A.M. BRIEFING

Health alert

Recent guests at the Petroleum Club may have been exposed to Hepatitis A, according to an alert issued by the Texas Department of Health and the Midland Health Department. A club employee, who has been diagnosed with the virus and who handled food, may have exposed guests who dined at the club Aug. 19-21 and Aug. 26, including an Uptown Business and Professional Women's luncheon on Aug. 21. Those who dined at the club between 10 a.m. and closing on those days should get an immune globulin shot. To be effective, the immune globulin must be administered within 14 days following contact with an infected person or foods the person handled, the Texas Department of Health reported. Immune globulin will prevent those exposed from getting the disease. Shots will be administered at the Midland Health Department, 3303 W. Illinois Ave., inside Kingsway Center, at the following times: 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. today and Monday, 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday and 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sept. 3-6. For more information, call the Midland Health Department at 681-7613.

Titanic sinks again

BOSTON — The Titanic sank again Friday. A commercial expedition to raise part of the luxury liner ended in failure in the middle of the night when the nylon lines being used to lift a 21-ton section of the hull snapped and the chunk of steel dropped 2 1/2 miles back to the bottom of the cold North Atlantic. With food running low, the seas getting rough and the expedition members exhausted, the $5 million salvage operation was abandoned until at least next summer.

'No' to Libya

TRIPOLI, Libya — Faced with the threat of prison, Louis Farrakhan told Libya on Friday that he could not accept a $250,000 human rights award until a U.S. court gives him permission. It was a dramatic reversal by the Nation of Islam leader, who had vowed earlier this week to "go across the nation" rallying support if the government did not allow him to receive the prize. Farrakhan decided to pass on the money after the government rejected his request for an exemption from U.S. sanctions requiring banks under U.S. jurisdiction to freeze transactions relating to Libya.

Police recover stolen merchandise, arrest 2

■ Investigators believe they have solved string of 13 burglaries in northern part of Midland.

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

Police investigators believe a string of burglaries in the northern part of the city between A Street and Midkiff Road have been solved this week with the recovery of merchandise valued at more than $200,000 and the arrests of two young men.

Michael Brandon Kelley, 18, and David Ochoa Vasquez, 17, were arrested in connection with 13 recent burglaries in this area, according to police.

Warrants have been issued for a third adult and a juvenile, according to Tina Sanders, public information officer for the Midland Police Department.

On Wednesday and Thursday officers recovered what they estimate is 85-90 percent of goods taken in these burglaries. Notably missing were firearms and certain jewelry items that could be easily converted into cash, they said.

A quantity of what is believed to be cocaine was found when officers searched an apartment at 5009 Rio Grande Drive where much of the merchandise was recovered, according to MPD Detective Alvin Navarrete. Officers think that some of the missing merchandise was sold to furnish drug money for the suspects.

"It all started with another detective stopping one of our suspects... He found a beeper from a burglary I was working," Navarrete said.

"We found the majority of stuff in a storage unit ... an old U-Haul carcass that they put in the backyard," he said.

Although the stolen merchandise had a total value of more than $200,000, it is believed that much of it was intended for use by the suspects and their friends.

Among the merchandise recovered were televisions,

Vice President Al Gore and his wife Tipper, left, wave to the crowd along with President Clinton and Hillary, as they prepare to start their post convention bus tour Friday in Cape Girardeau, Mo.

Clinton plugs 2nd-term agenda in GOP territory

CAIRO, Ill. (AP) — Rolling confidently from his convention in a nostalgic heartland bus caravan, President Clinton visited solid GOP territory Friday to plug his second-term agenda and label opponent Bob Dole's big tax cuts "just flat wrong."

Clinton had Vice President Al Gore and his and Gore's wives along for the ride as the Democrats sought to recreate their 1992 post-convention bus magic and nourish the double-digit lead they carried from their Chicago convention into the Labor Day weekend.

"Hillary and I and Al and Tipper, we want to see the face of America," Clinton said at a steamy rally in Cape Girardeau, Mo., a Mississippi River town in southeast Missouri last carried by a Democrat in the 1964 presidential election.

Reprising the theme of his Thursday night convention speech, Clinton said, "We want you to know that we are going to build a bridge to the 21st century that all of you can walk across."

After their wives said a quick hello, Gore and Clinton gave speeches in Cape Girardeau that illustrated the Democrats' strategy for the 67-day sprint to Election Day: Remind voters of the 10 million jobs created on Clinton's watch, outline a laundry list of modest new proposals aimed at middle-class families and paint Dole and his Republicans as bent on cutting taxes so deeply they would have to gut Medicare and education to balance the budget.

Gore called Dole "a good and decent man who has served our country honorably." But he said Dole's $548 billion tax-cut plan would "shift the focus away from working families back to trickle-down economics."

Clinton said his modest, targeted tax cuts would give tax credits for two years of skills training after high school, or a tax deduction of up to $10,000 a year to help pay the costs of a four-year college.

"This is the right sort of tax program for America," Clinton said. Of Dole's plan, he said, "It is five times bigger and sounds sweeter (but) it is just flat wrong."

In California, Dole and Republican vice presidential candidate Jack Kemp also focused on taxes. Kemp said anyone swayed by Clinton's tax argument should remember his unfulfilled 1992 promise to cut taxes. "Anyone who got a mid-

Residents could see higher Energas bills starting in November

By Melia McEwen
Staff Writer

Midland Energas customers could see slightly higher bills starting November.

The Lubbock-based company announced earlier this week its intention to increase its rates 5.3 percent effective on that date. Richard Taylor, district manager with Energas in Midland, said Midland customers — residential and commercial — will see their bills increase $1.21 a month.

But he emphasized Friday that the rate increase is not yet final.

"All 67 towns on our system have to approve this increase," he said. "We will have to appear before all their city commissions or councils by November 1 to get approval."

Energas is increasing its rates to fund replacement of aging steel pipelines with heavy plastic.

The increase is the result of a settlement agreement reached last week between Energas Co. and a steering committee formed by the cities on the company's system. The committee had hired a rate consultant after Energas announced in May it wanted to raise rates 7.7 percent and customer charges by $3.59 a month.

"If the steering committee recommends it, it usually gets accepted," he said.

The new $6.50 customer charge will become the company's base rate; the discount for customers who paid early will now be available to all customers, he said.

Energas is increasing its rates to fund replacement of aging steel pipelines with heavy plastic. The rate increase will generate $5.3 million for that project.

Taylor said the company has spent $1 million a year replacing steel pipelines for the last four to five years and will spend another six years replacing steel pipelines.

"We have so many areas where the pipeline is over 50 years old," he said.

The cities served by Energas have three choices regarding the rate increase: reject it and appeal to the Texas Railroad Commission; accept the settlement; or don't take any action (thereby accepting the increase).

Living up to her campaign promise, Texas state treasurer, Martha Whitehead scrapes the sign off her office Friday in Austin.

Whitehead fulfills promise, says goodbye to state Treasury, hello to unemployment

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Treasurer Martha Whitehead, fulfilling her ultimate campaign promise, has joined the ranks of the unemployed.

Friday marked her last day on the job and the end of 150-year-old state Treasury, which served as a springboard to higher office for former Texas Gov. Ann Richards and U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison.

"It is my last day, and I am the last treasurer of the state of Texas," Mrs. Whitehead said.

"This action marks the first time that a statewide elected official has eliminated her own office. ... I have kept my promise to the people of Texas," she said before praising the Treasury staff for dedication and scraping her name off the glass front of the building.

Wielding the metal scraper with both hands, Mrs. Whitehead removed her last name and then her first, white paint dust flecking her red suit.

"We'll let the professionals maybe take care of the rest of it," she said — but then, prompted by a television camera operator, went on to scrape off the treasurer's title, too.

Treasury operations will remain in the

WEATHER WATCH

Today, slight chance of more rain

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for mostly cloudy skies, 30 percent chance of rain and a high in the low 80s with east to southeast winds at 5-15 mph, according to a forecaster with the National Weather Service.

Tonight's forecast calls for mostly cloudy skies, 30 percent chance of rain and a low in the mid-60s.

Sunday's forecast calls for mostly cloudy skies, 20 percent chance of rain and a high in the mid-80s.

The high for Friday was 81, compared to the record high for that date of 105, set in 1964.

Friday's low was 67, compared to the record low of 61, set in 1987.

STATE

It looks like a rainy Labor Day weekend is in store for much of Texas, with a mix of low pressure and plenty of tropical moisture continuing to soak the state.

Texas has been drenched in most areas for the better part of a week.

North Texans enjoyed a reprieve from that on Friday, with partly cloudy skies mixed with periods of sunshine. Elsewhere, mostly cloudy skies prevailed.

Temperatures remained slightly cooler than normal, but a few breaks in the clouds let the sun warm things up slightly more than Thursday.

West Texas had sunny skies, with temperatures in the high 70s.

Thunderstorms dumped heavy rain on the upper coastal plains, with up to 7 inches falling in some areas.

Temperatures in the rainy areas were in the mid- to upper-70s. The afternoon high was 91 in McAllen, while in Houston it was only 74.

The weekend forecast called for mostly cloudy skies and a chance of rain into Sunday with temperatures in the 70s and 80s.

West Texans can expect scattered showers and thunderstorms across much of the region through Sunday with heavy rain possible over parts of the Edwards Plateau.

Highs for the weekend will be mostly in the 80s with some 90s in the Big Bend Valleys.

NATION

Unpredictable Hurricane Edouard churned toward the East Coast on Friday while heavy rain again pummeled parts of Texas.

Heavy surf advisories were out from Florida to New England, although forecasters were not sure if or when the hurricane and its 130-mph winds would hit the United States over the holiday weekend.

Rain that caused flooding in northern Texas on Thursday moved south, closing at least one road and dumping 6 1/2 inches in Jourdanton, south of San Antonio. Heavy rain also fell in southern Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama.

Rain by Friday morning totaled 6.3 inches at Los Angeles, Texas; 5 inches at La Parita, Texas; 3.8 inches at Hindes, Texas; 3.6 inches at Dunlap, Neb.; and 2.6 inches at Monroe, La.

The West remained warm and dry, except for rain in the Pacific Northwest. Scattered showers also were reported in the Southwest.

In Arizona, several thousand people were without electricity early Friday after overnight winds downed power lines southwest of Phoenix. A 101-mph gust in Glendale tore off roofs and knocked down trees.

telephones, jewelry, furniture, computer equipment and games, stereo equipment, camcorders, microwave ovens, cosmetics, fireworks and Disney video tapes.

In addition to the value of the recovered items, it is estimated that more than $100,000 in damage was done during the rash of burglaries.

Investigators were surprised at the boldness of the robberies. In one instance, the burglary was committed during the day and furniture and other items were taken out of a house and left in the front yard while the suspects went across town to pick up a trailer, according to Detective Larry Honeycutt.

Some who commit crimes such as these check mailboxes to determine when people are on vacation, Navarrete said. One frequent trick is to knock on the door to determine if someone is home and then asking for a fictitious name in case someone answers.

Burglary victims may determine if their property was recovered by calling the Police Department and arranging for a tour of the stolen merchandise room, at 401 E. Texas Ave., the old MPD headquarters.

With this volume of merchandise, it is difficult to determine the owners of every item, officers said.

Recent rains give Llano River boost

AUSTIN (AP) — The recent thunderstorms pushing through Austin's Hill Country have given the Llano River at Junction a boost.

The rise is significant to Central Texans because the Llano River joins the Colorado River at Lake LBJ, helping fill Inks Lake, Lake Marble Falls, Lake Travis and Lake Austin.

The Llano River typically flows at less than 100 cubic feet of water per second, but was running almost 12,000 cubic feet per second Thursday, said Andy Rooke with the Lower Colorado River Authority.

The river, which has had a normal level of "little to nope," peaked at 13 feet.

"It seems to have stabilized about there," Rooke said. "If the rain starts to drop back a bit, the level will recede as well."

Rooke said while the Llano was within its banks and posed no immediate flooding danger people need to be aware that small streams and creeks rise quickly.

Wes Birdwell, LCRA hydrology manager, said the increased water feeding the lakes would not raise their levels significantly, but just slow the drop. "This isn't breaking the drought, in other words," Birdwell said.

The heavy rainfall also came at a good time for rice farmers.

Character issue simmers anew after Morris resignation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans found renewed energy, and Democrats renewed worries, after a sex scandal singed President Clinton's top political adviser, threatening to revive lingering voter misgivings about the president's character.

"The story is going to be at least a sidebar for a while, and who knows what else it unearths?" said Ben Wattenberg, a senior fellow at the American Enterprise Institute.

Americans already have heard much about the ethical scrapes of Clinton and those in his inner political circle over the years, he said. "Any additional feeding of it breathes life into that fire again."

After the news broke Thursday that Clinton adviser Dick Morris was resigning over a story of an indiscreet yearlong relationship with a prostitute, GOP nominee Bob Dole told a supporter: "It says something about who you surround yourself with, doesn't it?" Dole said no more after he noticed a microphone nearby.

Another analyst, Jeffrey Goldfarb of the New School for Social Research in New York, said he thought the tempest would soon be exhausted.

"It's just a little more of the questionable moral noise that surrounds the Clinton administration," Goldfarb said. "Two weeks from now, there will be at most a vague memory that such a thing happened."

Whatever the fallout on the character issue, Clinton finds himself without a key adviser just as the campaign begins in earnest.

"Obviously, when you lose a strategist ... it's a setback," said White House spokesman Mike McCurry.

On the campaign plane bound from Chicago to Cape Girardeau, Mo., McCurry said Clinton had telephoned Morris late Thursday, before delivering his acceptance speech at the Democratic National Convention. Vice President Al Gore and first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton also called Morris "to check in and see how he was doing," McCurry said. Gore later told reporters, "I thanked him for his help. I said I hope he is all right."

Wattenberg noted that Morris was the architect of a television advertising campaign outside the major markets that brought Clinton's poll numbers up earlier this year, making it possible for the party to raise nearly as much money as the Republicans.

"Morris had perfect pitch on certain issues," he said. "Who, remaining in the White House, will have that ear, and be attuned to deal with really difficult questions?"

Morris, who has worked primarily for Republican candidates in recent years, returned home to Redding, Conn., late Thursday with his wife, Eileen McGann. On Friday, the couple emerged briefly from their house to pose for pictures in return for a promise that the media horde would disperse. They declined to answer questions.

The 48-year-old consultant quit his campaign post Thursday after revelations of a yearlong affair with former prostitute Sherry Rowlands, 42, of Lake Ridge, Va.

The relationship was disclosed in lurid detail after Rowlands sold her story to the supermarket tabloid the Star for an undisclosed sum between $12,000 and $50,000. The article, due on newsstands next week, includes photos of the pair taken after Rowlands led Morris onto the balcony of his hotel suite. The story was picked up by the New York Post.

Rowlands said that on several occasions when she was with Morris he would let her listen in on phone calls with the president. Morris also let her read Hillary Rodham Clinton's convention speech days before it was delivered, she said.

same office building but become the state comptroller's responsibility.

Mrs. Whitehead was the state's 24th treasurer, appointed in 1993 by then-Gov. Richards after Mrs. Hutchison was elected to the Senate.

Texas has boasted treasurers named Jesse James — who served in 1941-77 — and Warren G. Harding, Richards' predecessor. Richards, who said she found shoe boxes of checks sitting in Treasury after her 1982 election to the post, modernized agency operations and increased earnings.

Fiscal responsibility was touted by Mrs. Whitehead when she ran for election in 1994 on the promise of eliminating the Treasury.

Voters last year approved a state constitutional amendment to abolish the agency. Its functions, including being the state's banker and investing public funds, go to Comptroller John Sharp, who advocated the merger.

The Treasury, which had 255 positions when Mrs. Whitehead took office, now has 169 employees. All but Mrs. Whitehead and nine others will have jobs with the comptroller, said Treasury spokesman Steve Garven. Two of the nine are retiring.

Further cuts will occur over the next several years, as computer systems are merged and duplicated services eliminated. The savings are expected to total $20 million by the turn of the century.

Some agency employees thought Friday was "a sad day, because the Treasury is going away," Garven said. "But then, a lot of people have the attitude that change is for the better."

Some employees wore T-shirts commemorating the Treasury's ending with the motto, "150 years of faithful service." Few wanted to talk.

One who agreed to do so was Christopher Moore, 28, who was getting some help packing up his desk after nine years with the agency.

"I have mixed feelings. Some people are losing their jobs ... but also, it's an opportunity for me personally to grow and to move on," said Moore, who has a job lined up in financial consulting.

Mrs. Whitehead, a former Longview mayor, said she is continuing to help those seeking jobs. As for her own future, she's not making any long-term announcements yet.

"Tomorrow I'm going to go see (the University of) Texas beat ... Missouri," she said. "That's my near-term plan."

Mexican stock market drops after new rebel group kills 14 in attacks

HUATULCO, Mexico (AP) — The government increased security at highways and airports and sent soldiers Friday to track down rebels whose attacks in five Mexican states were the most wide-ranging guerrilla action in decades.

As a result of more than a dozen attacks that left 14 people dead, the stock market dropped, the peso fell and headlines screamed about a new threat to Mexico just as the country seemed to be climbing out of a recession.

Tourism, a $6 billion-a-year bonanza for Mexico, could also suffer. Vacationing Americans expressed fear for their safety — 10 people lost their lives in an attack Thursday near the Pacific resort of Huatulco.

"Obviously, this hurts us," said Pia Oberholzer, manager of the Huatulco Hotel and Motel Association. "We are concerned about the repercussions in Mexico and abroad. It might produce a fear that doesn't exist."

The government announced tightened security measures at airports and coastal resorts to prevent more attacks. Around Huatulco, in southern Mexico, army troops scoured the hills for rebels. Roadblocks dotted the countryside.

Margie Taylor, 53, from Tulsa, Okla., confessed: "I feel nervous. I do. I'm sorry."

Normally, the only news from Mexican beach resorts is the day's weather report.

With six corpses laid out Friday on the police station floor of this Pacific resort favored by U.S. tourists — two policemen, two rebels and two civilians — the headlines now are all about a shadowy leftist group destabilizing the country.

Interior Undersecretary Arturo Nuñez said the Popular Revolutionary Army, the group which launched the raids and is known by the Spanish acronym EPR, was an arm of a Marxist group called the Clandestine Revolutionary Workers Party Union of the People, or PROCUP.

"It is a radical group which said it seeks power through violent means, which proclaims that a dictatorship of the proletariat should be installed in Mexico to construct socialism," Nuñez told the Televisa network.

Declarations from the EPR have called for a new government, a new constitution and leftist economic changes but not for a socialist dictatorship.

However, Sergio Bautista, one of six men arrested in the wave of attacks, told police "the ideology of the EPR is of a Marxist-Leninist-Maoist type," according to testimony released by the Interior Secretariat, the agency in charge of domestic security.

Nuñez, speaking later at a news conference, estimated that less than 200 fighters took part in the attacks Wednesday night and Thursday morning.

He said the dead included three soldiers, six policemen, two civilians and two attackers. An officer injured in the Huatulco attack died later Friday.

The EPR attacked troops, police or city halls in Oaxaca, Guerrero, Mexico and Puebla states. It blocked a road in the southernmost state of Chiapas.

The State Department condemned the attacks, saying: "There can be no justification for violence in pursuit of political ends in Mexico. However, it is important to underscore that the United States does not consider these actions threatening to Mexican political or economic stability."

Officials have consistently downplayed the significance of the EPR since it appeared June 28 near Acapulco.

Just last week, Nuñez told reporters that the EPR seemed to be confined to the state of Guerrero.

By Friday, he was saying "We should not make too much of it, nor should we minimize it," adding: "The actions worry the government."

With that, he announced the government has reinforced security "in the strategic installations of the country" ahead of Sunday's state of the nation speech by President Ernesto Zedillo.

Federal police with dogs strolled through Mexico City airport on Friday and beefed-up detachments of troops where checking cars, trucks and buses along many highways.

"New actions by this group cannot be discounted," Nuñez said, because the group "wants attention, to generate a climate of anxiety, of uncertainty, to project an image abroad of a destabilized Mexico."

