

County work force remains in excess of 10,000

Unemployment estimates here dipped to the year's lowest figure during the month of October, according to information released Thursday by local Texas Employment Commission personnel.

TEC staffers say 3 percent unemployment was the rule here for the month, a significant drop from September's estimate of 4.6 percent.

The recently released figures indicated also that Scurry County reported both the lowest unemployment estimate and the largest labor force for the five counties served through the Sweetwater-based TEC office.

The month saw the number of employed persons in the civilian labor force remain in excess of 10,000 persons.

The exact number of those with jobs was estimated at 10,118 from a civilian labor force estimated at 10,431. In actual numbers, this indicates the number of unemployed at 313.

For 1983 to date, unemployment figures for Scurry County have risen and fell, to a high of 5 percent in March to the recent low of 3 percent for October.

In addition to Scurry County, unemployment figures for other counties served through the Sweetwater regional TEC office were released. These include:

—Nolan County: 6.1 percent unemployment figuring a civilian labor force of 8,288 with 502 of these unemployed.

—Mitchell County: 5.4 percent unemployment figuring a civilian labor force of 4,326 with 232 of these unemployed.

—Fisher County: 5.1 percent unemployment figuring a civilian labor force of 2,234 with 114 of these unemployed.

—Stonewall County: 2.1 percent unemployment figuring a civilian labor force of 1,075 with 23 of these unemployed.

—Kent County: 3.9 percent unemployment figuring a civilian labor force of 488 with 19 of these unemployed.

Returns to Argentina...

Mrs. Peron blasts army

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Former President Isabel Peron returned home today after two years in exile to attend the inauguration of Argentina's first civilian president since she was ousted by a military coup in 1976. She immediately attacked the generals.

"You know all the pernicious consequences of national authoritarianism, chaining liberty... discouraging youth, impoverishing to the point of misery millions of families, compromising national sovereignty, attacking moral principles, disdaining the workers and trampling their rights, substituting without measure arbitrariness for justice, authorizing terror and the disappearance of thousands of citizens," Mrs. Peron said in a 10-minute statement at the airport.

Raul Alfonsin will be sworn in Saturday for a six-year term as president. Mrs. Peron was invited by Alfonsin to attend the ceremony and sources said she is scheduled to meet privately with the new president before leaving Monday.

Mrs. Peron, 56, is titular head of the populist, labor-based Peronist party that had not lost an election since 1946 until Alfonsin was elected in October. The party was founded by her late husband, three-time president Gen. Juan D. Peron.

Mrs. Peron arrived at 6:50 a.m. aboard an Argentina Airlines flight from Madrid, Spain, and was met by Antonio Troccoli, who will be Alfonsin's interior minister and a 15-member Peronist welcoming committee and nearly 300 reporters.

She waved to well-wishers as she was escorted to an airport lounge and then read a statement to reporters and a handful of Peronists who chanted "Isabel, Isabel" and "Viva Peron."

Mrs. Peron has been living in self-exile in Madrid since leaving her homeland on July 9, 1981, after more than five years of house arrest on corruption charges. A March 24, 1976, coup ended her 20-month presidency.

District to study aerial map plan

A plan involving aerial maps of the county is to be discussed Friday night by board members for the Scurry County Appraisal District.

The mapping system is still only in the discussion phase, said Chief Tax Appraiser Ray Peveler Thursday. He said it is being studied as a supplemental device for a computer graphics mapping system which is also being looked at by district officials.

The board is scheduled to meet with a representative of an aerial map company Friday.

The session is the regular December meeting for the appraisal district, postponed from its normal Tuesday meeting date. The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. in the appraisal district offices.

At the session, the board will consider also letting bank depository bids for district funds. The current depositor is First National Bank.

The board is to consider also the district's annual outside audit. It has been prepared by the Snyder accounting firm of Anderson, Anderson and Vestal.

Seven guilty pleas have prison terms

Seven defendants entered guilty pleas to various felony charges and were sentenced this week in 132nd District Court. In addition, charges against two other individuals were dismissed.

Among those receiving prison sentences was Sherman H. Merritt, Jr. of Odessa, who pleaded guilty to a charge of possession of a controlled substance.

He was arrested along with five other suspects at a West Snyder residence July 22. He now faces a prison term of four years with the Texas Department of Corrections after pleading guilty to the charge.

Van Thomas Powell of Snyder, indicted in November on a charge of rape of a child in connection with an incident reported Oct. 4, was sentenced to five years with TDC. He also pleaded guilty Thursday.

Also drawing a state prison term in a plea bargain agreement was Richard Don Nelson of See TERMS, page 11

JUNIOR HIGH TONIGHT — The combined talents of the junior high school drama and choral departments will be on view Friday night as "Scrooge" is presented. The musical production will be in the junior high school auditorium beginning at 7:30 p.m. Admission is $2.

Stenholm plans long visit

U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm, congressman for the 17th District, will have an extended visit in Snyder Monday.

Stenholm, a Democrat from Stamford, will first be on hand for a coffee in his honor at the Snyder Chamber of Commerce board of directors room.

The coffee is planned from 10 until 11 a.m. and the congressman will encourage local questions and answers.

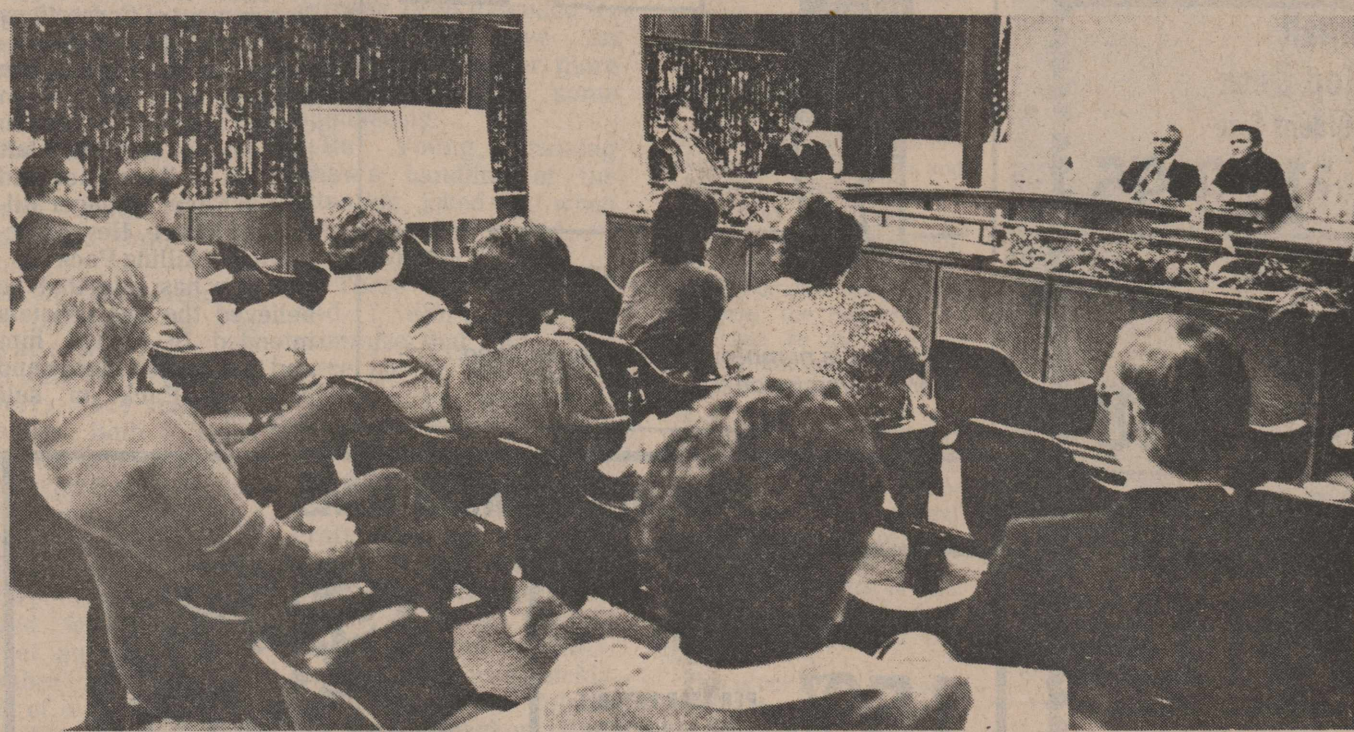

He is scheduled to address local senior citizens during the noon hour. Stenholm will arrive at the Senior Citizens Center around 11:30 a.m.

