At Least Three Killed...

Transport Plane Crashes

INDIAN SPRINGS AIR FIELD, Nev. (AP) — A C-130 transport plane carrying 68 people on an Army training mission crash-landed and burst into flames early today near an Air Force landing strip. Officials said at least three were killed, four were missing and most of those aboard escaped with minor injuries.

Clark County Deputy Coroner Grant Davis said from Las Vegas that the Air Force told him three people had been killed and four others were missing and unaccounted for following the accident about 12:30 a.m. PDT. The crash occurred one mile north of Indian Springs Air Field, a desert airstrip 45 miles northwest of Las Vegas that is affiliated with Nellis Air Force Base.

In Washington, Capt. Virginia Prbyla, an Air Force spokeswoman, said the plane was believed to be carrying nine crew members and 59 passengers.

She said the plane was a supporting element in a night training exercise involving the Army's 9th Infantry Division from Fort Lewis, Wash. She said the exercises, which began Sept. 11, are designed to simulate joint Air Force-Army airlift operations in combat conditions.

Shelly Camp, a Las Vegas police officer who was at the scene, said the Air Force told him four deaths had been confirmed.

But Sgt. Joe Wiles, a public information officer at Nellis Air Force Base just outside Las Vegas, said "We still have no fatalities confirmed. There may or may not still be some on the aircraft."

Wiles said officials "know of 65 people on the airplane." He said of those, 44 have been treated for minor injuries and released, while the remainder had been hospitalized either at the Nellis AFB hospital or in Las Vegas.

He said none of those hospitalized was thought to be critically hurt, and said most of the injuries were "orthopedic" such as broken arms or legs."

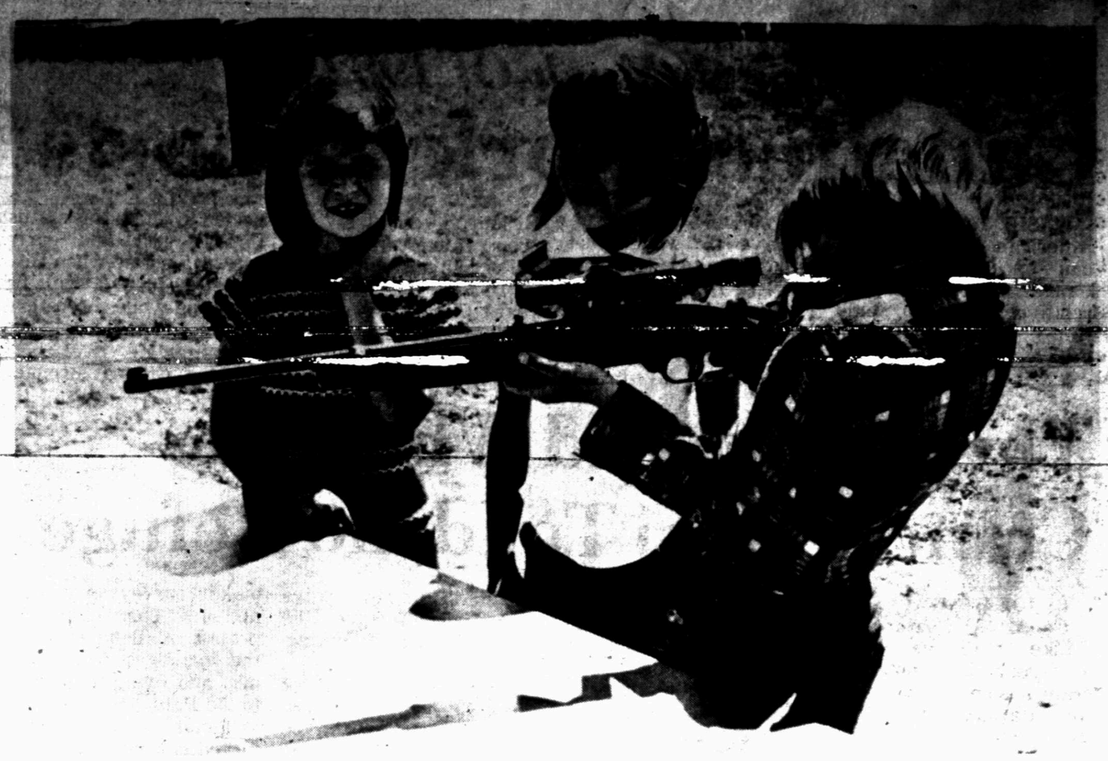

Lt. Col. Mike Wallace, public information officer at Nellis, said rescue workers spent hours trying to remove all passengers from the wreckage.

The plane was still burning long after the crash and firefighters were on the scene, Camp said. The flames could be seen leaping 20 to 25 feet.

Nellis has an ongoing military training exercise known as Red Flag which lasts for several weeks at a time. It is not known whether the crashed C-130, a Lockheed-built craft whose model name is Hercules, was involved in Red Flag.

The plane is the same type involved in a crash during the abortive rescue of the Americans held hostage in Iran in 1980. A C-130 was also used by the Israelis during the raid to free hijack victims at Entebbe, Uganda.

In Washington, Maj. Sam Martin, an Air Force public affairs officer, said the plane was attached to the 463rd Tactical Airlift Wing, from Dyess Air Force Base in Texas.

For Former Hostages. . .

Compensation Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — A presidential panel today recommended that the U.S. government pay each of the former American hostages in Iran $12.50 per day as compensation for their ordeal.

If the proposal is approved by President Reagan, each of the 52 ex-hostages held in captivity for 444 days would be entitled to $5,550 in compensation.

The nine-member commission, which included former Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, released its recommendations after three months of deliberations. There were six specific proposals in the report.

The panel said the tax-exempt detention benefits it was recommending are similar to those given to Vietnam prisoners of war and interned civilians in Vietnam and to the crew of the USS Pueblo, which was detained by North Korean authorities for 11 months in 1968.

In addition, the commission recommended that:

—The maximum payment allowable on claims for damage to or loss of personal property be increased from $40,000 to $50,000.

—The medical and health benefits relating to the hostages' detention be authorized without limit.

—Existing legislation relating to hostage benefits be amended to cover future hostage situations.

The $12.50 per day compensation recommended by the commission fell far short of the figure suggested by Brice Claggett, the attorney for the hostages and their families.

Considering the execution threats, torture and other mistreatment of the hostages, "you would be on the conservative side if you were to decide that a court would be likley to pay a minimum of $1,000 for each day of captivity for each hostage," Claggett had told the commission.

His proposal would have cost the U.S. government $23 million.

In contrast, the commission's recommendation would cost the government about $289,000 for the 52 hostages. That figure would be somewhat higher when compensation is added for hostages released before last January.

However, a representative of Vietnam veterans told the commission that any compensation would be a "deliberate slap in the face" to the Americans who fought in that war only to be scorned by their government and countrymen on their return.

The commission is composed of nine members, including former Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and former Health and Human Services Secretary Patricia R. Harris.

Four of the members were appointed by former President Carter the day before he left office and the hostages were released. The other five were named by Reagan last spring.

The panel's decision was complicated by the lack of a comparable precedent to what happened to the Americans in Iran.

But Claggett, in testimony before the commission, said there is a strong moral and legal basis for his contention that the U.S. government is liable for compensatory damages.

He noted that under the agreement which brought the hostages home, the Carter administration precluded them from suing the Iranian government for damages and, in effect, "wiped out all hostage claims against Iran."

"A claim is a property right," Claggett said, "just as the owner of a debt has a property right. If the government takes my claim, it has taken my property."

He also noted that the Fifth Amendment requires the government to pay compensation when it takes private property for public use.

But Paul Konka, a Vietnam War veteran, issued a strong and emotional appeal to the commission to deny compensation.

"Compensation for these or any ex-hostages would be a deliberate slap in the face of the thousands of Vietnam veterans who came home to no bands, parades, free airplane tickets and a White House reception, but ... instead to scorn, derision or simply complete inattention by the citizens they served," Konka said.

Monday update

Plant May Be Shut Down

NEW YORK (AP) — Consolidated Edison's 8-year-old Indian Point 2 nuclear power plant may have to be shut down for a full year for repairs because a major component is rusting faster than anticipated, the utility says.

However, the shutdown, which would cost Con Edison $100 million in repairs, would not take place sooner than four years from now, spokeswoman Virginia McLaughlin said Sunday.

Similar problems have been discovered at 16 other reactors across the country and four of them already have been shut down for repairs.

Besides repair costs, shutting down the plant would force the utility to spend hundreds of millions of dollars to replace lost electricity.

Identify Victims

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — Authorities today positively identified a Michigan couple burned beyond recognition when their light plane burst into flames after crashing near the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport Saturday.

The victims were identified by the Tarrant County medical examiner's office William Fredrick Cole, 40, and his wife Wanda, 41, of Williamston, Mich., a Detroit suburb.

Airport officials said the plane smashed into a tree in a wooded area a mile north of a runway.

A Federal Aviation Administration spokesman in Fort Worth said the control tower was not monitoring the flight of the Piper Saratoga.