Stock traders said the raids sparked Thursday's 2.2 percent drop in the market, as well as a nearly 1 percent slide Friday. The peso also dropped slightly against the dollar after rising for months.

The government, meanwhile, said it had moved two PROCUP leaders, Felipe Martinez Soriano and David Cabanas, to the top-security Almoloya federal prison.

Searchers seek bodies, clues to Arctic crash

LONGYEARBYEN, Norway (AP) — Braving the threat of rock slides and polar bears, investigators searched for bodies Friday on the icy, treacherous face of the arctic mountain where a Russian jet crashed one day earlier.

The crash, Norway's worst air disaster, killed all of the 141 people aboard the Tupolev 154, most of them Ukrainian and Russian coal miners and their families returning to jobs after vacations at home.

En route from Moscow, the plane crashed Thursday morning just six miles from its destination — the airport on Spitsbergen, the main island in the Svalbard archipelago about 400 miles north of Norway.

The victims, employed by the Russian company ArktikUgol, had worked on the archipelago in a Russian-operated mine. Although Svalbard is Norwegian, a 1920 treaty allows other countries to use the islands for non-military purposes.

In addition to searching for bodies, investigators who flew to the crash site by helicopter Friday hoped to discover why the plane smashed into the cloud-shrouded 3,000-foot-high peak of Opera Mountain as it approached the airport.

Tor Oydvin, of the Svalbard governor's office, said searchers discovered a key clue late Friday — the plane's so-called "black box."

The Russian news agency ITAR-Tass, quoting unidentified experts, said a sudden squall could have disrupted the flight. But Russian meteorologists told NTB that weather was probably not a factor.

Experts in Norway debated whether the lack of radar at the airport was a factor. Some said radar might have revealed that the plane was too low; others said it probably made no difference.

Crash investigators said only the undeniable: The plane was flying off course.

The wreck, the latest in a series of deadly accidents that has plagued Russia's post-Soviet airlines, has stunned the islands' fewer than 3,200 residents, half of whom are Russians.

A black sash was draped over the Russian flag in Pyramiden, a Russian mining town of about 500 people. Villagers posted the names of 42 dead friends and colleagues, surrounding the list with candles and paper flowers.

"My best friend lost his wife on that plane," miner Viktor Dubina told the Norwegian news agency NTB. "Now he is on his way home to Ukraine, and their 8-month-old daughter."

It's a rough town. A hard place to live.

"We come for economic reasons," Dubina said. "But such an accident makes us wonder whether this is any place to stay."

Investigators have had a hard time even reaching the wreckage. The roadless, icy terrain of Opera Mountain is formidable, as is the weather. After high winds forced teams to retreat on Thursday, a 10-member crew reached the area Friday by helicopter.

Policeman Arne Bjoerkaas said part of wreckage was near the mountain top, but the jet's engines and tail section — as well as the bodies of many victims — had slid down into a valley.

"It is so steep that we are not sure that our people can get up there without being secured (by climbing equipment)," Bjoerkaas told reporters in Longyearbyen, the island's main Norwegian town. He said it could take a week or more to recover the bodies.

During the night, guards protected the wreck, partly from polar bears that roam the glacier-covered islands. Searchers during the day were also on alert for the bears, which have killed two people near Longyearbyen in the past year.

"No bears have been reported in the area, but there is always a risk," said Rune B. Hansen, deputy governor of the island.

Russia's airlines have seen persistent problems since the 1991 collapse of the Soviet Union and the breakup of the former state airline Aeroflot into some 400 companies. Experts have blamed poor maintenance, safety violations and cost-cutting.

NATO troops react after Bosnian Serb police attack Muslim returnees

MAHALA, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Dozens of Bosnian Serb police descended Thursday on Muslim villagers rebuilding their bombed-out homes, beating many and sending the rest fleeing back over the former front line, villagers said.

"My God," said one woman, Ajsa Vilic, "I saw them beat a 10-year-old girl, my neighbor's daughter."

The NATO-led peace force rushed tanks, helicopters and dozens of vehicles to the isolated village of Mahala in the Serb-held half of Bosnia.

Troops blocked roads and detained 65 Bosnian Serb police, confiscating three AK-47 rifles and a grenade, said Maj. Deb Poole, a spokeswoman for the NATO-led force.

Hours later, about 20 Muslim men — some armed — pushed their way back into the village about 15 miles southeast of Tuzla, brushing past U.S. soldiers with machine guns who ordered them to stop.

The Muslims set off a second confrontation with one group of about 30 Serbs being detained by NATO forces from the earlier attack. The Muslim villagers rushed at the Bosnian Serbs, who threw a few stones before turning and running off. U.S. soldiers did not try to stop them.

The conflict illustrated the difficulties in having refugees cross former lines of confrontation and return home, a key goal envisioned under the Dayton peace accord that ended the 3½-year-long war. It comes just two weeks before national elections in Bosnia, in which thousands of refugees are expected to cross lines to vote.

U.S. officials said, however, that confrontations like the one in Mahala were unlikely to delay elections.

A State Department official who just returned from a White House-commissioned fact-finding trip said the violence level has been surprisingly low.

Asked at a Thursday briefing whether "a lot of places that could be very bloody in the weeks preceding this election," Robert Gelbard said: "Well, we're in the weeks preceding the election. Haven't seen any real blood yet."

Tensions in the area remained high through the day. U.N. police reported a crowd of 600 people surrounded their building in Zvornik, about 12 miles to the east. U.N. police commissioner Peter Fitzgerald said a "hostile crowd" of about 150 remained late Thursday.

Lt. Gen. Sir Michael Walker, commander of NATO ground forces in Bosnia, flew by helicopter to the area Thursday evening to meet with Bosnian Serb officials. A NATO spokesman in Sarajevo said 25 AK-47s had been turned over by the Serb police.

Brig. Gen. George W. Casey said all sides agreed to joint patrols with U.N. police through Mahala for seven days "until we can bring the issue to some resolution."

Earlier, the Bosnian Serb police chief in Zvornik denied his officers attacked the villagers in Mahala.

A Bosnian Serb official said the AK-47s were taken from the Muslim villagers by the police patrol.

U.S. military commanders at the scene said both sides had violated the Dayton peace accord. The accord allows only police to have weapons — and then only pistols — within a four-kilometer wide "zone of separation" between the two parts of Bosnia — the Muslim-Croat federation and Bosnian Serb territory.

The villagers said they decided to return after seeing Bosnian Serb families returning to their old homes in Muslim-Croat federation territory.

"Our authorities let Serbs return in our area," said Mujo Beganovic, 65. "That's why we wanted to come to our homes."

Villagers said the trouble began about mid-morning. "I thought it was a patrol," Beganovic said. "But one of them approached me from behind and put his baton under my throat and began swearing about Muslims."

Two Muslims were admitted to a hospital, one with serious head injuries, and nine others were treated for beating injuries.

Since Monday, about two dozen Muslim families, who fled the town in May 1992 under Bosnian Serb attack, had moved back into Mahala.

Meanwhile, a German defense ministry official said Thursday the government would not rule out sending combat troops to Bosnia if part of the NATO-led international peace force stays in the country next year.

The change would breach new taboos in Germany's self-imposed restraint in military missions abroad. The 2,700 German soldiers in the peace keeping force for Bosnia are based in Croatia.

Lebed meets with Chechen rebel leaders to negotiate peace settlement

GROZNY, Russia (AP) — National security chief Alexander Lebed talked with Chechen rebel leaders Friday to hammer out a wide-ranging plan for ending the war in the breakaway republic.

Lebed said his plan offers Chechens a chance to vote on their republic's political status in 10 years.

"We are planning to consider and, if we're lucky enough, to sign a joint statement outlining common principles of settling the conflict," Lebed told reporters en route to the talks.

The negotiations were being held in Khasavyurt in the republic of Dagestan, which borders Chechnya. Separatist chief of staff Aslan Maskhadov headed the rebel delegation.

It took the two sides most of the day Friday to arrange the meeting. While Lebed was in Khasavyurt, rebel negotiators were waiting for him in a village south of Grozny.

Both sides cited technical difficulties, but the ITAR-Tass news agency said the rebels were late because they were unhappy about provisions in the deal relating to Chechnya's political status.

Mostly Muslim Chechnya declared independence in 1991; the war started when Yeltsin sent in troops 20 months ago to force the rebels back under Moscow's wing. The Russian president says he will never let Chechnya secede.

Lebed has not made the plan public, but it reportedly offers the Chechens a new constitution, a government uniting all political movements and broad autonomy.

"We need first to separate the warring parties, establish a firm intention to end the war (and) get the situation back to the level of common sense," he said.

Under a truce Lebed negotiated last week, Russian troops continued to withdraw from Chechen mountain regions and Grozny, which the rebels overran this month.

The Interfax news agency reported that the pullout from those areas would be complete Saturday.

Only about 1,500 Russian troops remained in the city as of Friday night, according to the report.

An official with the Russian general staff said 11,000 servicemen were now concentrated at five bases outside the city.

About 250 fighters from each side will stay in the devastated capital on joint patrols established to enforce the truce and maintain public order.

"Today we can say with satisfaction that the military agreement we have signed earlier has been observed unfailingly," Lebed said.

The former general said he'd spoken with President Boris Yeltsin by telephone, but refused to say whether the president approved his plan.

Prime Minister Viktor Chernomyrdin said Friday the plan was "coordinated" with the president.

Yeltsin has maintained a public silence on the peace proposal despite increasing pressure to end the unpopular war, which killed more than 30,000 people, mostly civilians, and reduced Grozny to ruins. Aides say the president, who is on vacation at a hunting lodge outside Moscow, has studied Lebed's plan.

Yeltsin has distanced himself from his security chief — as he often does with underlings handling a particularly controversial task — ever since putting Lebed in charge of resolving the Chechen conflict on Aug. 10.

Investigators find more traces of explosive in TWA Flight 800 wreckage

N.Y. Times News Service

A second finding of microscopic traces of explosives in the debris of TWA Flight 800 has taken federal investigators a significant step closer to concluding that an explosive device — and not mechanical failure — downed the plane, a highly placed law enforcement source said Thursday.

"When you get another hit of trace evidence the likelihood that this was mechanical failure becomes very slim, and the bomb or missile scenario become much more likely," the source explained.

Neither the National Transportation Safety Board nor the FBI, however, has ruled that the crash was caused by a criminal act of sabotage. Both say they need more information to make such a ruling.

"We're just not over the top yet. It may seem like splitting hairs, but the precise facts on this and the standards for a preponderance of evidence are very serious matters to the parties involved," the source said, elaborating on why federal authorities have been so cautious in making their determination. "If you are a litigant in this case, it matters a lot. A whole lot."

A statement released Thursday by the FBI and the NTSB confirmed the finding of more trace evidence of explosives, but did not disclose the type of explosive or the location where it was found.

One federal investigator said Thursday that the traces were found inside the rear cargo hold, toward the tail of the plane. The source said that the traces may have been blown backwards as a result of a blast, and that the location did not appear to contradict investigators' belief that the explosion that downed the plane occurred in the front section where the right wing meets the fuselage.

The statement further explained that additional evidence — such as "physical damage or patterns characteristic of a detonation" as well as more "trace findings" — would be needed before the downing of the plane could be officially ruled a criminal act of sabotage, and the control of the investigation shifted from the NTSB to the FBI.

The announcement of a second finding of traces of an explosive came one week after investigators confirmed that they had found microscopic evidence of the plastic explosive PETN on the flooring between rows 20 and 27.

Privately, highly placed federal law enforcement sources confirm that the new findings have helped them move closer to their initial belief that it was a bomb that took down the Boeing 747. But until the evidence is conclusive, both the FBI and the NTSB are insisting that all three leading theories — a bomb, missile or mechanical failure — remain on the board.

"We still cannot conclude that TWA Flight 800 crashed as the result of an explosive device," the NTSB and FBI statement said. "Investigators still cannot conclude whether this tragedy was the result of a criminal act."

The Paris-bound Boeing 747 exploded and crashed into the Atlantic Ocean July 17 after taking off from Kennedy International Airport. All 230 passengers and crew on board were killed.

Other developments pushing investigators to formulate a conclusion that it was an explosive device include:

— Intensive tests on fuel pumps which found no failures or problems with short circuiting that could have led to an explosion of the central fuel tank.

— Analysis of all the wreckage on a computer data base which seems to indicate a pattern of damage that would indicate that a blast orignated somewhere on the right-hand side of row 24.

Meanwhile, officials voiced concern that recovery efforts at the scene of the crash off the coast of Long Island, N.Y., would be hampered over the weekend by hurricanes heading north from the Caribbean. The storms could churn up wreckage still lying on the ocean floor and force search vessels back into port.

Searchers have recovered more than half of the debris that stretched in a mile-and-a-half-long swath at sea. Of the 230 passengers and crew killed, the bodies of 211 have been recovered.

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI agents delivered subpoenas to Philip Morris officials as a grand jury in Washington investigates whether tobacco executives lied to Congress about nicotine's addictiveness, according to a person familiar with the investigation, who spoke on condition he wouldn't be identified.

The subpoenas were delivered earlier this week when most of the executives being served were at work at the company's Richmond, Va., area plants.

Philip Morris attorneys and spokesmen were unavailable Friday, as the cigarette maker was closed for a company holiday ahead of the three-day Labor Day weekend.

Farrakhan rejects award money from Libya

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Faced with the threat of prison, Louis Farrakhan told Libya on Friday that he could not accept a $250,000 human rights award until a U.S. court gives him permission.

It was a dramatic reversal by the Nation of Islam leader, who had vowed earlier this week to "go across the nation" rallying support if the government did not allow him to receive the prize.

Farrakhan decided to pass on the money after the government rejected his request for an exemption from U.S. sanctions requiring banks under U.S. jurisdiction to freeze transactions relating to Libya.

If convicted of violating the sanctions — or of conspiring to do so — Farrakhan would have faced a prison sentence and fines.

"I will accept the honor of this prize but I will ask you to hold the money until a decision is made in a court of law," Farrakhan told an enthusiastic crowd at the award ceremony.

Wearing a dark suit and one of his signature bow ties — this one red and yellow — Farrakhan was escorted by his bodyguards to the ceremony at Al-Mahari, a five-star Tripoli hotel. Several thousand people clapped and chanted as the smiling Farrakhan received a green sash to wear across his suit and a bouquet of flowers.

Farrakhan's trip to Libya, which started Wednesday, comes just weeks after the United States sought to put more pressure on Libya and Iran by requiring penalties against foreign firms that invest in their energy sectors.

The penalties complement sanctions the United States imposed a decade ago to isolate Libyan leader Col. Moammar Gadhafi, whom it accuses of supporting global terrorism.

The Nation of Islam leader was to have received the $250,000 for the Gadhafi Human Rights Award — as well as a $1 billion gift from the Libyan leader that Farrakhan said would go to form joint ventures with businesses and financial institutions to help blacks.

It was unclear whether he also would reject the $1 billion. Neither Gadhafi nor Farrakhan mentioned the money Friday.

Libya set up the human rights prize in 1989. It was first awarded to South African President Nelson Mandela, and other winners include Native Americans and the children of the Palestinian uprising against the Israeli occupation.

Moftah Osta Omar, an official with the committee awarding the prize, called Farrakhan and other black leaders "true fighters for freedom and justice and equality and human dignity."

This was not Farrakhan's first time in Libya — although it is an odd destination for someone who shares neither Gadhafi's brand of socialism nor his mainly orthodox interpretation of Islam.

In 1986, the Nation of Islam leader stopped in Tripoli to attend a conference on revolutionary movements and for a meeting with Gadhafi.

Afterward, he called the Reagan administration "wicked devils" for the U.S. bombing of Libya in April 1986.

Earlier this year, Farrakhan and Gadhafi discussed how to increase the influence of America's "oppressed minorities during this year's elections." Gadhafi saw his cooperation with Farrakhan as "a loophole to enter the fortress and confront it from within" — views that did not play well in Washington.

"That kind of talk is not something we view positively at all," State Department spokesman Glyn Davies said earlier this week.

On Wednesday, Rep. Peter King, R-N.Y., urged Secretary of State Warren Christopher to revoke Farrakhan's passport.

Arafat warns Israel of new uprising emerging

BALATA REFUGEE CAMP, West Bank (AP) — Yasser Arafat warned Israel on Friday that Palestinians could be pushed toward another bloody revolt if the Jewish state doesn't move faster to make peace.

The PLO leader delivered his toughest warning yet for Israel's new hard-line government in a speech at the Balata refugee camp, a hotbed of resistance to Israel during a 1987-1993 uprising.

He suggested that Palestinians are ready to face Israeli soldiers again.

"We are the ones who waged the longest uprising in the 20th century and murder, imprisonment and expulsions did not terrorize us," he told some 200 listeners.

Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's refusal to compromise or implement peace agreements require "every one of us in these fateful days ... to be ready and prepared," Arafat said.

"I don't have a magic wand, but I have the children of the uprising."

During the revolt, nearly 2,000 Palestinians, many of them teenagers, were killed in clashes with Israeli soldiers and Jewish settlers. Most of those participating in the revolt pelted stones at heavily armed Israeli soldiers.

Arafat's warning came after a two-day showdown between the Palestinians and Netanyahu's government.

The Palestinian leader ordered a four-hour general strike in the West Bank, Gaza Strip and east Jerusalem on Thursday and asked Palestinians to come to Jerusalem's Al Aqsa mosque in protest on Friday.

Palestinians were especially angered this week by reports that the Netanyahu government authorized new construction in Jewish settlements and by the demolition of a Palestinian youth center in east Jerusalem.

But other policies have also soured relations since Netanyahu took power in June. The new leader has refused to open talks about an eventual independent Palestinian state or to discuss sharing power with Palestinians in east Jerusalem. Also, he has so far refused to meet with Arafat or commit to a Hebron pullout.

The Israeli leader, apparently responding to the Palestinian distress signals, dispatched senior advisors to meet with Arafat and his deputies.

On Friday, Netanyahu also announced that he and a small group of ministers would oversee negotiations with the Palestinians, which are expected to resume next week.

Cabinet Secretary Danny Naveh warned that "any deterioration to violence — any escalation — is likely to reduce our will to move the peace process forward."

Earlier Friday, about 15,000 Palestinians — far fewer than expected — responded to Arafat's call to go to the Al Aqsa mosque.

Muslim clerics and Israeli police had predicted a turnout of 100,000. In the end, the number of worshipers was less than the 20,000 to 30,000 that arrive on a normal Friday.

Lloyd's rescue plan succeeds

LONDON (AP) — Just as its most famous liability, the Titanic, was sinking back into the sea, Lloyd's of London announced Friday it had managed to stay afloat.

Earlier in the week, the opposite seemed possible.

But Lloyd's executives persuaded enough money-losing investors to come aboard a complicated and controversial rescue package crucial for the survival of the 308-year-old insurance market.

"We are now progressively turning our attention to the future," chief executive Ronald Sandler told a news conference after Lloyd's said its restructuring plan would proceed. More than 91 percent of the investors approved, though there are still hundreds of dissidents.

For months, Lloyd's has been trying to erase the problems of a past that Chairman David Rowland said "we should never forget."

Lloyd's is famous for taking on huge risks, such as covering the "unsinkable" Titanic, which cost underwriters more than $1 million when it hit an iceberg and sank in 1912. A portion of the ship sank to the ocean floor for a second time Friday as a salvage attempt failed.

Lloyd's hit hard times in the late 1980s, when claims for asbestos, pollution and hurricanes — as well as modern maritime disasters such as the Exxon Valdez oil spill — produced $12.4 billion in losses for the five years ended in 1992.

This spelled big trouble for Lloyd's investors, known as "names." Throughout their insurance market's three centuries of business, they had been required to put up their entire fortunes as collateral to underwrite insurance policies at Lloyd's.

When disaster struck, many refused to pay, saying they were cheated by Lloyd's insiders. Others went broke. Some killed themselves.

Lloyd's sought a solution by offering the 34,000 names a $4.8 billion package that would cut their losses in return for their agreement to end all litigation.

