Three Men, 2 Minors Taken Into Custody

By TEX DeWEESE

Six persons were arrested shortly after 9 o'clock last night in the first narcotics raid of its kind in Pampa police annals.

Assistant police chief George Wallace and Sgt. Gene Aufleger, assisted by patrolmen Ken Keith and John Odell, moved in on a house at 320 N. West St. and took into custody two men, three minors and a 16-year-old juvenile girl after confiscating a quantity of marijuana cigarettes, a vial of marijuana seeds, a hypodermic syringe and other narcotics paraphernalia.

Those arrested were:

Ronnie Blair Campbell, 24, who resided at the scene of the raid.

Don Ray Thompson, 22, of 717 Malone.

Paula Gayle Hulsey, 18, of 616 W. Browning.

Donald Dean Schulz, 18, of 1825 N. Wells.

Dennis E. Wooley, 17, of 716 Dermot Ave., Melbourne, Fla., and a 16-year-old juvenile Pampa girl.

The two men and three minors were arraigned as adults in Justice Nat Lunsford's court late this forenoon.

Campbell and Thompson each was charged with possession of marijuana and making marijuana available to minors. Bond was set at $10,000 on each count.

The five are being held in county jail in lieu of bond.

Schulz, Wooley and Miss Hulsey each was charged with possession of marijuana and bond was fixed at $5,000 each.

Justice Lunsford advised all of the defendants of their rights and informed them defense counsel would be appointed if they were unable to hire an attorney.

The 16-year-old juvenile girl was undergoing questioning by police late this forenoon and officers stated she would be turned over to juvenile authorities and probably would be released later in custody of her parents.

Police Chief Jim Conner said today the raid and the arrests came after the house on West St. had been under surveillance for some time.

On a couple of occasions before, Chief Conner stated, a raid had been planned but each time occupants of the house left before it could be staged.

Armed with a search warrant drawn by district attorney Guy Hardin and signed by Justice Lunsford, the raid went on schedule last night resulting in the arrests.

Assistant chief Wallace and Sgt. Aufleger went through the front door of the house. Aufleger's report said when they entered, two girls and a man were standing at the door to the bathroom.

Wallace ran to the bathroom and fished out a packet of marijuana cigarettes wrapped in cellophane. An attempt had been made to flush them down the drain, the police report stated.

The packet, according to police, contained 30 or 40 marijuana cigarettes.

Continuing the search, officer Odell found what he said was a vial of marijuana seeds in the pocket of a coat lying on the living room floor. In another coat he said he found a pipe used for smoking marijuana. A hypodermic needle was found in the bathroom, the police report stated. The house smelled strongly of marijuana smoke, the officers stated.

Investigating officers said today they planned further questioning of those charged in the hope of determining if the alleged narcotics find spreads into a larger area of operation.

IT'S IRISHMEN'S DAY

Eyes Of Texas Are On Shamrock Celebration

Pampa was to be represented at the St. Patrick's Day celebration in Shamrock today by a pretty "Irish Coleen" in the form of Miss Jan Autry, 1901 N. Banks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Autry, who was crowned "Miss Irish Rose of 1969" in last year's celebration.

Miss Autry will relinquish her crown today to the new "Miss Irish Rose."

Highlights of today's festivities was to include a mile-long parade headed by Doug McClure, television's "Trampas" in "The Virginian", an Old Fiddlers' Contest at 2:30 p.m., crowning of Miss Irish Rose, The Irish Duplicate Bridge Open Pair Tournament at 7:30 p.m. and three dances beginning at 9 p.m.

But not all of St. Pat's celebrations are in Shamrock today.

All of the sons and daughters of Ireland today celebrated with church services, street pageants and the "Wetting" of the Shamrock."

Across the border in Northern Ireland, where public demonstrations were banned, Irishmen glared at one another across British guns that kept Ireland, where public demonstrations were banned, Irish men glared at one another across British guns that kept feuding Protestants and Roman Catholics apart.

Thousands gathered in Dublin for the giant industrial parade that highlights the official St. Patrick's Day celebration. Streets of Eire towns and hamlets were bedecked with bunting.

The holiday began for most with early mass in small country churches were special shrines to St. Patrick are venerated. Next came the traditional "wetting" of the shamrock in pubs and cottages.

Botanist Caleb Threkeld described the "wetting" of the shamrock in 1726.

"When they wet the shamrock," he said of the Irish, "they often commit excess in liquor, which is not right keeping of a day of the Lord."

In his traditional St. Patrick's Day message to Irish emigrants, Premier Jack Lynch thanked "Ireland's sons and daughters abroad and our many friends overseas" who sent messages of suport during the crisis late last year with Northern Ireland.

President Eamon de Valera said in his message that "to strengthen the bond between the motherland and her friends is an object we should all endeavor to promote."

St. Patrick brought Christianity to Ireland 15 centuries ago. He is said to have banished the snakes from Ireland with a tinkle of his bell.

But some historians demur. They claim that geographer Solinus reported Ireland free of snakes and reptiles in the third century A.D.

ALLEGED POLITICAL PRESSURE

Federal Jury Takes Up When Grand Jury Ended

By MIKE WESTER

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) —A Federal grand jury convenes today to pick up where a San Antonio panel left off in the investigation into alleged political pressure surrounding an election for a House seat now held by Rep. W.S. "Bill" Heatly, D-Paducah.

The jury was scheduled to convene at 10 a.m.

The investigation began in San Antonio where a federal grand jury heard from 17 witnesses during four sessions. Some of those witnesses could be called before the Lubbock jury.

The investigation was switched to Lubbock because the federal grand jury in Lubbock has jurisdiction over the counties which Heatly represents in the Texas House of Representatives.

Heatly, as chairman of the House Appropriations Committee and chairman of joint appropriations committees, is considered by his peers to be one of the most powerful — if not the most powerful — legislators in Texas.

Assistant U. S. District Attorney Frank McCowan said the two volume, 477-page transcript of the testimony taken in San Antonio "and 11 sealed pieces of evidence" from San Antonio will be presented to the Lubbock grand jury by the San Antonio jury's foreman and assistant foreman.

McCown, one of two assistant district attorneys handling the investigation, said it would "probably be late next week before the investigation is completed."

He said FBI agents also might testify in Lubbock.

McCown and U. S. Asisstant District Attorney Alex McGinchey will be joined by U. S. Attorney Eldon Mahon Wednesday. Mahon was in Fort Worth today and said he could not return to Lubbock until Wednesday.

"After the Lubbock grand jury looks it over, it may decide to recall some of those 17 witnesses, hear testimony from 11 additional witnesses whom have not yet been heard from, or act on the evidence already collected," McCowan said.

"Just what action the Lubbock grand jury takes will not be known until it is actually convened," McCowan said.

U. S. District Attorney Seagal Wheatley of San Antonio said the jury investigated possible violations of the 1968 Civil Rights Act. A provision of the act calls for a $1,000 fine and a one-year prison term for anyone "who intimidates or interferes with any person because he is or has been qualifying or compaigning as a candidate for elective office."

The investigation began after two men running against Heatly this year said pressure was applied to them when they announced their candidacies.

CofC Directors Hear Reports

Chamber of Commerce directors met in regular monthly session today and heard committee reports on various projects under consideration.

Reports were given by E.L. Henderson, chairman of the vocational-technical school advisory committee; Clyde Carruth, stock show superintendent; Don Lane, on negotiations with the Santa Fe and Ft. Worth and Denver railroads to salvage freight service on the abandoned Ft. Worth & Denver tracks, and Kay Fancher, on the Recreation Park development program.

Directors also were brought up to date on the current job survey being conducted by the chamber and the Pampa Industrial Foundation.

Authorization was given to purchase from Harold Earrett Ford an automobile for the chamber at a low bid of $2672.60.

The next membership luncheon was scheduled for April 27 with the oil and gas committee, headed by C.D. Zlomke, in charge of the program.

Oil Slick Closes In On Migratory Bird Haven

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—A thin oil film glazed Louisiana oyster-producing waters today and two larger slicks, each 10 miles long, closed around an island haven for migratory birds.

The eight-day-old oil spills were being fed by two renegade wells on Chevron Oil Company's "Charlie" platform, 12 miles off the Louisiana Coast in the Gulf of Mexico.

The main slick split into two fragmented arms Monday and oozed along both sides of Breton Island, a bird refuge 10 miles northeast of "Charlie" platform and 12 miles each of the Louisiana shoreline.

West of the island, a light, patchy "rainbow" slick filtered into Black Bay, American Bay, California Bay and Bay Gardene. All four bays harbor oyster beds.

McFadden Duffy, spokesman for the state Wild Life and Fisheries Commission, said the commission would monitor the bays today to determine if the oyster beds were being polluted.

He said other investigators would be dispatched to Breton Island to see if any harm had been done the birds, which Duffy said numbered "in the thousands."

A heavy oil slick could kill oysters, Duffy said, while a very light one might leave them unharmed. He said oysters could purge themselves of light pollution, given 21 days in clean water.

Louisiana shrimp fishermen filed suit in federal court against Chevron Monday, claiming $70 million in potential pollution damage. Oyster fishermen filed a similar action Friday for $31.5 million.

Chevron said "Charlie" platform's No. 6 well was the chief pollution producer.

Transcript Reveals Sub Loan

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A censored transcript today provided some of the answers behind the latest congressional effort to supply controversial arms to Nationalist China.

It showed Chairman L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., almost singlehandedly brought about the House Armed Services Committee approval of a loan to Taiwan (Formosa) of three surplus, conventionally - powered, attack submarines.

The Nixon administration did not ask for the subs. It was not asked about them. The State and Defense departments had no comment about the committee action.

The submarines were tucked into a relatively routine warship loan bill stated to be approved by the House Wednesday. Its future in the Senate, however, is uncertain.

During a closed Armed Service Committee hearing Feb. 4, the Navy's director of the Foreign Military Assistance Division, Capt. G. M. Hagerman, testified.

The transcript, cleansed of military secrets, shows the Chinese submarines were brought up without warning by Russell Blandford, the committee counsel. Blandford said Monday he did so at Rivers' direction. Blandford asked Hagerman about "the desirability of adding to this bill some submarines for Nationalist China." Blandford said the U.S. 7th Fleet was retiring some of its ships and that this would place the Nationalist Chinese in a "very difficult position" as far as antisubmarine warfare (ASW) was concerned. Hagerman agreed with Blandford as well as with the counsel's assertion that the 30-plus Soviet-made Mainland Chinese subs posed a threat to U.S. forces.

Crackdowns On Air Pollution Backfire

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government crackdowns on air pollution have largely backfired by hiding pollution sources and producing "pervasive bluish and grayish hazes . . over at least half of the United States," according to a veteran atmospheric scientist.

