campaign depends upon personalities, rather than issues; those who vote for Harding on November 2 will be anti-Wilson men, rather than anti-Cox men.

There are enough voters who are "sore" on the chief executive to elect Harding, provided they all stay sore until election day. The unhappy feature of it, from a democratic standpoint, is that the most pronounced soreness is in those states that were considered pivotal, prior to 1916, and still, for forecasting purposes, may be considered so. Upon the hope of some sort of upheaval that will overcome this sentiment, the chances for democratic victory depend.

It isn't much of a chance, but it is a chance. Remembering the early grief, the deferred hope, and the eventual joyfulness that marked the election of 1916, us democrats can keep right on hoping until even California is heard from.

At any rate, we can be more cheerful in defeat than the republicans; we are more accustomed to it.

WELL EQUIPPED FOR THE RESCUE OF ENTOMBED MINERS

CHARLESTON, W. VA., Oct. 20.—The West Virginia Bureau of Mines which is credited by experts with the best equipment in the country for rescuing entombed miners has just added to its outfit for that work three new pieces of apparatus—a geophone, a carbon monoxide detector and a brass encased thermometer.

The geophone is similar to a physician's stethoscope. As the stethoscope is used to detect irregularities in the human body by sound, so the geophone is used to detect earth sounds. In this way entombed miners can be located noting the direction from which the sound vibrations come.

The brass-encased thermometer records maximum and minimum temperatures whereby it can be ascertained when it is safe to enter mines sealed to smother fires. Hitherto, it has been a problem to know when to enter the shafts, but with the thermometer dropped through a hole in the barricade, this can be determined easily.

The carbon monoxide detector is considered the most important piece of apparatus from the point of protecting the lives of rescuers. The gas is detected by a color tube and a color scale on the instrument. Formerly canary birds were used, but their use was not entirely satisfactory, as the birds often succumbed to other gases, while a color detector instrument shows no other gas than carbon monoxide present. One-tenth of one per cent of the gas is said to be fatal to a human being.

or a life-long drudge?

A WOMAN'S home is her life. Is it a prison? Does the boundary line of her life begin and end within the four walls of her house? Is homemaking, after all, merely a phrase that clever writers have devised, or is it the grandest, noblest, and greatest aim of women, next to motherhood?

ELECTRA FIELD LEADS IN NUMBER OF WELLS FOR THE PAST WEEK

IOWA PARK AND K. M. A. DISTRICT REPORT LARGEST PRODUCERS.

TWO SMALL PRODUCERS IN BURKBURNETT DISTRICT

Northwest Etension Is Credted With Two New Wells Producing Around 130.

Very few oil well completions were made in Wichita county last week in proven territory, according to the latest reports available.

The Electra field led in number of wells brought in but the majority were shallow producers, the Overland Petroleum company bringing in five shallow producers on the Burnett et al. tract for a total production of about 100 barrels. Four wells were abandoned around the 1,900-foot mark in the same district during the week. The Burk States Oil company abandoned its No. 1 Foster & Allen at a depth of 1,890 feet; the Sam Kruger et al abandoned their No. 1 Foster & Allen at a depth of 1,914 feet; Clois L. Greene abandoned the No. 1 Hirschi at 1,882 feet, and the Burk Cameron Oil company abandoned its No. 4 Foster & Allen at the 1,900-foot mark. Sixteen new locations were made in this district, the majority by the Overland Petroleum company.

The Iowa Park and Kemp-Munger-Allen field proved to be the biggest producer of the week. The No. 5 Kemp & Kempner brought in by the Seay Stone Oil company is producing 120 barrels from the 1,760-foot sand. Maer & Shappell brought in their No. 3 Kemp & Kempner, showing about 90 barrels at about the same depth, while Waggoner & Greene's No. 5 Munger-C is showing about 65 barrels at the same depth. Haynes, Aft, Cannon & Granfill abandoned their No. 7 Munger at a depth of 1,763 feet. Only one new location was noted.

Two small producers were brought in in the Burkburnett district. The Congressional Oil company brought in the No. 1 Myers at a depth of 1,880 feet, producing about 25 barrels, and the Hobbs Oil company's No. 19 Daniel showed 50 barrels. Nine new locations were made in the district.

Two wells producing about 120 barrels were brought in in the northwest extension. The Texas company's No. 26 C. Birk was the larger of the two and came in at a depth of 1,580 feet, showin about 90 barrels. A 40-barrel well was brought in by the Cornucopia Oil company on the Vogel. Eleven new locations were made in this district, while W. G. Weimer's No. 10 Brannon location was abandoned.