BUS: Clinton hits campaign trail

(From 1A)

...dle-class tax cut should vote for ...Bill Clinton in 1996," Kemp said to ...hoots from thousands of supporters ...rallying in Orange County's rodeo ...arena.

The president's 14-bus caravan ...was a sight to see in Cape Girardeau, a town of 35,000, which has a niche in national politics as the birthplace of conservative radio talk host Rush Limbaugh. "It's history for our city," said 80-year-old Gladys Ritter of the hoopla of a presidential visit.

Indeed, about 20,000 people packed Capaha Park for the first stop on the Clinton-Gore "Road to the 21st Century" campaign caravan. Dozens more lined the streets waving their support. "Give 'Em Hell Hillary," read one roadside placard.

The Clintons and Gores were greeted by thousands more a few hours later in the southern Illinois town of Cairo. The buses stopped twice en route and the Clintons and Gores jumped out to shake hands with people gathered along the roadside. "I got to shake the hand of the president and the first lady," said 12-year-old Morgan Davis in tiny Phebes, Ill. "It is like the greatest thing in the world."

Not that the Dole-Kemp campaign and other Clinton foes didn't make their presence felt: Five anti-abortion billboards greeted Clinton near the Cape Girardeau airport, and included criticism of his veto of legislation banning late-term abortions.

But on a day of celebration, Clinton was in no mood for distractions. Posing in front of his bus, he ignored a question about the resignation of top political strategist Dick Morris after a report of a liaison with a call girl. "I think it's time to get on the bus," Gore said. He later told reporters that in a call to Morris, "I thanked him for his help. I said I hope he is all right."

'We've got a fight in front of us here. This is the beginning of the campaign — not the end.'

—Christopher Dodd party chairman

The Clintons and Gores left the 1992 convention by bus, taking a 1,000-mile, six-day trip through eight states. So successful was that trip that they teamed up for three more in the fall, and decided to try it again this year after the convention in Chicago.

"Do the big wave," Mrs. Gore said to the first lady in Cape Girardeau, recreating a favorite 1992 pose. Kentucky and Tennessee were on a two-day schedule after Missouri and Illinois.

Clinton left Chicago to chants of "Four More Years," and a slew of new public and campaign polls suggesting a lead of 12 to 15 percentage points or more over Dole with just nine weeks to go. The two camps hoped to begin debate negotiations next week, and Democrats were warning against overconfidence.

"We've got a fight in front of us here," party chairman Christopher Dodd told the Democratic National Committee. "This is the beginning of the campaign — not the end," Clinton said.

Both Clinton and Gore confessed to being exhausted. Clinton said he had asked Gore late Thursday why they were not taking a day or two off before heading out to campaign and that the vice president deadpanned simply, and stiffly, "Because we do not wish Senator Dole to win the election."

But they were in high spirits a few hours later in Cape Girardeau.

Marveling at the crowd, Clinton said the last time he came here from nearby Arkansas he stopped to buy a soda "and nobody came out to see me."

Adding a new musical twist to a 1992 bus tour routine, Gore asked voters to consider whether they wanted to wake up Nov. 6 to a Dole victory and find "a cold sleet, the sky is dark, you've got a headache" or a Clinton win and "the sun is shining ... your favorite music is on the radio!"

Citizens to begin police training

Classes for the Citizens Police Academy will begin Tuesday, and will be held every Tuesday from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. for 14 weeks.

The classes are free and open to citizens interested in the inner workings of the Midland Police Department.

Information and applications are available through the Community Relations Unit at the Midland Police Department at 601 N. Loraine St. or by calling 685-7580.

NationsBank becomes 4th largest in U.S. with acquisition of Boatmen's

N.Y. Times News Service

CHARLOTTE, North Carolina — NationsBank Corp. took a step today toward becoming the U.S.'s first truly national bank, though it's using a strategy that has shareholders concerned.

The plan to pay about $8.71 billion for Boatmen's Bancshares Inc. in St. Louis, announced Friday, creates a bank reaching from Maryland to Mexico.

Yet NationsBank Chief Executive Hugh McColl saw how risky that strategy may be as his bank's stock plunged 7.8 percent, wiping out $2.1 billion in market value.

The Charlotte, North Carolina-based bank's national aspirations come as Citicorp, Chase Manhattan Corp., and other big banks focus on closing branches and expanding corporate banking as a way of boosting profits.

At the same time, BankAmerica Corp. in San Francisco, Columbus, Ohio-based Banc One Corp. and First Bank System Inc. in Minneapolis are traveling the same road as NationsBank, hoping to expand earnings by reaching customers in more states.

"You're seeing a consolidation of the major regional banks to provide national banking empires," said Boatmen's Chairman and Chief Executive Andrew Craig, who will be chairman of the new NationsBank.

NationsBank's acquisition follows $66 billion in bank mergers last year, as bankers sought to compete by slashing costs and adding customers.

Regional banks First Union Corp. and Fleet Financial Group Inc., for example, broke into the Top 10 list of U.S. banks — a club long reserved for the big, so-called money center banks in New York that cater as much to companies as consumers.

NationsBank, which dominated the Southeast, follows that trend. The Boatmen's acquisition will create the nation's fourth-biggest bank, with 2,588 branches reaching 13 million households, and push the bank into Missouri, New Mexico and other midwestern and southwestern states.

"Probably, they needed to do it to remain one of the significant survivors in a consolidating industry," said Carl Eck, an investment manager at Aeltus Investment Management, which owns 884,000 NationsBank shares. "Nationwide banks are inevitable."

Now, McColl faces a tough sell to convince his shareholders that his strategy is worth the expense. NationsBank offered Boatmen's shareholders almost 40 percent above the market value of their stock, based on yesterday's closing price.

And the bank will have to deduct an estimated $6 billion of the cost of the acquisition from profits over time to pay for the takeover.

McColl said the acquisition will add to overall profits by next year, as the bank cuts costs by firing workers and combining overlapping processing systems.

"I think Wall Street already likes this deal," McColl said after speaking to analysts in New York this morning.

Some investors weren't convinced. While Boatmen's shares rose 10⅜, or 24 percent, to 53¼, NationsBank plunged 7¼ to 85⅛.

"It seems a high price to pay," said Scott Edgar, of Sife Trust Fund, which owns 200,000 NationsBank shares.

Wall Street has treated banks that cut costs by gobbling up local rivals better than those which made big leaps into new territories.

Shares of New York's Chase Manhattan Corp. and San Francisco-based Wells Fargo & Co., both of which merged with local competitors, have performed better this year than Fleet Financial and First Union, which rolled into new regions.

NationsBank also was among the country's best-performing bank stocks this year, rising 32 percent — until today.

Many analysts attributed the rise in part to hints the bank wasn't planning any expensive acquisitions.

McColl, for example, recently was quoted by the Wall Street Journal as calling mergers and acquisitions "the old paradigm."

"Then, along comes the biggest deal they could do," said Edgar. "Seems to be a change from his words."

Edouard spins unpredictably in Atlantic Ocean

Associated Press

Hurricane Edouard kicked up the surf along the East Coast on Friday as it churned in the Atlantic on a course so unpredictable it could hit land anywhere from North Carolina to New England during the Labor Day weekend.

Forecasters weren't sure when, where or even if the 130-mph storm would come ashore, leaving vacationers to wonder if they should hit the beach or head for higher ground. If the storm stays on track, it will hit Long Island, N.Y., Monday, forecasters said.

"We are not saying it will hit Long Island," forecaster Mike Hopkins said. "That is the direction it is headed, but a lot can happen between now and then. It could hit farther south or turn and head out into the Atlantic."

The National Hurricane Center near Miami issued a tropical storm warning and a hurricane watch stretching from Cape Lookout, N.C., to Cape Henlopen, Del. The hurricane watch could be extended farther north over the weekend.

At 4 p.m. CDT Edouard's eye was 500 miles south-southeast of Cape Hatteras, N.C., and headed north-northwest at 14 mph. Even if the hurricane doesn't directly hit land, winds of 40 mph extended as far as 200 miles from its center.

A low-pressure trough that had been pushing Edouard north and away from the coast had weakened.

Clinton vs. Dole: Candidates begin political chess match

By Scott Shepard
N.Y. Times News Service

CHICAGO — As Bill Clinton left here with a post-convention boost of his own Friday, both the Democratic and Republican camps began the serious work of plotting their strategies for the November election.

Both the president and former Sen. Bob Dole each have eight weeks and $62 million to corral 270 electoral votes, the basic minimum needed to win.

If the election were held today, Clinton would be re-elected in a landslide. Polls show him leading Dole by as much as 20 points nationally as he and Vice President Al Gore reprise their 1992 bus trip by riding from Chicago to Memphis.

In addition, the president currently enjoys a solid or comfortable lead in enough states to give him nearly 400 electoral votes.

But the election isn't for another two months. And Clinton and Dole hold some advantages as they as they try to checkmate one another in a state-by-state game of electoral chess.

The race will tighten. How much? "It may narrow to three or five points," said Joe Lockhart, spokesman for the Clinton-Gore campaign.

Clinton's double-digit lead over Dole is "written on wet sand on the water's edge," veteran Democratic pollster Peter Hart told Democratic convention delegates last week.

Indeed, while Clinton's job approval rating is currently 53 percent — rivaling Ronald Reagan's 54 percent during his re-election campaign — roughly half of the American electorate has consistently felt throughout Clinton's presidency that the country is "on the wrong track."

Consequently, Clinton's pre-convention activities, chiefly his four-day, pre-convention train trip from West Virginia to Indiana, sent the message that the president's economic policies had put the country "on the right track" since the 1991-92 recession.

Nevertheless, the Dole campaign will stress the job anxiety American workers feel, despite a robust economy. And it will argue that the economy can be even stronger and Americans better off with Dole's proposed 15 percent tax cut.

"We're going to be talking about the economy," said Dole campaign manager Scott Reed. "And we've got two salesmen instead of one."

At one point, Dole cut Clinton's poll lead in half with one stroke — naming former New York congressman Jack Kemp, one of the chief architects of Reaganomics, as his running mate.

The model for the Dole campaign is the come-from-behind victory of Republican Christine Todd Whitman in New Jersey's 1993 gubernatorial race. Trailing Democrat incumbent Jim Florio by more than 20 points a month before the balloting, she promised an across-the-board tax cut, and she swept Florio away.

But the Clinton campaign has a model as well: the unexpected victory of Democrat Paul Patton in Kentucky's 1995 gubernatorial race. Patton made House Speaker Newt Gingrich and his assault on government programs a major issue in his campaign.

And ever since Dole nailed down the GOP nomination last spring, White House officials and Democratic Party leaders have constantly referred to the "Dole-Gingrich" team.

"That's the ticket," said Sen. Christopher Dodd of Connecticut, general chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

But beyond the models of Whitman and Patton, and beyond the themes of tax cuts and portraying opponents as extremists, both campaigns will be guided primarily by polling data in deciding where to send their candidates and spend the $62 million they hold in public financing.

Dole is counting on Western and Southern states remaining solidly Republican, leaving him free to battle it out with Clinton in the Midwest and, perhaps, challenge the president in California, a must-win state for Clinton.

Dole has the advantage of relying on the organizations of popular Republican governors in the battleground states of New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin.

And he plans to dispatch Kemp, whose stint in President Bush's cabinet made him popular with minorities, to campaign in such traditional Democratic strongholds as Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago and Philadelphia.

But there are signs that even the South, where the Republican Party reigns, remains less than solidly for Dole. Some polls show Clinton leading in Florida, a must-win state for Dole. And Clinton is now competitive in Texas, another Dole must-win state.

While much attention has been given to the political shift from Democratic to Republican dominance in the South, little notice has been taken of the fact that the Northeast is now solidly Democrat.

That means Clinton, instead of having to spend money in the New York area, the nation's most costly media market, can marshal his resources in the contested Midwest. Likewise, his 20-point lead in California, a diverse expensive media market, frees up money for, say, Florida, where Clinton plans to campaign next weekend.

Dole, Kemp kick off fall campaign, call for debates

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Republican Bob Dole launched his fall campaign on Friday by accusing President Clinton of riding a "status quo express" out of Chicago and challenging him to a series of debates.

Dole's campaign manager, Scott Reed, proposed talks beginning as early as next week with the Clinton campaign to set the terms for the encounters.

"Now the conventions are over. We're starting the race today," Dole told a boisterous GOP fairgrounds rally that he labeled "a retirement party for President Clinton."

Both Dole and running mate Jack Kemp hit the campaign trail hard with the conclusion of the Democratic convention.

"The message out of Chicago was that the government knows best. The message out of our convention was that the people know best," Dole said at a joint rally with Kemp earlier in the day in predominantly Republican Orange County, Calif.

Said Kemp: "When the (Democratic) convention shouted 'Four More Years' for Clinton and Gore — isn't that the most depressing thought you've ever had?"

In his New Mexico appearance, Dole belittled Clinton's acceptance speech to the convention, including the president's vow to build "a bridge to the future."

"He raised enough taxes to build a big, big bridge, one all the way from Los Angeles to New York and back again," Dole said. "We need a bridge from Washington, D.C., to Little Rock, Arkansas. That's where the bridge ought to be built. It ought to be one-way."

Dole also complained about harsh criticism of him from both Clinton and Vice President Al Gore. "They say nice things and they go out there and beat us to death," Dole said.

And he scoffed at tax breaks proposed by Clinton. "These are targeted. They're going to miss everyone in this audience," he said.

Dole championed his own proposal for a $548 billion six-year tax cut.

He also promised his New Mexico audience that his plan to eliminate the Energy Department would not result in the closing of the department's research laboratories in New Mexico.

Those labs will remain open "as long as I'm president," Dole said. "The one lab that's going to close is the one in the White House where they cook up all these ideas."

The two labs — Sandia and Los Alamos — provide 21,000 jobs, according to Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M. Domenici told reporters he had Dole's commitment not to close the labs, even though it was not immediately clear where the funds would come from to keep them open.

Meanwhile, the Dole campaign took the first step in preparing the way for a series of presidential and vice presidential debates.

"Congratulations on the completion of a well-staged convention. ... Now that both conventions are over, it is time for us to focus on the fall debates between the candidates," Reed wrote to Peter Knight, his Democratic counterpart.

Reed said talks between the two camps should get under way as soon as next week. He said former South Carolina Gov. Carroll Campbell would lead the Dole team of debate negotiators.

Nelson Warfield, Dole's spokesman, declined to say whether Reform Party candidate Ross Perot should be included — although Reed's letter to Knight appeared to imply a two-way debate.

"We haven't taken a position on that (Perot)," Warfield said. "We're just starting the discussions."

Under a cloudless sky and a near-100 degree temperature, Dole told several thousand people at the rally at the Orange County Fairgrounds that Clinton and running mate Al Gore are "on the status quo express all week."

"But they're on the wrong track."

Dole promoted his proposal for a 15 percent across-the-board tax cut, calling it "a plan that really makes sense ... and letting you keep more of your hard-earned money."

"Even that person out there with that Clinton-Gore sign is going to get our tax cut," Dole said, pointing to a demonstrator.

As to Clinton's proposal for a tax break for homeowners from the capital gains tax when selling their homes, Dole said, "You're a little late, Mr. President. But we're happy to see that you're on our side."

Dole's plan calls for cutting the maximum capital gains tax in half, from the current 28 percent to 14 percent.

Manufacturing strength sends financial markets down

WASHINGTON (AP) — With signals on the economy's direction mixed, reports Friday of a stronger-than-expected manufacturing sector heightened fears of higher interest rates and sent financial markets sliding.

"By and large, the economy is stronger than anticipated or desired," contended Sung Won Sohn, chief economist for the Norwest Corp. in Minneapolis. "The economic slowdown simply is not there."

Many investors shared that view, sending stock and bond prices tumbling for a second straight day on the belief the Federal Reserve would soon raise interest rates to slow economic growth and prevent an escalation of inflation.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 31.44 to 5,616.21, after declining nearly 65 points Thursday. For the week, the Dow was down 106.53.

Bond investors don't like strong economic growth because of the threat of inflation, which would erode the value of their fixed-income securities. And stock investors fear rising interest rates because they drive up corporate costs and put pressure on profits.

The Commerce Department reported Friday that orders to U.S. factories shot up 1.8 percent in July to a seasonally adjusted $317.6 billion, erasing a 0.7 percent loss a month earlier.

The increase, the fourth in five months, was nearly double what analysts had expected and spread throughout most of the manufacturing economy.

The transportation component fell because an increase in motor vehicle orders was offset by declining military demand for ships and tanks.

Orders are considered a key gauge of manufacturing strength. Increases could mean greater production and more jobs.

Orders for nonmilitary capital goods excluding aircraft gained 4.2 percent after increasing 2.6 percent the previous month. These orders often are a barometer of business plans to expand and modernize and have been a major source of economic strength during the current expansion.

The backlog of unfilled orders increased 1 percent, the 10th advance in 11 months. Often, a growing backlog suggests businesses may have to increase production facilities and manpower to meet demand.

Another report suggested further growth. The Chicago purchasing managers index rose to 60 in August, from 51.2. A reading above 50 indicates an expansion in manufacturing.

The index is considered a clue to the national purchasing managers index, an influential barometer of business activity, which comes out next week.

The University of Michigan's August consumer sentiment index also was up Friday, the second report this week of improving consumer confidence. Analysts said the sentiment could translate into increased spending.

But there was little sign of any increase yet in a second Commerce Department report Friday. It showed spending edged up just 0.2 percent in July after falling 0.4 percent a month earlier, the first decline since January.

Some analysts believe consumers, many overburdened with debt, are about at the end of a spending spree that lasted through much of the first half of the year.

Norwest Corp.'s Sohn, however, said the weak spending figure reflected sluggish automobile sales, which "are beginning to pick up steam again."

Jerry Jasinowski, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, disagreed.

"With incomes slowing sharply and households facing heavy debt loads, consumers are likely to retrench," he said.

Consumer spending represents about two-thirds of the nation's economic activity and helped propel robust growth earlier this year.

Spending on big-ticket durable goods, meant to last more than three years, fell 1.2 percent in July, the second straight decline.

But spending on nondurable goods such as food and fuel rose 0.3 percent, erasing a 0.3 percent loss a month earlier. Spending on services, which was unchanged in June, moved up 0.4 percent.

The Commerce Department also reported that personal income growth slowed to 0.1 percent, the smallest increase since January when it was unchanged. It had jumped 0.9 percent in June.

Disposable income — income after taxes — also rose 0.1 percent after a 0.8 percent gain a month earlier.

The combination of incomes and spending meant that Americans' saving rate — savings as a percentage of disposable income — was 5.3 percent, unchanged from June and the highest since 5.5 percent last October.

Private wages and salaries, the most closely watched component of income, fell $6.9 billion at an annual rate to $3 trillion after advancing at a $45 billion rate in June.

Hull section of Titanic breaks loose, sinks again

N.Y. Times News Service

The Titanic, the unlucky ocean liner that sank on its inaugural voyage in 1912, sank again Friday in deep Atlantic waters — at least a large part of it did. The setback seems likely to reinforce tales that the celebrated wreck is cursed.

A section of the wreck's hull — weighing 11 tons, measuring 24 feet by 20 feet and bearing four portholes and the remnants of four others — was raised this week by a expedition 380 miles off Newfoundland.

Sponsored by a Manhattan company known as RMS Titanic, the expedition had been working for a month to salvage artifacts and sections of the rusting hulk for commercial display. The hull-raising operation was the centerpiece of the recovery effort and was witnessed by passengers on two cruise ships, the Island Breeze, out of New York, and the Royal Majesty, from Boston.

Nothing so large from the Titanic had ever before been raised to the surface from its inky grave nearly two and a half miles down. Large diesel-filled rubber bags were attached to the rusting hull plate as it rested on the ocean floor and were set free to rise toward the surface. By Thursday afternoon, the piece had been raised to about 200 feet below the ocean surface.

The initial plan, which was reported Friday in The New York Times, was to lift the hull plate onto a ship on Friday for transport to shore and eventually to New York Harbor, symbolically ending the doomed voyage that began 84 years ago from Southampton, England.