"Pollution control agencies have succeeded in eliminating nearly all visible sources of air contamination in many urban localities," Vincent J. Schaefer told the Senate's air and water pollution subcommittee Monday.

Schaefer, who has been measuring atmospheric particles for more than 25 years, said exhaust and smokestack emissions have merely switched from the "heavy" particles of the past to gasses and small particles which produce a haze and remain in the air until cleaned out by rain or snow.

The subcommittee, chaired by Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, called Robert H. Finch, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) to testify today on the Nixon administration's air pollution proposals.

Columbia Artist Delights Patrons In Final Concert

By JERRY WHITTEN

Monday night in the Pampa Junior High School auditorium the curtains opened for the final concert of the 1969-70 season of the Community Concert Association. Columbia artist Bruce Yarnell, baritone, presented a two hour show with the aid of a pianist and an enormous quantity of imagination.

Labeling his appearance, "The Art of the Singing Actor," Yarnell lifts the offering out of the recital category. To open the program, he sang and recited the wonderful prologue to the opera "Lulu" by Alban Berg, the noted twentieth-century composer.

Following this, concert patrons were led back a centry to Richard Wagner's Tannhauser. From this opera, Yarnell presented the familiar axia "Evening Star." It was in this number the artist began showing the opulence and grandeur of his magnificent voice.

His second group was under the heading, "Shakespeare in Opera and Musical Theatre." After reciting the chorus' prologue to Romeo and Juliet, he sang "Something's Comin" from Bernsteins' "West Side Story." Likewise, after reciting Ford's Soliliquy from "The Merry Wives of Windsor, he sang his tour deforce of the evening — Ford's Aria from Verdi's opera 'Falstaff." The voice was sheer veauty, refined, powerful and exciting. To close this group, Petruchio's Soliloquy from The Taming of the Shrew was followed by the delightful Cole Porter song from "Kiss Me Kate," "Where Is the Life That Late I Led."

This teaming of recitation-song, on the same theme, was a very comfortable and satisfying combination. Had not the vocal and historonic abilities

Two persons were injured in a one-car accident about 12 miles east of here shortly before 8 a.m. today.

Leonard Schwanker, 68, of Santa Ana, Calif., and his son William C., 30, were taken to Highland General Hospital and were listed in "good" condition late this morning.

Cultural Trends Contribute To Youth Unrest: NSG Speaker

By TEX DeWEESE
News Staff Writer

Current radical youth movements and the modern day cultural influence of many movies, songs, radio and television programs are the principal reasons for unrest among today's youth.

That was the conviction expressed by David Harmon, 22-year-old vice president of the National Association of Student Governments, as he addressed a luncheon audience at the March membership meeting of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce yesterday in the Coronado Inn Starlight Room.

Harmon, a 1966 graduate of Pampa High School and now a student at West Texas State University, said the principal radical movement that seemed to be causing the greatest nationwide concern is the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS).

"The people of the country didn't realize until as late as 1967 what a dangerous organization the SDS really is," Harmon said.

SDS national officers are on record in public speeches at national conventions that their principal objective was to organize guerrilla forces to break down existing society."

Harmon told of seeing recent movies and listening to late rock and roll songs that had as their central theme the down-grading of the so-called "establishment" — cultural movements, he stated, which are designed to widen the generation gap between youth and "anyone over 35."

"Not all movies, nor all rock and roll songs have that as their aim," Harmon said. "I have seen and heard others which glorify our country. But, today's cultural influence is having a great impact on the youth of today."

Harmon said in his belief there still is great hope for the youth of today.

"I know that in high school and college they are looking for answers," he said, "and I think for the most part they rely on their parents for those answers."

He stated the purpose of the Association of Student Governments is to bring the true story to college and university point out the real aims of radical organizations such as the SDS with its objectives of tearing down existing society and disrupting campuses.

"If you want to do something about the youth of tomorrow," Harmon told his luncheon listeners, "be concerned today."

Yesterday's chamber meeting was held jointly with the Altrusa Club, one of the sponsors of the Pampa High School Career Clinic which is scheduled Wednesday, and the Twentieth Century Cotillion Club which will conduct an antique show April 3, 4 and 5 for the benefit of the West Texas State University Opportunity Plan which helps students financially and provides part-time jobs so they may pursue their education.

Harmon will be the key-note speaker at the general assembly for the Career Clinic Wednesday morning.

Mrs. George B. Cree Jr., Career Clinic chairman, representing the Altrusa Club, introduced the speaker.

Entertainment was provided by the Lamar Elementary School Choir under direction of Mrs. Sue Higdon.

Don Lane, chamber president, introduced special luncheon guests.

Old Man Winter Lands Some Low Blow Punches In Area

By United Press International

Miami has 22 inches of snow on the ground today —Miami, Ocla., that is.

Northeast Oklahoma and parts of Kansas, Missouri and Arkansas took the brunt of a freak late-season storm which Monday dumped as much as two feet of snow.

Heavy snow warnings were posted ahead of the storm, through extreme Southern Illinois as far east as West Virginia and Southern Ohio.

Many storm-related traffic accidents were attributed to the storm during the afternoon. By evening, however, the accident rate fell to nearly nothing as traffic was unable to move.

Snow Collapses Roof

The weight of the snow collapsed the roof of a bowling alley in Tulsa. The normal 200 patrons were absent, however, as the ceiling had developed a warning sag as the snow piled up.

"This has come close to being a miracle," Tulsa Police and Fire Commissioner Brad Scheer said of the absence of injuries.

Some communities in Southern Kansas were effectively isolated. Wichita, the largest metropolitan area in the path of the storm, had "monumental" traffic jams and 70,000 students were sent home at noon.

Four deaths were attributed to the storm in the Wichita area.

A severe thunderstorm watch, with the possibility of damaging winds and hail, was maintained south of the snow-belt along the Western Gulf Coast states. More than an inch of rain fell late Monday at Dallas and at McAlester in Southeast Oklahoma.

Warnings Issued

Another storm system swept into the Northern Rockies, spreading heavy new snow. Stockmen's and traveler's warnings were issued for Montana and a stockmen's watch was posted in the Western Dakotas.

Cold and blustery weather persisted in the Northeast with scattered snow from the Eastern Great Lakes to the Northern Appalachians. Up to three inches of new snow fell in New Hampshire Monday night.

Frost and freeze warnings were posted for South Carolina as an unseasonable chill continued to haunt parts of Dixie.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 9 at Lebanon, N.H., to 70 at Brownsville, Tex.

Vandals Do Damage

Police reports today listed two cases of vandalism.

M.C. Stapleton, 211 N. Gillispie, reported four windows had been broken, shingles torn off a garage roof and a screen damaged in a rent house he owns at 1152 Terrace. Total damage was set at $20.

Another rent house, owned by Carl Harris, 400 S. Cuyler, suffered $20 damage when someone fired a B-B shot through a plate glass window.

From Musical Theatre, America's own contribution to the world, the artist presented selections from Man of La Mancha, by Darion and Leigh, Camelot and Paint Your Wagon by Lerner and Loewe, Fantastics by Schmidt and Jones, Sound of Music and Carousel by Rodgers and Hammerstein. It was the moving "Soliloquy" from Carousel that Yarnell chose as his finale. In this, the young man rhapsodizes concerning his yet unborn heir. The piece runs the gamut from comic to dramatic and requires careful preparation.

Yarnell's performance was worth the price of the entire season ticket.

VOE Student Wins First In Competition

A Pampa High School senior and a student in Vocational Office Education, Cassie Mitten, took first place in job application competition at the VOE area competition in Odessa the past weekend.

Miss Mitten emerged the winner after submitting a simulated letter of application for a job, a experience resume and interviews by receptionist and personnel director.

High school VOE classes give students pre-experience in office work and job applications prior to graduation, according to VOE coordinator Melvin Cardwell.

Miss Mitten will compete with other area winners in state competition in Houston in April.

Another VOE student, Sheri Heckman, placed second in first year typing production in area competition.

Fourteen students accompanied the co-ordinator to Odessa.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—The overall stock market is suffering from an overbought condition after its recent buoyancy and is likely to undergo some further correction during the next two or three weeks, TPO Inc. says. But the glamour sector, having suffered a severe battering while most equities were rising, now is so oversold it may begin to attract buyers as they come out of blue chips and secondaries.

The market is giving some signs it may be establishing a new trading range around the 780 level of the Dow Jones industrial average, E. F. Hutton & Co. says. But in the absence of any stimulating news, advances are likely to be limited over the very near term. If the market does manage to establish itself in the 780 range, the next rally may prove to be the start of a significant advancing phase, it adds.

Technical factors and some concern over U.S. involvement in Laos have led to some profit-taking after the market's recent advance, and corporate and economic news is likely to continue.

AT THE "After Glow" party following the Pampa Lions "Dixieland USA," minstrel director Max Presnell, right was presented with a Press Book filled with memorbilia of this year's show by Mrs. Jim Hughes, while business manager Glenn Cox looks on. A thought for the day: British writer Izaka Walton said, "Look to your health; and if you have it, praise God, and value it next to a good conscience."

Nixon Prepares Civil Rights Talk

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The White House said today there had been 'little, or in most cases, no discussion of political effect" in preparation of Presideot Nixon's forthcomiag statement on civil rights.

Press Secretary Honald L. Ziegler said the statement, to deal largely with school desegregation, probably will be issued later this week. He did not say what form it would take, but it is expected to be in writing.

Zieger went into political aspects of the statement when asked about reports that a presidential aide, Harry Dent, had suggested to Secretary Robert H. Finch of Health, Education and Welfare that school desegregation orders be eased to stimulate Republican party contributions in the South.

"Quite frankly," Ziegler said, "there is little, or in most cases, no discussion of political efect.'"

DALLAS (UPI) — Wston La Barre, noted anthropologist and a member of the Duke University faculty, will be the Honor's Day Convocation speaker at Southern Methodist University, March 18, when 1,830 honor roll students will be given public recognition.

Vegas Lights Blinking Again

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—The first gambling shutdown in Las Vegas history ended after a 94-hour strike was settled that cost 16 "strip" hotel-casinos and 14,000 union members an estimated $4 million.

Under an agreement that went into effect a minute past midnight Sunday, the Culinary and Bartenders Union was given a 31.5 per ent pay increase.

Each side said the walkout cost it $2 million. Nevada lost half a million dollars in tax revenue.

The new agreement between the Nevada Resort Association, which represents the 16 affected casinos, and the union provided a 27-28 per cent wage increase plus fringe benefits.

The union had asked for a 45 per cent increase, while the hotels offered 25 per cent.