Beginning at 3 p.m., he will address a general assembly of local students in Worsham Auditorium at Snyder High School. The talk is expected to last some 30 minutes.

Local coordinators for Stenholm's visit include Gary Terrell, Bill Dryden and Ned Underwood.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Conscience doesn't keep you from doing anything—it only takes the enjoyment out of it."

Keeping tabs on our neighbors:

Larry Crabtree, in the Vernon Daily Record, has uncovered a problem that will take the average mind off the nuclear arms race.

"Did you know the founding fathers and the moguls of the National Football League have blundered into the ultimate scheduling conflict?"

"The inauguration of the next president and the 1985 Super Bowl are set for the same day—Jan. 20, 1985. Under the constitution, the president must take office on Jan. 20. The law of the land makes no exceptions, Super Bowl or not. And the National Football League has decreed that the 1985 Super Bowl will be scheduled on the third Sunday in January.

"What about the millions of TV channel switchers?

What about the high-rollers who will want to dance at the inauguration ball and also attend the game?"

"What about those swarms of government employees who traditionally get inaugural day off? They'll lose the day off if they have to report back at work as usual on Monday."

"The last time an inauguration came on Sunday was in 1957. Dwight Eisenhower solved the Sunday problem in his typical quiet manner by taking the oath privately on Sunday and then repeating the whole thing in public on Monday."

"Our next president may well do the same. But that still won't satisfy the bigwigs who want to be in both places. Even if the public swearing in is on Monday, they'll have to dash from the Super Bowl at Stamford Stadium in California to Washington."

We have a suggestion. A presidential inauguration would make a great halftime, and the bands and TV would already be there.

Q. — Have the Washington Redskins ever beat the Dallas Cowboys at Texas Stadium?

A. — Out of the past 10 games played in Irving, the Cowboys have won nine of them. They lost there to Washington in 1976. The series standing between the two old rivals is 28-17 in favor of the Cowboys.

In Brief

Two servicemen wounded

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Shiite militiamen fired on the Marine base at Beirut airport today, wounding two U.S. servicemen, and Israeli gunboats and helicopter gunships attacked a PLO base near Tripoli.

A PLO spokesman said the Israeli shelling killed one person and wounded three and that the Israelis set up a naval blockade to prevent Yasser Arafat and his loyalists from evacuating Tripoli. Israel denied it set up a blockade.

The Marine contingent at the airport retaliated with small arms, 40mm grenades and anti-tank Dragon missiles and "the firing ceased. There were no other casualties or damage," Marine spokesman Maj. Dennis Brooks said.

Beirut radio stations said the counterattack devastated the Shiite position, the second wiped out in two days by the Marines.

Mrs. Walesa lands in Oslo

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Danuta Walesa arrived in Oslo today to accept the 1983 Nobel Peace Prize on behalf of her husband, Solidarity leader Lech Walesa, who declined to leave Poland for fear he would not be allowed to return.

Accompanied by the couple's oldest son, Bogdan, 13, she was welcomed by Egil Aarvik and Jakob Sverdrup, the chairman and secretary of the Norwegian Nobel Committee.

Mrs. Walesa and her son were quickly led through the airport arrival area and went by car to an Oslo hotel. She will accept the peace prize Saturday.

Mrs. Walesa flew from Warsaw via Copenhagen. In the Polish capital, she and Bogdan were seen off by her husband and a crowd of about 300 Poles who slipped past a heavy police guard at the Warsaw airport.

Ex-employee admits guilt

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A former Southwestern Bell employee has pleaded guilty to charges that he swapped the telephone records of narcotics agents in exchange for drugs.

Prosecutors agreed to drop the other charges against Stanley Warren Smith, 27, after his guilty plea Thursday to using a communication device to facilitate the commission of a felony.

Smith, then a Bell service representative, was accused of endangering the lives of local agents of the Drug Enforcement Administration by supplying the confidential phone records to drug figures.

"It was just a long-distance printout like you or anyone else would receive in your telephone bill every month," Smith told U.S. District Judge William Sessions during the hearing.

3-wheeler theft arrest made

Snyder police detectives arrested Thursday afternoon a defendant indicted Monday by the December session of the Scurry County grand jury.

Twenty-two year old Steven Wayne Kelly of Rt. 2, Snyder had been named in a sealed indictment on a charge of appropriating stolen property. The charge was in connection with the October theft of two three-wheeled motorcycles from Key Brothers Lawn and Leisure at East 37th St.

City officers located Kelly driving near the intersection of 35th St. and Ave. M around 6 p.m. Thursday and took him into custody on a warrant issued subsequent to the grand jury indictment.

He was freed Friday morning after posting a $3,500 bond in connection with the case.

White convicted of kidnapping

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Ronald Floyd White has been found guilty of aggravated kidnapping in the abduction of a Santa Fe man who was buried alive for four days.

White faces a sentence of from five years to life in prison. Jurors, who returned the verdict after deliberating for an hour and 15 minutes Thursday, were scheduled to continue hearing testimony in the punishment phase of his trial today.

White was accused of masterminding a scheme to hold his former employer's son, Michael Baucom, 22, of Santa Fe, for $75,000 ransom in late September 1982.

Baucom testified he was buried in a makeshift coffin for four days in an oilfield near Conroe, north of Houston.

After the verdict was returned, White's wife, Phyllis, said her husband was "awfully, awfully sick and I don't see how anyone could not see that."

"He's sick and there's so much that people don't know. He's suffering so much," said White's mother, Wilmoth White.

Baucom's father Bennie, asked if he thought White needed psychiatric care, said, "No, he needs hard labor."

The younger Baucom said the verdict did not surprise him.

"It was pretty well apparent," he said. He called defense attorneys' contention that he was involved in the extortion attempt "just a move by the defense to make a better case for his client."

"I'll never be able to put it aside," said Baucom's mother, Glendell. "It will be with me forever." She said she hoped White "never goes out on the street again."

In his final remarks to the jury, prosecutor Jim James said the 38-year-old Conroe man bought the car used in the abduction under his stepson's name five months before Baucom was taken from his home.

"This is a planned crime. It takes planning and cunning," James said.

Defense attorney Elmo Schwab told jurors he suspected Baucom at first was a participant in the scheme and became a captive well after his disappearance Sept. 21, 1982.

Schwab suggested that after something went wrong with a scheme to extort money from Bennie Baucom, the younger Baucom was buried by his co-conspirators.