But seas became rough and the salvagers decided to try to tow the hull section about 80 miles to the Grand Banks of Newfoundland, where seas were expected to be smoother. The lifting then would be easier, and if it was unsuccessful, retrieving the piece would be simpler in the much shallower waters.

But a long way from the Banks, about 3 a.m. Friday, the 11-ton section of rusting metal broke free from the towing ship and fell back to the ocean floor. The reasons are still obscure, but two of the four lift balloons apparently broke loose, causing the whole section to sink.

An acoustic beeper was attached to the hull plate and batteries in the device are expected to last two years, raising the possibility of recovering the lost hull section, said Philip S. Pennellatore, a spokesman for RMS Titanic.

"They're planning on going back at some point to successfully bring it to the surface," Pennellatore said from Boston. "There's a good chance they'll be able to do this. They got very close."

Charles Pellegrino, a scientist and author who visited the expedition at sea earlier in August, said in an interview that he had considered the odds of a successful recovery fairly low, given the difficulty of the job.

"It wasn't inevitable that it would break away, but there was a fair possibility," Pellegrino said from his home in Long Beach, N.Y.

Noting a string of setbacks that have plagued the Titanic and those associated with the vessel and its discovery, he added, "I don't believe in the curses, but I don't disbelieve in them at this point."

The rusting hulk was found in 1985 on the seabed broken in two, its bow and stern nearly a half-mile apart. Strewn between them was a large field of debris including items like shoes, coal, wine bottles, fine china and the large piece of hull, which was thought to have been attached toward the ship's stern.

1986 Aeromexico crash changed how nation flies

CERRITOS, Calif. (AP) — For those touched by the crash of Aeromexico Flight 498 a decade ago, things have never been the same. It changed the face of a neighborhood, and it changed the way we fly.

Eighty-two people died: 64 jetliner passengers, 15 people on the ground and three in the small plane that collided with the jet as approached Los Angeles International Airport. In terms of victims on the ground, it was the nation's worst air accident.

Wes Neally fought his way through flames and over backyard fences with his wife, Carmeen, a daughter and her friend. The Neallys moved to Yorba Linda rather than face rebuilding and a stream of strangers to the site, some mourning lost relatives, some just curious.

On a sunny Aug. 31, 1986, the jet from Mexico was at about 6,500 feet when the Piper Archer clipped its tail, sending both planes down. Within minutes, the neighborhood was awash in flaming fuel. Ten houses were destroyed. Body parts were scattered for blocks.

The crash came five years after President Reagan had fired 11,000 striking air traffic controllers with plans to replace them with a national automated guidance system.

The system was never introduced, and the National Transportation Safety Board concluded that flaws in the overloaded old system caused the crash.

Two years afterward, the Federal Aviation Administration began requiring equipment called Mode C transponders on small planes near busy airports. The devices had been optional. They broadcast position and altitude, giving controllers data instead of just blips.

The FAA also installed new radar systems, consolidated five Southern California radar centers at a place near San Diego and reconfigured Los Angeles' flight paths to keep small planes away from jetliners.

Texas attorneys race to file lawsuits before rules limiting damages take effect Sept.1

By Juan B. Elizondo Jr.
Associated Press

AUSTIN — Some attorneys raced to Texas courthouses Friday in an effort to beat a legal change limiting the amount of money some of their clients can collect.

The legal change affects cases in which injuries or other damages occured after Sept. 1, 1995.

In those cases, people and businesses sued in civil liability cases involving more than one defendant can't be forced to pay for all the damages if they are found responsible for a small part of them.

Cases in which damages were caused before Sept. 1, 1995, faced a Friday deadline to be filed in order to be treated under a previous law.

Defendants in those cases can be held fully liable even if they caused as little as 11 percent of damages.

The deadline sent some Texas lawyers racing toward courthouses to get those cases filed. They and consumer advocates called the change unfair, saying some people with legitimate claims could be stuck without getting paid by those who inflict the damages.

But business and insurance officials say no one only partially responsible should be stuck with the whole bill.

They said the ability to collect 100 percent of damages from a business or person only slightly responsible allowed attorneys to look for "deep pocket" defendants to make sure at least one defendant could pay the bills.

Starting with cases in which damages occurred after Sept. 1, 1995, those in multi-defendant cases would have to be found responsible for 51 percent of the damages before they could be forced to pay for 100 percent of them. Those found 50 percent or less responsible would have to pay only their share.

In environmental cases, defendants could be held fully liable if they cause 21 percent or more of the damage. Current law says a person can be forced to pay all damages if found to be even 1 percent liable in those cases.

'We're trying to get to a system that is fair to everyone. We think it was tilted to plaintiffs.'
— Sen.David Sibley

The change was approved by the Legislature last year as part of a lawsuit reform agenda. Lawmakers and Gov. George W. Bush said Texas had gained an anti-business reputation under the former law.

"The doctrine of joint and several liability imposes on those who are only minimally responsible a burden which is unreasonable and unfair," said Jerry Johns, president of Southwestern Insurance Information Service, an insurance industry group.

But Jan Fox, president of the Texas Trial Lawyers Association, said the change is what's unfair.

"It is not a question of causing only part of it," she said. "What the jury has found is that they have caused that injury. What the new law does is place the risk of an insolvent defendant squarely on the shoulders of the plaintiff."

Sen. David Sibley, R-Waco and sponsor of the law, said the change is intended to balance the risk between defendants and plaintiffs.

"We're trying to get to a system that is fair to everyone. We think it was tilted to plaintiffs," he said.

Sibley said while attorneys blamed the legal change for their rush to file their cases, he wonders what they have been doing since the change was approved.

"They've had a year," he said. "We wanted to try to give them some time. At the same time, we didn't want there to be an endless time."

Cybercafe: Hold the pickles, lettuce and porn

By Art Kramer and Elizabeth Lee
N.Y. Times News Service

At a cybercafe opening Sept. 1 in Helen, Ga., you'll be able to order salad on a computer terminal at your table and have it brought to you. But don't be surprised if the waiter who delivers it is peeking at your computer screen.

Under the terms of an agreement between SmArtAttack@Helen.fun and the town, Internet use by patrons of Northeast Georgia's first cybercafe will be subject to monitoring.

Cybercafes — about 100 exist in the United States — combine Internet-connected computers with the food and drink, entertainment and ambience of a restaurant or coffeehouse.

The Helen cafe must use software that blocks access to Internet sites carrying "offensive" content and install warnings to customers on each of the cafe's 10 screens.

"We wanted to make sure this didn't turn into a sex parlor serving alcohol," said city manager Mike Palmer. "They'll have children in there, so we had to be very careful."

The northeast Georgia resort town of Bavarian-themed shops and restaurants has no adult entertainment establishments and wants to preserve its family-oriented image, said Police Chief Ted Ray.

Town officials and cafe owner Gabriel Liebermann agreed that the negotiations, which were conducted before Liebermann's liquor license was granted, were friendly.

The agreement restricts customers' access to Internet sites "which feature explicit nudity, sexual content and sexual situations," images of death and dismemberment or recipes for making explosives or drugs.

It also bars access to sites deemed "generally offensive to a reasonable person." A similar restriction in the Communications Decency Act was suspended indefinitely by a panel of federal judges in June.

Atlanta cafes have approached the issue in different ways.

"Why didn't they just make the cafe hire a policeman to look over your shoulder?" asked Bill Hoover of the Red Light Cafe in Morningside. The cafe does not place restrictions on customers.

"This is exactly the opposite of what

MCI backs Clinton

MCI Communications Corp. would prosper under a Clinton administration, chief executive Bert Roberts told the Bloomberg Forum, endorsing the Democratic incumbent on the eve of the Democratic National Convention.

Roberts, supporting President Bill Clinton over Republican challenger Bob Dole, credited the administration with enactment earlier this year of a sweeping telecommunications deregulation measure.

That legislation, passed by Congress and signed by Clinton in February, opens to long-distance companies like MCI the $100 billion local phone markets that have been controlled by the Baby Bells.

"On the one critically important issue that happened during this term, telecommunications reform, President Clinton and the administration took a leadership role," Roberts said. "We'd be better served under a Clinton administration."

Gates, co-founder sell shares

Microsoft Corp. Chairman Bill Gates and co-founder Paul Allen this month filed plans to sell a total of 1 million shares, as the software company's stock rose on expectations for sales of new products.

Gates, one of the world's wealthiest men, filed to sell 500,000 of his 141 million shares, according to the Washington Service, which tracks insider transactions. He could get $61.9 million based on the average price of 123 3/4 during the four-day period in which the filings were made.

The sales by Gates, Allen and three other executives came as the stock reached a record high of 125 1/4 on Aug. 12. The shares, which are up 40 percent this year, rose on prospects for its new version of the Windows NT operating system and its Internet software. The stock closed today at 122 7/8.

The sales aren't likely to prompt investors to dump shares of the largest maker of personal computer software, an analyst said.

"We're hanging onto Microsoft because it's a winner," said George Shirk, an analyst for The Insiders newsletter published by the Institute for Econometric Research, which owns Microsoft shares through its New Issues portfolio.

Study says Net hurting networks

SAN FRANCISCO — Hoping to reduce or end a subsidy that has kept down the cost of on-line service, local phone companies here have presented the Federal Communications Commission with studies arguing that Internet users are overtaxing phone networks and ought to pay more for monthly service.

The studies, one of which was published on the Internet, argue that a 13-year-old subsidy lets Internet service providers (ISPs) pay a fraction of what a long distance company pays to get a phone line, even though Internet calls may use more phone system capacity than voice traffic.

Eric Rabe, a vice president of Bell Atlantic, which published its study on the Net last week, said his company — along with Pacific Bell, Nynex and U.S. West — hopes to persuade the FCC to consider changing the on-line subsidy when the commission restructures phone rates next year to prepare for local phone competition.

"There are a range of options, from leaving things at status quo to treating ISPs like long-distance carriers, which we're not proposing and nobody suggests would happen," Rabe said. But, he added: "We're not in favor of letting the situation roll along as it is and hoping for the best."

Wireless laptops allow mobile connectivity

By William McCall
AP Business Writer

PORTLAND, Ore. — Nancy Melone and Tim McGuire are the typical busy couple of the '90s — she's a University of Oregon business professor; he's the dean.

But they've found a typically cutting edge way to stay in touch. Thanks to laptop computers and a wireless Internet link on campus, they can chat by e-mail — anytime, anywhere.

The wireless system, Ricochet, was created by Metricom Inc., starting with students and corporate parks and lately expanding to consumers.

Backed by Microsoft co-founder Paul Allen, Metricom has linked the entire San Francisco Bay area and is also hooking up Seattle and Washington, D.C. In the next three years, Metricom plans to cover up to 50 metropolitan areas with wireless access to laptop computer users across the nation.

"We take the laptop computer and hook it to the Internet, and those are two explosive markets," said Bill Swain, chief financial officer of the Los Gatos, Calif.-based Metricom.

Metricom networks are part of a growing move into mobile digital communications.

AT&T Wireless Service recently announced plans for PocketNet, a cellular phone that will browse the Internet for information like phone numbers, flight schedules and e-mail.

Metricom's roots are on college campuses, where it has wired the University of Oregon, Oregon State, Austin College in Sherman, Texas, the University of Miami in Florida, California Polytechnic in San Luis Obispo, Calif., the University of California at Berkeley and at Santa Cruz and Stanford.

Buying a used computer can be smart move

By Bill Husted
N.Y. Times News Service

If you've ever purchased a used car, you already know a lot about buying a used PC.

Many of the same rules apply. Shopping the used market is a good way to get more for your money. In return for those savings, you assume the risk of buying someone else's problems.

That's why buying a used machine isn't for everyone.

John Hastings is president of Atlanta-based American Computer Exchange. The Exchange is a national brokerage for used computers, and its job is matching buyer and seller. In a typical month, it is responsible for selling several hundred used machines. But even Hastings urges novices to start with a new computer.

"It's much better to go to a store and get some hand-holding," he said. "That is well worth some extra money, which they usually charge for the advice and assistance you can get from a good store."

But for more experienced computer users who both know the kind of machine they need and how to look for possible trouble spots on a used machine, the savings can be significant. For instance, you should be able to find a name brand Pentium PC with a 1 gigabyte hard drive for $1,000 or less — often considerably less — in the used market.

And strangely, that used machine may be more reliable than a brand-new one.

Electrical engineers know that with solid state electronic devices, such as a computer, components are most likely to fail during their first 24 to 48 hours of operation. Once that initial period

Can't attend a funeral? Watch it on the Internet

By Donna Murphy Weston

TRENTON, N.J. — Sometimes a death in the family brings guilt as well as grief because farflung relatives cannot travel to the funeral. The solution: services uploaded live onto the Internet.

The latest twist in bereavement gets a tryout on Monday, with coverage of the off-Broadway play "Grandma Sylvia's Funeral." Computer users who log on can view a succession of live pictures updated every 30 seconds and "chat" with other mourners.

Modern realities demanded a modern solution, said Jack Martin, president of Simplex Knowledge Co., the White Plains, N.Y.-based outfit behind the cyberfuneral concept.

Windows '95 hangover lingers one year later

By Leslie Gornstein
N.Y. Times News Service

It's been a year since Jim Boughton went to the fair. But he's still amazed.

With the nod of Microsoft CEO Bill Gates, Boughton and about 350 other volunteers got to hobnob on the green slopes of the company's Redmond, Wash., campus for the exclusive debut party of Windows 95.

With Ferris wheels spinning and Jay Leno as master of ceremonies, Gates introduced what the industry now considers to be the most popular operating system for personal computers.

"What a party," remembered the Fort Worth computer specialist, who spent months helping Microsoft iron out bugs for one of the most hyped pieces of software ever introduced. "People would have killed for one of those invitations."

A year later, some in the computer industry are still feeling the hangover. No one in the high-tech world doubts that Windows 95 sold exceptionally well. But analysts say Microsoft's sales tactics for the system have helped contribute to plummeting microchip prices, impossible new standards for computer retailers, and outright disappointment for some software makers.

"The expectations were built beyond any realistic, achievable level," said Mike Kirstein, senior PC analyst for In-Stat, a market research company in Scottsdale, Ariz. "It was an almost insurmountable amount of hype."

Windows 95 has been widely hailed as a success. Among other benefits, the operating system has allowed users to more easily work on several tasks at once. It has also made it simpler to install and use gadgets like sound cards.

WINDOWS: Business moves slow in adopting Win '95

(From 1B)

Microsoft has not been shy in noting the program's success.

Its site on the World Wide Web says that one-fourth of all adult computer users use Windows 95 and that more that 400 PC makers have offered it preinstalled on their machines.

Even IBM, procurer of rival platform OS/2, has begun shipping computers pre-loaded with Windows 95.

"I don't think we have sold anything quite so much as Windows 95," said Adam Taylor, Microsoft group product manager.

The corporate joy has not stopped at Microsoft's door. Some computer retailers have enjoyed a trickle-down boost in results. During the quarter that Windows 95 was introduced, Dallas-based CompUSA posted a 3 percent to 5 percent increase in comparable-store sales, a bump that CEO Jim Halpin attributes to the new software.

"Yeah, that's a lot," Halpin said.

And Microsoft says it will sell a lot more. It expected to have sold 40 million copies of the platform by the end of last week, a number that rivals sales of Michael Jackson albums and tickets for the Broadway musical "Les Miserables."

Still, even those numbers weren't enough to meet some of the sales forecasts driving product rollouts and production schedules in the computer industry a year ago. And few expected that corporations would delay purchasing Windows 95 in favor of the next system coming down the pike.

The industry had estimated that Microsoft would sell 30 million copies of Windows 95 by the end of 1995, Kirstein said. But the company shipped only about 17 million copies during that four-month period. Microsoft would not confirm the number.

"The whole industry bought too much," said Jim Hamilton, vice president and general manager at Computer City, the Fort Worth-based retailer owned by Tandy Corp. "Computer City was locked and loaded with inventory."

Businesses have been especially slow to adopt Windows 95, choosing to wait for even more-powerful operating systems. About three-quarters of the Windows 95 sales have been through pre-installed systems on new PCs.

Microsoft is partly responsible for the disappointments, said Chris Le Tocq, principal analyst at Dataquest, a technology industry research house in San Jose, Calif.

On the eve of the launch, Microsoft made statements that downplayed Windows 95 in favor of an even more up-and-coming platform, Windows NT.

"They positioned Windows 95

WIRELESS: Government, market force principal backers

Internet seemed like a dream," said Kevin Schaper, a University of Oregon computer science student who's hooked into Ricochet. "Now I can always get to my machine, no matter where I am."

For many computer users, a Ricochet connection takes the place of a second phone line, freeing up their main number for old-fashioned talking. The cost per month — $29.95 per month for regular hookup and $19 95 for students — is often less than the price of a second line and separate Internet access through a commercial provider.

"It really is slick," said Gordon Andersen, an Oregon State bookstore manager who sells the system and helps students set it up. "A lot of people are getting more mobile and they need access to a computer network."

Metricom customers plug small wireless modems about the size of a TV remote control into a laptop computer. They relay signals to larger modems about the size of a shoe box, hung on utility poles, which in turn relay signals to leased telephone lines.

The signals are routed to Houston and linked to the Internet.

The first campus to be wired was the University of California at Santa Cruz, not far from the corporate headquarters of Metricom. Since its hookup, the school has avoided spending on rewiring for additional phone lines, said Fred Siff, the associate vice chancellor for computing.

"You don't have to build a national infrastructure to make it happen," Siff said. "You don't have to orbit a satellite. You just hang these things on light poles, and you grow it as demand grows."

Growth beyond the confines of academia will depend on how fast consumers and businesses adapt, said Andy Seybold, publisher of the newsletter Outlook on Mobile Computing.

"The question in my mind is, is it a consumer tool, or a business tool?" Seybold said. "The college campus model is right on the money. The students don't want to be wired."

But government and market forces all are pushing toward wireless communication for the broad consumer market, Seybold said. Perhaps the real question for Metricom is whether it can expand fast enough, he said.

"The federal government seems to think the consumer has an insatiable appetite for all things wireless," Seybold said, "and I'm not sure I buy that. But once you start it, you can't go back."

FUNERALS: Many operators skeptical of idea

guilt when they can't attend funerals," Martin said Friday. "If everyone lived in the same town the way it used to be, they would all go together and then have dinner and cry. This way, they get to be more connected with their family and friends again and still have their lives."

Michael Lathrop of Largo, Fla., who writes about the Internet for Today in Funeral Service magazine was surprised such a site wasn't developed sooner. And with funeral attendance waning, the time seems right, he said.

In 1990, 79 percent of funeral goers responding to a survey by the Wirthlin Group, in McLean, Va., said they had attended another funeral in the previous two years. In 1995, that figure declined to 70 percent.

"It kind of depersonalizes it, but it's better than missing it," Lathrop said of the Internet funeral experience. "If it's presented properly and tastefully, I can see a decline in the number of people traveling great distances for funerals of distant relatives."

Some in the business cringed at the idea.

"It's too impersonal," said Barry Wien, of Wien & Wien Funeral Directors in Englewood. "It's just too sensitive a situation. I think people want to be there and be part of it."

Some funeral directors, however, have been receptive.

Discussions were continuing Friday with about three dozen funeral homes across the country, said Martin of Montvale. None had yet committed to the $6,500 introductory offer for the service, he said, which he expected to climb to $10,000 once the service gets established.

For the money, funeral directors get a high-end graphics computer, a modem, cameras and all the necessary software. Simplex Knowledge will handle technical details for a to-be-determined fee per funeral.

Families can arrange either public or private services, in which a password is needed. Either way, Martin said, there would be no way for Net surfers to just browse from funeral to funeral, because each service would have its own address.

Wien, the Englewood funeral director, remained skeptical of the idea, but granted it could fit in extreme situations.

"Only in some odd circumstance when somebody cannot attend, like a soldier who's stationed on a ship and can't get off," Wien said. "I don't see someone calling up and saying 'OK, lets do it at 1:30 Thursday on the Internet.'"

WINDOWS: Microsoft has impact on falling chip prices

by saying that its compatibility is first and reliability is second," Le Tocq said, "and with NT, that reliability is first and compatibility second."