Under the agreement, a cocktail waitress can make $55 a day.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The White House is historic and beautiful and a nice place to visit even if you would rather be right than live there.

But like many older buildings, it requires constant attention to keep it in repair.

Within the last couple of weeks, for example, the White House has developed a bad leak of Patrick Moynihan memoranda.

President Nixon and I don't have many problems in common, but this is one that has aroused my empathy. I can identify with him on this one because my own house recently developed a leak in the basement.

Fingers Do The Walking

There is a slight difference, to be sure. At my house the water leaks in, whereas at the White House the memos leak out. But in both cases the remedy is to find the leak and plug it.

President Nixon probably will approach the problem the way I did.

I looked in the yellow pages and got the names of a couple of waterproofing contractors. The President, I assume, will be getting in touch with companies that fix memo leaks.

If his experience is anything like mine, here is what he is in for:

"Mr. President, I'm Grady McStopple from the Acme Memoproofing Co. You called us for an appraisal?"

"Yes, I did. There's a memo leak around here some place that I wanted to get fixed."

"What kind of a memo leak is it?"

"It's a Moynihan memo leak. Three memos written by my counsellor, Patrick Moynihan, have leaked out this month."

"Hmmmm. Do you have any idea where the leakage occurred?"

"Well, all of the memos had been distributed to cabinet members, so the leak may be in the cabinet room."

Renovate

"Let me take a look at it. yes, the leak very well may be in this area. There's only one thing do do in a case like this and that is to rip out the entire cabinet and replace it."

"The entire cabinet? Good grief! I never dreamed it would take anything that drastic to stop one simple memo leak."

"That's the only way I could guarantee the job, Mr. President. These memo leaks are hard to pinpoint. You try to get by with replacing one or two department heads, and pretty soon the leak breaks out in another spot."

"What causes these memo leaks anyhow?"

"Various things, but in this case it's probably structural. Although you have plastered over the top with new memotight Republicans, your cabinet has a lot of pourous old Democrats underneath."

WASHINGTON — A spokesman for the New Mobilization Committee, describing part of the weeklong protest beginning today that is designed to "strangle the draft system in its own bureaucracy":

"Civil disobedience means people will be having nonviolent sit-ins at induction centers and draft boards, blocking entrances to those buildings."

ICC Elephant's Graveyard For Political Hacks

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Interstate Commerce Commission "is an elephant's graveyard for political hacks" and should be abolished, an investigation team sponsored by Ralph Nader charged Monday.

In a 1,200-page report, the 83-year-old ICC, oldest and largest of the regulatory agencies, was termed a captive of the industries it is supposed to regulate.

Under its charter from Congress, the ICC is responsible for regulating railroad mergers, freight rates and train discontinuances. It also oversees the trucking industry, oil pipelines and inland water traffic.

"There is evidence of corruption" in the agency, said the report, which was put together by seven law students who spent more than a year investigating the ICC. Last year, a similar Nader-backed investigation turned out a highly critical report on the Federal Trade Commission, accusing it of failing to protect the public interest.

The ICC report claimed that a seat on the commission is the result of political patronage. "Every commissioner has a sponsor: The position, despite its critical importance, has become a political pay-off, an elephant's graveyard for political hacks," the report said.

The job of ICC commissioner pays $38,000-a-year and each commissioner serves seven years. The job of chairman was cotated on a yearly basis until late last year, when President Nixon got congressional approval to name a permanent chairman. He has not filled the job jet.

Once a man becomes a commissioner he is immediately wooed by industry, the report said. "Industry regularly pays for luncheons, hotel rooms, even for a hairdresser for former Chairman Virginia Mae Brown. Commissioners and upper staff are commonly transported around at their own convenience by corporate jets.

Are you going to go through another year thinking you can't afford an Oldsmobile?

Our own surveys indicate that quite a few people think an Oldsmobile is out of their reach. They think it costs a lot more then it really does. Result? Many people buy an ordinary car and end up with a lot less car and value for their money.

It's so unnecessary, too, because Oldsmobile has many models that are price right down with the so-called low-priced cars.

So why settle for the ordinary when you can step up to an Olds and all the value that an Olds represents.

Take this big, exciting Delta 88, for example. It starts out with a surprisingly modest price. Add to this the features that make it such an outstanding value—extras that are included in the modest price: ☐ Regular-gas Rocket V-8 ☐ Power Steering ☐ Power Brakes, front discs ☐ Nylon-loop carpeting ☐ Bias-Belted Tires ☐ Door Side-Guard Beams ☐ Hidden Radio Antenna ☐ Flo-Thru Ventilation ☐ Bigger, better riding 124" wheelbase. Check these extra values at your Olds dealer's today!

HER FIRST MIDI

America's First Lady Takes Shopping Trip, Goes Home With New Style Evening Dress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — First Lady Pat Nixon bought one midi-length outfit on her New York shopping trip and so did her daughter, Julie Eisenhower. The other daughter, Tricia, topped them both, buying two dresses in the 'longuette' style.

All three have made it clear they plan to wear their new-look dresses strictly for evening.

The President's wife, who turned 58 on Monday, has no intention of scrapping her entire wardrobe in favor of the new fashion, according to Connie Stuart, her staff director.

Mrs. Nixon is "making a strong point that this is the year of choice" in hemlines, Mrs. Stuart said.

She said Mrs. Nixon had lowered all her hemlines to just below the knee, apparently with the help of her personal maid. Mrs. Stuart said that the fashion industry is "hanging on a ledge" and the whole industry is "tied up in knots" on whether the new line will go over.

The midi Mrs. Nixon ordered is a two-piece outfit designed by Elinor Simmons of Malcolm-Starr. It has a wraparound skirt with a high fitted midriff and is designed to be worn with a simple, opened-neck long sleeve shirt.

The midi was one of eight numbers Mrs. Nixon ordered from the same firm, including two floor-length evening gowns, some cotton brocade suits and several printed crepe dresses with hemlines just below the knee.

Mrs. Nixon also ordered two outfits from Harvey Berin—a silk organza shirt dress and another printed dress with a short jacket—and several more outfits from designers Adele Simpson, Sarmi, David Kidd and Geoffrey Beene.

She has described the new longuette look as her favorite but when the fashion industry descended on her during her two-day stay in New York at the Pierre Hotel, she revised her opinion a bit and called the midi a "grandma" look.

Tricia had felt that she was too short to wear the new hemline—between calf and ankle—but she succumbed. The Nixon daughters were heavy buyers at Gino Charles, piling up new Spring and Summer wardrobes.

Your Horoscope
JEANE DIXON

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 18

YOUR BIRTHDAY WEDNESDAY: — The year ahead offers no great stress. Your vocation continues to require increasing knowledge and attention. Your home remains to a fair extent as it is at present. Stay faithfully on the right track in preparation for a major move in another year or two. Build your reserves and connections for future reference.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): — Your radical idea may be adopted this morning. If so, stop at once and think through what happens next and how it should be handled. Other people have wild theories too.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): — In the morning matters proceed better when prejudice is laid aside. Make a diligent effort to increase your earnings. Leisure time (assuming you leave yourself any) is likely to be just as productive.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): — You are carrying a little more than your share of the work, temporarily.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): — Snap decisions work on pastimes, games, but not in business matters. Friends have interesting ideas, but they won't have to live with the results of using them; you will.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): — Your remarks project impressions of you more emphatically than usual. In your work, avoid a standoff attitude; be a cheerful extrovert and help others enjoy life.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): — Old issues continue to plague your career effort. Good money could follow past expenses on troublesome equipment.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): — Bright ideas may really pay off if you act promptly. A definite break is promised in financial matters, but you must compete for it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): — Some people ardently back your views and career efforts, while some close associates are probably causing delays and confusion.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): — Travel encounters hindrances. Attend to shopping and other chores which are close at hand.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): — Wednesday seems more like a seller's market. Make the most of whatever you produce or distribute.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): — Your crisp and businesslike manner can be softened a bit now, and you can be a little more sensitive to the emotional needs of others.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): — Somebody near you causes delay and inconvenience. Friends generate extravagant ideas and haste in trying to express them.

Ribbed Knits Make Long, Lean Look

By JUDY LOVE

Anything goes in today's fashion harvest — as long as it's shaped skinny as a stringbean.

The super-sleek pattern of the sweater I'm offering today shows how simple stitching can make you seem even longer and lankier than you really are. Totally vertical detailing, covering every inch of the sweater's shape — including the sleeves — is devoted to narrowness. And the longer line, reaching deep down on the hip, really insures its success as a slimmer.

Knit the topper and a slender belt to match or mix with skirts or pants. Sport yarn will let it bounce back into shape after every machine washing. Knitting instructions for three sizes are suitable for bustline measurements from 36 to 40 inches.

Send 50 cents for your copy of knitting directions to Stitchin' Time, in care of The Pampa News, P.O. Box 503, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Ask for leaflet S187, and include your name, address and zip code.

Knit rows of vertical ribs and cables to shape this sweater in the season's lean stringbean look.

KNIT KNACKS

DEAR JUDY LOVE: I'm knitting a sacque for a new baby and would like to alter the design a little. The instructions do not call for a front closing, but I'd like to use ribbon in a crisscross closure. How do I make the openings through which to thread the ribbon?

—D.R.

DEAR D.R.: The best opening to use on baby's clothing is the eyelet buttonhole. Here's how to form it: As you work on the right side of the garment, pass the yarn around the needle held in the right hand, as if to make a stitch. Then knit two together. This stitch is purled in the next row in the usual manner.

The opening you have created should be strengthened by stitching around it with thread. You may use this same technique in creating openings for tiny buttons on baby clothes as well as for ribbon.

—Judy Love

UNLADYLIKE CONDUCT

TOTTENHAM, England (UPI)—The four-letter words were nothing unusual for a football team's dressing room, and the only casualty was one player from the home team who was punched in the nose.

But representatives of both the Tottenham and visiting Luton teams have been called to a special disciplinary inquiry. Officials of the South East Ladies Football League said they thought the players' conduct was unladylike.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: During my childhood I often caught my mother crying. When I was 14, she told me, "Never marry a jealous man." I paid little attention. In fact, I gave it no thought until I married one myself.

All the signs were there for me to read, but when you're in love you think your love can conquer all. It can't.

When I married, I was a 27-year-old virgin because I wanted to be. Well, as far as my husband was concerned, I could just as well have been a streetwalker. After we were married he said it was impossible for a good looking girl to have worked alongside men as I had always done, and remain a virgin. He insisted no one (not even a doctor!) could tell conclusively for sure whether a girl was a virgin or not. I should have said goodbye right then and there, but I had been raised to believe that 'divorce' was a disgrace, so I forgave and tried to forget. Then he started to accuse me of every man I had ever known. I thought a 'family' would solve everything, so in five years I had two babies.