When he emerged, Schwab said Baucom "blamed the most likely scapegoat, Ronald Floyd White."

2nd nursing home closed

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — For the second time in a little more than a week, the state has obtained a court order to close down an unlicensed nursing home in the Lubbock area.

State District Judge William R. Shaver signed a temporary order Thursday closing the Inez Retirement Center, located near Shallowater and Reese Air Force Base, the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal reported.

The order was sought by the state attorney general's office. On Nov. 30, the state obtained a temporary order closing a nursing home operated by Goldie Wilson in Lubbock. A hearing on an injunction to keep that home closed until the case goes to trial or is otherwise disposed of was scheduled for today.

A similar hearing on the Shallowater home was set for Dec. 16.

Euna V. Wright, a nurse surveyor for the Texas Department of Health in Lubbock, testified Thursday that the Shallowater facility was in violation of state law requiring licenses for homes, which care for more than four people unrelated to the owner.

Without a license, she said, a home "can only provide food, shelter and laundry."

Sixteen people were housed at the facility, Ms. Wright said.

Epileptic seizures

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My niece has epilepsy. She takes Dilantin after each meal and before bedtime. She has petit mal seizures. Could you please tell me if her nervousness causes them? Will her petit mal attacks become grand mal seizures?

I also heard that they have other pills now that could control epilepsy.

DEAR READER — If you niece has petit mal attacks, they are not caused by nervousness. These are characterized by short periods of apparent loss of contact with the world. The child may stare into space and may have eye blinking. They are not associated with convulsions.

They are called petit mal after the French term meaning "little ailment," as opposed to grand mal, which means "big ailment."

Happily, most individuals who have these small seizures stop having them in the teenage years and they rarely persist until age 30.

A person can have both petit mal and grand mal seizures, but usually the smaller attacks disappear and do not cause subsequent grand mal attacks.

You have to try different medicines to find the one that works best for each patient. Usually Dilantin is used for grand mal attacks, whereas valproic acid and other medications are used for petit mal seizures.

I am sending you The Health Letter 10-8, Epilepsy: You Can Have It, Too, which clarifies the different types. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Epileptic seizures can occur after a variety of injuries to the brain. Automobile accidents are a frequent cause. Strokes may leave a person with brain damage that causes seizures. These seizures have afflicted famous and talented persons. The list includes Julius Caesar, Alexander the Great and Socrates.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am very disturbed about the flabbiness of my upper arms. This seems to be the norm for most women after a certain age. I've noticed it getting worse these past eight years. I'm 74 years old.

I have tried doing circular arm exercises, but can't say they help. I walk, play golf and am fairly active, but this one thing bugs me. I am very conscious of this in others I see and I would like to help myself if at all possible.

DEAR READER — You are right about it being very common as women and men get older. There are two reasons. Skin just keeps on growing, so there is more of it to look flabby. And the muscle under the back of the arm (the triceps) tends to decrease in size.

The triceps muscle is used to straighten the elbow. We don't do many things that require straightening the elbow against resistance. A push-up does this, but also uses other muscles. We pull a lot but don't push.

You can exercise your upper arm by voluntarily tensing or contracting the upper-arm muscles (biceps and triceps) so they work against each other, then straightening and bending you elbow, working both muscles against resistance. Any good exercise that works the triceps against resistance may help enlarge the triceps and firm up the back of the upper arm.

Or put both hands against the wall and lean forward, bending your elbows. Then push away from the wall straightening your elbows.

Paul Harvey

November 14 Cuba's Castro eulogized the 37 Cubans who were killed on Grenada with a speech that lasted an hour-and-a-half.

The diatribe was intended to blame the loss on US and to justify himself.

But the essence of all he said was a public confession that he is no longer the unchallenged Mister Big in the Caribbean. In baseball parlance, he has been "busted back to the minors."

There was calculated risk when our president sent American Marines to Grenada. Not that the mission would fail but that it might boomerang.

It did not.

Each sabbath since, Grenada's Catholic, Methodist and Anglican churches have been filled with worshippers offering thanks for the invasion.

The people of Grenada are near unanimous in their expressed hope that the United States will keep at least token forces there until there are new elections and political stability.

In Washington, congressional opposition evaporated.

President Reagan's early critics were led by Tip O'Neill.

He has about-faced.

Britain's Maggie Thatcher had criticized the invasion; now she has egg on her face. Criticism of her comes from within her own party and from heretofore friendly media.

The London Sunday Times suggested that "the Iron Lady is suffering mental fatigue."

On Grenada right now American Army men are repairing pipes, fixing pumps, repaving roads cratered by explosions.

An Army civic-action squad is helping smooth community relations.

Hundreds of new pieces of construction equipment are completing a military station — including the 10,000-foot airstrip at Point Salines.

Some Americans will remain there indefinitely.

Nicaragua's reddish government says that United States Marines are gradually "infiltrating" other Latin American nations, effectively drawing a noose around Nicaragua — to seal it off it not to invade it.

We may not have to.

The public mandate which President Reagan has received for "rescuing endangered Americans" might be enough to reassure our friends and deter our adversaries.

Your Birthday

Dec. 10, 1983

The coming year looks very promising for you, particularly if you do things in accord with your highest ideals. To be successful, maintain your standards.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Important points can be driven home today if you sprinkle your presentation with small touches of theatrics. Be a bit dramatic. Order now: The New Matchmaker wheel and booklet, which reveals romantic compatibilities for all signs, tells how to get along with others, finds rising signs, hidden qualities, plus more. Send $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Mail an additional $1 and your zodiac sign for your Sagittarius Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your material prospects look encouraging today and ways should be open to add to your resources, yet how things come about may be a trifle mysterious.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You could be in for a pleasant surprise today when someone whom you felt didn't think too much of you goes out of his way to help you achieve your goal.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Do not be reluctant to let others help you today, especially if they are persons you've helped in the past. Recall the joy you had in doing.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Others can be swayed to your way of thinking today, not through hard argument but by using your charm and wit. Soften your presentation.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) There is a likelihood you'll achieve something today that will give you a great deal of personal pride and satisfaction, yet it may remain secret.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Coworkers will rally to your support today, provided they understand your objectives. Spell out what you hope to accomplish — and why.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Two people with whom you'll have similar involvements today are likely to treat you advantageously, yet each will be unknown to the other.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In your recreational activities today, try to select those that require teamwork instead of individual competition. You'll do better with partners.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may be in the mood to busy yourself around home today. However, for pleasing results, find tasks that are more like a hobby than work.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your possibilities for personal gains will be considerably enhanced today if you don't take yourself or the relevant situations too seriously.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Concerns you've had relating to a matter affecting your material security should be eradicated today. There's light at the end of the tunnel.

Computer failure cause not immediately known

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Scientists inspected Columbia and its astronauts today for signs of wear from a record 10-day flight, but it may be weeks before officials know why a computer and a navigation device failed and forced an 8-hour landing delay.

With the $1 billion European Spacelab in its cargo bay, Columbia ended its flight of more than 4 million miles in a dusty touchdown at 3:47 p.m. Pacific time Thursday, less than an hour before sunset.

The ninth space shuttle mission was hailed as a success for the reams of scientific data accumulated during the voyage. Fourteen countries contributed to 73 experiments conducted round-the-clock in an unprecedented amount of scientific activity.