"This close to the airport, they should have been talking to somebody," he said. "It was clear, calm weather and the weather probably wasn't a factor."

Pastor Donates $1 Million

DALLAS (AP) — The pastor of the nation's largest church says the "spirit of God" told him to pledge $1 million to support the Southern Baptist Convention's missionary work.

W.A. Criswell, 71, on Sunday told the congregation of the First Baptist Church of Dallas that the record-breaking pledge is a response to a dream he had while recuperating from a recent heart attack.

He said he had watched a television movie "filled with promiscuity, immorality and drunkenness — a testimony to modern American life."

Then he fell asleep and dreamed of a "great assembly of godly people" who "sat down together and the spirit of God came upon the group and me."

Council To Set City's Tax Rate

The Snyder City Council is scheduled to set the tax rate tonight for the city's 1981-82 budget.

All taxing entities in the county had delayed setting their tax rates, pending the final valuation figures. These were to become available following the board of equalization's session, which was concluded Friday.

The city council has the tax rate on the agenda for a special session scheduled for 6 p. m. in the council room at city hall.

During the special session the council also will consider bids for hospitalization insurance for city employees and consider a request from the women's division of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce for permission to hold a downtown parade Oct. 10 in connection with the White Buffalo Days celebration.

The White Buffalo Days are scheduled for Oct. 7 and Oct. 10, with the parade to be a feature of the activities on Saturday, Oct. 10.

Haig To Reveal Development Plan

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. today unveiled the Reagan administration's new strategy for economic development of poor nations, but said those supporting international terrorism will not get help.

In a speech to the U.N. General Assembly, Haig said the world body and global economic development are threatened by "the willful violation of the national integrity of both Afghanistan and Cambodia by the Soviet Union and Vietnam."

"The world's hopes for peace, for security and for development will be jeopardized if 'might makes right' becomes the law of nations," Haig said in his prepared remarks.

Haig said security from aggression is an essential ingredient for economic growth in poor nations and that the Reagan administration will increase its help for "programs essential to deter international aggression and to provide the domestic security necessary to carry out sound economic policies.

"We have no intention of providing foreign assistance, moral comfort or the prestige of international political platforms to countries that foster international violence," Haig said.

Haig's criticism of Soviet intervention in Afghanistan and its support for Vietnam's occupation of Cambodia reflects the firm stance he is expected to take in his meeting Wednesday with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

Blood Drive Set Tuesday

Blood donations will be accepted between the hours of 2 p. m. and 8 p. m. in the hospital conference room.

Snyder area residents are being urged to conribute blood, since local supplies are running low.

Jury Being Selected For Durst Trial

The process of selecting a jury for the murder trial of Don Alton Durst began this morning in 132nd District Court here.

Durst is charged with the shooting death of Billy Norris Cobb, 35, last Nov. 28. Cobb was shot in the stomach with a shotgun in an incident at Smith's Cafe.

A panel of 100 petit jurors was called for the trial. Shortly before noon today, the juror's list had been trimmed to less than 50 by disqualifications, cuts by attorneys and those excused.

Selection of the jury was expected to take up most of the time today.

Judge Wayland G. Holt is presiding over the trial.

District Attorney Pete Greene is prosecuting the case, and Lance C. Hall of the Sweetwater law firm of Moore, Dickson, Roberts & Hall, is the defense counsel.

Ask Us

Q.—Why are school bus drivers allowed to smoke on buses, either local or on out-of-town trips, and why are children allowed to use profanity without being disciplined?

A.—There are not enough qualified, non-smoking bus drivers available to make this a practical rule for employment, says Supt. Bill J. Hood. Also, he said profanity is neither condoned nor deliberately ignored. "Responsibility for such speech usage should be shared between the home and the school. It is not taught as a part of the school's curriculum," the superintendent said.

Biography Says Cash Accepted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new biography by a Pulitzer Prize-winning author says that Lyndon Johnson "did not hesitate to use the powers of the presidency...with utter ruthlessness" to further his own business interests and earlier had accepted envelopes of cash while he was vice president.

"For years, men came into Lyndon Johnson's office and handed him envelopes stuffed with cash," author Robert A. Caro writes in "The Years of Lyndon Johnson."

Caro won a Pulitzer Prize in 1975 for his biography of Robert Moses, a former New York city and state official who died earlier this year. The first of three volumes in the new biography of Johnson is to be published next year. Excerpts appear as an article in the October issue of The Atlantic Monthly.

Johnson, who died in 1973, was raised to power first in the House of Representatives and then as a U.S.senator from Texas by the emerging oil, gas, sulfur, defense and space industries of the Southwest, Caro says.

There was no answer Sunday at a telephone listed in Caro's name.

Pair Indicted In Death Of Child

Travis County officers were reported en route here today to take custody of Teresa Clayton, 23, who has been charged in Austin with injury to a child.

She is the mother of Melodie Clayton, 22-months, who died last Tuesday in an Austin hospital. Previously, Rickey Wayne Jones, 32, was arrested in Austin and charged with injury to a child in connection with the child's death and was being held in jail there in lieu of $50,000 bond.

Subsequently, both Jones and Mrs. Clayton were indicted by a Travis County grand jury. Jones was indicted on a count alleging murder and injury to a child, and the indictment against Mrs. Clayton alleges injury to a child. The indictment against Jones charges that he committed "an act clearly dangerous to human life" by striking the child "with an object unknown to the grand jury." The mother was indicted for "intentionally and knowlingly engaging in conduct that caused serious bodily injury" to her daughter "by omitting to protect her daughter....from bodily injury by Ricky Wayne Jones when the defendant could have provided such protection and was legally obligated to."

The child's mother was arrested by Snyder police on a warrant issued in Travis County. Scurry County Judge Preston Wilson set her bond at $25,000.

The Scurry County Sheriff's department said she remained in jail here this morning and that Travis County officers were expected to arrive here this afternoon and return her to Austin.

Funeral service was held here Thursday for the child, who had been hospitalized in an Austin hospital since Aug. 27 for head injuries and bruises.

For 1981 Taxes. . .

County Rate Cut, But Yield Rises

Scurry County Commissioners this morning set the county tax rate for the 1982 budget at 13 cents per $100 valuation.

This is a reduction in rate from 13.7 cents set last year. However, the yield will increase due to an increase in valuations.

Although the tax rate is being lowered, the amount of money it is expected to raise—$3,492,354—is 11.37 percent greater than the amount raised by county taxes last year. This means that the county must hold a "truth in taxation" hearing which is a requirement when the increase in funds raised by taxes amounts to more than three percent.

The hearing has been set for next Monday at the courthouse.

The tax rate had been delayed, pending final figures on county valuations. The county values have been established at $2,855,771,000. However, this figure does not take into account exemptions.

In other business this morning, the commissioners court approved distribution of $8,273.94 from the county available school fund. The distribution, based on average daily attendance during the 1980-81 school year, allots $7,489.63 to the Snyder Independent School District, $417.28 to the Hermleigh Independent School District, and $367.03 to the Ira Independent School District.

Perhaps Through Much Of 1982...

Canadian Pork Imports To Continue

WASHINGTON (AP) — American hog producers can expect imports of Canadian pork to remain relatively large for some time, perhaps through much of 1982, an Agriculture Department analyst says.

It's a two-way street, with the United States having larger exports to Canada in some years and the reverse in others, says Ron Trostle of the department's Economic Research Service. His report is in a current issue of Foreign Agriculture.

"During the past two years, Canada has regained the position as a net pork exporter to the United States and is expected to retain this status through 1981 and early 1982 — a period when U.S. pork production will be declining while prices are expected to be strong," the report said.

Along with a stronger U.S. dollar, that will make Canadian pork less expensive, thus "practically assuring an even larger pork trade surplus for the Canadians," it said.

Between 1975 and 1979, Canada was a net pork exporter to the United States, averaging a net trade surplus of 16,500 metric tons a year.

"During 1975 to 1979, the trade balance favored the United States, averaging 38,400 tons," the report said. "In 1979 and 1980, Canada again became a net exporter, with positive trade balance of 23,000 and 76,000 tons, respectively."

U.S. pork production, by comparison, was about 7.4 million metric tons last year. Thus, the net imports of Canadian pork amounted to about 1 percent of 1980 U.S. output.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds. Last year's U.S. pork production, according to Agriculture Department records, was about 16.4 billion pounds.

"The growth in pork exports results from an unusually long and vigorous expansionary phase in Canada's hog cycle," the report said. "During this phase, hog numbers in the United States increased 36 percent over a four-year period, but in Canada the expansion lasted two years longer, with numbers increasing 55 percent."

Last year's cost squeeze on producers "brought an end to expansion in the United States but only slowed the growth in Canada," where last spring's inventory of hogs on Canadian farms was slightly larger than in 1980. The U.S. inventory was down 9 percent.

"There are several good reasons why hog numbers have not begun to shrink in Canada as they have in the United States," the report said. "The Canadian government operates a 'stop-loss' program designed to help producers avoid large losses when production is too high and prices fall below 90 percent of a five-year average adjusted for increases in production costs."