Nothing changed. You would think that any man in his right mind would know that a 32-year-old woman with two babies and no money to spend on clothes would hardly be the type to run around with men, but he continued to accuse me.

For 22 years I lived in hell, but I won. Both the children have college degrees and have grown up to be worthwhile people. I have kept my mouth shut when the mere effort made my jaws ache.

When the youngest was 21 and established, I walked out on my husband and I 'took' him for all I could. Since then, I have put him completely out of my life. I heard recently that he had died. The news (if true) leaves me cold. My 'husband' died years ago.

Am I disloyal? I do not think so. I am probably writing this to get it off my chest after all these years. But there is more to it than that.

I didn't pay any attention to my mother when she told me not to marry a jealous man and maybe nobody will pay any attention to me. But when some innocent little girl wrote to you saying, "I'm glad my fiance is jealous. It just proves that he 'loves' me," I wanted to scream!

That poor little thing. Little does she know that it proves nothing of the sort. Wait until she finds out. Jealousy has nothing to do with love. It's a sickness. And no amount of patience, sacrifice, giving in or giving up will cure it. I know this is too long for your column, but I just had to have my say.

PEACE AT LAST

DEAR PEACE: It's long, all right, but I didn't have the heart to cut it. Some people do learn from the mistakes of others. You've paid the 'tuition' — perhaps a reader will read this and get by on a 'scholarship.'

DEAR ABBY: It was bad enough when my girl friend found out about my wife, but when my wife found out about my girl friend, I was in big trouble. Now they have become "Buddy Buddy" — and they 'get together' at least once a week. What do you think they're cooking up?

LARRY

DEAR LARRY: Your goose, probably.

AMAZING FEATURES

Customized Floors Towels' Specialty

On of the splendid features of the Camtex flooring system is why the colors can be customized to suit individual tastes.

This feature is made possible by the fethod of installation. Factory trained applicators apply a Camtex base coat to the floor substrase over which is sprinkled coloring beads which can be combined to create an infinite number of color combinations.

Sealing and finish coats of Camtex laze are then applied to fill the surface voids and provide a continuous hard surface.

The final floor surface has a tweed-like texture and never needs waxing. Wet mopping is all that is required to maintain original lustre and the floor is impervious to wear.

The unisue seamless Camtex system is designed to provide extreme resistance to abrasion in heavy traffic areas, both interior and exterior. Many industrial, institutional, commercial, and home installations verify the durability of Camtex. The maximum adhesion qualities of the base coats permit adaptation of the Camtex system to both wood and concrete surfaces, and it's high skid resistance makes the floor safe as well as attractive.

It is important to note that Towles' Tile uses the same methods and materials for home installations as they do for commercial and industrial firms.

Jack invites you to call him anytime at 5-5075 and he will be happy to furnish information concerning his fine floors.

Also, do not forget that Towles sells and installs Fiberglas Hallmark Swimming Pools. That 100-degree Panhandle weather will be coming up before we know it.

PAMPA Business News...

KILL FLOOR of Western Beef Packers, Inc., is a busy area of the company which is located in east Pampa. The company is currently slaughtering approximately 50,000 head of cattle per year with expansion of production in the programming for the future. (Staff Photo)

Western Beef Packers Inc. Ships Beef All Over USA

Western Beef Packers Inc., purchased Panhandle Co. Dec. 1, 1969, and effective Jan. 1, 1970, incorporated under the name of Western Beef Packers, Inc., a subsidiary of Western Beef.

Immediately prior to purchases of the facility, the company had been involved in a considerable amount of reconstruction and addition of a new on-the-rail gravity flow killing floor. The new addition includes a chill cooler with walking beam rails whereby cattle are slaughtered and moved from the kill floor into the holding cooler, never being touched by human hands. This automated operation is currently killing in the area of 50,000 head of cattle per year and will be increased to 100,000 per year as facilities are made available for processing of boneless beef. At a later date, facilities will be available for processing fabricated vacuum sealed beef.

Western Beef Packer, Inc., at the time of purchase of the plant had 54 employes. This has expanded to 79 employes, and at the completion of facilities for boneless and fabricating procedures, the payroll will list 100-125 employes. The company is now adding to the payroll and is looking for employes who are interested in a future with the young aggressive, rapidly growing company. Western Beef Packer, Inc., will continue to seek out employes until all openings have been filled.

In addition to the new portion of the processing plant, construction has started on a blast freezer with a 30,000 pound capacity and an accompanying holding freezer of 80,000 pound capacity to handle the boneless beef soon to be produced by Western Beef Packer, Inc.

Presently the company is shipping carcasses by truck and rail to all areas of the U.S. including North and South Carolina, Florida, Indiana, Los Angeles, Chicago, Detroit, and Atlanta.

The modern facilities at the company are, according to the head of the operation, John F. Welch, the most modern and efficient he has seen in his almost thirty years in the meat processing business.

Luxuries Cause Pollution

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, opened Senate clean-air hearings today with the declaration that Americans will have to give up some of their comforts and luxuries if air pollution is to be controlled.

Muskie, chairman of a Senate subcommittee conducting the hearings, made the statement after a witness called for a law to prohibit cars with more than 200 horsepower. Muskie said control of auto pollution alone would not solve the problem.

"Maybe we ought to set some limits on the standard of living," Muskie said. "You talk about the auto—that's only part of it. In a consumer oriented society, everything we produce leads to waste.

"This is the problem we face in a consumer society that's also a free one—how far do we go?"

Muskie said that for example, present laws could not prevent development and use of the supersonic transport (SST) airliner no matter how much pollution it might cause.

"We couldn't stop Henry Ford from developing the Model T today," Muskie said, although he said authorities agree that motor vehicles are the greatest single producer of air pollutants. "We couldn't stop him from mass producing it."

Muskie said pollution control "will require a commitment from each of us—a commtiment to make sacrifices, to spend money, and to give up some technological comforts and luxuries."

HUNTER OR HUNTED?

SIRACUSA, Sicily (UPI)—A man was killed by his own dog in a freak hunting accident, police reported today.

They said the dog of Rosario Forestieri stepped on a rifle and triggered it killing Forestieri on the spot.

The accident occurred when Forestieri and friends were sitting down for a meal after a day's hunting. Police said the rifle's safety catch was not on.

Foreign News Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

The anti-Viet Cong and anti-North Vietnamese demonstrations in Cambodia suggest that when the cat is away the mice will play.

The cat being Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the Cambodian chief of state who has spent the last two-and-a-half months on the French Riviera taking an obesity cure, and currently is on his way home via Moscow and Peking.

The mice are Lt. Gen. Lon Nol, Cambodia's premier and defense minister, and Prince Sirik Matak, first deputy premier.

Sihanouk's ban on Western correspondents in his capital of Phnom Pehn, except as tourists, and the overwhelming nature of his own personality as Cambodian leader, makes difficult any real identification of lesser lights.

Prince Sirik Matak is described as the second most powerful man in Cambodia. Lon Nol has served as head of the Cambodian army and as a deputy premier under previous Cambodian governments of which there have been a dozen or so since 1961.

He has been a frequ ent target of Cambodian leftists who from time to time have demanded his resignation or ouster.

It is perhaps a coincidence that he took his present office within days of the arrival of U.S. Charge d'Affaires Lloyd M. Rives to renew diplomatic relations between the two countries after a four-year break.

In Sihanouk's absnce he would be the man in charge and it seems less than a coincidence that Camboidian police were conspicuously absent during the anti-Viet Cong and anti-North Vietnam demonstrations and the sacking of the two embassies.

Nonetheless, although absent, Sihanouk remains the man to be reckoned wit hin the future course of Cambodian affairs.

To his people he is a God-like figure, a comparison he has done nothing to discourage.

He gets the credit among them for maintaining Cambodia's neutrality while being surrounded on three sides by devastating wars.

Foreign diplomats who have watched his footwork as he played the Soviet Union, Red China and the United States against each other, rank him as probably the shrewdest politician in Southeast Asia.

Oil Tariff Poses Problems

WASHINGTON (UPI — The oil tariff system recommended by some of President Nixon's top cabinet members would "place U.S. consumers at the mercy of foreign governments," the president of the Independent Petroleum Association of Amererica IPAA) said Monday.

Robert E. Mead, Dallas oilman who heads the MacDonald Oil Corp. and also the IPAA, testified at a hearing by the house subcommittee on mines and mining.

The subcommittee is considering the recent proposal by Nixon's cabinet task force on oil that an oil import quota system be replaced by a tariff system to lower oil prices. The task force, however, was split, with two members dissenting and even some members of the majority expressing preconditions to a tariff system .

Charges Errors Made

Mead said the task force made three conclusions based on errors in fact or theory: The quota program costs $5 billion a year, more imports will not endanger national security, and natural gas consumers would not be affected by oil import changes.

The first assumption "is pure theory," Mead said.

"In view of past experience and existing conditions in the Middle East, Africa and South America, is it reasonable to assume the price of foreign oil will not increase, or that foreign oil will be available to the united states at all times? We do not think so. I do not believe that practical men, looking at the realities of the political unrest in those areas of the world would find it wise to place U.S. consumers at the mrecy of foreign governments," Mead said.

Cites Huge Loss

He estimated the cost of a tariff system, in loss of taxes and wages and balance of payments, would be $8.6 billion.

Bob Burch of Denver, president of Rocky Mountain Oil and Gas Association, criticized the task force estimate that crude oil prices can be forced down without cuts in crude oil reserves or production betwen now and 1980. He said it was "economic nonsense."

John E. Swearingen, chairman of Standard Oil of Indiana, in prepare testimony, said "the cabinet task force adopted an unusual procedure for arriving at its conclusions — no public hearings were held, and no opportunity was afford for cross-examination . . . any interested person . . . should look with skepticism on findings of so-called facts and conclusions drawn from them by the task force."

Car Costs Cut By One-Fifth

By STEVE GERSTEL

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., said today the annual cost of owning a car can be cut by one fifth, a savings of $235 for each car owner.

Hart said that investigations by his Senate antitrust and monopoly subcommittee suggest a saving of about $20 billion a year in the cost of gasoline, repairs and insurance.

"A cut of $20 billion from the national total would mean a savings of about $235 a year for each car owner," Hart said. "That's about a 20 per cent reduction."

In a speech for the Michigan Convention of Steelworkers at Lansing, Mich., Hart said "the $20 billion is an optimum figure. We won't be able to realize it all—but it's a good target."