"We have many scientific firsts that came out of this mission," said NASA administrator Gen. James Abrahamson, flanked by shuttle Commander John Young and pilot Brewster Shaw at a post-landing news conference.

"We also have one that has been proven time and time again, and that's that the level of uncertainty in the universe is a constant," Abrahamson said.

The four mission specialists — Owen Garriot, Robert Parker, Byron Lichtenberg and West German scientist Ulf Merbold — were hurried off for a week of 12-hour-a-day experiments on how the body reacts to weightlessness and the return to gravity. The tests will duplicate those done during the flight.

Columbia, which has now made six trips into space, was towed to a scaffold-like device which will hoist it onto a Boeing 747 jetliner for its return to the Kennedy Space Center in Florida, planned for Monday.

National Aeronautics and Space Administration scientists examined its exterior for damage. However, inspection of the failed computer — there were four backups on board — and a broken navigational guidance device will await Columbia's arrival in Florida.

The six astronauts — the biggest crew on any space flight — were not endangered by the delay from the scheduled 7:59 a.m. PST landing and had food and fuel for another two days, NASA officials said. The flight had already been extended by one day to give the astronauts time for more experiments and some sightseeing.

But Young, praising Shaw's handling of the situation, joked that when the computers failed, "I turned to jelly."

"There was a problem and I don't want to minimize that, but ... we were not on the edge of some huge problem," Abrahamson said.

Mission Control ordered the delay after a powerful jolt shattered through the craft, followed by the failure of two computers and the navigational device, called an Inertial Measuring Unit or IMU. One computer was quickly brought back up. Columbia had two backup IMUs and only one was needed for landing.

Young reported the jolt came during the firing of a control jet as he was preparing for the return to Earth.

"It really hit the vehicle hard," said Young, who was on his sixth shuttle flight. Abrahamson said the first computer failure "by itself wasn't of any great concern."

"However, he added, 'when there was a relationship clearly between the first one and the second one and the firings of the RCS (reaction control system) jets, then the right thing to do and the proper thing was to slow down.'"

The next shuttle mission is scheduled for Jan. 30, when Challenger will be launched on a flight that will feature a space walk.

Bob Hope tour slated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Again, Bob Hope, who has entertained the troops during the holidays starting back in World War II, may not be home for Christmas.

A United Services Organization spokesman says the 80-year-old comedian may be entertaining U.S. Marines and sailors stationed in Lebanon.

Better relations begins

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President George Bush is flying to Argentina today to help mark the restoration of civilian rule there and of U.S.-Argentine military ties for the first time in six years.

Bush will join dignitaries from dozens of other countries for the inauguration Saturday of President-elect Raul Alfonsin, whose accession signals an end to seven tumultuous years of military domination of Argentine politics.

The designation of Bush to head the American delegation reflects the importance the Reagan administration attaches to close ties with Argentina. But U.S. officials, requesting anonymity, said an even more important stop for Bush will occur Sunday when he travels to El Salvador.

In El Salvador, Bush is expected to tell senior officials, publicly and privately, that President Reagan remains gravely concerned about the deteriorating human rights situation there despite his recent veto of legislation linking continued U.S. military aid to an easing of political repression.

U.S. relations with Argentina's military government have been strained over the suspension of American military ties to Argentina in 1977 and the U.S. decision to support Great Britain in the Falkland Islands War in 1982.

Argentina was a major human rights concern for the Carter administration because a military crackdown on suspected leftists led to the disappearance of thousands of Argentines. Many are still unaccounted for.

Argentina, angered by American hostility, retaliated by sharply expanding grain sales to the Soviet Union 1980 at a time the United States had cut off its own shipments because of Moscow's invasion of Afghanistan. That became a dead issue when Reagan lifted the U.S. grain embargo in 1981.

Now, with the onset of civilian rule accompanied by a marked improvement in Argentina's human rights performance, the State Department announced Thursday that Argentina had satisfied congressional requirements for resuming arms sales and security assistance.

State Department deputy spokesman Alan Romberg said that the changed situation enabled Reagan to "certify" that Argentina had met the congressional criteria.

"Overall, the improvement in the human rights situation was dramatic and clearly met the requirements of the law," Romberg said.

U.S. officials said they do not anticipate any major arms transactions with Argentina. Romberg indicated the United States is aware of Argentina's continuing territorial disputes with Chile and Britain and does not wish to alter the military balance in the region.

Chile, like Argentina, has not had access to U.S. military supplies for years because of human rights considerations.

Bush is expected to have a private meeting with Alfonsin on Saturday after the inauguration and then will travel to El Salvador on Sunday after a refueling stop in Panama.

Task Force finds no proof of hungry kids

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential counselor Edwin Meese III says he has not seen any authoritative evidence there are hungry children in America and that many people go to soup kitchens "because the food is free and that's easier than paying for it."

In an interview Thursday, Meese said the Task Force on Food Assistance was created by President Reagan in September "to get to the bottom of some of these allegations that have been unsubstantiated."

"So, if there are hungry children, the question is why are they hungry? The United States government is spending more on food assistance than it ever has in history."

Proclaiming World Food Day last Oct. 14, the president said there was "no reason for hunger anywhere in America ... Food and help are available to anyone who is hungry in America." The U.S. Conference of Mayors said in October that economic recovery had not yet reached the hungry in U.S. cities.

"The problem of hunger is indeed continuing to grow in cities despite recent reports and indications of an economic recovery," said the mayors.

They added that the hunger problem "has been exacerbated, clearly, by the recent drastic cuts in federal benefits and the high cost of basic necessities, such as food, shelter and energy."

During the same period, a group of doctors told a House subcommittee that studies in the states of Massachusetts and New York as well as in Chicago found increases in the number of people, especially children and the elderly, suffering from inadequate diets.

Asked about reports of hungry children, Meese said, "I've heard a lot of anecdotal stuff, but I haven't heard any authoritative figures."

"With all the resources of the federal government, with all of the resources of state and local government, with all of the voluntary organizations," he added, "if people are going hungry there must be some problem that has not yet been addressed and it is not lack of funds."

He called some of the allegations "purely political."

He said the Reagan administration has "provided for those who are truly needy" and then added:

"I think some people are going to soup kitchens voluntarily. I know we have considerable information that people go to soup kitchens because the food is free and that's easier than paying for it."

Footsteps of St. Paul...

Make last journey for Jesus

By Tom Tiede

(Fifth of six parts)

CAESAREA, Israel (NEA) — According to accounts in the New Testament, Paul the Apostle made three evangelistic voyages for early Christianity. He traveled as many as 10,000 miles, over a period of more than 20 years; it was a sensational tour de force in what was then the center of civilization.

It was also nothing if not varied. Paul preached in cities and villages, deserts and orchards, by the sea and on mountains. He was in Europe when the snows fell, and Asia when the mosquitoes. He crossed the Bosphorus by boat, and he met Greeks, Arabs, Romans and Jews.

Indeed, the only fixed factor of the trips was the discomfort. There was suffering from Jerusalem to Macedonia. There were great risks as well. Paul once wrote that he spent his entire ministry "in weariness and pain, in cold and nakedness," and in danger at every turn in the road.

This is not to say the road around the Mediterranean was completely hostile. In some respects Paul's journeys were eased by a surprising degree of order. The Romans ruled the earth in Pauline times, which included the byways, and they maintained the latter with armed patrols and conveniences.

So Paul traveled over routes that were complete with milestones, river fords, food depots and guest houses. And he did not have to contend with visas, customs or identity checks. What's more, he made the trips as a Roman citizen, and he was entitled to all privileges and protections of the race.