Last year, eligible producers received $8.96 per hog marketed, it said.

Another factor is that Canadian producers may be trying to keep output high in anticipation of government production or marketing quotas.

Also, it may be that Canadian producers believe it is a good time to stick with hogs while American farmers are curbing their output, the report said.

Three-Year-Old Whooping Crane Flown To Idaho Refuge

By JOE WING
For AP Newsfeatures

Like a mail order bride, a 3-year-old whooping crane has been flown from the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center near Washington, D.C., to the Grays Lake National Wildlife Refuge in Idaho.

There, if all goes well, she will mate with a 5-year-old male and produce a couple of eggs — possibly as early as next spring — to augment the second flock of America's tallest and one of its rarest birds, which has been established under the foster care of sandhill cranes.

This Grays Lake flock was made up originally of chicks hatched by the sandhill cranes out of eggs snatched from whooper eggs in Canada and rushed to Idaho. More recently there have been transfers of chicks from Patuxent. Some did not survive, some went astray, and the upshot was that the one young male old enough and seemingly ready to breed lacked a mate. Hence the mail order bride.

First developments in the matchmaking have been pronounced a success. Although the female is too young to breed this year, she and the male were reported getting along fine. They soon started spending time together, foraging and preening simultaneously and trying out the spectacular mating dance peculiar to these cranes.

They have called to each other but have yet to whoop in unison, with one far-reaching note sounded by the male and two staccato notes by the female. The resonance of their calls is enhanced by passage through convoluted, 5-foot windpipes.

The course of true love, however has not been smooth. The male got so busy, for reasons unknown, trying to expand his territory that he seemed to lose interest in his fiance. But whoopers mate for life and the hope is that the two will form a close bond, migrate with the sandhill cranes as usual to the Bosque del Apache refuge in New Mexico, 870 miles away, and return next spring to set up housekeeping in earnest.

This experiment is only one in a series of audacious measures that have been taken by the National Fish and Wildlife Service with the help of Canadian wildlife authorities, the National Audubon Society and others in an innovative campaign to save the great birds from extinction.

There were only 15 of them 40 years ago; now there are nearly 100 in the wild and two dozen in captivity.

Measures taken have included an unprecedented publicity campaign to enlist public cooperation and to keep hunters from shooting the cranes by mistake.

To protect the remnant flock in winter, the Aransas refuge was established in the Texas coast and kept inviolate despite threats from dredgers and others, although the government is now considering steps that may enable developers to gain a toehold nearby.

To locate the flock's breeding area in northern Canada, years were spent making surveys by ground and air. Then came the project of filching one of the two eggs from each nest and flying them first to the Patuxent refuge for artificial incubation. As it turned out, survival rates for the natural nests bereft of one of their eggs were better than those for unmolested ones.

The long and tortuous migration routes of the cranes from Canada to Texas have been under constant surveillance and skirmishes have been fought to maintain their natural resting places undisturbed. In one instance volunteers and officials managed to scare the birds away from an area infected with dangerous disease germs.

Storage Space Still Available

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite record harvests of wheat and corn indicated for this year, storage space is more than adequate, the Agriculture Department says.

However, an updated survey shows that seven of 15 states previously selected for close scrutiny now are expected to have at least 80 per cent of their storage capacity filled by Nov. 1. In July, a survey showed that only three of the 15 — Colorado, Kentucky and Tennessee — were likely to reach the 80 percent mark.

"Storage is likely to be especially tight in Colorado and only slightly better in Kentucky, Tennessee and the Corn Belt states," says analyst T.Q. Hutchinson in a new Agricultural Outlook report.

"In general, producers in the Corn Belt — particularly Iowa, Missouri, Ohio and Illinois — will find storage relatively tight, while those in the Wheat Belt will have adequate storage. Of course, changes in export demand or actual production could markedly affect this picture."

The selected states and the Nov. 1 projections showing how much storage will be filled include:

Colorado, 94 percent; Kentucky, 91 percent; Tennessee, 86 percent; Iowa, 85 percent; Missouri, 84 percent; Ohio, 83 percent; Illinois, 80 percent; Minnesota, 70 percent; Montana, 70 percent; Washington, 70 percent; Nebraska, 63 percent; Texas, 59 percent; Kansas, 53 percent; North Dakota, 42 percent; and Oklahoma, 35 percent.

New Oil Taxes WarningsGiven

DENVER (AP) — New state severance taxes on economically marginal oil wells could cause their premature abandonment, depriving the nation of much needed crude oil, according to a Cities Service Co executive.

C.H. Adam, vice president for Tulsa-based Cities Service's planning and technology, warned that 21 states will consider tax increases on the oil industry and severance taxes on production will be introduced in 28 states.

These taxes would be in addition to present state property or "ad valorem" taxes and the windfall profits tax on crude oil. Additional taxes on motor fuels are under consideration in 38 states and the District of Columbia, he said.

Severance taxes are being discussed in Colorado and other states, partly because of declining federal revenues under budget cutbacks and because of expanding energy development in the West, he said.

Especially vulnerable to severance taxes are stripper wells, said Adams. Their production, although averaging only 10 barrels a day per well, makes up a substantial portion of the nation's crude oil supply, he added.

While states are looking for income to replace lost federal funding, "They are seemingly oblivious to the effects such taxes would have on our ability to increase production," he said.

Billy The Kid Shares Are Sold

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — More than a third of the common stock of Billy The Kid, Inc., clothing manufacturers, has changed hands in what was described as one of the largest industrial transactions in the history of this border city.

Raizada Investments Inc., owned by El Pasoan Peter Dhawan and his family, purchased 33.5 percent of the outstanding shares of the Billy The Kid. The stock was valued at $5.8 million at Friday's close of the American Stock Exchange. A total of 672,877 shares changed hands in the sale.

"I prefer not to say how much money passed in the transaction but I think that it is probably one of the largest industrial transactions in the history of El Paso," said Robert W. Hirsch, who has been named president and chief operating officer of Billy The Kid.

Hirsch, formerly executive vice president, also was elected president of the company.

Before the sale, Raizada Investments of El Paso owned 75,100 shares or about 3.7 percent of common stock in Billy The Kid, which has its headquarters in El Paso.

The stock was bought from Tom Prendergast — who has resigned as chairman of the board, president, chief executive officer and a director of Billy The Kid — and his family.

The company sells its products under several labels, the most prominent being "Billy The Kid," "Bill Blass," "Calamity Jane," "Mann," "Muppets" and "Hot Dogs."

The company employs about 2,744 people, owns six locations in El Paso and leases six more facilities. Billy The Kid also maintains regional or sales offices on leased premises in 15 cities. It has six retail outlets in El Paso, one in Douglas, Ariz., one in Nogales, Ariz., one in Yuma, Ariz., and one in San Ysidro, Calif.

Prendergast said he will remain a consultant for a year "because I have four or five projects I would like to see through." He said he has several other substantial business investments to attend.

In addition to Prendergast's resignation, Michael Shearn has resigned as a director of the company. They were replaced on the board by Dhawan, who was elected chairman and chief executive officer, and William J. Armstrong, executive vice president of Raizada Investments.

Two new members were added to the board: Don Henderson, an insurance executive and former El Paso mayor, and Wayne Windle, general counsel for Raizada Investments.

Billy The Kid's third-quarter report to shareholders showed net sales of $74.2 million as of June 27 compared to sales of $62.9 million for the same period in 1980.

Phyllis Schlafly says abortions should be illegal.

Gloria demands an equal rights amendment to the constitution....

Phyllis says women have all the rights they need.

What is it women really want?

When the subject of "women's rights" comes up, there is one point on which their is no disagreement.

And the Supreme Court has so stated as recently as last June: Women should receive equal pay for equal work.

But they don't.

Women do not get equal pay even on the staffs of the United States senators.

Women working is nothing new.

The tradition of sharing work between men and women goes back to prehistory when the women kept the cave, cooked, and reared the children--while men tended the presumably more dangerous chore of hunting.

Through ancient Egyptian, Hebrew and Greek civilizations women worked as hard or harder as men.

The tradition of mostly women cloth-makers survives to this day.

It was the dream of Charles Dickens that "someday in the remote future married women will not have to leave their children and go out and work...."

Yet when it happened--when the American wife of modern times could do her work at home, then some elected to--or had to--return to outside-the-home employment. And in so doing demanded co-equal consideration.

What is it women really want?

In their fantasies, they want to be Princess Grace or Lady Di.

In the less than ideal real world they want the same freedom a man has--the freedom to choose.

That's why many women, not in the least interested in becoming truck drivers, plumbers, or lumberjacks--argue for the rights of women who do want to do those things.

And for equivalent pay for them when they do.

In our social democracy there remain two privileged classes who have been reaping without sowing.

They include the professional welfare recipients who resist being weaned. They don't want equality. They want special privilege.

And at the other end of the social spectrum are the Phyllis Schlaflys, themselves so "taken care of" that they resist being weaned. They don't want equality, they want special privilege.

It is the have-nothings and the have-everythings who are frightened of the equality which a Constitutional Amendment might impose.