Businesses, predictably, decided to wait for the more reliable product, and continued to use Windows 95's predecessor, Windows 3.1. The Windows NT 4.0 version was rolled out this month.

That behavior has led Le Tocq to downgrade sales estimates. Dataquest says Windows 95 shipments will reach 45.7 million units this year, down 27 percent from estimates made earlier this year.

Microsoft's last-minute statements may have also burned some software companies.

Last summer, Corel Corp., a Canadian maker of drawing software, poured most of its development budget into Corel Draw 6, one of the first applications designed specifically for Windows 95.

But Corel counted too heavily on corporate sales that did not materialize, Corel officials said.

The company got a boost last quarter from a new acquisition, but only after a first-quarter loss of $9 million and a loss of $1.2 million for the fourth quarter of 1995.

Gross revenues came in at half of what Corel had hoped for last year.

If not for Corel's older software releases, the company would not have made the small profit it saw last year, said Arlen Bartsch, executive director of sales and marketing at Corel.

"If I had been developing applications exclusively for Windows 95, I would have been upset," he said. "We were clearly hoping for more momentum out of the Windows 95 camp in the early days."

The nation's chip makers have had it tough, too, suffering from a fall in memory prices that analysts partially attribute to miscalculations in Windows 95 sales.

Memory chip prices have fallen further and faster this year than at any time since 1985.

Chip prices typically fall as technology ages. But this year's drop has left the industry reeling.

In-Stat says chip prices have fallen 56 percent, from $3.20 per 4-megabit module in 1995 to $1.40 this year.

Overly excited chip makers simply made too many chips, resulting in a glut that hurt prices, Kirstein said. That's partially because many of them had false hopes of continuing to grow at the brisk, 20 percent-per-year clip they had enjoyed the past several years.

But it's also because of the Windows 95 hype, Kirstein said.

"When the bubble burst, the inventories were sitting on the shelf and needed to be cleared," he said. "Windows 95 has helped contribute to the turmoil that the semiconductor industry still experiences today."

Officials at Texas Instruments, the Dallas chip maker that has seen three consecutive quarters of falling net income, acknowledged that Windows 95 had something to do with dropping memory prices. But officials declined to talk about it further.

Even Halpin, whose company has enjoyed double-digit sales growth, acknowledges that things could have been better.

"Windows 95 is the new operating system for computer systems today," Halpin said. But, the CompUSA executive said, "when all is said and done, it could have sold more."

He has already said that he will not be able to top his comparable-store sales for August because of the bump Windows 95 caused last year.

Kirstein blames a "master hype job on the part of Microsoft" for disappointing companies like Corel and the chip makers.

But Microsoft's Taylor said success through such an advanced system requires patience.

"There is no doubt that the excitement and the hype for the product had a life of its own by the time the product launched," he said. But "it does take time."

And even Corel, which has voiced its disappointment in Windows 95 sales, says it cannot fully blame Microsoft for its troubles.

"These are calculated risks that you do in the business," Bartsch said.

USED: Many pitfalls still await purchasers of pre-owned units passes, the likelihood of failure goes down. Most manufacturers of high-end computers use a so-called burn-in period. The machine is left on during that time in an effort to find components that are likely to fail. Machines that pass the test are then sent to consumers.

In an effort to cut costs, some manufacturers skip the burn-in step, shipping the machines directly from the assembly line.

"I have heard of clone manufacturers with a failure rate as high as 30 percent," Hastings said. "Our problem rate with used machines is less than 2 percent."

But there are still many pitfalls awaiting purchasers of used PCs. That's why it's important to either buy from a business that offers a money-back guarantee, or buy from an individual only after carefully evaluating the PC before money changes hands.

Jack Burton, manager of the Computer Renaissance store in Marietta, Ga., which sells both new and used computers, thinks that some used computers, no matter how well they work, are bad buys. He recommends staying away from some earlier generation 80486 PCs that were not easily upgraded. Most newer 80486 and Pentium machines allow direct replacement of the processor chip.

"We try to recommend a used computer that can be upgraded as far as its processor, video card and adding multimedia" accessories such as a CD- ROM drive and sound cards, he said.

Some shoppers might shy away from used machines that have too little RAM memory or a small hard disk. They're passing up a bargain, Hastings thinks. The flaws will lower the price of the machine.

"It is an ideal situation," he said. Hard disk and RAM prices are at an all-time low so "you can boost them for very little money."

Some of the risks associated with buying a used computer have more to do with the reliability of the seller than the machine. Both Hastings and Burton warn of the risks associated with buying from a seller you don't know who offers to ship the machine.

"You might buy a box of rocks," Hastings notes.

That's why common sense is the most important tool in buying a used machine.

"If the deal seems too good to be true, it probably is," Hastings warns. Good advice, whether you're buying a used car or Computer.

CYBERCAFES: Some customers not happy

(From 1B)

the Internet is supposed to be," said Marc Schiller, vice president of new media for the House of Blues, which sponsored the 100-terminal Java Joint cybercafe during the Olympics.

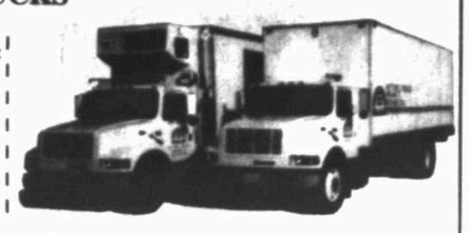

But at recently opened Cyberstache, a 10-screen cafe in Virginia-Highland, the owners are voluntarily implementing a no-porn policy to create a family friendly atmosphere.

"We have no rules posted, but our employees are instructed that if they see anything on the screen that's inappropriate, to quietly suggest that the customer change the display," said Brad Jancik, director of technology.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Storytelling set

Memorial Christian Church, 1001 Andrews Highway, is hosting guest storyteller Andy Mangum 9:30 a.m. Sunday.

All Sunday School classes will meet together for the storytelling. Mangum is a second-year student at Brite Divinity School of Texas Christian University and serves part-time as associate minister of Central Christian Church, Weatherford. He earned his bachelor's and master's degrees in speech communication at West Texas State University. He has been a storyteller for about four years.

There will be no 8:30 a.m. service Sunday. At the 10:50 a.m. service, the Rev. Jim Rudd's message will be "The Lure of the Easy Way," based on Matthew 16:21-28.

The Sunday School hour is from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. The age and grade groupings include 2 through pre-kindergarten 5, kindergarten through first grade, second and third grade, fourth and fifth grade, sixth through eighth grade, and ninth through 12th grade.

Performance set

Phil Aguilar with Set Free Ministries and his band, "West Coast Flavor," will perform at the Yucca Theatre, 208 N. Colorado Ave., Sept. 6.

Doors open at 8 p.m. for the free concert. The performance of rap and rock-'n'-roll-style music is sponsored by Northeast Community Church.

Aguilar's ministry in Los Angeles, Calif., focuses on youth and the challenges they face especially with drugs and gangs.

Clinic to be held

The music ministry of Kelview Heights Baptist Church is hosting a choral clinic with Tommy Lyons of San Antonio Friday and Sept. 7.

AWANA Clubs, a Bible-based program for children 3 through sixth grade, will begin at 7 p.m. Sept. 1.

Ladies Bible Study groups begin the fall season with a study of "Boundaries" at 11 p.m. Sept. 11.

Kelview's graded choir program for ages 3 through sixth grade begins at 7 p.m. Sept. 18.

The Sunday schedule of services are 9 and 11 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. for preaching services and 10 a.m. for Bible classes for all ages. The church's pastor, the Rev. Frank Johnson, invites the public to attend. The church is off Big Spring Street at Scharbauer Drive.

Meeting planned

The annual meeting of the Big Spring District of the United Methodist Women will be 9:30 a.m. to noon Sept. 7 at First United Methodist Church, Big Spring.

The program will feature Dr. Randy Bell, D.D.S., and his wife, Glenna, reporting on their recent mission trip to Russia. The contact person for the mission team in Russia was Dr. Chris Hina, a medical doctor appointed by the Board of Global Ministries by the UMC.

The business meeting will include election and installation of new officers and acceptance of the 1997 budget.

The meeting is open to the public.

Singles welcome

The Catholic Singles Ministry, Single and Single Again, welcomes all singles to join as the group kicks off the fall meeting schedule Sept. 7 in the PCR Room at St. Ann's Catholic Church.

Guest speaker will be David McKeon, who will speak on "Living Beyond Your Memories: Letting Go and Moving On." Hours are 3 to 6 p.m.

McKeon is a family therapist in private practice in Rockwall. He and his wife, Margie, are co-presidents of the National Association of IMAGO Relationship Therapists.

A potluck question and answer dinner with the speaker will follow.

For more information call 689-4639 or 694-5064.

Event hosted

The Midland Para Cristo Crusade will be hosting a dinner-concert beginning at 6:30 p.m. Sept. 7 in the pecan grove behind La Iglesia Bautista Gracia, 1305 N. Midland Drive.

The concert will feature Hispanic Christian music artist Nueva Vida from Big Spring. The dinner will include Mexican, Guatemalan and Tejano foods.

Admission is $5. Tickets may be purchased at Alamo Heights Baptist Church, First Baptist Church or by calling 697-3101.

Monies raised will go to help pay for a community-wide evangelistic crusade in October. La Iglesia Bautista Gracia is a mission of Alamo Heights Baptist Church.

Celebration set

ODESSA — A celebration Mass is planned for Holy Redeemer Catholic Church here at 6 p.m. today with the Rev. Frank Chavez officiating.

The Midland/Odessa Deanery Catholic Deacons are celebrating their 20th anniversary as permanent deacons. There are 43 deacons serving throughout the diocese in a variety of areas: parishes, prisons, hospitals, diocesan agencies, shelters, food programs, drug and alcohol rehabilitation programs, Bible studies, sacramental preparation programs and RCIA and marketplace ministry. They are under the guidance of the Most Rev. Bishop Michael Pfeifer.

Midland/Odessa Deanery Deacons include from Midland, Hubert Collins and Jesse Guajardo; from Odessa, Ignacio Cisneros, Antonio Gonzales and Barney Rodriquez; from Fort Stockton, Andres Hernandez and Cosme Ureta; from Big Spring, David King and Wayne Rock; and from Stanton, Ernie Sanchez.

A covered dish reception will follow the celebration in the parish hall.

Lecture scheduled

A Christian Enrichment Lecture Series entitled "Finding Happiness Through Jesus Christ" is set for Oct. 6-9 at North Midland Drive Church of Christ, 5206 N. Midland Drive.

Guest speaker will be Michael Tackett, who has preached on the "Key to the Kingdom" television and radio program since it began in 1992.

The sessions and their times are as follows: Oct. 6, 9:30 a.m., "Jesus, through the Eyes of His Brother James," and 10:30 a.m., "The Cross: The Icon of the Ages," and 6:30 p.m., "The Echo of the Empty Tomb"; Oct. 7, 7 p.m., "Christ as He Walked Among Us"; Oct. 8, 7 p.m., "Overcoming Hardship through His Power"; and Oct. 9, 7 p.m. "Happy in Jesus."

A free nursery will be available. A potluck fellowship will follow the morning services. For more information call 682-6334 or 689-0272.

Duties assumed

St. Paul's Anglican Church, ACA, will welcome the Rev. Dale L. Stinson Sunday as he assumes his duties as rector of the parish.

At that time, the Rev. Charles E. Hageman will retire after the past 10 years in this position. Stinson will be installed Sept. 8.

Stinson, a life-long Anglican, is a native of Niskayuna, N.Y., and a graduate of the State University of New York at Albany in 1973. he served in the U.S. Air Force before joining the U.S. Immigration and naturalization Service and the Drug Enforcement Administration.

Stinson, with his wife, Christine, and daughters Brianna, 12, and Kathleen, 9, have resided in Alpine since 1990. Before his recent retirement he was resident agent in charge of the U.S. INS and U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration.

Stinson's theological training has been through the Mentor Program of the diocese of the Southwest, which is patterned after the Oxford University Mentor Program.

DON'T LOOK BACK

We used to own a station wagon with a third seat in the "way back". We called it the "way back" to distinguish it from the back seat. The only problem was that it faced the back of the car, and whenever the children sat there for a long trip, some would get carsick. We would always joke that they could see where they had been. Life is something like a way back seat; if we dwell too much on the past, it can sometimes make us sick. We should keep our eyes on the future and learn from the past, but we live in the present. The Bible tells us to live one day at a time. That doesn't mean we shouldn't plan for the future, but since only God really knows the future, we should enjoy today.

Tourism in Texas drops slightly from 1995

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas tourism season wasn't as great as last year, when hotel occupancy hit record highs, but the industry still says it was better than most.

Labor Day weekend marks the close of the summer travel season. Official visitor figures are not yet available, but hotel occupancy — the next best indicator — was down slightly statewide in July, The Dallas Morning News reported Friday.

The state's average hotel occupancy last month was 70.4 percent, down from 71.0 percent last year, according to PKF Consulting, a Houston-based hotel industry consulting firm.

The beach destinations of Corpus Christi, South Padre Island and Galveston had the highest average occupancies at more than 80 percent each.

The summer drought affected tourism, especially water-dependent areas such as the inner-tube and rafting areas of the Hill Country.

"The perception of there being no water in the Hill Country kept people out of the Hill Country this summer," said Don Hansen, executive vice-president of the Texas Hotel and Motel Association.

With some kids going back to school as early as Aug. 5, theme parks and other attractions had a shortened season. It currently is open on weekends only.

The $24.5 billion industry was still happy, though, because this summer may have marked the return of the long family vacation.

Galveston, which underwent a $5.9 million beach cleanup and restoration last year, reported big increases in families visiting its alcohol-free beaches.

The island started a "beach nourishment" program last year to respond to criticism that its beaches are too dirty and uninviting to families. It cleaned and expanded the beach along a 51-block length of the seawall.

The city also piped in 710,000 cubic yards of sand to rebuild beaches directly in front of hotels, and set out chairs and umbrellas. Most areas were designated alcohol-free.

"The seawall every weekend just had cars taking up every available space," said Wendy Dehnert, executive director of the city's Park Board of Trustees. "We did notice we had more families. That's basically our target market."

The first-place Texas Rangers probably made staying in Arlington longer and visiting Six Flags Over Texas even more popular.

"The idea of staying a few days is catching on dramatically, and the Rangers are helping," said park spokesman Bruce Neal. "It's starting to be something for the whole family to do together."

Before summer, 54 percent of pleasure travelers surveyed by AAA said they planned to take their children with them — the highest percentage ever.

Travelers also said they planned to spend an average 8.5 nights away from home on their longest trips, up from 7.9 nights last summer.

Angels split pair with Missions

By Tom Ruiz
MRT Correspondent

Missions 2-1
Angels 1-4

After tonight's season-ending game Midland Angel righthander Phil Leftwich is going home to play with his kids.

But on Friday night he took care of a little business first by pitching a six-hit complete game in a 4-1 win over the San Antonio Missions to salvage a split in a doubleheader at Christensen Stadium.

Midland lost the opener 2-1 as Mission pitcher Petie Roach (6-3) held the Angels to five hits.

Leftwich (4-2) mesmerized the San Antonio lineup throughout the game. The Missions scored their only run on a throwing error in the first inning.

After Leftwich sat the first two Missions batters down on strikeouts, left fielder Karim Garcia ripped a double to left field.

He later scored when Paul Konerko grounded to third, but the throw by Aaron Guiel was errant to first which brought home the unearned run.

San Antonio would not score again. Leftwich ended the game with five strikeouts and from the second inning to the leadoff man of the fifth he retired 10 batters in a row.

"I really had good command of my pitches tonight," Leftwich said. "It was a good game for me, you always want to go out on a positive note which hopefully will carry over to a good camp next year."

While Leftwich was contributing on his end, the Midland offense did not let him down.

Trailing 1-0 in the first, the Angels rallied to take the lead for good when center fielder Basilio Ortiz singled. Ty Boykin then followed with a home run to centerfield to give the Angels a 2-1 lead.

Midland added two more runs in their half of the fourth after two outs. Keith Luuloa started things by beating out a throw to first. Randy Betten then drove Luuloa home with a double.

Eddie Christian then sprayed a single

MHS coach all smiles after victory

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

BIG SPRING — For the past three weeks it's been hard to find a true smile on the face of David Browning, Midland High's new head football coach.

Well, he had a big one here Friday after his Bulldogs pulled off a scrimmage win over the Big Spring Steers.

Maybe the reason for no smiles is just because Browning has put his game face on for the 1996 football season. Or, maybe, it was the loss of half his quarterbacking corps to injuries. Or, maybe, he was afraid his Bulldogs would fall flat on their faces with the first opponent.

Or, maybe, it was a combination of all the above. After all, midway through the scrimmage, MHS assistant coach Wes Cope said, "At least we didn't throw up our skirts and run."

MHS outscored the Steers 2-1 in the regular phase of the scrimmage and then got a 34-yard Zach Inman field goal for a 3-0 verdict in the one full quarter phase of play. The MHS first team offense scored both touchdowns on a four-yard run by Camar Jackson and a three-yard run by Sammy Powell. In fact, Jackson's score came on the very first possession of the scrimmage, which was set up by Jackson's 30-yard run in a 65-yard drive.

"Obviously, we have some things to work on," a smiling Browning said, "but I'm tickled to death with the effort. I think our work ethic and conditioning showed and that's what we wanted to see.

"Our offensive line isn't very large by today's standards and they have to play low and use leverage. I saw that tonight."

Powell ran for a game-high 150 yards on a work load of 27 carries. But his best run of the game was a two-yard gain at the end of the scrimmage where he was hit behind the line of scrimmage and still ended up making a first down on tired guts.

"I don't know how many yards Sammy had, but that was a great effort. That run for the first down is the type of thing we want to see," Browning said.

Big Spring's TD came with second team units on the field. Steer junior Jacob Rios broke a 64-yard run to the MHS one and Mike Simone scored a play later. It was about the only major breakdown by the 'Dogs all night.

In the quarter phase, MHS converted the opening drive to Inman's field goal. It wasn't a David Leaverton boomer, but it was pure and straight. He looks like he can handle anything in that range.

MHS fullback Ryan "Rhino" Stewart carried only 10 times, but had 98 yards rushing when his offensive line blew open some quick openers.

MHS also got to the Steer 19-yard line later in the quarter, but dropped a pass in the end zone. The Bulldogs dropped three passes in the scrimmage. It is an area that still needs work.

"The passing game is there. We just

1996 MIDLAND LEE REBELS

Football, in the key of D

■ The Rebels' defense might not have the state's respect yet, but Lee should be a force in District 4-5A this season.

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

The Midland Lee Rebels will begin the 1996 football season with a defense set in the purest gold, but they also start the season a bit unloved without a Top 10 ranking.

With seven returning starters back on defense, including Texas' Most Valuable Defensive Player in John Norman, one would think this year's edition would draw better reviews across the state. However, most polls list Lee among its Top 20, but not in the Top 10 where major rival Odessa Permian resides in almost every poll.

But if you like your defense in the style of a bare-knuckled, back alley street fighter, this one is for you — hard hitting, mobile and almost always arriving in an angry mood.

Absence from the Top 10 lists doesn't seem to bother Lee coach John Parchman, entering his second year with the team after a 10-1-1 debut. Parchman was antsy all summer for practices to arrive. He is excited about the prospects this team has.

"You have to like the shape we are in on defense," Parchman said. "If our offensive line can develop like we think it can, we could have a good football team. And the kids have really been working hard and there has been a lot of competition. If we can stay away from injuries, this team could make some noise down the line."

And it will all start with the defense — which starts with John Norman — who will undoubtedly be one of the most highly-recruited players in the district over the winter.