And yet if the highways of the period were generally secure, Paul discovered the hard way that most of the cities they connected were not. The apostle said he was constantly in "perils of robbers, and in perils of mine own countrymen." He was spreading a new gospel, after all; he was a hated man.

He was hated by the Jews, whom he'd deserted for RUBBLE OF ancient buildings marks Caesarea, where Paul was sent from Jerusalem by the Romans to stand trial for sedition. Today Caesarea is the site of a modern Israeli resort.

Christ. He was hated by some Christians, who felt he was redesigning the faith. At best he was often considered to be a wandering crank, babbling about mysticism and miracles, and he was therefore cursed, heckled, threatened and pelted with stones and fruit.

The hatred actually preceded his long-distance work. The threats began soon after he became a Christian. The scriptures say that when Paul was converted from Judaism near Damascus, he was labeled a traitor, and he had to be lowered in a basket over the wall of the city to escape a plot against his life.

From then on he was never safe again. He was stoned and left for dead in Lycaonia (Turkey). He was stripped, flogged and set in irons in Philippi (Greece). In addition, the Bible says he was scourged at least five times, beaten thrice with rods, and he was shipwrecked on some four occasions.

Paul even complained about bad water on his journeys. But the fact is he probably expected the whole spectrum of abuse. The first premise of Christianity was that true believers became "alter Christus," or just like Christ, and that meant they would suffer in the manner of Jesus for the glory of the church.

As it happened, Paul's sufferings would continue even beyond his missionary travels. And he seemed to know that too. When he completed his third trip in Corinth, in about A.D. 58, he told friends he was going to Jerusalem where he had forebodings about "the things that will befall me there."

He was then almost mobbed and killed in Jerusalem. He visited Solomon's Temple to pray, and he was attacked by Jews who accused him of desecrating the holy site. The Jews cried for Paul's blood, but he was arrested instead, and sent here to Caesarea to stand trial for sedition before the proconsul of Judea.

Caesarea was a leading port then (and pronounced "Kee-zer-eeah" by the Arabs). It was built by Herod the Great to honor the emperor. Today it's an Israeli tourist attraction, hard by a resort hotel and golf course. The ads say the "luxury accommodations are a chip shot away from the ruins of Herod's palace."

Actually, it's more like a one-iron. And nobody is really sure if the king's quarters is among the ruins. The Crusaders destroyed much of the city in the 12th century, and built a place of their own on the rubble. Today one recovered foundation looks like another; there may be nothing left to note Paul's stay.

And perhaps it doesn't matter. There was little that was inspiring when the apostle was here. His trial took two years and ended inconclusively. No one in authority really knew what to do with the evangelist. Finally, Paul ended the long wait by invoking his Roman right to be heard by Caesar himself.

Historians say that may have been a mistake. He might have eventually been set free here if he'd been more patient. But Paul was aging now, he was almost 60, and his wandering days were ending; he may have thought it was time to take the last call of his remarkable missionary to the heart of the known world, to Rome.

And so it was one more voyage for Jesus.

In chains.

Hears program on family...

Local BSP chapter meets
Beta Sigma Phi members heard a program entitled "Family: Rewards Harvested from Family Life" on Dec. 6 when the chapter met at the Martha Ann Woman's Club.
Jacalyn Lowrance presented the program based on information about the family life cycle. The first portion of the program concerned marriage expectations and adjustments followed by the childbearing years and the anxieties and inadequacy as well as the joy felt during this time.
Next Mrs. Lowrance discussed the trials and rewards of dealing with school age children and adolescents. She then discussed the middle years and the aging family. Her program was concluded with a reading from the book, "Men, Women and Marriage," written by Ernest Haveman.
The business meeting for the chapter was conducted by Dena Ellis, president. Following roll call, reading of the minutes and the treasurer's report, committee reports were heard. Mickey Baird reported on membership and Brenda Hedges reported for the scrapbook committee.
Social chairman Beverly Mitchell gave a report on the chapter's annual Christmas party. The dinner meeting will be in the home of Wanda Early on Tuesday, Dec. 13, at 6:30 p.m. Secret sister gifts will be exchanged and gifts will be collected for the chapter's local adopted families.
Betty League gave a report on the families the chapter will give aid to. Members are asked to bring food, toys and clothing to the party.
Mrs. Mitchell also reminded chapter members of the New Year's Day social in the home of Dena and Harold Ellis.
Twila Polk announced that the chapter had extended the Christmas paper sales until Monday, Dec. 12. She said orders would be taken through that date.
Hostesses were Mary Lou Scott and Mona Bryan. The meeting was adjourned with the Closing Ritual and Mizpah.

BOOK REVIEW

ELECTRONIC LIFE: How To Think About Computers. By Michael Crichton. Knopf. 209 Pages. $12.95.
The figures are awesome.
"In 1978, there were about 5,000 desk-top computers in the U.S. In 1982, there were 5 million. In 1980, there were 350,000 computer terminals communicating with a large machine elsewhere; by 1982, there were 3 million such terminals. By 1990, it is estimated there will be 80 million desk-top computers in the U.S."
Imagine, all those computers lurking out there. It's no wonder many people regard them with mixed feelings — usually fear and loathing. But they shouldn't feel that way and they won't after reading "Electronic Life," a primer-style of book in which Michael Crichton takes the fearful in hand and leads them through the outwardly intimidating world of computerese.
Knowing that one of the several things that set people on edge about computers is the seemingly arcane language used by those familiar with the machines, Crichton explains the various terms and phrases in clear, easy-to-understand English. A "byte" no longer bites, for example, after Crichton explains "for a computer the unit of information storage is a group of eight switches working together. These eight bits are called a 'byte.' One letter of the alphabet stored in the computer takes one byte."

Nor does the new technology seem so awesome after he stresses: "Never forget, computers are machines developed by people, programmed by people, fed information by people, and operated by people. What comes out of this Computer-Assisted-Chain-Letter-Exercise (CACLE) reflects human characteristics far more than machine characteristics."
Crichton's text is a valuable introduction to a somewhat alien world.

Yule fare differs from one country to another

By TOM HOGE
AP Wine & Food Writer
For many food writers, Christmas is the signal for eulogizing roast turkey and the trimmings. We occasionally pay tribute to the yuletide roast goose of England, and that's about it.
This year, I have been browsing through foreign cookbooks to see how the yule is celebrated abroad and have made some interesting discoveries. In many countries Christmas Eve is as big an occasion for feasting as the Big Day, and many omit turkey on both occasions.
In Germany, which is rich in game, many cooks build the holiday feast around a wild boar or saddle of venison, especially if there is a hunter in the family. The Germans also have a lavish supper the night before Christmas, usually omitting meat and serving carp or some other fish instead.
In Poland, Christmas Eve is a festive day, with the meal running 12 courses in many homes, to symbolize the Apostles. As in Germany, the Poles avoid meat the night before Christmas with the accent on fish. Herring salad and stuffed pike usually lead off the feast, followed by a large fish, baked or fried and accompanied by sauerkraut or cabbage-stuffed dumplings.
In provincial France, Christmas Eve is also a time-honored event. In the Mediterranean region of Provence, the main dish is usually eel, baked on a layer of chopped leeks moistened with white wine and flavored with garlic, bay leaves and black olives.