The East India Co. received its charter from Queen Elizabeth I in 1600. It granted a British monopoly for all trade with countries between Africa and the Americas. The company's settlements in India became so important that it was drawn into native government operations and took over the rule of large tracts of territory. In time the company became a part of the British colonial administration.

Hot Water Used To Grow Tomatoes

NEW YORK (AP) — Hot water is helping the British grow tomatoes.

The largest tomato factory in the world, according to its owners, is growing its crop under glass using waste heat from a coal-burning power station in Yorkshire, England, says an environmental newsletter.

The hot water from the power station is piped off before reaching its giant cooling towers. The water then passes through fan-assisted heat exchange units, emerging as warm air, according to World Environment Report.

The English, hard hit by rising energy costs, hope this recycling technology will make their products more competitive with European growers, who are subsidized by their governments.

Oswald: "North's jump to five diamonds was an inelegant way of asking South to bid a slam if South could take care of both major suits. South could take care of both major suits but he wasn't happy with his jack-high trump suit and passed at game level."

Alan: "On a lucky day the diamond finesse would work and South would wrap up thirteen tricks after the heart opening."

Oswald: "West's lead of the heart deuce implied that he had a high heart and most East players would play the king of hearts at trick one. South would win with the ace and lose the diamond finesse. Then the unfortunate East would lead a second heart. South would take his queen and never lose a spade trick."

Alan: "This particular East, poker expert Bobby Baldwin of Tulsa and Las Vegas, finessed against his jack of hearts at trick one. He felt sure that West hadn't underled an ace after that bidding. Now when South won with the queen, Bobby knew that there was no future in the heart suit. When he got in with the king of diamonds he led a spade and West cashed two spade tricks."

"Wings" Help French Save Gas

CHICAGO (AP) — Light "wings" are helping a French car save gas on the road. A lighter "bonnet and boot" also help.

The wings (side body panels) and bonnet and boot (hood and trunk) are terms used in Europe to describe parts of cars now being made of plastic rather than metal.

Dave Siler of Borg-Warner Chemicals says an experimental car in France is using more thermoplastics and says some predictions indicate that by 1985, 40 percent of the car's exterior body parts will be made of plastic.

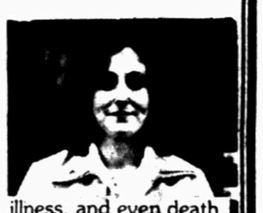

The experimental model saved some 205 pounds of weight by substituting plastic for steel, which helped reduce fuel consumption by 26 to 28 percent, Siler says.

Diet facts & fallacies

These nutritional tips brought to you by DIET CENTER

It is a proven fact that every time an alcoholic drink is taken, thousands of cells in the brain are destroyed.

Our bodies have tremendous powers to regenerate and restore cells. But did you know that once the cells of the brain are destroyed, they are destroyed FOREVER? I repeat . . . every time a person takes a few drinks—beer, cocktails, etc., he or she is permanently destroying thousands of brain cells.

Alcoholism has a direct bearing on the following: brain damage, hypertension, diabetes, heart disease, coronary problems, stomach ulcers, mental illness, and even death.

If you are a "drinker," remember that all alcoholics were once just "social drinkers."

About 70 percent of chronic alcoholics begin drinking as teenagers. We do not understand what makes some people become so susceptible to addiction (some become addicted within a month—some never become addicted at all).

Diet Center would like to remind you that if the mind fails to function properly, so does the body!

Jim Mattox For Forum

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although Rep. Jim Mattox wishes his Texas Democratic colleagues never had organized the offshoot Conservative Democratic Forum, he thinks it might turn out to be the best thing that's happened to the national Democratic Party.

Mattox, 38, of Dallas has voted consistently with the Democratic Party leadership while eight Texas Democrats in the CDF voted generally this summer for the economic recovery proposals of President Reagan.

"I agree with a lot of the things they're trying to do, but I disagree with the way they're trying to do it," Mattox said.

"What you try to do is move the party over and try not to hurt the party in the process," Mattox said of the 47-member group, also known as "boll weevils," that formed last November. Rep. Charlie Stenholm, D-Stamford, is the Texan who was named chairman of the CDF.

"I think it's yet to be seen if it hurts the party. It may turn out to be good, but not for the reasons they organized it. I think Reagan is going to preside over the largest deficit in American history, because I don't think his plan is following sound economic logic," Mattox said.

If the Reagan plan flops as Mattox thinks it will, things will be bad for the country but the pendulum will swing back to the Democrats, he said.

"The administration has managed a publicity campaign to let people know that massive cuts have been made, but at the same time there have been some very large increases in the defense area. Even if you agree with what they're doing, the net effect is that there hasn't been that much of a change in spending."

Granting a massive tax cut before balancing the budget is failing strategy, he suggested.

"It's one thing to deliver a good speech. It's another to deliver on a good speech, and that's the problem President Reagan is faced with now. All this is going to be important in the next elections. The Republicans have promised to turn things around, and if nothing's changed...

"I think the Democratic Party will gain seats and I think you will see that people will get very disenchanted (with the Reagan administration)," Mattox said.

It is obvious from looking at Reagan's "safety net" that the Democratic Party has been and is still the party that cares about the people, Mattox said.

He advocates following "the liberal Christian philosophy, to care for the least of these my brothers." That's in the 25th chapter of Matthew, he said.

"That does not mean giving anybody that wants something a handout, but it is helping a lot who need help. If people are able to help themselves and don't, they shouldn't get a dime. But if they're not able to, we should help them," he said.

The Democratic Party could accomplish these goals better if it weren't for its own members who support Republican proposals, he added in a pointed reference to fellow Texas congressmen like Stenholm, Phil Gramm of College Station and Kent Hance of Lubbock.

Congress needs a large dose of Texas-style politics, says Mattox, who is disenchanted with the way Democratic leaders have allowed themselves to be pushed around.

He said he saw more discipline and party loyalty in the Texas Legislature, when he served there, than he has in Congress, which hasn't had any control over its members since the days of House Speaker Sam Rayburn, Mattox said.

Democrats met last week to decide what to do with conservatives who went against Democratic leadership positions to support Reagan on the budget and tax bills.

Mattox feels it's almost too late. The leadership lost control of things several months ago, he said, when it tried to change rules to prevent extraneous amendments on appropriations bills.

Conservative Democrats threatened to vote with Republicans if the leaders persisted with the plan, so the leaders dropped the idea.

"They should never have let them back them into a corner like that," Mattox said. They should have said, 'All right, boys, which is it? Are you going to be Democrats or Republicans?' After they let them bluff them, they lost all control," Mattox said.

"After that, the conservatives knew the leadership wasn't going to do anything, and if you ask me, I think it's too late now. They don't have the votes any more. They've lost their control."

As another way to appease the conservatives, who were threatening to vote for a Republican as House speaker, the leaders strengthened conservatives' representation by giving Gramm a spot on the Budget Committee and Hance a spot on the Ways and Means Committee.

Both are regarded leadership committees in which members are expected to vote as the leadership demands.

That backfired this summer, when both dissented from the party view, with Gramm sponsoring Reagan's bipartisan budget bill and Hance sponsoring the president's bipartisan tax bill.

Some time before that, House Speaker Tip O'Neill denied Mattox a spot he wanted on the Rules Committee — another leadership committee — partly because Mattox refused O'Neill's request that he help override President Carter's veto on a water project. Mattox said no because he felt the project was a "boondoggle," he explained.

"I've always been a loyal Democrat. For refusing to go against a Democratic president, they punished me, and yet I am the kind of guy they should have given a job to. And other guys, who showed absolutely no loyalty, they're the ones they reward. It's the type of inverse leadership that causes problems."

"You have to determine the type of individuals that are really going to stand with the leadership when it counts. I learned that in the Texas Legislature," he said.

STONE MEMORIAL—This century-old, L-shaped stone commissary once serving as a food supply house for the famous Waggoner Ranch has been officially dedicated and accepted at its new home at the Ranching Heritage Center of the Museum of Texas Tech University. Mr. and Mrs. Dan Flippin of Electra, who donated the building to Texas Tech. Waggoner Ranch personnel and Dan Waggoner family descendants, were on hand for the dedication Saturday during Ranch Day at the outdoor exhibit area.

Anderson, Brown Re-Elected...

Old West Relived For Ranch Day Festivities

LUBBOCK—The rich heritage of ranching was relived and celebrated Saturday during the annual Ranch Day festivities at the Ranching Heritage Center of the Museum of Texas Tech University.

Costumed docents doing crafts and chores common in the old West and Texas Longhorns added authenticity to the activities which were open free to the public. Children from throughout the region participated in a special "Little Wranglers" program which included games, stories and homemade ice cream.

Ranch Day was also the occasion for the dedication of the Waggoner Commissary, the latest addition to be completed at the 14-acre outdoor exhibit, and the annual business meeting of the Ranching Heritage Association. Association officers re-elected for next year are John R. "Rich" Anderson of Gail, chairman of the board of overseers; Harold P. "Bo" Brown of Lubbock (formerly of Snyder), president; Ron Davenport of Friona, first vice president; Kay Woods of Lubbock, second vice president; Georgia Mae Ericson of Crosbyton, secretary; and Sam Middleton of Lubbock, treasurer.