Among the possibilities for lowering insurance rates the subcommittee might recommend are a ban on the laws in 34 states that prohibit sale of auto insurance through group plans.

"Other proposals call for major reforms of the system—generally some modification of the 'fault insurance' idea we now have where time and money is consumed simply arguing over who did what and if maybe both parties are somewhat at fault," Hart said.

To cut down the cost of auto $10 billion a year is wasted, Hart proposed design changes to cut the need for repair and make them easier and less costly; licensing of garages; periodic testing; and training to overcome the mechanics shortage.

SanFran Ends 4 Day Strike

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Mayor Joseph L. Alioto hammered out an agreement with striking city employes early today to end a four-day strike which had shut down the city's transit and school systems.

The all-night negotiations broke up after dawn and the city called its public transit drivers back to work. A few streetcars, which had been idle since Friday, began rolling by mid-morning.

The last of our striking unions ordered its members to stop picketing about two hours after the tentative agreement was reached.

Local 400 of the City and County Employes Union, the largest striking union, held a two-hour caucus before deciding to submit the settlement to a vote of its members. The union, which had insisted the strike was not over after other locals pulled their pickets, said it too would withdraw pickets until after its membership voted this afternoon.

Alioto announced the settlement and said he expects city operations to return to normal by midday.

He refused to disclose terms of the agreement, saying only that it was "responsible and reasonable," providing a cost-of-living increase while holding the line against inflation.

But he did say that the unions had won their chief demand—retention of a "seniority" pay increase of 5 per cent a year granted employes during their first four years with the city. The item, which costs an estimated $2.4 million a year, had been cut by the city supervisors.

The city had offered 14,000 employes a $4.8 million—or 5 per cent—pay hike. The unions had demanded $9.5 million—about 10 per cent.

The agreement came too late for the 400,000 daily passengers of the municipal railway system. They walked, biked, drove and hitchhiked to work, creating a massive traffic jam in the downtown area during the morning. The parking problem was even worse than on Friday because police had to keep bus and streetcar lanes clear after the settlement was reached.

The settlement ended the threat of San Francisco's first general strike since longshoremen "closed the town" in 1934.

About 7,500 city workers went on strike Friday, shutting down mass transit, severely curtailing citywide health services, and forcing school to close. The wage dispute involved about 14,000 of the city's 22,000 employes and thousands of the non-strikers honored the picket lines.

Fishermen Worry About Shrimp's Fate

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Louisiana fishermen worried abou the safety of their $70 million shrimp crop filed a federal pollution suit today, blaming Chevron Oil Co. for causing a huge offshore oil slick.

The week-old, miles-long slick was still miles away from the shrimp waters, but an attorney for the shrimp fishermen said they wanted to establish liability for the pollution in case it does hit the Louisiana shore.

Oyster fishermen filed a similar suit last week, claiming a potential $31.5 million damage.

Workers closed off another wild well on an offshore Chevron platform today but appeared to be running short of time in a race with fickle coastal winds.

Carolla Sedans To Be Recalled

TORRANCE, Calif. (UPI)—the Toyota Motor Co. has announced it will recall 58,525 of its Corolla sedans in the United States for replacemen of brake parts.

A spokesman for the Japanese company said Toyota was taking the action only as a precautionary measure "to insure consistency in their policy of providing the highest quality product possible."

The parts include the brake pedal, the brake fluid reservoir cap and the brake tube clamp.

St. John's Rips Georgia Tech Pete Set For Tonight In NIT

By JOE CARNICELLI
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—The National Invitation Tournament's quarter-final round Monday night showed the power of prayer. Tonight's round may finally show the power of pete.

"I called three time outs and each time I told the boys to pray, pray hard," said Bobby Knight, the Army coach as his Cadets held off Manhattans second half rally to score a 77-72 victory over the Jaspers.

"I told everybody to say a Hail Mary," said Lou Carnesecca. of St. John's as his team kept Georgia Tech from scoring in the last seven seconds of play to take a 56-55 triumph over the Yellow Jackets.

In tonight's quarter-final round, Pete Maravich, the leading scorer in college basketball history, attempts to bounce back from what he called, "the worst game of my career," as Louisiana State meets Oklahoma in the second game of a doubleheader. Marquette, generally considered the strongest team in the tournament, takes on Utah in the first game.

Army built up a 20-point halftime lead before seeing its defense, tops in the nation, almost crumble before Manhattan's relentless pressure. Only outstanding foul shooting by Doug Clevenger in the second half held off the Jaspers, who cut the Cadets' lead to one point midway through the second half.

Clevenger led Army with 22 points and all 12 in the second half came at the free throw line. Army could manage only eight baskets in the second half, three by Jim Oxley, and only two in the last four minutes.

Sophomore Henry Seawright led Manhattan with 27 points and Brian Mahoney had 21.

St. John's ripped off the first eight points of the game and seemingly had Georgia Tech on the ropes until Bill Mayer and Rich Yunkus rallied the Engineers, St. John's spurted to 30-23 halftime lead but saw that wiped out as Georgia Tech became "Yunkus Tech."

In the second half, Yunkus put Tech into the lead at 55-54, before the Redmen's John De'vasto, who starred after coming off the bench, set up Greg Cluess' winning basket with 21 seconds left. Tech had the ball again with seven seconds remaining but failed to score as a pass to Yunkus was broken up.

Yunkus finished with 27 points, 23 in the second half. Billy Paultz, St. John's 6-10 center, had 17 to lead the Redmen.

St. John's will meet Army in Thursday night's semifinals with tonight's winners meeting in the second game of the doubleheader. The final and consolation games are scheduled for Saturday afternoon.

Williams Will Be Ready For Season

By JOHN G. GRIFFIN
UPI Sports Editor

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—Ted Williams was a smash success in his rookie year as manager of the Washington Senators, and now the question is what does he do for an encore.

Is it possible for the usually-woebegone Senators, who jumped from 31 games under .500 to 10 games over it in Williams' first year, to make a similarly spectacular jump in 1970? The one-time "Splendid Splinter," who won American League "Manager of the Year" honors for 1969, won't make a prediction.

"It's true that this year I know most of 'em right from the beginning and have some idea of what they can do," Williams said. "Last year . . . I had to have somebody next to me at the start telling me their names.'

The Senators' improvement in 1969 was impressive—their first winning record in 17 years, their best won-lost percentage in 24 years, and, finishing in fourth place in the American League East, they were only four games out of second place.

Same Basic Lineup

In general, the Senators will be going in 1970 with the same basic lineup—a solid attack led by home run sluggers Frank Howard and Mike Epstein and a pitching corps headed by Dick Bosman (14-5) and Casey Cox (12-7).

If no further trades are made, the Senators will line up like this:

Epstein, who hit .306 with 30 homers, is at first. Bernie Allen (.247) and Tim Cullen (.267) are available for second base and Eddie Brinkman, who boosted his average 80 points to .287 last year while continuing his solid fielding, holds shortstop. Ken McMullen, who hit .272 and tied Baltimore's Brooks Robinson for the best fielding average at the position, is the solid third baseman.

Howard, who ran 48 homers, 111 runs and a .296 average, is the outfield star. The candidates for the other spots are Hank Allen (.277), Brant Alyea (.249), Del Unser (.286) and Lee Maye (.277), who was obtained from Cleveland last season.

Platooning Catchers

Behind the plate, Williams is likely to platoon righthanded Paul Casanova (.216) and lefthanded John Roseboro (.263), signed as a freeagent.

Bosman and Cox both were surprises on the mound in '69, and Williams can only hope it was no illusion.

After a 2-9 season in 1968, Bosman suddenly turned tiger at the end of '69 and won his last eight starts after being out a month with a sore shoulder. His 2.19 earned run average tied for best in the league. Cox, who didn't become a starter until June 23, had a .277 ERA, seventh best in the league. Joe Coleman, the workhorse of the staff last year with a 12-13 record, again figures as a starter.

Williams' relief corps includes lefty Darold Knowles (9-2 and 13 saves), 34-year-old lefty George Brunet, obtained from Seattle, and righthander Bob Humphreys.

PROSPECTUS — Long winter for Leo Durocher and Ron Santo, neither of whom have done much heel-clicking of late. Last year's folderoo has inspirational value, but can Leo rule with iron hand again and get away with it? Cubs have the talent, but they may never again achieve the unity they had prior to the '69 collapse. Leo's tension tactics just may backfire if he employs them again.

PITCHING — Ferguson Jenkins (21-15), Bill Hands (20-14) are solid. Ken Holtzman (17-13) could be, but remains erratic at times. No. 4 spot could be taken by one of four rookies: Righties Jim Colborn and Pat Jacquez, lefties Dave Lemonds and Larry Guro. Bullpen excellent with Phil Regan, Hank Aguirre and Ted Abernathy. Rating — B PLUS.

CATCHING — Randy Hundley, one of game's best defensive catchers, proved he could hit, too, last year. But he'll get some rest this season from either Ken Rudolph, Bill Heath or Randy Bobb. Rating — B.

INFIELD — Ernie Banks, nearing 39, gets call at first. As long as he hits, he'll play there forever. Glenn Beckert at second, Don Kessinger at short are best double-play combo in business. Both are hitters, too. Santo of course, is at third, his glove and bat unquestioned. It's presumed he will not click his heels after every victory or tongue-lash nervous rookies this time around. Paul Popovich is excellent utility man. Rating — A.

OUTFIELD — Johnny Callison, acquired from Phillies, takes over in right. Had off year in '69, but not finished yet. Ironhorse Billy Williams still a fixture in left. Center is problem, though. It could be Jim Hickman, the ex-Met who has power but little consistency; Don Young, who dropped a fly against the Mets and dropped out of sight; Jim Qualls, who wound up there last season, or Cleo Jones, from the Dodger chain. Best bet right now is Hickman. Rating — B.

TOP ROOKIES — Pitchers Colborn and Jacquez have best chances of sticking, along with catcher Rudolph.

UCLA Checks In For NCAA Finals

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — The defending champion UCLA Bruins, bidding for an unprecedented fourth straight title, checked in today as early-bird arrivals for the NCAA basketball finals—the big target of three upset-minded rivals.

Coach John Wooden brought his Bruins into town a day ahead of the other three showdown competitors—Jacksonville, St. Bonaventure and New Mexico State. He arranged for a quick evening practice session for his squad in advance of a semifinal contest against the New Mexico State's Aggies on Thursday.

The other Thursday contest to decide the championship finalist on Saturday pits Jacksonville's scoring-machine Dolphins against St. Bonaventure, rendered underdog by the loss of All-America Bob Lanier with knee surgery.

UCLA, winner of five NCAA crowns in the last six years, has been knocked off twice in late season games.