In Scandinavia, where December is the bleak time of year when nights are longest, Christmas is an antidote for the gloom. Christmas Eve is the most lavish meal of the year in most homes, but most Scandinavians keep feasting right on through Christmas Day.
In Sweden, for instance, they usher in the yule with a ham and red cabbage that is deliciously flavored. This is accompanied by many side dishes in this land of smorgasbord, such as liver paste, spareribs, spicy sausage and pickled herring. A high point of the meal comes when everyone dips bits of rye bread into the pot of broth in which the ham and sausages were boiled. Here's a recipe for the Swedish red cabbage, called Rodkaal.
1 medium head red cabbage, about 2 1/2 pounds
4 tablespoons butter, in small pieces
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1-3rd cup water
1-3rd cup white vinegar
1/4 cup currant jelly
2 tablespoons grated apple
Wash cabbage in cold water, remove tough outer leaves and cut head in half, top to bottom. Lay flat sides down on chopping board, cut away core and slice cabbage finely. Combine butter, sugar, salt, water and vinegar in 5-quart casserole, preferably stainless steel. When mixture comes to boil and butter has melted, add shredded cabbage and toss well. Bring to boil again, cover and cook in 325-degree oven 2 hours. If cabbage becomes dry, add water. About 10 minutes before vegetable is done, add jelly and grated apple. Replace cover and complete cooking. Serve hot with the roast.

Investors pressured into contributing investigation reveals

DALLAS (AP) — Some investors recruited by promoters of several large condominium projects in suburban Dallas say they were pressured to make $1,000 contributions to specific political candidates, The Dallas Morning News reported today.

According to campaign finance reports, those investors, along with the developers, financiers and their families, contributed at least $90,000 to Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox and at least $65,000 to Gov. Mark White for their statewide races last year.

Those contributors were among at least 150 individuals who personally guaranteed more than $500 million in loans to develop condominium projects concentrated around Lake Ray Hubbard, northeast of Dallas, the News said in a copyright story.

The financing of those projects is under investigation by the FBI, the Texas Savings and Loan Department and the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

A press aide to White said the governor, who attended a December 1982 fund-raising breakfast at the invitation of developer Danny Faulkner, believed that the contributors who attended the gathering were "just local community people." White said he was unaware of any pressure on his behalf.

Mattox was attending a conference of the National Association of Attorneys General in Hawaii and could not be reached for comment Thursday, but his press aide, Elna Christopher, said Mattox "didn't know anything about pressure at all."

The contributions were solicited by Faulkner and developer Clifford R. Sinclair, the investors told the News.

Faulkner could not be reached for comment. Sinclair, president of Kitco Developers Inc. of Mesquite, Texas, has been subpoenaed to provide records and testimony in the state's investigation of the financial condition of savings associations that funded the projects.

Attorneys for Sinclair declined comment. An investigation by the News found that Sinclair

U.S.-British relations sour over decision to lift ban on arms

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher bitterly criticized U.S. economic policies within hours of a U. S. decision to lift the ban on arms sales to Argentina, Britain's enemy in the Falklands war.

As a result, British newspapers reported today "major friction" in U.S.-British relations. One analyst concluded that the Atlantic alliance's staunch allies are undergoing their "most serious rift in 3½ years."

The Daily Mail, which supports Mrs. Thatcher's Conservative government, said Reagan had delivered "a bitter snub" to the prime minister. Relations between the two governments, it said, were at "rock bottom."

"Reagan Sells Out Thatcher," the Daily Mirror, which supports Britain's opposition Labor Party, headlined its report.

The Financial Times, Britain's main business daily, said Mrs. Thatcher's government, which fought a 74-day war in the South Atlantic last year to regain possession of the Falkland Islands, was "seriously upset" over the U.S. decision. The conservative Sun reported "major friction" between London and Washington. The United States backed Britain in its South Atlantic war.

U.S. State Department spokesman Alan Romberg announced Thursday that Argentina's improved human rights performance and its imminent return to democratic government merited a lifting of the arms sale ban, imposed by former President Carter in 1977.

A few hours after Romberg's statement — and shortly before meeting here with U.S. Treasury Secretary Donald Regan — Mrs. Thatcher delivered a scathing attack on Reagan's economic policies. She told the House of Commons that large U.S. budget deficits were hurting Europe and would in time damage the United States as well.

Legislators said they were shocked by the prime minister's vehemence and disdain. Her meeting with Regan was believed to be stormy.

Newspapers and legislators were quick to recall Mrs. Thatcher's words in an interview with the Daily Mail last month.

"The United States lifting the embargo (against Argentina) would be the single most difficult thing for me," she said. "It is the one thing I am very worried about ... very, very concerned indeed."

The rift between the two leaders first surfaced when Reagan, ignoring warnings from Mrs. Thatcher, ordered the invasion of Grenada last October by U.S. troops. Grenada is a former British colony and its governor-general is a representative of the queen.

Another point of friction is the reported American failure to keep Britain informed about its intentions in Lebanon. Mrs. Thatcher on Wednesday ruled out demands for Britain to withdraw its 110-man contingent from the multinational peacekeeping force in Beirut but indicated she thought there was a need for closer consultation with the Reagan administration.

Dear Abby

Pregnant Bride-to-Be Sings Wedding Blues

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I'm 22 and my fiance is 21. I'll call him "Leon." We've been engaged for two years, but we never set a wedding date because Leon wanted to pay off his motorcycle, van and boat first.

Well, in the two years we've been engaged, I've had two abortions, and I just found out I'm pregnant again. I honestly don't know how this keeps happening, Abby. I've been on the pill for two years and I hardly ever forget to take it. Leon never uses any protection because it's against his religion.

He wants me to get another abortion, but this time I think we'd better keep the baby and get married. I've always wanted a pretty church wedding. My parents promised me one, but I'm afraid if I tell them I'm pregnant, I won't get the wedding. Also, the kind of wedding I want will take four or five months to plan, and I'll be showing by then. Please tell me what to do.

IN LOVE IN TAMPA

DEAR IN LOVE: Tell your parents you are pregnant and want to be married as soon as possible. Forgo the kind of wedding that will take four or five months to plan. There's no reason why your wedding can't be both pretty and prompt. And if it's against Leon's religion to use birth control, tell him to use self-control.

DEAR ABBY: Please, settle this long-standing dispute between my daughter-in-law and me.

I say that when we are out for dinner and I am the host and the bill comes to the table, the guests should engage in polite conversation and show no interest in the check.

My daughter-in-law not only insists on knowing how much the bill is, she offers her unsolicited opinion on how much the tip should be!

Please print your answer. I want to show it to her.

STORMY IN SUNLAND, CALIF.

DEAR STORMY: The amount of the bill and the size of the tip should be the exclusive concern of the host or hostess. Your daughter-in-law should contribute her opinion only if she is going to contribute to the bill.

DEAR ABBY: I just returned from picking up my 9-year-old son at school, and I am at the end of my rope.

This is the fourth time in as many days that "Johnny's" teacher called and asked me to pick up Johnny because he had wet his pants. Today she told me that unless something is done about this I will have to take him out of school.

Johnny stopped wetting his bed when he was 4, but he has not as yet achieved consistent daytime dryness. Sometimes he will be fine for weeks, then for no apparent reason he starts to wet his pants again. It doesn't matter if he's in school or on vacation, he still wets his pants.

I've had him to a pediatrician, then to a urologist, and neither doctor could find anything physically wrong, so I took him to a child psychologist. She said, "Ignore it and don't make an issue of it; in time the boy will outgrow it."