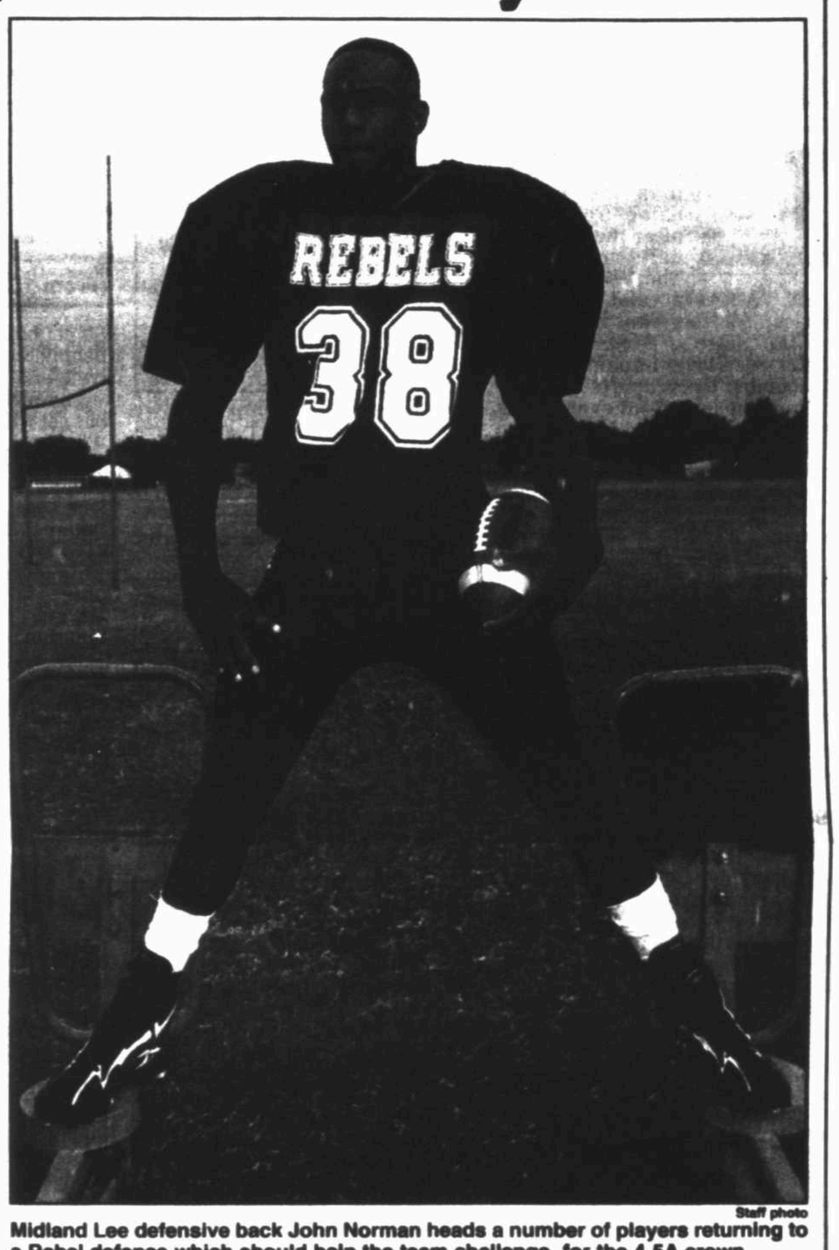

Norman returns to his safety slot with 13 interceptions in the last two years, including a 101-yard interception return against Abilene Cooper last season. But if you think you can avoid trouble by not throwing in his direction, consider the fact that Antwan Alexander and Amad Austin return at the cornerback slots and Shae Jones is back at the other safety position. It's a full deck.

Then move on to linebacker. Lee is so good at the position that three-year starter Michael Hall is being moved from the middle to the weakside position to better utilize his overall speed. Corry Pertile, who started in the playoffs at linebacker last year, has moved into the middle and newcomer Kyle Anderson will be at the strong side slot. Anderson is listed as a returning starter, but he started at linebacker at Tomball last season.

Stephan Westphal, a starting linebacker last year, has been moved to defensive end and Fred Pertile, maybe the district's best pass rusher, returns for a third year at defensive end.

That leaves just two players without starting experience of some kind. They are tackles Sam Romine and Chito

Rebels overcome slow start in scrimmage win over Socorro

By Stewart Doreen

FORT STOCKTON — Midland Lee's final lesson before the 1996 football season opener next week against El Paso Coronado didn't begin without a slight recess here Friday night.

But once play time was over, the Rebels showed why they are the defending District 4-5A champions, dismissing class in Friday's 3-1 scrimmage victory over El Paso Socorro.

"We had a slow start, but as the scrimmage went on, we got better," Midland Lee coach John Parchman said. "Hopefully, we don't start that way next week."

In the first part of the scrimmage where each team gets 20 plays with the first team offense and 20 with the second team, the Rebels looked sluggish, like they needed that first cup of coffee.

The Rebel offense went three-and-out three times before getting its first first down of the game when Leroy Robinson bull-rushed for 16 yards. Josh Nor-

Stadium vote

HOUSTON — Voters will cast ballots this fall on whether Harris County should build, operate or renovate baseball and football stadiums if property taxes are not used.

The non-binding referendum, to serve more as a temperature gauge than public edict, was approved Friday by Harris County commissioners.

The outcome will help officials decide how to proceed in the tenacious stadium dilemma.

The move comes as Houston Astros owner Drayton McLane Jr. considers beginning talks next week to sell the team. He has given the county until then to strike a deal.

Jarrett takes pole for $1 million treasure hunt

By Dick Brinster
AP Sports Writer

DARLINGTON, S.C. — Dale Jarrett proved the value of extensive testing by putting himself on the pole Friday for his million-dollar treasure hunt in the Southern 500.

In negotiating troublesome Darlington International Raceway, Jarrett broke the qualifying record for NASCAR's oldest race with a run of 170.934 mph. All the practice he had over the last month at the 1.366-mile track paid off in just the second pole of his Winston Cup career.

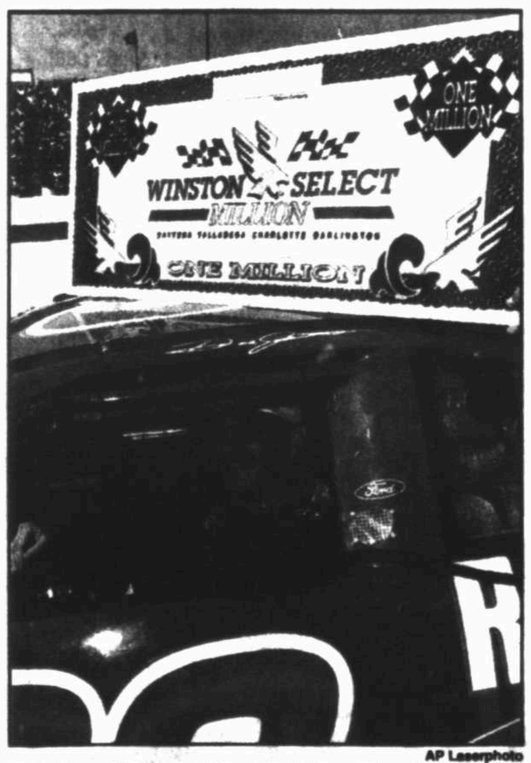

Jarrett's Ford Thunderbird was timed in 28.769 seconds, edging the Chevrolet Monte Carlo of defending series and race champion Jeff Gordon by .017 seconds. Gordon, trying to win for the third straight time at Darlington, where two races are run annually, went 170.833.

In addition to the winner's share of a $1.3 million purse, Jarrett will be trying to collect a bonus offered by series sponsor R.J. Reynolds to any driver winning three of four NASCAR majors in the same year. He won the Daytona 500 and the Coca-Cola 600, but faled in the Winston Select 500.

Only Bill Elliott has collected the Winston Select Million, accomplishing that by winning the Southern 500 in 1985, the first year the bonus was offered. Two others — Darrell Waltrip and the late Davey Allison — failed in attempts to win the bonus when they lost at Darlington.

Jarrett had been pointing toward the pole by testing fre-

Sampras survives five-set Open test

U.S. OPEN '96
A USTA EVENT

NEW YORK — In one full-throated bellow, Pete Sampras let loose all the exasperation he kept bottled up through five sets of a tight, tired and distinctly ugly flirtation with danger.

Sampras' year of misery very nearly ended in ruin Friday in the second round of the U.S. Open against an undistinguished young Czech, Jiri Novak, who made the defending champion and top seed look so vulnerable.

Sampras, who sprayed 66 unforced errors, survived this match less on power or guile than on gritty determination, a 6-3, 1-6, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4 victory that was a testament to his sheer refusal to lose.

"It was the fifth set of the U.S. Open. This is it. Either you go home tomorrow, or you stick around. I decided to stick around," Sampras said. "I never felt I would lose."

Stefan Edberg decided he would stick around, too, after dropping the first set at night and looking disgusted with himself early in the second match of his 54th straight and final Grand Slam. Edberg turned the match around in the second set after getting broken twice, won five consecutive games and wound

Norman wants one more thing: a state title

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

LEE

For Midland Lee safety John Norman the awards came rolling in after the 1995 football campaign. There was All-District, All-Area and All-State (twice). And there was that big one — the state's Most Valuable Defensive Player as named by the Associated Press Sports Editors.

And now just about everyone is saying it all came too soon. No one is saying he didn't deserve the honors, but he was only a junior. The awards, some say, came too early, too fast and too many. His feet may never hit the ground again.

Lee head football coach also wishes those kinds of honors had waited a year because of the added pressure Norman will be under this season, both on and off the field of play. Still, Parchman thinks if one person can handle the situation, it's one John Norman.

"I think all the awards and stuff put a lot of pressure on John this year," Parchman said. "And he's a legit player, and probably deserves every one of them.

"We're not worried about John Norman. He can handle anything he's going to face on the field, but there are going to be a lot of other distractions out there. We're going to help him out the best we can by limiting his access to the media during the season."

But Norman, who had 10 interceptions last year, including a school record 101-yard interception return for a touchdown against Abilene Cooper, doesn't sound like a player living in the glow of the state's limelight.

"I look back on it (the defensive MVP award) as a great accomplishment, but my high school goal has not been accomplished," Norman said. "My goal was not to get that award. My goal is to win a state championship and we haven't done that. I still have higher goals."

But even on the field, Norman is going to face situations that he has never faced before. There will be no place for him to hide, no matter who the Rebels are playing.

"Some think when you get a lot of awards, it hurts you. People start coming after you," Norman said. "But that doesn't really worry me a lot. I've been a marked man ever since I was playing in grade school. I know high school is a different level, but I'll just have to pick up my level of play and deal with it."

One other problem most people don't think about is the possible "frustration" level that Norman might endure. After all, it's quite possible that his overall defensive statistics (interceptions, TDs, tackles, assists, etc.) may actually go down without a decrease in his level of play. Teams this year will more than likely be trying to steer clear of the safety.

"That doesn't bother me at all," Norman said. "If teams try to avoid one man then you've won most of the battle already because our defense is tough and everybody can play."

It will be interesting to see where 1996 takes Norman. Naturally, he will be highly recruited when the season is over. He's just hoping when the recruiters start calling, he's a state champion, too.

REBELS: Defense ready, offense untested

(From 1C)

Subia, both very capable of establishing themselves as stars in District 4-5A.

The offense, however, is green but not without some major talent. Wingback Ricky Green, the maker of the "Phantom Catch" against Odessa Permian last year is the lone returning starter. However, junior tailback Josh Norman had 714 yards rushing last season and 10 touchdowns. Green caught 22 passes for 278 yards and four TDs last season. That's not a bad combination to start with.

The success of Lee's offense may ride on the untested shoulders of David Smith, expected to be the team's No. 1 quarterback. Smith had limited action last year, completing one of four passes for 15 yards and one interception. Alexander is also working at quarterback, but that would require losing a defensive starter. Parchman would like Smith to take control.

Running back Leroy Robinson has also been impressive early, meaning that Josh Norman won't have to carry the entire offensive load. Fullback is also in good hands with both Chad Chandler and Stacy Jones sharing duties.

Then come the newcomers. The line must mature, but both size and talent are on hand. Experience is what is needed. Other than tackle Matt Jewett, who had a couple of starting assignments, no other Rebel has starting knowledge.

Tight end Brian Boyd (230) does have experience. When Lee uses two tights, Brad Lofton (230) will get the call and share time with Boyd. Tony Frescaz has won the job at center as has guard Jesus Hernandez.

Other battles were being waged in preseason. At the tackle slots, Jewett and Jose Primera (310) were sharing duties as were Raymond Taylor and Paul Villareal on the other side. Guards Brad Gibson and Randy Quiroz were also going head to head.

Dreyfus Andrews, who has no varsity experience, will be the split end. But also expect to see John Norman, and maybe even Alexander, as wideouts in certain situations or big games.

Brian Evans, who connected on 53 extra points for Lee last season, will take on added chores this season. Evans will also handle the field goal kicking and punting duties.

"We're lacking a little in experience on the offensive side of the ball, but we have 10 or 11 linemen who can help us," Parchman said. "Since we didn't have the offensive line set coming into preseason, it has produced a lot of competition and that has made us better. They are getting better every day."

Lee opens the season Friday at El Paso Coronado (7:30 p.m. MDT). Lee also has an interesting two-year matchup with Waco High. Waco will be in town on Sept. 20. The Rebels will not meet Odessa Permian until Nov. 1, but it will be at cramped Memorial Stadium, the only game officially listed as a sellout.

With Top 10 rankings aside, virtually everyone across the state is saying that the Lee-Permian game is for the District 4-5A championship. But Lee should also be eying the Oct. 11 game against Abilene Cooper. The Cougars tied Lee a year ago, costing the Rebels a perfect regular season. Lee was 8-0-1 in regular season play and 10-1-1 after going three rounds in the state playoffs.

It may take wholesale injuries to keep this team out of the playoffs for the 13th time in the last 14 seasons.

BULLDOGS: Browning happy with result dropped the ball," Browning said.

(From 1C)

The Steers mounted a serious drive in quarter play behind starting quarterback Jerrod Helms, but Helms was sacked on a big play by MHS' Erik McCright to end the threat. McCright had several big tackles and a fumble recovery in the game.

Linebacker Devin Butts was impressive early in the scrimmage. Nick Conder and Horace Doyle also came up with fumble recoveries. Defensive back James Clay had the hit of the night, a crushing blow along the sideline.

Big Spring used two good looking quarterbacks in Helms and track star Tory Mitchell, a sophomore.

"The young one (Mitchell) has to learn that the great speed he has can't always outrun 11 men on the other side," said Steer coach Dwight Butler. "Helms is our starter, but both bring different things to the plate. Helms will be a good passer if he learns not to get so much air under his ball. I guess I just love to have quarterback controversies."

Butler, too, was not displeased with his gritty Steers.

"We saw some young kids grow up," Butler said. "We didn't move the ball consistently, but we had our chances just like they did. We do have to tackle better."

Butler felt this was a different MHS team this year.

"This is the best coached team we've seen since I came here in 1988," Butler said. "Last year, we beat them pretty good and our kids came away feeling that they were better than they really were. That scrimmage hurt us. This is what we needed this time."

Big Spring's Frankie Green and John Lawdermilk both came up with interceptions for the Steers while Jesse Bravo had a sack of Jackson.

MHS opens at home Friday against Frenship.

LEE: Team gets good workout before opener

(From 1C)

man, who rushed for 136 yards on 20 carries, followed with a 34-yard sprint around right end and ended the drive with a 12-yard touchdown run.

The defense started like the offense, coming out like they pressed the snooze alarm one too many times.

Socorro, who came close to upsetting Lee in last season's area playoff game (28-26), took the ball and scored on its first opportunity, going 70 yards in seven plays. The drive combined two passes for 42 yards and five rushes for 38 yards, including a eight-yard run for a score by Socorro's Eddie Saucedo. The subsequent chewing by the Rebel coaches fixed the problem and that was that for the Bulldogs.

"Our plays were just plain vanilla," Parchman said. "They had seen them before, not to take away from Socorro. They are a good team and have good players."

After scoreless exchanges by the second teams, the two clubs played in situations set up in two 20-minute quarters. Lee ruled this played, dominating the line of scrimmage, time clock, scoreboard and everything else. Lee ran 35 plays and didn't punt the ball compared to Socorro's 16 plays and four punts. In terms of yardage, Lee racked up 199 yards compared to 15 for Bulldogs. The first downs also went Lee's way 8-1.

Defensively, Fred Pertile, Cory Pertile, Michael Hall and Chito Subia led the way with big plays to shut down the Bulldogs' ground game.

Offensively, the Rebels got big production from Norman, who had 76 yards during the two quarters and had four plays over 10 yards. Quarterback David Smith also had his moments, especially when he and fullback Stacy Jones hooked on a 56-yard pass play down the sideline for Lee's third score.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

SATURDAY, AUGUST 31, 1996

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Get everything in writing if starting a business with relatives or friends. You need to consult experts before approving any changes in a financial agreement. Look for a soul mate in whom you can confide. Early in 1997, adventure and romance go hand-in-hand. Your ability to bring talented people together will hand you a resounding career triumph! Share the spotlight with those who have stood by you through thick and thin. Romance flourishes on consideration.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DAY: comedian Buddy Hackett, prosecutor Marcia Clark, educator Marie Montessori, baseball's Frank Robinson.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Avoid arguments with loved ones by going along with their social plans. The rapport between you and a newcomer continues to deepen. Shared experiences create a sense of comraderie.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Stop playing the hermit. A neighbor's good humor is contagious. Go over long-range plans with an eye to see where they fall short. Loved ones need more affection.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Make plans to do something special for yourself. Asking for too many favors will damage a valuable friendship. Romance is a source of delight. Your efforts to beautify your surroundings will be richly rewarded.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Speculative enterprises are not for you. The nesting instinct is stronger than ever. Protect your money and property by saying "no" to someone's whims.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Seize a chance to mingle with VIPs who can throw business your way. Someone's erratic behavior could be a plea for help. Listen closely. Try harder to settle your differences with mate or partner.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A special outing is like a breath of fresh air. Family life can be exhausting. A new ally steps forward from the crowd. Welcome suggestions. A partner's advice moves you closer to realizing your dreams.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You can shape the outcome of a showdown by being aware of other people's needs and motives. Joining a select group proves lucky for you. A decision-maker gives you the nod. Be appreciative.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A neighborhood improvement project benefits from your involvement. If low on energy, vow to become leaner and healthier. Exercising regularly will make a big difference.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A romantic partner who has disappointed you in the past is now ready to make a commitment. A creative or artistic project requires hard work. Adopting a pet brings widespread happiness.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A good day to cut loose and have fun with close friends. Someone wants to woo you. Be kind but firm if you are not interested. Do some comparison shopping before buying a computer.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A need to make more money motivates you to acquire additional skills. Consider a suggestion advanced by a friend. Joining a new organization could help you meet people with similar agendas.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A busy schedule makes it difficult for you to fulfill all of your social obligations. A friend will feel neglected unless you offer an explanation.

Former Playboy centerfold McCarthy is getting out of matchmaking scene

NEW YORK — Jenny McCarthy is getting out of the matchmaking business.

The former Playboy centerfold is leaving her job as co-host of "Singled Out," MTV's dating game, to focus on her new comedy-variety series for the network, MTV said Thursday.

McCarthy will remain at "Singled Out" for about half the new season, which begins shooting in October. Her replacement has not been selected.

Her new show will debut in December and will feature comedy sketches, interviews and action stunts. MTV is also developing a sitcom for McCarthy that will air on network television.

CHICAGO — The Kennedy boat is not easily rocked.

John F. Kennedy Jr. said the September issue of his George magazine, featuring a cover photo of Drew Barrymore evoking Marilyn Monroe's birthday serenade to President Kennedy, caused no trouble with family members.

"My family is used to all manner of controversy, so I think in the grand scheme of things this probably didn't register too high on the Richter scale," Kennedy said on "The Oprah Winfrey Show," airing Sept. 3.

Deciding to sell his mother's belongings was not a tough decision, Kennedy said.

"My mother kept every single thing that she ever got in her life, and either we were going to open a museum, or we were going to have a normal life," he said.

NEW YORK — Oprah Winfrey was never into the sweet stuff, just chips and other salty junk food.

Winfrey, who once tipped the scales at 237 pounds, said her roller-coaster weight saga is over, now that she has hired personal trainer Bob Greene. He encouraged her to exercise more and helped her understand why she ate so much.