But the Bruins (26-2) have a record streak of 22 straight tournament victories going for them and the history of having knocked over New Mexico State (26-2) by comfortable margins in NCAA play the last two years.

The New Mexico State "Amazin Aggies" will arrive only a little more than 24 hours before the battle. They were viewed as the underdog.

Jacksonville, having dumped No. 1 ranked Kentucky and Big Ten champ Iowa for the Mideast title last weekend, was given a heavy edge over St. Bonaventure (25-1). The advantage was made more so by the Bonnies's loss of Lanier who sustained ligament injury while leading his team to victory over Villanova.

Pete Maravich Winner Of 1970 Naismith Award

NEW YORK (UPI)—Pete Maravich, a guy who plays basketball as though he invented the game, is the proud possessor of a giant trophy, named after the originator of the sport, designating the Louisiana State University star the college Player of the Year.

Maravich, the scorer-playmaker whose list of accomplishments include 11 NCAA scoring records and 34 Southeastern Conference offensive marks, was named winner of the second annual James A. Naismith Award Monday.

The slender, 6-foot, 5-inch Maravich, college basketballs greatest scorer in history, was an easy winner in the balloting for the Naismith Award conducted by United Press International.

The young man with the tousled hair and floppy socks was named the top player in the country by 467 of the 566 sports writers and sportscasters participating in the balloting.

Announcement of the award, presented by the Atlanta, Ga. Tipoff Club, was made jointly in New York and Atlanta. Lew Alcindor of UCLA was the winner of the first Naismith Award a year ago.

Bob Lanier, the giant center for StM bonaventure who was considered the best big man in the college ranks this season, was second in the voting with EU votes while Rick Mount of Purdue was third with 13, followed by Dan Issel of Kentucky with 12 and Austin Carr of Notre Dame with 11.

The award winner and his father-coach, Press Maravich were both present for the announcement in New York.

Seattle Move Just About Over

TAMPA (UPI)—It should be all over but the shouting and the law suits today, when American League owners ratify the transfer of the Seattle franchise from its one-year home on the Pacific Coast to the happier confines of Milwaukee County Stadium.

United Press International on March 4 reported that AL President Joe Cronin had the nine votes necessary to shift the Pilots to the old site of the Atlanta Braves, who were, of course, the Boston Braves of happy memory. In a sense, today is an anniversary for Milwaukee, for it was on March 17, 1953, that the Boston team was officially transferred to Wisconsin.

But the soverein state of Washington —and one of its citizens —is not about to take the departure of the Pilots lying down. On Monday, the office of State Attorney General Slade Gorton announced that the price tag the state has hung on the departure of the Pilots is $82 million, and that the state will go to court to seek a temporary restraining order barring the shift.

Pete Rose Gets $105,500 From Cincinnati, $500 As Captain

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI)—Pete Rose is getting $105,000 from Cincinnati this year.

Make that $105,500. Sparky Anderson, the new manager, named Rose captain so the Reds had to come up with an extra $500.

Five years ago Pete Rose said he wanted to be the first non-long baller and non-pitcher ever to get a $100,000 contract. Rose's remarks lost a little in the translation and the way it came out it sounded as if he meant he was looking to be the first $100,000 singles hitter. Rose hits his share of home runs, triples and doubles also.

Anyway, Bob Howsam, the Reds' general manager, sent him his first $100,000 contract not so long ago and what do you think Pete Rose did?

He refused to sign it.

Has Great Explanation

He has a great explanation, too.

"You see, when I first made that statement about how much I wanted to make $100,000 it was after my third year up here," he says. "It was after the 1965 season, I had just gotten 200 hits for the first time and hit .300 for the first time and I was only making $24,500. At the time $100,000 looked like a lot more to me than it does now, although don't get me wrong, I still consider it a lot of money. The thing is back then I didn't know that the year before I'd be offered my first $100,000 contract I would be making $85,000. That's what my salary was last year. So when I was offered $100,000 this year I honestly felt I deserved more of a raise."

Pete Rose had a pretty good talking point. He had to have because if you know Bob Howsam you know his hobby isn't throwing money away.

Rose had an excellent season for the Reds in 1968 when he won the National League batting title with a .335 figure but he had an even better one last year when he won the crown again with .348.

Howsam Jacks Up Offer

Now you see why Rose turned down that $100,000 contract.

Howsam jacked up his original offer a bit. Rose signed the contract and showed it proudly to his wife, his father and to his financial adviser, Hu Ullner, who advised him to thank Howsam, go out and try to have another good year and make more.

There's one thing more Pete Rose would like. He'd like being considered the best hitter in baseball. Right now he feels Roberto Clemente is.

"I'd say he's the best hitter I've seen since I've been in the big leagues," Rose says.

Marshall Proving Hodge Still Has Midas Touch

Gil Hodges still has that Midas touch.

Not satisfied with an outfield alignment of Cleon Jones, Tom Agee and Ron Swoboda, a trio that helped the New York Mets win the World Series, Manager Gil went for further strength during the off season.

He came up with Dave Marshall and Ray Sadecki from the San Francisco Giants. Skeptics branded the dealings and for a while it appeared they had hung the "no good" label on the right party.

Marshall went hitless in his first seven exhibition appearances. Then the tidal wave. At first it was a small ripple as Marshall collected two singles against Cincinnati. But there was a resounding tremor Monday as Marshall was called to pinchhit with two on, two out and New York trailing Detroit, 2-0, in the ninth. He walloped the ball over the fence for a three-run homer and a 3-2 New York victory.

That was the kid of Hodges' timeliness that propelled the Mets to greatness last season.

Sadecki, the beneficiary of Marshall's game-ending blow, pitched four innings and gave up five hits for the victory. Tom Seaver, the 1969 Cy Young Award winner, hurled two-hit ball for the first five innings. One hit was Willie Horton's homer.

The Atlanta Braves edged Houston, 2-1, but lost the services of 18-game winner Ron Reed for three to four months. Reed broke his collarbone while practicing running to cover first base during a morning workout. He tripped over the bag and fell on his shoulder.

Carl Yastrzemski hit his first two homers of spring training and solo Boston circuits were collected by George Scott, Mike Andrews and Luis Alvarado as the Red Sox bombed Cincinnati, 11-7. Johnny Bench had a four-bagger for the Reds.

Ted Kubiak's two-run triple rallied Seattle to a 6-4 triumph over San Diego. Rafael Robles was the bright side of the Padres' loss as he hit three singles and a double.

Rick Reichardt hit a two-run homer and Andy Messersmith extended his spring scoreless skein to 12 innings in California's 4-2 decision over Cleveland.

The Chicago White Sox pinned Minnesota with its ninth consecutive exhibition loss by beating the Twins, 9-4, on homers by Bob Spence, Walt Williams and Sid O'Brien. Montreal edged Washington, 11-10, with four runs in the bottom of the ninth inning.

AFL, NFL Hold First Joint Procedures Meet

HONOLULU (UPI)—The 26 pro football clubs, in their first joint meeting since the merger of the AFL and NFL, gathered today to listen to bids for the 1971 Super Bowl.

The members of the merged National Football League established some playing procedures Monday for this fall's regular season schedule.

The battle for the Super Bowl was expected to be between New Orleans and Miami. Houston has pulled out and Southern California is considered by television interests to be a poor choice.

New Orleans, with Tulane Stadium's near 83,000 seats and a net income of more than $4 million for pro football from the 1970 championship game, was considered the favorite.

Miami, host of two Super Bowl contests, was expected to make strong offers to land the title game for the third time. But it was the general feeling that if Miami's 70,000-seat Orange Bowl is selected, cries would rise over the Super Bowl being "locked in" at one city.

The clubs Monday adopted the NFL's one-point conversion rule and game ball. Also adopted were the procedure of names printed on the backs of the playing jerseys and the league office appointing a timekeeper to run the scoreboard clock as the official timepiece, which were two AFL standards.

The clubs had yet to touch on the Boston Stadium situation and the proposed sale of the New York Jets. But Phil Iselin, who is reported ready to make an offer for the club, was in town.

Wide Gap Increasing

It has been an old tradition among government workers to create the impression they are underpaid and they continue at their jobs solely out of a desire to serve public interest.

While we aren't about to question the dedication of public servants, we would like to point that the Tax Foundation Inc. has discovered some interesting information which destroys this illusion about poor pay for government workers. According to foundation statistics, the average employe of government— federal, state or local — is paid better than his counterpart in private business and industry.

What's more, the wage gap steadily has increased.

The Tax Foundation reports that in 1950 the average annual salary for fulltime employes in business and industry was $2,988 as compared with $3,033 for the government worker, a difference of $45. By 1968 the government employe averaged $7,265 a year while his free-enterprise counterpart received only $6,634 which is $632 less.

It is not surprising either that government, excluding military personnel, also experienced the fastest growth in terms of employment during the same period, jumping from six million in 1950 to 11 million in 1968, almost double.

In the private sector, the number of workers rose from 42 million to 56 million, an increase of one-third.

The government percentage of the total labor force also grew in the same time span, from 12 per cent in 1950 to 16 per cent in 1968, with a corresponding decrease in the private sector, from 88 per cent to 84 per cent.

What has happened is that government at all levels has taken on more employes and paid them more and more; the cost of government also has risen. The result is there are relatively fewer and fewer people working in business and industry paying a heavier and heavier tax burden.

The public should ask itself, what will happen if this trend continues?

Will tax-paid government jobs prove so lucrative that employment in the private sectors becomes unattractive? Will government in other words simply swallow up the entire labor force, leaving free enterprise without its necessary manpower?

The answer to those questions is "no." When enterprise collapses, the economy of the U.S. will likewise fall. That will end the fat-cat jobs. Other losers will be the million government employes in the lower paying jobs and the general population.

We happen to be in the same boat. So when we plead for less government and more private enterprise activity, we are the friend of the government employe, not his enemy. For we are only pointing out the common danger.

Lead Gasoline Fights Back

The automobile industry is urging the petroleum industry to get the lead out — literally — to help clean up the nation's air. The lead is tetraethyl lead, which has been used in gasoline since its anti-knock qualities were discovered by chemist Thomas Midgley Jr. in 1921.

The petroleum people say they will be happy to supply unleaded gasoline anytime Detroit mass-produces engines that can use it. The automakers say they will start building the engines as soon as the oil men give them the specifications of the fuel.

Now a third interested party has gotten into the act.

J.L. Kimberley, executive vice president of the Lead Industries Association, claims that no studies have shown any health hazard to the public from the lead in gasoline. Not only that, we don't know what health hazards might result from widespread use of unleaded gasoline, he says.