This is very hard to ignore, Abby. Now what?

END OF ROPE

DEAR END: Take the psychologist's advice, then ask her to write (or telephone) Johnny's teacher enlisting her patience and cooperation.

To expel the boy from school for this reason would only compound his problem. In the meantime, buy him some disposable, absorbent, diaper-type underpants with plastic linings. Your urologist can tell you where to get them.

Woman depressed over inability to have child

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Elizabeth Bouvia's futile attempts to have a child and the state's refusal to pay for experimental treatment that might have eased her paralysis were setbacks that made the cerebral palsy victim want to die, her estranged husband says.

"She said, 'Why is this happening? What can I do to change it?'" Richard Bouvia testified. "A lot of times she cried herself to sleep."

Bouvia, who married the 26-year-old quadriplegic after his release from prison in 1982, offered intimate glimpses of the failed marriage Thursday, the fourth day of a courtroom drama which has pitted one woman's desire to die against the determination by the medical profession and the county to keep her alive.

Ms. Bouvia says death is preferable to her painful, hopeless, dependent plight in life. She wants Riverside General Hospital to let her die there without forcing her to eat, but supplying her with pain killers and personal hygiene.

Dr. Donald E. Fisher, the hospital's chief of psychiatry, says he will force-feed her no matter what the courts decide because he believes she is attempting to commit suicide with professional help, which is illegal.

Ms. Bouvia's husband, 36, said they were married Aug. 25, 1982 and one of his wife's strongest desires was to have a baby — "this was one of her most important things in life."

He said she became depressed when, several months after their marriage, she still was not pregnant.

Bouvia said doctors found his sperm count was too low.

He also said Ms. Bouvia dropped out of college when she was told her handicap would get in the way of her studies.

Ms. Bouvia had testified earlier that depression and recent circumstances of her life had little to do with her decision to die.

Superior Court Judge John H. Hews could decide the matter today.

The case, raising novel legal issues and placing the American Civil Liberties Union in the position of advocating a person's right to die, has brought other cerebral palsy victims and right-to-life advocates to the small courtroom 55 miles east of Los Angeles.

Hews must decide whether to issue a preliminary injunction sought by Ms. Bouvia to prevent the hospital from force-feeding her and giving her medication against her will.

Hawks win, 70-66...

Westerners edged in overtime

By BILL MCCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

Western Texas College hit only three of its nine overtime field goals here Thursday - one of seven through 4:50 of the five minute period - and went down in a heartbreaker to Howard College, 70-66.

The loss was made more difficult because Western played a good game overall. Howard simply played four points better down the stretch, and that was the difference in the contest.

Western never led in the extra period though the team rallied from a five-point deficit to tie the game at 62-62 with 2:53 left. Fred Johnson locked up the score when former WTC coach Mike Mitchell was cited for a technical. Those were the last consecutive points the Westerners were to make until the 10-second mark however, as they failed to convert on their next five trips down the floor.

Howard meanwhile, broke the tie with a bucket from Dwight Harris at 1:49 and led 66-62 when Johnson was called for goal tending with under a minute left. It became 68-62 with 26 ticks remaining when Maurice Hoskin put up a pair of freethrows.

Western trimmed the margin to four points on a field goal by Lamesa freshman Victor Spencer, but with 10 seconds left, only a miracle could have saved the Westerners, and it didn't happen.

Western Texas Coach Barry Davis said the Westerners' lack of shooting success was not the difference in the game. "They just outplayed us at the end. You can't start pinpointing any one thing," he said, adding, "Maybe we could have done a better job shooting our freethrows."

Western was six of 11 for the game, three of six in overtime. But Davis was more upset over the fact that Howard went to the line 32 times. The Hawks cashed in on 14 of them.

"We only shot 11. They shoot 29 (32 officially) and we have 11. We were running a zone and they were running a man (defense) in the first half," he said. "That is a difficult task to overcome. It was a well played ballgame. (But) It was a terribly officiated ballgame. And when I say terribly officiated, I mean on both ends."

Davis was right about the officiating. The men in striped shirts missed more calls than a skeet shoot for the blind, and it had him and Coach Mitchell in knots throughout the game. It was a rough and tumble matchup, and the officials lost control early.

Still, Western had a chance to win this one with 15 seconds left in regulation, but couldn't locate the hoop. The same was true for Howard when Richie Fells' fourth foul with five seconds left put Jerry Stroman at the line for two shots. The 6-6 sophomore missed them both and the game went into overtime, 57-57.

Howard grabbed a quick five-point lead in the extra period when Maurice Hoskin and James Johnson sandwiched five points around two missed buckets by the Westerners. With 3:14, Fred Johnson went to the line for WTC, but his shots wouldn't fall either. Navasota sophomore Larry Banks finally put the Westerners in the money when he tipped in the last missed freethrow, 62-59.

Spencer made it a two-point game when he hit on one of two freethrow attempts with 3:03 left and Johnson's two shots off the technical tied the game.

The contest had been a close one all the way. Howard took a 33-31 lead into the dressing room at halftime. The Hawks increased it to as many as five points when Harris hit a freethrow and Stroman bagged a bucket early in the second half. WTC met the challenge as Banks rattled off two field goals and Johnson hit another, however.

Western also led by five points at one time in the second half, but was unable to hold it.

Fells' 19 points led all scorers. Johnson knocked down 16 and Banks had 10. For the Hawks, Stroman scored 17, James Johnson 14, Hoskins 11 and Harris 10.

It was Howard's 11th win in 12 tries and puts the Hawks at 3-0 in conference play. Western falls to 7-6 and 1-3.

Brown still thinking of making comeback

CLEVELAND (AP) - Former Cleveland Browns fullback Jim Brown, who rushed for more yards than any other runner in National Football League history, says there is a 50-50 chance he will end an 18-year retirement and try a comeback.

Brown retired in 1966 after nine NFL seasons in which he gained 12,312 yards rushing.

Brown said two weeks ago he would come out of retirement if Pittsburgh Steelers fullback Franco Harris, still active and with a 11,791-yard career rushing total, breaks his record.

Brown, asked Thursday

RJC games cancelled

Saturday's Western Texas College games with Ranger Junior College have been cancelled. The teams were to have played in Ranger.

With the cancellations, Western Texas will not play again until after the holiday break.

The Dusters will return to play in the Tonkawa Tournament on Jan. 5, while the Westerners will play next in the South Plains Classic on Jan. 13.

by The (Cleveland) Plain Dealer if he is still interested in the comeback, said, "It is 50-50 whether I will return to pro football."

Brown indicated that Harris' performance no longer weighs much in his thinking.

"It looks as if Franco doesn't care about breaking my record," Brown said.

Brown also said he does not understand why there was so much attention paid to reports of his comeback idea.

Brown played his entire pro career in Cleveland, but he is now a free agent. He said that sometime after the Super Bowl, he will meet with Al Davis to see if he might be able to play next season with the Los Angeles Raiders.

Dusters ranked 14th in nation

Western Texas College's Dusters are ranked No. 14 in the nation according to the first junior college women's basketball poll released by the National Junior College Athletic Association.

Dusters Coach Joe Cushing informed the press following Thursday's 79-56 victory over Howard College.

"We're excited about it," said Cushing. "I'm pleased for the kids because they've worked so hard. At same time we've got to remember that we still have a lot of ballgames left."

Three other Texas teams are in the women's rankings, led by No. 1 rated Odessa College. The Dusters play Odessa in Snyder on Jan. 16.