The small, L-shaped commissary, built in the 1870s on the famous Waggoner Ranch, was dedicated. Speaker David J. Murrah, university archivist and director of the Southwest Collection, told of the history and importance of the Waggoner Ranch, founded in 1851 by Dan Waggoner and expanded into six Texas counties and Oklahoma Indian Territory in the 1870s.

Family descendants of Dan Waggoner, Waggoner Ranch personnel and Mrs. and Mrs. Dan Flippin of Electra, donors of the structure to Texas Tech, were present for the dedication.

The massive red 6666 Barn, built around 1908 by Samuel Burk Burnett and donated by his great-granddaughter Mrs. B. F. (Anne) Phillips, was in place and partially reconstructed with he 6666 emblazoned on he roof and exterior walls.

The early 20th Century barton House, complete with golden oak urniture, lace tablecloths and curtains, and reproductions of some of its original wallpaper, was a major attraction for 1981 Ranch Day visitors. Two fully furnished rooms in the house offered visitors a glimpse of ranch affluence.

Little Wranglers, ages 6-12, learned about pioneer life by playing games typical of earlier days, including flag-pole climbing and egg-in-the-spoon relays, near the Ranching Heritage Center's one-room schoolhouse.

They also witnessed horseshoeing at the blacksmith shop, saddle blanket and quilt making crafts and soap making and got first-hand experience with a branding iron as they branded souvenir wooden plaques to take home.

The day closed with the little wranglers feasting on homemade ice cream and cake in the Harrell House, a typical ranch home given to the center by Faye and Myrtle Harrell of Snyder.

Con Artist Bilks Women Of Savings

DALLAS (AP) — A smooth-talking con artist charmed his way into Barbara Ann Rafalik's life by pretending to sell her a part of his business. But all he gave her was the business — bilking her of $37,800 belonging to her and her mother — according to a lawsuit filed in U.S. District Court.

Miss Rafalik said John Constantine Golfis, a wiry Greek man, introduced himself as the president of Telesis Technology, Inc., of Chicago. He claimed to be an engineer and former millionaire who had invented the cordless telephone, and said he was an accomplished pilot.

When he arrived in Dallas this summer, he was a convicted felon charged with conning a Fort Lauderdale, Fla., woman out of $20,000.

Miss Rafalik was a single, 31-year-old Michigan transplant who had just been hired as a receptionist at Video Dates Unlimited.

"The very first day I worked there was when John Golfis came into the office," she said. "...He didn't see anyone he liked. He said I was the only girl he'd seen that he was interested in."

The next night, they went out to dinner and "he was very charming," Miss Rafalik said.

"He told me that he had thought about starting a dating service..." she said. "This is when he came up with the idea that I should start my dating service."

She was interested, and quit her job.

Miss Rafalik said she gave him the first $6,800, which her mother had sent her for a car, to purchase video equipment. He made a telephone call to a client who seemed unwilling to part with some demonstration models unless the couple could pay cash right away.

She said she later gave Golfis $18,000 that the lawsuit specifies as part of $25,000 Miss Rafalik's mother wired to Dallas from Detroit. Golfis told her he would use the money to establish franchises and pay for advertising, the suit claims. The other $7,000 went into a checking account for the company.

Fire Destroys Recycling Yard

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Firefighters planned to remain on the scene today of a fire that destroyed between 300 and 500 bales of tightly compressed cardboard and paper products in an El Paso recycling yard.

More than 30 firefighters, three engines, and two aerial trucks fought the blaze for nearly four hours until midnight Saturday, when it was reduced to smoldering bales. No one was injured.

An employee of a nearby railroad yard was the first to report the blaze when he walked into the nearby fire station to ask if they knew about the fire at El Paso Waste Materials.

Co-owner Harry Kyser helped firefighters by clearing a path between bales with a forklift so more of the bales would not be damaged. The burned area was 100 feet long, 75 feet wide and 25 feet high. The 500-pound bales are worth about $15 each.

Several bales began to fall apart when too much water was poured on them. Water was knee-deep in some parts of the graveled area surrounding the stacks of bundled cardboard.

Determining heart damage

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — In the case of a second heart attack what is the best method of determining if there is cholesterol blockage of the right and left arteries leading to the heart or valve damage: a cardiogram, an angiogram, an arteriogram or a heart catheterization?

DEAR READER — An electrocardiogram will give some information regarding the area and location of the heart muscle that is damaged. It is not 100 percent reliable in telling you which artery is involved but you can suspect which one of the main arteries is involved in causing the damage.

If it shows two different areas of heart muscle it is usually caused by blockage of at least two main arteries to the heart muscle. There are three main arteries. The left artery divides into two arteries that supply the front and the left side of the heart and the right coronary artery supplies the back side of the heart.

Fortunately there is a network of small arteries that connect these main arteries together. If it is open and working well it may help protect against heart muscle damage.

An angiogram may be used to show the size and pumping action of the chambers of the heart and may show a valve defect. But a coronary arteriogram is the most accurate method of seeing any blockage that may be present in the arteries. The technique involves injecting a radio-opaque dye into the arteries that can then be seen with X-ray techniques. X-ray films may be taken and then studied to observe the area of blockage.

A coronary arteriogram is not always necessary. It depends upon how well the patient does after a heart attack. This is discussed in more detail in The Health Letter number 17-10, What You Need to Know about Heart Attacks, which I am sending you.

A good recovery, so that the patient can walk a good distance without pain and with an absence of other signs of disease, usually means that there is still good circulation to the heart muscle.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My aunt brought your column about older people in nursing homes to my attention. Something should be done about these people. The food they get is not that great. I've been there many times when the food comes up.

I have a very close friend who went there two months ago. He weighed 150 pounds. Now he weighs only 124 pounds. The poor man doesn't eat. He can't use his hands too well and they don't take time to feed the older people. If the food isn't eaten, the tray is removed. Because they don't eat in time, the patients die off.

I don't think this is right. People pay enough at these nursing homes so someone should see that all of them eat. I brought my friend a nice dinner a week ago. I fed him the whole dinner and he ate it. So it's just a matter of someone taking time to feed some of these people.

DEAR READER — Thank you for your note. There are many excellent nursing homes but the problem you describe does occur in others — also in hospitals. The result is malnutrition — or starvation — in centers that are supposed to provide help for a person's health. I agree that something should be done about it. And relatives should be sure their loved ones are being properly fed.

Publication Has Money Woes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Honey Market News, published monthly for more than 64 years by the Agriculture Department, has ended on a sour note.

Dave Vaughn of the department's Agricultural Marketing Service said the honey report began in 1917. In recent years, he said, costs have been rising faster than the amount of money available for the publication.

Some of its most important portions, including price quotations for bulk honey, will be carried on in the California honey report, Vaughn said.

Printing costs have risen sharply in the Washington, D.C., area, he said. And it costs 18 cents to mail a single copy as first class. In all, about $20,000 a year will be saved in printing and mailing charges, Vaughn said.

Power Rate Increases HikeCRMWDExpenses

Expenses increased more rapidly than income for the Colorado River Municipal Water District in August, due in a large part to higher costs for energy.

Receipts for month were $759,448 and expenses $593,569. For the first eight months of the year, income was $5,914,033 or $201,000 ahead of budget estimates for the period. Operating expenses were $3,600,807, or $322,000 over budget. The difference between operations and income goes into debt service.

August energy charges for pumping water amounted to $426,911, only $12,000 under the record July figure, although 370 million less gallons of water were pumped in August than in the previous month. For the initial eight months, energy costs amounted to $2,363,015, which was $297,501 over budget for the period due to rate increases during the year. In August of 1980, energy costs were $288,211, thus this year's figure is up 44 percent. For the first eight months of this year, the cost figure is $768,307 more than for the same time in 1980, or up 40 percent.

August income included $627,984 from cities, $10,256 from rural users, $116,041 from oil companies and $4,809 from recreational facilities.

Of the 1,902,949 gallons billed to customers in August, 1,685,873,000 went to cities, and 217,076,000 to oil companies. For the month, 1,197,267,000 gallons came from Lakes J. B. Thomas and E. V. Spence, making 8,989,384,000 gallons for the eight months, or 74.29 percent of the total water produced by CRMWD. At the end of the month, the two major reservoirs held 319,000 acre feet, or 193,000 more than at the same time last year.

Refugee Quota Cuts Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Increasing numbers of Vietnamese and Laotian boat people are fleeing to the United States mainly for economic reasons, says a Senate staff report urging that this country cut its Indochinese refugee quota by one-third to one-half next year and admit only those fleeing persecution.

"It is clear that a growing number of Vietnamese boat people, as well as Laotians, are risking flight primarily for economic reasons," the report, released Sunday, said.

Couple Perish In Plane Crash

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — A Lansing, Mich. couple were burned beyond recognition when their light plane burst into flames after crashing to the ground near the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport Saturday, officials said.