DAWSON HAS NO FEAR OF EAT SHORTAGE THIS WINTER

DAWSON, Y. T., Oct. 20.—This city has no fear of meat shortage this winter with thousands of caribou roaming in great herds up to the very outskirts of Dawson. Every house in the city has been stocked up with caribou for the winter and it is estimated there are at least 30,000 of the animals running at large in the vicinity.

FRANCE IS LOSING RANK AMONG NAVIES OF WORLD

By JOHN DE GANDT

PARIS. (By Mail.)—Should there be another big war in the near future, Argenine, Brazil and Chile would be in a position to give more help to countries such as the United States and England than France, as regards the power to her naval artillery.

This is the essence of an article in "Le Temps," which gives at length actual figures about the Brazilian, Argenine and Chilean warships. It says;

"Before the era of the dreadnought, the South American republics had war navies adapted to the importance of their part in the world. Then the European navies had guns much bigger than the biggest South American guns, which rendered the latter relatively powerless. But the dreadnought came. Argentine, Chile and Brazil understood that they must not build fighting ships beaten in advance and ordered abroad dreadnoughts able to accept a fight with any silimar ship existing.

"The change was complete. In 1914 the three South American republics had a fleet including seven warships comparable to those of the European fleets. This fleet was equal to the present French fleet, if not superior, because the Chilean dreadnought carried 356 millimeter guns superior to the French 340 millimeter. Further, the South American dreadnoughts would have been a very real help to the American fleet if difficulties had arisen with Europe.

"The question of the warships can only have one solution; that it be at least equal, possibly superior to the ships she may have to meet. The importance of the country to which she may belong does not matter any longer—the enemy alone does. And yet, in France, we have not reached the point where stood the South American republics before 1914. We adopted the same caliber for heavy artillery on our dreadnoughts several years after them, and when England decided to replace her 305 by the 343, we timidly made our 340 millimeters, while Chile chose 356. Our 340's were not yet in use when England had the 381; Japan and the United States possessed the 356, and were on the way to 406 and even 457."

The article terminates by urging that every effort be made in France to reach a point where her navy is able to bring any valuable help to the allies. It warns France that she must [illegible] her rank in the world's navies

CLINE ELECTED HONORARY MEMBER ARARAT TEMPLE

Mayor Walter D. Cline, who, when he has neither private business nor municipal affairs to occupy his attention, concerns himself with the duties of being Potentate of Maskat Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., has been elected as honorary member of Ararat Temple, of Kansas City. News of the honor conferred upon him by the Missouri Shriners was received this afternoon, the mail bringing to Cline a beautiful engraved diploma of honorary membership.

Frank H. Cromwell, Potentate of Ararat Temple, was a visiting Shriner in Wichita Falls August 31st when Maskat Temple was instituted here. Cromwell made a special trip from Kansas City for the occasion, and while he was here Potentate Cline and other prominent Wichita Falls Shriners did their best to show the visitor from the "show-me" state a good time. Apparently their efforts were appreciated.

NEW BASEBALL WAR A CERTAINTY UNLESS "LOYAL FIVE" ACCEPT THE LASKER PLAN BEFORE NOVEMBER 1

MOUNDSMEN DUE TO RECEIVE BUMPS IN A FEW MORE YEARS

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Beginning with the year 1920, professional baseball should have a batting renaissance.

At just about that time the unintentional tutoring of Babe Ruth will begin to show its effect on the American youth. Kids now at the impressionable age will be beginning to break into box scores of professional baseball and the cards say that a flock of pitchers will begin to yelf for a ball a trifle less lively. Owners of clubs, too, will favor legislation to keep a flock of pellets from leaving the grounds every day. Something new in the way of batting achievements will have to be invented, probably, because home-runs should be as common then as ordinary hits are now.

The reason for this dip into prophecy naturally is that everywhere is this broad—except perhaps mentally—land, the 10-year-old kid is imitating Babe Ruth. They've got his swing, his "stance" and even his "waggle."

Just as a caddy develops into a star golfer, simply through conscious or unconscious imitation of the star drivers and putters he serves, so are the kids of today going to pick up some of Babe's homerun methods.

Of course Babe is unusually adapted to heavy clouting, but it is generally admitted that his swing and "follow through" help a lot in gaining distance. No one is more apt in acquiring the cunning of a star than the 10-year-old boy.

Baseball players just starting their career should avoid becoming pitchers. In just a few more years the moundsmen will be getting their bumps.