He cites a recent U.S. Department of Interior research report which found that pollution effects increased by as much as 25 per cent when gasoline was changed from leaded to unleaded, even though total emissions were about the same.

Better, he says, to concentrate on perfecting emission-control devices that will reduce auto exhaust pollution particles of all kinds, including lead.

However, the reason the automakers would like to see lead go is because it has a corrosive effect on new antipollution devices, such as catalytic mufflers.

Tetraethyl lead, or its chemical companion tetramethyl lead, are added to about 97 out of every 100 gallons of gasoline produced. It takes only about one teaspoon per gallon to increase a gasoline's octane number (ability to produce power) to an optimum level.

Without the use of antiknocks, at least 11 gallons of gasoline would be required to do the work of 10 gallons of unleaded fuel. This translates into a saving of almost 200 million barrels of crude oil a year in the United States alone.

It is estimated that the more complex refining processes needed to produce an efficient, high-octane, lead-free gas would raise the price of gasoline several cents a gallon. Also, modification of older cars to use the new fuel would be costly to the individual car owner.

Nevertheless, the lead-must-go bandwagon is gathering momentum, but whether it will take us all to a happy destination is something less than certain.

Woman's Work Never Done

It's a well-known fact that labor saving appliances and gadgets and convenience items of all kinds have liberated the American woman from household drudgery and given her more free time than she knows what to do with.

Like a lot of other accepted "facts," however, it just isn't so.

According to a survey conducted by Drs. Florence Hall and Marguerite Schroeder of the University of Washington in Seattle and reported in the Journal of Home Economics, little has changed in the past 50 years except the proportion of time spent on different tasks.

By comparison to statistics compiled in 1920 by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Seattle housewives in 1968 were spending less time on clothing care and shopping than their mothers or grandmothers did.

But the time spent on food preparation and dishwashing had increased from 13.3 hours a week in 1920 to 18.5 hours a week in 1968. And the time spent on general house care was up about three hours a week.

The home economists offer no explanation for this somewhat startling finding, but speculate that children may be of less help around the house than they used to be. Another reason may be that hired household help is less available.

Twig Bent Toward Movies

And then there's Twiggy.

Britain's $2,400-a-week, 21-22-32 gift to the fashion world says she is retiring from modeling and will start a new career in the movies.

It figures, what with all we've been hearing about the movie industry falling onto lean times.

The Big Spenders

(Arlington, Cal. Times)

We've been talking about them for two years. And now the Nixon administration is grimly referring to the possibilty of "inducing" them in the near future: price-wage controls to halt the irrational spiral of the cost of living.

This may become necessary, but we would like to think that the government will exercise other "instruments" it possesses before resorting to these controls.

We would like to see the President, for instance, excercise control over his own and his administration's spending before he cracks down on the private sector . . . a course of action inherently anathema to our system of life.

The President admitted in his message (regarding the veto of the health and education appropriation bill) that government spending is up five billion dollars from his September estimate. Thus an estimated surplus in the budget was wiped out, and the prospect of another deficit was introduced.

Included in the increased spending figures were some little-publicized amounts all having to do with the personal spending habits of the President himself. These figures show that Nixon, in two of the accounts at his disposal, had outspent his predecessor by $1.2 million.

And we had hoped that LBJ had been the last of the big spenders.

A quick look at the six month figure for Nixon's $1 million emergency fund shows that it had already been depleted by 75 per cent. The extra money spent at the White House (for guard uniforms, for transportation to California and Florida white houses, etc.) are small only in comparison to the total budget. They loom large as a symptom of runaway spending.

Apparently our President hasn't the fortitude of the intestines to put a stop to it.

Remember that he promised a spending ceiling of $192 billion . . . . "even if congressional action permitted a higher level." Well, that figure is already seven billion dollars old.

Where does it all end? Where does the buck stop being passed? You know it, brother. Can you spare a dime?

With Some Reservation

By INJUN WOODY

The government's idea that it could just 'take' the land from the Indians in Alaska, as they did in America proper, has backfired. . .

Five Indian villages in Alaska are challenging the building of a pipeline across land which is theirs by age-old rights. They have filed a suit against the Trans-Alaska Pipeline System (TAPS), for ignoring promises to provide them with jobs and failing to award contracts to a native-owned construction firm.

The suit also asks for damages totaling $40 million from TAPS and eight other oil companies which own part of the consortium. A lifting of the land restrictions was approved in December.

Due to the attitude of the Dept. of the Interior, the engineering and logistics work was carried out, and pipe arrived from Japan. But construction never started.

The members of the Tanana Chiefs conference, whose president, Al Ketzier of Nenana, could tie up the pipeline for years if a solution is not forthcoming. He said the purpose is not to stop construction of the $900 million project, but to simply insure that the natives get their just benefits.

A spokesman for the TAPS group said construction contracts could not be awarded until the pipeline's right of way is granted and this condition must be fulfilled before TAPS can get the required funds.

The department of the Interior has made its outright attempt to grab lands illegally once again, but have, this time, been foiled. Hooray for the Alaskan Injuns. . . .

THE GLOBAL VIEW

U.S. Gradually To Drop Role Of World's Guardian

By LEON DENNEN
Foreign News Analyst

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (NEA) — Disengagement, military and political, is the dominant theme of President Nixon's evolving foreign policy.

While the United States will be faithful to its international treaty commitments, "we shall reduce our involvement and our presence in other nations affairs," the President said in his message to Congress.

This does not mean a retreat to American isolationism — as some European and Asian leaders fear — since the United States nuclear umbrella will continues to shield the non-Communist nations against major acts of aggression.

But it does mean that the Nixon administration has come to the conclusion that, in the face of overwhelming domestic problems, the United States can no longer afford or needs to act as the world's policeman.

In many respects the "Nixon doctrine" is a fresh and flexible approach to international reality as it is some 25 years after the end of World War II. It is certainly a basic reappraisal of East-West tensions, the disarray in the Communist world and the emerging new climate in international relations.

The "doctrine" also tells us a great deal about the pragmatic philosophy of the 37th president who first emerged on the political arena as an irreconcilable opponent of the Communists.

Nixon, it is increasingly clear, no longer sees the Red world as a monolithic bloc but as a group of nations which, despite their common Marxist Leninist ideology, have distinct and powerful national and regional interests to which the United States must from time to time adapt its own policies.

Thus he no longer seeks confrontations with the Communist states but visits them, example: Romania. He no longer wants to roll them back but encourages them to become partners in genuine peaceful coexistence.

"If we are to have peace in the last third of the 20th century, a major factor will be development of a new relationship between the United States and the Soviet Union," Nixon said.

He would like to come to terms with Moscow by means of specific negotiations on the limitation of nuclear arms, the Middle East, the Berlin problem and Europe generally.

However, the United States does not intend to go-it-alone. The President made it clear that he will at all times consult the NATO allies and on no account work against their interests.

But the best course, in Nixon's view, is for the NATO nations themselves to assume forceful leadership while the United States maintains a co-operative role.

Similarly in Asia. While urging the Asians to become self-reliant, the administration will continue its efforts to bring the Red Chinese out of their self-imposed isolations and improve relations with Peking.

To be sure, it takes two or more sides to end world tensions. A detente will not be easily achieved as long as Moscow and Peking actively pursue goals dictated by their Marxist-Leninist creed and world revolutionary strategy.

However, all available evidence leads to the conclusion that both Russia and China suffered many reverses within the Communist world movement in the past few years.

The likely future trend is toward even greater disintegration of the socialist camp. It is therefore possible that the Russian and Chinese rivals will lose some of their revolutionary zeal while they undermine each other's prestige.

This undoubtedly accounts a great deal for Nixon's optimistic prediction that "America may have the best chance since World War II to enjoy a generation of uninterrupted peace."

Barring a Russian-Chinese war, a sort of "triangular balance" between the United States, Russia and China seems likely to take shape in the last decades of this century.

Up Through The Ranks

(The Freeman)

There is not of necessity any such thing as the free hired laborer being fixed to that condition for life. Many independent men everywhere in these States, a few years back in their lives were hirel laborers. The prudent, penniless beginner in the world labors for wages awhile, saves a surplus with which to buy tools or land for himself, then labors on his own account another while, and at length hires another new beginner to help him. This is the just and generous and prosperous system which opens the way to all, gives hope to all, and consequent energy and progress and improvement of condition to all. No men living are more worthy to be trusted than those who toil up from poverty; none less inclined to take or touch aught which they have not honestly earned. Let them beware of surrendering a political power which they already possess, and which if surrendered will surely be used to close the door of advancement against such as they and fix new disabilities and burdens upon them till all of liberty shall be lost.

The Doctor Says

By DR. W. G. BRANDSTADT

Diphtheria Is Contagious But Easily Preventable

Every year a few children who have not been inoculated against diphtheria get this disease and about half of them die, often because the diagnosis is not made in time. This is a great tragedy because diphtheria, a very contagious disease, is so easily preventable. The infection produces a whitish membrane that may spread across the larynx and obstruct the child's breathing. This is a frequent cause of death.

Other complications include heart disease, encephalitis (brain fever), shock (dangerously low blood pressure) and paralysis of the soft palate. With the latter, attempts to swallow often force the food or liquid out of the nose — a very annoying development.

All infants should get a diphtheria-whooping cough-tetanus inoculation at the age of three months. Any child who has not had this protection should get it if he is under 6. If he is over 6 he should get diphteria-tetanus without the pertussis (whooping cough) vaccine. In the unlikely case of an epidemic, everyone who has not had an injection of diphtheria toxoid within 30 days should get one.

Q — My husband and I have an Rh incompatibility. After four miscarriages I finally have a baby but he has a mild form of cerebral palsy. Could we have a normal second child?

A — Rh incompatibility is not a cause of cerebral palsy, which may be due to various factors including prematurity, birth injury, German measles of the mother early in her pregnancy or prolonged delivery (not labor), especially in babies delivered breech first. With a second baby the necessary steps to prevent Rh disease would, of course, have to be taken.

Nigerian Future Looks Up; Russia's Post-War Influence Watched

JOHN GOLDSMITH

ROBERT ALLEN

WASHINGTON — Two months after the end of the tragic Biafran civil war, authorities here are cautiously optimistic about the future prospects for Nigeria.

Generally speaking, the terrible events widely predicted as the war's aftermath, have not yet come to pass. The experts think there is now good reason to hope that they can be avoided.

Specifically, Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon, the leader of Nigeria's victorious military government has dealt even handedly with the defeated Ibos. Indeed, the widely expressed fars of genocide now seem to have been overdrawn.

There have, according to the experts, been no reports of mass arrests. Gowon appears to be following a policy of reconciliation, despite pressures from some of his associates to take a harsher line with the ex-revolutionaries.