The victims were identified by a Tarrant County medical examiner's office spokesman as William and Wanda Coles.

Airport officials said the plane smashed into a tree in a wooded area a mile north of a runway.

A Federal Aviation Administration spokesman in Fort Worth said the control tower was not monitoring the flight of the Piper Saratoga.

"This close to the airport, they should have been talking to somebody," he said. "It was clear, calm weather and the the weather probably wasn't a factor."

Herb Fisher, operations officer at D-FW, said the crash was reported by a Delta Airlines pilot who spotted the fire.

Investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board, Tarrant County medical examiner's office and several police agencies searched through the wreckage Sunday. Identifying markings on the plane were burned off and officials had no record of the flight's origin or destination.

William Joyce, better known as Lord Haw Haw, was hanged in Britain in 1946 as a traitor for his Nazi propaganda broadcasts during World War II. Joyce claimed American citizenship because of his Brooklyn birth but Britain insisted on its right to try him because he had gone to Germany on a British passport.

Computer Sale Is Opposed

TOKYO (AP) — The U.S. Defense Department opposes a Japanese company's sale of a large-capacity computer to China because of concern it will be used for military purposes, the economic newspaper Nihon Keizai Shimbun reported today.

Hitachi Ltd. needs approval from the Coordinating Committee for Export Control (COCOM) in Paris, which regulates strategic Western exports to Communist countries, to sell the M-180 computer for use in research in a Peking university. The computer has a memory capacity of more than 10 million characters and is one of the largest made by Hitachi.

The company has already sold China two large-capacity and 17 middle-capacity computers for meteorological and other scientific calculations, but none was as advanced as the M-180.

Steelers Find First Victory Of Season, 38-10

by The Associated Press

Fear can be a motivator of men, and in the case of the Pittsburgh Steelers, off to their worst start since 1970, it has been absolutely essential, quarterback Terry Bradshaw says.

The Steelers were among six teams that won their first games of the 3-week-old National Football League season Sunday. The others were Los Angeles, Cleveland, St. Louis, Chicago and Minnesota.

Five teams - Miami, San Diego, Atlanta, Philadelphia and Dallas - remained undefeated, and three others - New England, New York Jets and Washington - had yet to win their first game. Three other teams - Cincinnati, Houston and Kansas City - were knocked from the ranks of the unbeaten.

The Patriots have a chance to get on the winning ledger tonight when they play host to the Cowboys.

"To win in this league, you've got to fear your opponent, knock him down and run with wreckless abandon, and that's what we learned today," Bradshaw said after the Steelers got untracked with a 38-10 drubbing of the Jets.

The Rams, meanwhile, broke through against Bart Starr's Green Bay Packers 35-23, and Cleveland won No 1 against Cincinnati, 20-17.

In other games, St. Louis outlasted Washington 40-30, Chicago defeated Tampa Bay 28-17, Minnesota edged Detroit 26-24, Miami dumped Houston 16-10, San Diego defeated Kansas City 42-31, Atlanta clobbered San Francisco 34-17, Denver thrashed Baltimore 28-10, the New York Giants defeated New Orleans 20-7 and Oakland downed Seattle 20-10. Philadelphia beat Buffalo, 20-14, in Thursday night's game.

Steelers 38, Jets 10

Bradshaw ran 1 yard for one Pittsburgh touchdown and passed for 225 yards, but reserve running back Frank Pollard was the big offensive catalyst for the struggling Steelers.

Pollard, who started for the second week after Sidney Thornton had lost four fumbles in the Steelers opener, rushed for two touchdowns. Russell Davis, who scored Pittsburgh's other touchdown, led Pittsburgh with 100 yards rushing.

Rams 35, Packers 23

Jeff Rutledge, replacing the injured Pat Haden, tossed a third-quarter touchdown pass of 30 yards to Drew Hill, putting the Rams on top for good at 21-16. Haden sustained bruised ribs when he was sacked by Green Bay defensive end Mike Butler early in the second quarter.

Cullen Bryant and Wendell Tyler added short touchdown runs in the fourth quarter as Los Angeles finally got on the winning side of the ledger. The loss dropped the Packers to 1-2.

Browns 20, Bengals 17

Fullback Mike Pruitt, seeing spot duty because of a pulled hamstring, made the most of his playing time with 69 yards rushing and a 12-yard touchdown run that earned Cleveland its first 1981 victory and dropped Cincinnati to 2-1.

Dolphins 16, Oilers 10

Trailing 10-9, Don Strock hit rookie Andra Franklin with a 3-yard touchdown pass that boosted the undefeated Dolphins over Houston, which had won its first two. Strock replace starting quarterback David Woodley to start the second half when Coach Don Shula opted for more experience at the helm.

Cards 40, Redskins 30

Jim Hart threw for 226 yards and three touchdowns, and rookie Stump Mitchell scored on a 50-yard punt return as St. Louis downed Washington in a meeting of previously winless teams.

Broncos 28, Colts 10

Craig Morton passed for 291 yards and four touchdowns to lead Denver as he became only the 15th player in NFL history to reach the 25,000-yard career passing plateau. His effort Sunday gave him 25,166 career passing yards.

Monday's Game

Dallas at New England

Pats 'N Pokes At It Tonight

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) - The New England Patriots didn't expect to start out this way - two losses in their first two National Football League games.

And the Patriots will have a tough fight to avoid dropping their third in a row when they meet the unbeaten Dallas Cowboys Monday night.

A 29-28 loss to the Baltimore Colts and a 13-3 defeat at the hands of the NFC champion Philadelphia Eagles has left the Patriots at 0-2.

"It's better than being 0-3, isn't it?" said Coach Ron Erhardt, who was reminded that a quick turnaround is needed for the Patriots to have a decent playoff shot. "We're all aware of it but we might get into the playoffs at 8-8."

Playing the powerful Cowboys, who are 2-0, tonight may not be the easiest way to pick up your first win, but Erhardt expects the Patriots to be psychologically prepared.

"We're going to claw, bite, scratch, do everything we can do," he said. "They (the Cowboys) are not invincible but they're playing as good as anybody's playing.

"It's going to take a great effort on our part. It'll be a very emotional game, like it was against Philadelphia," he added. "But this team is more potent offensively.

"We felt we could maybe get stopped on third down and not make it against Philly and they wouldn't march right down. But if you give this team (Dallas) the ball, they can strike."

Tony Dorsett and Danny White have been the standouts in a well-balanced Cowboy offense that has gained 387 yards rushing and 350 yards passing.

Dorsett is off to the best start of his career. He gained 132 yards in his first game, a 26-10 win at Washington, and 129 in his second game, a 30-17 victory over St. Louis. He is averaging 7.1 yards per carry and leads the NFL in rushing.

Steve Grogan, who had trouble moving the Patriots against the Eagles and was replaced by Matt Cavanaugh after the first series of the second half, will start at quarterback, Erhardt said.

SWC Fares Well Again

by The Associated Press

The Southwest Conference won two-thirds of its games Saturday against outside competition to keep pace with the best year it ever had 18 seasons ago.

Southern Methodist toppled Grambling State and "The Towering Trees of Terror" Tiger defense 59-27; Texas whipped North Texas State 23-10; Texas Tech bounced back with a 28-21 victory over New Mexico; Texas Christian outlasted Texas-Arlington 38-16; Baylor subdued Louisiana Tech 28-21; and Arkansas trounced Northwestern 38-7 for the SWC good news.

The bad was Boston College's 13-12 upset of the Texas Aggies on a last-second botched field goal; Miami's 12-7 victory over the Houston Cougars; and Rice's 42-10 slaughter by Missouri.

The SWC is now 12-6 against non-conference foes, keeping exactly on the track of a 1963 ledger of .667.

Cats Defeat Andrews Club

ANDREWS – Snyder freshmen downed Andrews here last week and will trek to Big Spring for their next outing on Thursday.

The frosh whipped the Mustangs 15-6 and 15-7. Jackie Parham served for 9 points, Susan Tully and Shana Hart for 5 each, Sabrina Sullivan for 4, Audra Blackard and Gina Vaughn for 3 and Connye Davis for 1. Shrunda Richardson, Roselia Aguirre, Becky Gray and Linda Martinez also played.

"Our serving was really good," said Coach Patty Grimmett. "Jackie Parham came in a did an exceptional job for us in the second game. She served points 7 through 15 and several were ace serves."

The Cats take on Big Spring in Big Spring, Thursday at 5 p.m. and will participate in the Big Spring Tournament on Saturday.

Weiskopf Clinches LaJet Tournament

ABILENE, Texas (AP) - They called him tempermental and moody, often surly. But mostly Tom Weiskopf, golf's gifted enigma, was simply superstitious.

Since 1978, when he won his 13th and last American championship, life had been largely black cats and broken mirrors.

Friday the 13th somehow fell on tournament weekends.

That ended Sunday.

"I'm a superstitious person," said the Tempestuous One after firing a flawless four-under-par 68 to claim the inaugural $350,00 LaJet Classic as his 14th conquest.