OLD ROMAN STARTING TO REBUILD WHITE SOX TEAM

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—The White Sox have started to rebuild their shattered machine, according to reports here today.

The once scrappy Hose was wrecked when seven players were indicted for throwing the 1919 world series. Charles A. Comiskey, owner, was said to have offered the Baltimore club $50,000 for three players. For two players sought from the St. Paul club, it was said, Comiskey offered $30,000.

Comiskey was reported after Jack Bentley, southpaw pitcher and first-baseman; Shortstop Daley, and Bill Holden, outfielder of the Orioles.

The St. Paul men reported sought are Catcher Hargrave and Outfielder Elmer Miller.

KROHN-FITZSIMMONS BOUT POSTPONED UNTIL MONDAY

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 20.—The ten-round open air bout between Harry Krohn of Akron, Ohio, middleweight champion of the South, and Young Fitzsimmons of this city, middleweight champion of the Southwest, scheduled for last night, was postponed until next Monday night because of wet grounds.

AMERICAN TUG GOLIATH RESCUES STEAMER CREW

FALMOUTH, ENG., Oct. 19.—The American tug Goliath arrived here today with the crew of the American steamer Burnside, which was reported yesterday to have been abandoned on fire at sea.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Organized baseball today awaited a declaration of peace or war from the five American league club owners who have not acted on the "Lasker plan" for re-organization of the game.

Refusal of the owners of the Cleveland, St. Louis, Washington, Detroit and Philadelphia clubs to sanction the work of the National league in joint meeting with three American league magnates, will cause renewal of warfare, baseball experts here predicted today.

The eleven magnates, who have advocated the national agreement and determined to organize a 12-club league if necessary, expressed confidence that the "loyal five" will accept the Lasker plan before November 1.

John McGraw, part owner of the New York Giants, and Barney Dreyfuss of the Pittsburgh club, declared there was nothing for the five American league clubs to do but join the new organization.

"They can't run a league with five or six teams," said McGraw. "If they attempt a legal fight or another battle they are up against the millions of William G. Wrigley, Jr., and other millionaires who have declared for the new deal."

John Heydler, president of the National league, pointed out a number of advantages a 12-club league would have over the present system. "The trips would be shorter and less frequent and cities like Chicago and New York would have the advantage of a continuous city series which would be sure to create considerable interest."

The twelve club league would not mean the death of world series, according to C. P. Stoneham, part owner of the New York Giants. "We had a 12-club league in the late nineties and the same arrangement for series play could be used," Stoneham said. "This would be to divide the season, the winners of the first half of the season playing the winners of the last half. This has been used effectively recently in some minor leagues."

Nothing definite regarding a civilian commission to control baseball's affairs has been done, according to Harry Frazee, owner of the Boston Red Sox. Fasee indicated he favored one commissioner from the east, one from the west and a third named jointly by the minors and majors or picked by the other two commissioners. All magnates agreed the commission must compose men intimate with the technicalities of baseball, but without financial interest.

That the minor leaguers will readily agree to the Lasker plan was the opinion of major league owners. A. D. Lasker, father of the plan, declared sixty endorsements had been received from the teams in the American Association, International League, and other recognized minor circuits.

Many owners declared in favor of working out some revival of the draft provisions at the meeting with minor leaguers in Kansas City November 9.

LITTLE TODDLE-LEGS

Hey, there—Little Toddle-Legs,
Romping down the way,
Can't you take me with you, mate,
For a holiday?
Don't you think if you would try
With a smile for Fate,
You might lead me back again
Through the Morning Gate?

Can't you lead me back again
Down the path of gold,
As in days of old?
Where the sky is morning blue,
And the road along
Every bird in every tree
Is singing you a song?

Can't you take me by the hand,
Leading me afar,
Back across the vanished years
Where the shadows bar?
Only you and I to go
Where I, undefiled,
May look out on life again
As a little child?

For I'll tell you, Toddle-Legs,
Near the sunset gleams,
And the dusk of coming night
Drifts upon my dreams;
Yet I would not mind the road
Where the shadows wait,
If I had but one more day
Through the Morning Gate.

PROVING THEIR TITLE.

An incident far off the beaten path took place last season when a small college, almost unknown in a football way, meeting but one or two strong opponents yet registered two members upon the Consensus All-American eleven.

This college is Center—habitat, Danville, Ky.—and the two all-stars were Quarterback McMillin and Center-rush Weaver.

On Saturday this same college and those two stars, among others, will step forth int othe whiter glare of inspection by facing Harvard in the stadium.