"For me, food was comfort, pleasure, love, a friend, everything," she said in the latest issue of People magazine. "I consciously work every day at not letting food be a substitute for my emotions."

Greene's five-figure contract requires him to work out with Winfrey at least 10 hours a week. He even accompanied Winfrey and her boyfriend, Steadman Graham, on a monthlong vacation in Scotland and Italy.

"I was never a Ding Dongs, Twinkies girl," Winfrey said. "I'm into salty, crunchy foods."

BISMARCK, N.D. — Sixty years after he started his career in Bismarck, conductor Skitch Henderson is coming back.

Henderson, the 78-year-old music director of the New York Pops, played piano in Bismarck with the Henry Turner Orchestra in 1936. On Sept. 7 and 8, he will return for a Bismarck-Mandan Symphony fund-raiser.

"I remembered this being a place where I started as a professional," Henderson said. "I thought maybe it's time to pay some dues. It's strange how life comes back together."

Frank McGinnis, a retired drummer who played with Henderson in the Turner orchestra, also will be in town. Henderson is writing an autobiography and hopes McGinnis can help him.

"I hope he can fill in some things that are kind of fuzzy," Henderson said. "I've lived so many lives since then."

Johnson beaten in Berlin

By Nesha Starcevic

Tall City Relays

BERLIN — Michael Johnson got the Olympic gold, Frank Fredericks got the pot of gold.

Fredericks edged double Olympic champion Johnson to win the 200 meters at the ISTAF track and field Grand Prix meet Friday and became one of the five athletes to share a jackpot of gold.

Fredericks powered home in the final 100 meters to win in 19.97 seconds. Johnson, who achieved a historic double at Atlanta by becoming the first man to win the 200 and 400 at the same Olympics and set a world record of 19.32 for the 200, lost for the second time to the Namibian this year. He was timed in 20.02.

"I came to Berlin not to lose," Fredericks said. "It isn't fun for me to be beaten by Michael every time. Atlanta is now past and I am curious what the future is going to bring.

"I ran fast and I was concentrated."

Fredericks also won the event at Oslo, handing Johnson his first defeat in any finals race in two years.

"Oslo gave me the attitude," Fredericks said. "I knew then that he wasn't invincible."

Oslo was the first of the Golden Four series of meets. By also winning the 200 at Zurich, Brussels and Berlin, Fredericks assured himself of a share of the jackpot of 44 pounds of gold — about $250,000 — awarded to athletes who win their events at all four of the lucrative meets.

Others getting $50,000 each from the richest prize in track and field were Lars Riedel, Wilson Kipketer, Jonathan Edwards and Stefka Kostadinova.

Riedel, the Olympic champion from Germany, got a share of the jackpot when he hurled the discus 231 feet, 7 inches. Anthony Washington of the United States was second at 224-6.

But another Olympic champion, Derrick Adkins, lost his chance to claim a share of the gold when he finished third in the 400-meter hurdles.

"I lost a lot of money today, but that's how life goes," Adkins said.

Torrance Zellner of the United States won in 48.23, Olympic silver medalist Samuel Matete of Zambia was second in 48.34, with Adkins timed in 48.62.

Kipketer, a Kenyan who competes for Denmark, won the 800 in 1:43.34.

Kostadinova, of Bulgaria, won the women's high jump at 6-8 to earn her part of the jackpot.

Edwards, the British world record-holder in the triple jump and the Olympic silver medalist, soared 58-0 1/2 to win the event and his share of the gold. Yoelvis Quesada of Cuba, bronze medalist at Atlanta, was second at 57-2 3/4, and Kenny Harrison, the Olympic champion, placed third at 56-3 3/4.

After losing at Oslo, Johnson beat Fredericks for the Olympic gold medal at Atlanta. Fredericks, who does not run the 400, won silvers in the 100 and 200.

"I don't remember the start, I just remember feeling his breath on my shoulder down the stretch," Fredericks said. "He puts a lot of heat on in the turns, and if he doesn't come out with a lead, then I feel pretty good. That's the way it was in Oslo.

"In a race like this, the time doesn't matter. I'd be happy to run 20.20 and win."

"I can't win everything," Johnson said, before skipping the post-race press conference with Fredericks.

Ato Boldon of Trinidad & Tobago, bronze medalist at Atlanta in the 100 and 200, again finished third in the 200, in 20.37.

Gail Devers, winner of the women's Olympic 100-meter title, won again in 10.89, beating silver medalist Merlene Ottey of Jamaica (10.94) and bronze medalist Gwen Torrence (11.07).

In the men's 100, Dennis Mitchell beat Olympic champion Donovan Bailey of Canada for the third time since Atlanta. Mitchell clocked 10.08, Michael Green of Jamaica was second in 10.09 and Bailey third in 10.13.

Henke leads GMO; Woods makes cut

By Sharon Thelmer

Pro Golf Roundup

MILWAUKEE — Nolan Henke's 5-under-par 66 on Friday put him two shots ahead of the field after two rounds of the Greater Milwaukee Open. Tiger Woods' 69 put him three strokes above the cut line in his professional debut.

Henke's 36-hole total of 14-under 128 at Brown Deer Park Golf Course had him eight strokes ahead of Woods, who said he was glad to survive the cut, but it was "weird" being so far off the lead.

Woods trailed 29 players, including Duffy Waldorf, who was second at 130 after a second 65, and Bob Estes, Loren Roberts, Jesper Parnevik and Mike Heinen, all grouped at 11-under 131. Estes, who was two strokes behind Henke after the first round, had a 67, Roberts a 65, Parnevik a 66 and Heinen a 63.

"I should be a lot closer," Woods said. "When you play a four-round tournament you're going to have that one off-day and hopefully this is my off-day."

The 20-year-old three-time U.S. Amateur and reigning NCAA champion had four birdies and two bogeys in a round watched eagerly by a large gallery that wasn't shy about shouting praise and encouragement.

Woods said the crowd, just as big as that for his Thursday debut, wasn't to blame for some poor iron shots and missed putts.

"I just have to be more sharp," Woods said. "I wasn't precise enough to shoot the low scores."

Woods said he was having problems with the positioning of his left arm on shorter shots.

He said his goal was to shoot in the mid-60s in the final two rounds.

Looking at the long-term, the Nike endorsement deal he signed this week, reportedly worth $40 million, "relieves a lot of the pressure," Woods said.

"I don't have to depend on play for my income," Woods said. "I'm pretty much financially set for life."

Woods said he probably wouldn't fully comprehend the worth of the contract until the money is in his bank account.

"I've seen those amounts before, in economics books we use those things in examples, but I've never seen that as describing Tiger Woods," he said.

The hordes of fans trailing Woods were a plus for Henke, 31, who had a sparse following as he recorded an eagle on a 35-foot putt along with four birdies and a bogey.

"It makes it easier for me, playing-wise. Everybody's out there following Tiger," Henke said. "I like to hide a little."

A victory would be Henke's first since the 1993 BellSouth Classic. Henke, 85th on the PGA money list with $187,526, had his best finish this year in a tie for fourth in the Chrysler Classic.

"I'm definitely surprised," Henke said of his first two rounds. "I just came up here hoping to make the cut."

Carl Paulson was at 132, one stroke ahead of Steve Stricker, Russ Cochran, Billy Andrade, Mike Sullivan and Jerry Kelly.

Last year's GMO champion, Scott Hoch, was at 135.

Franklin Quest Championship

PARK CITY, Utah — Gary Player tamed the winds at Park Meadows Golf Club on Friday, shooting an 8-under-par 64 to take a one-stroke lead after the first round of the Franklin Quest Championship.

Player, who had not played in a tournament in more than a month, carded nine birdies over the 7,104-yard mountain course for a lead over John Jacobs.

Player, 60, endured a 20-hour trip before arriving in Utah on Tuesday.

"I putted phenomenal today," he said. "I had three putts go in and out of the hole, otherwise my round could have been better."

Jacobs, in his second year on the Senior PGA Tour, also had nine birdies despite a bad back.

"My back has really been bothering me the last month or so, but started to feel better when I used some magnets last week," Jacobs said.

With the exception of a 20-footer, Jacobs' birdie putts were all inside 10 feet, the result of steady iron play.

Second-year senior Ed Sneed was third at 66, followed by Mike McCullough, Dave Eichelberger and Bobby Stroble at 67. Al Geiberger and Jack Kiefer were at 68.

Defending champion Tony Jacklin faded to a 74, while former champions Dave Stockton and Tom Weiskopf shot 70 and 74, respectively.

British Masters

COLLINGTREE, England — Australian Robert Allenby, seeking his third victory of the season, fired a 1-under-par 71 Friday to take a one-stroke lead after three rounds of the $1.1 million British Masters.

Winner of the English and French Opens, Allenby had a 54-hole score of 211.

One stroke behind him was Spain's Pedro Linhart, whose third round 67 gave him a total of 212 at the Collingtree Park course in central England.

Four strokes behind him were another Spaniard, Miguel Angel Martin, who shot 71, and Italy's Ryder Cup star Costantino Rocca, who carded a 72.

"Tee to green I was pretty flawless," said Allenby, who double bogeyed the first, also bogeyed the 12th but collected four birdies.

Ian Woosnam, fiercely critical of the greens Thursday after his second round 76, shot a 71 Friday after birdies on the last two holes.

Tiger to play in Texas Open

Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — U.S. Amateur Golf champion Tiger Woods will play in the La Cantera Texas Open Oct. 10-13, the PGA Tour has announced.

"We are just as excited as we can be to get this marquee player here," said Reid Meyers, president of the San Antonio Golf Association. "We would love it if he could be our winner."

Woods, the most heralded amateur golfer since Jack Nicklaus, is embarking on his professional career this week in the Greater Milwaukee Open. Woods said he'll play up to six more events this year.

The 1996 NCAA champion from Stanford won an unprecedented third straight U.S. Amateur title Sunday. He announced Tuesday he was turning pro.

Lobo says no to Blizzard

By Donna Tommelleo
Associated Press Writer

HARTFORD, Conn. — Two years of undefeated basketball has taken its toll on former Connecticut star and gold medalist Rebecca Lobo, who said Friday she will take time off from the sport and not play with the New England Blizzard of the American Basketball League.

"For the past two years I have been playing basketball without a break and my body is very tired," Lobo said in a statement released through her agent, Kenton Edelin. "I thought relaxing after the Olympics would rejuvenate me. Unfortunately this has not occurred."

Blizzard spokesman Steve Raczynski said the team learned of Lobo's decision early Friday evening.

The announcement ended two months of speculation whether Lobo would join the Blizzard and be reunited with Connecticut teammate Jennifer Rizzotti or opt for playing opportunities elsewhere. Lobo was also being courted by a new women's league sponsored by the NBA.

Lobo, the top draft pick of the nascent professional women's team, led UConn to an unprecedented 35-0 season and the national championship in 1995.

The 6-foot-4 forward-center was the consensus player of the year, averaging 17.1 points and 9.8 rebounds per game.

Shortly after UConn's undefeated campaign, Lobo joined the Olympic team, which capped a grueling 60-0 worldwide campaign with a gold medal in Atlanta.

The Southwick, Mass. native, who will turn 23 on Friday, said the decision was an "incredibly difficult" one.

Lee volleyball 3rd in pool

SAN ANGELO — The Midland Lee volleyball team went 2-4 in pool play at the San Angelo Tournament Friday and will play in the consolation round at 10:30 a.m. today against El Paso Bel Air. Lee beat Borger 15-13, 15-8 and lost to Lake View 15-13, 15-11 and Amarillo Palo Duro 15-9, 15-12.

Falcons record first victory

DALLAS — Chris Bryant's goal in the sixth minute of overtime gave UT-Permian Basin a 3-2 win over Dallas Baptist Friday night, the Falcons first win as an NAIA team.

Joe Stephens and Chad Barton also scored for UTPB as the Falcons evened their season record at 1-1. Eameal Holstien had two assists.

The game was tied at one at halftime and at two at the end of regulation. Bryant's goal six minutes into the first of two mandatory 10-minute overtime periods gave the Falcons the lead which held up for the victory.

The team remains in the Dallas area today for its next contest, a 7 p.m. battle with Richland Junior College.

King receives Black Belt

ODESSA — Chris King of Midland was one of several Taekwon-Do Federation members to receive Black Belts in testing at Nimitz Junior High in Odessa last Saturday. Black Belts and Black Belt candidates gathered from all over Texas for testing under the watchful gaze of Master C.E. Sereff. The testing included patterns, kicking sets, one step and self defense sparring and breaking of woods and bricks.

Gonzalez hits two HRs as Rangers top Indians

Associated Press

Indians . . . 3
Rangers . . . 5

ARLINGTON — A .700 winning percentage against any team is impressive, but when it's against the Cleveland Indians it means even more.

Juan Gonzalez homered twice and set a club record for RBIs in a season Friday night as the Texas Rangers beat the Indians for the seventh time this year with a 5-3 victory.

"I'm not going to try and explain our record against Cleveland," Rangers manager Johnny Oates said of his club's 7-3 mark vs. the Indians. "We still have two more games against them and then we might get lucky enough, or unlucky enough, to play them again in the postseason."

The Rangers improved to 44-24 at home and have won six of their last seven against the defending AL champion Indians, who still own the league's best record.

Ivan Rodriguez's two-run homer in the first ignited the Rangers.

"We needed this game for our confidence," said Rangers leadoff man Darryl Hamilton, who went 3-for-4 and scored twice. "We had been having trouble scoring runs and when Pudge hit the homer, it got us going."

Indians manager Mike Hargrove said he's more concerned that his team keep its cushion over Chicago in the AL Central than worrying how Cleveland fares against Texas.

"The important thing for us is to maintain our lead over Chicago and the important thing for Texas is to keep their lead over Seattle," Hargrove said. "If both teams face each other in the postseason, you can throw everything out. It's a whole different atmosphere. I think the Rangers know we can play with them, and we know they can play with us."

Gonzalez and Rodriguez homered in the first inning off Chad Ogea (7-5). Gonzalez, who hit his 41st homer in the third inning, has 121 RBIs, breaking the club record of 119 set by Ruben Sierra in 1989.

Gonzalez extended his hitting streak to 20 games and has 35 homers and 91 RBIs in 79 games since returning from the DL.

"I should have broken the record sooner if I hadn't had so many injuries," said Gonzalez, who has missed 27 games due to assorted injuries. "Right now in my mind and body, I'm 110 percent. I've matured a lot in my career and I feel more comfortable. I'm excited about the way we're playing."

The Rangers won for only the second time in six games.

Jose Vizcaino went 3-for-4 and Jim Thome hit his 32nd homer for the Indians, who had their winning streak stopped at four. Thome has homered in four straight games.

Roger Pavlik (15-7) limited the Indians to four hits over 6 1-3 innings, and Jeff Russell pitched two innings for his third save. With the win, Pavlik established a career-high for victories and improved to 4-0 lifetime against Cleveland.

Pavlik ran into trouble in the seventh when Brian Giles led off with a double, took third on a groundout and scored on Vizcaino's single, cutting Texas' lead to 4-3.

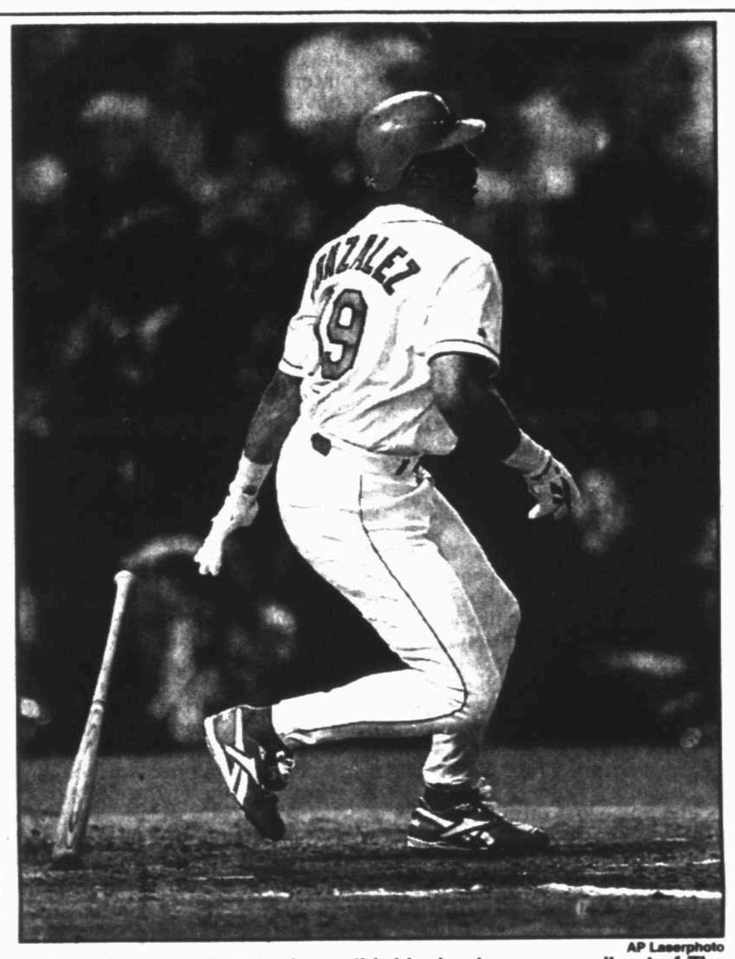

Reliever Mike Stanton came on to get the final two outs in the seventh, retiring Kenny Lofton on a fly ball and striking out Thome looking.

"That was probably the biggest point in the game," Hargrove said. "That was an awfully gutsy pitch at 3-2 with Albert (Belle) on deck."

Darryl Hamilton singled to open the first and Rodriguez lined his 18th homer into the left-field seats. One out later, Gonzalez homered into the left-field bullpen to make it 3-0 lead.

Ogea allowed four runs and six hits in six innings.

Notes: The Rangers set a club record with 94 homers at home. The previous mark of 93 was established in 1987 when the Rangers played at Arlington Stadium. ... Cleveland first baseman Julio Franco was back in the lineup after being activated from the 15-day disabled list. To make room for Franco, the Indians placed right-hander Dennis Martinez back on the 15-day disabled list. Martinez was activated for Tuesday's start against Detroit, but suffered a recurrence of a strained tendon in his right elbow after throwing only 14 pitches. ... Pavlik had dropped five of his previous seven decisions. ... Stanton has thrown 7 1-3 scoreless innings and has stranded his last 10 inherited runners.

ANGELS: Season finale set for tonight to center field to bring Betten home for the Angels fourth and final run to gain the split.

(From 1C)

In losing the opener 2-1, the Angels also lost their 81st game of the season. This is only the third time in franchise history the club has lost 80 or more games.

The Angel almost missed the 81-loss mark in the first game. With a Mission runner on first, Henry Blanco climbed all over a Jarrod Washburn pitch and drove it over the left field fence and onto East Loop 250 for a 2-0 lead in the second.

In Midland's half of the second inning, Aaron Guiel argued over a called third strikeout and was ejected for expressing his unpleasant opinion with homeplate umpire Kerry Marker.

Then Jovino Carvajal drilled what seemed like a fair ball down the third baseline. With the chalk flying all over the place, Marker called the ball foul.

Of course that brought on an argument by Angels manager Mario Mendoza, who attempted to debate the call with Marker.

When that didn't work, he pleaded with basepath chief Tom Hiler who was in no mood for a pow wow. Unsuccessful Mendoza returned to the dugout an unhappy camper.

But the Angels did get an opportunity to score in the fourth inning when they loaded the bases with two outs, only to see Leon Glen ground out to end the inning.

Midland's only run came in the sixth on a single that drove in Greg Shockey.

The Angels look to put this season behind them when they close out the year with a 7 p.m. game tonight.

Pettitte wins 19th game as Yanks beat Angels

AL Roundup

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Andy Pettitte became the American League's first 19-game winner and stopped the New York Yankees' season-high five-game losing streak Friday night with a 6-2 victory over the California Angels.

Tino Martinez hit a two-run home run and Mariano Duncan, Darryl Strawberry and Jim Leyritz hit solo homers as the Yankees got their first win in five games on their West Coast trip.

Pettitte (19-7) allowed eight hits in eight innings to win his third straight decision. The left-hander is 12-2 in 15 starts following a Yankees' loss.