His 73-67-70-68--278 was 10 under par, beat Gil Morgan by two shots, earned him $63,000, hiked his 1981 winnings to $173,110, and pushed his career total over the $2 million mark.

Tommy Valentine, the midway leader, closed with a two-under-par 70 to share third with two other 70 shooters, Fuzzy Zoeller, and Craig Stadler.

They won $18,200 each.

Lee Outlasts Snyder; Tigers To Host Ector

DENVER CITY -- Another tournament crown eluded Coach Joyce Elrod's Tigers Saturday, but the biggest championship race is the one that resumes Tuesday.

Snyder's Tigers suffered their third defeat by a Class 5A opponent here Saturday to wind up in second place in the Denver City Volleyball Tournament.

The Tigers, 17-3 for the season, have lost all of their matches to 5A opponents - and, ironically, all in bids for tournament championships.

Meanwhile however, Snyder continues to be the frontrunner of Class 4A ball with an undefeated record against those opponents. The Tigers get back to District 2-AAAA competition Tuesday, as they host the Ector Eagles at 7:30 p.m. A victory tomorrow, coupled with a win in San Angelo against Lake View on Thursday, would clinch at least a tie for the first-half district title.

Should Snyder continue its winning ways over 4A opposition, the Tigers would make Ector's Eagles their 50th straight victim in district play; a record that goes back to September of 1976.

Snyder topped Kermit 15-7 and 15-8 on Friday and Plains 15-1 and 15-11 Saturday morning to reach the semi-finals of the Denver City Tournament. The Tigers then defeated Big Spring 15-7, 9-11 and 15-6 to challenge Midland Lee for the tourney crown.

The Rebels, who reportedly had not won a game prior to the tournament, edged Snyder 12-15, 15-7 and 7-15. Monahans defeated Big Spring for third place, while Kermit held off Seminole for consolation.

"I don't think it was two of our better matches of the season," said Coach Elrod. Against Midland Lee our defense hurt us more than anything. That (defense) is all Lee had. They just picked up everything we hit at them and I think it frustrated our offense.

"Midland beat Seminole, Lamesa, Monahans and us in the tournament and their coach said it was the first trophy they had won in three years. They were a surprise to everybody."

Coach Elrod added that Kathy Northcott played well offensively against Big Spring and Sherri Rich and Shana Koonsman had good serving games. She also noted Toni Elrod's setting, and Becky Harrell's front line effort against Big Spring and Sabrina Robinson's overall play in both matches.

Serving for points against Big Spring were Rich with 11, Koonsman with 9, Harrell with 6, Koonsman and Toni Elrod with 5 each and Robinson with 3. Serving for points against Lee were Rich and Robinson with 10 each, Harrell with 5, Northcott and Koonsman with 4 apiece and Toni Elrod with 1.

HOST ECTOR FOR 50TH -- Snyder's Tigers can stretch their district win string to 50 straight with a victory over the Ector Eagles here tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in the high school gym. Last week, the Tigers edged Monahans to gain the lead in the 2-4A standings. Above, Shana Koonsman (left) and Susie Lee celebrate that victory. (SDN Staff Photo)

Astros Leading By Two With 13 Contests Left

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - The San Francisco Giants may be gasping a last breath while the Houston Astros are sniffing the crisp October air of a world series following Sunday's 7-3 Astro victory at Candlestick Park.

With only 13 games remaining for both clubs, the first-place Astros enjoy a 2½ game advantage over second-place Cincinnati and a four-game edge over Los Angeles in the National League West's second season.

The Giants are 4½ games back, and after losing two of three to Houston, they seem to be fading fast. Along with the game, they learned Sunday they may have lost pitching mainstay Vida Blue for the rest of the season with a damaged thumb.

As the Astros return to Houston Tuesday for a three-game series against Atlanta, the Giants open a three-game set at home against Los Angeles. Rookie sensation Fernando Valenzuela is scheduled to pitch for the Dodgers.

Nolan Ryan upped his record to 9-5 with a complete-game win, while his league-leading earned run average rose slightly to 1.85.

Gary Lavelle, normally a relief pitcher, faced five batters in his second major league start. He took his sixth loss of the year against no victories.

The Astros jumped to a 4-0 lead in the first inning as Tony Scott belted a run-scoring single and Luis Pujols knocked in two more with another one-bagger.

Rangers Four Games Out But Determined To Try

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - They are four games out of first place, they are three games below .500 and their longest winning streak of the Second Season is three games - but the Texas Rangers continue to believe they can earn a spot in the playoffs.

"We are four games out of first with 13 games to play, but the important thing is, we're only three games down in the loss column," said Ranger manager Don Zimmer after his team scratched and scrambled for two ninth-inning runs against the division's hottest relief pitcher, Doug Corbett of Minnesota, for a 4-3 Sunday victory.

Knuckle-baller Charlie Hough, making only his third start of the season, scattered five hits in his first complete game of the year. Hough, 2-1, walked four and struck out six.

The Twins had taken a 3-2 lead into the ninth inning on a two-run homer in the second by rookie Gary Gaetti and Tim Corcoran's run-scoring infield grounder in the fourth.

Texas had scored a single run in the third on a Bill Stein fly ball that brought Mark Wagner home, and another in the seventh, when Billy Sample romped home on a throwing error by Twins catcher Sal Butera.

But Bump Wills opened the ninth with a double off Corbett and Al Oliver worked him for a walk. Wayne Tolleson ran for Oliver and both runners advanced when Buddy Bell chopped a slow grounder to third.

Twin shortstop Ron Washington fielded Leon Roberts' high bouncer behind the mound but couldn't make a play and Wills scored the tying run.

Then, Jim Sundberg blooped a fly ball to right that fell just beyond the reach of a diving Dan Engle and Tolleson trotted home with the winner.

O'Connor Waits Confirmation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sandra Day O'Connor, praised by liberals and conservatives alike, awaited Senate confirmation today as the first woman on the Supreme Court.

Her approval was a foregone conclusion, giving President Reagan a victorious start to a week that also holds the promise of a new budget battle on Capitol Hill.

There was no declared opposition to Mrs. O'Connor, and it was possible the 51-year-old Arizona appeals court judge might be sent to a lifetime appointment on the high court by a unanimous vote. Her swearing-in ceremony already has been set for Friday.

Today's vote marked the end of a Senate "advise and consent" process in which some senators strongly disagreed with Mrs. O'Connor's judicial philosophy but said they would support her anyway.

Liberal Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, for example, said he was troubled by Mrs. O'Connor's conservative views on whether poor defendants in criminal cases should be guaranteed a lawyer.

Nonetheless, Metzenbaum said a nominee never should be rejected because of personal views on specific issues and he warmly praised Reagan for choosing such a highly qualified woman.

In the midst of a growing number of controversies swirling around Reagan on Capitol Hill, his choice of Mrs. O'Connor proved a political masterstroke.

She successfully turned aside most of the hostile questioning about her views during confirmation hearings before the Senate Judiciary Committee earlier this month.

While expressing personal opposition to abortion, Mrs. O'Connor declined to say how she would rule on that and other touchy issues likely to come before her as an associate justice.

But she did indicate strong conservative beliefs in the strengths of state legislatures and courts, as well as opposition to court-ordered busing to achieve desegregation and support for capital punishment.

The result was a 17-0 Judiciary confirmation vote and support from liberal Democrats who oppose almost everything else Reagan has proposed.

Read Antispirant Labels

NEW YORK (AP) — Antiperspirants usually contain aluminum compounds proven effective in cutting down perspiration. Deodorants contain perfumes and other solutions designed to mask odor.

Most good antiperspirants are a combination of both ingredients.

Read the label which discloses the contents and offers instructions for proper use, says the Aerosol Packaging Council.

Economics Part Of Curriculum

An "E" for economics has been added to the three R's as a basic in many of the nation's classrooms.

Almost half of the teachers responding to a recent survey of public and private junior and senior high schools said economics was a required subject; an additional 39 percent said it was available as an elective.

Teachers said topics like inflation, the value of the dollar and interest rates are regular subjects for discussion. Students are learning about things like supply and demand, the banking system and the consumer movement. And they are looking at ways to use their knowledge in the real world.

The survey was conducted by the polling firm of Yankelovich, Skelly and White Inc., and covered a selected sample of 500 schools across the country.

John Hinckley Denies Being A Wanderer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The man accused of shooting President Reagan on March 30 says he does not want to be referred to as a "drifter" and that his wanderings were merely part of an effort to find and be near actress Jodie Foster.

John W. Hinckley Jr., in custody at the stockade at Fort Meade, Md., pending his trial, made the request in a letter to The Washington Post, the newspaper reported Sunday.

"You and the other journalists make it sound like I was some kind of hobo or something. My recent cross-country ventures were necessary because New Haven was so far away. I would have traveled to Budapest to find Jodie Foster," the unsolicited letter, dated Sept. 7, said.

After Reagan was wounded investigators found an unmailed letter to the actress, then a freshman at Yale University in New Haven, Conn., in Hinckley's hotel room. It asked her "to give me the chance with this historical deed to gain your respect and love."