It will be a rasping test—not only for Harvard—but for McMillin, Weaver and Center in general.

Few leading critics had the chance to see Center play last year. On Saturday they will swarm to the stadium from many centers where the thirst for football information and football thrills is almost as keen as the thirst for a vanishing beverage a trifle stouter than the lacteal fluid which gentle Bossie brews.

All in all it will be quite an occasion. Quite.

FOOTBALL OFFICIALS.

More than one capable football official has had just complaint at the treatment he has received from certain coaches, players and graduates in the course of, or after, certain hard games.

There has been in many quarters a lack of courtesy and a lack of fair play.

The football official has had one of the hardest assignments known in sport. And his way isn't made any easier by entirely too many disgruntled losers who use him as the alibi for their defeat.

HOW ABOUT IT, NASSAU?

1903—Princeton, 11; Yale, 6.
1911—Princeton, 6; Yale, 3.
1919—Princeton, 12; Yale, 6.

(The first seven years are the hardest.)
Once every eight years the Tiger
Wins a game from the Bulldog of Yale;
Once every eight years old Nassau
Knows the joy of the Victory Trail.

But Princeton, last year was your winner,
So, please, get this thought through your brain,
You must wait till nineteen-twenty-seven
Ere you wallop old Eli again!

GEORGE S. TREVOR.

A Princeton rebuttal to this depressing suggestion will be properly entertained.

In considering the merits of exceptional football coaches we call your attention to a Mr. Zuppke, of Illinois. One of the best is breaking the news mildly.

"Levinsky has fought his last fight." Levinsky fought his last fight at least one fight before he met Carpentier.

At least one or two wagers have been made that Buck Weaver and others will be playing major league ball again next year. If this is true there won't be any major league ball next year.

FOOTBALL STARS ARE ALREADY MAKING BID FOR "ALL AMERICAN"

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Lusty raps are already being made at the "all-American" door, although the football season is not half under way. The field of candidates is so promising that the pick of the season's best is almost sure to make as good a combination as was found on last year's mythical eleven, considered to have been one of the best in history.

Gulick, Syracuse tackle; George way, Penn State half; French, Army half, and Joe Strauss, Pensylvania fullback, have been the outstanding figures in all their games this season.

In three games Strauss has picked up fumbles and run for touchdowns. This feat last Saturday beat Lafayette in one of the most important games of the year. Gulick did the same thing twice in the Pitt-Syracuse game but one touchdown was not allowed for offside play.

Way's spectacular runs and the all-around work of French have kept them constantly in the limelight.

The notables among the ends include Harrick, West Virginia; Urban, Boston college; Hellestrom, Illinois; Weston, Wisconsin; Belding, Iowa; Kane, Harvard, and Legendre, Princeton.

Besides Gulick, other star tackles are Slater of Iowa; Faxon, Harvard; Keck, Princeton, and King, Navy.

The year's backfield crop is almost as good as last year's. Quarterbacks of early note are Boynton, Williams, McMillan, Centre, Jordan, Dartmouth, Murphy, Yale; Carey, Cornell; Workman, Ohio state; Bob Fletcher, Illinois, and Dueil, Harvard.

A flock of good half backs are running around the field, including Mayer, Cornell; Humphrey, Harvard; Davies, Pittsburgh; Garrity, Princeton, and Stinchcombe, Ohio state.

Looming up with Strauss at fullback is Joe Scheerer, Princeton.

CITY LEAGUE HONORS GO TO MOTOR TRUCKS BY A 2 POINT MARGIN

The long standing argument as to the winner of the city league championship this season was settled last night at a meeting of the directors of the league in the Southern Electric store when it was announced that the Wichita Motor company had nosed out their Presbyterian rivals by a scant 2-point margin. According to the figures announced last night the Motors finished the season with an average of .688 and the Bible Class had a percentage of .686. Consequently, the Southern Electric Cup, symbolic of the championship, will be presented the Motors at a smoker to be held by the league later.

That there will be more clubs in the league next year is a certainty as none of the present clubs tendered resignations last night while applications from the Gulf Production, Texas Company and Panhandle Refining company, were voted upon favorably.

W. O. Beeman, who has guided the destinies of the league since its organization, tendered his resignation at the meeting and the vacancy has been temporarily filled by J. W. Bristol, secretary and treasurer of the league, who will take charge of affairs until the re-organization next spring.

The schedule of the league was hampered last year to no little extent by the lack of suitable diamonds and it is understood that an application will be made to the city to furnish a municipal diamond will be made in the near future.