Also ranked are No. 6 McLennan and No. 13 Henderson County.

Laredo is ranked No. 1 in the men's juco poll. San Jacinto, last year's NJCAA champion, is No. 7.

Duster defense overpowers Hawks Queens here, 79-56

Western Texas' Dusters tore off 17 unanswered points midway through the first half here Thursday and carried it on into the win column as they defeated Howard College, 79-56 in Western Junior College Athletic Conference action.

The win leaves WTC at 14-3 for the season and 2-0 in WJCAA play. Howard drops to 11-6 and 0-2.

The outburst began as WTC trailed 11-8 with 12 minutes to go in the half. Freshman guard Rhonda Hoelting broke the ice with a freethrow and post Clara Campbell tied the game, but it was forward Renvy Evans who led the way.

The 6-0 freshman from Greenwood played fine defense and basketed seven of the 17 points that had Western ahead 25-11 with 6:27 to play.

Howard finally retaliated, but Western unfolded for another eight straight points - six from sophomore Mary Nell Clayton this time - to lead 35-15.

The whole episode was a disaster for Queens' forwards Alex Provincio and Patricia Carter, who were both whistled for four fouls in the first half. That caused the pair of freshmen to play cautiously for the remainder of the game, and WTC took advantage.

"They (Provincio and Carter) are two of Howard's best players and that had an effect on the team. I'm sure the game at Howard (Big Spring) will be a lot tougher. They caught us on a night where everything clicked for us. I was definitely surprised at the margin," said Cushing. "But our defense had a lot to do with it too. I can't say enough about how well we played defense. It was just super. It was no one individual, just a total team effort. I was impressed myself," he grinned.

Western led 40-22 at the half and kept a 16-20 point margin until the clock read 8:06 and Kari Robinson stuck up four straight points for the Queens. Minutes later Shelly Kay added three more points and Howard trailed by 11, 60-49.

If the Queens had thoughts of getting back into the game, they quickly vanished, however. Cushing instructed the Dusters to get the job inside to Campbell, and she went to work. The 6-2 player from Dallas led Western on a 12-point spree in which she canned eight herself.

"We got Rhonda on the corner and we wanted to get the ball into 'Speed' (Campbell) because we knew they couldn't afford to foul her. That's when we opened up another big lead," said the coach.

While the Dusters' offense was clicking, its defense was outstanding, allowing the visitors only two points in a three minute and 31 second span. The result was a 23-point, 74-51 lead and a coast-to-home victory.

"It's a big, big win for us," beamed Cushing. "A good one to go into the holidays on. I'm really proud of the kids."

Campbell had 22 points and Clayton 20 while Evans bagged 9 and Karen Kuykendall had 8. Kuykendall had 11 boards.

Western shot a solid 31 of 50 from the stripe, led by Clayton's 10 of 11 performance. Howard made it 10 of the line 23 times, converting on 14.

Carter scored 13 for the Queens - all but four in the first half - while Janene Berry had 10 and Provincio scored 9.

Steinkuhler wins Lombardi Award

HOUSTON (AP) - Dean Steinkuhler, a hulking offensive guard for the top-ranked Nebraska Cornhuskers, shared the honor of being college football's best lineman with the nation's top running back.

Steinkuhler 6-foot-3 and 275 pounds, won the 14th annual Lombardi Award on Thursday night over Doug Dawson of Texas, Bill Fralic of Pittsburgh and Reggie White of Tennessee.

Part of the award, given in honor of the late Green Bay Packers Coach Vince Lombardi, belonged to Mike Rozier, winner of the 1983 Heisman Trophy, Steinkuhler said.

"Any time you have a guy like Mike behind you, it can't help but make the line look better," Steinkuhler said after receiving the award. "I want to thank Mike, without him I probably wouldn't be here. People don't get up on Sunday morning and read our (the offensive linemen's) stats in the paper."

The four finalists were chosen by a panel of 158 college football coaches, sports writers and sportscasters to receive the 40-

Monterey, Wichita Falls Rider, El Paso Burgess and Midland High - all 5A schools - as first-round winners.

In order, Monterey defeated Odessa Permian 75-65; Burgess downed Borger 61-39; Lindale cracked Amarillo Palo Duro 71-57; Wichita Falls outlasted Snyder by an identical score, 71-57; and Midland popped Lubbock High, 68-58.

Three other schools, including No. 2 rated 3A squad Abernathy, were to enter the three-day tournament today. Abernathy was to open this morning's action at 8:30 against Lubbock Monterey, while Big Spring was to meet Rider at 10. Burgess and Lindale were to square off at 11:30, followed by Midland and Lubbock Estacado at 1.

Abernathy, Big Spring and Estacado all received first-round byes.

In other play today, host Snyder was to play Odessa Permian at 2:30 and Borger will challenge Palo Duro at 4. Lubbock is to meet the Borger-Palo Duro winner at 8:30 tonight.

Several other loser's games were scheduled, depending on today's earlier outcomes. Fans are urged to check tournament brackets located at the coliseum for updated results.

Winner's bracket semifinals are set for 9:30 and 11 Saturday in the coliseum. The contest for fifth place is at 3:30, consolation at 5, third place at 6:30 and the championship game at 8.

Tickets are $2.50 for adults and $1 for students, per day.

Rider ignites to fire past Tigers in fourth quarter

Wichita Falls Rider forgot its offense in the first half here Thursday. Unfortunately for Snyder's Tigers, they found it in the second half.

After being held to five points apiece in the first 16 minutes, Rider's Ronnie Williams and Greg Roland blitzed the hoop in the final 16, scoring 33 between them to lead Wichita Falls to a 71-57 victory.

The loss knocked Snyder to the loser's bracket to face Odessa Permian at 2:30, while Rider was to play Big Spring at 10 this morning.

Snyder had a lot to do with the visitors' slow start. The Tigers played good team ball throughout the first two quarters and most of the third, but Rider's advantages in height and experience eventually took control.

Snyder led by as much as 10 points in the game when Sunny Cobb banked one off the glass to give the Tigers a 24-14 advantage midway through the second quarter. The Tigers went into halftime holding a 30-21 lead.

Wichita Falls cut the margin to three points on field goals by Williams and Roland and a pair of freeshots from Eric Buford early in the fourth quarter. The teams then traded points before 6-3 Alan Lucas tied the game with under a minute to play. Marcus McGlothlin bagged a Tiger field goal just before the buzzer, and Snyder led 45-43 heading into the final quarter.

The Tigers got a break at the outset of the fourth period when Jeff Daniels was called for a foul and Rider coach Terry Richter's objection drew a technical. Chad Peterson went to the line to bag three of four shots, giving the hosts a 48-43 lead.

That was Snyder's final moment to shine, however. Rider retaliated with 12 straight points, including a three-point play by Scott Colley, to turn the game around. When John Murphy finally scored Snyder's first field goal of the period, it left the Tigers trailing 55-50.

Williams, 6-4, had 23 points for the contest while Roland, 6-1, added 20. The visitors went to the line 32 times, converting on 23 of them.

Snyder was led by Peterson's 19 points. Murphy had 14 and Greathouse added 8. Snyder was 19 of 34 from the stripe.

The loss leaves Snyder at 1-6 for the season. All six losses have come from Class 5A opponents.

Fran Tarkenton set a National Football League record with 342 touchdown passes, 239 coming in the uniform of the Minnesota Vikings.