Dear Abby

Full Steam Ahead For Railroad Widows

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Effective Oct. 1, 1981, remarried widows and divorced wives, mothers and widows of railroad workers will become eligible for railroad annuities in the same dollar amount and under the same rules as Social Security, and I can't think of a better way of reaching the approximately 74,000 eligible women than through your column!

Social Security annuities continue to widows who remarry after age 60, and can be reinstated for widows who remarry before that age but whose second marriages end. Social Security benefits are also payable to women divorced after at least 10 years of marriage if their former spouses are retired or deceased. Prior to the new Railroad Retirement Act amendments, railroad workers' widows who remarried permanently forfeited annuity rights. Women divorced from railroad workers, regardless of the length of marriage, lost all benefits. Many women also lost Medicare since it is contingent on benefit entitlement.

Women who will be affected should immediately contact the Railroad Retirement Board at 844 Rush Street, Chicago, Ill. 60611. The railroad worker's full name and Social Security or Railroad Retirement Account Number should be included.

REP. JAMES L. OBERSTAR,
8TH DISTRICT, MINNESOTA

DEAR CONGRESSMAN OBERSTAR: Thank you for this wonderful news! I'm glad to know that the rules have been changed, and I'm sure the 74,000 women who are now eligible to collect benefits will be jubilant.

DEAR ABBY: "The Tattooed Man" asked whether the removing of a tattoo would leave scars, and you said: "It depends on the skill of the doctor who removes it." Not so!

Removal of tattoos always leaves scars. How noticeable these scars are depends not only on the doctor's skill, but also:

1) Location of the tattoos,
2) Area the tattoos cover,
3) Depth of tattoos.

Abby, two of the myths of plastic surgery are that plastic surgeons do not leave scars and that they remove scars. I am sorry to see your column perpetuate such myths. All we can do is to try to make the surgical scars as inconspicuous as possible.

J.T.J., M.D.,
LETTERMAN ARMY MEDICAL CENTER

DEAR DR. J.: Thanks for needling me. I get the picture.

DEAR ABBY: Last week we celebrated our golden wedding anniversary. Our children had a beautiful surprise party for us and they invited many, many friends. "No gifts" was printed on the invitations, but many people brought gifts anyway. Some of the relatives gave us money.

Abby, we are well-off financially and there is nothing we need or want. The ones who gave us money need it more than we. I don't want to insult them, but I would like to return the money.

Is there some way to do it without hurting people? I thought I knew all the rules, but apparently not this one. Please help.

D. IN LONG ISLAND

DEAR D.: There is no way to return a gift without offending the giver. On the next gift-giving occasion (their anniversary or Christmas), give them an exceptionally nice gift.

Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (35 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Letter Booklet, 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250.

Along With Sympathy...

Crime Victims Need Money Also

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Victims of violent crimes in Texas need more money along with the sympathy of concerned citizens.

Right now the state's two-year-old effort to repay crime victims for at least some of their personal losses is $712,000 in the hole.

"This means there are approved claims for about 260 persons but there is no money to pay them," said Jerry Belcher, head of the Crime Victims Division of the Industrial Accident Board, which administers the law.

However, the Crime Victims Compensation Act enacted by the 1979 Legislature has collected more than $1 million from those convicted of crimes and given it to their victims.

A total of $900,000 was paid out during the state's 1980 business year ending Aug. 31 and another $61,000 has been distributed during September.

Almost all of the money has gone to repay victims for lost wages due to a crime. Most of them were shot, knifed or otherwise injured. Many of those on the waiting list are due money for doctor's bills, funeral expenses and attorney fees.

A person must be in financial straits before filing a claim.

The Texas law says the Industrial Accident Board may give persons injured in a crimes up to $50,000 for medical costs, loss of income not to exceed $150 per week, care of minor children so a victim can return to work and funeral expenses. Victims cannot receive compensation for pain and suffering or loss of property.

The program is financed by a $15 fee charged each person convicted of a felony and $10 for conviction of serious misdemeanors such as minor drug violations, driving while intoxicated and passing worthless checks.

"We've checked the court cases reported by counties and apparently they are collecting about the correct amount according to the law," said Belcher. "It's just that the law needs revision in order to properly fund the program."

The big gap in the program comes about because about a third of those convicted of felonies and serious misdemeanors go either to state prison or local jails and never pay the fee.

"In other words, only those that can avoid going to prison by paying this fine do so," said a special report written by the state comptroller.

The comptroller estimated the present prgram would produce $1.2 million to $1.5 million annually from 1982 through 1986.

The Industrial Accident Board estimates it will need $6.6 million in 1982 and $7.8 million in 1983 to fully fund the program.

The 1981 Leglislature considered a number of measures to increase funds for crime victims but passed none of them. One measure would have raised $6.2 million from a $2 levy on all misdemeanors, including all traffic tickets except those issued for parking violation. It passed the Senate and was declared an emergency by the governor but died in the House.

Whether Texas continues its plan to repay victims of crime is up to the 1983 Legislature. Legislators could increase the revenue going to the fund or cut down the awards to victims or both.

Roadblocks In New Caledonia

NOUMEA, New Caledonia (AP) — Police have set up roadblocks around this French Pacific colony's capital city trying to find the killer of an advocate of independence for New Caledonia.

Pierre Declerq, a 43-year-old native of France, was shot at his home Saturday. Police said he was hit by several bullets fired from outside his study window, and they considered it a political assassination.

Dallas Is Out; Search Shifts To Panhandle

The Associated Press

Federal researchers have drilled nearly a mile below the Texas Panhandle into deep seated saltbeds they believe might someday serve as repositories for highly radioactive wastes, officials say.

Energy Department contractors now are drilling test holes in Randall, Swisher, Donley and Oldham counties to see if the underground saltbed formations could hold tons of radioactive wastes securely for hundreds of years.

Beginning last June, 5,000-foot-deep test holes were drilled near Tulia and 17 miles south of Amarillo. Drilling also has begun near Clarendon and near Vega.

Earlier this month, officials eliminated as possible sites the Oakwood Salt Dome in Freestone and Leon counties and two other salt domes near Palestine.

The only salt domes still under consideration are in Mississippi and Louisiana, said William Merriman of the Office of Nuclear Waste Isolation in Columbus, Ohio.

Officials will choose between those two sites, the salt formations in the Texas Panhandle and an undisclosed location in Utah for burial of the highly radioactive materials, said Merriman and Dr. Jerry Wermond, associate director of the University of Texas' Bureau of Economic Geology.

Wermund said his bureau has been researching potential nuclear waste disposal locations "since 1977 with the approval of the governor and officials here."

The Palo Duro Basin salt formations are considered favorable for such a site, he said, "because it has relatively pure bedded salt in six different formations."

The basin cuts across the Panhandle between Amarillo and Lubbock, and residents of at least one of those cities have expressed adamant opposition to the plan.

State Rep. Chris Staniswalis of Amarillo said his survey of 22,000 registered households in his legislative district showed 73 percent of the residents oppose storing nuclear waste in the Panhandle.

Deputy Energy Secretary Kenneth Davis has said the site, along with two others already selected in Washington and Nevada, will be used to dispose of civilian-produced nuclear wastes.

"Defense programs' activities should not be subjected to control by an independent regulatory agency," he told Congress in July.

By early next year, the government will select the most likely locations for a nuclear waste site and will begin constructing exploratory shafts in 1983, Davis said. After the shafts are completed in 1985, the final site will be chosen.

Reagan administration plans call for disposal of high-level waste to begin between 1997 and 2006.

Dorm Fire Kills 1; Injures 7

TYLER, Texas (AP) — A Los Angeles man died and six other people were injured when fire raced through a dormitory at the Methodist-Episcopal Texas College, officials said.

Tom N. Davis, 19, was pronounced dead at the scene. He had been a student at the college only 10 days, officials said.

All the victims were inside the dormitory when the blaze broke out at 2:44 a.m. Sunday, said Fire Lt. John Langston.

Six of the injured were treated and released from local hospitals, Langston said. One victim remained in Mother Frances Hospital suffering from smoke inhalation, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Six fire trucks responded to the call, and firefighters had the blaze under control by 4:12 a.m.

"We haven't pinpointed the origin yet," Langston said. "We've got some units out there right now, trying to wet it down."

He said the entire roof of the three-story Wiley Hall was burned.

About 500 students are enrolled at the college.

Vice President Taking Over

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Vice President Aureliano Chaves, a civilian, takes up the duties of president on Wednesday and will serve until President Joao Figueiredo completes his convalescence from a heart attack.

Drilling Rig Slowdown Seen

DENVER (AP) — A slowdown in oil and gas drilling is predicted for next winter unless the government decontrols the natural gas price, a Texas petroleum exploration executive predicts.

F.D. Covey, president of Houston-based Mitchell Energy's explortion and production division, said the doubling of drilling rigs in this country during the past two years, from 2,000 to 4,100, is one reason.

"You can't sustain that sort of growth forever. Maybe you could if there were some action to decontrol gas, but that's not likely between now and February," he said.

The State of Vatican City covers an area of 108.7 acres and has a population of about 700.