Dennis Springer (4-3), coming off his first career shutout, allowed six runs and six hits in 6 1-3 innings. The right-hander has given up nine homers in his last four starts.

The Yankees took a 3-0 lead in the first. Wade Boggs drew a leadoff walk, advanced on Paul O'Neill's double and scored on Cecil Fielder's groundout. Martinez hit a 0-1 pitch to right field for his 22nd homer, scoring O'Neill.

Duncan's seventh homer to left-center field on a 1-1 pitch gave New York a 4-0 lead in the fourth.

The Angels stranded runners on third base in two of the first three innings before George Arias' RBI single scored Gary DiSarcina in the fourth.

DiSarcina singled to left, stole second and took third on Jorge Fabregas' fly to right.

Strawberry's 10th homer led off the seventh inning. Leyritz' homer, his seventh, extended New York's lead to 6-1 and chased Springer.

Randy Velarde led off the Angels' seventh with his 11th homer.

White Sox 11, Blue Jays 2

TORONTO — Frank Thomas homered and drove in three runs Friday night to lead Chicago by Toronto.

Thomas hit a two-run homer, his 29th, in the third and Harold Baines hit a solo shot in the fifth for the White Sox, who got 18 hits and won for just the third time in 10 games.

Kevin Tapani (12-8) gave up two runs and six hits in 7 1-3 innings for the win.

The Blue Jays lost for only the third time in 12 games.

Woody Williams (2-2) took the loss.

Tigers 4, Royals 0

DETROIT — Todd Van Poppel pitched a five-hitter for his first career shutout and Tony Clark hit a two-run homer.

Van Poppel (3-6) won his second straight start against Kansas City. The right-hander, making his fourth start since Detroit claimed him off waivers from Oakland on Aug. 6, retired 13 straight between the third and seventh innings. He struck out two and walked two in the second complete game of his career.

Brewers 5, Twins 4, 12 innings

MILWAUKEE — Marc Newfield homered to lead off the bottom of the 12th inning for Milwaukee.

Newfield hit Jose Parra's fourth pitch into the left-field seats for his sixth homer this season. Parra (5-4) had just entered the game.

Bob Wickman (6-1) picked up the win with 2 2-3 hitless innings.

Rookie Matt Lawton went 4-for-5 and hit a three-run homer off Mike Fetters in the ninth to give Minnesota a 4-2 lead.

Todd Walker, the Twins' highly touted rookie third baseman, went 1-for-5 in his major-league debut.

Athletics 7, Red Sox 0

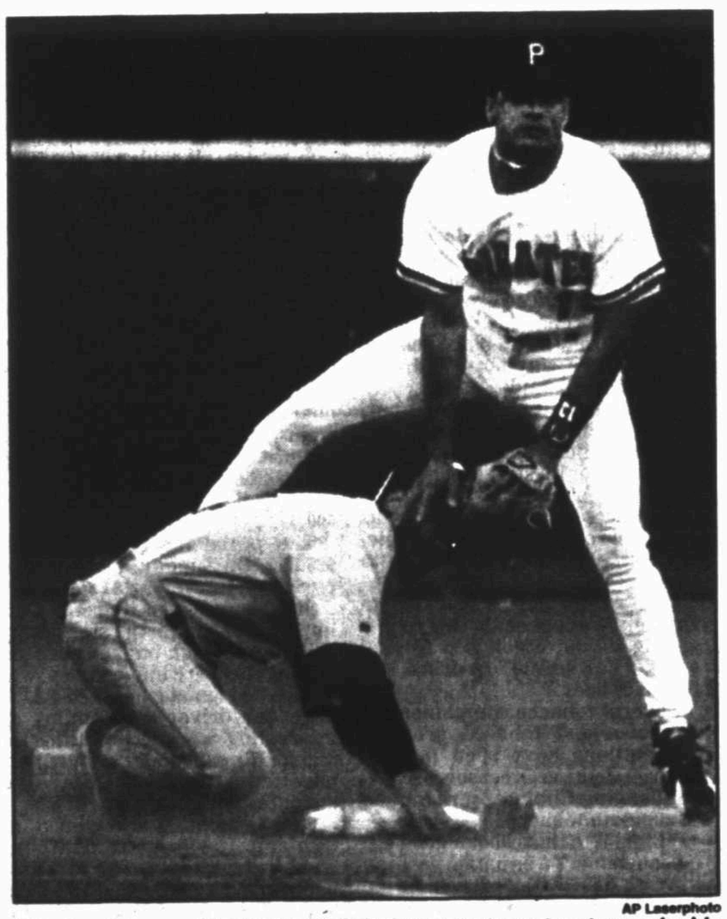

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Mark McGwire hit his 45th homer and drove in three runs as the Oakland Athletics snapped Boston's five-game winning streak.

McGwire, who singled in a run in Oakland's three-run sixth, hit a towering two-run homer in the seventh to center field. The shot was measured at 409 feet, and it seemed to go nearly that high.

Dave Telgheder pitched eight scoreless innings, allowing seven hits. He walked three and struck out five.

Telgheder (2-5) had lost his previous three starts. He struggled early, allowing a Red Sox player to reach third base in each of the first two innings, but did not allow a runner past second after that.

Mike Maddux (2-2), making his fifth start of the season for Boston, allowed five runs and six hits in 5 1-3 innings after starting the game by retiring 11 straight batters.

Astros Berry good in 10-0 victory

Associated Press

NL Roundup

PITTSBURGH — Sean Berry matched a career high with six RBIs and Jeff Bagwell went 4-for-5 to back Donne Wall's first major-league shutout as the Houston Astros beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 10-0 Friday night.

Wall (9-4), who scattered seven hits, has started four of the Astros' seven victories over Pittsburgh this season. He won twice and left with no-decisions in the other two, including a May 19 start in which he took a shutout into the ninth inning.

The Astros won their fifth in seven games, while Pittsburgh lost its 18th in 25 games to slide to a season-low 22 games under .500.

Berry had two-run singles in the third and the Astros' five-run sixth. He added an RBI single and a run-scoring force play double for his third career six-RBI game. Berry has a career-high 79 RBIs this season.

Until he singled in the third, Berry was 2-for-28 (.071) against Pittsburgh this season.

Bagwell, who never has much trouble hitting Pirates pitching, had two doubles and two singles and now is hitting .454 with 17 RBIs in 11 games against Pittsburgh. He is a .371 career hitter against Pittsburgh.

Berry had a run-scoring grounder in the first, then made it 3-0 in the third against Pirates starter Chris Peters (1-4) by following Craig Biggio's leadoff walk and Bagwell's double with a two-run single.

Cubs 3-5, Braves 2-6

CHICAGO — Marquis Grissom's sacrifice fly capped a two-run ninth inning as the Atlanta Braves rallied to beat the Chicago Cubs 6-5, salvaging a doubleheader split.

The Cubs won the first game 3-2 as Kevin Foster pitched three-hit ball over eight innings and drove in two runs.

In the second game, Terry Pendleton led off the ninth with a single off Kent Bottenfield (2-4). Andruw Jones grounded to second baseman Todd Haney, but shortstop Jose Hernandez dropped the ball covering second for his third error of the game and 18th of the season.

After Mike Mordecai popped out, Chipper Jones tied it with an RBI single off reliever Bob Patterson, and Fred McGriff walked to load the bases. Turk Wendell then relieved to face pinch-hitter Grissom, who put the Braves ahead with his sacrifice fly.

In the first game, Foster (6-2) allowed two runs, walked one and struck out eight. He gave the Cubs a 2-0 lead in the second inning with a soft liner that fell just in front of right fielder Jermaine Dye.

Padres 6, Expos 0

MONTREAL (AP) — Scott Sanders pitched one-hit ball over eight innings as San Diego won its sixth straight.

Wally Joyner drove in two runs in San Diego's four-run third inning as the Padres moved a season-high 16 games over .500 — their best mark since 1989.

Sanders (8-4), who threw eight innings of three-hit ball against the Expos on Aug. 19, won his fourth straight decision.

Marlins 3, Reds 1

CINCINNATI — Kevin Brown pitched a complete game and Luis Castillo hit his first major-league homer as the Florida Marlins extended their winning streak to seven games.

It is the second-longest winning streak of the season for Florida, which set a franchise record by winning nine in a row from May 6-14.

Giants 6, Mets 4

NEW YORK — Rookie Shawn Estes came within one out of his first career complete game, and Marvin Benard went 3-for-4 with a homer as the San Francisco Giants kept the New York Mets winless under Bobby Valentine.

Estes (3-4) gave up two hits in the second inning, but then held the Mets to one hit over 7 1-3 innings before giving up a two-out single in the ninth. He was lifted by manager Dusty Baker, who brought in Rod Beck to get the final out.

Cardinals 7, Rockies 4

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Alan Benes became the first St. Louis rookie to win 12 games since 1971, Tom Pagnozzi drove in three runs and Ray Lankford matched his career high with four hits.

Benes (12-8) gave up six hits in six innings. He is the first St. Louis rookie to win a dozen games since Reggie Cleveland won 12 in 1971.

Dodgers 7, Phillies 6, 12 inn.

PHILADELPHIA — Delino DeShields hit a tiebreaking RBI triple in the 12th inning, helping the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Philadelphia Phillies.

Chad Curtis led off the inning with a walk off losing pitcher Jeff Parrot (2-3) and scored when DeShields lined his hit to right center.

Darren Dreifort (1-1) pitched 2 1-3 scoreless innings. Todd Worrel pitched the 12th for his 37th save.

Andretti shakes off injury to take Molson Indy pole

By Mike Harris
AP Motorsports Writer

Vancouver Molson Indy

VANCOUVER, British Columbia — Michael Andretti, stiff and sore from a crash earlier this week, ignored the discomfort Friday to win the provisional pole for the Vancouver Molson Indy.

"I'm feeling good, better by the hour," Andretti said after posting a record lap of 111.616 mph on the 1.703-mile, 10-turn temporary circuit winding through downtown Pacific Place.

That eclipsed the record of 111.013 set last year by Jacques Villeneuve, the defending PPG Indy Car World Series champion who is now racing in Formula One.

Andretti, who smashed into a tire wall Tuesday during a test session at Laguna Seca Raceway in Monterey, Calif., where the season-finale will be run on Sept. 8, was undergoing therapy in the series medical facility for a slightly compressed vertebrae and some muscle strain around his left shoulder.

"It actually feels better in the car than out, maybe because I'm more supported in the car," he said. "But I'm OK."

Bryan Herta, continuing the hot streak that began five races ago at Cleveland, was second to Andretti at 111.610. The time difference between the two fast laps was just 0.002-seconds.

"The track is going to get quicker and quicker," said Andretti, who will be looking to lock up his first pole in 17 months Saturday in the final round of time trials for Sunday's race.

"I noticed how much quicker it was getting throughout the session (Friday)," he added. "The trick is to be out there at the end. This is nice, but I want to be here tomorrow."

Third in Friday's session was Al Unser Jr., a two-time series champion still hoping to overtake current points leader Jimmy Vasser for this year's title.

Unser, not known as a particularly good qualifier, turned a lap of 111.460 and, at least tentatively, put himself in position to continue a string that has seen him win the last three races at Vancouver and four of the six that have been run. Andretti won the other two.

"The car came off the trailer really well," said Unser, who has not won since last year at Vancouver.

JARRETT: Pole-sitter has won eight times

(From 1C)

quently over the last month at track known as "The Lady in Black." She gave him little trouble during his qualifying effort. He didn't appear as fast as some of the other drivers, but his line through the tricky high-banked turns was the smoothest of the 45 drivers who tried a lap.

The only other pole in Jarrett's 10 seasons on stock car racing's premier circuit came last year in the Daytona 500 — a race he won. The last driver to win from the pole in the Southern 500 was Dale Earnhardt, in 1990.

The pole-sitter has won eight times in the 46-year history of the event, the annual rite of the South on Labor Day weekend.

Jarrett's speed broke the race qualifying mark of 167.379, set last year by John Andretti. The track mark of 173.797 was set in March — when cooler weather dictates higher speeds — by Ward Burton, who crashed Friday and scrambled from his burning car.

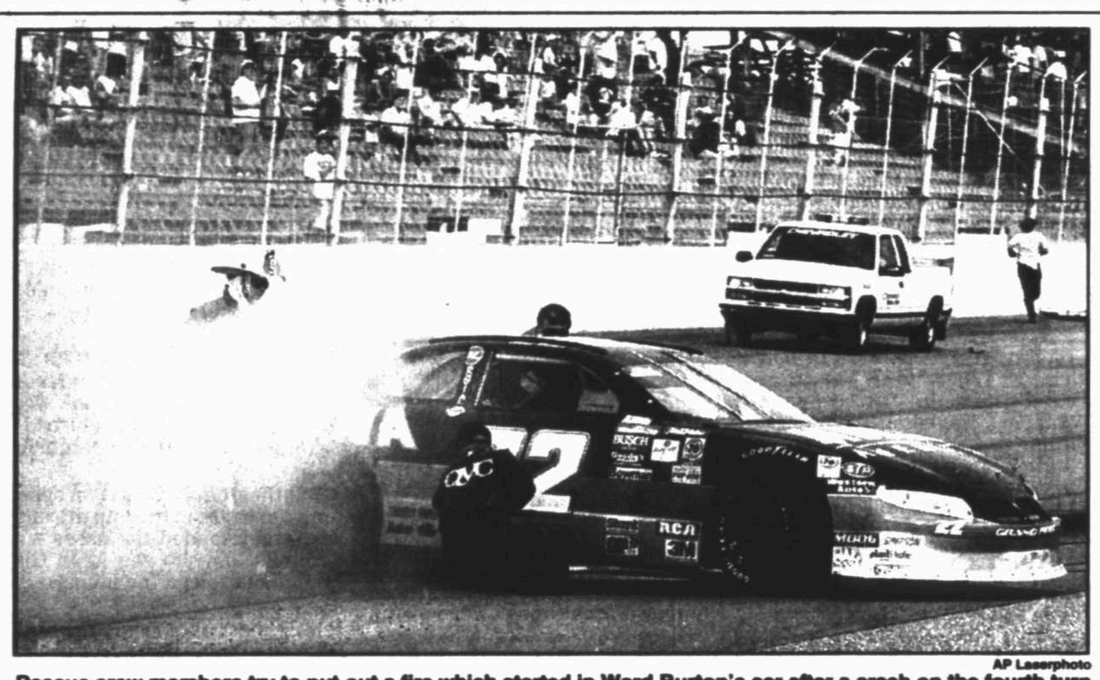

Only Gordon — trying to join Earnhardt as the only driver ever to win three straight races at the circuit's toughest layout — took a serious run at Jarrett. Gordon has the only Chevy victory in the last seven races.

Geoff Bodine was third-fastest in a Ford, turning a lap at 170.472. Next came the Chevrolet of Gordon's Hendrick Motorsports teammate, Ken Schrader. He went 170.218.

Sterling Marlin's Chevy was next at 170.118, followed by the Ford of 1993 Southern 500 champion Mark Martin. His speed in a Ford was 169.983.

Chad Little was seventh in a Chevy at 169.977, followed by series points leader Terry Labonte, in a third Hendrick Chevy, at 169.918.

Earnhardt, winless over the last six months as he pursues a record eighth Winston Cup championship, qualified 12th in his Chevy. Earnhardt is seeking to join Hall of Famer David Pearson as a 10-time winner at Darlington, but is hampered by injuries sustained five weeks ago in a horrifying crash at Talladega.

Butting up against NASCAR

■ Drivers and Winston Cup officials are worried about the effect of recent decisions by the Clinton Administration to regulate tobacco products.

By PETE Iacobelli
AP Sports Writer

NASCAR

DARLINGTON, S.C. — Sterling Marlin grew it, chopped it, dried it out, sold it and, now, can't stand the sight of tobacco. But he won't stand in the way of anyone who wants to smoke it.

"I don't smoke myself, but I think Clinton has got a whole lot more problems than this," he said Friday before qualifying for the Southern 500.

"People who try and tell you you can't do stuff like that are barking up the wrong tree."

Marlin and other Winston Cup drivers, almost all of whom do not smoke, are still stung by President Clinton's move to have the Food and Drug Administration regulate tobacco products.

The decision was made to curb the sale and advertisement of cigarettes to children.

Under the ban, cigarette companies might have to end their associations to sports events like NASCAR racing.

R.J. Reynolds, the makers of Winston cigarettes, has been the title sponsor of the racing sport since 1971.

Rusty Wallace is worried that the massive trailers bearing the Winston Cup logo and the large amounts of money the company pours into his sport could be gone next season.

"Those guys have so much for this sport it's unreal and for those idiots to step in and say, 'We don't want that no more,' is just a bunch of crap," said Wallace, who gave his endorsement to Republican candidate Bob Dole after winning the Bristol race last week. "It's my living."

The Clinton administration first announced its intentions last summer and followed through two weeks ago. Advocates of the move say it will keep teenagers from smoking.

Winston Cup spokesman Chris Powell says tobacco companies want the same thing as the President.

"We just think that no one will take up smoking because they came to a race," he said. "We're in the sport to convert those who smoke to our brands and to promote loyalty among those who do."

Powell said that last year R.J. Reynolds was a key in helping Winston Cup champion Jeff Gordon film anti-smoking promos with South Carolina attorney general Charlie Condon.

"Jeff came under fire for doing that spot because some people thought, 'Here he is accepting $1.5 million for winning the championship and he turns around and tells kids not to smoke,' " Powell said. "We asked him to do it."

The irony is while the Winston name is everywhere at Darlington, from tractor-trailers to ashtrays to T-shirts, most drivers do not smoke.

"I can't think of any driver who smokes anymore but one, Dick Trickle," said Marlin, who farmed 24 acres of tobacco growing up in Columbia, Tenn.

"It's hard to find a place you can use tobacco anymore," driver John Andretti said.

Powell says it should be apparent to anyone who follows racing that today's drivers are interested in a healthier lifestyle that may not include smoking.

And he says that's all right as long as no one legislates the choices that each individual has to make.

"We're not out to get kids to smoke," Wallace said. "We're just saying if you're going to smoke, smoke our brand or drink our brand of beer."

Several tobacco companies, ad agencies and tobacco growers associations have sued in U.S. District Court in Greensboro, N.C., challenging Clinton's jurisdiction to regulate tobacco.

"I feel like this is not a good situation, but it's a situation we may have to deal with," driver Ernie Irvan said. "Hopefully, it won't end with the tobacco companies leaving."

Dad Jarrett will root for son off air

By Dick Brinster
AP Sports Writer

Southern 500 Notebook

DARLINGTON, S.C. — Ned Jarrett does not want to take the microphone and again describe the final lap of a milestone victory by his son.

And that scenario could present itself Sunday, when Dale Jarrett tries to collect a $1 million bonus for winning the Southern 500.

The elder Jarrett, a stock car racing analyst, was handed the microphone by CBS when his son battled Dale Earnhardt over the final lap to win the Daytona 500 in 1993.

This year, Jarrett, who usually does no play by play, again described the end of the Daytona 500. But his enthusiasm was somewhat tempered, even though his son again beat Earnhardt to win the crown jewel of the sport.

"I'm going to insist that they don't," Jarrett said, when asked if he thought ESPN would give him the floor. "I think that situation has worked well at a couple of the events where it has been done.

"But I don't want to be known as a shill for him. I would rather that Bob Jenkins or Benny Parsons describe it at the end."

DARLINGTON STRIPE: Modernization has brought many changes to the old country track where stock car racing became a Labor Day Weekend staple in the South 46 Septembers ago with the inaugural running of the Southern 500.

The purse for that race was $25,000. On Sunday, Dale Jarrett could win more than $1 million.

Still, some miss the old Darlington, especially the steel guard rail atop its high-banked corners. Among them is Elmo Langley, who before he signed on as NASCAR's pace car driver spent many an interesting weekend battling the track. He especially remembers practicing in 1959, his first enounter with The Lady in Black.

"I was running a few laps and thinking I was getting around good," Langley said. "I came back in and a guy looked at my car and said, 'You're not getting through the corners hard enough.'"