Gowon claims to have no personal political aspirations. In the intelligence community here there are some analysts who take those claims at face value, or very near it.

There are hopes that, now that the 30-month civil war is over, Nigeria can move toward a non-military government.

It is clear that the war is definitely and completely over. There are no reports of holdouts or pockets of resistance among the Ibos.

NO MASS STARVATION — At the end of the fighting it was bleakly predicted here that as many as a million would starve in the Biafran enclave. That has not occurred, according to the experts.

There have, to be sure, been pockets of extreme malnutrition within what was formrly Biafra. The Owerri area is perhaps the worst of these.

However, Gowon's central government is planning to end its emergency logistics plan at the end of this month and turn relief over to the constituent state governments. This suggests that the problem is on the way to solution.

There are indications that the need for food within the enclave, what with relief programs then in progress, was not as serious at war's end as was believed. In addition, Gowon's government, cocky in victory, did little to help visiting newsmen whose reports might have clarified the issue.

As a result, newsmen appear to have generalized on a few specifics, and based predictions of widespread misery and starvation on such horrible examples as the distressing children's hospital at Port Harcourt.

None of this is to suggest that two months have solved all the problems. Experts here believe there are about 7 million Ibos who now need jobs.

Currency is a major problem. Biafran currency is worthless, of course, and no exchange arrangement has been put into effect. As a consequence, commerce within the enclave is by barter.

OIL, OIL, OIL — If for no other reason than its petroleum reserves, the long range economic prospect for Nigeria is a bright one among the economies of black Africa.

Already the sixth nation among the world's oil producers, Nigeria is currently producing some 840,000 barrels a day. That production level is expected to reach 1 million barrels daily in the near future.

One refinery is already in operation, and one of the major oil companies is anxious to build another. U.S. experts believe a daily oil production of 2 million barrels is in sight in perhaps two or three years.

Revenues from 2 million barreles a day are, according ecnomic projections, just about sufficient to carry all of Nigeria's current budget.

Experts here think one result of the war has been to make for a somewhat closer relationship between Nigeria and Russia. That is viewed as a consequence of our refusal to sell arms to either side in the conflict.

Britain refused to sell Nigeria sophisticated weapons. Russia did supply them, and some Russians are on hand, now, to service aircraft and other Russian arms.

The Russian arms sales were on a strictly cash basis, however, and experts here think the Nigerian military is, from an ideological point of view, generally quite suspicious of the Kremlin and its aims on the African continent.

PAUL HARVEY NEWS

Conservatives And Liberals

By PAUL HARVEY

Conservatives and liberals have this in common; both are usually utterly impractical.

We must accept as a basic premise in human relations the need of individuals — and groups of individuals — for recognition.

The conservative has too little patience with this need; the liberal is overconcerned with it.

Conservatives are characteristically more farsighted. They see and recognize and accept such fundamental success formulae as "work hard," "pay your bills," "obey the law."

Conservatives know that, in the long view, the laws of Moses provide the best blueprint for orderly existence.

But when confronted by immediate, right-now problems deriving from the individual need for an individual identity, the conservative gets disturbed, flustered frightened.

The conservative thinks he's an "individualist," but whenever individuals get out of line, fail to march in step, the conservative's response is likely to contradict his own philosophy of individual freedom: "Throw the dissident in jail!" "Cut that boy's hair!" "Work or starve!"

The conservative foresees the outcome of a lawless, loafing society but his solutions are unworkable because he ignores emotional considerations.

The liberal, on the other hand, is likely to ignore the long-term sequence of events and concentrate on the present problem.

"Feed the hungry," "Yield to the demands of the dissidents," "Pay the unemployed," "Let the marchers march,' "Restrain police."

Of course, wherever liberalism allows each individual to do his own uninhibited thing, murders, arson and larceny merge inevitably into anarchy and the landscape is littered with dead Sharon Tates.

In the extremes of right and left, similar excesses are brought into even sharper focus.

The most violent radicals are those "out of power."

During New Deal and Fair Deal days of comparatively liberal national administrations, vehemence and violence came from the right: the Ku Klux Klan, the Minutemen.

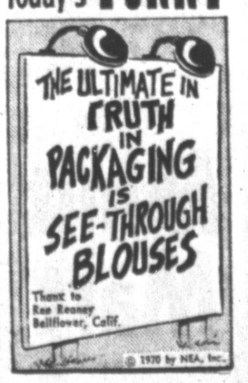

Today, with a more moderate Administration in Washington, the out-of-power left has spawned such hate-and-hurt outfits as the Panthers, the SDS Weathermen.

Between the extremes of right and left is a middle ground more responsible than either. President Nixon is making an earnest effort to represent that so-called Silent Majority.

He has called for a "lowering of voices," for "negotiation to replace confrontation," for a due-process remedy for Vietnam, inflation, crime.

Pray for him. His mentor, Dwight Eisenhower, once said, "It takes much more courage to walk alone down the middle of the road being stoned from both sides than to walk down either sidewalk in the comparative shelter of your extremist friends."

Television In Review

By DICK Du BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—NBC-TV presented five major specials during the weekend, not to mention another rerun of "The Wizard of Oz." Naturally the results were mixed. But at least all the efforts could genuinely be called special, and some of the great actors of the world were on display in a rare concentration of talent.

"The Wizard of Oz," to the surprise of few, was still the best show on the lot. Of the new offerings, the most solid was Friday night's 90-minute "Hallmark Hall of Fame" entry, "Neither are we Enemies," a drama set at the time of Christ concerning how Roman occupation of Judea propelled young revolutionaries against their elders—the establishment, so to speak.

NBC's other Friday night special was an hour documentary, "Three Boys on Safari," about an East African trek by a mother and her trio of sons, the family of the late Ted Yates, an outstanding network producer-reporter fatally wounded while covering the war in Jerusalem in June, 1967.

Saturday night, NBC's hour special was "The Switched-on Symphony," in which conductor Zubin Mehta and the Los Angeles philharmonic orchestra performed splendidly—and also played host to pop artists in an attempt to show some common grounds of classical and contemporary music. NBC could well be on to something important in programming with this one.

Sunday night came the network's new two-hour version of "David Copperfield," geared for the modern young audience. It started with the hero, confused and lonely at 28, looking at his life in flashback in hopes of finding himself and choosing a future.

This tone made for a sort of melancholia that detracted from some of the tale's known gusto. And the flashbacks were, at first, distracting, the remarkable cast included Laurence Olivier, Ralph Richardson, Michael Redgrave and Ron Moody.

Also Sunday night, NBC presented Lee J. Cobb in an hour drama, "To Confuse the Angel," about a doctor facing personal crisis when his daughter-in-law is seriously ill and the building in which he has practiced for years is about to be torn down. The material here was on the thin side (it needed more time) and somewhat depressing, except for Cobb's encounter with a world-wise Rabbi he seeks out. But, as with Melvyn Douglas and the late Paul Muni, there is always something real when Cobb uncorks one of his last-angry-man portrayals.

SHOW MUST GO ON

WIMBOURNE, England (UPI)—The cast for the children's pantomine was all assembled for the rehearsal—except for housewife Ruth Parker, cast as the back end of the horse.

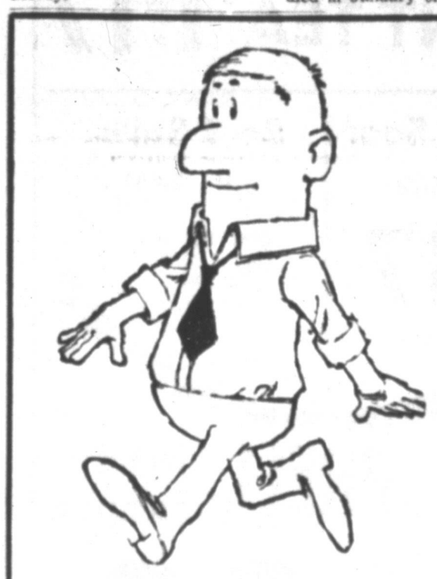

The half-horse was at home—stuck in the kitchen sink.

Mrs. Parker had jammed her finger in the overflow hole of her sink while trying to clear a an hour with soap and glycerine, then gave up and sawed the water pipe in pieces.

DALLAS (UPI) — William L. Crawford, who began his career as a substitute postal clerk will be sworn in Monday as the U.S. Post Office Department's regional director. Crawford has served as transportation officer and executive officer in Washington for the postal service.

DALLAS (UPI) — Dr. Margaret Mead, noted anthropologi Rita Hauser, U.S. representative on the UN Commission on Human Rights, and Albert Rosenfield, managing editor of [illegible] field, managing editor of Family Health magazine, will lecture during Southern Methodist University's fifth annual women's symposium, March 31-April 1.

In 1964 a Dallas jury found Jack Ruby guilty of killing presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald. Ruby was sentenced to death, but the conviction was overturned. Ruby was awaiting a second trial when he died in January of 1967.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The coming of the 747 jetliner has provided transcontinental passengers with a theater in the sky where some 360 transients can watch a movie or movies at one time.

Of the three carriers with 747s in service only TWA is attempting to cater to the tastes of adults and youngsters by showing two motion pictures on a single flight.

For example, "The Sterile Cuckoo" is screened for mature travelers while "True Grit" is available for family watching.

Passengers may rest assured that "I Am Curious (Yellow)" or other X rated films will not be shown on any flights. Movies with excessive nudity or explicit sex scenes are avoided, too.

Six Screens

American Airlines has six screens on the roomy new airplanes—two located in first class, the remainder in coach.

Unlike TWA, American offers only a single film per flight.

"We keep our films for about two weeks," a spokesman for the airlines said. "It's tough to come up with 52 movies a year—one for eastbound flights, say from Los Angeles to New York, and one westbound from New York to Los Angeles—that pleases everyone.

"If you show only G rated films for children, you'll bore the adults to death," he said. "If you show only adult-oriented movies you can't send all the kids to the other end of the airplane."

Pan American, like TWA, has five different screens, but only a single film. As is the case with the others, Pan Am shows a different movie going west than eastbound so passengers making round-trips within a week or two won't be stuck with the same movie.

Prefer Movies

All three airlines report the majority of customers prefer watching the movie to reading or listening to stereo music.

TWA currently is showing "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" and "The Downhill Racer" on westbound flights. "Cassidy" is aimed at mature audiences and "Racer" for general audiences.

Future flights will screen "Don't Drink the Water," "Generation," "Ice Station Zebra," "The Only Game in Town," "Viva Max," and "Topaz."

Many seasoned flyers restrict their movie-going to jetting cross-country. This practice has its advantages: the passenger may fall asleep without offending anyone, and the price is right.
